SEC. 3. CREATION OF MANAGEMENT AUTHORITY FOR DESIGNATED TARP RECIPIENTS.

(a) FEDERAL ASSISTANCE LIMITED.—Notwithstanding any provision of the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008, or any other provision of law, no funds may be expended under the Troubled Asset Relief Program, or any other provision of that Act, on or after the date of enactment of this Act, until the Secretary transfers all voting, non-voting, and common equity in any designated TARP recipient to a limited liability company established by the Secretary for such purpose, to be held and managed in trust on behalf of the United States taxpayers.

(1) IN GENERAL.—The trustees shall liquidate the trust established under this section, including the assets held by such trust, not later than December 24, 2011, unless—

By Mr. KYL. (for himself and Mr. CORNYN):

S. 1726. A bill to reauthorize the expiring intelligence tools of the USA PATRIOT Improvement and Reauthorization Act of 2005 and defend against terrorism through improved classified procedures and criminal law reforms, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, earlier this month, we paid homage to those who lost their lives in the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001. Those attacks changed our nation forever, including how we combat the very real and continuing threat of terrorism. One of the most important changes that we made in the wake of September 11 was the enactment of the PATRIOT Act. That legislation, which had strong bipartisan support in the Congress, provided for a number of common sense changes designed to give our national security intelligence community the same tools our police and FBI agents can use against drug dealers and organized crime. Although many of the PATRIOT Act's provisions are now permanent, three critical national security tools—the “wiretap” authority contained in Section 206 of the PATRIOT Act; the “business records” authority contained in Section 215 of the PATRIOT Act; and the “lone wolf” authority contained in Section 6001 of the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004—will expire on December 31 of this year.

The tools in the PATRIOT Act are as necessary today as they were when first enacted. Just this month, the government confirmed that the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978, FISA, which includes PATRIOT Act provisions, was used to build a case against Najibullah Zazi. Although many details remain classified, it appears as if Najibullah Zazi was an al Qaeda associate who was planning to detonate bombs within the U.S.

Similarly, it has been reported that the FBI likely used its roving wiretap and business records authorities—two of the PATRIOT Act's expiring provisions—to thwart a terrorist plot uncovered earlier this year in New York, in which four former convicts who converted to radical Islam plotted to use explosives to blow up synagogues and shoot down airplanes with surface-to-air missiles.

Those are two high-profile examples from just this year. There are no doubt countless of other instances, not known to the public, where PATRIOT Act authorities have been used by our national security professionals to keep Americans safe. Recognizing the importance of these tools, the Department of Justice has written the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee to urge renewal of the expiring provisions of the PATRIOT Act. In addition, FBI Director Mueller and David Kris, the Assistant Attorney General for the National Security Division, both expressed their strong support for these authorities in testimony before the Judiciary Committee this month.

The reality is that the war on terrorism is not going to sunset. Neither should the tools that our investigators and analysts rely upon to prevent attack. That is why Mr. CORNYN and I are introducing today the USA PATRIOT Reauthorization and Additional Weapons Against Terrorism Act of 2009. This legislation permanently renews the three expiring PATRIOT Act provisions and addresses other critical national security needs.

I. RENEWING THE ROVING WIRETAP AUTHORITY

The roving wiretap authority allows the Government, in certain circumstances, to focus surveillance efforts on monitoring a particular target rather than a particular telephone number. Gone are the days when you used only one phone at home or in the office. Cell phones are ubiquitous. The point is to intercept the calls of a particular person, not a particular phone. Even so, the Government may have such authority only in limited circumstances. It must provide the FISA Court with “specific facts” indicating that the “actions of the target of the application may have the effect of thwarting the identification” of third parties necessary to accomplish the ordered surveillance. This tool helps ensure that investigators and analysts may overcome a target’s efforts to avoid surveillance, for example, rapidly switching cell phone numbers.

As the Department of Justice noted in its September 14, 2009, letter to Chairman LEAHY, the roving wiretap authority has “proven an important intelligence-gathering tool in a small but significant subset of FISA electronic surveillance orders.” The Department’s letter explains that the authority has been used judiciously—on average, only 22 applications for roving wiretaps have been made per year—and that “the basic justification offered to Congress in 2001 for the roving authority remains valid today. . . . Any effective surveillance mechanism must incorporate the ability to rapidly address an unanticipated change in the target’s communications behavior.”

II. RENEWING THE BUSINESS RECORDS AUTHORITY

The business records authority allows the FISA Court, under appro-appropriate circumstances, to compel the production of needed business records. In its September 14 letter, the Department of Justice expressed its strong support for the business records provision, stating that it “addresses a gap in intelligence collection authorities and has proven valuable in a number of contexts.” The Department stated that some of the acquired “orders were used to support important and highly sensitive intelligence collection operations, of which both Members of the Intelligence Committee and their staffs are aware.” Although some have questioned the scope and use of this authority, it is important to acknowledge that no one has challenged a business records order in court, even though an explicit right to file such a challenge took effect in 2006. Such authority also exists in at least 300 federal government investigative contexts.

III. RENEWING THE LONE WOLF AUTHORITY

The “lone wolf” provision fills a critical intelligence gap in situations where the government can establish that a non-United States person is engaged in international terrorism but cannot yet identify the foreign power or terrorist group to which he belongs. Although this authority has not yet been used, the Department of Justice made clear in its September 14 letter that there are foreseeable situations in which such an authority “would be the only avenue to effective surveillance.” The Department stated that “it is essential to have the tool available for the rare situation in which it is necessary rather than to delay surveillance of a terrorist in the hopes that the necessary links are established.” Had we had this authority at the time, we could have examined the computer of Zacarias Moussaoui, perhaps gaining enough information to provide some warning of 9/11. Terrorists do not carry membership cards in organizations, but it does not make them any less dangerous.

IV. ADDRESSING OTHER NATIONAL SECURITY NEEDS

In addition to reauthorizing these important national security tools, this legislation responds to several other national security needs. For example, it clarifies what kind of information and disclosures trigger the procedures of the Classified Information Procedures Act, CIPA. This clarification is designed to resolve the difficulties created by the Fourth Circuit’s approach in United States v. Moussaoui. The legislation also prohibits individuals from providing material support—for example, providing money to support a suicide bomber’s family—to international terrorism efforts. It makes it illegal to conspire to violate the current prohibition on receiving military-type training from a foreign terrorist organization. It prohibits the use, transfer, mass transfer, production, and trafficking of false travel documents. Finally, it ensures that convicted terrorists and sex offenders will not be released pending sentencing or appeal.

These are good, common sense provisions that all members should be able to support. I look forward to working with my colleagues on both sides to ensure that our national security professionals have the tools they need to continue finding and apprehending terrorists before they attack.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. RES. 291

Whereas there are approximately 510,000 children in the foster care system in the United States, approximately 129,000 of whom are waiting for families to adopt them;

Whereas 61 percent of the children in foster care are age 10 or younger;

Whereas the average length of time a child spends in foster care is over 3 years;

Whereas, for many foster children, the wait for a loving family in which they are nurtured, comforted, and protected seems endless;

Whereas the number of youth who “age out” of foster care by reaching adulthood without being placed in a permanent home has continued to increase since 1998, and more than 26,000 foster youth age out every year;

Whereas every day loving and nurturing families are strengthened and expanded when committed and dedicated individuals make an important difference in the life of a child through adoption;

Whereas a 2007 survey conducted by the Dave Thomas Foundation for Adoption demonstrated that though “Americans overwhelmingly support the concept of adoption, and in particular foster care adoption . . . foster care adoptions have not increased significantly over the past five years”;

Whereas, while 4 in 10 Americans have considered adoption, a majority of Americans have misperceptions about the process of adopting children from foster care and the children who are eligible for adoption;

Whereas 71 percent of those who have considered adoption consider adopting children from foster care above other forms of adoption;

Whereas 45 percent of Americans believe that children enter the foster care system because of juvenile delinquency, when in reality the vast majority of children who have entered the foster care system were victims of neglect, abandonment, or abuse;

Whereas 46 percent of Americans believe that foster care adoption is expensive, when in reality there is no substantial cost for adopting from foster care and financial support is available to adoptive parents after the adoption is finalized;

Whereas both National Adoption Day and National Adoption Month occur in November;

Whereas National Adoption Day is a collective national effort to find permanent, loving families for children in the foster care system;

Whereas, since the first National Adoption Day in 2000, more than 25,000 children have joined forever families during National Adoption Day;

Whereas, in 2008, adoptions were finalized for over 4,500 children through more than 325 National Adoption Day events in all 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and Guam; and
