(2) 220,000 Americans die each year of sudden cardiac arrest.

(3) The American Heart Association estimates that the lives of 50,000 cardiac arrest victims could be saved each year through initiating a course of action known as the chain of survival.

(5) An important part of United States school children's education is learning healthy behaviors, including proper nutrition and physical activity. This health education should also include basic emergency lifesaving skills.

(6) Incorporating these lifesaving training programs into the health curriculum of elementary and secondary schools will give school children these skills.

(7) Project Automatic Defibrillation in Adam's Memory (ADAM) has been successful in fostering awareness of the potential for cardiac arrest in the childhood and adolescent population, encouraging improvement of screening procedures, and facilitating the training of high school staff and students in CPR and the use of automatic external defibrillators (referred to in this Act as "AED").
