

Under Admiral Davis' watch, Team Submarine has delivered two Seawolf class submarines and redesigned a third to expand its mission capabilities; started construction of four Virginia class submarines; and brought the transformational SSGN program from concept to full up-and-running program in two years time. He has also overseen the overhaul of over one-third of our submarine fleet, and directed the modernization of submarine warfare systems with economical and easily upgradeable commercial-off-the-shelf (COTS)-based units. Additionally, Admiral Davis has acted as an emissary to allied nations, most notably Australia, and he has helped forge strong relationships with friendly navies to enhance U.S. national security.

Admiral Davis began his Navy career in 1964 when he entered the U.S. Naval Academy. Upon his graduation from Annapolis in 1968, Admiral Davis entered the Naval Postgraduate School, where he earned a Master of Science degree in 1969.

Following nuclear power training, Admiral Davis held many critical assignments. He served on the USS Pogy (SSN 647) and the USS Daniel Webster (SSBN 626). He also served as the department head and post department head detailee in the Submarine Officer Assignment Office of the Bureau of Naval Personnel. He subsequently returned to sea duty as Executive Officer of the USS Memphis (SSN 691) and later, as Commanding Officer of the USS Jacksonville (SSN 699), which deployed to the Atlantic, Mediterranean, and Indian Oceans. He went on to serve as Deputy Commander of Submarine Squadron Six, during which he also served as Commanding Officer of the USS Glendard P. Lipscomb (SSN 685) for three months during a Mediterranean deployment.

From 1989 to 1991, Admiral Davis served as Head, Undersea, and Arctic Warfare Branch in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations. Following completion of the Program Managers Course at the Defense Systems Management College in 1991, he became the Director of Advanced Submarine Research and Development. In September 1992, Admiral Davis became Program Manager of the MK48 ADCAP Advanced Capability Torpedo Program. In July 1996, Admiral Davis became Program Manager for the Undersea Weapons Program Office.

Admiral Davis was selected to Flag rank in 1996. In December 1996 he became the Director, Submarine Technology at Naval Sea Systems Command. In August 1997 he was assigned to his current post of Program Executive Office, Submarines. In October 1998 he assumed additional duties as Deputy Commander, Submarines.

Admiral Davis was promoted to Rear Admiral (Upper Half) in 1999. He has received numerous military awards including the Legion of Merit with two Gold Stars and the Meritorious Service Medal with one Gold Star.

Mr. Speaker, for 35 years the Department of the Navy, the Congress, and the American people have been well served by this dedicated naval officer. Admiral Davis has been instrumental in ensuring that the U.S. submarine force is, and will remain, the world's most preeminent submarine force in the 21st Century. Thus, he leaves an enduring legacy.

I am honored to rise today to express appreciation to Admiral Davis for his outstanding service to the nation. I also want to recognize his wife Nancy and his daughters Kate and Tricia for their loyalty and support, which are so necessary in the life of a career naval officer.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues join me in wishing Rear Admiral Davis "fair winds and following seas" as he concludes a most honorable and distinguished career.

TRIBUTE TO GARY WHYTE ON BEHALF OF WHITNEY WELDON

HON. STEVEN R. ROTHMAN

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 5, 2003

Mr. ROTHMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today on behalf of 10-year-old Whitney Weldon of Westfield, New Jersey. Whitney is a wonderful, happy, and active child who was diagnosed in April 2001 with a disease called Fibrodysplasia Ossificans Progressiva (FOP).

FOP is a rare genetic disorder in which bone forms in muscles, tendons, ligaments and other connective tissues forming a second skeleton that immobilizes the joints of the body. With so few people afflicted by the disease, there is little attention being paid to this illness.

For the past fifteen months, Gary Whyte, of Mountainside, New Jersey, has been going non-stop, doing everything he can, to raise awareness and help spread news about FOP through countless efforts speaking before clubs, churches, synagogues and organizations and hosting events to raise money for the Weldon FOP Research Fund.

Mr. Speaker, I stand before you on behalf of Whitney Weldon and the 200 other Americans suffering from FOP to praise the efforts of these dedicated people who are staging a campaign to increase awareness of and find a cure for a disease that few people know about. Gary has shown that education about FOP is the first step toward working to get a cure. Little by little, with more awareness comes more action.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION TO BAN HOUSING DISCRIMINATION AGAINST MEMBERS OF THE MILITARY

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 5, 2003

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to call to the attention of my colleagues a bill I have introduced today to prohibit discrimination in the rental of housing to members of the armed forces.

It has been reported in the press that managers of certain apartment properties in my home state of New York have required renters to sign an affidavit stating that they are not in the military. This practice, aimed at members of the armed forces who might be called off to war, is an outrageous form of discrimination, particularly at a time when young Americans are on their way overseas to defend our country.

This legislation is meant as a deterrent to this kind of practice by any landlord or property management company anywhere in the country. The bill would make it a federal crime to discriminate in rentals to members of the armed forces with a penalty of up to a year imprisonment.

The reason mentioned for requiring the affidavit is to relieve landlords of the potential need to seek court orders to evict military families who may have defaulted on their rent.

I have never before heard this concern raised by a landlord. But the bottom line is that discrimination against individuals or an entire class of people cannot be defended under any circumstance. In New York City, this practice is already outlawed under local anti-discrimination laws. However, there remains a glaring absence in federal and state law of the protections provided for in my bill, thus leaving members of the military in most of New York State and the rest of the country vulnerable.

At this time of crisis in our country, in which we are asking so much of our military, the governing principle should be one of shared sacrifice—and certainly not discrimination.

TRIBUTE TO LAURA KENT
DONAHUE

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 5, 2003

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Laura Kent Donahue who has dedicated her life to serving the people of western Illinois.

Laura had the privilege of serving in the same area her mother, Mary Lou Kent, represented. She began her legislative service in the State Senate in 1981.

She was appointed an Assistant Majority Leader in the Illinois State Senate in 1997 after serving as Majority Caucus Chairman for four years.

As a lawmaker, Laura secured nearly $1 billion for road and bridge improvements in her district since 1981.

Her dedication to improving the funding process for downstate nursing homes and hospitals has earned her numerous legislative awards from the Illinois Association of Homes for the Aging, the Illinois Hospital Association, the Illinois Association of Rehabilitation Facilities and the Illinois Healthcare Association.

She has devoted much of her time and energy toward finding a resolution to the education funding issue in Illinois.

Laura was instrumental in bringing a juvenile prison facility to Rushville, adult prison facilities to Mt. Sterling and Canton and work camps to Clayton and Pittsfield.

She is a member of the Vermont Street Methodist Church in Quincy.

She is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Lincoln Club of Adams County and the PEO Chapter MK.

She graduated with a bachelor's degree from Stephens College in Columbia, Missouri.

She is respected by her colleagues from both political parties for her honesty and integrity.

Laura will be remembered as a Senator who took her responsibility as an advocate for her district seriously.

Therefore we recognize Laura Kent Donahue for her accomplishments as she
