

our failure to resolve this matter is slowly transforming this monument into a symbol of inflexibility and false pride.

On November 7, 1997, I introduced H. Res. 312 to remedy the situation. Along with members of the Wyoming State Legislature and Philippine Ambassador Raul Chaves Rabe, I propose a compromise whereby this solitary and isolated memorial will be converted into fitting monuments located on both sides of the world dedicated to the peace, friendship and cooperation that have existed between the United States and the Filipino people. This compromise calls for the United States and the Republic of the Philippines to share the bells. The bells will be recast and duplicates made. The United States and the Philippines will each keep an original and a duplicate. The Philippine government has even expressed willingness to absorb the costs involved. H. Res. 312 would facilitate this proposal, which I hope my colleagues will take the time to reconsider.

As we welcome President Fidel Ramos to our country, let us honor this man whose career and accomplishments has been a manifestation of Philippine-American friendship and cooperation through the years. Let us not dwell upon long forgotten conflicts and altercations. Instead, let us move forward and, as we have always done in the past, work together in the promotion of our mutual goals.

KING ON THE HILL

HON. BOB SCHAFFER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 1, 1998

Mr. BOB SCHAFFER of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to tell the House a story about one of my most accomplished constituents from Colorado. Thirteen year old Kyle King of Limon, Colorado stopped by our Congressional office in Washington, D.C., last week. It was my last appointment before returning home to Colorado for a few days of town meetings on the eastern plains.

Kyle was accompanied by his parents Deb and Greg. Limon Jr. Highschool recessed for spring break giving Kyle and his folks a perfect chance to visit the nation's capital.

By the time we met up, the Kings had already seen the most prominent sites, shrines and monuments to our country's history. But the real reason they came to Washington was to see Kyle's big sister Amanda.

Amanda's been in Washington now for nine months. She's sixteen years old, has never before been so far away from home, and she's certainly never been away for such a long time.

A couple years back, Amanda made up her mind that she wanted to be a Congressional Page—not an ordinary sort of ambition, especially for a youngster growing up on the high plains. But to Deb and Greg, Amanda has never been anything short of extraordinary. They encouraged her to apply.

The Page Program is extremely competitive. Several thousand high schoolers from across America apply for the honor of serving on the floor of the United States House of Representatives.

The first requirement for consideration is to secure sponsorship by a Member of Congress. I receive dozens of applications per year out of Colorado's Fourth Congressional District. For the full-time position, I may sponsor only one, which only means the applicant I choose will then be considered by the Speaker of the House.

Since time away from home entails a disrupted academic calendar, only the best and brightest are accepted. Successful applicants enter an alternative education program built around a busy and unpredictable work schedule. Pages are housed in college-style dormitories one block from the Capitol building.

There are 435 Members of Congress. This year, only 66 Pages were selected.

Being a new Member of Congress, I was told any applicant from my district was a long shot. I lobbied hard for Amanda King anyway, betting the strength of her resume would compensate for my lack of seniority.

Naturally, I was as excited as Amanda upon receiving the news she had been accepted into the Page Program.

Amanda is too modest about the significance and importance of her position. It's much more than a nice recognition for a country girl done well.

She is an ambassador for Colorado and specifically for the City of Limon. It's a role she fulfills exceptionally well. Her peers joke that they can't get her to stop talking about life out West.

A few months back, I visited Limon Elementary School to talk to students about my job as a Congressman. My presentation covered the usual topics of taxes, education, agriculture and so on. But the first question from Principal Valerie Bass was, "How often do you get to see Amanda King? How's she doing?"

Similarly, last month, I spoke at a dinner in Hugo, Colorado, commemorating Abraham Lincoln's birthday. Again, the people in the hall asked for an update on Amanda. I was proud to provide it.

Amanda is clearly one of the House's favorite Pages. She's one of the most reliable. In addition to fetching documents, and relaying messages, Pages make the actual floor work run smoothly. They greet many of the tourists and visitors at the Capitol, and they must know the intricacies of House procedures in order to do their jobs. Amanda knows the process better than most senior Members.

During moments of down time, I sometimes rehearse portions of my speeches before walking onto the floor and I seek out Amanda for her opinion. Her advice has always been useful and I'm convinced that her grammatical suggestions have made me more persuasive.

Most of all, Amanda's enthusiasm for America is infectious. She is optimistic about the nation's future and her role in shaping it. I've spoken with her about her personal goals and dreams, and I know she views herself within a patriotic context.

Last week's meeting in the office with the King family was one of the most inspiring I've had so far as a Congressman. It shifted my perspective somewhat.

Usually I think my success in Congress is measured by my effectiveness with legislation and budgeting the public's funds. And although I'm encouraged to have accomplished more than most of my colleagues on behalf of the people I represent, it became even more clear that one of the most rewarding things I've been able to do is sponsor Amanda King as a Congressional Page.

The eyes of Amanda's parents revealed the love and affection they hold for her. Though they miss her terribly they are thrilled by her accomplishments. Furthermore, their time on Capitol Hill with their daughter confirmed she's doing quite well.

Kyle learned much watching his sister serve her country. Deb's and Greg's pride is certainly well placed.

RECOGNIZING THE 1998 UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS MEN'S BASKETBALL TEAM

HON. THOMAS W. EWING

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 1, 1998

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the outstanding achievements of the 1998 University of Illinois men's basketball team. Under the stewardship of Coach Lon Kruger, a team that was predicted to finish in the middle of the Big Ten in the most optimistic pre-season polls, the Illini men finished the season tied for the best record in the Big Ten. The sportswriters said that they didn't have any big name stars to lead them much further than mediocrity. What the sportswriters failed to understand was the determination and heart that this team would display throughout the season. Coach Kruger never doubted his team and his players never doubted themselves or their ability to compete against other Big Ten schools. The Illini had a precious commodity that many other schools lacked: Senior Leadership. Led by a group of Seniors that I have had the opportunity to watch evolve from wide-eyed freshman to steely veterans, the Illini shocked the Big Ten. Senior Kevin Turner exemplifies that evolution, as he led the Illini in scoring and was named to the All-Big Ten Conference team. However, I was disappointed that Lon Kruger did not receive the Big Ten Coach of the Year award, because he has done such an outstanding job. Coach Kruger, along with Seniors Turner, Jarrod Gee, Matt Heldman, Jerry Hester, Brian Johnson and Jelani Boline led the Illini to their best Big Ten record in recent memory. They then participated in the NCAA Tournament and beat a solid team from South Alabama in the first round. Although the Maryland Terrapins put an end to their incredible season in the second round, the Illini fought to the bitter end before falling in a close contest. Coach Kruger and the entire University of Illinois men's basketball team deserve the recognition of the House of Representatives for their incredible season. I would like to remind the Speaker that Midnight Madness and the start of the 1999 NCAA basketball season is only 198 days away.
