

So I hope we reach an agreement to yield back some of the postcloture time so we can complete action on this bill at a reasonable time tomorrow.

Upon disposition of unemployment insurance legislation, the Senate will resume consideration of the small business jobs bill, which is also a job-creating bill we would like to get to.

I want everyone to understand. The Republicans better be ready tomorrow to defend their position because we are going to have people come during this 30 hours and show how ridiculous it is that we are having to wait for 30 hours. No amendments can be offered. Nothing can be done during that 30 hours except speeches. So I alert my friends: Come and explain to the American people how this 30 hours has helped the American people.

There will be rollcall votes possibly throughout the day tomorrow.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. REID. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate adjourn under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 6:57 p.m., adjourned until Wednesday, July 21, 2010, at 9:30 a.m.
