

A BILL TO INCREASE THE ANNUAL CAP ON STATES' AUTHORITY TO ISSUE THEIR OWN TAX-EXEMPT PRIVATE ACTIVITY BONDS AND TO INDEX SUCH AMOUNTS IN THE FUTURE

HON. AMO HOUGHTON

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 1999

Mr. HOUGHTON. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join my colleague from Massachusetts, Mr. NEAL, together with a number of other colleagues, in introducing our bill, "The State and Local Investment Opportunity Act of 1999." The bill would raise the annual cap on states' authority to issue their own tax-exempt "Private Activity" bonds to $75 times population ($225 million if greater) and provides for an inflation adjustment based on the consumer price index for calendar years after 2000. The bill would be effective for calendar years after 1999.

A similar bill was introduced in the 105th Congress and was enacted without the indexation provision and the increase in the annual cap is being phased in starting in 2003. Thus, our new bill is the same as last year's bill except for the indexation and effective date. Chairman ARCHER of the Ways and Means Committee was totally cooperative in our effort last Congress, and indeed was key in including our original proposal in the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1998, which the House passed but the Senate did not take up. Nevertheless, the Chairman persisted in including the phased-in provision in the smaller so-called "extender bill" that was enacted.

We believe this change is important to all of us, in that tax-exempt Private Activity Bonds finance affordable ownership and rental housing, manufacturing job creation, environmental cleanup, infrastructure and student loans. Nationwide, demand for bond authority exceeded supply by nearly 50 percent in 1997, according to the National Council of State Housing Agencies. This is a bipartisan issue. Three-quarters of the House supported our bill in the 105th Congress and a majority of the Senate cosponsored identical Senate legislation. The nation's governors and mayors, other state and local governmental groups, and the public finance community all strongly support full bond cap restoration.

On the possibility that a large tax package moves forward this session, we believe it is important to reconsider the effective date issue, as well as the indexing for inflation going forward.

We urge our colleagues to join us in cosponsoring this important legislation—"The State and Local Investment Opportunity Act of 1999."

IN HONOR OF CASIMIR PULASKI

HON. JANICE D. SCHAKOWSKY

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 1999

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the millions of Polish Americans, the city of Chicago, the people of Illinois and citizens of our nation, I rise today in honor of Casimir Pulaski, a patriot and military hero and the Father of the American Cavalry.

While countless words have been spoken and many volumes have been written about Casimir Pulaski's life, I believe this contributions to his native home and his bravery on behalf of his adopted land are immeasurable.

Casimir Pulaski was born on March 4, 1747 in Warka, Poland. He was a valiant fighter during Poland's war of independence from Russia. But for his distinguished service toward freedom and independence on behalf of his people and his beloved Poland, he was forced to flee and became an exile.

He remained a voice for just causes and an unwavering spirit for freedom. That is why he joined in America's struggle against the colonists and fought along side General George Washington during the Revolutionary War. He was named brigadier general and the first commander of the American cavalry. For his bravery and service, he was bestowed, and rightly so, the title of "Father of the American Cavalry."

He paid the ultimate price for his convictions and was fatally wounded during the Battle of Savannah.

Casimir Pulaski is an American hero, who fought for freedom, with honor and courage. As we commemorate this legend, I also wish to recognize the countless accomplishments and great contributions of Polish Americans to our nation.

INTRODUCTION OF THE DEATH TAX ELIMINATION ACT

HON. JENNIFER DUNN

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 1999

Ms. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, it's been said that only with our government are you given a "certificate at birth, a license at marriage, and a bill at death." Today I am introducing the Death Tax Elimination Act, which seeks to phase-out the onerous death tax. The death tax rates will be reduced by 5 percentage points each year until the highest rate bracket—55 percent—reaches zero in 2010. As these rates are lowered to zero, more and more families will no longer be forced to give the family savings to Uncle Sam and the family business will be saved. In an era when the productivity of American workers is creating huge budget surpluses, it is incomprehensible for this tax to live on. The death tax deserves to die.

One of the most compelling aspects of the American dream is to make life better for your children and loved ones. Yet, the current tax treatment of individuals and families at death is so onerous that when one dies, their children are many times forced to sell and turn over more than half of their inheritance just to pay the taxes. It takes place at an agonizing time for the family; when families should be grieving for a loved one with friends and relatives, rather than spending painful hours with lawyers and bureaucrats.

By confiscating between 37 percent and 55 percent of an estate, the death tax punishes life-long habits of savings, discourages entrepreneurship and capital formation, penalizes families, and has an enormous negative effect on other tax revenues. Americans today are living longer and enjoying their retirement. At a time when this Congress is discussing the future of Social Security, and how to personalize and modernize the system, we also need to encourage private investment. We should be encouraging people to plan for their future with retirement plans and IRAs, rather than encouraging reckless spending and a me-first attitude. This country was born on the promise of hope and opportunity, and by taxing families and businesses at their most agonizing time, we destroy their hope for the future.

By today's tax system, it is easier and cheaper to sell a business before death rather than try to pass it on after. More than 70 percent of family business and farms do not survive through the second generation. Nine out of ten successors whose family-owned businesses failed within three years of the principal owner's death said trouble paying estate taxes contributed to the company's demise. For family owned business, this is a tax just because the business is changing ownership due to the death of an owner.

Aside from being a source of revenue, another express purpose of the estate tax was to break up large concentrations of wealth. 75 years later, however, reality suggests that rather than being an important means for promoting equal economic opportunity, the estate tax is in fact a barrier to economic advancement for people of all economic circumstances. In effect, the death tax, which was established to redistribute wealth, hurts those it was meant to help—namely, America's working men and women. When small businesses close their doors, loyal employees lose their jobs.

The saying goes that death and taxes are the only certainties in life. I believe it is ridiculous that the government force the American people to deal with both on the same day. Families should be allowed—and encouraged—to save for future generations. I invite my colleagues to join JOHN TANNER and me in our bi-partisan effort to eliminate this detrimental and cruel tax.

TRIBUTE TO THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE JUDSON CENTER

HON. SANDER M. LEVIN

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 1999

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor the Judson Center on the occasion of their 75th Anniversary.

The Judson Center began as a children's home with a single matron tending to the emotional, physical and spiritual growth of only a few children. As children and families became more fragmented and victimized by poverty, disabilities, abuse and neglect, the Judson Center grew to meet these new challenges.

Under the 17 year leadership of Mounir W. Sharobeem, the Judson Center has 365 employees and is a comprehensive, multi-faceted, community-based human service center providing care for over one thousand individuals on any given day. It serves individuals in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw and Kalamazoo counties.

In 1991, the agency won Crain's Detroit Business "Best Managed Non-Profit Award," and the Peter F. Drucker Award for Non-Profit

Innovation. In 1994, Judson Center was a finalist in the Innovations in State and Local Government Award program, sponsored by the Ford Foundation and the John F. Kennedy School of Government. The Richard Huegli Award sponsored by United Community Services has been presented to the agency on two occasions. In 1994 it received this award for its innovative Supported Employment program, and in 1998 for its Living in Family Environment initiative.

Judson's leader, Mounir W. Sharoben was awarded Executive of the Year by United Community Services in 1990, and Michiganian of the Year by the Detroit News in 1992.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Judson Center for 75 years of fulfilling its mission to help children, adults and families reach their fullest potential. I wish them success in continuing to serve so many communities in need.

IN MEMORY OF WILMER "VINEGAR BEND" MIZELL

SPEECH OF

HON. MICHAEL G. OXLEY

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 24, 1999

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I'd like to offer a tip of the old baseball cap to a great team player—Wilmer Mizell.

I was saddened to learn of Wilmer's death this past Sunday at the age of 68. It's appropriate that Congress put its appreciation of one of its most genial Members in the record books.

I first came across Wilmer Mizell not as a Congressman from North Carolina, but as a cagey major league pitcher known as "Vinegar Bend" on his baseball cards. Truly the kind of great baseball nickname I fondly remember from my boyhood in the 1950's.

Anyway, I was a 14-year-old fan when I met Wilmer and some of his fellow St. Louis Cardinals in Milwaukee. He gave me his autograph—in fact, I still treasure those Cardinal autographs today—and tickets to the game. That's when ballplayers really were heroes to their fans, and when baseball was the indisputable National Pastime.

You'll find Wilmer Mizell permanently listed in the baseball fan's bible, the Encyclopedia of Baseball. He pitched for the Cardinals, the Pittsburgh Pirates, and the New York Mets. He was a key addition for the Pirates in 1960, when Pittsburgh capped an improbable World Series victory over the Yankees on Bill Mazerowski's stunning home run. Wilmer then performed the ultimate sacrifice on behalf of the grand old game by toiling for the expansion Mets.

After a few years, Wilmer Mizell broke into another exclusive lineup. He was elected as a Congressman from North Carolina. Wilmer served his district with distinction from 1968 to 1974. He would later serve in the Commerce Department under President Ford and in the Agriculture Department under President Reagan. His easy-going style masked a savvy mind.

When I was a boy, I couldn't have imagined that I would meet Wilmer Mizell on the baseball field again  only this time, as a Congressman. For years, Wilmer was a fixture at the congressional baseball game. As a long-time player, I can't tell you how much it meant to have Wilmer at practice and at the game itself. One of my great regrets in my first year as manager of the Republican team is that Wilmer won't be there to share his advice, wisdom, and wit.

But we will all remember Wilmer Mizell when we rise for the National Anthem before the game this June. He was the essence of two traits common to success in baseball and politics: good-hearted competition and real camaraderie. We'll miss this great ballplayer, great American, and truly good friend.

TRIBUTE TO CAPE AND ISLANDS EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICES

HON. WILLIAM D. DELAHUNT

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 25, 1999

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the important work of Cape and Islands Emergency Medical Services on the occasion of its twenty-fifth anniversary on February 25, 1999.

The Cape and Islands Emergency Medical Services system was created in 1974 by a group of physicians, fire fighters and chiefs, local officials and educators who recognized the need to develop a comprehensive paramedic training program and who had the vision to create a system to provide advanced life support ambulance services to the people of the Cape and Islands.

Today, Cape and Islands EMS provides these comprehensive services to 26 towns, 29 provider agencies, 5 hospitals and a fluctuating population of 200,000 in the winter months and over 1,000,000 during the summer.

Cape and Islands EMS has made significant contributions to the delivery of health care on Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket through education, medical direction and oversight, communications and administrative services for EMS providers.

After twenty-five years, Cape and Islands EMS has become a leader in the delivery of high-quality emergency medical services. Its team has set a high standard of excellence, always striving to exceed the needs and expectations of the Cape and Islands medical community as well as area residents.

Today, I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating the Cape and Islands EMS System for twenty-five years of outstanding service.
