

Members of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus (CHC). During their meeting with the CHC, we had the opportunity to discuss the political and economic integration process of MERCOSUR and the effects of this free-trade pact on the United States economy.

Data from the Department of Commerce on the current balance of trade between MERCOSUR and the United States shows that the United States not only enjoys a surplus in trade with MERCOSUR, but also reveals that exports to MERCOSUR countries are significantly larger than those to China and Russia together, $23.3 billion versus $16 billion. This is an important fact we should remember as we continue to develop relations with these countries.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to express my appreciation to the Joint MERCOSUR Parliamentary Delegation for visiting Washington and extend my congratulations to the MERCOSUR countries for their achievements.

WOMEN'S HISTORY COLLECTION

HON. KAREN MCCARTHY

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 1, 1998

Ms. MCCARTHY of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and salute the establishment of a Women's History Collection at the Jackson County Historical Society Archives and Research Library. Two remarkable women, Barbara Potts, former Mayor of Independence, and Jane Flynn, former administrator of the Landmarks Commission, have researched and preserved the lives of leading Kansas City women and their history.

Last weekend this exhibit was launched with a celebration at the University of Missouri-Kansas City entitled "Give Children the Gift of Women's History." As we salute Women's History Month we must remember the importance of passing on our heritage to new generations.

During the 20th Century a great deal of significant change has taken place for women. The institution of Congress has evolved from 1917 when Jeanette Rankin was the first woman Member of Congress to the 53 women who currently serve in the House. There is respect for the contributions made by women Members of Congress who are playing a significant role in establishing sound public policy.

It is important that young women know who their Founding Mothers are. This exhibit exemplifies what pioneering women have done to move our community forward. This array of women include the women who started Children's Mercy Hospital, Dorothy Gallagher, whose family built what is now the Guadalupe Center, and Linda Hall, whose library researchers depend on worldwide. Sharing the history of important Kansas City women with subsequent generations will be made possible by this exhibit.

Mr. Speaker, it is my honor to applaud Barbara Potts and Jane Flynn for their initiative to establish the Women's History Collection and all the women whose lives comprise it.

TRIBUTE TO DR. AND MRS.
CHARLES AND REBECCA GUNNOE

HON. KEN CALVERT

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 1, 1998

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Speaker, throughout this country of ours there are a few individuals who, because they contribute so generously of their time and talents to help others, are recognized as pillars of their community. Charles and Rebecca Gunnoe are two individuals who have combined their forces over the past 25 years, both in medical practice and in the community. I would like to take this opportunity to honor and praise them for their commitment to family, community, and the well-being of the Nation as a whole.

Early in his career, Dr. Gunnoe began the practice of advocating quality care for patients and firmly believes that it is possible for one physician to make a difference. He moved to Corona in 1954 and quickly became involved in many community activities. He began by serving as co-chairman on a committee of Corona citizens to recommend specialized needs and priorities for the future of Corona. He was also the Charter President of the Corona Junior Chamber of Commerce and helped develop and dedicate the first Boys Club of Corona. In addition to establishing a family life in Corona, Dr. Gunnoe founded the Circle City Hospital which is now part of the Corona Regional Medical Center. He also built the Corona Clinic where he continues to practice today.

Along with working on a daily basis with her husband, Mrs. Gunnoe too has demonstrated a commitment to the community in the development and funding of the Corona chapter of the Trauma Intervention Program, or TIP. This volunteer based organization assists families of victims in tragic situation.

Together they have provided funds and assistance in the development of a Christian school library, supported community resources such as the YMCA, Lion's Club, and other service organizations such as the Cancer Society, Foundation of Circle City Hospital and Corona Regional Medical Center, United Way, and Police and Sheriff Relief Funds.

I am fortunate to have Chuck and Becky Gunnoe as members of my district and personal friends. Their commitment to family and community is one that should serve as a model for others to follow. I thank them for their innumerable contributions and wish them the best of luck in all of their future endeavors.

WELCOMING PRESIDENT FIDEL
VALDEZ RAMOS OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

HON. ROBERT A. UNDERWOOD

OF GUAM

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 1, 1998

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, hailing from the congressional district geographically situated closest to the Republic of the Philippines, Guam and its people share deep cultural and historic ties with the Philippines. It is, therefore, with great anticipation and pleasure that I join Filipino communities all over the country in welcoming His Excellency, Fidel Valdez Ramos, the President of the Republic of the Philippines, to the United States as he visits our nation's capital next week.

As with the island of Guam, the rest of the United States have for over a century shared historic, cultural, political and economic ties with the Republic of the Philippines. President Ramos is the embodiment of these ties. He comes from very respected and prominent families in the Philippines. His Father Narciso Ramos was a lawyer, crusading journalist, and five-term member of the Philippine House of Representatives, who was later appointed Secretary of Foreign Affairs. His mother, Angela Valdez, was a suffragette and public school teacher.

Destined towards greatness, President Ramos exhibited dedication to excellence even in his formative years. He graduated valedictorian at the Lingayen Central School prior to being accepted to the University of the Philippines High School in Manila. In 1946, he was chosen to receive a Philippine government scholarship to attend the prestigious United States Military Academy at West Point, New York. As one of the top graduates of West Point's Class of 1950, President Ramos was invited to join the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society. Upon graduation in 1950, President Ramos' desire to help rebuild his country from the ruins of World War II led him to pursue a master's degree in civil engineering at the University of Illinois. He served alongside American servicemen as a Second Lieutenant in the Philippine Expeditionary Force during the Korean War and, later, as Chief of Staff of the Philippine Civil Action Group in Vietnam.

The culmination of his illustrious military career came when he was appointed Chief of the Armed Forces of the Philippines in 1986. True to his commitment to duty, honor, and country, he joined forces with former defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile during the 1986 EDSA "People Power" Revolution, a coup d'etat designed to restore democracy to the Philippine Republic. He was later appointed Secretary of National Defense under President Corazon C. Aquino and, in 1992, the people of the Philippines gave him the mandate to be twelfth in a succession of Philippine presidents since the proclamation of the First Philippine Republic in 1898.

During his visit I am sure that President Ramos will take some time to focus upon an issue which has been of importance to him for some time now. While still a West Point Cadet in the 1950's, President Ramos became interested in bells left by the Army 11th Infantry at F.E. Warren AFB, Wyoming, the Bells of Balangiga. These church bells were taken from a Catholic church in the Philippines by U.S. military forces in 1901. As Philippine Defense Secretary and later as President of the Philippine Republic, he repeatedly worked toward the return of these bells.

There was a time when officers at F.E. Warren wanted to get rid of the bells. The brass relics seemed to have no relevance for a modern missile base. Few people seemed to know or care about these bells—that is until the Filipinos requested their return.

Vocal opposition from a number of Cheyenne residents has prevented any progress on this issue. The bells are currently part of a monument which supposedly memorializes American soldiers who died in Balangiga, a small town in Central Philippines. However,
