

honor for me to rise today to recognize the life of northwest Florida's beloved George Ireland.

Mr. Ireland is survived by Jacqueline, his wife of 57 years; his three sons, George, Timothy and Bruce; as well as two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. To his family and friends, I would like to offer my deep and sincere condolences. George Ireland was not only a compassionate man, but also had a sharp wit and an immense love for his community. Northwest Florida has truly suffered a great loss with his passing.

Mr. Ireland served his country with honor and distinction in both the Korean and Vietnam Wars and retired after more than 27 years of service in the United States Air Force with the rank of Chief Master Sergeant. Following his retirement, Mr. Ireland moved to Niceville, Florida, where he served his local community as City Clerk for over 32 years and also served as President of the Florida Association of Clerks. Mr. Ireland was described by his colleagues as a "financial whiz"; his remarkable aptitude for managing budgets and records helped the city of Niceville continually run a budget surplus.

In 1978, he was the catalyst for the purchase of a cutting-edge computer system Niceville. He convinced the Niceville City Council to approve the purchase of computers to help facilitate a sophisticated internal system that allowed the city to save countless dollars. He was also responsible for founding an institute for the education and training of city clerks in northwest Florida; this service, provided at no cost to the cities of northwest Florida, was especially crucial as it allowed each city to cut the cost of sending their clerks to train in south Florida.

Mr. Ireland's excellence in financial management was recognized by the Government Finance Officers Association, which bestowed upon his office more than 20 annual awards for excellence in financial reporting. He was also the recipient of the prestigious Robert N. Clark Award from the Florida Association of City Clerks.

Mr. Ireland's dedication to his community was beyond reproach. After his retirement as City Clerk, he continued to give his time, even though he was off the payroll. He was also deeply involved in a myriad of fraternal organizations. Mr. Ireland was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Florida, where he served as District 1 Commander. He was a Master Mason of the Okaloosa Masonic Lodge 312 in Niceville, and was a 32nd Degree Knights Commander of the Court of Honor for the Hadji Shrine in Pensacola, Florida. He also served multiple times as President of the local Lions Club, but his real love was in serving as secretary and treasurer of the Lions Club—a position he held since the early 1960s. Mr. Ireland's service to his community was recognized in 2005 when he was awarded the Melvin Jones Fellowship Award—the highest award given by Lions Clubs International for humanitarian service.

To some George Ireland will be remembered as a courageous member of our armed services where he fought to protect the liberties and freedoms we all hold so dear; to others he will forever be a sharp, intelligent, and exceptionally compassionate public servant. He will long be remembered by his family and friends as a loving husband and father; and we will all remember his wit, energy, motivation and commitment to serving his community. His impact he had on northwest Florida can never be forgotten.

Madam Speaker, on behalf of the United States Congress, it gives me great pride to honor the life of George Ireland, and his living legacy.

MONROE JOURNAL EDITORIAL
CALLING FOR RENEWAL OF
BUSH TAX CUTS

HON. JO BONNER

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 29, 2010

Mr. BONNER. Madam Speaker, I wish to submit for the RECORD an editorial published in the September 16th edition of the Monroe Journal in my congressional district, calling for the renewal of the Bush tax cuts of 2001 and 2003.

CONGRESS MUST RENEW BUSH'S TAX BREAKS

In this economic environment it would be ludicrous to even consider not renewing the "Bush tax breaks" for everyone, especially so for middle class Americans.

President Barack Obama has said he supports renewing the federal income tax breaks for middle class workers, but he does not support renewing the tax breaks for persons making $250,000 or more annually.

Unfortunately, the problem with not renewing the tax breaks for those who make $250,000 or more is that many of those individuals are small business owners.

We all know that the majority of jobs in America are created by small businesses.

If the tax breaks are not continued for middle class workers, they would see an average increase of $1,500 per individual in their annual federal income tax. And, if the tax breaks are not continued for small business owners, many of those middle class workers could find themselves on the unemployment lines in 2011.

Why not amend the tax law to continue the tax breaks for everyone, who makes less than $250,000 annually and for small business owners, who make no more than $500,000 annually? This would help middle class workers continue to make ends meet and help small businesses with minimum operating capital stay afloat in this shaky economy that is still in a rebound stage.

Madam Speaker, oftentimes the best ideas come from real America, not just those generated here inside the Washington Beltway. I hope my colleagues will take to heart this urgent plea from the editors and publisher of the Monroe Journal.

ISSUES REGARDING LYME DISEASE

HON. CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 29, 2010

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Madam Speaker, as chair of the congressional Lyme Disease Caucus and a person who has been closely involved in Lyme disease issues for over twenty years, I want to bring to your attention extremely troubling issues regarding Lyme disease.

Lyme disease is the most common of all vector-borne infections in the U.S., with approximately 290,000 new cases in 2008. With the increase in Lyme cases, problems due to poor diagnostics and ineffective treatments for Lyme disease have become almost overwhelming—affecting larger numbers of people over longer periods of time.

Many patients are angry because progress in addressing Lyme disease has been impeded by entrenched bias and a lack of accountability in the science of tick borne diseases. It is critical that we identify biases and impediments that are constraining the science on Lyme and to open up the dialogue to honest and transparent debate. The scientists who have long been marginalized, the treating physicians who have felt intimidated and threatened, and most importantly the sick patients and their families need our help.

PATIENT PERSPECTIVES ON THE RESEARCH
GAPS IN TICK BORNE DISEASES

(Submitted by Time for Lyme, the national Lyme Disease Association, and the California Lyme Disease Association on behalf of our patients across the United States)

In December 2009, Labor HHS 2010 appropriations language, signed into law by President Obama, encouraged the National Institutes of Health (NIH) to "sponsor a scientific conference on Lyme and tick-borne diseases . . . the conference should represent the broad spectrum of scientific views . . . and should provide a forum for public participation and input from individuals with Lyme disease." The language also requires NIH to identify research gaps to understand the "mechanisms of persistent infection." The passage of this language represents a significant opportunity to summarize and solidify the issues that prevent scientific progress for a disease recognized here for 35 years, if, and only if, this process occurs without bias. Progress can be accomplished if the stewards commit to the elimination of predisposition by key decision makers.

It is not clear why the NIH elected to subcontract this issue to the Institute of Medicine (IOM), given that the existing NIH conference structure contains the best process to address the appropriations language requirements. According to the NIH Consensus Development Program, which explains the two relevant types of conferences offered by NIH, "when the available evidence is weak or contradictory, or when a common practice is not supported by high-quality evidence, the State-of-the-Science label is chosen." This conference format would appropriately address the research gaps that exist for Lyme and tick-borne diseases as it provides a "snapshot in time" of the state of knowledge on the conference rather than a policy statement of the NIH or the Federal Government.

In Lyme disease, there are two distinct disease paradigms, each providing science to support its claims. One paradigm views the disease as "hard to catch and easy to cure" and denies the existence of chronic Lyme disease—persistent infection with Borrelia burgdorferi, the spirochete that causes the disease. Under this paradigm, the state of the science for patients with chronic Lyme disease is closed. Any treatment is considered too risky because practitioners are unable to determine the cause or extent of patient symptoms, or they view the symptoms
