Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to U.S. Army Specialist Adriana N. Salem, of Elk Grove Village, Illinois. Specialist Salem was killed on March 4, 2005 when the vehicle in which she was riding turned over near Tikrit, Iraq. She had been serving in Iraq since February 2004. Since her prior service had been in Afghanistan for much of 2003. Specialist Salem was a 2001 graduate of Elk Grove High School, where she played violin for 4 years in the school orchestra. Her future goal following high school was to position herself to join a Police Force, and following 9/11 Adriana enlisted in the Army to further that goal. At Elk Grove High School she is remembered as a student who loved learning, arrived early and was a leader in class and athletics. Specialist Salem was assigned to the Fort Stewart, GA based 3rd Infantry Division, 3rd Forward Support Battalion, Division Support Command.

Specialist Adriana Salem was a young woman of 21 when she made the ultimate sacrifice in service to our country. The entire community joins in mourning Adriana’s loss.

COMMENDING SEA EDUCATION ASSOCIATION STUDENTS WHO AIDED IN RESCUE OF 49 HAITIAN REFUGEES

HON. WILLIAM D. DELAHUNT
OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, April 5, 2005

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, very few of life’s important lessons come from a book. That is the educational philosophy of the Sea Education Association, a unique program based on Cape Cod to teach hands-on sea-faring skills to young men and women. SEA offers college students a rigorous semester “overseas” that challenges them intellectually and physically by combining study of the deep ocean with the sailing adventure of a lifetime.

For 22 U.S. college students on a voyage in the Caribbean, the six-week trip would have been an adventure to remember in any case, but their encounter with a boat full of Haitians adrift at sea made it a life-changing event.

The students, studying oceanography in a program called Sea Semester at Woods Hole, Mass., were about 45 miles north of Jamaica on Wednesday deploying some research equipment from the tall ship, the SSV Corwith Cramer, when one student spotted what turned out to be a 25-foot open boat packed with 49 Haitians, including 14 children and infants. The Haitians had been heading for Jamaica, but were adrift after their boat lost its mast and rudder. Passengers on the distressed boat said they had been at sea for five days.

What to do was decided over the course of the next five hours. Through calls to the U.S. Coast Guard and Jamaican authorities, the students learned that the Corwith, a 135-foot sail-powered research vessel, was the only boat within reasonable range to rescue the Haitians. Jamaican authorities said they could not rescue the group of Haitians but would receive them.

But there were risks to be considered, said John Bullard, president of Sea Semester: “Piracy is one of them. Exposure to disease is another.” On the other hand, he said, if the research vessel “had just sailed away from 49 people . . . our students would have been scarred in other ways.”

ASSESSING THE RISKS

Under the direction of the vessel’s captain, Steve Tarrent, who leads an 11-person professional crew, calls went out to search-and-rescue experts and medical experts. The decision was made to bring the Haitians aboard before the sun set. “We thought if we could get the vessel on time it might not survive that. We would end up floating people out of the water,” said Bullard. “We felt the safest action was to bring them aboard during the daylight when we could control some things.”

As the Haitians gathered in a sheltered spot above deck on the research vessel, the crew loaded the smaller at sea and marking it with fluorescent paint to avoid sparking unnecessary search-and-rescue efforts if
