

death yet again, as Allied aircraft, while bombing the German railroad tracks, mistakenly dropped a bomb on the train car in front of his.

Mr. Mayrsohn's transition into life as a prisoner was eased thanks to the generosity of British prisoners, who provided him with some Red Cross food packages and extra clothing that they had stored away. Over time, as the Red Army continued its inexorable advance westward, the Red Cross packages ran out and no more were on the way. Prisoners began to starve. Mr. Mayrsohn lost more than forty pounds.

As the sounds of artillery became louder over the spring, it was clear that the Red Army was near. In April of 1945, the Russians arrived at the gates of Stalag 4B. After more than five months in enemy captivity, Mr. Mayrsohn was free.

The captain of the liberating Russian unit gathered together Mr. Mayrsohn and four of his fellow American soldiers with three Russian female military personnel for a picture. This photo would return with Mr. Mayrsohn to America. And there it lay, untouched for 57 years, in a bottom drawer.

After the war, Mr. Mayrsohn would return to college, have a family, and start a successful international trading business. In 2003, he decided to use a previously planned trip to Scandinavia as the perfect opportunity to visit Russia and attempt to reunite with the three women in the photo and the Russian officer who snapped it. Mr. Mayrsohn worked with the Russian Cultural Center in Washington, DC, and the Office of Veterans Affairs in Moscow to discover the identity of the soldiers. While it proved impossible to find those particular people, the Office of Veterans Affairs was able to find two female and two male veterans of the battles that liberated the camp.

In August of 2003, accompanied by two soldiers from the American Embassy in Moscow, Mr. Mayrsohn took the four liberators out to a banquet dinner at a prestigious restaurant in Red Square. At the event, gifts were exchanged, as were stories recalling an age of unprecedented cooperation between the two world powers.

He then met with the officer in charge of Russian Veteran Affairs, who not only agreed to help find the soldiers in the picture; he also presented Mr. Mayrsohn with the Russian Blue Star—similar to our Combat Infantry Badge.

These meetings were covered in the Russian media. The "Red Star," the Russian Defense Ministry's official newspaper, even printed an article on Mr. Mayrsohn's story. While the search goes on for more of his liberators, Mr. Mayrsohn, through his efforts, has helped to create goodwill between our two countries. With the Cold War over, and each country attempting to put aside past differences to look ahead towards a common future, efforts by people such as Mr. Mayrsohn are extremely important. Therefore, even if it is ultimately not possible to find the women in his photo, I would say that his mission was a great success.

TRIBUTE TO JAY W. WEISS: A GREAT PERSON AND A GREAT PUBLIC PERSON

HON. KENDRICK B. MEEK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 3, 2004

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, with great pride—but with deep sorrow—I rise to pay my homage to one of Miami-Dade County's giant leaders, the late Mr. Jay W. Weiss. His untimely demise late Saturday night, January 31, 2004, has cast a veil of sadness over our community.

Indeed, as the business entrepreneur par excellence that he evoked, this extraordinary man easily communed with the pains and anguishes of ordinary people and transformed them into his very own by uplifting them into a timely rationale for creating appropriate solutions to them.

As Chairman of the Miami-Dade County Public Health Trust, he spearheaded the passage of the half-penny tax that now provides continuous support to Jackson Memorial Hospital, along with the funding of the Ryder Trauma Center and the University of Miami/Sylvester Comprehensive Cancer Center. These are but a few of the great initiatives his humanitarian spirit willed to come to fruition, and these programs now serve to lessen the burdens of various illnesses and enhance the quality of life for countless people in Miami-Dade County.

Though a highly private individual, he virtually consecrated his life to public service. In so doing he symbolized everything that is good and noble about the American spirit of idealism and optimism in serving our fellowmen.

Our community genuinely feels the loss of a truly decent and caring man who made it his personal business to reach out to the less fortunate among us. Dr. Bernard Fogel, former dean of the University of Miami Medical School, succinctly described Mr. Weiss as someone who believed and lived by the tenets of tzedekah, ". . . the Jewish tradition of charity . . . that's what he was motivated by—doing the right thing because it's the right thing to do."

The numerous accolades with which government officials and various organizations have honored him buttress the unequivocal testimony of the utmost gratitude and respect he enjoyed from a grateful community. He truly epitomized the vision, resilience and compassion of a servant of God whose life served as an example of the great difference each one of us can make on behalf of our community's well-being once we hearken to the calling of our common stewardship over one another.

This is the legacy Mr. Jay W. Weiss bequeathed to us. Indeed, I am privileged to have seen and marveled at the magnificent works that emanated from his boundless heart and great faith. I now join our community in thanking God for letting him grace us with his noble presence during his earthly sojourn.

BANKRUPTCY ABUSE PREVENTION AND CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT OF 2003

SPEECH OF

HON. RON KIND

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 28, 2004

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (S. 1920) to extend for 6 months the period for which chapter 12 of title 11 of the United States Code is reenacted:

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, our current bankruptcy system is in need of reform. Bankruptcy filings have risen steadily in recent years—growing by nearly 140% during the past four years alone. In Wisconsin, bankruptcy filings are up two-and-a-half times what they were just 10 years ago.

The costs associated with discharging bankruptcy related debt, calculated at over $40 billion in 2001, hurt all consumers through increased prices on goods and services. In fact, losses associated with bankruptcies alone cost the average American family around $400 per year.

We need to reform our bankruptcy laws to protect those people truly in need of debt relief while holding accountable those who can repay their debt. The reforms contained in this amended legislation before us today accomplish this, and provide new disclosure requirements for lending institutions to offer better information to consumers about credit cards and debt. This is particularly important for young adults who are bombarded by credit applications and have limited knowledge about the risks that accompany credit card ownership.

Further, the legislation will move child support and alimony payments up to the top of debt repayment priority lists. This will help prevent children from being unnecessarily hurt by the debt of their parents. The National Child Support Enforcement Association, the National District Attorneys Association and the Child Support Council all support this provision and this legislation.

In addition, this legislation will make permanent Chapter 12 bankruptcy provisions that provide relief to our family farmers. I have consistently supported temporary extensions of Chapter 12 bankruptcy protection because our nation's family farmers face unique circumstances that often pose unique financial risks outside their control. In Wisconsin, this situation has had the unfortunate affect of driving family farmers out of business at a rate of nearly five per day.

The crisis in our agricultural economy is not contained to Wisconsin alone. In fact, the Bureau of Labor Statistics projects a 13% decline in farmers between 1998 and 2008. This is the largest projected decline of any occupational category in the U.S. economy.

The permanent extension of Chapter 12 protections contained in this bill will allow family farmers facing bankruptcy to reorganize their debt so they do not lose their farms to creditors. Chapter 12 gives hope to financially-strapped farmers who feel that they have no where else to turn. It gives them room to recover from an economic crunch and still hold on to their livelihood—and it has proven to work.

According to one study, 74 percent of family farmers who filed Chapter 12 bankruptcy are still farming, and 61 percent of farmers who went through Chapter 12 believe it was helpful in getting them back on their feet. This protection is critical right now, during this depressed economy, because many cash-strapped producers are under pressure to meet operating expenses and pay off bank notes. I am pleased the House is taking bipartisan action today to make permanent Chapter 12 protection for farmers, giving them the opportunity to reorganize their debts and preserve their farms for future generations.

While I have objections to the majority using legislation that would simply extend the farm bankruptcy provisions of Chapter 12 for six months, as a vehicle for any other legislation, I support final passage of this legislation. The overall benefits of the comprehensive bankruptcy reform and the permanent extension of Chapter 12 now included will provide needed protection to consumers and relief to those in need. I urge my colleagues' support.

HONORING LINDA LEY

HON. JON C. PORTER

OF NEVADA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 3, 2004

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor my good friend and fellow Nevadan Linda Ley on her retirement from CASA, the Court Appointed Special Advocate for Children's office. Linda has dedicated her life to ensuring that the youngest and most powerless members of our society have someone looking out for their best interests and who cares that they are able to find a better life.

During my years in the Nevada legislature I worked closely with Linda to develop legislation that helped foster children transition into adulthood, and to protect victims of abuse and neglect. I urge the members of this House to join with me in wishing her well in her retirement, and to join her in her call for more volunteers to advocate on behalf of children.

CONGRATULATING ROMALO M. "CAP" CAPOVILLA

HON. JOHN T. DOOLITTLE

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 3, 2004

Mr. DOOLITTLE. Mr. Speaker, today I wish to congratulate my friend, Romalo M. "Cap" Capovilla, as he celebrates his 80th birthday. His has been a lifetime of hard work and service.

Cap was born in Dunsmuir, California, on January 4, 1924, to immigrant parents. After graduating from Dunsmuir High School in 1942, he joined the U.S. Army Air Force. He served honorably for three years, through the end of World War II.

After his military service, Cap returned to Dunsmuir and worked as a railroad conductor for 27 years. He also owned and operated a cattle ranch for 20 years.

Mr. Speaker, Cap has long been very involved in issues related to natural resources management and agriculture. He became a member of the Shasta River Water Association in 1981. He also belonged to the Siskiyou County Cattlemen's Association, the California Cattlemen's Association, and the California Farm Bureau. He used his expertise in these areas to benefit youth. In fact, he received recognition for meritorious service to 4-H and worked many years at the junior auction.

In 1986, Cap was honored to be part of a 35-person delegation that delivered a 50-foot tall tree to Washington, DC, which became the first national Christmas tree from West of the Mississippi River.

Cap has contributed greatly to life in rural Northern California both civically and politically. In 1978, he was first elected as a member of the Siskiyou County Republican Central Committee. Two years later, he was elected to the Loan Committee of the Farmers Home Administration. For 30 years, he has been a member of the fraternal service organization, Knights of Columbus, and has served as Post Grand Knight. Additionally, he was named Knight of the Year in 1978 and 1998.

Cap is now enjoying retirement in Medford, Oregon, with his wife, Ruby.

Mr. Speaker, I take great pleasure in commending Cap Capovilla for his outstanding service to our country as a member of the Armed Forces, a community leader, and a good family man. I am personally thankful for his support and friendship.

HONORING MENTORS AND SUPPORTING EFFORTS TO RECRUIT MENTORS

SPEECH OF

HON. BETTY McCOLLUM

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, January 21, 2004

Ms. McCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, as co-chair of the mentoring caucus, I rise in support of H. Res. 491. This bill expresses the sense of the House of Representatives regarding the benefits of mentoring.

Mentoring programs that link children and young adults with the greatest needs to responsible adults are a proven method to help our struggling children. One valuable mentoring program is Big Brothers Big Sisters. In the St. Paul/Minneapolis region alone, more than 3000 children benefit from this mentoring program.

According to Kari Davis, the executive director of the Mentoring Partnership of Minnesota:

Mentoring is about guiding and supporting young people so they can realize their highest dreams and potential. Minnesota maintains hundreds of quality youth mentoring programs that are community, school or workplace-based. With increased and sustained federal funding, mentoring programs can build their capacity to reach the 75,000 Minnesota young people who could benefit from a mentor.

I was so proud last night to have 2 outstanding people from Minnesota in the audience at the State of the Union last night. Little Brother David Moreno and Big Brother Jim Dising were guests at last night's address. Paired together since 1998, their initial friendship has turned into more of a family bond. David is excelling in school, even taking an advanced math class. Jim has learned what is really important in life. They are a shining example of the good that comes from mentoring.

I encourage all of my colleagues to support this legislation and to look for opportunities to mentor themselves. I would like to thank the sponsor of this bill, Mr. OSBORNE from Nebraska, whose cousin the Honorable Kathleen Vellenga was a mentor of mine when I served in the Minnesota House of Representatives.
