

up with two brothers and a sister. At the age of 23, he was drafted into the Vietnam War. Although his family was uneasy about the draft, they supported him. First, he attended Fort Leonard Wood in Missouri for basic boot camp and training. The hardest thing about this time was that he was ripped away from his daily life, and thrown into a life of rules, schedules, and tough workouts. But he also trained with helicopters in Ft. Virginia, which led him to working at the helicopter bases while stationed in Vietnam. From January of 1970 to December of 1970, he worked 13 hour days, 7 days a week, taking soldiers out, flying them in, and doing aircraft maintenance.

While most of it was sheer boredom, there were also times with unexpected terror. There was always the threat that his base at Camp Evans could be attacked. Thankfully it wasn't, and he was able to return home 2 days before Christmas in 1970. He still carries the values and lessons he learned during the war and it has helped him to be successful in life. After telling his story, he concluded by saying that what we have in this country is valuable, and we better be willing to fight for it. Charles and many other men were able and willing to fight for our protection and I value the courage it took to do so. I can only hope that the future generations, no matter how anti-war they might be, will be willing to fight for our freedoms and protect this beautiful country.—Erin McGranahan

Antonio Molina served in the United States Navy during the Vietnam conflict in 1972. After growing up in southern California, he enlisted himself in the Navy at the age of seventeen as a seaman recruit (E-1) and left as a Commander (O-5E). He helped with the evacuation and dismemberment of military bases during the withdrawal of troops from the region. In addition, he helped to clean up many of the mines and other weapons left by troops as they were withdrawing. After leaving the service, he eventually joined a local reserve unit where he attended flight and officer school. He now works in Hollywood using his military and technical experience to create films and spends time stressing the importance of veterans' issues including the existence of post-traumatic stress disorder among the returning troops. This experience stressed the importance of realizing the impact combat situations have on the young minds of our men and women who are fighting in conflicts worldwide from Vietnam veterans to current Gulf War veterans. We owe it to them to help them readjust to life back in the United States just as we help them to adjust to life in conflict.—Laura Rector

In hearing a veteran's story, we become more appreciative of the freedoms soldiers fight to protect every day. I had the privilege of hearing the story of Specialist 4th Class Gary Herrin of the 101st Airborne, 326th Battalion of the United States Army. Herrin was born and raised in Amarillo, Texas and was drafted into the Army in 1968 to fight in Vietnam. He fought in the Battle of Hamburger Hill, placing C4 and grenades in the North Vietnamese bunkers as the infantry charged up the hill to clear the way for his battalion which followed behind. Specialist Herrin was also involved in numerous reconnaissance missions to scout out sites for potential firing bases. If a site was chosen, Herrin and his unit would clear the plot and construct bunkers. On one particular reconnaissance mission, Herrin was knocked off his feet by the concussion of a rocket-propelled grenade and he sustained a bullet wound in the leg as Viet Cong trackers opened fire on his unit. Ironically, Specialist Herrin believes to this day that had the RPG not knocked him off his feet, he would have been a standing target for the V.C. bullets and probably would have been killed. Specialist Herrin's story brought me to realize that there are people we encounter every day with a story of heroic service to tell. They are seemingly ordinary people that have done the extraordinary by sacrificing their time and possibly their lives to ensure that their fellow Americans and others around the world are safe and free. We owe these heroes a debt of gratitude and I hope that one day I too can serve my country in an honorable fashion as our soldiers do every day.—Patrick Ivey

HONORING THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE ELKINS/RANDOLPH COUNTY YMCA

HON. SHELLEY MOORE CAPITO

OF WEST VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, March 14, 2008

Mrs. CAPITO. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the 100th anniversary of the Elkins-Randolph County YMCA located in West Virginia's Second Congressional District.

For the past century, the Elkins YMCA has played an integral role in the history of the community and its people. The YMCA building was originally built with $25,000 donated by Mrs. Hallie Davis Elkins, the wife of a prominent West Virginia capitalist, Stephen B. Elkins. During the outbreak of World War I and World War II, local troops were reviewed for mobilization in front of the YMCA. The Y building was also used as a training facility for the National Guard between World War I and World War II.

Throughout its many renovations over the next 50 years, the original structure still stands in place to serve the youth, families, and senior citizens as the county's premier recreation and community center. The Elkins YMCA has the proud distinction of being one of three YMCA facilities to serve a city with a population under 10,000.

On March 22, 2008 friends and members of the Elkins-Randolph County YMCA will celebrate its 100th anniversary and name its newest addition, the Legg Family Youth Center.

I would like to recognize all of those who were a part of the Elkins-Randolph County YMCA 100 year history and wish the members and friends of the Elkins-Randolph County YMCA congratulations in celebrating its 100th anniversary.

INTRODUCTION OF EMERGENCY WILDLAND FIRE RESPONSE ACT OF 2008

HON. BOB GOODLATTE

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, March 14, 2008

Mr. GOODLATTE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Emergency Wildland Fire Response Act of 2008. This bipartisan bill, introduced by Chairman PETERSON and I, along with five other original sponsors, is a fiscally responsible solution to the USDA Forest Service and Department of the Interior wildfire budget dilemma.

The Emergency Wildland Fire Response Act of 2008 creates a new fund to pay for firefighting while setting strong standards for containing costs and holding the agencies accountable.

There's no question that firefighting costs will continue to rise in the future, given the current overly-dense condition of our forests and the fact that more people are moving into these heavily forested areas. Last year, over 9 million acres across the country went up in smoke, costing the Forest Service and the Department of the Interior over $1.5 billion to suppress.

This does not mean that Congress should simply give the agencies a blank check to cover these rising costs. This bill sets up a funding structure to balance the need for more funding with the need for accountability.

As firefighting costs are increasing, the Forest Service and Department of the Interior's
