He could not have had such a successful career and fulfilled life without the support of his wife Doreen and their four children, 11 grandchildren and 1 great-grandchildren. His loyalty and dedication is evident through his job at Mayes IGA Foodliner where he has worked for 40 years and is now a manager.

Mr. Speaker, if we want citizens who are absolutely driven by the concept of community and family, then we must continue to praise individuals like Edwin Korn. I ask you and all of our colleagues to join me in wishing Edwin Korn the best of luck in all his future endeavors.

A TRIBUTE TO JOHN BURTON

HON. JERRY LEWIS

OF CALIFORNIA

HON. LUCILLE ROYBAL-ALLARD

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 5, 1998

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, my colleague, LUCILLE ROYBAL-ALLARD and I would like to bring to your attention today the fine work and outstanding public service of our longtime friend and former colleague, State Senator John Burton of San Francisco.

In January, John Burton ascended to the highest elected position in the California State Legislature—president pro tem of the State Senate. The shock of the change in the ruling majority in Congress in 1994 was a mere tremor compared to the seismic occurrence that led to John's ascension to his current position. To say the least, John did not take the most traditional path to reach the second highest position in state government. But he would not have had it any other way.

John's career in public affairs has been unique and diverse. His public service has spanned several decades and two coasts. Through it all, he has maintained a reputation for his love of competitive sports, a remarkable sense of humor, and for telling it like it is.

John L. Burton was born in Ohio but was raised and educated in his beloved San Francisco. A standout in basketball, he attended San Francisco State College and graduated from the University of San Francisco Law School where he received the American Jurisprudence Award for outstanding scholarship. Incidentally, John worked his way through college and law school as a city playground director and bartender.

John got his start in the rough and tumble world of California politics as a protégé of his big brother, Phil Burton. Phil was elected to the State Assembly in 1956 and brought into his political operation his brother, John, and two close friends. One was George Moscone with whom John had played basketball on the courts of San Francisco. The second was a shy and retiring young man from Texas, a fellow student at San Francisco State College named Willie Brown.

John was elected to the California Legislature in 1964. Ten years later, he was elected to the House of Representatives. In 1982, he retired from public office and successfully completed a chemical dependency recovery program. He ran a successful law practice until winning a special election to the State Assembly in 1988 where he served until his election to the State Senate in 1996.

John Burton is from the old school of public affairs—where member to member contact is the key to building meaningful personal relationships and where one is only as good as his or her word. He is also a dyed-in-the-wool classic liberal—and very proud of it. As he begins his tenure as president pro tem, John has not only emerged from his brother's shadow, he is casting a pretty sizable shadow of his own.

Mr. Speaker, a friend of John Burton is a friend for life—even if he happens to live and work on the other side of the aisle. Please join us today in recognizing our very good friend, John Burton.

GALLATIN LAND EXCHANGE ACT OF 1998

HON. RICK HILL

OF MONTANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 5, 1998

Mr. HILL. Mr. Speaker, today I join with my Montana colleagues, U.S. Senators CONRAD BURNS and MAX BAUCUS in introducing the "Gallatin Land Consolidation Act of 1998." This legislation is designed to protect key wildlife habitat in the Taylor Fork area near Yellowstone National Park, save taxpayer dollars through consolidation of checkerboard federal lands and enhance hunting and other recreational pursuits. This bipartisan solution is a major step towards ending the uncertainty regarding the future of these critical land areas.

This bill reflects input from a wide range of community and public interests gathered through a series of meetings and discussions held over the last several months. While there are still details to be addressed with regard to balancing the assets identified for exchange, this bill provides the underlying framework for completing the final phase of the Gallatin Land Consolidation Act. This legislation also proves that it's possible to achieve a balance between responsible natural resource management, which includes preservation of public resources, recreational opportunities and jobs.

It's also important to recognize one of the goals of this exchange is to improve public access to the forest. This legislation directs the Forest Service to initiate a planning process that will involve the public in determining management of the lands to be acquired in this exchange. During the interim, existing public access to those areas will be maintained.

Mr. Speaker, one other important aspect of this legislation involves the use of federal timber as one of the assets for balancing this land exchange. Twenty million board feet of timber is dedicated over a two-year period to acquiring lands in the Taylor Fork. To ensure that the timber is available in that time frame, local conservationists and sportsmen have committed to the Montana Congressional delegation that they will work proactively with the U.S. Forest Service to review timber sales and resolve environmental concerns up front, rather than waiting to file appeals. That collaboration most clearly illustrates the high level of public support that exists for completing this exchange.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is important to my home state of Montana. With a hearing already scheduled in the Forests and Forest Health Subcommittee, I look forward to working with the rest of Montana's delegation and my House colleagues to complete this exchange during this session of Congress.

RECOGNIZING MR. HUGH THOMPSON

HON. CHRISTOPHER JOHN

OF LOUISIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 5, 1998

Mr. JOHN. Mr. Speaker, I would like for my colleagues to join me today in recognizing a true American hero from Lafayette, Louisiana.

Some 30 years ago, a forgotten story of personal courage and bold convictions unfolded in the village of My Lai in South Vietnam. A 24 year old Army helicopter pilot, Mr. Hugh Thompson, found himself thrown into the midst of a massacre—one which pitted him against his superiors and even his own fellow soldiers. His story has remained a dim light in this dark period of our military history.

However, I am honored to share it with this body as it represents a patriotic act of great sacrifice, moral fortitude and uncommon valor.

Mr. Speaker, on March 16, 1968, Mr. Thompson, defying his superiors, landed his helicopter in front of helpless My Lai villagers gathered in a hut. He did so not to protect them from the assault of the enemy he was trained to combat in Vietnam but to protect them from the ongoing assault of soldiers wearing the United States' uniform. Shocked at the horror of witnessing innocent children, women and men being fired upon by fellow soldiers, Mr. Thompson moved to action along
