D. News and editorial materials. The commander and the public affairs staff shall generate and select news, information, photographs, editorial, and other materials to be used. Authorized news and information sources include the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs (OASD(PA)), AFIS, the Military Departments, their subordinate levels of command, and other Government Agencies. Civilian community service news and announcements of benefit to personnel assigned to the command or installation and their family members may also be used. Photographic images used will be in compliance with §247.4(r).

E. Assignment of personnel. Military and DoD civilian personnel may not be assigned to duty at the premises of the contract printer to perform any job functions that are part of the business activities or contractual responsibilities of the contract printer. Members of the public affairs staff who produce editorial content may work on the premises as liaison and monitor to specify and coordinate layout and other production details provided for in the command contract with the contract printer. A member of the public affairs staff shall review proof copy to prevent mistakes.

F. Funding. The expense of publishing and distributing Funded newspapers and magazines is charged to appropriated funds of the publishing command.

G. Printing. Printing of a funded publication shall be handled in accordance with DoD Directive 5300.3 in conjunction with the DoD Component’s printing function with public affairs as the office of primary publishing interest. The use of color is authorized if the cognizant commander, the DoD Component’s printing function and the PAO determine it enhances communication.

H. Distribution. Funded publications may be distributed through official channels. Appropriated funds and manpower may be used.
Pt. 247, App. B

for distribution of Funded publications, as required.

I. Advertising. Funded publications shall not carry commercial advertising. As a service, the Funded newspaper may carry nonpaid listings of personally owned items and services for sale by members of the command. Noncommercial news stories and announcements concerning nonappropriated fund activities and commissaries may be published in funded publications.

J. Employment and gratuities. DoD personnel shall not accept any gratuities from or employment with any GPO-contracted printer in violation of the DoD 5500.7-R; the Joint Ethics Regulation. In addition, DoD personnel whose spouse or children (or other relatives as described in the Joint Ethics Regulation) are offered employment by, or work for, a GPO-contracted printer, must take appropriate action to avoid conflicts of interest.

APPENDIX B TO PART 247—CE PUBLICATIONS

A. Purpose. CE publications consist of DoD newspapers, magazines, guides, and installation maps. They support command internal communications. The commander or public affairs office provides oversight and final approval authority for the news and editorial content of the publication. CE publishers sell advertising to cover costs and secure earnings, print the publications, and may make all or part of the distribution. Periodically, CE publishers compete for contracts to publish these publications. Neither appropriated nor nonappropriated funds shall be used to pay for any part of a CE publisher's costs incurred in publishing a CE publication.

B. Name. The name of the publication may include the name of the command or installation, or the name of the command or installation may appear separately in the nameplate (flag). The emblem of the command or installation may also be included in the nameplate. When possible, the DoD Components and their subordinates shall trademark the names of their publications, as stated in §247.6(d).

C. Masthead. The masthead shall include the following in addition to that required in §247.4(i) and (j). "The editorial content of this publication is the responsibility of the (name of command or installation) Public Affairs Office." The names of the Commanding officer and PAO, the names and editorial titles of the staff assigned the duty of preparing the editorial content, and the office address and telephone number of the editor, shall be listed in the masthead of DoD newspapers, but is not required in CE guides and installation maps. The names of the publisher and employees of the publisher may be listed separately.

D. News and editorial materials. The commander or the public affairs office shall provide oversight and final approval authority for news, information, photographs, editorial, and other materials to be used in a CE publication in the space allotted for that purpose by written contract with the commercial publisher. Authorized news and information sources include the OASD(PA), AFIS, the Military Departments and their subordinate levels of command, and other Government Agencies. CE contractor personnel may provide material for use in the publication if approved by the commander or PAO, as the commander's representative.

Commercial news and opinion sources, such as AP, UPI, New York Times, etc., are normally authorized for use in DoD publications except as stated in §247.4(q). Newspapers may publish community service news and announcements of the civilian community for the benefit of command or installation personnel and their families. Imagery used will be in compliance with §247.4(r).

E. Assignment of personnel. Neither military nor DoD civilian personnel shall be assigned to duty at the premises of the CE publisher. Neither military nor DoD civilian personnel shall perform any job functions that are part of the business activities or contractual responsibilities of the CE publisher other than the contractor's facility or the Government facility. The PAO and staff who produce the non-advertising content of the CE publication may perform certain installation liaison functions on publisher premises including monitoring and coordinating layout and design and other publishing details set forth in the contract to ensure the effective presentation of information. One or more members of the public affairs staff shall review proof copy to prevent mistakes. Newspaper text-editing, system pagination and copy terminals owned by the CE publisher may be placed in the command or installation public affairs office under contractual agreement for use by the public affairs staff to coordinate layout and ensure that the preparation of editorial material is performed in such a way as to enhance the efficiency and effectiveness of the printing and publication functions performed by the CE publisher. All costs of these terminals shall be borne by the CE newspaper publishers who shall retain title to the equipment and full responsibility for any damage to or loss of such equipment. The relationship between the public affairs staff and employees of the CE contractor is that of Government employees working with employees of a private contractor. Supervision of CE employees; that is, the responsibility to rate performance, set rate of pay, grant vacation time, exercise discipline, assign day-to-day administrative tasks, etc., remains with the CE publisher. Any modification of the contract must be made by the responsible contracting officer. Public affairs staff members must be aware that employees of the contractor are not employees of the government and should be treated accordingly.

Pt. 247, App. B

F. Distribution of CE publications.

1. A funded newspaper shall not be distributed as an insert to a CE newspaper, unless provided for in the CE contract, nor shall a CE newspaper be distributed as an insert to a funded newspaper.

2. Supplements, clearly labeled as such, and advertising inserts, may be inserted into and distributed with a CE newspaper.

3. The commercial publisher of a CE publication shall make as much of the distribution to the intended readership as possible. CE publications may be distributed through official channels.

4. Except as authorized by the next higher headquarters for special situations or occasions (such as an installation open house), CE publications shall not be distributed outside the intended DoD audience and retirees, which includes family members. Electronic publication on the internet/world wide web is not considered distribution outside the intended DoD audience. The CE publisher may provide complete copies of each specific issue of a CE publication to an advertiser whose advertisement is carried therein.

5. The CE publisher of a CE newspaper will provide the appropriate number of newspaper racks determined by the installation commander for publication distribution.

CE PUBLISHERS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR MAINTENANCE OF THESE RACKS.

6. CE guides, magazines, and installation maps may be delivered in bulk quantities to the appropriate installation offices to distribute these publications through official channels as necessary.

G. Responsibilities regarding advertising.

1. Only the CE publisher shall use the space agreed upon for advertising. While the editorial content of the publication is completely controlled by the installation, the advertising section, including its content, is the responsibility of the CE publisher. The public affairs staff, however, retains the responsibility to review advertisements before they are printed.

2. Any decision by a CE publisher to accept or reject an advertisement is final. The PAO may discuss with a publisher their decision not to run an advertisement, but cannot substitute his judgment for that of the publisher.

3. Before each issue of a CE publication is printed, the public affairs staff shall review advertisements to identify any that are contrary to law or to DoD or Military Service regulations, including this part, or that may pose a danger or detriment to DoD personnel or their family members, or that interfere with the command or installation missions.

It is in the command's best interest to carefully apply DoD and Service regulations and request exclusion of only those advertisements that are clearly in violation of this part. If any such advertisements are identified, the public affairs office shall obtain a legal coordination of the proposed exclusion.

After coordination, the public affairs office shall request, in writing if necessary, that the commercial publisher delete any such advertisements. If the publisher prints the issue containing the objectionable advertisement(s), the commander may prohibit distribution in accordance with DoD Directive 1325.6.1

4. DoD Directive 1325.6 gives the commander authority to prohibit distribution on the installation of a CE publication containing advertising he or she determines likely to promote a situation leading to potential riots or other disturbances, or when the circulation of such advertising may present a danger to loyalty, discipline, or morale of personnel. Each commander shall determine whether particular advertisements to be placed by the publisher in a CE publication serving the command or installation may interfere with successful mission performance. Some considerations in this decision are the local situation, the content of the proposed advertisement, and the past performance of the advertiser. Prior to making a determination to prohibit distribution of a CE publication, the commander shall obtain a legal coordination.

5. CE publications may carry paid and nonpaid advertising of the products and services of nonappropriated fund activities and commissaries, if allowed by DoD and Military Service regulations. (See DoD Instruction 1025.2.2)

6. The Military Departments will coordinate a standard set or ratios of advertising-to-editorial copy for multiples of pages for run of the publication advertising in CE publications that will be included in all DoD Component regulations supplementing this part. The recommended annual average is a ratio of 60/40. Inserts and advertising supplements will not count in the total ad-to-copy ratio; however, the commander may prohibit the distribution of supplemental advertising deemed excessive.

7. Bingo games and lotteries conducted by a commercial organization whose primary business is conducting lotteries may not be advertised in CE publications. Non-lottery

2See footnote 1 to section G.3. of this appendix. activities (such as dining at a restaurant or attending a musical performance) of a commercial organization whose primary business is conducting lotteries may be advertised in CE publications. Exceptions are allowed for authorized State lotteries, lotteries conducted by a not-for-profit organization or a governmental organization, or conducted as a promotional activity by a commercial organization and clearly occasional and ancillary to the primary business of that organization. An exception also pertains to any gaming conducted by an Indian tribe under 25 U.S.C. 2720. See section D. of appendix C to this part.

H. CE guides and maps.
1. The name of the publication may include the name and emblem of the command or installation.
2. At the discretion of the commander, an installation telephone directory may be included as a section of a CE guide. The telephone section shall be part of the guide contract specifications. Separate contracts for CE telephone directories are not authorized. Over-run printing of the telephone directory/yellow pages section of the installation guide is authorized. The number of guides with integral telephone directories and the number of over-run copies of the telephone directory/yellow pages will be clearly specified in the single guide contract. Required communication security information shall be printed on the first page of the telephone section and not on the cover of the guide. The cover of the guide may notify users that the publication contains the telephone directory.
3. CE contracts for guides and maps shall establish firm delivery dates and shall contain provisions to ensure distribution is controlled by the command. Delivery dates may vary for guides and maps to make them more attractive to advertisers. The contract provisions shall specify delivery dates.
   1. Employment and gratuities. DoD personnel shall not accept any gratuities from or employment with any CE publisher in violation of DoD Directive 5500.7-R. In addition, DoD personnel whose spouse or children (or other relations as described in DoD Directive 5500.7-R) are offered employment by, or work for, a CE publisher, must take appropriate action to avoid conflicts of interest.
   2. Contracting for a CE publication.
      1. General. The DoD Components and their subordinate commands are authorized to contract in writing for CE publications. The underlying premise of the CE concept is that the DoD Components and their subordinate commands will save money by transferring certain publishing and distribution functions to a commercial publisher selected through a competitive process. The CE publication is printed and delivered to the command, installation, or its readership in accordance with the terms of a written contract. Oral contracts are not acceptable. The right to sell and circulate advertising to the complete readership in the CE publication provides the publisher revenue to cover costs and secure earnings. The command or installation guarantees first publication and distribution of locally-produced editorial content in the publication. The publication becomes the property of the command, installation, or intended reader upon delivery in accordance with terms of the contract.
      2. Contracting process. Whether a first time initiative to establish a CE publication or a recompetition of an existing CE contract, the process must start with advance planning as to the nature of the command’s requirements, the contracting strategy, and the market of potential advertisers and competitors for the job. The CE contract solicitation and the contract itself must contain a statement of work that describes in legally sufficient detail the Government’s requirements and the conditions and restrictions under which the contractor will perform. The cognizant contracting office for the CE contracting action shall be the contracting office which normally provides contracting support to the command for service contracts and other procurements of a general nature which are above the simplified small purchase threshold. The contracting officer shall combine the statement of work with appropriate contractual terms and conditions, using 48 CFR chapter I and II as guides, although CE contracts are not subject to the FAR or DFARS, because they do not involve the expenditure of appropriated funds. The resulting solicitation and contract shall completely identify the rights and obligations of both parties. Proposals shall be solicited from all known commercial publishers who could potentially become the CE contractor. Upon evaluation of the competing proposals by the Source Selection Advisory Committee (SSAC) and selection of a winner by the selecting official, the CE contract shall be awarded by the contracting officer. The CE contract shall not require the contractor to pay money to the command or to provide goods, services, or other consideration not directly related to the CE publication. In the event that only one offer is received, the SSAC may recommend to the selecting official that no award be made or that the contracting officer enter into negotiations with the sole offeror to obtain the best possible service and product for the Government.
      3. Statement of Work (SOW). The SOW should be written to have the CE contractor perform as many of the publishing and distribution functions as practical to generate maximum savings to the Department of Defense. In so doing, care must be taken to balance Government requirements with a realistic view of the advertising revenue potential so as to make the CE concept commercially viable. The command’s internal information needs shall be paramount. Some of the key issues that shall be addressed in the SOW follow:

a. A general description of the scope of the proposed contract including the name and nature of the publication involved; for example, weekly newspaper, monthly magazine, annual guide and installation map. Normally, guides and installation maps are included in the same contract.

b. A description of editorial content to be carried; e.g., news, features, supplements, and factual information, along with provisions addressing the possible inclusion of contractor-furnished advertising supplements for newspapers, provided any such supplement shall have the prior approval of the commander.

c. A description of the rules for the inclusion of advertising in the publication, substantially as follows: “The contractor agrees not to include in the publication any advertising of the following types: (1) paid political advertisements for a candidate, party, or which advocate a particular position on a political issue, including advertisements advocating a position on any proposed DoD policy or policy under review, or which advocate lobbying elected officials on a specific issue; (2) advertisements for any establishment declared “off limits” by the command; (3) advertisements that are contrary to law or to DoD or Military Service regulations or that in the government’s opinion pose a danger or detriment to DoD personnel or their family members, or that interfere with the command or installation missions; (4) advertisements for bingo games or lotteries conducted by a commercial organization whose primary business is conducting lotteries; (5) other restrictions deemed appropriate by the Service/Command, if any.” Additionally, the contract will contain provisions which: (1) specify the annual average advertising-to-editorial ratio for newspapers and magazines; (2) state that the commander’s representative shall have the authority to specify newspaper advertising layout when required to enhance communication’s effectiveness of the publication; and (3) which requires the contractor to notify advertisers of the requirements in §247.4(c) and §247.4(e).

d. A provision substantially as follows: “The contractor agrees not to enter into any exclusive advertising agreement with any firm, broker, or individual for the purpose of selling advertising associated with this contract.”

e. A description of the CE contractor’s responsibilities for distribution of the publication. This provision should address such matters as contractor furnishing of news racks along with contractor responsibility for maintenance of these racks.

f. A description of contractor-owned and/or contractor-furnished equipment such as text editing, copy terminals, and modems determined to be required to coordinate layout and ensure that the preparation of editorial material is performed in such a way as to enhance the efficiency and effectiveness of the publication process.

g. A description of contractor-furnished editorial support services determined to be required. Such description must be in terms of the end product required; e.g., photography service and/or writer/reporter services, and not as a requirement to make available certain contractor personnel. In day-to-day performance and administration of the CE contract, contractor personnel performing such support services shall not be treated in any way as though they are Government employees.

h. A provision that the use, where economically feasible, of recycled paper for internal products will be a consideration for awarding the contract, as stated in §247.6(e).

i. SOW’s and RFP’s for CE newspapers shall specify standard newsprint, recyclable, subject to requirements of applicable laws and regulations.

j. For CE magazines, a provision requiring the contractor to provide a bulk number of copies of each printing to the Government Printing Office (GPO) for distribution to Federal Depository Libraries. The number of copies to be provided will be determined on the number of libraries desiring to subscribe to the publication. The number could be a maximum of 1,400, but has historically averaged approximately 500 to 600 copies for military magazines. The contractor would be required to contact GPO to initiate this procedure at (202)512-1071.

4. Contract provisions. The CE concept is based on an exception to the Government Printing and Binding Regulations published by the Congressional Joint Committee on Printing. While CE contracts are not subject to the FAR (48 CFR chapter I) or the DFARS (48 CFR chapter II), the FAR contains many clauses that are useful in protecting the interests of the Government. The following clauses may be helpful in obtaining the best possible CE publication:

a. Status of FAR clause. To clarify the status of FAR clauses appearing in CE contracts, the following clause shall be included in all new CE contracts:

“The (name of DoD installation/unit/organization) is an element of the United States Government. This agreement is a United States Government contract authorized under the provisions of DoD Instruction 5220.4 as an exception to the Government Printing and Binding Regulations published by the Congressional Joint Committee on Printing. Although this contract is not subject to the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) or the Defense FAR Supplement (DFARS), FAR clauses useful in protecting the interests of the Government and implementing those provisions required by law are included in this contract.

a. Option clause. Insert a clause substantially the same as the following to extend the term of the CE publisher contract:

(1) The Government may extend the term of this contract by written notice to the contractor within [insert the clause the period of time in which the contracting officer has to extend this option]; provided that the Government shall give the contractor a preliminary written notice of its intent to exercise the option at least 60 days before the contract expires. The preliminary notice does not commit the government to exercise the option. The Government will use its best efforts to mitigate financial hardship on the publisher.

b. Option clause. Insert the following clause in solicitations and contracts:

(1) The Government may, by written notice of default to the contractor, terminate this contract in whole or in part if the services contracted for are no longer required by the Government, or when it is in the Government’s interest, such as with installation closures. Any such termination shall be at no cost to the Government.

5. Modification of the contract. Any changes to the SOW or other terms and conditions of the contract shall be made by written contract modification signed by both parties.

6. Exercise of options. Under normal circumstances, when the contractor is performing satisfactorily, options for additional periods of performance should be exercised. However, the exercise of the option is the exclusive right of the Government.

7. Termination for convenience of the Government. CE contracts may be entered into for an initial period of up to 2 years, and may contain options to extend the contract for one or more additional periods of 1 or 2 years duration. The total period of the contract, including options, shall not exceed 6 years, after which the contract must be recompeted.

8. SSAC. The commander shall appoint an SSAC. The committee shall participate in the development of the Source Selection Plan (SSP) before the solicitation of proposals, evaluate proposals, and recommend a source to the selecting official. Since cost is not a factor in the evaluation, award will be based on technical proposals, the offeror’s experience and qualifications, and past performance.

a. The SSAC shall consist of a minimum of five voting members: a chairperson, who shall be a senior member of the command; senior representatives from public affairs and printing; and a minimum of two other functional specialists with skills relevant to the selection process. Each SSAC shall have non-voting legal and contracting advisors to assist in the selection process.

b. In arriving at its recommendations, the SSAC shall follow the SSP and avail itself of all relevant information, including the proposals submitted, independently derived data regarding offerors’ performance records, the results of on-site surveys of offerors’ facilities, where feasible, and in appropriate cases, personal presentations by offerors.

c. The work of the SSAC must be coordinated with the contracting officer to ensure that the process is objective and fair. All communications between the offerors and the Government shall be through the contracting officer. No member of the SSAC or the selecting official shall communicate directly with any offeror regarding the source selection.

d. In cases where a losing competitor requests a debriefing from the contracting officer, members of the SSAC may be called upon to participate so as to give the losing competitor the most thorough explanation.
Office of the Secretary of Defense

Proposal requirements. No information regarding competitors’ proposals shall be discussed with the unsuccessful offerors during debriefings, discussions, or negotiations.

9. SSP. A SSP (see sample SSP at attachment 1 to this appendix) must be developed early in the planning process to serve as a guide for the personnel involved and ensure a fair and objective process and a successful outcome. The contracting officer is primarily responsible for development of the SSP, in coordination with the PAO and other members of the SSAC. Ideally, the SSP should be completed and approved prior to issuance of the solicitation; it must be completed and approved before the receipt of proposals.

10. Evaluation criteria and proposal requirements. The solicitation must specify, in relative order of importance, the factors the Government will consider in selecting the most advantageous proposal. In addition, the solicitation must specify the types of information the proposal must contain to be properly evaluated. These two aspects of the solicitation must closely parallel one another. The contracting officer is primarily responsible for development of these two solicitation provisions, in coordination with the PAO, legal counsel, and members of the SSAC.

a. Evaluation criteria for award. Drawing upon the SSP, this feature of the solicitation must advise offerors what factors the Government will consider in evaluating proposals and the relative importance of each factor. The sample SSP (attachment 1 to this appendix) provides an example of criteria that might be used. Note that under the “Services and/or items Offered” factor, paragraph E.2.b. of attachment 1 to this appendix, it is necessary to list and indicate the relative importance of services and/or items above the minimum requirements of the SOW that the command would consider desirable and that, if offered, will enhance the offeror’s evaluation standing. The offer of services and/or items not listed in the evaluation criteria shall not be considered in the evaluation of proposals, but may be accepted in the contract award if deemed valuable to the Government, PROVIDED the service and/or item involved is directly related to producing the publication and not in violation of any other statute or regulation. Examples of items that cannot be considered during the evaluation process are: press kits, laminated maps, economic development reports, or other separate publications not an integral part of the CE publication.

b. Proposal requirements. This provision of the solicitation must describe the specific and general types of information necessary to be submitted as part of the proposal to be evaluated. Offerors shall be notified that unnecessarily elaborate proposals are not desired.

ATTACHMENT 1 TO APPENDIX B TO PART 247—SSP

A. Introduction

1. The objectives of this plan are:

   a. To ensure an impartial, equitable, and thorough evaluation of all offerors’ proposals in accordance with the evaluation criteria presented in the request for proposals (RFP).

   b. To ensure that the contracting officer is provided technical evaluation findings of the SSAC in such a manner that selection of the offer most advantageous to the Government is ensured.

   c. To document clearly and thoroughly all aspects of the evaluation and decision process to provide effective debriefings to unsuccessful offerors, to respond to legal challenges to the selection, and to ensure adherence to evaluation criteria.

2. This plan will be used to select a CE contractor for publication of the newspaper (CE guide, magazine, or installation map) and will:

   a. Give each SSAC member a clear understanding of his or her responsibilities as well as a complete overview of the evaluation process.

   b. Establish a well-balanced evaluation structure, equitable and uniform scoring procedures, and a thorough and accurate appraisal of all considerations pertinent to the negotiated contracting process.

   c. Provide the selecting official with meaningful findings that are clearly presented and founded on the collective, independent judgment of technical and managerial experts.

   d. Ensure identification and selection of a contractor whose final proposal offers optimum satisfaction of the Government’s technical and managerial requirements as expressed in the RFP.

   e. Serve as part of the official record for the evaluation process.

B. Organization and Staffing

1. The SSAC will consist of the Chairperson and a minimum of four other voting committee members plus the non-voting advisors to the SSAC.

2. The SSAC committee members are:

   d. Provides legal review of all documents supporting the selection decision to ensure legal sufficiency and consistency with the evaluation criteria in the RFP and SSP.
   e. Advises the selecting official on the legality of the selection decision.

D. Administrative Instructions

1. Evaluation overview. The advisory committee will operate with maximum flexibility. Collective discussion by evaluators at committee meetings of their evaluation findings is permitted in the interchange of viewpoints regarding strengths, weaknesses, and deficiencies noted in the proposals relating to evaluation items. Evaluators will not suggest or disclose numerical scores or other information regarding the relative standing of offerors outside of committee meetings.

2. Evaluation procedure. The evaluation of offers is based on good judgment and a thorough knowledge of the guidelines and criteria applicable to each evaluation factor.
   a. Numerical scoring is merely reflective of the composite findings of the SSAC. The evaluation scoring system is used as a tool to assist the Chairperson of the SSAC in determining the proposal most advantageous to the Government.
   b. The most important documents supporting the contract award will be the findings, conclusions, and reports of the SSAC.

3. Safeguarding data. The sensitivity of the proceedings and documentation require stringent and special safeguards throughout the evaluation process:
   a. Inadvertent release of information could be a source of considerable misunderstanding and embarrassment to the Government. It is imperative, therefore, for all members of the SSAC to avoid any unauthorized disclosures of information pertaining to this evaluation. Evaluation participants will observe the following rules:
      (1) All offeror and evaluation materials will be secured when not in use (i.e., during breaks, lunch, and at the end of the day).
      (2) All attempted communications by offeror’s representatives shall be directed to the contracting officer. No communications between members of the SSAC or the selecting official and offerors regarding the contract award or evaluation is permitted except when called upon under the provisions of paragraph J.8.d, of appendix B to this part.

(3) Neither SSAC members or the selecting official shall disclose anything pertaining to the source selection process to any offeror except as authorized by the contracting officer.

(4) Neither SSAC members or the selecting official shall discuss the substantive issues of the evaluation with any unauthorized individual, even after award of the contract.

E. Technical Evaluation Procedures

1. Evaluation process. Proposals will be evaluated based on the following criteria as indicated in Section M of the solicitation: The evaluation worksheet (attachment 2 to this appendix) shall be used to score the technical factors. Using the technical evaluation worksheet, each member of the SSAC will independently review each proposal and assign an appropriate number of points to each factor being considered. Point scores for each factor will range from ‘0’ to ‘5’ based on the committee member’s evaluation of the proposal. Upon completion of individual evaluations, the group will meet in committee with the Chairperson and arrive at a single numeric score for each factor in the proposal.

2. Criteria. An example of applicable evaluation criteria and their relative order of importance are listed below in paragraphs E.2. a. through d. of this appendix. Criteria and weights are provided as an example only. The SSAC must determine its own weighting factors tailored to meet the needs of the particular CE publication and describe the relative weights assigned in the RFP; e.g., “Evaluation factors are listed in descending order of importance; criteria #3 is twice as important as criteria #2,” etc.

a. Technical and production capability. Scores will range from ‘0’ (unacceptable), to ‘5’ (exhibits state-of-the-art, award winning, or clearly superior technical ability to produce the required newspaper, magazine, guide, or installation map). Factors to be considered for newspaper contracts include: level of automation; compatibility of automation with existing PAO automation (unless other automation is provided); printing capability; production equipment; physical plant (capabilities); and driving distance to the plant. Similar factors may be considered for magazines, guides and installation maps.

b. Services and/or items offered. Scores will range from ‘0’ (unacceptable), to ‘5’ (the offer of equipment, such as automation equipment; or services, such as editorial or photographic services as set forth in the contract solicitation that will greatly enhance the newspaper and/or its production). Factors to be considered for newspapers include: offer of automation equipment and the quality and amount of equipment offered; the quality and amount of services offered; the usefulness of the services and/or items to the public affairs office in enhancing the newspaper; the impact of the services and/or items on other parts of the contract. Similar factors may be considered for magazines, guides and installation maps. The offer of equipment or services not specifically related to producing the publication will not result in the assignment of a higher score.

c. Past performance record. Scores will range from ‘0’ (no experience in newspaper, magazine, guide, or installation map publishing and/or unsatisfactory, previous performance), to ‘5’ (long-term, highly successful experience publishing similar newspapers, magazines, guides, or installation maps). Factors to be considered include: demonstrated ability to successfully produce a CE or similar publication; demonstrated printing ability (types of printing, history of newspaper, magazine, guide, or installation map printing); demonstrated success in contract performance in a timely and responsive manner; demonstrated capability to sell advertising and successfully recoup publication costs.

d. Management approach. Scores will range from ‘0’ (approach unacceptable), to ‘5’ (proposal demonstrates a sound and innovative approach to interfacing with the PAO and managing the CE publication operation. Factors to be considered include: The offeror’s proposed approach to:
(1) Interfacing with the PAO staff.
(2) Controlling the quality and timeliness of the finished product.
(3) Sale of ads of the type that enhance the publication’s image in the community and with the readership at large.
(4) Ensuring that contractor’s personnel are properly supervised and managed.

3. Weighting factors. Points will be assigned to the final score of each factor in a proposal as determined by multiplying the score assigned (e.g., “0,” “1,” “2,” “3,” “4,” or “5”) by the relative weight of the individual criterion as indicated:

PART 249—PRESENTATION OF DoD-RELATED SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL PAPERS AT MEETINGS

§ 249.1 Purpose.
This part amplifies policy set forth in DoD Directive 3200.12,1 assigns responsibilities, prescribes procedures, and provides guidance for consideration of national security concerns in the dissemination of scientific and technical information in the possession or under the control of the Department of Defense at conferences and meetings. It supports current policies regarding classified meetings and requirements for review of scientific and technical papers; provides guidance for reviewing and presenting papers containing export-controlled DoD technical data; establishes procedures for containing DoD advice on independently-produced scientific and technical papers; and provides criteria for identifying fundamental research activities performed under contract or grant that are excluded from review requirements.

§ 249.2 Applicability and scope.
This part applies to the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) DoD Field Activities, the Military Departments, the Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (OJCS), the Defense Agencies, and the Unified and Specified Commands (hereafter referred to collectively as "DoD Components").

§ 249.3 Definitions.

Contracted fundamental research. Includes grants and contracts that are (a) funded by budget Category 6.1 ("Research"), whether performed by universities or industry or (b) funded by budget Category 6.2 ("Exploratory Development") and performed on-campus at a university. The research shall not be considered fundamental in those rare and exceptional circumstances where the 6.2-funded effort presents a high likelihood of disclosing performance characteristics of military systems or manufacturing technologies that are unique and critical to defense, and where agreement on restrictions have been recorded in the contract or grant.

DoD personnel. All civilian officers and employees, including special Government employees, of all DoD Components, and all active duty officers (commissioned and warrant) and enlisted members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps.

§ 249.4 Policy.
It is DoD policy to:
(a) Encourage the presentation of scientific and technical information generated by or for the Department of Defense at technical meetings consistent with United States laws and the requirements of national security.
(b) Permit DoD Components to conduct scientific and technical conferences, and to permit DoD Component personnel to attend and participate in scientific and technical conferences that are of demonstrable value to the Department of Defense, and consult with professional societies and associations in organizing meetings of the societies and associations that are mutually beneficial.
(c) Allow the publication and public presentation of unclassified contracted fundamental research results. The mechanism for control of information generated by DoD-funded contracted fundamental research in science, technology, and engineering performed under contract or grant at colleges, universities, and non-government laboratories is security classification. No other type of control is authorized unless required by law.
(d) Release information at meetings in a manner consistent with statutory and regulatory requirements for protecting the information. Such requirements include, but are not limited to, protection of classified, unclassified export-controlled, proprietary, privacy,
(e) Provide timely review of DoD employee and contractor papers intended for presentation at scientific and technical conferences and meetings, and if warranted and authorized by contract in the case of contractor employees, prescribe limitations on these presentations. Dissemination restrictions shall be used only when appropriate authority exists.

(f) Assist DoD contractors and, when practical, others in determining the sensitivity of or the applicability of export controls to technical data proposed for public disclosure.

(g) Approve release of classified or controlled unclassified DoD information to foreign representatives when such release promotes mutual security or advances the interests of an international military agreement or understanding in accordance with foreign disclosure policies of the Department of Defense. Presentation of such information at technical meetings attended by foreign representatives is appropriate when the release is made under the terms of existing security arrangements and when the Department of Defense and receiving government have established an understanding or agreement in that specific scientific or technical area.

(h) Refrain from interfering with the planning and organizing of meetings sponsored and conducted by non-government organizations. The type and level of DoD participation in such meetings will be determined taking account of such factors as benefit to the Department of Defense and how the meetings are being conducted.

§ 249.5 Procedures.

(a) General. Conferences organized by DoD Components, DoD contractors, scientific and engineering societies, and/or professional associations, among others, can enhance the value of research and development sponsored by the Federal Government, and in such cases require full cooperation of all involved parties to obtain maximum benefits. Every effort should be made to develop presentations that are appropriate for delivery to the widest appropriate audience consistent with the interests of national security. In general, national security concerns related to the disclosure of DoD scientific and technical information at meetings are influenced by two mutually dependent factors; i.e. the sensitivity of the material to be presented, and the identity of proposed recipients of the material. These considerations and their impact on proposed meetings can be evaluated only through consultation among authors, conference organizers, and officials responsible for authorizing release of DoD information. The purpose of this consultation is to ascertain which combination of factors will support the most productive exchange of information consistent with U.S. laws and the requirements of national security. Interaction among concerned parties should commence at least six months before the meeting date.

(b) Information to be presented. Possibilities range from completely unclassified/unlimited through classified information. Other considerations having an impact on meeting organization include, but are not limited to, proprietary data, export-controlled data, Privacy Act information, and foreign government-provided data.

(1) Classified information may be presented only at meetings organized in accordance with DoD Directive 5200.12.\(^2\)

(2) Unclassified export-controlled DoD technical data may be presented only in sessions where recipients are eligible to receive such data as established by 32 CFR part 250.

(3) Presentation of proprietary information, privacy data, and foreign government-provided data requires approval of the party controlling that information.

(c) Location of meetings and access controls. To a large degree location of and access to meetings are dependent on the type of material to be presented.

(1) Papers which have been cleared for public release may be presented at any location and before any audience.

(2) Criteria established by 32 CFR part 250 for releasing unclassified documents containing unclassified export-controlled DoD technical data also are applicable to presentations containing foreign government-provided information.

\(^2\)See footnote 1 to § 249.1.
such data. Unclassified export-controlled DoD technical data may be released to:

(i) United States and Canadian government officials, with the understanding that the information is to be used for official government purposes only. Technical data that falls outside the exemptions for export to Canada in United States export regulations may not be transferred under this and the following provision.

(ii) United States and Canadian citizens and resident aliens when disclosure is subject to the terms of a current (DD Form 2345) “Militarily Critical Technical Data Agreement.”

(iii) Foreign nationals and United States citizens acting as representatives of foreign interests where disclosure is made in accordance with a license, approval, or exemption under the International Traffic in Arms Regulations or the Export Administration Regulations.

(3) Non-government organizations who organize meetings in the United States at which unclassified export-controlled DoD technical data is to be presented will be required to ensure that physical access to the presentations is limited to those eligible to receive such data (as described in paragraph (c)(2) of this section) before being permitted to present such data.

(4) Meetings sponsored by a United States Government agency at which unclassified export-controlled DoD technical data is to be presented may be held in any location in the United States when control of physical access to the sessions is provided by a United States Government employee or a contractor specifically tasked by Department of Defense for that duty.

(5) Presentation of unclassified export-controlled DoD technical data in meetings held outside the United States may be permitted on a case-by-case basis after review of the situation by officials authorized to do so by the Director of Defense Research and Engineering, Office of the Under Secretary of Defense (Acquisition) or heads of DoD Components.

(6) When it is necessary to limit access to presentations of DoD-related scientific and technical papers, and private or professional organizations are unwilling or unable to provide required controls, DoD Components may, at their discretion, conduct meetings which correlate in place and topic with open meetings of such societies to take advantage of the fact that interested parties are already gathered.

(7) Classified information may be presented only at meetings held in a secure government or cleared contractor facility, unless a waiver has been granted in accordance with DoD Directive 5200.12. Personnel access controls for classified meetings also are specified in DoD Directive 5200.12.

(d) Foreign representative access to meetings. (1) For classified meetings sponsored by the Department of Defense and conducted at a contractor facility, guidelines for foreign participation are established in DoD Directive 5230.113 and DoD Instruction 5230.20.4 Guidelines for the reporting of foreign participation in classified meetings are contained in DoD Directive 5200.12.

(2) For unclassified meetings sponsored and conducted by organizations other than the Department of Defense, the sole responsibility of determining whether foreign access is appropriate rests with the sponsor. The level and type of DoD participation in the meeting shall take into account the presence of foreign representatives, if any.

(3) In order to advance the interests of an international military agreement or understanding, the Department of Defense may wish to release to certain foreign nationals unclassified export-controlled DoD technical data being presented at unclassified, restricted access meetings sponsored and conducted by non-government societies and associations. Release in such cases by Department of Defense shall be pursuant to appropriate exemptions to the International Traffic in Arms Regulations (22 CFR part 126), which relieves the society or association from responsibility to obtain export approvals for such presentations. DoD sponsorship is for the sole purpose of granting access to DoD-sponsored technical information. When societies or associations agree to DoD sponsorship of foreign attendance.

\(^{4}\)See footnote 1 to § 249.1.
under these circumstances, the visit request procedures established in DoD Instruction 5230.20 shall be used to obtain and process requests from foreign representatives for sponsorship, and to inform the requestor and the meeting sponsor of the decision to release the information and conditions pertaining to such release.

(e) Clearance for public release. A review is required by DoD Directive 5230.95 for all public releases by DoD personnel, including all presentations from DoD laboratories. DoD contractors are required to submit proposed presentations for review if that is a specific contractual requirement. Papers resulting from unclassified contracted fundamental research are exempt from prepublication controls and this review requirement.

(1) Proposed presentations shall be reviewed to:

(i) Determine what information, if any, in the submitted paper and/or abstract is subject to security classification, is subject to withholding from public disclosure under 32 CFR part 250 or is otherwise restricted by statute, regulation or DoD policy.

(ii) Recommend specific changes, if any, to allow the paper to be presented as requested.

(iii) Indicate on the document its releasibility in original and amended versions.

(iv) Provide information on appeal procedures to be followed if requested clearance is denied.

(2) Reviews shall be completed as speedily as possible after receipt of the document by an appropriate public clearance authority. If a review cannot be completed in a timely manner, an explanation shall be provided. Every effort shall be made to complete the review in:

(i) Ten working days for all abstracts.

(ii) Twenty working days for papers submitted for presentation at sessions that will have unlimited access.

(iii) Thirty working days for papers submitted for presentation at sessions that will have limited access.

(iv) Thirty working days for papers submitted for presentation at sessions that will be classified.

(f) Voluntary submissions. Authors or organizations not subject to mandatory reviews may submit their papers to DoD activities to obtain advice on national security concerns. Resources permitting, DoD public release activities shall arrange review of the papers and

(1) Inform the author that the Department of Defense has no objection to public presentation or

(2) Inform the author that the Department of Defense advises that presentation in a public forum would not be in the interest of national security, and provide appropriate reasons for the determination. The clearance for public presentation, paragraph (f)(1) of this section, satisfies an exemption from requirements for government review under the International Traffic in Arms Regulations. The latter determination, paragraph (f)(2) of this section, does not legally bar presentation. It is an advisory statement that, for the presentation concerned, Department of Defense is not providing the authority for public release. Such DoD action does not preclude recourse by the author through normal State Department export license procedures.

(g) Submission procedures. (1) Authors shall submit full text and/or abstract of paper for review before submitting it to conference organizers. Clearance of abstract does not satisfy any requirement for clearance of the full paper. Requests for review shall identify the conference sponsor(s), site, and access restrictions specified by the session organizers, and shall state whether the paper is for presentation at a session that is to be unclassified with unlimited access, unclassified with limited access, or classified. Level of classification and access restrictions shall be specified, where appropriate.

(2) Papers shall be submitted for public and/or foreign disclosure clearance in sufficient time to allow adequate review and possible revision. Authors should allow adequate time for their presentation to reach the appropriate review authority in addition to the review targets set in paragraph (e)(2) of this section.

Office of the Secretary of Defense § 250.2

(3) At time of submission of the full text of the presentation to the Conference Program Committee, authors should state that their papers have been approved for presentation at the meeting and specify the security level of degree of access control required. When submitting abstracts that have been cleared for release, authors should indicate when and what kind of approval is expected on the presentation in its final form.

(h) In accordance with DoD Directive 3200.12, copies of proceedings and/or reprints of papers sponsored by the Department of Defense for all scientific and technical meetings will be provided to the Defense Technical Information Center, Defense Logistics Agency, Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304 for secondary distribution.

§ 249.6 Responsibilities.

(a) The Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition (USD(A)) shall be responsible for implementing this part.

(b) The Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Research and Advanced Technology shall:

(1) Administer and monitor compliance with this part.

(2) Provide, when necessary, technical assistance to DoD Components in determining sufficiency of protection of unclassified technical information that is to be presented at meetings.

(3) Provide, upon request, information and advice regarding controls on unclassified DoD information to scientific and engineering societies and professional associations.

(c) The Under Secretary of Defense for Policy (USD(P)) shall develop and promulgate, as required, policy guidance to DoD Components for implementing this instruction.

(d) The Deputy Under Secretary for Defense (Policy) (DUSD(P)) shall establish and monitor compliance with policies and procedures for disclosure of classified information at meetings.

(e) The Heads of DoD Components shall:

(1) Promulgate this part within 180 days.

(2) Designate an individual who will be responsible for reviewing and approving requests for export-controlled meetings outside the United States, and for ensuring compliance with this part.

(1) All unclassified technical data with military or space application in the possession of, or under the control of, a DoD Component which may not be exported lawfully without an approval, authorization, or license under E.O. 12470 or the Arms Export Control Act. However, the application of this part is limited only to such technical data that disclose critical technology with military or space application. The release of other technical data shall be accomplished in accordance with DoD Instruction 5200.21 and DoD 5400.7-R.

(2) Introduce any additional controls on the dissemination of technical data by private enterprises or individuals beyond those specified by export control laws and regulations or in contracts or other mutual agreements, including certifications made pursuant to § 250.3(a). Accordingly, the mere fact that the Department of Defense may possess such data does not in itself provide a basis for control of such data pursuant to this part.

(3) Introduce any controls on the dissemination of scientific, educational, or other data that qualify for General License GTDA under 15 CFR 379.3 of the EAR (see § 250.7) or for general exemptions under 22 CFR 125.11 of the ITAR (see § 250.8).

(4) Alter the responsibilities of DoD Components to protect proprietary data of a private party in which the Department of Defense has “limited rights” or “restricted rights” (as defined in 32 CFR 9-201(c) and 9-601(j) of the DoD Acquisition Regulation, or which are authorized to be withheld from public disclosure under 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(4).

(5) Pertain to, or affect, the release of technical data by DoD Components to foreign governments, international organizations, or their respective representatives or contractors, pursuant to official agreements or formal arrangements with the U.S. Government, or pursuant to U.S. Government-licensed transactions involving such entities or individuals. In the absence of such U.S. Government-sanctioned relationships, however, this part does apply.

(6) Apply to classified technical data. After declassification, however, dissemination of such data that are within the scope of § 250.2(a)(1) is governed by this part.

When the certifications required by paragraphs (a) (5) and (6) of this section, cannot be made truthfully, the U.S. contractor may request the certification be accepted based on its description of extenuating circumstances.

(b) Controlling DoD Office. The DoD activity that sponsored the work that generated the technical data or received the technical data on behalf of the Department of Defense and therefore has the responsibility for determining the distribution of a document containing such technical data. In the case of joint sponsorship, the controlling office is determined by advance agreement and may be either a party, a group, or a committee representing the interested activities or DoD Components. (The controlling DoD office is identified on each export-controlled document in accordance with DoD Directive 5230.24.

(c) Critical Technology. Technologies that consist of (1) arrays of design and manufacturing know-how (including technical data); (2) keystone manufacturing, inspection, and test equipment; (3) keystone materials; and (4) goods accompanied by sophisticated operation, application, or maintenance know-how that would make a significant contribution to the military potential of any country or combination of countries and that may prove detrimental to the security of the United States (also referred to as militarily critical technology).

(d) Other legitimate business purposes. Include:

(2) Bidding, or preparing to bid, on a sale of surplus property.
(3) Selling or producing products for the commercial domestic marketplace or for the commercial foreign marketplace, providing that any required export license is obtained.
(4) Engaging in scientific research in a professional capacity.
(5) Acting as a subcontractor to a concern described in paragraphs (d) (1) through (4) of this section; or
(6) Selling technical data subject to this part in support of DoD contractors or in supporting of the competitive process for DoD contracts, provided such sales are limited solely to DoD contractors or potential DoD contractors who also are qualified U.S. contractors and provided such technical data are related to the purpose for which the qualified U.S. contractor is certified, or selling technical data to foreign contractors or governments overseas after receiving the required export license or approval by the U.S. Government.

(e) Potential DoD contractor. An individual or organization outside the Department of Defense declared eligible for DoD information services by a sponsoring DoD activity on the basis of participation in one of the following programs:

(1) The Department of the Army Qualitative Requirements Information Program.
(2) The Department of the Navy Industry Cooperative Research and Development Program.
(3) The Department of the Air Force Potential Contractor Program.
(4) The DoD Scientific and Technical Program; or
(5) Any similar program in use by other DoD Components.

(f) Public disclosure. Making technical data available without restricting its dissemination or use.

(g) Technical data with military or space application, or technical data. Any blueprints, drawings, plans, instructions, computer software and documentation, or other technical information that can be used or be adapted for use to design, engineer, produce, manufacture, operate, repair, overhaul, or reproduce any military or space equipment or technology concerning such equipment.

(h) United States. For the purpose of this part, the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and the territories and possessions of the United States.

§ 250.4 Policy.

(a) In accordance with 10 U.S.C. 140c, the Secretary of Defense may withhold from public disclosure, notwithstanding any other provision of law, any technical data with military or space application in the possession of, or under the control of, the Department of Defense, if such data may not be exported lawfully without an approval, authorization, or license under E.O. 12470 or the Arms Export Control Act. However, technical data may not be withheld under this section if regulations promulgated under either the Order or Act authorize the export of such data pursuant to a general, unrestricted license or exemption in such regulations. (Pertinent portions of such regulations are set forth in §§ 250.7 and 250.8).

(b) Because public disclosure of technical data subject to this part is tantamount to providing uncontrolled foreign access, withholding such data from public disclosure, unless approved, authorized, or licensed in accordance with export control laws, is necessary and in the national interest. Unclassified technical data that are not governed by this part, unless otherwise restricted, shall continue to be made available to the public as well as to state and local governments.

(c) Notwithstanding the authority provided in paragraph (a), of this section, it is DoD policy to provide technical data governed by this part to individuals and enterprises that are determined to be currently qualified U.S. contractors, when such data relate to a legitimate business purpose for which the contractor is certified. However, when such data are for a purpose other than to permit the requester to bid or perform on a contract with the Department of Defense, or other U.S. Government agency, and the significance of such data for military purposes is such that release for purposes other than direct support of DoD activities may jeopardize an important U.S. technological or operational advantage, those data shall be withheld in such cases.

(d) This part may not be used by DoD Components as authority to deny access to technical data to the Congress, or to any Federal, State, or local governmental agency that requires such data for regulatory or other official governmental purposes. Any such dissemination will include a statement that the technical data are controlled by the Department of Defense in accordance with this part.

(e) The authority provided herein may not be used to withhold from public disclosure unclassified information regarding DoD operations, policies, activities, or programs, including the costs and evaluations of performance and reliability of military and space equipment. When such information does contain technical data subject to this part, the technical data shall be excised from that which is disclosed publicly.

(f) This part may not be used as a basis for the release of “limited rights” or “restricted rights” data as defined in 32 CFR 9-201(c) and 9-601(j) of the DoD Acquisition Regulation or that are authorized to be withheld from public disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA).

(g) This part may not be used to provide protection for technical data that should be classified in accordance with E.O. 12356 and DoD 5200.1-R.

(h) This part provides immediate authority to cite 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(3) as the basis for denials under the FOIA of technical data currently determined to be subject to the provisions of this part.

§ 250.5 Procedures.

All determinations to disseminate or withhold technical data subject to this part shall be consistent both with the policies set forth in § 250.4 of this part, and with the following procedures:

(a) Requests for technical data shall be processed in accordance with DoD Directive 5230.24 and DoD Instruction 5200.21. FOIA requests for technical data subject to this part shall be handled in accordance with the procedures established in DoD 5400.7-R. Such FOIA requests for technical data currently determined to be subject to the withholding authority effected by this part shall be denied under citing the third exemption to mandatory disclosure, and the requester shall be referred to the provisions of this part permitting access by qualified U.S. contractors.

(b) Upon receipt of a request for technical data in the possession of, or under the control of, the Department of Defense, the controlling DoD office shall determine whether such data are governed by this part. The determination shall be based on the following:

(1) The office's finding that such data would require an approval, authorization, or license for export under E.O. 12470 or the Arms Export Control Act and that such data may not be exported pursuant to a general, unrestricted license (15 CFR 379.3, EAR) (see § 250.7) or exemption (22 CFR 125.11, ITAR) (see § 250.8).

(2) The office's judgment that the technical data under consideration disclose critical technology with military or space application. For purposes of making this determination, the Militarily Critical Technologies List (MCTL) shall be used as general guidance. The controlling DoD office may request assistance in making such a determination from the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering (OUSDR&E) in accordance with procedures established by that office.

(c) The controlling DoD office shall ensure that technical data determined to be governed by this part are marked in accordance with DoD Directive 5230.24.

(d) The controlling DoD office shall authorize release of technical data governed by this part to currently qualified U.S. contractors only, as defined in § 250.3(a) of this part, unless one of the following apply:

(1) The qualification of the U.S. contractor concerned has been temporarily revoked in accordance with § 250.5(e) of this part; or

(2) The requested data are judged to be unrelated to the purpose for which the qualified U.S. contractor is certified. When release of technical data is denied in accordance with this section, the controlling DoD office shall request additional information sufficient to explain the intended use of the requested data and, if appropriate, request a new certification (see § 250.3(a) above) describing the intended use of the requested data; or

(3) The technical data are being requested for a purpose other than to permit the requester to bid or perform on a contract with the Department of Defense or other U.S. Government agency, in which case the controlling DoD office shall withhold such data if it has been determined by the DoD Component focal point (see § 250.5(e)(5)) that the significance of such data for military purposes is such that release for purpose other than direct support of DoD-approved activities may jeopardize an important technological or operational military advantage of the United States.

(e) Upon receipt of credible and sufficient information that a qualified U.S. contractor has (1) violated U.S. export control law, (2) violated its certification, (3) made a certification in bad faith, or (4) made an omission or misstatement of material fact, the DoD Component shall revoke temporarily the U.S. contractor's qualification. Such revocations having the potential for compromising a U.S. Government investigation may be delayed. Immediately upon such revocation, the DoD Component shall notify the contractor and the OUSDR&E. Such contractor shall be given an opportunity to respond in writing to the information upon which the temporary revocation is based before being disqualified. Any U.S. contractor whose qualification has been revoked temporarily may be reinstated upon presentation of sufficient information showing that the basis for such revocation was in error or has been remedied.

(f) When the basis for a contractor's temporary revocation cannot be removed within 20 working days, the DoD Component shall notify the contractor and the OUSDR&E that the contractor be disqualified.

(g) Charges for copying, certifying, and searching records rendered to requesters shall be levied in accordance...
§ 250.6 Responsibilities.

(a) The Under Secretary of Defense for Research and Engineering (USDR&E) shall have overall responsibility for the implementation of this Directive and shall designate an office to:

(1) Administer and monitor compliance with this Directive.
(2) Receive and disseminate notifications of temporary revocation in accordance with § 250.5(e) of this part.
(3) Receive recommendations for disqualification made in accordance with §250.5(f) of this part, and act as initial disqualification authority.
(4) Provide, when necessary, technical assistance to DoD Components in assessing the significance of the military or space application of technical data that may be withheld from public disclosure under this Directive.
(5) Establish procedures to develop, collect, and disseminate certification statements and ensure their sufficiency, accuracy, and periodic renewal, and to make final determinations of qualification.
(6) Ensure that the requirements of this Directive are incorporated into the DoD Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement for optional application to contracts involving technical data governed by this Directive.
(7) Develop, in conjunction with the General Counsel, Department of Defense, guidelines for responding to appeals.
(8) Develop procedures to ensure that DoD Components apply consistent criteria in authorizing exceptions under §250.5(i) of this part.
(9) Establish procedures and appropriate mechanisms for the certification of DoD contractors.

(h) Qualified U.S. contractors who receive technical data governed by this part may disseminate such data for purposes consistent with their certification without prior permission of the controlling DoD office or when such dissemination is:

(1) To any foreign recipient for which the data are approved, authorized, or licensed under E.O. 12470 or the Arms Export Control Act.
(2) To another currently qualified U.S. contractor (as defined in §250.3(a) above, including existing or potential subcontractors, but only within the scope of the certified legitimate business purpose of such recipient.
(3) To the Departments of State and Commerce, for purposes of applying for appropriate approvals, authorizations, or licenses for export under the Arms Export Control Act or E.O. 12470. Any such application shall include a statement that the technical data for which such approval, authorization, or license is sought are controlled by the Department of Defense in accordance with this part.
(4) To Congress or any Federal, State, or local governmental agency for regulatory purposes, or otherwise as may be required by law or court order. Any such dissemination shall include a statement that the technical data are controlled by the Department of Defense in accordance with this part.
(i) A qualified U.S. contractor desiring to disseminate technical data subject to this part in a manner not permitted expressly by the terms of this part shall seek authority to do so from the controlling DoD office.
(j) Any requester denied technical data, or any qualified U.S. contractor denied permission to redistribute such data, pursuant to this part, shall be provided promptly a written statement of reasons for that action, and advised of the right to make a written appeal of such determination to a specifically identified appellate authority within the DoD Component. Appeals of denials made under DoD 5400.7-R (reference (e)) shall be handled in accordance with procedures established therein. Other appeals shall be processed as directed by the OUSDR&E.
(k) Denials shall cite 10 U.S.C. 140c as implemented by this part, and, in the case of FOIA denials made in reliance on this statutory authority, 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(3). Implementing procedures shall provide for resolution of any appeal within 20 working days.

§ 250.6 Responsibilities.

(2) Receive and disseminate notifications of temporary revocation in accordance with §250.5(e) of this part.
(3) Receive recommendations for disqualification made in accordance with §250.5(f) of this part, and act as initial disqualification authority.
(4) Provide, when necessary, technical assistance to DoD Components in assessing the significance of the military or space application of technical data that may be withheld from public disclosure under this Directive.
(5) Establish procedures to develop, collect, and disseminate certification statements and ensure their sufficiency, accuracy, and periodic renewal, and to make final determinations of qualification.
(6) Ensure that the requirements of this Directive are incorporated into the DoD Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement for optional application to contracts involving technical data governed by this Directive.
(7) Develop, in conjunction with the General Counsel, Department of Defense, guidelines for responding to appeals.
(8) Develop procedures to ensure that DoD Components apply consistent criteria in authorizing exceptions under §250.5(i) of this part.
(9) Establish procedures and appropriate mechanisms for the certification of qualified U.S. contractors, pursuant to §250.6(a)(5) of this part, within 60 days of the effective date of this Directive. During this 60-day period, requests for technical data governed by this Directive shall be processed in accordance with procedures in effect before the promulgation of this Directive.

(10) Take such other actions that may be required to ensure consistent and appropriate implementation of this Directive within the Department of Defense.

(b) The Under Secretary of Defense for Policy shall:

(1) Develop and promulgate, as required, policy guidance to DoD Components for implementing this Directive.
(2) Develop procedures with the Departments of State and Commerce to ensure referral of export cases involving technical data governed by this Directive to the Department of Defense.

(c) The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs) shall:

(1) Monitor the implementation of provisions of this Directive that pertain to DoD 5400.7-R.
(2) Provide such other assistance as may be necessary to ensure compliance with this Directive.

(d) The General Counsel, Department of Defense, shall:

(1) Assist in carrying out the provisions of this Directive by advising DoD Components with respect to the statutory and regulatory requirements governing the export of technical data.
(2) Advise the USD&ER regarding consistent and appropriate implementation of this Directive.

(e) The Heads of DoD Components shall:

(5) Disseminate technical data governed by this Directive in the manner prescribed herein, to the extent feasible, during the period after which certification procedures have been established under §250.6(a)(9) of this part, but before DoD Components have issued implementing regulations under paragraph (e)(4) of this section. However, if such dissemination is not feasible, the DoD Component may process requests for such data in accordance with procedures in effect before the promulgation of this Directive.

§ 250.7 Pertinent portions of Export Administration Regulations (EAR).

The following pertinent section of the EAR is provided for the guidance of DoD personnel in determining the releasability of technical data under the authority of this part.

EXPORT ADMINISTRATION REGULATIONS 15 CFR 379.3

General License GTDA: Technical Data Available to All Destinations

A General License designated GTDA is hereby established authorizing the export to all destinations of technical data described in §379.3(a), (b), or (c), below:

(a) Data Generally Available.

Data that have been made generally available to the public in any form, including

(1) Data released orally or visually at open conferences, lectures, trade show, or other media open to the public; and
(2) Publications that may be purchased without restrictions at a nominal cost, or obtained without costs, or are readily available at libraries open to the public.

The term ‘nominal cost’ as used in §379.3(a)(2), is intended to reflect realistically only the cost of preparing and distributing the publication and not the intrinsic value of the technical data. If the cost is as much as to prevent the technical data from being generally available to the public, General License GTDA would not be applicable.

(b) Scientific or Educational Data.
§ 250.8 Pertinent portions of International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR).

The following pertinent section of the ITAR is provided for the guidance of DoD personnel in determining the releasibility of technical data under the authority of this part.

INTERNATIONAL TRAFFIC IN ARMS REGULATIONS 22 CFR 125.11

General Exemptions

(3) If the export is in furtherance of a manufacturing license or technical assistance agreement approved by the Department of State in accordance with part 124 of this chapter.

(4) If the export is in furtherance of a contract with an agency of the U.S. Government or a contract between an agency of the U.S. Government and foreign persons, provided the contract calls for the export of relevant unclassified technical data, and such data are being exported only by the prime contractor. Such data shall not disclose the details of development, engineering, design, production, or manufacture of any arms, ammunition, or implements of war on the U.S. Munitions List. (This exemption does not permit the prime contractor to enter into subsidiary technical assistance or manufacturing license agreements, or any arrangement which calls for the exportation of technical data without compliance with part 124 of this subchapter.)

(5) If it relates to firearms not in excess of caliber .50 and ammunition for such weapons, except technical data containing advanced designs, processes, and manufacturing techniques.

(6) If it consists of technical data, other than design, development, or production information relating to equipment, the export of which has been previously authorized to the same recipient.

(12) If the export is directly related to classified information, the export of which has been previously approved to the same recipient and does not disclose the details of design, production, or manufacture of any arms, ammunition, or implements of war on the U.S. Munitions List.

(b) Plant visits. Except as restricted by the provisions of §126.01 of this subchapter:

(2) No license shall be required for the documentary disclosure of unclassified technical data during the course of a plant visit by foreign nationals provided the document does not contain technical data as defined in §125.01 in excess of that released orally or visually during the visit, is within the terms of the approved visit request, and the person in the United States assures that the technical data will not be used, adopted for use, or disclosed to others for the purpose of manufacture or production without the prior approval of the Department of State in accordance with part 124 of this subchapter.

(3) No Department of State approval is required for the disclosure of oral and visual classified information during the course of a plant visit by foreign nationals provided the visit has been approved by the cognizant U.S. Defense agency and the requirements of section V, paragraph [41(d)] of the Defense Industrial Security Manual are met.

\textsuperscript{6} Classified information may also be transmitted in direct support of and within the technical and/or product limitation of such verified U.S. Government approved projects.

\textsuperscript{7} Classified information may also be exported to such certified American citizen employees without prior Department of State approval provided the U.S. party complies with the requirements of the Department of Defense Industrial Security Manual relating to the transmission of such classified information (and any other requirements of cognizant U.S. Government departments or agencies).

PART 252—DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE OFFSHORE MILITARY ACTIVITIES PROGRAM

Sec.
252.1 Reissuance and purpose.
252.2 Applicability and scope.
252.3 Definitions.
252.4 Policy.
252.5 Responsibilities.

AUTHORITY: 5 U.S.C. 301.
SOURCE: 52 FR 39222, Oct. 21, 1987, unless otherwise noted.

§ 252.3 Definitions.

Offshore areas. The submerged land areas defined in 43 U.S.C. 1301 et seq. and 43 U.S.C. 1311 et seq. and the adjacent waters affected by the use of those submerged lands.

Offshore Military Activities Program. The program established to implement DoD policies and procedures for those activities, operations, and installations that require an offshore environment and that may impact on offshore areas.

Outer Continental Shelf. All submerged lands lying seaward and outside of the area of lands beneath navigable waters as defined in section 2 of 43 U.S.C. 1301 et seq., and of which the subsoil and seabed appertain to the United States and are subject to its jurisdiction and control.

State-owned Offshore Submerged Lands. Coastal portions of lands beneath navigable waters, as defined in section 2 of the Submerged Lands Act.

§ 252.4 Policy.

(a) It is DoD policy to support the principle that lands composing the Outer Continental Shelf and state-owned offshore areas shall be used in the best interest of the United States. Therefore, it is DoD policy for the use of offshore areas to be shared with non-military interests whenever they can be accommodated.

(b) The Secretaries of Defense and the Interior have agreed on procedures for resolving conflicts over joint use of offshore areas for military and mineral exploration or developmental purposes. In carrying out negotiations with elements of the Department of the Interior (DoI), the Department of Defense shall be guided by this agreement when appropriate.

(c) If a coastal state determines that the mineral potential of off-shore areas being used or proposed to be used for military purposes must be explored or developed, DoD shall endeavor to accommodate joint military and commercial use of those areas. If compatible joint use is not economically or militarily feasible, DoD shall seek agreement with the coastal state to exclude conflict areas from its leasing program.
§ 252.5 Responsibilities.

(a) The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Production and Logistics) (ASD(P&L)) shall maintain a comprehensive program for the military use of the offshore environment and provide related direction and policy to DoD Components.

(b) The Secretary of the Army shall provide notices to the ASD(A&L), to affected military installations and activities, and to the Director of the Defense Mapping Agency Hydrographic/Topographic Center of potential obstructions and hazards to navigation as stated in the Rivers and Harbors Appropriation Act, of proposed permits for obstructions to be located on the Outer Continental Shelf under 43 U.S.C. 1331 et seq., as amended, and of proposed permits for artificial reefs under the National Fishing Enhancement Act of 1984 to ensure compatibility with the Offshore Military Activities Program.

(c) The Secretary of the Navy shall:

1. Act as DoD Executive Agent for outer continental shelf matters and carry out responsibilities assigned to the Executive Agent in the Agreement.

2. Conduct continuing liaison with DoI, appropriate coastal states, and the ASD(P&L) to ensure compatibility between the DoD Offshore Military Activities Program and the related plans and programs of DoI and coastal states.

3. Inform concerned DoD Components of new developments in the DoI’s, states’, and industry’s mineral leasing plans that may affect present or potential military interests in offshore areas.

4. Represent the Department of Defense on the Secretary of the Interior’s Outer Continental Shelf Advisory Board.

(d) The Secretary of the Air Force shall, for those offshore areas under his control, conduct continuing liaison with the DoI and coastal states and enter into agreements necessary to ensure compatibility between military activities and relevant plans and programs of the DoI and coastal states.

(e) Heads of DoD Components shall:

1. Review proposed DoI’s and states’ mineral leasing plans and inform the Executive Agent of proposed activities that could be incompatible with military missions. When joint use is feasible, the Heads shall recommend conditions and stipulations that should be imposed in leases to ensure the integrity of military missions and otherwise protect the interests of the United States against claims arising out of damage to property or personal injury.

2. Establish and maintain lines of communication and coordination to ensure that the ASD(P&L) and the Executive Agent are fully aware of plans and programs involving offshore areas.

3. Review notices referred to in §252.5(b) and notify the Army Chief of Engineers if proposed actions are incompatible with offshore military activities.

4. Inform the Army Chief of Engineers and the Executive Agent of any significant change in the status of offshore ranges, restricted areas, or operating areas.

5. Comply with the provisions of the Coastal Zone Management Act.

6. Conduct other activities related to offshore areas as requested by the ASD(A&L).

PART 253—ASSIGNMENT OF AMERICAN NATIONAL RED CROSS AND UNITED SERVICE ORGANIZATIONS, INC., EMPLOYEES TO DUTY WITH THE MILITARY SERVICES

§ 253.1 Reissuance and purpose.

This rule reissues this part to update policy and procedures governing the investigation of American National Red Cross (hereafter “Red Cross”) employees and United Service Organizations, Inc. (USO), staff for the purpose of determining the security acceptability of such personnel for assignment to duty with the Military Services.
§ 253.2 Applicability and scope.

(a) This rule applies to the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the Military Departments, the Unified and Specified Commands, and the Defense Investigative Service (hereafter referred to as “DoD Components”). The term “Military Services,” as used herein, refers to the Army, the Navy, the Air Force, and the Marine Corps.

(b) This rule does not apply to U.S. citizens or foreign nationals who are available locally at overseas locations for temporary or part-time employment with the Red Cross or the USO. Policy and procedures governing investigation and security acceptability of locally hired employees shall be determined by the Military Department concerned.

§ 253.3 Definition.

Employee. Any full-time, salaried individual serving with or employed by the Red Cross or the USO who is subject to assignment for overseas duty with the Military Services.

§ 253.4 Policy.

(a) It is the policy of the Department of Defense that an employee shall be accepted for assignment to duty with the Military Services overseas only after it has been determined, based upon an appropriate personnel security investigation, that such acceptance for assignment is clearly consistent with the national interest.

(b) The standard and criteria for determining the security acceptability of an employee for assignment or continuation of assignment with the Military Services overseas shall be identical to those established for making security clearance determinations for personnel employed in private industry under §§155.4 and 155.5 of this title.

§ 253.5 Responsibilities.

(a) The Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Policy, or designee, the Director, Security Plans and Programs, shall serve as the primary contact between the Department of Defense and the Red Cross and USO for all matters relating to the policy and procedures prescribed herein.

(b) Heads of DoD Components shall comply with the provisions of this rule.

§ 253.6 Procedures.

(a) Employees who are U.S. citizens shall have been the subject of a national agency check (NAC), completed with favorable results, before being nominated for assignment with the Military Services overseas.

(b) Employees who are not U.S. citizens shall have been the subject of a background investigation (BI), completed with favorable results, before being nominated for assignment with the Military Services overseas.

(c) An employee will not be assigned for duty with the Military Services overseas or continued in such an assignment when it has been determined that assignment or continuation of assignment is not clearly consistent with the national interest.

(d) Completed security forms (DD Form 398, Personnel Security Questionnaire (BI/SBI), or 398-2, Personnel Security Questionnaire (National Agency Check)) shall be forwarded to the Defense Industrial Security Clearance Office (DISCO), Defense Investigative Service, for initiation of the NAC or BI, as appropriate.

(e) Upon completion of the appropriate investigation, the results shall be returned to the DISCO where a determination shall be made concerning security acceptability of the employee. If the determination is favorable, the DISCO shall provide a statement to that effect to the Red Cross or the USO. If the DISCO is unable to make a favorable security acceptability determination, the procedures described in paragraph (f)(3), of this section, shall apply.

(f) Whenever any DoD Component or the Red Cross or the USO receives information indicating that an employee’s assignment or continuation of assignment with the Military Services overseas may not clearly be consistent with the national interest, the information shall be furnished to the DISCO for appropriate review. In such cases, the following actions shall be taken:

(1) The DISCO shall arrange for the conduct of any investigation warranted to resolve the adverse or questionable information.
(2) In cases arising after the initial security acceptability determination has been made, the DISCO shall review the information or report of investigation to determine whether the security acceptability determination is to continue in effect. If such adjudication is favorable, no further action is required. The Red Cross or the USO will not be notified in such cases in order to preclude the possibility of any adverse inference being drawn.

(3) If, after reviewing the information or report of investigation, the DISCO is unable to make a favorable security acceptability determination, the case shall be referred for further processing in accordance with part 155 of this title.

PART 254—TEACHER AND TEACHER'S AIDE PLACEMENT ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

§ 254.1 Purpose.

It is Department of Defense policy to establish programs to assist personnel affected by the downsizing of the Department of Defense and to contribute to efforts to relieve shortages of elementary and secondary school teachers and teacher's aides.

§ 254.2 Definitions.

(a) Alternative certification. State or local teacher certification or licensure requirements that permit a demonstrated competence in appropriate subject areas gained in careers outside of education to be substituted for traditional teacher training course work.

(b) Eligible defense contractors or subcontractors. Those defense contractors or subcontractors that have applied and been selected using criteria established in “National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1993,” Public Law 102–484, 106 Stat. 2725 and meet the following criteria:

(1) Produce goods or services for the Department of Defense pursuant to a defense contract or operate nuclear weapons manufacturing facilities for the Department of Energy; and

(2) Have recently reduced operations, or are likely to reduce operations, due to the completion or termination of a defense contract or program or by reductions in defense spending.

(3) The Defense Activity for Non-Traditional Education Support (DANTES) shall give special consideration to defense contractors who are located in areas that have been impacted particularly hard by reductions in defense spending.

(c) Eligible local educational agency. A local school jurisdiction that normally hires teachers, is located in a state offering an alternative program for teacher certification, is receiving money under chapter 1 of title I, “Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965” (20 U.S.C. 2701 et seq.) as a result of having within its jurisdiction a concentration of children from low income families, has been identified by its state as experiencing a shortage of qualified teachers. Priority for grants under this program will be given to those local education agencies which receive concentration grant funds under chapter 1 of title I, or are eligible to receive such funding. The local school shall be willing to enter into an agreement with the Department of Defense to employ a certified program participant for not less than five consecutive years in a school within its jurisdiction having a concentration of children from low income families.

(d) Eligible personnel. Service members, civilian employees of the Department of Defense and the Department of Energy, and defense contractor employees who meet the specific requirements identified in paragraphs (d) (1) through (3) of this section. All persons selected shall have a baccalaureate or advanced degree (associate degree or higher for teacher's aide applicants) from an accredited institution of higher learning and, if selected, shall be willing to agree to obtain certification or licensure as an elementary or secondary school teacher or teacher's aide.
and to accept an offer of full-time employment as an elementary or secondary school teacher or teacher’s aid for not fewer than 5 school years in a school that serves a concentration of children from low-income families.

(1) Eligible service members. Members of the Armed Forces who during the 9-year period beginning on October 1, 1990, are discharged or released from active duty after 6 or more years of continuous active duty immediately before discharge or release, and are not discharged or released from service under other than honorable conditions. Application must be made within 1 year after discharge or release, except that Service members whose date of discharge or release is on or after October 1, 1990, but before January 19, 1994, shall apply by October 5, 1995. Service members who do not meet the degree requirements at the time of discharge shall be considered to be eligible upon satisfying degree requirements with 5 years after discharge from active duty. In such case, former Service members must make application within 1 year after earning the applicable degree.

(2) Eligible nonmilitary Government employees. Full time civilian employees of the Department of Defense or the Department of Energy who have served at least 5 years in a civil service position and are terminated from Government employment as a result of reductions in defense spending or the closure of realignment of a military installation as determined by the Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of Energy. Application must be made after receipt of a notice of termination but not later than 1 year following termination.

(3) Eligible contractor employees. Scientists or engineers whose employment is terminated (or who have received notice of termination) as a result of the completion or termination of a defense contract or program or reductions in defense spending. The individuals must have been employed for not less than five years as a scientist or engineer with a private defense contractor that has entered into a cooperative agreement with Department of Defense to help support the program including payment of 50 percent of the stipend provided to the contractor employee selected for assistance.

(e) Grant. Funding to be provided to a local education agency to offset the basic salary of a program participant during five consecutive years of employment. Assuming employment begins at the beginning of a school year, a grant shall be paid in five installments in accordance with the following schedule:

First Year—50 percent of basic salary not to exceed $25,000
Second Year—40 percent of basic salary not to exceed $10,000
Third Year—30 percent of basic salary not to exceed $7,500
Fourth Year—20 percent of basic salary not to exceed $5,000
Fifth Year—10 percent of basic salary not to exceed $2,500

(1) Installments shall be payable after the end of each school year within 30 days after the local education agency certifies to the Department of Defense the basic salary paid to the employee during the past school year is consistent with the written agreement between the local educational agency and the Department of Defense.

(2) If employment begins other than at the beginning of a school year, the grant shall be payable in up to six installments. The grant payments shall be based on the total teacher pay days equivalent to a full school year. Payments will be made so that reimbursement does not exceed the percentage and dollar amounts for any one equivalent full school year.

(f) Stipend. The lesser of $5,000 or the total costs of the type described in “Higher Education Act of 1965,” section 472 (20 U.S.C. 1087l), incurred by a selected program participant while obtaining certification.

§ 254.3 Responsibilities.

(a) The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Personnel and Readiness) shall:

Office of the Secretary of Defense

(2) The Director of Education, as the representative for the ASD(P&R), shall:

(i) Identify program needs and provide program direction.

(ii) Provide liaison and coordination with educational agencies, and school officials.

(iii) Oversee the funding of this program and ensure compliance with this memorandum.

(iv) Conduct a survey of States to identify those States that have alternative certification or licensure requirements for teachers, including those States that grant credit for service in the armed forces towards satisfying certification or licensure requirements for teachers.

(b) The Secretaries of the Military Departments shall:

(1) Ensure that separating Service members are informed about the subject program during preseparation counseling provided by Transition Assistance Offices.

(2) Ensure that installation Education Centers can, upon request, provide information and counseling on teacher training and certification, including alternative certification requirements.

(3) Ensure that separating employees are informed about this program during preseparation counseling by installation and activity Civilian Personnel Officers.

(4) Ensure that personnel management offices inform noncommissioned officers who will reach ten years of service during the current fiscal year (until September 30, 1997), who have the potential to perform as elementary or secondary school teachers, but who do not satisfy the minimum educational requirements to qualify for the program of the opportunity to obtain those qualifications within five years after discharge or release from active duty and apply for placement assistance within one year thereafter.

(c) The Secretary of the Navy shall, as executive agent for the Defense Activity for Non-Traditional Education Support (DANTES), ensure DANTES is provided assistance and support in meeting its responsibilities in support of this program.

§ 254.4 Procedures.

(a) The Secretary of the Navy, as executive agent for DANTES, shall ensure DANTES executes the program, by:

(1) Issuing procedural guidance implementing this part, as necessary.

(2) Preparing and distributing information, forms and publications.

(6) As necessary and authorized, entering into agreements with other governmental and non-governmental entities, stipend awardees, and local educational agencies eligible to participate in the program.

(7) Establishing and maintaining a file on each applicant and tracking actions taken with regard to each applicant.

(8) Establishing and maintaining a file on each local educational agency or private defense contractor who seeks to enter into an agreement with the Department of Defense in connection with this program.

(9) Collecting debts owed the Department of Defense resulting from failure to comply with agreements made regarding the use of stipends given to program participants or grants made to local educational agencies.

(i) DANTES shall collect from local educational agencies an amount that bears the same ratio to the total amount already paid under the agreement as the unserved portion of required service bears to the five years of required service for participants that leave the employment of the local educational agency before the end of the five years of required service.

(ii) DANTES shall collect from personnel participating in this program, if the participant in the placement program fails to obtain teacher certification or licensure or employment as an elementary or secondary school teacher or as a teacher’s aide or is terminated for cause, during the five years of required service. The participant shall be required to reimburse the Secretary of Defense for any stipend paid to the participant in the same ratio to the amount of the stipend as the unserved portion of required service bears to the five years of required service, except as provided in paragraph (f) of this section.

(10) Maintaining data on this program and provide reports to the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Personnel and Readiness) through the Navy, as executive agent, quarterly.

(b) Eligible Service members shall apply for participation in the program not later than 1 year after the date of discharge or release, except that eligible Service members whose date of discharge or release is on or after October 1, 1990, but before January 19, 1994, shall apply by October 5, 1995. Service members who are not eligible on their date of separation because they do not meet the degree requirements required to participate in the program, but who earn an applicable degree within 5 years after separation, shall apply not later than 1 year after earning such a degree. Service members are also encouraged to register in the Public Community Service Registry their interest in pursuing employment as an elementary or secondary school teacher or teacher’s aide. Information about the Registry is provided during preseparation counseling as part of the transition assistance program.

(c) Eligible Department of Defense or Department of Energy civilian employees shall apply after they have received written notice of termination of employment but not later than 1 year following the date of such termination. DANTES shall provide program information to civilian personnel offices that will allow civilian personnel offices to make an initial determination of eligibility and refer interested employees to installation education centers for program information and to DANTES for selection purposes.

(d) Eligible Department of Defense or Department of Energy civilian employees shall apply under procedures established by DANTES and published in the Federal Register, after they have received notice of termination but not later than 60 days following termination. DANTES shall provide program information to civilian personnel offices that will allow civilian personnel offices to make an initial determination of eligibility and refer interested employees to installation Education Centers for program information and to DANTES for selection purposes.

(e) Applications will be screened upon receipt and grouped for either immediate evaluation or deferred evaluation. Those applications screened for immediate evaluation will be evaluated as soon as possible after receipt to determine if selection is justified. If so, applicants will be notified that they have been selected to become participants in the program. An application initially marked for deferred evaluation will be reviewed at the end of each calendar month to determine if it should be accepted for immediate evaluation, further deferred pending receipt of additional information, or rejected. Criteria to be used in selecting participants shall include the following:

(1) Is the applicant willing to work as a teacher or teacher’s aide in an elementary or secondary school which serves a concentration of children from low income families?
(2) Does the applicant have educational or military experience in science, mathematics or engineering and agree to seek employment teaching science, mathematics or engineering?

(3) Is the applicant particularly likely to serve as a positive role model in the kinds of schools that are eligible to participate in this program?

(4) Does the applicant have educational or military experience in English, history, geography, foreign language, the arts or special education and agree to seek employment teaching these subjects or working with special education students?

(f) Selected participants, if eligible, may be provided a stipend to offset costs of the type described in Higher Education Act of 1965, section 472 (20 U.S.C. 1087ll) which are incurred by the participant while obtaining alternative certification or licensure to teach or necessary credentials to serve as a teacher’s aide. A stipend will not be paid to any Service member who is entitled to the Special Separation Benefit (SSB) under 10 U.S.C. 1174a, or the Voluntary Separation Incentive (VSI) under 10 U.S.C. 1175, or who is given early retirement under “National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1993,” section 4403, Public Law 102-484, 106 Stat. 2702.

(1) A stipend will not be paid to any civilian employee selected to participate in the placement program who receives separation pay under 5 U.S.C. 5597.

(2) If a participant fails to obtain certification or employment as a teacher or teacher’s aide, or voluntarily leaves or is terminated for cause from employment during the five years of required service, the participant shall reimburse the Department of Defense for any stipend paid in an amount that is a prorated share based on the unserved portion of required service as provided in this paragraph. A participant may be excused from the reimbursement requirement under certain circumstances provided for in “National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1993,” Public Law 102-484, 106 Stat. 2702. A participant shall be excused from the reimbursement requirement under the following circumstances. The participant:

(i) Is pursuing a full-time course of study related to the field of teaching at an eligible institution;

(ii) Is serving on active duty as a member of the armed forces;

(iii) Is temporarily totally disabled for a period of time not to exceed three years as established by sworn affidavit of a qualified physician;

(iv) Is unable to secure employment for a period not to exceed 12 months by reason of the care required by a spouse who is disabled; or

(v) Is seeking and unable to find full-time employment as a teacher or teacher’s aide in an elementary or secondary school for a single period not to exceed 27 months.

(g) Participants will seek employment as elementary or secondary school teachers or teacher’s aides in eligible local educational agencies identified by the Department of Defense.

(h) The Department of Defense through its executive agent, DANTES, will offer to enter into an agreement with the first eligible local educational agency that employs the participant as a full-time elementary or secondary school teacher or teacher’s aide after the participant obtains necessary credentials. Under such agreements, DANTES will provide a grant to local educational agencies that agree to hire program participants for not fewer than five consecutive school years in a school of the local educational agency serving a concentration of children from low-income families. If employment is terminated by either the participant or the local educational agency before the end of the five years of required service, the grant will be adjusted as described in this part and any excess paid will be reimbursed to the government under guidance prescribed by DANTES.

(i) Participants may not be accepted to receive stipends nor agreements made with local educational agencies to provide grants unless sufficient appropriations are available to support the obligations which may be incurred.

PART 256—AIR INSTALLATIONS COMPATIBLE USE ZONES

§ 256.1 Purpose.
This part:
(a) Sets forth Department of Defense policy on achieving compatible use of public and private lands in the vicinity of military airfields;
(b) Defines (1) required restrictions on the uses and heights of natural and man-made objects in the vicinity of air installations to provide for safety of flight and to assure that people and facilities are not concentrated in areas susceptible to aircraft accidents; and
(2) Desirable restrictions on land use to assure its compatibility with the characteristics, including noise, of air installations operations;
(c) Describes the procedures by which Air Installations Compatible Use Zones (AICUZ) may be defined; and
(d) Provides policy on the extent of Government interest in real property within these zones which may be retained or acquired to protect the operational capacity of active military airfields (subject in each case to the availability of required authorizations and appropriations).

§ 256.2 Applicability.
This part applies to air installations of the Military Departments located within the United States, its territories, trusts, and possessions.

§ 256.3 Criteria.
(a) General. The Air Installations Compatible Use Zone for each military air installation shall consist of (1) land areas upon which certain uses may obstruct the airspace or otherwise be hazardous to aircraft operations, and (2) land areas which are exposed to the health, safety or welfare hazards of aircraft operations.
(b) Height of obstructions. The land area and height standards defined in AFM 86-8,1 NavFac P-272 and P-80,1 and TM 5-803-4 will be used for purposes of height restriction criteria.
(c) Accident potential—(1) General. (i) Areas immediately beyond the ends of runways and along primary flight paths are subject to more aircraft accidents than other areas. For this reason, these areas should remain undeveloped, or if developed should be only sparsely developed in order to limit, as much as possible, the adverse effects of a possible aircraft accident.
(ii) DoD fixed wing runways are separated into two types for the purpose of defining accident potential areas. Class A runways are those restricted to light aircraft (See § 256.6) and which do not have the potential for development for heavy or high performance aircraft use or for which no foreseeable requirement for such use exists. Typically these runways have less than 10% of their operations involving Class B aircraft (§ 256.6) and are less than 8000 feet long. Class B runways are all other fixed wing runways.
(iii) The following descriptions of Accident Potential Zones are guidelines only. Their strict application would result in increasing the safety of the general public but would not provide complete protection against the effects of aircraft accidents. Such a degree of protection is probably impossible to achieve. Local situations may differ significantly from the assumptions and data upon which these guidelines are based and require individual study. Where it is desirable to restrict the density of development of an area, it is not usually possible to state that one... density is safe and another is not. Safety is a relative term and the objective should be the realization of the greatest degree of safety that can be reasonably attained.

(2) Accident potential and clear zones (See §256.7). (i) The area immediately beyond the end of a runway is the “Clear Zone”, an area which possesses a high potential for accidents, and has traditionally been acquired by the Government in fee and kept clear of obstructions to flight.

(ii) Accident Potential Zone I (APZ I) is the area beyond the clear zone which possesses a significant potential for accidents.

(iii) Accident Potential Zone II (APZ II) is an area beyond APZ I having a measurable potential for accidents.

(iv) Modifications to APZs I and II will be considered if:

(A) The runway is infrequently used.

(B) The prevailing wind conditions are such that a large percentage (i.e., over 80 percent) of the operations are in one direction.

(C) Most aircraft do not overfly the APZs as defined herein during normal flight operations (modifications may be made to alter these zones and adjust them to conform to the line of flight).

(D) Local accident history indicates consideration of different areas.

(E) Other unusual conditions exist.

(v) The takeoff safety zone for VFR rotary-wing facilities will be used for the clear zone; the remainder of the approach-departure zone will be used as APZ I.

(vi) Land use compatibility with clear zones and APZs is shown in §256.8.

(d) Noise—(1) General. Noise exposure is described in various ways. In 1964, the Department of Defense began using the Composite Noise Rating (CNR) system to describe aircraft noise. Several years ago the Noise Exposure Forecast (NEF) system began to replace CNR. In August 1974, the Environment Protection Agency notified all Federal agencies of intent to implement the Day-Night Average Sound Level (Ldn) noise descriptor, and this was subsequently adopted by the DoD. This Ldn system will be used for air installations. Where AICUZ studies have progressed to the point that a change in the descriptor system is impractical or uneconomical, such studies may be published and continued in use. However, in such cases, data necessary for conversion to Ldn should be collected and studies should be revised as soon as time and budgetary considerations permit. However, if State or local laws require some other noise descriptor, it may be used in lieu of Ldn.

(2) Noise Zones. (i) As a minimum, contours for Ldn 65, 70, 75 and 80 shall be plotted on maps as part of AICUZ studies.

(ii) See §256.10 for a further discussion of Ldn use and conversion to Ldn from previously used systems.

§ 256.4 Policy.

(a) General. As a first priority step, all reasonable, economical, and practical measures will be taken to reduce and/or control the generation of noise from flying and flying related activities. Typical measures normally include siting of engine test and runup facilities in remote areas if practical, provision of sound suppression equipment where necessary, and may include additional measures such as adjustment of traffic patterns to avoid built-up areas where such can be accomplished with safety and without significant impairment of operational effectiveness. After all reasonable noise source control measures have been taken, there will usually remain significant land areas wherein the total noise exposure is such as to be incompatible with certain uses.

(b) Compatible use land—(1) General. DoD policy is to work toward achieving compatibility between air installations and neighboring civilian communities by means of a compatible land use planning and control process conducted by the local community.

(ii) Land use compatibility guidelines will be specified for each Clear Zone, Accident Potential Zone, Noise Zone and combination of these as appropriate.

(iii) The method of control and regulation of land usage within each zone will vary according to local conditions. In all instances the primary objective will be to identify planning areas and reasonable land use guidelines which will be recommended to appropriate agencies who are in control of the planning functions for the affected areas.

(2) Property rights acquisition—(i) General. While noise generated by aircraft at military air installations should be an integral element of land use compatibility efforts, the acquisition of property rights on the basis of noise by the Department of Defense may not be in the long term best interests of the United States. Therefore, while the complete requirement for individual installations should be defined prior to any programming actions, acquisition of interests should be programmed in accordance with the following priorities.

(ii) Priorities. (A) The first priority is the acquisition in fee and/or appropriate restrictive easements of lands within the clear zones whenever practicable.

(B) Outside the clear zone, program for the acquisition of interests, first in Accident Potential Zones and secondly in high noise areas only when all possibilities of achieving compatible use zoning, or similar protection, have been exhausted and the operational integrity of the air installation is manifestly threatened. If programming actions are considered necessary, complete records of all discussions, negotiations, testimony, etc., with or before all local officials, boards, etc., must be maintained. This will ensure that documentation is available to indicate that all reasonable and prudent efforts were made to preclude incompatible land use through cooperation with local governmental officials and that all recourse to such action has been exhausted. Such records shall accompany programming actions and/or apportionment requests for items programmed prior to the date of this part. In addition, a complete economic analysis and assessment of the future of the installation must be included.

(1) Costs of establishing and maintaining compatible use zones must be weighed against other available options, such as changing the installation’s mission and relocating the flying activities, closing the installation, or such other courses of action as may be available. In performing analyses of this type, exceptional care must be exercised to assure that a decision to change or relocate a mission is fully justified and that all aspects of the situation have been thoroughly considered.

(2) When, as a result of such analysis, it is determined that relocation or abandonment of a mission will be required, then no new construction shall be undertaken in support of such activities except as is absolutely necessary to maintain safety and operational readiness pending accomplishment of the changes required.

(iii) Guidelines. This part shall not be used as sole justification for either the acquisition or the retention of owned interests beyond the minimum required to protect the Government.

(A) Necessary rights to land within the defined compatible use area may be obtained by purchase, exchange, or donation, in accordance with all applicable laws and regulations.

(B) If fee title is currently held or subsequently acquired in an area where compatible uses could be developed and no requirement for a fee interest in the land exists except to prevent incompatible use, disposal actions shall normally be instituted. Only those rights and interests necessary to establish and maintain compatible uses shall be retained. Where proceeds from disposal would be inconsequential, consideration may be given to retaining title.

(C) If the cost of acquiring a required interest approaches closely the cost of fee title, consideration shall be given to whether acquisition of fee title would be to the advantage of the Government.

(c) Rights and interests which may be obtained. When it is determined to be necessary for the Federal Government to acquire interests in land, a careful assessment of the type of interest to be acquired is mandatory. §256.9 contains a listing of possible interests which should be examined for applicability.

(d) Environmental impact statements. (1) Any actions taken with respect to safety of flight, accident hazard, or noise which involve acquisition of interests in land must be examined to determine the necessity of preparing an environmental impact statement in accordance with DoD Directive 6050.1.

§ 256.5 The air installation compatible use program.

(a) The Secretaries of the Military Departments will develop, implement and maintain a program to investigate and study all air installations in necessary order of priority to develop an Air Installation Compatible Use Zone (AICUZ) program for each air installation consistent with §256.4. AICUZ studies which contain an analysis of land use compatibility problems and potential solutions shall be developed and updated as necessary. As a minimum, each Study shall include the following:

(1) Determination by detailed study of flight operations, actual noise and safety surveys if necessary, and best available projections of future flying activities, desirable restrictions on land use due to noise characteristics and safety of flight;

(2) Identification of present incompatible land uses;

(3) Identification of land that if inappropriately developed would be incompatible;

(4) Indication of types of desirable development for various land tracts;

(5) Land value estimates for the zones in question.

(6) Review of the airfield master plans to ensure that existing and future facilities siting is consistent with the policies in this part.

(7) Full consideration of joint use of air installations by activities of separate Military Departments whenever such use will result in maintaining operational capabilities while reducing noise, real estate and construction requirements.

(8) Recommendations for work with local zoning boards, necessary minimum programs of acquisition, relocation, or such other actions as are indicated by the results of the Study.

(b) Procedures. In developing AICUZ studies the Secretaries of Military Departments shall:

(1) Follow the review and comment procedures established under OMB Circular A-95;

(2) Ensure that appropriate environmental factors are considered; and

(3) Ensure that other local, State or Federal agencies engaged in land use planning or land regulation for a particular area have an opportunity to review and comment upon any proposed plan or significant modification thereof.

(c) Coordination with State and local governments. Secretaries of the Military Departments shall develop procedures for coordinating AICUZ Studies with the land use planning and regulatory agencies in the area. Developing compatible land use plans may require working with local governments, local planning commissions, special purpose districts, regional planning agencies, state agencies, state legislatures, as well as the other Federal agencies. Technical assistance to local, regional, and state agencies to assist them in developing their land use planning and regulatory processes, to explain an AICUZ Study and its implications, and generally to work toward compatible planning and development in the vicinity of military airfields, should be provided.

(d) Property rights acquisition. The AICUZ Study shall serve as the basis for new land acquisitions, property disposal, and other proposed changes in Military Departments real property holdings in the vicinity of military airfields where applicable.

(e) Required approvals. Based on the results of the AICUZ Studies, each Military Department will prepare recommendations for individual installations AICUZ programs for approval as follows:

(1) The Secretaries of the Military Departments or their designated representatives will review and approve the AICUZ Studies establishing the individual air installation AICUZ program.

(2) When relocation or abandonment of a mission or an installation is apparently required, the Secretaries of the Military Departments will submit the proposed plan for the installation, with appropriate recommendations, to the Secretary of Defense for approval.

(3) A time-phased fiscal year plan for implementation of the AICUZ program in priority order, consistent with budgetary considerations, will be developed for approval by the Secretaries of the Military Departments, or their designated representatives. These plans will serve as the basis for all AICUZ actions at the individual installations.

(f) Coincident actions. The Secretaries of the Military Departments will also take action to assure in accordance with § 256.4 (a) and (b) that:

(1) As the first priority action in developing an AICUZ program, full attention is given to safety and noise problems.

(2) In all planning, acquisition and siting of noise generating items, such as engine test stands, full advantage is taken of available alleviating measures, such as remote sites or sound suppression equipment.

(3) The noise exposure of on-installation facilities and personnel are considered together with that off the installation.

(4) There is development or continuation with renewed emphasis, of programs to inform local governments, citizens groups, and the general public of the requirements of flying activities, the reasons therefore, the efforts which may have been made or may be taken to reduce noise exposure, and similar matters which will promote and develop a public awareness of the complexities of air installation operations, the problems associated therewith, and the willingness of the Department of Defense to take all measures possible to alleviate undesirable external effects.

(g) Responsibilities for the acquisition, management and disposal of real property are defined in DoD Directive 4165.6, “Real Property: Acquisition, Management and Disposal,” September 15, 1955 (20 F.R. 7113).

(h) The Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Installations and Housing) will examine the program developed pursuant to this part, and from time to time review the progress thereunder to assure conformance with policy.

§ 256.9 Real estate interests to be considered for clear zones and accident potential zone.

(a) The right to make low and frequent flights over said land and to generate noises associated with:

1. Aircraft in flight, whether or not while directly over said land,

2. Aircraft and aircraft engines operating on the ground at said base, and,

3. Aircraft engine test/stand/cell operations at said base.

(b) The right to regulate or prohibit the release into the air of any substance which would impair the visibility or otherwise interfere with the operations of aircraft, such as, but not limited to, steam, dust and smoke.

(c) The right to regulate or prohibit light emissions, either direct or indirect (reflective), which might interfere with pilot vision.

(d) The right to prohibit electrical emissions which would interfere with aircraft and aircraft communications systems or aircraft navigational equipment.

(e) The right to prohibit any use of the land which would unnecessarily attract birds or waterfowl, such as, but not limited to, operation of sanitary landfills, maintenance of feeding stations or the growing of certain types of... vegetation attractive to birds or waterfowl.

(f) The right to prohibit and remove any buildings or other non-frangible structures.

(g) The right to top, cut to ground level, and to remove trees, shrubs, brush or other forms of obstruction which the installation commander determines might interfere with the operation of aircraft, including emergency landings.

(h) The right of ingress and egress upon, over and across said land for the purpose of exercising the rights set forth herein.

(i) The right to post signs on said land indicating the nature and extent of the Government’s control over said land.

(j) The right to prohibit land uses other than the following:

(1) Agriculture.
(2) Livestock grazing.
(3) Permanent open space.
(4) Existing water areas.
(5) Rights of way for fenced two lane highways, without sidewalks or bicycle trails and single track railroads.

(k) The right to prohibit entry of persons onto the land except in connection with activities authorized under paragraphs (a), (b), (c), and (f) of this section.

(l) The right to disapprove land uses not in accordance with §256.8.

(m) The right to control the height of structures to insure that they do not become a hazard to flight.

(n) The right to install airfield lighting and navigational aids.

§256.10 Air installations compatible use zone noise descriptors.

(a) Composite Noise Rating (CNR) and Noise Exposure Forecast (NEF) values as previously required by Sections III., IV., and V. of DoD Instruction 4165.57, “Air Installations Compatible Use Zones,” July 30, 1973 will no longer be used.

(b) Where CNR 100 (or the quietest boundary of CNR Zone 2 if otherwise computed) or NEF 30 would previously have been used, data shall be collected sufficient to permit computation of Ldn 65 noise contours and these noise contours shall be plotted on maps accompanying AICUZ studies.

(c) Where CNR 115 (or the boundary of CNR Zone 3 if otherwise computed) or NEF 40 would previously have been used, data shall be collected sufficient to permit computation of Ldn 75 noise contours and these noise contours shall be plotted on maps accompanying AICUZ studies.

(d) Where previous studies have used CNR or NEF, for meters of policy, noise planning and decisionmaking, areas quieter than Ldn 65 shall be considered approximately equivalent to the previously used CNR Zone 1 and to areas quieter than NEF 30. The area between Ldn 65 and Ldn 75 shall be considered approximately equivalent to the previously used CNR Zone 2 and to the area between NEF 30 and NEF 40. The area of higher noise than Ldn 75 shall be considered approximately equivalent to the previously used CNR Zone 3 and to noise higher the NEF 40. The procedures shall remain in effect only until sufficient data to compute land values can be obtained.

(e) When computing helicopter noise levels using data collected from meters, a correction of +7db shall be added to meter readings obtained under conditions where blade slap was present until and unless matters are developed which more accurately reflect true conditions.

(f) Noise contours less than Ldn 65 or more than Ldn 80 need not be plotted for AICUZ studies.

(g) Since CNR noise levels are not normally directly convertible to Ldn values without introducing significant error, care should be exercised to assure that personnel do not revise previous studies by erroneously relabeling CNR contours to the approximately equivalent Ldn values.

(h) Where intermittent impulse noises are such as are associated with bombing and gunnery ranges are of importance such noises will be measured using standard “C” weighing of the various frequencies to insure a description most representative of actual human response.

§ 256.11 Effective date and implementation.
This part is effective immediately. Two copies of implementing regulations shall be forwarded to the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Installations and Logistics) within 90 days after publication of final rules.

SOURCE: 49 FR 1490, Jan. 12, 1984, unless otherwise noted.

§ 257.1 Purpose.
This rule updates DoD policy governing acceptance of service of process served on the Secretary of Defense and the Secretaries of the Military Departments.

§ 257.2 Applicability.
This rule applies to the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) and the Military Departments.

§ 257.3 Definition.
Service of Process. When applied to the filing of a court action against an officer or agency of the United States, service of process refers to the delivery or, when appropriate, receipt by mail, of a summons and complaint made in accordance with Rule 4, Federal Rules of Civil Procedure by serving the United States and by serving a copy of the summons and complaint by registered or certified mail to such officer or agency. It further signifies the delivery of a subpoena requiring a witness to appear and give testimony or of a subpoena requiring production of documents, or delivery of a subpoena for any other reason whether or not the matter involves the United States.

§ 257.4 Policy.
It is DoD policy to accept service of process directed to the Secretary of Defense or a Secretary of a Military Department in his official capacity. Acceptance of service of process will not constitute an admission or waiver with respect to the jurisdiction or to the propriety of service.

The following responsibilities may not be redelegated:
(a) The General Counsel, Department of Defense, shall accept service of process for the OSD.
(b) The Secretary of the Army, or his designee, the Chief, Litigation Division, Office of the Judge Advocate General, shall accept service of process for the Department of the Army.

PART 258—COOPERATION WITH ALLIES IN RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT OF DEFENSE EQUIPMENT

Sec.
258.1 Purpose.
258.2 Background.
258.3 Policy.
258.4 Criteria.
258.5 Procedures.
258.6 Responsibilities and authorities.

AUTHORITY: 5 U.S.C. 301.
SOURCE: 33 FR 13024, Sept. 14, 1968, unless otherwise noted.

§ 258.1 Purpose.
It is the purpose of this part to specify Defense Department policy for strengthening cooperation with Allies in research and development and to assign responsibilities for implementing it. This policy calls for maximum coordination of technical objectives and programs with those of our allies. It complements DoD Directive 3100.4, Harmonization of Qualitative Requirements for Defense Equipment of United States and Allies.

§ 258.2 Background.
Cooperation in defense research and development between the United States and its Allies since World War II has been aimed primarily at assisting them, financially as well as technically, in developing indigenous capabilities. The economic status of certain of these Allies has now evolved beyond the point of warranting further financial assistance. However, the evolution of modern weapons of increasing cost and complexity makes the effective utilization of the aggregate of available technical resources a matter of concern to each nation.

§ 258.3 Policy.
(a) The United States will cooperate with its Allies to the greatest degree possible in the development of defense equipment, where such cooperation is in the overall best interests of the United States. The objectives of such cooperation will be:
(1) To make the best equipment available to the United States and its Allies in the most timely manner.
(2) To increase the effectiveness of the scientific and technical resources of the United States and its Allies, especially by eliminating unnecessary and wasteful duplication of effort.
(3) To achieve the maximum practicable degree of standardization of equipment.
(4) To create closer military ties among the Alliance.
(b) The United States will seek to enter into bilateral and multilateral agreements with its allies that will minimize waste resulting from purely duplicative R&D programs and, within the criteria stated in § 258.4, encourage the establishment of a mutually acceptable free, fully competitive market for defense R&D. To this effect, the DoD will:
(1) Continue to encourage the mutual development of technical capabilities,

§ 258.4 Criteria.
(a) The general criteria for such cooperation will be:
(1) Except for MAP "grant-aid countries," no appropriations available to the DoD will be used to finance the foreign research and development effort unless the program is aimed at satisfying a United States military need.
(2) Except for MAP "grant-aid countries," cooperative R&D programs will be funded by Service RDT&E funds.
(3) U.S. participation in jointly funded development programs will not be approved unless the United States receives design and production rights equivalent to those secured from domestic sources.
(b) International balance-of-payments considerations have resulted in the establishment of certain specific restrictions pertinent to DoD overseas activities, including those relating to foreign R&D. The screening and selection of proposed R&D projects must be consistent with these restrictions. In this connection, preference should be given to the following types of joint R&D undertakings:
(1) Projects that provide for the investment of foreign funds in U.S. R&D activities under mutually acceptable terms and conditions.
(2) Projects that offer the U.S. good prospects for the ultimate sale of the end item or associated components to second and third foreign parties.

1 Copies available from Naval Supply Depot, 5001 Tabor Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa. 19120; Attn.: Code 300.

(3) Projects that capitalize on the unique technical state-of-the-art capabilities existing in a foreign country and offer prospects of saving the U.S. time and money in the R&D and production field.

(4) Projects that enable the United States to assist and/or accommodate a foreign second party to accomplish joint R&D objectives without jeopardizing U.S. aspirations to promote future U.S. sales to third countries.

§ 258.5 Procedures.

Procedures for accomplishing and administering the cooperative programs and projects will be integrated into DoD management systems so that decisions concerning national and international programs will be made by the same individuals.

§ 258.6 Responsibilities and authorities.

(a) The Military Departments are charged with the primary responsibility for implementing this part.

(b) The Director of Defense Research and Engineering will be responsible for monitoring the implementation of this part. He will:

(1) Negotiate basic policy agreements with foreign Ministries of Defense as appropriate.

(2) Consult with the Joint Chiefs of Staff on the interaction of research and development and strategic doctrines.

(3) Seek formal statements of military operational requirements from the Military Departments or the JCS, as appropriate, for research and development projects and equipment areas which require such statements.

(4) Recommend to the Secretary of Defense policy guidance and appropriate instructions for the Military Departments to assure consistency of their actions and conformity with National Policy.

(5) Continually review progress made towards the objectives of this part.

(6) Request policy guidance and support from Assistance Secretaries of Defense (ISA) (I&L) (Comp), and the General Counsel on matters within their respective fields of responsibility.

(c) The Defense Advisor U.S. Mission to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will assist the Director of Defense Research and Engineering, as directed, in supervising the implementation of this part.

(d) Military Assistance Advisory Groups and Missions will provide advice and assistance to the Military Departments as requested and within the limits of availability of assigned resources. Those MAAGs and Missions within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization areas will provide advice and assistance to the Defense Advisor U.S. NATO when requested.

§ 260.1 Reissuance and purpose.

This part updates part 260 to implement the provisions of the Randolph-Sheppard Vending Stand Act and 45 CFR part 13, part 1369, and establishes within the Department of Defense:

(a) Uniform policies for application of priority accorded the blind to operate vending facilities;
(b) Requirements for satisfactory vending facility sites in DoD Component-owned or occupied buildings; and,
(c) Vending machine income-sharing requirements on property under the jurisdiction of a DoD Component.

§ 260.2 Applicability.

The provisions of this part apply to the office of the Secretary of Defense, the Military Departments, and the Defense Agencies (hereafter referred to as "DoD Components") in the 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, American Samoa, Guam, and the Virgin Islands.

§ 260.3 Policy.

In implementation of the Randolph-Sheppard Act, priority on DoD-controlled property will be extended to the blind as set out below:

(a) The blind will be given a priority in establishment and operation of vending facilities.
(b) The blind will be given a priority in award of contracts to operate cafeterias.
(c) In conjunction with acquisition or substantial alteration or renovation of property, satisfactory sites will be provided for operation of blind vending facilities.
(d) Certain income from vending machines operated by a DoD Component either directly or by contract will be given to State licensing agencies.
(e) DoD components will take necessary action to ensure that, within their areas of responsibility, the requirements set forth below are implemented.
(f) The blind have a priority right to operate vending facilities on DoD-controlled property when the opportunity to operate them becomes available. The priority extended allows blind licensees to be gainfully employed. While primary responsibility for carrying out this intent falls upon the State licensing agency, it is nevertheless a responsibility of the on-site official to ensure that the operator is in fact a State licensed blind person and that sighted employees or assistants are utilized only to the extent reasonably necessary.
(1) This priority will not be accorded when the on-site official determines, after conferring with the Head of the DoD component, that the interest of the United States would be adversely affected if the priority were accorded.
(2) Any determination that according the priority would be adverse to interests of the United States must be fully justified in writing through the head of the DoD component, that the interest of the United States would be adversely affected if the priority were accorded.
(3) Applications for permits by the State licensing agency to operate vending facilities (except cafeterias) on DoD controlled property must be submitted in writing to the head of the DoD component concerned, through the on-site official. When an application is not approved, the head of the DoD component will advise the State licensing agency in writing and will indicate the reasons for the disapproval. When issued, permits will describe the location of the vending facility and will be subject to the following requirements:
   (i) The permit will be issued in the name of the State licensing agency.
   (ii) The permit will be issued for an indefinite period of time subject to suspension or termination upon failure to comply with agreed upon terms; and subject to termination by either party upon 60 days written notice to the other party, in cases of:

(A) Inactivation of the installation or activity,

(B) Loss of use of a building or other facility housing the vending facility,

(C) Change in the DoD component’s requirements for service, or

(D) Inability of the State licensing agency to continue to operate the vending facility.

(iii) The permit will provide that:

(A) No charge will be made by the DoD component to the State licensing agency for normal repair and maintenance of the building, or for cleaning areas adjacent to the designated vending facility boundaries, or for trash removal from a designated collection point.

(B) The State licensing agency will be responsible for cleaning and maintaining the appearance of and for the security of the vending facility within the designated boundaries of such facility and for all costs of every kind in conjunction with vending facility equipment, merchandise and other products to be sold, except as provided in paragraph (f)(3)(iii)(E) of this section. Neither party will be responsible for loss or damage to the other’s property, unless proximately caused by its acts or omissions. The State licensing agency will also be responsible for the acts or omissions of the blind vendor, his employees or agents.

(C) Articles sold at such vending facilities may consist of newspapers, periodicals, publications, confections, tobacco products, foods, beverages, chances for any lottery authorized by State law and conducted by an agency of a State within such State, and other articles or services traditionally found in blind operated vending facilities operated under the Randolph-Sheppard Act as determined by the State licensing agency in consultation with the on-site official, to be suitable for a particular location (articles and services may be dispensed automatically or manually);

(D) Vending facilities will be operated in compliance with applicable health, sanitation and building codes, ordinances, and regulations;

(E) Installation, modification, relocation, removal, and renovation of vending facilities will be subject to the prior approval of the on-site official and the State licensing agency. Costs of installation, modification, removal, relocation or renovation will be paid by the initiating party. In any case of suspension or termination of a permit to operate a vending facility on the basis of noncompliance by either party, the costs of removal from the building will be borne by the noncomplying party.

(iv) The permit will also contain appropriate requirements for reimbursement or direct payment for support services such as utilities and telephone service.

(v) In the event the blind licensee fails to provide satisfactory service or otherwise fails to comply with the requirements of the permit issued to the State licensing agency, the on-site official will, after coordinating with the Head of the DoD Component, notify the State licensing agency of this deficiency in writing and request corrective action within a specified reasonable time. The notice will indicate that failure to correct the deficiency will result in temporary suspension or termination of the permit, as appropriate. Suspension or termination action will be taken by the Head of the DoD Component concerned after consultation with the ASD (MRA&L).

(g) The blind have a priority right to operate cafeterias on DoD-controlled property, as set out in paragraph (g) (1) or (2) of this section, when the cafeteria operation involved is contracted.

(1) Procuring activity solicitations, when issued, will establish basic requirements and the criteria for judging proposals. One copy of each solicitation will be provided to the State licensing agency for the blind. The criteria upon which proposals will be evaluated may include factors such as sanitation practices, personnel, staffing, menu pricing and portion sizes, variety, budget and accounting practices, fees, and other relevant considerations.

(i) If the State licensing agency submits a proposal and it is not within the competitive range established by the contracting officer, award may be made to another offeror following normal procurement procedures, but only after the on-site official confers with the Head of the DoD Component.

(ii) If the State licensing agency submits a proposal and it is within the competitive range established by the contracting officer, the contract will be awarded to the State licensing agency except as provided in paragraph (g)(1)(iii) of this section.

(iii) The contracting officer may award to other than the State licensing agency when the on-site official determines that award to the State licensing agency would adversely affect the interests of the United States and the Secretary, HEW, approves the determination (processing will be in accordance with paragraph (f)(2) of this section), or when the on-site official determines, after conferring with the Head of the DoD Component, and the Secretary, HEW, agrees, that the blind vendor does not have the capacity to operate a cafeteria in such a manner as to provide food service at a comparable cost and of comparable high quality as that available from other providers of cafeteria services.

(2) Direct negotiations may be undertaken with State licensing agencies whenever the on-site official, with concurrence of the Head of the DoD Component, has determined that State licensing agency, through its blind licensee, can provide the cafeteria services required at a reasonable cost, with food of a high quality comparable to that available from other providers of cafeteria services. In the event direct negotiations fail to result in a contract with the State licensing agency, the procedures prescribed in paragraph (g)(1) of this section, will be followed.

(3) The operation of a cafeteria by a blind vendor will be governed by contractual agreement, not by a permit. Normal contract administration procedures will apply, except that termination actions will not be taken without prior coordination with the Head of the DoD Component concerned.

(4) All contracts for the operation of cafeterias on DoD-controlled property with other than State licensing agencies will, upon expiration, be processed under the above paragraphs unless the State licensing agency informs the on-site official that it is not prepared to exercise its priority at that time.

(h) Any DoD Component acquired (purchased, rented, leased, constructed), or substantially altered or renovated building is required to have one or more satisfactory sites (as defined in § 260.6) for a blind-operated vending facility, except as provided in paragraph (h)(1) of this section.

(1) A determination that a building contains a satisfactory site or sites is presumed made if the State licensing agency and the on-site official consult and agree that the site or sites provided are satisfactory.

(i) DoD Components will notify by certified or registered mail, return receipt requested, the appropriate State licensing agency of buildings to be acquired or substantially altered or renovated. This notification will be provided at least 60 days in advance of the intended acquisition date or the initiation of actual construction, alteration or renovation. As a practical matter, the State licensing agency should be contacted early in the planning or design stage of a project. (This notice requirement does not apply in cases as described in paragraph (h)(1)(i)(C) of this section.) This notification will:

(A) Indicate that a satisfactory site or sites for the location and operation of a blind vending facility is included in the plans for the building,

(B) Forward a copy of a single line drawing indicating the proposed location of such site or sites,

(C) Assure the State licensing agency that, subject to the approval of the DoD Component involved, it will be offered the opportunity to select the location and type of vending facility to be operated by a blind vendor prior to completion of the final space layout of the building, and

(D) Also indicate that an unexplained response indicating that the State licensing agency does not desire to establish and operate a vending facility, or the absence of a response within 30 days will be construed by the DoD Component concerned as a determination by the State licensing agency that the number of persons using the property is or will be insufficient to support a vending facility.

(ii) The State licensing agency must respond within 30 days acknowledging receipt of the correspondence from the DoD Component and indicating whether it is interested in establishing a vending facility, and if interested, indicating its agreement or alternate selection of a location and its selection of type of vending facility. A copy of the written notice to the State licensing agency and the State licensing agency's response, if any, will be provided to the Secretary, HEW.

(iii) If the State licensing agency responds indicating that it does not desire to establish and operate a vending facility, then a satisfactory site which meets anticipated needs of the DoD Component will be incorporated. Each such satisfactory site will meet or exceed the requirements defined in §260.6.

(iv) If an unexplained response indicating that the State licensing agency does not desire to establish and operate a vending facility is received, or if no response is received within the 30 day period, the on-site official will, through the Head of the DoD Component, notify the Secretary, HEW, that the State licensing agency’s response or failure to respond has been construed as a determination by the State licensing agency that the number of persons using the property is or will be insufficient to support a vending facility and that a satisfactory site to be operated under the auspices of the State licensing agency will not be incorporated, unless directed by the Secretary, HEW. This notification will also be provided if the State licensing agency responds and affirmatively indicates that it has made such a determination.

(2) The Secretary, HEW, has determined that the requirement to provide a satisfactory site does not apply:

(i) When fewer than 100 Federal employees (as defined in §260.6) will be located in the building during normal working hours; or

(ii) When the building contains less than 15,000 square feet to be used for Federal Government purposes in the case of a building in which services are to be provided to the general public.

(3) The provisions of paragraph (h)(2) of this section, do not preclude arrangements under which vending facilities to be operated by blind vendors may be established in buildings of a size or with an employee population less than that specified. For example, if a building is to be constructed which would contain only 80 Federal employees, upon agreement of the on-site official and the State licensing agency, the DoD Component concerned may determine to provide a satisfactory site in which the blind have agreed to operate a vending facility.

(4) When a DoD Component is leasing all or part of a privately owned building in which the lessor or any of its tenants have an existing restaurant or other food facility in a part of the building not covered by the lease and operation of a vending facility would be in substantial direct competition with such restaurant or other food operation, the requirement to provide a satisfactory site does not apply.

(i) Effective January 1, 1975, vending machine income generated by DoD will be shared with State licensing agencies for the blind and/or blind vendors as set forth below. The on-site official is responsible for the collection of, and accounting for, such vending machine income (as defined in §260.6) and for otherwise ensuring compliance with the requirements of this paragraph.

(1) The vending machine income-sharing requirements are as follows:

(i) One hundred percent (100%) of the vending machine income from vending machines in direct competition with blind-operated vending facilities will be provided the State licensing agency.

(ii) Fifty percent (50%) of the vending machine income from vending machines not in direct competition with blind-operated vending facilities will be provided the State licensing agency.

(iii) Thirty percent (30%) of the vending machine income from vending machines not in direct competition with blind-operated vending facilities will be provided the State licensing agency.

(2) The determination of whether a vending machine is in direct competition with the blind-operated vending facility is the responsibility of the on-site official subject to the concurrence of the State licensing agency.

(3) These vending machine income-sharing requirements do not apply to:

(i) Income from vending machines operated by or for the military exchanges or ships’ stores systems; or

(ii) Income from vending machines, not in direct competition with a blind-operated vending facility, at any individual location, installation, or facility (as defined in §260.6) where the total of the vending machine income (as defined in §260.6) from all such machines at such location, installation, or facility does not exceed $3,000 annually.

(4) The payment to State licensing agencies under these income-sharing requirements must be made quarterly on a calendar year basis. The first payment of income, however, will be made no later than April 30, 1978. This first payment will be for the period March 23, 1977, through the end of calendar year 1977. It will also include amounts collected and set aside during the period January 2, 1975, through March 22, 1977, for distribution to State licensing agencies. DoD Component activities which did not set aside vending machine income for distribution during the period January 2, 1975, through March 22, 1977, will consider taking steps to determine the amounts of such vending machine income which should have been withheld during that period and withhold such amounts from future income for distribution. All subsequent quarterly payments will be made within 60 days after expiration of the applicable calendar quarter.

§ 260.4 Responsibilities.

(a) The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower, Reserve Affairs and Logistics) (ASD (MRA&L)) will monitor the overall DoD program and consult with DoD Components on all determinations (1) that the granting of a priority to the blind would be adverse to the interests of the United States, and (2) to suspend or terminate a permit to operate a vending facility.

(b) The Head of the DoD Component concerned, in monitoring its program shall:

(1) Approve/disapprove State licensing agency applications for permits and the provision of satisfactory sites;

(2) Consult with the on-site official on determinations that granting a priority to the blind would be adverse to the interests of the United States and on termination of contracts to operate a cafeteria; and

(3) Where circumstances warrant, suspend or terminate a permit to operate a vending facility.

(c) The on-site official will be the point of contact with State licensing agencies and will:

(1) Consult with State licensing agencies on articles and services to be provided;

(2) Determine, when appropriate, that granting a priority to the blind would be adverse to the interests of the United States and justify this determination to the Secretary, Health, Education, and Welfare through the Head of the DoD Component;

(3) Notify State licensing agencies of acquisition or substantial alteration or renovation of property;

(4) Ensure that operators are in fact State licensed blind persons and that sighted employees and assistants are utilized only to the extent reasonably necessary; and

(5) Negotiate with State licensing agencies on other matters indicated in §260.3.

§ 260.5 Arbitration.

Whenever any State licensing agency for the blind determines that any activity of the Department of Defense is failing to comply with the provisions of the Act and all informal attempts to resolve the issues have been unsuccessful, the State licensing agency may file a complaint with the Secretary, HEW, who will convene an ad hoc arbitration panel in accordance with the provisions of 45 CFR 1369.37.

§ 260.6 Definitions.

(a) Blind licensee. A blind person licensed by the State licensing agency to operate a vending facility on Federal or other property.

may be fully automatic, self-service, or have limited waiter or waitress service. Table or booth seating facilities are always provided. DoD Component food dispensing facilities which conduct cafeteria-type operations during part of their normal operating day and full table-service operations during the remainder of their normal operating day are not “cafeterias” if they engage primarily in full table-service operations.

(c) Direct competition. The presence and operation of a DoD Component vending machine or a vending facility on the same premises as a vending facility operated by a blind vendor. Vending machines or vending facilities operated in areas serving employees, the majority of whom normally do not have access (in terms of uninterrupted ease of approach and the amount of time required to patronize the vending facility) to the vending facility operated by a blind vendor, will not be considered to be indirect competition with that vending facility.

(d) Federal property. Any building, land, or other real property owned, leased, or occupied by any department, agency, or instrumentality of the United States.

(e) Head of the DoD component. Deputy Secretary of Defense, Secretaries of the Military Departments and the Directors of Defense Agencies or their designees. For the Pentagon Building only, the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Administration) is designated as the “Head of the DoD Component.”

(f) Individual location, installation, or facility. A single building or a self-contained group of buildings. A self-contained group of buildings means two or more buildings which are in close proximity to each other, and between which a majority of the Federal employees working in such buildings regularly move from one building to another in the normal course of their official business during a normal working day.

(g) Federal employees. Civilian appropriated fund and nonappropriated fund employees of the United States.

(h) License. A written instrument issued by a State licensing agency to a blind person, authorizing that person to operate a vending facility on Federal or other property.

(i) Normal working hours. An 8-hour work period between the hours of 0800 and 1800 hours, Monday through Friday.

(j) On-site official. The individual in command of an installation or separate facility or location. For the Pentagon Building only, the chairman of the Department of Defense Concession Committee is designated as the on-site official.

(k) Permit. The official written approval to establish and operate a vending facility requested by and issued to a State licensing agency by a DoD Component.

(l) Satisfactory site. An area fully accessible to vending facility patrons and having sufficient electrical, plumbing, heating, and ventilation outlets for the location of a vending facility in accordance with applicable health and building requirements. Effective March 23, 1977, a “satisfactory site” will have a minimum of 250 square feet available for sale of items and for storage of articles necessary for the operation of a vending facility, unless the Head of the DoD Component and the State licensing agency agree that a smaller or larger facility is appropriate.

(m) State. The 50 States, District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, American Samoa, Guam, and the Virgin Islands.

(n) State licensing agency. The State agency designated by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Commissioner of the Rehabilitation Services Administration to issue licenses to blind persons for the operation of vending facilities on Federal and other property.

(o) Substantial alteration or renovation. A permanent material change in the floor area of a building which would render it appropriate for the location and operation of a vending facility by a blind vendor.

(p) Vending facility. Automatic vending machines, cafeterias, snack bars, cart services, shelters, and counters, which sell such items as newspapers, periodicals, confections, tobacco products, foods, beverages, and other articles and services to be dispensed automatically or manually and which are prepared on or off the premises in accordance with applicable health laws and further including the vending or

§ 261.3 Exchange of chances for any lottery authorized by State law and conducted by an agency of a State within such State.

"Vending facility" does not include food dispensing facilities (e.g., food operations of open messes/military clubs) which engage primarily in full table-service operations.

(g) Vending machine. For the purpose of assigning vending machine income, means a coin or currency operated machine which dispenses articles or services, except that machines providing services of a recreational nature, commonly referred to as amusement machines (e.g., jukeboxes, pinball machines, electronic game machines, pool tables, shuffle boards, etc.) and telephones, are not considered to be vending machines.

(r) Vending machine income. DoD Component receipts from DoD Component vending machine operations on Federal property, after deducting all applicable costs incurred (costs of goods, service, maintenance, repair, cleaning, depreciation, supervisory and administrative personnel, normal accounting, accounting for income-sharing, and so forth) where the machines are operated by any DoD Component activity; or commissions received (less applicable DoD Component costs) by any DoD Component activity from a commercial vending firm which provides vending machines on Federal property for, or with the approval of, any DoD Component activity.

(s) Vendor. A blind licensee who is operating a vending facility on Federal or other property.

PART 264—INTERNATIONAL INTERCHANGE OF PATENT RIGHTS AND TECHNICAL INFORMATION

§ 264.1 Purpose and cancellation.

The purpose of this part is to restate Department of Defense policy concerning the international interchange for defense purposes of patent rights and technical information. DoD Directive 2000.3, “Technical Property Interchange Agreements”, dated April 15, 1954, is hereby superseded and cancelled. Delegation published at 19 FR 2523 is cancelled.

§ 264.2 Scope.

This part applies to the activities of all Department of Defense personnel involved in the international interchange for defense purposes of patent rights and technical information. The policy prescribed herein applies to unclassified as well as classified information, owned by the United States Government or privately owned, but does not apply to patents, patent applications, and technical information in the field of atomic energy.

§ 264.3 Background.

(a) Pursuant to the provisions of the Mutual Security Act of 1954, as amended, and of predecessor legislation superseded by that Act, the United States has entered into agreements for the Interchange of Patent Rights and Technical Information for Defense Purposes with Australia, Belgium, Denmark, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Turkey, and the United Kingdom. The agreements, which are published in the Treaties and Other International Act Series, are basically similar in substance but are not identical. Under the agreements:

(1) Each government undertakes to facilitate the interchange of privately owned patent rights and of technical information through the medium of commercial relationships, to the extent permitted by the laws and security requirements of the contracting governments.

(2) When technical information is supplied by one government to the other for information only, the recipient government undertakes to treat the information as disclosed in confidence and to use its best endeavors to ensure that the information is not dealt with in any manner likely to prejudice the rights of the owner to obtain patent or similar statutory protection.

(3) When technical information supplied by one government to the other discloses an invention which is the subject of a patent or patent application held in secrecy in the country of origin, the recipient government undertakes to accord similar treatment to a corresponding patent application filed in that country.

(4) When privately owned technical information is released by one government to the other and the recipient government uses or discloses the information, the owner shall, subject to the extent that the owner may be entitled thereto under the applicable law and subject to arrangements between the contracting governments regarding the assumption as between them of liability for compensation, receive prompt, just and effective compensation for such use and for any damages resulting from such use or disclosure.

(5) Each government is entitled to use for defense purposes without cost any invention which the other government (including government corporations) owns or to which it has the right to grant a license to use, except to the extent that there may be liability to any private owner of an interest in the invention.

(b) Each of these agreements establishes a Technical Property Committee consisting of a representative of each contracting government, whose function it is to consider and make recommendations to the contracting governments on all matters relating to the subject of the agreement and to assist where appropriate in the negotiation of commercial or other agreements for the use of patent rights and technical information in the military assistance program.

(1) The Patent Advisor assigned to the Defense Staff of the U.S. Mission to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and European Regional Organizations (USRO), Paris, France, is the United States representative to the Technical Property Committees in Europe. The J-4, Hq. United States Forces Japan, Tokyo, Japan is the United States representative to the United States-Japanese Technical Property Committee. A member of the Office of Assistant General Counsel, International Affairs, Office of the Secretary of Defense, is the United States representative to the United States-Australian Technical Property Committee. The appropriate representative should be consulted on all problems dealing with patent rights, technical information and related matters under the agreements.

(2) These representatives receive policy guidance from the Department of Defense. The Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs is responsible within the Department of Defense for transmitting such policy guidance through appropriate channels. Guidance transmitted for the United States representative in Europe shall be forwarded to the Defense Advisor, USRO; guidance transmitted for the United States representative in Japan shall be transmitted to the Commanding General, United States Forces Japan.

(c) Department of Defense problems arising in the United States in connection with the interchange of patent rights and privately owned technical information should be referred to the patent activity of the appropriate Military Department.

§ 264.4 Policy.

It is the policy of the Department of Defense to encourage and facilitate international interchanges of patent rights and technical information to further the common defense of the United States and friendly nations. In achieving this purpose, the following principles shall be observed.
§ 264.4 32 CFR Ch. I (7-1-98 Edition)

(a) Classified military information shall be released only through Government channels and only when consistent with the National Disclosure Policy, or when approved as an exception to that policy.

(b) In accordance with the Congressional policy prescribed by section 413(a) of the Mutual Security Act of 1954, as amended (22 U.S.C. 1933(a)), and pursuant to the bilateral agreements referred to in §264.3, commercial relationships shall be utilized whenever appropriate and to the maximum extent feasible in order to encourage the participation of private enterprise in the Mutual Security Program, to relieve the Department of Defense of administrative burdens, and to reduce the costs to the United States of such interchanges.

(c) In accordance with section 414 of the Mutual Security Act of 1954, as amended (22 U.S.C. 1934), the utilization of commercial channels for the exportation of unclassified privately owned technical information relating to articles designated as arms, ammunition, and implements of war in the United States Munitions List shall be subject to the regulations issued by the Secretary of State pursuant to section 414 of the Mutual Security Act of 1954, as amended (22 U.S.C. 1934) (Title 22 CFR, chapter I, subchapter M). (The term “technical data” is used in those regulations to describe technical information relating to such articles).

(d) Technical information which might be privately owned may be released under paragraph (e) (1) or (2) of this section by Department of Defense Agencies to foreign governments if any one of the following conditions are met:

(1) The owner expressly consents to the proposed release;

(2) The United States, by contract or otherwise, has acquired or is entitled to acquire, the information under circumstances which permit the proposed release; or

(3) The Secretary of the Military Department concerned, or his designee, determines, under the authority of the Mutual Security Act of 1954, as amended, that:

(i) The exigencies of the requirement for release to further the common defense do not allow sufficient time to obtain the consent of the owner; or

(ii) The owner refuses consent and the best interests of the United States would be served by the release.

(e) In accordance with the provisions of the agreements referred to in §264.3, the release to foreign governments by Department of Defense agencies of technical information which might be privately owned shall normally be in accord with the following two step procedure:

(1) Release for information only.

(2) Permission for manufacture, or use, for defense purposes.

(f)(1) All technical information, whether privately owned or government owned, released to a foreign government by Department of Defense Agencies shall be marked with the following restrictions:

1. This information is accepted for defense purposes only.

2. This information shall be accorded substantially the same degree of security protection as such information has in the United States.

3. This information shall not be disclosed to another country without the consent of the United States.

(2) When technical information which might be privately owned is released for information only, the restrictive marking shall also contain these additional notations:

4. This information is accepted upon the understanding that it might be privately owned.

5. This information is accepted solely for the purpose of information and shall accordingly be treated as disclosed in confidence. The recipient Government shall use its best endeavors to ensure that the information is not dealt with in any manner likely to prejudice the rights of the private owner thereof to obtain patent or other like statutory protection therefor.

6. The recipient Government shall obtain the consent of the United States if it desires that this information be made available for manufacture, or use, for defense purposes.

(g) When technical information which might be privately owned is released under the procedures set forth
Office of the Secretary of Defense § 266.2

§ 266.1 Purpose.
This part:
(a) Updates policy, responsibilities, and procedures.
(b) Implements Public Law 98-502 (31 U.S.C. 7501-7507 and 3512) and Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Circulars A-128 and A-133 to establish audit requirements for State and local governments, institutions of higher education, and other nonprofit institutions.
(c) Assigns responsibilities within the Department of Defense for monitoring compliance with those requirements.

§ 266.2 Applicability.
This part applies to the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the Military Departments, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Joint Staff, the Unified and Specified Commands, the Inspector General of the Department of Defense (IG, DoD), the Defense Agencies, and the DoD Field Activities (hereafter referred to collectively as "the DoD Components") that provide Federal financial assistance to State and local governments, institutions of higher education, and other nonprofit institutions.

1Forward written requests to: Office of Management and Budget Publications, 725 17th Street, NW. New Executive Office Building, Washington, DC 20503.
2See footnote 1 to §266.1(b).
§ 266.3 Definitions.

Terms used in this part are defined in OMB Circulars A-128 and A-133 with the following deviation. Funds paid by the National Guard Bureau to States under facilities' operation and maintenance agreements do not constitute "Federal financial assistance" for purposes of Public Law 98-502 and OMB Circular A-128.

§ 266.4 Policy.

The DoD Components shall rely on and use financial and performance audits performed by non-Federal auditors under OMB Circular A-128 and independent auditors under OMB Circular A-133 in the oversight of Federal financial assistance provided to State and local governments, institutions of higher education, and other nonprofit institutions. Public Law 98-502 provides that a non-Federal audit of the operations of a State or local government performed under OMB Circular A-128 may exclude public colleges and universities, in which case an audit of the public college or university shall be made in accordance with OMB Circular A-128 and A-133. In such instances, the recipient will work with the auditor to take corrective action. If corrective action is not taken, the cognizant agency shall notify the recipient and Federal awarding agencies of the facts and make recommendations for followup action. Major inadequacies or repetitive sub-standard performance of independent auditors shall be referred to appropriate professional bodies for disciplinary action.

§ 266.5 Responsibilities.

(a) The Inspector General of the Department of Defense shall:

(1) Serve as the DoD senior official under OMB Circulars A-128 and A-133 for policy guidance, direction, and coordination with DoD Components and other Federal Agencies on audit matters related to State and local governments, institutions of higher education and other nonprofit institutions.

(2) For State and local governments, institutions of higher education, and other nonprofit institutions for which the OMB has assigned the DoD cognizance, do the following:

(i) Ensure that audits are made and reports are received in a timely manner and in accordance with the requirements of OMB Circulars A-128 and A-133.

(ii) Provide technical advice and liaison through the DoD Components to State and local governments, institutions of higher education, other nonprofit institutions, and independent auditors.

(iii) Make desk reviews of all reports received, and also make quality control reviews of selected audits made by non-Federal audit organizations and provide the results, when appropriate, to other interested organizations.

(iv) Promptly inform other affected Federal Agencies and appropriate law enforcement officials of any reported illegal acts or irregularities in accordance with requirements of OMB Circulars A-128 and A-133.

(v) Advise the recipient of audits that have been found not to have met the requirements in OMB Circulars A-128 and A-133. In such instances, the recipient will work with the auditor to take corrective action. If corrective action is not taken, the cognizant agency shall notify the recipient and Federal awarding agencies of the facts and make recommendations for followup action. Major inadequacies or repetitive sub-standard performance of independent auditors shall be referred to appropriate professional bodies for disciplinary action.

(vi) Coordinate, to the extent practicable, audits requested by other Federal Agencies, in addition to those required by OMB Circulars A-128 and A-133.

(vii) Ensure the resolution of audit findings and recommendations that affect DoD programs and those findings affecting programs of more than one Federal Agency. Ensure that a management decision affecting audit resolution shall be made within 6 months after receipt of the audit report.

(3) For local governments, institutions of higher education, and other nonprofit institutions for which the Department of Defense has assumed oversight responsibility, do the following:

(i) Provide technical advice and counsel through DoD Components to institutions and independent auditors when requested.
(ii) Assume all or some of the cognizant agency responsibilities (see paragraph (a)(2) of this section), as deemed necessary.

(4) For other State and local governments, institutions of higher education, and other nonprofit institutions, receive and distribute copies of single audit reports to appropriate DoD Components for appropriate action and followup by designated program officials.

(5) For audit reports that contain conditions affecting DoD programs, institute followup efforts to ensure that corrective actions have been taken by DoD organizations responsible for managing associated programs or funds.

(b) The Heads of the DoD Components shall:

(1) Designate an official to coordinate with the IG, DoD, on matters dealing with audits of financial assistance provided by the DoD Component to State and local governments, institutions of higher education, and other nonprofit institutions.

(2) Ensure input of accurate award data for Federal financial assistance to the appropriate DoD management information system.

(3) Ensure that the State or local government, institution of higher education, or other nonprofit institution takes appropriate actions to correct audit deficiencies involving financial assistance provided by the DoD Component.

(4) For State and local governments, institutions of higher education, and other nonprofit institutions for which the OMB has assigned DoD cognizance, do the following:

(i) Coordinate with the IG, DoD, on requests from other Federal Agencies for audits of State and local governments, institutions of higher education, and other nonprofit institutions, in addition to those required by OMB Circulars A-128 and A-133.

(ii) Seek the views of other interested agencies when a coordinated audit approach is to be used and before completing a coordinated program.

(iii) Help coordinate the audit work and reporting responsibilities among independent public accountants, State auditors, and both resident and non-resident Federal auditors to achieve the most cost-effective audit.

§ 266.6 Procedures.

The costs of audits made by non-Federal auditors under OMB Circulars A-128 and A-133 are allowable charges to Federal financial assistance programs. The charges may be considered as a direct cost or an allocated indirect cost in accordance with OMB Circulars A-87, A-122 and A-21, FAR, part 31 (48 CFR part 31); or the DFARS, part 231 (48 CFR part 231). Generally, the percentage of costs charged to Federal assistance programs for an audit shall not exceed the percentage of Federal funds expended to the total funds expended by the recipient during the fiscal year. No cost, however, may be charged to Federal programs for audits not made in accordance with OMB Circulars A-128 and A-133 and other applicable cost principles and regulations.

It is the policy of the Department of Defense that timely and aggressive collection efforts will be conducted to assure that foreign arrearages to DoD Components are held to the absolute minimum. Foreign indebtedness will be uniformly and accurately reported to the Department of the Treasury on forms prescribed by the Treasury Fiscal Requirements Manual. The information system on the status of collection actions will support the information requirements of the National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Policies (NAC).

§ 268.4 Responsibilities.

(a) The assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) is the DoD point of contact for matters concerning foreign indebtedness requirements imposed on DoD from outside the Department, such as by the Congress, Treasury Department, and NAC.

(b) The Defense Security Assistance Agency (DSAA) is responsible for consolidation of feeder arrearage reports and submission of a single consolidated DoD arrearage report to the Treasury Department. The DSAA shall (1) monitor collection actions; (2) follow up when initial collection actions have been unsuccessful; and (3) serve as the focal point within DoD for responding to NAC information requests.

(c) Unless otherwise directed, the DoD Component which makes the sale, or is otherwise assigned responsibility, is responsible for taking initial collection action, accounting for indebtedness, preparation of feeder arrearage reports, and providing copies of arrearage reports to the DSAA.

§ 268.5 Collection and followup procedures.

Each DoD Component is responsible for taking timely and aggressive billing and followup collection actions for each category of indebtedness incurred by official and private obligors pursuant to authorized programs.

§ 268.6 Reporting of accounts receivable and sales under 120 days delayed payment terms (short-term credit).

(a) General. (1) Amounts payable to DoD Components for sales of Defense articles and services on terms which require payment of cash in advance of delivery/performance or within 60 days thereof will be classified as accounts receivable. Military Departments shall submit reports to the DSAA of foreign indebtedness related to those sales.

(2) Sales made by DoD Components under existing cases which provide for 120-day payment terms shall be classified as short-term credit sales. Similarly, those sales made after September 30, 1976, under special emergency appropriations which provide for payments 120 days after delivery of articles or services will also be classified as short-term credit sales. DoD Components shall submit reports to the DSAA of these short-term credit sales.

(3) Foreign indebtedness to DoD Components for logistical support, mission support costs, and other programs is payable upon presentation of the appropriate billing documents. Reports of foreign indebtedness related to these programs will be submitted to the DSAA.

(b) Basis for reporting. Amounts to be reported will be determined by analyzing unpaid bills using the criteria and definitions contained in §268.9.

§ 268.7 Collecting and reporting of foreign debts under long-term loans and debts.

The DSAA is responsible for administering FMS long-term loans and credit programs authorized by Section 23 of the Arms Export Control Act, and likewise is responsible for determining foreign indebtedness against these programs. Debts remaining uncollected 90 days after the due date will be referred to the State Department for diplomatic assistance to effect settlement.
§ 268.8 Flash report of major foreign debt arrearages.

Major foreign debt arrearages are monitored by the NAC. Therefore, periodically DSAA will request flash reports from the DoD Components to satisfy NAC requirements for information on major foreign debt arrearages. For this purpose, a “major” foreign debt arrearage is any country program arrearage which involves the sum of $250,000 or more. Flash reports will be submitted directly to DSAA by the local command in message form with information copies to the next higher command. The report will reflect any significant changes in major foreign debt arrearages from the quarterly foreign indebtedness reports submitted in accordance with § 268.6. Collections, information on increased indebtedness, problems encountered in unsuccessful collection attempts, or country circumstances which may adversely affect collections are examples of the information which should be included in the flash reports.

§ 268.9 Discussion of terms.

(a) Accounts receivable. “Accounts receivable” consist of those amounts due in which the original payment time required full payment within 90 days of delivery or performance. It excludes principal payments or interest on short-term and long-term loans and credits.

(b) Arrearage delinquency determination. Obligations generated by formal agreements, as in the case of Foreign Military Sales contracts, are due on the dates specified in the contract or on the date specified in billings rendered in accordance with these contracts. Obligations incurred under Military Mission Support (Program 142) Logistical Support (Program 143) and any other authorized programs are due on the date billings are made to the customer country unless otherwise stated in the bill. Followup and reporting actions required by this part will be taken based on these dates. (See § 268.5.)

(c) Country designations. For reporting purposes, grants and contingent liabilities will be identified with the country which receives the benefit. Loans and credits will be identified generally with the country of the obligor or, in the instance of official multinational organizations, with the institution name. When the project is located in, or goods are destined for another country or area, the latter country or area should be stated in the description of purpose. If a government credit intermediary is the obligor, the transaction should be identified with the country where the project is located or the goods are destined.

(1) United States. “United States” shall mean the states of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, American Samoa, the Canal Zone, Guam, Midway Island, U.S. Virgin Islands, and Wake Island.

(2) Foreign country designations. Country designations other than the “United States” shall be consistent with the standardized names and codes contained in the Military Assistance and Sales Manual (MASM).

(3) Official Multinational Organization. For reporting purposes, “Official Multinational Organization” shall mean any international or regional organization (or affiliated agency thereof) created by treaty or convention between sovereign states.

(d) Dollar equivalents of foreign currency. Represents dollar equivalent of all foreign currency amounts disbursed and still outstanding, undisbursed balances, and arrearages of principal and interest. They shall be computed at the reporting rate prescribed by Treasury Department Circular No. 930 for balances as of the end of the reporting period. The dollar equivalents of all other reportable amounts shall be the summation of individual transactions computed at the reporting rate prescribed for the period in which the transactions occurred.

(e) Foreign indebtedness. “Foreign indebtedness” means financial obligations owed to the United States Government by the following entities in connection with DoD activities.

(1) Any individual, including a citizen of the United States (excluding U.S. military members and U.S. Government employees) domiciled outside the United States.

(2) Any partnership, association, corporation, or other organization created or organized under the laws of a foreign country, excepting branches or agencies thereof located in the United States.

(3) Any branch, subsidiary, or allied organization within a foreign country of a partnership, association, corporation, or other organization created or organized under the laws of a foreign country or the United States.

(4) Any government of a foreign country and any subdivision, agency, or instrumentality thereof, including all foreign “Official” institutions, even though located in the United States.

(5) Any private relief, philanthropic, or other organization of a multinational or regional character with headquarters abroad.

(6) Any official multinational organization, defined as any international or regional organization (or affiliated agency thereof) created by treaty or convention between sovereign states.

(f) Indebtedness. “Indebtedness” within the context of this part refers to financial obligations to make payment(s) to the U.S. Government in accordance with contractual or other arrangements. Such obligations generally arise from

(1) The disbursements of cash to be repaid at a future time (with or without interest),

(2) The extension of credit (by formal agreement or an open book account) in connection with the sale of products, property, or services,

(3) The formal deferral of interest collection,

(4) The purchase or repurchase of obligations that have been insured or guaranteed by the U.S. Government, and

(5) Payments by the U.S. Government in cases of default on insured or guaranteed loans and other investments when the U.S. Government acquires a debt instrument from the insured.

(g) Long-term loans and credits. “Long-term loans and credits” include any indebtedness under which the original payment terms provided for payment within a period of time exceeding one year after delivery or performance.

(h) Official obligor. “Official obligors” are debtors or guarantors who are:

(1) Central governments or their departments (ministries) or components, whether administrative or commercial.

(2) Political subdivisions such as states, provinces, departments, and municipalities.

(3) Foreign central banks.

(4) Other institutions (such as corporations, development banks, railways, and utilities) when (i) the budget of the institution is subject to the approval of the government, or (ii) the government owns more than 50 percent of the voting stock or more than half of the members of the board of directors are government representatives, or (iii) in the case of default the government or central bank would become liable for the debt of the institution.

(5) Any official multinational organization.

(i) Private obligor. “Private obligors” are all debtors or guarantors who are not defined as “official obligors.”

(j) Program. “Program” is the law, international treaty, appropriation, or other authority under which the loans or credits are extended, or the accounts receivable arise. When a narrative program designation is required, commonly used terms should be used, e.g.,
Arms Export Control Act, Logistical Support, and Military Assistance Advisory Groups.

(k) Short-term loans and credits.
“Short-term loans and credits” include any indebtedness under which the original payment terms provided for payment within a period from 90 days to and including one year after delivery or performance.

(l) Time conventions. The terms 30, 60 and 90 days should be interpreted to mean 1, 2, and 3 calendar months, respectively. That is, the period February 6 through May 5 would be considered to be 90 days. For example, in calculating amounts “due and unpaid” 90 days or more as of December 31 the amounts due before October 1 and remaining unpaid as of December 31 would be reportable. However, amounts due as of October 1 but remaining unpaid at December 31 would not be reportable.
PART 269—CIVIL MONETARY PENALTY INFLATION ADJUSTMENT

§ 269.1 Scope and purpose.

(b) Publish each such update in the Federal Register.

§ 269.4 Cost of living adjustments of civil monetary penalties.
(a) The inflation adjustment under §269.3 shall be determined by increasing the maximum civil monetary penalty for each civil monetary penalty by the cost-of-living adjustment. Any increase determined under this paragraph shall be rounded to the nearest:

(1) Multiple of $10 in the case of penalties less than or equal to $100;
(2) Multiple of $100 in the case of penalties greater than $100 but less than or equal to $1,000;
(3) Multiple of $1,000 in the case of penalties greater than $1,000 but less than or equal to $10,000;

(5) Multiple of $10,000 in the case of penalties greater than $100,000 but less than or equal to $200,000; and
(6) Multiple of $25,000 in the case of penalties greater than $200,000.

(b) For purposes of paragraph (a) of this section, the term “cost-of-living adjustment” means the percentage (if any) for each civil monetary penalty by which the Consumer Price Index for the month of June of the calendar year preceding the adjustment, exceeds the Consumer Price Index for the month of June of the calendar year in which the amount of such civil monetary penalty was last set or adjusted pursuant to law.

(c) Limitation on initial adjustment. The first adjustment of civil monetary penalty pursuant to §269.3 may not exceed 10 percent of such penalty.
(d) Inflation adjustment. Maximum civil monetary penalties within the jurisdiction of the Department of Defense are adjusted for inflation as follows:
§ 269.5

Any increase in a civil monetary penalty under this part shall apply only to violations which occur after the date the increase takes effect.

(d) Eligible person. A person determined by the Commission as eligible for payment under subpart C of this part.

(e) OPLAN 34A. The operation carried out under the auspices of the government of South Vietnam and the U.S. Military Assistance Command Vietnam, Studies and Observations Group (MACV/SOG), starting in 1964, which inserted commandos into North Vietnam for the purpose of conducting intelligence and other military activities. OPLAN 34A also refers to predecessor operations which were precursors to OPLAN 34A operations. OP 35 refers to the small military units which were sent to conduct sabotage, reconnaissance, exploitation and other intelligence missions on or around the borders of Vietnam and Laos.

(g) OSD. The Office of the Secretary of Defense.

(h) The Secretary. The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Force Management Policy).

(j) Spouse of an eligible person. Someone who was married to that eligible person for at least 1 year immediately before the death of the eligible person.

(k) Required declaration. The statements to be signed and notarized in appendix A to this part. All applicants must sign part C and either part A or part B of appendix A to this part.

§ 270.5 Staff.

(a) The Commission will have a support staff, which will include staff members sufficient to expeditiously and efficiently process the applications for payments under this part. All members of the staff will possess, as a minimum, a Top Secret clearance because of the sensitive nature of the information that may require review in determining eligibility of claimants.

(b) The Secretary will ensure that the Commission has all administrative support, including space, office and automated equipment and translation services, needed for the efficient and expeditious review and payment of claims. The Secretary may task appropriate Department of Defense elements to provide such support, either through assignment of personnel or the hiring of independent contractors.

Subpart C—Standards and Verification of Eligibility

§ 270.6 Standards of eligibility.

(a) A person is eligible for payments under this part if such person:

(1) Was captured and incarcerated by North Vietnam as a result of his participation in operations conducted under OPLAN 34A or its predecessor operation; or

(2) Served as a Vietnamese operative under OP 35, and was captured and incarcerated by North Vietnamese forces as a result of the participation by the person in operations in Laos or along the Lao-Vietnamese border pursuant to OP 35, and

(i) Was captured and incarcerated by the North Vietnamese, and remained in captivity after 1973 (or died in captivity) after participation in OP 35, and
(ii) Has not previously received payment for the United States Government after 1972 from the period spent in captivity.

(b) In the case of a decedent who would have been eligible for a payment under this part if alive, payment will be made to the survivors of the decedent in the following order:

(1) To the surviving spouse of an eligible person; or

(2) If there is no surviving spouse of an eligible person, to the surviving children of an eligible person, in equal shares.

(c) A payment may not be made under this part to, or with respect to, a person who the Commission determines, based on the available evidence, served in the People's Army of North Vietnam or provided active assistance to the Government of North Vietnam or forces opposed to the Government of South Vietnam or the United States during any period from 1958 through 1975.

(d) The Commission will make reasonable efforts to publicize the availability of payments involved in this procedure, using existing public affairs channels.

§ 270.7 Verification of eligibility.

(a) All persons applying for payment under this part shall first submit a properly completed, signed and notarized Application for Compensation of Vietnamese Commandos as set out in appendix A to this part, along with all corroborating documents and information required, to the Commission on Compensation, Office of the Secretary of Defense, 4000 Defense Pentagon, Washington, D.C. 20301–4000. Submission of an Application for Compensation of Vietnamese Commandos without properly signed and notarized declarations will automatically render the application ineligible for consideration by the Commission for payment. All applicants must sign and have notarized the declarations in Part C of the Application for Compensation of Vietnamese Commandos. If portions of the Application for Compensation of Vietnamese Commandos are not completed, the Commission may draw adverse inferences from the portions left incomplete.

(b) Staff Functions in the Verification of Eligibility Process. The Staff Director shall:

(1) Establish a database for logging and tracking Applications for Compensation of Vietnamese Commandos throughout the claims process, including appellate actions and final payment or denial of claims.

(2) Maintain a liaison with on-site personnel at the National Archives Center, College Park, Maryland, to organize and translate finance records for review.

(3) Upon receipt of each Application for Compensation of Vietnamese Commandos, research cases to verify eligibility of claimant to include reviewing and analyzing existing records.

(4) Forward applications (including support documentation) to other U.S. Government agencies as required (e.g., CIA, INS) for review of their records, as needed to acquire documentation that may aid in determining the eligibility of claimants to receive payments.

(5) Present any information or comments resulting from the research and review of cases, plus any reasonably available and probative information, to the Commission with a recommendation on the eligibility of applicants.

(6) Prepare notification letters, on behalf of the Commission, for forwarding to claimants notifying them of the final determination concerning approval or disapproval of their applications.

(7) Assist in the preparation of Reports to Congress.

(8) In coordination with the Army Budget Office and OSD, determine appropriate fund cite that will be used for payments.

(9) Assist in the preparation of required Reports to Congress.

(10) Determine administrative budgetary support requirements and submit funding request to OSD.

(11) Provide clerical and administrative support to the Commission.
(12) Create and maintain a system of records to manage all information generated by the processing of Applications for Compensation of Vietnamese Commandos under this part and to create an administrative record of actions by the Commission. All information received or originated from other Departments and agencies of the U.S. government will be retained, stored, and further disseminated only in accordance with pertinent law (e.g., 5 U.S.C. section 552(FOIA) and 5 U.S.C. section 552a (Privacy Act)) and conditions set by those originating Departments and agencies.

(c) Claims will be processed expeditiously. Within 18 months of actual receipt by the Commission of an Application for Compensation of Vietnamese Commandos, the Commission will determine the eligibility of the applicant. The standard for finding eligibility is whether the information reasonably available to the Commission indicates that the applicant is more likely than not to be eligible for a payment under this part. The burden of making a showing of eligibility shall be on the applicant. Upon determination of eligibility, the payment should be promptly accomplished.

(d) Applicants may request to appear in person before the Commission, which will retain discretion whether to grant such requests. The Commission may request the personal appearance or interview of any applicant as a condition of further consideration of his or her application if such appearance would significantly aid the Commission in its determination. All appearances shall be at the expense of the applicant.

§ 270.8 Authorization of payment.

Subject to the availability of appropriated funds, upon determination by the Commission of the eligibility of a person for payment, the Commission will authorize the Defense Finance and Accounting Service (DFAS) to make payments out of the funds appropriated for this purpose. Any payment authorized to a person under a legal disability may, in the discretion of the Commission, be paid for the use of the person, to the natural or legal guardian, committee, conservator, or curator, or, if there is no such natural or legal guardian, committee, conservator, or curator, to any other person, including the spouse or children of such person, who the Commission determines is charged with the care of the person. The Commission will notify eligible persons of the process for disbursements.

The amount payable to, or with respect to, an eligible person under this part is $40,000. If an eligible person can demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Commission that confinement or incarceration exceeded 20 years, the Commission may authorize payment of an additional $2,000 for each full year in excess of 20 (and a proportionate amount for a partial year), but the total amount paid to, or with respect to, an eligible person under this part may not exceed $50,000.

§ 270.10 Time limitations.

To be eligible for payments under this part, applicants must file Applications for Compensation of Vietnamese Commandos with the Commission within 18 months of the effective date of these regulations, May 15, 1997.

§ 270.11 Limitation on disbursements.

The Commission may, in its discretion, direct that the actual disbursement of a payment under this part be made only to the person who is authorized to receive the payment, and only upon the appearance of that person, in person, at any designated Defense Finance Accounting Service disbursement office in the United States. Upon approval of the Commission, payment may be made at such other location or in such other manner as the person authorized to receive payment may request in writing. In the case of an application authorized for payment but not disbursed as a result of the foregoing, the Secretary will hold the funds in trust for the person authorized to receive payment in an interest bearing account until such time as the person complies with the conditions for disbursement set out in this part.
§ 270.12 Payment in full satisfaction of all claims against the United States.

The acceptance of payment by, or with respect to, an eligible person under this part shall constitute full satisfaction of all claims by or on behalf of that person against the United States arising from the person's participation in operations under OPLAN 34A or OP35.

§ 270.13 No right to judicial review or legal cause of action.

Subject to subpart E of this part, all determinations by the Commission pursuant to this part are final and conclusive, notwithstanding any other regulation. Applicants under this part have no right to judicial review, and such review is specifically precluded. This part does not create or acknowledge any legal right or obligation whatsoever.

§ 270.14 Limitation on attorneys fees.

Notwithstanding any contract or agreement, the representative of a person authorized to receive payment under this part may not receive, for services rendered in connection with the claim of, or with respect to, a person under this part, more than 10 percent of a payment made under this part on such claim.

§ 270.15 Waiver of notary requirement.

In exceptional circumstances (e.g., overseas claimant) the requirement for notarizations may be waived at the discretion of the Commission.

Subpart E—Appeal Procedures

§ 270.16 Notice of the Commission's determinations.

Applicants whose claims for payment are denied in whole or in part by the Commission will be notified in writing of the determination. Applicants may petition the Assistant Secretary of Defense, Force Management Policy (or his designee) for a reconsideration of the Commission's determinations, and may submit any documentation in support of such petitions.

§ 270.17 Procedures for filing petitions for reconsideration.

A request for reconsideration must be made to the Secretary, care of the Staff Director of the Commission at the address of the Commission set out in §270.7, within 45 days of receipt of the notice from the Commission of ineligibility. The Commission may waive that time limit for good cause shown.

§ 270.18 Action on reconsideration.

(a) The Assistant Secretary of Defense, Force Management Policy (or his designee) will:

(1) Review the Commission's administrative record of the original determination.

(2) Review additional information or documentation submitted by the applicant to support his or her petition for reconsideration.

(3) Determine whether the decision of the Commission should be affirmed, modified, or reversed.

(b) When there is a decision affirming the Commission's determinations, the Staff Director will notify the applicant in writing and include a statement of the reason for the affirmance.

(c) A decision of affirmance shall constitute the final action of the Department of Defense. The Secretary (or his designee) may decline to consider any subsequent petitions for reconsideration.

(d) When there is a decision modifying or reversing the Commission's determination, the notification should be immediately made to the Staff Director so as to implement the final action.

Subpart F—Reports to Congress

§ 270.19 Reports to Congress.

Not later than September 23, 1998, the Commission will prepare and the Secretary will submit to Congress a report on the payment of claims under this part. Subsequent to that initial report, the Commission will prepare and the Secretary will submit to Congress annual reports on the status of payment of claims.

PART 271—OBTAINING INFORMATION FROM FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

§ 271.1 Purpose and applicability.

(a) This part establishes procedures for the National Security Agency/Central Security Service (NSA/CSS) to obtain records from financial institutions and implements 12 U.S.C. 3401-3422, 92 Stat. 3697 (Pub. L. 95-630).

(b) The provisions of this part apply only to financial records maintained by any office of a bank, savings bank, credit card issuer, industrial loan company, trust company, savings and loan, building and loan, homestead association (including cooperative banks), credit union, or consumer finance institution that is located in any district, state or territory of the United States.

(c) All NSA/CSS elements are subject to the provisions of this part.
§ 271.2 Policy.

(a) Financial records shall be sought regarding any individual who is an applicant for employment with the NSA/CSS or who has a current security clearance and/or access granted by the NSA/CSS, and regarding any other individual assigned or detailed to the NSA/CSS when such records are relevant to a final determination with respect to employment, continued assignment or detail, clearance, access or other related actions.

(b) The NSA/CSS shall seek the consent of an individual when obtaining that individual’s financial records from a financial institution. Refusal of an individual to provide such consent may be grounds for denying access to all Sensitive Compartmented Information (SCI) and to other classified information in NSA/CSS custody if the circumstances of such refusal or the nature of the records sought prevent the NSA/CSS from determining that such access is or would be clearly consistent with the national security.

(c) Any actions relative to obtaining financial records without an individual’s consent shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of DoD Directive 5400.12, found in 32 CFR part 275, as appropriate.

§ 271.3 Procedures.

(a) Representatives of NSA/CSS Security shall use a consent form as set out in Enclosure 2 of 32 CFR part 275, relative to obtaining financial records. A copy of the consent form shall be made a part of the individual’s NSA/CSS security file, and an additional record copy of the form kept for the purpose of an annual report. A certification form as set out in Enclosure 4 of 32 CFR part 275 shall be provided to financial institutions by security representatives along with the consent form certifying compliance with 12 U.S.C. 3401 et seq.

(b) Procedures used by security regarding matters referenced in paragraph (a) of this section, shall be established on a case-by-case basis and shall be in consonance with the appropriate provisions of 32 CFR part 275.

(c) Financial records obtained under 12 U.S.C. 3401 et seq. shall be marked: “This record was obtained pursuant to the Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978, 12 U.S.C. 3401 et seq., and may not be transferred to another federal agency or department without prior compliance with the transferring requirements of 12 U.S.C. 3412.” Except in accordance with paragraph (e) of this section such records shall not be transferred to another agency or department outside the Department of Defense unless the Chief, Security, or delegate certifies in writing that there is reason to believe that the records are relevant to a legitimate law enforcement inquiry in the jurisdiction of the receiving agency or department. Such certificates shall be maintained in the appropriate NSA/CSS security file with copies of the released records.

(d) Unless alternate procedures are involved as referenced in paragraph (b) of this section, when financial records have been transferred to another agency, a security representative shall, within 14 days, personally serve or mail to the individual whose records have been transferred, at his or her last known address, a copy of the certificate required by paragraph (c) of this section, and the following notice: “Copies of or information contained in your financial records lawfully in possession of the NSA/CSS have been furnished to (name of agency) pursuant to the Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978 for the following purpose(s): (state reason). If you believe that this transfer has not been made to further a legitimate law enforcement inquiry, you may have legal rights under the Financial Privacy Act of 1978 or the Privacy Act of 1974.”

(e) In cases where another federal agency authorized to conduct foreign intelligence or foreign counterintelligence activities requests a financial record held by the NSA/CSS, and makes such a request for the purpose of conducting that Agency’s protective functions, the NSA/CSS may release the information without notifying the individual to whom the financial record pertains.

PART 272—ADMINISTRATION AND SUPPORT OF BASIC RESEARCH BY THE DoD

Sec.
272.1 Purpose.
272.2 Definition of basic research.
272.3 Background.
272.4 Principles.
272.5 Policy.
272.6 Implementation.

§ 272.1 Purpose.

This part states the policy of the Department of Defense on the administration and support of basic research.

§ 272.2 Definition of basic research.

Basic research is that type of research which is directed toward increase of knowledge in science. It is research where the primary aim of the investigator is a fuller understanding of the subject under study.

§ 272.3 Background.

(a) E.O. 10521, as amended, "Administration of Scientific Research by Agencies of the Federal Government." (19 FR 1499) provides broad guidelines for administration of basic scientific research by Federal agencies. These guidelines state that while the National Science Foundation shall be increasingly responsible for providing Federal support for general purpose basic research, the conduct and support by other Federal agencies of basic research in areas which are closely related to their missions is recognized as important and desirable and shall continue.

(b) The Director of Defense Research and Engineering is responsible to the Secretary of Defense for the review and direction of the basic research program of the military departments and other agencies of the Department of Defense authorized to conduct or support basic research, and shall ensure that this program is executed according to the provisions of E.O. 10521. This review will be of maximum effectiveness if all elements of the Department adhere to the same fundamental principles in their conduct and support of basic research.

§ 272.4 Principles.

(a) Basic research is essential to the development of military power.

(b) Continuity is essential to successful basic research. Therefore, long-term planning and funding of basic research will be employed to the maximum possible extent.

(c) Basic research may be conducted by competent scientists in universities and non-profit institutions, industry, military laboratories, or elsewhere.

(d) Sustained support of basic research will result in increased effectiveness and economies in military programs.

(e) Free and effective communication among scientists is important to basic research.

§ 272.5 Policy.

(a) It is the policy of the Department of Defense:

(1) To conduct and support a broad and continuing basic research program to provide fundamental knowledge, with emphasis on that related to the needs of the Department of Defense; and

(2) To assure full utilization of our scientific resources and to extend those resources in those areas of science relevant to the mission of the Department of Defense; and

(3) To maintain, through such a program, effective communication among the scientists of the Department of Defense and the scientists of the universities and industry; and § 272.6 Implementation.

(a) It is the responsibility of the Director of Defense Research and Engineering to produce, on a continuing basis, a sound basic research program through the coordination and integration of the elements of the program among the military departments and other agencies of the Department of Defense authorized to conduct or support basic research.

(b) The Department of Defense provides support of basic research by:

(1) Support of in-house laboratories. Basic research in laboratories of the Department of Defense or in laboratories of other government agencies, best qualified for such work in particular areas, should be encouraged.

(2) Grants to and contracts with educational and nonprofit institutions. In situations appropriate for grants under the provisions of part 273, of this chapter, the grant instrument is the preferred method of supporting basic research by educational and other nonprofit institutions.

(3) Contract with industry. Contracts specifically for basic research may be made with industrial contractors (including small businesses) which have a recognized special competence in a given area. In the administration of the provisions of part 15 of this chapter, which relate to the allowability of a contractor’s independent research costs under certain Department of Defense contracts, favorable consideration should be given to independent basic research.

(c) The military departments and other agencies of the Department of Defense authorized to conduct or support basic research with the National Science Foundation; and

(5) To encourage the support of basic research by other government and private agencies.

§ 272.6 Implementation.

(a) It is the responsibility of the Director of Defense Research and Engineering to produce, on a continuing basis, a sound basic research program through the coordination and integration of the elements of the program among the military departments and other agencies of the Department of Defense authorized to conduct or support basic research.

(b) The Department of Defense provides support of basic research by:

(1) Support of in-house laboratories. Basic research in laboratories of the Department of Defense or in laboratories of other government agencies, best qualified for such work in particular areas, should be encouraged.

(2) Grants to and contracts with educational and nonprofit institutions. In situations appropriate for grants under the provisions of part 273, of this chapter, the grant instrument is the preferred method of supporting basic research by educational and other nonprofit institutions.

Federal law protects the privacy of your financial records. Before banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions, credit card issuers, or other financial institutions may give financial information about you to a federal agency, certain procedures must be followed.

Consent to Financial Records

You may be asked to consent to the financial institution making your financial records available to the Government. You may withhold your consent, and your consent is not required as a condition of doing business with any financial institution. If you give your consent, it can be revoked in writing at any time before your records are disclosed.
Office of the Secretary of Defense

Furthermore, any consent you give is effective for only three months, and your financial institution must keep a record of the instances in which it discloses your financial information.

Without Your Consent

Without your consent, a federal agency that wants to see your financial records may do so ordinarily only by means of a lawful subpoena, summons, formal written request, or search warrant for that purpose. Generally, the federal agency must give you advance notice of its request for your records explaining why the information is being sought and telling you how to object in court. The federal agency must also send you copies of court documents to be prepared by you with instructions for filling them out. While these procedures will be kept as simple as possible, you may want to consult an attorney before making a challenge to a federal agency’s request.

Exceptions

In some circumstances, a federal agency may obtain financial information about you without advance notice or your consent. In most of these cases, the federal agency will be required to go to court for permission to obtain your records without giving you notice beforehand. In these instances, the court will make the Government show that its investigation and request for your records are proper.

When the reason for the delay of notice no longer exists, you will usually be notified that your records were obtained.

Transfer of Information

Generally, a federal agency that obtains your financial records is prohibited from transferring them to another federal agency unless it certifies in writing that the transfer is proper and sends a notice to you that your records have been sent to another agency.

Penalties

If the federal agency or financial institution violates the Right to Financial Privacy Act, you may sue for damages or seek compliance with the law. If you win, you may be repaid your attorney’s fee and costs.

Additional Information

If you have any questions about your rights under this law, or about how to consent to release your financial records, please call the official whose name and telephone number appears below:

D. Investigation

1. If the investigating official concludes that a subpoena pursuant to the authority conferred by 31 U.S.C. 3804(a) is warranted, then:

   a. The subpoena so issued shall notify the person to whom it is addressed of the authority under which the subpoena is issued and shall identify the records or documents sought;

   b. The investigating official may designate a person to act on his or her behalf to receive the documents sought; and

   c. The person receiving such subpoena shall be required to tender to the investigating official, or to the person designated to receive the documents, a certification that the documents sought have been produced, or that such documents are not available and the reasons therefor, or that such documents, suitably identified, have been withheld based upon the assertion of an identified privilege.

2. If the investigating official concludes that an action under the PFCA may be warranted, the investigating official shall submit a report containing the findings and conclusions of such investigation to the appropriate reviewing official(s). In instances where the false claim or false statement involves more than one authority within the Department of Defense, or where the investigating official finds that more than one case has arisen from the same set of facts, the investigating official may, at his or her sole discretion, refer the case(s) to the reviewing official of one of the affected authorities. That reviewing official shall consolidate the claims and statements and act for all. Nothing in this subsection confers any right in any party to the consolidation or severance of any case(s), although presiding officers may, at their sole discretion, entertain motions to consolidate or sever.

3. Nothing in this section shall preclude or limit an investigating official’s discretion to refer allegations directly to the Department of Justice for suit under 18 U.S.C. 287 or 31 U.S.C. 3729 and 3730, False Claims Act, or other civil relief, or to preclude or limit such official’s discretion to defer or postpone a report or referral to the reviewing official to avoid interference with a criminal investigation or prosecution.

4. Nothing in this section modifies any responsibility of an investigating official to report violations of criminal law to the Attorney General.

5. Nothing in this section shall preclude or limit the investigating official’s authority to obtain the assistance of any investigative units of the Department of Defense, including those of the Military Departments. In this regard, appropriate investigation may be conducted by the Defense criminal investigative organizations and other investigative elements of the Military Departments and Defense Agencies.

E. Review by the Reviewing Official

1. If, based on the report of the investigating official under subsection D.2., above, the reviewing official determines that there is adequate evidence to believe that a person is liable under section C., above, the reviewing official shall transmit to the Attorney General or his or her designated point of coordination within the Department of Justice a written notice of the reviewing official’s intention to issue a complaint under section G., below.

2. Such notice shall include the following:

   a. A statement of the reviewing official’s reasons for issuing a complaint;

   b. A statement specifying the evidence that supports the allegations of liability;

   c. A description of the claims or statements upon which the allegations of liability are based;

   d. An estimate of the amount of money or the value of property, services, or other benefits requested or demanded in violation of section C., above.

   e. A statement of any exculpatory or mitigating circumstances that may relate to the claims or statements known by the reviewing official or the investigating official; and

   f. A statement that there is a reasonable prospect of collecting an appropriate amount of penalties and assessments.
F. Prerequisites for Issuing a Complaint

1. The reviewing official may issue a complaint under section G., below, only if:
   a. The Attorney General or an Assistant Attorney General designated by the Attorney General approves the issuance of a complaint in a written statement described in 31 U.S.C. 3803(b)(1); and
   b. In the case of allegations of liability under subsection C.1., above, with respect to a claim, the reviewing official determines that, with respect to such claim or a group of related claims submitted at the same time such claim is submitted (as defined in subsection 2. of this section), the amount of money or the value of property or services demanded or requested in violation of subsection C.1., above, does not exceed $150,000.00.

2. For the purposes of this section, a related group of claims submitted at the same time shall include only those claims arising from the same transaction (e.g., grant, loan, application, or contract) that are submitted simultaneously as part of a single request, demand, or submission.

3. Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the reviewing official’s authority to join in a single complaint against a person’s claims that are unrelated or were not submitted simultaneously, regardless of the amount of money or the value of property or services demanded or requested.

4. In any case that involves claims or statements made to more than one entity within the Department of Defense or the Military Departments, or the reviewing officials having responsibility for each such entity, as stated in subsection D.2., above, shall have concurrent jurisdiction to make the required determinations under this section. In any such case, the responsible reviewing officials shall coordinate with each other prior to making any determination under this section. Where more than one case arises from the same set of facts, such cases shall be consolidated to the degree practicable, although the reviewing official shall have absolute discretion to make such determination. The requirements of this paragraph do not confer any procedural or substantive rights upon individuals, associations, corporations, or other persons or entities who might become defendants under the PFCRA.

G. Complaint

1. On or after the date the Attorney General or an Assistant Attorney General designated by the Attorney General approves the issuance of a complaint in accordance with 31 U.S.C. 3803(b)(1), the reviewing official may serve a complaint on the defendant, as provided in section H., below.

2. The complaint shall state the following:
   a. The allegations of liability against the defendant, including the statutory basis for liability, an identification of the claims or statements that are the basis for the alleged liabilities, and the reasons why liability allegedly arises from such claims or statements;
   b. The maximum amount of penalties and assessments for which the defendant may be held liable;
   c. Instructions for filing an answer to a request including a specific statement of the defendant’s right to request a hearing, by filing an answer and to be represented by a representative; and
   d. That failure to file an answer within 30 days of service of the complaint shall result in the imposition of penalties and assessments without right to appeal, consistent with the provisions of section J., below.

3. At the same time the reviewing official serves the complaint, he or she shall notify the defendant with a copy of this part and any applicable implementing regulations.

H. Service of Complaint

1. Service of a complaint must be made by certified or registered mail or by delivery in any manner authorized by Rule 4(d) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Service is complete upon receipt.

2. Proof of service, stating the name and address of the person on whom the complaint was served, and the manner and date of service may be made by the following:
   a. Affidavit of the individual serving the complaint by delivery;
   b. A United States Postal Service return receipt card acknowledging receipt; or
   c. Written acknowledgement of receipt by the defendant or his or her representative.

I. Answer

1. The defendant may request a hearing by filing an answer with the reviewing official within 30 days of service of the complaint. An answer shall be deemed to be a request for hearing.

2. In the answer, the defendant:
   a. Shall admit or deny each of the allegations of liability made in the complaint;
   b. Shall state any defense on which the defendant intends to rely;
   c. May state any reasons why the defendant contends that the penalties and assessments should be less than the statutory maximum; and
   d. Shall state the name, address, and telephone number of the person authorized by the defendant to act as defendant’s representative, if any.

3. If the defendant is unable to file an answer meeting the requirements of paragraph 2b of this section within the time provided, the defendant may, before the expiration of 30 days from service of the complaint, file with the reviewing official a general answer.
denying liability and requesting a hearing, and a request for an extension of time within which to file an answer meeting the requirements of subsection 2. of this section. The reviewing official shall, in such an event, file promptly with the presiding officer the complaint, the general answer denying liability, and the request for an extension of time as provided in section k., below. For good cause shown, the presiding officer may grant the defendant additional time within which to file an answer meeting the requirements of subsection 2. of this section.

4. The 30-day limitation for filing an answer may be tolled for a reasonable period of time by written agreement of the parties and approval of the authority head to allow time for settlement.

J. Default Upon Failure to File an Answer

1. If the defendant does not file an answer within the time prescribed in subsection I.1., above, and there is no approved written agreement as in subsection I.4., above, tolling the time prescribed, the reviewing official may then refer the complaint to the presiding officer.

2. Upon referral of the complaint pursuant to this section, the presiding officer shall promptly serve on defendant, in the manner prescribed in section H., above, a notice that an initial decision will be issued under this section.

3. Upon referral of the complaint pursuant to this section, the presiding officer shall assume the facts alleged in the complaint to be true and, if such facts establish liability under section c., above, the presiding officer shall issue an initial decision imposing penalties and assessments under the statute.

4. Except as otherwise provided in this section, by failing to file a timely answer, the defendant waives any right to further review of the penalties and assessments imposed under subsection 3. of this section, and the initial decision shall become final and binding upon the parties 30 days after it is issued.

5. If, before such an initial decision becomes final, the defendant files a motion with the presiding officer seeking to reopen the case on the grounds that good cause prevented the defendant from filing an answer, the initial decision shall be stayed pending the presiding officer's decision on the motion.

6. If, on a motion brought under subsection j.5., above, the defendant can demonstrate good cause excusing the failure to file a timely answer, the presiding officer shall withdraw the initial decision in subsection 3. of this section if such a decision has been issued, and shall grant the defendant an opportunity to answer the complaint.

7. A decision of the presiding officer denying a defendant's motion under subsections 5. and 6. of this section is not subject to reconsideration under section l.1., below.

8. The defendant may appeal to the authority head the decision denying a motion to reopen by filing a notice of appeal with the authority head within 15 days after the presiding officer denies the motion. The timely filing of a notice of appeal shall stay the initial decision until the authority head decides the issue.

9. If the defendant files a timely notice of appeal with the authority head, the presiding officer shall forward the record of the proceeding to the authority head.

10. The authority head shall decide expeditiously whether good cause excused the defendant's failure to file a timely answer based solely on the record before the presiding officer.

11. If the authority head decides that good cause excused the defendant's failure to file a timely answer, the authority head shall remand the case to the presiding officer with instructions to grant the defendant an opportunity to answer.

12. If the authority head decides that the defendant's failure to file a timely answer is not excused, the authority head shall approve the initial decision of the presiding officer, which shall become final and binding upon the parties 30 days after the authority head issues such decision.

K. Referral of Complaint and Answer to the Presiding Officer

1. Upon receipt of an answer, the reviewing official shall file the complaint and answer with the presiding officer.

2. To allow time for settlement, referral of complaint and answer to the presiding officer may be delayed for a reasonable period of time if there is a written agreement of the parties, approved by the authority head, in favor of such delay.

L. Notice of Hearing

1. When the presiding officer receives the complaint and answer, the presiding officer shall promptly serve a notice of hearing upon the defendant in the manner prescribed by section H., above. At the same time, the presiding officer shall send a copy of such notice to the representative for the Government.

2. Such notice shall include:
   a. The tentative time and place, and the nature of the hearing;

O. Ex parte Contacts

No party or person (except employees of the presiding officer's office) shall communicate in any way with the presiding officer on any matter at issue in a case unless on notice and there is an opportunity for all parties to participate. P. Disqualification of Presiding Officer and Reviewing Official

1. A reviewing official or presiding officer in a particular case may disqualify himself or herself at any time.

2. A party may file a motion for disqualification of the presiding officer or the reviewing official. Such motion, to be filed with the presiding officer, shall be accompanied by an affidavit alleging personal bias or other reason for disqualification.

4. Such affidavit shall state specific facts that support the party's belief that personal bias or other reason for disqualification exists and the time and circumstances of the party's discovery of such facts. It shall be accompanied by a certificate of the representative of record that it is made in good faith.

5. Upon the filing of such a motion and affidavit, the presiding officer shall proceed no further in the case until he or she resolves the matter of disqualification by taking one of the following actions:

   b. If the presiding officer disqualifies himself or herself, the case shall be reassigned promptly to another presiding officer;

2. If a party objects, the presiding officer shall not admit into evidence the testimony of any witness whose name does not appear on the witness list or any exhibit not provided to the opposing party as provided above unless the presiding officer finds good cause for the failure or that there is no prejudice to the objecting party.

3. Unless another party objects within the time set by the presiding officer, documents exchanged in accordance with subsection 1. of this section shall be admitted into evidence at the hearing.    a. In any judicial district of the United States in which the defendant resides or transacts business;
   b. In any judicial district of the United States in which the claim or statement at issue was made; or
   c. In such other place, including foreign countries, as may be agreed upon by the defendant and the presiding officer.

2. Each party shall have the opportunity to petition the presiding officer with respect to the location of the hearing.

3. The hearing shall be held at the place and at the time ordered by the presiding officer.

GG. Witnesses

1. Except as provided in subsection 2. of this section, testimony at the hearing shall be given orally by witnesses under oath or affirmation.

2. At the discretion of the presiding officer, testimony may be admitted in the form of a written or videotaped statement or deposition. Any such written or videotaped statement must be provided to all other parties along with the last known address of such witness, in a manner which allows sufficient time for other parties to subpoena such witness for deposition or cross-examination at the hearing. Prior written or videotaped statements of witnesses proposed to testify at the hearings and deposition transcripts shall be exchanged as provided in subsection V.1., above.

3. The presiding officer shall exercise reasonable control over the mode and order of interrogating witnesses and presenting evidence so as to:
   a. Make the interrogation and presentation effective for the ascertainment of the truth;
   b. Avoid needless consumption of time; and
   c. Protect witnesses from harassment or undue embarrassment.

4. The presiding officer shall permit the parties to conduct such cross-examination as may be required for a full and true disclosure of the facts.

5. At the discretion of the presiding officer, a witness may be cross-examined on matters relevant to the proceeding without regard to the scope of his or her direct examination.

6. Upon motion of any party, the presiding officer shall order witnesses excluded so that they cannot hear the testimony of other witnesses. This rule does not authorize exclusion of the following:
   a. A party who is an individual;
   b. In the case of a party that is not an individual, an officer or employee of the party appearing for the party as its representative,
The presiding officer shall fix the time for in which the case arose.

shall be the responsibility of the authority except for the cost of the presiding officer.

one, unless otherwise ordered by the presiding officer.

ceeding constitute the record for the decision.

and other evidence admitted at the hearing, and all papers and requests filed in the proceeding constitute the record for the decision by the presiding officer and the authority head.

3. The record may be inspected and copied (upon payment of a reasonable fee) by anyone, unless otherwise ordered by the presiding officer.

4. Funding for the hearing and record, except for the cost of the presiding officer, shall be the responsibility of the authority in which the case arose.

J.J. Post-hearing Briefs

The presiding officer may require or permit the parties to file post-hearing briefs. The presiding officer shall fix the time for filing any such briefs, not to exceed 60 days from the date the parties receive the transcript of the hearing or, if applicable, the stipulated record. Such briefs may be accompanied by proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law. The presiding officer may permit the parties to file reply briefs.

KK. Initial Decision

1. The presiding officer shall issue an initial decision based only on the record that shall contain findings of fact, conclusions of law, and the amount of any penalties and assessments imposed.

2. The findings of fact shall include a finding on each of the following issues:

a. Whether the claims or statements identified in the complaint, or any portions thereof, violate section C., above; and

b. If the person is liable for penalties or assessments, the appropriate amount of any such penalties or assessments.

3. The presiding officer shall promptly serve the initial decision on all parties within 90 days after the time for submission of post-hearing briefs and reply briefs (if permitted) has expired. The presiding officer shall at the same time serve all parties with a statement describing the right of any defendant determined to be liable for a civil penalty or assessment to file a motion for reconsideration with the presiding officer or a notice of appeal with the authority head. If the presiding officer fails to meet the deadline contained in this subsection, he or she shall notify the parties of the reason for the delay and shall set a new deadline.

4. Unless the initial decision of the presiding officer is timely appealed to the authority head, or a motion for reconsideration of the initial decision is timely filed, the initial decision of the presiding officer shall be final and binding on the parties 30 days after it is issued by the presiding officer.

LL. Reconsideration of Initial Decision

1. Except as provided in subsection 4. of this section, any party may file a motion for reconsideration of the initial decision within 20 days of service of the initial decision in the manner set forth in section H., above, for service of the complaint. Such motion shall be accompanied by supporting brief.

3. Responses to such motions shall be allowed only upon request of the presiding officer; however, the presiding officer shall not issue a revised initial determination without affording both parties an opportunity to be heard on the motion for reconsideration.
Office of the Secretary of Defense

Pt. 277, App.

4. No party may file a motion for reconsideration of an initial decision that has been revised in response to a previous motion for reconsideration.

5. The presiding officer may dispose of a motion for reconsideration by denying it or by issuing a revised initial decision.

6. If the presiding officer denies a motion for reconsideration, the initial decision shall constitute the final decision of the authority head and shall be final and binding on the parties 30 days after the presiding officer denies the motion, unless the initial decision is timely appealed to the authority head in accordance with section MM., below.

7. If the presiding officer issues a revised initial decision, that decision shall constitute the final decision of the authority head and shall be final and binding on the parties 30 days after it is issued, unless it is timely appealed to the authority head in accordance with section MM., below.

MM. Appeal to Authority Head

1. Any defendant who has filed a timely answer and who is determined in an initial decision to be liable for a civil penalty or assessment may appeal such decision to the authority head by filing a notice of appeal with the authority head in accordance with this section.

2. A notice of appeal:
   a. May be filed at any time within 30 days after the presiding officer issues an initial or a revised initial decision. If another party files a motion for reconsideration under section LL., above, consideration of the appeal shall be stayed automatically pending resolution of the motion for reconsideration until the time period for filing a motion for reconsideration under section LL., above, has expired or the motion is resolved;
   b. If a motion for reconsideration is timely filed, a notice of appeal may be filed within 30 days after the presiding officer denies the motion or issues a revised initial decision, whichever applies;
   c. The authority head may extend the initial 30-day period for an additional 30 days if the defendant files with the authority head a request for an extension within the initial 30-day period and shows good cause.

3. If the defendant files a timely notice of appeal with the authority head, the presiding officer shall forward the record of the proceeding to the authority head when:
   a. The time for filing a motion for reconsideration expires without the filing of such a motion, or
   b. The motion for reconsideration is denied. Issuance of a revised initial decision upon motion for reconsideration shall require filing of a new notice of appeal.

4. A notice of appeal shall be accompanied by a written brief specifying exceptions to the initial decision and reasons supporting the exceptions.

5. The representative for the Government may file a brief in opposition to the exceptions within 30 days of receiving the notice of appeal and accompanying brief.

6. There is no right to appear personally before the authority head, although the authority head may at his or her discretion require the parties to appear for an oral hearing on appeal.

7. There is no right to appeal any interlocutory ruling by the presiding officer.

8. In reviewing the initial decision, the authority head shall not consider any objection that was not raised before the presiding officer, unless a demonstration is made of extraordinary circumstances causing the failure to raise the objection.

9. If any party demonstrates to the satisfaction of the authority head that additional evidence not presented at such hearing is material and that there were reasonable grounds for the failure to present such evidence at such hearing, the authority head shall remand the matter to the presiding officer for consideration of such additional evidence.

10. The authority head may affirm, reduce, reverse, compromise, remand, or settle any penalty or assessment determined by the presiding officer in any initial decision.

11. The authority head shall promptly serve each party to the appeal with a copy of the decision of the authority head and a statement describing the right of any person determined to be liable for a penalty or assessment to seek judicial review.

12. Unless a petition for review is filed as provided in 32 U.S.C. 3805 after a defendant has exhausted all administrative remedies under this part and within 60 days after the date on which the authority head serves the defendant with a copy of the authority head's decision, a determination that a defendant is liable under section C., above, is final and is not subject to judicial review.

13. The authority heads (or their designees) may designate an officer or employee of the authority, who is serving in the grade of GS-17 or above under the General Schedule, or in the Senior Executive Service, to carry out these appellate responsibilities; however, the authority to compromise, settle, or otherwise discretionarily dispose of the case on appeal provided pursuant to subsection MM.10, hereof, may not be so redelegated pursuant to this subsection.

NN. Stays Ordered by the Department of Justice

If at any time, the Attorney General or an Assistant Attorney General designated by the Attorney General transmits to the authority head a written finding that continuation of the administrative process described in this Directive with respect to a claim or statement may adversely affect any pending or potential criminal or civil action related to such claim or statement, the authority head shall stay the process immediately. The authority head may order the process resumed only upon receipt of the written authorization of the Attorney General.

OO. Stay Pending Appeal
1. An initial decision is stayed automatically pending disposition of a motion for reconsideration or of an appeal to the authority head.
2. No administrative stay is available following a final decision of the authority head.

PP. Judicial Review.
31 U.S.C. 3805 authorizes judicial review by an appropriate United States District Court of a final decision of the authority head imposing penalties or assessment under this part, and specifies the procedures for such review.

QQ. Collection of Civil Penalties and Assessments
31 U.S.C. 3806 and 3808(b) authorize actions for collection of civil penalties and assessments imposed under this part, and specify the procedures for such actions.

RR. Right to Administrative Offset
The amount of any penalty or assessment that has become final, or for which a judgment has been entered under section QQ., above, or any amount agreed upon in a compromise or settlement under section TT., below, may be collected by administrative offset under 31 U.S.C. 3716, except that an administrative offset may not be made under this section against a refund of an overpayment of Federal taxes then or later owing by the United States to the defendant.

SS. Deposit in Treasury of United States
All amounts collected pursuant to this part shall be deposited as miscellaneous receipts in the United States Treasury, except as provided in 31 U.S.C. 3716.

TT. Compromise or Settlement
1. Parties may make offers of compromise or settlement at any time.
2. The reviewing official has the exclusive authority to compromise or settle a case under this part at any time after the date on which the reviewing official issues an initial decision, except during the pendency of any review under section PP., above, or during the pendency of any action to collect penalties as assessments under section QQ., above.
3. The Attorney General has exclusive authority to compromise or settle a case under this part during the pendency of any review under section PP., above, of any action to recover penalties and assessments under 31 U.S.C. 3805.
4. The investigating official may recommend settlement terms to the reviewing official or the Attorney General, as appropriate. The reviewing official may recommend settlement terms to the Attorney General, as appropriate.
5. Any compromise or settlement must be in writing.

UU. Limitations
1. The notice of hearing with respect to a claim or settlement must be served in the manner specified in section H., above, within 6 years after the date on which such claim or statement is made.
2. If the defendant fails to file a timely answer, service of a notice under subsection J.2., above, shall be deemed a notice of hearing for purposes of this section.
3. If at any time during the course of proceedings brought pursuant to this section, the authority head receives or discovers any specific information concerning bribery, gratuities, conflict of interest, or other corruption or similar activity in relation to a false claim or statement, the authority head shall immediately report such information to the Attorney General and to the Inspector General, Department of Defense.

VV. Delegations
The General Counsel for the Department of Defense is designated to carry out the responsibilities of the authority head of the Department of Defense for the issuance of additional implementing regulations that are necessary to implement PFCRA and this part to decide cases upon appeal, and to hire or designate employees of the Department of Defense to decide cases on appeal. The General Counsel, Department of Defense, is also designated to appoint presiding officers for the Department of Defense, and may assist in the appointment of presiding officers on detail from other Agencies for all authorities within the Department of Defense.

§ 285.3 Policy.
It is DoD policy to:
(a) Promote public trust by making the maximum amount of information available to the public, in both hard copy and electronic formats, on the operation and activities of the Department of Defense, consistent with DoD responsibility to ensure national security.
(b) Allow a requester to obtain agency records from the Department of Defense that are available through other public information services without invoking the FOIA.

Subpart A—General Provisions

§ 286.1 Purpose and applicability.

(a) Purpose. This part provides policies and procedures for the DoD implementation of the Freedom of Information Act (50 U.S.C. 552) and DoD Directive 5400.7,1 and promotes uniformity in the DoD Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) Program.

(b) Applicability. This part applies to the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD), the Military Departments, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Combatant Commands, the Inspector General of the Department of Defense (IG DoD), the Defense Agencies, and the DoD Field Activities (hereafter referred to collectively as “the DoD Components”). This part takes precedence over all DoD Component publications that supplement and implement the DoD FOIA Program. A list of DoD Components is at appendix G to this part.

§ 286.2 Public information.

(a) The public has a right to information concerning the activities of its Government. DoD policy is to conduct its activities in an open manner and provide the public with a maximum amount of accurate and timely information concerning its activities, consistent always with the legitimate public and private interests of the American people. A record requested by a member of the public who follows rules established by proper authority in the Department of Defense shall not be withheld in whole or in part unless the record is exempt from mandatory partial or total disclosure under the FOIA. As a matter of policy, DoD Components shall make discretionary disclosures of exempt records or information whenever disclosure would not foreseeably harm an interest protected by a FOIA exemption, but this policy does not create any right enforceable in court. In order that the public may have timely information concerning DoD activities, records requested through public information channels by news media representatives that would not be withheld if requested under the FOIA should be released upon request. Prompt responses to requests for information from news media representatives should be encouraged to eliminate the need for these requesters to invoke the provisions of the FOIA and thereby assist in providing timely information to the public. Similarly, requests from other members of the public for information that would not be withheld under the FOIA should continue to be honored through appropriate means without requiring the requester to invoke the FOIA.

(b) Within the OSD, the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Command, Control, Communications, and Intelligence, as Chief Information Officer, in conjunction with the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs is responsible for ensuring preparation of reference material or a guide for requesting records or information from the Department of Defense, subject to the nine exemptions of the FOIA. This part shall also include an index of all major information systems, and a description of major information and record locator systems, as defined by the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Command, Control, Communications, and Intelligence. DoD FOIA Components shall coordinate with the appropriate office(s) to insure that this is also accomplished within their department or organization.

(c) DoD Components shall also prepare, in addition to normal FOIA regulations, a handbook for the use of the public in obtaining information from their organization. This handbook should be a short, simple explanation to the public of what the FOIA is designed to do, and how a member of the public can use it to access government records. Each DoD Component should explain the types of records that can be obtained through FOIA requests, why some records cannot, by law, be made available, and how the DoD Component determines whether the record can be released. The handbook should also explain how to make a FOIA request, how long the requester can expect to wait for a reply, and explain the right of appeal. The handbook should supplement other information locator systems, such as the Government Information Locator Service (GILS), and explain how a requester can obtain more information about those systems. The handbook should be available on paper and through electronic means, and identify how a requester can access DoD Components’ Freedom of Information Act Annual Reports. Similarly, the DoD Components’ Freedom of Information Act Annual Reports should refer to the handbook and how to obtain it.

§ 286.3

§ 286.3 Definitions.

As used in this part, the following terms and meanings shall be applicable:

Administrative appeal. A request by a member of the general public, made under the FOIA, asking the appellate authority of a DoD Component to reverse a decision to: withhold all or part of a requested record; deny a fee category claim by a requester; deny a request for expedited processing due to demonstrated compelling need under §286.4(d)(3); deny a request for waiver or reduction of fees; deny a request to review an initial fee estimate; and confirm that no records were located during the initial search.

Agency record. (1) The products of data compilation, such as all books, papers, maps, and photographs, machine readable materials, inclusive of those in electronic form or format, or other documentary materials, regardless of physical form or characteristics, made or received by an agency of the United States Government under Federal law in connection with the transaction of public business and in Department of Defense possession and control at the time the FOIA request is made. Care should be taken not to exclude records from being considered agency records, unless they fall within one of the categories of paragraph (2) of this definition.

2 (2) The following are not included within the definition of the word “record”:

(i) Objects or articles, such as structures, furniture, vehicles and equipment, whatever their historical value, or value as evidence.

(ii) Anything that is not tangible or documentary record, such as an individual’s memory or oral communication.

(iii) Personal records of an individual not subject to agency creation or retention requirements, created and maintained primarily for the convenience of an agency employee, and not distributed to other agency employees for their official use. Personal papers fall into three categories: those created before entering Government service; private materials brought into, created, or received in the office that were not created or received in the course of transacting Government business; and work-related personal papers that are not used in the course of transacting Government business (see “Personal Papers of Executive Branch Officials: A Management Guide,” National Archives and Records Administration, Office of Records Administration, Washington, DC, 1992). A record of an individual not subject to agency creation or retention requirements, created and maintained primarily for the convenience of an agency employee, and not distributed to other agency employees for their official use. Personal papers fall into three categories: those created before entering Government service; private materials brought into, created, or received in the office that were not created or received in the course of transacting Government business; and work-related personal papers that are not used in the course of transacting Government business (see “Personal Papers of Executive Branch Officials: A Management Guide,” National Archives and Records Administration, Office of Records Administration, Washington, DC, 1992).

(3) A record must exist and be in the possession and control of the Department of Defense at the time of the request to be considered subject to this part and the FOIA. There is no obligation to create, compile, or obtain a record to satisfy a FOIA request. See §286.4(g)(2) creating a record in the electronic environment.

(4) Hard copy of electronic records, that are subject to FOIA requests under 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(3), and that are available to the public through an established distribution system, or through the Federal Register, the National Technical Information Service, or the Internet, normally need not be processed under the provisions of the FOIA. If a request is received for such information, DoD Components shall provide the requester with guidance, inclusive of any written notice to the public, on how to obtain the information. However, if the requester insists that the request be processed under the FOIA, then the request shall be processed under the FOIA. If there is any doubt as to whether the request must be processed, contact the Directorate for Freedom of Information and Security Review.

Appellate authority. The Head of the DoD Component or the Component head’s designee having jurisdiction for this purpose over the record, or any of the other adverse determinations outlined in the definitions initial denial authority and administrative appeal in this section.

DoD Component. An element of the Department of Defense, as defined in §286.2(b), authorized to receive and act independently on FOIA requests. (See appendix G to this part). A DoD Component has its own initial denial authority (IDA), appellate authority, and legal counsel.

Electronic record. Records (including e-mail) that are created, stored, and retrievable by electronic means.

Federal agency. As defined by 5 U.S.C. 552(f)(1), a Federal agency is any executive department, military department, Government corporation, Government controlled corporation, or other establishment in the executive branch of the Government (including the Executive Office of the President), or any independent regulatory agency.

FOIA request. A written request for DoD records, made by any person, including a member of the public (U.S. or foreign citizen), an organization, or a business, but not including a Federal Agency or a fugitive from the law, that either explicitly or implicitly invokes the FOIA. DoD Directive 5400.7, this part, and any supplemental regulations or instructions. Written requests may be received by postal service or other commercial delivery means, by facsimile, or electronically.

Initial Denial Authority (IDA). An official who has been granted authority by the head of a DoD component to withhold records requested under the FOIA for one or more of the nine categories of records exempt from mandatory disclosure. IDA’s may also deny a fee category claim by a requester; deny a request for expedited processing due to demonstrated compelling need under §286.4(d)(3), deny a request for a waiver or reduction of fees; review a fee estimate; and confirm that no records were located in response to a request.

Public interest. The interest in obtaining official information that sheds light on an agency’s performance of its statutory duties because the information falls within the statutory purpose of the FOIA to inform citizens about what their Government is doing. That statutory purpose, however, is not fostered by disclosure of information about private citizens accumulated in various governmental files that reveals nothing about an agency’s official’s own conduct.

§ 286.4 Policy.

(a) Compliance with the FOIA. DoD personnel are expected to comply with the FOIA, this part, and DoD FOIA policy in both letter and spirit. This strict adherence is necessary to provide uniformity in the implementation of the DoD FOIA Program and to create conditions that will promote public trust.

(b) Openness with the public. The Department of Defense shall conduct its activities in an open manner consistent with the need for security and adherence to other requirements of law and regulation. Records not exempt from disclosure under the Act shall, upon request, be made readily accessible to the public in accordance with rules promulgated by competent authority, whether or not the Act is invoked.

(c) Avoidance of procedural obstacles. DoD Components shall ensure that procedural matters do not unnecessarily impede a requester from obtaining DoD records promptly. Components shall provide assistance to requesters to help them understand and comply with procedures established by this part and any supplemental regulations published by the DoD Components.

(d) Prompt action on requests. (1) Generally, when a member of the public...

23 CFR Ch. 1 (7-1-98 Edition)

complies with procedures established in this part and DoD Component regulations or instructions for obtaining DoD records, and after the request is received by the official designated to respond, DoD Components shall endeavor to provide a final response determination within the statutory 10 working days (20 working days effective October 2, 1997). If a significant number of requests, or the complexity of the requests prevent a final response determination within the statutory time period, DoD Components shall advise the requester of this fact, and explain how the request will be responded to within its multitrack processing system (see paragraph (d)(2) of this section). A final response determination is notification to the requester that the records are released, or will be released on a certain date, or the records are denied under the appropriate FOIA exemption, or the records cannot be provided for one or more of the other reasons in § 286.23. Interim responses acknowledging receipt of the request, negotiations with the requester concerning the scope of the request, the response timeframe, and fee agreements are encouraged; however, such actions do not constitute a final response determination pursuant to the FOIA.

(2) Multitrack processing. When a Component has a significant number of pending requests that prevents a response determination being made within 10 working days (20 working days effective October 2, 1997), the requests shall be processed in a multitrack processing system, based on the date of receipt, the amount of work and time involved in processing the requests, and whether the request qualifies for expedited processing as described in paragraph (d)(3) of this section. DoD Components may establish as many processing queues as they wish; however, as a minimum, three processing tracks shall be established, all based on a first-in, first-out concept, and rank ordered by the date of receipt of the request. One track shall be a processing queue for simple requests, one track for complex requests, and one track shall be a processing queue for expedited processing as described in paragraph (d)(3) of this section. Determinations as to whether a request is simple or complex shall be made by each DoD Component. DoD Components shall provide a requester whose request does not qualify for the fastest queue (except for expedited processing as described in paragraph (d)(3) of this section), an opportunity to limit in writing by hard copy, facsimile, or electronically, the scope of the request in order to qualify for the fastest queue. This multitrack processing system does not obviate components' responsibility to exercise due diligence in processing requests in the most expeditious manner possible.

(3) Expedited processing. A separate queue shall be established for requests meeting the test for expedited processing. Expedited processing shall be granted to a requester after the requester requests such and demonstrates a compelling need for the information. Notice of the determination as to whether to grant expedited processing in response to a requester's compelling need shall be provided to the requester within 10 calendar days after receipt of the request in the DoD Component's office that will determine whether to grant expedited processing. Once the DoD Component has determined to grant expedited processing, the request shall be processed as soon as practicable. Actions by DoD Components to initially deny or affirm the initial denial on appeal of a request for expedited processing, and failure to respond in a timely manner shall be subject to judicial review.

(i) Compelling need. The failure to obtain the records on an expedited basis could reasonably be expected to pose an imminent threat to the life or physical safety of an individual.

(ii) Compelling need also means that the information is urgently needed by an individual primarily engaged in disseminating information in order to inform the public concerning actual or alleged Federal Government activity. An individual primarily engaged in disseminating information means a person whose primary activity involves publishing or otherwise disseminating information to the public. Representatives of the news media (see § 286.28(e)(7)(i)) would normally qualify as individuals primarily engaged in disseminating information. Other persons must demonstrate that their primary activity involves publishing or otherwise disseminating information to the public. “Urgently needed” information has a particular value that will be lost if not disseminated quickly. Ordinarily this means a breaking news story of general public interest. However, information of historical interest only, or information sought for litigation or commercial activities would not qualify, nor would a news media publication or broadcast deadline unrelated to the news breaking nature of the information.

(iii) A demonstration of compelling need by a requester shall be made by a statement certified by the requester to be true and correct to the best of their knowledge. This statement must accompany the request in order to be considered and responded to within the 10 calendar days required for decisions on expedited access.

(iv) Other reasons for expedited processing. Other reasons that merit expedited processing by DoD Components are an imminent loss of substantial due process rights and humanitarian need. A demonstration of imminent loss of substantial due process rights shall be made by a statement certified by the requester to be true and correct to the best of his or her knowledge. Humanitarian need means that disclosing the information will promote the welfare and interests of mankind. A demonstration of humanitarian need shall be also made by a statement certified by the requester to be true and correct to the best of his or her knowledge. Both statements mentioned above must accompany the request in order to be considered and responded to within the 10 calendar days required for decisions on expedited access. Once the decision has been made to expedite the request for either of these reasons, the request may be processed in the expedited processing queue behind those requests qualifying for compelling need.

(v) These same procedures also apply to requests for expedited processing of administrative appeals.

(e) Use of exemptions. It is DoD policy to make records publicly available, unless the record qualifies for exemption under one or more of the nine exemptions. It is DoD policy that DoD Components shall make discretionary releases whenever possible; however, a discretionary release is normally not appropriate for records clearly exempt under exemptions 1, 3, 4, 6, 7(C) and 7(F) (see subpart C of this part). Exemptions 2, 5, and 7(A)(B)(D) and (E) (see subpart C of this part) are discretionary in nature, and DoD Components are encouraged to exercise discretionary releases whenever possible. Exemptions 4, 6 and 7(C) cannot be claimed when the requester is the submitter of the information.

(f) Public domain. Nonexempt records released under the authority of this part are considered to be in the public domain. Such records may also be made available in Components’ reading rooms in paper form, as well as electronically, to facilitate public access. Discretionary releases to FOIA requesters constitute a waiver of the FOIA exemptions that may otherwise apply. Disclosure to a properly constituted advisory committee, to Congress, or to other Federal Agencies does not waive the exemption. (See §286.22(d)). Exempt records disclosed without authorization by the appropriate DoD official do not lose their exempt status. Also, while authority may exist to disclose records to individuals in their official capacity, the provisions of this part apply if the same individual seeks the records in a private or personal capacity.

(g) Creating a record. (1) A record must exist and be in the possession and control of Department of Defense at the time of the research to be considered subject to this part and the FOIA. There is no obligation to create, compile, or obtain a record to satisfy a FOIA request. A DoD Component, however, may compile a new record when so doing would result in a more useful response to the requester, or be less burdensome to the agency than providing existing records, and the requester does not object. Cost of creating or compiling such a record may not be charged to the requester unless the fee for creating the record is equal to or less than the fee which would be charged for providing the existing record. Fee assessments shall be in accordance with subpart F of this part.
(2) About electronic data, the issue of whether records are actually created or merely extracted from an existing database is not always readily apparent. Consequently, when responding to FOIA requests for electronic data where creation of a record, programming, or particular format are questionable, Components should apply a standard of "reasonableness." In other words, if the capability exists to respond to the request, and the effort would be a "business as usual" approach, then the request should be processed. However, the request need not be processed where the capability to respond does not exist without a significant expenditure of resources, thus not being a normal "business as usual" approach. As used in this sense, a significant expenditure of resources in both time and manpower, that would cause a significant interference with the operation of the Components' automated information system would not be a business as usual approach.

(h) Description of requested record. (1) Identification of the record desired is the responsibility of the requester. The requester must provide a description of the desired record, that enables the Government to locate the record with a reasonable amount of effort. In order to assist DoD Components in conducting more timely searches, requesters should endeavor to provide as much identifying information as possible. When a DoD Component receives a request that does not reasonably describe the requested record, it shall notify the requester of the defect in writing. The requester should be asked to provide the type of information outlined in paragraph (h)(2) of this section. DoD Components are not obligated to act on the request until the requester responds to the specificity letter. When practicable, DoD Components shall offer assistance to the requester in identifying the records sought and in reformulating the request to reduce the burden on the agency in complying with the Act.

(2) The following guidelines are provided to deal with generalized requests and are based on the principle of reasonable effort (Descriptive information about a record may be divided into two broad categories.):

(i) Category I is file-related and includes information such as type of record (for example, memorandum), title, index citation, subject area, date the record was created, and originator.

(ii) Category II is event-related and includes the circumstances that resulted in the record being created or the date and circumstances surrounding the event the record covers.

(3) Generally, a record is not reasonably described unless the description contains sufficient Category I information to permit the conduct of an organized, non-random search based on the DoD Component's filing arrangements and existing retrieval systems, or unless the record contains sufficient Category II information to permit inference of the Category I elements needed to conduct such a search.

(4) The following guidelines deal with requests for personal records: Ordinarily, when personal identifiers are provided only in connection with a request of records concerning the requester, only records in a Privacy Act system of records that can be retrieved by personal identifiers need be searched. However, if a DoD Component has reason to believe that records on the requester may exist in a recorded system other than a Privacy Act system, the DoD Component shall search that system under the provisions of the FOIA. In either case, DoD Components may request a reasonable description of the records desired before searching for such records under the provisions of the FOIA and the Privacy Act. If the record is required to be released under the FOIA, 5 U.S.C. 552a does not bar its disclosure. See paragraph (m) of this section for the relationship between the FOIA and the Privacy Act.

(5) The previous guidelines notwithstanding, the decision of the DoD Component concerning reasonableness of description must be based on knowledge of its files. If the description enables DoD Component personnel to locate the record with reasonable effort, the description is adequate. The fact that a FOIA request is broad or burdensome in its magnitude does not, in and of itself, entitle a DoD Component to deny the request on the ground that it does not reasonably describe the records sought. The key factor is the ability of the DoD Component’s staff to reasonably ascertain and locate which records are being requested.

(i) Referrals. (1) The DoD FOIA referral policy is based upon the concept of the originator of a record making a release determination on its information. If a DoD Component receives a request for records originated by another DoD Component, it shall contact the DoD Component to determine if it also received the request, and if not, obtain concurrence from the other DoD Component to refer the request. In either situation, the requester shall be advised of the action taken, unless exempt information would be revealed. While referrals to originators of information result in obtaining the best possible decision on release of the information, the policy does not relieve DoD Components from the responsibility of making a release determination on a record. Should the requester object to referral of the request and the record, DoD Components shall still coordinate with the originator of the information prior to making a release determination. A request received by a DoD Component having no records responsive to a request shall be referred routinely to another DoD Component, if the other DoD Component has reason to believe it has the requested record. Prior to notifying a requester of a referral, the DoD Component receiving the initial request shall consult with the other DoD Component to determine if that DoD Component’s association with the material is exempt. If the association is exempt, the DoD Component receiving the initial request will protect the association and any exempt information without revealing the identity of the protected DoD Component. The protected DoD Component shall be responsible for submitting the justifications required in any litigation. Any DoD Component receiving a request that has been misaddressed shall refer the request to the proper address and advise the requester. DoD Components making referrals of requests or records shall include with the referral, a point of contact by name, a telephone number, and an e-mail address.

(2) A DoD Component shall refer for response directly to the requester, a FOIA request for a record that it holds to another DoD Component or agency outside the DoD, if the record originated in the other DoD Component or outside agency. Whenever a record or a portion of a record is referred to another DoD Component or to a Government Agency outside of the DoD for a release determination and direct response, the requester shall be informed of the referral, unless it has been determined that notification would reveal exempt information. Referred records shall only be identified to the extent consistent with security requirements.

(3) A DoD Component may refer a request for a record that originated to another DoD Component or agency when the other DoD Component or agency has a valid interest in the record, or the record was created for the use of the other DoD Component or agency. In such situations, provide the record and a release recommendation on the record with the referral action. An example of such a situation is a request for audit reports prepared by the Defense Contract Audit Agency. These advisory reports are prepared for the use of contracting officers and their release to the audited contractor shall be at the discretion of the contracting officer. A FOIA request shall be referred to the appropriate DoD Component and the requester shall be notified of the referral, unless exempt information would be revealed. Another example is a record originated by a DoD Component or agency that involves foreign relations, and could affect a DoD Component or organization in a host foreign country. Such a request and any responsive records may be referred to the affected DoD Component or organization for consultation prior to a final release determination within the Department of Defense. See also §286.22(e).

(4) Within the Department of Defense, a DoD Component shall ordinarily refer a FOIA request and a copy of the record it holds, but that was originated by another DoD Component or that contains substantial information obtained from another DoD Component, to the Component for direct response, after direct coordination and obtaining concurrence from the Component. The requester then shall be notified of such referral. DoD Components shall not, in any case, release or deny such records without prior consultation with the other DoD Component, except as provided in §286.22(e).

(5) DoD Components that receive referred requests shall answer them in accordance with the time limits established by the FOIA, this part, and their multitrack processing queues, based upon the date of initial receipt of the request at the referring component or agency.

(6) Agencies outside the Department of Defense that are subject to the FOIA.

(i) A DoD Component may refer a FOIA request for any record that originated in an agency outside the Department of Defense or that is based on information obtained from an outside agency to the agency for direct response to the requester after coordination with the outside agency, if that agency is subject to FOIA. Otherwise, the DoD Component must respond to the request.

(ii) A DoD Component shall refer to the agency that provided the record any FOIA request for investigative, intelligence, or any other type of records that are on loan to the Department of Defense for a specific purpose, if the records are restricted from further release and so marked. However, if for investigative or intelligence purposes, the outside agency desires anonymity, a DoD Component may only respond directly to the requester after coordination with the outside agency.

(7) DoD Components that receive requests for records of the National Security Council (NSC), the White House, or the White House Military Office (WHMO) shall process the requests. DoD records in which the NSC or White House has a concurrent reviewing interest, and NSC, White House, or WHMO records discovered in DoD Components’ file shall be forwarded to the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs) (OASD(PA)), Attn: Directorate For Freedom of Information and Security Review (DFOISR). The DFOISR shall coordinate with the NSC, White House, or WHMO and return the records to the originating agency after coordination.

(8) To the extent referrals are consistent with the policies expressed by this paragraph (i) referrals between offices of the same DoD Component are authorized.

(9) On occasion, the Department of Defense receives FOIA requests for General Accounting Office (GAO) records containing DoD information. Even though the GAO is outside the Executive Branch, and not subject to the FOIA, all FOIA requests for GAO documents containing DoD information received either from the public, or on referral from the GAO, shall be processed under the provisions of the FOIA.

(j) Authentication. Records provided under this part shall be authenticated with an appropriate seal, whenever necessary, to fulfill an official Government or other legal function. This service, however, is in addition to that required under the FOIA and is not included in the FOIA fee schedule. DoD Components may charge for the service at a rate of $5.20 for each authentication.

(k) Combatant Commands. (1) The Combatant Commands are placed under the jurisdiction of the OSD, instead of the administering Military Department or the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, only for the purpose of administering the DoD FOIA Program. This policy represents an exception to the policies directed in DoD Directive 5100.3,3 it authorizes and requires the Combatant Commands to process FOIA requests in accordance with DoD Directive 5400.7 and this part. The Combatant Commands shall forward directly to the OASD(PA) all correspondence associated with the appeal of an initial denial for records under the provisions of the FOIA. Procedures to effect this administrative requirement are outlined in appendix A to this part.

(2) Combatant Commands shall maintain an electronic reading room for FOIA-processed 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(2)(D) records in accordance with subpart B of this part. Records qualifying for this means of public access also shall be maintained in hard copy for public access at Combatant Commands' respective locations.

(l) Records management. FOIA records shall be maintained and disposed of in accordance with the National Archives and Records Administration General Records Schedule, and DoD Component records schedules.

(m) Relationship between the FOIA and the Privacy Act (PA). Not all requesters are knowledgeable of the appropriate statutory authority to cite when requesting records. In some instances, they may cite neither Act, but will imply one or both Acts. For these reasons, the following guidelines are provided to ensure that requesters receive the greatest amount of access rights under both Acts:

(1) If the record is required to be released under the FOIA, the Privacy Act does not bear its disclosure. Unlike the FOIA, the Privacy Act applies only to U.S. citizens and aliens admitted for permanent residence.

(2) Requesters who seek records about themselves contained in a Privacy Act system of records and who cite or imply only the Privacy Act, will have their requests processed under the provisions of both the Privacy Act and the FOIA. If the Privacy Act system of records is exempt from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1), the requester shall be so advised with the appropriate Privacy Act exemption, and then further advised that the information was therefore reviewed for release under the FOIA.

(3) Requesters who seek records about themselves that are not contained in a Privacy Act system of records and who cite or imply the Privacy Act will have their requests processed under the provisions of both the Privacy Act and the FOIA. If the Privacy Act system of records is exempt from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1) the requester shall be so advised with the appropriate Privacy Act exemption, and then further advised that the information was therefore reviewed for release under the FOIA.

(4) Requesters who seek access to agency records that are not part of a Privacy Act system of records, who cite or imply the Privacy Act and FOIA, will have their requests processed under the FOIA since the Privacy Act does not apply to these records.

(5) Requesters who seek access to agency records that are not part of a Privacy Act system of records, who cite or imply the Privacy Act and FOIA, will have their requests processed under the FOIA since the Privacy Act does not apply to these records.

(6) Requesters who seek access to agency records and who cite or simply the FOIA will have their requests processed under the FOIA.

(7) Requesters shall be advised in final response which Act was used.

(n) Non-responsive information in responsive records. DoD Components shall interpret FOIA requests liberally when determining which records are responsive to the requests, and may release non-responsive information. However, should DoD Components desire to withhold non-responsive information, the following steps shall be accomplished.

(1) Consult with the requester, and ask if the requester views the information as responsive, and if not, seek the requester's concurrence to deletion of non-responsive information without a FOIA exemption. Reflect this concurrence in the response letter.

(2) If the responsive record is "unclassified," and the requester does not agree to deletion of non-responsive information without a FOIA exemption, release all non-responsive and responsive information which is not exempt. For non-responsive information that is exempt, notify the requester that even if the information were determined responsive, it would likely be exempt under (state appropriate exemption(s)). Advise the requester of the right to request this information under a separate FOIA request. The separate request shall be placed in the same location within the processing queue as the original request.

(3) If the responsive record is "classified," and the requester does not agree to deletion of non-responsive information without a FOIA exemption, release all unclassified responsive and non-responsive information which is § 286.7 Requirements.

(a) Reading room. Each DoD Component shall provide an appropriate facility or facilities where the public may inspect and copy or have copied the records described in paragraph (b) of this section and § 286.8(a). In addition to the records described in paragraph (b) of this section and § 286.8(a), DoD Components may elect to place other records in their reading room, and also make them electronically available to the public. DoD Components may share reading room facilities if the public is not unduly inconvenienced, and also may establish decentralized reading rooms. When appropriate, the cost of copying may be imposed on the person requesting the material in accordance with the provisions of subpart F of this part.

(b) Record availability. The FOIA requires that records described in 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(2)(A), (B), (C), and (D) created on or after November 1, 1996, shall be made available electronically by November 1, 1997, as well as in hard copy in the FOIA reading room for inspection and copying, unless such records are published and copies are offered for sale. Personal privacy information, that if disclosed to a third party requester, would result in an invasion of the first party’s personal privacy, and contractor submitted information, that if disclosed to a competing contractor, would result in competitive harm to the submitting contractor shall be deleted from all 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(2) records made available to the general public. In every case, justification for the deletion must be fully explained in writing, and the extent of such deletion shall be indicated on the record where the deletion was made. If technically feasible, the extent of deletion in electronic records or any other form of record shall be indicated at the place in the record where the deletion was made. However, a DoD Component may publish in the Federal Register a description of the basis upon which it will delete identifying details of particular types of records to avoid clearly unwarranted invasions of privacy, or competitive harm to business submitters. In appropriate cases, the DoD Component may refer to this description rather than write a separate justification for each deletion. 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(2)(A), (B), (C), and (D) records are:

(1) (a)(2)(A) records. Final opinions, including concurring and dissenting opinions, and orders made in the adjudication of cases, as defined in 5 U.S.C. 552, that may be cited, used, or relied upon as precedents in future adjudications.

(2) (a)(2)(B) records. Statements of policy and interpretations that have been adopted by the agency and are not published in the Federal Register.
Office of the Secretary of Defense  § 286.8

(3) (a)(2)(C) records. Administrative staff manuals and instructions, or portions thereof, that establish DoD policy or interpretations of policy that affect a member of the public. This provision does not apply to instructions for employees on tactics and techniques to be used in performing their duties, or to instructions relating only to the internal management of the DoD Component. Examples of manuals and instructions not normally made available are:

(i) Those issued for audit, investigation, and inspection purposes, or those that prescribe operational tactics, standards of performance, or criteria for defense, prosecution, or settlement of cases.

(ii) Operations and maintenance manuals and technical information concerning munitions, equipment, systems, and intelligence activities.

(4) (a)(2)(D) records. Those 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(3) records, which because of the nature of the subject matter, have become or are likely to become the subject of subsequent requests for substantially the same records. These records are referred to as “FOIA-processed (a)(2) records.”

(i) DoD Components shall decide on a case by case basis whether records fall into this category, based on the following factors:

(A) Previous experience of the DoD Component with similar records.

(B) Particular circumstances of the records involved, including their nature and the type of information contained in them.

(C) The identity and number of requesters and whether there is widespread press, historic, or commercial interest in the records.

(ii) This provision is intended for situations where public access in a timely manner is important, and it is not intended to apply where there may be a limited number of requests over a short period of time from a few requesters. DoD Components may remove the records from this access medium when the appropriate officials determine that access is no longer necessary.

(iii) Should a requester submit a FOIA request for FOIA-processed (a)(2) records, and insist that the request be processed, DoD Components shall process the FOIA request. However, DoD Components have no obligation to process a FOIA request for 5 U.S.C. 552 (a)(2) (A), (B), and (C) records because these records are required to be made public and not FOIA-processed under paragraph (a)(3) of the FOIA.

(iv) DoD Components have no obligation to provide electronic or hard copy reading room access to any (a)(2) record (inclusive of FOIA-processed (a)(2) records) originating outside their respective organizations.

§ 286.8 Indexes.

(a) “(a)(2)” Materials. (1) Each DoD Component shall maintain in each facility prescribed in §286.7(a), an index of materials described in §286.7(b), that are issued, adopted, or promulgated, after July 4, 1967. No “(a)(2)” materials issued, promulgated, or adopted after July 4, 1967, that are not indexed and either made available or published may be relied upon, used or cited as precedent against any individual unless such individual has actual and timely notice of the contents of such materials. Such materials issued, promulgated, or adopted before July 4, 1967, need not be indexed, but must be made available upon request if not exempted under this part.

(2) Each DoD Component shall promptly published quarterly or more frequently, and distribute, by sale or otherwise, copies of each index of “(a)(2)” materials or supplements thereto unless it publishes in the FEDERAL REGISTER an order containing a determination that publication is unnecessary and impracticable. A copy of each index or supplement not published shall be provided to a requester at a cost not to exceed the direct cost of duplication as set forth in subpart F of this part.

(3) Each index of “(a)(2)” materials or supplement thereto shall be arranged topical or by descriptive words rather than by case name or numbering system so that members of the public can readily locate material. Case name and numbering arrangements, however, may also be included for DoD Components convenience.

(4) A general index of FOIA-processed (a)(2) records referred to in §286.7(b)(4), shall be made available to the public, both in hard copy and electronically by December 31, 1999.

(b) Other materials. (1) Any available index of DoD Component material published in the Federal Register, such as material required to be published by Section 552(a)(1) of the FOIA, shall be made available in DoD Component FOIA reading rooms, and electronically to the public.

(2) Although not required to be made available in response to FOIA requests or made available in FOIA Reading Rooms, “(a)(1)” materials shall, when feasible, be made available to the public in FOIA reading rooms for inspection and copying, and by electronic means. Examples of “(a)(1)” materials are: descriptions of any agency’s central and field organization, and to the extent that they affect the public, rules of procedures, descriptions of forms available, instruction as to the scope and contents of papers, reports, or examinations, and any amendment, revision, or report of the aforementioned.

Subpart C—Exemptions
§ 286.11 General provisions.
Records that meet the exemption criteria of the FOIA may be withheld from public disclosure and need not be published in the Federal Register, made available in a library reading room, or provided in response to a FOIA request.

§ 286.12 Exemptions.
FOIA exemptions. The following types of records may be withheld in whole or in part from public disclosure under the FOIA, unless otherwise prescribed by law: (A) A discretionary release of a record (see also §286.4(e)) to one requester shall prevent the withholding of the same record under a FOIA exemption if the record is subsequently requested by someone else. However, a FOIA exemption may be invoked to withhold information that is similar or related that has been the subject of a discretionary release. In applying exemptions, the identity of the requester and the purpose for which the record is sought are irrelevant with the exception that an exemption may not be invoked where the particular interest to be protected is the requester’s interest.

(a) Number 1 (5 U.S.C. 552(b)(1)). Those properly and currently classified in the interest of national defense or foreign policy, as specifically authorized under the criteria established by Executive Order and implemented by regulations, such as DoD 5200.1-R. Although material is not classified at the time of the FOIA request, a classification review may be undertaken to determine whether the information should be classified. The procedures in DoD 5200.1-R apply. If the information qualifies as exemption 1 information, there is no discretion regarding its release. In addition, this exemption shall be invoked with the following situations are apparent:

(1) The fact of the existence or nonexistence of a record would itself reveal classified information. In this situation, Components shall neither confirm nor deny the existence or nonexistence of the record being requested. A “refusal to confirm or deny” response must be used consistently, not only when a record exists, but also when a record does not exist. Otherwise, the pattern of using a “no record” response when a record does not exist, and a “refusal to confirm or deny” when a record does exist will itself disclose national security information.

(2) Compilations of items of information that are individually unclassified may be classified if the compiled information reveals additional association or relationship that meets the standard for classification under existing executive order for classification and DoD 5200.1-R, and is not otherwise revealed in the individual items of information.

(b) Number 2 (5 U.S.C. 552(b)(2)). Those related solely to the internal personnel rules and practice of the Department of Defense or any of its Components. This exemption is entirely discretionary. This exemption has two profiles, high (b)(2) and low (b)(2). Paragraph (b)(2) of this section contains a brief discussion on the low (b)(2) profile; however, that discussion is for information purposes.

4See footnote 1 to §286.1(a).
only. When only a minimum Government interest would be affected (administrative burden), there is a great potential for discretionary disclosure of the information. Consequently, DoD Components shall not invoke the low (b)(2) profile.

(1) Records qualifying under high (b)(2) are those containing or constituting statutes, rules, regulations, orders, manuals, directives, instructions, and security classification guides the release of which would allow circumvention of these records thereby substantially hindering the effective performance of a significant function of the Department of Defense. Examples include:

(i) Those operating rules, guidelines, and manuals for DoD investigators, inspectors, auditors, or examiners that must remain privileged in order for the DoD Component to fulfill a legal requirement.

(ii) Personnel and other administrative matters, such as examination questions and answers used in training courses or in the determination of the qualifications of candidates for employment, entrance on duty, advancement, or promotion.

(iii) Computer software, the release of which would allow circumvention of a statute or DoD rules, regulations, orders, manuals, directives, or instructions. In this situation, the use of the software must be closely examined to ensure a circumvention possibility exists.

(2) Records qualifying under the low (b)(2) profile are those that are trivial and housekeeping in nature for which there is not legitimate public interest or benefit to be gained by release, and it would constitute an administrative burden to process the request in order to disclose the records. Examples include rules of personnel’s use of parking facilities or regulation of lunch hours, statements of policy as to sick leave, and administrative data such as file numbers, mail routing stamps, initials, data processing notations, brief references to previous communications, and other like administrative markings. DoD Components shall not invoke the low (b)(2) profile.

(c) Number 3 (5 U.S.C. 552(b)(3)). Those concerning matters that a statute specifically exempts from disclosure by terms that permit no discretion on the issue, or in accordance with criteria established by that statute for withholding or referring to particular types of matters to be withheld. The Directorate for Freedom of Information and Security Review, Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs maintains a list of (b)(3) statutes used within the Department of Defense, and provides updated lists of these statutes to DoD Components on a periodic basis. A few examples of such statutes are:

(1) Patent Secrecy, 35 U.S.C. 181-188. Any records containing information relating to inventions that are the subject of patent applications on which Patent Secrecy Orders have been issued.

(2) Restricted Data and Formerly Restricted Data, 42 U.S.C. 2162.

(3) Communication Intelligence, 18 U.S.C. 798.

(6) Physical Protection of Special Nuclear Material: Limitation on Dissemination of Unclassified Information, 10 U.S.C. 128.

(7) Protection of Intelligence Sources and Methods, 50 U.S.C. 403-3(c)(5).

(8) Protection of Contractor Submitted Proposals, 10 U.S.C. 2305(g).

(9) Procurement Integrity, 41 U.S.C. 423.

(d) Number 4 (5 U.S.C. 552(b)(4)). Those containing trade secrets or commercial or financial information that a DoD Component receives from a person or organization outside the Government with the understanding that the information or record will be retained on a privileged or confidential basis in accordance with the customary handling of such records. Records within the exemption must contain trade secrets, or commercial or financial records, the disclosure of which is likely to cause substantial harm to the competitive position of the source providing the information; impair the Government’s ability to obtain necessary information in the future; or impair some other legitimate Government interest. Commercial or financial information submitted on a voluntary basis, absent any exercised authority prescribing criteria for submission is protected without any requirement to show competitive harm (see paragraph (d)(8) of this section). If the information qualifies as exemption 4 information, there is no discretion in its release. Examples include:

1. Commercial or financial information received in confidence in connection with loans, bids, contracts, or proposals set forth in or incorporated by reference in a contract entered into between the DoD Component and the offeror that submitted the proposal, as well as other information received in confidence or privileged, such as trade secrets, inventions, discoveries, or other proprietary data. See also §286.23(h)(2). Additionally, when the provisions of 10 U.S.C. 2305(g) and 41 U.S.C. 423 are met, certain proprietary and source selection information may be withheld under exemption 3.

2. Statistical data and commercial or financial information concerning contract performance, income, profits, losses, and expenditures, if offered and received in confidence from a contractor or potential contractor.

3. Personal statements given in the course of inspections, investigations, or—audits, when such statements are received in confidence from the individual and retained in confidence because they reveal trade secrets or commercial or financial information normally considered confidential or privileged.

4. Financial data provided in confidence by private employers in connection with locality wage surveys that are used to fix and adjust pay schedules applicable to the prevailing wage rate of employees within the Department of Defense.

5. Scientific and manufacturing processes or developments concerning technical or scientific data or other information submitted with an application for a research grant, or with a report while research is in progress.

6. Technical or scientific data developed by a contractor or subcontractor exclusively at private expense, and technical or scientific data developed in part with Federal funds and in part at private expense, wherein the contractor or subcontractor has retained legitimate proprietary interests in such data in accordance with 10 U.S.C. 2320-2321 and DoD Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement (DFARS), chapter 2 of 48 CFR, subpart 227.71-227.72. Technical data developed exclusively with Federal funds may be withheld under Exemption Number 3 if it meets the criteria of 10 U.S.C. 130 and DoD Directive 5201.25 (see paragraph (c)(5) of this section).

7. Computer software which is copyrighted under the Copyright Act of 1976 (17 U.S.C. 106), the disclosure of which would have an adverse impact on the potential market value of a copyrighted work.

8. Proprietary information submitted strictly on a voluntary basis, absent any exercised authority prescribing criteria for submission. Examples of exercised authorities prescribing criteria for submission are statutes, Executive Orders, regulations, invitations for bids, requests for proposals, and contracts. Submission of information under these authorities is not voluntary. (See also §286.23(h)(3))

(e) Number 5 (5 U.S.C. 552 (b)(5)). Those containing information considered privileged in litigation, primarily under the deliberative process privilege. Except as provided in paragraphs (e)(2) through (e)(5) of this section internal advice, recommendations, and subjective evaluations, as contrasted with factual matters, that are reflected in deliberative records pertaining to the decision-making process of an agency, whether within or among agencies (as defined in 5 U.S.C. 552(e)), or within or among DoD Components. In order to meet the test of this exemption, the record must be both deliberative in nature, as well as part of a decision-making process. Merely being an internal record in insufficient basis for withholding under this exemption. Also potentially exempted are records pertaining to the attorney-client privilege and the attorney work-product privilege. This exemption is entirely discretionary.
Office of the Secretary of Defense § 286.12

(1) Examples of the deliberative process include:

(i) The non factual portions of staff papers, to include after-action reports, lessons learned, and situation reports containing staff evaluations, advice, opinions, or suggestions.

(ii) Advice, suggestions, or evaluations prepared on behalf of the Department of Defense by individual consultants or by boards, committees, councils, groups, panels, conferences, commissions, task forces, or other similar groups that are formed for the purpose of obtaining advice and recommendations.

(iii) Those non factual portions of evaluations by DoD Component personnel of contractors and their products.

(iv) Information of a speculative, tentative, or evaluative nature or such matters as proposed plans to procure, lease or otherwise acquire and dispose of materials, real estate, facilities or functions, when such information would provide undue or unfair competitive advantage to private personal interests or would impede legitimate government functions.

(v) Trade secret or other confidential research development, or commercial information owned by the Government, where premature release is likely to affect the Government's negotiating position or other commercial interest.

(vi) Records that are exchanged among agency personnel and within and among DoD Components or Agencies as part of the preparation for anticipated administrative proceeding by an Agency or litigation before any Federal, State, or military court, as well as records that quality for the attorney-client privilege.

(vii) Those portions of official reports of inspection, reports of the Inspector General, audits, investigations, or surveys pertaining to safety, security, or the internal management, administration, or operation of one or more DoD Components, when these records have traditionally been treated by the courts as privileged against disclosure in litigation.

(viii) Planning, programming, and budgetary information that is involved in the defense planning and resource allocation process.

(2) If any such intra- or inter-agency record or reasonably segregable portion of such record hypothetically would be made available routinely through the discovery process in the course of litigation with the Agency, then it should not be withheld under the FOIA. If, however, the information hypothetically would not be released at all, or would only be released in a particular case during civil discovery where a party's particularized showing of need might override a privilege, then the record may be withheld. Discovery is the formal process by which litigants obtain information from each other for use in the litigation. Consult with legal counsel to determine whether exemption 5 material would be routinely made available through the discovery process.

(3) Intra- or inter-agency memoranda or letters that are factual, or those reasonably segregable portions that are factual, are routinely made available through discovery, and shall be made available to a requester, unless the factual material is otherwise exempt from release, inextricably intertwined with the exemption information, so fragmented as to be uninformative, or so redundant of information already available to the requester as to provide no new substantive information.

(4) A direction or order from a superior to a subordinate, though contained in an internal communication, generally cannot be withheld from a requester if it constitutes policy guidance or a decision, as distinguished from a discussion of preliminary matters or a request for information or advice that would compromise the decision-making process.

(5) An internal communication concerning a decision that subsequently has been made a matter of public record must be made available to a requester when the rationale for the decision is expressly adopted or incorporated by reference in the record containing the decision.

(f) Number 6 (5 U.S.C. 552(b)(6)). Information in personnel and medical files, as well as similar personal information in other files, that, if disclosed to a requester, other than the person about whom the information is about, would result in a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Release of information about an individual contained in a Privacy Act System of records that would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of privacy is prohibited, and could subject the releaser to civil and criminal penalties. If the information qualifies as exemption 6 information, there is no discretion in its release.

(1) Examples of other files containing personal information similar to that contained in personnel and medical files include:

(i) Those compiled to evaluate or adjudicate the suitability of candidates for civilian employment or membership in the Armed Forces, and the eligibility of individuals (civilian, military, or contractor employees) for security clearances, or for access to particularly sensitive classified information.

(ii) Files containing reports, records, and other material pertaining to personnel matters in which administrative action, including disciplinary action, may be taken.

(2) Home addresses are normally not releasable without the consent of the individuals concerned. This includes lists of home addresses and military quarters' addresses without the occupant's name. In addition, DoD military and civilian personnel's names and duty addresses who are assigned to units that are sensitive, routinely deployable, or stationed in foreign territories can constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

(i) Privacy Interest. A privacy interest may exist in personal information even though the information has been disclosed at some place and time. If personal information is not freely available from sources other than the Federal Government, a privacy interest exists in its nondisclosure. The fact that the Federal Government expended funds to prepare, index and maintain records on personal information, and the fact that a requester invokes FOIA to obtain these records indicates the information is not freely available.

(ii) Names and duty addresses published in telephone directories, organizational charts, rosters and similar materials for personnel assigned to units that are sensitive, routinely deployable, or stationed in foreign territories are withholdable under this exemption.

(3) This exemption shall not be used in an attempt to protect the privacy of a deceased person, but it may be used to protect the privacy of the deceased person's family if disclosure would rekindle grief, anguish, pain, embarrassment, or even disruption of peace of mind of surviving family members. In such situations, balance the surviving family members' privacy against the public's right to know to determine if disclosure is in the public interest. Additionally, the deceased's Social Security number should be withheld since it is used by the next of kin to receive benefits. Disclosures may be made to the immediate next of kin as defined in DoD Directive 5154.246.

(4) When the subject of an investigative report is the requester of the record and the record is contained in a Privacy Act system of records, it may only be denied to the requester if withholding is both authorized by DoD 5400.11-R 7, and by exemption 6 of the FOIA.

(5) A clearly unwarranted invasion of the privacy of third parties identified in a personnel, medical or similar record constitutes a basis for deleting those reasonably segregable portions of that record. When withholding third party personal information from the subject of the record and the record is contained in a Privacy Act system of records, consult with legal counsel.

(6) This exemption also applies when the fact of the existence or nonexistence of a responsive record would itself reveal personally private information, and the public interest in disclosure is not sufficient to outweigh the privacy interest. In this situation, DoD Components shall neither confirm nor deny the existence or nonexistence of the record being requested. This is a Glomar response, and exemption 6 must be cited in the response. Additionally, in order to insure personal privacy is not violated during referrals, DoD Components shall coordinate with other DoD Components or Federal agencies.
Agencies before referring a record that is exempt under the Glomar concept.

(i) A “refusal to confirm or deny” response must be used consistently, not only when a record exists, but also when a record does not exist. Otherwise, the pattern of using a “no records” response when a record does not exist and a “refusal to confirm or deny” when a record does exist will itself disclose personally private information.

(ii) Refusal to confirm or deny should not be used when:

(A) The person whose personal privacy is in jeopardy has provided the requester a waiver of his or her privacy rights;

(B) The person initiated or directly participated in an investigation that lead to the creation of an agency record seeks access to that record; or

(C) the person whose personal privacy is in jeopardy is deceased, the Agency is aware of that fact, and disclosure would not invade the privacy of the deceased’s family. See paragraph (f)(3) of this section.

(g) Number 7 (5 U.S.C. 552(b)(7)). Records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes; i.e., civil, criminal, or military law, including the implementation of Executive Orders or regulations issued pursuant to law. This exemption may be invoked to prevent disclosure of documents not originally created for, but later gathered for law enforcement purposes. With the exception of parts (C) and (F) (see paragraph (g)(1)(iii) of this section) exemption 7 of the FOIA, this exemption is discretionary. If information qualifies as exemption (7)(C) or (7)(F) of the FOIA (see paragraph (g)(1)(iii) of this section) information, there is no discretion in its release.

(i) This exemption applies, however, only to the extent that production of such law enforcement records or information could result in the following:

(A) This exemption also applies when the fact of the existence or nonexistence of a responsive record would itself reveal personally private information, and the public interest in disclosure is not sufficient to outweigh the privacy interest. In this situation, Components shall neither confirm nor deny the existence or nonexistence of the record being requested. This is a Glomar response, and exemption (7)(C) must be cited in the response. Additionally, in order to insure personal privacy is not violated during referrals, DoD Components shall coordinate with other DoD Components or Federal Agencies before referring a record that is exempt under the Glomar concept.

(B) A “refusal to confirm or deny” response must be used consistently, not only when a record exists, but also when a record does not exist. Otherwise, the pattern of using a “no records” response when a record does not exist and a “refusal to confirm or deny” when a record does exist will itself disclose personally private information.

(C) Refusal to confirm or deny should not be used when:

(1) The person whose personal privacy is in jeopardy has provided the requester with a waiver of his or her privacy rights; or

(2) The person whose personal privacy is in jeopardy is deceased, and the Agency is aware of that fact.

(iv) Could reasonably be expected to disclose the identity of a confidential source, including a source within the Department of Defense; a State, local, or foreign agency or authority; or any private institution that furnishes the information on a confidential basis; and could disclose information furnished from a confidential source and obtained by a criminal law enforcement authority in a criminal investigation or by an agency conducting a lawful national security intelligence investigation (5 U.S.C. 552(b)(7)(D)).

(v) Would disclose techniques and procedures for law enforcement investigations or prosecutions, or would disclose guidelines for law enforcement investigations or prosecutions if such Disclosure could reasonably be expected to risk circumvention of the law (5 U.S.C. 552(b)(7)(E)).

(vi) Could reasonably be expected to endanger the life or physical safety of any individual (5 U.S.C. 552(b)(7)(F)).

(2) Some examples of exemption 7 are:

(i) Statements of witnesses and other material developed during the course of the investigation and all materials prepared in connection with related Government litigation or adjudicative proceedings.

(ii) The identity of firms or individuals being investigated for alleged irregularities involving contracting with the Department of Defense when no indictment has been obtained nor any civil action filed against them by the United States.

(iii) Information obtained in confidence, expressed or implied, in the course of a criminal investigation by a criminal law enforcement agency or office within a DoD Component, or a lawful national security intelligence investigation conducted by an authorized agency or office within a DoD Component. National security intelligence investigations include background security investigations and those investigations conducted for the purpose of obtaining affirmative or counterintelligence information.

(3) The right of individual litigants to investigative records currently available by law (such as, the Jencks Act, 18 U.S.C. 3500) is not diminished.

(4) When the subject of an investigative report is the requester of the record and the report is contained in a Privacy Act system of records, it may only be denied to the requester if withholding is both authorized by DoD 5400.11R, and by exemption 7 of the FOIA.

(5) Exclusions. Excluded from the exemption in this paragraph (g), are the following two situations applicable to the Department of Defense (Components considering invoking an exclusion should first consult with the Department of Justice, Office of Information and Privacy):

(i) Whenever a request is made that involves access to records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes, and the investigation or proceeding involves a possible violation of criminal law where there is reason to believe that the subject of the investigation or proceeding is unaware of its pendency, and the disclosure of the existence of the records could reasonably be expected to interfere with enforcement proceedings, Components may, during only such times as that circumstance continues, treat the records or information as not subject to the FOIA. In such situation, the response to the requester will state that no records were found.

(ii) Whenever informant records maintained by a criminal law enforcement organization within a DoD Component under the informant’s name or personal identifier are requested by a third party using the informant’s name or personal identifier, the Component may treat the records as not subject to the FOIA, unless the informant’s status as an informant has been officially confirmed. If it is determined that the records are not subject to 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(7), the response to the requester will state that no records were found.

(h) Number 8 (5 U.S.C. 552(b)(8)). Those contained in or related to examination, operation or condition reports prepared by, on behalf of, or for the use of any agency responsible for the regulation or supervision of financial institutions.

(i) Number 9 (5 U.S.C. 552(b)(9)). Those containing geological and geophysical information and data (including maps) concerning wells.

Subpart D—For Official Use Only

§ 286.15 General provisions.

(a) General. Information that has not been given a security classification pursuant to the criteria of an Executive Order, but which may be withheld from the public for one or more of the reasons cited in FOIA exemptions 2 through 9 (see subpart C of this part) shall be considered as being for official use only. No other material shall be considered or marked “For Official Use Only” (FOUO), and FOUO is not authorized as an anemic form of classification to protect national security interests. Additional information on § 286.17 Dissemination and transmission.

(a) Release and transmission procedures. Until FOUO status is terminated, the release and transmission instructions that follow apply:

(1) FOUO information may be disseminated within DoD Components and between officials of DoD Components and DoD contractors, consultants, and grantees to conduct official business for the Department of Defense. Recipients shall be made aware of the status of such information, and transmission shall be by means that preclude unauthorized public disclosure. Transmittal documents shall call attention to the presence of FOUO attachments.

(2) DoD holders of FOUO information are authorized to convey such information to officials in other Departments and Agencies of the Executive and Judicial Branches to fulfill a government function, except to the extent prohibited by the Privacy Act. Records thus transmitted shall be marked "For Official Use Only," and the recipient shall be advised that the information may qualify for exemption from public disclosure, pursuant to the FOIA, and the appropriate classification level, as well as unclassified or FOUO, as appropriate.

(3) Within a classified document, an individual page that contains FOUO information but no classified information shall be marked "For Official Use Only" at the top and bottom of the page.

(4) Other records, such as photographs, films, tapes, or slides, shall be marked "For Official Use Only" or "FOUO" in a manner that ensures that a recipient or viewer is aware of the status of the information therein.

(b) FOUO material transmitted outside the Department of Defense requires application of an expanded marking to explain the significance of the FOUO marking. This may be accomplished by typing or stamping the following statement on the record prior to transfer:

§ 286.16 Markings.

(a) Location of markings:

(1) An unclassified document containing FOUO information shall be marked "For Official Use Only" at the bottom on the outside of the front cover (if any), on each page containing FOUO information, and on the outside of the back cover (if any).

(b) Within a classified document, an individual page that contains both FOUO and classified information shall be marked at the top and bottom with the highest security classification of information appearing on the page. Individual paragraphs shall be marked at the appropriate classification level, as well as unclassified or FOUO, as appropriate.

(c) Within a classified document, an individual page that contains FOUO information but no classified information shall be marked "For Official Use Only" at the top and bottom of the page.

(d) Other records, such as photographs, films, tapes, or slides, shall be marked "For Official Use Only" or "FOUO" in a manner that ensures that a recipient or viewer is aware of the status of the information therein.

(e) FOUO material transmitted outside the Department of Defense requires application of an expanded marking to explain the significance of the FOUO marking. This may be accomplished by typing or stamping the following statement on the record prior to transfer:

This document contains information EXEMPT FROM MANDATORY DISCLOSURE under the FOIA. Exemption(s) . . . . . . applies/apply.
§ 286.18 Safeguarding FOUO information.

(a) During duty hours. During normal working hours, records determined to be FOUO shall be placed in an out-of-sight location if the work area is accessible to non-government personnel.

(b) During nonduty hours. At the close of business, FOUO records shall be stored so as to prevent unauthorized access. Filing such material with other unclassified records in unlocked files or desks, etc., is adequate when normal U.S. Government or Government-contractor internal building security is provided during nonduty hours. When such internal security control is not exercised, locked buildings or rooms normally provide adequate after-hours protection. If such protection is not considered adequate, FOUO material shall be stored in locked receptacles such as file cabinets, desks, or bookcases. FOUO records that are subject to the provisions of 50 U.S.C. 402 note shall meet the safeguards outlined for that group of records.

§ 286.19 Termination, disposal and unauthorized disclosure.

(a) Termination. The originator or other competent authority, e.g., initial denial and appellate authorities, shall terminate “For Official Use Only” markings or status when circumstances indicate that the information no longer requires protection from public disclosure. When FOUO status is terminated, all known holders shall be notified, to the extent practical. Upon notification, holders shall efface or remove the “For Official Use Only” markings, but records in file or storage need not be retrieved solely for that purpose.

(b) Disposal. (1) Nonrecord copies of FOUO materials may be destroyed by tearing each copy into pieces to prevent reconstructing, and placing them in regular trash containers. When local circumstances or experience indicates that this destruction method is not sufficiently protective of FOUO information, local authorities may direct other methods but must give due consideration to the additional expense balanced against the degree of sensitivity of the type of FOUO information contained in the records.

(2) Record copies of FOUO documents shall be disposed of in accordance with the disposal standards established under 44 U.S.C. 3301-3314, as implemented by DoD Component instructions concerning records disposal.

(c) Unauthorized disclosure. The unauthorized disclosure of FOUO records does not constitute an unauthorized disclosure of DoD information classified for security purposes. Appropriate administrative action shall be taken, however, to fix responsibility for unauthorized disclosure whenever feasible, and appropriate disciplinary action shall be taken against those responsible. Unauthorized disclosure of FOUO information that is protected by the Privacy Act may also result in civil and criminal sanctions against responsible persons. The DoD Component that originated the FOUO information shall be informed of its unauthorized disclosure.

Subpart E—Release and Processing Procedures

§ 286.22 General provisions.

(a) Public information. (1) Since the policy of the Department of Defense is to make the maximum amount of information available to the public consistent with its other responsibilities, written requests for a DoD record made under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(3) of the FOIA may be denied only when:
   (i) Disclosure would result in a foreseeable harm to an interest protected by a FOIA exemption, and the record is subject to one or more of the exemptions of the FOIA.
   (ii) The record has not been described well enough to enable the DoD Component to locate it with a reasonable amount of effort by an employee familiar with the files.
   (iii) The requester has failed to comply with the procedural requirements, including the written agreement to pay or payment of any required fee imposed by the instructions of the DoD Component concerned. When personally identifiable information in a record is requested by the subject of the record or his attorney, notarization of the request, or a statement certifying under the penalty of perjury that their identity is true and correct may be required. Additionally, written consent of the subject of the record is required for disclosure from a Privacy Act System of records, even to the subject’s attorney.
   (b) Requests from government officials. Requests from officials of State or local Governments for DoD Component records shall be considered the same as any other requester. Requests from members of Congress not seeking records on behalf of a Congressional Committee, Subcommittee, either House sitting as a whole, or made on behalf of their constituents shall be considered the same as any other requester. Requests from officials of foreign governments shall be considered the same as any other requester. Requests from officials of foreign governments that do not invoke the FOIA shall be referred to appropriate foreign disclosure channels and the requester so notified.
   (c) Privileged release to U.S. government officials. (1) Records exempt from release to the public under the FOIA may be disclosed in accordance with DoD Component regulations to agencies of the Federal Government, whether legislative, executive, or administrative, as follows:
      (i) In response to a request of a Committee or Subcommittee of Congress, or to either House sitting as a whole in accordance with DoD Directive 5400.4;
      (ii) To other Federal Agencies, both executive and administrative, as determined by the head of a DoD Component or designee;
(iii) In response to an order of a Federal court, DoD Components shall release information along with a description of the restrictions on its release to the public.

(2) DoD Components shall inform officials receiving records under the provisions of this paragraph that those records are exempt from public release under the FOIA. DoD Components also shall advise officials of any special handling instructions. Classified information is subject to the provisions of DoD 5200.1-R, and information contained in Privacy Act systems of records is subject to DoD 5400.11-R.

(e) Consultation with affected DoD component.

(1) When a DoD Component receives a FOIA request for a record in which an affected DoD organization (including a Combatant Command) has a clear and substantial interest in the subject matter, consultation with that affected DoD organization is required. As an example, where a DoD Component receives a request for records related to DoD operations in a foreign country, the cognizant Combatant Command for the area involved in the request shall be consulted before a release is made. Consultations may be telephonic, electronic, or in hard copy.

(2) The affected DoD Component shall review the circumstances of the request for host-nation relations, and provide, where appropriate, FOIA processing assistance to the responding DoD Component regarding release of information. Responding DoD Components shall provide copies of responsive records to the affected DoD Component when requested by the affected DoD Component. The affected DoD Component shall receive a courtesy copy of all releases in such circumstances.

(3) Nothing in paragraphs (e)(1) and (e)(2) of this section shall impede the processing of the FOIA request initially received by a DoD Component.

§ 286.23 Initial determinations.

(a) Initial denial authority.

(1) Components shall limit the number of IDAs appointed. In designating its IDAs, a DoD Component shall balance the goals of centralization of authority to promote uniform decisions and decentralization to facilitate responding to each initial request within the time limitations of the FOIA.

(2) The initial determination whether to make a record available upon request may be made by any suitable official designated by the DoD Component in published regulations. The presence of the marking “For Official Use Only” does not relieve the designated official of the responsibility to review the requested record for the purpose of determining whether an exemption under the FOIA is applicable.

(3) The officials designated by DoD Components to make initial determinations should consult with public affairs officers (PAOs) to become familiar with subject matter that is considered to be newsworthy, and advise PAOs of all requests from news media representatives. In addition, the officials should inform PAOs in advance when they intend to withhold or partially withhold a record, if it appears that the withholding action may be challenged in the media.

(b) Reasons for not releasing a record.

There are seven reasons for not complying with a request for a record under 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(3):

(1) The request is transferred to another DoD Component, or to another Federal Agency.

(2) The DoD Component determines through knowledge of its files and reasonable search efforts that it neither controls nor otherwise possesses the requested record.

(3) A record has not been described with sufficient particularity to enable the DoD Component to locate it by conducting a reasonable search.

(4) The requester has failed unreasonably to comply with procedural requirements, including payment of fees, imposed by this part or DoD Component supplementing regulations.

(5) The request is withdrawn by the requester.

(6) The information requested is not a record within the meaning of the FOIA and this part.

(7) The record is denied in whole or in part in accordance with procedures set forth in the FOIA and this part.

(c) Denial tests. To deny a requested record that is in the possession and control of a DoD Component, it must be determined that disclosure of the record would result in a foreseeable harm to an interest protected by a FOIA exemption, and the record is exempt under one or more of the exemptions of the FOIA. An outline of the FOIA’s exemptions is contained in subpart C of this part.

(d) Reasonably segregable portions. Although portions of some records may be denied, the remaining reasonably segregable portions must be released to the requester when it reasonably can be assumed that a skillful and knowledgeable person could not reconstruct the excised information. Unless indicating the extent of the deletion would harm an interest protected by an exemption, the amount of deleted information shall be indicated on the released portion of paper records by use of brackets or darkened areas indicating removal of information. In no case shall the deleted areas be left “white” without the use of brackets to show the bounds of deleted information. In the case of electronic deletion, or deletion in audiovisual or microfiche records, if technically feasible, the amount of redacted information shall be indicated at the place in the record such deletion was made, unless including the indication would harm an interest protected by the exemption under which the deletion is made. This may be done by use of brackets, shaded areas, or some other identifiable technique that will clearly show the limits of the deleted information. When a record is denied in whole, the response advising the requester of that determination will specifically state that it is not reasonable to segregate portions of the record for release.

(e) Response to requester. (1) Whenever possible, initial determinations to release or deny a record normally shall be made and the decision reported to the requester within 10 working days (20 working days effective October 2, 1997) after receipt of the request by the official designated to respond. When a DoD Component has a significant number of pending requests which prevent a response determination within the 10 working day period (20 working days effective October 2, 1997), the requester shall be so notified in an interim response and advised whether their request qualifies for the fast track or slow track within the DoD Components’ multitrack processing system. Requesters who do not meet the criteria for fast track processing shall be given the opportunity to limit the scope of their request in order to qualify for fast track processing. See also §286.4(d) for greater detail on multitrack processing and compelling need merit ing expedited processing.

(2) When a decision is made to release a record, a copy should be made available promptly to the requester once he has complied with preliminary procedural requirements.

(3) When a request for a record is denied in whole or in part, the official designated to respond shall inform the requester in writing of the name and title or position of the official who made the determination, and shall explain to the requester the basis for the determination in sufficient detail to permit the requester to make a decision concerning appeal. The requester specifically shall be informed by the exemptions on which the denial is based, inclusive of a brief statement describing what the exemption(s) cover. When the initial denial is based in whole or in part on a security classification, the explanation should include a summary of the applicable Executive Order criteria for classification, as well as an explanation, to the extent reasonably feasible, of how those criteria apply to the particular record in question. The requester shall also be advised of the opportunity and procedures for appealing an unfavorable determination to a higher final authority within the DoD Component.

(4) The final response to the requester should contain information concerning the fee status of the request, consistent with the provisions of subpart F of this part.

(5) The explanation of the substantive basis for a denial shall include specific citation of the statutory exemption applied under provisions of this part; e.g., 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(1). Merely referring to classification; to a “For Official Use Only” marking on the requested record; or to this part or a DoD Component’s regulation does not constitute a proper citation or explanation of the basis for invoking an exemption.

(6) When the time for response becomes an issue, the official responsible for replying shall acknowledge to the requester the date of the receipt of the request.

(7) When denying a request for records, in whole or in part, a DoD Component shall make a reasonable effort to estimate the volume of the records denied and provide this estimate to the requester, unless providing such an estimate would harm an interest protected by an exemption of the FOIA. This estimate should be in number of pages or in some other reasonable form of estimation, unless the volume is otherwise indicated through deletions on records disclosed in part.

(8) When denying a request for records in accordance with a statute qualifying as a FOIA exemption 3 statute, DoD Components shall, in addition to stating the particular statute relied upon to deny the information, also state whether a court has upheld the decision to withhold the information under the particular statute, and a concise description of the scope of the information being withheld.

(f) Extension of time. (1) In unusual circumstances, when additional time is needed to respond to the initial request, the DoD Component shall acknowledge the request in writing within the 10 day period (20 days effective October 2, 1997), describe the circumstances requiring the delay, and indicate the anticipated date for a substantive response that may not exceed 10 additional working days, except as provided in paragraphs (f)(2) through (f)(6) of this section.

(2) With respect to a request for which a written notice has extended the time limits by 10 additional working days, and the Component determines that it cannot make a response determination within that additional 10 working day period, the requester shall be notified and provided an opportunity to limit the scope of the request so that it may be processed within the extended time limit, or an opportunity to arrange an alternative time frame for processing the request or a modified request. Refusal by the requester to reasonably modify the request or arrange for an alternative time frame shall be considered a factor in determining whether exceptional circumstances exist with respect to DoD Components’ request backlogs. Exceptional circumstances do not include a delay that results from predictable component backlogs, unless the DoD Component demonstrates reasonable progress in reducing its backlog.

(3) Unusual circumstances that may justify delay are:

(i) The need to search for and collect the requested records from other facilities that are separate from the office determined responsible for a release or denial decision on the requested information.

(ii) The need to search for, collect, and appropriately examine a voluminous amount of separate and distinct records which are requested in a single request.

(iii) The need for consultation, which shall be conducted with all practicable speed, with other agencies having a substantial interest in the determination of the request, or among two or more DoD Components having a substantial subject-matter interest in the request.

(4) DoD Components may aggregate certain requests by the same requester, or by a group of requesters acting in concert, if the DoD Component reasonably believes that such requests actually constitute a single request, which would otherwise satisfy the unusual circumstances set forth above, and the requests involve clearly related matters. Multiple requests involving unrelated matters shall not be aggregated. If the requests are aggregated under these conditions, the requester or requesters shall be so notified.

(5) In cases where the statutory time limits cannot be met and no informal extension of time has been agreed to, the inability to process any part of the request within the specified time should be explained to the requester with a request that he agree to await a substantive response by an anticipated date. It should be made clear that any such agreement does not prejudice the right of the requester to appeal the initial decision after it is made. DoD Components are reminded that the requester still retains the right to treat this delay as a de facto denial with full administrative remedies.

(6) As an alternative to the taking of formal extension of time as described in paragraph (f) of this section, the negotiation by the cognizant FOIA coordinating office of informal extensions in time with requesters is encouraged where appropriate.

(g) Misdirected requests. Misdirected requests shall be forwarded promptly to the DoD Component or other Federal Agency with the responsibility for the records requested. The period allowed for responding to the request misdirected by the requester shall not begin until the request is received by the DoD Component that manages the records requested.

(h) Records of non-U.S. government source. (1) When a request is received for a record that falls under exemption 4 (see subpart C of this part), that was obtained from a non-U.S. Government source, or for a record containing information clearly identified as having been provided by a non-U.S. Government source, the source of the record or information [also known as “the submitter” for matters pertaining to proprietary data under 5 U.S.C. 552, Exemption (b)(4), § 286.12 and E. O. 12600 (3 CFR, 1987 Comp., p. 235), shall be notified promptly of that request and afforded reasonable time (e.g., 30 calendar days) to present any objections concerning the release, unless it is clear that there can be no valid basis for objection. This practice is required for those FOIA requests for data not deemed clearly exempt from disclosure under exemption (b)(4) of 5 U.S.C. 552(a). If, for example, the record or information was provided with actual or presumptive knowledge of the non-U.S. Government source and established that it would be made available to the public upon request, there is no obligation to notify the source. Any objections shall be evaluated. The final decision to disclose information claimed to be exempt under exemption (b)(4) shall be made by an official in an office equal in rank to the official who would make the decision to withhold that information under the FOIA. When a substantial issue has been raised, the DoD Component may seek additional information from the source of the information and afford the source and requester reasonable opportunities to present their arguments on the legal and substantive issues involved prior to making an agency determination. When the source advises it will seek a restraining order or take court action to prevent release of the record or information, the requester shall be notified, and action on the request normally shall not be taken until after the outcome of that court action is known. When the requester brings court action to compel disclosure, the submitter shall be promptly notified of this action.

(2) If the submitted information is a proposal in response to a solicitation for a competitive proposal, and the proposal is in the possession and control of DoD, and meets the requirements of 10 U.S.C. 2305(g), the proposal shall not be disclosed, and no submitter notification and subsequent analysis is required. The proposal shall be withheld from public disclosure pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 2305(g) and exemption (b)(3) of 5 U.S.C. 552. This statute does not apply to bids, unsolicited proposals, or any proposal that is set forth or incorporated by reference in a contract between a DoD Component and the offeror that submitted the proposal. In such situations, normal submitter notice shall be conducted in accordance with paragraph (h)(1) of this section except for sealed bids that are opened and read to the public. The term proposal means information contained in or originating from any proposal, including a technical, management, or cost proposal submitted by an offeror in response to solicitation for a competitive proposal, but does not include an offeror’s name or total price or unit prices when set forth in a record other than the proposal itself. Submitter notice, and analysis as appropriate, are required for exemption (b)(4) matters that are not specifically incorporated in 10 U.S.C. 2305(g).

(3) If the record or information was submitted on a strictly voluntary basis, absent any exercised authority that prescribes criteria for submission, and after consultation with the submitter, it is absolutely clear that the record or information would customarily not be released to the public, the submitter need not be notified. Examples of exercised authorities prescribing criteria for submission are statutes, Executive Orders, regulations, invitations for bids, requests for proposals, and contracts. Records or information submitted under these authorities are not voluntary in nature. When it is not clear whether the information was submitted on a voluntary basis, absent any exercised authority, and whether it would customarily be released to the public by the submitter, notify the submitter and ask that it describe its treatment of the information, and render an objective evaluation. If the decision is made to release the information over the objection of the submitter, notify the submitter to seek a restraining order, or take court action to prevent release of the record or information.

(4) The coordination provisions of this paragraph (h) also apply to any non-U.S. Government record in the possession and control of the DoD from multi-national organizations, such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), United Nations Commands, the North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD), the Inter-American Defense Board, or foreign governments. Coordination with foreign governments under the provisions of this paragraph (h) may be made through Department of State, or the specific foreign embassy.

(i) File of initial denials. Copies of all initial denials shall be maintained by each DoD Component in a form suitable for rapid retrieval, periodic statistical compilation, and management evaluation. Records denied at the initial stage shall be maintained for a period of six years to meet the statute of limitations requirement.

(j) Special mail services. Components are authorized to use registered mail, certified mail, certificates of mailing and return receipts. However, their use should be limited to instances where it appears advisable to establish proof of dispatch or receipt of FOIA correspondence.

(k) Receipt accounts. The Treasurer of the United States has established two accounts for FOIA receipts, and all money orders or checks remitting FOIA fees should be made payable to the U.S. Treasurer. These accounts, which are described in paragraphs (k)(1) and (k)(2) of this section shall be used for depositing all FOIA receipts, except receipts for industrially funded and non appropriated funded activities. Components are reminded that the below account numbers must be preceded by the appropriate disbursing office two digit prefix. Industrially funded and non appropriated funded activity FOIA receipts shall be deposited to the applicable fund.

(1) Receipt Account 3210 Sale of Publications and Reproductions, Freedom of Information Act. This account shall be used when depositing funds received from providing existing publications and forms that meet the Receipt Account Series description found in Federal Account Symbols and Titles.

(2) Receipt Account 3210 Fees and Other Charges for Services, Freedom of Information Act. This account is used to deposit search fees, fees for duplicating and reviewing (in the case of commercial requesters) records to satisfy requests that could not be filled with existing publications or forms.

§ 286.24 Appeals.

(a) General. If the official designated by the DoD Component to make initial determinations on requests for records declines to provide a record because the official considers it exempt under one or more of the exemptions of the FOIA, that decision may be appealed by the requester, in writing, to a designated appellant authority. The appeal should be accompanied by a copy of the letter denying the initial request. Such appeals should contain the basis for disagreement with the initial refusal. Appeal procedures also apply to the disapproval of a fee category claim by a requester, disapproval of a request for waiver or reduction of fees, disputes regarding fee estimates, review on an expedited basis of a determination not to grant expedited access to agency records, and for no record determinations when the requester considers such responses adverse in nature. Appeals of Office of the Secretary of Defense and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff determinations may be sent to the address in appendix B, paragraph 2.a., of this part. If a request is merely misaddressed, and the receiving DoD Component simply advises the requester of such and refers the request to the appropriate DoD Component, this shall not be considered a no record determination.

(b) Time of receipt. A FOIA appeal has been received by a DoD Component when it reaches the office of an appellate authority having jurisdiction. Misdirected appeals should be referred expeditiously to the proper appellate authority.

(c) Time limits. (1) The requester shall be advised to file an appeal so that it reaches the appellate authority no later than 60 calendar days after the date of the initial denial letter. At the conclusion of this period, the case may be considered closed; however, such closure does not prevent the requester for filing litigation. In cases where the requester is provided several incremental determinations for a single request, the time for the appeal shall not begin until the requester receives the last such notification. Records that are denied shall be retained for a period of six years to meet the statute of limitations requirement.

(2) Final determinations on appeals normally shall be made within 20 working days after receipt. When a DoD Component has a significant number of appeals preventing a response determination with 20 working days, the appeals shall be processed in a multi-track processing system, based at a minimum, on the three processing tracks established for initial requests. See §286.4(d). All of the provisions of §286.4(d) apply also to appeals of initial determinations, to include establishing additional processing queues as needed.

(d) Delay in responding to an appeal. (1) If additional time is needed due to the unusual circumstances described in §286.23(f), the final decision may be delayed for the number of working days (not to exceed 10), that were not used are additional time for responding to the initial request.

(2) If a determination cannot be made and the requester notified within 20 working days, the appellate authority shall Advise the requester, in writing, the date of receipt of the appeal, the circumstances surrounding the delay, and the anticipated date for substantive response. Requesters shall be advised that, if the delay exceeds the statutory extension provision or is for reasons other than the unusual circumstances identified in §286.23(f), they may consider their administrative remedies exhausted. They may, however, without prejudicing their right of judicial remedy, await a substantive response. The DoD Component shall continue to process the case expeditiously, whether or not the requester seeks a court order for release of the records, but a copy of any response provided subsequent to filing of a complaint shall be forwarded to the Department of Justice.

(e) Response to the requester. (1) When an appellate authority makes a final determination to release all or a portion of records withheld by an IDA, a written response and a copy of the records so released should be forwarded promptly to the requester after compliance with any preliminary procedural requirements, such as payment of fees.

(2) Final refusal of an appeal must be made in writing by the appellate authority or by a designated representative. The response, at a minimum, shall include the following:

(i) The basis for the refusal shall be explained to the requester in writing, both with regard to the applicable statutory exemption or exemptions invoked under provisions of the FOIA and with respect to other appeal matters as set forth in paragraph (1) of this section.

(ii) When the final refusal is based in whole or in part on a security classification, the explanation shall include a determination that the record meets the cited criteria and rationale of the governing Executive Order, and that this determination is based on a declassification review, with the explanation of how that review confirmed the continuing validity of the security classification.

(iii) The final denial shall include the name and title or position of the official responsible for the denial.

(iv) In the case of appeals for total denial of records, the response shall advise the requester that the information being denied does not contain meaningful portions that are reasonably segregable.

(v) When the denial is based upon an exemption 3 statute (see § 286.12(e)), the response, in addition to citing the statute relied upon to deny the information, shall state whether a court has upheld the decision to withhold the information under the statute, and shall contain a concise description of the scope of the information withheld.

(vi) The response shall advise the requester of the right of judicial review.

(f) Consultation. (1) Final refusal involving issues not previously resolved or that the DoD Component knows to be inconsistent with rulings of other DoD Components ordinarily should not be made before consultation with the DoD Office of the General Counsel.

(2) Tentative decisions to deny records that raise new or significant legal issues of potential significance to other Agencies of the Government shall be provided to the DoD Office of the General Counsel.

§ 286.25 Judicial actions.

(a) General. (1) This section states current legal and procedural rules for the convenience of the reader. The statements of rules do not create rights or remedies not otherwise available, nor do they bind the Department of Defense to particular judicial interpretations or procedures.

(2) A requester may seek an order from a U.S. District Court to compel release of a record after administrative remedies have been exhausted; i.e., when refused a record by the head of a Component or an appellate designee or when the DoD Component has failed to respond within the time limits prescribed by the FOIA and in this part.

(b) Jurisdiction. The requester may bring suit in the U.S. District Court in the district in which the requester resides or is the requester's place of business, in the district in which the record is located, or in the District of Columbia.

(c) Burden of proof. The burden of proof is on the DoD Component to justify its refusal to provide a record. The court shall evaluate the case de novo (anew) and may elect to examine any requested record in camera (in private) to determine whether the denial was justified.

(d) Actions by the Court. (1) When a DoD Component has failed to make a determination within the statutory time limits but can demonstrate due diligence in exceptional circumstances, to include negotiating with the requester to modify the scope of their request, the court may retain jurisdiction and allow the Component additional time to complete its review of the records.

(2) If the court determines that the requester's complaint is substantially correct, it may require the United States to pay reasonable attorney fees and other litigation costs.

(3) When the court orders the release of denied records, it may also issue a written finding that the circumstances surrounding the withholding raise questions whether DoD Component personnel acted arbitrarily and capriciously. In these cases, the special counsel of the Merit System Protection Board shall conduct an investigation to determine whether or not disciplinary action is warranted. The DoD Component is obligated to take the action recommended by the special counsel.

(4) The court may punish the responsible official for contempt when a DoD Component fails to comply with the court order to produce records that it determines have been withheld improperly.

(e) Non-United States Government Source Information. A requester may bring suit in a U.S. District Court to compel the release of records obtained from a non-government source or records based on information obtained from a non-government source. Such source shall be notified promptly of the court action. When the source advises that it is seeking court action to prevent release, the DoD Component shall defer answering or otherwise pleading to the complainant as long as permitted by the Court or until a decision is rendered in the court action of the source, whichever is sooner.

(f) FOIA litigation. Personnel responsible for processing FOIA requests at the DoD Component level shall be aware of litigation under the FOIA. Such information will provide management insights into the use of the nine exemptions by Component personnel. Whenever a complaint under the FOIA is filed in a U.S. District Court, the DoD Component named in the complaint shall forward a copy of the complaint by any means to the OASD(PA), Attn: DFOISR, with an information copy to the DoD Office of the General Counsel, Attn: Office of Legal Counsel.

Subpart F—Fee Schedule

§ 286.28 General provisions.

(a) Authorities. The Freedom of Information Act, as amended; the Paperwork Reduction Act (44 U.S.C. chapter 35), as amended; the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended; the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921 and the Budget and Accounting Procedures Act, as amended (see 31 U.S.C.); and 10 U.S.C. 2328.

(b) Application. (1) The fees described in this subpart apply to FOIA requests, and conform to the Office of Management and Budget Uniform Freedom of Information Act Fee Schedule and Guidelines. They reflect direct costs for search, review (in the case of commercial requesters); and duplication of documents, collection of which is permitted by the FOIA. They are neither intended to imply that fees must be charged in connection with providing information to the public in the routine course of business, nor are they meant as a substitute for any other schedule of fees, such as DoD Instruction 7230.7, which does not supersede the collection of fees under the FOIA. Nothing in this subpart shall supersede fees chargeable under a statute specifically providing for setting the level of fees for particular types of records. A "statute specifically providing for setting the level of fees for particular types of records" (5 U.S.C. 552 (a)(4)(A)(vi)) means any statute that enables a Government Agency such as the Government Printing Office (GPO) or the National Technical Information Service (NTIS), to set and collect fees. Components should ensure that when documents that would be responsive to a request are maintained for distribution by agencies operating statutory-based fee schedule programs such as the GPO or NTIS, they inform requesters of the steps necessary to obtain records from those sources.

(2) The term "direct costs" means those expenditures a Component actually makes in searching for, reviewing (in the case of commercial requesters), and duplicating documents to respond to an FOIA request. Direct costs include, for example, the salary of the employee performing the work (the basic rate of pay for the employee plus 16 percent of that rate to cover benefits), and the costs of operating duplicating machinery. These factors have been included in the fee rates prescribed at §286.29. Not included in direct costs are overhead expenses such as costs of space, heating or lighting the facility in which the records are stored.

(3) The term "search" includes all time spent looking, both manually and electronically, for material that is responsive to a request. Search also includes a page-by-page or line-by-line identification (if necessary) of material in the record to determine if it, or portions thereof are responsive to the request. Components should ensure that searches are done in the most efficient and least expensive manner so as to minimize costs for both the Component and the requester. For example, Components should not engage in line-by-line searches when duplicating an entire document known to contain responsive information would prove to be the less expensive and quicker method of complying with the request. Time spent reviewing documents in order to determine whether to apply one or more of the statutory exemptions is not search time, but review time. See paragraph (b)(5) of this section for the definition of review, and paragraph (c)(5) of this section and §286.29(b)(2) for information pertaining to computer searches.

(4) The term "duplication" refers to the process of making a copy of a document in response to an FOIA request. Such copies can take the form of paper copy, microfiche, audiovisual, or machine readable documentation (e.g., magnetic tape or disc), among others. Every effort will be made to ensure that the copy provided is in a form... that is reasonably useable, the request shall be notified that the copy provided is the best available and that the Agency's master copy shall be made available for review upon appointment. For duplication of computer tapes and audiovisual, the actual costs, including the operator's time, shall be charged. In practice, if a Component estimates that assessable duplication charges are likely to exceed $25.00, it shall notify the requester of the estimate, unless the requester has indicated in advance his or her willingness to pay fees as high as those anticipated. Such a notice shall offer a requester the opportunity to confer with Component personnel with the object of reformulating the request to meet his or her needs at a lower cost.

(5) The term "review" refers to the process of examining documents located in response to an FOIA request to determine whether one or more of the statutory exemptions permit withholding. It also includes processing the documents for disclosure, such as excising them for release. Review does not include the time spent resolving general legal or policy issues regarding the application of exemptions. It should be noted that charges for commercial requesters may be assessed only for the initial review. Components may not charge for reviews required at the administrative appeal level of an exemption already applied. However, records or portions of records withheld in full under an exemption that is subsequently determined not to apply may be reviewed again to determine the applicability of other exemptions not previously considered. The costs for such a subsequent review would be properly assessable.

(c) Fee restrictions. (1) No fees may be charged by any DoD Component if the costs of routine collection and processing of the fee are likely to equal or exceed the amount of the fee. With the exception of requesters seeking documents for a commercial use, Components shall provide the first two hours of search time, and the first one hundred pages of duplication without charge. For example, for a request (other than one from a commercial requester) that involved two hours and ten minutes of search time, and resulted in one hundred and five pages of documents, a Component would determine the cost of only ten minutes of search time, and only five pages of reproduction. If this processing cost was equal to, or less than, the cost to the Component for billing the requester and processing the fee collected, no charges would result.

(2) Requesters receiving the first two hours of search and the first one hundred pages of duplication without charge are entitled to such only once per request. Consequently, if a Component, after completing its portion of a request, finds it necessary to refer the request to a subordinate office, another DoD Component, or another Federal Agency to action their portion of the request, the referring Component shall inform the recipient of the referral of the expended amount of search time and duplication cost to date.

(3) The elements to be considered in determining the "cost of collecting a fee" are the administrative costs to the Component of receiving and recording a remittance, and processing the fee for deposit in the Department of Treasury's special account. The cost to the Department of Treasury to handle such remittance is negligible and shall not be considered in Components' determinations.

(4) For the purposes of these restrictions, the word "pages" refers to paper copies of a standard size, which will normally be "8½ × 11" or "11 × 14". Thus, requesters would not be entitled to 100 microfiche or 100 computer disks, for example. A microfiche containing the equivalent of 100 pages or 100 pages of computer printout however, might meet the terms of the restriction.

(5) In the case of computer searches, the first two free hours will be determined against the salary scale of the individual operating the computer for the purposes of the search. As an example, when the direct costs of the computer central processing unit, input-output devices, and memory capacity equal $24.00 (two hours of equivalent search at the clerical level), amounts of computer costs in excess of that amount are chargeable as computer search time. In the event the direct operating cost of the hardware configuration cannot be determined, computer
Section 286.28

(d) Fee waivers. (1) Documents shall be furnished without charge, or at a charge reduced below fees assessed to the categories of requesters in paragraph (e) of this section when the Component determines that waiver or reduction of the fees is in the public interest because furnishing the information is likely to contribute significantly to public understanding of the operations or activities of the Department of Defense and is not primarily in the commercial interest of the requester.

(2) When assessable costs for a FOIA request total $15.00 or less, fees shall be waived automatically for all requesters, regardless of category.

(3) Decisions to waive or reduce fees that exceed the automatic waiver threshold shall be made on a case-by-case basis, consistent with the following factors:

(i) Disclosure of information "is in the public interest because it is likely to contribute significantly to public understanding of the operations or activities of the Government."

(A) The subject of the request. Components should analyze whether the subject matter of the request involves issues that will significantly contribute to the public understanding of the operations or activities of the Department of Defense. Requests for records in the possession of the Department of Defense which were originated by non-government organizations and are sought for their intrinsic content, rather than informative value, will likely not contribute to public understanding of the operations or activities of the Department of Defense. An example of such would be a previously released record that has been heavily redacted, the balance of which may contain only random words, fragmented sentences, or paragraph headings. A determination as to whether a record in this situation will contribute to the public understanding of the operations or activities of the Department of Defense must be approached with caution, and carefully weighed against the arguments offered by the requester. Another example is information already known to be in the public domain. Disclosure of duplicative, or nearly identical information already existing in the public domain may add no meaningful new information concerning the operations and activities of the Department of Defense.

(B) The informative value of the information to be disclosed. This factor requires a close analysis of the substantive contents of a record, or portion of the record, to determine whether disclosure is meaningful, and shall inform the public on the operations or activities of the Department of Defense. While the subject of a request may contain information that concerns operations or activities of the Department of Defense, it may not always hold great potential for contributing to a meaningful understanding of these operations or activities. An example of such was a previously released record that has been heavily redacted, the balance of which may contain only random words, fragmented sentences, or paragraph headings. A determination as to whether a record in this situation will contribute to the public understanding of the operations or activities of the Department of Defense must be approached with caution, and carefully weighed against the arguments offered by the requester. Another example is information already known to be in the public domain. Disclosure of duplicative, or nearly identical information already existing in the public domain may add no meaningful new information concerning the operations and activities of the Department of Defense.

(C) The contribution to an understanding of the subject by the general public likely to result from disclosure. The identity of the requester is essential in this situation in order to determine whether such requester has the capability and intention to disseminate the information to the public. Mere assertions of plans to author a book, doing doctoral dissertation work, or indigence are insufficient without demonstrating the capacity to further disclose the information in a manner that will be informative to the general public. Requesters should be asked to describe their qualifications, the nature of their research, the purpose of the requested information, and their intended means of dissemination to the public.

(D) The significance of the contribution to public understanding. In applying this factor, Components must differentiate the relative significance or impact of the disclosure against the current level of public knowledge, or understanding which exists before the disclosure. In other words, will disclosure on a current subject of wide public interest be unique in contributing previously unknown facts, thereby enhancing public knowledge, or will it basically duplicate what is already known by the general public? A decision regarding significance requires objective judgment, rather than subjective determination, and must be applied carefully to determine whether disclosure will likely lead to a significant public understanding of the issue. Components shall not make value judgments as to whether the information is important enough to be made public.

(ii) Disclosure of the information “is not primarily in the commercial interest of the requester.”

(A) The existence and magnitude of a commercial interest. If the request is determined to be of a commercial interest, Components should address the magnitude of that interest to determine if the requester’s commercial interest is primary, as opposed to any secondary personal or non-commercial interest. In addition to profit-making organizations, individual persons or other organizations may have a commercial interest in obtaining certain records. Where it is difficult to determine whether the requester is of a commercial nature, Components may draw inference from the requester’s identity and circumstances of the request. In such situations, the provisions of paragraph (e) of this section apply. Components are reminded that in order to apply the commercial standards of the FOIA, the requester’s commercial benefit must clearly override any personal or non-profit interest.

(B) The primary interest in disclosure. Once a requester’s commercial interest has been determined, Components should then determine if the disclosure would be primarily in that interest. This requires a balancing test between the commercial interest of the request against any public benefit to be derived as a result of that disclosure. Where the public interest is served above and beyond that of the requester’s commercial interest, a waiver or reduction of fees would be appropriate. Conversely, even if a significant public interest exists, and the relative commercial interest of the requester is determined to be greater than the public interest, then a waiver or reduction of fees would be inappropriate. As examples, news media organizations have a commercial interest as business organizations; however, their inherent role of disseminating news to the general public can ordinarily be presumed to be of a primary interest. Therefore, any commercial interest becomes secondary to the primary interest in serving the public. Similarly, scholars writing books or engaged in other forms of academic research, may recognize a commercial benefit, either directly, or indirectly (through the institution they represent); however, normally such pursuits are primarily undertaken for educational purposes, and the application of a fee charge would be inappropriate. Conversely, data brokers or others who merely compile government information for marketing can normally be presumed to have an interest primarily of a commercial nature.

(4) Components are reminded that the factors and examples used in this subsection are not all inclusive. Each fee decision must be considered on a case-by-case basis and upon the merits of the information provided in each request. When the element of doubt as to whether to charge or waive the fee cannot be clearly resolved, Components should rule in favor of the requester.
(5) In addition, the following additional circumstances describe situations where waiver or reduction of fees are most likely to be warranted:

(i) A record is voluntarily created to prevent an otherwise burdensome effort to provide voluminous amounts of available records, including additional information not requested.

(ii) A previous denial of records is reversed in total, or in part, and the assessable costs are not substantial (e.g. $15.00-$30.00).

(e) Fee assessment.

(1) Fees may not be used to discourage requesters, and to this end, FOIA fees are limited to standard charges for direct document search, review (in the case of commercial requesters) and duplication.

(2) In order to be as responsive as possible to FOIA requests while minimizing unwarranted costs to the taxpayer, Components shall adhere to the following procedures:

(i) Analyze each request to determine the category of the requester. If the Component determination regarding the category of the requester is different than that claimed by the requester, the Component shall:

(A) Notify the requester to provide additional justification to warrant the category claimed, and that a search for responsive records will not be initiated until agreement has been attained relative to the category of the requester. Absent further category justification from the requester, and within a reasonable period of time (i.e., 30 calendar days), the Component shall render a final category determination, and notify the requester of such determination, to include normal administrative appeal rights of the determination.

(B) Advise the requester that, notwithstanding any appeal, a search for responsive records will not be initiated until the requester indicates a willingness to pay assessable costs appropriate for the category determined by the Component.

(ii) Requesters should submit a fee declaration appropriate for the following categories:

(A) Commercial. Requesters should indicate a willingness to pay all search, review and duplication costs.

(B) Educational or noncommercial scientific institution or news media. Requesters should indicate a willingness to pay duplication charges in excess of 100 pages if more than 100 pages of records are desired.

(C) All others. Requesters should indicate a willingness to pay assessable search and duplication costs if more than two hours of search effort or 100 pages of records are desired.

(iii) If the conditions are not met as identified in this paragraph (e), then the request need not be processed and the requester shall be so informed.

(iv) In the situations described by paragraphs (e)(2)(i) and (e)(2)(ii) of this section, Components must be prepared to provide an estimate of assessable fees if desired by the requester. While it is recognized that search situations will vary among Components, and that an estimate is often difficult to obtain prior to an actual search, requesters who desire estimates are entitled to such before committing to a willingness to pay. Should Components' actual costs exceed the amount of the estimate or the amount agreed to by the requester, the amount in excess of the estimate or the requester's agreed amount shall not be charged without the requester's agreement.

(v) No DoD Component may require advance payment of any fee; i.e., payment before work is commenced or continued on a request, unless the requester has previously failed to pay fees in a timely fashion, or the agency has determined that the fee will exceed $250.00. As used in this sense, a timely fashion is 30 calendar days from the date of billing (the fees have been assessed in writing) by the Component.

(vi) Where a Component estimates or determines that allowable charges that a requester may be required to pay are likely to exceed $250.00, the Component shall notify the requester of the likely cost and obtain satisfactory assurance of full payment where the requester has a history of prompt payments, or require an advance payment of an amount up to the full estimated charges in the case of requesters with no history of payment.

(vii) Where a requester has previously failed to pay a fee charged in a timely fashion (i.e., within 30 calendar days from the date of the billing), the Component may require the requester

Commercial requesters. Fees shall be limited to reasonable standard charges for document search, review and duplication when records are requested for commercial use. Requesters must reasonably describe the records sought. (See §286.4(h))

(i) The term “commercial use” request refers to a request from, or on behalf of one who seeks information for a use or purpose that furthers the commercial, trade, or profit interest of the requester or the person on whose behalf the request is made. In determining whether a requester properly belongs in this category, Components must determine the use to which a requester will put the documents requested. Moreover, where Component has reasonable cause to doubt the use to which a requester will put the records sought, or where that use is not clear from the request itself, Components should seek additional clarification before assigning the request to a specific category.

(ii) When Components receive a request for documents for commercial use, they should assess charges which recover the full direct costs of searching for, reviewing for release, and duplicating the records sought. Commercial requesters (unlike other requesters) are not entitled to two hours of free search time, nor 100 free pages of reproduction of documents. Moreover, commercial requesters are not normally entitled to a waiver or reduction of fees based upon an assertion that disclosure would be in the public interest. However, because use is the exclusive determining criteria, it is possible to envision a commercial enterprise making a request that is not for commercial use. It is also possible that a non-profit organization could make a request that is for commercial use. Such situations must be addressed on a case-by-case basis.

Education institution requesters. Fees shall be limited to only reasonable standard charges for document duplication (excluding charges for the first 100 pages) when the request is made by an educational institution whose purpose is scholarly research. Requesters must reasonably describe the records sought (see §286.4(h)). The term “education institution” refers to a pre-school, a public or private elementary or secondary school, an institution of graduate higher education, an institution of undergraduate higher education, an institution of professional education, and an institution of vocational education, which operates a program or programs of scholarly research. Fees shall be waived or reduced in the public interest if the criteria of paragraph (d) of this section have been met.

(5) Non-commercial scientific institution requesters. Fees shall be limited to only reasonable standard charges for document duplication (excluding charges for the first 100 pages) when the request is made by a non-commercial scientific institution whose purpose is scientific research. Requesters must reasonably describe the records sought (see §286.4(h)). The term "non-commercial scientific institution" refers to an institution that is not operated on a "commercial" basis as defined in paragraph (e)(3) of this section and that is operated solely for the purpose of conducting scientific research, the results of which are not intended to promote any particular product or industry. Fees shall be waived or reduced in the public interest if the criteria of paragraph (d) of this section have been met.

(6) Components shall provide documents to requesters in paragraphs (e)(4) and (e)(5) of this section for the cost of duplication alone, excluding charges for the first 100 pages. To be eligible for inclusion in these categories, requesters must show that the request is being made under the auspices of a qualifying institution and that the records are not sought for commercial use, but in furtherance of scholarly (from an educational institution) or scientific (from a non-commercial scientific institution) research.

(7) Representatives of the news media. Fees shall be limited to only reasonable standard charges for document duplication (excluding charges for the first 100 pages) when the request is made by a representative of the news media. Requesters must reasonably describe the records sought (see §286.4(h)). Fees shall be waived or reduced if the criteria of paragraph (d) of this section have been met.

(i) The term "representative of the news media" refers to any person actively gathering news for an entity that is organized and operated to publish or broadcast news to the public. The term "news" means information that is about current events or that would be of current interest to the public. Examples of news media entities include television or radio stations broadcasting to the public at large, and publishers of periodicals (but only in those instances when they can qualify as disseminators of "news") who make their products available for purchase or subscription by the general public. These examples are not meant to be all-inclusive. Moreover, as traditional methods of news delivery evolve (e.g., electronic dissemination of newspapers through telecommunications services), such alternative means would be included in this category. In the case of "freelance" journalists, they may be regarded as working for a news organization if they can demonstrate a solid basis for expecting publication though that organization, even through not actually employed by it. A publication contract would be the clearest proof, but Components may also look to the past publication record of a requester in making this determination.

(ii) To be eligible for inclusion in this category, a requester must meet the criteria in paragraph (e)(7)(i) of this section and his or her request must not be made for commercial use. A request for records supporting the news dissemination function of the requester shall not be considered to be a request that is for a commercial use. For example, a document request by a newspaper for records relating to the investigation of a defendant in a current criminal trial of public interest could be presumed to be a request form an entity eligible for inclusion in this category, and entitled to records at the cost of reproduction alone (excluding charges for the first 100 pages).

(iii) "Representative of the news media" does not include private libraries, private repositories of Government records, or middlemen, such as information vendors or data brokers.

(8) All other requesters. Components shall charge requesters who do not fit into any of the categories described in paragraphs (e)(3), (e)(4), (e)(5), or (e)(7) of this section fees which recover the full direct cost of searching for and duplicating records, except that the first two hours of search time and the first 100 pages of duplication shall be furnished without charge. Requesters must reasonably describe the records § 286.29 Collection of fees and rates.

(a) Collection of fees. Collection of fees will be made at the time of providing the documents to the requester or recipient when the requester specifically states that the costs involved shall be acceptable or acceptable up to a specified limit that covers the anticipated costs. Collection of fees may not be made in advance unless the requester has failed to pay previously assessed fees within 30 calendar days from the date of the billing by the DoD Component, or the Component has determined that the fees will be in excess of $250 (see §286.28(e)).

(b) Search time—(1) Manual search.

(2) Computer search. Fee assessments for computer search consists of two parts; individual time (hereafter referred to as human time), and machine time.

(i) Human time. Human time is all time spent by humans performing the... necessary tasks to prepare the job for a machine to execute the run command. If execution of a run requires monitoring by a human, that human time may be also assessed as computer search. The terms “programmer/operator” shall not be limited to the traditional programmers or operators. Rather, the terms shall be interpreted in their broadest sense to incorporate any human involved in performing the computer job (e.g. technician, administrative support, operator, programmer, database administrator, or action officer).

(ii) Machine time. Machine time involves only direct costs of the Central Processing Unit (CPU), input/output devices, and memory capacity used in the actual computer configuration. Only this CPU rate shall be charged. No other machine related costs shall be charged. In situation where the capability does not exist to calculate CPU time, no machine costs can be passed on to the requester. When CPU calculations are not available, only human time costs shall be assessed to requesters. Should DoD Components lease computers, the services charged by the lessor shall not be passed to the requester under the FOIA.

(e) Audiovisual documentary materials. Search costs are computed as for any other record. Duplication cost is the actual direct cost of reproducing the material, including the wage of the person doing the work. Audiovisual materials provided to a requester need not be in reproducible format or quality.

(f) Other records. Direct search and duplication cost for any record not described in this section shall be computed in the manner described for audiovisual documentary material.

(g) Cost for special services. Complying with requests for special services is at the discretion of the Components. Whether the FOIA, or its fee structure cover these kinds of services. Therefore, Components may recover the costs of special services requested by the requester after agreement has been obtained in writing from the requester to pay for one or more of the following services:

1. Certifying that records are true copies.
2. Sending records by special methods such as express mail, etc.

§ 286.30 Collection of fees and fee rates for technical data.

(a) Fees for technical data. (1) Technical data, other than technical data that discloses critical technology with military or space application, if required to be released under the FOIA, shall be released after the person requesting such technical data pays all reasonable costs attributed to search, duplication, and review of the records to be released. Technical data, as used in this section, means recorded information, regardless of the form or method of the recording of a scientific or technical nature (including computer software documentation). This term does not include computer software, or data incidental to contract administration, such as financial and/or management information. DoD Components shall retain the amounts received by such a release, and it shall be merged with and available from which the costs were incurred in complying with request. All reasonable costs as used in this sense are the full costs to the Federal Government of rendering the service, or fair market value of the service, whichever is higher. Fair market value shall be determined in accordance with commercial rates in the local geographical area. In the absence of a known market value, charges shall be based on recovery of full costs to the

In turn, DFOISR, OASD(PA) will produce

(ii) Professional and executive (To be established at actual hourly rate prior to search. A minimum charge will be established at ½ hourly rates). Computer search is based on the total cost of the central processing unit, input/output devices, and memory capacity of the actual computer configuration. The wage (based upon the scale in paragraph (b)(3)(i) of this section) for the computer operator and/or programmer determining how to conduct, and subsequently executing the search will be recorded as part of the computer search. See §286.29(b)(2) for further details regarding computer search.

Subpart G—Reports
a consolidated DoD report for submission to the Attorney General.

(b) Existing DoD standards and registered data elements are to be utilized to the greatest extent possible in accordance with the provisions of DoD 8320.1-M, "Data Administration Procedures".

(c) The reporting requirement outlined in this subpart is assigned Report Control Symbol DD-PA(A)1365.

§ 286.34 Annual report content.

The current edition of DD Form 2564 will be used to submit component input. Instructions for completion follow:

(a) Item 1. Initial request determinations.

(1) Total requests processed. Enter the total number of initial FOIA requests responded to (completed) during the fiscal year.

NOTE: Since more than one action frequency is taken on a completed case, Total Actions (see paragraph (a)(6) of this section) can exceed Total Requests Processed (See appendix F to this part for form layout).

(2) Granted in full. Enter the total number of initial FOIA requests responded to that were granted in full during the fiscal year. (This may include requests granted by your office, yet still requiring action by another office.)

(3) Denied in part. Enter the total number of initial FOIA requests responded to and denied in part based on one or more of the nine FOIA exemptions. (Do not report denial of fee waivers.)

(4) Denied in full. Enter the total number of initial FOIA requests responded to and denied in full based on one or more of the nine FOIA exemptions. (Do not report denial of fee waivers.)

(5) "Other reason" responses. Enter the total number of initial FOIA requests in which you were unable to provide all or part of the requested information based on an "other reason" response. Paragraph (b)(2) of this section explains the six possible "other reasons":

(6) Total Actions. Enter the total number of FOIA actions taken during the fiscal year. This number will be the sum of paragraph (a)(2) through (a)(5) of this section.

NOTE: Total actions must be equal to or greater than the number of total requests processed (paragraph (a)(1) of this section).

(b) Item 2. (1) Exemptions invoked on Initial REQUEST Determinations. Enter the number of times an exemption was claimed for each request that was denied in full or in part. Since more than one exemption may be claimed when responding to a single request, this number will be equal to or greater than the sum of paragraphs (a)(3) and (a)(4) of this section.

(2) "Other reasons" cited on initial determinations. Identify the "other reason" response cited when responding to a FOIA request and enter the number of times each was claimed.

(i) Transferred request. Enter the number of times a request was transferred to another DoD component or Federal Agency for action.

(ii) Lack of records. Enter the number of times a search of files failed to identify records responsive to subject request.

(iii) Failure of requester to reasonably describe record. Enter the number of times a FOIA request could not be acted upon since the requester failed to reasonably describe the record(s) being sought.

(iv) Other failures by requester to comply with published rules and/or directives. Enter the number of times a requester failed to follow published rules concerning time, place, fees, and procedures.

(v) Request withdrawn by requester. Enter the number of times a requestor withdrew a request and/or appeal.

(vi) Not an agency record. Enter the number of times a requester was provided a response indicating the requested information was not an agency record.

(vii) Total. Enter the sum of paragraph (b)(2)(i) through (b)(2)(vi) of this section. This number will be equal to or greater than the number in paragraph (a)(5) of this section since more than one reason may be claimed for each "other reason" response.

(c) Item 3. Appeal determinations.
(1) Total appeal responses. Enter the total number of FOIA appeals responded to (completed) during the fiscal year.

(2) Granted in full. Enter the total number of FOIA appeals responded to and granted in full during the year.

(3) Denied in part. Enter the total number of FOIA appeals responded to and denied in part based on one or more of the nine FOIA exemptions.

(4) Denied in full. Enter the total number of FOIA appeals responded to and denied in full based on one or more of the nine FOIA exemptions.

(5) “Other reason” responses. Enter the total number of FOIA appeals in which you were unable to provide the requested information based on an “other reason” response. Paragraph (b)(2) of this section explains the six possible “other reasons”.

(6) Total actions. Enter the total number of FOIA appeal actions taken during the fiscal year. This number will be the sum of paragraphs (c)(2) through (c)(5) of this section and should be equal or greater than the number of total appeal responses, paragraph (c)(1) of this section.

(d) Item 4. (1) Exemptions invoked on appeal determinations. Enter the number of times an exemption was claimed for each appeal that was denied in full or in part. Since more than one exemption may be claimed when responding to a single request, this number will be equal to or greater than the sum of paragraphs (c)(3) and (c)(4) of this section.

(2) “Other reasons” cited on appeal determinations. Identify the “other reason” response cited when responding to a FOIA appeal and enter the number of times each was claimed. See paragraph (b)(2) of this section for description of “other reasons”. This number can be equal to or possibly greater than the number in paragraph (c)(5) of this section since more than one reason may be claimed for each “other reason” response.

(e) Item 5. Exemption 3 statutes invoked on initial and appeal determinations. Identify the number of times you have used a specific statute to support each use of exemption 3 identified in paragraphs (b)(1) and (d)(1) of this section. List the statutes used to support each use of exemption 3; the number of instances in which the statute was cited; note whether or not the statute has been upheld in a court hearing; and provide a concise description of the material withheld in each individual case by the statute’s use. Ensure you cite specific sections of acts invoked. To qualify as a 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(3) exemption, the statute must contain clear wording that the information covered will not be disclosed. The total number of instances reported above will be equal to or greater than the total number of 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(3) exemptions listed in paragraphs (b)(1) and (d)(1) of this section.

(f) Item 6. Number and median age of cases pending as of September 30 of the preceding year. (1) Total number of initial requests pending as of September 30, preceding year. Enter the total number of initial FOIA requests pending (open) as of the day before the current reporting period began (September 30 previous to the reporting period, fiscal year).

(2) Median age of requests pending as of September 30 of the preceding year. Enter the median age of pending FOIA requests as of the day before the current reporting period began (September 30 previous to the reporting period, fiscal year).

(3) Examples. (i) Given five cases aged 10, 25, 35, 65, and 100 days from date of receipt as of the previous September 30. The total requests pending is five. The median age (days) of open requests is 35 (the middle value in the set).

(ii) Given six pending cases, aged 10, 20, 30, 50, 120, and 200 days from date of receipt, as of the previous September 30, the total requests pending is six. The median age (days) of open requests is 40 days (the mean [average] of the two middle numbers in the set, in this case the average of middle values 30 and 50).

(g) Item 7. Number of initial requests received during the fiscal year. Enter the total number of initial FOIA requests received during the reporting period (fiscal year being reported).

(h) Item 8. Types of requests processed and median age. Information is reported for three types of initial requests completed during the reporting period:
Simple; Complex; and Expedited Processing. The following items of information are reported for these requests:

1. Total number of initial requests. Enter the total number of initial requests processed during the reporting period (fiscal year) by type (Simple, complex and expedited processing) in the appropriate row on the form.

2. Median age (days). Enter the median number of days required to process each type of case (Simple, complex and expedited processing) during the period in the appropriate row on the form.

3. Example. Given seven initial requests, multitrack—Simple completed during the fiscal year, aged 10, 25, 35, 65, 79, 90 and 400 days when completed. The total number of requests completed was seven. The median age (days) of completed requests is 65, the middle value in the set.

4. Item 9. Fees collected from the public. Enter the total amount of fees collected from the public during the fiscal year. This includes search, review and reproduction costs only.

5. Item 10—(1) FOIA program costs—(i) Personnel costs. Paragraphs (j)(1)(i) and (j)(1)(ii) of this section are used to capture man-years and salary costs of personnel primarily involved in planning, program management and/or administrative handling of FOIA requests. Determine salaries for military personnel by using the composite standard pay rates (DoD 7220.9-M thinspace;14). For civilian personnel use Office of Personnel Management salary table and add 16% for benefits. A sample computation is shown:

(B) Man-year costs. Total costs associated with salaries of individuals involved in administering FOIA program. In the example shown in the table in this paragraph (j)(1)(i), the total cost if §35,014.

(C) Estimated man-hour costs by category. This section accounts for all other personnel not reported in paragraphs (j)(1)(i)(A) and (j)(1)(i)(B) of this section who are involved in processing FOIA requests. Enter the total hourly cost for each of the five areas described.

1. Search time. This includes only those direct costs associated with time spent looking for material that is responsive to a request, including line-by-line identification of material within a document to determine if it is responsive to the request. Searches may be done manually or by computer using existing programming.

2. Review and excising. This includes all direct costs incurred during the process of examining documents located in response to a request to determine whether any portion of any document located is permitted to be withheld. It also includes excising documents to prepare them for release. It does not include time spent resolving general legal or policy issues regarding the application of exemptions.

3. Coordination and approval. This includes all costs involved in coordinating the release/denial of documents requested under the FOIA.

4. Correspondence/form preparation. This includes all costs involved in typing responses, filling out forms, etc., to respond to a FOIA request.

5. Other activities. This includes all other processing costs not covered above, such as processing time by the mail room.

14See footnote 1 to §286.1(a).
 § 286.37

(6) Total. Enter the sum of paragraphs (j)(1)(A) through (j)(1)(i)(E) of this section.

(D) Overhead. This is the cost of supervision, space, and administrative support. It is computed as 25% of the sum of paragraphs (j)(1)(i)(B) and (j)(1)(i)(C) of this section.

(E) Total. Enter the sum of paragraphs (j)(1)(i)(B), (j)(1)(i)(C) and (j)(1)(i)(D) of this section.

(ii) Other case-related costs. Using the fee schedule, enter the total amounts incurred in each of the following paragraphs.

(A) Computer search time. This includes cost of central processing unit, input/output devices, memory, etc. of the computer system used, as well as the wage of the machine's operator/programmer. Since desk top/personal computers have no central processing units, when these systems are involved, computer search shall consist only of personnel time to accomplish the job.

(B) Office copy reproduction. This is the cost of reproducing normal documents with office copying equipment.

(C) Microfiche reproduction. This is the cost of reproducing records and providing microfiche.

(D) Printed records. This is the cost of providing reproduced copies of forms, publications, or reports.

(E) Computer copy. This is the actual cost of duplicating magnetic tapes, floppy diskettes, computer printouts, etc.

(F) Audiovisual materials. This is the actual cost of duplicating audio or video tapes or like materials, to include the wage of the person doing the work.

(G) Other. Report all other costs which are easily identifiable, such as per diem, operation of courier vehicles, training courses, printing (indexes and forms), long distance telephone calls, special mail services, use of indicia, etc.

(H) Subtotal. Enter the sum of paragraphs (j)(1)(ii)(A) through (j)(1)(ii)(G) of this section.

(I) Overhead. This is the cost of supervision, space, and administrative support. It is computed as 25% of paragraph (j)(1)(ii)(H) of this section.

(J) Total. Enter the sum of paragraphs (j)(1)(ii)(H) and (j)(1)(iii)(I) of this section.

(iii) Cost of routine requests processed. This item is optional. Some reporting activities may find it economical to develop an average cost factor for processing repetitive routine requests rather than tracking costs on each request as it is processed. Care should be exercised so that costs are comprehensive to include a 25% overhead, yet are not duplicated elsewhere in the report. Multiply the number of routine requests processed time the cost factor to compute this amount.

(iv) Total costs. Enter the sum of paragraphs (j)(1)(i) through (j)(1)(iii) of this section.

(2) Number of full time staff. Enter the number of people in your agency that process FOIA actions full time.

(k) Item 11. Date report prepared. Enter the date the report was completed and signed by an approving official.

(l) Item 12. Name, address & phone number of agency. Enter data for the agency or activity that prepared the report.

(m) Item 13. Signature, typed name, and title of approving official. Enter the name and title of the individual approving the report. Approval of the report is indicated by the official's signature.

Subpart H—Education and Training

§ 286.37  Responsibility and purpose.

(a) Responsibility. The Head of each DoD Component is responsible for the establishment of educational and training programs on the provisions and requirements of this part. The educational programs should be targeted toward all members of the DoD Component, developing a general understanding and appreciation of the DoD FOIA Program; whereas, the training programs should be focused toward those personnel who are involved in the day-to-day processing of FOIA requests, and should provide a thorough understanding of the procedures outlined in this part.

(b) Purpose. The purpose of the educational and training programs is to promote a positive attitude among DoD personnel and raise the level of understanding and appreciation of the DoD FOIA Program, thereby improving the interaction with members of the public and improving the public trust in the DoD.

(c) Scope and principles. Each Component shall design its FOIA educational and training programs to fit the particular requirements depending upon their degree of involvement in the implementation of this part. The program should be designed to accomplish the following objectives:

1. Familiarize personnel with the requirements of the FOIA and its implementation by this part.

2. Instruct personnel, who act in FOIA matters, concerning the provisions of this part, advising them of the legal hazards involved and the strict prohibition against arbitrary and capricious withholding of information.

3. Provide for the procedural and legal guidance and instruction, as may be required, in the discharge of the responsibilities of initial denial and appellate authorities.

4. Advise personnel of the penalties for noncompliance with the FOIA.

(d) Implementation. To ensure uniformity of interpretation, all major educational and training programs concerning the implementation of this part should be coordinated with the Director, Freedom of Information and Security Review, OASD(PA).

(e) Uniformity of legal interpretation. In accordance with DoD Directive 5400.7, the DoD Office of the General Counsel shall ensure uniformity in the legal position and interpretation of the DoD FOIA Program.

APPENDIX A TO PART 286—COMBATANT COMMANDS—PROCESSING PROCEDURES FOR FOIA APPEALS

1. GENERAL

a. In accordance with DoD Directive 5400.1 and this part, the Combatant Commands are placed under the jurisdiction of the Office of the Secretary of Defense, instead of the administering Military Department, only for the purpose of administering the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) Program. This policy represents an exception to the policies in DoD Directive 5100.3.2

b. The policy change in paragraph 1.a. of this section authorizes and requires the Combatant Commands to process FOIA requests in accordance with DoD Directive 5100.7 and DoD Instruction 5400.103 and to forward directly to the OASD(PA) all correspondence associated with the appeal of an initial denial for information under the provisions of the FOIA.

2. RESPONSIBILITIES OF COMMANDS

Combatant Commanders in Chief shall:

a. Designate the officials authorized to deny initial FOIA requests for records.

b. Designate an office as the point-of-contact for FOIA matters.

c. Refer FOIA cases to the OASD(PA) for review and evaluation when the issues raised are of unusual significance, precedent setting, or otherwise require special attention or guidance.

d. Consult with other OSD and DoD Components that may have a significant interest in the requested record prior to a final determination. Coordination with Agencies outside of the Department of Defense, if required, is authorized.

PART 286h—RELEASE OF ACQUISITION-RELATED INFORMATION

Sec. 286h.1 Purpose.
286h.2 Applicability and scope.
286h.3 Policy.
286h.4 Responsibilities.

AUTHORITY: Pub. L. 101±189.
SOURCE: 55 FR 28614, July 12, 1990, unless otherwise noted.

§ 286h.1 Purpose.
This part sets forth Department of Defense (DoD) policy for the release of acquisition-related information.

§ 286h.2 Applicability and scope.
(a) This part applies to the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD), the Military Departments, the Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff and Joint Staff (CJS), the Unified and Specified Commands, and the Defense Agencies (hereafter referred to collectively as “DoD Components”).

(b) This part is issued pursuant to section 822 of Public Law 101±189, which requires the Department of Defense to prescribe a single uniform regulation for dissemination of, and access to, acquisition information.

§ 286h.3 Policy.
(a) General. It is the Department of Defense's policy to make the maximum amount of acquisition-related information available to the public, and to respond promptly to specific requests from the public for such information, except for the information identified in paragraph (b) of this section, for which release is restricted.

(b) Information for which release is restricted. The information identified below may be released only as set forth herein.

(1) Release subject to statutory restrictions. This information may be released only in accordance with the applicable statutory requirements. Once the statutory requirements have been satisfied, the information may be released unless it falls within one of the categories described in the following paragraphs, in which case the policies governing release of information within those categories shall be followed.

(2) Classified information. (i) Any information or material, regardless of its physical form or characteristics, that is owned by, produced by or for, or under the control of the United States Government, and which, for national security purposes, must be protected against unauthorized disclosure and is so designated or marked with the appropriate classification.

(ii) Release, access, and dissemination of classified information shall be made through existing security channels in accordance with DoD 5220.22-M; DoD 5220.22-R; DoD 5200.1-R, which are implementing publications for safeguarding classified information release, access, and dissemination to United States and foreign concerns.

(3) Contractor bid or proposal information. (i) This information prepared by or on behalf of an offeror and submitted to the Government as a part of or in support of the offeror’s bid or proposal to enter into a contract with the Government, the disclosure of which would place the offeror at a competitive disadvantage or jeopardize the integrity or the successful completion of the procurement. Contractor bid or proposal information does not include information that is available to the public.

(A) Sealed bids. (1) Prior to bid opening, no release or disclosure of contractor bid information shall be made to anyone other than those who are involved in the evaluation of the bids or to other individuals authorized 1Copies may be obtained, at cost, from the National Technical Information Services; 5285 Port Royal Road, Springfield, VA 22161.

2Copies may be obtained, at cost, from the Government Printing Office, ATTN: Superintendent of Documents, Washington, DC 20402.
3See footnote 1 to § 286h.3(b)(2)(ii).
by the Head of the DoD Component, or his or her designee.

(2) After contract award, contractor bid information may be released or disclosed by those authorized by the Head of the DoD Component, or his or her designee, to make such release or disclosure, if the information to be released or disclosed is not subject to a restrictive legend authorized by Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) 52.215-12 or release is not otherwise restricted by law.

(3) Negotiated procurements. Prior to contract award, no release or disclosure of contractor proposal information shall be made to anyone other than those who are involved in the evaluation of the proposals or the source selection or to other individuals authorized by the Head of the DoD Component, or his or her designee. DoD Components shall adopt procedures in accordance with FAR 15.413 to protect against release or disclosure of contractor proposal information. After contract award, contractor proposal information may be released or disclosed by those authorized by the Head of the DoD Component, or his or her designee, to make such release or disclosure, if the information to be released or disclosed is not subject to a restrictive legend authorized by FAR 52.215-12 or release is not otherwise restricted by law.

(4) Source selection information. (i) This is information prepared or developed for use by the Government in connection with the selection of a bid or proposal for the award of a contract. Only the following information, including copies or extracts thereof, is source selection information:

(A) Bid prices submitted in response to a Government solicitation for sealed bids or lists of such bid prices (applicable prior to bid opening only);
(B) Proposed costs or prices submitted in response to a Government solicitation prior to award of the contract, a list of proposed costs or prices;
(C) Source selection plans;
(D) Technical evaluation plans;
(E) Technical evaluations of competing proposals;
(F) Cost or price evaluations of competing proposals;

(G) Competitive range determinations;
(H) Rankings of competitors;
(I) The reports and evaluations of source selection boards, advisory councils, or the source selection authority (SSA); and

(J) Any other information which:
(1) If disclosed, would give an offeror a competitive advantage or jeopardize the integrity or successful completion of the procurement; and
(2) Is marked with the legend “Source Selection Information.”

(ii) Release of or access to source selection information (SSI)—(A) Access to SSI. The SSA (including the contracting officer when the contracting officer is the SSA) shall restrict access to source selection information to only those Government employees directly involved in the source selection process or to those individuals who have been authorized by the Head of the DoD Component, or his or her designee, to have access to such information. If the contracting officer or the SSA have not been appointed, the Head of the DoD Component, or his or her designee, shall assure access to such information is properly restricted. Employees supervising or managing employees directly involved in the source selection process are not themselves by virtue of their positions directly involved in the source selection process.

(B) Release of SSI—(1) Prior to contract award. Source selection information shall not be released prior to contract award unless the Head of the DoD Component, or his or her designee, determines that release is in the public interest and would not jeopardize the integrity or successful completion of the procurement. The information to be released shall only be released by the contracting officer. The contracting officer shall make release in a manner that does not provide any potential offeror with a competitive advantage.

(2) After contract award. The need to protect source selection information generally ends with contract award. The contracting officer may release, or authorize the release of, any source selection information related to that contract award except: Source selection information specifically developed or prepared for use with more than one solicitation when there is a continuing need to protect that information; unless otherwise permitted by law, source selection information containing contractor data or extracts thereof which are protected by law; information which would reveal the relative merits or technical standing of the competitors or the evaluation scoring; and any pre-decisional or other information not subject to release under the Freedom of Information Act. Debriefings to unsuccessful offerors shall be conducted in accordance with FAR 15.1003 and Defense Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement (DFARS) 215.1003(a).

Planning, programming, and budgetary information. (i) Planning, Programming, and Budgeting System (PPBS) documents and supporting data bases are not to be disclosed outside the Department of Defense (DoD) and other governmental agencies directly involved in the defense planning and resource allocation process (e.g., the Office of Management and Budget). PPBS papers and associated data set forth the details of proposed programs and plans. Access to this material by those not directly involved in the PPBS process undermines the confidentiality necessary for the Secretary and Deputy Secretary to obtain candid advice on the content of the defense program. Also, access to PPBS information by firms seeking contracts with the Department may pose ethical, even criminal, problems for those involved and reduce effective competition in the contract awards process.

(ii)(A) Requests for exceptions to this limitation may be granted on a case-by-case basis to meet compelling needs, after coordination with the Office of General Counsel, by the Head of the OSD office responsible for the PPBS phase to which the document or data base pertains; the Under Secretary of Defense (Policy) for the planning phase; the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Program Analysis and Evaluation) for programming; and the Controller, DoD for budgeting. A list of the current major documents and data bases for each PPBS phase is in paragraph (B)(5)(11)(C) of this section; all other PPBS materials are also controlled under this policy.

(B) Disclosure of PPBS information to Congress and the General Accounting Office (GAO) is covered by statute and other procedures.

§ 286h.4 Responsibilities.

(a) The Under Secretary of Defense (Acquisition) shall be responsible for establishing uniform policies and procedures for the release of acquisition-related information.

Requesters seeking audit reports should send their requests directly to the DoD contracting activity to avoid administrative delay. Typically, requests for copies of DCAA audit reports may be identified by requesting those that relate to a specific contract number (e.g. DLA 600-89-P 0222). DoD contract numbers may be easily matched to the cognizant DoD contracting activity by referring to 48 CFR, "DoD FAR Supplement," Appendix N.

NOTE: Although DCAA can make a release determination on audit reports produced for non-DoD agencies, administrative procedure routinely dictates coordination with that agency prior to responding to the request. Requesters seeking expeditious processing should forward their requests directly to the cognizant contracting officer for processing.

(c) Requests for audit working papers. Audit working papers, as described in appendix D, may be sought occasionally in conjunction with an audit report or as an independent demand. Normally, the release of such records is entirely dependent on the releasability of the related audit report. (Note: The procedures for determining the releasability of audit reports is provided in general in the aforementioned paragraph and in more detail in DCAAP §410.14). Since the content of audit working paper files can be quite diverse and often voluminous. FOIA Coordinators should work closely with the requester to ensure that the records produced are narrowly defined and entirely responsive to the requester’s needs.

(d) Public inspection and copying. Section (a)(2) of the Freedom of Information Act requires agencies to make available for public inspection and copying, final opinions made in the adjudication of cases, statements of policy not yet published in the Federal Register, and administrative manuals and instructions. This requirement is satisfied by the quarterly publication of DCAAI 5025.2,6 “DCAA Index of Publications” and DCAAI 5025.13,7 “Index of DCAA Memorandums for Regional Directors”.

(e) Requests for the examination or copies of records. (1) Members of the public may make written requests for copies of DCAA records or for permission to examine such records during normal business hours. Such requests must be in writing and either explicitly or implicitly invoke the Freedom of Information Act, or this rule. These requests should be submitted directly to the appropriate DCAA organizational element listed in appendix B of this rule. If the appropriate DCAA organizational element is either unknown or cannot be ascertained, and the record is likely to be in the possession of DCAA, the request may be submitted to Defense Contract Audit Agency, Attn: CMO, 8725 John J. Kingman Road, Suite 2135, Fort Belvoir, VA 22060-6219.

(2) When submitting requests, requesters should:
   (i) Identify each record sought with sufficient detail to facilitate the location and easy access to the record requested. Information as to where the record originated, subject, date, number, or any other identifying particulars should be provided whenever possible. DCAA organizational elements receiving requests which do not reasonably describe the record requested will advise the requester accordingly. Generally, a record is not reasonably described unless the requester provides information permitting an organized, nonrandom search of DCAA files and/or information systems. In providing descriptions based on events, the requester must provide information which permits DCAA organizational elements to, at least, infer the specific record sought.
   (ii) Identify all other Federal agencies subject to the provisions of the FOIA to which the request has been sent. This will reduce both processing and coordination time between agencies and redundant referrals.
   (iii) Provide a statement of their willingness to pay assessable charges. The statement must include a specific monetary amount if the assessable fees are likely to exceed the fee waiver threshold of $15.00 or a specific justification for any waiver or reduction of fees sought based on public interest in release or disclosure. DCAA organizational elements will notify requesters of deficiencies in fee declarations, and provide them the opportunity to amend initial declarations. Determinations on the adequacy of requester fee declarations are not subject to appeal unless: The DCAA organizational element has denied a specific request for the assessment of fees under one of the established requester categories; or has denied a request for the waiver or reduction of fees in the public interest.

(3) When a DCAA organizational element has no records responsive to a request, the requester will be notified promptly that should he or she determine such request to be adverse in nature, he or she may exercise their appeal rights. In cases where the request has been misdirected and the DCAA organizational element is aware of the appropriate FOIA respondent, they shall refer the request to the appropriate DCAA organizational element or other Federal agency through FOIA channels, and notify the requester of the referral. The 10 working day period allowed for responding to requests will not begin until the DCAA organizational element having the responsive records receives a request complying with procedural requirements of this rule, including statements on the payment of fees.

7See footnote 3 to §290.4(c).
The provisions of the FOIA are intended for parties with private interests. Officials seeking documents or information on behalf of foreign governments, other Federal agencies, and state or local agencies should be encouraged to employ official channels. The release of records to individuals under the FOIA is a public release of information. DCAA organizational elements will consider FOIA requests from such officials as made in a private, rather than official capacity, and will make disclosure and fee determinations accordingly.

Referrals. (1) Records originating in or based on information obtained from other Federal agencies subject to the FOIA may be referred to that agency. In processing FOIA requests for such records, DCAA elements, after coordinating with the originating agency, may refer the request, along with a copy of the responsive records in its possession, to that agency for direct response. The requester is to be notified of the referral. However, if for investigative or intelligence purposes, the outside agency desires anonymity, FOIA Coordinators may only respond directly to the requester after coordination with the agency.

(2) Referral of audit reports. Audit reports prepared by DCAA are the property of and are prepared for the use of the DoD contracting officers. Their release is at the discretion of the DoD contracting activity. Therefore any FOIA request for audit reports prepared for DoD components should be referred to the cognizant DoD contracting activity and the requester notified of the referral. To avoid the delay associated with the referral process, requesters should be advised to send requests for audit reports directly to the cognizant DoD contracting activity. Requests for audit reports prepared for non-DoD agencies should be treated as requests for DCAA records.

(3) Referral of workpapers. When a requester seeks workpapers, the cognizant contracting officer must furnish a notice of disposition to the appropriate activity pertaining to the releasability of the audit report. The notice of disposition will then be used to determine releasability of the workpapers. Details concerning the appropriate processing procedures may be found in DCAAP 5410.14.

(4) All other requests should be directed to the appropriate regional director, if known. When the location of the record is not known, the request should be directed to the DCAA Information and Privacy Advisor.

(5) Time limits. DCAA organizational elements are to respond promptly to requesters complying with the procedural requirements outlined in this rule. When a significant number of requests are being processed, e.g. 10 or more, the requests shall be completed in order of receipt. However, this does not preclude completing action on a request which can be easily answered, regardless of its ranking within the order of receipt. Action may be expedited on a request regardless of its ranking within the order of receipt upon a showing of exceptional need or urgency. Exceptional need or urgency is determined at the discretion of the FOIA Coordinator.

(i) Upon receipt of a properly submitted FOIA request, DCAA organizational elements should contact the DCAA Information and Privacy Advisor for a FOIA case number. IDAs should:

(A) Locate and assemble responsive records.

(B) Determine releasability under the provisions of this rule.

(C) Determine the appropriate fees to be charged and

(D) Advise the requester accordingly.

Initial determinations on either the release or denial of records, and notice to requesters, must be provided within 10 working days following receipt of the request by the cognizant DCAA organizational element.

(ii) In certain cases, IDAs may need to exercise an extension to the normal 10 working day period cited above. IDAs are to notify the requester, within the initial 10 working day period, of the extension, the circumstances necessitating it, and the anticipated date of a determination. Approved extensions are not to exceed 10 working days, and all extensions should be indicated on DCAA Form 5410-4, section 6. Circumstances where such extensions may be approved include:
(A) The record(s) sought are geographically located at places other than the DCAA organizational element processing the request.

(B) The request requires the collection and review of a substantial number of records.

(C) The disclosure determination requires consultation with another DCAA organizational element or other Federal agency with a substantial interest.

(iii) As an alternative to the previously mentioned, DCAA organizational elements may seek informal agreements with requesters for extensions in unusual circumstances when time limits become an issue in the response to the request.

(iv) Misdirected requests should be referred within 10 working days to the proper Federal agency or DCAA organizational element through FOIA channels, and the requester notified of the referral. The 10 working day period allowed for responding to requests will not begin until the DCAA organizational element having the responsive records receives the request.

(6) Initial disclosure determinations.

(i) Initial determinations to make records available may only be made by those IDAs designated in this rule.

NOTE: Requests for audit reports should be directed to the cognizant contracting officer for release determination. (See §290.7(b)).

When a decision is made to release records in response to a FOIA request, DCAA organizational elements will promptly make the records available to the requester. When the request is for the examination of releasable records, DCAA organizational elements will advise the requester when and where he/she may appear. Examinations will be held during normal business hours. If a record is not provided in response to a FOIA request, the IDA will advise the requester, in writing, of the rationale for not providing the record.

(ii) IDAs should consult the Executive Officer, prior to releasing records on matters considered newsworthy or when releasing records to media representatives. Copies of all media requests should be submitted to the Executive Officer.

(iii) The following reasons, other than the statutory exemptions cited in the FOIA, are provided for not releasing a record in response to a FOIA request.

(A) The record is transferred to another DoD component, or to another Federal agency.

(B) The Agency determines through the use of knowledge of its files and reasonable search efforts that it neither controls nor otherwise possesses the requested record.

(C) A record has not been described with sufficient particularity to enable the Agency to locate it by conducting a reasonable search.

(D) The requester has failed unreasonably to comply with procedural requirements, including payment of fees, imposed by this rule.

(E) The record is withdrawn by the requester.

(F) The information requested is not a record within the meaning of the FOIA and this rule.

(7) Denials. (i) A record in the possession and control of DCAA may be withheld only when the record falls within one or more of the nine categories of records exempt from mandatory disclosure under the FOIA, and the use of discretionary authority to release the record is determined to be unwarranted. (Note: Since audit reports are prepared for the use of DoD contracting officers, their release is at the discretion of the DoD contracting activity. To facilitate an expeditious response, requesters should send their requests directly to the DoD contracting activity. (See §290.7(b)). The specific exemptions are detailed in DCAAP 5410.14.

(ii) Although exempt portions of records may be denied, nonexempt portions must be released to the requester when it can reasonably be assumed that the excised information could not be reconstructed. When a record is denied in whole, based on distortion or reconstruction potential, the IDA will prepare a response advising the requester of the determination, and the response will specifically state that it is not possible to reasonably segregate meaningful portions for release.

(iii) When a request for a record is denied in whole or in part, the IDA will inform the requester in writing of the specific exemption(s) on which the denial is based and explain the determination in sufficient detail to permit the requester to make a decision concerning appeal. The determination will also inform the requester of his/her appeal rights. All appeals should be made within 60 calendar days from the date of the initial denial, contain the reasons for the requester’s disagreement with the determination, and be addressed to the Assistant Director, Resources, Defense Contract Audit Agency, 8725 John J. Kingman Road, Suite 2135, Fort Belvoir, VA 22060-6219.

(iv) Records or portions of records which have been previously released become part of the public domain, and cannot be denied thereafter.

(8) Administrative Appeals of Denials. (i) If the IDA declines to provide a record because he/she considers it exempt, that decision may be appealed by the requester, in writing, to the Assistant Director, Resources, DCAA.

NOTE: Normally, IDAs would not issue denials for requests for audit reports. The denial authority for such records generally rests with the cognizant DoD contracting activity. (See §290.7(b)). The appeal should be accompanied by a copy of the letter denying the initial request. Such appeals should contain the basis for disagreement with the initial refusal. Appeal procedures also apply to the disapproval of a request for waiver or reduction of fees. A “no record” finding may be appealed which allows the requester to challenge the adequacy of the Agency’s search. Records which are denied should be retained during the time permitted for appeal.

(ii) IDAs shall advise the requester that an appeal should be filed so that it reaches the designated appellate authority no later than 60 calendar days after the date of the initial denial letter. At the conclusion of this period, except for good cause shown as to why the appeal was not timely, the case may be considered closed; however, such closure does not preclude the requester from filing litigation for denial of his appeal. If the requester has been provided a series of determinations for a single request, the time for appeal will begin on the date of the last determination of the series. Records which are denied shall be retained for a period of six years to meet the statute of limitations of claims requirement.

(iii) Final determinations normally shall be made within 20 working days of receipt of an appropriately submitted appeal.

(9) Delay in responding to an appeal. (i) When additional time is required to respond to the appeal, the final determination may be delayed for the number of working days (not to exceed 10 days) that were not utilized as additional time for responding to the initial request. Requesters shall be advised that, if the delay exceeds the statutory extension provision or is for reasons other than the unusual circumstances previously described, they may consider their administrative remedies exhausted. They may, however, without prejudicing their right of judicial remedy, await a substantive response. DCAA shall continue to process the case expeditiously, whether or not the requester seeks a court order for release of the records, but a copy of any response provided subsequent to filing a complaint shall be forwarded to the Department of Justice through the DCAA General Counsel.

(ii) When the Assistant Director, Resources, DCAA, makes a determination to release all or a portion of the records on appeal, the records shall be made available promptly to the requester after compliance with procedural requirements. The final denial of a request will be made in writing, explain the exemption(s) invoked, advise that the material being denied does not contain meaningful portions that are reasonably segregable, and also advise the requester of the right of judicial review.

(10) Judicial action. A requester will be deemed to have exhausted his administrative remedies after he has been denied the requested record by the Assistant Director, Resources, or when the Agency fails to respond to his request within the time limits prescribed by the FOIA and this rule. The requester may then seek an order from a U.S. District Court in the district in which he resides or has his principal place of business; the district in which the record is situated; or in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, enjoining the Agency from § 290.8 Fees.

(a) Fees shall be determined in accordance with the DoD fee schedule, which is detailed in DCAAAP 5410.14. Fees reflect direct costs for search, review (in the case of commercial requesters), and duplication of documents, collection of which is permitted by the FOIA. Fees are subject to limitations on the nature of assessable fees based on the category of the requester; statutory and automatic waivers based on the category determination and cost of routine collection; and either the waiver or reduction of fees when disclosure serves the public interest.

(b) Fees will not be charged when direct costs for a FOIA request are $15.00 or less, the automatic fee waiver threshold, regardless of category.

(c) Fee assessment. In order to be as responsive as possible to FOIA requests, DCAA organizational elements should adhere to the following when assessing fees:

(1) Evaluate each request to determine the requester category and adequacy of the fee declaration. An adequate fee declaration requires a willingness by the requester to pay fees in an amount equal to, or greater than, the assessable charges for the request.

(2) Provide requesters an opportunity to amend inadequate fee declarations and provide estimates of prospective charges when required. When a requester fails to provide an adequate fee declaration within 30 days after notification of a deficiency, the request for information will be considered withdrawn.

(3) A requester’s claims for assessment of fees under a specific category will be carefully considered. The IDA may require a requester to substantiate a claim for assessment under a claimed category. In the absence of requester claims, the IDA will determine the category into which a requester falls, basing its determination on all available information.

(4) When a DCAA organizational element disagrees with a requester claim for fee assessment under a specific category, the IDA will provide the requester with written determination indicating the following:

(i) The requester should furnish additional justification to warrant the category claimed.

(ii) A search for responsive records will not be initiated until agreement has been attained relative to the category of the requester.

(iii) If further category information has not been received within a reasonable period of time, the component will render a final category determination; and

(iv) The determination may be appealed to the Assistant Director, Resources, within 60 calendar days of the date of the determination.

(d) When a DCAA organizational element estimates or determines that allowable charges that a requester may be required to pay are likely to exceed $250.00, they shall notify the requester of the likely cost and obtain satisfactory assurance of full payment. This fee declaration generally applies when the requester has a history of prompt payments, however, an advance payment may be required of an amount up to the full estimated charges in the case of requesters with no history of payment.

(e) Where a requester has previously failed to pay a fee charged within 30 calendar days from the date of billing, DCAA organizational elements may require the requester to pay the full amount due, plus any applicable interest or demonstrate satisfaction of the debt, and to make an advance payment of the full amount of estimated fees, before processing begins on a new or pending request.

(f) After all work is completed on a request, and the documents are ready for release, DCAA organizational elements may request payment before forwarding the documents if there is no payment history on the requester, or if the requester has previously failed to pay a fee in a timely fashion (i.e., within 30 calendar days from the date of billing). Documents may not be held for release pending payment from requesters with a history of prompt payment.
Office of the Secretary of Defense
Pt. 290, App. A

(g) The administrative time limits for responding to a request will begin only after the DCAA organizational element has received an adequate declaration from the requester stating a willingness to pay fees, and satisfaction that all outstanding debts have been paid.

(h) DCAA organizational elements can bill requesters for services provided in responding to a request. Payment of fees may be made by personal check, bank draft drawn on a U.S. bank, or by U.S. Postal money order. All payments of this type are to be made payable to the U.S. Treasurer.

(i) Aggregating requests. Occasionally, a requester may file multiple requests at the same time, each seeking portions of a document or documents, solely to avoid payments of fees. When a DCAA organizational element reasonably believes that a requester is attempting to do so, the DCAA organizational element may aggregate such requests and charge accordingly. One element to be considered would be the time period in which the requests have occurred. In no case may DCAA organizational elements aggregate multiple requests on unrelated subjects from one requester.

(j) Fee waivers. (1) The determination to waive fees is at the discretion of IDAs designated in this rule. When direct costs for a FOIA request total the automatic fee waiver threshold, or is less, fees shall be waived automatically for all requesters, regardless of category.

(2) Documents will be furnished without charge, or at a charge reduced below fees assessed to the categories of requesters, when the IDA determines that a waiver or reduction of fees is in the public interest because furnishing the information is likely to contribute significantly to public understanding of the operations of DCAA, and is not primarily in the commercial interest of the requester. DCAA organizational elements should refer to DCAAP 5410.14 for factors to consider in applying fee waivers due to public interest. Each fee decision must be considered on a case-by-case basis and upon the merits of the information provided in each request. When the question of whether to charge or waive the fee cannot be clearly resolved, DCAA organizational elements should rule in favor of the requester.

APPENDIX A TO PART 290—DCAA'S ORGANIZATION AND MISSION

(a) Purpose. This section implements 5 U.S.C. 552 by describing the central and field organizations of DCAA.

(b) Origin and Authority. DCAA was established by the Secretary of Defense under Department of Defense (DoD) Directive 5105.36 (32 CFR part 357) and began operating on July 1, 1965. Its Director reports to the Comptroller of the Department of Defense.

(c) Objective. Assist in achieving the objective of prudent contracting by providing DoD officials responsible for procurement and contract administration with financial information and advice on proposed or existing contracts and contractors, as appropriate.

(d) Mission. (1) DCAA performs all necessary contract audits for the Department of Defense, and provides accounting and financial advisory service regarding contracts to all DoD components responsible for procurement and contract administration. These services are provided in connection with negotiations, administration, and settlement of contracts and subcontracts. It also furnishes advisory contract audit service to a number of other government agencies under agreements between the Department of Defense and such agencies.

(2) DCAA audits contractors' and subcontractors' accounts, records, documents, and other evidence; systems of internal control, accounting, costing, estimating, and general business practices and procedures; to give advice and recommendations to procurement and contract administration personnel on: acceptability of costs incurred under cost, redetermination, incentive, and similar type contracts; acceptability of estimates of costs to be incurred as represented by contractors incident to the award, negotiation, and modification of contracts; and adequacy of contractors' accounting and financial management systems and estimating procedures. DCAA also performs post-award audits of contracts for compliance with the provisions of Public Law 87-653 (Truth in Negotiations), and reviews contractor compliance with the Cost Accounting Standards.

(3) DCAA assists responsible procurement or contract administration activities in their surveys of the purchasing procurement systems of major contractors; and cooperates with other DoD components on reviews, audits, analyses, or inquiries involving contractors' financial positions or financial and accounting policies, procedures, or practices. DCAA also maintains liaison auditors at major procuring and contract administration offices and provides assistance in the development of procurement policies and regulations.

(e) Composition. (1) DCAA consists of six major organizational elements: A Headquarters and six regions. The five regional offices manage over 400 field audit offices (FAOs) and suboffices located throughout the United States and overseas. An FAO is identified as either a branch office or a resident office. Suboffices are established by regional directors as extensions of FAOs when required to furnish contract audit service more economically. A suboffice is dependent on its parent FAO for release of audit reports and other administrative support.

(2) The Headquarters located at Fort Belvoir, Virginia consists of:
(i) The Director who exercises worldwide direction and control of DCAA.
(ii) The Deputy Director who serves as principal assistant to the Director and acts for the Director in his absence.
(iii) The Assistant Director, Operations, authorized to act for the Director and Deputy Director in their absence, is responsible for staff functions related to audit management, and technical audit programs, supervises the Technical Services Center in Memphis, Tennessee and the procurement/contract administration liaison offices.
(iv) The Assistant Director, Policy and Plans, is responsible for audit policy and procedures and related liaison functions, and supervises the Defense Contract Audit Institute in Memphis, Tennessee.
(v) The Assistant Director, Resources, is responsible for the programs and procedures related to the management and administration of resources required to support the audit mission.
(vi) The General Counsel provides legal and legislative advice to the Director and all members of the Agency staff.
(vii) The Executive Officer performs a variety of special projects and assignments for the Director and Deputy Director.
(viii) The Special Assistant for Quality reviews the Agency’s compliance with established audit quality control standards, policies, and procedures and other internal control requirements.

(3) Regional offices are located in Smyrna, GA; Lexington, MA; Irving, TX; La Mirada, CA; and Philadelphia, PA. Regional directors direct and administer the DCAA audit mission, and manage personnel and other resources assigned to the regions; manage the contract audit program; and direct the operation of FAOs within their region. Principal elements of regional offices are the Regional Director, Deputy Regional Director, Regional Audit Managers, Regional Special Programs Manager, and Regional Resources Manager.

(4) A resident office is established at a contractor’s location when the amount of audit workload justifies the assignment of a permanent staff of auditors and support staff. A resident office may also perform procurement or contract administration liaison functions.

(5) A branch office is established at a strategically situated location within the region, responsible for performing all contract audit service within the assigned geographical area, exclusive of contract audit service performed by a resident or liaison office within the area. A branch office may also perform procurement or contract administration liaison functions.

(6) If requested, a DCAA liaison office is established at a DoD procurement or contract administration office when required on a full-time basis to provide effective communication and coordination among procurement, contract administration, and contract audit elements. Liaison offices assist in effective utilization of contract audit services.

(b) [Reserved]

Appendix C to Part 290—For Official Use Only

(a) General. Information that has not been given a security classification pursuant to the criteria of an Executive Order, but which may be withheld from the public for one or more of the reasons cited in FOIA Exemptions 2 through 9 shall be considered as being for official use only. No other material shall be considered or marked "For Official Use Only" (FOUO). FOUO is not authorized as an anemic form of classification to protect national security interests.

(b) Prior FOUO Application. The prior application of FOUO markings is not a conclusive basis for withholding a record that is requested under the FOIA. When such a record is requested, the information in it shall be evaluated to determine whether, under current circumstances, FOIA exemptions apply in withholding the record or portions of it. If any exemption or exemptions apply or applies, it may nonetheless be released when it is determined that no governmental interest will be jeopardized by its release. (1) Historical Papers. Records such as notes, working papers, and drafts retained as historical evidence of Agency actions enjoy no special status apart from the exemptions under the FOIA.

(2) Time to Mark Records. The marking of records at the time of their creation provides FOUO status is terminated, the release and transmission instructions that follow apply:

(i) FOUO status may be disseminated within the Agency and between officials of DoD Components and DoD contractors, consultants, and grantees to conduct official business for the Department of Defense. Recipients shall be made aware of the status of such information, and transmission shall be by means that preclude unauthorized public disclosure. Transmittal documents shall call attention to the presence of FOUO attachments.

(ii) Agency and DoD holders of FOUO information are authorized to convey such information to officials in other departments and agencies of the executive and judicial branches to fulfill a government function, except to the extent prohibited by the Privacy Act. Records thus transmitted shall be marked “For Official Use Only”, and the recipient shall be advised that the information has been exempted from public disclosure, pursuant to the FOUO, and that special handling instructions do or do not apply.

(iii) Release of FOUO information to Members of Congress is governed by DoD Directive 5400.4. Release to the GAO is governed by DoD Directive 7651.1. Records released to the Congress or GAO shall be reviewed to determine whether the information warrants FOUO status. If not, prior FOUO markings shall be removed or effaced. If withholding criteria are met, the records shall be marked FOUO, and the recipient provided an explanation for such exemption and marking. Alternatively, the recipient may be requested, without marking the record, to protect against its public disclosure for reasons that are explained.

(iv) Records or documents containing FOUO information will be transported between offices in such a manner as to preclude disclosure of the contents. First-class mail and ordinary parcel post may be used for transmission of FOUO information. The double envelope system required for classified material may be used when it is considered desirable to exclude examination by mail handling personnel. In such cases, the inner envelope should be addressed to the intended recipient by title or name and contain a statement that the envelope is to be opened by the addressee only.

(v) FOUO material prepared on personal computers or other data processing equipment should be password protected at origination.

(vi) Requests for Field Detachment sensitive information must be coordinated with the Director, Field Detachment, through Headquarters, DCAA.

1 Copies may be obtained, at cost, from the National Technical Information Service, 5285 Port Royal Road, Springfield, VA 22161.

4 See footnote 1 to paragraph (b)(3).
(2) Transporting FOUO Information. Records containing FOUO information shall be transported in a manner that precludes disclosure of the contents. When not classified information, FOUO information may be sent via first-class mail or parcel post. Bulky shipments, such as distributions of FOUO Directives or testing materials, may be sent by fourth-class mail.

(3) Electrically Transmitted Messages. Each part of electrically transmitted messages containing FOUO information shall be marked appropriately. Unclassified messages containing FOUO information shall contain the abbreviation "FOUO" before the beginning of the text. Such messages shall be transmitted in accordance with communications security procedures in Allied Communications Publication 121 (U.S. Supp 1) for FOUO information.

(e) Safeguarding FOUO Information. (1) During Duty Hours. During normal working hours, records determined to be FOUO shall be placed in an out-of-sight location if the work area is accessible to nongovernmental personnel.

(2) During Nonduty Hours. At the close of business, FOUO records shall be stored so as to preclude unauthorized access. Filing such material with other unclassified records in unlocked files or desks, etc., is adequate when normal U.S. Government or Government-contractor internal building security is provided during nonduty hours. When such internal security control is not exercised, locked buildings or rooms normally provide adequate after hours protection. If such protection is not considered adequate, FOUO material shall be stored in locked receptacles such as file cabinets, desks, or bookcases. FOUO records that are subject to the provisions of Public Law 86-36 shall meet the safeguards outlined for that group of records.

(3) Field audit offices located in contractor owned facilities will ensure that material marked FOUO is stored in a locked receptacle to which the contractor does not have access during nonduty hours.

(n) Protection of Field Detachment Sensitive Information. (1) Definition. All communication, which qualifies for withholding under Exemptions (2) through (9), between regular DCAA organizational elements and Field Detachment offices is sensitive information and, as a minimum, shall be marked: FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY (FOUO).

(2) Markings. (i) Communications, which qualify for withholding under Exemptions (2) through (9) initiated by a Field Detachment office, will bear the following marking:

FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY

Access limited to addressee and higher designated representative(s) with a need-to-know. This document may not be reproduced or further disseminated without the approval of the Director, Field Detachment, DCAA.

(ii) All correspondence specifically exempt under Exemptions (2) through (9), including assist audit requests, generated by a regular (non-FD) DCAA office, which is addressed to the Field Detachment, either Headquarters or a field audit office, will be marked FOR OffICIAL USE ONLY and will be limited within the FAO to one protected office copy.

(3) Storage. (i) All Field Detachment sensitive information in the possession of a regular DCAA office will be stored in a classified container, if available. If a classified container

APPENDIX D TO PART 290—AUDIT WORKING PAPERS

(a) Definition

(1) Audit working papers contain information from accounting and statistical records, personal observations, the results of interviews and inquiries, and other available sources. Audit working papers may also include contract briefs, copies of correspondence, excerpts from corporate minutes, organization charts, copies of written policies and procedures, and other substantiating documentation. The extent and arrangement of working paper files will depend to a large measure on the nature of the audit assignment.

(2) Working papers are generally classified in two categories: the permanent file and the current file.

(i) Permanent file.

(A) The permanent file on each contractor is a central repository of information gathered during the course of an audit which has continuing value and use to subsequent audits expected to be performed at the same contractor. Permanent files are useful in preparing the audit program and in determining the appropriate scope of subsequent audits. They also provide ready means for auditors to become familiar with the contractor’s operations and any existing audit problems or contractor system weaknesses. While summary information on the contractor’s organization, financial structure and policies may sometimes be included in permanent files for smaller contractors, such information on large contractors with continuing audit activity is generally maintained in the field audit office at the central reference library.

(B) Items which would logically be included in the permanent file as having continuing value in future audit assignments include:

(1) Internal control questionnaire.
(2) Internal control review update control log.
(3) Vulnerability assessment.
(4) MAARS control log.
(5) Disclosure statement and revisions in accordance with CAS rules and regulations, and CAS compliance control schedules and a noncompliance summary schedule.

(ii) Current File. The current file usually consists of working papers which have limited use on future assignments. DCAA Forms 7640-19 a, b, and c are the Agencywide Working Paper Indexes and provide a concise summary of items generally found in audit working papers.

(b) Explanation.

(1) The preparation of working papers assists the auditor in accomplishing the objectives of an audit assignment. Working papers serve as the basis for the conclusions in the audit report; provide a record of the work done for use as substantiating data in negotiations, appeals, and litigation; provide guidance for subsequent examinations; and serve as a basis for the review and evaluation of the work performed.

(2) Audit working papers are generally prepared at the time audit work is performed and are maintained on a current basis. Working papers normally reflect the progress of the audit and are designed to ensure continuity of the audit effort.

(3) Working papers should be relevant to the audit assignment and not include extraneous pages. Superseded working papers should be clearly marked as such and retained as part of the working paper package.

(4) The nature of audit working papers requires that proper control and adequate safeguards be maintained at all times. Working papers frequently reflect information considered confidential by the contractor and are marked “For Official Use Only” or are classified for government security purposes.

Office of the Secretary of Defense

§ 291.1 Purpose.
This part establishes policies and procedures for the DNA FOIA program.

§ 291.2 Applicability.
This part applies to Headquarters, Defense Nuclear Agency (HQ, DNA), Field Command, Defense Nuclear Agency (FCDNA), and the Armed Forces Radiobiology Research Institute (AFRRI).

§ 291.3 Definitions.
(a) FOIA Request. A written request for DNA records made by any person, including a member of the public (U.S. or foreign citizen), an organization, or a business, but not including a Federal agency or a fugitive from the law that either explicitly or implicitly invokes the FOIA (5 U.S.C. 552), 32 CFR part 285, 286, or this part.

(b) Agency record.
(1) The products of data compilation, such as all books, papers, maps, and photographs, machine readable materials or other documentary materials, regardless of physical form or characteristics, made or received by an agency of the United States Government under Federal law in connection with the transaction of public business and in DNA’s possession and control at the time the FOIA request is made.

(2) The following are not included within the definition of the word record:
(i) Objects or articles, such as structures, furniture, vehicles and equipment, whatever their historical value, or value as evidence.
(ii) Administrative tools by which records are created, stored, and retrieved, if not created or used as sources of information about organizations, policies, functions, decisions, or procedures of a DNA organization. Normally, computer software, including source code, object code, and listings of source and object codes, regardless of medium are not agency records. (This does not include the underlying data which is processed and produced by such software and which may in some instances be stored with the software.) Exceptions to this position are outlined in paragraph (b)(3) of this section.
(iii) Anything that is not a tangible or documentary record, such as an individual’s memory or oral communication.
(iv) Personal records of an individual not subject to agency creation or retention requirements, created and maintained primarily for the convenience of an agency employee, and not distributed to other agency employees for their official use.
(v) Information stored within a computer for which there is no existing computer program for retrieval of the requested information.
(3) In some instances, computer software may have to be treated as an agency record and processed under the FOIA. These situations are rare, and shall be treated on a case-by-case basis. Examples of when computer software may have to be treated as an agency record are:
(i) When the data is embedded within the software and cannot be extracted without the software. In this situation, both the data and the software must be reviewed for release or denial under the FOIA.
(ii) Where the software itself reveals information about organizations, policies, functions, decisions, or procedures of a DNA office, such as computer models used to forecast budget outlays, calculate retirement system costs, or optimization models on travel costs.
(iii) Refer to §291.8(b) exemptions 2, 4 and 5 for guidance on release determinations of computer software.
(4) If unaltered publications and processed documents, such as regulations, manuals, maps, charts, and related geophysical materials are available to the public through an established distribution system with or without charge, the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(3) normally do not apply and they need not be processed under the FOIA. Normally, documents disclosed to the public by publication in the Federal Register also require no processing under the FOIA. In such cases, PAO will direct the requester to the appropriate source, to obtain the record.

(d) Initial denial authority (IDA). The Deputy Director (DDIR), DNA, has the authority to withhold records requested under the FOIA for one or more of the nine categories (set forth §291.8) of records exempt from mandatory disclosure.

(e) Appellate authority. The Director, DNA.

(f) Administrative appeal. A request by a member of the general public, made under the FOIA, asking the appellate authority of a DoD Component (Director, DNA) to reverse an IDA decision to withhold all or part of a requested record or to deny a request for a waiver or reduction of fees.

(g) Public interest. Public interest is official information that sheds light on an agency's performance of its statutory duties because it falls within the statutory purpose of the FOIA in informing citizens about what their government is doing. That statutory purpose, however, is not fostered by disclosure of information about private citizens that is accumulated in various governmental files that reveals little or nothing about an agency's or official's own conduct.

(h) Electronic data. Electronic data are those records and information which are created, stored, and retrievable by electronic means. This does not include computer software, which is the tool by which to create, store, or retrieve electronic data. Refer to paragraphs (b) (2) and (3) of this section for a discussion of computer software.

§ 291.4 Policy.

(a) Compliance with the FOIA. DNA personnel are expected to comply with the FOIA and this part in both letter and spirit. This strict adherence is necessary to provide uniformity in the implementation of the DNA FOIA Program and to create conditions that will promote public trust. It is DNA policy to fully and completely respond to public requests for information concerning its operations and activities, consistent with national security objectives.

(b) Openness with the public. 32 CFR part 286 states that all DoD employees shall conduct DoD activities in an open manner consistent with the need for security and adherence to other requirements of law and regulation. Records that are not specifically exempt from disclosure under the Act shall, upon request, be made readily accessible to the public in accordance with rules promulgated by competent authority, whether or not the Act is invoked.

(c) Avoidance of procedural obstacles. DNA offices shall ensure that procedural matters do not unnecessarily impede a requester from obtaining DNA records promptly. PAO shall provide assistance to requesters to help them understand and comply with procedures established by this Instruction, the 32 CFR part 286 and any supplemental regulations published by DoD.

(d) Prompt action on requests. When a member of the public complies with the procedures established for obtaining DNA records, the request shall receive prompt attention; a reply shall be dispatched within 10 working days, unless a delay is authorized. When PAO has a significant number of requests, e.g., 10 or more, the requests shall be processed in order of receipt. However, this does not preclude PAO from completing action on a request which can be easily answered, regardless of its ranking within the order of receipt. In addition, PAO may expedite action on a request regardless of its ranking within the order of receipt in the event of a showing of exceptional need or urgency. Exceptional need or urgency is determined at the discretion of the PAO.

(e) Use of exemptions. It is DoD/DNA policy to make records publicly available, unless they qualify for exemption under one or more of the nine exemptions. Components may elect to make a discretionary release; however, a discretionary release is generally not appropriate for records exempt under exemptions 1, 3, 4, 6 and 7(C). Exemptions 4, 6 and 7(C) cannot be claimed when the requester is the submitter of the information.

(f) Public domain. Nonexempt records released under the authority of this part are considered to be in the public domain. Such records may also be made available through the reading room channel to facilitate public access. Exempt records released pursuant to this part or other statutory or regulatory authority, however, may be considered to be in the public domain when their release constitutes a waiver of the FOIA exemption. When the release does not constitute such a waiver, such as when disclosure is made to a properly constituted advisory committee or to a Congressional committee, the released records do not lose their exempt status. Also, while authority may exist to disclose records to individuals in their official capacity, the provisions of this part apply if the same individual seeks the records in a private or personal capacity.

(g) Creating a record. (1) A record must exist and be in the possession of and in control of the DNA at the time of the search to be considered subject to this part and the FOIA. Mere possession of a record does not presume agency control, and such records, or identifiable portions thereof, would be referred to the originating agency for direct response to the requester. There is no obligation to create or compile a record to satisfy a FOIA request. However, a DNA employee may compile a new record when so doing would result in a more useful response to the requester, or be less burdensome to the agency than providing existing records, and the requester does not object. The cost of creating or compiling such a record may not be charged to the requester unless the fee for creating the record is equal to or less than the fee which would be charged for providing the existing record.

(2) With respect to electronic data, the issue of whether records are actually created or merely extracted from an existing database is not always readily apparent. Consequently, when responding to FOIA requests for electronic data where creation of a record, programming, or particular format are questionable, offices should apply a standard of reasonableness. In other words, if the capability exists to respond to the request, and the effort would be a business as usual approach, then the request should be processed. However, the request need not be processed where the capability to respond does not exist without a significant expenditure of resources, thus not being a normal business as usual approach.

(h) Description of requested record. (1) Identification of the record desired is the responsibility of the member of the public who requests a record. The requester must provide a description of the desired record that will enable the Government to locate the record with a reasonable amount of effort. The Act does not authorize “fishing expeditions.” When DNA receives a request that does not “reasonably describe” the requested record, PAO shall notify the requester of the defect. The defect should be highlighted in a specificity letter, asking the requester to provide the type of information outlined in paragraph (h)(2) of this section. DNA is not obligated to act on the request until the requester responds to the specificity letter. When practical, PAO shall offer assistance to the requester in identifying the records sought and in reformulating the request to reduce the burden on the Agency in complying with the Act.

(2) The following guidelines are provided to deal with “fishing expedition” requests and are based on the principle of reasonable effort. Descriptive information about a record may be divided into two broad categories.

(i) Category I is file-related and includes information such as type of record (for example, memorandum), title, index citation, subject area, date the record was created, and originator.

(ii) Category II is event-related and includes the circumstances that resulted in the record being created or the date and circumstances surrounding the event the record covers.

(3) Generally, a record is not reasonably described unless the description contains sufficient Category I information to permit the conduct of an organized, nonrandom search based on DNA’s filing arrangements and existing retrieval systems, or unless the record contains sufficient Category II information to permit inference of the Category I elements needed to conduct such a search.

(4) The following guidelines deal with requests for personal records. Ordinarily, when personal identifiers are provided only in connection with a request for records concerning the requester, only records retrievable by personal identifiers need be searched.
§ 291.5 Responsibilities.

(a) The Director, DNA, as appellate authority, is responsible for reviewing and making the final decision on FOIA appeals.

(b) The DDIR, as IDA, is responsible for reviewing all initial denials to FOIA requests and has sole responsibility for withholding that information.

(c) The DNA FOIA Officer, who is also the Public Affairs Officer, manages and implements the DNA FOIA program. In this regard, the Public Affairs Officer serves as the FOIA point-of-contact and liaison between DNA and the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs) (OASD(PA)). The Public Affairs Officer is responsible for:

1. Advising OASD(PA), DFOI/SR, of any DNA denial of a request for records or appeals that may affect another DoD component.

2. Ensuring publication of this part in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

3. Ensuring that the Command Services Directorate publishes in the Federal Register a notice of where, how and by what authority DNA performs its functions.

4. Ensuring that the Command Services Directorate, publishes an index of DNA instructions in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

5. Coordinating all FOIA actions, except routine, interim replies indicating that the initial receipt of a FOIA request was received by the appropriate DNA offices and the DNA General Counsel (GC).

6. Forwarding all fees collected under the FOIA to the HQ, DNA, Finance and Accounting Officer for further processing.

7. Coordinating action on FOIA requests that involve other government organizations (e.g., when DNA is not the original classifier for a classified document) with those organizations.

8. Ensuring FOIA briefings are presented annually for DNA personnel.

9. Submitting an annual report to OASD(PA), DFOI/SR, in accordance with the requirements of DoD Directive 5400.11.

(d) The Commander, FCDNA, is responsible for determining, based on current directives and instruction, what information in FCDNA custody may be released to FOIA requesters. (This responsibility may be delegated.) The Commander, FCDNA, is responsible for designating a representative to process FOIA requests. The Commander has the authority to release documents in response to the FOIA. When FCDNA releases information under the FOIA, it will forward a copy of the request, the response and the appropriate cost sheet to HQ, DNA, ATTN: PAO (FOIA). FCDNA will not deny requests for information under the FOIA; instead, it will forward to...
HQ, DNA, PAO a recommendation and justification for denying the FOIA request.

(e) The Director, AFRRI, is responsible for designating a representative to process FOIA requests and to forward them to HQ, DNA, (PAO) for coordination and preparation of a final response.

(f) The DNA GC shall coordinate on all DNA FOIA response except routine interim letters which acknowledge receipt of the FOIA request. That office shall also ensure uniformity in the legal position and interpretation by DNA of the FOIA, and coordinate with the DoD GC, as necessary.

(g) The HQ, DNA, Finance and Accounting Officer will ensure that fees collected under the FOIA are forwarded to the Finance and Accounting Office, U.S. Army, to be submitted to the Treasury of the United States.

(h) HQ, DNA, Assistant Director for Intelligence and Security, Classification Management Division (ISCM), will conduct security reviews of classified documents requested under the FOIA. ISCM will determine whether the document.

(1) Contains information that meets requirements for withholding under Exemption 1 Executive Order 12356.
(2) Has information that meets requirements for withholding under Exemption 3, to include Restricted Data and Formerly Restricted Data, 42 U.S.C. 2162.
(3) Has information that may be declassified or sanitized. ISCM is also responsible for sanitizing DNA classified information from documents requested under the FOIA (refer to §291.6(b)(5)). In addition, ISCM is responsible for advising the Assistant Director for Technical Information (CSTI) to notify the appropriate authorities when information has been reclassified as a result of a DNA FOIA review.

(i) HQ, DNA, CSLE will, upon request, ensure that photocopies are made of 50-page or larger documents being processed under the FOIA. (Copies are required only when documents are not available from other sources.)

(j) CSTI, Technical Library Division (TITL), will, upon notification from PAO that a document has been cleared for public release under the FOIA, retain the marked up document in its files, annotate the FOIA case number in the computerized data base and ensure that the document is made available to the public through the National Technical Information Service (NTIS).

(k) Commander, FCDNA; Director, AFRRI; and directors and chiefs of staff elements at HQ, DNA, will ensure that personnel are familiar with the procedures and contents of this part prior to acting on FOIA requests. They will also make sure that FOIA actions forwarded to their offices for processing are closely monitored to ensure accountability and that their input to PAO is provided in a timely manner and in accordance with this part. (Refer to §291.7(b)(2)). If the office(s) cannot meet the FOIA suspense, they must request an extension. In addition, they will ensure that, upon request by PAO, appropriate technical personnel sanitize information such as unclassified technical data, that is determined to be exempt from disclosure under the FOIA. (Refer to §291.7(b)(5)).

§ 291.6 Procedures.

(a) If HQ, DNA personnel receive a FOIA request that has not been logged and processed through PAO, they will immediately handcarry the request to PAO. TDNM and AFRRI personnel will forward all FOIA requests to HQ, DNA, Atttn: PAO. FCDNA will adhere to paragraph 6d and FCDNA Supplement to DNA Instruction 5400.7C.
(b) When a FOIA request is received by PAO, HQ, DNA, the following procedures apply:

(1) The request will be date stamped, reviewed to determine if it meets the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552, logged in, assigned an action number, suspended, and attached to a FOIA cover sheet with instructions for forwarding to the appropriate office. A copy of DD Form 2086 or DD Form 2086-1 will also be attached to the FOIA request.
(2) A copy of the request will be handcarried by PAO to the designated HQ, DNA, action office(s) or forwarded to AFRRI or FCDNA, as appropriate.

\(^2\)Copies can be obtained from Defense Nuclear Agency PAO or SSAB, Defense Nuclear Agency, 6801 Telegraph Road, Alexandria, VA 22310-3958.
The office or component providing input for the FOIA request must keep track of the request and meet the PAO suspense. The HQ, DNA input, or negative response, if there are no records available, will be handcarried to PAO. AFRRI will send the recommended response in daily distribution. FCDNA will telefax the proposed response in addition to mailing the original. All FOIA actions must include a completed DD Form 2086 or 2086-1. Each office acting on FOIA requests will indicate on the form the search, review/authorize and coordination time spent processing the FOIA action, and provide the number of pages copied.

(3) The DNA PAO will prepare the response to the requester and coordinate it with the offices that provided input, the GC, and if appropriate, ISCM, the IDA, the Director, DNA, OASD(PA), and outside agencies, if involved. The PAO will maintain files of all FOIA actions per DNA Instruction 5015.4B.

(4) If a request is received by a DNA office which does not have records responsive but office personnel believe another office would have the records requested, they must contact the other office to confirm the existence of the documents, forward the FOIA action to that office and notify PAO.

(5) FOIAs involving classified information.

When ISCM or contractor security reviewers receive a classified document from PAO for processing under the FOIA, they will conduct a security review to determine if the document may be sanitized or declassified. When FCSS determines that part or all of the information in a classified document may be sanitized or declassified, FCSS will make a copy which will be marked up during review. Upon completion of its review, FCSS will provide the marked up document and a sanitized version of the document to PAO. FCSS review must include a detailed response providing the appropriate exemption(s) and justification for withholding. When ISCM/FCSS completes its review, ISCM/FCSS will forward the marked up document to the appropriate technical office(s) for review. That office will determine whether the remaining unclassified information is releasable and provide its response to ISCM/FCSS. If the office recommends that part or all of the information be withheld, then it must forward a detailed response providing the appropriate exemption(s) and justification for withholding.

The technical office will return documents with results of their review to ISCM. ISCM will forward the results of both reviews to PAO for further processing. If either ISCM/FCSS or the DNA office reviewing the action recommends additional review by another agency, they will provide the full name and address of that agency with a technical point-of-contact, if known. PAO will forward the action to that organization for further review. When PAO receives that organization's review determination, it will forward the results to ISCM/FCSS. After all reviews are completed, ISCM/FCSS will sanitize the document and handcarry (FCSS will forward) the sanitized as well as the marked up copy to PAO for final processing.

(6) FOIAs involving unclassified information. The appropriate technical office(s) will review unclassified documents for release under the FOIA. If the office(s) determines that part or all of the document should be withheld, it must provide PAO a written recommendation with the appropriate exemption(s) (§ 291.8) and detailed reasons for withholding the information. Upon PAO request, the technical office(s) will sanitize the unclassified information that is being withheld. Sanitization will be done on a photocopy of the document or on a document that has been obtained from DTIC.

§ 291.7 Administrative instruction.

(a) FOIA requesters shall clearly mark their requests as such, both on the envelope and in the body of the letter. Identification of the record desired is the responsibility of the FOIA requester. The requester must provide a description of the desired record that enables DNA to locate it with a reasonable amount of effort. The Act does not authorize “fishing expeditions.” FOIA requests should be sent to the following address: Public Affairs Officer, Defense Nuclear Agency, Attention: FOIA, 6801 Telegraph Road, Alexandria, VA 22310±3398. Requester failure to comply with this section shall not be sole grounds of denial for requested information.

(b) FOIA appeals must be clearly marked as such, both on the envelope and in the body of the letter. Persons appealing DNA denial letters should include a copy of the denial letter, the case number, a statement of the relief sought and the grounds upon which it is brought. Appeals should be sent to the following address: Director, Defense Nuclear Agency, 6801 Telegraph Road, Alexandria, VA 22310±3398.

(c) The time limitations for responding to legitimate FOIA requests are:

(1) Determinations to release, deny or transfer a record shall be made and the decision reported to the requester within 10 working days after the request is received in PAO.

(2) If additional time is needed to respond to a request, the requester will be notified within the 10-day period. When PAO has a significant number of requests, e.g., 10 or more, the requests shall be processed in order of receipt. However, this does not preclude PAO from completing action on a request which can be easily answered, regardless of its ranking within the order of receipt. PAO may expedite action on a request regardless of its ranking within the order of receipt upon a showing of exceptional need or urgency. Exceptional need or urgency is determined at the discretion of the Public Affairs Officer.

(3) If a request for a record is denied and the requester appeals the decision of the IDA, the requester should file the appeal so that it reaches DNA no later than 60 calendar days after the date of the initial denial letter. At the conclusion of this period, the case may be considered closed; however, such closure does not preclude the requester from filing litigation. In cases where the requester is provided several incremental determinations for a single request, the time for the appeal shall not begin until the requester receives the last such notification. A final determination on the appeal normally shall be made within 20 working days after receipt. If additional time is needed due to unusual circumstances, the final decision may be delayed for the number of working days (not to exceed 10), that were not utilized as additional time for responding to the initial request. If an appeal is denied, the Director, DNA, will notify the requester of the right to judicial review of the decision. Appeal procedures also apply to the disapproval of a request for waiver or reduction of fees.

(d) If DNA denies the requested document in whole or in part, the response must include detailed rationale for withholding information and the specific exemption that applies so the requester can make a decision concerning appeal. When the initial denial is based in whole or in part on a security classification, the explanation should include a summary of the applicable criteria for classification, as well as an explanation, to the extent reasonably feasible, of how those criteria apply to the particular record in question. Denial letters must also include the name and title of the IDA, and cite the name and address of the Director, DNA, as the appellate authority.

(e) All final responses will address the status of fees collectible under the FOIA. Fees of $15 or less will be waived, regardless of category of requester.

(f) A formal reading room for the public, as defined in 32 CFR part 286, § 291.8 Exemptions.

(a) General. Records that meet the exemption criteria listed in paragraph (b) below may be withheld from public disclosure and will not be published in the Federal Register, made available in a library, reading room, or provided in response to a FOIA request.

(b) FOIA exemptions. The following types of records may be withheld in whole or in part from public disclosure under the FOIA, unless otherwise prescribed by law. A discretionary release (see also §291.4(e)) to one requester may preclude the withholding of the same record under a FOIA exemption if the record is subsequently requested by someone else. In applying exemptions, the identity of the requester and the purpose for which the record is sought are irrelevant with the exception that an exemption may not be invoked where the particular interest to be protected is the requester's interest.

(1) Number 1. Those properly and currently classified in the interest of national defense or foreign policy, as specifically authorized under the criteria established by executive order and implemented by regulations, such as DoD 5200.1-R.³ Although material is not classified at the time of the FOIA request, a classification review may be undertaken to determine whether the information should be classified. The procedures in DoD 5200.1-R, section 2-204f., apply. In addition, this exemption shall be invoked when the following situations are apparent:

(i) The fact of the existence or nonexistence of a record would itself reveal classified information. In this situation, DNA shall neither confirm nor deny the existence or nonexistence of the record being requested. A “refusal to confirm or deny” response must be used consistently, not only when a record exists, but also when a record does not exist. Otherwise, the pattern of using a “no record” response when a record does not exist, and a “refusal to confirm or deny” when a record does exist will itself disclose national security information.

(ii) Information that concerns one or more of the classification categories established by executive order and DoD 5200.1-R shall be classified if its unauthorized disclosure, either by itself or in the context of other information, reasonably could be expected to cause damage to the national security.

(2) Number 2. Those related solely to the internal personnel rules and practices of DNA. This exemption has two profiles, high b2 and low b2.

(i) Records qualifying under high b2 are those containing or constituting statutes, rules, regulations, orders, manuals, directives, and instructions, the release of which would allow circumvention of these records, thereby substantially hindering the effective performance of a significant function of the DNA. Examples include:

(A) Those operating rules, guidelines and manuals for DNA investigators, inspectors, auditors, or examiners that must remain privileged in order for the DNA office to fulfill a legal requirement.

(B) Personnel and other administration matters, such as examination questions and answers used in training courses or in the determination of the qualifications of candidates for employment, entrance on duty, advancement, or promotion.

(C) Computer software meeting the standards of paragraph 291.3(b)(2)(iii), the release of which would allow circumvention of a statute or DoD rules, regulations, orders, manuals, directives, or instructions. In this situation, the use of the software must be clearly examined to ensure a circumvention possibility exists.

(ii) Records qualifying under the low b2 profile are those that are trivial and housekeeping in nature for which there is no legitimate public interest or benefit to be gained by release, and it would constitute an administrative burden to process the request in order to disclose the records. Examples include: Rules of personnel's use of parking facilities or regulation of lunch hours, statements of policy as to sick leave, and trivial administrative data such as file numbers, mail routing stamps, initials, data processing notations, brief references to previous communications, and other like administrative markings.

(3) Number 3. Those containing matters that a statute specifically exempts from disclosure by terms that permit no discretion on the issue, or in accordance with criteria established by that statute for withholding or referring to particular types of matters to be withheld. Examples of statutes are:

(ii) Patent Secrecy, 35 U.S.C. 181–188. Any records containing information relating to inventions that are the subject of patent applications on which Patent Secrecy Orders have been issued.

(iii) Restricted Data and Formerly Restricted Data, 42 U.S.C. 2162.

(iv) Communication Intelligence, 18 U.S.C. 798.

(v) Authority to Withhold from Public Disclosure Certain Technical Data, 10 U.S.C. 130 and DoD Directive 5230.25.4

(vi) Confidentiality of Medical Quality Records: Qualified Immunity Participants, 10 U.S.C. 1102.

(vii) Physical Protection of Special Nuclear Material: Limitation on Dissemination of Unclassified Information, 10 U.S.C. 128.

(viii) Protection of Intelligence Sources and Methods, 50 U.S.C. 403 (d)(3).

(4) Number 4. Those containing trade secrets or commercial or financial information that DNA receives from a person or organization outside the government with the understanding that the information or record will be retained on a privileged or confidential basis in accordance with the customary handling of such records. Records within the exemption must contain trade secrets, or commercial or financial records, the disclosure of which is likely to cause substantial harm to the competitive position of the source providing the information; impair the Government's ability to obtain necessary information in the future; or impair some other legitimate government interest. Examples include:

(i) Commercial or financial information received in confidence in connection with loans, bids, contracts, or proposals, as well as other information received in confidence or privileged, such as trade secrets, inventions, discoveries, or other proprietary data. See 32 CFR part 286, “Release of Acquisition-Related Information.”

(ii) Statistical data and commercial or financial information concerning contract performance, income, profits, losses and expenditures, if offered and received in confidence from a contractor or potential contractor.

(iii) Personal statements given in the course of inspections, investigations, or audits, when such statements are received in confidence from the individual and retained in confidence because they reveal trade secrets or commercial or financial information normally considered confidential or privileged.

(iv) Financial data provided in confidence by private employers in connection with locality wage surveys that are used to fix and adjust pay schedules applicable to the prevailing wage rate of employees within the Department of Defense.

(v) Scientific and manufacturing processes or developments concerning technical or scientific data or other information, submitted with an application for a research grant, or with a report, while research is in progress.

(vi) Technical or scientific data developed by a contractor or subcontractor exclusively at private expense, and technical or scientific data developed in part with Federal funds and in part at private expense, wherein the contractor or subcontractor has retained legitimate proprietary interests in such data in accordance with title 10, U.S.C. 2320–2321 and DoD Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement (DFARS), subpart 27.4. Technical data developed exclusively with Federal funds may be withheld under Exemption Number 3 if it meets the criteria of 10 U.S.C. 130 and DoD Directive 5230.25 (refer to paragraph (b)(3)(v)).

4See footnote 1 to §291.5(c)(9).
(vii) Computer software meeting the conditions of section 4(b)(3), which is copyrighted under the Copyright Act of 1976 (17 U.S.C. 106), the disclosure of which would have an adverse impact on the potential market value of a copyrighted work.

(5) Number 5. Except as provided in paragraphs (b)(5)(i) through (v) of this section, internal advice, recommendations, and subjective evaluations, as contrasted with factual matters, that are reflected in records pertaining to the decisionmaking process of any agency, whether within or among agencies (as defined in 5 U.S.C. 552(e)) or within or among DoD/DNA offices. Also exempted are records pertaining to the attorney-client privilege and the attorney work-product privilege.

(i) Examples include:
(A) The nonfactual portions of staff papers, to include after-action reports and situation reports containing staff evaluations, advice, opinions or suggestions.
(B) Advice, suggestions, or evaluations prepared on behalf of the DNA by individual consultants or by boards, committees, councils, groups, panels, conferences, commissions, task forces, or other similar groups that are formed for the purpose of obtaining advice and recommendations.
(C) Those nonfactual portions of evaluations by DNA personnel of contractors and their products.
(D) Information of a speculative, tentative, or evaluative nature or such matters as proposed plans to procure, lease or otherwise acquire and dispose of materials, real estate, facilities or functions, when such information would provide undue or unfair competitive advantage to private personal interests or would impede legitimate government functions.
(E) Trade secret or other confidential research, development, or commercial information owned by the Government, where premature release is likely to affect the Government's negotiating position or other commercial interests.
(F) Records that are exchanged among agency personnel as part of the preparation for anticipated administrative proceedings by DNA, or litigation before any federal, state, or military court, as well as records that qualify for the attorney-client privilege.

(G) Those portions of official reports of inspection, reports of the Inspector General, audits, investigations, or surveys pertaining to safety, security, or the internal management, administration, or operation of DNA within these records have traditionally been treated by the courts as privileged against disclosure in litigation.

(H) Computer software meeting the standards of paragraph 291.3(b)(2)(iii), which is deliberative in nature, the disclosure of which would inhibit or chill the decision-making process. In this situation, the use of software must be closely examined to ensure its deliberative nature.

(i) Planning, programming, and budgetary information which is involved in the defense planning and resource allocation process.

(ii) If any such intra- or inter-agency record or reasonably segregable portion of such record hypothetically would be made available routinely through the "discovery process" in the course of litigation with DNA, i.e., the process by which litigants obtain information from each other that is relevant to the issues in trial or hearing, then it should not be withheld from the general public even though "discovery" has not been sought in actual litigation. If, however, the information hypothetically would only be made available through the discovery process by special order of the court based on the particular needs of a litigant, balanced against the interests of the agency in maintaining its confidentiality, then the record or document need not be made available under this part. Consult with legal counsel to determine whether exemption 5 material would be routinely made available through the "discovery process".

(iii) Intra- or inter-agency memoranda or letters that are factual, or those reasonably segregable portions that are factual, are routinely made available through the "discovery process".
uninformative, or so redundant of information already available to the requester as to provide no new substantive information.

(iv) A direction or order from a superior to a subordinate, though contained in an internal communication, generally cannot be withheld from a requester if it constitutes policy guidance or a decision, as distinguished from a discussion of preliminary matters or a request for information or advice that would compromise the decision-making process.

(v) An internal communication concerning a decision that subsequently has been made a matter of public record must be made available to a requester when the rationale for the decision is expressly adopted or incorporated by reference in the record containing the decision.

(6) Number 6. Information in personnel and medical files, as well as similar personal information in other files, that, if disclosed to the requester would result in a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Release of information about an individual contained in a Privacy Act System of Records that would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of privacy is prohibited, and could subject the releaser to civil and criminal penalties.

(i) Examples of other files containing personal information similar to that contained in personnel and medical files include:

(A) Those compiled to evaluate or adjudicate the suitability of candidates for civilian employment or membership in the Armed Forces, and the eligibility of individuals (civilian, military, or contractor employees) for security clearances, or for access to particularly sensitive classified information.

(B) Files containing reports, records, and other material pertaining to personnel matters in which administrative action, including disciplinary action, may be taken.

(ii) Home addresses are normally not releasable without the consent of the individuals concerned. In addition, lists of DoD military and civilian personnel's names and duty addresses who are assigned to units that are sensitive, routinely deployable, or stationed in foreign territories can constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

(A) Privacy interest. A privacy interest may exist in personal information even though the information has been disclosed at some place and time. If personal information is not freely available from sources other than the Federal Government, a privacy interest exists in its nondisclosure. The fact that the Federal Government expended funds to prepare, index and maintain records on personal information, and the fact that a requester invokes FOIA to obtain these records indicates the information is not freely available.

(B) Published telephone directories, organizational charts, rosters and similar materials for personnel assigned to units that are sensitive, routinely deployable, or stationed in foreign territories are withholdable under this exemption.

(iii) This exemption shall not be used in an attempt to protect the privacy of a deceased person, but it may be used to protect the privacy of the deceased person's family.

(iv) Individuals' personnel, medical, or similar file may be withheld from them or their designated legal representative only to the extent consistent with DoD Directive 5400.11.

(v) A clearly unwarranted invasion of the privacy of the persons identified in a personnel, medical or similar record may constitute a basis for deleting those reasonably segregable portions of that record, even when providing it to the subject of the record. When withholding personal information from the subject of the record, legal counsel should first be consulted.

(7) Number 7. Records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes; i.e., civil, criminal, or military law, including the implementation of executive orders or regulations issued pursuant to law. This exemption may be invoked to prevent disclosure of documents not originally created for, but later gathered for law enforcement purposes.

(i) This exemption applies, however, only to the extent that production of such law enforcement records or information could result in the following:
(A) Could reasonably be expected to interfere with enforcement proceedings.

(B) Would deprive a person of the right to a fair trial or to an impartial adjudication.

(C) Could reasonably be expected to constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of a living person, including surviving family members of an individual identified in such a record.

(i) This exemption also applies when the fact of the existence or nonexistence of a responsive record would itself reveal personally private information, and the public interest in disclosure is not sufficient to outweigh the privacy interest. In this situation, DNA shall neither confirm nor deny the existence or nonexistence of the record being requested.

(ii) A “refusal to confirm or deny” response must be used consistently, not only when a record exists, but also when a record does not exist. Otherwise, the pattern of using a “no records” response when a record does not exist and a “refusal to confirm or deny” when a record does exist will itself disclose personally private information.

(iii) Refusal to confirm or deny should not be used when the person whose personal privacy is in jeopardy has provided the requester with a waiver of his or her privacy rights; or the person whose personal privacy is in jeopardy is deceased, and DNA is aware of that fact.

(D) Could reasonably be expected to disclose the identity of a confidential source including a source within DNA, a state, local or foreign agency or authority, or any private institution which furnishes the information on a confidential basis.

(E) Could disclose confidential information furnished from a confidential source and obtained by a criminal law enforcement authority in a criminal investigation or by an agency conducting a lawful national security intelligence investigation.

(F) Would disclose techniques and procedures for law enforcement investigations or prosecutions, or would disclose guidelines for law enforcement investigations or prosecutions if such disclosure could reasonably be expected to risk circumvention of the law.

(G) Could reasonably be expected to endanger the life, or the physical safety of any individual.

(ii) Examples include:

(A) Statements of witnesses and other material developed during the course of the investigation and all materials prepared in connection with related government litigation or adjudicative proceedings.

(B) The identity of firms or individuals being investigated for alleged irregularities involving contracting with DNA when no indictment has been obtained nor any civil action filed against them by the United States.

(C) Information obtained in confidence, expressed or implied, in the course of a criminal investigation by a criminal law enforcement agency or office within DNA, or a lawful national security intelligence investigation conducted by an authorized agency or office within DNA. National security intelligence investigations include background security investigations and those investigations conducted for the purpose of obtaining affirmative or counterintelligence information.

(iii) The right of individual litigants to investigative records currently available by law (such as, the Jencks Act, 18 U.S.C. 3500 is not diminished.

(iv) When the subject of an investigative record is the requester of the record, it may be withheld only as authorized by DoD Directive 5400.11.

(v) Exclusions. Excluded from the previous exemptions are the following two situations applicable to the Department of Defense.

(A) Whenever a request is made which involves access to records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes and the investigation or proceedings involves a possible violation of criminal law where there is reason to believe that the subject of the investigation or proceedings is unaware of its pendency, and the disclosure of the existence of the records could reasonably be expected to interfere with enforcement proceedings. Components may, during only such times as that circumstance continues, treat the records or information as not subject to the FOIA. In such situation, the response to the requester will state that no records were found.

(B) Whenever informant records maintained by a criminal law enforcement organization within a DoD component under the informant's name or personal identifier are requested by a third party using the informant's name or personal identifier, the Component may treat the records as not subject to the FOIA, unless the informant's status as an informant has been officially confirmed. If it is determined that the records are not subject to exemption 7, the response to the requester will state that no records were found.

§ 291.9 For official use only (FOUO).

Information that has not been given a security classification pursuant to the criteria of an Executive Order, but which may be withheld from the public for one or more of the reasons cited in FOIA exemptions 2 through 9 shall be considered as being for official use only. No other material shall be considered or marked “For Official Use Only” (FOUO) and FOUO is not authorized as an anemic form of classification to protect national security interests. See DNA Instruction 5230.2A for additional information regarding FOUO policy.

(a) Prior FOUO application. The prior application of FOUO markings is not a conclusive basis for withholding a record that is requested under the FOIA. When such a record is requested, the information in it shall be evaluated to determine whether, under current circumstances, FOIA exemptions apply in withholding the record or portions of it. If any exemption or exemptions apply or applies, it may nonetheless be released when it is determined that no governmental interest will be jeopardized by its release.

(b) Historical papers. Records, such as notes, working papers, and drafts retained as historical evidence of DNA actions enjoy no special status apart from the exemptions under the FOIA.

(c) Time to mark records. The marking of records at the time of their creation provides notice of FOUO content and facilitates review when a record is requested under the FOIA. Records requested under the FOIA that do not bear such markings shall not be assumed to be releaseable without examination for the presence of information that requires continued protection and qualifies as exempt from public release.

(d) Distribution statement. Information in a technical document that requires a distribution statement pursuant to DNA Instruction 5230.2A shall bear that statement and may be marked FOUO, as appropriate.

(e) Termination. The originator or other competent authority, e.g., initial denial and appellate authorities, shall terminate “For Official Use Only” markings or status when circumstances indicate that the information no longer requires protection from public disclosure. When FOUO status is terminated, all known holders shall be notified, to the extent practical. Upon notification, holders shall efface or remove the “For Official Use Only” markings, but records in file or storage need not be retrieved solely for that purpose.

(f) Disposal. (1) Nonrecord copies of FOUO materials may be destroyed by tearing each copy into pieces to preclude reconstructing, and placing them in regular trash containers. When local circumstances or experience indicates that this destruction method is not sufficiently protective of FOUO information, local authorities may direct other methods but must give due consideration to the additional expense balanced against the degree of sensitivity of the type of FOUO information contained in the records.

(2) Record copies of FOUO documents shall be disposed of in accordance with the disposal standards established under 44 U.S.C. chapter 33, as implemented by DNA instructions concerning records disposal.
Unauthorized disclosure. The unauthorized disclosure of FOUO records does not constitute an unauthorized disclosure of DNA information classified for security purposes. Appropriate administrative action shall be taken, however, to fix responsibility for unauthorized disclosure whenever feasible, and appropriate disciplinary action shall be taken against those responsible. Unauthorized disclosure of FOUO information that is protected by the Privacy Act, may also result in civil and criminal sanctions against responsible persons. The DNA office that originated the FOUO information shall be informed of its unauthorized disclosure.

APPENDIX A TO PART 292—UNIFORM AGENCY FEES FOR SEARCH AND DUPLICATION UNDER THE FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT (AS AMENDED)

AUTHORITY: 5 U.S.C. 552.
SOURCE: 57 FR 38775, Aug. 27, 1992, unless otherwise noted.

§ 292.1 Purpose.
This document implements the “Freedom of Information Act (FOIA),” 5 U.S.C., as amended, with the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) and outlines policy governing release of records to the public.

§ 292.2 Applicability.
This part applies to all DIA elements, and governs the public release of records of these elements.

§ 292.3 Basic policy.
(a) Upon receipt of a written request, the DIA will release to the public, records concerning its operations and activities which are rightfully public information. Generally, information, other than that exempt in § 292.6, will be provided to the public. The following policy will be followed in the conduct of this program.

(1) The provisions of the FOIA, as implemented by 32 CFR part 286 and this part, will be supported in both letter and spirit.

(2) Requested records will be withheld only when a significant and legitimate governmental purpose is served by withholding them. Records which require protection against unauthorized release in the interest of the national defense or foreign relations of the United States will not be provided.

(3) Official requests from Members of Congress, acting in their official capacity, will be governed by DoD Directive 5400.4,1 (see DoD 5400.7-R,2 paragraph 5-103); from the General Accounting Office by DoD Directive 7650.1,3 and from private parties, and officials of state or local governments by DoD 5400.7-R, paragraphs 5-101 and 102.

(4) Records will not be withheld solely because their release might result in criticism of the Department of Defense or this Agency.

(5) The applicability of the FOIA depends on the existence of an “identifiable record” (5 U.S.C. 552(a)(3)). Accordingly, if the DIA has no record containing information requested by a member of the public, it is under no obligation to compile information to create or obtain such a record.

(6) The mission of the DIA does not encompass regulatory or decision-making matters in the sense of a public use agency; therefore, extensive reading room material for the general public is not available.

(7) Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(4)(A) fees may apply with regard to services rendered the public under the Freedom of Information Act (See appendix A to this part). With regard to fees, the specific guidance of DoD, as set forth in DoD 5400.7-R will be followed.

(b) This basic policy is subject to the exemptions recognized in 5 U.S.C. 552(b) and discussed in section 292.6.

§ 292.4 Specific policy.
(a) Definition of a Record. The products of data compilation, such as all books, papers, maps, and photographs, machine readable materials or other documentary materials, regardless of physical form or characteristics, made or received by the DIA in connection with the transaction of public business and in the DIA’s possession and control at the time the FOIA request is made.

(b) The following are not included within the definition of the word “record:”

(1) Objects or articles, such as structures, furniture, paintings, sculptures, three-dimensional models, vehicles and equipment, whatever their historical value or value as evidence.

(2) Administrative tools by which records are created, stored, and retrieved, if not created or used as sources of information about organizations, policies, functions, decisions, or procedures of a DoD Component. Normally, computer software, including source code, object code, and listings of source and object codes, regardless of medium are not agency records. (This does not include the underlying data which is processed and produced by such software and which may in some instances be stored with the software.) Exceptions to this position are outlined in paragraph (b)(2)(i) of this section.

(i) In some instances, computer software may have to be treated as an agency record and processed under the FOIA. These situations are rare, and shall be treated on a case-by-case basis. Examples of when computer software may have to be treated as an agency record are:

(A) When the data are embedded within the software and cannot be extracted without the software. In this situation, both the data and the software must be reviewed for release or denial under the FOIA.

(B) When the software itself reveals information about organizations, policies, functions, decisions, or procedures of the Agency, such as computer models used to forecast budget outlays, calculate system costs, or optimization models on travel costs.

(3) Anything that is not a tangible or documentary record, such as an individual’s memory or oral communication.

(4) Personal notes of an individual not subject to agency creation or retention requirements, created and maintained primarily for the convenience of an agency employee, and not distributed to other agency employees for their official use.

(5) Information stored within a computer for which there is no existing computer program or printout for retrieval of the requested information.

(c) The prior application of FOR OFICIAL USE ONLY (FOUO) markings is not a conclusive basis for withholding a record that is requested under the FOIA. When such a record is requested, the information in it will be evaluated to determine whether, under current circumstances, FOIA exemptions apply and whether a significant and legitimate Governmental purpose is served by withholding the record or portions of it.

(d) A record must exist and be in the possession or control of the DIA at the time of the request to be considered subject to this regulation. There is no obligation to create, compile, or obtain a record to satisfy an FOIA request.

(e) Identification of the Record. (1) Identification of the record desired is the responsibility of the member of the public who requests a record. The requester must provide a description of the desired record that enables the DIA to locate the record with a reasonable amount of effort. The Act does not authorize “fishing expeditions.” When the DIA receives a request that does not “reasonably describe” the requested record, it will notify the requester of the deficiency. The deficiency should be highlighted in a distinctive letter, asking the requester to provide the type of information outlined below. This Agency is not obligated to act on the request until the requester responds to the distinctive letter. When practicable, the DIA will offer assistance to the requester in identifying the records sought and in reformulating the request to reduce the burden on the Agency in complying with the Act.

(2) The following guidelines are provided to deal with “fishing expeditions” requests and are based on the principle of reasonable effort. Descriptive information about a record may be divided into two broad categories.

(i) Category I is file-related and includes information such as type of record (for example, memorandum), title, index citation, subject area, date the record was created, and originator.

(ii) Category II is event-related and includes the circumstances that resulted in the record being created or the date and circumstances surrounding the event the record covers.

(3) Generally, a record is not reasonably described unless the description § 292.6 FOIA exemptions.

The following type of records may be withheld in whole or in part from public disclosure unless otherwise prescribed by law.

(a) Exemption (b)(1). Those properly and currently classified in the interest of national defense or foreign policy, as specifically authorized under the criteria established by Executive Order and implemented by regulations, such as DoD 5200.1-R. Although material may not be classified at the time of the FOIA request, a classification review may be undertaken to determine whether the information should be classified. The procedures outlined in DIAR 50-25 regarding classification apply. In addition, this exemption shall be invoked when the following situations are apparent:

4See footnote 1 to §292.3(a)(3).
5Forward requests to: Defense Intelligence Agency, ATTN: DSP–1A (FOIA), Washington, DC 20340–3299.
§ 292.6

(1) The fact of the existence or nonexistence of a record would itself reveal classified information. In this situation, DIA shall neither confirm or deny the existence or nonexistence of the record being requested. A “refusal to confirm or deny” response must be used consistently, not only when a record exists, but also when a record does not exist. Otherwise, the pattern of using a “no record” response when a record does not exist, and a “refusal to confirm or deny” when a record does exist will itself disclose national security information.

(2) Information that concerns one or more of the classification categories established by Executive Order and DoD 5200.1-R shall be classified if its unauthorized disclosure, either by itself or in the context of other information, reasonably could be expected to cause damage to the national security.

(b) Exemption (b)(2). Those containing or constituting rules, regulations, orders, manuals, directives, and instructions relating to the internal personnel rules or practices of the DIA if their release to the public would substantially hinder the effective performance of a significant function of the Department of Defense, and they do not impose requirements directly on the general public. This exemption has two profiles, high (b)(2) and low (b)(2).

(1) Records qualifying under high (b)(2) are those containing or constituting rules, regulations, orders, manuals, directives, and instructions the release of which would allow circumvention of these records thereby substantially hindering the effective performance of a significant function of the Department of Defense.

(2) Records qualifying under the low (b)(2) profile are those that are trivial and housekeeping in nature for which there is no legitimate public interest or benefit to be gained by release, and it would constitute an administrative burden to process the request in order to disclose the records.

(c) Exemption (b)(3). Those concerning matters that a statute specifically exempts from disclosure by terms that permit no discretion on the issue, or in accordance with criteria established by that statute for withholding or referring to particular types of matters to be withheld.

(d) Exemption (b)(4). (1) Those containing trade secrets or commercial or financial information that the DIA receives from a person or organization outside the Government with the understanding that the information or record will be retained on a privileged or confidential basis in accordance with the customary handling of such records. Records within the exemption must contain trade secrets or commercial or financial records the disclosure of which is likely to cause substantial harm to the competitive position of the source providing the information, impair the Government's ability to obtain necessary information in the future, or impair some other legitimate Governmental interest.

(2) When a request is received for a record that was obtained or provided by a non-U.S. Government source, the source of the record or information (also known as “the submitter” for matters pertaining to proprietary data) shall be notified promptly of that request and afforded reasonable time (e.g. 30 calendar days) to present any objections concerning the release, unless it is clear that there can be no valid basis for objection. This practice is required for those FOIA requests for data not deemed clearly exempt from disclosure under Exemption (b)(4). For further guidance, see DoD 5400.7-R, paragraph 5-207.

(e) Exemption (b)(5). Those concerning internal advice, recommendations, and subjective evaluations, as contrasted with factual matters, that are reflected in records pertaining to the decision-making process of an agency, whether within or among agencies or within or among DoD components. Also exempted are records pertaining to the attorney-client privilege and the attorney work-product privilege.

(f) Exemption (b)(6). Information in personnel and medical files, as well as similar personal information in other files, that, if disclosed to the requester, would result in a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Release of information about an individual contained in a Privacy Act system of records that would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of privacy is prohibited, and could subject the releaser to civil and criminal penalties.

(g) Exemption (b)(7). Records or information compiled for the purpose of enforcing civil, criminal, or military law, including the implementation of Executive Orders or regulations issued pursuant to law, but only to the extent that the production of such law enforcement records or information
(1) Could reasonably be expected to interfere with enforcement proceedings.
(2) Would deprive a person of a right to a fair trial or an impartial adjudication.
(3) Could constitute an unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of others (also see DoD 5400.7-R, paragraph 3-200, Number 7 a. 3. (a)-(c)).
(4) Could disclose the identity of a confidential source.
(5) Would disclose investigative techniques and procedures, or
(6) Could endanger the life or physical safety of law enforcement personnel. This exemption may be invoked to prevent disclosure of documents not originally created for, but later gathered for, law enforcement purposes.

§ 292.7 Filing an appeal for refusal to make records available.

(a) A requester may appeal an initial decision to withhold a record. Further, if a requester determines a “no record” response in answer to a request to be adverse, this determination may also be appealed. Appeals should be addressed to: Defense Intelligence Agency, ATTN: DSP-1A (FOIA), Washington, DC 20340-3299.

(b) The requester shall be advised that the appropriate authority must receive an appeal no later than 60 calendar days after the date of the initial denial letter.

(c) Final determination on appeals normally will be made within 20 working days of receipt of the appeal at the above address. If additional time is needed to decide the appeal because of unusual circumstances, the final determination may be delayed for the number of working days, not to exceed 10, which were not utilized as additional time for responding to the initial request. Appeals shall be processed in order of receipt. However, this does not preclude DIA from completing action on an appeal request which can easily be answered, regardless of its ranking within the order of receipt. DIA may expedite action on an appeal request regardless of its ranking within the order of receipt upon a showing of exceptional need or urgency. Exceptional need or urgency is determined at the discretion of DIA.

(d) When an appeal is denied, the requester will be apprised of the following:
(1) The basis for the refusal shall be explained to the requester, in writing, identifying the applicable statutory exemption or exemptions invoked under provisions of this part.
(2) When the final refusal is based in whole or in part on a security classification, the explanation shall include a determination that the record meets the criteria and rationale of the governing Executive Order, and that this determination is based on a declassification review.
(3) The final denial shall include the name and title or position of the official responsible for the denial.
(4) The response shall advise the requester with regard to denied information whether or not any reasonably segregable portions were found.
(5) The response shall advise the requester of the right to judicial review.

§ 292.8 Responsibilities.

When a request for information or records is received, the following will apply:
(a) DSP-1A. (1) Receives requests and assigns tasking.
(2) Maintains appropriate suspenses and authorizes all extensions of response time.
(3) Acts as the responsible operating office for all Agency actions related to the FOIA.
(4) Drafts and transmits responses on:
   (i) The release of records and/or information.
   (ii) Obtaining supplemental information from the requester.
   (iii) Informing the requester of any fees required.

APPENDIX B TO PART 293—SAMPLE LETTER COMPLYING WITH REQUEST

APPENDIX C TO PART 293—SAMPLE LETTER NOTIFYING REQUESTER OF EXTENSION OF TIME

APPENDIX D TO PART 293—SAMPLE LETTER NOTIFYING REQUESTER OF MISDIRECTED REQUEST
§ 293.3 Scope.
This part does not apply to requests from members of Congress, who are governed by DoD Directive 5400.4-1 or from the General Accounting Office, which is governed by DoD Directive 7650.1-2.

§ 293.4 Definitions.
(a) FOIA record. (1) The products of data compilation, such as all books, papers, maps, and photographs, machine readable materials or other documentary materials, regardless of physical form or characteristics, made or received by DMA in connection with the transaction of public business and in DMA’s possession and control at the time of the FOIA request, are considered agency records. For items not considered an agency record, see paragraph 1-402 of DoD 5400.7-R-3.

(2) Normally, computer software, including source code, object code, and listings of source and object codes, regardless of medium are not agency records. (See paragraph 1-402 of DoD 5400.7-R for a complete definition of an agency record.)

(3) If unaltered publications and processed documents, such as regulations, manuals, maps, charts and related geophysical materials, are available to the public through an established distribution system with or without charge, the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(3) normally do not apply, and they need not be processed under the FOIA. Normally, documents disclosed to the public by publication in the Federal Register also require no processing under the FOIA. In such cases, the requester should be directed to the appropriate source to obtain the record.

(b) FOIA request. A FOIA request is a written request for DMA records, made by any person, including a member of the public (U.S. or foreign citizen), an organization, or a business, but not including a Federal agency or a fugitive from law, that either explicitly or implicitly invokes the FOIA, DoD Directive 5400.7-4 DoD 5400.7-R, or this part.

(c) Pertinent records. For the purpose of this part, records shall be considered pertinent if they concern either an individual who is, or foreseeably may become, involved in litigation involving the United States or a matter which is, or foreseeably may become, the subject of litigation involving the United States.

§ 293.5 Policy.
(a) Creating a record. A record must exist and be in the possession and control of DMA at the time of a request to be charged for providing the existing record. (See paragraph 1-506 of DoD 5400.7-R.)

(b) Public requests. It is DMA policy to make available to the public the maximum amount of information concerning its operations and activities. Exemptions to this policy are stated in 5 U.S.C. 552 and DoD 5400.7-R. However, exempt records may be released to the public when their disclosure would not be inconsistent with the Privacy Act, DMA Instruction 5400.11, or any other statutory requirements, and when no legitimate government purpose would be served by withholding them. DoD 5400.7-R provides additional policy guidance regarding the release of DMA records.

(c) News media requests. Requests from news media for records that would not be withheld under FOIA shall be released promptly in order to provide timely information to the public and eliminate the need to invoke the provisions of FOIA.

(d) Contract requests. Guidance for the release of information received from a non-U.S. Government source is contained in paragraph 5-207 of DoD 5400.7-R.

(e) Classified records. If classified records are requested, see additional guidance outlined in Chapter VII, DMA Manual 5200.1.º

(f) FOUO records. (1) Information that has not been given a security classification pursuant to the criteria of an Executive order, but which may be withheld from the public for one or more of the reasons cited in FOIA Exemptions 2 through 9 shall be considered as being for official use only. No other material shall be considered or marked FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY (FOUO), and FOUO is not authorized as an anemic form of classification to protect national security interests.

(2) The prior application of FOUO markings is not a conclusive basis for withholding a record that is requested under FOIA. When such a record is requested, the information in it shall be evaluated to determine whether under current circumstances, FOIA exemptions apply in withholding the record or portions of it. If any exemption(s) apply, the record may be released when it is determined that no governmental interest will be jeopardized by its release.

(g) Historical papers. Records such as notes, working papers, and drafts retained as historical evidence of DoD component actions enjoy no special status apart from the exemptions under the FOIA.

(h) Fees. Chapter VI, DoD 5400.7-R, should be consulted before fees are assessed. Fee application is discussed in paragraph 6-101, fee restrictions in paragraph 6-102, fee waivers in paragraph 6-103 and fee assessment in paragraph 6-104.

§ 293.6 Responsibilities.

(a) The Director, Public Affairs (DMA(PA)), is designated Freedom of Information Officer (FOIO) and is responsible for administering the FOIA program within DMA. The DMA(PA) is also denial authority for “no record” FOIAs. HQ DMA(PA) will:

(1) Receive, log, and determine administrative action required on all FOIA requests received at HQ DMA. If a record is held by DMA, the FOIO will forward a copy of the FOIA request to the custodian of the record for comments regarding releasability of the requested record. Following receipt of the custodian’s comments and a copy of the requested documents, FOIO will review the comments, make a preliminary releasability determination, and prepare the initial response with coordination by HQ DMA(GC). If it is apparent to the custodian that the material will be released, two copies of the requested record will be forwarded to HQ DMA(PA) (one for release and one for record keeping).

(2) Prepare DD Form 2564, “Annual Report—Freedom of Information Act,” and forward it to the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs) (OASD(PA)), as directed.

(b) The Chief of Staff, the Deputy General Counsel and the DMA Freedom of Information Act Officer (DMA(PA)) are delegated authority to initially deny release of DMA records. This denial authority is also delegated to Component Directors and Associate General Counsels (AGC) as follows:

(1) AGC AC for the DMA Aerospace Center (DMAAC).

(2) AGC HTC for the DMA Hydrographic/Topographic Center (DMAHTC), DMA Combat Support Center (DMACSC), and the Defense Mapping School (DMS).

(3) AGC SC— for the DMA Reston Center (DMARC), DMA Systems Center (DMASC), and DMA Technical Services Center (MATSC).

(4) AGC(KL) (DMA Contract Law Office) for contract related issues.

This authority may not be redelegated. A copy of all Component denial letters will be forwarded to HQ DMA(GC).

(c) General Counsel:

(1) HQ DMA(GC) is responsible for all appeals to FOIA actions and will provide HQ DMA(PA) with a copy of the initial appeal letter and DMA’s response to it. The DMA Deputy Director (DD) and HQ DMA(GC) are delegated authority to make final determinations on appeals in accordance with the provisions of section 3, chapter V of DoD 5400.7-R.

(2) Coordination with Department of Justice:

ºSee footnote 5 to §293.5(b)
Office of the Secretary of Defense

§ 293.7

(i) HQ DMA(GC) will notify the appropriate United States Attorney prior to the release of any FOIA request for records which are pertinent to pending litigation against the United States.

(ii) The office holding records sought under the FOIA shall notify the FOIO whether such records are pertinent to pending or potential litigation involving the United States. The records holder may request the assistance of Counsel in making a determination. The record holder shall advise the FOIO whether any of the requested records have been determined to be pertinent to such litigation. Prior to release of such records, HQ DMA(PA) shall notify HQ DMA(GC) of the request. Component FOIOs shall notify the appropriate Associate General Counsel who will notify the United States Attorney, and shall coordinate the release of such records with HQ DMA(GC) and the Department of Justice.

(d) The DMA Director of Human Resources Management (HR) will establish and implement appropriate procedures for responding to any corrective actions recommended by the Office of Personnel Management in cases involving arbitrary or capricious withholding of records by DMA officials pursuant to section 4, chapter V, DoD 5400.7-R. HQ DMA(HR) and DMAHTC(PA) shall implement training and information requirements as outlined in chapter VII, DoD 5400.7-R.

(e) Component PAAs will serve as FOIO at the Component level. Components without PAAs will appoint a FOIO. Component FOIOs will:

(1) Receive, log, and determine administrative action required for all FOIA requests received at the Component, except those concerning DMA contracts. (See 293.6(e)(2).) If a record is held by the Component, the FOIO will forward a copy of the FOIA request to the custodian of the record for comments regarding releasability of the requested record. Following receipt of the custodian’s comments and a copy of the requested documents, the FOIO will review the comments, make a preliminary releasability determination, and prepare the initial response for coordination by the appropriate Associate General Counsel as identified in § 293.6(b). If it is apparent to the records custodian that the material will be released two copies of the requested record will be forwarded to HQ DMA(PA) (one for release and one for record keeping).

(2) Refer all FOIA requests concerning DMA contracts not held at the Component level to DMAHTC(PA), which has the responsibility for processing such requests and for interfacing with the DMA Directorate for Acquisition, Installations and Logistics HQ DMA(AQ) and the DMA Contract Law Office (KL) located at DMAHTC.

(3) Submit DD Form 22564, “Annual Report—Freedom of Information Act” to HQ DMA(PA) by January 15 each year. (See chapter VII of DoD 5400.7-R for guidance.)

(f) All DMA organizations will:

(1) Upon receipt of correspondence which either explicitly or implicitly invokes the FOIA immediately forward such correspondence to HQ DMA(PA) or the Component FOIO.

(2) The record holder will, upon receipt of a FOIA action, immediately review the requested records to determine the releasability or denial under the nine FOIA exemptions contained in 5 U.S.C. 552, as amended. Written comments regarding the releasability of records must be provided to the FOIO forwarding the action within the timeframes specified. Consultation with the FOIO, HQ DMA(GC), and Component AGCs as appropriate, is recommended.

§ 293.7 Procedures.

(a) Mandatory expeditious handling—

(1) Record released. The initial determination of whether to release a record upon request will normally be made and a decision reported to the requester within 10 working days. The record requested will be forwarded promptly, usually with the initial response, provided the requester has met the criteria for release. A sample letter is shown at appendix A to this part 293.

(2) Interim response. If the requested record cannot be made available within 10 working days, an interim response will be forwarded. Any delay beyond the initial 10 working days may not exceed 10 additional working days and will be authorized only for the reasons described in section 2, chapter V, DoD 5400.7-R. A sample letter is shown at appendix B to this part 293.

(3) No record. When providing a “no record” response in answer to a request, the requester must be advised that such a response may be considered to be adverse, and if so interpreted, may be appealed using normal appeal procedures (see §293.7(a)(4)). An additional records search shall be conducted based on the receipt of an appeal to a “no record” response as part of the appellate process.

(4) Record denied. If a request for a record is denied, in whole or in part, the requester will be given a written explanation for such a determination by an official designated in §293.6. The requester will also be advised of his/her right to appeal the denial to the HQ DMA(GC) within 60 calendar days from the date of the denial letter. The letter will also include the name and address of the official responsible for the denial. A sample letter is at appendix C to this part 293. All denials must have benefit of a legal review prior to signature.

(5) Request appealed. Final determination on appeals will normally be made within 20 working days of receipt by the Deputy Director or General Counsel. If, due to unusual circumstances, additional time is needed to decide the appeal, the final determination may be delayed for the number of working days, not to exceed 10, which were not used as additional time for responding to the initial request. Final denials to provide a requested record will be made in writing by the Deputy Director or General Counsel in accordance with the appeal procedures prescribed in section 3, chapter V, DoD 5400.7-R.

(6) Request referred. If the record requested was originated by another agency or Component, it will be referred promptly to the originating agency or Component for disposition. The period allowed for responding to a request misdirected by the requester will not begin until it is received by the referral. A sample letter is shown at appendix D to this part 293.

(b) Facilities for inspection and copying records. (1) The handling of all requests from the public to inspect and copy records will be in strict accordance with the procedures prescribed in DoD 5400.7-R. Subject to exemptions contained in 5 U.S.C. 552, as amended, DMA will ensure easy access by the public for inspection and copying of records described in 5 U.S.C. 552, unless such records have been published and copies offered for sale. This inspection and copying will take place in appropriate rooms designated by HQ DMA(PA) and Components.

(2) HQ DMA and Components will make available current indexes which identify material described in paragraph (a)(2) of 5 U.S.C. 552, as amended.

(3) Use of DMA inspection and copying facilities by the public will be made by appointment only. Appointments will normally be requested by letter to FOIA officers or those acting in that capacity.

§ 295.1 Purpose.

§ 295.2 Applicability.

The provisions of this part are applicable to all components of the Office of the Inspector General (OIG) and govern the procedures by which FOIA requests for information will be processed and records may be released under the FOIA.

§ 295.3 Definition of OIG records.

(a) The products of data compilation, such as books, papers, maps, and photographs, machine readable materials or other documentary materials, regardless of physical form or characteristics, made or received by an agency of the United States Government under Federal law in connection with the transaction of public business and in the OIG's possession and control at the time the FOIA request is made.

(b) The following are not included within the definition of the word "record":

(1) Objects or articles, such as structures, furniture, vehicles and equipment, whatever their historical value, or value as evidence.

(2) Administrative tools by which records are created, stored, and retrieved, if not created or used as sources of information about organizations, policies, functions, decisions, or procedures of the OIG. Normally, computer software, including source code, object code, and listings of source and object codes, regardless of medium are not agency records. (This does not include the underlying data which is processed and produced by such software and which may in some instances be stored with the software.) Exceptions to this position are outlined in § 295.4(c).

(3) Anything that is not a tangible or documentary record, such as an individual's memory or oral communication.

(4) Personal records of an individual not subject to agency creation or retention requirements, created and maintained primarily for the convenience of an OIG employee, and not distributed to any other OIG employee for their official use, or otherwise disseminated for official use.

(5) Information stored within a computer for which there is no existing computer program for retrieval of the requested information.

(c) In some instances, computer software may have to be treated as an agency record and processed under the FOIA. These situations are rare, and shall be treated on a case-by-case basis. Examples of when computer software may have to be treated as an agency record are:

(1) When the data is embedded within the software and can not be extracted without the software. In this situation, both the data and the software must be reviewed for release or denial under the FOIA.

(2) Where the software itself reveals information about organizations, policies, functions, decisions, or procedures of the OIG, such as computer models used to forecase budget outlays, calculate retirement system costs, or optimization models on travel costs.

(3) See appendix B to this part for further information on release determinations of computer software.

(d) If unaltered publications and processed documents, such as regulations, manuals, maps, charts, and related geophysical materials are available to the public through an established distribution system with or without charge, the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(3) normally do not apply and they need not be processed under the FOIA. Normally, documents disclosed to the public by publication in the Federal Register also require no processing under the FOIA. In such cases, the OIG will direct the requester...
Section 295.5 Policy.

(a) General. (1) It is the policy of the OIG to promote public trust by conducting its activities in an open manner, and by providing the public with the maximum amount of accurate and timely information concerning those activities, consistent with the need for security and adherence to other regulatory requirements. (2) Records not specifically exempt from disclosure under the FOIA or prohibited from release under other statutory or regulatory requirements will, upon request, be made readily accessible to the public.

(b) News Media Requests. (1) Requests from news media representatives for records that would not be withheld if requested under the FOIA or prohibited from release under other statutory or regulatory authority shall be promptly released by the OIG element originating the record. (2) Requests from news media representatives for records that are exempt from release under the FOIA or prohibited from release under other statutory or regulatory authority will be provided to the Freedom of Information Act and Privacy Act (FOIA/PA) Division, Office of the Assistant Inspector General for Investigations, along with the requested records, for review and a release determination, and the news media representatives will be so advised.

(c) Control System. (1) A request for OIG records that invokes the FOIA shall enter a formal control system designed to ensure compliance with the FOIA. A release determination must be made and the requester informed within the time limits specified in this part. (2) Any request for OIG records that either explicitly or implicitly cites the FOIA shall be forwarded to the FOIA/PA Division.
10 working days of the date of its receipt in the FOIA/PA Division, unless a delay is authorized.

(2) Receipt of the request will be acknowledged and the requester will be promptly advised of any additional information needed to assure compliance with procedures established in this part. In the event there are a significant number of requests, e.g., 10 or more, the requests will be processed in order of date of receipt. This does not preclude the OIG from completing action on a request which can be easily answered, regardless of its ranking within the order of receipt. The OIG may expedite action on a request regardless of its ranking within the order of receipt upon a showing of exceptional need or urgency. Exceptional need will be determined at the discretion of the OIG.

(3) These provisions also apply to a request received on referral from another DoD Component or government agency and time limits will begin on the date of receipt in the OIG FOIA/PA Division.

(e) Use of Exemptions. It is OIG policy to make records publicly available unless they qualify for exemption under one or more of the nine exemptions. The OIG may elect to make a discretionary release, however, a discretionary release is generally not appropriate for records exempt under exemptions (b)(1), (b)(3), (b)(4), (b)(6) and (b)(7)(C). Exemptions (b)(4), (b)(6) and (b)(7)(C) can not be claimed when the requester is the submitter of the information. The categories of records which are exempt from release are identified in appendix B of this part.

(f) For Official Use Only (FOUO). The use of FOUO markings will be accomplished in accordance with the provisions of appendix A of this part, and exemptions (b)(2) through (b)(9) as set forth in appendix B of this part. Additional guidance will be provided to OIG elements, as needed, by the FOIA/PA Division.

(g) Public Domain. Nonexempt records released under the authority of this part are considered to be in the public domain. Such records may also be made available in the OIG Reading Room located in the FOIA/PA Division. Exempt records released pursuant to this part or other statutory or regulatory authority, however, may be considered to be in the public domain only when their release constitutes a waiver of the FOIA exemption. When the release does not constitute such a waiver, such as when disclosure is made to a properly constituted advisory committee or to a Congressional Committee, or to an individual to whom the record pertains, the released records do not lose their exempt status. Also, while authority may exist to disclose records to individuals in their official capacity, the provisions of this part apply if the same individual seeks to use the records in a private or personal capacity.

(h) Creation of Records. (1) A record must exist and be in the possession or control of the OIG at the time of the request to be considered subject to release under this part and the FOIA. Mere possession of a record does not presume OIG control and such records, or identifiable portions thereof, will be referred to the originating agency for a release determination and/or direct response to the requester. There is no obligation to create nor compile a record to satisfy a FOIA request; however, the OIG may compile a new record when doing so would result in a more useful response to the requester, or be less burdensome to the OIG than providing the existing records, and the requester does not object. The cost of creating or compiling such a record will not be charged to the requester unless the fee is equal to, or less than, the fee that would be charged for providing the existing record. Any fee assessments will be made in accordance with chapter IV of DoD 5400.7-R (32 CFR part 286).

(2) With respect to electronic data, the issue of whether records are actually created or merely extracted from an existing database is not always readily apparent. Consequently, when responding to FOIA requests for electronic data where creation of a record, programming, or particular format are questionable, the OIG will apply a standard of reasonableness. In other words, if the capability exists to respond to the request, and the effort would be a business as usual approach, then the request will be processed.
However, the request will not be processed where the capability to respond does not exist without a significant expenditure of resources, thus not be a normal business as usual approach.

(i) Describing Records Sought. (1) It is the responsibility of the member of the public requesting records to adequately identify the records. A member of the public must describe the records sought with sufficient information to permit the OIG to locate the records with a reasonable amount of effort, since the FOIA does not authorize "fishing expeditions." Descriptive information about a record may be divided into two broad categories:

(i) Category I is file-related and includes information such as type of record (for example, memorandum), title, index citation, subject area, date the record was created, and originator.

(ii) Category II is event-related and includes the circumstances that resulted in the record being created or the date and circumstances surrounding the event the record covers.

(2) When the OIG receives a request that does not "reasonably describe" the requested record with sufficient Category I information to permit the conduct of an organized nonrandom search, or sufficient Category II information to permit inference of the Category I elements needed to conduct such a search, the requester will be notified in writing of the defect and of the need for more specific identification of the records sought. The specificity letter will provide guidance in identifying the records sought and in reformulating the request to reduce the burden on the OIG in complying with the FOIA. The OIG is not obligated to act on requests until an adequate description is provided by the requester.

(3) When the OIG receives a request in which only personal identifiers, e.g., name and Social Security Account Number, are provided in connection with the request for records concerning the requester, only records retrievable by personal identifiers will be searched. The search for such records may be conducted under Privacy Act procedures. No record will be denied that is releasable under the FOIA.

(j) Referrals. (1) The OIG has the responsibility of protecting the identity of individuals who make protected disclosures of wrongdoing on the part of others, under the "Whistleblower Protection Acts." When a FOIA requester has identified himself/herself as the "Whistleblower" in the matter for which records are being sought, in accordance with §295.7(b)(3) of this part, or the FOIA/PA Division can reasonably determine that the FOIA requester is the "Whistleblower", the individual's identity will continue to be protected in all of the following circumstances involving referrals, except to the extent that such protection will impede the release of responsive records to the requester. In such event, the requester will be advised of the impediment and offered the option of allowing himself/herself to be identified solely for the purpose of obtaining maximum release of records responsive to the FOIA request. If the requester chooses to continue anonymity, the request will be processed only to the extent that will allow continued protection of the individual's identity.

(2) The OIG will refer a FOIA request to another DoD Component or to a Government agency outside the DoD when the OIG has no records responsive to the request, but believes the other DoD Component or outside agency may have, and the other DoD Component or outside agency has confirmed that it holds the record. When the other DoD Component or outside agency agrees to the referral, the requester will be advised of the referral and that the OIG has no responsive records, with the following exceptions:

(i) If it is determined by the other DoD Component or outside agency that the existence or nonexistence of the record itself is classified, the OIG will inform the requester only that the OIG has no responsive record and no referral will take place.

(ii) If the record falls under one or more of the "Exclusions" under the FOIA (see appendix B of this part), as determined by the other DoD Component or outside agency, the OIG will advise the requester only that the OIG has no responsive record and no referral will take place.
§ 295.5  32 CFR Ch. 1 (7-1-98 Edition)

(3) The OIG will refer a record, or portions of a record that holds but that was originated by another DoD Component or outside agency, or for a record that contains substantial information that originated with another DoD Component or outside agency, to that Component or agency (unless the agency is not subject to the FOIA) for a release determination and/or direct response to the requester. In any such case, direct coordination will be effected and concurrence obtained from the other Component or agency prior to the referral. A copy of the record will be provided to the Component or agency with the referral, and the requester will be notified of the referral, consistent with any security requirements or “Exclusion” provisions of the FOIA. The OIG will not, in any case, release or deny such records without prior consultation with the other DoD Component or outside agency. If the requester is the “Whistleblower”, the record or portion of the record will be provided to the DoD Component or agency, with a request for a release determination and return of the record to the OIG for response to the requester.

(4) The OIG will refer a FOIA request for a classified record that it holds, but that did not originate, to the originating DoD Component or outside agency (unless the agency is not subject to the FOIA). If the record originated with the OIG but the classification is derivative, i.e., contains classified information that originated elsewhere and was incorporated in the OIG record, the record will be referred to the originating authority with a recommendation for release; or, after consultation with the originating authority, with a request for a declassification review and/or release determination and return of the record. If the requester is the “Whistleblower”, the record will be provided to the originating authority with a request for a release determination and return of the record to the OIG for response to the requester.

(5) The OIG may also refer a request for a record that was originated by the OIG for the use of another DoD Component or outside agency, to that Component or agency with a recommendation for release, after any necessary coordination. The requester will be notified of such action consistent with any security requirements or “Exclusion” provisions of the FOIA.

(6) A FOIA request for investigative, intelligence, or any other type of record on loan from another DoD Component or outside agency to the OIG for a specific purpose will be referred to the DoD Component or outside agency that provided the records, if the records are restricted from further release and so marked. However, if for investigative or intelligence purposes, the outside Component or agency desires anonymity as determined through coordination, the OIG will respond directly to the requester.

(7) A FOIA request for a record, or portions of a record, held by the OIG, that originated with a non-U.S. government agency that is not subject to the FOIA, will be responded to by the OIG.

(8) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this section, all requesters seeking National Security Council (NSC) or White House documents will be advised that they should write directly to the NSC or White House for such documents. Should the requester insist upon an OIG search for these records, the OIG will conduct an appropriate search pursuant to the FOIA. OIG/DoD documents in which the NSC or White House has a concurrent reviewing interest will be forwarded by the FOIA/PA Division to the Director, Freedom of Information and Security Review (DFIOSR), Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs) (OASD(PA)), which shall effect coordination with the NSC or White House, and return the documents to the originating agency after NSC review and determination. The FOIA/PA Division will forward any documents found in OIG files that are responsive to the FOIA request to DFOISR, OASD(PA) for their coordination with the NSC or White House, and return to the OIG with a release determination for final processing of the request.

(9) On occasion, the OIG receives FOIA requests for General Accounting Office (GAO) documents containing OIG information. Even though the GAO is outside of the Executive Branch, and not subject to the FOIA, all FOIA requests for GAO documents containing DoD information received directly from the public, or on referral from the GAO, will be processed under the provisions of the FOIA.

(k) Authentication of Records. Records provided under this part will be authenticated, upon written request, to fulfill an official Government or other legal function. This service is in addition to that required under the FOIA and is not included in the FOIA fee schedule; therefore, a fee of $5.20 may be charged for each such authentication.

(l) Records Management. FOIA records shall be maintained and disposed of in accordance with Inspector General Defense Manual (IGDM) 5015.2, "Records Management Program".

(m) Relationship Between the FOIA and the Privacy Act (PA). Not all requesters are knowledgeable of the appropriate statutory authority to cite when requesting records. In some instances, they may cite neither Act, but will imply one or both Acts. For these reasons, the following guidelines are provided to ensure that requesters receive the greatest amount of access rights under both Acts:

(1) Where requesters seek records about themselves which are contained in a PA system of records and cite or imply the PA, the OIG will process their requests under the provisions of the PA.

(2) Where requesters seek records about themselves which are not contained in a PA system of records and cite or imply the PA, the requests will be processed under the provisions of the FOIA, since they have no access under the PA.

(3) Where requesters seek records about themselves that are contained in a PA system of records and cite or imply the FOIA or both Acts, the requests will be processed under the provisions of the FOIA, and the exemptions and fees of the PA. This is appropriate since greater access will generally be received under the PA.

(4) Where requesters seek agency records (as opposed to personal records) and cite or imply the PA and FOIA, or where requesters cite or imply only the FOIA, the requests will be processed under the FOIA.

(5) Requesters will be advised in the final responses to their requests why a particular Act was used in processing their requests.

(n) Index and "(a)(2)" Materials. (1) No order, opinion, statement of policy, interpretation, staff manual or instruction (except as indicated below) issued after July 4, 1967, which is not indexed and either made available or published, may be relied upon, used, or cited as a precedent against any member of the public unless that individual has actual and timely notice of the contents of such materials. Such actual and timely notice may not be after-the-fact; i.e., after the individual has suffered some adverse effect. Materials identified as "(a)(2)" are:

(i) Final opinions, including concurring and dissenting opinions, and orders made in the adjudication of cases, as defined in 5 U.S.C. 551, that may be cited, used, or relied upon as precedents in future adjudications.

(ii) Statements of policy and interpretations that have been adopted by the agency and are not published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(iii) Administrative staff manuals and instructions, or portions thereof, that establish OIG policy or interpretations of policy that affect a member of the public. This provision does not apply to instructions for employees on tactics and techniques to be used in performing their duties, or to instructions relating only to the internal management of the OIG. Examples of manuals and instructions not normally made available are:

(A) Those issued for audit, investigation, and inspection purposes, or those that prescribe operational tactics, standards of performance, or criteria for defense, prosecution, or settlement of cases.

(B) Operations and maintenance manuals and technical information concerning munitions, equipment, systems, and foreign intelligence operations.

(2) Thus, materials considered to meet the preceding definition of the FOIA "(a)(2)" requirements will be made available for public inspection.
§ 295.5

and copying upon written request to the address indicated in §295.7(b)(1) of this part, unless such materials have been published and are offered for sale or subscription. Upon receipt of the request, arrangements will be made at a time convenient to both the requester and the OIG, for the review and copying. If the publishing activity is out of stock of the published, for sale material and does not intend to reprint, then the preceding procedure will apply to the published material as well.

(3) When appropriate, the cost of copying any ``(a)(2)'' materials will be imposed upon the individual requesting the copy in accordance with chapter VI of DoD 5400.7-R (32 CFR part 286).

(4) The OIG will prepare an index of ``(a)(2)'' materials, or supplement thereto, arranged topically or by descriptive words rather than by case name or numbering system so that members of the public can readily locate material. Separate case name and numbering arrangements may be added for OIG convenience.

(5) The IG has determined that it is not practical nor feasible to prepare an index of the ``(a)(2)'' materials on a quarterly basis, nor to publish the annual "IG Publications Index" in the FEDERAL REGISTER because of the volume. This index is available to the public at no cost upon written request to: Acquisition and Resources Administration Directorate, Publications Management Branch, room 413, 400 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, Virginia 22202-2884. It may be necessary to deny all or portions of some documents listed in the index that fall within one or more exemptions of the FOIA.

(o) Fees and Fee Waivers. (1) Fees will be assessed under the FOIA as set forth in chapter VI of DoD 5400.7-R (32 CFR part 286).

(2) Requesters must indicate their willingness to pay fees in their initial FOIA request. If a waiver of fees is requested, a statement regarding their willingness to pay fees in the event a waiver or reduction of fees is denied is still required. Any requests not containing a statement regarding a willingness to pay assessed fees will not be processed and the requester will be so advised.

(3) Fees will not be required to be paid in advance of processing the request for release of the records requested except:

(i) When the requester is known to be in default of payment of fees incurred in connection with a previous request.

(ii) When the total amount of estimated fees assessable to the requester exceeds $250.00 and waiver is not appropriate, a "good faith" deposit of half of the amount of the estimated fees may be required before completing the processing of the request, or providing the requested records, in the case of a requester with no history of payment. Where the requester has a history of prompt payment, the OIG will notify the requester of the likely cost and obtain satisfactory assurance of full payment.

(4) When the OIG has completed all work on a request and the documents are ready for release, advance payment may be requested before forwarding the documents if there is no payment history on the requester. Where there is a history of prompt payment by the requester, the OIG will not hold documents ready for release pending payment.

(5) Fee waivers will be granted on a case-by-case basis when the OIG determines that waiver or reduction of the fees is in the public interest because furnishing the information is likely to contribute significantly to public understanding of the operations or activities of the OIG and the Department of Defense and is not primarily in the commercial interest of the requester. In any request for waiver of fees, the requester must provide sufficient information to enable the IDA to make a proper determination of whether or not the fees should be waived.

(6) In cases where the requester fails to provide sufficient persuasive information upon which to make a determination for waiver of the fees, the requester shall be so informed and given the opportunity to submit additional justification. Absent such justification, the requester may be required to pay fees appropriate to his/her category, if provision of the information is determined not to be in the public interest or benefit.
Office of the Secretary of Defense § 295.6

(7) Payments of fees must be by check or U.S. Postal money order made payable to the Treasurer of the United States. Cash payments cannot be accepted.

(p) Appeals and Judicial Action. (1) If the designated IDA declines to provide a requested record because the official considers it exempt from disclosure under one or more of the nine exemptions of the FOIA, that decision may be appealed by the requester to the designated Appellate Authority. The appeal should be submitted in writing by the requester within 60 calendar days after the date of the initial denial letter. In cases where incremental release actions have been taken on an initial request, the time for the appeal will not begin until the date of the last denial of release letter.

(2) A “no record” finding may be considered to be adverse, and if so interpreted by the requester, may be appealed using the normal OIG appeal procedures. The OIG will conduct an additional search of files, based on the receipt of an appeal to a “no record” response, as a part of the appellate process.

(3) All final decisions rendered on appeals will be made to the requesters in writing by the Appellate Authority, after consultation with the Office of General Counsel (OGC) representative to the OIG, and other appropriate OIG elements.

(4) Final determinations on appeals normally shall be made within 20 working days after receipt. The appeal will be deemed to have been received when it reaches the FOIA/PA Division, for administrative processing on behalf of the Appellate Authority. Misdirected appeals are to be referred expeditiously to the FOIA/PA Division.

(5) A requester will be deemed to have exhausted his/her administrative remedies after he/she has been denied the requested record or waiver/reduction of fees, by the designated Appellate Authority, or when the OIG FOIA/PA Division fails to respond to the request within the time limits prescribed by the FOIA, DoD 5400.7-R (32 CFR part 280) and this part. The requester may then seek judicial action from a U.S. District Court in the district in which the requester resides, has a principal place of business, in the district in which the record is located, or in the District of Columbia.

(6) Records that are denied on appeal shall be retained for a period of six years, in accordance with IGDM 5015.2, "Records Management Manual," to meet the statute of limitations of claims requirements.

2See footnote 1 to § 295.5(1).
3See footnote 1 to § 295.5(1).
§ 295.7 Procedures.

(a) General. The provisions of the FOIA are reserved for persons with private interests as opposed to Federal governmental agencies seeking official information. The procedures for making requests, whether as a private party or governmental representative, are set forth below.

(b) Requests From Private Parties. (1) Members of the public may make requests in writing for copies of records, or permission to examine or copy records, directly to the FOIA/PA Division addressed to: Assistant Director, FOIA/PA Division, OAIG for Investigations, 400 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, VA 22202-2884.

(2) Requests must identify each record sought with sufficient specificity to enable the custodian to locate the record with a reasonable amount of effort. Requesters should provide such information as where the record originated and by whom, its subject matter, its approximate date or timeframe, which element of the OIG is likely to have custodianship, or any other similar information that would assist in locating the record. Requests must also contain a statement regarding willingness to pay fees.

(3) A request from an individual who made an allegation of wrongdoing to the IG, or any protected disclosure under the “Whistleblower Protection Acts,” and who is seeking the results of any investigation or inquiry conducted into the allegation, should identify him/herself as the “Whistleblower” in the request. The request should indicate whether he/she wishes to continue anonymity, should be notarized to avoid the risk of losing the anonymity, and should contain a statement regarding willingness to pay fees.

(4) A request for a personal record or investigative record pertaining to the individual making the request, that is in a system of records whether non-exempt or exempted from mandatory release under the Privacy Act, must be notarized to avoid the risk of invasion of personal privacy. In any such request, the individual may designate another individual to act as his/her representative in making the request and in receiving the records on his/her behalf; however, the authorization must be in writing, specifically name the representative and kinds of records authorized to be provided, and be notarized to avoid the risk of invasion of personal privacy.

(5) A request for a record that was obtained from a non-U.S. Government source, and that is subject to exemption (b)(4) under the FOIA, will be released to the individual or firm making the request without further exception, if:

(i) The individual or firm is clearly the submitter of the information and/or is clearly acting on behalf of the submitter in making the request.

(ii) The request contains a statement from a company official or other representative of the submitter clearly capable of certifying that the requester is acting on behalf of the submitter of the information in making the request; i.e., a Vice-President certifies on his/her company letterhead that XYZ Law Firm is acting on behalf of the company in requesting copies of documents submitted to the government by the company. A mere assertion by the requester that the requester is acting on behalf of the submitter in making the request will not be honored, if it cannot be readily verified through records available to the OIG.

(c) Requests From Government Officials.

(1) Requests from officials of State, or local Governments for OIG records will be considered the same as any other requester, except where the request is for a personal record in a system of records subject to the Privacy Act, in which case the provisions of DoD 5400.11-R (32 CFR part 286a) apply.

(2) Requests from members of Congress, or their staffs, not seeking records on behalf of a Congressional Committee, Subcommittee, or either House sitting as a whole, will be considered the same as any other requester. Requests from members of Congress, or their staffs, made on behalf of their constituents will also be considered the same as any other requester.

(3) Requests from officials of foreign governments shall be considered the same as any other requester. Requests from officials of foreign governments that do not invoke the FOIA shall be referred to appropriate foreign disclosure channels and the requester so notified.

(d) Misdirected Requests. Requests misdirected to other OIG elements will be forwarded promptly to the FOIA/PA Division. The statutory period allowed for response to a request misdirected by the requester shall not begin until the request is received in the FOIA/PA Division. The OIG components and field elements receiving misdirected requests should advise the requester that the request is being forwarded to the office having the authority to act on and respond to the request.

(e) Privileged Release to Officials. (1) Subject to DoD 5200.1-R, 4 "Information Security Program Regulation", applicable to classified information, A-DoD Directive 5400.11 (32 CFR part 286a), applicable to personal privacy or other applicable law, records exempt from release under appendix B of this part may be authenticated and released, without requiring release to other FOIA requesters, in accordance with OIG rules to U.S. Government officials requesting them on behalf of Federal governmental bodies, whether legislative, executive, administrative, or judicial, as follows:

(i) To a Committee or Subcommittee of Congress, or to either House sitting as a whole in accordance with DoD Directive 5400.4, 5 "Provision of Information to Congress," and this part.

4Copies may be obtained, at cost, from the National Technical Information Service, 5285 Port Royal Road, Springfield, VA 22161.
5See footnote 4 to §295.7(e).
§ 295.7

(ii) To the Federal courts whenever ordered by officers of the court as necessary for the proper administration of justice.

(iii) To other Federal agencies both executive and administrative as determined by the IG or the IG’s designee.

(2) On all such releases, the officials receiving records under the above provisions will be informed in writing that the records are exempt from public release under the FOIA and are privileged. The OIG components will also advise the receiving officials of any special handling instructions.

(f) Processing Requests. (1) Upon receipt in the FOIA/PA Division, a request for records will be assigned a control number, logged, and reviewed for adequacy and compliance with the procedures for submitting requests outlined in §295.7(b).

(2) If the request does not meet the adequacy of description test, contain a statement regarding fees, or contain a notarized signature/authorization or a certification of submitter representation, if applicable; the request will be acknowledged as having been received and the requester will be notified of the defect and advised that the request will be administratively closed and the requester so advised.

(ii) Where the request meets the adequacy of description test, the request will be administratively closed and the requester so advised.

(i) Where the request does not meet the adequacy of description test, the request will be administratively closed and the requester so advised.

(g) Initial Determinations. (1) The initial determination of whether to make a record available upon request may be made only by the IDAs designated by the IG in this part. Further, the number of IDAs designated by the IG will be limited and based on a balance of the goals of centralization of authority to promote uniform decisions and decentralization to facilitate responding to each request within the time limitations of the FOIA.

(2) Other than statutory denials, there are six other reasons for not complying with a request for a record:

(i) The request is transferred to another DoD Component or Federal agency.
(ii) The request is withdrawn by the requester.
(iii) The information requested is not a record within the meaning of the FOIA and §295.3(a) of this part.
(iv) A record has not been described with sufficient particularity to enable those that OIG to locate it by conducting a reasonable search.
(v) The requester has failed unreasonably to comply with the procedural requirements, including the payment of fees, imposed by 32 CFR part 286 and this part.
(vi) The OIG has determined through knowledge of its files and reasonable search efforts that it neither controls nor possesses the requested record.

(3) Initial determinations to release or deny a record normally will be made and the decision reported to the requester within 10 working days, provided that the requester has complied with the preliminary procedural requirements.

(4) When requests are denied in whole in part, the requester will be informed in writing of the reasons for the denial, the identity of the official making the denial, the right of appeal of the decision, and the identity and address of the official to whom an appeal may be made.

(5) The explanation of the substantive basis for a denial will include specific citation of the statutory exemption applied under provisions of the FOIA. Mere reference to a classification or to a “For Official Use Only” marking will not constitute a basis for invoking an exemption. When the initial denial is based in whole or in part on a security classification, the explanation will include a summary of the applicable criteria for the classification.

(h) Denial Tests. (1) To deny a requested record that is in the possession and control of the OIG, it must be determined that the record is included in one or more of the nine categories of records exempt from mandatory disclosure as provided by the FOIA and outlined in chapter III of DoD 5400.7-R (32 CFR part 286), and this part. No OIG record may be otherwise withheld from the public, whether in whole or in part, except as determined by the designated IDAs in accordance with FOIA exemptions.

(2) Although portions of some records may be denied, the remaining reasonably segregable portions will be released to the requester when it can be assumed that a skillful and knowledgeable person could not reconstruct the excised information. When a record is denied in whole, the IDA will advise the requester of that determination.

(i) Extension of Time. (1) In unusual circumstances, responsive records may be located by the office having custodianship over the record, but the records can not be made immediately available to the FOIA/PA Division, or the FOIA/PA Division can not make them immediately available to the requester. The unusual circumstances justifying the delay will be the result of the following:

(i) The requested record is located in whole or in part at another geographic location than that of the FOIA/PA Division.

(ii) The request requires the collection and/or evaluation of a substantial number of records.

(iii) Consultation is required with other DoD Components or agencies having substantial interest in the subject matter to determine whether the records requested are exempt from disclosure in whole or in part under provisions of the FOIA and this part or should be released as a matter of discretion.

(2) In any such event, efforts will be made to negotiate an informal extension in time with the requester by the FOIA/PA Division. If the requester chooses not to agree informally to an extension in time, a written explanation of the reasons for delay will be provided to the requester and the requester will be asked to await a substantive response by an anticipated date.

(j) Fee Assessments. (1) When it is determined that the fees assessable to a request undergoing final processing may exceed the limit established by the requester, or may be in excess of $250, the processing will be discontinued and the requester notified so that he/she may advise of his/her desire to continue.
(2) If a “good faith” deposit is required, the requester will be allowed a reasonable time (generally 30 calendar days) in which to provide payment. If the requester fails to provide the “good faith” deposit within the time allowed, the request will be closed and the requester so notified.

(3) In all other cases, the requester will be notified of any fees due at the time the requested records are provided to the requester, and allowed a reasonable time (generally 30 calendar days) in which to pay the fees.

(4) If the requester fails to pay the fees in the time allowed, a notice of nonpayment will be placed in the formal control system and no further FOIA requests from the requester will be honored until the fees have been paid.

(k) Records on Non-U.S. Government Sources. (1) When it is determined that the records or data contained within the records responsive to a request were obtained from a non-U.S. Government source by the OIG, and the requester is not the submitter of the non-U.S. Government record nor acting as the submitter’s representative; and it is further determined the source or submitter may have a valid objection to release of the material, the submitter will be promptly notified of the request and afforded a reasonable time (generally 30 calendar days) to present any objections to the release.

(2) This procedure is required for those FOIA requests for data not deemed clearly exempt from disclosure under exemption (b)(4). If, for example, the record or data was submitted by the non-U.S. Government source with the actual or presumptive knowledge of the source, and established that it would be made available to the public upon request, there is no requirement to notify the source.

(3) All objections will be evaluated. When a substantial issue has been raised, the OIG may seek additional information and afford the source and requester reasonable opportunities to present their arguments on the legal and substantive issues involved prior to making a determination.

(4) The OIG will not ordinarily exercise its discretionary authority to release information clearly meeting the exemption (b)(4) criteria. Further, the final decision to disclose information not deemed to clearly meet exemption (b)(4) criteria will be made by an official equivalent in rank or greater to the official who would make the decision to withhold that data under a FOIA appeal.

(5) When the source or submitter advises of the intent to seek a restraining order or to take court action to prevent release of the data, the requester will be notified and action will not be taken on the request until after the outcome of the court action is known. When the requester brings court action to compel disclosure, the source shall be promptly notified of this action.

(6) These procedures also apply to any non-U.S. Government record in the possession and control of the OIG from multi-national organizations, such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and the North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD), or foreign governments. Coordination of such FOIA requests with foreign governments will be made through the Department of State by the FOIA/PA Division.

(l) Coordination With Department of Justice. (1) Where the custodian of an OIG element determines that records responsive to a FOIA request are pertinent to pending or potential litigation involving the United States, the FOIA/PA POC for the element shall promptly notify the FOIA/PA Division so that the necessary coordination can be effected with the Office of General Counsel (OGC) representative to the IG.

(2) The OGC representative shall effect all necessary coordination with the United States Attorney and/or Department of Justice prior to any release of such records.

(m) Procedures for Appeals. (1) A requester may appeal the initial decision to deny access to requested records, in writing, to the designated OIG Appellate Authority. The requester may also appeal a no record determination, any fees assessed and the denial of a request for waiver/reduction of fees. All such appeals should be made no later than 60 calendar days after the date of the initial denial letter or letter of advisement regarding fees.
§ 295.9 Organization and mission.

(a) The organization of the OIG includes the Headquarters located in Arlington, Virginia, consisting of the Inspector General, Deputy Inspector General, the Offices of the Assistant Inspector General (AIG) for Analysis and Followup, the AIG for Audit Policy and Oversight, the AIG for Auditing with its subordinate field elements located throughout the Continental United States (CONUS), the AIG for Investigations with its field elements located throughout the CONUS and Europe, the AIG for Administration and Information Management, the AIG for Departmental Inquiries, the AIG for Inspections, and the Director, IG Regional Office-Europe (IGROE) located in Wiesbaden, Germany. The IGROE has representatives assigned from the Offices of the AIG for Investigations, the AIG for Inspections, the AIG for Auditing and the AIG for Departmental Inquiries, who fulfill the missions of their respective components.

(b) The "Organization and Staff Listing" (Inspector General, Defense List (IGDL) 1400.7), provides organization charts for the OIG elements and mailing addresses of all OIG operating locations and will be made available to the public upon written request.

(c) As an independent and objective office in the Department of Defense (DoD) the mission of the OIG is to:

1. Conduct, supervise, monitor, and initiate audits, inspections and investigations relating to programs and operations of the DoD.

2. Provide leadership and coordination and recommend policies for activities designed to promote economy, efficiency, and effectiveness in the administration of, and to prevent and detect fraud and abuse in, such programs and operations.

3. Provide a means for keeping the Secretary of Defense and the Congress fully and currently informed about problems and deficiencies relating to the administration of such programs and operations and the necessity for and progress of corrective action.

4. Further information regarding the responsibilities and functions of the IG is encompassed in Public Law 95-452, the "Inspector General Act of 1978," as amended and 32 CFR part 373.

APPENDIX A TO PART 295—FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY (FOUO)

I. General Provisions

A. General

Information that has not been given a security classification pursuant to the criteria of an Executive Order, but which may be withheld from the public for one or more of the reasons cited in FOIA exemptions (b)(2) through (b)(9) shall be considered as being for official use only. No other material shall be considered or marked "For Official Use Only" (FOUO), and FOUO is not authorized as an anemic form of classification to protect national security interests.

B. Prior FOUO Application

The prior application of FOUO markings is not a conclusive basis for withholding a record that is requested under the FOIA. When such a record is requested, the information in it shall be evaluated to determine whether, under current circumstances, FOIA exemptions apply in withholding the record or portions of it. If any exemption or exemptions apply or applies, it may nonetheless be released when it is determined that no governmental interest will be jeopardized by its release.

C. Historical Papers

Records such as notes, working papers, and drafts retained as historical evidence of actions enjoy no special status apart from the exemptions under the FOIA.

D. Time to Mark Records

The marking of records at the time of their creation provides notice of FOUO content and facilitates review when a record is requested under the FOIA. Records requested under the FOIA that do not bear such markings, shall not be assumed to be releasable without examination for the presence of information that requires continued protection and qualifies as exempt from public release.

E. Distribution Statement

Information in a technical document that requires a distribution statement pursuant to DoD Directive 5230.24, "Distribution Statements on Technical Documents", shall bear that statement and may be marked FOUO, as appropriate.

II. Markings

A. Location of Markings

1. An unclassified document containing FOUO information shall be marked "For Official Use Only" at the bottom on the outside of the front cover (if any), on each page containing FOUO information, and on the outside of the back cover (if any).

2. Within a classified document, an individual page that contains both FOUO and classified information shall be marked at the top and bottom with the highest security classification of information appearing on the page.

3. Within a classified document, an individual page that contains FOUO information 6See footnote 1 to §295.5(i).

Office of the Secretary of Defense

but no classified information shall be marked “For Official Use Only” at the bottom of the page.

(4) Other records, such as, photographs, films, tapes, or slides, shall be marked “For Official Use Only” or “FOUO” in a manner that ensures that a recipient or viewer is aware of the status of the information there-

(5) The FOUO material transmitted outside the Department of Defense requires application of an expanded marking to explain the significance of the FOUO marking. This may be accomplished by typing or stamping the following statement on the record prior to transfer:

This document contains information EXEMPT FROM MANDATORY DISCLOSURE under the FOIA. Exemptions . . . . . apply

III. Dissemination and Transmission

A. Release and Transmission Procedures

Until FOUO status is terminated, the release and transmission instructions that follow apply:

(1) The FOUO information may be disseminated within DoD Components and between officials of DoD Components and DoD contractors, consultants, and grantees to conduct official business for the Department of Defense. Recipients shall be made aware of the status of such information, and transmission shall be by means that preclude unauthorized public disclosure. Transmittal documents shall call attention to the presence of FOUO attachments.

(2) The DoD holders of FOUO information are authorized to convey such information to officials in other departments and agencies of the executive and judicial branches to fulfill a Government function, except to the extent prohibited by the Privacy Act. Records thus transmitted shall be marked “For Official Use Only”, and the recipient shall be advised that the information has been exempted from public disclosure, pursuant to the FOIA, and that special handling instructions do or do not apply.

(3) Release of FOUO information to Members of Congress is governed by DoD Directive 5400.4.2 “ Provision of Information to Congress”. Release to the GAO is governed by DoD Directive 7600.1, “General Accounting Office Access to Records”. Records released to the Congress or GAO should be reviewed to determine whether the information warrants FOUO status. If not, prior FOUO markings shall be removed or effaced. If withholding criteria are met, the records shall be marked FOUO and the recipient provided an explanation for such exemption and marking. Alternatively, the recipient may be requested, without marking the record, to protect against its public disclosure for reasons that are explained.

B. Transporting FOUO Information

Records containing FOUO information shall be transported in a manner that precludes disclosure of the contents. When not commingled with classified information, FOUO information may be sent via first-class mail or parcel post. Bulky shipments, such as distributions of FOUO Directives or testing materials, that otherwise qualify under postal regulations may be sent by fourth-class mail.

C. Electrically Transmitted Messages

Each part of electrically transmitted messages containing FOUO information shall be marked appropriately. Unclassified messages containing FOUO information shall contain the abbreviated “FOUO” before the beginning of the text. Such messages shall be transmitted in accordance with communications security procedures in ACP-121 (United States Supplement 1) for FOUO information.

IV. Safeguarding FOUO Information

A. During Duty Hours

During normal working hours, records determined to be FOUO shall be placed in an out-of-sight location if the work area is accessible to non-governmental personnel.

B. During Non-Duty Hours

At the close of business, FOUO records shall be stored so as to preclude unauthorized access. Filing such material with other unclassified records in unlocked files or desks, etc., is adequate when normal U.S. Government or government-contractor internal building security is provided during nonduty hours. When such internal security control is not exercised, locked buildings or rooms normally provide adequate after-hours protection. If such protection is not considered adequate, FOUO material shall be stored in locked receptacles such as file cabinets, desks, or bookcases. FOUO records that are subject to the provisions of Public Law 86-36, National Security Agency Act shall meet the safeguards outlined for that group of records.

V. Termination, Disposal and Unauthorized Disclosures

A. Termination

The originator or other component authority, e.g., initial denial and appellate authorities, shall terminate “For Official Use Only” marks or status when circumstances indicate that the information no longer requires protection from public disclosure. When FOUO status is terminated, all known holders shall be notified, to the extent practical. Upon notification, holders shall efface or remove the “For Official Use Only” markings, but records in file or storage need not be retrieved solely for that purpose.

B. Disposal

(1) Nonrecord copies of FOUO materials may be destroyed by tearing each copy into pieces to preclude reconstructing, and placing them in regular trash containers. When local circumstances or experience indicates that this destruction method is not sufficiently protective of FOUO information, local authorities may direct other methods but give due consideration to the additional expense balanced against the degree of sensitivity of the type of FOUO information contained in the records.

(2) Record copies of FOUO documents shall be disposed of in accordance with the disposal standards established under 44 U.S.C. chapter 33, as implemented by Inspector General Defense Manual (IGDM) 5015.2-5, “Records Management Program".

C. Unauthorized Disclosure

The unauthorized disclosure of FOUO records does not constitute an unauthorized disclosure of DoD information classified for security purposes. Appropriate administrative action shall be taken, however, to fix responsibility for unauthorized disclosure whenever feasible, and appropriate disciplinary action shall be taken against those responsible. Unauthorized disclosure of FOUO information that is protected by the Privacy Act may also result in civil and criminal sanctions against responsible persons. The DoD Component that originated the FOUO information shall be informed of its unauthorized disclosure.

APPENDIX B TO PART 295—EXEMPTIONS

I. General

The exemptions listed apply to categories of records that may be withheld in whole or in part from public disclosure, unless otherwise prescribed by law. A discretionary release (see also §295.3(e) of this part) to one requester may preclude the withholding of the same record under a FOIA exemption if the record is subsequently requested by someone else. In applying the exemptions, the identity of the requester and the purpose for which the record is sought are irrelevant with the exception that an exemption may not be invoked where the particular interest to be protected is the requester’s interest. The examples provided of the types of records that may be exempted from release are not at all inclusive.

II. FOIA Exemptions

A. Exemption (b)(1)

Those properly and currently classified in the interest of national defense or foreign policy, as specifically authorized under the criteria established by executive order and implemented by regulations, such as DoD 5200.1-R ¹ (32 CFR part 159a), “Information Security Program Regulation”. Although material is not classified at the time of the FOIA request, a classification review may be undertaken to determine whether the information should be classified. The procedures in DoD 5200.1-R, section 2-204F, apply, in addition, this exemption shall be invoked when the following situations are apparent:

(1) The fact of the existence or nonexistence of a record would itself reveal classified information. In this situation, the OIG shall neither confirm nor deny the existence or nonexistence of the record being requested. A “refusal to confirm or deny” response will be used consistently, not only when a record exists, but also when a record does not exist. Otherwise, the pattern of using a “no record” response when a record does not exist will itself disclose national security information.

(2) Information that concerns one or more of the classification categories established by executive order and DoD 5200.1-R (32 CFR part 159a) shall be classified if its unauthorized disclosure, either by itself or in the context of other information, reasonably could be expected to cause damage to the national security.

B. Exemption (b)(2)

Those related solely to the internal personnel rules and practices of DoD or the OIG. This exemption has two profiles, high (b)(2) and low (b)(2).

(1) Records qualifying under high (b)(2) are those containing or constituting statutes, rules, regulations, orders, manuals, directives, and instructions the release of which would allow circumvention of these records, thereby substantially hindering the effective performance of a significant function of the DoD or OIG. Examples include:

(a) Those operating rules, guidelines, and manuals, for DoD and OIG investigators, inspectors, auditors, or examiners that must ¹Copies may be obtained, at cost, from the National Technical Information Service, 5285 Port Royal Road, Springfield, VA 22161.

Office of the Secretary of Defense remains privileged in order for the OIG to fulfill a legal requirement.

(b) Personnel and other administrative matters, such as examination questions and answers used in training courses or in the determination of the qualifications of candidates for employment, entrance on duty, advancement, or promotion.

(c) Computer software meeting the standards of §295.3(c) of this part, the release of which would allow circumvention of a statute or DoD rules, regulations, orders, manuals, directives, or instructions. In this situation, the use of the software must be closely examined to ensure a circumvention possibility exists.

(2) Records qualifying under the low (b)(2) profile are those that are trivial and housekeeping in nature for which there is no legitimate public interest or benefit to be gained by release, and it would constitute an administrative burden to process the request in order to disclose the records. Examples include: rules of personnel's use of parking facilities or regulation of lunch hours, statements of policy as to sick leave, and trivial administrative data such as file numbers, mail routing stamps, initials, data processing notations, brief references to previous communications, and other like administrative markings.

C. Exemption (b)(3)

Those concerning matters that a statute specifically exempts from disclosure by terms that permit no discretion on the issue, or in accordance with criteria established by that statute for withholding or referring to particular types of matters to be withheld. Examples of statutes are:

(2) Patent Secrecy, 35 U.S.C. 181-188. Any records containing information relating to inventions that are the subject of patent applications on which Patent Secrecy Orders have been issued.
(3) Restricted Data and Formerly Restricted Data, 42 U.S.C. 2102.
(6) Confidentiality of Medical Quality Records: Qualified Immunity Participants, 10 U.S.C. 1102.
(7) Physical Protection of Special Nuclear Material: Limitation on Dissemination of Unclassified Information, 10 U.S.C. 128.
(8) Protection of Intelligence Sources and Methods, 50 U.S.C. 403(d)(3).

D. Exemption (b)(4)

Those containing trade secrets or commercial or financial information that the OIG receives from a person or organization outside the Government with the understanding that the information or record will be retained on a privileged or confidential basis in accordance with the customary handling of such records. Records within the exemption must contain trade secrets, or commercial or financial records, the disclosure of which is likely to cause substantial harm to the competitive position of the source providing the information; impair the Government's ability to obtain necessary information in the future; or impair some other legitimate Government interest. Examples include:

(1) Commercial or financial information received in confidence in connection with loans, bids, contracts, or proposals, as well as other information received in confidence or privileged, such as trade secrets, inventions, discoveries, or other proprietary data. See also 32 CFR part 286h, “Release of Acquisition-Related Information”.
(2) Statistical data and commercial or financial information concerning contract performance, income, profits, losses, and expenditures, if offered and received in confidence from a contractor or potential contractor.
(3) Personal statements given in the course of inspections, investigations, or audits, when such statements are received in confidence from the individual and retained in confidence because they reveal trade secrets or commercial or financial information normally considered confidential or privileged.
(4) Financial data provided in confidence by private employers in connection with locality wage surveys that are used to fix and adjust pay schedules applicable to the prevailing wage rate of employees within the Department of Defense.
(5) Scientific and manufacturing processes or developments concerning technical or scientific data or other information submitted with an application for a research grant, or with a report while research is in progress.
(6) Technical or scientific data developed by a contractor or subcontractor exclusively at private expense, and technical or scientific data developed in part with Federal funds and in part at private expense, wherein the contractor or subcontractor has retained legitimate proprietary interest in such data in accordance with title 10, U.S.C. 2320-2321 and DoD Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement (DFARS), subpart 27.4 (see section C.(5) of this appendix).
(7) Computer software meeting the conditions of §295.3(c), which is copyrighted under the Copyright Act of 1976 (17 U.S.C. 106), the disclosure of which would have an adverse impact on the potential market value of a copyrighted work.
Except as provided in subsections (2) through (5), below, internal advice, recommendations, and subjective evaluations, as contrasted with factual matters, that are reflected in records pertaining to the decision-making process of an agency, whether within or among agencies (as defined in 5 U.S.C. 552(e)), DoD Components or OIG components. Also exempted are records pertaining to attorney-client privilege and the attorney work-product privilege.

Examples include:

(a) The nonfactual portions of staff papers, to include after-action reports and situation reports containing staff evaluations, advice, opinions, or suggestions.

(b) Advice, suggestions, or evaluations prepared on behalf of the Department of Defense by individual consultants or by boards, committees, councils, groups, panels, conferences, commissions, task forces, or other similar groups that are formed for the purpose of obtaining advice and recommendations.

(c) Those non-factual portions or evaluations by DoD or OIG Components personnel of contractors and their products.

(d) Information of a speculative, tentative, or evaluative nature of such matters as proposed plans to procure, lease or otherwise acquire and dispose of materials, real estate, facilities or functions, when such information would provide undue or unfair competitive advantage to private personal interests or would impede legitimate Government functions.

(e) Trade secret or other confidential research development, or commercial information owned by the Government, where premature release is likely to affect the Government's negotiating position or other commercial interests.

(f) Records that are exchanged among agency personnel and within and among DoD Components or agencies as part of the preparation for anticipated administrative proceeding by an agency or litigation before any Federal, state, or military court, as well as records that qualify for the attorney-client privilege.

(g) Those portions of official reports of inspection, reports of the Inspector General, audits, investigations, or surveys pertaining to safety, security, or the internal management, administration, or operation of one or more DoD Components, when these records have traditionally been treated by the courts as privileged against disclosure in litigation.

(h) Computer software meeting the standards of §295.3(c), which is deliberative in nature, the disclosure of which would inhibit or chill the decision-making process. In this situation, the use of software must be closely examined to ensure its deliberative nature.

(i) Planning, programming, and budgetary information which is involved in the defense planning and resource allocation process.

(2) If any such intra or interagency record or reasonably segregable portion of such record hypothetically would be made available routinely through the "discovery process" in the course of litigation with the agency, i.e., the process by which litigants obtain information from each other that is relevant to the issues in a trial or hearing, then it should not be withheld from the general public even though discovery has not been sought in actual litigation. If, however, the information hypothetically would only be made available through the discovery process by special order of the court based on the particular needs of a litigant, balanced against the interests of the agency in maintaining its confidentiality, then the record or document need not be made available under this part. Consult with legal counsel to determine whether exemption 5 material would be routinely made available through the discovery process.

(3) Intra or interagency memoranda or letters that are factual, or those reasonably segregable portions that are factual, are routinely made available through "discovery," and shall be made available to a requester, unless the factual material is otherwise exempt from release, inextricably intertwined with the exempt information, so fragmented as to be uninformative, or so redundant of information already available to the requester as to provide no new substantive information.

A direction or order from a superior to a subordinate, though contained in an internal communication, generally cannot be withheld from a requester if it constitutes policy guidance or a decision, as distinguished from a discussion of preliminary matters or a request for information or advice that would compromise the decision-making process.

(5) Any internal communication concerning a decision that subsequently has been made a matter of public record must be made available to a requester when the rationale for the decision is expressly adopted or incorporated by reference in the record containing the decision.

Information in personnel and medical files, as well as similar personal information in other files, that, if disclosed to the requester would result in a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Release of information about an individual contained in a Privacy Act System of records would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of privacy is prohibited, and could subject the releaser to civil and criminal penalties.
Office of the Secretary of Defense
Pt. 295, App. B

(1) Examples of other files containing personal information similar to that contained in personnel and medical files include:

(a) Those compiled to evaluate or adjudicate eligibility of candidates for civilian employment or membership in the Armed Forces, and the eligibility of individuals (civilians, military, or contractor employees) for security clearances, or for access to particularly sensitive classified information.

(b) Files containing reports, records, and other material pertaining to personnel matters in which administrative action, including disciplinary action, may be taken.

(2) Home addresses are normally not releasable without the consent of the individuals concerned. In addition, the release of lists of DoD military and civilian personnel’s names and duty addresses who are assigned to units that are sensitive, routinely deployable, or stationed in foreign territories can constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of privacy.

(a) Privacy interest. A privacy interest may exist in personal information even though the information has been disclosed at some place and time. If personal information is not freely available from sources other than the Federal Government, a privacy interest exists in its nondisclosure. The fact that the Federal Government expended funds to prepare, index and maintain records on personal information, and the fact that a requester invokes FOIA to obtain these records indicates the information is not freely available.

(b) Published telephone directories, organizational charts, rosters and similar materials for personnel assigned to units that are sensitive, routinely deployable, or stationed in foreign territories are withholdable under this exemption.

(3) This exemption shall not be used in an attempt to protect the privacy of a deceased person, but it may be used to protect the privacy of the deceased person’s family.

(4) Individuals’ personnel, medical, or similar file may be withheld from them or their designated legal representative only to the extent consistent with DoD Directive 5400.11 (32 CFR part 296a).

(5) A clearly unwarranted invasion of the privacy of the persons identified in a personnel, medical or similar record may constitute a basis for deleting those reasonably segregable portions of that record, even when providing it to the subject of the record. When withholding personal information from the subject of the record, legal counsel should first be consulted.

G. Exemption (b)(7)

Records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes; i.e., civil, criminal, or military law, including the implementation of executive orders or regulations issued pursuant to law. This exemption may be invoked to prevent disclosure of documents not originally created for, but later gathered for law enforcement purposes.

(a) This exemption applies, however, only to the extent that production of such law enforcement records or information could result in the following:

(i) A clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of a living person, including surviving family members of an individual identified in such a record.

(ii) A “refusal to confirm or deny” response must be used consistently, not only when a record exists, but also when a record does not exist. Otherwise, the pattern of using a “no records” response when a record does not exist and a “refusal to confirm or deny” when a record does exist will itself disclose personally private information.

(iii) Refusal to confirm or deny should not be used when (1) the person whose personal privacy is in jeopardy has provided the requester with a waiver of his or her privacy rights; or (2) the person whose personal privacy is in jeopardy is deceased, and the OIG is aware of that fact.

(d) Could reasonably be expected to disclose the identity of a confidential source, including a source within the Department of Defense, a State, local, or foreign agency or authority, or any private institution which furnishes the information on a confidential basis.

(e) Could disclose information furnished from a confidential source and obtained by a criminal law enforcement authority in a criminal investigation or by an agency conducting a lawful national security intelligence investigation.

(f) Would disclose techniques and procedures for law enforcement investigations or prosecutions, or would disclose guidelines for law enforcement investigations or prosecutions if such disclosure could reasonably be expected to risk circumvention of the law.

(g) Could reasonably be expected to endanger the life or physical safety of any individual.

(2) Examples include:

(a) Statements of witnesses and other material developed during the course of the investigation and all materials prepared in connection with related government litigation or adjudicative proceedings.

(b) The identity of firms or individuals being investigated for alleged irregularities involving contracting with Department of Defense when no indictment has been obtained nor any civil action filed against them by the United States.

(c) Information obtained in confidence, expressed or implied, in the course of a criminal investigation by a criminal law enforcement agency or office within a DoD Component, or a lawful national security intelligence investigation conducted by an authorized agency or office within a DoD Component. Security intelligence investigations include background security investigations and those investigations conducted for the purpose of obtaining affirmative or counterintelligence information.

(3) The right of individual litigants to investigative records currently available by law (such as, the Jencks Act, 18 U.S.C. 3500) is not diminished.

(4) When the subject of an investigative record is the requester of the record, it may be withheld only as authorized by DoD Directive 5400.11 (32 CFR part 286a).

(5) Exclusions. Excluded from the above exemptions are the following two situations as applicable to the Department of Defense and the OIG:

(a) Whenever a request is made which involves access to records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes, and the investigation or proceeding involves possible violation of criminal law where there is reason to believe that the subject of the investigation or proceeding is unaware of its pendency, and the disclosure of the existence of the records could reasonably be expected to interfere with enforcement proceedings, the OIG may, during only such times as that circumstance continues, treat the records or information as not subject to the FOIA. In such situation, the response to the requesters will state that no records were found.

(b) Whenever informant records maintained by a criminal law enforcement organization within the OIG under the informant’s name or personal identifier are requested by a third party using the informant’s name or personal identifier, the OIG may treat the records as not subject to the FOIA, unless the informant’s status as an informant has been officially confirmed. If it is determined that the records are subject to exemption (b)(7), the response to the requester will state that no records were found.

H. Exemption (b)(8)

Those contained in or related to examination, operation or condition reports prepared by, on behalf of, or for the use of any agency responsible for the regulation or supervision of financial institutions.

32 CFR Ch. I (7-1-98 Edition)

PART 296—NATIONAL RECONNAISSANCE OFFICE FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT PROGRAM REGULATION

Sec. 296.1 Purpose.

296.2 Definitions.

296.3 Indexes.

296.4 Procedures for request of records.

296.5 Appeals.

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552.

Source: 58 FR 60382, Nov. 16, 1993, unless otherwise noted.

§ 296.1 Purpose.

The purpose of this part is to provide policies and procedures for the National Reconnaissance Office (NRO) implementation of the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), and to promote uniformity in the NRO FOIA program.

§ 296.2 Definitions.

(a) Freedom of Information Act Appellate Authority. The Chief of Staff, NRO.

(b) Initial Denial Authority. The Chief, Information Access and Release Center, NRO.

§ 296.3 Indexes.

The NRO does not originate final orders, opinions, statements of policy, interpretations, staff manuals or instructions that affect a member of the public of the type covered by the indexing requirement of 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(2). The Director, NRO, has therefore determined, pursuant to pertinent statutory and executive order requirements, that it is unnecessary and impracticable to publish an index of the type required by 5 U.S.C. 552.

§ 296.4 Procedures for request of records.

(a) Requests. Request for access to records of the National Reconnaissance Office may be filed by mail addressed to the Chief, Information Access and Release Center, National Reconnaissance Office, 14675 Lee Road, Chantilly, VA 20151-1715. Requests need not be made on any special form but must be by letter or other written statement identifying the request as a Freedom of Information Act request and setting forth sufficient information reasonably describing the requested record. All requests should contain a willingness to pay assessable FOIA fees.

(b) Determination and notification. When the requested record has been located and identified, the Initial Denial Authority shall determine whether the record is one which, consistent with statutory requirements, executive orders and appropriate directives, may be released or should be exempted under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552. Normally, the Initial Denial Authority shall notify the requester of the determination within 10 working days of the receipt of the request.

(c) Extension of response time. In unusual circumstances, when additional time is needed to respond, normally the Initial Denial Authority shall notify the requester in writing within the initial response period of the delay, the reasons therefore, and if specified, a date, not to exceed 10 working days, on which a determination is expected to be dispatched. When a significant number of requests have been received, e.g., 10 or more, the requests shall be initially processed in order of receipt. However, this does not preclude the Initial Denial Authority from completing action on a request which can be easily answered, regardless of its ranking within the order of receipt.

(d) Fees. (1) General. As a component of the Department of Defense, the applicable published Department rules and schedules with respect to the schedule of fees chargeable and waiver of fees will also be the policy of NRO. See 32 CFR 286.33.

(2) Advance payments. (i) Where a total fee to be assessed is estimated to exceed $250, advance payment of the estimated fee will be required before processing of the request, except where assurances of full payment are received from a requester with a history of prompt payment. Where a requester has previously failed to pay a fee within 30 calendar days of the date of the billing, the requester will be required to pay the full amount owed, plus any applicable interest, or demonstrate that he or she has paid the fee, as well as make an advance payment of the full amount of any estimated fee before processing of a new or pending request continues.

(ii) For all other requests, advance payment, i.e., a payment made before work is commenced, will not be required. Payment owed for work already completed is not an advance payment; however, responses will not be held pending receipt of fees from requesters with a history of prompt payment. Fees should be paid by certified check or postal money order forwarded to the Director, External Relations, and made payable to the Treasurer of the United States.

§ 296.5 Appeals.

Any person denied access to records, denied a fee waiver, or who considers a no record determination to be adverse in nature, may, within 60 days after notification of such denial, file an appeal to the Freedom on Information Act Appellate Authority, National Reconnaissance Office. Such an appeal shall be in writing addressed to the Chief, Information Access and Release Center, National Reconnaissance Office, 14675 Lee Road, Chantilly, VA 20151-1715, shall reference the initial denial, and shall contain in sufficient detail and particularity, the grounds upon which the requester believes the release of the information, or granting of the fee waiver, is required. The Freedom of Information Act Appellate Authority shall normally make a final determination on an appeal within 20 working days after receipt of the appeal.

PART 298—DEFENSE INVESTIGATIVE SERVICE (DIS) FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT PROGRAM

Sec.
298.1 Purpose.
298.2 Organization.
298.3 Records maintained by DIS.
298.4 Procedure for release of DIS records.
298.5 Information requirements.
§ 298.1

AUTHORITY: 5 U.S.C. 552.
SOURCE: 60 FR 20032, Apr. 24, 1995, unless otherwise noted.

§ 298.1 Purpose.
This part states the intent of the agency regarding policy and procedures for the public to obtain information from the Defense Investigative Service (DIS) under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA).

§ 298.2 Organization.
(a) The DIS organization includes a Headquarters located in Alexandria, Virginia; four Regions and one operational area with subordinate operating locations throughout the Continental United States (CONUS), Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico; the Defense Industrial Security Clearance Office (DISCO), Columbus, Ohio; the Personnel Investigations Center (PIC) and National Computer Center (NCC) in Baltimore, Maryland; Office of Industrial Security International Europe (OISI-E), located in Brussels, Belgium with a subordinate office in Mannheim, Germany; Office of Industrial Security International Far East (OISI-FE) located at Camp Zama, Japan; and the Department of Defense Security Institute, located in Richmond, Virginia.
(b) A copy of the DIS Directory showing the addresses of all offices, is available to the public upon request and may be obtained by following the procedures outlined in §298.4. The names and duty addresses of DIS personnel serving overseas are not released.

§ 298.3 Records maintained by DIS.
It is the policy of DIS to make publicly available all information which may be released under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), consistent with its other responsibilities. In implementing this policy, DIS follows the procedures set forth in 32 CFR part 286. DIS maintains the following records which may be of interest to the public:
(a) The Defense Clearance and Investigations Index (DCII), which contains references to investigative records created and held by DoD Components. The records indexed are primarily those prepared by the investigative agencies of the DoD, covering terminal, fraud, counterintelligence, and personnel security information. This index also includes security clearance determinations made by the various components of the Department of Defense. Information in the DCII is not usually available to the general public, since general release would violate the privacy of individuals whose names are indexed therein.
(b) Records created as required by DoD Directive 5105.42, “Defense Investigative Service (DA&M),” (32 CFR part 361) including investigative and industrial security records.
(c) Publications referenced in “DIS Directives Listing” (DIS 00-1-L). A copy of DIS 00-1-L may be obtained upon request from the DIS Office of Information and Public Affairs (V0020), 1340 Braddock Place, Alexandria, VA 22314-1651. While this document will be provided for the convenience of possible users of the materials, such release does not constitute a determination that all or any of the publications listed affect the public or have been cleared for public release.

§ 298.4 Procedures for release of DIS records.
(a)(1) All requests will be submitted in writing to: Defense Investigative Service, Office of Information and Public Affairs (V0020), 1340 Braddock Place, Alexandria, Virginia 22314-1651.
(2) Requests directed to any agency activity (headquarters or field elements) will be forwarded to the Office of Information and Public Affairs.
(b) All requests shall contain the following information:
(1) As complete an identification as possible of the desired material including to the extent known, the title description, and date. 32 CFR part 286 does not authorize “fishing expeditions.” In the event a request is not reasonably described as defined in 32 CFR part 286, the requester will be notified by DIS of the defect.
(2) The request must contain the first name, middle name or initial, surname, date and place of birth, social security number, and, if applicable, military service number of the individual concerned, with respect to material concerning investigations of an individual.
Office of the Secretary of Defense

(3) A statement as to whether the requester wishes to inspect the record or obtain a copy of it.

(4) A statement that all costs for search (in the case of "other" and "commercial" requesters), duplication (in case of all categories of requesters), and review (in the case of "commercial requesters") will be borne by the requester even if no records, or no releasable records, are found, if appropriate. See 32 CFR part 286 for information on fees and fee waivers.

(5) The full address (including ZIP code) of the requester.

(c) A notarized request by an individual requesting investigative or other personnel records may be required to avoid the risk of invasion of privacy. Pursuant to the requirements of the Freedom of Information Act as amended (5 U.S.C. 552), the following rules of procedure are established with respect to public access to the records of the National Security Agency/Central Security Service.

(56 FR 15047, Apr. 15, 1991)

§ 299.2 Organization and requests for information.

The Headquarters of the National Security Agency/Central Security Service is located at Fort George G. Meade, Md. Requests for information and decisions and other submittals may be addressed to the Chief, Office of Policy, National Security Agency/Central Security Service, Fort George G. Meade, Md. 20755.

§ 299.3 Indexes.

The NSA/CSS does not originate final orders, opinions, statements of policy, interpretations, staff manuals or instructions that affect a member of the public of the type covered by the indexing requirement of 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(2) or required to be published for the guidance of the public under 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(1). The Director, NSA/Chief, CSS, has therefore determined, pursuant to pertinent statutory and Executive order requirements, that it is unnecessary and impracticable to publish an index of the type required by 5 U.S.C. 552 as amended by Pub. L. 93-502.

(40 FR 7300, Feb. 19, 1975)

§ 299.4 Procedures for request of records.

(a) Requests. Requests for access to records of the National Security Agency/Central Security Service may be filed by mail addressed to the Chief, Office of Policy, National Security Agency/Central Security Service, Fort George G. Meade, Md. 20755. Requests need not be made on any special form but may be by letter or other written statement identifying the request as a Freedom of Information Act request and setting forth sufficient information reasonably describing the requested record.

(b) Determination and notification. When the requested record has been located and identified, the Information Officer shall determine whether the record is one which, consistent with statutory requirements, Executive orders and appropriate directives, may be released or should be exempted under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552. The Chief, Office of Policy, shall notify the requester of his determination within 10 working days of his receipt of the request.

(c) Extension of response time. Where the requested record cannot be located within the initial response period of 10 days because of unusual circumstances, the Chief, Office of Policy shall notify the requester in writing within the initial response period of the delay, the reasons therefore, and a date, not to exceed 10 working days, on which a determination is expected to be dispatched.

(d) Fees. (1) General. As a component of the Department of Defense, the applicable published Departmental rules and schedules with respect to the schedule of fees chargeable and waiver of fees will also be the policy of NSA/CSS. See §286.33 et seq.

(2) Advance payments. (i) Where a total fee to be assessed is estimated to exceed $250, advance payment of the estimated fee will be required before processing of the request, except where assurances of full payment are received from a requester with a history of prompt payment. Where a requester has previously failed to pay a fee within 30 days of the date of billing, the requester will be required to pay the full amount owed as well as make an advance payment of the full amount of any estimated fee before processing of the request continues.

(ii) For all other requests, advance payment, i.e., a payment made before work is commenced, will not be required. Payment owed for work already completed is not an advance payment, however, responses will not be held pending receipt of fees from requesters with a history of prompt payment. Fees should be paid by certified check or postal money order forwarded to the Chief, Office of Policy, and made payable to the Treasurer of the United States.

§ 299.5 Appeals.

Any person denied access to records, or denied a fee waiver may, within 60 days after notification of such denial, file an appeal to the Freedom of Information Act Appeals Authority, National Security Agency/Central Security Service, Fort George G. Meade, Md. 20755-6000, shall reference the initial denial and shall contain in sufficient detail and particularity the grounds upon which the requester believes release of the information, or granting of the fee waiver is required. The Freedom of Information Act Appeals Authority shall respond to the appeal within 20 working days after receipt of the appeal.

(iii) The possibility of meeting the information requirements through use of information not individually identifiable or through other techniques, such as sampling;

(iv) The length of time each item of personal information must be retained;

(v) The cost of maintaining the information; and

(vi) The necessity and relevancy of the information to the purpose for which it was collected.

(g) Discontinued information requirements.

(1) Stop collecting immediately any category or item of personal information from which retention is no longer justified. Also excise this information from existing records, when feasible.

(2) Do not destroy any records that must be retained in accordance with disposal authorizations established under 44 U.S.C. 303a, “Examination by the Administrator of General Services of Lists and Schedules of Records Lacking Preservation Value, Disposal of Records.”

§ 310.12 Government contractors.

(a) Applicability to government contractors. (1) When a DoD Component contracts for the operation or maintenance of a system of records or a portion of a system of records by a contractor, the record system or the portion of the record system affected are considered to be maintained by the DoD Component and are subject to this part. The Component is responsible for applying the requirements of this part to the contractor. The contractor and its employees are to be considered employees of the DoD Component for purposes of the sanction provisions of the Privacy Act during the performance of the contract. Consistent with the Defense Acquisition Regulation (DAR), §1.327, “Protection of Individual Privacy” contracts requiring the maintenance of a system of records or the portion of a system of records shall identify specifically the record system and the work to be performed and shall include in the solicitation and resulting contract such terms as are prescribed by the DAR.

(2) If the contractor must use or have access to individually identifiable information subject to this part to perform any part of a contract, and the information would have been collected and maintained by the DoD Component but for the award of the contract, these contractor activities are subject to this Regulation.

(3) The restriction in paragraphs (a) (1) and (2) of §310.12 do not apply to records:

(i) Established and maintained to assist in making internal contractor management decisions, such as records maintained by the contractor for use in managing the contract;

(ii) Maintained as internal contractor employee records even when used in conjunction with providing goods and services to the Department of Defense; or § 310.13 Safeguarding personal information.

(a) General responsibilities. Establish appropriate administrative, technical and physical safeguards to ensure that the records in every system of records are protected from unauthorized alteration or disclosure and that their confidentiality is protected. Protect the records against reasonably anticipated threats or hazards that could result in substantial harm, embarrassment, inconvenience, or unfairness to any individual about whom information is kept.

(b) Minimum standards. (1) Tailor system safeguards to conform to the type of records in the system, the sensitivity of the personal information stored, the storage medium used and, to a degree, the number of records maintained.

(2) Treat all unclassified records that contain personal information that normally would be withheld from the public under Exemption Numbers 6 and 7, of § 286.31, subpart D of 32 CFR part 286 (DoD Freedom of Information Act Program) as if they were designated “For Official Use Only” and safeguard them in accordance with the standards established by subpart E of 32 CFR part 286 (DoD FOIA Program) even if they are not actually marked “For Official Use Only.”

(3) Afford personal information that does not meet the criteria discussed in paragraph (c)(3) of this section that degree of security which provides protection commensurate with the nature and type of information involved.

(4) Special administrative, physical, and technical procedures are required to protect data that is stored or being processed temporarily in an automated data processing (ADP) system or in a word processing activity to protect it against threats unique to those environments (see Appendices A and B).

(5) Tailor safeguards specifically to the vulnerabilities of the system.

(c) Records disposal. (1) Dispose of records containing personal data so as to prevent inadvertent compromise. Disposal methods such as tearing, burning, melting, chemical decomposition, pulping, pulverizing, shredding, or mutilation are considered adequate if...

the personal data is rendered unrecognizable or beyond reconstruction.

(2) The transfer of large quantities of records containing personal data (for example, computer cards and print-outs) in bulk to a disposal activity, such as the Defense Property Disposal Office, is not a release of personal information under this part. The sheer volume of such transfers make it difficult or impossible to identify readily specific individual records.

(3) When disposing of or destroying large quantities of records containing personal information, care must be exercised to ensure that the bulk of the records is maintained so as to prevent specific records from being readily identified. If bulk is maintained, no special procedures are required. If bulk cannot be maintained or if the form of the records make individually identifiable information easily available, dispose of the record in accordance with paragraph (c)(1) of this section.

Subpart C—Collecting Personal Information

§ 310.20 General considerations.

(a) Collect directly from the individual. Collect to the greatest extent practicable personal information directly from the individual to whom it pertains if the information may be used in making any determination about the rights, privileges, or benefits of the individual under any federal program (see also paragraph (c) of this section).

(b) Collecting Social Security Numbers (SSNs). (1) It is unlawful for any federal, state, or local governmental agency to deny an individual any right, benefit, or privilege provided by law because the individual refuses to provide his or her SSN. However, if a federal statute requires that the SSN be furnished or if the SSN is required to verify the identity of the individual in a system of records that was established and in use before January 1, 1975, and the SSN was required as an identifier by a statute or regulation adopted before that date, this restriction does not apply.

(2) When an individual is requested to provide his or her SSN, he or she must be advised:

(i) The uses that will be made of the SSN;
(ii) The statute, regulation, or rule authorizing the solicitation of the SSN; and
(iii) Whether providing the SSN is voluntary or mandatory.

(3) Include in any systems notice for any system of records that contains SSNs a statement indicating the authority for maintaining the SSN and the sources of the SSNs in the system. If the SSN is obtained directly from the individual indicate whether this is voluntary or mandatory.

(4) Executive Order 9397, "Numbering System For Federal Accounts Relating to Individual Persons," November 30, 1943, authorizes solicitation and use of SSNs as numerical identifier for individuals in most Federal records systems. However, it does not provide mandatory authority for soliciting SSNs.

(5) Upon entrance into military service or civilian employment with the Department of Defense, individuals are asked to provide their SSNs. The SSN becomes the service or employment number for the individual and is used to establish personnel, financial, medical, and other official records. Provide the notification in paragraph (b)(2) of this section to the individual when originally soliciting his or her SSN. After an individual has provided his or her SSN for the purpose of establishing a record, the notification in paragraph (b)(2) is not required if the individual is only requested to furnish or verify the SSNs for identification purposes in connection with the normal use of his or her records. However, if the SSN is to be written down and retained for any purpose by the requesting official, the individual must be provided the notification required by paragraph (b)(2) of this section.

(c) Collecting personal information from third parties. It may not be practical to collect personal information directly from the individual in all cases. Some examples of this are:
§ 310.21

(1) Verification of information through third party sources for security or employment suitability determinations;
(2) Seeking third party opinions such as supervisory comments as to job knowledge, duty performance, or other opinion-type evaluations;
(3) When obtaining the needed information directly from the individual is exceptionally difficult or may result in unreasonable costs; or
(4) Contacting a third party at the request of the individual to furnish certain information such as exact periods of employment, termination dates, copies of records, or similar information.

(d) Privacy Act Statements.
(1) When an individual is requested to furnish personal information about himself or herself for inclusion in a system of records, a Privacy Act Statement is required regardless of the medium used to collect the information (forms, personal interviews, stylized formats, telephonic interviews, or other methods). The Privacy Act Statement consists of the elements set forth in paragraph (d)(2) of this section. The statement enables the individual to make an informed decision whether to provide the information requested. If the personal information solicited is not to be incorporated into a system of records, the statement need not be given. However, personal information obtained without a Privacy Act Statement shall not be incorporated into any system of records. When soliciting SSNs for any purpose, see paragraph (b)(2) of this section.
(2) The Privacy Act Statement shall include:
(i) The specific federal statute or Executive Order that authorizes collection of the requested information (see paragraph (d) of § 310.10).
(ii) The principal purpose or purposes for which the information is to be used;
(iii) The routine uses that will be made of the information (see § 310.41(e), subpart E);
(iv) Whether providing the information is voluntary or mandatory (see paragraph (e) of this section); and
(v) The effects on the individual if he or she chooses not to provide the requested information.
(3) The Privacy Act Statement shall be concise, current, and easily understood.
(4) The Privacy Act statement may appear as a public notice (sign or poster), conspicuously displayed in the area where the information is collected, such as at check-cashing facilities or identification photograph facilities.
(5) The individual normally is not required to sign the Privacy Act Statement.
(6) Provide the individual a written copy of the Privacy Act Statement upon request. This must be done regardless of the method chosen to furnish the initial advisement.

(e) Mandatory as opposed to voluntary disclosures. Include in the Privacy Act Statement specifically whether furnishing the requested personal data is mandatory or voluntary. A requirement to furnish personal data is mandatory only when a federal statute, Executive Order, regulation, or other lawful order specifically imposes a duty on the individual to provide the information sought, and the individual is subject to a penalty if he or she fails to provide the requested information. If providing the information is only a condition of or prerequisite to granting a benefit or privilege and the individual has the option of requesting the benefit or privilege, providing the information is always voluntary. However, the loss or denial of the privilege, benefit, or entitlement sought may be listed as a consequence of not furnishing the requested information.

§ 310.21 Forms.
(a) DoD forms. (1) DoD Directive 5000.21, "Forms Management Program" provides guidance for preparing Privacy Act Statements for use with forms (see also paragraph (b)(1) of this section).
(2) When forms are used to collect personal information, the Privacy Act Statement shall appear as follows (listed in the order of preference):
(i) In the body of the form, preferably just below the title so that the reader will be advised of the contents of the § 310.30 Individual access to personal information.

(a) Individual access. (1) The access provisions of this part are intended for use by individuals about whom records are maintained in systems of records. Release of personal information to individuals under this part is not considered public release of information.

(2) Make available to the individual to whom the record pertains all of the personal information that can be released consistent with DoD responsibilities.

(b) Individual requests for access. Individuals shall address requests for access to personal information in a system of records to the system manager or to the office designated in the DoD Component rules or the system notice.

(c) Verification of identity. (1) Before granting access to personal data, an individual may be required to provide reasonable verification of his or her identity.

(2) Identity verification procedures shall not:

(i) Be so complicated as to discourage unnecessarily individuals from seeking access to information about themselves; or

(ii) Be required of an individual seeking access to records which normally would be available under the “DoD Freedom of Information Act Program” (32 CFR part 286).

(3) Normally, when individuals seek personal access to records pertaining to themselves, identification is made from documents that normally are readily available, such as employee and military identification cards, driver's license, other licenses, permits or passes used for routine identification purposes.

(4) When access is requested by mail, identity verification may consist of the individual providing certain minimum identifying data, such as full name, date and place of birth, or such other personal information necessary to locate the record sought. If the information sought is of a sensitive nature, additional identifying data may be required. If notarization of requests is required, procedures shall be established for an alternate method of verification for individuals who do not have access to notary services, such as military members overseas.

(5) If an individual wishes to be accompanied by a third party when seeking access to his or her records or to have the records released directly to a third party, the individual may be required to furnish a signed access authorization granting the third party access.

(6) An individual shall not be refused access to his or her record solely because he or she refuses to divulge his or her SSN unless the SSN is the only method by which retrieval can be made. (See §310.20(b)).

(7) The individual is not required to explain or justify his or her need for access to any record under this part.

(8) Only a denial authority may deny access and the denial must be in writing and contain the information required by paragraph (b) of §310.31.

(d) Granting individual access to records. (1) Grant the individual access to the original record or an exact copy of the original record without any changes or deletions, except when changes or deletions have been made in accordance with paragraph (e) of this section. For the purpose of granting access, a record that has been amended under §310.31(b) is considered to be the original. See paragraph (e) of this section for the policy regarding the use of summaries and extracts.

(2) Provide exact copies of the record when furnishing the individual copies of records under this part.

(3) Explain in terms understood by the requestor any record or portion of a record that is not clear.

(e) Illegible, incomplete, or partially exempt records. (1) Do not deny an individual access to a record or a copy of a record solely because the physical condition or format of the record does not make it readily available (for example, deteriorated state or on magnetic tape). Either prepare an extract or re-copy the document exactly.

(2) If a portion of the record contains information that is exempt from access, an extract or summary containing all of the information in the record that is releasable shall be prepared.

(3) When the physical condition of the record or its state makes it necessary to prepare an extract for release, ensure that the extract can be understood by the requester.

(4) Explain to the requester all deletions or changes to the records.

(f) Access to medical records. (1) Disclose medical records to the individual to whom they pertain, even if a minor, unless a judgment is made that access to such records could have an adverse effect on the mental or physical health of the individual. Normally, this determination shall be made in consultation with a medical doctor.

(2) If it is determined that the release of the medical information may be harmful to the mental or physical health of the individual:

(i) Send the record to a physician named by the individual; and

(ii) In the transmittal letter to the physician explain why access by the individual without proper professional supervision could be harmful (unless it is obvious from the record).

(3) Do not require the physician to request the records for the individual.

(4) If the individual refuses or fails to designate a physician, the record shall not be provided. Such refusal of access is not considered a denial for Privacy Act reporting purposes. (See paragraph (a) of §310.31).

(5) Access to a minor’s medical records may be granted to his or her parents or legal guardians. However, observe the following procedures:

(i) In the United States, the laws of the particular state in which the records are located may afford special protection to certain types of medical records (for example, records dealing with treatment for drug or alcohol abuse and certain psychiatric records). Even if the records are maintained by a military medical facilities these statutes may apply.

(ii) For the purposes of parental access to the medical records and medical determinations regarding minors at overseas installation the age of majority is 18 years except when:

(A) A minor at the time he or she sought or consented to the treatment was between 15 and 17 years of age;

(B) The treatment was sought in a program which was authorized by regulation or statute to offer confidentiality of treatment records as a part of the program;

(C) The minor specifically requested or indicated that he or she wished the treatment record to be handled with confidence and not released to a parent or guardian; and

(D) The parent or guardian seeking access does not have the written authorization of the minor or a valid court order granting access.

(iii) If all four of the above conditions are met, the parent or guardian shall be denied access to the medical records of the minor. Do not use these procedures to deny the minor access to his or her own records under this part or any other statutes.

(6) All members of the Military Services and all married persons are not considered minors regardless of age, and the parents of these individuals do not have access to their medical records without written consent of the individual.

(g) Access to information compiled in anticipation of civil action. (1) An individual is not entitled under this part to
(2) The term "civil proceeding" is intended to include quasi-judicial and pretrial judicial proceedings that are the necessary preliminary steps to formal litigation.

(3) Attorney work products prepared in conjunction with quasi-judicial pretrial, and trial proceedings, to include those prepared to advise DoD Component officials of the possible legal consequences of a given course of action, are protected.

(h) Access to investigatory records. (1) Requests by individuals for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves and compiled for law enforcement purposes are processed under this part of the DoD Freedom of Information Program (32 CFR part 286) depending on which part gives them the greatest degree of access.

(2) Process requests by individuals for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves compiled for law enforcement purposes and in the custody of law enforcement activities that have been incorporated into systems of records exempted from the access provisions of this part in accordance with section B of chapter 5 under reference (f). Do not deny an individual access to the record solely because it is in the exempt system, but give him or her automatically the same access he or she would receive under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552). (See also paragraph (h) of this section.)

(3) Process requests by individuals for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves that are in records systems exempted from access provisions under paragraph (a) of §310.52, subpart F, under this part, or the DoD Freedom of Information Act Program (32 CFR part 286) depending upon which regulation gives the greatest degree of access (see also paragraph (j) of this section).

(i) Nonagency records. (1) Certain documents under the physical control of DoD personnel and used to assist them in performing official functions, are not considered "agency records" within the meaning of this Regulation. Uncirculated personal notes and records that are not disseminated or circulated to any person or organization (for example, personal telephone lists or memory aids) that are retained or discarded at the author's discretion and over which the Component exercises no direct control, are not considered agency records. However, if personnel are officially directed or encouraged, either in writing or orally, to maintain such records, they may become "agency records," and may be subject to this part.

(2) The personal uncirculated handwritten notes of unit leaders, office supervisors, or military supervisory personnel concerning subordinates are not systems of records within the meaning of this part. Such notes are an extension of the individual's memory. These notes, however, must be maintained and discarded at the discretion of the individual supervisor and not circulated to others. Any established requirement to maintain such notes (such as, written or oral directives, regulations, or command policy) make these notes "agency records" and they then must be made a part of a system of records. If the notes are circulated, they must be made a part of a system of records. Any action that gives personal notes the appearance of official agency records is prohibited, unless the notes have been incorporated into a system of records.

(j) Relationship between the Privacy Act and the Freedom of Information Act. (1) Process requests for individual access as follows:

(i) Requests by individuals for access to records pertaining to themselves made under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552) or the DoD Freedom of Information Act Program (32 CFR part 286) or DoD Component instructions implementing the DoD Freedom of Information Act Program are processed under the provisions of that reference.

(ii) Requests by individuals for access to records pertaining to themselves made under the Privacy Act of 1971 (5 U.S.C. 552a), this part, or the DoD Component instructions implementing this part are processed under this part.

(iii) Requests by individuals for access to records about themselves that cite both Acts or the implementing regulations and instructions for both Acts are processed under this part except:

(A) When the access provisions of the DoD Freedom of Information Act Program (32 CFR part 286) provide a greater degree of access; or

(B) When access to the information sought is controlled by another federal statute.

(C) If the former applies, follow the provisions of 32 CFR part 286; and if the later applies, follow the access procedures established under the controlling statute.

(iv) Requests by individuals for access to information about themselves in systems of records that do not cite either Act or the implementing regulations or instructions for either Act are processed under the procedures established by this part. However, there is no requirement to cite the specific provisions of this part or the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) when responding to such requests. Do not count these requests as Privacy Act request for reporting purposes (see subpart I).

(2) Do not deny individuals access to personal information concerning themselves in systems of records that would otherwise be releasable to them under either Act solely because they fail to cite either Act or the wrong Act, regulation, or instruction.

(3) Explain to the requester which Act or procedures have been used when granting or denying access under either Act (see also paragraph (j)(1)(iv) of this section).

(k) Time limits. Normally acknowledge requests for access within 10 working days after receipt and provide access within 30 working days.

(l) Privacy case file. Establish a Privacy Act case file when required (see paragraph (p) of §310.32 of this subpart).

§ 310.31 Denial of individual access.

(a) Denying individual access. (1) An individual may be denied formally access to a record pertaining to him or her only if the record:

(i) Was compiled in reasonable anticipation of civil action (see paragraph (g) of §310.30)

(ii) Is in a system of records that has been exempted from the access provisions of this regulation under one of the permitted exemptions (see subpart F).

(iii) Contains classified information that has been exempted from the access provision of this part under blanket exemption for such material claimed for all DoD records system (see §310.50(c) of subpart F).

(iv) Is contained in a system of records for which access may be denied under some other federal statute.

(2) Only deny the individual access to those portions of the records from which the denial of access serves some legitimate governmental purpose.

(b) Other reasons to refuse access. (1) An individual may be refused access if:

(i) The record is not described well enough to enable it to be located with a reasonable amount of effort on the part of an employee familiar with the file; or

(ii) Access is sought by an individual who fails or refuses to comply with the established procedural requirements, including refusing to name a physician to receive medical records when required (see paragraph (f) of §310.30) or to pay fees (see §310.33 of this subpart).

(2) Always explain to the individual the specific reason access has been refused and how he or she may obtain access.

(c) Notifying the individual. Formal denials of access must be in writing and include as a minimum:

(1) The name, title or position, and signature of a designated Component denial authority;

(2) The date of the denial;

(3) The specific reason for the denial, including specific citation to the appropriate sections of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) or other statutes, this part, DoD Component instructions or Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) authorizing the denial;

§ 310.32 Amendment of records.

(a) Individual review and correction. Individuals are encouraged to review the personnel information being maintained about them by DoD Components periodically and to avail themselves of the procedures established by this part and any other Component regulations to update their records.

(b) Amending records. (1) An individual may request the amendment of any record contained in a system of records pertaining to him or her unless the system of record has been exempted specifically from the amendment procedures of this part under paragraph (b) of §310.50, subpart F. Normally, amendments under this part are limited to correcting factual matters and not matters of official judgment, such as performance ratings, promotion potential, and job performance appraisals.

(2) While a Component may require that the request for amendment be in writing, this requirement shall not be used to discourage individuals from requesting valid amendments or to burden needlessly the amendment process.

(3) A request for amendment must include:

(i) A description of the item or items to be amended;
(ii) The specific reason for the amendment;
(iii) The type of amendment action sought (deletion, correction, or addition); and
(iv) Copies of available documentary evidence supporting the request.

(c) Burden of proof. The applicant must support adequately his or her claim.

(d) Identification of requesters. (1) Individuals may be required to provide identification to ensure that they are indeed seeking to amend a record pertaining to themselves and not, inadvertently or intentionally, the record of others.

(2) The identification procedures shall not be used to discourage legitimate requests or to burden needlessly or delay the amendment process. (See paragraph (c) of §310.30).

(e) Limits on attacking evidence previously submitted. (1) The amendment process is not intended to permit the alteration of evidence presented in the course of judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings. Any amendments or changes to these records normally are made through the specific procedures established for the amendment of such records.

(2) Nothing in the amendment process is intended or designed to permit a collateral attack upon what has already been the subject of a judicial or quasi-judicial determination. However, while the individual may not attack the accuracy of the judicial or quasi-judicial determination under this part, he or she may challenge the accuracy of the recording of that action.

(f) Sufficiency of a request to amend. Consider the following factors when evaluating the sufficiency of a request to amend:

(1) The accuracy of the information itself; and

(2) The relevancy, timeliness, completeness, and necessity of the recorded information for accomplishing an assigned mission or purpose.

(g) Time limits. (1) Provide written acknowledgement of a request to amend within 10 working days of its receipt by the appropriate systems manager. There is no need to acknowledge a request if the action is completed within 10 working days and the individual is so informed.

(2) The letter of acknowledgement shall clearly identify the request and advise the individual when he or she may expect to be notified of the completed action.

(3) Only under the most exceptional circumstances shall more than 30 days be required to reach a decision on a request to amend. Document fully and explain in the Privacy Act case file (see paragraph (p) of this section) any such decision that takes more than 30 days to resolve.

(h) Agreement to amend. If the decision is made to grant all or part of the request for amendment, amend the record accordingly and notify the requester.

(i) Notification of previous recipients. (1) Notify all previous recipients of the information, as reflected in the disclosure accounting records, that an amendment has been made and the substance of the amendment. Recipients who are known to be no longer retaining the information need not be advised of the amendment. All DoD Components and federal agencies known to be retaining the record or information, even if not reflected in a disclosure record, shall be notified of the amendment. Advise the requester of these notifications.

(2) Honor all requests by the requester to notify specific federal agencies of the amendment action.

(j) Denying amendment. If the request for amendment is denied in whole or in part, promptly advise the individual in writing of the decision to include:

(1) The specific reason and authority for not amending;

(2) Notification that he or she may seek further independent review of the decision by the head of the Component or his or her designee;

(3) The procedures for appealing the decision citing the position and address of the official to whom the appeal shall be addressed; and
(4) Where he or she can receive assistance in filing the appeal.

(k) DoD Component appeal procedures. Establish procedures to ensure the prompt, complete, and independent review of each amendment denial upon appeal by the individual. These procedures must ensure that:

(1) The appeal with all supporting materials both that furnished the individual and that contained in Component records is provided to the reviewing official, and

(2) If the appeal is denied completely or in part, the individual is notified in writing by the reviewing official that:

(i) The appeal has been denied and the specific reason and authority for the denial;

(ii) The individual may file a statement of disagreement with the appropriate authority and the procedures for filing this statement;

(iii) If filed properly, the statement of disagreement shall be included in the records, furnished to all future recipients of the records, and provided to all prior recipients of the disputed records who are known to hold the record; and

(iv) The individual may seek a judicial review of the decision not to amend.

(3) If the record is amended, ensure that:

(i) The requester is notified promptly of the decision;

(ii) All prior known recipients of the records who are known to be retaining the record are notified of the decision and the specific nature of the amendment (see paragraph (i) of this section); and

(iii) The requester is notified as to which DoD components and federal agencies have been told of the amendment.

(4) Process all appeals within 30 days unless the appeal authority determines that a fair review cannot be made within this time limit. If additional time is required for the appeal, notify the requester, in writing, of the delay, the reason for the delay, and when he or she may expect a final decision on the appeal. Document fully all requirements for additional time in the Privacy Case File. (See paragraph (p) of this section)

(l) Denying amendment of OPM records held by DoD Components. (1) The records in all systems of records controlled by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) government-wide system notices are technically only temporarily in the custody of the Department of Defense.

(2) All requests for amendment of these records must be processed in accordance with the OPM Federal Personnel Manual (5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735). The Component denial authority may deny a request. However, the appeal process for all such denials must include a review by the Assistant Director for Agency Compliance and Evaluation, Office of Personnel Management, 1900 E Street NW, Washington, DC 20415.

(3) When an appeal is received from a Component's denial of amendment of the OPM controlled record, process the appeal in accordance with the OPM Federal Personnel Manual (5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735) and notify the OPM appeal authority listed above.

(4) The individual may appeal any Component decision not to amend the OPM records directly to OPM.

(5) OPM is the final review authority for any appeals from a denial to amend the OPM records.

(m) Statements of disagreement submitted by individuals. (1) If the reviewing authority refuses to amend the record as requested, the individual may submit a concise statement of disagreement setting forth his or her reasons for disagreeing with the decision not to amend.

(2) If an individual chooses to file a statement of disagreement, annotate the record to indicate that the statement has been filed (see paragraph (n) of this section).

(3) Furnish copies of the statement of disagreement to all DoD Components and federal agencies that have been provided copies of the disputed information and who may be maintaining the information.

(n) Maintaining statements of disagreement. (1) When possible, incorporate the statement of disagreement into the record.

(2) If the statement cannot be made a part of the record, establish procedures to ensure that it is apparent from the records that a statement of disagreement has been filed and maintain the statement so that it can be obtained readily when the disputed information is used or disclosed.

(3) Automated record systems that are not programmed to accept statements of disagreement shall be annotated or coded so that they clearly indicate that a statement of disagreement is on file, and clearly identify the statement with the disputed information in the system.

(4) Provide a copy of the statement of disagreement whenever the disputed information is disclosed for any purpose.

(o) DoD Component summaries of reasons for refusing to amend.

(1) A summary of reasons for refusing to amend may be included with any record for which a statement of disagreement is filed.

(2) Include in this summary only the reasons furnished to the individual for not amending the record. Do not include comments on the statement of disagreement. Normally, the summary and statement of disagreement are filed together.

(3) When disclosing information for which a summary has been filed, a copy of the summary may be included in the release, if the Component desires.

(p) Privacy Case Files. (1) Establish a separate Privacy Case File to retain the documentation received and generated during the amendment or access process.

(2) The Privacy Case File shall contain as a minimum:
   (i) The request for amendment or access;
   (ii) Copies of the DoD Component's reply granting or denying the request;
   (iii) Any appeals from the individual;
   (iv) Copies of the action regarding the appeal with supporting documentation which is not in the basic file; and
   (v) Any other correspondence generated in processing the appeal, to include coordination documentation.

(3) Only the items listed in paragraphs (p)(4) and (s) of this section may be included in the system of records challenged for amendment or for which access is sought. Do not retain copies of unamended records in the basic record system if the request for amendment is granted.

(4) The following items relating to an amendment request may be included in the disputed record system:
   (i) Copies of the amended record.
   (ii) Copies of the individual's statement of disagreement (see paragraph (m) of this section).
   (iii) Copies of Component summaries (see paragraph (o) of this section).
   (iv) Supporting documentation submitted by the individual.

(5) The following items relating to an access request may be included in the basic records system:
   (i) Copies of the request;
   (ii) Copies of the Component's action granting total access.

NOTE.—A separate Privacy case file need not be created in such cases.

(iii) Copies of the Component's action denying access;
   (iv) Copies of any appeals filed;
   (v) Copies of the reply to the appeal.

(6) There is no need to establish a Privacy case file if the individual has not cited the Privacy Act (reference (b)), this part, or the Component implementing instruction for this part.

(7) Privacy case files shall not be furnished or disclosed to anyone for use in making any determination about the individual other than determinations made under this part.

§ 310.33 Reproduction fees.

(a) Assessing fees. (1) Charge the individual only the direct cost of reproduction.

(2) Do not charge reproduction fees if copying is:
   (i) The only means to make the record available to the individual (for example, a copy of the record must be made to delete classified information); or
   (ii) For the convenience of the DoD Component (for example, the Component has no reading room where an individual may review the record, or reproduction is done to keep the original in the Component's file).

(3) No fees shall be charged when the record may be obtained without charge
§ 310.40

32 CFR Ch. I (7-1-98 Edition)

Conditions of disclosure.

(a) Disclosures to third parties. (1) The Privacy Act only compels disclosure of records from a system of records to the individuals to whom they pertain.

(2) All requests by individual for personal information about other individuals (third parties) shall be processed under the DoD Freedom of Information Program (32 CFR part 286), except for requests by the parents of a minor, or legal guardians of an individual, for access to the records pertaining to the minor or individual.

(b) Disclosures among DoD Components. For the purposes of disclosure and disclosure accounting, the Department of Defense is considered a single agency (see §310.41(a)).

(c) Disclosures outside the Department of Defense. Do not disclose personal information from a system of records outside the Department of Defense unless:

(1) The record has been requested by the individual to whom it pertains.

(2) The written consent of the individual to whom the record pertains has been obtained for release of the record to the requesting agency, activity, or individual, or

(3) The release is for one of the specific nonconsensual purposes set forth in §310.41 of this part.

(d) Validation before disclosure. Except for releases made in accordance with the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552), before disclosing any personal information to any recipient outside the Department of Defense other than a federal agency or the individual to whom it pertains:

(1) Ensure that the records are accurate, timely, complete, and relevant for agency purposes;

(2) Contact the individual, if reasonably available, to verify the accuracy,
§ 310.41 Nonconsensual disclosures.

(a) Disclosures within the Department of Defense. (1) Records pertaining to an individual may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to any DoD official who has need for the record in the performance of his or her assigned duties.

(2) Rank, position, or title alone do not authorize access to personal information about others. An official need for the information must exist before disclosure.

(b) Disclosures under the Freedom of Information Act. (1) All records must be disclosed if their release is required by the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552) see also the DoD Freedom of Information Program (32 CFR part 286). The Freedom of Information Act requires that records be made available to the public unless exempted from disclosure by one of the nine exemptions found in the Act. It follows, therefore, that if a record is not exempt from disclosure it must be disclosed.

(2) The standard for exempting most personal records, such as personnel records, medical records, and similar records, is found in Exemption Number 6 of 32 CFR 286.31. Under that exemption, release of personal information can only be denied when its release would be a “clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.”

(3) Release of personal information in investigatory records including personnel security investigation records is controlled by the broader standard of an “unwarranted invasion of personal privacy” found in Exemption Number 7 of 32 CFR 286.31. This broader standard applies only to investigatory records.

(4) See 32 CFR part 286 for the standards to use in applying these exemptions.

(c) Personal information that is normally releasable—(1) DoD civilian employees. (i) Some examples of personal information regarding DoD civilian employees that normally may be released without a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy include:

(A) Name.

(B) Present and past position titles.

(C) Present and past grades.

(D) Present and past salaries.

(E) Present and past duty stations.

(F) Office or duty telephone numbers.

(ii) All disclosures of personal information regarding federal civilian employees shall be made in accordance with the Federal Personnel Manual (FPM) 5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735.

(2) Military members. (i) While it is not possible to identify categorically information that must be released or withheld from military personnel records in every instance, the following items of personal information regarding military members normally may be disclosed without a clearly unwarranted invasion of their personal privacy:

(A) Full name.

(B) Rank.

(C) Date of rank.

(D) Gross salary.

(E) Past duty assignments.

(F) Present duty assignment.

(G) Future assignments that are officially established.

(H) Office of duty telephone numbers.

(I) Source of commission.

(J) Promotion sequence number.

(K) Awards and decorations.

(L) Attendance at professional military schools.

(M) Duty status at any given time.

(ii) All releases of personal information regarding military members shall be made in accordance with the standards established by 32 CFR part 286.

(3) Civilian employees not under the FPM. (i) While it is not possible to identify categorically those items of personal information that must be released regarding civilian employees not subject to the Federal Personnel Manual (5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735), such as nonappropriated fund employees, normally the following items may...
§ 310.41

be released without a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy:

(A) Full name.
(B) Grade or position.
(C) Date of grade.
(D) Gross salary.
(E) Present and past assignments.
(F) Future assignments, if officially established.
(G) Office or duty telephone numbers.

(ii) All releases of personal information regarding civilian personnel in this category shall be made in accordance with the standards established by 32 CFR part 286, the DoD Freedom of Information Program.

(d) Release of home addresses and home telephone numbers. (1) The release of home addresses and home telephone numbers normally is considered a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and is prohibited. However, these may be released without prior specific consent of the individual if:

(i) The individual has indicated previously that he or she interposes no objection to their release (see paragraphs (d)(3) and (4) of this section);

(ii) The source of the information to be released is a public document such as commercial telephone directory or other public listing;

(iii) The release is required by federal statute (for example, pursuant to federally-funded state programs to locate parents who have defaulted on child support payments (42 U.S.C. 653); or

(iv) The releasing official releases the information under the provisions of the DoD Freedom of Information Act Program (32 CFR part 286).

(2) A request for a home address or telephone number may be referred to the last known address of the individual for a direct reply by him or her to the requester. In such cases the requester shall be notified of the referral.

(3) When collecting lists of home addresses and telephone numbers, the individual may be offered the option of authorizing the information pertaining to him or her to be disseminated without further permission for specific purposes, such as locator services. In these cases, the information may be disseminated for the stated purpose without further consent. However, if the information is to be disseminated for any other purpose, a new consent is required. Normally such consent for release is in writing and signed by the individual.

(4) Before listing home addresses and home telephone numbers in DoD telephone directories, give the individuals the opportunity to refuse such a listing. Excuse the individual from paying any additional cost that may be associated with maintaining an unlisted number for government-owned telephone services if the individual requests his or her number not be listed in the directory under this part.

(5) Do not sell or rent lists of individual names and addresses unless such action is specifically authorized.

(e) Disclosures for established routine uses. (1) Records may be disclosed outside the Department of Defense without consent of the individual to whom they pertain for an established routine use:

(2) A routine use shall:

(i) Be compatible with and related to the purpose for which the record was compiled;

(ii) Identify the persons or organizations to whom the record may be released;

(iii) Identify specifically the uses to which the information may be put by the receiving agency; and

(iv) Have been published previously in the Federal Register (see §310.62(i), subpart G).

(3) Establish a routine use for each user of the information outside the Department of Defense who need official access to the records.

(4) Routine uses may be established, discontinued, or amended without the consent of the individuals involved. However, new or changed routine uses must be published in the Federal Register at least 30 days before actually disclosing any records under their provisions (see subpart G).

(5) In addition to the routine uses established by the individual system notices, common blanket routine uses for all DoD-maintained systems of records have been established (see appendix C). These blanket routine uses are published only at the beginning of the listing of system notices for each Component in the Federal Register (see paragraph § 310.62(a)(1), subpart G). Unless a system notice specifically excludes a system from a given blanket routine use, all blanket routine uses apply.

(6) If the recipient has not been identified in the FEDERAL REGISTER or a use to which the recipient intends to put the record has not been published in the system notice as a routine use, the written permission of the individual is required before release or use of the record for that purpose.

(f) Disclosures to the Bureau of the Census. Records in DoD systems of records may be disclosed without the consent of the individuals to whom they pertain to the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census survey or related activities pursuant to the provisions of 13 U.S.C. 8.

(g) Disclosures for statistical research and reporting. (1) Records may be disclosed for statistical research and reporting without the consent of the individuals to whom they pertain. Before such disclosures the recipient must provide advance written assurance that:

(i) The records will be used as statistical research or reporting records;

(ii) The records will only be transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable; and

(iii) The records will not be used, in whole or in part, to make any determination about the rights, benefits, or entitlements of specific individuals.

(2) A disclosure accounting (see paragraph (a) of § 310.44) is not required when information that is not identifiable individually is released for statistical research or reporting.

(h) Disclosures to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). (1) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to the NARA if they:

(i) Have historical or other value to warrant continued preservation; or

(ii) For evaluation by the NARA to determine if a record has such historical or other value.

(2) Records transferred to a Federal Records Center (FRC) for safekeeping and storage do not fall within this category. These remain under the control of the transferring Component, and the FRC personnel are considered agents of the Component which retains control over the records. No disclosure accounting is required for the transfer of records to the FRCs.

(i) Disclosures for law enforcement purposes. (1) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to another agency or an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity, provided:

(i) The civil or criminal law enforcement activity is authorized by law;

(ii) The head of the law enforcement activity or a designee has made a written request specifying the particular records desired and the law enforcement purpose (such as criminal investigations, enforcement of a civil law, or a similar purpose) for which the record is sought; and

(iii) There is no federal statute that prohibits the disclosure of the records.

(2) Normally, blanket requests for access to any and all records pertaining to an individual are not honored.

(3) When a record is released to a law enforcement activity under paragraph (i)(1) of this section, maintain a disclosure accounting. This disclosure accounting shall not be made available to the individual to whom the record pertains if the law enforcement activity requests that the disclosure not be released.

(4) The blanket routine use for Law Enforcement (appendix C, section A.) applies to all DoD Component systems notices (see paragraph (e)(5) of this section). Only by including this routine use in a Component, on its own initiative, report indications of violations of law found in a system of records to a law enforcement activity without the consent of the individual to whom the record pertains (see paragraph (i)(1) of this section when responding to requests from law enforcement activities).

(j) Emergency disclosures. (1) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain if disclosure is made under compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of any individual. The affected individual need not be the subject of the record disclosed.

(2) When such a disclosure is made, notify the individual who is the subject of the record. Notification sent to the last known address of the individual as reflected in the records is sufficient.

(3) The specific data to be disclosed is at the discretion of releasing authority.

(4) Emergency medical information may be released by telephone.

(k) Disclosures to Congress and the General Accounting Office. (1) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to either House of the Congress or to any committee, joint committee or subcommittee of Congress if the release pertains to a matter within the jurisdiction of the committee. Records may also be disclosed to the General Accounting Office (GAO) in the course of the activities of GAO.

(2) The blanket routine use for “Congressional Inquiries” (see appendix C, section D.) applies to all systems; therefore, there is no need to verify that the individual has authorized the release of his or her record to a congressional member when responding to a congressional constituent inquiry.

(3) If necessary, accept constituent letters requesting a member of Congress to investigate a matter pertaining to the individual as written authorization to provide access to the records to the congressional member or his or her staff.

(4) The verbal statement by a congressional staff member is acceptable to establish that a request has been received from the person to whom the records pertain.

(5) If the constituent inquiry is being made on behalf of someone other than the individual to whom the record pertains, provide the congressional member only that information releasable under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552). Advise the congressional member that the written consent of the individual to whom the record pertains is required before any additional information may be released. Do not contact individuals to obtain their consents for release to congressional members unless a congressional office specifically requests that this be done.

(6) Nothing in paragraph (k)(2) of this section prohibits a Component, when appropriate, from providing the record directly to the individual and notifying the congressional office that this has been done without providing the record to the congressional member.

(7) See paragraph (e) of §310.33 for the policy on assessing fees for Members of Congress.

(8) Make a disclosure accounting each time a record is disclosed to either House of Congress, to any committee, joint committee, or subcommittee of Congress, to any congressional member, or GAO.

(l) Disclosures under court orders. (1) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the person to whom they pertain under a court order signed by a judge of a court of competent jurisdiction. Releases may also be made under the compulsory legal process of federal or state bodies having authority to issue such process.

(2) When a record is disclosed under this provision, make reasonable efforts to notify the individual to whom the record pertains, if the legal process is a matter of public record.

(3) If the process is not a matter of public record at the time it is issued, seek to be advised when the process is made public and make reasonable efforts to notify the individual at that time.

(4) Notification sent to the last known address of the individual as reflected in the records is considered reasonable effort to notify.

(5) Make a disclosure accounting each time a record is disclosed under a court order or compulsory legal process.

(m) Disclosures to consumer reporting agencies. (1) Certain personal information may be disclosed to consumer reporting agencies as defined by the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966, as amended (31 U.S.C. 952(d)).

(2) Under the provisions of paragraph (m)(1) of this section, the following information may be disclosed to a consumer reporting agency:

(i) Name, address, taxpayer identification number (SSN), and other information necessary to establish the identity of the individual.
Office of the Secretary of Defense

§ 310.43

(iii) The amount, status, and history of the claim.

(ii) The agency or program under which the claim arose.

(3) The Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966, as amended (31 U.S.C. 952(d)) specifically requires that the system notice for the system of records from which the information will be disclosed indicates that the information may be disclosed to a “consumer reporting agency.”

§ 310.42 Disclosures to commercial enterprises.

(a) General policy. (1) Make releases of personal information to commercial enterprises under the criteria established by the DoD Freedom of Information Program (32 CFR part 286).

(2) The relationship of commercial enterprises to their clients or customers and to the Department of Defense are not changed by this part.

(b) Release of personal information. (1) Any information that must be released under the Freedom of Information (5 U.S.C. 552) may be released to a commercial enterprise without the individual’s consent (see paragraph (b) of §310.41 of this subpart).

(2) Commercial enterprises may present a signed consent statement setting forth specific conditions for release of personal information. Statements such as the following, if signed by the individual, are considered valid:

“I hereby authorize the Department of Defense to verify my Social Security Number or other identifying information and to disclose my home address and telephone number to authorized representatives of (name of commercial enterprise) so that they may use this information in connection with my commercial dealings with that enterprise. All information furnished will be used in connection with my financial relationship with (name of commercial enterprise).

(3) When a statement of consent as outlined in paragraph (b)(2) of this section is presented, provide the requested information if its release is not prohibited by some other regulation or statute.

(4) Blanket statements of consent that do not identify specifically the Department of Defense or any of its Components, or that do not specify exactly the type of information to be released, may be honored if it is clear that the individual in signing the consent statement intended to obtain a personal benefit (for example, a loan to buy a house) and was aware of the type of information that would be sought. Care should be exercised in these situations to release only the minimum amount of personal information essential to obtain the benefit sought.

(5) Do not honor request from commercial enterprises for official evaluation of personal characteristics, such as evaluation of personal financial habits.

§ 310.43 Disclosures to the public from health care records.

(a) Section applicability. This section applies to the release of information to the news media or the public concerning persons treated or hospitalized in DoD medical facilities and patients of nonfederal medical facilities for whom the cost of the care is paid by the Department of Defense.

(b) Release of personal information. (1) Normally, the following may be released without the patient’s consent.

(2) Medical condition:

(i) Date of admission or disposition;

(ii) The present medical assessment of the individual’s condition in the following terms if the medical doctor has volunteered the information:

(A) The individual’s condition is presently (stable) (good) (fair) (serious) or (critical), and

(B) Whether the patient is conscious, semiconscious, or unconscious.

(c) Individual consent. (1) Detailed medical and other personal information may be released in response to inquiries from the news media and public if the patient has given his or her informed consent to such a release.
§ 310.44 Disclosure accounting.

(a) Disclosure accountings. (1) Keep an accurate record of all disclosures made from any system of records except disclosures:

(i) To DoD personnel for use in the performance of their official duties; or

(2) In all other cases a disclosure accounting is required even if the individual has consented to the disclosure of the information pertaining to him or her.

(3) Disclosure accountings:

(i) Permit individuals to determine to whom information has been disclosed;

(ii) Enable the activity to notify past recipients of disputed or corrected information (§ 310.32(i)(1), subpart D); and

(iii) Provide a method of determining compliance with paragraph (c) of § 310.40.

(b) Contents of disclosure accountings. As a minimum, disclosure accounting shall contain:

(1) The date of the disclosure.

(2) A description of the information released.

(3) The purpose of the disclosure.

(4) The name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure was made.

(c) Methods of disclosure accounting. Use any system of disclosure accounting that will provide readily the necessary disclosure information (see paragraph (a)(3) of this section).

(d) Accounting for mass disclosures. When numerous similar records are released (such as transmittal of payroll checks to a bank), identify the category of records disclosed and include the data required by paragraph (b) of this section in some form that can be used to construct an accounting disclosure record for individual records if required (see paragraph (a)(3) of this section).

(e) Disposition of disclosure accounting records. Retain disclosure accounting records for 5 years after the disclosure or the life of the record, whichever is longer.

(f) Furnishing disclosure accountings to the individual. (1) Make available to the individual to whom the record pertains all disclosure accountings except when:

(i) The disclosure has been made to a law enforcement activity under paragraph (i) of § 310.41 and the law enforcement activity has requested that disclosure not be made; or

(ii) The system of records has been exempted from the requirement to furnish the disclosure accounting under the provisions of § 310.50(b), subpart F.

(2) If disclosure accountings are not maintained with the record and the individual requests access to the accounting, prepare a listing of all disclosures (see paragraph (b) of this section) and provide this to the individual upon request.

Subpart F—Exemptions

§ 310.50 Use and establishment of exemptions.

(a) Types of exemptions. (1) There are two types of exemptions permitted by the Privacy Act.

(i) General exemptions that authorize the exemption of a system of records from all but certain specifically identified provisions of the Act.

(ii) Specific exemptions that allow a system of records to be exempted only from certain designated provisions of the Act.

(2) Nothing in the Act permits exemption of any system of records from all provisions of the Act (see appendix D).

(b) Establishing exemptions. (1) Neither general nor specific exemptions are established automatically for any system of records. The head of the DoD Component maintaining the system of records must make a determination whether the system is one for which an exemption properly may be claimed and then propose and establish an exemption rule for the system. No system of records within the Department of Defense shall be considered exempted until the head of the Component has approved the exemption and an exemption rule has been published as a final rule in the Federal Register (see §310.60(e), subpart G).

(2) Only the head of the DoD Component or an authorized designee may claim an exemption for a system of records.

(c) Blanket exemption for classified material. (1) Include in the Component rules a blanket exemption under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) of the Privacy Act from the access provisions (5 U.S.C. 552a(d)) and the notification of access procedures (5 U.S.C. 522a(e)(4)(H)) of the Act for all classified material in any system of records maintained.

(2) Do not claim specifically an exemption under section 552a(k)(1) of the Privacy Act for any system of records. The blanket exemption affords protection to all classified material in all systems of records maintained.

(d) Provisions from which exemptions may be claimed. (1) The head of a DoD Component may claim an exemption from any provision of the Act from which an exemption is allowed (see appendix D).

(2) Notify the Defense Privacy Office ODASD(A) before claiming an exemption for any system of records from the following:

(i) The exemption rule publication requirement (5 U.S.C. 552a(j)) of the Privacy Act.

(ii) The requirement to report new systems of records (5 U.S.C. 552a(o)); or

(iii) The annual report requirement (5 U.S.C. 552a(p)).

(e) Use of exemptions. (1) Use exemptions only for the specific purposes set forth in the exemption rules (see paragraph (b) of §310.61, subpart G).

(2) Use exemptions only when they are in the best interest of the government and limit them to the specific portions of the records requiring protection.

(3) Do not use an exemption to deny an individual access to any record to which he or she would have access under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552).

(f) Exempt records in nonexempt systems. (1) Exempt records temporarily in the hands of another Component are considered the property of the originating Component and access to these records is controlled by the system notices and rules of the originating Component.

(2) Records that are actually incorporated into a system of records may be exempted only to the extent the system of records into which they are incorporated has been granted an exemption, regardless of their original status or the system of records for which they were created.

(3) If a record is accidentally misfiled into a system of records, the system notice and rules for the system in...
§ 310.51 General exemptions.

(a) Use of the general exemptions. (1) No DoD Component is authorized to claim the exemption for records maintained by the Central Intelligence Agency established by 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(1) of the Privacy Act.

(2) The general exemption established by 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) of the Privacy Act may be claimed to protect investigatory records created and maintained by law-enforcement activities of a DoD Component.

(3) To qualify for the (j)(2) exemption, the system of records must be maintained by an element that performs as its principal function enforcement of the criminal law, such as U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Command (CIDC), Naval Investigative Service (NIS), the Air Force Office of Special Investigations (AFOSI), and military police activities. Law enforcement includes police efforts to detect, prevent, control, or reduce crime, to apprehend or identify criminals; and the activities of correction, probation, pardon, or parole authorities.

(4) Information that may be protected under the (j)(2) exemption include:

(i) Records compiled for the purpose of identifying criminal offenders and alleged offenders consisting only of identifying data and notations of arrests, the nature and disposition of criminal charges, sentencing, confinement, release, parole, and probation status (so-called criminal history records);

(ii) Reports and other records compiled during criminal investigations, to include supporting documentation.

(iii) Other records compiled at any stage of the criminal law enforcement process from arrest or indictment through the final release from parole supervision, such as presentence and parole reports.

(5) The (j)(2) exemption does not apply to:

(i) Investigative records prepared or maintained by activities without primary law-enforcement missions. It may not be claimed by any activity that does not have law enforcement as its principal function.

(ii) Investigative records compiled by any activity concerning employee suitability, eligibility, qualification, or for individual access to classified material regardless of the principal mission of the compiling DoD Component.

(b) Access to records for which a (j)(2) exemption is claimed. Access to investigatory records in the hands of a law-enforcement activity or temporarily in the hands of a military commander or other criminal adjudicative activity shall be processed under 32 CFR part 286, The DoD Freedom of Information Act Program, provided that the system of records from which the file originated is a law enforcement record system that has been exempted from the access provisions of this part (see paragraph (h) of § 310.30, subpart D).

§ 310.52 Specific exemptions.

(a) Use of the specific exemptions. The specific exemptions permit certain categories of records to be exempted from certain specific provisions of the Privacy Act (see appendix D). To establish a specific exemption, the records must meet the following criteria (parenthetical references are to the appropriate subsection of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a(k)):

(1) The (k)(1). Information specifically authorized to be classified under the DoD Information Security Program Regulation, 32 CFR part 159 (see also paragraph (c) of this section).
(2) The (k)(2). Investigatory information compiled for law-enforcement purposes by nonlaw enforcement activities and which is not within the scope of §310.51(a). If an individual is denied any right, privilege or benefit that he or she is otherwise entitled by federal law or for which he or she would otherwise be eligible as a result of the maintenance of the information, the individual will be provided access to the information except to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source. This subsection when claimed allows limited protection of investigative reports maintained in a system of records used in personnel or administrative actions.

(3) The (k)(3). Records maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President and other individuals under 18 U.S.C. 3506.

(4) The (k)(4). Records maintained solely for statistical research or program evaluation purposes and which are not used to make decisions on the rights, benefits, or entitlement of an individual except for census records which may be disclosed under 13 U.S.C. 8.

(5) The (k)(5). Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for federal civilian employment, military service, federal contracts, or access to classified information, but only to the extent such material would reveal the identity of a confidential source. This provision allows protection of confidential sources used in background investigations, employment inquiries, and similar inquiries that are for personnel screening to determine suitability, eligibility, or qualifications.

(6) The (k)(6). Testing or examination material used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the federal or military service, if the disclosure would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the test or examination process.

(7) The (k)(7). Evaluation material used to determine potential for promotion in the Military Services, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(b) Promises of confidentiality. (1) Only the identity of sources that have been given an express promise of confidentiality may be protected from disclosure under paragraphs (a)(2), (5) and (7) of this section. However, the identity of sources who were given implied promises of confidentiality in inquiries conducted before September 27, 1975, may also be protected from disclosure.

(2) Ensure that promises of confidentiality are used on a limited basis in day-to-day operations. Establish appropriate procedures and identify fully those categories of individuals who may make such promises. Promises of confidentiality shall be made only when they are essential to obtain the information sought.

(c) Access to records for which specific exemptions are claimed. Deny the individual access only to those portions of the records for which the claimed exemption applies.

Subpart G—Publication Requirements

§ 310.60 Federal Register publication.

(a) What must be published in the Federal Register. (1) Three types of documents relating to the Privacy Program must be published in the Federal Register:

(i) DoD Component Privacy Program rules;

(ii) Component exemption rules; and

(iii) System notices.

(c) DoD Component rules. (1) Component Privacy Program procedures and Component exemption rules are subject to the rulemaking procedures prescribed in 32 CFR part 296.
§ 310.61  32 CFR Ch. 1 (7–1–98 Edition)

(2) System notices are not subject to formal rulemaking and are published in the Federal Register as “Notices,” not rules.

(3) Privacy procedural and exemption rules are incorporated automatically into the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR). System notices are not published in the CFR.

(d) Submission of rules for publication. (1) Submit to the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A), all proposed rules implementing this part in proper format (see Appendices E, F and G) for publication in the Federal Register.

(2) This part has been published as a final rule in the Federal Register (32 CFR part 310). Therefore, incorporate it into your Component rules by reference rather than by republication.

(4) Amendments to Component rules are submitted like the basic rules.

(5) The Defense Privacy Office ODASD(A) submits the rules and amendments thereto to the Federal Register for publication.

(e) Submission of exemption rules for publication. (1) No system of records within the Department of Defense shall be considered exempt from any provision of this part until the exemption and the exemption rule for the system has been published as a final rule in the Federal Register (see paragraph (c) of this section).

(2) Submit exemption rules in proper format to the Defense Privacy Office ODASD(A). After review, the Defense Privacy Office will submit the rules to the Federal Register for publication.

(3) Exemption rules require publication both as proposed rules and final rules (see DoD Directive 5400.9, 32 CFR part 296).

(4) Section 310.61 of this subpart discusses the content of an exemption rule.

(5) Submit amendments to exemption rules in the same manner used for establishing these rules.

(f) Submission of system notices for publication. (1) While system notices are not subject to formal rulemaking procedures, advance public notice must be given before a Component may begin to collect personal information or use a new system of records. The notice procedures require that:

(i) The system notice describes the contents of the record system and the routine uses for which the information in the system may be released.

(ii) The public be given 30 days to comment on any proposed routine uses before implementation; and

(iii) The notice contain the data on which the system will become effective.

(2) Submit system notices to the Defense Privacy Office in the Federal Register format (see appendix E). The Defense Privacy Office transmits the notices to the Federal Register for publication.

(3) Section 310.62 of this subpart discusses the specific elements required in a system notice.

§ 310.61 Exemption rules.

(a) General procedures. Paragraph (b)(1) of § 310.50, subpart F, provides the general guidance for establishing exemptions for systems of records.

(b) Contents of exemption rules. (1) Each exemption rule submitted for publication must contain the following:

(i) The record system identification and title of the system for which the exemption is claimed (see § 310.62 of this subpart);

(ii) The specific subsection of the Privacy Act under which exemptions for the system are claimed (for example, 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(3); or 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(7));

(iii) The specific provisions and subsections of the Privacy Act from which the system is to be exempted (for example, 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), or 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1)–(5)) (see appendix D); and

(iv) The specific reasons why an exemption is being claimed from each subsection of the Act identified.

§ 310.62 System notices.

(a) Contents of the system notices. (1) The following data captions are included in each system notice:

(i) System identification (see paragraph (b) of this section).

(ii) System name (see paragraph (c) of this section).

(iii) System location (see paragraph (d) of this section).

(iv) Categories of individuals covered by the system (see paragraph (e) of this section).

(v) Categories of records in the system (see paragraph (f) of this section).

(vi) Authority for maintenance of the system (see paragraph (g) of this section).

(vii) Purpose(s) (see paragraph (h) of this section).

(viii) Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users, uses, and purposes of such uses (see paragraph (i) of this section).

(ix) Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system (see paragraph (j) of this section).

(x) Systems manager(s) and address (see paragraph (k) of this section).

(xi) Notification procedure (see paragraph (l) of this section).

(xii) Record access procedures (see paragraph (m) of this section).

(xiii) Contesting records procedures (see paragraph (n) of this section).

(xiv) Record source categories (see paragraph (o) of this section).

(xv) Systems exempted from certain provision of the Act (see paragraph (p) of this section).

(2) The captions listed in paragraph (a) of this section have been mandated by the Office of Federal Register and must be used exactly as presented.

(3) A sample system notice is shown in appendix E.

(b) System identification. The system identifier must appear on all system notices and is limited to 21 positions, including Component code, file number and symbols, punctuation, and spacing.

(c) System name. (1) The name of the system should reasonably identify the general purpose of the system and, if possible, the general categories of individuals involved.

(2) Use acronyms only parenthetically following the title or any portion thereof, such as, “Joint Uniform Military Pay System (JUMPS).” Do not use acronyms that are not commonly known unless they are preceded by an explanation.

(3) The system name may not exceed 55 character positions including punctuation and spacing.

(d) System location. (1) For systems maintained in a single location provide the exact office name, organizational identity, and address or routing symbol.

(2) For geographically or organizationally decentralized systems, specify each level of organization or element that maintains a segment of the system.

(3) For automated data systems with a central computer facility and input/output terminals at several geographically separated locations, list each location by category.

(4) When multiple locations are identified by type of organization, the system location may indicate that official mailing addresses are contained in an address directory published as an appendix to the Component system notices in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Information concerning format requirements for preparation of an address directory may be obtained from the project officer, Air Force 1st Information Systems Group (AF/1ISG/GNR), Washington, DC 20330-6345.

(5) If no address directory is used or the addresses in the directory are incomplete, the address of each location where a segment of the record system is maintained must appear under the “System Location” caption.

(6) Classified addresses are not listed, but the fact that they are classified is indicated.

(7) Use the standard U.S. Postal Service two letter state abbreviation symbols and zip codes for all domestic addresses.
(e) Categories of individuals covered by the system. (1) Set forth the specific categories of individuals to whom records in the system pertain in clear, easily understood, nontechnical terms.
(2) Avoid the use of broad over-general descriptions, such as “all Army personnel” or “all military personnel” unless this actually reflects the category of individuals involved.

(f) Categories of records in the system.
(1) Describe in clear, nontechnical terms the types of records maintained in the system.
(2) Only documents actually retained in the system of records shall be described, not source documents that are used only to collect data and then destroyed.

(g) Authority for maintenance of the system.
(1) Cite the specific provision of the federal statute or Executive Order that authorizes the maintenance of the system.
(2) Include with citations for statutes the popular names, when appropriate (for example, Title 51, U.S. Code, section 2103, “Tea-Tasters Licensing Act”), and for Executive Orders, the official title (for example, Executive Order No. 9397, “Numbering System for Federal Accounts Relating to Individual Persons”).
(3) Cite the statute or Executive Order establishing the Component for administrative housekeeping records.
(4) If the Component is chartered by a DoD Directive, cite that Directive as well as the Secretary of Defense authority to issue the Directive. For example, “Pursuant to the authority contained in the National Security Act of 1947, as amended (10 U.S.C. 1334), the Secretary of Defense has issued DoD Directive 5105.21, the charter of the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) as a separate Agency of the Department of Defense under his control. Therein, the Director, DIA, is charged with the responsibility of maintaining all necessary and appropriate records.”

(h) Purpose or purposes.
(1) List the specific purposes for maintaining the system of records by the Component.
(2) Include the uses made of the information within the Component and the Department of Defense (so-called “internal routine uses”).

(i) Routine uses.
(1) The blanket routine uses (appendix C) that appear at the beginning of each Component compilation apply to all systems notices unless the individual system notice specifically states that one or more of them do not apply to the system. List the blanket routine uses at the beginning of the Component listing of system notices (see paragraph (e)(5) of §310.41 of subpart E).
(2) For all other routine uses, when practical, list the specific activity to which the record may be released, to include any routine automated system interface (for example, “to the Department of Justice, Civil Rights Compliance Division,” “to the Veterans Administration, Office of Disability Benefits,” or “to state and local health agencies”).
(3) For each routine user identified, include a statement as to the purpose or purposes for which the record is to be released to that activity (see §310.41(e) of subpart E). The routine uses should be compatible with the purpose for which the record was collected or obtained (see §310.3(p), subpart A).
(4) Do not use general statements, such as, “to other federal agencies as required” or “to any other appropriate federal agency.”

(j) Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records. This caption is subdivided into four parts:
(1) Storage. Indicate the medium in which the records are maintained. (For example, a system may be “automated”, maintained on magnetic tapes or disks, “manual”, maintained in paper files, or “hybrid”, maintained in a combination of paper and automated form.) Storage does not refer to the container or facility in which the records are kept.
(2) Retrievability. Specify how the records are retrieved (for example, name and SSN, name, SSN) and indicate whether a manual or computerized index is required to retrieve individual records.
(3) Safeguards. List the categories of Component personnel having immediate access and those responsible for safeguarding the records from unauthorized access. Generally identify the system safeguards (such as storage in safes, vaults, locked cabinets or rooms, use of guards, visitor registers, personnel screening, or computer "fail-safe" systems software). Do not describe safeguards in such detail so as to compromise system security.

(4) Retention and disposal. Indicate how long the record is retained. When appropriate, also state the length of time the records are maintained by the Component, when they are transferred to a Federal Records Center, length of retention at the Record Center and when they are transferred to the National Archivist or are destroyed. A reference to a Component regulation without further detailed information is insufficient.

(k) System manager(s) and address. (1)
List the title and address of the official responsible for the management of the system.

(2) If the title of the specific official is unknown, such as for a local system, specify the local commander or office head as the systems manager.

(3) For geographically separated or organizationally decentralized activities for which individuals may deal directly with officials at each location in exercising their rights, list the position or duty title of each category of officials responsible for the system or a segment thereof.

(4) Do not include business or duty addresses if they are listed in the Component address directory.

(l) Notification procedures. (1) If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(G) of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) (see §310.50(d)), so indicate.

(2) For all nonexempt systems, describe how an individual may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

(iii) Identification of the offices through which the individual may obtain access; and

(iv) A description of any proof of identity required (see §310.30(c)(1)).

(4) When appropriate, the individual may be referred to a Component official who shall provide this data to him or her.

(m) Record access procedures. (1) If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(H) of the Privacy Act
(5 U.S.C. 552a) (see §310.50(d)), so indicate.

(2) For all nonexempt systems of records, describe the procedures under which individuals may obtain access to the records pertaining to them in the system.

(3) When appropriate, the individual may be referred to the system manager or Component official to obtain access procedures.

(4) Do not repeat the addresses listed in the Component address directory but refer the individual to that directory.

(n) Contesting record procedures. (1) If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Privacy Act
(5 U.S.C. 552a) (see §310.50(d)), so indicate.

(2) For all nonexempt systems of records, state briefly how an individual may contest the content of a record pertaining to him or her in the system.

(3) The detailed procedures for contesting record accuracy, refusal of access or amendment, or initial review and appeal need not be included if they are readily available elsewhere and can be referred to by the public. (For example, "The Defense Mapping Agency rules for contesting contents and for appealing initial determinations are contained in DMA Instruction 5400.11
(32 CFR part 295c)."

(4) The individual may also be referred to the system manager to determine these procedures.

(o) Record source categories. (1) If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Privacy Act
(5 U.S.C. 552a) (see §310.50(d), subpart F), so indicate.
(2) For all nonexempt systems of records, list the sources of the information in the system.

(3) Specific individuals or institutions need not be identified by name, particularly if these sources have been granted confidentiality (see §310.52(b), subpart F).

(p) System exempted from certain provisions of the Act. (1) If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate “None.”

(2) If there is an exemption claimed indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) it is claimed.

(3) Cite the regulation and CFR section containing the exemption rule for the system. (For example, “Parts of this record system may be exempt under Title 5 U.S. Code, 552a(k)(2) and (5), as applicable. See exemption rules contained in Army Regulation 340-21 (32 CFR part 505).”)

(q) Maintaining the master DoD system notice registry. (1) The Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) maintains a master registry of all DoD record systems notices.

(2) Coordinate with the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) to ensure that all new systems are added to the master registry and all amendments and alterations are incorporated into the master registry.

§310.63 New and altered record systems.

(a) Criteria for a new record system. (1) A new system of records is one for which there has been no system notice published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(2) If a notice for a system of records has been canceled or deleted before reinstating or reusing the system, a new system notice must be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(b) Criteria for an altered record system. A system is considered altered whenever one of the following actions occurs or is proposed:

(1) A significant increase or change in the number or type of individuals about whom records are maintained.

(i) Only changes that alter significantly the character and purpose of the record system are considered alterations.

(ii) Increases in numbers of individuals due to normal growth are not considered alterations unless they truly alter the character and purpose of the system;

(iii) Increases that change significantly the scope of population covered (for example, expansion of a system of records covering a single command’s enlisted personnel to include all of the Component’s enlisted personnel would be considered an alteration).

(iv) A reduction in the number of individuals covered is not an alteration, but only an amendment (see paragraph (a) of §310.64 of this subpart).

(v) All changes that add new categories of individuals to system coverage require a change to the “Categories of individuals covered by the system” caption of the notice (§310.62(e)) and may require changes to the “Purpose(s)” caption (§310.62(h)).

(2) An expansion in the types or categories of information maintained.

(i) The addition of any new category of records not described under the “Categories of Records in System” caption is considered an alteration.

(ii) Adding a new data element which is clearly within the scope of the categories of records described in the existing notice is an amendment (see §310.64(a) of this subpart).

(iii) All changes under this criterion require a change to the “Categories of Records in System” caption of the notice (see §310.62(f) of this subpart).

(3) An alteration in the manner in which the records are organized or the manner in which the records are indexed and retrieved.

(i) The change must alter the nature of use or scope of the records involved (for example, combining records systems in a reorganization).

(ii) Any change under this criteria requires a change in the “Retrievability” caption of the system notice (see §310.62(j)(2) of this subpart).

(iii) If the records are no longer retrieved by name or personal identifier cancel the system notice (see §310.10(a) of subpart B).

(4) A change in the purpose for which the information in the system is used.
§ 310.63

(i) The new purpose must not be compatible with the existing purposes for which the system is maintained or a use that would not reasonably be expected to be an alteration.

(ii) If the use is compatible and reasonably expected, there is no change in purpose and no alteration occurs.

(iii) Any change under this criterion requires a change in the “Purpose(s)” caption (see §310.62(h) of this subpart) and may require a change in the “Authority for maintenance of the system” caption (see §310.62(g) of this subpart).

(5) Changes that alter the computer environment (such as changes to equipment configuration, software, or procedures) so as to create the potential for greater or easier access.

(i) Increasing the number of offices with direct access is an alteration.

(ii) Software releases, such as operating systems and system utilities that provide for easier access are considered alterations.

(iii) The addition of an on-line capability to a previously batch-oriented system is an alteration.

(iv) The addition of peripheral devices such as tape devices, disk devices, card readers, printers, and similar devices to an existing ADP system constitute an amendment if system security is preserved (see paragraph (a) of §310.64 of this subpart).

(v) Changes to existing equipment configuration with on-line capability need not be considered alterations to the system if:

(A) The change does not alter the present security posture; or

(B) The addition of terminals does not extend the capacity of the current operating system and existing security is preserved;

(vi) The connecting of two or more formerly independent automated systems or networks together creating a potential for greater access is an alteration;

(vii) Any change under this caption requires a change to the “Storage” caption element of the systems notice (see §310.62(j)(1) of this subpart).

(c) Reports of new and altered systems.

(1) Submit a report of a new or altered system to the Defense Privacy Office before collecting information for or using a new system or altering an existing system (see appendix F and paragraph (d) of this section).

(2) The Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) coordinates all reports of new and altered systems with the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Legislative Affairs) and the Office of the General Counsel, Department of Defense.

(3) The Defense Privacy Office prepares for the DASD(A)’s approval and signature the transmittal letters sent to OMB and Congress (see paragraph (e) of this section).

(d) Time restrictions on the operation of a new or altered system.

(1) All time periods begin from the date the DASD(A) signs the transmittal letters (see paragraph (c)(3) of this section). The specific time limits are:

(i) 60 days must elapse before data collection forms or formal instructions pertaining to the system may be issued.

(ii) 60 days must elapse before the system may become operational; (that is, collecting, maintaining, using, or disseminating records from the system) (see also §310.60(f) of this subpart).

(iii) 60 days must elapse before any public issuance of a Request for Proposal or Invitation to Bid for a new ADP or telecommunication system.

NOTE: Requests for delegation of procurement authority may be submitted to the General Services Administration during the 60 days’ waiting period, but these shall include language that the Privacy Act reporting criteria have been reviewed and that a system report is required for such procurement.

(iv) Normally 30 days must elapse before publication in the Federal Register of the notice of a new or altered system (see §310.60(f) of this subpart) and the preamble to the Federal Register notice must reflect the date the transmittal letters to OMB and Congress were signed by DASD(A).

(2) Do not operate a system of records until the waiting periods have expired (see §310.103 of subpart K).

(e) Outside review of new and altered systems reports.

If no objections are received within 30 days of a submission to the President of the Senate, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Director, OMB, of a new or altered system report it is presumed that the new or altered systems have been approved as submitted.

(f) Exemptions for new systems. See §310.60(e) of this subpart for the procedures to follow in submitting exemption rules for a new system of records.

(g) Waiver of time restrictions. (1) The OMB may authorize a federal agency to begin operation of a system of records before the expiration of time limits set forth in §310.63(d) of this subpart.

(2) When seeking such a waiver, include in the letter of transmittal to the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) an explanation why a delay of 60 days in establishing the system of records would not be in the public interest. The transmittal must include:

(i) How the public interest will be affected adversely if the established time limits are followed; and

(ii) Why earlier notice was not provided.

(3) When appropriate, the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) shall contact OMB and attempt to obtain the waiver.

(i) If a waiver is granted, the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) shall notify the subcommittee and submit the new or altered system notice along with any applicable procedural or exemption rules for publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(ii) If the waiver is disapproved, the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) shall process the system the same as any other new or altered system and notify the subcommittee of the OMB decision.

(4) Under no circumstances shall the routine uses for new or altered system be implemented before 30 days have elapsed after publication of the system notice containing the routine uses in the FEDERAL REGISTER. This period cannot be waived.

§ 310.64 Amendment and deletion of systems notices.

(a) Criteria for an amended system notice. (1) Certain minor changes to published systems notices are considered amendments and not alterations (see §310.63(b) of this subpart).

(2) Amendments do not require a report of an altered system (see §310.63(c) of this subpart), but must be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(b) System notices for amended systems. When submitting an amendment for a system notice for publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER include:

(1) The system identification and name (see paragraph (b) and (c) of §310.62 of this subpart).

(2) A description of the nature and specific changes proposed.

(3) The full text of the system notice is not required if the master registry contains a current system notice for the system (see §310.62(q) of this subpart).

(c) Deletion of system notices. (1) Whenever a system is discontinued, combined into another system, or determined no longer to be subject to this part, a deletion notice is required.

(2) The notice of deletion shall include:

(i) The system identification and name.

(ii) The reason for the deletion.

(3) When the system is eliminated through combination or merger, identify the successor system or systems in the deletion notice.

(d) Submission of amendments and deletions for publication. (1) Submit amendments and deletions to the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) for transmittal to the FEDERAL REGISTER for publication.

(2) Include in the submission at least one original (not a reproduced copy) in proper FEDERAL REGISTER format (see appendix G).

(3) Multiple deletions and amendments may be combined into a single submission.

§ 310.70 Statutory training requirements.

Subpart H—Training Requirements

The Privacy Act of 1974, as amended (5 U.S.C. 552a), requires each agency to establish rules of conduct for all persons involved in the design, development, operation, and maintenance of any system of record and to train these persons with respect to these rules.

§ 310.71 OMB training guidelines.

The OMB guidelines require all agencies additionally to:

(a) Instruct their personnel in their rules of conduct and other rules and procedures adopted in implementing the Act, and inform their personnel of the penalties for noncompliance.

(b) Incorporate training on the special requirements of the Act into both formal and informal (on-the-job) training programs.

§ 310.72 DoD training programs.

(a) To meet these training requirements, establish three general levels of training for those persons who are involved in any way with the design, development, operation, or maintenance of any system of records. These are:

(1) Orientation. Training that provides basic understanding of this Regulation as it applies to the individual’s job performance. This training shall be provided to personnel, as appropriate, and should be a prerequisite to all other levels of training.

(2) Specialized training. Training that provides information as to the application of specific provisions of this part to specialized areas of job performance. Personnel of particular concern include, but are not limited to personnel specialists, finance officers, special investigators, paperwork managers, and other specialists (reports, forms, records, and related functions), computer systems development personnel, computer systems operations personnel, statisticians dealing with personal data and program evaluations, and anyone responsible for implementing or carrying out functions under this part.

(3) Management. Training designed to identify for responsible managers (such as, senior system managers, denial authorities, decision-makers, and the managers of the functions described in § 310.70 of this subpart) considerations that they shall take into account when making management decisions regarding the Defense Privacy Program.

(b) Include Privacy Act training in courses of training when appropriate. Stress individual responsibilities and advise individuals of their rights and responsibilities under this part.

§ 310.73 Training methodology and procedures.

(a) Each DoD Component is responsible for the development of training procedures and methodology.

(b) The Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) will assist the Components in developing these training programs and may develop Privacy training programs for use by all DoD Components.

(c) All training programs shall be coordinated with the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) to avoid duplication and to ensure maximum effectiveness.

§ 310.74 Funding for training.

Each DoD Component shall fund its own Privacy training program.

Subpart I—Reports

§ 310.80 Requirements for reports.

The Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) shall establish requirements for DoD Privacy Reports and DoD Components may be required to provide data.

§ 310.81 Suspense for submission of reports.

The suspenses for submission of all reports shall be established by the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A).

§ 310.82 Reports control symbol.

Any report established by this subpart in support of the Defense Privacy Program shall be assigned Report Control Symbol DD-COMP(A)1379. Special one-time reporting requirements shall be licensed separately in accordance with DoD Directive 5000.19 “Policies for the Management and Control of Information Requirements” and DoD Directive 5000.11, “Data Elements and Data Codes Standardization Program.”
§ 310.90 Privacy Act inspections.

During internal inspections, Component inspectors shall be alert for compliance with this part and for managerial, administrative, and operational problems associated with the implementation of the Defense Privacy Program.

§ 310.91 Inspection reporting.

(a) Document the findings of the inspectors in official reports that are furnished the responsible Component officials. These reports, when appropriate, shall reflect overall assets of the Component Privacy Program inspected, or portion thereof, identify deficiencies, irregularities, and significant problems. Also document remedial actions taken to correct problems identified.

(b) Retain inspections reports and later follow-up reports in accordance with established records disposition standards. These reports shall be made available to the Privacy Program officials concerned upon request.

Subpart K—Privacy Act Enforcement Actions

§ 310.100 Administrative remedies.

Any individual who feels he or she has a legitimate complaint or grievance against the Department of Defense or any DoD employee concerning any right granted by this part shall be permitted to seek relief through appropriate administrative channels.

§ 310.101 Civil actions.

An individual may file a civil suit against a DoD Component or its employees if the individual feels certain provisions of the Act have been violated (see 5 U.S.C. 552a(g), of the Privacy Act.

§ 310.102 Civil remedies.

In addition to specific remedial actions, subsection (g) of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) provides for the payment of damages, court cost, and attorney fees in some cases.

§ 310.103 Criminal penalties.

(a) The Act also provides for criminal penalties (see 5 U.S.C. 552a(i). Any official or employee may be found guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000 if he or she willfully:

(1) Discloses personal information to anyone not entitled to receive the information (see subpart E); or

(2) Maintains a system of records without publishing the required public notice in the Federal Register (see subpart G).

(b) A person who requests or obtains access to any record concerning another individual under false pretenses may be found guilty of misdemeanor and fined up to $5,000.

§ 310.104 Litigation status sheet.

Whenever a complaint citing the Privacy Act is filed in a U.S. District Court against the Department of Defense, a DoD Component, or any DoD employee, the responsible system manager shall notify promptly the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A). The litigation status sheet at appendix H provides a standard format for this notification. The initial litigation status sheet forwarded shall, as a minimum, provide the information required by items 1 through 6. A revised litigation status sheet shall be provided at each stage of the litigation. When a court renders a formal opinion or judgment, copies of the judgment and opinion shall be provided to the Defense Privacy Office with the litigation status sheet reporting that judgment or opinion.

Subpart L—Matching Program Procedures

§ 310.110 OMB matching guidelines.

The OMB has issued special guidelines to be followed in programs that match the personal records in the computerized data bases of two or more federal agencies by computer (see appendix I). These guidelines are intended to strike a balance between the interest of the government in maintaining the integrity of federal programs and the need to protect individual privacy expectations. They do not authorize matching programs as such...
Office of the Secretary of Defense

§ 310.111 Requesting matching programs.

(a) Forward all requests for matching programs to include necessary routine use amendments (see §310.62(i) of subpart G) and analysis and proposed matching program reports (see subsection E.6. of appendix I) to the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A).

(b) The Defense Privacy Office shall review each request and supporting material and forward the report and system notice amendments to the Federal Register, OMB, and Congress, as appropriate.

(c) Changes to existing matching programs shall be processed in the same manner as a new matching program report.

§ 310.112 Time limits for submitting matching reports.

(a) No time limits are set by the OMB guidelines. However, in order to establish a new routine use for a matching program, the amended system notice must have been published in the Federal Register at least 30 days before implementation (see §310.60(f) of subpart G).

(b) Submit the documentation required by §310.111(a) of this subpart to the Defense Privacy Office at least 45 days before the proposed initiation date of the matching program.

(c) The Defense Privacy Office may grant waivers to the 45 days' deadline for good cause shown. Requests for waivers shall be in writing and fully justified.

§ 310.113 Matching programs among DoD components.

(a) For the purpose of the OMB guidelines, the Department of Defense and all DoD Components are considered a single agency.

(b) Before initiating a matching program using only the records of two or more DoD Components, notify the Defense Privacy Office that the match is to occur. The Defense Privacy Office may request further information from the Component proposing the match.

(c) There is no need to notify the Defense Privacy Office of computer matches using only the records of a single Component.

§ 310.114 Annual review of systems of records.

The system manager shall review annually each system of records to determine if records from the system are being used in matching programs and whether the OMB Guidelines have been complied with.

APPENDIX A TO PART 310—SPECIAL CONSIDERATIONS FOR SAFEGUARDING PERSONAL INFORMATION IN ADP SYSTEMS

(See paragraph (b) of §310.13, subpart B)

A. General

1. The Automated Data Processing (ADP) environment subjects personal information to special hazards as to unauthorized compromise alteration, dissemination, and use. Therefore, special considerations must be given to safeguarding personal information in ADP systems.

2. Personal information must also be protected while it is being processed or accessed in computer environments outside the data processing installation (such as, remote job entry stations, terminal stations, minicomputers, microprocessors, and similar activities).

3. ADP facilities authorized to process classified material have adequate procedures and security for the purposes of this Regulation. However, all unclassified information subject to this Regulation must be processed following the procedures used to process and access information designated "For Official Use Only" (see "DoD Freedom of Information Act Program" (32 CFR part 286)).

B. Risk Management and Safeguarding Standards

1. Establish administrative, technical, and physical safeguards that are adequate to protect the information against unauthorized disclosure, access, or misuse (see Transmittal Memorandum No. 1 to OMB Circular A-71—Security of Federal Automated Information Systems).

2. Technical and physical safeguards alone will not protect against unintentional compromise due to errors, omissions, or poor procedures. Proper administrative controls generally provide cheaper and surer safeguards.
Pt. 310, App. A

3. Tailor safeguards to the type of system, the nature of the information involved, and the specific threat to be countered.

C. Minimum Administrative Safeguard
The minimum safeguarding standards as set forth in paragraph (b) of §310.13, subpart B apply to all personal data within any ADP system. In addition:

1. Consider the following when establishing ADP safeguards:
   a. The sensitivity of the data being processed, stored and accessed;
   b. The installation environment;
   c. The risk of exposure;
   d. The cost of the safeguard under consideration.

2. Label or designate output and storage media products (intermediate and final) containing personal information that do not contain classified material in such a manner as to alert those using or handling the information of the need for special protection. Designating products "For Official Use Only" in accordance with subpart E of 32 CFR part 206, "DoD Freedom of Information Act Program," satisfies this requirement.

3. Mark and protect all computer products containing classified data in accordance with the DoD Information Security Program Regulation (32 CFR part 159) and the ADP Security Manual (DoD 5200.28-M).

4. Mark and protect all computer products containing "For Official Use Only" material in accordance with subpart E of 32 CFR part 206.

5. Ensure that safeguards for protected information stored at secondary sites are appropriate.

6. If there is a computer failure, restore all protected information being processed at the time of the failure using proper recovery procedures to ensure data integrity.

7. Train all ADP personnel involved in processing information subject to this part in proper safeguarding procedures.

D. Physical Safeguards

1. For all unclassified facilities, areas, and devices that process information subject to this part, establish physical safeguards that protect the information against reasonably identifiable threats that could result in unauthorized access or alteration.

2. Develop access procedures for unclassified computer rooms, tape libraries, micrographic facilities, decollating shops, product distribution areas, or other direct support areas that process or contain personal information subject to this part to control access to these areas.

3. Safeguard on-line devices directly coupled to ADP systems that contain or process personal information from systems of records to prevent unauthorized disclosure use or alteration.

4. Dispose of paper records following appropriate record destruction procedures.

E. Technical Safeguards

1. The use of encryption devices solely for the purpose of protecting unclassified personal information transmitted over communication circuits or during processing in computer systems is normally discouraged. However, when a comprehensive risk assessment indicates that encryption is cost-effective it may be used.

2. Remove personal data stored on magnetic storage media by methods that preclude reconstruction of the data.

3. Ensure that personal information is not inadvertently disclosed as residue when transferring magnetic media between activities.

4. When it is necessary to provide dial-up remote access for the processing of personal information, control access by computer-verified passwords. Change passwords periodically or whenever compromise is known or suspected.

5. Normally the passwords shall give access only to those data elements (fields) required and not grant access to the entire data base.

6. Do not rely totally on proprietary software products to protect personnel data during processing or storage.

F. Special Procedures

1. System Managers shall:
   a. Notify the ADP manager whenever personal information subject to this Regulation is to be processed by an ADP facility.
   b. Prepare and submit for publication all system notices and amendments and alterations thereto (see paragraph (f) of §310.60 of subpart G).
   c. Identify to the ADP manager those activities and individuals authorized access to the information and notify the manager of any changes to the access authorizations.

2. ADP personnel shall:
   a. Permit only authorized individuals access to the information.
   b. Adhere to the established information protection procedures and rules of conduct.
   c. Notify the system manager and ADP manager whenever unauthorized personnel seek access to the information.

3. ADP installation managers shall:
   a. Maintain an inventory of all computer program applications used to process information subject to this part to include the identity of the systems of records involved.
   b. Verify that requests for new programs or changes to existing programs have been published as required (see paragraphs (a) and (b) of §310.63, subpart G).
Office of the Secretary of Defense

Pt. 310, App. B

1. A separate risk assessment is not required for ADP installations that process classified material. A simple certification by the appropriate ADP official that the facility is cleared to process a given level of classified material (such as, Top Secret, Secret, or Confidential) and that the procedures followed in processing “For Official Use Only” material are to be followed in processing personal data subject to this Regulation is sufficient to meet the risk assessment requirement.

2. Prepare a formal risk assessment for each ADP installation (to include those activities with terminals and devices having access to ADP facilities) that processes personal information subject to this part and that do not process classified material.

3. Address the following in the risk assessment:
   a. Identify the specific systems of records supported and determine their impact on the mission of the user.
   b. Identify the threats (internal, external, and natural) to the data.
   c. Determine the physical and operational (to include software) vulnerabilities.
   d. Evaluate the relationships between vulnerabilities and threats.
   e. Assess the impact of unauthorized disclosure or modification of the personal information.
   f. Identify possible safeguards and their relationships to the threats to be countered.
   g. Analyze the economic feasibility of adopting the identified safeguards.
   h. Determine the safeguard to be used and develop implementation plans.
   i. Discuss contingency plans including operational exercise plans.
   j. Determine if procedures proposed are consistent with those identified in the system notices for system of records concerned.
   k. Include a vulnerability assessment.

4. Conduct a risk assessment at least every 5 years or when there is a change to the installation, its hardware, software, or administrative procedures that increase or decrease the likelihood of compromise or present new threats to the information.

5. Protect the risk assessment as it is a sensitive document.

6. Retain a copy of the risk assessment at the installation and make it available to appropriate inspectors and authorized personnel.

7. Include a summary of the current risk assessment with any report of new or altered system submitted in accordance with paragraph (c) of § 310.63, subpart G, for any system from which information will be processed.

8. Complete a formal risk assessment at the beginning of the design phase for each new unclassified ADP installation and before beginning the processing of personal data on a regular basis in existing ADP facility that do not process classified data.

APPENDIX B TO PART 310—SPECIAL CONSIDERATIONS FOR SAFEGUARDING PERSONAL INFORMATION DURING WORD PROCESSING

(See paragraph (b) of § 310.13, subpart B)

A. Introduction

1. Normally, word processing support is provided under two general concepts. They are:
   a. Word processing centers (WPCs), and
   b. Work groups or clusters.

2. A WPC generally provides support to one or more functional areas. Characteristically, the customer delivers (by written draft or dictation) the information to be processed to the WPC. The WPC processes the information and returns it to the customer. There are generally two types of WPCs.

   a. A WPC may operate independent of the customer’s function, providing service in much the same manner as a data processing installation provides ADP support, or a message center provides electronic message service, or
   b. A WPC may work within a customer’s function providing support to that function. The support being centralized in a WPC to take advantage of increased productivity.

3. A work group or cluster generally consists of one or more pieces of word processing equipment that are integrated into the functional office support system. The overall word processing and functional management may be one and the same. Depending on the size of the support job, there may be a work... group or cluster manager. Normally, however, they will be located within or in close proximity to the functional area supported. Information flows in and out of the work group or cluster by normal office routine and the personnel are an integral part of the office staff.

B. Minimum Standards of Protection
1. Regardless of configuration (WPC or work group), all personal data processed using word processing equipment shall be afforded the standards of protection required by paragraph (b) of §310.13, subpart B.
2. The remaining special considerations discussed in this appendix are primarily for WPCs operating independent of the customer's function. However, managers of other WPCs, work groups, and work clusters are encouraged to consider and adopt, when appropriate, the special considerations discussed herein.
3. WPCs that are not independent of a customer's function, work groups, and work clusters are not required to prepare formal written risk assessments (see section H., below).

C. WPC Information Flow
1. In analyzing procedures required to safeguard adequately personal information in a WPC, the basic elements of WPC information flow and control must be considered. These are:
   a. Information receipt.
   b. Information processing.
   c. Information return.
   d. Information storage or filing.
2. WPCs do not control information acquisition or its ultimate use by the customers and, therefore, these are not addressed.

D. Safeguarding Information During Receipt
1. The word processing manager shall establish procedures.
   a. That require each customer who requests that information subject to this part be processed to identify specifically that information to the WPC personnel. This may be done by:
      (1) Providing a check-off type entry on the WPC work requests;
      (2) Requiring that the WPC work requests be stamped with a special legend, or that a special notation be made on the work requests;
      (3) Predesignating specifically a class of documents as coming within the provisions of this part (such as, all officer effectiveness reports, all recall rosters, and all medical protocols);
      (4) Using a special cover sheet both to alert the WPC personnel as to the type information, and to protect the document during transmittal;
      (5) Requiring an oral warning on all dictation;
      (6) Any other procedures that ensure the WPC personnel are alerted to the fact that personal data subject to this part is to be processed.
   b. To ensure that the operators or other WPC personnel receiving data for processing that has not been identified as being in a system of records and that appears to meet the criteria set forth in paragraph (a) of §310.10, subpart B is called to the attention of the appropriate supervisory personnel and system manager.
2. The WPC supervisor shall ensure that personal information is not inadvertently compromised within the WPC.

E. Safeguarding Information During Processing
1. Each WPC supervisor shall establish internal safeguards that shall protect personal data from compromise while it is being processed.
2. Physical safeguards may include:
   a. Controls on individual access to the center;
   b. Machine configurations that reduce external access to the information being processed, or arrangements that alert the operator to the presence of others;
   c. Using certain specific machines to process personal data;
   d. Any other physical safeguards, to include special technical arrangements that will protect the data during processing.
3. Other safeguards may include:
   a. Using only certain selected operators to process personal data;
   b. Processing personal data only at certain times during the day without the WPC manager's specific authorization;
   c. Using only certain tapes or diskettes to process and store personal data;
   d. Using continuous tapes for dictation of personal data;
   e. Requiring all WPC copies of documents to be marked specifically so as to prevent inadvertent compromise;
   f. Returning extra copies and mistakes to the customer with the product;
   g. Disposing of waste containing personal data in a special manner;
   h. Any other local procedures that provide adequate protection to the data being processed.
Office of the Secretary of Defense

Pt. 310, App. C

F. Safeguarding Information During Return

1. The WPC shall protect the data until it is returned to the customer or placed into a formal distribution channel.

2. In conjunction with the appropriate administrative support personnel and the WPC customers, the WPC manager shall establish procedures that protect the information from the time word processing is completed until it is returned to the customer.

3. Safeguarding procedures may include:
   a. Releasing products only to specifically identifiable individuals;
   b. Using sealed envelopes to transmit products to the customer;
   c. Using special cover sheets to protect products similar to the one discussed in subparagraph D.1.a.(4), above;
   d. Handcarrying products to the customers;
   e. Using special messengers to return the products;
   f. Any other procedures that protect adequately products from compromise while they are awaiting return or being returned to the customer.

G. Safeguards During Storage

1. The WPC manager shall ensure that all personal data retained in the center for any purpose (including samples) are protected properly.

2. Safeguarding procedures may include:
   a. Marking all hard copies retained with special legends or designators;
   b. Storing media containing personal data in separate files or areas;
   c. Marking the storage containers for media containing personal data with special legends or notations;
   d. Restricting the reuse of media used to process personal data or erasing automatically the media before reuse;
   e. Establishing special criteria for the WPC retention of media used to store and process personal data;
   f. Returning the media to the customer for retention with the file copies of the finished products;
   g. Discouraging, when practical, the long-term storage of personal data in any form within the WPC;
   h. Any other filing or storage procedures that safeguard adequately any personal information retained or filed within the WPC.

H. Risk Assessment for WPCs

1. Each WPC manager shall ensure that a formal, written risk assessment is prepared for each WPC that processes personal information subject to this part.

2. The assessment shall address the areas discussed in sections D., E., F., and G. of this appendix, as well as any special risks that the WPC location, configuration, or organization may present to the compromise or alteration of personal data being processed or stored.

3. A risk assessment shall be conducted at least every 5 years or whenever there is a change of equipment, equipment configuration, WPC location, WPC configuration or modification of the WPC facilities that either increases or decreases the likelihood of compromise of personal data.

4. Copies of the assessment shall be retained by the WPC manager and made available to appropriate inspectors, as well as to personnel studying equipment for facility upgrading or modification.

5. Every new WPC shall have a formal risk assessment completed before beginning the processing of personal data.

1. Special Considerations in WPC Design and Modification

Procedures shall be established to ensure that all personnel involved in the design of WPCs or the acquisition of word processing equipment are aware of the special considerations required when processing personal data subject to this part.

APPENDIX C TO PART 310—DO D BLANKET ROUTINE USES

(See paragraph (e) of § 310.41, subpart E)

A. Routine Use—Law Enforcement

If a system of records maintained by a DoD Component to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the agency concerned, whether federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto.

B. Routine Use—Disclosure when Requesting Information

A record from a system of records maintained by a Component may be disclosed as a routine use to a federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to a Component decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit.
C. Routine Use—Disclosure of Requested Information

A record from a system of records maintained by a Component may be disclosed to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

This routine use is in accordance with Treasury Fiscal Requirements Manual Bulletin No. 76-07.

H. Routine Use—Disclosure to the Office of Personnel Management

A record from a system of records subject to the Privacy Act and maintained by a Component may be disclosed to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) concerning information on pay and leave, benefits, retirement deduction, and any other information necessary for the OPM to carry out its legally authorized government-wide personnel management functions and studies.

I. Routine Use—Disclosure to the Department of Justice for Litigation

The following are typical enclosures that may be required:

1. For a new system, an advance copy of the system notice which is proposed for publication. For an altered system (see paragraph (d) of § 310.64, subpart G) an advance copy of the notice reflecting the specific changes proposed.

2. An advance copy of any new rules or changes to the published Component rules to be issued for the new or altered system. If no change to existing rules is required, so state in the narrative.

3. An advance copy of any proposed exemption rule if the new or altered system is to be exempted in accordance with subpart F.
there is no exemption, so state in the narrative.
4. Any other supporting documentation that may be pertinent or helpful in understanding the need for the system or clarifying its intended use. While not required, such documentation, when available, is helpful in evaluating the new or altered system.

APPENDIX I TO PART 310—OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET (OMB)
MATCHING GUIDELINES
(See § 310.110, subpart L)
A. Purpose. These guidelines supplement and shall be used in conjunction with OMB Guidelines on the Administration of the Privacy Act of 1974, issued on July 1, 1975, and supplemented on November 21, 1975. They replace earlier guidance on conducting computerized matching programs issued on March 30, 1979. They are intended to help agencies relate the procedural requirements of the Privacy Act to the operational requirements of computerized matching. They are designed to address the concerns expressed by the Congress in the Privacy Act of 1974 that “the increasing use of computers and sophisticated information technology, while essential to the efficient operation of the Government, has greatly magnified the harm to individual privacy that can occur from any collection, maintenance, use, or dissemination of personal information.”
These guidelines do not authorize activities that are not permitted by law, nor do they prohibit activities expressly required to be performed by law. Complying with these guidelines, however, does not relieve a federal agency of the obligation to comply with the provisions of the Privacy Act, including any provisions not cited in these guidelines.
B. Scope. These guidelines apply to all agencies subject to the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) and to all matching programs:
1. Performed by a federal agency, whether the personal records used in the match are federal or nonfederal.
2. For which a federal agency discloses any personal records for use in a matching program performed by any other federal agency or any nonfederal organization.
C. Effective Date. These guidelines are effective on May 11, 1982.
D. Definitions. For the purposes of the Guidelines, all the terms defined in the Privacy Act of 1974 apply.
1. Personal Record. Any information pertaining to an individual that is stored in an automated system of records; for example, a data base which contains information about individuals that is retrieved by name or some other personal identifier.
2. Matching Program. A procedure in which a computer is used to compare two or more automated systems of records or a system of records with a set of nonfederal records to find individuals who are common to more than one system or set. The procedure includes all of the steps associated with the match, including obtaining the records to be matched, actual use of the computer, administrative and investigative action on the hits, and disposition of the personal records maintained in connection with the match. It should be noted that a single matching program may involve several matches among a number of participants. Matching programs do not include the following:
   a. Matches that do not compare a substantial number of records, such as, comparison of the Department of Education’s defaulted student loan data base with the Office of Personnel Management’s federal employee data base would be covered; comparison of six individual student loan defaultees with the OPM file would not be covered.
   b. Checks on specific individuals to verify data in an application for benefits done reasonably soon after the application is received.
   c. Checks on specific individuals based on information which raises questions about an individual’s eligibility for benefits or payments done reasonably soon after the information is received.
   d. Matches done to produce aggregate statistical data without any personal identifiers.
   e. Matches done to support any research or statistical project when the specific data are not to be used to make decisions about the rights, benefits, or privileges of specific individuals.
   f. Matches done by an agency using its own records.

1Number used by the Component for ref-ance purposes.
2Indicate the nature of the case, such as, “Denial of access,” “Refusal to amend,” “Incorrect records,” or other violations of the Act (specify).
3. Matching Agency. The federal agency which actually performs the match.

4. Source Agency. The federal agency which discloses records from a system of records to perform the match. Note that in some circumstances a source agency may be the instigator and ultimate beneficiary of the matching program, as when an agency lacking computer resources uses another agency to perform the match. The disclosure of records to the matching agency and any later disclosure of "hits" (by either the matching or the source agencies) must be done in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (b) of the Privacy Act.

5. Hit. The identification, through a matching program, of a specific individual.

E. Guidelines for Agencies Participating in Matching Programs. Agencies should acquire and disclose matching records and conduct matching programs in accordance with the provisions of this section and the Privacy Act.

1. Disclosing Personal Records for Matching Programs.
   a. To another federal agency. Source agencies are responsible for determining whether or not to disclose personal records from their systems and for making sure they meet the necessary Privacy Act disclosure provisions when they do. Among the factors source agencies should consider are:
      (1) Legal authority for the match;
      (2) Purpose and description of the match;
      (3) Description of the records to be matched;
      (4) Whether the record subjects have consented to the match; or whether disclosure of records for the match would be compatible with the purpose for which the records were originally collected; that is, whether disclosure under a "routine use" would be appropriate. Whether the soliciting agency is seeking the records for a legitimate law enforcement activity—whichever is appropriate; or any other provision of the Privacy Act under which disclosure may be made;
      (5) Description of additional information which may be subsequently disclosed in relation to "hits";
      (6) Subsequent actions expected of the source (for example, verification of the identity of the "hits" or follow-up with individuals who are "hits");
      (7) Safeguards to be afforded the records involved, including disposition.
   b. To a nonfederal entity. Before disclosing records to a nonfederal entity, the source agency should require the matching entity to agree in writing to certain conditions governing the use of the matching file; for example, that the matching file will remain the property of the source agency and be returned at the end of the matching program (or destroyed as appropriate); that the file will be used and accessed only to match the file or files previously agreed to; that it will not be used to extract information concerning "non-hit" individuals for any purpose, and that it will not be duplicated or disseminated within or outside the matching agency unless authorized in writing by the source agency.

2. Written Agreements. Before disclosing to either a federal or nonfederal entity, the source agency should require the matching entity to agree in writing to certain conditions governing the use of the matching file; for example, that the matching file will remain the property of the source agency and be returned at the end of the matching program (or destroyed as appropriate); that the file will be used and accessed only to match the file or files previously agreed to; that it will not be used to extract information concerning "non-hit" individuals for any purpose, and that it will not be duplicated or disseminated within or outside the matching agency unless authorized in writing by the source agency.

3. Performing Matching Programs. (a) Matching agencies should maintain reasonable administrative, technical, and physical security safeguards on all files involved in the matching program.
   (b) Matching agencies should ensure that they have appropriate systems of records including those containing "hits," and that such systems and any routine uses have been appropriately noticed in the FEDERAL REGISTER and reported to OMB and the Congress, as appropriate.

4. Disposition of Records. a. Matching agencies will return or destroy source matching files (by mutual agreement) immediately after the match.
   b. Records relating to hits will be kept only so long as an investigation, either criminal or administrative, is active, and will be disposed of in accordance with the requirements of the Privacy Act and the Federal Records Schedule.

5. Publication Requirements. a. Agencies, before disclosing records outside the agency, will publish appropriate "routine use" notices in the FEDERAL REGISTER, if necessary.
   b. If the matching program will result in the creation of a new or the substantial alteration of an existing system of records, the agency involved should publish the appropriate FEDERAL REGISTER notice and submit the requisite report to OMB and the Congress pursuant to OMB Circular No. A-108.

6. Reporting Requirements. a. As close to the initiation of the matching program as possible, matching agencies shall publish in the Federal Register a brief public notice describing the matching program. The notice should include:

(1) The legal authority under which the match is being conducted;
(2) A description of the matching program including whether the program is one time or continuing, the organizations involved, the purpose or purposes for which the program is being conducted, and the procedures to be used in matching and following up on the ‘hits’;
(3) A complete description of the personal records to be matched, including the source or sources, system of records identifying data, date or dates and page number of the most recent Federal Register full text publication when appropriate;
(4) The projected start and ending dates of the program;
(5) The security safeguards to be used to protect against unauthorized access or disclosure of the personal records; and
(6) Plans for disposition of the source records and ‘hits.’

7. Agencies should send a copy of this notice to the Congress and to OMB at the same time it is sent to the Federal Register.

a. Agencies should report new or altered systems of records as described in paragraph E.5.b., above, as necessary.

b. Agencies should also be prepared to report on matching programs pursuant to the reporting requirements of either the Privacy Act or the Paperwork Reduction Act. Reports will be solicited by the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs and will focus on both the protection of individual privacy and the government’s effective use of information technology. Reporting instructions will be disseminated to the agencies as part of either the reports required by paragraph (p) of the Privacy Act, or Section 3514 of Pub. L. 93–579.

8. Use of Contractors. Matching programs should, as far as practicable, be conducted ‘in-house’ by federal agencies using agency personnel, rather than by contract. When contractors are used, however, a. The matching agency should, consistent with paragraph (p) of the Privacy Act, cause the requirements of that Act to be applied to the contractor’s performance of the matching program. The contract should include the Privacy Act clause required by Federal Personnel Regulation Amendment 155 (41 CFR 1–1.37–5);

b. The terms of the contract should include appropriate privacy and security provisions consistent with policies, regulations, standards, and guidelines issued by OMB, GSA, and the Department of Commerce;

c. The terms of the contract should preclude the contractor from using, disclosing, copying, or retaining records associated with the matching program for the contractor’s own use;

de. Contractor personnel involved in the matching program shall be made explicitly aware of their obligations under the Act and of these guidelines, agency rules, and any special safeguards in relation to each specific match performed.

e. Any disclosures of records by the agency to the contractor should be made pursuant to a ‘routine use’ (5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(3)).

F. Implementation and Oversight. OMB will oversee the implementation of these guidelines and shall interpret and advise upon agency proposals and actions within their scope, consistent with section 6 of the Privacy Act.

The request shall include a signed notarized statement to verify his or her identity or an alternate verification for individuals, such as military members overseas who do not have access to notary services.

(9) Any individual submitting a request by mail for access to information shall address such request to the Directorate for Freedom of Information and Security Review, OASD(PA), Pentagon, Room 2C757, Washington, D.C. 20301-1155. The request shall include a signed notarized statement to verify his or her identity or an alternate verification for individuals, such as military members overseas who do not have access to notary services.

(10) Any individual submitting a request by mail for access to information shall address such request to the Directorate for Freedom of Information and Security Review, OASD(PA), Pentagon, Room 2C757, Washington, D.C. 20301-1155. The request shall include a signed notarized statement to verify his or her identity or an alternate verification for individuals, such as military members overseas who do not have access to notary services.

(11) The following procedures shall apply to requests for access to investigatory records:

(i) Individuals requesting access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves and for law enforcement purposes are processed under DoD 5400.11-R or DoD 5400.7-R depending on which regulation gives them the greater degree of access.

(ii) Individual requests for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves compiled for law enforcement purposes (and in the custody of law enforcement agencies) that have been incorporated into the records system, exempted from the access provisions of DoD 5400.11-R, will be processed in accordance with Section B, Chapter 5, DoD 5400.11-R. Individuals shall not be denied access to records solely because they are in the exempt system, but they will have the same access that they would receive under DoD 5400.7-R. (Also see subsection A.10., Chapter 3, DoD 5400.11-R).

(iii) Requests by individuals for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves compiled for law enforcement purposes and in the custody of law enforcement agencies that have been incorporated into the records system, exempted from the access provisions of DoD 5400.11-R, will be processed in accordance with Section B, Chapter 5, DoD 5400.11-R. Individuals shall not be denied access to records solely because they are in the exempt system, but they will have the same access that they would receive under DoD 5400.7-R. (Also see subsection A.10., Chapter 3, DoD 5400.11-R).

(iv) Individual requests for access to investigatory records exempted from access under Section B, Chapter 5, DoD 5400.11-R that are temporarily in the hands of a noninvestigatory element for adjudicative or personnel actions, will be referred to the originating investigating agency. The requester will be informed in writing of these referrals.
(12) The following procedures shall apply to requests for illegible, incomplete, or partially exempt records:
   (i) An individual shall not be denied access to a record or a copy of a record solely because the physical condition or format of the record does not make it readily available (e.g., deteriorated state or on magnetic tape). The document will be prepared as an extract, or it will be exactly recopied.
   (ii) If a portion of the record contains information that is exempt from access, an extract or summary containing all of the information in the record that is releasable shall be prepared.
   (iii) When the physical condition of the record makes it necessary to prepare an extract for release, the extract shall be prepared so that it will be understood by the requester.
   (iv) The requester shall be informed of all deletions or changes to records.

(13) Medical records shall be disclosed to the individual they pertain to, unless a determination is made in consultation with a medical doctor, that the disclosure could have adverse effects on the individual’s physical or mental health. Such information may be transmitted to a medical doctor named by the individual concerned.

(14) The individual may be charged reproduction fees for copies or records as outlined in DoD 5400.11-R.

(c) Request to amend personal information in Records Systems and disputes. (1) The Head of an OSD Component, or the designated official, shall allow individuals to request amendment to their records to the extent that such amendment does not violate existing statutes, regulations, or administrative procedures. Requests should be as brief and as simple as possible and should contain, as a minimum, identifying information to locate the record, a description of the items to be amended, and the reason for the change. A request shall not be rejected nor required to be resubmitted unless additional information is essential to process the request. Requesters shall be required to provide verification of their identity as stated in paragraph (b)(8) of this section to ensure that they are seeking to amend records pertaining to themselves, and not accidentally or intentionally, the records of others.

(2) The appropriate system manager shall mail a written acknowledgment to an individual’s request to amend a record within 10 days after receipt, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays. Such acknowledgment shall identify the request and may, if necessary, request any additional information needed to make a determination. No acknowledgment is necessary if the request can be reviewed, processed, and if the individual can be notified of compliance or denial within the 10-day period. Whenever practical, the decision shall be made within 30 working days. For requests presented in person, written acknowledgment may be provided at the time the request is presented.

(3) The Head of an OSD Component, or designated official, shall promptly take one of the following actions on requests to amend the records:
   (i) If the OSD Component official agrees with any portion or all of an individual’s request, he or she will proceed to amend the records in accordance with existing statutes, regulations, or administrative procedures, and inform the requester of the action taken. The OSD Component official shall also notify all previous holders of the record that the amendment has been made, and shall explain the substance of the correction.
   (ii) If he or she disagrees with all or any portion of a request, the individual shall be informed promptly of the refusal to amend a record, the reason for the refusal, and the procedure established by OSD for an appeal as outlined in paragraph (c)(6) of this section.
   (iii) If the request for an amendment pertains to a record controlled and maintained by another Federal agency, the request shall be referred to the appropriate agency, and the requester advised of this.

(4) The following procedures shall be used when reviewing records under dispute:
   (i) In response to a request for an amendment to records, officials shall determine the accuracy, relevance, timeliness, or completeness of the requested record. The Head of an OSD Component, or designated official, shall develop tolerances for accuracy, relevance, and timeliness by giving consideration as to whether such tolerances could result in consequences adverse to the individual.

(ii) The Head of an OSD Component, or designated official, shall limit the review of a record to those items of information that clearly bear on any determination to amend the records and shall ensure that all those elements are present before determination is made.

(5) If the Head of an OSD Component, or designated official, after an initial review of a request to amend a record, disagrees with all or any portion of a record, he or she shall:

(i) Advise the individual of the denial and the reason for it.

(ii) Inform the individual that he or she may request a further review.

(iii) Describe the procedures for requesting such review including the name and address of the official to whom the request should be directed. The procedures should be as brief and simple as possible and should indicate where the individual can seek advice or assistance in obtaining such review.

(iv) Furnish a copy of the justification of any denial to amend a record to DA&M.

(6) If an individual disagrees with the initial OSD determination, he or she may file a request for further review of the record. The request should be sent to the Director of Administration and Management, Department of Defense, The Pentagon, Washington, DC 20301-1195, if the record is created and maintained by an OSD Component.

(7) If, after review, the DA&M further refuses to amend the record as requested, the DA&M shall advise the individual:

(i) Of the refusal and the reason for it.

(ii) Of his or her right to file a statement under paragraph (c)(7) of this section.

(iii) Of the procedures for filing a statement of disagreements.

(iv) That the statement filed shall be made available to anyone the record is disclosed to, together with a brief statement, at the discretion of the OSD Component, summarizing its reasons for refusing to amend the records.

(v) That prior recipients of copies of disputed records shall be provided a copy of any statement of dispute to the extent that an accounting of disclosure is maintained.

(vi) Of his or her right to seek judicial review of the DA&M's refusal to amend a record.

(8) If, after the review, the DA&M determines that the record should be amended in accordance with the individual's request, the OSD Component shall amend the record, advise the individual, and inform previous recipients where an accounting of disclosure has been maintained.

(9) The final OSD determination on an individual's request for a review of the DA&M's refusal to amend the record must be concluded within 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after receipt by the proper office. If the DA&M determines that a fair and equitable review cannot be made within that time, the individual will be informed in writing of the reasons for the delay and of the approximate date the review is expected to be completed.

(d) Disclosure of disputed information.

(1) After the DA&M has refused to amend a record and the individual has filed a statement under paragraph (c)(7) of this section, the OSD Component shall clearly annotate the record so that the proceeding is clear to any authorized person to whom the record is disclosed. The notation itself shall be integral to the record. Where an accounting of a disclosure has been made, the OSD Component shall advise previous recipients that the record has been disputed, and shall provide a copy of the individual's statement where requested.

(i) This statement shall be maintained to permit ready retrieval whenever the disputed portion of the record is to be disclosed.

(ii) When information that is the subject of a statement of dispute is subsequently disclosed, the OSD Component's designated official shall note which information is disputed and provide a copy of the individual's statement.

(2) The OSD Component shall include a brief summary of its reasons for not making a correction when disclosing disputed information. Such statement § 311.7 Procedures for exemptions.

(a) General information. The Secretary of Defense designates those Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) systems of records which will be exempt from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. There are two types of exemptions, general and specific. The general exemption authorizes the exemption of a system of records from all but a few requirements of the Act. The specific exemption authorizes exemption of a system of records or portion thereof, from only a few specific requirements. If an OSD Component originates a new system of records for which it proposes an exemption, or if it proposes an additional or new exemption for an existing system of records, it shall submit the recommended exemption with the records system notice as outlined in §311.6. No exemption of a system of records shall be considered automatic for all records in the system. The systems manager shall review each requested record and apply the exemptions only when this will serve significant and legitimate Government purpose.

(b) General exemptions. The general exemption provided by 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) may be invoked for protection of systems of records maintained by shall normally be limited to the reasons given to the individual for not amending the record.

(3) Copies of the OSD Component’s summary will be treated as part of the individual’s record; however, it will not be subject to the amendment procedure outlined in paragraph (c)(3) of this section.

(4) Paragraph B of Chapter 11, DoD 5400.11-R, prescribes that all requests for participation in a matching program (either as a matching agency or a source agency) be submitted to the Defense Privacy Office for review and compliance. OSD Components will submit these requests through the Records Management Division.

(e) Penalties—(1) Civil action. (i) An individual may file a civil suit against the United States for:

(A) Refusal to amend a record.
(B) Improper denial of the access to a record.
(C) Failure to maintain a record accurately.

(ii) An individual may also file a suit against the United States for failure to implement a provision of the Privacy Act when such failure leads to an adverse determination.

(iii) If the individual’s suit is upheld, the court may direct the United States to pay the court costs and lawyer’s fees.

(iv) When the individual can show that personal damage was done because an OSD officer or employee failed to comply with the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, the United States may be assessed damages by the court at a minimum of $1,000.

(2) Criminal action. (i) Criminal penalties may be imposed against an OSD officer or employee for willful unauthorized disclosure of information in the records, for failure to publish a notice of the existence of a record system in the Federal Register, or for gaining access to the individual’s record under false pretenses (i.e., against any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any record concerning another individual without legal authorization).

(ii) An OSD officer or employee may be fined up to $5,000 for a violation as outlined in paragraph (e)(2)(i) of this section.

(3) Litigation status sheet. Whenever a complaint citing the Privacy Act of 1974 is filed in a U.S. District Court against the Department of Defense, a DoD Component, or any DoD employee, the responsible system manager shall promptly notify the Defense Privacy Office. The litigation status sheet in DoD 5400.11-R provides a standard format for this notification. (The initial litigation status sheet shall, as a minimum, provide the information required by items 1 through 6.) A revised litigation status sheet shall be provided at each stage of the litigation. When a court renders a formal opinion or judgment, copies of the judgment or opinion shall be provided to the Defense Privacy Office with the litigation status sheet reporting that judgment or opinion.

law enforcement activities. Certain functional records of such activities are not subject to access provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974. Records identifying criminal offenders and alleged offenders consisting of identifying data and notations of arrests, the type and disposition of criminal charges, sentencing, confinement, release, parole, and probation status of individuals are protected from disclosure. Other records and reports compiled during criminal investigations, as well as any other records developed at any stage of the criminal law enforcement process from arrest to indictment through the final release from parole supervision are excluded from release.

(1) System Identification and Name. DWHS P 42.0, “DPS Incident Reporting and Investigations Case Files”.

Exemption. Portions of this system that fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) are exempt from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a, Sections (c) (3) and (4); (d)(1) through (d)(5); (e)(1) through (e)(3); (e)(5); (f)(1) through (f)(5); (g)(1) through (g)(5) and (h) of the Act.

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

Reason. The Defense Protective Service is the law enforcement body for the jurisdiction of the Pentagon and immediate environs. The nature of certain records created and maintained by the DPS requires exemption from access provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974. The general exemption, 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), is invoked to protect ongoing investigations and to protect from access criminal investigation information contained in this record system, so as not to jeopardize any subsequent judicial or administrative process taken as a result of information contained in the file.

(2) System Identification and Name. J 5006.CND, Department of Defense Counternarcotics C4I System.

Exemption. Portions of this system that fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) are exempt from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a, section (c) (3) and (4); (d)(1) through (d)(5); (e)(1) through (e)(3); (e)(4)(G) and (e)(4)(H); (e)(5); (f)(1) through (f)(5); (g)(1) through (g)(5) of the Act.

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

Reason. From subsection (c)(3) because the release of accounting of disclosure would inform a subject that he or she is under investigation. This information would provide considerable advantage to the subject in providing him or her with knowledge concerning the nature of the investigation and the coordinated investigative efforts and techniques employed by the cooperating agencies. This would greatly impede USSOUTHCOM’s criminal law enforcement.

For subsections (c)(4) and (d) because notification would alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and might weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy.

For subsections (e)(4)(G) and (H) because this system of records is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsection (j).

For subsection (f) because the agency’s rules are inapplicable to those portions of the system that are exempt and would place the burden on the agency of either confirming or denying the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual might in itself provide an answer to that individual relating to an on-going criminal investigation. The conduct of a successful investigation leading to the indictment of a criminal offender precludes the applicability of established agency rules relating to verification of record, disclosure of the record to that individual, and record amendment procedures for this record system.

For compatibility with the exemption claimed from subsection (f), the civil remedies provisions of subsection (g) must be suspended for this record system. Because of the nature of criminal investigations, standards of accuracy, relevance, timeliness and completeness cannot apply to this record system. Information gathered in criminal investigations is often fragmentary and leads relating to an individual in the context of one investigation may instead pertain to a second investigation.

From subsection (e)(1) because the nature of the criminal investigative function creates unique problems in prescribing a specific parameter in a particular case with respect to what information is relevant or necessary. Also, due to USSOUTHCOM’s close liaison and working relationships with the other Federal, as well as state, local and foreign country law enforcement agencies, information may be received which may relate to a case under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency. The maintenance of this information may be necessary to provide leads for appropriate law enforcement purposes and to establish patterns of activity which may relate to the jurisdiction of other cooperating agencies.

From subsection (e)(2) because collecting information to the greatest extent possible directly from the subject individual may or may not be practicable in a criminal investigation. The individual may choose not to provide information and the law enforcement process will rely upon significant information about the subject from witnesses and informants.

From subsection (e)(3) because supplying an individual with a form containing a Privacy Act Statement would tend to inhibit cooperation by many individuals involved in a criminal investigation. The effect would be somewhat inimical to established investigative methods and techniques.

From subsection (e)(5) because the requirement that records be maintained with attention to accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness would unfairly hamper the criminal investigative process. It is the nature of criminal law enforcement for investigations to uncover the commission of illegal acts at diverse stages. It is frequently impossible to determine initially what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and least of all complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significant as further investigation brings new details to light.

From subsection (e)(8) because the notice requirements of this provision could present a serious impediment to criminal law enforcement by revealing investigative techniques, procedures, and existence of confidential investigations.

(c) Specific exemptions. All systems of records maintained by any OSD Component shall be exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) pursuant to subsection (k)(1) of that section to the extent that the system contains any information properly classified under Executive Order 11265, “National Security Information,” dated June 28, 1979, as amended, and required by the Executive Order to be kept classified in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This exemption, which may be applicable to parts of all systems of records, is necessary because certain record systems not otherwise specifically designated for exemptions may contain isolated information which has been properly classified. The Secretary of Defense has designated the following OSD system of records described below specifically exempted from the appropriate provisions of the Privacy Act pursuant to the designated authority contained therein:

(1) System identifier and name. DGC 16, Political Appointment Vetting Files. Exemption. Portions of this system of records that fall within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) may be exempt from the following subsections (d)(1) through (d)(5).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

Reasons. From (d)(1) through (d)(5) because the agency is required to protect the confidentiality of sources who furnished information to the Government under an expressed promise of confidentiality or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. This confidentiality is needed to maintain the Government's continued access to information from persons who otherwise might refuse to give it. This exemption is limited to disclosures that would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(2) SYSID-DWHS P 28, SYSNAME. The Office of the Secretary of Defense Clearance File.

Exemption. This system of records is exempt from subsections (c)(3) and (d)
§ 311.7 32 CFR Ch. 1 (7-1-98 Edition)

of 5 U.S.C. 552a, which would require the disclosure of investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining access to classified information but only to the extent that disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an expressed promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. A determination will be made at the time of the request for a record concerning the specific information which would reveal the identity of the source.

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

Reasons. This exemption is required to protect the confidentiality of the sources of information compiled for the purpose of determining access to classified information. This confidentiality helps maintain the Government's continued access to information from persons who would otherwise refuse to give it.

(3) SYSID-DGC 04, SYSNAME. Industrial Personnel Security Clearance Case Files.

Exemption. All portions of this system which fall under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3) and (d). Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

Reasons. This system of records is exempted from subsections (c)(3) and (d) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, which would require the disclosure of investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, military service, or Federal contracts, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. If any individual is denied any right, privilege, or benefit that he would otherwise be entitled by Federal law, or otherwise be eligible, as a result of the maintenance of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, the material shall be provided to that individual, except to the extent that its disclosure would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. At the time of the request for a record, a determination will be made concerning whether a right, privilege, or benefit is denied or specific information would reveal the identity of a source.

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) and (5).

Reasons. These exemptions are necessary to protect the confidentiality of the records compiled for the purpose of enforcing the conflict of interest statutes by the Department of Defense Standards of Conduct Counselor, General Counsel, or their designees; and determining suitability, eligibility or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, military service, or Federal contracts of those alleged to have violated or caused others to violate the Standards of Conduct regulations of the Department of Defense.

(5) SYSID—DUSDP 02, SYSNAME. Special Personnel Security Cases.

Exemption. All portions of this system which fall under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) are exempt from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3); (d).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

Reasons. This system of records is exempt from subsection (c)(3) because the release of a disclosure accounting would inform a subject that he or she is under investigation. This information would provide considerable advantage to the subject in providing him or her with knowledge concerning the nature of the investigation and the coordinated investigative efforts and techniques employed by cooperating agencies. This would greatly impede the IRO’s criminal law enforcement effectiveness.

From subsection (e)(4)(G) and (e)(4)(H), because notification would alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and might weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy.

From subsection (d) and (f), because access to records and agency rules for access and amendment of records unfairly impede the DoDDS IRO criminal investigation activities. Requiring DoDDS IRO to confirm or deny the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual may in itself provide an answer to the individual relating to an on-going criminal investigation. The conduct of a successful investigation leading to the indictment of a criminal offender would be jeopardized by agency rules requiring verification of record disclosure of the record to the subject, and record amendment procedures, as normally apply under the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 533(b)(1), (2), and (3), (c) and (e).

(6) System Identification and Name. DODDS 02.0, Educator Application Files.

Exemption. All portions of this system which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) may be exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3); (d).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

Reasons. It is imperative that the confidential nature of evaluation and investigatory material on teacher application files furnished the Department of Defense Dependent Schools (DoDDS) under promises of confidentiality be exempt from disclosure to the individual to insure the candid presentation of information necessary to make determinations involving applicants suitability for DoDDS teaching positions.

(7) System identification and name. DODDS 25.0, DoDSS Internal Review Office Project File.

Exemption. Portions of this system that fall within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) are exempt from the following subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

Reasons. From subsection (c)(3) because the release of a disclosure accounting would inform a subject that he or she is under investigation. This information would provide considerable advantage to the subject in providing him or her with knowledge concerning the nature of the investigation and the coordinated investigative efforts and techniques employed by cooperating agencies. This would greatly impede the IRO’s criminal law enforcement effectiveness.

From subsection (e)(4)(G) and (e)(4)(H), because notification would alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and might weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy.

From subsection (d) and (f), because access to records and agency rules for access and amendment of records unfairly impede the DoDDS IRO criminal investigation activities. Requiring DoDDS IRO to confirm or deny the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual may in itself provide an answer to the individual relating to an on-going criminal investigation. The conduct of a successful investigation leading to the indictment of a criminal offender would be jeopardized by agency rules requiring verification of record disclosure of the record to the subject, and record amendment procedures, as normally apply under the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 533(b)(1), (2), and (3), (c) and (e).

(8) System identifier and name. DWHS P29, Personnel Security Adjudications File.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records that fall within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) may be exempt from the following subsections (d)(1) through (d)(5).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).
§ 311.8 Information requirements.

Reasons. From (d)(1) through (d)(5) because the agency is required to protect the confidentiality of sources who furnished information to the Government under an expressed promise of confidentiality or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. This confidentiality is needed to maintain the Government’s continued access to information from persons who otherwise might refuse to give it. This exemption is limited to disclosures that would reveal the identity of a confidential source. At the time of the request for a record, a determination will be made concerning whether a right, privilege, or benefit is denied or specific information would reveal the identity of a source.

(9) System identifier and name: JS004SEC, Joint Staff Security Clearance Files.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) from subsection 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1) through (d)(5).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

Reasons. From subsections (d)(1) through (d)(5) because the agency is required to protect the confidentiality of sources who furnished information to the Government under an expressed promise of confidentiality or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. This confidentiality is needed to maintain the Government’s continued access to information from persons who otherwise might refuse to give it. This exemption is limited to disclosures that would reveal the identity of a confidential source. At the time of the request for a record, a determination will be made concerning whether a right, privilege, or benefit is denied or specific information would reveal the identity of a source.

(10) System identifier and name: DFMP 26, Vietnamese Commando Compensation Files.

Exemption. Information classified under E.O. 12958, as implemented by DoD 5200.1-R, may be exempt pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1).

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1).

Reasons: From subsection 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) because granting access to information that is properly classified pursuant to E.O. 12958, as implemented by DoD 5200.1-R, may cause damage to the national security.

(11) System identifier and name: DUSP 11, POW/Missing Personnel Office Files.

(i) Exemption: Information classified under E.O. 12958, as implemented by DoD 5200.1-R, may be exempt pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1).

(ii) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1).

(iii) Reasons: From subsection 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) because granting access to information that is properly classified pursuant to E.O. 12958, as implemented by DoD 5200.1-R, may cause damage to the national security.

§ 312.1 Purpose.

Pursuant to the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) and 32 CFR part 286a—DoD Privacy Program, the following rules of procedures are established with respect to access and amendment of records maintained by the Office of the Inspector General (OIG) on individual subjects of these records.

§ 312.2 Definitions.

(a) All terms used in this part which are defined in 5 U.S.C. 552a shall have the same meaning herein.

(b) As used in this part, the term “agency” means the Office of the Inspector General (OIG), Department of Defense.

§ 312.3 Procedure for requesting information.

Individuals should submit inquiries regarding all OIG files by mail to the Assistant Inspector General for Investigations, ATTN: FOIA/PA Division, 400 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, VA 22202-2884. All personal visits will require some form of common identification.

§ 312.4 Requirements for identification.

Only upon proper identification will any individual be granted access to records which pertain to him/her. Identification is required both for accurate record identification and to avoid disclosing records to unauthorized individuals. Requesters must provide their full name and as much information as possible about the record being sought in order that a proper search for records can be accomplished. Inclusion of a telephone number for the requester is recommended to expedite certain matters. Requesters applying in person must provide an identification with photograph, such as a driver’s license, military identification card, building pass, etc.

§ 312.5 Access by subject individuals.

(a) No individual will be allowed access to any information compiled or maintained in reasonable anticipation of civil or criminal actions or proceedings or otherwise exempt under §312.12 Requests for pending investigations will be denied and the requester instructed to forward another request giving adequate time for the investigation to be completed. Requesters shall be provided the telephone number so they can call and check on the status in order to know when to resubmit the request.

(b) Any individual may authorize the OIG to provide a copy of his/her records to a third part. This authorization must be in writing, must designate the recipient by name, must specify the records or portion to be provided to the recipient, and should accompany the initial request to the OIG.

§ 312.6 Fees.

Requesters will be charged only for the reproduction of requested documents and special postal methods, such as express mail, if applicable. There will be no charge for the first copy of a record provided to any individual. Thereafter, fees will be computed as set forth in appropriate DoD Directives and Regulations.

§ 312.7 Request for correction or amendment.

(a) Requests to correct or amend a file shall be addressed to the system manager in which the file is located. The request must reasonably describe the record to be amended, the items to be changed as specifically as possible, the type of amendment (e.g., deletion, correction, amendment), and the reason for amendment. Reasons should address at least one of the following categories: Accuracy, relevance, timeliness, completeness, fairness. The request should also include appropriate evidence which provide a basis for evaluating the request. Normally all documents submitted, to include court orders, should be certified. Amendments under this part are limited to correcting factual matters and not matters of official judgment or opinions, such as performance ratings, promotion potential, and job performance appraisals.

(b) Requirements of identification as outlined in §312.4 apply to requests to correct or amend a file.
§ 312.8  OIG review of request for amendment.

(a) A written acknowledgement of the receipt of a request for amendment of a record will be provided to the requester within 10 working days, unless final action regarding approval or denial will constitute acknowledgement.

(b) Where there is a determination to grant all or a portion of a request to amend a record, the record shall be promptly amended and the requesting individual notified. Individuals, agencies or DoD components shown by disclosure accounting records to have received copies of the record, or to whom disclosure has been made, will be notified of the amendment by the responsible OIG official.

(c) Where there is a determination to deny all or a portion of a request to amend a record, OIG will promptly advise the requesting individual of the specifics of the refusal and the reasons; and inform the individual that he/she may request a review of the denial(s) from the OIG designated official.

§ 312.9  Appeal of initial amendment decision.

(a) All appeals of an initial amendment decision should be addressed to the Assistant Inspector General for Investigations, ATTN: FOIA/PA Division, 400 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, VA 22202-2894. The appeal should be concise and should specify the reasons the requester believes that the initial amendment action by the OIG was not satisfactory. Upon receipt of the appeal, the designated official will review the request and make a determination to approve or deny the appeal.

(b) If the OIG designated official decides to amend the record, the requester and all previous recipients of the disputed information will be notified of the amendment. If the appeal is denied, the designated official will notify the requester of the reason of the denial, of the requester's right to file a statement of dispute disagreeing with the denial, that such statement of dispute will be retained in the file, that the statement will be provided to all future users of the file, and that the requester may file suit in a federal district court to contest the OIG decision not to amend the record.

(c) The OIG designated official will respond to all appeals within 30 working days or will notify the requester of an estimated date of completion if the 30 day limit cannot be met.

§ 312.10  Disclosure of OIG records to other than subject.

No record containing personally identifiable information within a OIG system of records shall be disclosed by any means to any person or agency outside the Department of Defense, except with the written consent of the individual subject of the record or as provided for in the Act and DoD 5400.11-R (32 CFR part 286a).

§ 312.11  Penalties.

(a) An individual may bring a civil action against the OIG to correct or amend the record, or where there is a refusal to comply with an individual request or failure to maintain any records with accuracy, relevance, timeliness and completeness, so as to guarantee fairness, or failure to comply with any other provision of the Privacy Act. The court may order correction or amendment of records. The court may enjoin the OIG from withholding the records and order the production of the record.

(b) Where it is determined that the action was willful or intentional with respect to 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1) (C) or (D), § 312.12 Exemptions.

(a) Exemption for classified records. Any record in a system of records maintained by the Office of the Inspector General which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G) through (l) and (f) to the extent that a record system contains any record properly classified under Executive Order 12958 and that the record is required to be kept classified in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This specific exemption rule, claimed by the Inspector General under authority of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), is applicable to all systems of records maintained, including those individually designated for an exemption herein as well as those not otherwise specifically designated for an exemption, which may contain isolated items of properly classified information.

(b) The Inspector General of the Department of Defense claims an exemption for the following record systems under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and (k)(1)-(7) from certain indicated subsections of the Privacy Act of 1974. The exemptions may be invoked and exercised on a case by case basis by the Deputy Assistant Inspector General for Investigations or the Director, Investigative Support Directorate and Freedom of Information Act/Privacy Act Division Chief which serves as the Systems Program Managers. Exemptions will be exercised only when necessary for a specific, significant and legitimate reason connected with the purpose of the records system.

(c) No personal records releasable under the provisions of The Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552) will be withheld from the subject individual based on these exemptions.

(d) System Identifier: CIG–04

(1) System name: Case Control System.

(2) Exemption: Any portion of this system which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (c)(4), (d), (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4)(G), (H), (I), (l), (e)(5), (e)(8), (f), and (g).

(3) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(4) Reasons: From subsection (c)(3) because the release of accounting of disclosure would inform a subject that he or she is under investigation. This information would provide considerable advantage to the subject in providing him or her with knowledge concerning the nature of the investigation and the coordinated investigative efforts and techniques employed by the cooperating agencies. This would greatly impede OIG's criminal law enforcement.

(5) From subsection (c)(4) and (d), because notification would alert a subject to the fact that an open investigation on that individual is taking place, and might weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy.

(6) From subsection (e)(1) because the nature of the criminal and/or civil investigative function creates unique problems in prescribing a specific parameter in a particular case with respect to what information is relevant or necessary. Also, due to OIG's close liaison and working relationships with other Federal, state, local and foreign country law enforcement agencies, information may be received which may relate to a case under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency. The maintenance of this information may be necessary to provide leads for appropriate law enforcement purposes and to establish patterns of activity which may relate to the jurisdiction of other cooperating agencies.

(7) From subsection (e)(2) because collecting information to the fullest extent possible directly from the subject individual may or may not be practical in a criminal and/or civil investigation.

(8) From subsection (e)(3) because supplying an individual with a form containing a Privacy Act Statement would tend to inhibit cooperation by many individuals involved in a criminal and/or civil investigation. The effect would be somewhat adverse to established investigative methods and techniques.

(9) From subsection (e)(4) (G) through (I) because this system of records is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d).

(10) From subsection (e)(5) because the requirement that records be maintained with attention to accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness would unfairly hamper the investigative process. It is the nature of law enforcement for investigations to uncover the commission of illegal acts at diverse stages. It is frequently impossible to determine initially what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and least of all complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation brings new details to light.

(11) From subsection (e)(8) because the notice requirements of this provision could present a serious impediment to law enforcement by revealing investigative techniques, procedures, and existence of confidential investigations.

(12) From subsection (f) because the agency’s rules are inapplicable to those portions of the system that are exempt and would place the burden on the agency of either confirming or denying the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual might in itself provide an answer to that individual relating to an on-going investigation. The conduct of a successful investigation leading to the indictment of a criminal offender precludes the applicability of established agency rules relating to verification of record, disclosure of the record to that individual, and record amendment procedures for this record system.

(13) For comparability with the exemption claimed from subsection (f), the civil remedies provisions of subsection (g) must be suspended for this record system. Because of the nature of criminal investigations, standards of accuracy, relevance, timeliness, completeness cannot apply to this record system. Information gathered in an investigation is often fragmentary and leads relating to an individual in the context of one investigation may instead pertain to a second investigation.

(e) System Identification: CIG-06.

(1) System name: Investigative Files.

(2) Exemption: Any portion of this system which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (c)(4), (d), (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4) (G), (H), (I), (e)(5), (e)(8), (f), and (g).

(3) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(4) Reasons: From subsection (c)(3) because the release of accounting of disclosure would inform a subject that he or she is under investigation. This information would provide considerable advantage to the subject in providing him or her with knowledge concerning the nature of the investigation and the coordinated investigative efforts and techniques employed by the cooperating agencies. This would greatly impede OIG’s criminal law enforcement.

(5) From subsection (c)(4) and (d), because notification would alert a subject to the fact that an open investigation on that individual is taking place, and might weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy.

(6) From subsection (e)(1) because the nature of the criminal and/or civil investigative function creates unique problems in prescribing a specific parameter in a particular case with respect to what information is relevant or necessary. Also, due to OIG’s close liaison and working relationships with other Federal, state, local and foreign country law enforcement agencies, information may be received which may relate to a case under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency. The maintenance of this information may be necessary to provide leads for appropriate law enforcement purposes and to establish patterns of activity which may relate to the jurisdiction of other cooperating agencies.

(7) From subsection (e)(2) because collecting information to the fullest extent possible directly from the subject individual may or may not be practical in a criminal and/or civil investigation.

(8) From subsection (e)(3) because supplying an individual with a form containing a Privacy Act Statement would tend to inhibit cooperation by many individuals involved in a criminal and/or civil investigation. The effect would be somewhat adverse to established investigative methods and techniques.

(9) From subsection (e)(4)(G) through (I) because this system of records is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d).

(10) From subsection (e)(5) because the requirement that records be maintained with attention to accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness would unfairly hamper the investigative process. It is the nature of law enforcement for investigations to uncover the commission of illegal acts at diverse stages. It is frequently impossible to determine initially what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and least of all complete. (11) From subsection (e)(8) because the notice requirements of this provision could present a serious impediment to law enforcement by revealing investigative techniques, procedures, and existence of confidential investigations.

(12) From subsection (f) because the agency’s rules are inapplicable to those portions of the system that are exempt and would place the burden on the agency of either confirming or denying the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual might in itself provide an answer to that individual relating to an on-going investigation. The conduct of a successful investigation leading to the indictment of a criminal offender precludes the applicability of established agency rules relating to verification of record, disclosure of the record to that individual, and record amendment procedures for this record system.

(13) For comparability with the exemption claimed from subsection (f), the civil remedies provisions of subsection (g) must be suspended for this record system. Because of the nature of criminal investigations, standards of accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness cannot apply to this record system. Information gathered in an investigation is often fragmentary and leads relating to an individual in the context of one investigation may instead pertain to a second investigation.

(3) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

(4) Reasons: From subsection (c)(3) because disclosures from this system could interfere with the just, thorough and timely resolution of the compliant or inquiry, and possibly enable individuals to conceal their wrongdoing or mislead the course of the investigation by concealing, destroying or fabricating evidence or documents.

(5) From subsection (d) because disclosures from this system could interfere with the just thorough and timely resolution of the compliant or inquiry, and possibly enable individuals to conceal their wrongdoing or mislead the course of the investigation by concealing, destroying or fabricating evidence or documents. Disclosures could also subject sources and witnesses to harassment or intimidation which jeopardize the safety and well-being of themselves and their families.

(6) From subsection (e)(1) because the nature of the investigation function creates unique problems in prescribing specific parameters in a particular case as to what information is relevant or § 312.13 Ownership of OIG investigative records.

(a) Criminal and or civil investigative reports shall not be retained by DoD recipient organizations. Such reports are the property of OIG and are on loan to the recipient organization for the purpose for which requested or necessary. Due to close liaison and working relationships with other Federal, state, local and foreign country law enforcement agencies, information may be received which may relate to a case under the investigative jurisdiction of another government agency. It is necessary to maintain this information in order to provide leads for appropriate law enforcement purposes and to establish patterns of activity which may relate to the jurisdiction of other cooperating agencies.

§ 316.1 Purpose.

This part delineates responsibility and provides guidance for the implementation of Pub. L. 93-579 (Privacy Act of 1974).

§ 316.2 Applicability.

This part applies to Headquarters, Defense Information Systems Agency (DISA) and DISA field activities.

§ 316.3 Authority.

§ 316.4 Definitions.

This part is defined under Pub. L. 93-579 (Privacy Act of 1974).

§ 316.3 Authority.

This part is published in accordance with the authority contained in 32 CFR part 310, August 1975.

§ 316.4 Definitions.

Add to the definitions contained in 32 CFR 310.6 the following:

System Manager: The DISA official who is responsible for policies and procedures governing a DISA System of Record. His title and duty address will be found in the paragraph entitled Sysmanager in DISA's Record System Notices which are published in the FEDERAL REGISTER in compliance with provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974.

§ 316.5 Policy.

It is the policy of DISA:

(a) To preserve the personal privacy of individuals, to permit an individual to know what records exist pertaining to him in the DISA, and to have access to and have a copy made of all or any portion of such records and to correct or amend such records.

(b) To collect, maintain, use, or disseminate any record of identifiable personal information in a manner that assures that such action is for a necessary and lawful purpose; that the information is timely and accurate for its intended use; and that adequate safeguards are provided to prevent misuse of such information.

§ 316.6 Procedures and responsibilities.

(a) The Counsel, DISA, is hereby designated the Privacy Act Officer for DISA and is responsible for insuring that an internal DISA Privacy Program is established and maintained. He will also insure that all echelons of DISA effectively comply with and implement 32 CFR part 310.

(b) The Civilian Assistant to the Chief of Staff will be responsible for the annual reporting requirements contained in 32 CFR 310.5.

(c) DISA System Managers and other appropriate DISA officials will:

(1) Insure compliance with the provisions of 32 CFR 310.9.

(2) Comply with the provisions of 32 CFR 286a.11. In this area the Assistant to the Director for Administration will provide assistance.

(3) Adhere to the following:

(i) Within DISA, the System Manager of any record system will assure that records pertaining to an individual will be disclosed, upon request, to the individual to whom the record pertains. The individual need not state a reason or otherwise justify the need to gain access. A person of the individual's choosing may accompany the individual when the record is disclosed. The System Manager may require the individual to furnish a written statement authorizing discussion of the individual's records in the presence of the accompanying person. If requested, the System Manager will have a copy made of all or any portion of the record pertaining to the individual in a form comprehensible to the requester.

(ii) The System Manager may release records to the individual's representative who has the written consent of the individual. The System Manager will require reasonable identification of individuals to assure that records are disclosed to the proper person. No verification of identity will be required of an individual seeking access to records which are otherwise available to any member of the public under the Freedom of Information Act. Identification requirements should be consistent with the nature of the records being disclosed. For disclosure of records to an individual in person, the System Manager will require that the individual show some form of identification. For records disclosed to an individual in person or by mail, the System Manager may require whatever identifying information is needed to locate the record; i.e., name, social security number, date of birth. If the sensitivity of the data warrants, the System Manager may require a signed notarized statement of identity. The System Manager may compare the signatures of the requester with those in the records to verify identity. An individual will not be denied access to his record for refusing to disclose his social security number unless disclosure is required by statute or by regulation adopted before 1 January 1975. An individual will not be denied access to records pertaining to him because the records are exempted from disclosure under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act.

(iii) The System Manager will not deny access to a record or a copy thereof to an individual solely because its physical presence is not readily available (i.e. on magnetic tape) or because the context of the record may disclose sensitive information about another individual. To protect the personal privacy of other individuals who may be identified in a record, the System Manager shall prepare an extract to delete only that information which would not be releasable to the requesting individual under the Freedom of Information Act.

(iv) When the System Manager is of the opinion that the disclosure of medical information could have an adverse effect upon the individual to whom it pertains, the System Manager will promptly request the individual to submit the name and address of a doctor who will determine whether the medical record may be disclosed directly to the individual. The System Manager will then request the opinion of the doctor named by the individual on whether a medical record may be disclosed to the individual. The System Manager shall disclose the medical record to the individual to whom it pertains unless, in the judgment of the doctor, access to the record could have an adverse effect upon the individual’s physical or mental health. In this event the System Manager will transmit the record to the doctor and immediately inform the individual.

(v) The fees to be charged, if any, to an individual for making copies of his record, excluding the cost of any search for and review of the record, will be in accordance with the “Schedule of Fees” as set forth in 32 CFR 286.5 and 286.10.

(vi) The System Manager of the record will permit an individual to request amendment of a record pertaining to the individual. Requests to amend records shall be in person or in writing and shall be submitted to the System Manager who maintains the records. Such requests should contain as a minimum, identifying information needed to locate the record, a brief description of the item or items of information to be amended, and the reason for the requested change.

(vii) The System Manager will provide a written acknowledgment of the receipt of a request to amend a record to the individual who requested the amendment within 10 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after the date of receipt of such request. Such an acknowledgment may, if necessary, request any additional information needed to make a determination. No acknowledgment is required if the request can be reviewed and processed and the individual notified of compliance or denial within the 10 day period.

(viii) The System Manager will promptly take one of the following actions on requests to amend records:

(A) Refer the request to the agency or office that has control of and maintains the record in those instances where the record requested remains the property of the controlling office or agency.

(B) In accordance with existing statute, regulation, or administrative procedure, make any correction of any portion thereof which the individual believes is not accurate, relevant, timely or complete,

(C) Inform the individual of the System Manager’s refusal to amend the record in accordance with the individual’s request, the reason for the refusal, and the individual’s right to request a review of the refusal by the Director, DISA, through the DISA Privacy Act Board.

(ix) The DISA Privacy Act Board will be comprised of the DISA Counsel, as Chairman; the Assistant to the Director for Administration, and the Assistant to the Director for Personnel; or in their absence, their authorized representatives. The individual who disagrees with the refusal of the System Manager to amend his record may request a review of this refusal by the DISA Privacy Act Board. The request for the review may be made orally or in writing and shall be made to the System Manager. The System Manager will promptly forward the request for review to the Chairman of the Board to make a proper review. The Board will promptly review the matter. If, after review, the Board is unanimous in its decision that the record be amended in accordance with the request of the individual then the Chairman of the Board shall so notify the System Manager. The System Manager will immediately make the necessary corrections to the record and will promptly notify the individual. The System Manager will, if an accounting of disclosure of the record has been made, advise all previous recipients of the record, which was corrected, of the correction and its substance. This will be done in all instances when a record is amended. If, after review, the Board decides that the request for amendment should be denied, it will promptly forward its recommendation to the Director, DCA. A majority vote of the members of the Board will constitute a recommendation to the Director.

(x) The Director, DISA, upon receipt of the Board’s recommendation, will complete the review and make a final determination.

(xi) If the Director, DISA, after his review, agrees with the individual’s request to amend the record, he will, through the DISA Counsel, so advise the individual in writing. The System Manager will receive a copy of the Director’s decision and will assure that the record is corrected accordingly and that if an accounting of disclosure of the record has been made, advise all previous recipients of the record which was corrected of the correction and its substance.

(xii) If, after his review, the Director refuses to amend the record as the individual requested, he will, through the DISA Counsel, advise the individual of his refusal and the reasons for it; of the individual’s right to file a concise statement setting forth the reasons for the individual’s disagreement with the decision of the Director, DISA; that the statement which is filed will be made available to anyone to whom the record is subsequently disclosed together with, at the discretion of the Agency, a brief statement by the Agency summarizing its reasons for refusing to amend the record; that prior recipients of the disputed record will be provided a copy of any statement of dispute to the extent that an accounting of disclosures was maintained; and of the individual’s right to seek judicial review of the Agency’s refusal to amend a record.

(xiii) The Director’s final determination on the individual’s request for a review of the System Manager’s initial refusal to amend the record must be concluded within 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) from the date on which the individual requested such review unless the Director determines that a fair and equitable review cannot be made within that time. If additional time is required, the individual will be informed in writing of reasons for the delay and of the approximate date on which the review is expected to be completed.

(xiv) After the Director, DISA, has refused to amend a record and the individual has filed a statement setting forth the reasons for the individual’s disagreement with the decision of the Director, the System Manager will clearly note any portion of the record which is disputed. The System Manager’s notation should make clear that the record is disputed and this should be apparent to anyone who may subsequently have access to, use, or disclose the record. When the System Manager has previously disclosed or will subsequently disclose that portion of the record which is disputed he will note that that portion of the record is disputed and will provide the recipients of the record with a copy of the individual’s statement setting forth the reasons for the individual’s disagreement with the decision of the Director not to amend the record. The System Manager will also provide recipients of the disputed record with a brief summary of the Director’s reasons for not making the requested amendments to the record.

(xv) Nothing herein shall allow an individual access to any information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

(xvi) Any requests by an individual for access to or copies of his records shall be processed in accordance with this part and 32 CFR part 310.

(d) DISA System Managers will be:

(1) Responsible for complying with the provisions contained in 32 CFR 310.8 relating to the disclosure to others of personal records, obtaining the written consent of individuals to whom the record pertains, and for keeping an accurate accounting of each disclosure of a record.

(2) Responsible for providing to the Civilian Assistant to the Chief of Staff the information requested in 32 CFR 310.5. However, the information will be reported on a quarterly basis with the first report due to the Civilian Assistant to the Chief of Staff by 31 December 1975.

(e) The Assistant to the Director for Administration, Headquarters, DCA will:

(1) Be responsible for furnishing written guidelines to assist System Managers and other DISA officials in evaluating and implementing paperwork management procedures required under the Privacy Act of 1974. In this regard it should be noted that the Act establishes a number of requirements. Among these are the requirements:

(i) To disclose records contained in a system of records only under conditions specified in the law,
(ii) To maintain an accounting of such disclosures,
(iii) To establish procedures for the disclosure to an individual of his record or information pertaining to him,
(iv) For reviewing a request concerning the amendment of such record, and
(v) For permitting individuals to file a statement of disagreement which will be forwarded with subsequent disclosures.

The guidelines will cover those portions of the Privacy Act which requires paperwork systems for implementation. In preparing those guidelines the Assistant to the Director for Administration will make use of the “Records Management System for Implementing the Privacy Act” as provided by the GSA and National Archives and Records Service, Office of Records Management. The GSA and NARA procedures and guidelines will be adapted and modified as required to meet DISA needs.

(2) Be responsible for providing the “Forms” which are required to comply with 32 CFR 310.9(b).

(f) The Assistant to the Director for Personnel, Headquarters, DISA will:

(1) Be responsible for development, within DISA, of an appropriate training program for all DISA personnel whose duties involve responsibilities for systems of records affected by the Privacy Act.

(2) Assure that DISA personnel involved in the design, development, operation, or maintenance of any system of records, as defined in 32 CFR 310.6 are informed of all requirements to protect the privacy of individuals who are subjects of the records. The criminal penalties and civil suit aspects of the Privacy Act will be emphasized.

(3) Assure that within DISA administrative and physical safeguards are established to protect information from unauthorized or unintentional access, disclosure, modification or destruction and to insure that all persons whose official duties require access to or processing and maintenance of personal information are trained in the proper safeguarding and use of such information.

§ 316.7 Questions.

Questions on both the substance and procedure of the Privacy Act and the DISA implementation thereof should be addressed to the DISA Counsel by the most expeditious means possible, including telephone calls.

§ 316.8 Exemptions.

Section 5 U.S.C. 552a (3)(j) and (3)(k) authorize an agency head to exempt certain systems of records or parts of certain systems of records from some of the requirements of the act. This part reserves to the Director, DISA, as head of an agency, the right to create exemptions pursuant to the exemption provisions of the act. All systems of records maintained by DISA shall be exempt from the requirements of 5

Subpart A—General Provisions

§ 317.1 Purpose.
(b) Its purpose is to delegate authorities and assign responsibilities for the administration of the DCAA Privacy Act Program and to prescribe uniform procedures for agency personnel consistent with DoD 5025.1-M, "DoD Directives System Procedures."

§ 317.2 Applicability and scope.
(a) This part applies to all DCAA organizational elements and takes precedence over all regional regulatory issuances that supplement the DCAA Privacy Program.
(b) This part shall be made applicable by contract or other legally binding action to contractors whenever a DCAA contract provides for the operation of a system of records or portion of a system of records to accomplish an agency function.

§ 317.3 Definitions.
(a) Access. The review of a record or a copy of a record or parts thereof in a system of records by any individual.
(b) Agency. For the purposes of disclosing records subject to the Privacy Act among DoD components, the Department of Defense is considered a single agency. For all other purposes to include applications for access and amendment, denial of access or amendment, appeals from denials, and record-keeping as regards release to non-DoD agencies; each DoD component, including DCAA, is considered an agency within the meaning of the Privacy Act.
(c) Confidential source. A person or organization who has furnished information to the Federal Government under an express promise that the person's or the organization's authority will be held in confidence or under an implied promise of such confidentiality if this implied promise was made before September 27, 1975.
(d) Defense Data Integrity Board. Consists of members of the Defense Privacy Board, as established pursuant to 32 CFR part 310, and in addition the Inspector General, DoD or the designee, when convening to oversee, coordinate and approve or disapprove all DoD component computer matching covered by the Privacy Act.
(e) Disclosure. The transfer of any personal information from a system of records by any means of communication (such as oral, written, electronic, mechanical, or actual review) to any person, private entity, or government agency, other than the subject of the record, the subject's designated agent or the subject's legal guardian.

(g) Federal benefit program match. A computerized comparison of two or more automated systems of records or an automated system of records with automated non-Federal records for the purpose of establishing or verifying the eligibility of or continuing compliance with statutory and regulatory requirements by, applicants for, recipients and beneficiaries (both present and past) of, participants in, or providers of services with respect to, cash or in-kind assistance or payments under Federal benefit programs, or recouping payments or delinquent debts under such Federal benefit programs.

The legal guardian of an individual has the same rights as the individual and may act on his or her behalf. No rights are vested in the representative of a dead person under this chapter and the term “individual” does not embrace an individual acting in an interpersonal capacity (for example, sole proprietorship or partnership).

(o) Member of the public. Any individual or party acting in a private capacity to include Federal employees or military personnel.

(t) Privacy Act request. A request from an individual for notification as to the existence of, access to, or amendment of records pertaining to that individual. These records must be maintained in a system of records. The request must indicate that it is being made under the Privacy Act to be considered a Privacy Act request.

(u) Recipient agency. Any agency, or contractor thereof, receiving records contained in a system of records from a source agency for use in a matching program.

(v) Record. § 317.4 Policy.

It is DCAA policy that personnel will comply with the DCAA Privacy Program and the Privacy Act of 1974. Strict adherence is necessary to ensure uniformity in the implementation of the DCAA Privacy Program and create conditions that will foster public trust. It is also agency policy to safeguard personal information contained in any system of records maintained by DCAA organizational elements and to make that information available to the individual to whom it pertains to the maximum extent practicable. DCAA policy specifically requires that DCAA organizational elements:

(a) Collect, maintain, use, and disseminate personal information only when it is relevant and necessary to achieve a purpose required by statute or Executive Order.

(b) Collect personal information directly from the individuals to whom it pertains to the greatest extent practicable.

(c) Inform individuals who are asked to supply personal information for inclusion in any system of records maintained by DCAA organizational elements and to make that information available to the individual to whom it pertains to the maximum extent practicable.

(d) The intended uses of the information.

(e) The routine disclosures of the information that may be made outside of Department of Defense; and

(f) The effect on the individual of not providing all or any part of the requested information.

(g) Ensure that records used in making determinations about individuals and those containing personal information are accurate, relevant, timely, and complete for the purposes for which they are being maintained before making them available to any recipients outside of Department of Defense, other than a Federal agency, unless the disclosure is made under DCAA Regulation 5410.10, DCAA Freedom of Information Act Program (32 CFR part 290).

(h) Establish rules of conduct for DCAA personnel involved in the design, development, operation, or maintenance of any system of records and train them in these rules of conduct.

(i) Assist individuals in determining what records pertaining to them are being collected, maintained, used, or disseminated.

(j) Permit individual access to the information pertaining to them except when disclosures are made:

(1) To DoD personnel in the course of their official duties.

(2) Under 32 CFR part 290; and

(3) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under control of the United States conducting law enforcement activities authorized by law.

(k) Provide, on request, an accounting of all disclosures of the information pertaining to them except when disclosures are made:

(1) To DoD personnel in the course of their official duties.

(2) Under 32 CFR part 290; and

(3) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under control of the United States conducting law enforcement activities authorized by law.

(l) Advise individuals on their rights to appeal any refusal to grant access to or amend any record pertaining to them, and file a statement of disagreement with the record in the event amendment is refused.
§ 317.5 Responsibilities.

(a) Headquarters. (1) The Assistant Director, Resources has overall responsibility for the DCAA Privacy Act Program and will serve as the sole appellate authority for appeals to decisions of respective initial denial authorities. Under his direction, the Chief, Information Resources Management Branch, under the supervision of the Chief, Administrative Management Division shall:
   (i) Establish, issue, and update policies for the DCAA Privacy Act Program; monitor compliance with this part; and provide policy guidance for the DCAA Privacy Act Program.
   (ii) Resolve conflicts that may arise regarding implementation of DCAA Privacy Act policy.
   (iii) Designate an agency Privacy Act Advisor, as a single point of contact, to coordinate on matters concerning Privacy Act policy.
   (iv) Make the initial determination to deny an individual's written Privacy Act request for access to or amendment of documents filed in Privacy Act systems of records. This authority cannot be delegated.
(2) The DCAA Privacy Act Advisor under the supervision of the Chief, Information Resources Management Branch shall:
   (i) Manage the DCAA Privacy Act Program in accordance with this part and applicable DCAA policies, as well as Department of Defense and Federal regulations.
   (ii) Provide guidelines for managing, administering, and implementing the DCAA Privacy Act Program.
   (iii) Implement and administer the Privacy Act program at the Headquarters.
   (iv) Ensure that the collection, maintenance, use, or dissemination of records of identifiable personal information is in a manner that assures that such action is for a necessary and lawful purpose; that the information is timely and accurate for its intended use; and that adequate safeguards are provided to prevent misuse of such information.
   (vi) Prepare promptly any required new, amended, or altered system notices for systems of records subject to the Privacy Act and submit them to the Defense Privacy Office for subsequent publication in the Federal Register.
   (vii) Prepare the annual Privacy Act Report as required by 32 CFR part 310, "DoD Privacy Act Program."
   (viii) Conduct training on the Privacy Act program for agency personnel.

   (v) Providing recommendations to the DCAA Privacy Act Advisor regarding the releasability of DCAA records to members of the public, along with the responsive documents.
   (vi) Providing the appropriate documents, along with a written justification for any denial, in whole or in part, of a request for records to the DCAA Privacy Act Advisor. Those portions to be excised should be bracketed in red pencil, and the specific exemption or exemptions cited which provide the basis for denying the requested records.
(4) The General Counsel is responsible for:
   (i) Ensuring uniformity is maintained in the legal position, and the interpretation of the Privacy Act (32 CFR part 310), and this part.

4See footnote 1 to § 317.1(a).
5See footnote 1 to § 317.1(a).
§ 317.6 Procedures.

Procedures for processing material in accordance with the Privacy Act of 1974 are outlined in subparts B through L of this part.
Subpart B—Systems of Records

§ 317.10 General.

(a) System of records. To be subject to this part, a "system of records" must:

(1) Consist of "records" that are retrieved by the name or some other personal identifier of an individual, and

(2) Be under the control of the Agency.

(b) Retrieval practices. (1) Records in a group of records that could be retrieved by personal identifiers, but are not covered by this part, even if the records contain information about individuals and are under the control of the agency. The records must, in fact, be retrieved by personal identifiers in order to become a system of records.

(2) If records previously not retrieved by personal identifiers are rearranged so they are retrieved by personal identifiers, a new system of records is created and a notice of the system must be published in the Federal Register of its existence.

(3) If records in a system of records are rearranged so retrieval no longer is by personal identifiers, the records are no longer subject to this part and the records system notice shall be deleted.

(c) Recordkeeping standards. A record maintained in a system of records must meet the following criteria:

(1) The record must be accurate—all information in the record must be factually correct.

(2) The record must be relevant—all information contained in the record must be related to the individual who is the subject of record and also must be related to a lawful purpose or mission of the agency.

(3) The record must be timely—all information in the record must be reviewed periodically to ensure that it has not changed due to time or later events.

(4) The record must be complete—it must be able to stand alone in accomplishing the purpose for which it is maintained.

(5) The record must be necessary—all information in the record must be needed to accomplish the agency mission or purpose established by Federal law or Executive Order of the President.

(d) Authority to establish systems of records. The specific Federal statute or Executive Order of the President should be identified that authorizes maintaining each system of records. A statute or Executive Order authorizing a system of records does not negate the responsibility to ensure the information in the system of records is relevant and necessary.

(e) Exercise of first amendment rights.

(1) Records should not be maintained describing how an individual exercises rights guaranteed by the first amendment of the U.S. Constitution unless:

(i) Expressly authorized by Federal law;

(ii) Expressly authorized by the individual; or

(iii) Pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity.

(2) First amendment rights include, but are not limited to, freedom of religion, freedom of political beliefs, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, the right to assemble, and the right to petition.

(f) System manager’s evaluations and reviews. (1) Each new proposed system of records shall be evaluated.

(i) The information to be included in the system should be evaluated before establishing it.

(ii) The following factors should be considered:

(A) The relationship of each item of information to be collected and retained to the purpose for which the system is maintained. All information must be relevant to the purpose.

(B) The specific impact on the purpose or mission if each category of information is not collected. All information must be necessary to accomplish a lawful purpose or mission.

(C) The ability to meet the informational needs without using personal identifiers (will anonymous statistical records meet the needs?).

(D) The length of time each item of information must be kept.

(E) The methods of disposal; and

(F) The cost of maintaining the information.

(2) All existing systems of records shall be evaluated and reviewed.
§ 317.11 Federal Government contractors.

(a) Applicability to Federal government contractors. (1) When the agency contracts for the operation of a system of records or portion thereof to accomplish an agency function, this part and 5 U.S.C. 552a are applicable. For purposes of the criminal penalties, the contractor and its employees shall be considered employees of the agency during the performance of the contract.

(2) Consistent with Parts 24 and 52 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation, contracts for the operation of a system of records or portion thereof shall identify specifically the record system and the work to be performed, and shall include in the solicitations and resulting contract such terms specifically prescribed by the FAR.

(3) If the contractor must use records that are subject to this part to perform any part of a contract, and the information would have been collected and maintained by the agency but for the contract, the contractor activities are subject to this rule.

See footnote 1 to § 317.1(a).

§ 317.12 Safeguarding information in systems of records.

(a) General responsibilities. Appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards shall be established to ensure the records in every system of records are protected from unauthorized alteration, destruction, or disclosure. The records shall be protected from reasonably anticipated threats or hazards that could result in substantial harm, embarrassment, inconvenience, or unfairness to any individual on whom information is maintained.

(b) Minimum standards. (1) Risk analysis and management planning shall be conducted for each system of records. Sensitivity and use of the records, present and projected threats and vulnerabilities, and present and projected cost-effectiveness of safeguards should be considered. The risk analysis may vary from an informal review of a small, relatively insensitive system to a formal, fully quantified risk analysis of a large, complex, and highly sensitive system.

(2) All personnel operating a system of records or using records from a system of records should be trained in proper record security procedures.

(3) Information exempt from disclosure under DCAA Freedom of Information Act Program (32 CFR part 290), shall be labeled to reflect its sensitivity, such as “FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY,” “PRIVACY ACT SENSITIVE: DISCLOSE ON A NEED-TO-KNOW BASIS ONLY,” or some other language that alerts individuals to the sensitivity of the records.

(4) Special administrative, physical, and technical safeguards shall be employed to protect records stored or processed in an automated data processing or word processing system from threats unique to those environments.

(c) Records disposal. (1) Records from systems of records should be disposed of to prevent inadvertent disclosure. Disposal methods such as tearing, burning, melting, chemical decomposition, burying, pulping, pulverizing, shredding, or mutilation are considered adequate if the records are rendered unrecognizable or beyond reconstruction. Magnetic media may be cleared by degaussing, overwriting, or completely erasing.

(2) The transfer of large volumes of records (e.g., computer cards and printouts) in bulk to a disposal activity such as a Defense Reutilization and Marketing Office for authorized disposal is not a disclosure of records under this rule if volume of the records, coding of the information, or some other factor renders it impossible to recognize any personal information about a specific individual.
§ 317.20
(3) When disposing or destroying large quantities of records from a system of records, care must be taken to ensure that the bulk of the records is maintained to prevent easy identification of specific records. If such bulk is maintained, no special procedures are required. If bulk is not maintained, or if the form of the records makes individually identifiable information easily discernible, dispose of the records in accordance with paragraph (c)(1) of this section.

Subpart C—Collecting Information About Individuals

§ 317.20  General considerations.

(a) Collect directly from the individual. To the greatest extent practicable, information should be collected for systems of records directly from the individual to whom the record pertains if the record may be used to make an adverse determination about the individual's rights, benefits, or privileges under Federal programs.

(b) Soliciting the Social Security number. (1) It is unlawful for any Federal, State, or local government agency to deny an individual a right, benefit, or privilege provided by law because the individual refuses to provide the Social Security Number (SSN). However, this prohibition does not apply if:

(i) A Federal law requires that the SSN be provided, or
(ii) The SSN is required by a law or regulation adopted before January 1, 1975, to verify the individual's identity for a system of records established and in use before that date.

(2) Before requesting an individual to provide the SSN, the individual shall be told:

(i) Whether providing the SSN is voluntary or mandatory,
(ii) By what law or other authority the SSN is solicited, and
(iii) What uses will be made of the SSN.

(3) The notice published in the Federal Register for each system of records containing SSNs solicited from individuals must indicate the authority for soliciting the SSNs and whether it is mandatory for the individuals to provide their SSNs. Executive Order 9997 permits Federal agencies to solicit SSNs as numerical identifiers for individuals in Federal records systems.

(4) Upon entrance into employment with the agency, individuals must provide their SSNs; therefore, they must be given the notification. The SSN is then the individual's numerical identifier and used to establish personnel, financial, medical, and other official records. After the individual has provided the SSN to establish the records, the notification is not required when the SSN is requested only for verification or to locate the records.

(c) Collecting information about individuals from third persons. It might not always be practical to collect all information about the individual directly from the individual, such as when:

(1) Verifying information through other sources for security or employment suitability determinations.

(2) Seeking other opinions, such as a supervisor's comments on past performance or other evaluations.

(3) Obtaining the necessary information directly from the individual will be exceptionally difficult or will result in unreasonable costs or delays; or

(4) The individual requests or consents to contacting another person to obtain the information.

(d) Privacy Act statement. (1) When an individual is requested to furnish information about himself or herself for a system of records, a Privacy Act statement must be provided to the individual, regardless of the method used to collect the information (forms, personal interviews, telephonic interviews, etc.). If the information requested will not be included in a system of records, a Privacy Act statement is not required.

(2) The Privacy Act statement shall include the following:

(i) The Federal law or Executive Order of the President that authorizes collecting the information.

(ii) Whether it is voluntary or mandatory for the individual to provide the requested information.
Subpart D—Access to Records

§ 317.30 Individual access to records.

(a) Right of access. (1) The access provisions of this part are for individuals who are subjects of records maintained in DCAA systems of records.

(2) All information that can be released consistent with applicable laws and regulations should be made available to the subject of record.

(b) Notification of record’s existence. Record managers of system of records shall establish procedures for notifying an individual, in response to a request, if the system of records contains a record pertaining to him or her.

(c) Individual requests for access. (1) Individuals shall address requests for access to records in systems of records to the responsible system manager or the regional Privacy Act officer.

(2) Requests for access may be oral or written; however, only written requests are to be maintained in the Privacy Act case file and counted when compiling the annual Privacy Act report.

(d) Verifying identity. (1) An individual shall provide reasonable verification of identity before obtaining access to records.

(2) Procedures for verifying identity shall not be complicated merely to discourage individuals from seeking access to records.

(3) When an individual seeks access in person, identification can be verified...
by documents normally carried by the individual, such as an identification card, driver’s license, or other license, permit or pass normally used for identification purposes.

(4) When access is requested other than in person, identity may be verified by the individual’s providing minimum identifying data such as full name, date and place of birth, or other information necessary to locate the record sought. If the information sought is sensitive, additional identifying data may be required.

(5) The individual may be accompanied by a person of his or her choice when viewing the record; however, the individual may be required to provide written authorization to have the record discussed in front of the other person.

(6) An individual shall not be denied access to a record solely for refusing to divulge the SSN, unless it is the only means of retrieving the record or verifying identity.

(7) An individual shall not be required to explain why he or she is seeking access to a record.

(8) Only a designated denial authority may deny access. The denial must be in writing.

(9) If notarization of requests is required for access, procedures shall be established for an alternate method of verification for individuals who do not have access to notary services, such as military members overseas. The following formats may be used as prescribed by 28 U.S.C. 1746:

(i) If executed outside of the United States: “I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date). (Signature)."

(ii) If executed within the United States, its territories, possessions, or commonwealths: “I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date). (Signature).”

(e) Granting individual access to records. (1) The individual should be granted access to the original record (or exact copy) without any changes or deletions. A record that has been amended is considered the original.

(2) The individual’s request should be granted for an exact copy of the record, and, upon the signed authorization of the individual, a copy should be provided to anyone designated by the individual. In either case, the copying fees may be assessed to the individual.

(3) If requested, explain any record or portion of a record that is not understood, as well as any changes or deletions.

(f) Illegible, incomplete, or exempt records. (1) Illegible or incomplete records. Individual access should not be denied solely because the physical condition or format of the record does not make it readily available, such as when the record is in a deteriorated state or on magnetic tape. In this case, the document should be recopied exactly or an extract can be prepared.

(2) Exempt records. A request for a record that is wholly or partially exempt from access shall also be processed under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). The requester shall be granted access to all information that is releasable under either this part or the FOIA. The agency may provide this information in the form of an extract or summary of the record. The provisions of this rule or the FOIA under which access was granted should be cited.

(g) Access to medical and psychological records. (1) Individual access to medical and psychological records should be provided, even if the individual is a minor, unless it is determined that access could have an adverse effect on the mental or physical health of the individual. This determination normally should be made in consultation with a medical practitioner.

(2) If it is medically indicated that access could have an adverse mental or physical effect on the individual, the record should be provided to a medical practitioner named by the individual, along with an explanation why access without medical supervision could be harmful to the individual.

(3) The named medical practitioner should not be required to request the record for the individual.

(4) If the individual refuses or fails to designate a medical practitioner, access shall be refused. The refusal is not considered a denial for reporting purposes under the Privacy Act.

(h) Access by parents and legal guardians. (1) The parent of any minor, an individual under 18 years of age who is neither a member of a Military Service nor married, or the legal guardian of any individual declared by a court of competent jurisdiction to be incompetent due to physical or mental incapacity or age, may obtain access to the record of the minor or incompetent individual if the parent or legal guardian is acting on behalf of the minor or incompetent (i.e., for the benefit of the minor or incompetent). However, with respect to access by parents and legal guardians to medical records and medical determinations about minors, observe the following procedures:

(i) In the United States, the laws of the state where the records are located might afford special protection to certain medical records such as drug and alcohol abuse treatment records and psychiatric records. The state statutes might apply even if the records are maintained by a military medical facility.

(ii) For installations located outside the United States, the parent or legal guardian of a minor shall be denied access if all four of the following conditions are met:

(A) The minor at the time of the treatment or consultation was 15, 16, or 17 years old.
(B) The treatment or consultation was within a program authorized by law or regulation to provide confidentiality to the minor.
(C) The minor specifically indicated a desire that the treatment or consultation record be handled in confidence and not disclosed to a parent or guardian, and
(D) The parent or legal guardian does not have the written authorization of the minor or a valid court order granting access.

(2) A minor or incompetent has the same right of access as any other individual. The right of access of the parent or legal guardian is in addition to that of the minor or incompetent.

(i) Access to information compiled in anticipation of a civil action or proceeding. (1) An individual is not entitled to access information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

(2) The term “civil action or proceeding” includes quasi-judicial and pretrial judicial proceedings as well as formal litigation.

(3) Paragraphs (i)(1) and (2) of this section do not prohibit access to records compiled or used for purposes other than litigation, nor prohibit access to systems of records solely because they are frequently subject to litigation. The information must have been compiled for the primary purpose of litigation.

(4) Attorney work products prepared in conjunction with the paragraphs (i)(1) and (2) of this section are also protected.

(j) Non-agency records. (1) Certain documents under the control of DCAA personnel and used to assist them in performing official functions may not be considered agency records within the meaning of this part. Such documents, if maintained in accordance with the following subparagraph, are not systems of records that are subject to this part. Examples are personal telephone lists and personal notes kept to refresh the memory of the author.

(2) To be considered non-agency records, the documents must:

(i) Be maintained and discarded solely at the discretion of the author.
(ii) Be created only for the author’s personal convenience.
(iii) Not be the result of official direction or encouragement, whether oral or written; and
(iv) Not be shown to other persons for any reason.

(k) Relationship between the Privacy Act and the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). (1) Access requests that specifically or reasonably imply that they are made under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552), are processed pursuant to DCAA Regulation 5410.10 (32 CFR part 290).

(2) Access requests that specifically or reasonably imply that they are made under the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) are processed pursuant to this part.

(3) Access requests that cite both the FOIA and the Privacy Act are processed under the Act that provides the greater degree of access. The requester
§ 317.31 Reproduction fees.

(a) Fee schedules. The fees charged requesters shall include only the direct cost of reproduction and shall not include costs of:

(1) Time or effort devoted by agency personnel to searching for or reviewing the record.

(2) Fees not associated with the actual cost of reproduction.

(3) Producing a copy when it must be provided to the individual without cost under another regulation, directive, or law.

(4) Normal postage.

(5) Transportation of records or personnel, or

(6) Producing a copy when the individual has requested only to review the record and has not requested a copy to keep, and

(i) The only means of allowing review is to make a copy (e.g., the record is stored in a computer and a copy must be printed to provide individual access), or

(ii) The agency does not wish to surrender temporarily the original record for the individual to review.

(7) Compute fees using the appropriate portions of the fee schedule in 32 CFR part 286, subpart F.

(b) Fee waivers. (1) Fees shall be waived automatically if the direct cost of reproduction is less than $30, unless the individual is requesting an obvious extension or duplication of a previous request for which he or she was granted a waiver.

(2) Decisions to waive or reduce fees that exceed $30 may be made on a case-by-case basis.

§ 317.32 Denying individual access.

(a) Denying individual access. The subject of record may be denied access only if it:

(1) Was compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding; or

(2) Is in a system of records that has been exempted from the access provisions of this part.

(3) The individual should be denied access only to those portions of the record for which the denial will serve a legitimate governmental purpose.

(4) An individual may be refused access for failure to comply with established procedural requirements, but must be told the specific reason for the refusal and the proper access procedures.

(b) Notifying the individual. Written denial of access must be given to the individual and must be documented in a Privacy Act case file. The denial shall include:

(1) The name, title, and signature of a designated denial authority.

(2) The date of the denial.

(3) The specific reason for the denial, citing the appropriate sections of the Privacy Act or this part authorizing the denial.

(4) Notice of the individual's right to appeal the denial within 60 calendar days of the date the notice is mailed; and

(5) The title and address of the appeal official.

(c) Appeal procedures. Appeal procedures provide for the following:

(1) Review by the Assistant Director, Resources, DCAA Headquarters, or his or her designee, of any appeal by an individual.

(2) Written notification to the individual by the Assistant Director, Resources shall:

(i) If the denial is sustained totally or in part, include:

(A) The reason for denying the appeal, citing the provision of the Privacy Act or this part upon which the denial is based.

(B) The date of the appeal determination.

(C) The name, title, and signature of the appeal authority; and

...
§ 317.41 Amending records.

(a) Right to request amendment. An individual may request the amendment of any record retrieved by his or her personal identifier from a system of records, unless the system has been exempted from the amendment procedures. See §317.133. Amendments are limited to correcting factual matters, not matters of opinion such as those contained in evaluations of promotion potential and performance appraisals.
§ 317.42 Written amendment request. The agency may require that amendment requests be in writing; however, this requirement shall not be used merely to discourage individuals from requesting valid amendments or to burden needlessly the amendment process. Only written amendment requests must be documented in the Privacy Act case file.

§ 317.43 Content of amendment request. An amendment request must include:
(1) A description of the information to be amended.
(2) The reason for the amendment.
(3) The type of amendment action sought (deletion, correction, or addition); and
(4) Copies of available documentary evidence supporting the request.

§ 317.44 Limits on amending judicial and quasi-judicial evidence and findings.
This part does not permit the alteration of evidence presented in the course of judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings. Amendments to such records must be made in accordance with procedures established for such proceedings. This part does not permit a collateral attack on a judicial or quasi-judicial finding; however, it may be used to challenge the accuracy of recording the finding in a system of records.

§ 317.45 Standards for amendment request determinations.
The record which the individual requests to be amended must meet agency recordkeeping standards. The record must be accurate, relevant, timely, complete, and necessary. If the record in its present state does not meet each of the criteria, the amendment request shall be granted to the extent necessary to meet them.

§ 317.46 Time limits.
Within 10 working days, excluding Federal holidays, of receiving an amendment request, provide the individual a written acknowledgment of the request. If action on the amendment request is completed within the 10 working days and the individual is so informed, no separate acknowledgment is necessary. The acknowledgment must clearly identify the request and advise the individual when to expect notification of the completed action. Only under exceptional circumstances shall more than 30 working days, excluding Federal holidays, be required to complete the action on an amendment request. If a completed action takes longer than 30 working days, the delay must be explained fully in the Privacy Act case file.

§ 317.47 Granting an amendment request in whole or in part.
(a) Notify the requester. To the extent the amendment request is granted, the individual shall be notified and make the appropriate amendment.

(b) Notify previous recipients. All previous recipients of the information (as reflected in the disclosure accounting records) should be notified that the amendment has been made and provide each a copy of the amended record. Recipients who are known to be no longer retaining the record need not be advised of the amendment. If it is known that other DoD components or other Federal agencies have been provided the information that was amended, or if the individual requests that other DoD components or other Federal agencies be notified, provide the notification even if those components or agencies are not listed in the disclosure accounting.

(c) Documentation. The action should be documented in the Privacy Act case file if the request for amendment was in writing.

§ 317.48 Denying an amendment request in whole or in part.
(a) If the amendment request is denied in whole or in part, the individual should be promptly notified in writing.
and document the action in the Privacy Act case file. The notification to the individual shall include:

(b) Basis for denial. Those sections of the Privacy Act or this part upon which the denial is based.

(c) Right to appeal. Advice that the individual may appeal to the Assistant Director, Resources, or his or her designee for an independent review of the initial denial.

(d) Appeal procedures. The procedures for requesting an appeal, including the title and address of the official to whom the appeal should be sent; and

(e) Appeal assistance. Where the individual can receive assistance in filing the appeal.

§ 317.49 Appeal procedures.

Procedures to ensure the prompt, complete, and independent review of each denial of an amendment request if the individual appeals must ensure:

(a) Appeals are forwarded. The appeal with all supporting documentation, including that furnished by the individual and that contained in agency records, is provided to the Assistant Director, Resources, or his or her designee.

(b) Standards for review. The standard for deciding the appeal is whether the unamended record is accurate, relevant, timely, complete, and necessary. If the unamended record does not meet each of these criteria, the amendment request shall be granted to the extent necessary to meet them.

(c) Time limits. The appeal is processed within 30 working days, excluding Federal holidays, unless the appeal official determines that an adequate review cannot be completed within that period and gives the individual a written explanation of the reason and when the review will be completed.

(d) Denial notification. If the appeal is denied completely or in part, the individual is provided written notification that:

(1) The appeal has been denied, citing the sections of the Privacy Act or this rule on which the denial was based.

(2) The individual may file a statement of disagreement. An explanation of the filing procedures will be included in the written notification.

(3) If properly filed, the statement of disagreement shall be included in the record and furnished to all future recipients of the record and to all prior recipients of the record as listed on the disclosure accounting, except those known to be no longer retaining the record; and

(4) The individual may seek judicial review of the decision not to amend the record.

(e) Amendment notification. If the record is amended:

(1) The individual is notified promptly of the decision.

(2) All previous recipients of the record, as listed in the disclosure accounting (except those known to be no longer retaining the record), are notified of the amendment and provided a copy; and

(3) Any previous recipient known to be holding a copy of the record (but not listed in the disclosure accounting), as well as any other DoD component or other Federal agency named by the individual, also should be informed of the amendment and provided a copy.

(f) Documentation. All actions on the appeal shall be documented in the Privacy Act case file.

§ 317.50 Requests for amending OPM records.
The records in an OPM Government-wide system of records are only temporarily in the custody of the agency. Requests for amendment of these records must be processed in accordance with the OPM Federal Personnel Manual. The agency denial authority may deny a request, but all denials are subject to review by the Assistant Director for Workforce Information, Personnel Systems Oversight Group, Office of Personnel Management, 1900 E Street NW, Washington, DC 20415-0001.

§ 317.51 Individual's statement of disagreement.

(a) Right to submit. If the appeal authority refuses to amend the record as requested, the individual may submit a concise statement of disagreement listing the reasons for disagreeing with the refusal to amend.
§ 317.52 Agency's statement of reasons.

(a) Right to file. If the individual files a statement of disagreement, the agency may file a statement of reasons containing a concise summary of the agency's reasons for denying the amendment request.

(b) Content. The statement of reasons shall contain only those reasons given to the individual by the appeal official and shall not contain any comments on the individual's statement of disagreement.

(c) Disclosure. At the discretion of the agency, the statement of reasons may be disclosed to those individuals, DoD components, and other Federal agencies that receive the statement of disagreement.

Subpart F—Disclosure of Records

§ 317.60 Conditions of disclosure.

(a) Disclosures to third persons. (1) Under the Privacy Act, there are two terms describing how information from a record is provided:

(i) "Access" occurs when information from a record is provided or shown to the individual who is the subject of record or, if that individual is a minor or incompetent, to the parent or legal guardian.

(ii) "Disclosure" occurs when information from a record is provided or shown to anyone other than the subject of record, or the parent or legal guardian of a minor or incompetent.

(b) When disclosures may be made. Disclosures may be made only when:

(1) The subject of record gives written consent for the disclosure; or

(2) One of the twelve conditions specified in § 317.61.

(c) Validation before disclosure. Except for disclosures made under the FOIA or DCAA Regulation 5410.10 (32 CFR part 290), make reasonable efforts to ensure the record is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete for agency purposes before disclosing any record from a system of records to any recipient other than a Federal agency. Records discovered to have been improperly filed in the system of records should be removed before disclosure.

(1) If validation cannot be obtained from the record itself, the agency may contact the subject of record (if reasonably available) to verify the accuracy, timeliness, completeness, and relevance of the information.

(2) If validation cannot be obtained from the record and the subject of record is not reasonably available, the recipient should be advised that the information is believed to be valid as of a specific date and reveal any factors bearing on the validity of the information.

§ 317.61 Non-consensual disclosures.

The Privacy Act provides twelve instances when a record in a system of records may be disclosed without the written consent of the subject of the record.

(a) Disclosures within the Department of Defense for official purposes. For purposes of disclosing records among DoD components, the Department of Defense is considered a single agency; hence, a record may be disclosed to any officer or employee in the Department...
Office of the Secretary of Defense § 317.61 of Defense who needs it in the performance of official duties. Rank or position alone does not authorize the disclosure; there must be a demonstrated official need.

(b) Disclosures required by the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). (1) A record must be disclosed if required by the FOIA, which is implemented by DCAA Regulation 5410.10 (32 CFR part 290).

(2) The FOIA requires that records be made available to any person requesting them in writing, unless the record is exempt from disclosure under one of the nine FOIA exemptions. Therefore, if a record is not exempt from disclosure, it must be provided to the requester.

(3) Certain records, such as personnel, medical, and similar files, are exempt from disclosure under FOIA Exemption number 6. Under that exemption, disclosure of information pertaining to an individual can be denied only when the disclosure would be "a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy."

(4) Records or information from investigatory records, including personnel security investigatory records, are exempt from disclosure under the broader standard of "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy" found in FOIA Exemption number 7. This broader standard applies only to investigatory records.

(5) A disclosure under the FOIA about civilian employees must be in accordance with DCAA Regulation 5410.8 but the following information normally may be disclosed from civilian employee records:

(i) Full name.
(ii) Present and past position titles and occupational series.
(iii) Present and past grades.
(iv) Present and past annual salary rates (including performance awards or bonuses, incentive awards, merit pay amount, Meritorious and Distinguished Executive Ranks, and allowances and differentials).
(v) Past duty stations.

(iii) Present duty station and future duty station (if finalized), including room numbers, shop designations, or other identifying information regarding buildings or places of employment, unless the duty stations have been determined by the agency to be sensitive, routinely deployable, or located in a foreign territory.

(vii) Position descriptions, identification of job elements, and those performance standards (but not actual performance appraisals) that the disclosure of which would not interfere with law enforcement programs or severely inhibit agency effectiveness.

(6) Disclosure of home addresses and home telephone numbers:

(i) The disclosure under the FOIA of home addresses and telephone numbers normally is considered a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and is prohibited. However, they may be disclosed if:

(A) The individual has consented, in writing, to the disclosure.
(B) The disclosure is required by the FOIA; or
(C) The disclosure is required by another Federal law, such as 42 U.S.C. 653, which provides assistance to states in locating parents who have defaulted on child support payments.

(ii) When compiling home addresses and telephone numbers, the individual shall be offered the option of authorizing disclosure of the information without further consent for specific purposes, such as locator services. In that case, the information may be disclosed for the stated purpose without further consent. If the information is to be disclosed for any other purpose, a signed consent permitting the additional disclosure must be obtained from the individual.

(iii) Before listing home addresses and home telephone numbers in telephone directories, the individual should be given the opportunity to refuse such a listing. If the individual requests that the home address or telephone number not be listed in the directory, additional fees should not be assessed associated with maintaining an unlisted number for government-owned telephone services.

(iv) The sale or rental of lists of names and addresses is prohibited unless such action is specifically authorized by Federal law, but this does not prohibit the disclosure of names and addresses otherwise permitted to be made public, such as by DCAA Regulation 5410.10 (32 CFR part 290).

10See footnote 1 to §317.1(a).
§ 317.61

(c) Disclosures for established routine uses. (1) Records may be disclosed outside the agency if the disclosure is for an established routine use.

(2) A routine use shall:
(i) Be compatible with and related to the purpose for which the record was created.
(ii) Identify the persons or organizations to whom the record may be disclosed.
(iii) Identify specifically the uses for which the information may be employed by the receiving person or organization; and
(iv) Be contained in the system of records notice published previously in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(3) A routine use shall be established for each user of the information outside the agency who needs the information for an official purpose.

(4) Routine uses may be established, discontinued, or amended without the consent of the individuals to whom the records pertain. However, new and amended routine uses must be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER at least 30 days before the information may be disclosed under their provisions.

(5) In addition to the routine uses established by the system notices published in the FEDERAL REGISTER, certain common “blanket routine uses” have been established for all systems of records maintained by the agency. These blanket routine uses are published in the FEDERAL REGISTER at the beginning of the listing of system notices for the agency. Unless a system notice specifically excludes a system of records from a blanket routine use, all blanket routine uses apply to that system. See appendix A to this part.

(6) If the “routine user” recipient has not been identified in the FEDERAL REGISTER or if the recipient, though identified, intends to employ the information for a purpose not published in the FEDERAL REGISTER, the written consent of the individual is required before the disclosure can be made.

(d) Disclosures to the Bureau of the Census. Records may be disclosed to the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census or survey or related activities under the provisions of 13 U.S.C. 8.

(e) Disclosures for statistical research or reporting. Records may be disclosed to a recipient for statistical research or reporting if:

(1) Prior to the disclosure, the recipient has provided adequate written assurance that the records shall be used solely for statistical research or reporting; and

(2) The records are transferred in a form that does not identify individuals.

(f) Disclosures to the National Archives and Records Administration. (1) Records may be disclosed to the National Archives and Records Administration for evaluation to determine whether the records have sufficient historical or other value to warrant preservation by the Federal government. If preservation is warranted, the records will be retained by the National Archives and Records Administration, which becomes the official owner of the records.

(2) Records may be disclosed to the National Archives and Records Administration to carry out records management inspections required by Federal law. Such disclosures are authorized by the National Archives and Records Act of 1984, Pub. L. 98-497.

(3) Records transferred to a Federal Records Center operated by the National Archives and Records Administration for storage are not within this category. Those records continue to be maintained and controlled by the agency. The Federal Records Center is considered the custodian agent of the agency.

(g) Disclosures when requested for law enforcement purposes. (1) A record may be disclosed to another agency or an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity if:

(i) The civil or criminal law enforcement activity is authorized by law (Federal, State, or local); and

(ii) The head of the agency or instrumentality (or his or her designee) has made a written request to DCAA specifying the particular record or portion desired and the law enforcement activity for which it is sought.

(2) Blanket requests for any and all records pertaining to an individual shall not be honored. The requesting agency or instrumentality must specify each record or portion desired and how each relates to the authorized law enforcement activity.

(3) This disclosure provision applies when the law enforcement agency or instrumentality requests the record. If DCAA discloses a record outside the Department of Defense for law enforcement purposes without the individual’s consent and without an adequate written request, the disclosure must be pursuant to an established routine use, such as the blanket routine use for law enforcement.

(h) Disclosures to protect the health or safety of an individual. (1) Records may be disclosed by any means and to any person pursuant to a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of an individual. The affected individual need not be the subject of the record.

(2) Notification of the disclosure (date and what, why, and to whom disclosed) must be sent to the subject of the record. Sending the notification to the last known address is sufficient.

(i) Disclosures to Congress. (1) A record may be disclosed to either House of Congress on the initiative of the agency or at the request of either the Senate or House of Representatives as a whole.

(2) A record also may be disclosed to any committee, subcommittee, or joint committee of Congress if the disclosure pertains to a matter within the legislative or investigative jurisdiction of the committee, subcommittee, or joint committee.

(3) Individual members of Congress not acting on behalf of the entire house, a committee, subcommittee, or joint committee have no greater right to have records disclosed to them than any other individual. However, for Members of Congress making inquiries on behalf of individuals who are subjects of records, a blanket routine use has been established to permit disclosures to individual members of Congress.

(i) When responding to a congressional inquiry made on behalf of a constituent by whose identifier the record is retrieved, there is no need to verify that the individual has authorized the disclosure to the Member of Congress.

(ii) The oral statement of a congressional staff member is sufficient to establish that a request has been received from the individual to whom the record pertains.

(iii) If the constituent inquiry is made on behalf of an individual other than the subject of the record, provide the Member of Congress only that information releasable under the FOIA. The Member of Congress should be advised that the written consent of the subject of record is required before additional information may be disclosed. The subject of record should not be contacted to obtain consent for the disclosure to the Member of Congress unless the congressional office specifically requests that it be done.

(j) Disclosures to the Comptroller General for the General Accounting Office. Records may be disclosed to the Comptroller General, or his or her authorized representative, for the performance of the duties of the General Accounting Office.

(k) Disclosures pursuant to court orders. (1) Records may be disclosed pursuant to the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

(2) The court order must bear the signature of a Federal, State, or local judge. Orders signed by court clerks or attorneys are not deemed to be orders of a court of competent jurisdiction. A photocopy of the order, regular on its face, will be sufficient evidence of the court’s exercise of its authority if the minimal requirements of DCAA Regulation 5410.11, “Release of Official Information in Litigation and Testimony by DCAA Personnel as Witness.”

(3) When a record is disclosed under this provision and the compulsory legal process becomes a matter of public record, make reasonable efforts to notify the subject of the record. Notification sent to the last known address of the individual is sufficient.

(l) Disclosures to consumer reporting agencies. (1) Certain information may be disclosed to consumer reporting agencies as defined by 31 U.S.C. 952d.

(2) Under these provisions, the following information may be disclosed to a consumer reporting agency:
§ 317.62 Disclosures to commercial enterprises.

(a) General policy. (1) Records may be disclosed to commercial enterprises only under the criteria established by the FOIA.

(2) The relationship of commercial enterprises to their customers or clients and to the agency is not changed by this part.

(b) Disclosure of information. (1) Any information required to be disclosed by the FOIA may be disclosed to a requesting commercial enterprise.

(2) Commercial enterprises may present a concise statement signed by the individual indicating specific conditions for disclosing information from a record. Statements such as the following, if signed by the individual, are considered sufficient to authorize the disclosure:

I hereby authorize the Defense Contract Audit Agency to verify my Social Security Number or other identifying information and to disclose my home address and telephone number to authorized representatives of (name of commercial enterprise) to be used in connection with my commercial dealings with that enterprise. All information furnished will be used in connection with my financial relationship with (name of commercial enterprise).

(3) When a consent statement as described in the preceding paragraph is presented, the information should be provided to the commercial enterprise, unless the disclosure is prohibited by another regulation or Federal law.

(4) Requests should not be honored from commercial enterprises for official evaluations or personal characteristics such as personal financial habits.

§ 317.63 Disclosing health care records to the public.

This section applies to the disclosure of information to the news media and the public concerning individuals treated or hospitalized in DoD medical facilities and, when the cost of care is paid by the agency, in non-DOD medical facilities.

(a) Disclosures without the individual's consent. Normally, the following information may be disclosed without the individual's consent:

(1) Information required to be released by the FOIA, as well as the information listed for military personnel and for civilian employees; and

(2) The following general information concerning medical condition:

(i) Date of admission or disposition; and

(ii) Present medical assessment of the individual's condition in the following terms, if the medical practitioner has volunteered the information:

(A) The individual's condition presently is (stable) (good) (fair) (serious) (critical), and

(B) The patient is conscious, semiconscious, or unconscious.

(b) Disclosures with the individual's consent. With the individual's informed consent, any information about the individual may be disclosed. If the individual is a minor or has been declared incompetent by a court of competent jurisdiction, the parent or the appointed legal guardian may give consent on behalf of the individual.

(c) Disclosures to other government agencies. This section does not limit otherwise lawful disclosures to other government agencies for use in determining eligibility for special assistance or other benefits provided there is a published routine use permitting the disclosure.

§ 317.64 Accounting for disclosures.

(a) When to keep disclosure accountings. An accurate record of all disclosures made from a record (including

§ 317.70 Subpart G—Publication Requirements

§ 317.70 Federal Register publication.
(a) Documents that must be published in the Federal Register. (1) Three types of documents relating to the Privacy Program must be published in the Federal Register:
   (i) DCAA Privacy Program procedural rules (32 CFR part 317).
   (ii) DCAA exemption rules (32 CFR part 317), and
   (iii) Record system notices.
(b) Effect of publication in the Federal Register. Publishing a document in the Federal Register constitutes official public notice of the existence and content of the document.
   (1) DCAA Privacy Program procedural and exemption rules are subject to the rulemaking procedures prescribed by 32 CFR part 336. These are incorporated automatically into the Code of Federal Regulations.
   (2) Record system notices are published in the Federal Register as “notices.” They are not subject to the rulemaking procedures or automatic incorporation into the Code of Federal Regulations.
(c) Formal rulemaking and notices. (1) DCAA Privacy Program procedural rules for publication. (1) Procedural rules must be published in the Federal Register first as proposed rules to allow for public comment, then as final rules.
   (2) The DCAA Privacy Advisor will submit to the Defense Privacy Office all proposed rules implementing this rule. The submission must conform to the Federal Register format.
   (3) This part published as a final rule in the Federal Register shall be incorporated by regions as their own... rules by reference rather than by re-publication. A region that simply implements this part as its own rule need not publish it as a final rule in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(4) Amendments to agency rules are submitted in the same manner as the original rules.

(5) The Defense Privacy Office, DA&M, reviews and submits all DoD component rules, and amendments to rules to the FEDERAL REGISTER for publication.

(e) Submitting exemption rules for publication. (1) Exemption rules must be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER first as proposed rules to allow for public comment, then as final rules.

(2) No system of records shall be exempt from any provision of the Privacy Act until the exemption rule has been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER as a final rule.

(3) Proposed exemption rules should be submitted in proper format through the agency Privacy Advisor to the Defense Privacy Office, DA&M, for review and submittal to the FEDERAL REGISTER for publication.

(4) Amendments to exemption rules are submitted in the same manner as the original exemption rules.

(f) Submitting record system notices for publication. (1) Although system notices are not subject to formal rule-making procedures, advance public notice must be given before the agency may begin to collect information for or maintain a new system of records. The notice procedures require that:

(i) The record system notice describe the contents of the record system and the purposes and routine uses for which the information will be used and disclosed.

(ii) The public be given 30 days to comment on any proposed routine uses before the routine uses are implemented; and

(iii) The notice contain the date the system of records will become effective.

(2) System notices shall be submitted through the agency Privacy Advisor to the Defense Privacy Office, DA&M, for publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

§ 317.71 Exemption rules.

(a) General procedures. This section provides guidance for establishing exemptions for systems of records.

(b) Content of exemption rules. (1) Each proposed exemption rule submitted for publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER must contain:

(i) The agency identification and name of the record system for which an exemption will be established.

(ii) The subsection(s) of the Privacy Act which the system will be exempt from (e.g., subsection (k)(2) or (k)(5) of the Privacy Act); and

(iii) The reasons why an exemption from the particular subsection identified in the preceding subparagraph is being claimed.

§ 317.72 System of records notices.

(a) Contents of a record system notice. The following data captions are prescribed by the Office of the FEDERAL REGISTER and must be included for each system notice:

(1) System identifier.

(2) System name.

(3) System location.

(4) Categories of individuals covered by the system.

(5) Categories of records in the system.

(6) Authority for maintenance of the system.

(7) Purpose(s).

(8) Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and purposes of the uses.

(9) Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system.

(10) System manager(s) and address.

(11) Notification procedures.

(12) Record access procedures.

(13) Contesting records procedures.

(14) Record source categories; and

(15) Exemptions claimed for the system.

(b) System identification. The system identifier must appear in all system notices. It is limited to 21 positions, including agency code, file number, symbols, punctuation, and spaces.

(c) System name. (1) The system name must indicate the general nature of the system of records and, if possible, the general category of individuals to whom it pertains.

(2) Acronyms should be established parenthetically following the first use of the name (e.g., “Field Audit Office Management Information System (FOMIS)”). Acronyms shall not be used unless preceded by such an explanation.

(3) The system name may not exceed 55 character positions, including punctuation and spaces.

d) System location. (1) For a system maintained in a single location, provide the exact office name, organizational identity, routing symbol, and full mailing address. Do not use acronyms in the location address.

(2) For a geographically or organizationally decentralized system, describe each level of organization or element that maintains a portion of the system of records.

(3) For an automated data system with a central computer facility and input or output terminals at geographically separate locations, list each location by category.

(4) If multiple locations are identified by type of organization, the system location may indicate that official mailing addresses are published as an appendix to the agency’s compilation of systems of records notices in the Federal Register. If no address directory is used, or if the addresses in the directory are incomplete, the address of each location where a portion of the record system is maintained must appear under the “system location” caption.

(5) Classified addresses shall not be listed, but the fact that they are classified shall be indicated.

(e) Categories of individuals covered by the system. (1) Clear, nontechnical terms shall state the specific categories of individuals to whom records in the system pertain.

(2) Broad descriptions such as “all DCAA personnel” or “all employees,” should be avoided unless the term actually reflects the category of individuals involved.

(f) Categories of records in the system. (1) Clear, nontechnical terms shall be used to describe the types of records maintained in the system.

(2) The description of documents should be limited to those actually retained in the system of records. Source documents should not be described that are used only to collect data and then are destroyed.

(g) Authority for maintenance of the system. (1) The system of records must be authorized by a Federal law or Executive Order of the President, and the specific provision must be cited.

(2) When citing federal laws, include the popular names (e.g., “5 U.S.C. 552a, The Privacy Act of 1974”) and for Executive Orders, the official titles (e.g., “Executive Order 9397, Numbering System for Federal Accounts Relating to Individual Persons”).

(3) The Directive establishing the agency, DoD Directive 5105.36 (32 CFR part 357), as well as the law that authorizes the Secretary of Defense to issue Directives, 10 U.S.C. 133 should be cited.

(h) Purpose(s). The specific purpose(s) for which the system of records was created and maintained; that is, the uses of the records within the agency and the rest of the Department of Defense should be listed.

(i) Routine uses. (1) All disclosures of the records outside the agency, including the recipient of the disclosed information and the uses the recipient will make of it should be listed.

(2) If possible, the specific activity or element to which the record may be disclosed (e.g., “to the Department of Veterans Affairs, Office of Disability Benefits”) should be listed.

(3) General statements such as “to other Federal Agencies as required” or “to any other appropriate Federal agency” should not be used.

(4) The blanket routine uses, published at the beginning of the agency’s compilation, applies to all system notices, unless the individual system notice states otherwise.
(j) Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records. This section is divided into four parts.

(1) Storage: The method(s) used to store the information in the system (e.g., “automated, maintained in computers and computer output products” or “manual, maintained in paper files” or “hybrid, maintained in paper files and in computers”) should be stated. Storage does not refer to the container or facility in which the records are kept.

(2) Retrievability: How records are retrieved from the system (e.g., “by name,” “by SSN,” or “by name and SSN”) should be indicated.

(3) Safeguards: The categories of agency personnel who use the records and those responsible for protecting the records from unauthorized access should be stated. Generally the methods used to protect the records, such as safes, vaults, locked cabinets or rooms, guards, visitor registers, personnel screening, or computer “fail-safe” systems software should be identified. Safeguards should not be described in such detail as to compromise system security.

(4) Retention and disposal: Describe how long records are maintained. When appropriate, the length of time records are maintained by the agency in an active status, when they are transferred to a Federal Records Center, how long they are kept at the Federal Records Center, and when they are transferred to the National Archives or destroyed should be stated. If records eventually are destroyed, the method of destruction (e.g., shredding, burning, pulping, etc.), should be stated. If the agency rule is cited, the applicable disposition schedule shall also be identified.

(k) System manager(s) and address. (1) The title (not the name) and address of the official or officials responsible for managing the system of records should be listed.

(2) If the title of the specific official is unknown, such as with a local system, the local director or office head as the system manager should be indicated.

(3) For geographically separated or organizationally decentralized activities with which individuals may correspond directly when exercising their rights, the position or title of each category of officials responsible for the system or portion thereof should be listed.

(l) Notification procedures. (1) Notification procedures describe how an individual can determine if a record in the system pertains to him or her.

(2) If the record system has been exempted from the notification requirements of subsection (f)(1) or subsection (e)(4)(G) of the Privacy Act, it should be so stated.

(3) If the system has not been exempted, the notice must provide sufficient information to enable an individual to request notification of whether a record in the system pertains to him or her. Merely referring to the agency’s procedural rules is not sufficient.

(4) This section should also include:

(i) The title (not the name) and address of the official (usually the system manager) to whom the request must be directed;

(ii) Any specific information the individual must provide in order for the agency to respond to the request (e.g., name, SSN, date of birth, etc.); and

(iii) Any description of proof of identity for verification purposes required for personal visits by the requester.

(m) Record access procedures. (1) This section describes how an individual can review the record and obtain a copy of it.

(2) If the system has been exempted from access and publishing access procedures under subsections (d)(1) and (e)(4)(H), respectively, of the Privacy Act, it should be so indicated.

(3) If the system has not been exempted, describe the procedures an individual must follow in order to review the record and obtain a copy of it, including any requirements for identity verification.

(4) If appropriate, the individual may be referred to the system manager or another agency official who shall provide a detailed description of the access procedures. Any addresses already listed in the address directory should not be repeated.
§ 317.73 Contesting record procedures.

(1) This section describes how an individual may challenge the denial of access or the contents of a record that pertains to him or her.

(2) If the record system has been exempted from allowing amendments to records or publishing amendment procedures under subsections (d)(2) and (e)(4)(H), respectively, of the Privacy Act, it should be so stated.

(3) If the system has not been exempted, the procedures an individual must follow should be described in order to challenge the content of a record pertaining to him or her, or explain how he or she can obtain a copy of the procedures (e.g., by contacting the system manager or another agency official).

(o) Record source categories.

(1) If the system has been exempted from publishing record source categories under subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Privacy Act, it should be so stated.

(2) If the system has not been exempted, this caption must describe where the agency obtained the information maintained in the system.

(3) Describing the record sources in general terms is sufficient; specific individuals, organizations, or institutions need not be identified.

(p) Exemptions claimed for the system.

(1) If no exemption has been established for the system, indicate “None.”

(2) If an exemption has been established, state under which provision of the Privacy Act it is established (e.g., “Parts of this system of records may be exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2)”).

§ 317.73 New and altered record systems.

(a) Criteria for a new record system.

(1) A new system of records is one for which no existing system notice has been published in the Federal Register.

(2) If a notice for a system of records has been canceled or deleted and the agency desires to reinstate or reuse the system, a new system notice must be published in the Federal Register.

(b) Criteria for an altered record system.

A system is considered altered when any one of the following actions occurs or is proposed:

(1) A significant increase or change in the number or types of individuals about whom records are maintained requires a change to the “categories of individuals covered by the system” caption in the system notice and might require changes to the “purpose(s)” caption.

(i) For example, a decision to expand a system of records that originally covered personnel assigned to only one location to cover personnel at several locations would constitute an altered system.

(ii) An increase in the number of individuals covered due to normal growth is not an alteration.

(iii) A decrease in the number of individuals covered is not an alteration, but it is an amendment.

(2) A change that expands the types or categories of information maintained requires a change in the “categories of records in the system” caption in the system notice.

(i) For example, a personnel file that has been expanded to include medical records would be an alteration.

(ii) Adding to a personnel file a new data element that is clearly within the scope of the categories of records described in the existing notice is not an alteration, but is an amendment.

(3) A change that alters the purpose for which the information is used requires changing the “purpose(s)” caption in the system notice. In order to be an alteration, the change must be one that is not reasonably inferred from any of the existing purposes.

(4) A change to equipment configuration (either hardware or software) that creates substantially greater use of records in the system requires changing the “storage” caption in the system notice. For example, placing interactive computer terminals at regional offices to use a system formerly used only at the Headquarters would be an alteration.

(5) A change in the manner in which records are organized or in the method by which records are retrieved requires changing the “Retrievability” caption in the system notice.

(i) Combining record systems due to a reorganization within the agency would be an alteration.
§ 317.74 Amendment and deletion of system notices.

(a) Criteria for an amended record system. Minor changes to published system notices are considered amendments rather than alterations. Amendments must also be published in the Federal Register, but a new or altered system report does not have to be accomplished.

(b) Amending a system notice. In submitting an amendment to a system notice for publication in the Federal Register, the agency must include:

1. The system identification and name.

2. A description of the specific changes proposed; and

3. The full text of the system notice as amended.

(c) Deleting a system notice. (1) When a system of records is discontinued, incorporated into another system, or determined to be no longer subject to this rule, a deletion notice must be published in the Federal Register.

(2) The deletion notice shall include:

(i) The system identification number and name.

(ii) The Federal Register citation of the latest publication of the system.

(iii) The reason for the deletion.

(3) If a system is deleted through combination or merger with another system, identify the successor system in the deletion notice.

(d) Submitting amendments and deletions for publication. (1) Amendments and deletions should be submitted through the agency Privacy Advisor to the Defense Privacy Office, DA&M, which will transmit them to the Federal Register for publication.

(2) At least one original in proper format should be included in the submission.

(3) Multiple amendments and deletions, and combinations of amendments and deletions, may be submitted together.

Subpart H—Training Requirements

§ 317.80 Statutory training requirements.

(a) Establishing rules of conduct. Under subsection (e)(9) of the Privacy Act, the agency is required to establish rules of conduct for persons involved in the design, development, operation, or maintenance of any system of records, or in maintaining any record.

(b) Training. The agency shall train all personnel involved in the functions described in the preceding paragraph. The training shall include instruction in the rules of conduct and all requirements prescribed by the Privacy Act, including the penalties for noncompliance.

§ 317.81 DCAA training programs.

(a) Personnel to be trained. (1) To conform with Office of Management and Budget guidance, compliance with the statutory training requirements requires informed and active support of all agency personnel. All personnel who in any way use or operate systems of records, or who are engaged in the development of procedures for handling records, must be taught the requirements of the Privacy Act and must be trained in the agency’s procedures for the implementation of the Privacy Act.

(2) Personnel to be trained include, but are not limited to, those engaged in the following:

(i) Personnel management.
(ii) Personnel finance.
(iii) Medical care.
(iv) Investigations of personnel.
(v) Records management (reports, forms, records, and related functions).
(vi) Computer systems development and operation.
(vii) Communications.
(viii) Statistical data collection and analysis, and
(ix) Performing other functions subject to this rule.

(b) Types of training. The agency shall establish the following three levels of training for those persons who are involved with the design, development, operation, or maintenance of any system of records. The training shall be provided to persons before or shortly after assuming the duties associated with the level of involvement.

(1) Orientation training. Orientation training that provides a general understanding of the individual’s rights under the Privacy Act.

(2) Specialized training. Training concerning the application of this part to specialized areas of job performance.

(3) Management training. Training concentrated on factors affecting decisions made by managers under the Privacy Program, such as system managers, denial authorities, and managers of the specific functions listed.

(c) Methods of training. The agency is responsible for developing training methods that will meet this criteria. Such methods may include formal and informal (on-the-job) programs, if those personnel giving the training have, themselves, been trained.

Subpart I—Computer Matching Program Procedures

§ 317.90 General.

(a) Scope. The Privacy Act and this rule are applicable to certain types of computer matching—the computer comparison of automated systems of records.

(b) Compliance. Although the Privacy Act provides for specific procedures, the Act is not in itself authority for carrying out any matching activity. Compliance with this chapter does not relieve the agency of the obligation to comply with any other requirements of the Privacy Act and this part.

(c) Matching programs covered by the Privacy Act. There are two specific kinds of matching programs that are fully governed by the Privacy Act and this part. These are:

(1) Matches using records from Federal personnel or payroll systems of records. See also definitions of this part.

(2) Matches involving Federal benefit programs to accomplish one or more of the following purposes:

(i) To determine eligibility for a Federal benefit.
(ii) To comply with benefit program requirements.
(iii) To effect recovery of improper payments or delinquent debts from current or former beneficiaries.

(d) Automated comparisons. The record comparison must be a computerized comparison, involving records from:

(1) Two or more automated systems of records (i.e., systems of records maintained by Federal agencies that are subject to the Privacy Act); or,

(2) An agency’s automated system of records and automated records maintained by a non-Federal agency (i.e., state or local government or agent thereof).

(e) Features of a matching program. A covered computer matching program entails not only the actual computerized comparison, but also preparing and executing a written agreement between the participants, securing approval of the Defense Data Integrity Board, publishing a matching notice in the Federal Register before the match begins, ensuring that investigation and due process are completed, and taking ultimate action, if any.
§ 317.91 Federal personnel or payroll record matches.

(a) Scope. These computer matching programs include matches comparing records from agency automated Federal personnel or payroll systems of records with such automated like records of another Federal agency; or with a non-Federal agency. It also includes matches between DoD components or within the agency itself (internal matches).

(b) Computerized comparisons. The matching must be done using a computer. Manual comparisons are not covered.

(c) Exclusion. Matches must be done for other than “routine administrative purposes.”

(d) Internal matches. In some instances, a covered match may take place within the agency or with another DoD component. For example, the agency may wish to determine whether any of its own personnel, participating in a benefit program administered by the Department of Defense, are not complying with the program’s eligibility requirements. This internal match will certainly result in an adverse action if ineligibility is discovered. Therefore, it is covered by the requirements of the Privacy Act. The agency should not attempt to avoid the reach of the Act, for example, by improperly combining dissimilar systems into a single system, matching data within that system to make an eligibility determination, and arguing that the match is not covered because only one system of records is involved.

(e) Categories of record subjects. The categories of individuals whose records are used in this type of matching program must be carefully analyzed before making a determination whether a proposed match is covered. All information on subjects of record is maintained in the agency’s system of records, but matching under the particular programs covered by this subsection is limited to “Federal personnel.” For matching purposes, a Federal personnel system of records should not be confused with, or limited to, the commonly recognized personnel system of records maintained by a civilian personnel office or a military assignment branch. The agency may be maintaining within a single system of records several categories of records relating to Federal personnel and other categories on non-Federal personnel, e.g., contractor personnel, applicants, dependents, etc. Some categories may be covered while others may not. Unlike “Federal personnel,” the subjects of record of payroll record systems are easily discerned.

(f) Matching purpose. The purpose of a Federal personnel or payroll records match must be to take some adverse action, financial, personnel, disciplinary, or other adverse action against Federal personnel.

§ 317.92 Federal benefit matches.

(a) Categories of subjects covered. The Privacy Act provisions cover only the following categories of subjects of record for Federal benefit matches.

(1) Applicants for Federal benefit programs (i.e., individuals initially applying for benefits).

(2) Program beneficiaries (i.e., individuals currently receiving or formerly receiving benefits).

(3) Providers of services to support such programs (i.e., those deriving income from them such as health care providers).

(b) Types of programs covered. Only Federal benefit programs providing cash or in-kind assistance to individuals are covered by the Privacy Act. State programs are not covered. Programs using records about subjects who are not “individuals”. See definitions of this part (§317.3).

(c) Matching purpose. A Federal benefit match must have as its purpose one or more of the following:

(1) Establishing or verifying initial or continuing eligibility for Federal benefit programs.

(2) Verifying compliance with the requirements, either statutory or regulatory, of such programs.

(3) Recouping payments or delinquent debts under such Federal benefit programs.

(d) Summary of basic requirements. Four basic elements:

(1) Computerized comparison.

(2) Categories of subjects.

(3) Federal benefit program, and Matching program exclusions.

The following are not included under the definition of a matching program. The agency is not required to comply with the computer matching provisions of the Privacy Act, although it may be required to comply with any other applicable provisions of the Act and this part.

(a) Statistical matches whose purpose is solely to produce aggregate data stripped of personal identifiers. This does not mean that the data bases used in the match must be stripped prior to the match, but only that the results of the match must not contain data identifying any individual. Implicit in this exception is that this kind of match is not done to take action against specific individuals.

(b) Statistical matches whose purpose is in support of any research or statistical project. The results of these matches need not be stripped of identifiers, but they must not be used to make decisions that affect the rights, benefits or privileges of specific individuals.

(c) Pilot matches. This exclusion covers small scale sampling matches whose purpose is to gather cost-benefit data on which to premise a decision about engaging in a full-fledged matching program. Pilot matches must be retained in a statistical information gathering channel. It is at this point that the component can decide whether to conduct a statistical data gathering match without consequences to the subjects of record or a full-fledged matching program where results will be used to take specific action against them. To avoid possible misuse of pilot matches and to ensure full compliance with the Privacy Act, these matches must be approved by the Defense Data Integrity Board.

(d) Law enforcement investigative matches whose purpose is to gather evidence against a named person or persons in an existing investigation. (1) To be eligible for the exclusion the match must be performed by an activity of a component whose principal function involves enforcement of criminal laws, i.e., an activity that is authorized to exempt certain of its systems of records under subsection (j)(2) of the Privacy Act.

(2) The match must flow from an investigation already underway which focuses on a named person or persons. Subjects identified generically, e.g., “program beneficiaries,” are not eligible.

(3) The investigation may be into either criminal or civil law violations.

(4) In the context of this exclusion, only, person or persons could include subjects that are other than individuals as defined in the Privacy Act, such as corporations or other business entities. For example, a business entity could be named subject of the investigation and records matched could be those of customers or clients.

(5) The match must be for the purpose of gathering evidence against the named person or persons.

(e) Tax administration matches. (1) Matches involving disclosures of taxpayer return information to state or local tax officials pursuant to section 6103(d) of the Internal Revenue Code.

(2) Tax refund offset matches accomplished pursuant to the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984.

(3) Matches done for tax administration pursuant to section 6103(b)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code.

(4) Tax refund offset matches conducted pursuant to other statutes provided approval of the Office of Management and Budget is obtained.

(f) Routine administrative matches using Federal personnel records. These are matches between the agency and other Federal agencies or between the agency and non-Federal agencies for administrative purposes that use data bases that contain records predominately relating to Federal personnel. The term “predominantly” means that the percentage of records in the system that are about Federal employees must be greater than of any other category contained therein. For the purpose of disclosing records subject to the Privacy Act, the Department of Defense is considered a single agency.

(1) The purpose of the match must not be intended to result in an adverse action. Matches whose purpose is to take any adverse financial, personnel, disciplinary or other adverse action against Federal personnel whose records are involved in the match, are not excluded from the Act's coverage.

(2) An example of a match that is excluded is an agency's disclosure of time and attendance information on all agency employees to the Department of the Treasury in order to prepare the agency's payroll.

(3) This exclusion does not bring under the Act's coverage matches that may ultimately result in an adverse action. It only requires that their purpose not be intended to result in an adverse action.

(g) Internal matches using only records from DoD systems of records. (1) Internal matches (conducted within the Department of Defense) are excluded on the same basis as Federal personnel record matching provided no adverse intent as to a Federal employee motivates the match.

(2) This exclusionary provision does not disturb subsection (b)(1) of the Act permitting disclosure to DoD employees on an official need-to-know basis.

(3) The purpose of the internal match must not be to take any adverse financial, personnel, disciplinary, or other adverse action against Federal personnel.

(h) Background investigation and foreign counterintelligence matches. Matches done in the course of performing a background check for security clearances of Federal personnel or Federal contractor personnel are not covered. Matches done for the purpose of foreign counterintelligence are also not covered.

§ 317.94 Conducting matching programs.

(a) Source and recipient agencies. The agency, if undertaking a matching program, should consider if it will be a "source agency" or a "recipient agency" for the match and be prepared to meet the following requirements:

(1) The recipient agency does the matching. It receives the data from system of records of other Federal agencies or data from state and local governments and actually performs the match by computer.

(2) The recipient agency is responsible for publishing a notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER of the matching program. Where a state or local agency is the recipient, the Federal source agency is responsible for publishing the notice.

(3) A Federal source agency discloses the data from a system of records for the match. A non-Federal agency may also be a source, but the record data will not be from a system of records. The "system of records" concept under the Privacy Act does not apply to the recordkeeping practices of state or local governmental agencies.

(4) The recipient Federal agency, or the Federal source agency in a match performed by a non-Federal agency, is responsible for reporting the match. This agency must contact the other participants to gather the information necessary to make a unified report as required by §317.100.

(5) In some circumstances, a source agency may be the instigator and ultimate beneficiary of the matching program, as when an agency lacking computer resources uses another agency to perform the match; or when as a practical matter, an agency may not wish to release and disclose its data base to another agency as a source because of privacy safeguard considerations.

(b) Compliance with the system of records and disclosure provisions. (1) The agency must ensure that it identifies the system(s) of records involved in the matching program and has published the necessary notice(s) in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(2) The Privacy Act does not itself authorize disclosures from system of records for the purpose of conducting a matching program. The agency must classify any disclosures outside the Department of Defense under subsection (b) of the Act. This means obtaining the written consent of the subjects of record for the disclosure or relying on one of the 12 non-consensual disclosures exceptions to the written consent rule. To rely on the routine use exception (b)(3), the agency must have already established the routine use (published in the FEDERAL REGISTER), or in the alternative, must comply with subsections (e)(4)(d) and (e)(11) of the Act which means amending the record system notice to add an appropriate routine use for the match. An amendment requires publication in the Federal Register with a 30 day waiting period for public comment.

(3) The routine use permitting disclosure for the match must be compatible with and related to the purpose for which the record was initially compiled.

(4) The routine use for the match in a record system notice shall clearly indicate that it entails a computer matching program with a specific agency for an established purpose and intended objective. For purposes of matching, a routine use must state that a disclosure may be made for a matching program. The agency may not rely on an existing established routine use to meet the requirements of the Act unless it expressly permits disclosure for matching purposes.

(c) Prior notice to record subjects. Subjects of record must receive prior notice that their records may be matched. This may be done by direct and/or constructive notice.

(1) Direct notice may be given when there is some form of contact between the government and the subject. Information can be furnished to individuals on the application form when they apply for a benefit, in a notice that arrives with a benefit, or in correspondence they receive in the mail. Use of the advisory Privacy Act Statement is an acceptable manner to provide direct notice to subjects of record at the time of application. The agency shall provide direct notice for front-end eligibility verification matching programs whose purpose is to validate an applicant’s initial eligibility for a benefit and later to determine continued eligibility using the Privacy Act Statement. Providers of services should be given notice (Privacy Act Statement) on the form on which they apply for reimbursement for services provided. Providing notice of matching programs using the Privacy Act Statement shall be part of the normal process of implementing a Federal benefits program. The agency shall insure records contain appropriate revisions.

(2) Constructive notice can only be given by an appropriate routine use disclosure provision of the affected system of records to be used in the match. For purely internal matching program uses, amend the “Purpose(s)” element of the record system notice to specifically reflect those internal computer matches performed. The constructive notice method requires publication in the Federal Register. Examples of when constructive notice may be used:

(i) For matching programs whose purpose is to locate individuals in order to recoup payments improperly granted to former beneficiaries, direct notice may well be impossible and constructive notice may have to suffice.

(ii) The agency that discloses records to a state or local government in support of a non-Federal matching program is not obligated to provide direct notice to each subject of record. Federal Register publication in this instance is sufficient.

(iii) Investigative matches where direct notice immediately prior to a match would provide the subject an opportunity to alter behavior.

(3) The agency shall also provide periodic notice whenever an application is renewed, or at the least during the period the match is authorized to take place by providing notice accompanying the benefit as approved by the Defense Data Integrity Board.

(d) Publication of the matching notice.

(1) The matching agency is required to publish in the Federal Register a notice of any proposed matching program or alteration of an established program at least 30 days prior to conducting the match for any public comment. Only one notice is required. When a non-Federal agency is the matching agency, the source agency shall be responsible for the publication. The proposed matching notice for publication shall be submitted in Federal Register format and included in the agency report. The notice shall contain the customary preamble and contain the required information in sufficient detail describing the match so that the reader will easily understand the nature and purpose of the match, including any adverse consequences.

(2) The preamble to the notice shall be prepared by the Defense Privacy Office, DA&M, and shall contain:

(i) The date the transmittal letters to OMB and Congress are signed.
§ 317.95 Providing due process to matching subjects.

(a) Independent verification and notice. Subjects of record of matching programs shall be afforded certain due process procedures when a match uncovers any disqualifying or adverse information about them. No recipient agency, non-Federal agency, or source agency shall take any adverse action against an individual until such agency has independently verified such information and the individual has received a notice from the agency containing a statement of its findings and gives the individual the opportunity to contest the findings before making a final determination. The agency shall not take any adverse action based on the raw results of a computer matching program. Adverse information developed by a match must be investigated and verified prior to any action being taken.

(b) Waiver of independent verification procedures. Program officials may request the Data Integrity Board waive the independent verification requirement after they have identified the type of matching data eligible for a waiver and conducted a thorough determination of the data's accuracy. The only data eligible for waiver is that which identifies the individual and the amount of benefits paid under a federal benefit program. The data must not be ambiguous. After the Data Integrity Board determines that the data qualifies for the waiver procedure, the program official must present convincing evidence to the Data Integrity Board of the recipient agency to permit the Board to assert a high degree of confidence in the accuracy of the data. The following elements are examples of evidence which will assist a Board in making such a determination: A description of the databases involved including how the information is acquired and maintained; the system manager's overall assessment of the reliability of the systems and the accuracy of the data they contain; the results of any assessments or audits conducted; any material or significant weaknesses under various statutes; security controls in place; previous security assessments; any historical data relating to program error rates; and any information relating to the currency of the data. If the Board approves the waiver, it will notify the source agency and the program officials.

(c) Independent investigation. Conservation of resources dictates that the procedures for affording due process be flexible and suited to the data being verified and the consequences to the individual of making a mistake. If the source agency has established a high degree of confidence in the quality of its data and it can demonstrate that its quality control processes are rigorous, the recipient agency may choose to expend fewer resources in independently verifying the data. Absolute confirmation is not required. The agency should bring some degree of reasonableness to the process of verifying data. Some methods to consider are:

(1) The individual subject of record who is the best source where practical, and
(2) Researching source documents.

(d) Notice and opportunity to contest. The agency is required to notify matching subjects of adverse information uncovered during a matching program and give them an opportunity to contest and explain before the agency makes a final determination. Recipients already receiving benefits may not have them suspended or reduced pending expiration of the contest period. Individuals have 30 days to respond to a notice of adverse action, unless a statute or regulation grants a longer period. The period runs from the date of the notice until 30 calendar days. The agency shall allow an additional five days for mailing time before ending the notice period. If an individual contacts the agency within the notice period (35 days) and indicates his or her acceptance of the validity of the adverse information, the agency may take immediate action to deny or terminate. The agency may also take action if the period expires without a response.

(e) Combining verification and notice requirements. It may be appropriate to combine the verification and notice requirements into a single step, especially if the subject of record is the best source for verification. In this manner, the adverse finding and notice of the opportunity to contest are compressed into a single action. This method is dependent upon the confidence, reliability and quality of the data. Careful thought should be given as to when to apply this method. It may be applicable in special cases, but should not be considered as a routine process. To ensure that this consideration takes place, it shall be the responsibility of the Defense Data Integrity Board to make a formal determination as to when it is appropriate to compress the verification and notice into a single period.

(f) Individual status pending due process. The agency may not make a final determination as to applicants for Federal benefit programs whose eligibility is being verified through a matching program until they have completed the due process steps the Act requires. This does not require placing an applicant on the rolls pending a determination, but only that the agency not make a final determination. However, if a subject is already receiving benefits, the benefits shall not be suspended or reduced until due process steps have been completed. If the specific Federal benefit program involved in the match has its own due process requirements, those requirements may suffice for the purposes of the Privacy Act, provided the Defense Data Integrity Board determines that they are at least as strong as the Privacy Act's provisions.

(g) Exclusion. (1) If the agency determines a potentially significant effect... on public health or safety is likely, it may take appropriate action, notwithstanding these due process requirements.

(2) In such cases, the agency shall include the possibility of suspension of due process for this reason in its matching program agreement.

§ 317.96 Matching program agreement.

(a) Requirements. The agency should allow sufficient lead time to ensure that a matching agreement between the participants can be negotiated and signed in time to secure the Defense Data Integrity Board decision before the match begins. The agency, if receiving records from or disclosing records to a non-Federal agency for use in a matching program, is responsible for preparing the matching agreement and should solicit relevant data from the non-Federal agency where necessary. Both Federal source and recipient agencies must have the matching agreement approved by their respective Data Integrity Boards. In cases where matching takes place entirely within the Department of Defense, the agency may satisfy the matching agreement requirements by preparing a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between the systems of records managers involved. Before the agency may participate in a matching program the Defense Data Integrity Board must have evaluated the proposed match and approved the terms of the matching agreement or MOU.

(b) Agreements or MOUs must contain the following elements—

(1) Purpose and legal authority. Citation of the Federal or state statutory or regulatory authority for undertaking the matching program. Do not cite the Privacy Act.

(2) Justification and expected results. A full explanation of why a computer matching program, as opposed to some other form of activity, is being proposed and what the expected results will be, including a specific estimate of any savings.

(3) Records description. A full identification of the system of records (FEDERAL REGISTER citations) or non-Federal records, number of subjects of record, and what data elements will be included in the match.

(4) Dates. An indication of whether the match is a one-time or continuing program (not to exceed 18 months) and the projected starting and completion dates for the match.

(5) Prior notice to subjects of record. A description of the direct and constructive notice procedures afforded the subjects of record. Copies of the published applicable record system notices involved and all applicable forms containing the appropriate Privacy Act Statement being used by the participants of the proposed match should be provided.

(6) Verification procedures. A full description of the methods the agency will use to independently verify the information obtained through the matching program.

(7) Disposition of matched items. A statement that the information generated as a result of the matching program will be destroyed as soon as it has served the matching program's purpose and any legal retention requirements the agency establishes in conjunction with the National Archives and Records Administration or other cognizant authority.

(8) Security procedures. A description of the administrative, technical and physical safeguards to be used in protecting the information. They should be commensurate with the level of sensitivity of the data.

(9) Records usage, duplication and disclosure restrictions. A description of any specific restrictions imposed by either the source agency or by statute or regulation on collateral uses of the records used in the matching program. Recipient agencies may not use the records obtained for a matching program under a matching agreement for any other purpose unless there is a specific statutory authority or there is a direct essential connection to the conduct of the matching program. Agreements shall specify how long the recipient agency may keep records provided for a matching program and when they will be returned to the source agency or destroyed.

(10) Records accuracy assessments. A description of any information relating to the quality of the records to be used in the matching program such as the error rate percentage of the data entry.
for the affected records. The worse the quality of the data, the less likely the matching program will have a cost-beneficial result.

(11) Disclosure Accounting. A certification by the agency participating in a matching program as a source agency for disclosures outside the Department of Defense that a disclosure accounting shall be maintained on the subjects of record as required by the Privacy Act.

(12) Access by the Comptroller General. A statement that the Comptroller General may have access to all records of a recipient DoD component or non-Federal agency necessary to monitor or verify compliance with the agreement. In this instance, the Comptroller General may inspect state or local government records used in matching programs.

(c) Non-Federal agencies. Non-Federal agencies intending to participate in covered matching programs are required to do the following:

(1) Execute matching agreements prepared by a Federal agency or agencies involved in the matching program.

(2) Provide data to Federal agencies on the costs and benefits of matching programs.

(3) Certify that they will not take adverse action against an individual as a result of any information developed in a matching program unless the information has been independently verified and until the applicable number of days after the individual has been notified of the findings and given an opportunity to contest them has elapsed.

(4) For renewals of matching programs, certify that the terms of the agreement have been followed.

(d) Duration of matching programs. Matching agreements will remain in force only as long as necessary to fulfill their specific purposes. They will automatically expire 18 months after their approval unless the Defense Data Integrity Board grants an extension of up to one year at least three months prior to the actual expiration date. The program must remain unchanged if an extension is to be granted. Each party to the agreement must certify that the program has been conducted in compliance with the matching agreement. Requests for extensions shall be submitted through channels to the Board.

(e) Altered matching program. (1) An altered matching program is one that is already established, but with such a significant change proposed that it requires revision of the matching notice and approval of the Defense Data Integrity Board, OMB and Congress. A significant change is one which does one or more of the following:

(i) Changes the purpose for which the program was established.

(ii) Changes the matching population either by including new categories of subjects of record, or by greatly increasing the numbers of records matched.

(iii) Changes the legal authority under which the match was being conducted.

(iv) Changes the records (data elements) that will be used in the match.

(2) A proposal to alter an established matching program shall be submitted through channels to the Defense Data Integrity Board for review and approval.

(f) Non compliance sanctions. (1) The agency shall not disclose any record for use in a matching program as a source agency to any recipient agency (within or outside the Department of Defense) if there is reason to believe that the terms of the matching agreement/MOU or the due process requirements are not being met by the recipient agency. The Defense Privacy Office, DA&M, shall be informed immediately, through channels, should any such incident occur. Normally consulting with the recipient agency should resolve the problem, but the responsibility rests with the source.

(2) No source agency shall renew a matching agreement/MOU unless the recipient agency (within or outside the Department of Defense) has certified that it has complied with the provisions of the agreement/MOU and the agency has no reason to believe otherwise.

(3) A willful disclosure of records from a system of records for any unauthorized computer matching program may subject the responsible officer or employee to criminal penalties. Civil remedies are also available to matching program subjects who can show § 317.97 Cost-benefit analysis.

(a) Purpose. The requirement for a cost-benefit analysis by the Act is to assist the agency in determining whether or not to conduct or participate in a matching program. Its application is required in two places: As an agency conclusion in the matching agreement containing the justification and specific estimate of savings; and in the Data Integrity Board review process where it is forwarded as part of the matching proposal. The intent of this requirement is not to create a presumption that when agencies balance individual rights and cost savings, the latter should inevitably prevail. Rather, it is to ensure that sound management practices are followed when agencies use records from Privacy Act systems in matching programs. It is not in the government’s interest to engage in matching activities that drain agency resources that could be better spent elsewhere. Agencies should use the cost-benefit requirement as an opportunity to re-examine programs and weed out those that produce only marginal results.

(b) Cost-benefit analysis. The agency, when proposing matching programs, must provide the Board with all information which is relevant and necessary to allow the Board to make an informed decision including a cost-benefit analysis. The Defense Data Integrity Board shall not approve any matching agreement unless the Board finds the cost-benefit analysis demonstrates the program is likely to be cost effective.

(1) The Board may waive the cost-benefit analysis requirement if it determines in writing that submission of such an analysis is not required.

(2) If a matching program is required by a specific statute, then a cost-benefit analysis is not required. However, any renegotiation of such a matching agreement shall be accompanied by a cost-benefit analysis. The finding need not be favorable. The intent, in this case, is to provide Congress with information to help it evaluate the effectiveness of statutory matching requirements.

(3) The Board must find that agreements conform to the provisions of the Act and appropriate guidelines, regulations, and statutes.

§ 317.98 Appeals of denials of matching agreements.

(a) Disapproval by the Board. If the Defense Data Integrity Board disapproves a matching agreement, a party to the agreement may appeal the disapproval to the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, Washington, DC 20503. Appeals must be made within 30 days after the Defense Data Integrity Board’s written disapproval. The appealing party shall submit with its appeal the following:

(1) Copies of all documentation accompanying the initial matching agreement proposal.

(2) A copy of the Defense Data Integrity Board’s disapproval and reasons.

(3) Evidence supporting the cost-benefit effectiveness of the match.

(4) Any other relevant information, e.g., timing considerations, public interest served by the match, etc.

(b) OMB approval. If the Director of the Office of Management and Budget approves a matching program it will not become effective until 30 days after the Director reports his decision to Congress.

(c) Recourse by the Inspector General. If the Defense Data Integrity Board and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget both disapprove a matching program proposed by the Inspector General of the denial agency, the Inspector General may report that disapproval to the head of Department of Defense and to the Congress.

§ 317.99 Proposals for matching programs.

(a) Who initiates the action. The recipient DoD component (or the DoD component source agency in a match conducted by a non-Federal agency); or the recipient activity within the DoD component for internal matches, is responsible for reporting the match for Board approval. The responsible official should contact the other participants to gather the information necessary to make a unified report.

(b) New or altered matching programs. Determine if the match is a new program or an existing one. A new match is one for which no public notice has been published in the Federal Register. An altered matching program is an established (published public notice) match with such a significant change that it requires amendment. An altered matching program should not be confused with a request for an unchanged extension of an established program.

(c) Contents of report (original and one copy). (1) A proposed new matching program report shall consist of an agency letter of transmittal with the following attached documents:

(i) Completed agreement between the participants.
(ii) Benefit/cost analysis.
(iii) Proposed Federal Register matching notice for public review and comment.
(iv) Copies of all the appropriate forms (e.g., applications) of the participating parties providing direct notice to the individual or any other means of communication used.
(v) Copy or copies of the appropriate Federal Register system(s) of record notice(s) containing an appropriate routine use providing constructive notice to the individual.

(2) A report on a proposed alteration to an established matching program shall consist of an agency letter of transmittal with the following attached documents:

(i) A report containing the significant change(s) and the following additional information:
(A) What alternatives to matching the agencies considered and why a matching program was chosen.
(B) The date the match was approved by each participating Federal agency’s Data Integrity Board.
(C) Whether a cost-benefit analysis was required and, if so, whether it projected a favorable ratio.

(ii) Proposed Federal Register matching notice for public review and comment.

(g) Requests for waivers. The agency may seek waivers of certain matching program requirements including the 30 day time period for OMB and Congressional review and the 30 day notice and comment period for the Matching Notice may run concurrently.
§ 317.110 Administrative remedies.

An individual who alleges he or she has been affected adversely by a violation of the Privacy Act shall be permitted to seek relief from the Assistant Director, Resources, through proper administrative channels.

§ 317.111 Civil court actions.

After exhausting all administrative remedies, an individual may file suit (5 U.S.C. 552a(y)) in the Federal court against the agency for any of the following acts:

(a) Denial of an amendment request. The Assistant Director, Resources, or designee refuses the individual’s request for review of the initial denial of an amendment or, after review, refuses to amend the record.

(b) Denial of access. The agency refuses to allow the individual to review the record or denies his or her request for a copy of the record.

(c) Failure to meet recordkeeping standards. The agency fails to maintain the individual’s record with the accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness necessary to assure fairness in any determination about the individual’s rights, benefits, or privileges and, in fact, makes an adverse determination based on the record.

(d) Failure to comply with the Privacy Act. The agency fails to comply with any other provision of the Privacy Act or any rule or regulation promulgated under the Privacy Act and thereby causes the individual to be adversely affected.

§ 317.112 Criminal penalties.

The Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a(i)) authorizes three criminal penalties against individuals. All three are misdemeanors punishable by fines of $5,000.

(a) Wrongful disclosure. Any member or employee of the agency who, by virtue of his or her employment or position, has possession of or access to records and willfully makes a disclosure to anyone not entitled to receive the information.

(b) Maintaining unauthorized records. Any member or employee of the agency who willfully maintains a system of records for which a notice has not been published.

(c) Wrongful requesting or obtaining records. Any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains a record concerning an individual from the agency under false pretenses.

§ 317.113 Litigation status report.

Whenever a civil complaint citing the Privacy Act is filed against the agency in Federal court or whenever criminal charges are brought against an individual in Federal court (including referral to a court-martial) for any offense, the agency shall notify the Defense Privacy Office, DA&M. The litigation status report included in appendix C to this part provides a format for this notification. An initial litigation status report shall be forwarded providing, as a minimum, the information specified. An updated litigation status report shall be sent at each stage of litigation. When the court renders a formal disposition of the case, copies of the court’s action, along with the litigation status report reporting the action, shall be sent to the Defense Privacy Office, DA&M.
§ 317.114 Annual review of enforcement actions.

(a) Annual review. The agency shall review annually the actions of its personnel that have resulted in either the agency being found civilly liable or an agency member being found criminally liable under the Privacy Act.

(b) Reporting results. The agency shall be prepared to report the results of the annual review to the Defense Privacy Office, DA&M.

Subpart K—Reports

§ 317.120 Report requirements.

(a) Statutory requirements. Subsection (p) of the Privacy Act requires a report and assigns to the Office of Management and Budget the responsibility for compiling the report.

(b) OMB requirements. (1) In addition to the report, the Office of Management and Budget requires that all agencies be prepared to report the results of the reviews.

(2) All reports of the agency concerning implementation of the Privacy Act shall be submitted to the Defense Privacy Office, DA&M, which shall prescribe the contents and suspense for such reports.

§ 317.121 Reports.

(a) Submission to the Defense Privacy Office. The agency shall prepare statistics and other documentation for the preceding calendar year concerning those items prescribed for the annual report and any reports of the reviews required, and when directed, send them to the Defense Privacy Office, DA&M.

(b) Report Control Symbol. Unless otherwise directed, any report concerning implementation of the Privacy Program shall be assigned Report Control Symbol DD-DA&M(A)1379.

(2) Name and telephone number of agency official who can best answer questions about this report.

(3) Agency Privacy Act Officials.

(i) Senior Agency Official.

(ii) Privacy Act Officer.

(4) If your agency was involved in any litigation involving the Privacy Act,

(i) Provide a citation to the case and a brief description of the background, issues and results.

(ii) If the cases required your agency to change its practices, describe how.

(5) Systems of Records Inventory:

(i) Total number of systems of records as of December 31, 19XX.

(ii) Number of exempt systems.

(iii) Number of automated systems (either in whole or part).

(vi) Number of routine uses added.

(vii) Number of routine uses deleted.

(viii) Number of existing systems to which an exemption(s) was added, and

(7) Access requests (first party requests which cited the Privacy Act):

(i) Number of requests.

(ii) Number granted in whole or in part.

(iii) Number denied in whole.

(iv) Number for which no record was found.

(8) Amendment requests (first party requests which cited the Privacy Act):

Subpart L—Agency Exemption Rules

§ 317.130 Establishing and using exemptions.

(a) Types of exemptions. (1) There are two types of exemptions permitted by the Privacy Act:
   (i) General exemptions that authorize the exemption of a system of records from all but specifically identified provisions of the Privacy Act, and
   (ii) Specific exemptions that allow a system of records to be exempted from only a few designated provisions of the Privacy Act.
   (2) Neither the Privacy Act nor this part permits exemption of a system of records from all provisions of the Privacy Act.

(b) Establishing exemptions. (1) Neither general nor specific exemptions are established automatically for a system of records. Only the Director of DCAA or his/her designee shall make a determination that the system is one for which an exemption may be established and then propose and establish an exemption rule for the system. No system of records within the agency shall be considered exempted until the Assistant Director, Resources, DCAA has approved the exemption and an exemption rule has been published as a final rule in the Federal Register for this part.
   (2) Only the Assistant Director, Resources, or his or her designee, may establish an exemption for a system of records.
   (3) No exemption may be established for a system of records until the system itself has been established by publishing a notice in the Federal Register describing the system.
   (4) A system of records is exempt from only those provisions of the Privacy Act that are identified specifically in the agency exemption rule for the system.
   (c) Provisions to which exemptions may be applied. After, or along with, establishing the system of records, the Assistant Director, Resources, may establish an exemption rule that shall exempt the system of records from any provision of the Privacy Act for which an exemption is allowed.

(d) Using exemptions. (1) Exemptions should be used only for the specific purposes stated in the exemption rules and only when in the best interest of the Government. Exemptions should be applied to only the specific portions of the records that require protection.
   (2) An exemption should not be used to deny an individual access to information that he or she can obtain under the FOIA.
   (e) Exempt records maintained in non-exempt systems. (1) An exemption rule applies to the system of records for which it was established. If a record from an exempted system is incorporated intentionally into a system that has not been exempted, the published notice and rules for the non-exempted system will apply to the record and it will not be exempt from any provisions of the Privacy Act.
   (2) A record from one DoD component's exempted system that is temporarily in the possession of another DoD component remains subject to the published system notice and rules of the originating DoD component. However, if the non-originating DoD component incorporates the record into its own system of records, the published notice and rules for the system into which it is incorporated shall apply. If that system of records has not been exempted, the record shall not be exempt from any provisions of the Privacy Act.
   (3) Care should be exercised that exempt records are not accidentally misfiled into a system of records that are not exempted

§ 317.131 General exemptions.

(a) Using general exemptions. (1) DCAA is not authorized to establish the exemption for records maintained by the Central Intelligence agency under subsection (j)(1) of the Privacy Act.
   (2) The general exemption provided by subsection (j)(2) of the Privacy Act may be established to protect criminal law enforcement records maintained by the agency.
   (3) To be eligible for the (j)(2) exemption, the system of records must be maintained by an element that performs, as one of its principal functions, the enforcement of criminal laws.
   (4) Criminal law enforcement includes police efforts to detect, prevent, control, or reduce crime, or to apprehend criminals, and the activities of prosecution, court, correctional, probation, pardon, or parole authorities.

(5) Information that may be protected under the (j)(2) exemption includes:

(i) Information compiled for the purpose of identifying criminal offenders and alleged criminal offenders consisting of only identifying data and notations of arrests; the nature and disposition of criminal charges; and sentencing, confinement, release, parole, and probation status.

(ii) Information compiled for the purpose of a criminal investigation, including reports of informants and investigators, and associated with an identifiable individual; and

(iii) Reports identifiable to an individual, compiled at any stage of the enforcement process, from arrest, apprehension, indictment, or preferential charges through final release from the supervision that resulted from the commission of a crime.

(6) The (j)(2) exemption does not apply to:

(i) Investigative records maintained by an element having no criminal law enforcement activity as one of its principal functions, or

(ii) Investigative records compiled by any element concerning individuals' suitability, eligibility, or qualification for duty, employment, or access to classified information, regardless of the principal functions of the DoD component that compiled them.

(7) The (j)(2) exemption established for a system of records maintained by a criminal law enforcement element cannot protect law enforcement records incorporated into a non-exempted system of records or any system of records maintained by an element not principally tasking with enforcing criminal laws. Agency system managers are prohibited to incorporate criminal law enforcement records into systems other than those maintained by criminal law enforcement elements.

(b) Access to records under a (j)(2) exemption. Requests for access to criminal law enforcement records maintained in a system for which a (j)(2) exemption has been established shall be processed as if also made under the FOIA.

§ 317.132 Specific exemptions.

(a) Using specific exemptions. Specific exemptions permit certain categories of records to be exempted from specific provisions of the Privacy Act. Subsections (k)(1)-7 of the Privacy Act permits claiming exemptions for seven categories of records. To be eligible for a specific exemption, the record must meet the corresponding criteria.

(1) (k)(1) exemption: Information properly classified under DoD 5200.1-R 11 (32 CFR part 159) in the interest of national defense or foreign policy.

(2) (k)(2) exemption: Investigatory information compiled for law enforcement purposes. If maintaining the information causes an individual to be ineligible for or denied any right, benefit, or privilege that he or she would otherwise be eligible for or entitled to under Federal law, then he or she shall be given access to the information, except for the information that would identify a confidential source. The (k)(2) exemption, when established, allows limited protection of investigative records normally maintained in a (j)(2) exempt system for use in personnel and administrative actions.

(3) (k)(3) exemption: Records maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President of the United States and other individuals under 18 U.S.C. 3056.

(4) (k)(4) exemption: Records required by Federal law to be maintained and used solely as statistical records that are not used to make any determination about an identifiable individual, except as provided by 13 U.S.C. 8.

(5) (k)(5) exemption: Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, military service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information, but only to the extent such material would reveal the identity of a confidential source. This exemption allows protection of confidential sources in background investigations, employment inquiries, and similar inquiries used in personnel screening to determine suitability, eligibility, or qualifications.

11See footnote 3 to § 317.1(b).

(6) (k)(6) exemption: Testing or examination material used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the Federal or military service if the disclosure would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process.

(7) (k)(7) exemption: Evaluation material used to determine potential for promotion in the military services, but only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(b) Confidential source. (1) A “confidential source” is defined under the Privacy Act as a person or organization that has furnished information to the Federal Government under an express promise or, before September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the person or organization would be held in confidence.

(2) Promises of confidentiality are to be given on a limited basis and only when essential to obtain the information sought. Appropriate procedures should be established for granting confidentiality and designate those categories of individuals authorized to make such promises.

(c) Access to records under specific exemptions. Requests for access to records maintained in systems of records for which specific exemptions have been established shall be processed as if also made under the FOIA.

§ 317.133 DCAA exempt record systems.

(a) Exempt systems of records. The Director, DCAA has made a determination and claims an exemption for the following agency systems of records by publication of an appropriate exemption rule for the record system and therefore allowing the agency to invoke, at its discretion, the particular exemption permitted by the Privacy Act from certain subsections of the Privacy Act.

(b) Classified material. The Director, DCAA has made a determination that all systems of records maintained by the agency shall be exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) of the Privacy Act pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) to the extent that the record system contains any information properly classified under Executive Order 12958 and required by the executive order to be withheld in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This blanket exemption, which may be applicable to parts of all systems of records, is necessary because certain record systems not otherwise specifically designated for exemptions herein may contain items of information that have been properly classified.

(c) General exemption rules. [Reserved]

(d) Specific exemption rules. [Reserved]

APPENDIX A TO PART 317—DCAA BLANKET ROUTINE USES

A. LAW ENFORCEMENT ROUTINE USE

In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, State, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto.

B. DISCLOSURE WHEN REQUESTING INFORMATION ROUTINE USE

A record from a system of records maintained by this agency may be disclosed as a routine use to a Federal, State, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information, or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to a agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit.

for the Office of Personnel Management to carry out its legally authorized Government-wide personnel management functions and

I. DISCLOSURE TO THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE FOR LITIGATION ROUTINE USE

ing the agency, or any officer, employee or member of the agency in pending or potential litigation to which the record is perti-

J. DISCLOSURE TO MILITARY BANKING FACILITIES OVERSEAS ROUTINE USE

Information as to current military ad-resses and assignments may be provided to military banking facilities that provide banking services overseas and that are reimbursed by the Government for certain checking and loan losses. For personnel separated, discharged, or retired from the Armed Forces, information as to last known residential or home of record address to the military banking facility upon certification by a banking facility officer that the facility has a returned or dishonored check negodefaulted on a loan and that if restitution is not made by the individual, the U.S. Gov-may incur.

K. DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION TO THE GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION ROUTINE USE

(a) An individual seeking notification of whether a system of records, maintained by the Defense Special Weapons Agency, contains a record pertaining to himself/herself and who desires to review, have copies made of such records, or to be provided an accounting of disclosures from such records, shall submit his or her request in writing. Requesters are encouraged to review the systems of records notices published by the Agency so as to specifically identify the particular record system(s) of interest to be accessed.

(b) In addition to meeting the requirements set forth in section 318.4 of this part, the individual seeking notification, review or copies, and an accounting of disclosures will provide in writing his or her full name, address, Social Security Number, and a telephone number where the requester can be contacted should questions arise concerning the request. Individuals may request copies for retention of any documents to which they are granted access in DSWA records pertaining to them. Requesters will not be charged for the first copy of any records provided; however, duplicate copies will require a charge to cover costs of reproduction. Such charges will be computed in accordance with DoD 5400.11-R.

§ 318.11 Exemption rules.

(a) Exemption for classified material. All systems of records maintained by the Defense Special Weapons Agency shall be exempt under section (k)(1) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, to the extent that the systems contain any information properly classified under E.O. 12598 and that is required by that E.O. to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This exemption is applicable to parts of all systems of records including those not otherwise specifically designated for exemptions herein which contain isolated items of properly classified information.

(b) System identifier and name: HDSWA 007, Security Operations.

(1) Exemption: Portions of this system of records may be exempt from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d)(1) through (d)(4), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), (I), and (f).

(2) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(3) Reasons: (i) From subsection (c)(3) because it will enable DSWA to safeguard certain investigations and relay law enforcement information without compromise of the information, and protect the identities of confidential sources who might not otherwise come forward and who have furnished information under an express promise that the sources' identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise.)

(ii) From subsection (d)(1) through (d)(4) and (f) because providing access to records of a civil investigation and the right to contest the contents of those records and force changes to be made to the information contained therein would seriously interfere with and thwart the orderly and unbiased conduct of security investigations. Providing access rights normally afforded under the Privacy Act would provide the subject with valuable information that would allow interference with or compromise of witnesses or render witnesses reluctant to cooperate; lead to suppression, alteration, or destruction of evidence; and result in the secreting of or other disposition of assets that would make them difficult or impossible to reach in order to satisfy any Government claim growing out of the investigation or proceeding.

(iii) From subsection (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), (I) because it will provide protection against notification of investigatory material including certain reciprocal investigations and counterintelligence information, which might alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and the disclosure of which would weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy who furnished information; under an express promise that the sources' identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise.)

(d) System identifier and name: HDSWA 011, Inspector General Investigation Files.

(1) Exemption: Portions of this system of records may be exempt from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d)(1) through (4); (e)(1); (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I); and (f).

(2) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a (k)(2).

(3) Reasons: (i) From subsection (c)(3) because it will enable DSWA to conduct certain investigations and relay law enforcement information without compromise of the information, protection of investigative techniques and efforts employed, and identities of confidential sources who might not otherwise come forward and who furnished information under an express promise that the sources' identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise.)

(ii) From subsection (d)(1) through (d)(4) and (f) because providing access to records of a civil investigation and the right to contest the contents of those records and force changes to be made to the information contained therein would seriously interfere with and thwart the orderly and unbiased conduct of the investigation and impede case preparation. Providing access rights normally afforded under the Privacy Act would provide the subject with valuable information that would allow interference with or compromise of witnesses or render witnesses reluctant to cooperate; lead to suppression, alteration, or destruction of evidence; and result in the secreted or other disposition of assets that would make them difficult or impossible to reach in order to satisfy the Government claim growing out of the investigation or proceeding.

(iii) From subsection (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I) because it will provide protection against notification of investigatory material including certain reciprocal investigations and counterintelligence information, which might alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and the disclosure of which would weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy who furnished information under an express promise that the sources' identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise.)

EDITORIAL NOTE: At 62 FR 67291, Dec. 24, 1997. § 318.9 was redesignated as § 318.11. At 63 FR 33248, June 18, 1998. § 318.9 was amended by redesignating paragraph (d) as (c), however, § 318.9 no longer exists.

§ 319.7 Special procedures: Medical records.

Medical records, requested pursuant to §319.5 of this part, will be disclosed to the requester unless the disclosure of such records directly to the requester could, in the judgment of a physician, have an adverse effect on the physical or mental health or safety and welfare of the requester or other persons with whom he may have contact. In such an instance, the information will be transmitted to a physician named by the requester or to a person qualified to make a psychiatric or medical determination.

§ 319.8 Request for correction or amendment to record.

(c) The requester shall provide a brief written statement setting forth the reasons for his or her disagreement with the initial determination and provide such additional supporting material as the individual feels necessary to justify his or her appeal.

(d) Within 30 days (excluding Saturday, Sunday, and legal public holidays) of the receipt of request for review, the Agency shall advise the individual of the final disposition of his or her request.

(e) In those cases where the initial determination is reversed, the individual will be so informed and the Agency will take appropriate action.

(f) In those cases where the initial determinations are sustained, the individual shall be advised:

(c) In the absence of an agreement to pay required anticipated costs, the time for responding to a request begins on resolution of this agreement to pay.

(d) The fees may be paid by check, draft or postal money order payable to the Treasurer of the United States. Remittance will be forwarded to the office designated in §319.5(e).

§ 319.12 General exemptions. [Reserved]

§ 319.13 Specific exemptions.

(a) All systems of records maintained by the Director Intelligence Agency shall be exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) pursuant to 5 U.S.C.
§ 319.13

552a(k)(1) to the extent that the system contains any information properly classified under Executive order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This exemption, which may be applicable to parts of all systems of records, is necessary because certain record systems not specifically designated for exemption may contain isolated information which has been properly classified.

(b) The Director, Defense Intelligence Agency, designated the systems of records listed below for exemptions under the specified provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended (Pub. L. 93-579):

(c) System identification and name: LDIA 0271, Investigations and Complaints.

(1) Exemption: Any portion of this record system which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (e)(4)(I).

(2) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5).

(3) Reason: The reasons for asserting these exemptions are to ensure the integrity of the Inspector General process within the Agency. The execution requires that information be provided in a free and open manner without fear of retribution or harassment in order to facilitate a just, thorough and timely resolution of the case. Disclosures from this system can enable individuals to conceal their wrongdoing or mislead the course of the investigation by concealing, destroying or fabricating evidence or documents. Also, disclosures can subject sources to harassment or intimidation which may cause individuals not to seek redress for wrongs through Inspector General channels for fear of retribution or harassment.

(d) System identification and name: LDIA 0275, DoD Hotline Referrals.

(1) Exemption: Any portion of this record system which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (e)(4)(I).

(2) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5).

(3) Reason: The reasons for asserting these exemptions are to ensure that informants can report instances of fraud and mismanagement without fear of retribution or unauthorized disclosure of their identity. The execution of this function requires that information be provided in a free and open manner without fear of retribution in order to facilitate a just, thorough and timely resolution of the case. These records are privileged Director, DIA, documents and information contained therein is not routinely released or disclosed to anyone.

(e) System identification and name: LDIA 0660, Security Files.

(1) Exemption: Any portion of this record system which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (e)(4)(I).

(2) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5).

(3) Reason: The reasons for asserting these exemptions are to ensure the integrity of the adjudicative process used by the Agency to determine the suitability, eligibility or qualification for Federal service with the Agency and to make determinations concerning the questions of access to classified materials and activities. The proper execution of this function requires that the Agency have the ability to obtain candid and necessary information in order to fully develop or resolve pertinent information developed in the process. Potential sources, out of fear or retaliation, exposure or other action, may be unwilling to provide needed information or may not be sufficiently frank to be a value in personnel screening, thereby seriously interfering with the proper conduct and adjudication of such matters.

(f) System identification and name: LDIA 0800, Operation Record System.

(1) Exemption: Any portion of this record system which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (e)(4)(I).

(2) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5).

§ 321.1 Purpose and applicability.

(a) This part establishes rules, policies and procedures for the disclosure of personal records in the custody of the Defense Investigative Service (DIS) to the individual subjects, the handling of requests for amendment or correction of such records, appeal and review of DIS decisions on these matters, and the application of general and specific exemptions, under the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974. It also prescribes other policies and procedures to effect compliance with the Privacy Act of 1974 and DoD Directive 5400.11.

(b) The procedures set forth in this part do not apply to DIS personnel seeking access to records pertaining to themselves which previously have been available. DIS personnel will continue to be granted ready access to their personnel, security, and other records by making arrangements directly with the maintaining office. DIS personnel should contact the Office of Information and Legal Affairs for access to investigative records pertaining to themselves or any assistance in obtaining access to other records pertaining... to themselves, and may follow the procedures outlined in these rules in any case.

§ 321.2 References.

(c) DIS Regulation 28–4, “Access to and Maintenance of DIS Personal Records”.

(d) DoD Directive 5400.7, DoD Freedom of Information Program.

§ 321.3 Definitions.

(a) All terms used in this part which are defined in 5 U.S.C. 552a shall have the same meaning herein.

(b) As used in this part, the term agency means the Defense Investigative Service.

§ 321.4 Information and procedures for requesting notification.

(a) General. Any individual may request and receive notification of whether he is the subject of a record in any system of records maintained by DIS using the information and procedures described in this section.

(b) Paragraph (d) of this section details the procedure an individual should use to contact DIS and request notification. It will be helpful if the individual states what his connection with DIS has or may have been, and about what record system(s) he is inquiring. Such information is not required, but its absence may cause some delay.

(b) DIS Records Systems. A list of DIS records systems is available by contacting Defense Investigative Service, Office of Information and Public Affairs, 1900 Half Street, SW, Washington, DC 20324–1700.

(c) Categories of individuals in DIS Record Systems. (1) If an individual has ever been investigated by DIS, the investigative case file should be a record in system DIS 5–01. An index to such files should be in DIS 5–02.

(2) If an individual has ever made a formal request to DIS under the Freedom of Information Act or the Privacy Act of 1974, a record pertaining to that request under the name of the requester, or subject matter, will be in system DIS 1–01.

(3) If an individual is or has ever been a member of DIS, i.e., a civilian employee or appointee, or a military assignee, then he may be a subject of any of the 22 record systems depending on his activities, with the following exceptions:

(i) Civilian personnel will not be subjects of DIS 4–05.

(ii) Military personnel will not be subjects of systems DIS 4–06, 4–07, 4–08, or 4–09.

(4) Individuals who have been applicants for employment with DIS, or nominees for assignment to DIS, but who have not completed their DIS affiliation, may be subjects in systems DIS 4–02, 4–04, 5–01, 5–02, or 6–01.

(5) Any individual who is a subject, victim or cross-referenced personally in an investigation by an investigative element of any DoD component, may be referenced in the Defense Central Index of Investigations, system DIS 5–02, in an index to the location, file number, and custodian of the case record.

(6) Individuals who have ever presented a complaint to or have been connected with a DIS Inspector General inquiry may be subjects of records in system DIS 2–01.
(7) If an individual has ever attended the Defense Industrial Security Institute, he should be subject of a record in DIS 7-01.

(8) If an individual has ever been a guest speaker or instructor at the Defense Industrial Security Institute, he should be the subject of a record in DIS 7-02.

(9) If an individual is an employee or major stockholder of a government contractor or other DoD-affiliated company or agency and has been issued, now possesses or has been processed for a security clearance, he may be subject to a record in DIS 8-01.

(d) Procedures. The following procedures should be followed to determine if an individual is a subject of records maintained by DIS, and to request notification and access.

(1) Individuals should submit inquiries in person or by mail to the Office of Information and Legal Affairs, 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20325. Inquiries by personal appearance should be made Monday through Friday from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. The information requested in §321.5 must be provided if records are to be accurately identified. Telephonic requests for records will not be honored. In a case where the system of records is not specified in the request, only systems that would reasonably contain records of the individual will be checked, as described in §321.4(b).

(2) Only the Director, the Chief, Office of Information and Legal Affairs, or the Director for Investigations may authorize exemptions to notification of individuals in accordance with §321.14.

§321.6 Access by subject individuals.

(a) General. (1) Individuals may request access to records pertaining to themselves in person or by mail in accordance with this section. However, nothing in this section shall allow an individual access to any information compiled or maintained by DIS in reasonable anticipation of a civil or criminal action or proceeding, or otherwise exempted under the provisions of §321.14.

(2) A request for a pending personnel security investigation will be held in § 321.7
abeyance until completion of the investigation and the requester will be so notified.

(b) Manner of access. (1) Requests by mail or in person for access to DIS records should be made to the Offices specified in the record systems notices published in the Federal Register by the Department of Defense or to the Office of Information and Legal Affairs, 1900 Half St. SW, Washington, DC 20324.

(2) Any individual who makes a request for access in person shall:
   (i) Provide identification as specified in § 321.5.
   (ii) Complete and sign a request form.
(3) Any individual making a request for access to records by mail shall include a signed and notarized statement to verify his identity, which may be the DIS request form if he has received one.
(4) Any individual requesting access to records in person may be accompanied by an identified person of his own choosing while reviewing the record. If the individual elects to be accompanied, he shall make this known in his written request, and include a statement authorizing disclosure of the record contents to the accompanying person. Without written authorization of the subject individual, records will not be disclosed to third parties accompanying the subject.
(5) Members of DIS field elements may be given access to records maintained by the field elements without referral to the Office of Information or the records system manager at headquarters. An account of such access will be kept for reporting purposes.
(6) In all requests for access, the requester must state whether he or she desires access in person or mailed copies of records. During personal access, where copies are made for retention, a fee for reproduction and postage may be assessed as provided in § 321.12. Where copies are mailed because personal appearance is impractical, there will be no fee.
(7) All individuals who are not affiliates of DIS will be given access to records in the Office of Information and Legal Affairs, or by means of mailed copies.

§ 321.8 Request for correction or amendment.

(a) General. Upon request and proper identification by any individual who has been granted access to DIS records pertaining to himself or herself, that individual may request, either in person or through the mail, that the record be amended. Such a request must be made in writing and addressed to the Office of Information and Legal Affairs, 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20324.

(b) Content. The following information must be included to ensure effective action on the request:
   (1) Description of the record. Requesters should specify the number of pages and documents, the titles of the documents, form numbers if there are any, dates on the documents and names of individuals who signed them. Any reasonable description of the document is acceptable.
   (2) Description of the items to be amended. The description of the passages, pages or documents to be amended should be as clear and specific as possible.
      (i) Page, line and paragraph numbers should be cited where they exist.
      (ii) A direct quotation of all or a portion of the passage may be made if it isn't otherwise easily identifiable. If the passage is long, a quotation of its beginning and end will suffice.

§ 321.7 Medical records.

(a) General. Medical records that are part of DIS records systems will generally be included with those records when access is granted to the subject to which they pertain. However, if it is determined that such access could have an adverse effect upon the individual's physical or mental health, the medical record in question will be released only to a physician named by the requesting individual.

(iii) In appropriate cases, a simple substantive request may be appropriate, e.g., “delete all references to my alleged arrest in July 1970.”

(iv) If the requester has received a copy of the record, he may submit an annotated copy of documents he wishes amended.

(3) Type of amendment. The requester must clearly state the type of amendment he is requesting.

(i) Deletion or expungement, i.e., a complete removal from the record of data, sentences, passages, paragraphs or documents.

(ii) Correction of the information in the record to make it more accurate, e.g., rectify mistaken identities, dates, data pertaining to the individual, etc.

(iii) Additions to make the record more relevant, accurate or timely may be requested.

(iv) Other changes may be requested; they must be specifically and clearly described.

(4) Reason for amendment. Requests for amendment must be based on specific reasons, included in writing. Categories of reasons are as follows:

(i) Accuracy. Amendment may be requested where matters of fact are believed incorrectly recorded, e.g., dates, names, addresses, identification numbers, or any other information concerning the individual. The request, whenever possible, should contain the accurate information, copies of verifying documents, or indication of how the information can be verified.

(ii) Relevance. Amendment may be requested when information in a record is believed not to be relevant or necessary to the purposes of the record system. (See DoD Federal Register Descriptions.)

(iii) Timeliness. Amendment may be requested when information is thought to be so old as to no longer be pertinent to the stated purposes of the records system. It may also be requested when there is recent information of a pertinent type that is not included in the record.

(iv) Completeness. Amendment may be requested where information in a record is incomplete with respect to its purpose. The data thought to have been omitted should be included or identified with the request.

(v) Fairness. Amendment may be requested when a record is thought to be unfair concerning the subject, in terms of the stated purposes of the record. In such cases, a source of additional information to increase the fairness of the record should be identified where possible.

(vi) Other reasons. Reasons for requesting amendment are not limited to those cited above. The content of the records is authorized in terms of their stated purposes which should be the basis for evaluating them. However, any matter believed appropriate may be submitted as a basis of an amendment request.

(vii) Court orders and statutes may require amendment of a file. While they do not require a Privacy Act request for execution, such may be brought to the attention of DIS by these procedures.

(c) [Reserved]

(d) Assistance. Individuals seeking to request amendment of records pertaining to themselves that are maintained by DIS will be assisted as necessary by DIS officials. Where a request is incomplete, it will not be denied, but the requester will be contacted for the additional information necessary to his request.

(e) This section does not permit the alteration of evidence presented to courts, boards and other official proceedings.

§321.9 DIS review of request for amendment.

(a) General. Upon receipt from any individual of a request to amend a record pertaining to himself and maintained by the DIS, the Office of Information and Legal Affairs will handle the request as follows:

(1) A written acknowledgment of the receipt of a request for amendment of a record will be provided to the individual within 10 working days, unless final action regarding approval or denial can be accomplished within that time. In that case, the notification of approval or denial will constitute adequate acknowledgment.

(2) Where there is a determination to grant all or a portion of a request to amend a record, the record shall be promptly amended and the requesting individual notified. Individuals, agencies or components shown by accounting records to have received copies of the record, or to whom disclosure has been made, will be notified of the amendment by the responsible official. Where a DoD recipient of an investigative record cannot be located, the notification will be sent to the personnel security element of the parent Component.

(3) Where there is a determination to deny all or a portion of a request to amend a record, the office will promptly:

(i) Advise the requesting individual of the specifics of the refusal and the reasons;
(ii) Inform the individual that he may request a review of the denial(s) from “Director, Defense Investigative Service, 1900 Half Street, SW, Washington, DC 20324.” The request should be brief, in writing, and enclose a copy of the denial correspondence.

(b) DIS determination to approve or deny. Determination to approve or deny and request to amend a record or portion thereof may necessitate additional investigation or inquiry be made to verify assertions of individuals requesting amendment. Coordination will be made with the Director for Investigations and the Director of the Personnel Investigations Center in such instances.

§ 321.10 Appeal of initial amendment decision.

(a) General. Upon receipt from any individual of an appeal to review a DIS refusal to amend a record, the Office of Information and Legal Affairs will assure that such appeal is handled in compliance with the Privacy Act of 1974 and DoD Directive 5400.11 and accomplish the following:

(1) Review the record, request for amendment, DIS action on the request and the denial, and direct such additional inquiry or investigation as is deemed necessary to make a fair and equitable determination.

(2) Recommend to the Director whether to approve or deny the appeal.
(3) If the determination is made to amend a record, advise the individual and previous recipients (or an appropriate office) where an accounting of disclosures has been made.
(4) Where the decision has been made to deny the individual’s appeal to amend a record, notify the individual:
   (i) Of the denial and the reason;
   (ii) Of his right to file a concise statement of reasons for disagreeing with the decision not to amend the record;
   (iii) That such statement may be sent to the Office of Information and Legal Affairs, DIS (D0030), Washington, DC 20234, and that it will be disclosed to users of the disputed record;
   (iv) That prior recipients of the disputed record will be provided a copy of the statement of disagreement, or if they cannot be reached (e.g., through deactivation) the personnel security element of their DoD component;
   (v) And, that he may file a suit in a Federal District Court to contest DIS’s decision not to amend the disputed record.

(b) Time limit for review of appeal. If the review of an appeal of a refusal to amend a record cannot be accomplished within 30 days, the Office of Information and Legal Affairs will notify the individual and advise him of the reasons, and inform him of when he may expect the review to be completed.

§ 321.11 Disclosure to other than subject.

(a) General. No record contained in a system of records maintained by DIS shall be disclosed by any means to any person or agency outside the Department of Defense, except with the written consent or request of the individual subject of the record, except as provided in this section. Disclosures that may be made without the request or consent of the subject of the record are as follows:

(1) To those officials and employees of the Department of Defense who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties, when the use is compatible with the stated purposes for which the record is maintained.

(2) Required to be disclosed by the Freedom of Information Act.

(3) For a routine use as described in DoD Directive 5400.11 and DoD publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(4) To the Census Bureau, National Archives, the U.S. Congress, the Comptroller General or General Accounting Office under the conditions specified in DoD Directive 5400.11.

(5) At the written request of the head of an agency outside DoD for a law enforcement activity as authorized by DoD Directive 5400.11.

(6) For statistical purposes, in response to a court order, or for compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of an individual as described in DoD Directive 5400.11.

(7) Legal guardians recognized by the Act.

(b) Accounting of disclosures. Except for disclosures made to members of the DoD in connection with their routine duties, and disclosures required by the Freedom of Information Act, an accounting will be kept of all disclosures of records maintained in DIS systems listed in §321.4b.

(1) Accounting entries will normally be kept on a DIS form, which will be maintained in the record file jacket, or in a document that is part of the record.

(2) Accounting entries will record the date, nature and purpose of each disclosure, and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made.

(3) An accounting of disclosures made to agencies outside the DoD of records in the Defense Central Index of Investigations (DIS 5-02) will be kept as prescribed by the Director of Systems, DIS.

(4) Accounting records will be maintained for at least 5 years after the last disclosure, or for the life of the record, whichever is longer.

(5) Subjects of DIS records will be given access to associated accounting records upon request, except as exempted under §321.14.

§ 321.12 Fees.

Individuals may request copies for retention of any documents to which they are granted access in DIS records pertaining to them. Requestors will not be charged for the first copy of any records provided; however, duplicate copies will require a charge to cover costs of reproduction. Such charges will be computed in accordance with DoD Directive 5400.11.

[46 FR 35641, July 10, 1981]

§ 321.13 Penalties.

(a) An individual may bring a civil action against the DIS to correct or amend the record, or where there is a refusal to comply with an individual request or failure to maintain any record with accuracy, relevance, timeliness and completeness, so as to guarantee fairness, or failure to comply with any other provision of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The court may order correction or amendment. It may assess against the United States reasonable attorney fees and other costs, or may enjoin the DIS from withholding the records and order the production to the complainant.

(b) Where it is determined that the action was willful or intentional with respect to 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1) (C) or (D), the United States shall be liable for the actual damages sustained, but in no case less than the sum of $1,000 and the costs of the action with attorney fees.

(c) Criminal penalties may be imposed against an officer or employee of the DIS who fully discloses material, which he knows is prohibited from disclosure, or who willfully maintains a system of records without the notice requirements; or against any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any record concerning an individual from an agency under false pretenses. These offenses shall be misdemeanors with a fine not to exceed $5,000.

§ 321.14 Exemptions.

(a) General. The Director of the Defense Investigative Service establishes the following exemptions of records systems (or portions thereof) from the provisions of these rules, and other indicated portions of Pub. L. 93-579, in this section. They may be exercised only by the Director, DIS and the Chief of the Office of Information and Legal Affairs. Exemptions will be exercised only when necessary for a specific, significant and legitimate reason connected with the purpose of a records system, and not simply because they are authorized by statute. Personal records releasable under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552 will not be withheld from subject individuals based on these exemptions.

(b) All systems of records maintained by DIS shall be exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) to the extent that the system contains any information properly classified under Executive Order 12958 and which is required by the Executive Order to be withheld in the interest of national defense of foreign policy. This exemption, which may be applicable to parts of all systems of records, is necessary because certain record systems not otherwise specifically designated for exemptions herein may contain items of information that have been properly classified.

(2) Exemption. Any portion of this system that falls under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), (k)(3), (k)(5) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3); (d); (e)(1); (e)(4)(G), (H) and (I); and (f).

(3) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), (k)(3), and (k)(5)

(4) Reasons. From subsection (c)(3) because it will enable DIS to conduct certain investigations and relay law enforcement information without compromise of the information, protection of investigative techniques and efforts employed, and identities of confidential sources who might not otherwise come forward and who furnished information under an express promise that the sources' identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise);

(ii) From subsections (d) and (f) because requiring DIS to grant access to records and agency rules for access and amendment of records would unfairly impede the agency's investigation of allegations of unlawful activities. To require DIS to confirm or deny the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual may in itself provide an answer to that individual relating to an on-going investigation. The investigation of possible unlawful activities would be jeopardized by agency rules requiring verification of record, disclosure of the record to the subject, and record amendment procedures.

(d) System identifier. V5-01

(1) System name. Investigative Files System

(2) Exemption. Any portion of this system that falls under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), (k)(3), or (k)(5) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3); (d); (e)(3); (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I); and (f).

(3) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), (k)(3), and (k)(5)

(4) Reasons. From subsection (c)(3) because it will enable DIS to conduct certain investigations and relay law enforcement information without compromise of the information, protection of investigative techniques and efforts employed, and identities of confidential sources who might not otherwise come forward and who furnished information under an express promise that the sources' identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise);

(i) From subsections (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I) because it will provide protection against notification of investigatory material including certain reciprocal investigations and counterintelligence information, which might alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and the disclosure of which would weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy who furnished information under an express promise that the sources' identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise); alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and the disclosure of which would weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy who furnished information under an express promise that the sources' identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise).

(ii) From subsections (d) and (f) because requiring DIS to grant access to records and agency rules for access and amendment of records would unfairly impede the agency's investigation of allegations of unlawful activities. To require DIS to confirm or deny the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual may in itself provide an answer to that individual relating to an on-going investigation. The investigation of possible unlawful activities would be jeopardized by agency rules requiring verification of record disclosure of the record to the subject, and record amendment procedures.

(3) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

(4) Reasons. From subsection (c)(3) because it will enable DIS to conduct certain investigations and relay law enforcement information without compromise of the information, protection of investigatory techniques and efforts employed, and identities of confidential sources who might not otherwise come forward and who furnished information under an express promise that the sources' identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise).

(i) From subsections (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (l) because it will provide protection against notification of investigatory material including certain reciprocal investigations and counterintelligence information, which might alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and the disclosure of which would weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy who furnished information under an express promise that the sources' identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise).

(ii) From subsections (d) and (f) because requiring DIS to grant access to records and agency rules for access and amendment of records would unfairly impede the agency's investigation of allegations of unlawful activities. To require DIS to confirm or deny the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual may in itself provide an answer to that individual relating to an on-going investigation. The investigation of possible unlawful activities would be jeopardized by agency rules requiring verification of record disclosure of the record to the subject, and record amendment procedures.

(2) Exemption. Any portion of this system that falls under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3); (d); (e)(1); (e)(4)(G), (H), and (l), and (f).

(3) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

(4) Reasons. From subsection (c)(3) because it will enable DIS to conduct certain investigations and relay law enforcement information without compromise of the information, protection of investigatory techniques and efforts employed, and identities of confidential sources who might not otherwise come forward and who furnished information under an express promise that the sources' identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise).

(i) From subsections (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (l) because it will provide protection against notification of investigatory material including certain reciprocal investigations and counterintelligence information, which might alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and the disclosure of which would weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy who furnished information under an express promise that the sources’ identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise).

(ii) From subsections (d) and (f) because requiring DIS to grant access to records and agency rules for access and amendment of records would unfairly impede the agency’s investigation of allegations of unlawful activities. To require DIS to confirm or deny the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual may in itself provide an answer to that individual relating to an on-going investigation. The investigation of possible unlawful activities would be jeopardized by agency rules requiring verification of record, disclosure of the record to the subject, and record amendment procedures.

(g) System identifier. VS-04.
   (1) System name. Counterintelligence Issues Database (CI-DB).
   (2) Exemption. Portions of this system of records that fall within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. § 552a(k)(1), (k)(2), (k)(3) and (k)(5) may be exempt from the following subsections (c)(3); (d)(1) through (d)(5); (e)(1); (e)(4)(G), (H), and (l); and (f).
   (3) Authority. 5 U.S.C. § 552a(k)(1), (k)(2), (k)(3) and (k)(5).
   (4) Reasons. From subsection (c)(3) because giving the individual access to the disclosure accounting could alert the subject of an investigation to the existence and nature of the investigation and reveal investigative or prosecutorial interest by other agencies, particularly in a joint-investigation situation. This would seriously impede or compromise the investigation and case preparation by prematurely revealing its existence and nature; compromise or interfere with witnesses or make witnesses reluctant to cooperate with the investigators; lead to suppression, alteration, fabrication, or destruction of evidence; and endanger the physical safety of confidential sources, witnesses, law enforcement personnel and their families.
   (i) From subsection (d) because the application of these provisions could impede or compromise an investigation or prosecution if the subject of an investigation had access to the records or were able to use such rules to learn of the existence of an investigation before it would be completed. In addition, the mere notice of the fact of an investigation could inform the subject and others that their activities are under or may become the subject of an investigation and could enable the subjects to avoid detection or apprehension, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy evidence, or to fabricate testimony.
   (ii) From subsection (e)(1) because during an investigation it is not always possible to detect the relevance or necessity of each piece of information in the early stages of an investigation. In some cases, it is only after the information is evaluated in light of other evidence that its relevance and necessity will be clear. In other cases, what may appear to be a relevant and necessary piece of information may become irrelevant in light of further investigation. In addition, during the course of an investigation, the investigator may obtain information that related primarily to matters under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency, and that information may not be reasonably segregated. In the interest of effective law enforcement, DIS investigators should retain this information, since it can aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity and can provide valuable leads for Federal and other law enforcement agencies.
   (iii) From subsections (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(4)(I) and (f) because this system is exempt from subsection (d) of the Act, concerning access to records. These requirements are inapplicable to the extent that these records will be exempt from these subsections. However, DIS has published information concerning its notification and access procedures, and the records source categories because under certain circumstances, DIS could decide it is appropriate for an individual to have access to all or a portion of his/her records in this system of records.

(h) System identifier. V8-01.
   (1) System name. Industrial Personnel Security Clearance Files.
   (2) Exemption. Any portion of this system that falls under the provisions § 321.15 DIS implementation policies.

(a) General. The implementation of the Privacy Act of 1974 within DIS is as prescribed by DoD Directive 5400.11. This section provides special rules and information that extend or amplify DoD policies with respect to matters of particular concern to the Defense Investigative Service.

(b) Privacy Act rules application: Any request which cites neither Act, concerning personal record information in a system or records, by the individual to whom such information pertains, for access, amendment, correction, accounting of disclosures, etc., will be governed by the Privacy Act of 1974, DoD Directive 5400.11 and these rules exclusively. Requests for like information which cite only the Freedom of Information Act will be governed by the Freedom of Information Act DoD Regulation 5400.7R. Any denial or exemption of all or part of a record from notification, access, disclosure, amendment or other provision, will also be processed under these rules, unless court order or other competent authority directs otherwise.

(c) [Reserved]

(d) First amendment rights. No DIS official or element may maintain any information pertaining to the exercise by an individual of his rights under the First Amendment without the permission of that individual unless such collection is specifically authorized by statute or necessary to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity.

(e) Standards of accuracy and validation of records. (1) All individuals or elements within DIS which create or maintain records pertaining to individuals will insure that they are reasonably accurate, relevant, timely and complete to serve the purpose for which they are maintained and to assure fairness to the individual to whom they pertain. Information that is not pertinent to a stated purpose of a system of records will not be maintained within those records. Officials compiling investigatory records will make every reasonable effort to assure that only reports that are impartial, clear, accurate, complete, fair and relevant with respect to the authorized purpose of such records are included, and that reports not meeting these standards or serving such purposes are not included in such records.

(2) Prior to dissemination to an individual or agency outside DoD of any record about an individual (except for a Freedom of Information Act action or access by a subject individual under these rules) the disclosing DIS official will by review, make a reasonable effort to assure that such record is accurate, complete, timely, fair and relevant to the purpose for which they are maintained.

(f) The defense central index of investigations (DCII). It is the policy of DIS, as custodian, that each DoD component or element that has direct access to or contributes records to the DCII (DIS 5-02), is individually responsible for compliance with The Privacy Act of 1974 and DoD Directive 5400.11 with respect to requests for notification, requests for access by subject individuals, granting of such access, request for amendment and corrections by subjects, making amendments or corrections, other disclosures, accounting for disclosures and the exercise of exemptions, insofar as they pertain to any record placed in the DCII by that component or element. Any component or element of the DoD that makes a disclosure of any record whatsoever to an individual or agency outside the DoD, from the DCII, is individually responsible to maintain an accounting of that disclosure as prescribed in §321.2(f), and the interviewing agent may not urge a source to request a grant of confidentiality. Such pledges of confidence will be given sparingly and then only when required to obtain information relevant and necessary to the stated purpose of the investigative information being collected.

(g) Investigative operations. (1) DIS agents must be thoroughly familiar with and understand these rules and the authorities, purposes and routine uses of DIS investigative records, and be prepared to explain them and the effect of refusing information to all sources of investigative information, including subjects, during interview, in response to questions that go beyond the required printed and oral notices. Agents shall be guided by reference (f) §321.2, in this respect.

(2) All sources may be advised that the subject of an investigative record may be given access to it, but that the identities of sources may be withheld under certain conditions. Such advice will be made as prescribed in §321.2(f), and the interviewing agent may not urge a source to request a grant of confidentiality. Such pledges of confidence will be given sparingly and then only when required to obtain information relevant and necessary to the stated purpose of the investigative information being collected.

(h) Non-system information on individuals. The following information is not considered part of personal records systems reportable under the Privacy Act of 1974 and may be maintained by DIS members for ready identification, contact, and property control purposes only. If at any time the information described in this paragraph is to be used for other than these purposes, that information must become part of a reported, authorized record system. No other information concerning individuals except that described in the records systems notice and this paragraph may be maintained within DIS.

(1) Identification information at doorways, building directories, desks, lockers, nametags, etc.

(2) Identification in telephone directories, locator cards and rosters.

(3) Geographical or agency contact cards.

(4) Property receipts and control logs for building passes, credentials, vehicles, weapons, etc.
§ 322.1 Purpose and scope.

(a) The purpose of this rule is to comply with and implement title 5 U.S.C. 552a, sections (f) and (k), hereinafter identified as the Privacy Act. It establishes the procedures by which an individual may be notified whether a system of records contains information pertaining to the individual; defines times, places and requirements for identification of the individual requesting records, for disclosure of requested records where appropriate; special handling for medical and psychological records; for amendment of records; appeal of denials of requests for amendment; and provides a schedule of fees to be charged for making copies of requested records. In addition, this rule contains the exemptions promulgated by the Director, NSA, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k), to exempt Agency systems of records from subsections (c)(3); (d); (e)(1); (e)(4); (G), (H), (I), (l); and (f) of section 552a.

(b) The procedures established and exemptions claimed apply to systems of records for which notice has been published in the Federal Register pursuant to the Privacy Act. Requests from individuals for records pertaining
§ 322.2 Definitions.

(a) Access to the NSA headquarters: means current and continuing daily access to those facilities making up the NSA headquarters.

(b) Individual: means a natural person who is a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence.

(c) Request: means a request in writing for records pertaining to the requester contained in a system of records and made pursuant to the Privacy Act or if no statute is identified considered by the Agency to be made pursuant to that Act.

(d) System of Records: means a grouping of records maintained by the Agency for which notice has been published in the Federal Register pursuant to section 552a(e)(4) of Title 5 U.S.C.

§ 322.3 Procedures for requests concerning individual records in a system of records.

(a)(1) Notification. Any individual may be notified in response to a request if any system of records contains a record pertaining to the requester by sending a request addressed to: Information Officer, National Security Agency, Fort George G. Meade, Maryland 20755. Such request shall be in writing, shall be identified on the envelope and the request as a “Privacy Act Request,” shall designate the system or systems of records using the names of the systems as published in the system notices, shall contain the full name, present address, date of birth, social security number and dates of affiliation or contact with NSA/CSS of the requester and shall be signed in full by the requester.

(2) A request pertaining to records concerning the requester which does not specify the Act pursuant to which the request is made shall be processed as a Privacy Act request. A request which does not designate the system or systems of records to be searched shall be processed by checking the following systems of records: Applicants; Personnel; Health, Medical and Safety.

(b)(1) Identification. Any individual currently not authorized access to the National Security Agency headquarters who requests disclosure of records shall provide the following information with the written request for disclosure: full name, present address, date of birth, social security number, and date of first affiliation or contact with NSA/CSS and date of last affiliation or contact with NSA/CSS.

(2) Any individual currently authorized access to the National Security Agency headquarters shall provide the following information with the request for notification: full name, present organizational assignment, date of birth, social security number.

(3) Such request shall be treated as a certification of the requester that the requester is the individual named. Individuals should be aware that the Privacy Act provides criminal penalties for any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any records concerning an individual under false pretenses.

§ 322.4 Times, places and procedures for disclosures.

(a) Individual not currently affiliated with NSA:

(1) Request procedure. Any individual currently not authorized access to the National Security Agency headquarters shall make the request for notification in writing and shall include the required identifying data. Upon verification of the existence in systems of records pertaining to the requester, a copy of the records located shall be mailed to the requester subject to appropriate specific exemptions, applicable Public Laws, special procedures pertaining to medical records, including psychological records, and the exclusion for information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding. If the request cannot be processed within ten working days from the time of receipt of the request, an acknowledgment of receipt of the request will be sent to the requester.

(2) Appointment of other individual. If a requester wishes another individual to obtain the requested records on his behalf, the requester shall provide a written, signed, notarized statement appointing that individual as his representative, certifying that the individual appointed may have access to the records of the requester and that such access shall not constitute an invasion of the privacy of the requester nor a violation of his rights under the Privacy Act of 1974.

(b) Individual currently affiliated with NSA—(1) Request procedure. Any individual currently authorized access to the National Security Agency headquarters may make the request for notification to the appropriate official delegated responsibility for a system of records pursuant to internal agency regulations pertaining to the Privacy Act of 1974. In the alternative, such individual may direct the request to the NSA Information Officer in writing in the same form and including the data required in §322.4(a)(1) above. In the case of any denial of notification by officials delegated responsibility for a system the request shall be referred to the NSA Information Officer for review.

(2) Appointment of other individual. If the requester makes a request pursuant to this paragraph and wishes to designate another individual to accompany him, the same procedures as provided in paragraph (a)(2) of this section apply. If the individual appointed is currently authorized access to the National Security Agency headquarters, he may accompany the requester. If the individual appointed is not currently authorized access, a copy of the records located may be mailed to the appointed individual subject to appropriate specific exemptions, applicable Public Laws, special procedures pertaining to medical records including psychological records, and the exclusion for information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

§ 322.5 Medical or psychological records.

If the request includes records of a medical or psychological nature, and if an Agency doctor makes the determination that the records requested contain information which would have an adverse effect upon the requester, the requester will be advised to appoint a medical doctor in the appropriate discipline to receive the information. The appointment of the doctor shall be in the same form as that indicated in §322.4(a)(2) and shall include a certification that the doctor appointed is authorized to practice the appropriate specialty by virtue of a license to practice same in the state which granted the license.

§ 322.6 Parents or legal guardians acting on behalf of minor applicants and employees.

Parents or legal guardians acting on behalf of minors who request records concerning NSA/CSS applicants or employees who are minors shall be subject to the same requirements contained in §322.4(a)(1) appointment of other individuals, including the requirement for written authorization. Requests by parents or legal guardians acting on behalf of minors will be processed in the same manner and in accordance with the procedures established herein.
§ 322.7 Procedures for amendment.

(a) Request procedure. Any request for amendment of a record or records contained in a system of records shall be in writing addressed to the Information Officer, National Security Agency, Fort George G. Meade, Md. 20755, Attention: Privacy Act Amendment, and shall contain sufficient details concerning the requested amendment, justification for the amendment, and a copy of the record(s) to be amended or sufficient identifying data concerning the affected record(s) to permit its timely retrieval. Such requests may not be used to accomplish actions for which other procedures have been established such as grievances, performance appraisal protests, etc. In such cases the requester will be advised of the appropriate procedures for such actions.

(b) Initial determination: The NSA Information Officer may make an initial determination concerning the requested amendment within ten working days or shall acknowledge receipt of the amendment request within that period if a determination cannot be completed. The determination shall advise the requester of action taken to make the requested amendment or inform the requester of the rejection of the request, the reason(s) for the rejection and the procedures established by the Agency for review of rejected amendment requests.

(c) Request on appeal: A requester may appeal the rejection by the NSA Information Officer of a request for amendment to the Executive for Staff Services. Such appeal shall be in writing, addressed to the Executive for Staff Services, National Security Agency, Fort George G. Meade, Md. 20755, Attention: Privacy Act Amendment Appeal.

§ 322.8 Appeal determination.

The Executive for Staff Services shall acknowledge receipt of the appeal within ten working days. A determination concerning the appeal shall be provided to the requester within 30 working days, unless the Director, National Security Agency, extends the period for good cause. The Executive for Staff Services shall advise the requester of the action taken to make the requested amendment or inform the requester of the rejection of the appeal, the right to submit for incorporation in the file containing the disputed record(s) a concise statement of disagreement, and notify the requester of the right of judicial review of the denial pursuant to subsection (g)(1)(A) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

§ 322.9 Fees.

This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(2) to the extent that individual records and files are related to investigations to enforce the provisions of Public Law 92–261 and consistent with the provisions of that statute with respect to individual access to such records. The purpose of the exemption is to protect the integrity of investigations conducted pursuant to Public Law 92–261.
This record system is exempted from all subsections pursuant to exemption (k)(4) to protect from unauthorized disclosure records maintained for statistical research or program evaluation. (18) System identification and name—GNSA18, NSA/CSS Operations Files. Exemption—Portions of this record system may be exempted from subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (d)(1)—(5), (e)(4)(G)—(I), and (f)(1)—(5). Authority—5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (1), (2) and (5).

Reasons—Subsection (c)(3) because there may be occasions when making an accounting available to the individual named in the record at his or her request, would reveal classified information. The release of accounting of disclosure would inform a subject that he or she is under investigation. This information would provide considerable advantage to the subject in providing him or her with knowledge concerning the nature of the investigation and the coordinated investigative efforts and techniques employed by the cooperating agencies.

Subsection (d) because granting access and/or subsequent amendment to the record would reveal classified information. It may also alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and might weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy. NSA/CSS may refuse to confirm or deny the existence of a particular record because to do so would reveal classified information.

Subsection (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (e)(4)(I). Although NSA/CSS has published procedures whereby an individual can be notified if a particular record system contains information about themselves; how to gain access to that information; and the source of the information, there may be occasions when confirming that a record exists, granting access, or giving out the source of the information would reveal classified information.

Subsection (f) because the agency’s rules are inapplicable to those portions of the system that are exempt and would place the burden on the agency of either confirming or denying the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual. The confirming or denying might, in itself, provide an answer to that individual relating to an on-going criminal investigation. The conduct of a successful investigation leading to the indictment of a criminal offender precludes the applicability of established agency rules relating to verification of record, disclosure of the record to that individual, and record amendment procedures for this record system. Also, because this record system is exempt from the individual access provisions of subsection (d).

(j) Personal information. Information about an individual that is intimate or private to the individual, as distinguished from information related solely to the individual's official functions or public life.

(l) Privacy Act request. A request from an individual for notification as to the existence of, access to, or amendment of records pertaining to that individual. These records must be maintained in a system of records. The request must indicate that it is being made under the Privacy Act to be considered a Privacy Act request.

(m) Record. Any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual that is maintained by DLA, including, but not limited to, the individual's education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history, and that contains the individual's name, or the identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a finger or voice print or a photograph.

(a) Headquarters Defense Logistics Agency.

(1) The Chief, Resources Management Division, Office of Administration (DLA-XA) will:

(i) Formulate policies, procedures, and standards necessary for uniform compliance with the Privacy Act by DLA activities.

(ii) Serve as the DLA Privacy Act Officer and DLA representative on the Defense Privacy Board.

(iii) Maintain a master registry of system notices published by DLA.

(iv) Develop or compile the rules, notices, and reports required under this part.

(2) The General Counsel, DLA (DLA-G) will:

(i) Serve as the appellate authority for denials of individual access and amendment of records.

(ii) Serve as the DLA Privacy Act Officer and DLA representative on the Defense Privacy Board.

(iii) Advise the Defense Privacy Office on the status of DLA privacy litigation.

(3) The Command Security Officer, Office of Command Security, DLA (DLA-T) will formulate and implement
§ 323.5 Procedures.

(a) Individual access. (1) The access provisions of this part are intended for use by individuals whose records are maintained in systems of records. Release of personal information to individuals under this part is not considered public release of information.

(2) Individuals will address requests for access to personal information about themselves in a system of records to the system manager or to the office designated in the system notice. Before being granted access to personal data, an individual may be required to provide reasonable verification of his or her identity. Identity verification procedures will be simple so as not to discourage individuals from seeking access to information about themselves; or be required of an individual seeking access to records which normally would be available under 32 CFR part 1285 (DLAR 5400.14).

(i) Normally, when individuals seek personal access to records pertaining to themselves, identification will be made from documents that normally are readily available, such as employee and military identification cards, driver's license, other licenses, permits, or passes used for routine identification purposes.

(ii) When access is requested by mail, identity verification may consist of the individual providing certain minimum identifying data, such as full name, date and place of birth, or such other personal information necessary to locate the record sought. If the information sought is sensitive, additional identifying data may be required. If notarization of requests is required, procedures will be established for an alternate method of verification for individuals who do not have access to notary services, such as military members overseas.

(3) If an individual wishes to be accompanied by a third party when seeking access to his or her records or to have the records released directly to a third party, the individual may be required to furnish a signed access authorization granting the third party access. An individual will not be refused access to his or her record solely for failure to divulge his or her social security number (SSN) unless it is the only method by which retrieval can be made. The individual is not required to explain or justify his or her need for access to any record under this part.

(4) Disclose medical records to the individual to whom they pertain, even if a minor, unless a judgment is made that access to such records could have an adverse effect on the mental or physical health of the individual. Normally, this determination will be made in consultation with a medical doctor. If it is determined that the release of the medical information may be harmful to the mental or physical health of the individual, send the record to a physician named by the individual and in the transmittal letter to the physician, explain why access by the individual without proper professional supervision could be harmful (unless it is obvious from the record). Do not require the physician to request the records for the individual. If the individual refuses or fails to designate a physician, the record will not be provided. Such refusal of access is not considered a denial for reporting purposes.

(5) Requests by individuals for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves and compiled for law enforcement purposes are processed under this part or 32 CFR part 1285 depending... on which part gives them the greatest degree of access.

(6) Certain documents under the physical control of DoD personnel and used to assist them in performing official functions, are not considered "agency records" within the meaning of this part. Uncirculated personal notes and records that are not disseminated or circulated to any person or organization (for example, personal telephone lists or memory aids) that are retained or discarded at the author's discretion and over which DLA exercises no direct control, are not considered agency records. However, if personnel are officially directed or encouraged, either in writing or orally, to maintain such records, they may become "agency records," and may be subject to the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) and this part.

(7) Acknowledge requests for access within 10 working days after receipt and provide access within 30 working days.

(b) Denial of individual access. (1) Individuals may be formally denied access to a record pertaining to them only if the record was compiled in reasonable anticipation of civil action; is in a system of records that has been exempted from the access provisions of this part under one of the permitted exemptions; contains classified information that has been exempted from the access provision of this part under the blanket exemption for such material claimed for all DoD records systems; or is contained in a system of records for which access may be denied under some other Federal statute. Only deny the individual access to those portions of the records from which the denial of access serves some legitimate Governmental purpose.

(2) An individual may be refused access if the record is not described well enough to enable it to be located with a reasonable amount of effort on the part of an employee familiar with the file; or access is sought by an individual who fails or refuses to comply with the established procedural requirements, including refusing to name a physician to receive medical records when required or to pay fees. Always explain to the individual the specific reason access has been refused and how he or she may obtain access.

(3) Formal denials of access must be in writing and include as a minimum:

(i) The name, title or position, and signature of the appropriate Head of the HQ DLA principal staff element or primary level field activity.

(ii) The date of the denial.

(iii) The specific reason for the denial, including specific citation to the appropriate sections of the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) or other statutes, this part, or DLAR 5400.21 authorizing the denial.

(iv) Notice to the individual of his or her right to appeal the denial within 60 calendar days.

(v) The title or position and address of the Privacy Act appeals official, DLA-G, Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304-6100.

(4) The individual will file any appeals from denial of access within 60 calendar days of receipt of the denial notification. DLA-G will process all appeals within 30 days of receipt unless a fair and equitable review cannot be made within that period. The written appeal notification granting or denying access is the final DLA action on access.

(5) The records in all systems of records maintained in accordance with the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) Government-wide system notices are technically only in the temporary custody of DLA. All requests for access to these records must be processed in accordance with the Federal Personnel Manual (5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735) as well as this part. DLA-G is responsible for the appellate review of denial of access to such records.

(c) Amendment of records. (1) Individuals are encouraged to review the personal information being maintained about them by DLA and to avail themselves of the procedures established by this part to update their records. An individual may request the amendment of any record contained in a system of records pertaining to him or her unless the system of record has been exempted specifically from the amendment procedures of this part. Normally, amendments under this part are limited to correcting factual matters and not matters of official judgment, such as performance ratings promotion potential, and job performance appraisals.

(2) The applicant must adequately support his or her claim and may be required to provide identification to ensure that they are indeed seeking to amend a record pertaining to themselves and not, inadvertently or intentionally, the record of others. Consider the following factors when evaluating the sufficiency of a request to amend:

(i) The accuracy of the information itself.
(ii) The relevancy, timeliness, completeness, and necessity of the recorded information for accomplishing an assigned mission or purpose.

(3) Provide written acknowledgement of a request to amend within 10 working days of its receipt by the appropriate systems manager. There is no need to acknowledge a request if the action is completed within 10 working days and the individual is so informed. The letter of acknowledgement shall clearly identify the request and advise the individual when he or she may expect to be notified of the completed action. Only under the most exceptional circumstances will more than 30 days be required to reach a decision on a request to amend.

(4) If the decision is made to grant all or part of the request for amendment, amend the record accordingly and notify the requester. Notify all previous recipients of the information, as reflected in the disclosure accounting records, that an amendment has been made and the substance of the amendment. Recipients who are known to be no longer retaining the information need not be advised of the amendment. All DoD Components and Federal agencies known to be retaining the record(s) as directed and ensure that all prior known recipients of the records who are known to be retaining the record are notified of the decision and the specific nature of the amendment and that the requester is notified as to which DoD Components and Federal agencies have been told of the amendment.

(ii) If the appeal is denied completely or in part, the individual is notified in writing by the reviewing official that:

(A) The appeal has been denied and the specific reason and authority for the denial.
(B) The individual may file a statement of disagreement with the appropriate authority and the procedures for filing this statement.
(C) If filed properly, the statement of disagreement shall be included in the records, furnished to all future recipients of the records, and provided to all prior recipients of the disputed records who are known to hold the record.
(D) The individual may seek a judicial review of the decision not to amend.

(7) The records in all systems of records controlled by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) Government-wide system notices are technically only temporarily in the custody of DLA. All requests for amendment of these records must be processed in accordance with the Federal Personnel Manual (FPM). A DLA denial authority may deny a request. However, the appeal process for all such denials must include a review by the Assistant Director for Agency Compliance and Evaluation, Office of Personnel Management, 1900 E Street, NW., Washington, DC 20415. When an appeal is received from a DLA denial of amendment of the OPM controlled record, process the appeal in accordance with the FPM and notify the OPM appeal authority listed above. The individual may appeal any DLA decision not to amend the OPM records directly to OPM. OPM is the final review authority for any appeal from a denial to amend the OPM records.

8) If the reviewing authority refuses to amend the record as requested, the individual may submit a concise statement of disagreement setting forth his or her reasons for disagreeing with the decision not to amend.

(i) If an individual chooses to file a statement of disagreement, annotate the record to indicate that the statement has been filed. Furnish copies of the statement of disagreement to all DoD Components and Federal agencies that have been provided copies of the disputed information and who may be maintaining the information.

(ii) When possible, incorporate the statement of disagreement into the record. If the statement cannot be made a part of the record, establish procedures to ensure that it is apparent from the records that a statement of disagreement has been filed and maintain the statement so that it can be obtained readily when the disputed information is used or disclosed. Automated record systems that are not programmed to accept statements of disagreement shall be annotated or coded so that they clearly indicate that a statement of disagreement is on file, and clearly identify the statement with the disputed information in the system. Provide a copy of the statement of disagreement whenever the disputed information is disclosed for any purpose.

9) A summary of reasons for refusing to amend may be included with any record for which a statement of disagreement is filed. Include in this summary only the reasons furnished to the individual for not amending the record. Do not include comments on the statement of disagreement. Normally, the summary and statement of disagreement are filed together. When disclosing information for which a summary has been filed, a copy of the summary may be included in the release, if desired.

(d) Documentation. Establish a separate Privacy Case File to retain the documentation received and generated during the amendment or access process. There is no need to establish a Privacy Case File if the individual has not cited the Privacy Act or this part. Privacy Case Files shall not be furnished or disclosed to anyone for use in making any determination about the individual other than determinations made under this part. Only the items listed below may be included in the system of records challenged for amendment or for which access is sought. Do not retain copies of unamended records in the basic record system if the request for amendment is granted.

1) The following items relating to an amendment request may be included in the disputed record system:

(i) Copies of the amended record.

(ii) Copies of the individual’s statement of disagreement.

(iii) Copies of activity summaries.

(iv) Supporting documentation submitted by the individual.

2) The following items relating to an access request may be included in the basic records system:

(i) Copies of the request.

(ii) Copies of the activity action granting total access. (Note: A separate Privacy Case File need not be created in such cases.)

(iii) Copies of the activity action denying access.

(iv) Copies of any appeals filed.

(v) Copies of the reply to the appeal.

(e) Fees. An individual may be charged only for the direct cost of copying and reproduction, computed using the appropriate portions of the fee schedule in DLAR 5400.14 (32 CFR part 1285) under the provisions of this part. Normally, fees are waived automatically if the direct costs of a given request is less than $30. This fee waiver provision does not apply when a waiver has been granted to the individual before, and later requests appear to be an extension or duplication of that original request. DLA activities may, however, set aside this automatic fee waiver provision when on the basis of good evidence it determines that the waiver of fees is not in the public interest. Decisions to waive or reduce fees that exceed the automatic waiver threshold will be made on a case-by-case basis. Fees may not be charged when:

(1) Copying is performed for the convenience of the Government or is the only means to make the record available to the individual.

(2) The record may be obtained without charge under any other part, directive, or statute.

(3) Providing documents to members of Congress for copying records furnished even when the records are requested under the Privacy Act on behalf of a constituent.

(f) Disclosures of personal information.

(1) For the purposes of disclosure and disclosure accounting, the Department of Defense is considered a single agency. Records pertaining to an individual may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to any DoD official who has need for the record in the performance of his or her assigned duties. Do not disclose personnel information from a system of records outside the Department of Defense unless the record has been requested by the individual to whom it pertains; the written consent of the individual to whom the record pertains has been obtained for release of the record to the requesting agency, activity, or individual; or the release is for one of the specific non-consensual purposes set forth in this part or DLAR 5400.14, (32 CFR part 1285).

(2) Except for releases made in accordance with DLAR 5400.14, (32 CFR part 1285) before disclosing any personal information to any recipient outside DoD other than a Federal agency or the individual to whom it pertains;

(i) Ensure that the records are accurate, timely, complete, and relevant for agency purposes.

(ii) Contact the individual, if reasonably available, to verify the accuracy, timeliness, completeness, and relevancy of the information, if this cannot be determined from the record.

(iii) If the information is not current and the individual is not reasonably available, advise the recipient that the information is believed accurate as of a specific date and any other known factors bearing on its accuracy and relevancy.

(3) All records must be disclosed if their release is required by the Freedom of Information Act. DLAR 5400.14, (32 CFR part 1285) requires that records be made available to the public unless exempted from disclosure by one of the nine exemptions found in the Freedom of Information Act. The standard for exempting most personal records, such as personnel records, medical records, and similar records, is found in DLAR 5400.14, section 111G6 (32 CFR 1285.3(g)(f)). Under the exemption, release of personal information can only be denied when its release would be a "clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy."

(i) All disclosures of personal information regarding Federal civilian employees will be made in accordance with the Federal Personnel Manual. Some examples of personal information regarding DoD civilian employees that normally may be released without a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy include:

(A) Name.
(B) Present and past position titles.
(C) Present and past grades.
(D) Present and past salaries.
(E) Present and past duty stations.
(F) Office and duty telephone numbers.

(ii) All release of personal information regarding military members shall be made in accordance with the standards established by DLAR 5400.14, (32 CFR part 1285). While it is not possible to identify categorically information that must be released or withheld from military personnel records in every instance, the following items of personal information regarding military members normally may be disclosed without a clearly unwarranted invasion of their personal privacy:

(A) Full name.
(B) Rank.
(C) Date of rank.
(D) Gross salary.
(E) Past duty assignments.
(F) Present duty assignment.
(G) Future assignments that are officially established.
(H) Office or duty telephone numbers.
(I) Source of commission.
(J) Promotion sequence number.
(K) Awards and decorations.
(L) Attendance at professional military schools.
(M) Duty status at any given time.

(iii) All releases of personal information regarding civilian personnel not subject to the FPM shall be made in accordance with the standards established by DLAR 5400.14 (32 CFR part 1285). While it is not possible to identify categorically those items of personal information that must be released regarding civilian employees not subject to the FPM, such as non-appropriated fund employees, normally the following items may be released without a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy:

(A) Full name.
(B) Grade or position.
(C) Date of grade.
(D) Gross salary.
(E) Present and past assignments.
(F) Future assignments, if officially established.
(G) Office or duty telephone numbers.

(4) A request for a home address or telephone number may be referred to the last known address of the individual for a direct reply by him or her to the requester. In such cases the requester will be notified of the referral. The release of home addresses and home telephone numbers normally is considered a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and is prohibited. However, these may be released without prior specific consent of the individual if:

(i) The individual has indicated previously that he or she has no objection to their release.
(ii) The source of the information to be released is a public document such as commercial telephone directory or other public listing.
(iii) The release is required by Federal statute (for example, pursuant to Federally-funded state programs to locate parents who have defaulted on child support payments (42 U.S.C. section 653)).
(iv) The releasing official releases the information under the provisions of DLAR 5400.14, (32 CFR part 1285).

(5) Records may be disclosed outside DoD without consent of the individual to whom they pertain for an established routine use. Routine uses may be established, discontinued, or amended without the consent of the individuals involved. However, new or changed routine uses must be published in the Federal Register at least 30 days before actually disclosing any records under their provisions. In addition to the routine uses established by the individual system notices, common blanket routine uses for all DLA-maintained systems of records have been established. These blanket routine uses are published in DLAR 5400.1.1 DLA Systems of Records Handbook. Unless a system notice specifically excludes a system from a given blanket routine use, all blanket routine uses apply.

(6) Records in DLA systems of records may be disclosed without the consent of the individuals to whom they pertain to the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census survey or related activities.

(7) Records may be disclosed for statistical research and reporting without the consent of the individuals to whom they pertain. Before such disclosures, the recipient must provide advance written assurance that the records will be used as statistical research or reporting records; the records will only be transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable; and the records will not be used, in whole or in part, to make any determination about the rights, benefits, or entitlements of specific individuals. A disclosure accounting is not required.

(8) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) if they have historical or other value to warrant continued preservation; or for evaluation by NARA to determine if a record has such historical or other value. Records transferred to a Federal Record Center (FRC) for safekeeping and storage do not fall within this category. These remain under the control of the transferring activity, and the FRC personnel are considered agents of the activity which retain control over the records. No disclosure accounting is required.

Copies may be obtained, if needed, from the Defense Logistics Agency, ATTN: DLA-XP, Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304.
§ 323.5 is required for the transfer of records to FRCs.

(9) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to another agency or an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity, provided the civil or criminal law enforcement activity is authorized by law; the head of the law enforcement activity or a designee has made a written request specifying the particular records desired and the law enforcement purpose (such as criminal investigations, enforcement of civil law, or a similar propose) for which the record is sought; and there is no Federal statute that prohibits the disclosure of the records. Normally, blanket requests for access to any and all records pertaining to an individual are not honored. When a record is released to a law enforcement activity, maintain a disclosure accounting. This disclosure accounting will not be made available to the individual to whom the record pertains if the law enforcement activity requests that the disclosure not be released.

(10) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain if disclosure is made under compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of any individual. The affected individual need not be the subject of the record disclosed. When such a disclosure is made, notify the individual who is the subject of the record. When, however, records are released by a request under a court order or compulsory legal process, notification must be made to the individual when the legal process is a matter of public record.

(11) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to either House of the Congress or to any committee, joint committee or subcommittee of Congress if the release pertains to a matter within the jurisdiction of the committee. Records may also be disclosed to the General Accounting Office (GAO) in the course of the activities of GAO.

(12) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the person to whom they pertain under a court order signed by a judge of a court of competent jurisdiction. Releases may also be made under the compulsory legal process of Federal or state bodies having authority to issue such process.

(i) When a record is disclosed under this provision, make reasonable efforts to notify the individual to whom the record pertains, if the legal process is a matter of public record.

(ii) If the process is not a matter of public record at the time it is issued, seek to be advised when the process is made public and make reasonable efforts to notify the individual at that time.

(iii) Notification sent to the last known address of the individual as reflected in the records is considered reasonable effort to notify. Make a disclosure accounting each time a record is disclosed under a court order or compulsory legal process.

(13) Certain personal information may be disclosed to consumer reporting agencies as defined by the Federal Claims Collection Act. Information which may be disclosed to a consumer reporting agency includes:

(i) Name, address, taxpayer identification number (SSN), and other information necessary to establish the identity of the individual.

(ii) The amount, status, and history of the claim.

(iii) The agency or program under which the claim arose.

(g) Disclosure accounting. (1) Keep an accurate record of all disclosures made from any system of records except disclosures to DoD personnel for use in the performance of their official duties or under DLAR 5400.14 (32 CFR part 1285). In all other cases a disclosure accounting is required even if the individual has consented to the disclosure of the information pertaining to him or her.

(2) Use any system of disclosure accounting that will provide the necessary disclosure information. As a minimum, disclosure accounting will contain the date of the disclosure, a description of the information released, the purpose of the disclosure, the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure was made. When numerous similar records are released (such as transmittal of payroll checks to a bank), identify the category of records disclosed and include the data.
required in some form that can be used to construct an accounting disclosure record for individual records if required. Retain disclosure accounting records for 5 years after the disclosure or the life of the record, whichever is longer.

(3) Make available to the individual to whom the record pertains all disclosure accountings except when the disclosure has been made to a law enforcement activity and the law enforcement activity has requested that disclosure not be made, or the system of records has been exempted from the requirement to furnish the disclosure accounting. If disclosure accountings are not maintained with the record and the individual requests access to the accounting, prepare a listing of all disclosures and provide this to the individual upon request.

(h) Collecting personal information. (1) Collect to the greatest extent practicable personal information directly from the individual to whom it pertains if the information may be used in making any determination about the rights, privileges, or benefits of the individual under any Federal program.

(2) When an individual is requested to furnish personal information about himself or herself for inclusion in a system of records, a Privacy Act Statement is required regardless of the medium used to collect the information (forms, personal interviews, stylized formats, telephonic interviews, or other methods). The statement enables the individual to make an informed decision whether to provide the information requested. If the personal information solicited is not to be incorporated into a system of records, the statement need not be given. The Privacy Act Statement shall be concise, current, and easily understood. It must include:

(i) The specific Federal statute or Executive Order that authorizes collection of the requested information.

(ii) The principal purpose or purposes for which the information is to be used.

(iii) The routine uses that will be made of the information.

(iv) Whether providing the information is voluntary or mandatory.

(v) The effects on the individual if he or she chooses not to provide the requested information.

(3) The Privacy Act Statement may appear as a public notice (sign or poster), conspicuously displayed in the area where the information is collected, such as at check-cashing facilities or identification photograph facilities. The individual normally is not required to sign the Privacy Act Statement. Provide the individual a written copy of the Privacy Act Statement upon request. This must be done regardless of the method chosen to furnish the initial advisement.

(4) Include in the Privacy Act Statement specifically whether furnishing the requested personal data is mandatory or voluntary. A requirement to furnish personal data is mandatory only when a Federal statute, Executive order, regulation, or other lawful order specifically imposes a duty on the individual to provide the information sought, and the individual is subject to a penalty if he or she fails to provide the requested information. If providing the information is only a condition of a prerequisite to granting a benefit or privilege and the individual has the option of requesting the benefit or privilege, providing the information is always voluntary. However, the loss or denial of the privilege, benefit, or entitlement sought may be listed as a consequence of not furnishing the requested information.

(5) It is unlawful for any Federal, state, or local government agency to deny an individual any right, benefit, or privilege provided by law because the individual refuses to provide his or her social security number (SSN). However, if a Federal statute requires that the SSN be furnished or if the SSN is required to verify the identity of the individual in a system of records that was established and in use before January 1, 1975, and the SSN was required as an identifier by a statute or regulation adopted before that date, this restriction does not apply.

(i) When an individual is requested to provide his or her SSN, he or she must be told:

(A) The uses that will be made of the SSN.

(B) The statute, regulation, or rule authorizing the solicitation of the SSN.
§ 323.5

(C) Whether providing the SSN is voluntary or mandatory.

(ii) Include in any systems notice for any system of records that contains SSNs a statement indicating the authority for maintaining the SSN and the source of the SSNs in the system. If the SSN is obtained directly from the individual indicate whether this is voluntary or mandatory.

(iii) Upon entrance into Military Service of civilian employment with DoD, individuals are asked to provide their SSNs. The SSN becomes the service or employment number for the individual and is used to establish personnel, financial, medical, and other official records. After an individual has provided his or her SSN for the purpose of establishing a record, a Privacy Act Statement is not required if the individual is only requested to furnish or verify the SSNs for identification purposes in connection with the normal use of his or her records. However, if the SSN is to be written down and retained for any purpose by the requesting official, the individual must be provided a Privacy Act Statement.

(6) DLAR 7760.1, Forms Management Program,2 provides guidance on administrative requirements for Privacy Act Statements used with DLA forms. Forms subject to the Privacy Act issued by other Federal agencies have a Privacy Act Statement attached or included. Always ensure that the statement prepared by the originating agency is adequate for the purpose for which the form will be used by the DoD activity. If the Privacy Act Statement provided is inadequate, the activity concerned will prepare a new statement of a supplement to the existing statement before using the form. Forms issued by agencies not subject to the Privacy Act (state, municipal, and other local agencies) do not contain Privacy Act Statements. Before using a form prepared by such agencies to collect personal data subject to this part, an appropriate Privacy Act Statement must be added.

(i) Systems of records. (1) To be subject to this part, a “system of records” must consist of records retrieved by the name of an individual or some other personal identifier and be under the control of a DLA activity. Records in a group of records that may be retrieved by a name or personal identifier are not covered by this part. The records must be, in fact, retrieved by name or other personal identifier to become a system of records for the purpose of this part.

(2) Retain in a system of records only that personal information which is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose required by a Federal statute or an Executive Order. The existence of a statute or Executive order mandating that maintenance of a system of records does not abrogate the responsibility to ensure that the information in the system of records is relevant and necessary.

(3) Do not maintain any records describing how an individual exercises his or her rights guaranteed by the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution unless expressly authorized by Federal statute or the individual. First Amendment rights include, but are not limited to, freedom of religion, freedom of political beliefs, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, the right to assemble, and the right to petition.

(4) Maintain all personal information used to make any determination about an individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to ensure fairness to the individual in making any such determination. Before disseminating any personal information from a system of records to any person outside DoD, other than a Federal agency, make reasonable efforts to ensure that the information to be disclosed is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete for the purpose it is being maintained.

(5) Establish appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to ensure that the records in every system of records are protected from unauthorized alteration or disclosure and that their confidentiality is protected. Protect the records against reasonably anticipated threats or hazards. Tailor safeguards specifically to the vulnerabilities of the system and the type of records in the system, the sensitivity of the personal information stored, the storage medium used and, to a degree, the number of records maintained.

(i) Treat all unclassified records that contain personal information that normally would be withheld from the public as if they were designated “For Official Use Only” and safeguard them in accordance with the standards established by DLAR 5400.14 (32 CFR part 1285) even if they are not marked “For Official Use Only.”

(ii) Special administrative, physical, and technical procedures are required to protect data that are stored or being processed temporarily in an automated data processing (ADP) system or in a word processing activity to protect it against threats unique to those environments (see DLAM 5200.1, ADP Security Manual, and appendix D of this part).

(6) Dispose of records containing personal data so as to prevent inadvertent compromise. Disposal methods such as tearing, burning, melting, chemical decomposition, pulping, pulverizing, shredding, or mutilation are considered adequate if the personal data is rendered unrecognizable or beyond reconstruction.

(i) The transfer of large quantities of records containing personal data (for example, computer cards and printouts) in bulk to a disposal activity, such as the Defense Property Disposal Office, is not a release of personal information under this part. The sheer volume of such transfers makes it difficult or impossible to identify readily specific individual records.

(ii) When disposing of or destroying large quantities of records containing personal information, care must be exercised to ensure that the bulk of the records is maintained so as prevent specific records from being readily identified. If bulk is maintained, no special procedures are required.

(7) When DLA contracts for the operation or maintenance of a system of records or a portion of a system of records by a contractor, the record system or the portion of the record system affected are considered to be maintained by DLA and are subject to this part. The activity concerned is responsible for applying the requirements of this part to the contractor. The contractor and its employees are to be considered employees of DLA for purposes of the sanction provisions of the Privacy Act during the performance of the contract. See the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR), section 24.000 (48 CFR chapter 1).

(j) System Notices. (1) A notice of the existence of each system of records must be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. While system notices are not subject to formal rulemaking procedures, advance public notice must be given before an activity may begin to collect personal information or use a new system of records. The notice procedures require that:

(i) The system notice describes the contents of the record system and the routine uses for which the information in the system may be released.

(ii) The public be given 30 days to comment on any proposed routine uses before implementation.

(iii) The notice contains the date on which the system will become effective.

(2) Appendix A of this part discusses the specific elements required in a system notice. DLAR 5400.14 contains systems notices published by DLA.

(3) In addition to system notices, reports are required for new and altered systems of records. The criteria of these reports are outlined in appendices B and C of this part. No report is required for amendments to existing systems which do not meet the criteria for altered record systems.

(4) System managers shall evaluate the information to be included in each new system before establishing the system and evaluate periodically the information contained in each existing system of records for relevancy and necessity. Such a review will also occur when a system notice amendment or alteration is prepared. Consider the following:

Copies may be obtained, if needed, from the Defense Logistics Agency, ATTN: DLA-XP, Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304.
§ 323.5 32 CFR Ch. I (7-1-98 Edition)

(i) The relationship of each item of information retained and collected to the purpose for which the system is maintained.

(ii) The specific impact on the purpose or mission of not collecting each category of information contained in the system.

(iii) The possibility of meeting the informational requirements through use of information not individually identifiable or through other techniques, such as sampling.

(iv) The length of time each item of personal information must be retained.

(v) The cost of maintaining the information.

(vi) The necessity and relevancy of the information to the purpose for which it was collected.

(5) Systems notices and reports of new and altered systems will be submitted to DLA-XA as required.

(k) Exemptions. The Director, DLA will designate the DLA records which are to be exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. DLA-XA will publish in the FEDERAL REGISTER information specifying the name of each designated system, the specific provisions of the Privacy Act from which each system is to be exempted, the reasons for each exemption, and the reason for each exemption of the record system.

(1) General Exemptions. To qualify for a general exemption, as defined in the Privacy Act, the system of records must be maintained by a system manager who performs as his/her principal function any activity pertaining to the enforcement of criminal laws, including police efforts to prevent, control, or reduce crime or to apprehend criminals, and the activities or prosecutors, courts, correctional, probation, pardon, or parole authorities. Such system of records must consist of:

(i) Information compiled for the purpose of identifying individual criminal offenders and alleged offenders and containing only identifying data and notations or arrests, the nature and disposition of criminal charges, sentencing, confinement, release, and parole, and probation status.

(ii) Information compiled for the purpose of a criminal investigation, including reports of informants and investigators, and associated with an identifiable individual.

(iii) Reports identifiable to an individual compiled at any stage of the process of enforcement of the criminal laws from arrest or indictment through release from supervision.

(2) Specific exemptions. To qualify for a specific exemption, as defined by the Privacy Act, the systems of records must be:

(i) Specifically authorized under criteria established by an Executive Order to be kept classified in the interest of national defense or foreign policy and are in fact properly classified pursuant to such Executive Order.

(ii) Investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than material covered under a general exemption. However, an individual will not be denied access to information which has been used to deny him/her a right or privilege unless disclosure would reveal a source who furnished information to the Government under a promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. For investigations made after September 27, 1975, the identity of the source may be treated as confidential only if based on the expressed guarantee that the identity would not be revealed.

(iii) Maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President of the United States or other individuals protected pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3056.

(iv) Used only to generate aggregate statistical data or for other similarly evaluative or analytic purposes, and which are not used to make decisions on the rights, benefits, or entitlements of individuals except for the disclosure of a census record permitted by 13 U.S.C. 8.

(v) Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Military Service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the source would be held in confidence, or prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise. that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

(vi) Testing or examination material used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the Federal service, the disclosure of which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or elimination process.

(vii) Evaluation material used to determine potential for promotion in the Military Services, but only the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. System managers will specify those categories of individuals for whom pledges of confidentiality may be made when obtaining information on an individual’s suitability for promotion.

App. A

§ 323.6 Forms and reports.

DLA activities may be required to provide data under reporting requirements established by the Defense Privacy Office and DLA-XA. Any report established shall be assigned Report Control Symbol DD-COMP(A) 1379.

Appendix A to Part 323—Instructions for Preparation of System Notices

A. System identification. See DLAH 5400.1.

B. System name. The name of the system reasonably identifies the general purpose of the system and, if possible, the general categories of individuals involved. Use acronyms only parenthetically following the title or any portion thereof, such as, ‘‘Joint Uniform Military Pay System (JUMPS).’’ Do not use acronyms that are not commonly known unless they are preceded by an explanation. The system name may not exceed 55 character positions including punctuation and spacing.

C. System location. For systems maintained in a single location provided the exact office name, organizational identity, and address or routing symbol. For geographically or organizationally decentralized systems, specify each level of organization or element that maintains a segment of the system. For automated data systems with a central computer facility and input/output terminals at several geographically separated locations, list each location by category.

Pt. 323, App. A 32 CFR Ch. 1 (7-1-98 Edition)

2. When multiple locations are identified by type of organization, the system location may indicate that official mailing addresses are contained in an address directory published as an appendix to DLAH 5400.1.6 DLA will obtain information concerning format requirements for preparation of an address directory from the 1st Information Systems Group (ISG), Room 34-106A, The Pentagon, Washington, DC 20330-6345.

3. If no address directory is used or the addresses in the directory are incomplete, the address of each location where a segment of the record system is maintained must appear under the "System Location" caption. Classified addresses are not listed, but the fact that they are classified is indicated. Use the standard two letter state abbreviation symbols and zip codes for all domestic addresses.

4. Categories of individuals covered by the system. Set forth the specific categories of individuals to whom records in the system pertain in clear, easily understood, non-technical terms. Avoid the use of broad over-general descriptions, such as "all DLA personnel" or "all civilian personnel" unless this actually reflects the category of individuals involved.

5. Categories of records in the system. Describe in clear, non-technical terms the types of records maintained in the system. Only documents actually retained in the system of records will be described, not source documents that are used only to collect data and the destroyed.

6. Authority for maintenance of the system. 1. Cite the specific provisions of the Federal statute or Executive Order that authorizes the maintenance of the system. Include with citations for statutes the popular names, when appropriate (for example, title 5, United States Code, section 2103, "Tea-Tasters Licensing Act"). and for Executive Orders, the official title (for example, Executive Order 9959, "Numbering System for Federal Accounts Relative to Individual Persons").

2. For administrative housekeeping records, cite the directive establishing DLA as well as the Secretary of Defense authority to issue the directive. For example, "Pursuant to the authority contained in the National Security Act of 1947, as amended (10 U.S.C. 1534), the Secretary of Defense has issued DoD Directive 5105.22 (32 CFR part 359), Defense Logistics Agency (DLA), the charterer of the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) at a separate agency of the Department of Defense under his control. Therein, the Director, DLA, is charged with the responsibility of maintaining all necessary and appropriate records."

G. Purpose or purposes. List the specific purposes for maintaining the system of records by the activity. Include the use made of the information within DLA and the Department of Defense (so-called "internal routine uses").

H. Routine uses. 1. The blanket routine uses that appear in DLAH 5400.17 apply to all systems notices unless the individual system notice specifically states that one or more of them do not apply to the system. For all other routine uses, when practical, list the specific activity to which the record may be released, to include any routine automated system interface (for example, "to the Department of Justice, Civil Rights Compliance Division"); "to the Veterans Administration, Office of Disability Benefits," or "to state and local health agencies").

2. For each routine use identified, include a statement as to the purpose or purposes for which the record is to be released to the activity. Do not use general statements, such as, "to other Federal agencies as required" and "to any other appropriate Federal agency."".

1. Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records. This caption is subdivided into four parts:

1. Storage. Indicate the medium in which the records are maintained. (For example, a system may be "automated, maintained on magnetic tapes or disks," "manual, maintained in paper files," or "hybrid, maintained in a combination of paper and automated form.") Storage does not refer to the container or facility in which the records are kept.

2. Retrieval. Specify how the records are retrieved (for example, name and SSN, name, SSN) and indicate whether a manual or computerized index is required to retrieve individual records.

3. Safeguards. List the categories of DLA personnel having immediate access and those responsible for safeguards (such as storage in safes, vaults, locked cabinets or rooms, use of guards, visitors registers, personnel screening, or computer "fail-safe" systems software). Do not describe safeguards in such detail as to compromise system security.

4. Retention and disposal. Indicate how long the record is retained. When appropriate, state the length of time the records are maintained by the activity, when they are transferred to a Federal Records Center, length of retention at the Records Center and when they are transferred to the National Archives or are destroyed. A reference the Defense Logistics Agency, ATTN: DLA-ML 5015.1, Files Maintenance and Disposition, or other issuances without further detailed information is insufficient.

J. System manager or managers and address.
1. List the title and address of the official responsible for the management of the system.
   If the title of the specific official is unknown, such as for a local system, specify the local commander or office head as the systems manager.

2. For geographically separated or organizationally decentralized activities for which individuals may deal directly with officials at each location in exercising their rights, list the position or title of each category of officials responsible for the system or a segment thereof.

3. Do not include business or duty addresses if they are listed in DLAH 5400.1.

K. Notification procedures. 1. If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(G) the Privacy Act, so indicate.
2. For all nonexempt systems, describe how an individual may determine if there are records pertaining to him or her in the system. The procedural rules may be cited, but include a brief procedural description of the needed data. Provide sufficient information in the notice to allow an individual to exercise his or her rights without referrals to this part.

3. As a minimum, the caption will include:
   a. The official title (normally the system manager) and official address to which requests are to be directed.
   b. The specific information required to determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.
   c. Identification of the offices through which the individual may obtain access.
   d. A description of any proof of identity required.
4. When appropriate, the individual may be referred to an activity official who shall provide this data to him or her.
L. Record access procedures. 1. If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(H) of the Privacy Act, so indicate.
2. For all nonexempt record systems, describe the procedures under which individuals may obtain access to the record pertaining to them in the system. When appropriate, the individual may be referred to the system manager or activity official to obtain access procedures. Do not repeat the addresses listed in DLAH 5400.1, but refer the individual to that directory.

M. Contesting record procedures. 1. If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(H) of the Privacy Act, so indicate.
2. For all nonexempt systems of records, state briefly how an individual may contest the content of a record pertaining to him or her in the system. The detailed procedures for contesting record accuracy, refusal of access or amendment, or initial review and appeal need not be included if they are readily available elsewhere and can be referred to by the public. (For example, "The Defense Logistics Agency rules for contesting contents and for appealing initial determinations are contained in 32 CFR part 1") (DLAR 5400.21).
3. The individual may also be referred to the system manager to determine these procedures.

N. Record source categories. 1. If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Privacy Act, so indicate.
2. For all nonexempt systems of records, list the sources of the information in the system. Specific individuals or institutions need not be identified by name, particularly if these sources have been granted confidentiality.

O. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None."
2. If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act it is claimed. Cite the regulation and CFR section containing the exemption rule for the system. (For example, "Parts of this record system may be exempt under title 5, United States Code, sections 552a(k)2, and (5), as applicable. See exemption rules contained in 32 CFR part 323.") (DLAR 5400.21).

APPENDIX B TO PART 323—CRITERIA FOR NEW AND ALTERED RECORD SYSTEMS

A. Criteria for a new record system. A new system of records is one for which there has been no system notice published in the Federal Register. If a notice for a system, if these sources have been granted confidentiality.

1. A significant increase or change in the number or type of individuals about whom records are maintained.
   a. Only changes that alter significantly the character and purpose of the records system are considered alterations.
   b. Increases in numbers of individuals due to normal growth are not considered alterations unless they truly alter the character and purpose of the system.
   c. Increases that change significantly the scope of population covered (for example, expansion of a system of records covering a single PLFA's enlisted personnel to include all of DLA enlisted personnel would be considered an alteration.

---

d. A reduction in the number of individual covered is not an alteration, but only an amendment.

e. All changes that add new categories of individuals to system coverage require a change to the "Categories of Individuals Covered by the System" caption of the notice and may require changes to the "Purpose(s)" caption.

2. An expansion in the types or categories of information maintained.

a. The addition of any new category of records not described under the "Categories of Records in System" caption is considered an alteration.

b. Adding a new data element which is clearly within the scope of the categories of records described in the existing notice is an amendment.

c. All changes under this criterion require a change to the "Categories of Records in System" caption of the notice.

3. An alteration in the manner in which the records are organized or the manner in which the records are indexed and retrieved.

a. The change must alter the nature of use or scope of the records involved (for example, combining records systems in a reorganization).

b. Any change under this criteria requires a change in the "Retrievalability" caption of the system notice.

c. If the records are no longer retrieved by name or personal identifier, cancel the system notice.

4. A change in the purpose for which the information in the system is used.

a. The new purpose must not be compatible with the existing purposes for which the system is maintained or a use that would not reasonably be expected to be an alteration.

b. If the use is compatible and reasonably expected, there is no change in purpose and no alteration occurs.

c. Any change under this criterion requires a change in the "Purpose(s)" caption and may require a change in the "Authority for maintenance of the system" caption.

5. Changes that alter the computer environment (such as changes to equipment configuration, software, or procedures) so as to create the potential for greater or easier access.

a. Increasing the number of offices with direct access is an alteration.

b. Software releases, such as operating systems and system utilities that provide for easier access are considered alterations.

c. The addition of an on-line capability to a previously batch-oriented system is an alteration.

d. The addition of peripheral devices such as tape devices, disk devices, card readers, printers, and similar devices to an existing ADP system constitute an amendment if system security is preserved.

e. Changes to existing equipment configuration with on-line capability need not be considered alterations to the system if:

(1) The change does not alter the present security posture.

(2) The addition of terminals does not extend the capacity of the current operating system and existing security is preserved.

f. The connecting of two or more formerly independent automated systems or networks together creating a potential for greater access is an alteration.

g. Any change under this caption requires a change to the "Storage" caption element of the systems notice.

C. Reports of new and altered systems. Submit a report of a new or altered system to DLA-XA before collecting information and for using a new system or altering an existing system.

D. Time restrictions on the operation of a new or altered system. 1. All time periods begin from the date OSD signs the transmittal letters on the reports to OMB and Congress. The specific time limits are:

a. Sixty days must elapse before collection forms or formal instructions pertaining to the system may be issued.

b. Sixty days must elapse before the system may become operational.

c. Sixty days must elapse before any public issuance of a Request for Proposal or Invitation to Bid for a new ADP or telecommunication system.

NOTE: Requests for delegation of procurement authority may be submitted to the General Services Administration during the 60 days' waiting period, but these will include language that the Privacy Act reporting criteria have been reviewed and that a system report is required for such procurement.

d. Normally 30 days must elapse before publication in the Federal Register of the notice of a new or altered system and the preamble to the Federal Register notice must reflect the date the transmittal letters to OMB and Congress were signed by OSD.

2. Do not operate a system of records until the waiting periods have expired.

E. Outside review of new and altered systems reports. If no objections are received within 30 days of a submission to the President of the Senate, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Director, OMB, of a new or altered system report, it is presumed that the new or altered systems have been approved as submitted.

F. Waiver of time restrictions. 1. The OMB may authorize a Federal agency to begin operation of a system of records before the expiration of time limits described above. When seeking such a waiver, include in the letter of transmittal to DLA-XA an explanation why a delay of 60 days in establishing the system of records would not be in the public interest. The transmittal must include:

a. How the public interest will be affected adversely if the established time limits are followed.

b. Why earlier notice was not provided.

c. Under no circumstances will the routine uses for a new or altered system be implemented before 30 days have elapsed after publication of the system notice containing the routine uses in the Federal Register. This period cannot be waived.

APPENDIX C TO PART 323—INSTRUCTIONS FOR PREPARATION OF REPORTS TO NEW OR ALTERED SYSTEMS

The report on a new or altered system will consist of a transmittal letter, a narrative statement, and include supporting documentation.

A. Transmittal Letter. The transmittal letter shall include any request for waivers. The narrative statement will be attached.

B. Narrative Statement. The narrative statement is typed in double space on standard bond paper. The statement includes:

1. System identification and name. This caption sets forth the identification and name of the system.

2. Authority for the system. See enclosure 1 of this part.

3. Number of individuals. The approximate number of individuals about whom records are to be maintained.

4. Information on First Amendment activities. Describe any information to be kept on the exercise of the individual's First Amendment rights and the basis for maintaining it.

5. Measures to ensure information accuracy. If the system is to be used to make determinations about the rights, benefits, or entitlements of individuals, describe the measures being established to ensure the accuracy, currency, relevance, and completeness of the information used for these purposes.

6. Other measures to ensure system security. Describe the steps taken to minimize the risk of unauthorized access to the system. A more detailed assessment of security risks and specific administrative, technical, and physical safeguards will be available for review upon request.

7. Relationship to state and local government activities. Describe the relationship of the system to state or local government activities that are the sources, recipients, or users of the information in the system.

C. Supporting Documentation. Item 10 of the narrative is captioned Supporting Documents. A positive statement for this caption is essential for those enclosures that are not required to be enclosed. For example, “No changes to the existing DLA procedural or exemption rules (32 CFR part 323) are required for this proposed system.” List in numerical sequence only those enclosures that are actually furnished. The following are typical enclosures that may be required:

1. For a new system, an advance copy of the system notice which is proposed for publication; for an altered system an advance copy of the notice reflecting the specific changes proposed.

2. An advance copy of any proposed exemption rule if the new or altered system is to be exempted. If there is no exemption, so state in the narrative.

3. Any other supporting documentation that may be pertinent or helpful in understanding the need for the system or clarifying its intended use. While not required, such documentation, when available, is helpful in evaluating the new or altered system.

APPENDIX D TO PART 323—WORD PROCESSING CENTER (WPC) SAFEGUARDS

A. Minimum Standards of Protection. All personal data processed using word processing equipment will be afforded the standards of protection required by this regulation. The special considerations discussed in this enclosure are primarily for Word Processing Centers (WPCs) operating independent of the customer's function. However, managers of word processing systems are encouraged to consider and adopt, when appropriate, the special considerations described. WPCs that are not independent of a customer's function are not required to prepare formal written risk assessments.

B. WPC Information Flow. In analyzing procedures required to safeguard adequately personal information in a WPC, the basic elements of WPC information flow and control must be considered. These are: Information receipt, information processing, information return, information storage and filing. WPCs do not control information acquisition or its ultimate use by the customers and, therefore, these are not addressed.

C. Safeguarding Information During Receipt. 1. The word processing manager will establish procedures:

a. To require each customer who requests that information subject to this DLAR be processed to identify specifically that information to the WPC personnel. This may be done by:

925
Pt. 323, App. D

1. Providing a check-off type entry on the WPC work requests.
2. Requiring that the WPC work requests be stamped with a special legend, or that a special notation be made on the work requests.
3. Redesignating specifically a class of documents as coming within the provisions of this DLAR (such as, all officer effectiveness reports, all recall rosters, and all medical protocols).
4. Using a special cover sheet both to alert the WPC personnel as to the type information, and to protect the document during transmittal.
5. Requiring an oral warning on all dictation.
6. Any other procedures that ensure the WPC personnel are alerted to the fact that personal data subject to this DLAR is to be processed.
b. To ensure that the operators or other WPC personnel who receive data for processing are not identified as being under the provisions of this DLAR, but that appear to be personal, promptly call the information to the attention of the WPC supervisor or the customer.
c. To ensure that any request for the processing of personal data which the customer has not identified as being in a system of record, and that appears to meet the criteria set forth in this regulation, is called to the attention of the appropriate supervisory personnel and system manager.

2. The WPC supervisor will ensure that personal information is not inadvertently compromised within the WPC.

3. Safeguarding Information During Processing. Each WPC supervisor will establish internal safeguards that will protect personal data from compromise while it is being processed.

2. Physical safeguards may include:
   a. Controls on individual access to the center.
   b. Machine configurations that reduce external access to the information being processed, or arrangements that alert the operator to the presence of others.
   c. Using certain specific machines to process personal data.
   d. Any other physical safeguards, to include special technical arrangements that will protect the data during processing.

3. Other safeguards may include:
   a. Using only certain selected operators to process personal data.
   b. Processing personal data only at certain times during the day without the WPC manager’s specific authorization.
   c. Using only certain tapes or diskettes to process and store personal data.
   d. Using continuous tapes for dictation of personal data.
   e. Requiring all WPC copies of documents to be marked specifically so as to prevent inadvertent compromise.
   f. Returning extra copies and mistakes to the customer with the product.
   g. Disposing of waste containing personal data in a special manner.
   h. Any other local procedures that provide adequate protection to the data being processed.

E. Safeguarding Information During Return. The WPC shall protect the data until it is returned to the customer or is placed into a formal distribution channel. In conjunction with the appropriate administrative support personnel and the WPC customers, the WPC manager will establish procedures that protect the information from the time word processing is completed until it is returned to the customer. Safeguarding procedures may include:

1. Releasing products only to specifically identified individuals.
2. Using sealed envelopes to transmit products to the customer.
3. Using special cover sheets to protect products similar to the one discussed in above.
4. Hand-carrying products to the customers.
5. Using special messengers to return the products.
6. Any other procedures that adequately protect products from compromise while they are awaiting return or being returned to the customer.

F. Safeguards During Storage. The WPC manager shall ensure that all personal data retained in the center for any purpose (including samples) are protected properly. Safeguarding procedures may include:

1. Marking will hard copies retained with special legends or designators.
2. Storing media containing personal data in separate files or areas.
3. Marking the storage containers for media containing personal data with special legends or notations.
4. Restricting the reuse of media used to process personal data or erasing the media before reuse.
5. Establishing special criteria for the WPC retention of media used to store and process personal data.
6. Returning the media to the customer for retention with the file copies of the finished products.
7. Discouraging, when practical, the long-term storage of personnel data in any form within the WPC.
8. Any other filing or storage procedures that safeguard adequately any personal information retained or filed within the WPC.

G. Risk Assessment for WPCs. Each WPC manager will ensure that a formal, written risk assessment is prepared for each WPC that processes personal information subject
These guidelines do not authorize activities expressly required to be performed by law. Complying with these guidelines, however, does not relieve a Federal agency or any nonfederal organization from any collection, maintenance, use, or dissemination of personal information. These guidelines do not authorize activities that are not permitted by law, nor do they prohibit activities expressly required to be performed by law. Complying with these guidelines, however, does not relieve a Federal agency of the obligation to comply with the provisions of the Privacy Act, including any provisions not cited in these guidelines.

B. Scope. These guidelines apply to all agencies subject to the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) and to all matching programs:

1. Performed by a Federal agency, whether the personal records used in the match are Federal or nonfederal.
2. For which a Federal agency discloses personal records from a system of records to the matching agency and any other Federal agency or any nonfederal organization.

C. Effective Date. These guidelines were effective on May 11, 1982.

D. Definitions. For the purpose of the Guidelines, all the terms defined in the Privacy Act of 1974 apply.

1. Personal Record. Any information pertaining to an individual that is stored in an automated system of records; for example, a data base which contains information about individuals that is retrieved by name or some other personal identifier.

2. Matching Program. A procedure in which a computer is used to compare two or more automated systems of records or a system of records with a set of nonfederal records to find individuals who are common to more than one system or set. The procedure includes all of the steps associated with the match, including obtaining the records to be matched, actual use of the computer, administrative and investigative action on the hits, and disposition of the personal records maintained in connection with the match. It should be noted that a single matching program may involve several matches among a number of participants. Matching programs do not include the following:
   a. Matches which compare a substantial number of records, such as, comparison of the Department of Education's defaulted student loan data base with the Office of Personnel Management's Federal employee data base would be covered; comparison of six individual student loan defaultees with the OPM file would not be covered.
   b. Checks on specific individuals to verify data in an application for benefits done reasonably soon after the application is received.
   c. Checks on specific individuals based on information which raises questions about an individual's eligibility for benefits or payments done reasonably soon after the information is received.
   d. Matches done to produce aggregate statistical data without any personal identifiers.
   e. Matches done to support any research or statistical project when the specific data are not to be used to make decisions about the rights, benefits, or privileges of specific individuals.
   f. Matches done by an agency using its own records.

4. Source Agency. The Federal agency which discloses records from a system of records to be used in the match. Note that in some circumstances a source agency may be the instigator and ultimate beneficiary of the matching program, as when an agency lacking computer resources uses another agency to perform the match. The disclosure of records to the matching agency and any later disclosure of "hits" (by either the matching or the source agencies) must be done in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (b) of the Privacy Act.

5. Hit. The identification, through a matching program, of a specific individual.

Guidelines for Agencies Participating in Matching Programs. Agencies should acquire and disclose matching records and conduct matching programs in accordance with the provisions of this section and the Privacy Act.

1. Disclosing Personal Records for Matching Programs—
a. To another Federal agency. Source agencies are responsible for determining whether or not to disclose personal records from their systems, and for making sure they meet the necessary Privacy Act disclosure provisions when they do. Among the factors source agencies should consider are:

(1) Legal authority for the match.
(2) Purpose and description of the match.
(3) Description of the records to be matched.
(4) Whether the record subjects have consented to the match; or whether disclosure of records for the match would be compatible with the purpose for which the records were originally collected; that is, whether disclosure under a ‘‘routine use’’ would be appropriate; whether the soliciting agency is seeking the records for a legitimate law enforcement activity—whichever is appropriate; or any other provision of the Privacy Act under which disclosure may be made.

(5) Description of additional information which may be subsequently disclosed in relation to ‘‘hits.’’

(6) Subsequent actions expected of the source (for example, verification of the identity of the ‘‘hits’’ or follow-up with individuals who are ‘‘hits’’).

(7) Safeguards to be afforded the records involved, including disposition.

b. If the agency is satisfied that disclosure of the records would not violate its responsibilities under the Privacy Act, it may proceed to make the disclosure to the matching agency. It should ensure that only the minimum information necessary to conduct the match is provided. If disclosure is to be made pursuant to a ‘‘routine use’’ (Section b.3 of the Privacy Act), it should ensure that the system of records contains such a use, or it should publish a routine use notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The agency should also be sure to maintain an accounting of the disclosure pursuant to Section (c) of the Privacy Act.

c. To a nonfederal entity. Before disclosing records to a nonfederal entity for a matching program to be carried out by that entity, a source agency should, in addition to all of the consideration in subparagraph a, above, also make reasonable efforts, pursuant to Section (e)(6) of the Privacy Act, to ‘‘assure that such records are accurate, complete, timely, and relevant for agency purposes.’’

2. Written Agreements. Before disclosing to either a Federal or non-Federal entity, the source agency should require the matching entity to agree in writing to certain conditions governing the use of the matching file; for example, that the matching file will remain the property of the source agency and be returned at the end of the matching program (or destroyed as appropriate); that the file will be used and accessed only to match the file or files previously agreed to; that it will not be used to extract information concerning ‘‘non-hit’’ individuals for any purpose, and that it will not be duplicated or disseminated within or outside the matching agency unless authorized in writing by the source agency.

3. Performing Matching Programs—
a. Matching agencies should maintain reasonable administrative, technical, and physical security safeguards on all files involved in the matching program.

b. Matching agencies should ensure that they have appropriate systems of records including those containing ‘‘hits,’’ and that such systems and any routine uses have been appropriately noticed in the FEDERAL REGISTER and reported to OMB and the Congress.

4. Disposition of Records—
a. Matching agencies will return or destroy source matching files (by mutual agreement) immediately after the match.

b. Records relating to this will be kept only so long as an investigation, either criminal or administrative, is active, and will be disposed of in accordance with the requirements of the Privacy Act and the Federal Records Act.

5. Publication Requirements—
a. Agencies, before disclosing records outside the agency, will publish appropriate ‘‘routine use’’ notices in the FEDERAL REGISTER, if necessary.

b. If the matching program will result in the creation of a new or the substantial alteration of an existing system of records, the agency involved should publish the appropriate FEDERAL REGISTER notice and submit the requisite report to OMB and the Congress pursuant to OMB Circular No. A-108.

6. Reporting Requirements—
a. As close to the initiation of the matching program as possible, matching agencies will publish in the FEDERAL REGISTER a brief public notice describing the matching program. The notice should include:

1. The legal authority under which the match is being conducted.

2. A description of the matching program including whether the program is one time or continuing, the organizations involved, the purpose or purposes for which the program is being conducted, and the procedures to be used in matching and following up on the ‘‘hits.’’

3. A complete description of the personal records to be matched, including the source
Office of the Secretary of Defense or sources, system of records identifying data, date or dates and page number of the most recent Federal Register full text publication when appropriate.

4. The projected start and ending dates of the program.

5. The security safeguards to be used to protect against unauthorized access or disclosure of the personal records.

6. Plans for disposition of the source records and “hits.”

7. Agencies should send a copy of this notice to the Congress and to OMB at the same time it is sent to the Federal Register.
   a. Agencies should report new or altered systems of records as described in subparagraph 5b, above, as necessary.
   b. Agencies should also be prepared to report on matching programs pursuant to the reporting requirements of either the Privacy Act or the Paperwork Reduction Act. Reports will be solicited by the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs and will focus on both the protection of individual privacy and Government’s effective use of information technology. Reporting instructions will be disseminated to the agencies as part of either the reports required by paragraph (p) of the Privacy Act, or section 3534 of Pub. L. 96-511.

8. Use of Contractors. Matching programs should, as far as practicable, be conducted “in-house” by Federal agencies using agency personnel, rather than by contract. When contractors are used:
   a. The matching agency should, consistent with paragraph (m) of the Privacy Act, cause the requirements of that Privacy Act to be applied to the contractor’s performance of the matching program. The contract should include the Privacy Act clause required by Federal Personnel Regulation Amendment 155 (41 CFR 1-1.337-5).
   b. The terms of the contract should include appropriate privacy and security provisions consistent with policies, regulations, standards, and guidelines issued by OMB, GSA, and the Department of Commerce.
   c. The terms of the contract should preclude the contractor from using, disclosing, copying, or retaining records associated with the matching program for the contractor’s own use.
   d. Contractor personnel involved in the matching program shall be made explicitly aware of their obligations under the Privacy Act and of these guidelines, agency rules, and any special safeguards in relation to each specific match performed.
   e. Any disclosures of records by the agency to the contractor should be made pursuant to a “routine use” (5 U.S.C. 552a(6)(b)(3)).
   f. Implementation and Oversight. OMB will oversee the implementation of these guidelines and will interpret and advise upon agency proposals and actions within their scope, consistent with section 6 of the Privacy Act.

APPENDIX H TO PART 323—DLA EXEMPTION RULES

Exempted Records Systems. All systems of records maintained by the Defense Logistics Agency will be exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) to the extent that the system contains any information properly classified under Executive Order 12958 and which is required by the Executive Order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This exemption, which may be applicable to parts of all systems of records, is necessary because certain record systems not otherwise specifically designated for exemption herein may contain isolated items of information which have been properly classified.

a. ID: S500.10 DLA-I (Specific exemption).
   2. Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the following provisions of title 5, United States Code, section 552a: (c)(3); (d); and (e)(1).
   4. Reasons: The investigatory reports are used by appropriate Security Officers and Commanders or other designated officials as a basis for determining a person's eligibility for access to information classified in the interests of national defense.

b. ID: S500.20 DLA-I (Specific exemption).
   2. Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the following provisions of title 5, United States Code, section 552a: (c)(3); (d); and (e)(1).
   4. Reasons: Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained by this component relating to the enforcement of criminal laws could interfere with orderly investigations, with the orderly administration of justice, and possibly enable suspects to avoid detection or apprehension. Disclosure of this information could result in the concealment, destruction or fabrication of evidence and jeopardize the safety and well-being of informants, witnesses and their families, and law enforcement personnel and their families. Disclosure of this information could also reveal and render ineffective investigative techniques, sources and methods and thwart the orderly and unbiased conduct of the investigation and impede case preparation. Providing access rights normally afforded under the Privacy Act would provide the subject with valuable information that would allow interference with or compromise of witnesses or render witnesses reluctant to cooperate; lead to suppression, alteration, or destruction of evidence; and result in the secreting of or other disposition of assets that would make them difficult or impossible to reach in order to satisfy any Government claim growing out of the investigation or proceeding.

From subsection (e)(1) because it is not always possible to detect the relevance or necessity of each piece of information in the early stages of an investigation. In some cases, it is only after the information is evaluated in light of other evidence that its relevance and necessity will be clear.

From subsections (e)(4)(G) and (H) because there is no necessity for such publication since the system of records will be exempt from the underlying duties to provide notification about and access to information in the system and to make amendments to and corrections of the information in the system.

to September 27, 1975 under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. This exemption will protect the identities of certain sources who would be otherwise unwilling to provide information to the Government. The exemption of the individual's right of access to his records and the reasons therefore necessitate the exemptions of this system of records from the requirements of the other cited provisions.

c. ID: S100.50 DLA-GC (Specific exemption).
   1. System name: Fraud and Irregularities.
   2. Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d)(1) through (4); (e)(1); (e)(4)(G); (H), and (I), and (f).
   3. Authorities: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) and (k)(5).
   4. Reasons: From subsection (c)(3) because granting access to the accounting for each disclosure as required by the Privacy Act, including the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure and the identity of the recipient, could alert the subject to the existence of the investigation or prospective interest by DLA or other agencies. This could seriously compromise case preparation by prematurely revealing its existence and nature; compromise or interfere with witnesses or make witnesses reluctant to cooperate; and lead to suppression, alteration, or destruction of evidence.

From subsections (d)(1) through (d)(4) and (f) because providing access to records of a civil investigation and the right to contest the contents of those records and force changes to be made to the information contained therein would seriously interfere with and thwart the orderly and unbiased conduct of the investigation and impede case preparation. Providing access rights normally afforded under the Privacy Act would provide the subject with valuable information that would allow interference with or compromise of witnesses or render witnesses reluctant to cooperate; lead to suppression, alteration, or destruction of evidence; and result in the secreting of or other disposition of assets that would make them difficult or impossible to reach in order to satisfy any Government claim growing out of the investigation or proceeding.

From subsection (e)(1) because it is not always possible to detect the relevance or necessity of each piece of information in the early stages of an investigation. In some cases, it is only after the information is evaluated in light of other evidence that its relevance and necessity will be clear.
Office of the Secretary of Defense

From subsection (e)(4)(I) because to the extent that this provision is construed to require more detailed disclosure than the broad, generic information currently published in the system notice, an exemption from this provision is necessary to protect the confidentiality of sources of information and to protect privacy and physical safety of witnesses and informants. DLA will, nevertheless, continue to publish such a notice in broad generic terms as is its current practice.

d. ID: S100.10 GC (Specific exemption).

1. System name: Whistleblower Complaint and Investigation Files.

2. Exemption: Portions of this system of records may be exempt under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d)(1) through (d)(4), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (e)(4)(I), and (f).

4. Reasons: From subsection (c)(3) because granting access to the accounting for each disclosure as required by the Privacy Act, including the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure and the identity of the recipient, could alert the subject to the existence of the investigation or prosecutive interest by DLA or other agencies. This could seriously compromise case preparation by prematurely revealing its existence and nature; compromise or interfere with witnesses or make witnesses reluctant to cooperate; and lead to suppression, alteration, or destruction of evidence.

From subsections (d)(1) through (d)(4), and (f) because providing access to records of a civil investigation and the right to contest the contents of those records and force changes to be made to the information contained therein would seriously interfere with and thwart the orderly and unbiased conduct of the investigation and impede case preparation. Providing access rights normally afforded under the Privacy Act would provide the subject with valuable information that would allow interference with or compromise of witnesses or render witnesses reluctant to cooperate; lead to suppression, alteration, or destruction of evidence; and result in the secreting of or other disposition of assets that would make them difficult or impossible to reach in order to satisfy any Government claim growing out of the investigation or proceeding.

From subsection (e)(1), because it is not always possible to detect the relevance or necessity of each piece of information in the early stages of an investigation. In some cases, it is only after the information is evaluated in light of other evidence that its relevance and necessity will be clear.

From subsections (e)(4)(G) and (e)(4)(H) because there is no necessity for such publication since the system of records will be exempt from the underlying duties to provide notification about and access to information in the system and to make amendments to and corrections of the information in the system. However, DLA will continue to publish such a notice in broad generic terms as is its current practice.

From subsection (e)(4)(I) because to the extent that this provision is construed to require more detailed disclosure than the broad, generic information currently published in the system notice, an exemption from this provision is necessary to protect the confidentiality of sources of information and to protect privacy and physical safety of witnesses and informants. DLA will, nevertheless, continue to publish such a notice in broad generic terms as is its current practice.

1. System name: DLA Complaint Program Records.

2. Exemption: (i) Investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes may be exempt pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2). However, if an individual is denied any right, privilege, or benefit for which he would otherwise be entitled by Federal law or for which he would otherwise be eligible, as a result of the maintenance of the information, the individual will be provided access to the information except to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for federal civilian employment, military service, federal contracts, or access to classified information may be exempt pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5), but only to the extent that such material would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

3. Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) and (k)(5), subsections (c)(3), (d)(1) through (d)(4), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I), and (f).

4. Reasons: (i) From subsection (c)(3) because granting access to an accounting of disclosures as required by the Privacy Act, including the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure and the identity of the recipient, could alert the subject to the existence of the investigation or prosecutive interest by DLA or other agencies. This could seriously compromise case preparation by prematurely revealing its existence and nature; compromise or interfere with witnesses or make witnesses reluctant to cooperate; and lead to suppression, alteration, or destruction of evidence.

(ii) From subsections (d)(1) through (d)(4), and (f) because providing access to records of a civil or administrative investigation and the right to contest the contents of those records and force changes to be made to the information contained therein would seriously interfere with and thwart the orderly and unbiased conduct of the investigation.
and impede case preparation. Providing access rights normally afforded under the Privacy Act would provide the subject with valuable information that would allow interference with or compromise of witnesses or render witnesses reluctant to cooperate; lead to suppression, alteration, or destruction of evidence; enable individuals to conceal their wrongdoing or mislead the course of the investigation; and result in the secreting of or other disposition of assets that would make them difficult or impossible to reach in order to satisfy any Government claim growing out of the investigation or proceeding.

(iii) From subsection (e)(1) because it is not always possible to detect the relevance or necessity of each piece of information in the early stages of an investigation. In some cases, it is only after the information is evaluated in light of other evidence that its relevance and necessity will be clear.

(iv) From subsections (e)(4)(G) and (H) because this system of records is compiled for law enforcement purposes and is exempt from the access provisions of subsections (d) and (f).

(v) From subsection (e)(4)(I) because to the extent that this provision is construed to require more detailed disclosure than the broad, generic information currently published in the system notice, an exemption from this provision is necessary to protect the confidentiality of sources of information and to protect privacy and physical safety of witnesses and informants. DLA will, nevertheless, continue to publish such a notice in broad generic terms as is its current practice.

Subpart B—Systems of Records

§ 324.5 General information.

(a) The provisions of DoD 5400.11-R, ‘Department of Defense Privacy Program’ (see 32 CFR part 310) apply to all DFAS systems of records. DFAS Privacy Act Program Procedural Rules, DFAS Exemption Rules and System of Record Notices are the three types of documents relating to the Privacy Act Program that must be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(b) A system of records used to retrieve records by a name or some other personal identifier of an individual must be under DFAS control for consideration under this regulation. DFAS will maintain only those Systems of Records that have been described through notices published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

1 First amendment guarantee. No records will be maintained that describe how individuals exercise their rights guaranteed by the First Amendment unless maintenance of the record is expressly authorized by Statute, the individual or for an authorized law enforcement purpose.

2 Conflicts. In case of conflict, the provisions of DoD 5400.11-R take precedence over this supplement or any DFAS directive or procedure concerning the collection, maintenance, use or disclosure of information from individual records.

3 Record system notices. Record system notices are published in the FEDERAL REGISTER as notices and are not subject to the rule making procedures. The public must be given 30 days to comment on any proposed routine uses prior to implementing the system of record.

4 Amendments. Amendments to system notices are submitted in the same manner as the original notices.

§ 324.6 Procedural rules.

DFAS procedural rules (regulations having a substantial and direct impact on the public) must be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER first as a proposed rule to allow for public comment and then as a final rule. Procedural rules will be submitted through the appropriate DFAS Privacy Act Officer to the Department of Defense Privacy Office. Appendix B to this part provides the correct format. Guidance may be obtained from the DFAS-HQ and DFAS Center Records Managers on the preparation of procedural rules for publication.

§ 324.7 Exemption rules.

(a) Submitting proposed exemption rules. Each proposed exemption rule submitted for publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER must contain: The agency identification and name of the record system for which an exemption will be established; The subsection(s) of the Privacy Act which grants the agency authority to claim an exemption for the system; The particular subsection(s) of the Privacy Act from which the system will be exempt; and the reasons why an exemption from the particular subsection identified in the preceding subparagraph is being claimed. No exemption to all provisions of the Privacy Act for any System of records will be granted. Only the Director, DFAS may make a determination that an exemption should be established for a system of record.

(b) Submitting exemption rules for publication. Exemption rules must be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER first as proposed rules to allow for public comment, then as final rules. No system of records shall be exempt from any provision of the Privacy Act until the exemption rule has been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER as a final rule. The DFAS Privacy Act Officer will submit proposed exemption rules, in proper format, to the Defense Privacy Office, for review and submission to the FEDERAL REGISTER for publication. Amendments to exemption rules are submitted in the same manner as the original exemption rules.

(c) Exemption for classified records. Any record in a system of records maintained by the Defense Finance and
Office of the Secretary of Defense

§ 324.13

Access to medical and psychological records.

Individual access to medical and psychological records should be provided, even if the individual is a minor, unless it is determined that access could have an adverse effect on the mental or physical health of the individual. In this instance, the individual will be asked to provide the name of a personal physician, and the record will be provided to that physician in accordance with guidance in Department of § 324.14 Relationship between the Privacy Act and the Freedom of Information Act.
§ 324.14

Access requests that specifically state or reasonably imply that they are made under FOIA, are processed pursuant to the DFAS Freedom of Information Act Regulation. Access requests that specifically state or reasonably imply that they are made under the PA are processed pursuant to this regulation. Access requests that cite both the FOIA and the PA are processed under the Act that provides the greater degree of access. Individual access should not be denied to records otherwise releasable under the PA or the FOIA solely because the request does not cite the appropriate statute. The requester should be informed which Act was used in granting or denying access.

APPENDIX A TO PART 324—DFAS REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

By February 1, of each calendar year, DFAS Centers and Financial Systems Organizations will provide the DFAS Headquarters Privacy Act Officer with the following information:

1. Total Number of Requests for Access:
   a. Number granted in whole:
   b. Number granted in part:
   c. Number wholly denied:
   d. Number for which no record was found:
2. Total Number of Requests to Amend Records in the System:
   a. Number granted in whole:
   b. Number granted in part:
   c. Number wholly denied:
3. The results of reviews undertaken in response to paragraph 3a of Appendix I to OMB Circular A-130.

APPENDIX B TO PART 324—SYSTEM OF RECORDS NOTICE

The following data captions are required for each system of records notice published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. An explanation for each caption is provided.

1. System identifier. The system identifier must appear in all system notices. It is limited to 21 positions, including agency code, file number, symbols, punctuation, and spaces.

2. Security classification. Self explanatory. (DoD does not publish this caption. However, each agency is responsible for maintaining the information.)

3. System name. The system name must indicate the general nature of the system of records and, if possible, the general category of individuals to whom it pertains. Acronyms should be established parenthetically following the first use of the name (e.g., ‘Field Audit Office Management Information System (FMIS)'). Acronyms shall not be used unless preceded by such an explanation. The system name may not exceed 55 character positions, including punctuation and spaces.

4. Security classification. This category is not published in the FEDERAL REGISTER but is required to be kept by the Headquarters Privacy Act Officer.

5. System location. a. For a system maintained in a single location, provide the exact office name, organizational identity, routing symbol, and full mailing address. Do not use acronyms in the location address.
   b. For a geographically or organizationally decentralized system, describe each level of organization or element that maintains a portion of the system of records.
   c. For an automated data system with a central computer facility and input or output terminals at geographically separate locations, list each location by category.
   d. If multiple locations are identified by type of organization, the system location may indicate that official mailing addresses are published as an appendix to the agency's compilation of systems of records notices in the FEDERAL REGISTER. If no address directory is used, or if the addresses in the directory are incomplete, the address of each location where a portion of the record system is maintained must appear under the ‘system location’ caption.
   e. Classified addresses shall not be listed but the fact that they are classified shall be indicated.
   f. The U.S. Postal Service two-letter state abbreviation and the nine-digit zip code shall be used for all domestic addresses.

6. Categories of individuals covered by the system. Use clear, non technical terms which show the specific categories of individuals to whom records in the system pertain. Broad descriptions such as ‘all DFAS personnel’ or ‘all employees’ should be avoided unless the term actually reflects the category of individuals involved.

7. Categories of records in the system. Use clear, non technical terms to describe the types of records maintained in the system. The description of documents should be limited to those actually retained in the system of records. Source documents used only to collect data and then destroyed should not be described.

8. Authority for maintenance of the system. The system of records must be authorized by... a Federal law or Executive Order of the President, and the specific provision must be cited. When citing federal laws, include the popular names (e.g., ‘5 U.S.C. SS2a, The Privacy Act of 1974’), the official titles (e.g., ‘Executive Order 9997, Numbering System for Federal Accounts Relating to Individual Persons’), or the specific purpose(s) for which the system of records was created and maintained; that is, the uses of the records within DFAS and the rest of the Department of Defense should be listed.

9. Retention and disposal. Describe how long records are maintained. When appropriate, the length of time records are maintained by the agency in an active status, when they are transferred to a Federal Records Center, how long they are kept at the Federal Records Center, and when they are transferred to the National Archives or destroyed should be stated. If records eventually are destroyed, the method of destruction (e.g., shredding, burning, pulping, etc.) should be stated. If the agency rule is cited, the applicable disposition schedule shall also be identified.

17. System manager(s) and address. The title (not the name) and address of the official or officials responsible for managing the system of records should be listed. If the title of the specific official is unknown, such as with a local system, the local director or office head as the system manager should be indicated. For geographically separated or organizationally decentralized activities with which individuals may correspond directly when exercising their rights, the position or title of each category of officials responsible for the system or portion thereof should be listed. Addresses that already are listed in the agency address directory or simply refer to the directory should not be included.

18. Notification procedures. Notification procedures describe how an individual can determine if a record in the system pertains to him/her. If the record system has been exempted from the notification requirements of subsection (f)(1) or subsection (e)(4)(G) of the Privacy Act, it should be so stated. If the system has not been exempted, the notice must provide sufficient information to enable an individual to request notification of whether a record in the system pertains to him/her. Merely referring to a DFAS regulation is not sufficient. This section should also include the title (not the name) and address of the official (usually the Program Manager) to whom the request must be directed; any specific information the individual must provide in order for DFAS to respond to the request (e.g., name, SSN, date of birth, etc.); and any description of proof of identity or verification purposes required for personal visits by the requester.

19. Record access procedures. This section describes how an individual can review the record and obtain a copy of it. If the system has been exempted from access and publishing access procedures under subsections (d)(1) and (e)(4)(H), respectively, of the Privacy Act, it should be so indicated. If the system has not been exempted, describe the procedures an individual must follow in order to review the record and obtain a copy of it, including any requirements for identity verification. If appropriate, the individual may be referred to the system manager or another DFAS official who shall provide a detailed description of the access procedures. Any addresses already listed in the address directory should not be repeated.

20. Contesting records procedures. This section describes how an individual may challenge the denial of access or the contents of a record that pertains to him or her. If the system of record has been exempted from allowing amendments to records or publishing amendment procedures under subsections (d)(1) and (e)(4)(H), respectively, of the Privacy Act, it should be so stated. If the system has not been exempted, this caption describes the procedures an individual must follow in order to challenge the content of a record pertaining to him/her, or explain how he/she can obtain a copy of the procedures (e.g., by contacting the Program Manager or the appropriate DFAS Privacy Act Officer).

21. Record source categories. If the system has been exempted from publishing record source categories under subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Privacy Act, it should be so stated. If the system has not been exempted, this caption must describe where DFAS obtained the information maintained in the system. Describing the record sources in general terms is sufficient; specific individuals, organizations, or institutions need not be identified.

22. Exemptions claimed for the system. If no exemption has been established for the system, indicate 'None.' If an exemption has been established, state under which provision of the Privacy Act it is established (e.g., 'Portions of this system of records may be exempt under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).')

PART 336—PUBLICATIONS OF PROPOSED AND ADOPTED REGULATIONS AFFECTING THE PUBLIC

Sec.
336.1 Purpose.
336.2 Applicability and scope.
336.3 Policy.
336.4 Proposed regulations.
336.5 Publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER of adopted regulations and other matters.
336.6 Petitions.
336.7 Effective date and implementation.

AUTHORITY: 10 U.S.C. 125.

§ 336.1 Purpose.
This part:
(a) Establishes a policy and procedure by which the Department of Defense will invite the comments of the public on those of its proposed regulations and other types of rulemaking as described hereafter which originate within the Department of Defense as a requirement of general applicability and future effect designed to implement, interpret, or prescribe law or policy, or practice or procedure requirements of a component. This requirement applies to those regulations which constitute the authority for actions having a substantial and direct impact on the public when consistent with other responsibilities of the Department for the efficient and responsible conduct of public business.
(b) Implements the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552 relating to the kinds of regulations that must be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER after they are adopted.

§ 336.2 Applicability and scope.
(a) The provisions of this part apply to the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the Military Departments, the Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the Defense Agencies (hereinafter referred to singularly as a “DoD component” or collectively as “DoD components”).
(b) These provisions are applicable to those directives, instructions, regulations, policy memoranda, manuals, and other forms of rulemaking (hereinafter referred to as “regulations”) that have a substantial and direct impact on the public. Only a regulation which must be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER after its adoption in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552 (as implemented in § 336.5) comes within the requirement that it be evaluated to determine whether it will have the substantial and direct impact on the public that warrants an invitation for public comment prior to its adoption. An implementation by a subordinate component of a regulation adopted by a component at a higher level within the Department of Defense is not deemed to “originate” a requirement of general applicability and future effect, and therefore, does not fall within the scope of the obligation to invite public comment on its provisions.
(c) The determination by the component originating a regulation shall be final and conclusive in determining whether a regulation or a proposed regulation comes within the purview of this part. Consideration shall be given, however, to the definition of “rulemaking” found in 5 U.S.C. 551 as it relates to the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 in making this determination.
(d) The requirement for inviting public comment on a proposed regulation shall not be deemed applicable to any proposed regulation coming within one or more of the following exemptions or exceptions to the rulemaking procedures set forth in 5 U.S.C. 553.
(1) Any matter pertaining to a military or foreign affairs function of the United States which has been determined under the criteria of an Executive Order or statute to require a security classification in the interests of national defense or foreign policy.
(2) Any matter relating to (i) agency management, (ii) agency personnel, or (iii) public contracts (e.g., the Armed Services Procurement Regulation), including nonappropriated fund contracts.
(3) Any matter involving (i) interpretative rules, (ii) general statements of § 336.3 Policy.

(a) It is the policy of the Department of Defense to encourage the maximum practicable participation of the public in the formulation of regulations having a substantial and direct impact on the public, and to inform the public fully through publication in the Federal Register of all adopted regulations intended for public guidance.

(b) A proposed regulation which would originate a Department of Defense policy having a substantial and direct impact on the public should be published, along with a notice of purpose and authority, in the Federal Register in order to invite public comment within a designated time at least 30 days prior to its intended adoption. This policy should be followed even though the proposed regulation may come within one or more of the exceptions or exemptions previously set forth in §336.2(d).

(c) Whenever the originating DoD Component finds that notice and prepublication of a proposed regulation for public comment are impracticable, unnecessary, or contrary to the public interest, it shall incorporate that finding and a brief statement of its reasons in the adopted regulation, or it may adopt and publish in the Federal Register a separate regulation excepting or exempting categories of regulations for any of these reasons, with an explanation of the basis for excepting or exempting each particular category. Separate regulations for this purpose shall be promulgated by the procedures for proposed rules whenever this falls within the requirements of paragraph (a) of this section.

(d) Following the publication of notice and the proposed regulation in the Federal Register, the DoD Component shall give all interested persons an opportunity to participate in the rulemaking through the submission of written data, views, or arguments. An opportunity for oral presentation will normally not be provided, but may as a matter within the sole and exclusive prerogative of the component be extended where it is found to be in the interest of the DoD Component or the public. After careful consideration of all relevant matter presented, the component shall incorporate in the adopted regulation a concise general statement of its basis and purpose. A preamble to the adopted regulation may be published in the Federal Register to explain the relationship of the adopted rule to the proposed rule, including the nature and effect of public comments.

§ 336.5 Publication in the Federal Register of adopted regulations and other matters.

Subject to the exemptions set forth in 32 CFR 286.6:

(a) Each DoD Component shall publish in the Federal Register an informative, current description for the guidance of the public, of where, how, and by what authority it performs any of its functions. In deciding which information to publish in the Federal Register a DoD Component shall consider the fundamental objective of informing all interested persons of how to deal effectively with the component.

(b) Information to be published in the Federal Register shall include:

(1) Descriptions of the central and field organization of the component concerned, and the established places at which, the employees or members of the armed forces from whom, and the methods whereby the public may secure information, make submittals or requests, or obtain decisions.

(2) The procedures by which a DoD Component conducts its business with the public, both formally and informally.

(3) The rules of procedure which must be followed, the description of forms which must be completed, or the source from which forms may be obtained, and instructions on the scope and content of papers, reports, examinations required to be submitted pursuant to such rules of procedures, as adopted by the component.

(4) Directives, instructions, regulations, manuals, policy memorandums, statements of general policy, or interpretation of general applicability adopted by the agency, and other substantive rules of general applicability affecting the public.

(c) With the approval of the Director of the Federal Register, the requirement for publication in the Federal Register (1 CFR part 51, 37 FR 23614, Nov. 4, 1972) may be satisfied by reference in the Federal Register to other publications reasonably available to the class of persons affected and containing the information which must otherwise be published in the Federal Register.

(1) In order to be eligible for incorporation by reference, the matter must be in the nature of published data, criteria, standards, specifications, techniques, illustrations, or other published information reasonably available to members of class affected thereby.

(2) Incorporation by reference is not acceptable as a complete substitute for promulgating in full text material required to be published by 5 U.S.C. 552.

(3) Incorporation by reference is acceptable as a means of avoiding unnecessary repetition within the promulgated document of published information already reasonably available to the class affected. Examples include:

(i) Construction standards promulgated by a professional association or architects, engineers, or builders.

(ii) Code of ethics promulgated by professional organizations.

(iii) Forms and formats publicly or privately published and readily available to the persons required to use them.

(d) It is incumbent upon each component to review all information of the type described in paragraph (b) of this section, to insure that it is published on an up-to-date basis in the Federal Register, including every amendment revision, or repeal. No member of the general public can be required to resort to, or be adversely affected by, any material not published as required by the foregoing provisions of § 336.5 unless he § 336.6 Petitions.

Each component shall accord any interested person the right to petition for the issuance, amendment, or repeal of a regulation that originates or would originate, for the Department of Defense or that component, a policy, requirement, or procedure coming within the scope of § 336.4. Any such petition shall be given full and prompt consideration by the component charged with the responsibility for issuing such a regulation. The petitioner shall be advised in writing of the disposition, and the reason for the disposition, of any written petition for the issuance, amendment, or repeal of a regulation. The official responsibility for disposition of the petition may at his absolute discretion, grant the petitioner a right to appear for the purpose of supporting his petition if this is compatible with the orderly conduct of public business.

§ 336.7 Effective date and implementation.

This part becomes effective on February 1, 1975, but is applicable only to the regulations promulgated under the authority of a component after April 1, 1975. Two copies of implementing regulations shall be forwarded to the General Counsel of the Department of Defense on or before April 1, 1975.

(b) Copies of DNA indexes and instructions may be ordered by telephone or letter. The commercial telephone number is (703) 325-7095. Include personal or company name, street address or post office box, city, state, country (if applicable) and zip code when submitting requests. Submit written requests to: Defense Nuclear Agency, Public Affairs Office, Washington, DC 20305-1000.

(c) This service is provided to the public and to federal agencies other than the Department of Defense. DNA does not charge for requests for an index and one instruction; however, fees for larger orders are determined on a case-by-case basis.

§ 362.1 Purpose.

This part changes the name of the Defense Communications Agency (DCA) to the Defense Information Systems Agency (DISA) and revises the responsibilities, functions, relationships, and authorities of the DISA. For the purposes of 10 U.S.C. 193, any other law or regulation, or for any other purpose, DISA will perform the functions of the Defense Communications Agency.

§ 362.2 Definitions.

(a) Defense Communications System (DCS). (1) The DCS is a composite of DoD-owned and -leased telecommunications subsystems and networks comprised of facilities, personnel, and material under the management control and operational direction of the DISA. It provides the longhaul, point-to-point, and switched network telecommunications needed to satisfy the requirements of the Department of Defense and certain other Government Agencies, including those required to interconnect the NCA, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the Unified and Specified Commanders with the general purpose networks.

(2) The DCS includes fixed, transportable, and mobile facilities. It consists of:

(i) Switching and/or relay facilities to include associated software of the general purpose (common user) networks, such as Defense Switched Network (DSN), Automatic Digital Network (AUTODIN), Defense Data Network (DDN), and Secure Voice System.

(ii) Transmission media and/or circuits that provide user and/or subscriber connection into the DCS networks, or which interconnect the switching and/or relay facilities and/or the user and/or subscriber terminals in use by the DCS. This includes the assets of the Defense Satellite Communications System, except those portions that are specifically excluded from the DCS.

(3) Although the DISA specifies the interconnection and interface standards when operated with DCS networks, the DCS does not include:

(i) Mobile and/or transportable communications facilities and assets organic to Army, Navy, Air Force, and Fleet Marine forces, unless specifically designated as components of the DCS.

(ii) Ship and/or ship, ship and/or shore, air and/or air, air and/or ground, and other tactical telecommunications.

(iii) Post, camp, base, and station user and/or subscriber facilities and terminals.

(iv) On-site telecommunications facilities associated with or integral to weapons systems and to missile launch complexes, including those required for countdown, command, control, weapons destruct, and range safety.

(v) Consoles and display devices integral to the Unified and Specified Command Centers, their DoD Component Headquarters, and the Military Services' operations centers.

(b) Fielding Plan. A fielding plan details the coordination and execution involved in the deployment of a system or equipment, and addresses interoperability opportunities and constraints. The plan includes sufficient information for a common understanding between the program sponsor and the gaining command for equipment quantities, implementation schedules, skill qualifications and training, and any additional manpower, facilities, or support requirements.

(c) Long-haul Telecommunications. All general purpose and special purpose long-distance facilities and services (including terminal equipment and local circuitry supporting the long-haul service) used to support the electromagnetic and/or optical dissemination, transmission, or reception of information via voice, data, video, integrated telecommunications, wire, or radio to or from the post, camp, base, or station switch and/or main frame (except for trunk lines to the first-serving commercial central office for local communications services). That includes the FTS2000, DSN, DDN, the AUTODIN, dedicated point-to-point service, and the Primary Interexchange Carrier service associated with business or tie line to the local exchange carrier (e.g., Direct Distance Dialing, Foreign Exchange, WATS, 800 service, etc.) and contractor-provided telecommunications, including the interconnection of various functional Automated Data Processing Systems.

(e) Military Satellite Communications (MILSATCOM) Systems. The totality of existing and planned DoD satellite communications capability consisting of the space, ground, and control segments. MILSATCOM systems include the interfaces between satellite systems and ground segments, and the interfaces with other communications systems.

(f) National Communications System (NCS). (1) The NCS was established by E.O. 12472 (3 CFR, 1984 Comp., p. 193). It consists of the telecommunications assets of the entities represented on the NCS Committee of Principals and an administrative structure consisting of the Executive Agent, the NCS Committee of Principals, and the Manager.

2 The mission of the NCS is to assist the President, the National Security Council, the Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy, and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget in:

(i) The exercise of the telecommunications functions and responsibilities assigned in E.O. 12472.

(ii) The coordination of the planning for, and provision of, national security emergency preparedness communications for the Federal Government under all circumstances, including crisis or emergency, attack, recovery, and reconstitution.

(g) National Military Command System (NMCS). The NMCS is the priority DoD Component of the WWMCCS designed to support the NCA in the exercise of its responsibilities. It also supports the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the exercise of his responsibilities.

(h) Operational Test Agency (OTA). Separate and independent from the material developing and/or procuring Agency and from the using Agency, the major field OTA shall be responsible for planning and conducting operational tests, reporting test results, and providing an evaluation of the tested system's operational effectiveness and suitability directly to the Agency’s Director.

(i) Procedural Interface Standards. Specifications for accomplishing the exchange of information across an interface. They define:

1 The form or format in which information is to be exchanged.

2 The prescribed information exchange language, syntax, and vocabulary to be used in the information exchange.

3 Interface operating procedures that govern the information exchange.

(j) Technical Interface Standards. Specifications of the functional, electrical, and physical characteristics necessary to allow the exchange of information across an interface between different C3 and information systems or equipment.

(k) Worldwide Military Command and Control System (WWMCCS). The WWMCCS is the worldwide command and control system that provides the means for operational direction and technical administrative support involved in the function of C2 of U.S. military forces.

§ 362.3 Mission.

The DISA is responsible for planning, developing, and supporting command, control, communications (C3), and information systems that serve the needs of the National Command Authorities (NCA) under all conditions of peace and war. It provides guidance and support on technical and operational C3 and information systems issues affecting the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD), the Military Departments, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Joint Staff, the Unified and Specified Commands, and the Defense Agencies (hereafter referred to collectively as “the DoD Components”). It ensures the interoperability of the Worldwide Military Command and Control System (WWMCCS), the Defense Communications System (DCS), theater and tactical command and control systems, North Atlantic Treaty Organization and/or allied C3 systems, and those national and/or international commercial systems that affect the DISA mission. It supports national security emergency preparedness telecommunications functions of the National Communications System (NCS), as prescribed by E.O. 12472.
§ 362.4 Organization and management.

The DISA is established as a Combat Support Agency of the Department of Defense, and shall be under the direction, authority, and control of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Command, Control, Communications, and Intelligence (ASD(C3I)). It shall consist of a Director and such subordinate organizational elements as are established by the Director within the resources authorized by the Secretary of Defense.

Approval will be subject to funding and manpower availability, along with other relevant factors.

Increases that would add to the overall funding level of the separate DSA budget line in the O&M Defense Agencies Appropriation are subject to fund availability, and shall be addressed through the normal budget process.

(3) Maintain, monitor, and revise, as necessary, the official list of DSAs in appendix A to this part.
