

CONSOLIDATED REPORT OF EXPENDITURE OF FOREIGN CURRENCIES AND APPROPRIATED FUNDS FOR FOREIGN TRAVEL BY MEMBERS AND EMPLOYEES OF THE U.S. SENATE, UNDER AUTHORITY OF SEC. 22, P.L. 95-384—22 U.S.C. 1754(b), FOR TRAVEL AUTHORIZED BY DEMOCRATIC LEADER FROM APR. 3 TO 12, 1996—Continued

| Name and country                  | Name of currency | Per diem         |   | Transportation   |   | Miscellaneous    |   | Total            |   |
|-----------------------------------|------------------|------------------|---|------------------|---|------------------|---|------------------|---|
|                                   |                  | Foreign currency | U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency | Foreign currency | U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency | Foreign currency | U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency | Foreign currency | U.S. dollar equivalent or U.S. currency |
| Slovenia                          | Dollar           |                  | 217.00                                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 217.00                                  |
| Paul Matulic:                     |                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  |   |                  |   |
| Croatia                           | Dollar           |                  | 280.00                                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 280.00                                  |
| Hungary                           | Forint           | 121,126          | 853.00                                  |                  |   |                  |   | 121,126          | 853.00                                  |
| Albania                           | Dollar           |                  | 178.00                                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 178.00                                  |
| Macedonia                         | Dollar           |                  | 199.00                                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 199.00                                  |
| Slovenia                          | Dollar           |                  | 217.00                                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 217.00                                  |
| Jan Paulk:                        |                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  |   |                  |   |
| Croatia                           | Dollar           |                  | 280.00                                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 280.00                                  |
| Hungary                           | Forint           | 121,126          | 853.00                                  |                  |   |                  |   | 121,126          | 853.00                                  |
| Albania                           | Dollar           |                  | 178.00                                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 178.00                                  |
| Macedonia                         | Dollar           |                  | 199.00                                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 199.00                                  |
| Slovenia                          | Dollar           |                  | 217.00                                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 217.00                                  |
| Delegation expenses: <sup>1</sup> |                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  |   |                  |   |
| Croatia                           |                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 627.47                                  |                  | 627.47                                  |
| Hungary                           |                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 4,455.67                                |                  | 4,455.67                                |
| Albania                           |                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 856.22                                  |                  | 856.22                                  |
| Macedonia                         |                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 1,515.41                                |                  | 1,515.41                                |
| Slovenia                          |                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 780.74                                  |                  | 780.74                                  |
| Bosnia-Herzegovina                |                  |                  |   |                  |   |                  | 617.50                                  |                  | 617.50                                  |
| Total                             |                  |                  | 10,362.00                               |                  |   |                  | 8,853.01                                |                  | 19,215.01                               |

<sup>1</sup> Delegation expenses include direct payments and reimbursements to the Department of State and the Department of Defense under authority of Sec. 502(b) of the Mutual Security Act of 1954, as amended by Sec. 22 of P.L. 95-384, and Senate Resolution 179, agreed to May 25, 1977.

TOM DASCHLE,
Democratic Leader, Sept. 3, 1996.

MEASURE READ FOR THE FIRST TIME—H.R. 4134

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I understand that H.R. 4134 has arrived from the House, and I ask for its first reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4134) to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to authorize States to deny public education benefits to aliens not lawfully present in the United States who are not enrolled in public schools during the period beginning September 1, 1996, and ending July 1, 1997.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I now ask for its second reading, and I object to my own request on behalf of Senators on the Democratic side of the aisle.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

INTELLIGENCE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I submit a report of the committee of conference on (H.R. 3259) and ask for its immediate consideration.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The report will be stated.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The committee on conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 3259) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1997 for intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the United States Government, the Community Management Account, and the Central Intelligence Agency Retirement and Disability System, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses this report, signed by a majority of the conferees.

The Senate proceeded to consider the conference report.

(The conference report is printed in the House proceedings of the RECORD of September 24, 1996.)

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I am pleased to be able to submit for my colleagues' consideration the conference report on H.R. 3259, the Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1997. As you know, the Senate passed its authorization bill only last week and this may be an unprecedented turnaround time from passage of our bill to consideration of the conference report. For this, I want to thank House Chairman LARRY COMBEST for his outstanding management of what could have been a difficult effort at reconciling our two bills. Ranking Member NORMAN DICKS and Vice Chairman ROBERT KERREY played equally valuable roles in finding the right balance between ardently advocating their positions and ensuring eventual passage of this important legislation.

The rapid progress of this conference report is all the more noteworthy in that, in addition to the usual annual authorization of expenditures for intelligence and intelligence-related activities, this year's authorization bill adds important new provisions to the National Security Act of 1947 designed to help the Director of Central Intelligence [DCI] exert stronger direction and control over the intelligence community.

Let me remind my colleagues that under the National Security Act the DCI wears three hats: principal intelligence adviser to the President and the National Security Council; Director of the Central Intelligence Agency; and head of the intelligence community, which is composed of 13 different intelligence agencies.

For a variety of reasons, a long succession of DCI's have devoted almost all of their time and energy to their first two jobs—advising the President and running the CIA—and have given short shrift to the third—managing the intelligence community. The result has been an unfortunate lack of coordination and focused effort by our various intelligence agencies. This is not to say that our intelligence agencies have not been successful. The opposite is true: the United States has the premier intelligence apparatus in the world. But because they are scattered among so many different departments and agencies they have not been able to operate as efficiently and effectively as they could.

Title VIII of the conference report—the Intelligence Renewal and Reform Act of 1996—contains provisions intended to strengthen the overall management of the intelligence community.

In particular, to help the DCI perform his community responsibilities, title VIII establishes a new Senate-confirmed Deputy Director of Central Intelligence for Community Management and three new Senate-confirmed Assistant Directors of Central Intelligence. Since the National Security Act was enacted in 1947, there have been only two statutory positions to manage the intelligence community: a Director of Central Intelligence and a Deputy Director of Central Intelligence. The time has come to give the DCI a better community management structure. The conference report provides that the DDCI for Community Management will manage an intelligence community staff and will direct communitywide functions, including personnel, resources, requirements, collection, research and development, and analysis and production. Each of the three Assistant DCI's will oversee communitywide efforts in a particular functional area: collection, analysis and production, and administration.

I should mention that the DCI has expressed some concern about whether the three Assistant DCI's should all be