*NOT JUST RECRUITS.
THE RIGHT RECRUITS.*

Marine Corps Recruiters have the responsibility of identifying the next generation of United States Marines. We're looking for people who have the motivation and ability to become defenders of our nation's future.

As you explore your options, we'll promise two things: We'll help you find out if the Marine Corps is right for you, and we'll discover if you're right for us.

A photograph of several Marines in camouflage uniforms and helmets, equipped with gear and rifles, moving through a field of tall grass and trees. The scene is captured in a cinematic style with warm, golden-hour lighting. The focus is on a Marine in the foreground on the right, with others in the background slightly out of focus.

FIND OUT WHO YOU ARE AT YOUR BEST

We make Marines, but we don't start from scratch. It requires finding those who have the resilience to push through difficulty in every situation, every scenario—every time. To meet our standard, you must believe in our nation's cause and be willing to fight through anything, with everything you've got.

If you have the character, resolve, and will, the Marine Corps will sharpen, define, and focus those traits in you until they can be counted on to win for our nation.

THE ANSWERS YOU NEED.
THE ANSWERS WE NEED.

Becoming a Marine is both a noble path and a demanding journey, reserved for those with the willingness to engage and the determination to defeat every physical, mental, and moral adversary. For the few who possess this ability, the Marine Corps offers a life of purpose and belonging like no other.

FIND OUT IF THIS PATH IS YOUR PATH

By meeting with a recruiter, you'll have direct access to an experienced Marine who has trained as a recruit, served alongside fellow warriors, and knows both what it takes to become a Marine and what it means to win for our nation as one.

We are ready to help you determine if you belong on the Marine path.
