

weeks crossing from Ireland to Ellis Island. Many of the boats that sailed that route posted in their galleys a notice with the heading, "Advice to Irish Emigrants."

The posting included these words: "In America, a man's success must altogether rest with himself—it will depend on his industry, sobriety, diligence and virtue . . . and he may rationally expect to raise himself in the world by his labour."

People who met Jack Gillespie quickly realized that their friend or coworker or fellow soldier was extremely diligent, very industrious, generally virtuous and—most of the time sober. And he certainly wasn't afraid of labor.

His high school sweetheart Conny Carroll noticed something else about him—something other pretty lasses tended to notice too. He was a strikingly handsome man.

She wrote to him regularly during the war, and clipped newspaper articles on the progress of the 28th Infantry—the famed and feared "bloody buckets"—and kept the clips in a scrap book.

Sergeant John Patrick Gillespie fought for the cause of freedom. He fought for the honor of his country. And though he never fought for the sake of glory, at war's end he was draped in it.

After landing in France, his Company L was among the first to confront the hedgerows that made a patchwork of the French countryside. His commanding officers spent days hunkered down trying to figure out how to advance over the thick, eight-foot-high lines of brush that separated them from an enemy whose size and strength they had no way of knowing.

Eventually a frustrated, impatient Sergeant Gillespie carved toeholds into the knotted hedgerow and told his lieutenant to listen for him after he went over the top.

When this fearless soldier dropped to the ground on the other side, he began firing his weapon to find—nobody firing back. Sixty years later, when asked what he did to get his Bronze Star, he laughingly said, "Nothing, really."

Of course, it wasn't for nothing. Nor was his subsequent Silver Star for Valor in Combat, earned saving a wounded platoon mate, or the Purple Heart for the bullets that ripped through both his legs in the Hurtgen Forest.

He was a successful salesman and a savvy entrepreneur willing to take risks—but calculated ones. He said he never took a chance in business unless he assessed better-than-60 percent odds for success. And he won a lot more often than he lost.

He was an opinion leader in his community. Bobby Kennedy was once asked how his brother Jack won the Democratic nomination in 1960. He said that when other campaigns went in to organize a town, they'd ask, "Who's the Mayor?" or "Who's the county party chairman," or "who's the Chamber of Commerce President?" And he always asked, "Who's the man to see?"

For a long time in this community, Jack Gillespie was the man to see.

What he cared most about was his family—his wife and children.

He was a devoted husband. As a father, he was a disciplinarian who gave the greatest gift you can give your children: unconditional love.

And sage advice. If Jack Gillespie said "that's a good house," you should buy it. If he said "you can't trust that guy," you couldn't. If he said "you ought to marry that girl," you ought to.

Because of the guidance and advice he gave to me, I have been able to give guidance and advice to Congressmen, Senators, governors, Supreme Court Justices, prime ministers and, yes, the President of the United States of America.

Remarkable men and women, all. Yet I never felt intimidated in their presence.

You see, the most remarkable man I've ever known lies before us here today.

John Patrick Gillespie has left home again—on a journey to a new life in a wonderful place, where he will find happiness and achieve eternal glory. And waiting for him there, the woman he was meant to be one with.

Farewell, poor immigrant.

Farewell, successful businessman.

Farewell, brave soldier.

Farewell, loving husband, son, brother, uncle, grandfather, and friend.

Farewell, Dad.

HONORING THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE GRAND COULEE DAM

HON. CATHY McMORRIS RODGERS

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 26, 2008

Mrs. McMORRIS RODGERS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 75th Anniversary of the building of Grand Coulee Dam.

If you have ever visited Grand Coulee Dam you know just how impressive of a structure it is. It is the largest concrete structure in the United States with enough concrete to build a sidewalk around the world—twice. During the summer, you can learn the history of the Columbia River by watching a laser light show displayed on the dam.

Although Grand Coulee Dam initially helped us win World War II it continues to play a critical role in the national and economic security of the United States by providing vital electric power and water to grow our food.

The Pacific Northwest serves as an example of good energy policy. You can't get any better than clean, renewable hydropower. As the Ranking Republican on the Water and Power Subcommittee, I am working hard to tell the good news story about hydropower.

That is why I was so pleased to see the Today Show highlighting Grand Coulee Dam and the positive impact it has had in the Pacific Northwest and more specifically Spokane.

Hydroelectric dams across the West and especially in Washington State have provided us with an abundant supply of clean, affordable, and renewable energy. In fact, dams provide nearly two-thirds of our state's electricity. These dams have kept the Pacific Northwest's "carbon footprint" at half that of the rest of the Nation. Removal of the four lower Snake River dams would add 5.4 million tons of CO₂ to the atmosphere each year and it would take three nuclear, six coal-fired, or 14 gas fired power plants to replace their electricity generation.

At a time of growing energy demand, it makes no sense to throw this energy source away. I am committed, as we move forward with the debate on global climate change, and how to reduce our carbon emissions, that hydropower be recognized for the important role it has played in the Pacific Northwest.

In addition, the water provided from the Columbia Basin Project, supplies more than 500,000 acres of farmland and helps make Washington second only to California in the number of crops grown totaling more than 250 different commodities.

TRIBUTE TO PAT O'BRIEN, GENERAL MANAGER OF THE EAST BAY REGIONAL PARK DISTRICT

HON. GEORGE MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 26, 2008

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Madam Speaker, I rise today to join with my colleagues ELLEN TAUSCHER, BARBARA LEE, PETE STARK, and JERRY MCNERNEY in honoring Pat O'Brien for his many accomplishments and contributions to the East Bay Regional Park District, a world-class system of parks and trails throughout Alameda and Contra Costa counties in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Pat O'Brien has provided remarkable leadership as the General Manager of the East Bay Regional Park District, and our congressional districts have been greatly enhanced by his two decades of service. On the 20th anniversary of his leadership there, it is our great privilege to pay tribute to his work in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

His service to public parks and recreation in California began at the Southgate Recreation and Park District in the Sacramento area. Due to his innovative ideas and pioneering work at Southgate, he was hired as the East Bay Regional Park District's General Manager. Over the next 20 years, Pat has accomplished more than many could in a lifetime of service.

Under his leadership, the Park District has acquired over 32,000 acres of new parklands, and has added 17 parks and more than 100 miles of regional trails. The East Bay Regional Park District today includes 98,000 acres and 65 parks, a remarkable achievement in protecting and providing open space access to the citizens of one of the densely developed regions of the country. And while expanding to ensure that all of our communities are served, Pat O'Brien and the East Bay Regional Park District have built strong relationships throughout the region so that their important projects and initiatives have widespread support.

The East Bay Regional Park District during Pat O'Brien's tenure has been a wise steward not only over the parks, trails, and natural and cultural resources of the East Bay Area, but of the taxpayers' money as well. The Park District has brought in more than $75 million in matching funds, and they have worked through ballot measures and assessment districts to provide stable funding for their good work.

Pat O'Brien's public service is an example to us all, and we are lucky to have his vision and his commitment in the East Bay. We have all benefitted by his leadership, and on behalf of all of our constituents, it is an honor to recognize Pat O'Brien on the occasion of his 20th anniversary as General Manager of the East Bay Regional Park District.
