§30.20 RECORDED VOTE

A recorded vote by electronic device was ordered in the Committee of the Whole on the following amendment in the nature of a substitute submitted by Mr. MICHEL:

—Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

TITLE I—AMENDMENTS TO THE ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY EDUCATION ACT OF 1965

SEC. 101. AMENDMENTS TO THE ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY EDUCATION ACT OF 1965.

The Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 is amended to read as follows:

“SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE

“This Act may be cited as the “Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965”.

“TITLE I—HELPING CHILDREN IN NEED MEET HIGH STANDARDS

“SEC. 1001. DECLARATION OF POLICY AND STATEMENT OF PURPOSE.

“(a) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—The Congress declares it to be the policy of the United States that a high-quality education for all citizens and a fair and equal opportunity to obtain that education—

“(1) are a societal good necessary for creating a vibrant future for our complex and diverse democracy and for meeting the challenge of an internationally competitive economy;

“(2) are a private good because individual opportunity is greatly enhanced by one's being well educated;

“(3) are a moral imperative in our society; simple justice demands that the opportunity to acquire skills and knowledge deemed necessary for basic citizenship and economic opportunity be equally available to all; and

“(4) improve the life of every citizen, because the quality of our individual lives ultimately depends on the quality of the lives of others.

“(b) RECOGNITION OF NEED.—The Congress recognizes that—

“(1) although the achievement gap between disadvantaged children and other children has been reduced by half over the past two decades, a sizeable gap remains, and many segments of our society lack the opportunity to become well educated;

“(2) the most urgent need for educational improvement is in schools with high concentrations of children from low-income families. Achieving the National Education Goals will not be possible without substantial improvement in these schools;

“(3) educational needs are particularly great for low-achieving children in our highest-poverty schools, children with limited English proficiency, children with disabilities, children of migrant workers, Indian children, children who are neglected or delinquent, and young children and their parents who are in need of family-literacy services; and

“(4) while title I and other programs funded under this Act have contributed to narrowing the achievement gap between children in high-poverty and low-poverty schools, they need to become even more effective in improving high-poverty schools in order to help enable all children to achieve high standards.

“(c) WHAT HAS BEEN LEARNED.—To enable schools to provide all children a high-quality education, this title builds upon what has been learned:

“(1) All children can master challenging content and complex problem-solving skills; research clearly shows that children, including low-achieving children, can succeed when expectations are high and they are given the opportunity to learn challenging material.

“(2) Piecemeal reform, particularly when not tied to an overall vision of teaching to, and helping all children reach, high standards, does not work.

“(3) Use of low-level tests that are not aligned with schools' curricula fails to provide adequate information about what children know and can do and encourages curricula and instruction that focus on low-level skills measured by those tests.

“(4) Resources are less effective when they serve children through such practices as pull-out programs, instead of ensuring that children have full access to effective regular school programs and receive supplemental help through extended-time activities.

“(5) The disproven theory that children must first learn basic skills before engaging in more complex tasks continues to dominate strategies for classroom instruction, resulting in emphasis on repetitive drill and practice at the expense of content-rich instruction, accelerated curricula, and effective teaching to high standards.

“(6) Intensive and sustained professional development for teachers and other school staff—focused on teaching and learning and on helping children attain high standards—is too often not provided.

“(7) Insufficient attention and resources are directed toward the effective use of technology in schools and the role it can play in professional development and improved teaching and learning.

“(8) All parents can contribute to their children's success by helping at home and becoming partners with teachers so that children can achieve high standards.

“(9) Decentralized decisionmaking is a key ingredient of systemic reform. Schools need the resources, flexibility, and responsibility to design and implement effective strategies for bringing their children to high levels of
