

to John Struckhoff, chairman of the committee that organized the project, having a grocery store back in town provides an anchor business that can be used to attract other businesses to Kensington. It also helps stabilize property values and provides citizens of all ages a place to purchase groceries without having to leave town.

Mr. Struckhoff also noted that the whole experience has resulted in other benefits. "It is amazing how many individuals and groups donated money and time to this project," Struckhoff said. "This shows how a small town in Kansas can come together to support a project that provides a common good to all citizens. It really makes you proud to live in Kensington."

All across the State of Kansas are stories just like this one. Of neighbors helping neighbors, not because they have to, but because they want to. Because it is the right thing to do. Their efforts deserve our support and recognition.

Citizens throughout the First Congressional District of Kansas are working together to enhance the quality of life in their communities. The Kensington Community Store is a success story that demonstrates how teamwork and creative thinking can make a positive difference in rural America.

IN HONOR OF MS. ELEANOR WASSON'S 97TH BIRTHDAY

HON. SAM FARR

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 21, 2005

Mr. FARR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate a truly remarkable woman who is celebrating her 97th birthday this month. Ms. Eleanor Wasson, a woman locally known as the "great connector" originally lived in Beverly Hills with her husband, the head of the legal department for 20th Century Fox movie studio. There, Ms. Wasson mingled with friends such as Celeste Holm, Claudette Colbert, Betty White and Will Rogers. In between volunteering, caring for her children, and working as an activist, she was named the Coordinator of Volunteer Services for UCLA, and was also appointed to California Governor Earl Warren's Mental Health Commission.

After her beloved husband, George, passed on, Eleanor decided to sell her home in Santa Monica Canyon and move to Santa Cruz at the age of 81. A woman deeply committed to the community around her, Ms. Wasson has adopted several causes to make the world a better place. She has served on the boards of both Earth Save and Women Rise for Global Peace. Her activism is rooted in her desire to work for peace, having been deeply affected by WWI as a child.

Mrs. Wasson's kindness and acceptance for others is truly legendary. Weekly, she invites both a local Catholic Priest and Robert White Mountain, an elder of the Lakota Tribe, to discuss local and global concerns. While living in Los Angeles, she asked famous actors such as Reginald Denny, Leon Ames, and Tyrone Power to dance with women at the psychiatric ward where she was volunteering her time.

In addition to being a peace activist, a volunteer, and mother, Mrs. Wasson is also an author. She has written a successful autobiography entitled 28,000 Martinis, published in January 2004. In 28,000 Martinis, Mrs.

Wasson's positive and optimistic approach to life is captured, ultimately lending her energy, vibrancy and creativity to all who read the book. Through her own life story, she is able to demonstrate that goodwill, knowledge and action are the keys to enriching one's own life, as well as those around you.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to express my deepest gratitude and admiration for this vibrant and loving woman. Eleanor's social and environmental activism and her kindness towards all have infinitely improved the culture and character of the 17th district. I am honored to wish her a happy 97th birthday on behalf of myself, and the community that values and loves her.

COMMEMORATING THE 90TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE ARMENIAN GENOCIDE

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the 90th anniversary of one of history's most terrible tragedies, the Armenian Genocide.

On April 24, 1915, 300 Armenian leaders, intellectuals and professionals were rounded up in Constantinople, deported and killed, under orders from the Young Turk government. This was the beginning of a campaign of terror resulting in the deaths of 1.5 million Armenians and the deportation of more than 500,000.

The government of the Ottoman Empire justified this policy by claiming it was necessary to suppress revolts being launched by Armenians as a consequence of the ongoing military operations of World War I. This assertion was patently denied by survivors and witnesses. United States Ambassador to the Ottoman Empire Henry Morgenthau reported at that time, "Deportation of and excesses against peaceful Armenians is increasing and from harrowing reports of eyewitnesses it appears that a campaign of race extermination is in progress under a pretext of reprisal against rebellion."

Not content with perpetrating this atrocity, the Young Turks denied the genocide had taken place. Generations have since been raised denying this tragedy. Such denials are refuted by the archival documents and firsthand accounts found in such recent scholarly works as Peter Balakian's The Burning Tigris and Samantha Power's A Problem From Hell. Director Atom Egoyan presented the horror of the siege of Van in his film Ararat, which was based, in part, on the memoirs of Clarence Ussher, an American physician and missionary working in Turkey at the time. To those who suggest that this ruthless genocide of a people and culture did not happen, I ask, what further testimony could the world possibly want?

Mr. Speaker, for myself and my constituents, I rise today to urge those who deny this genocide to accept it as fact. Only then can we move forward and stop these atrocities from repeating themselves over and over again.
