The bill (S. 3860), as amended, was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

Mrs. McCASKILL. Mr. President, I am proud we have been able to get this passed today. This is a giant Christmas present with a bow on it or a Hanukkah gift with a bow on it to thousands of American families, to let them know we are paying attention. We have very short attention spans around here. When the cameras aren't rolling, we have a tendency to move on to something else. We are always kind of gravitating toward the political fight.

This legislation should send the appropriate signal to our Nation's military, to our Nation's veterans and, most importantly, to the families who have loved ones buried at Arlington National Cemetery that we are paying attention and that we are going to continue to pay attention until we get this right. Our American pride depends on it. It is the ultimate act of patriotism. So I am proud of the fact that we have been able to get this legislation passed today.

I yield the floor.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

PRONUNCIATION OF "ARKANSAS"

• Mr. PRYOR. Mr. President, today I wish to share an interesting piece of Arkansas history with my colleagues and the American people. Over the last few centuries, the origin and pronunciation of "Arkansas" has been shrouded in a bit of mystery, with many mispronunciations. So to correct any future mistakes before they are made, I submit the following resolution on the proper pronunciation of "Arkansas." After a study by the Arkansas Historical Society and the Eclectic Society of Little Rock, the resolution was introduced and passed by the Arkansas General Assembly in 1881. The resolution was included in an article edited by Margaret Ross that ran in the Arkansas Gazette on December 4, 1960, and reads as follows:

Whereas, Confusion of practice has arisen in the pronunciation of the name of our State; and it is deemed important that the true pronunciation should be determined for use in oral official proceedings.

And Whereas, The matter has been thoroughly investigated by the State Historical Society, and the Eclectic Society of Little Rock, which have agreed upon the correct pronunciation, as derived from history, and the early usage of the American immigrants.

Be it therefore resolved by both houses of the General Assembly, That the only true pronunciation of the name of the State, in the opinion of this body, is that received by the French from the native Indians, and committed to writing in the French word representing the sound; and that it should be pronounced in three syllables with the final 's' silent, the 'a' in each syllable with the Italian sound, and the accent on the first and last syllables—being the pronunciation formerly, universally, and now still most commonly used; and that the pronunciation with the accent on the second syllable with the sound of 'a' in 'man', and the sounding of the terminal 's', is an innovation to be discouraged.

Mr. President, I hope my colleagues have found this small piece of Arkansas history as enlightening as I did, and I would hope that any future mispronunciations of "Arkansas" be "an innovation to be discouraged."•
