

Senator NUNN worked on a bipartisan basis to rebuild America's military.

Senator NUNN has also worked with another military expert, Senator RICHARD LUGAR, in working with the former Soviet Republic to relinquish their nuclear weapons.

On nondefense matters, I have appreciated Senator NUNN's strong support for a balanced budget amendment, product liability reform, and anticrime and antidrug efforts.

The high respect in which Senator NUNN is held in Washington, DC, is echoed in his home State of Georgia. In 1978, Senator NUNN won reelection with 83 percent of the vote. In 1984, he received 80 percent, he ran completely unopposed.

It goes without saying, then, that Senator NUNN could have won reelection this year. He has chosen to leave on his own terms, and I have no doubt that his voice will continue to be an important one for many years to come.

TRIBUTE TO AL SIMPSON

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, as I look back on my years in the Senate, there are many Members to whom I am indebted for the friendship and support they have given me. I can think of no better friend, however, and no more reliable ally than AL SIMPSON.

As all Members know, AL served for 10 years as Republican whip. And no doubt about it, he made being Republican leader a much easier job. Every time I needed help, every time there was work to be done, every time something was needed as soon as possible, AL SIMPSON was there, getting the job done, and doing it with the one of a kind sense of humor that is his trademark.

AL SIMPSON is not only one of the wittiest men in Washington, he is also one of the most courageous.

From immigration to entitlement reform, he has made a habit of tackling the toughest and most controversial of issues, calling them as he sees them, and letting the cards fall where they may.

A few weeks back, much of Washington gathered to salute AL SIMPSON. Well, actually, much of Washington gathered to salute AL's wife, Ann. I regret that a delayed flight kept me from attending what by all reports was a wonderful evening. Speaker after speaker—Republicans and Democrats alike—rose to salute AL and Ann for all they have done for this institution and this city.

The highlight of the event was when former President George Bush offered an emotional tribute to the man who he called his best friend in the Senate. While AL's retirement means that President Bush is gaining a fishing buddy, it means that the Senate is losing one of its finest.

I have said before that AL SIMPSON embodies the American spirit many associate with the American cowboy. He is honest, independent, and he always judges people not by money or position—but by character.

It was once written that "out where the handclasp's a little stronger, out where the smile dwells a little longer, that is where the West begins."

If that is the case, then the fact of the matter is that the West begins wherever AL SIMPSON is, because wherever he goes, he brings handclasps and smiles with him.

TRIBUTE TO NANCY KASSEBAUM

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I guess it is hard to pay tribute to my colleague, Senator KASSEBAUM, because she has done such an outstanding job. And there is no question about it. She is the most popular politician we have had in our State—the most popular "politician in politics," let us put it that way; some do not like the word "politician"—for years.

Over the past several days, I have paid tribute to those colleagues who are retiring from the Senate at the conclusion of the 104th Congress; this is my final tribute.

During my years representing Kansas in the U.S. Senate, it has been my privilege to serve alongside two remarkable colleagues from Kansas.

The first was Jim Pearson, who was a Senator of great common sense and great integrity—a Senator who was widely respected by Members on both sides of the aisle.

For the past 18 years, I have had the privilege of serving alongside another person respected by all Senators for her common sense and integrity—Senator NANCY LANDON KASSEBAUM.

Senator KASSEBAUM is retiring at the end of this session, so she can spend more time with her children and grandchildren. The voters of Kansas, who have cast their ballots for her in overwhelming numbers, understand her desire to come home, but they also understand that this Chamber will be losing one of its most thoughtful and effective Members.

NANCY KASSEBAUM does not speak in a loud voice. She does not clamor for media attention. But as all Senators know, while her voice may be quiet, her will is strong. For 18 years she has simply represented the people of Kansas to the best of her abilities, and she had made a positive difference for Kansas and America in the process.

As a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, Senator KASSEBAUM has made a habit of staking out policies that provide to be prophetic. She was instrumental in the policies that helped to move South Africa away from apartheid, and she saw Saddam Hussein as a danger long before many others.

As ranking member and then Chair of the Labor and Human Resources Committee, she had fought to return dollars and decisions to the local levels, remembering the words of her father, Alf Landon, who once said, "There are some smart people in Washington, DC. There are more of them in Topeka."

Although as of tomorrow, I will no longer be NANCY's colleague, I will still be her constituent. And along with all other Kansans, I will take great pride in being able to say for 6 more months—as I have for 18 years—that NANCY KASSEBAUM is my Senator.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR JIM EXON

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I have often said that the people of Kansas and Nebraska share a great deal in common besides a border. We share commonsense values. We share agricultural interests. We share a preference for public officials who say what they will do, and who do what they say.

For the past 26 years—8 in the Governor's office, and 18 here in the Senate—one of Nebraska's preeminent public officials has been JIM EXON.

A small businessman before he entered public service, Senator EXON has devoted a great deal of time to restoring fiscal responsibility to Government. Senator EXON practices what he preaches, regularly returning a substantial portion of his office allowance to the treasury.

Senator EXON has also proposed a budget freeze, and did vote for the balanced budget amendment last year. And Senator EXON knows how much I regret his decision to now oppose that amendment.

Senator EXON and I have disagreed on a variety of issues over the years, but with me—as with every other Senator—JIM EXON was always upfront and to the point.

I join with all my colleagues in wishing JIM and Pat EXON the best as they return to the State they love so much and have served so well.

TRIBUTE TO ROBERT BYRD

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, during 1987 and 1988, I delivered a series of nearly 300 brief speeches on the Senate floor to commemorate the long history of this great institution.

Each of these so-called Senate bicentennial minutes focused on a significant person, custom, or event associated with the Senate's development during its first two centuries.

The inspiration for this project came from my fellow floor leader during that 100th Congress, Senator ROBERT C. BYRD. Beginning in 1980, Senator BYRD launched an unprecedented series of hour-long addresses to the Senate detailing this body's rich history. The 100-part series was completed in November 1989.

In recognition of this extraordinary achievement, Congress agreed to publish these addresses in four richly illustrated volumes that today are universally known as "Byrd's Senate History."

Senator BYRD has not only written about the Senate's history, he has also made it. He has set so many major records that he can justly be considered the Cal Ripken and the Michael Jordan of the Senate.

He has held more Senate party leadership offices than any other Member of either party. He has cast more roll-call votes than any Member in history—A record that he continues to break every day the Senate is in session. He has not missed a vote in 12 years, giving him a Senate career voting average of 99 percent.

Finally, ROBERT BYRD is 1 of only 3 Senators in history—that is 3 of 1,827—to have been elected to 7 full 6-year terms.

Not only has he broken all the records, he has also established an example for the rest of us and for the Nation of the best in Senatorial conduct.

ROBERT BYRD's service to the Senate has been characterized by hard work, attention to detail, boundless energy, and intense loyalty.

Mr. President, on October 21, 1988, I dedicated my final bicentennial minute to Senator BYRD and his remarkable contributions as a Senate leader.

And now, on June 10, 1996, my next to last day here in the Senate, I want to repeat the words I said 8 years ago:

The final chapter in ROBERT BYRD's history is not likely to be written for some time, yet it is safe to say that he has set a standard as a Senator, as a legislative leader, and as a statesman that will stand among the best as long as there is a Senate.

TRIBUTE TO TOM DASCHLE

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, during my more than 11 years as Republican leader, it has been my privilege to serve across the aisle from three Democrat leaders.

Senator BYRD sat in the leader's chair for 4 of those years, Senator George Mitchell for 6, and Senator TOM DASCHLE for the past year and a half.

When Senator DASCHLE became leader in January 1995, I said then that I had learned that the only way the Senate can run effectively is for the two leaders to have a relationship based on absolute trust.

While Senator DASCHLE and I have disagreed on the vast majority of issues before the Senate, and while he used the Senate rules to the minority's full advantage—just as I did when I was in his position, our relationship has been one of trust and mutual respect.

In fact, Senator DASCHLE has seemed to enjoy the job of minority leader so much, that I have told him one of my wishes on departing the Senate is that he will continue to serve as minority leader for many years to come.

I have also told Senator DASCHLE that serving as a Senate leader when your party holds the White House is oftentimes more frustrating than serving as leader when the opposition party holds the White House. And it is my hope that he will experience those lower frustrations next January.

But I want to thank Senator DASCHLE. We both come from the same part of the country, South Dakota and Kansas, where the weather can do us in, or do the farmers in, which does everybody else in. We both understand the importance of agriculture, but we also understand the importance of other issues that affect our colleagues, whether it is health care or whether it is the WIC Program or food stamps or other things that I worked on a long time ago with another Senator from South Dakota named George McGovern.

So I just congratulate Senator DASCHLE for his great success as the Democrat leader. I thank him for the courtesies he and Linda have extended to me and Elizabeth over the past year and a half. And I wish him the best of luck—not everything he would wish, but the best of luck, particularly when it comes to his own personal work in the Senate and his own personal life.

He does a good job. He works hard. We do not surprise each other. We trust each other; no games. And that is what makes the Senate work.

MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business with statements permitted not to exceed 5 minutes in length, with Senator HOLLINGS to control 30 minutes and Senator DOMENICI or his designee to control from 1 to 3:30 p.m., the Democratic leader is designated to control from 3:30 to 4:30, and Senator COVERDELL or his designee to control from 4:30 to 5:30.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that we slightly amend the unanimous consent agreement. The distinguished Senator from Massachusetts wants 6 minutes. I ask unanimous consent to yield him the 6 minutes now and that I be granted my full half-hour, until just past 1 o'clock.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. I thank the Senator from South Carolina for his courtesy.

MEDICAL SAVINGS ACCOUNTS AND THE HEALTH INSURANCE REFORM BILL

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, the insistence of the House Republican leadership on forcing medical savings accounts into the Kassebaum-Kennedy bill has become the Trojan Horse that could destroy health insurance reform.

This untried and dangerous proposal does not belong in the consensus insurance reform bill. It has already been rejected by the Senate. A bill containing it cannot be enacted into law and signed by the President.

The Democrats and the White House have offered a fair compromise, which would provide for a controlled demonstration of the MSA concept to see if it should be expanded. But the House Republican leadership has said that it will be their way or no way. As Majority Leader ARMEY said yesterday, "I will not give up medical savings accounts," and he dared the President to veto the bill.

Senator DOLE is the only one who can break this impasse and persuade House Republicans to abandon their intransigence and pass a bipartisan bill that the President can sign. Senator DOLE clearly understands how important this program is to the American people. When the bill was passed, Senator DOLE said:

Common sense has finally prevailed. Passage of this bill will not only improve our health care system, it could very well restore the faith of the American public that the work of Congress is not just a series of political stalemates. Even in an election year, we can work on a bipartisan basis to pass legislation that will improve the lives of so many Americans.

Senator DOLE deserves considerable credit for this bill. All of its reforms were also included, in one form or another, in the health insurance bill he introduced in the last Congress. It also includes constructive proposals that he offered for aid to small business, and to help families meet the high cost of long-term care, and to crack down on fraud and abuse in Medicare and Medicaid.

Last week, Senator DOLE said, "I'm afraid if I leave and it's not done, it might not happen." He is right. No one else has the ability to persuade House Republicans to back off their extreme position. If Senator DOLE means what he says, he should postpone his departure from the Senate for a few days and pass this bill. He can do a great deal of good for the American people by staying for a few days and finishing this legislation.

Medical savings accounts are a highly controversial issue that does not belong on this bill except on the basis of a carefully controlled test. MSA's have the potential to severely undermine the current health insurance system that millions of Americans rely on—particularly those with serious illnesses or disabilities.

MSA's are likely to raise health insurance premiums through the roof and make insurance unaffordable for large numbers of citizens. They will discourage preventive care and raise health care costs. They are a multibillion-dollar tax giveaway to the wealthy and healthy at the expense of working families and the sick. Their cost could balloon the deficit.

The Kassebaum-Kennedy bill contains consensus reforms that virtually everyone agrees on. It guarantees that no American will be denied health insurance or be saddled with exclusions for preexisting conditions because they change their job or lose their job, or because their employer changes insurance companies. It provides help to small businesses that want to join together to negotiate lower insurance premiums of the kind that only large corporations can obtain today.

The bill is truly bipartisan. It passed the Labor and Human Resources Committee 16 to 0. without medical savings
