

few short months ago, I can attest that the Armenian people have triumphed over tragedy and are building a prosperous democracy. It is a nation that we should be proud to lock arms with and stand with in the greater cause of good, and it is for that reason that I urge my colleagues to join us and support this important resolution.

JOINT RESOLUTION SUPPORTING DAY OF HONOR 2000

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, first let me certainly acknowledge the eve of the Armenian genocide anniversary and say to my colleagues that all of us should acknowledge such tragic loss of life. But today I rise to introduce a House Joint Resolution, H.J. Res. 98, to designate May 25, 2000, as a national day of honor for minority veterans of World War II.

Seventy-three of my colleagues have already joined me in cosponsoring this resolution. I want to extend my thanks to Senator EDWARD KENNEDY of Massachusetts for joining me by introducing an identical resolution in the United States Senate. I am also very proud that the Day of Honor 2000 Project, a nonprofit organization based in Massachusetts, has helped enlist the support of many Americans to make this resolution possible. In fact, those who are working to propose the World War II veterans memorial here in Washington, D.C. have acknowledged their support for this very special day. Without the support of the Day of Honor Project 2000, this resolution could have never been possible.

The purpose of this joint resolution is to honor and recognize the service of minority veterans in the United States armed forces during World War II. The resolution calls upon communities across the Nation to participate in celebrations to honor minority veterans on May 25, 2000, and throughout the year 2000. Our goal is that the Nation will have an opportunity to pause on May 25, leading up to Memorial Day, to express our gratitude to the veterans of all minority groups who served the Nation so ably. The day will be special because we honor those who fought for the preservation of democracy and our protection of our way of life.

Unfortunately, many minority veterans never obtained the commensurate recognition that they deserve. We honor all veterans. We certainly honor all veterans in World War II, but it is important to designate and to honor those who during those times as they returned did not receive the fullest of honor. When we look back to the darkest days of World War II we remember and revere the acts of courage and personal sacrifice that each of our soldiers gave to their Nation to achieve Allied victory over Nazism and fascism.

In the 1940s, minorities were utilized in the Allied operation just as any other Americans. My father-in-law in fact was part of the Tuskegee Airmen. Yet we have never adequately recognized the accomplishments of minority veterans. During the war, at least 1.2 million African American citizens either served or sacrificed their lives. In addition, more than 300,000 Hispanic Americans, more than 50,000 Asians, more than 20,000 Native Americans, more than 6,000 native Hawaiians and Pacific islanders, and more than 3,000 native Alaskans also served their country or sacrificed their lives in preserving our freedom during World War II.

Despite the invidious discrimination that many minority veterans were subjected to at home, they fought honorably along with all other Americans including other nations. An African American had to answer the call to duty as others, indeed, possibly sacrifice his life; yet he or she enjoyed a separate but equal status back home. This is something that we can readily correct and with this resolution with the number of cosponsors, I believe that we can move toward seeing this honor come to fruition on the floor of the House.

I would ask my colleagues to readily sign on to H.J. Res. 98 to be able to honor these valiant and valuable members of our society for all that they have done. They are American heroes that deserve recognition for their efforts. For this reason the resolution specifically asks President Clinton to issue a proclamation calling upon the people of the United States to honor these minority veterans with appropriate programs and activities. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in cosponsoring this resolution.

In the 1940s, minorities were utilized in the allied operations just as any other American.

Yet, we have never adequately recognized the accomplishments of minority veterans. During the war, at least 1,200,000 African American citizens either served or sacrificed their lives. In addition, more than 300,000 Hispanic Americans, more than 50,000 Asians, more than 20,000 Native Americans, more than 6,000 Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islanders, and more than 3,000 Native Alaskans also served their country or sacrificed their lives in preserving our freedom during World War II.

An African American had to answer the call to duty, indeed possibly sacrifice his life, yet he or she enjoyed separate but equal status back home.

Too often, when basic issues of equality and respect for their service in the war arose, Jim Crow and racial discrimination replied with a resounding "no." This is a sad but very real chapter of our history.

This all happened, of course, before the emergence of Dr. Martin Luther King, Sr. in America. As a nation, we have long since recognized the unfair treatment of minorities as a travesty of justice. The enactment of fundamental civil rights laws by Congress over the past half-century have remedied the worst of these injustices. And this has given us some hope. But, as we all know, we have yet to give adequate recognition to the service, struggle, and sacrifices of these brave Americans who fought in World War II for our future.

For many of these minority veterans, the memories of World War II never disappear. When we lose a loved one, whether it is a mother, father, sibling, child, or friend, we often sense that we lose a part of ourselves. For each of us, the loss of life—whether expected or not—is not easily surmountable.

Minority veterans had to overcome a great deal after the war. They not only came back
