The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Gracious God, all that we have and are is the result of Your goodness. We dedicate this day to counting our blessings and naming them one by one all through the hours of this day. We praise You for the gift of life. You have given us intellect to know You, emotions to praise You, and determination to do Your will. You have blessed us with loved ones, families, and friends. And what a privilege it is to live in this free land of opportunity. Today, help us recount the privileges that we have as citizens and leaders of this Nation.

Father, we also want to praise You for the courage and the strength You provide to face the challenges You give us as individuals and as a Senate. Thank You for problems that define the next steps of what You want us to do. You have shown us that problems are only the flip side of an undiscovered answer. Our problems give us an opportunity to discover Your power. With everything within us, we praise, thank, and glorify You, our God, Savior, Lord, Provider, and Friend. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable GEORGE VOINOVICH, a Senator from the State of Ohio, led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. VOINOVICH). The Senator from Nebraska, Mr. HAGEL, is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, on behalf of the leader I wish to announce that today the Senate will be in a period of morning business until 10:30 a.m. Following morning business, the Senate will resume consideration of the pending disaster relief amendment to the Agriculture Appropriations Act. It is hoped that the Senate will be able to dispose of those amendments today at a reasonable hour. As a reminder, the Senate will recess today from 12:30 to 2:15 so that the weekly party conferences can meet. As a further reminder, a cloture motion on the dairy compact amendment was filed on Monday. Therefore, under the provisions of rule XXII, that cloture vote will take place 1 hour after the Senate convenes tomorrow, unless an agreement is made by the two leaders.

Prior to the August recess, it is the intention of the leader to complete action on the Agriculture appropriations bill, the Interior appropriations bill, and it is also hoped that the conference report to the tax reconciliation bill will be available for consideration.

I thank my colleagues for their attention.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business not to extend beyond the hour of 10:30 a.m. Senators are permitted to speak therein for up to 5 minutes each.

Under the previous order, the Senator from Nebraska or his designee is recognized to speak for up to 30 minutes.

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, I yield such time as I may require.

AGRICULTURE APPROPRIATIONS

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, over the weekend in Nebraska, I met with a number of agricultural producers about the current prices in American agriculture. Over the last 3 weeks, my staff and I have spoken to over 100 agricultural producers in the State of Nebraska—hog producers, cattle producers, grain producers; and then the second rim, the outer rim representing the agricultural community—bankers, implement dealers, automobile dealers. All had a consistent theme as to what we must do to direct our attention and our effort to dealing with this crisis in America.

As we begin debate today on the fiscal year 2000 Agriculture appropriations bill and on the emergency appropriation for agriculture, we should keep in mind some important dynamics about American agriculture. Leaders of both parties in the Senate committed last week to including in the fiscal year 2000 Agriculture appropriations bill an emergency funding measure to provide the short-term assistance needed for our agricultural producers, and that assistance should include increasing the market transition payments—I am confident we will see legislation to do that—lifting the caps on loan deficiency payments, and additional funding for crop insurance. I know that part of Freedom to Farm in 1996 was the commitment to America's agricultural producers to, in fact, reform crop insurance. We are on our way in that area, but we have not yet arrived at that reform.

Crop insurance is a very key dynamic to the future of American agriculture. The emergency appropriations bill should include relief for livestock producers, and I am confident we will see that in both of the bills that will be presented today, plus other emergency measures.

As we address this immediate crisis, we must continue to work on the long-term priorities. The perspective is clear. We have an immediate problem, and we will address that immediate problem. But let us not lose sight of the long-term priorities for American agriculture.

To do that we must focus on the demand side of the equation. When I talk about the demand side of the equation, I am talking about trade. I am talking about trade policies that encourage market development and the opening of new markets for our producers. We must continue to work for trade and sanctions reform—another critical component of the 1996 farm bill. I regret to say that Congress and the President have not done a very good job in the area of trade and sanctions reform. We are working on it, but we are a long way from being where we should be.

For example, it is estimated that current unilateral sanctions cost the U.S. economy more than $30 billion each year. Who do we penalize? Who do we hurt? We hurt ourselves. We must stop using agricultural policy as a foreign policy weapon. Instead, we must extend a strong message to our customers and competitors around the world that U.S. agricultural producers are consistent and reliable suppliers of quality and plentiful agricultural products.

We need fast track authority for the President in order to reach trade agreements that will open more markets to our agricultural goods and allow our producers to compete on a level playing field.

Today we stand in a situation that is unprecedented in the last 25 years. This President of the United States has been without fast track negotiating authority since 1994. Obviously, there has... been a lack of focus on priority on this issue. Every day the President does not have the authority to negotiate trade treaties, let alone whether the European Union is doing it; the South American trade organization Mercosur is doing it; others are doing it. We are not. Do we not understand that we will pay a very significant price, a high price, for being moved out of those markets because we have not placed trade as a high priority? Fast track authority is certainly a very clear example.

We must work to break down protectionist barriers in the next round of the World Trade Organization negotiations being held this fall in Seattle and strongly oppose the European Union’s delay on lifting the ban on hormone-enhanced beef.

We must work with China to encourage its entrance into the WTO. Do we really not understand that it is surely in the best interests of America, stability in the world, and new markets for all American products to have China in the World Trade Organization, not cutting corners but complying with all the necessary criteria to be a member of the WTO? It is in our best interests to continue to bring China into responsible organizations where China has more responsibility and accountability and opens a market of 1.3 billion people. We need more focus in that effort.

The President must make trade a top priority. He must make trade a top priority and then lead. It is not good enough to say our trade ambassador will negotiate. The President sets the agenda; the President sets the priority. Presidents lead. The next President of the United States is going to be consumed with an immense series of challenges, needs a higher priority on working in these challenges.

We must fulfill our commitment to American agriculture for tax and regulatory reform. Our national tax policy should encourage long-term investment in production agriculture that helps our current producers stay in business.

We must reduce Government regulation and cut taxes. There are a number of things we can do, that we promised we would do in 1996:

- Create tax-deferred farm and ranch risk management accounts to help ease fluctuations in income, thereby giving farmers and ranchers another management tool.
- Ensure that farmers and ranchers receive the full benefits of the permanent income-averaging provisions and not lose them because of the alternative minimum tax.
- Obviously, we must eliminate the marriage penalty and provide 100 percent deductibility for health insurance premiums.

These are real; these connect; they are relevant. They will help American agriculture; they will help our country.

We must ease the regulatory burdens on our agricultural producers. The USDA, the EPA, and other regulatory agencies hit farmers with dozens of different and interrelated rules. If they are in their fields, they tie up their time, they tie up their capital, and reduce their efficiency and reduce their profits. To what end? What is the cost-benefit ratio?

Let’s take a real-life example. Two of our biggest competitors, Brazil and Argentina, have been gaining in their share of the world’s commodity trade, especially in corn and wheat. The Brazilians and the Argentines are able to make a profit on these crops at prices lower than production costs in the United States.

Why? There are many reasons we can measure. I will state a couple. The Brazilians and Argentinians pay much lower taxes than our American agricultural producers pay. Second, they have fewer Government regulations to contend with. Their Government does not place added burdens on them, not only as producers but as marketers. Their Government actually helps. Their Government doesn’t get in the way. We need to do the same thing.

In 1996, we got the Federal Government out of the farmers’ fields. Now we need to get the Federal Government off the farmers’ backs. In the short term, we must swiftly conclude action on an agricultural appropriations bill that will provide emergency relief to our commodity and our livestock producers. Over the long term, it is good public policy, domestically, to provide for abundant and inexpensive food. We can support that policy by adopting prudent Government policies, Government policies such as trade policies that encourage market development, policies which create international financial stability.

Here is a very clear example of how the globe connects, how all 6 billion people in the world connect. Stability is the base from which we work to help develop emerging democracies, market economies, opening new opportunities and new markets. All of our policies are connected—national defense, foreign policy, trade policy—and ‘ground’ all of our other policies with an anchor of stability so that the people of the world will have the hope that with hard work and a better life. It gives all people of the world an opportunity to build bridges to each other.

We need tax policies which encourage long-term investments in production agriculture to help sustain our current producers. These are the most important ways we can help our farmers and our consumers, our taxpayers, and our international trade partners.

In the short term, we need to share the risks—yes, share the risks—that from time to time will adversely impact farming, such as has been the case for the last 2 years. We cannot sustain a long-term policy of providing abundant and inexpensive food without occasionally producing more than the market will absorb in the short term. We cannot control the weather or international markets. We need to factor in those realities of farming and not act shocked every time this happens.

Most agricultural producers I have spoken to, not just in the last month but in the last 4 years, 5 years, 10 years, do not believe that the United States should retreat to the 1980s set-aside, higher price support policies which they believe only produced and deepened problems of the 1980s and certainly would extend and deepen the current crisis. I agree.

To support production agriculture and sustain the producer base which has contributed so much to our economic stability and prosperity, we need to provide short-term support to our agricultural producers now.

Congress needs to pass a realistic and a responsible emergency agriculture bill. The Congress must act this week. I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE REGULATORY OPENNESS AND FAIRNESS ACT

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, last week, 20 of my colleagues of both parties joined me in introducing the Regulatory Openness and Fairness Act, a bill to amend the Food Quality Protection Act to ensure that the EPA used sound science in its evaluation of pesticide uses. This legislation is particularly relevant given yesterday’s announcement by the EPA that they will ban two important pesticides.

Let me begin by saying that a safe food supply is, of course, in everyone’s best interests. We all want to ensure that our children and American consumers continue to have access to abundant, safe agricultural products. It is in the best interests of consumers and agricultural producers that decisions on pesticide uses are based on sound scientific analysis—sound scientific analysis. That was the intent of the law which passed, with strong bipartisan support, 3 years ago. In 1996, Congress passed the Food Quality Protection Act to ensure the safety of our Nation’s food supply. It passed with the overwhelming support of the agricultural industry and was seen as a much-needed modernization of laws governing all pesticide use.

As written and signed by the President, the FQPA requires the EPA to reassess all of the Nation’s pesticides, using a new, more rigorous, method, into account, and allowing greater margins of safety. The FQPA also requires that these standards be based on hard data and sound science, not arbitrary assumptions or computer models.

Under the FQPA, next week the EPA faces its first deadline for announcing its evaluation of some 3,000 uses of pesticides. As EPA prepares for its deadline, it has not fully used the sound scientific analysis called for in the 1996 FQPA bill. Instead, the EPA has relied on theoretical computer models and worst case scenarios in many of these cases. The EPA frequently prefers this approach, partly as a result of not having the resources or the time to focus. But this is not what Congress intended in 1996. We did not intend for farmers to lose the use of safe and effective pesticides. We did not intend for public health officials dealing with pest control issues to lose the products that help them protect the public.

The President and I have introduced, the Regulatory Openness and Fairness Act, makes sure that EPA follows what was the intent of Congress 3 years ago. It will lessen the chance that safe and effective pesticides would be removed from the market without scientific justification; it provides a clear and predictable regulatory process based on scientific data; it streamlines the process for evaluating new pesticides; and it provides Congress with facts on how the act, as applied by the FQPA, affects agriculture exports.

We cannot forget that crop protection allows our farmers to produce the grains, the fruits, and the vegetables that feed not just our Nation but the world. Unnecessary regulations have a dampening effect on the engine that has fueled America’s economic growth. That engine is called productivity. If the FQPA is not implemented fully and fairly, based on sound science, we will unnecessarily place our agricultural producers at a very great competitive disadvantage in world markets. Production prices will increase, productivity will decrease, and consequently our farmers will see their exports decline. This is hardly the time to be placing extra, unnecessary burdens on American agriculture.

This bill is good for both consumers and agricultural producers. Consumers will continue to have safe, affordable, and abundant agricultural goods and farmers will continue to have the tools they need to produce safe, quality food products and to compete in the world market.

In Nebraska, we call that common sense. I am proud to join my 20 colleagues in a strong bipartisan effort to introduce the Regulatory Fairness and Openness Act.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent to be recognized in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

LITTLE CONGRESSIONAL ACCOMPLISHMENT

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, we are coming to the end of one segment of this Congress. We are about to break for an August recess which is an opportunity for Members to be back in their States and with their families. I am looking forward to that, as I am sure many of my colleagues. But it is a good time for us to reflect on what we have done and what we have failed to do in the last several months.

Each of us is elected with a responsibility to come to Washington and try to respond to some of the challenges facing families and individuals and businesses across America. I am sad to report at this moment we have little to show for our efforts this year. The Columbine shooting, which focused the attention of America on violence in our schools, rallied the Senate in a rare bipartisan fashion to deal with violence in schools. We passed the Juvenile Justice Act, which had sensible gun control provisions contained in it, and tried as well to attack this culture of violence which is becoming more dominant in our society.

If you will recall, it was a tie vote, 50-50. The tie was broken by Vice President Gore, the bill passed, it went over to the House, and was hopelessly mired down by the efforts of the gun lobby because of their resistance to any changes in gun control. So we are here today, the first part of August, with literally nothing to show for this whole issue of school safety. By the time we return, our kids will be back in school, another school year will have started, and this Congress will have failed to react to a problem that is on everyone’s mind.

The second issue, one that continues to haunt us, is the issue of the Patients’ Bill of Rights. Yesterday, I was in Bloomington, IL and met with a group of doctors and nurses at hospitals to talk about what is happening with health insurance, how families feel so helpless when health insurance clerks are making decisions that doctors should make. When we tried to address it on the floor, sadly, we were defeated by the health lobby, a lobby which continues to spend millions of dollars to overcome our efforts on behalf of patients and families.

That, again, is another issue with which we failed to deal.

Finally, of course, we will be talking a lot this week about the tax break as well as the whole question of the budget. There are many of us who think the action by the Senate last week was not a very wise one. We have a chance now, if our economy recovers and continues to grow, to generate a surplus. Then we have to decide what to do with it. First and foremost, I think we should do no harm to this economy. The economy moves forward, creating jobs and businesses and new housing starts. Yet Alan Greenspan, the Federal Reserve Chairman, warns Congress on a weekly basis not to pass the Republican tax cut package, a $600 billion tax cut primarily for wealthy individuals, which could fuel the fires of inflation and raise interest rates, jeopardizing home mortgages, business loans, and family farmers, who are trying to stay in business.

First and foremost, we ought to be cautioned that Alan Greenspan, who has no partisan interest in whose ox is gored in this battle, has warned us do not do it. Second, even when I go home and speak to the most conservative Republicans in my home State of Illinois, they say: If you have a surplus, Senator, for goodness’ sake, the first thing you ought to do is get rid of the national debt, the $5.7 trillion we have in debt, not to do something good and new for this country; not to improve education or the safety of our streets or to build new highways or mass transit. No, it is interest on the national debt.

So on the Democratic side, we think the highest priority, if there is to be a surplus, is to eliminate that debt. What legacy do we want to leave to our children? Wouldn’t it be great to leave them a debt-free America and say to them that you have it here, the best country in the world, a history and tradition you can be proud of, and you do not have to pay for the debts of our generation.

All to me is so basic, so sound, in opposition to the concept that we are somehow going to give tax breaks to the wealthiest people among us as an alternative.
If we are going to do that and reduce the debt, we can do it in a fashion that is fair to every other program, and in a way that preserves Social Security and Medicare. Many senior citizens are not even aware of the fact the Medicare system is in trouble. Yet it is. They would like to see Medicare expanded, as I would like to see prescription drugs and to be even a better program so seniors can remain healthy and independent for a longer period of time. But, sadly, the Republican approach to this includes no money for Medicare, no money for Medicare out of this surplus. Do you know what that means? Senators who are striving to be independent and healthy will not get a helping hand when they should. That is what this budget and tax debate has been about.

Sadly, that is where we find ourselves as we head toward the August recess—our failure to enact the juvenile justice bill to make our schools safer; our failure to enact the Patients’ Bill of Rights—which, in fact, will make sure we have a doctor they can trust and a doctor who is making decisions for them and their family; our failure to enact a bill to deal with our surplus which is responsible, a bill that will not jeopardize the economy, a law which, in fact, will make sure we reduce our debt and reduce these interest payments which we have to pay; and something that deals with the whole question of the solvency and future of Social Security and Medicare.

When I look at this Congress, it is sad, with all the talent we have on both sides of the aisle, Republican and Democrat alike. We have been unable to come to any conclusion where we can go home in the month of August and point with pride to what we have accomplished.

Unfortunately, there is little we can point to.

Mrs. BOXER. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DURBIN. I would be happy to yield to the Senator from California for a question.

Mrs. BOXER. I thank the Senator for crystallizing where we are. When the Senator says we will go home and there is nothing we can point to, he is right. What happened to the juvenile justice bill and all the sensible gun control measures? Every day we wake up to some other horrible incident, and we are doing nothing to protect our children and our people from gun violence. It strikes me that the same thing happened with the Patients’ Bill of Rights—nothing. The kind of sham bill that came across this place and passed and isn’t going to make any lives better.

But then, it seems to me, when our colleagues on the other side of the aisle do something, they do something bad. My friend was alluding to it. I just want to ask a couple questions on that point.

Is it not a fact that the tax bill which we passed did not allocate one slim dime for anything that preserves Social Security and Medicare. Many senior citizens are not even aware of the fact the Medicare system is in trouble. Yet it is. They would like to see Medicare expanded, as I would like to see prescription drugs and to be even a better program so seniors can remain healthy and independent for a longer period of time. But, sadly, the Republican approach to this includes no money for Medicare, no money for Medicare out of this surplus. Do you know what this means? Senators who are striving to be independent and healthy will not get a helping hand when they should. That is what this budget and tax debate has been about.

Sadly, that is where we find ourselves as we head toward the August recess. Our failure to enact the juvenile justice bill to make our schools safer. Our failure to enact the Patients’ Bill of Rights—which, in fact, will make sure we have a doctor they can trust and a doctor who is making decisions for them and their family; our failure to enact a bill to deal with our surplus which is responsible, a bill that will not jeopardize the economy, a law which, in fact, will make sure we reduce our debt and reduce these interest payments which we have to pay; and something that deals with the whole question of the solvency and future of Social Security and Medicare.

When I look at this Congress, it is sad, with all the talent we have on both sides of the aisle, Republican and Democrat alike. We have been unable to come to any conclusion where we can go home in the month of August and point with pride to what we have accomplished.

Unfortunately, there is little we can point to.

Mrs. BOXER. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DURBIN. I would be happy to yield to the Senator from California for a question.

Mrs. BOXER. I thank the Senator for crystallizing where we are. When the Senator says we will go home and there is nothing we can point to, he is right. What happened to the juvenile justice bill and all the sensible gun control measures? Every day we wake up to some other horrible incident, and we are doing nothing to protect our children and our people from gun violence. It strikes me that the same thing happened with the Patients’ Bill of Rights—nothing. The kind of sham bill that came across this place and passed and isn’t going to make any lives better.

But then, it seems to me, when our colleagues on the other side of the aisle do something, they do something bad. My friend was alluding to it. I just want to ask a couple questions on that point.

Is it not a fact that the tax bill which we passed did not allocate one slim dime for anything that preserves Social Security and Medicare. Many senior citizens are not even aware of the fact the Medicare system is in trouble. Yet it is. They would like to see Medicare expanded, as I would like to see prescription drugs and to be even a better program so seniors can remain healthy and independent for a longer period of time. But, sadly, the Republican approach to this includes no money for Medicare, no money for Medicare out of this surplus. Do you know what this means? Senators who are striving to be independent and healthy will not get a helping hand when they should. That is what this budget and tax debate has been about.

Sadly, that is where we find ourselves as we head toward the August recess. Our failure to enact the juvenile justice bill to make our schools safer. Our failure to enact the Patients’ Bill of Rights—which, in fact, will make sure we have a doctor they can trust and a doctor who is making decisions for them and their family; our failure to enact a bill to deal with our surplus which is responsible, a bill that will not jeopardize the economy, a law which, in fact, will make sure we reduce our debt and reduce these interest payments which we have to pay; and something that deals with the whole question of the solvency and future of Social Security and Medicare.

When I look at this Congress, it is sad, with all the talent we have on both sides of the aisle, Republican and Democrat alike. We have been unable to come to any conclusion where we can go home in the month of August and point with pride to what we have accomplished.

Unfortunately, there is little we can point to.

Mrs. BOXER. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DURBIN. I would be happy to yield to the Senator from California for a question.

Mrs. BOXER. I thank the Senator for crystallizing where we are. When the Senator says we will go home and there is nothing we can point to, he is right. What happened to the juvenile justice bill and all the sensible gun control measures? Every day we wake up to some other horrible incident, and we are doing nothing to protect our children and our people from gun violence. It strikes me that the same thing happened with the Patients’ Bill of Rights—nothing. The kind of sham bill that came across this place and passed and isn’t going to make any lives better.

But then, it seems to me, when our colleagues on the other side of the aisle do something, they do something bad. My friend was alluding to it. I just want to ask a couple questions on that point.

Is it not a fact that the tax bill which we passed did not allocate one slim dime for anything that preserves Social Security and Medicare. Many senior citizens are not even aware of the fact the Medicare system is in trouble. Yet it is. They would like to see Medicare expanded, as I would like to see prescription drugs and to be even a better program so seniors can remain healthy and independent for a longer period of time. But, sadly, the Republican approach to this includes no money for Medicare, no money for Medicare out of this surplus. Do you know what this means? Senators who are striving to be independent and healthy will not get a helping hand when they should. That is what this budget and tax debate has been about.

Sadly, that is where we find ourselves as we head toward the August recess. Our failure to enact the juvenile justice bill to make our schools safer. Our failure to enact the Patients’ Bill of Rights—which, in fact, will make sure we have a doctor they can trust and a doctor who is making decisions for them and their family; our failure to enact a bill to deal with our surplus which is responsible, a bill that will not jeopardize the economy, a law which, in fact, will make sure we reduce our debt and reduce these interest payments which we have to pay; and something that deals with the whole question of the solvency and future of Social Security and Medicare.

When I look at this Congress, it is sad, with all the talent we have on both sides of the aisle, Republican and Democrat alike. We have been unable to come to any conclusion where we can go home in the month of August and point with pride to what we have accomplished.

Unfortunately, there is little we can point to.

Mrs. BOXER. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DURBIN. I would be happy to yield to the Senator from California for a question.

Mrs. BOXER. I thank the Senator for crystallizing where we are. When the Senator says we will go home and there is nothing we can point to, he is right. What happened to the juvenile justice bill and all the sensible gun control measures? Every day we wake up to some other horrible incident, and we are doing nothing to protect our children and our people from gun violence. It strikes me that the same thing happened with the Patients’ Bill of Rights—nothing. The kind of sham bill that came across this place and passed and isn’t going to make any lives better.

But then, it seems to me, when our colleagues on the other side of the aisle do something, they do something bad. My friend was alluding to it. I just want to ask a couple questions on that point.

Is it not a fact that the tax bill which we passed did not allocate one slim dime for anything that preserves Social Security and Medicare. Many senior citizens are not even aware of the fact the Medicare system is in trouble. Yet it is. They would like to see Medicare expanded, as I would like to see prescription drugs and to be even a better program so seniors can remain healthy and independent for a longer period of time. But, sadly, the Republican approach to this includes no money for Medicare, no money for Medicare out of this surplus. Do you know what this means? Senators who are striving to be independent and healthy will not get a helping hand when they should. That is what this budget and tax debate has been about.

Sadly, that is where we find ourselves as we head toward the August recess. Our failure to enact the juvenile justice bill to make our schools safer. Our failure to enact the Patients’ Bill of Rights—which, in fact, will make sure we have a doctor they can trust and a doctor who is making decisions for them and their family; our failure to enact a bill to deal with our surplus which is responsible, a bill that will not jeopardize the economy, a law which, in fact, will make sure we reduce our debt and reduce these interest payments which we have to pay; and something that deals with the whole question of the solvency and future of Social Security and Medicare.

When I look at this Congress, it is sad, with all the talent we have on both sides of the aisle, Republican and Democrat alike. We have been unable to come to any conclusion where we can go home in the month of August and point with pride to what we have accomplished.

Unfortunately, there is little we can point to.

Mrs. BOXER. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DURBIN. I would be happy to yield to the Senator from California for a question.

Mrs. BOXER. I thank the Senator for crystallizing where we are. When the Senator says we will go home and there is nothing we can point to, he is right. What happened to the juvenile justice bill and all the sensible gun control measures? Every day we wake up to some other horrible incident, and we are doing nothing to protect our children and our people from gun violence. It strikes me that the same thing happened with the Patients’ Bill of Rights—nothing. The kind of sham bill that came across this place and passed and isn’t going to make any lives better.

But then, it seems to me, when our colleagues on the other side of the aisle do something, they do something bad. My friend was alluding to it. I just want to ask a couple questions on that point.
The Farm Crisis

Mr. Conrad. Mr. President, I wanted an opportunity to talk about the farm crisis that is now facing our country, and certainly facing my State. I represent North Dakota, which is one of the most agricultural States in the Nation. There is no question that our farmers are facing a crisis of really unprecedented proportion.

As I go around my State, every place that I go, a farm meeting, farmers have a sense of hopelessness. One of the reasons is that is happening to farm income. I have just come from a hearing where the Secretary of Agriculture is testifying. We were talking there about the pattern of farm income. It is very interesting, if you back out Government payments, which have been increasing now in the last several years in response to this economic calamity—in 1996, farm income absent Government payments was $46 billion. This year, my income, absent Government payments, is estimated to be $27 billion. Farm income from the prices that farmers receive for the commodities they sell is in a virtual free-fall.

This chart shows headlines from the newspapers back home talking about what is happening to farm prices. The first one is from the major paper in our State: “Going down, down, down. USDA sees lower prices for wheat, corn, soybeans, and other major crops.”

Another major story: “Lower crop prices predicted.”

Again, the story is the same—collapsing farm prices.

Farmers have been hurt by more than low prices. They have been hurt by what I call the “triple whammy” of bad prices, bad weather, and bad policy.

The bad prices are right at the heart of what is causing this farm collapse. This chart shows farm prices of two major commodities, wheat and barley, for a 53-year period. It really tells the story.

These are inflation-adjusted prices. So we are comparing apples to apples. These are what farmers have been receiving for these major commodities from 1946 to 1999. You can see that the blue line is wheat. Wheat has gone from almost $18 a bushel back in the 1940s to about $2.50 a bushel today—a long-term price decline without many real interruptions, although we saw a major one back in the 1970s. We all remember that period when farm prices skyrocketed. But absent that, we have really been in a long-term price decline for wheat, barley, and many other commodities as well.

I think this chart tells a very important story because it compares the prices farmers receive for what they sell and the prices they pay for what they buy. The green line goes back to 1991 and shows what prices farmers are paying for the inputs that they must buy to produce crops. You can see that the prices farmers pay have been going up very sharply. On the other hand, prices that farmers have been receiving went up to a peak in 1996—interestingly enough, right at the time we passed the last farm bill. In fact, we were told at the time we would see permanently high farm prices. That proved to be absolutely wrong. Those permanently high prices lasted about 90 days. Since then, we have seen a virtual price collapse.

Just as I indicated before, prices farmers have been receiving have been dropping dramatically, and the prices for the things they pay have been rising inexorably. That creates this enormous gap between the prices they are paying and the prices they are receiving. That is what has led to that reduction in farm income I talked about in my initial remarks. This is a crisis by any definition.

If we look at what is happening to individual commodities in relationship to the prices farmers receive and the actual costs of producing those commodities, we can see it very clearly.

This is what has happened with respect to wheat prices. The red line is the cost of production. The green line is the cost of production. The red line is the price farmers are receiving for their produce. The farmers receive are far below the costs of producing the product. That is what has led to this cash flow crunch. That is why farmers are telling us: If you do not take dramatic action, tens of thousands of us are going to go out of business.

In my State, the estimates are that we will lose 20 or 30 percent of our farmers in the next 18 months unless we act. Let me repeat that. In North Dakota, we are being told by the experts that the major farm organizations that unless we act we will lose 20 to 30 percent of the farmers in my State in the next 18 months. That is a crisis.

It is not just in wheat. You see the same pattern. This is soybeans. We don’t grow many soybeans in North Dakota. Soybeans are grown further south and to the east. But you can see the same kind of pattern.

Here is the cost of production. Here is what farmers are receiving. Since 1997, farmers are well below the cost of production with respect to soybeans. In wheat, the pattern is the same, and in soybeans. But there are other crops as well that are critically important.

This shows what has happened in corn. The red line again is the price. The green line is the cost of production. Since 1997, we have been below the cost of production in corn.

You can’t stay in business very long when you are getting less in terms of a price for your product than what it costs you to produce that product. You can hang in there a while as you give up equity and as you go backwards on your balance sheet, but at some point the banker comes calling. He says: Mr. farmer, you are out of business. You can’t continue to lose equity.

The result has been that we have started to lose farm families in my State. In 1988, we had over 28,000 family farmers in our State. We can see that we held that in 1990, and in 1991 we saw a drop of about a thousand farmers. Then, in 1992, we actually got some recovery. In 1993, we dropped down to about 26,000. Since then, it has been a constant erosion, so that now we are down to about 22,000 family-sized farms in our State. It is really a dramatic decline in the last 20 years—almost a 20-percent drop. Remember what I said. The experts are telling us now that we could see another 20-percent drop in just the next 18 months—perhaps even more than that; perhaps even as much as a 30-percent loss unless we act.

What are the reasons for this? Part of the reason is the financial collapse in Asia and the financial collapse in Russia because those were major customers for our farm commodities. But there are other reasons as well.

In the commodity area, I believe one of the key reasons is the budget decisions that were made at the time of the last farm bill. The last farm bill had some strengths to it, some pluses. The biggest strength, I believe, is the flexibility it provided to farmers to plant for the market rather than a farm program. But we also made some budget decisions at the time that made it very difficult to write any kind of reasonable farm bill.

This chart shows what I am talking about. It shows the resources that were provided in the very farm bill under the pre-previous farm bill. That averaged $10 billion a year. The new farm bill provided $5 billion a year. In other words, the support for agriculture was cut in half at the time of the last farm bill.

That has special implications because if we look at what was happening with our major competitors, we see that they were doing something quite differently. While we were dramatically cutting our support for producers, our European competitors—our major competitors—were maintaining very high levels of support. The Europeans were spending, on average, $44 billion a year—an average, $6 billion for us. This is from 1996 to 1999, just those 3 years. You can see that the Europeans really have been driving in reality. They are outspending us seven to one. They are winning their competition the old-fashioned way: They are buying these markets. That is what the Europeans are up to.

Unfortunately, we are engaged in unilateral disarmament. We are cutting in the face of massive superiority on the other side. One of the chief trade negotiators for the Europeans told me several years ago: Senator, we believe we are in a trade war in agriculture. We believe at some point there will be a cease-fire. We believe there will be a cease-fire in place, and we want to occupy the high ground. The high ground is market share.

That is exactly what they are up to. And how do we do it? Why are we giving in, in 20 years, from being major importers to being major exporters? In fact, they have surpassed the United States in terms of agriculture exports. One of the ways they have done it is to spend enormous sums of money to put themselves in a position of superiority.

This chart shows how the European Union is flooding the world with agricultural export subsidies. This is the European share of world agricultural export subsidies, accounting for nearly 84 percent of all world agricultural export subsidies; the United States' share, this little red piece of the pie, is 1.4 percent. They are outgunning the United States 60 to 1.

It is no wonder farm income is declining. It is no wonder exports are declining. It is no wonder our farmers are under enormous pressure. They are under enormous pressure because our European friends have a plan and a strategy to dominate world agricultural trade. Again, they are doing it the old-fashioned way: They are buying these markets. They think the United States is asleep. They think we will not fight back. They have told me: Senator, we believe at some point there will be a cease-fire. We believe there will be a cease-fire in place, and we want to occupy the high ground. The high ground is market share.

That is exactly what they are up to. And how do we do it? Why are we giving in, in 20 years, from being major importers to being major exporters? In fact, they have surpassed the United States in terms of agriculture exports. One of the ways they have done it is to spend enormous sums of money to put themselves in a position of superiority.

This chart shows how the European Union is flooding the world with agricultural export subsidies. This is the European share of world agricultural export subsidies, accounting for nearly 84 percent of all world agricultural export subsidies; the United States' share, this little red piece of the pie, is 1.4 percent. They are outgunning the United States 60 to 1.

It is no wonder farm income is declining. It is no wonder exports are declining. It is no wonder our farmers are under enormous pressure. They are under enormous pressure because our European friends have a plan and a strategy to dominate world agricultural trade. Again, they are doing it the old-fashioned way: They are buying these markets. They think the United States is asleep. They think we will not fight back. They have told me: Senator, we believe at some point there will be a cease-fire. We believe there will be a cease-fire in place, and we want to occupy the high ground. The high ground is market share.

That is exactly what they are up to. And how do we do it? Why are we giving in, in 20 years, from being major importers to being major exporters? In fact, they have surpassed the United States in terms of agriculture exports. One of the ways they have done it is to spend enormous sums of money to put themselves in a position of superiority.

This chart shows how the European Union is flooding the world with agricultural export subsidies. This is the European share of world agricultural export subsidies, accounting for nearly 84 percent of all world agricultural export subsidies; the United States' share, this little red piece of the pie, is 1.4 percent. They are outgunning the United States 60 to 1.

It is no wonder farm income is declining. It is no wonder exports are declining. It is no wonder our farmers are under enormous pressure. They are under enormous pressure because our European friends have a plan and a strategy to dominate world agricultural trade. Again, they are doing it the old-fashioned way: They are buying these markets. They think the United States is asleep. They think we will not fight back. They have told me: Senator, we believe at some point there will be a cease-fire. We believe there will be a cease-fire in place, and we want to occupy the high ground. The high ground is market share.

That is exactly what they are up to. And how do we do it? Why are we giving in, in 20 years, from being major importers to being major exporters? In fact, they have surpassed the United States in terms of agriculture exports. One of the ways they have done it is to spend enormous sums of money to put themselves in a position of superiority.

This chart shows how the European Union is flooding the world with agricultural export subsidies. This is the European share of world agricultural export subsidies, accounting for nearly 84 percent of all world agricultural export subsidies; the United States' share, this little red piece of the pie, is 1.4 percent. They are outgunning the United States 60 to 1.

It is no wonder farm income is declining. It is no wonder exports are declining. It is no wonder our farmers are under enormous pressure. They are under enormous pressure because our European friends have a plan and a strategy to dominate world agricultural trade. Again, they are doing it the old-fashioned way: They are buying these markets. They think the United States is asleep. They think we will not fight back. They have told me: Senator, we believe at some point there will be a cease-fire. We believe there will be a cease-fire in place, and we want to occupy the high ground. The high ground is market share.

That is exactly what they are up to. And how do we do it? Why are we giving in, in 20 years, from being major importers to being major exporters? In fact, they have surpassed the United States in terms of agriculture exports. One of the ways they have done it is to spend enormous sums of money to put themselves in a position of superiority.

This chart shows how the European Union is flooding the world with agricultural export subsidies. This is the European share of world agricultural export subsidies, accounting for nearly 84 percent of all world agricultural export subsidies; the United States' share, this little red piece of the pie, is 1.4 percent. They are outgunning the United States 60 to 1.

It is no wonder farm income is declining. It is no wonder exports are declining. It is no wonder our farmers are under enormous pressure. They are under enormous pressure because our European friends have a plan and a strategy to dominate world agricultural trade. Again, they are doing it the old-fashioned way: They are buying these markets. They think the United States is asleep. They think we will not fight back. They have told me: Senator, we believe at some point there will be a cease-fire. We believe there will be a cease-fire in place, and we want to occupy the high ground. The high ground is market share.
Spending Subject to Appropriation

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>2000</th>
<th>2001</th>
<th>2002</th>
<th>2003</th>
<th>2004</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Authorization Level</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Estimated Outlays</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Basis of Estimate: For purposes of this estimate, CBO assumes that the full amount of the authorization will be provided in 2000. We estimated the annual amount of spending for this drinking water system construction project using information from the local water system and historical spending rates for similar projects. Completion of this project is expected to take about 12 years.

Pay-as-You-Go Considerations: None.

Estimated Impact on State, Local and Tribal Governments: S. 244 contains no intergovernmental mandates as defined in UMRA. The bill would require that the non-federal share of project costs equal 20 percent, except for the incremental cost of participation in the project by the city of Sioux Falls. The city would be required to pay 50 percent of that cost. Any State or local governments that participate in the project authorized by this would do so on a voluntary basis, and any cost that they might incur would be accepted by them on that basis.

Estimated Impact on the Private Sector: This bill contains no new private-sector mandates as defined in UMRA.

Enclosure.

S. 244—Lewis and Clark Rural Water System Act of 1999

Summary: S. 244 would authorize the appropriations of $224 million to the Department of Interior (DOI) to make grants to the Lewis and Clark Rural Water System for the construction of a drinking water supply project. The Lewis and Clark Rural Water System is a group of cities and rural areas in southeastern South Dakota, northwestern Iowa, and southwestern Minnesota. CBO estimates that implementing S. 244 would cost $62 million over the 2000-2004 period, with the rest of the authorized spending coming after 2004.

Enactment of this bill would not affect direct spending or receipts; therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures would not apply. The bill would contain no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA). State and local governments might incur some costs as a result of the bill’s enactment, but those costs would be voluntary.

This morning, her grieving family is at Dover Air Force Base—to bring their daughter home for the last time.

On July 23, Captain Odom was on an Army reconnaissance plane that was flying near a major drug-producing region of Colombia. During bad weather, the plane crashed into a mountainside—killing the five Americans and two Colombians on board. These brave soldiers were casualties in our war against drugs. They were fighting to keep drugs off our streets and out of our schools. They know that this is essential to our national security and our national values.

Captain Odom grew up in Brunswick, Maryland, where she was a valedictorian at Brunswick High School. She was active in so many areas—from sports to theater.

As a scholar, an athlete and a leader—it’s not surprising that she chose to attend the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. She wanted to use her many talents to serve her country.

She graduated from West Point in the top quarter of her class. She served in the United States Army with valor and distinction—raising to rank of Captain.

But it is not just for her accomplishments that she will be missed. I’ve spoken to her family several times in the past few days. What comes across is their pride in the kind of person that she was. She was so dear to her friends and neighbors that the entire community joined in a prayer chain to pray for her and for her family.

Captain Jennifer Shafer Odom served our country with distinction. Her courage and her sacrifice remind us that freedom abides in the heroism of pilots like Captain Odom.

Her death was a tragedy—but her life was a triumph. She leaves behind a grieving husband, and her heartbroken parents. I ask my colleagues to join me in keeping Captain Odom and her family in our prayers.

TRIBUTE TO CAPTAIN JENNIFER SHAFER ODOM

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, it is with great sadness that I rise to pay tribute to the life of Captain Jennifer Shafer Odom. She died on a mountain-side in Colombia—defending our Nation and our values.

This morning, her grieving family is at Dover Air Force Base—to bring their daughter home for the last time.

On July 23, Captain Odom was on an Army reconnaissance plane that was flying near a major drug-producing region of Colombia. During bad weather, the plane crashed into a mountainside—killing the five Americans and two Colombians on board. These brave soldiers were casualties in our war against drugs. They were fighting to keep drugs off our streets and out of our schools. They know that this is essential to our national security and our national values.

Captain Odom grew up in Brunswick, Maryland, where she was a valedictorian at Brunswick High School. She was active in so many areas—from sports to theater.

As a scholar, an athlete and a leader—it’s not surprising that she chose to attend the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. She wanted to use her many talents to serve her country.

She graduated from West Point in the top quarter of her class. She served in the United States Army with valor and distinction—raising to rank of Captain.

But it is not just for her accomplishments that she will be missed. I’ve spoken to her family several times in the past few days. What comes across is their pride in the kind of person that she was. She was so dear to her friends and neighbors that the entire community joined in a prayer chain to pray for her and for her family.

Captain Jennifer Shafer Odom served our country with distinction. Her courage and her sacrifice remind us that freedom abides in the heroism of pilots like Captain Odom.

Her death was a tragedy—but her life was a triumph. She leaves behind a grieving husband, and her heartbroken parents. I ask my colleagues to join me in keeping Captain Odom and her family in our prayers.

HLAQOUT SURVIVORS’ ASSETS

Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the Holocaust Era Assets Tax Exclusion Act amendment to the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1999. I am pleased that this amendment was cleared on both sides of the aisle and has been accepted by the full United States Senate. The passage of the Abraham-Fitzgerald-Moyihlahn-Schumer Holocaust Era Assets Tax Exclusion Act amendment by unanimous consent, demonstrates beyond shadow of a doubt the United States Senate’s firm solidarity with those who suffered during the Holocaust. Documents I have, I would like to offer my sincere gratitude to Chairman ROTT and his leadership and support during this process, without which we might not have had this opportunity to pass such important legislation.

The passing decades have not obscured the horrors of the Nazi regime and the horrors it committed during its 12 years in power. Many people in America and around the world live every day with memories of atrocities they suffered during this terrible time. Rounded up, placed in ghettos or death camps, left to starve or tortured and murdered, millions had their lives taken from them, figuratively and literally.

We must never forget these atrocities. Thanks to the hard work of many, particularly within the Jewish community, we have numerous reminders of this inhumanity which can and must serve as a constant reminder of our commitment to preventing any such events from occurring ever again. But there is more that we must do. Only recently has public attention been properly directed toward another great crime of the Nazi regime and those who cooperated with it: the systematic looting of Jewish economic assets. In addition to committing outright theft and looting, the Nazis seized liquid assets that could be converted easily into cash, such as insurance policy proceeds and bank accounts. Documents discovered over the past several years show that the Nazis specifically targeted insurance policies held by Jews as a source of funding for their expansionist, totalitarian regime.

I am sorry to say that some insurance companies also specifically (and illegally) targeted Jewish families. Knowing that Jewish policy holders were often (illegally) targeted Jewish families. Knowing that Jewish policy holders were often specifically targeted, we must do everything possible to ensure that insurance companies honor the promises that they made to our-to collect on their policies, access their bank accounts and/or reclaim assets that had been illegally seized from them, as well as coutesy, government, and insurance companies failed to fulfill their duty to treat Holocaust victims with justice and dignity. Instead, they refused to honor policies or return stolen assets. In this way, survivors of the Holocaust were victimized twice, first by the Nazis, then by the financial institutions that deprived them of their assets.

Today, after over 50 years of injustice, Holocaust survivors and their families are finally reclaiming what is rightfully theirs. It is high time these victims of oppression finally got back some of the property stolen from them. It also is time, in my view, that the rest of us stood up to protect them from further raids on their assets. Under current law, any money received by Holocaust survivors in their settlements with banks and other organizations that once cooperated with the Nazis is treated as gross income for federal tax purposes. And that’s just plain wrong.

My colleagues and I offered this amendment to prevent the federal government from imposing income tax on any settlement payments, received by Holocaust survivors or their families resulting from a Holocaust claim. We do so because we feel it is morally imperative that we stand with the victims of this injustice, and that this nation not treat as income what is in fact the return of what had been stolen.

Specifically, our amendment would allow a Holocaust survivor or the surviving heirs to receive a tax exemption for any monies received as payment resulting from a Holocaust claim. We do so because we feel it is morally imperative that we stand with the victims of this injustice, and that this nation not treat as income what is in fact the return of what had been stolen.

Also included would be the value of any land recovered from a foreign government as a result of a settlement arising out of the illegal confiscation of such land in connection with the Holocaust.

The victims of the Holocaust have suffered far too much for any such tax to be just. These settlements represent but a fraction of what is owed to those who suffered under Nazi tyranny. To treat them as income subject to taxation would be to add a new injury to the old.

Mr. President, we cannot undo the evil acts of the Nazi regime. But we can put ourselves firmly on the side of those who suffered so unjustly by passing this amendment. By excluding Holocaust survivors from income tax, we will show that we understand what justice demands of us as we face the continuing consequences of an unjust regime.

KOSOVO’S DEADLY LEGACY

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, as NATO soldiers struggle to keep the peace in Kosovo, war crimes investigators labor to identify and prosecute those responsible for hundreds of mass graves, and the costly effort to rebuild homes and communities gets underway, we are seeing a repeat of many of the challenges that confront any post-conflict society.

One I want to mention today is a threat that is hidden among the debris, killing and horribly injuring civilians and NATO peacekeepers indiscriminately as they work to rebuild what was destroyed in the war.

The threat is unexploded ordnance, and in Kosovo that means landmines left by the Serbs and the Kosovo Liberation Army, and cluster bombs dropped by NATO forces, mostly by American aircraft.

I have often spoken about the problem of landmines. There are tens of thousands of them scattered in the fields, forests, and roads of Kosovo.

Each one is designed to blow the legs off the unsuspecting person who triggers it. Usually it is a farmer, or child, or some other innocent person trying to rebuild a normal life. The United States is helping to clear the mines, but it is a tedious, costly, and dangerous job.

But even more than landmines, it is unexploded cluster bombs which pose the greatest danger to civilians and NATO peacekeepers in Kosovo.

Cluster bombs are a favorite anti-personnel weapon of the US military, and hundreds of thousands of them were dropped by NATO planes over Kosovo. They cover wide areas, are designed to explode on impact, and they spread shrapnel in all directions.

People and lightly armored vehicles are the usual victims of cluster bombs. In Kosovo, NATO showered cluster bombs over densely populated areas. Was this militarily necessary or justified? Was it consistent with international law? Most often they miss the target, what limits should be imposed on where and when cluster bombs can be used so the innocent are not harmed? These questions need answers.

I am not the only one concerned about this. The same concerns have been conveyed to me by civilian and retired members of our Armed Forces. Just recently, the House Armed Services Committee included language in its report accompanying the fiscal year 2000 National Defense Appropriation Act, which directs the Secretary of Defense to establish a defense-wide program to develop affordable, reliable self-destruct fuses for munitions.

I see a real problem, and countless tragedies, resulting from the way these munitions are designed and used. We can do better.

There is always too much death and destruction in any military conflict. The lingering threat of landmines and unexploded bombs can be significantly reduced. If implemented, the changes I have suggested could save many innocent lives in the aftermath of war.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a brief article and a letter to the editor about cluster bombs that appeared in the August 3, 1999, Washington Post be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Washington Post, August 3, 1999]

THE REMAINS OF WAR

U.S. warplanes dropped 1,100 cluster bombs during Operation Allied Force against Yugoslavia, says the Defense Department. Each contained 202 bomblets. That's 222,200 bomblets each. With a dud rate of 5 percent, it is likely, a DOD spokesman said, that about 11,110 bomblets are sitting around unexploded.

THE REMAINS OF WAR

U.S. warplanes dropped 1,100 cluster bombs during Operation Allied Force against Yugoslavia, says the Defense Department. Each contained 202 bomblets. That's 222,200 bomblets each. With a dud rate of 5 percent, it is likely, a DOD spokesman said, that about 11,110 bomblets are sitting around unexploded.
DUCKS KEEP ON KILLING

The problem of high dud rates in cluster bombs has been known to the military for years. The 5 percent dud rate mentioned in “NATO ‘Duds’ Keep Killing in Kosovo” (front page, July 19) must be characterized as more realistic than a fact. Dud rates among cluster munitions were as high as 30 percent during the Vietnam War. Dud rates during the Gulf War were as high as 20 percent.

Laos remains littered with millions of duds in unmarked minefields. They continue to kill farmers who strike them with implements or children who mistake them for toys. Many young victims’ parents were not even born when the United States dropped these weapons in unprecedented numbers. The grandchildren of Kosovars and Serbs alike will die as they discover unexploded bombs in the future.

The military was aware of how attractive these “booby traps” and “streamers” were. Numerous similar stories came out of the Gulf War explaining that the brightly colored and appealing shapes made unexploded cluster bombs irresistible to children.

These weapons should be banned from the U.S. arsenal and arsenals around the world. —VIRGIL WIEBE.

THE NEW MILLENNIUM CLASSROOMS ACT

Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the New Millennium Classrooms Act amendment to the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1999. I am pleased that this amendment was cleared on both sides of the aisle and has been accepted by the full United States Senate. The passage of the Abraham-Wyden New Millennium Classrooms Act amendment by unanimous consent, demonstrates beyond shadow of a doubt that the United States Senate is firmly committed to bringing quality high technology to schools and seniors. This provision will go a long way toward ensuring our nation’s technological and economic leadership in the New Economy.

First, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Chairman for his leadership and support during this process, without which we might not have had this opportunity to pass such important legislation. In addition, I would like to express my thanks to Senator Wyden who has worked closely with me to develop this strong legislation which, if passed, would bridge the digital divide between technological haves and have-nots, ensuring that all our nation’s students, and seniors, enjoy access to quality technology and the Internet.

When I first introduced this legislation, I was joined by 14 additional colleagues from both sides of the aisle.

Mr. President, our kids must be prepared for the jobs of the 21st century, which requires training and experience with computers and the Internet. Unfortunately, not enough schools have the equipment they need to teach the essential skills our kids and our nation need to keep our economic future bright.

Education Secretary Riley recently testified before the Joint Economic Committee, saying that he expects us to see 70 percent growth in computer and technology-related jobs in the next six years alone. In less than six months, 60 percent of all jobs will require computers.

However, Mr. President, our classrooms have too few computers. And the 10 percent of computers found outdated that they cannot run the most basic software or even access the Internet. One of the more common problems in our schools today is the Apple IIc, a model so archaic it is now on display at the Smithsonian.

Mr. President, the problem is even worse for those already disadvantaged. A recent Commerce Department report, Falling through the Net: Defining the Digital Divide” shows a growing divide between technological haves and have-nots. Among the study’s findings:

The gap between white and black/Hispanic households with incomes between $15-35,000 per year has increased, from 8% five years ago to 13% today.

Households with annual incomes of at least $5,000 are more than 20 times as likely to have Internet access than households at the lowest income levels. All this points up the need to encourage access to the Internet from our economic haves who can afford the equipment and service rates thatbbeyond the reach of those who haved the machines as soon as they are plugged in, without further burdening school budgets with the added purchasing costs of an operating system and license.

This amendment has been endorsed by: the National Association of Secondary School Principals, Microsoft, The Information Technology Industry Council, The National Association of Manufacturers, The Information Technology Industry Coalition, 11 senior executives of leading technology companies and venture capital firms, The National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges, TechNet, and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

All of these organizations agree that this amendment will provide powerful tax incentives for businesses to donate high-tech equipment to our classrooms. Mr. President, without duly increasing federal expenditures or creating yet another federal program or department this amendment will give all our children an equal chance to succeed in the new millennium.

I yield the floor.

DR. GERALD WALTON, RETIRED UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI PROVOST

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, today I want to honor a man of integrity, perseverance, intellect, and dedication. Dr. Gerald Walton recently retired from my alma mater, the University of Mr. President, Dr. Walton is not one to brag on himself, but never thought twice about bragging on the University or his colleagues. I am pleased to have the opportunity to honor such a deserving individual. I trust that the Senate will join me in congratulating Dr. Gerald Walton on his retirement from a distinguished career at the University of Mississippi. My dear friend, Chancellor Robert C. Khayat, said it best when he was speaking of Dr. Walton. He said, “Truly, Gerald Walton can move into the next phase of his life knowing that the words, ‘Well done, my faithful servant,’ apply to him.”

THE VERY BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, at the close of business yesterday, Monday, August 2, 1999, the Federal debt stood at $5,626,552,692,300.04 (Five trillion, six hundred twenty-six billion, six hundred ninety-two million, three hundred dollars and four cents).

Five years ago, August 2, 1994, the Federal debt stood at $4,648,620,000,000 (Four trillion, six hundred forty-eight billion, six hundred twenty million).

Ten years ago, August 2, 1989, the Federal debt stood at $2,815,326,000,000 (Two trillion, eight hundred fifteen billion, three hundred twenty-six billion, five hundred dollars and four cents).

Fifteen years ago, August 2, 1984, the Federal debt stood at $1,553,502,000,000 (One trillion, five hundred fifty-three billion, five hundred twenty million, six hundred dollars and four cents).

Twenty-five years ago, August 2, 1974, the Federal debt stood at $775,930,000,000 (Seven hundred seventy-five billion, nine hundred thirty million, six hundred dollars and four cents) which reflects a debt increase of more than $5 trillion—$5,626,552,692,300.04 (Five trillion, one hundred fifty billion, six hundred twenty-six billion, two million, six hundred ninety-two million, three hundred dollars and four cents) during the past 25 years.

TOBACCO MARKETS IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the opening of the 1999 tobacco marketing season in my home state of South Carolina. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the United States is one of the world’s leading producers of tobacco. It is second only to China in total tobacco production. Tobacco is the seventh largest U.S. crop, with over 130,000 tobacco farms in the United States.

In South Carolina, tobacco is the top cash crop, worth about $200 million annually. It also generates over $1 billion in economic activity for my state. Tobacco production is responsible for more than 40,000 jobs on over 2,000 farms. It is estimated to account for about one-fourth of all crops and around 13 percent of total crop and livestock agriculture in South Carolina.

It has been a hard couple of years for tobacco farmers in my state. Last year, a settlement between the State Attorneys General and five tobacco companies was completed. This settlement has created insecurity in these farmers’ lives, as well as in their communities. Once again tobacco quota was cut this year. The cut was 17 percent, which means that these farmers have seen their quota reduced by 35 percent over the last 2 years.

In recent years, we have seen a rise in tobacco imports, as domestic purchases by companies have declined. This has had a direct effect on the economy of my state. Many of the rural towns in South Carolina have grown up around producing tobacco, and decreased demand for domestic tobacco has affected them greatly. I hope the companies will purchase more domestic tobacco and decrease the amount of tobacco they import. It is imperative for these rural communities’ economic stability that domestic tobacco purchases rise.

Mr. President, in conclusion I want to pay tribute to a great educator who has fought diligently on behalf of all Mississippi students.

Dr. Rudolph E. Waters has been employed at Alcorn State University, the nation’s oldest historically black land-grant institution since 1957. Over the past 40 years, Dr. Waters has worked tirelessly to improve education standards.

While at Alcorn State, Dr. Waters has served as Dean of Students, Dean of Instruction, Coordinator of Title III Programs, President, and Executive Vice President. In 1964, while serving as Dean of Instruction, he was a participant in the Institute for Academic Deans at Harvard University.

Born in Brookhaven, Mississippi, Waters received his B.S.C. from DePaul University in 1954. After studying for his master’s degree at Boston University and doing a stint at Southern Illinois University, he received his Doctorate of Philosophy from Kansas State University in 1977.

His professional affiliations include the American Association for Higher Education, the National Association of...
CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is closed.

AGRICULTURE, RURAL DEVELOPMENT, FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000—Resumed

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the pending business. The legislative assistant read as follows:

A bill (S. 1233) making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies programs for fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes.

Pending:

Lott (for Daschle) amendment No. 1399, to provide emergency and income loss assistance to agricultural producers.

Lott (for Cochran) amendment No. 1500 (to Amendment No. 1099), of a perfecting nature.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from North Dakota for his willingness to let the Senate resume the bill. I appreciate very much also his efforts to try to identify the ways we can develop a comprehensive response to the disaster situation and the economic crisis that exists in agriculture today.

Last evening, before the Senate adjourned, the distinguished Senator from Indiana, Mr. LUGAR, spoke for about 30 minutes, focusing the attention of the Senate on the difficult situations faced by farmers and those companies related to agriculture. Helping those farmers in an emergency situation, to identify those who are in need of assistance, and to give them the help they need, I think it is a perfecting amendment. Senator GRASSLEY, I know, was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was calling out for a time agreement, and I think it is a perfecting amendment. Mr. President, I am anxious to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. I see Senator WELSTONE, the distinguished Senator from Minnesota. I will allow him to have the floor and I will then allow the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, actually, I do not know whether it is a jump ball. I will be pleased to go in order, if we could do it that way. I see the Senator from Kansas was ready to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. Can we alternate from side to side?

I ask unanimous consent to follow the Senator from Kansas. I didn’t mean to beat him to the punch. I am anxious to speak, and the Senator from North Dakota was ready to speak. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor. and then the Senator from Minnesota, at that time we can take a look and see who wants to speak. But I know the Senator from North Dakota is interested in this debate and participated in the debate yesterday. We look forward to hearing his comments again today.

Several Senators addressed the chair.

Mr. DORGAN. Reserving the right to object, I think the Senator from Mississippi misunderstood. My intention was to say if there is a request after Senator WELLSTONE to speak on that side, I understand that. But if we are going to establish an order, because I am here and would like to speak, I am happy to leave and come back at an appropriate time. If we going are to establish an order now, I would like to be in that order.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, if the distinguished Senator from Kansas will yield further, I had suggested we not try to establish an order. That was my response to the question. He asked if we were going to establish an order. My answer is, as the manager of the bill, I recommend against it at this point.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the unanimous consent request?

Mr. HARKIN. Reserving the right to object, what is the unanimous consent request?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The unanimous consent request of the Senator from Minnesota is, immediately following the remarks of the Senator from Kansas, he be allowed to speak.

Mr. WELLSTONE. May I clarify this? I had the floor. I was trying to be accommodating.

Mr. COCHRAN. Yes, he was.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I simply said, if the Senator leapt in, beat him to the punch, I would be pleased to follow the Senator from Kansas. I am ready to yield, or I will keep the floor.

Shall we do that?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the unanimous consent request?

Mr. ROBERTS. Who has the floor?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota has the floor and has proposed a unanimous consent request. Is there objection?

Mr. COCHRAN. Reserving the right to object, I was thanking the Senator from Minnesota for his graciousness, for his generosity of spirit, for his courtesy to the Senator from Kansas. I appreciate that very much, as the manager of the bill. I think what he suggested was eminently fair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ENZI). No objection is heard. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Kansas is recognized.

Mr. ROBERTS. I thank my colleagues.

Mr. President, I rise to discuss the need to provide emergency financial relief to our country's farmers and ranchers and to rural America in what will hopefully be short-term assistance to producers to meet their cash flow needs while Congress also pursues the long-term objectives needed to provide a profitable agriculture sector into the 21st century.

As one Kansas farmer told me recently: "Pat, in farm country today we are just not in very good shape for the shape we are in."

Farmers today, as many of my colleagues are pointing out, are struggling with depressed prices and cash flow difficulties, especially farmers who do not receive program payments under the current farm bill.

We can and should provide relief to enable our producers to get through these very difficult times, and the choice for the package that has been offered by Senator Cochrán and that offered by Senator HARKIN will determine the kind and amount of assistance that will be forthcoming—or some other substitute.

In this regard, I have been urging Congress to act on a program of limited but effective assistance before this August break to send a strong signal to farmers, ranchers, and most important, the agriculture lending community. Land values have not tailed off, but the continuing stress certainly could lead to that. We need to nip that in the bud.

On the other hand, I do not believe it is in the interest of American agriculture to rewrite the current farm bill or to enact policy that will be market interfering, market disruptive, and lead us back down the road to command and control farm policy from Washington. Unfortunately, I believe both of the proposals that are before us today, or at least some aspects of those proposals, do fall into that category, especially the amendment offered by the distinguished Senator from South Dakota, Mr. DASCHLE.

I will discuss the shortcomings of these proposals later, but first let me point out, this emergency assistance debate is only part of the story. The rest of the story involves the drumbeat of rhetoric we have heard from our Democrat colleagues and friends across the aisle, and the Clinton administration, who, week after week, day after day, have blamed the 1996 farm bill, called Freedom to Farm, for the collapse of commodity prices, if not the end of production agriculture and family farms in the United States.

Reading the press releases, the resulting headlines, and listening to my colleagues, you would think the current farm bill was the result of some sinister plot concocted in the dead of night.

Apparently, they would like farmers and ranchers to believe our current farm policy is responsible for record worldwide production; increasing and record yield production and productivity; the worst international economic crisis since the early 1980s; decimating our largest markets; record subsidies by the European Union, some $60 billion; weather—too much rain, too little rain, the obvious drought in the Atlantic States, La Niña and El Niño persistent plant diseases in the northern plains, pest and crop infestation in all other regions; new technology and precision agriculture; currency changes and the value of the dollar that have reduced American exports—that would be some farm bill. But those are the causes that have actually led to the low commodity prices.

In fact, the current farm bill came after 38 full committee and subcommittee hearings in the House Agriculture Committee during my tenure as Chairman, 21 of which were held in farm country—every region, every commodity—all open-microphone listening sessions. Extensive hearings were also held here in Washington on the side of the Capitol in the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Literally thousands of farmers and ranchers voiced their opinion. They overwhelmingly stated they wanted the Government to get out of their planting decisions to quit interfering in the marketplace, so they could make their own marketing decisions, to make decisions on what was best for their farms, their ranches, according to the market. They thought they were leading in command and control that came from Washington.

They were tired of standing in line outside the Farm Service Agency so that Washington could tell them what to plant in exchange for a Government subsidy.

As one 89-year-old Kansas farmer told us in Dodge City—and I quote: "I farmed for nearly 60 years and I never planted a crop that the government had not told me I could plant."

The single most important goal and rationale behind the 1996 farm bill was to restore decision making back to the individual producer, i.e., the freedom to farm.

It is true—almost all of the speeches that have been made on the floor of the Senate, and all of the press conferences that we have heard all throughout farm country—it is true our commodity prices are depressed. Markets are depressed worldwide. Everyone involved in agriculture certainly knows and is dealing with that firsthand.

But as the saying goes in farm country: "Comin' as close to the truth as a man can come without gettin' there is comin' pretty close but it still ain't the truth."

Or put another way, no matter who says what, don't believe it if it doesn't make sense. With all due respect to my colleagues who apparently believe the 1996 Farm Act is the root cause of problems in farm country, I do not believe that is simply the case.
I understand the politics of the issue. As scarce as the truth is, the supply seems greater than demand. And with Freedom to Farm, there is no demand amongst some of my Democrat friends. But politics aside, I must admit I am both puzzled and amazed by the rhetoric we have heard over and over and over again. How can a farm bill that has provided on average more income assistance during difficult times over the past 3 years than occurred during the five-year average under the old farm bill be bad for farmers?

Let me point out that the market situation for all raw commodities is under stress. In addition to low crop prices, we have also been suffering through low farm prices for cattle, for hogs, for oil, for gold, for gas, and all raw commodities. The same is true in Europe; and the same is true in Latin America and South America, as well.

But you know, that story was not about the United States; it was about Canada and their farm crisis. Canadian farmers are facing bleak prospects; and the same is true in Great Britain; and the same is true in Europe; and the same is true all over this world, in Latin America and South America, as well.

I do not think that Freedom to Farm caused their problems. This is a worldwide market decline, and as such is unprecedented.

What has caused the low commodity prices?

First, farmers worldwide have had good growing weather and produced record crops for 3 years in a row—unprecedented. That is what my good friend and colleague, the Secretary of Agriculture, Dan Glickman, said a few weeks ago when we attended a joint meeting—unprecedented record crops.

Second, we have experienced a world depression in regard to our export markets, both in Asia and Latin America and South America.

Third, the European Union is now spending a record $60 billion—65 percent of the world’s ag subsidies—on their subsidies.

Fourth, the currency exchange rates reduced the level of farm exports and farm prices. A 16-percent appreciation in the value of the U.S. dollar has been responsible for 17 to 25 percentage points of the decline in corn and wheat prices.

Fifth, a market-oriented farm program depends on an aggressive trade policy. In regard to trade, although it is very controversial, we did not do fast track. We had a very historic agreement with China, with bipartisan work on it; and then it was pulled back; and then it was followed by the bombing of the Chinese Embassy. That was not the intent, but that is what has happened. And we are about to put agriculture last—certainly not first—in the coming WTO trade talks in Seattle. We continue to employ counterproductive sanctions that punish U.S. farmers and reward our competitors with market share and have no effect on our foreign policy.

The administration has moved in this regard. We have bipartisan support for sanctions reform, but we still cannot use the USDA export programs in regard to making those sales.

Again, the cause for these low prices is not the 1996 farm bill. Quite the contrary, under Freedom to Farm—and I want everybody to listen to this—farmers in each State represented by most of the critics of the 1996 act have and are receiving more income assistance on average than they did under the old bill.

Under Freedom to Farm, farmers themselves—not Washington—have set aside their crop production and switched to other higher value crops. Nevertheless, we hear the mantra that we do not have a safety net.

Let me point out, for the past 3 years the current farm bill has provided transition payments—somehow or other in this debate the reality of 3 years of a $15 billion program, the 6-year life of the farm bill has been ignored. It is almost like they do not exist in the minds of the critics, but we have provided them. They are direct income support, and that amounts to approximately $23 billion to our farmers and ranchers for the past 3 years of the bill.

On the downside, we have also provided nearly $3 billion in what is called loan deficiency payments. That means the price goes below the loan rate. The loan rate was pretty low. We would never have imagined we would have to use the LDP program, but we had to—$3 billion. Recent estimates by the USDA are projecting possible LDPs totaling $8 billion this year.

These numbers total to nearly $34.5 billion by the end of 1999, and they do not include the $6 billion in lost market payments and disaster relief that were paid to farmers in 1998.

If you add in the $6 billion emergency package of last year, and the proposed $5 billion for this year, the total is unprecedented—unprecedented—but even before these disaster payments you still had more income under the current farm bill than farmers would have received under the old one, under the 5-year average. So from that standpoint, I think we should all recognize that in the past 3 years in Minnesota, for the benefit of my dear friend and colleague, Senator Wellstone, the safety net for farmers under Freedom to Farm averaged $136 million more in total payments compared to the state average under the old bill.

In South Dakota, the safety net for farmers under Freedom to Farm averaged for the past 3 years was $58 million more than the state average under the old bill.

In North Dakota—Senator Dorgan and Senator Conrad are two Members who fight for their farmers and believe very passionately that we must address this problem—$15 million more; in Nebraska, $109 million more; and in Iowa, the safety net for farmers under Freedom to Farm in the last 3 years provided $162 million more than the previous bill.

Is it enough in regard to the problems we face that are unprecedented? Is it enough for the northern prairie States with border problems and wheat scab and weather you can’t believe? I do not know. That is for those Senators and those farmers to determine. But there has been a significant increase in that direct income assistance to those producers.

Finally, for those who like roosters at the dawn and coyotes at dusk, crow and howl that we have ripped the rug out from underneath our farmers and the safety net, let me point out that during the first 3 years of Freedom to Farm, the average amount of income assistance to hard-pressed farmers was higher in every one of the 50 States than the 5-year average for each State during the previous farm bill. Again, these higher 3-year averages do not include emergency assistance that producers received through the structure of the Freedom to Farm Act that farmers received last year and they will receive this year when we finally get to the determination of whatever emergency package we should pass.

In making these statements, let me urge my colleagues to do their homework. Take time to read an assessment of the 1996 Farm Act by the Coalition for Competitive Food in the Agriculture System, published this June. In brief, the summary concluded the act did not cause the low commodity prices—I mentioned the two causes—supported the underlying health of the farm economy, and has provided a strong safety net—yes, buttressed by the emergency legislation; one of the biggest conclusions, forces U.S. competitors to adjust to the world market.

There is a summary of this report, and I ask unanimous consent to have the summary printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the summary was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:
Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, most of the critics of the current act have had no understanding of the record we have achieved under the Farm Act, and I think most, at least, and I don't want to be too specific here because I am not sure—have indicated they would like a return to set-aside programs and higher loan rates and farmer-owned reserves, basically a return to the old farm bill. They say we need to do it so we can control production and increase the price of our commodities. Lord knows, I would like to try anything, almost, to increase the price of our commodities.

My question is this: How do we convince our competitors to follow suit? Past history shows us that when we reduce our acreages, our competitors do not follow suit. World stocks are not reduced. They increase their production and we have surpluses. There is no clearer example than during the 5-year period from 1982 to 1988 when the United States harvested 12 million fewer acres of soybeans and, during the same period, Argentina and Brazil increased their production by 14 million acres. Guess which countries are now the largest competitors of the United States in the soybean market.

Critics will also claim that plantings and stocks have increased and prices have plummeted because our farmers were allowed to plant fence row to fence row. That is not true either. The United States was not the cause of increased world production. In 1996, farmers in the United States planted about 75 million acres of wheat. Under Freedom to Farm, that fell to 70 million in 1997, 65 million acres in 1998. That is almost a 14-percent drop in wheat acreage. The farmer made that decision, not somebody in Washington, a voluntary set-aside. It was a paid diver- sion to free production. USDA projections are an additional decrease this year of another 9 percent. That is a voluntary farmer set-aside, not a government mandated set-aside.

If U.S. wheat farmers planted less wheat, where did the record crops come from? We have been blessed with near perfect growing conditions in most of wheat country. The average farmer's yield went from 36 bushels an acre to 49 last year, 47 this year. Again, the American farmer's record of productivity is simply amazing. I don't know of any farm bill that has ever been able to control production in other countries, or the weather, or growing conditions.

I don't think even our friends across the aisle who are most critical would propose to limit the farmer's yield.

Still despite these facts, the naysayers say we must control production and raise loan rates. Raising loan rates will only increase or prolong the excess levels of crops in storage and on the market and actually result in lower prices down the road. Excess stocks will depress prices. Do we then extend the loan rate or raise it, leading to an endless cycle, leading to a return to price controls and the Washington telling farmers to set aside ground to control production and limit the budgetary costs?

How do higher loan rates help producers who have suffered crop failures and have no crops underneath the loan rates? We had low prices in the mid-1960s. As a matter of fact, in 1983, and, it seems to me, in 1986, we spent almost $25.9 billion. We tried PIK and Roll; we tried certificates; we tried set-asides. We tried everything under the sun. We passed the 1985 act dealing with unprecedented world conditions. So we tried that. We had the higher loan rates.

It is one thing to propose a new farm program, albeit we haven’t seen anything too specific. But how do you pay for the budget cost, notwithstanding the emergency declaration of this legislation, which I think is appropriate? There was no request from the President, after 3 years of complaining, no request from Secretary Glickman for additional funding. It seems to me it is one thing to propose changes in the farm bill in the form of increased loan rates, however you want to change it—or, as the President says, we just need a better farm bill—and another to propose how we pay for it.

The reason I am bringing this up is, I think we need a little truth in budgeting, aside from the proposed emergency legislation that we need. Do the advocates of change pay for the new program, set-asides, and increased loan rates or whatever it is in regards to the new farm program by taking away the transition payments now provided to farmers from Farm Bill? Will farmers willingly give up the transition payments, direct income assistance, and go back to the days of standing in line at the Farm Service Agency, filling out the forms and the paperwork, and set aside 20 percent or more of their acreage?

What do we tell farmers who have on their own made historic planting changes from primary crops in the past to crops of higher value—oil seeds, sorghum, dry peas, navy beans, soybeans, and, yes, cotton? Under Freedom to Farm, I tell my distinguished friend and colleague from Mississippi, in the heart of cotton country, we have 40,000 acres in Kansas that are now in cotton production. When Steve Foster wrote the song ‘Those Old Cotton Fields Back Home,’ he was talking about Kansas. We have the most cost-efficient cotton in the world because the temperatures are so low, you don’t have to use pesticides on the insects. None of those things would have happened without the flexibility in regards to the new farm bill.

The reduction in wheat acreage going to other crops has been dramatic in 1997 to 1998: 15 percent down in North Dakota, 15.5 percent in South Dakota; 18 percent in Kansas; 18 percent in Minnesota; 15 percent in Texas. These are farmer-made decisions, and the changes in American agriculture have exceeded all expectations. Farmers have switched because it made economic sense.

The plain and simple and sometimes painful truth is that all U.S. producers are no longer the most efficient producers of certain crops, now wheat, in the world. That is true of other crops. But if you give the farmer the proper research and the proper export tools and the proper precision agriculture tools and the proverbial so-called level and fair trading field—which does not exist right now—he can be.

But we must also have the flexibility and the tools to respond to market signals. So instead of looking back to the failed policies of the past, I think we must look to a long-term agenda for the future that allows our farmers and ranchers to be successful. That agenda includes most of what was promised during the passage of the Freedom to Farm Act—promises, promises, promises. I held up this ledger. I had two of them. On one side it said, if we go to a market-oriented farm program, these are the things we will have to do to complement it in order that it may work. And we listed them. That was the other side of the ledger.

Unfortunately, I am sad to say that those promises have not been kept by either side of the aisle. If I get a little thin skinned in regards to all the criticism in regards to the act that we put together, I am more than a little unhappy in regards to the Republican and Democrat leadership and the lack of progress that we have promised that would complement Freedom to Farm, things that attract bipartisan support from us who are privileged to represent agriculture.

I am talking about an aggressive and consistent trade policy, fast track legislation, sanctions reform with authority to use USDA export programs, a strategy for WTO negotiations that puts agriculture first, a renewed effort to complete the trade breakthrough we had with China. I am talking about tax legislation. Some of it is in the tax bill. Unfortunately, we have a political fusing and feuding exercise, and some of these will not actually take place—100-percent self-employed health insurance deductibility, farm savings accounts. If we had farm savings accounts, this situation would be tough but it wouldn’t be grim.

Capital gains and estate tax reform. I am talking about crop insurance reform. Senator Kerrey and I have what we think is the proper insurance bill. I am talking about regulatory reform and about commonsense management of the Food Quality Protection Act. And, yes, I am talking about reasonable emergency assistance to provide income assistance due to the unprecedented record crops, EU subsidies, world depression of the export markets. And that brings us to the two proposals we have before us today.

Let me point out that, given the dynamic change in agriculture and world markets, no farm bill has ever been perfect or set in stone. That has been the case with the seven farm bills I have been directly involved with since I have had the privilege—seven of them. That statement is buttressed by the fact that, in the last 10 years, there have been no less than 13 emergency supplemental or disaster bills. Given the current drought in the Atlantic States and our price and cash flow problems due to the unprecedented developments I have already discussed, there are going to be 14. It is just what form it will take. But it seems to me we should not be in the business of spending more than is necessary, or mandating changes in policy that will be market disruptive, or that will lead us back down the road to command and control agriculture in Washington. That, of course, depends on your definition.

There are several questions, or concerns, I have in regard to the emergency assistance package introduced by my friend, Senator Harkin, and my friend from Mississippi, the distinguished chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee. The income loss assistance that has been proposed by Senator Harkin, as I understand it, has a fixed amount of $6.4 billion made available. But it sets up a parallel supplemental loan deficiency payment system with a separate $40,000 payment. It provides that payments be made to producers with failed acreage, or acreage prevented from plantings, based on actual production history, and provides for advance payments to producers as soon as possible. And we want that.

I think we are headed toward a train wreck in regard to the payment limitation. One of the major concerns among farmers is the $75,000 payment limitation on an existing $7 billion to $8 billion worth of loan deficiency payments. Now we are trying to cram an additional $6.4 billion through a payment limitation half that size, and it seems to me we are going to have some real problems. Per unit payments will go up, and a smaller and smaller percentage of production will be covered.

Now, if this new payment form is supposed to go to those who produce, it is ironic that we are going to see 85 percent of the producers who produce the field crops shortchanged to bulk up payments to those that really create 15 percent of the crops. This isn’t the big producer-small producer argument. I think the penalty will reach down to the medium-size commercial farmer, while the part-timer with a job in town may reap a windfall.
Discretion to the Secretary. Last year’s disaster program was predicated on giving the Secretary maximum discretion to use his expertise to create a fair and speedy program. The delivery of disaster payments was delayed for 8 months. This program relieves even more heavily on the Secretary. I hope that Secretary Glickman has magic in the way he can get the payments out.

The Secretary must take a fixed amount of money and fairly divide it among producers; guess in August the total production of a variety of crops for the year; determine which producers will have failed acres and determine their actual production history; calculate how a $10,000 payment limit will affect the division of the funds; create a per bushel, pound, or hundredweight payment for crops not yet harvested; determine how to make advanced payments; and he must prorate payments when and if all the guesses happen to turn out to be wrong.

Last year, with a far simpler task, the Secretary gave up and waited until June to make the payments. Let me point out that transition payments under the AMTA supplemental plan went out in 10 days. They were delivered to producers in 10 days. Direct income assistance: A farmer could take the check and show it to his banker and say: I can make it through the next year.

WTO limits. Almost unnoticed in the farm crisis is the rapid increase in payments made to producers. The United States is rapidly approaching the limit allowed in the treaty for payments defined in something called the amber box as trade distorting. All payments associated with commodity loans, including LDPs, are counted in the amber box. They are not counted in the AMTA box if you provide farmers direct assistance. We have millions for tobacco producers. My golly, are we going back to 1982 when we all decided in the House of Representaives—and we were all there at that time—we were going to get the Government out of subsidizing tobacco farmers? Are we back to that? Be careful what you ask for. So we have included tobacco in this bill. I am not making any aspersions on the hard-hit tobacco producers, but, folks, that is not PC. I am not sure about that one. And then we have mandatory price reporting, something I have supported in the Agriculture Committee, with some changes made by Senator Knowles. I was against funding for legislation and we haven’t even marked it up yet.

Then we have mandatory country-of-origin labeling for meat and vegetables. Right now, we have a tremendous problem with the European Union and all countries in Europe on GMOs, genetically modified organisms. People in white coats are descending upon the fields over in Great Britain, ripping up the GMO crops. The problem is, they made a mistake and ripped up the wrong crop. We ought to go to sound science and work out these problems, and we are trying to do that.

In respect to the trade problems we have—which Secretary Glickman talks about and most aggies are worried about—we are going to put this in country-of-origin labeling on top of that issue. I don’t think it has really been proven that our producers will increase prices and that it will result in a 10% decrease in trade. That is what he means.

We have $200 million for a short-term set-aside. I don’t want to go back to set-asides; I think that would be counterproductive. Some of these provisions I have mentioned are also in the provision introduced by my dear friend and colleague, the Senator from Mississippi.

I think, again, we ought to be providing emergency assistance to farmers and not be writing the farm bill but proceeding to work together in a bipartisan way, if we possibly can, to address the real reasons as to why we have these low commodity prices.

When this comes up this afternoon, I urge Members to pay attention. A lot of this gets very convoluted and very technical. I know, in regard to farm program policy. But it would be my desire that Members look very closely at this in regard to the budget implications and things that can go bump in the night—the law of unattended effects—down the road that I don’t think we want to experience in farm country.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous agreement, the Senator from Minnesota is recognized.

Mr. WELLSSTONE. Thank you, Mr. President, first of all, I want to say to my colleague from Kansas that he ended up talking about the emergency bill that is before us. But a good part of his remarks were devoted to the farm bill, what I call the ‘‘freedom to fail’’ bill. I want to say to my colleague from Kansas that he kept talking about the failed policy of the past. I think he ought to focus on the failed policy of the present. The failed policy of the present is the ‘‘freedom to fail’’ bill.

My colleagues also talked about the painful truth. The painful truth in the State of Minnesota is that we are going to lose yet thousands more of farmers on the present course. I hope to change the course. That is the painful truth.

I remember that maybe a year and a half ago when I went to a gathering in Crookston, MN in northwest Minnesota, there was a gentleman who said, ‘‘Farm Crisis Meeting.’’ I thought: My God, are we going back to the mid-1980s? But it is not only northwest Minnesota.

I was in Roseau County two weekends ago. It is pretty incredible. It is the low prices. It is also the weather. The county typically plants about 500,000 acres of wheat. This year only 10 percent—50,000 acres—was planted. It appears that a mere 10 percent of the 50,000 acres will produce a crop.

It is northwest Minnesota with the low price. It is also the weather. It is the scab disease, and now the price crisis affects all of Greater Minnesota.

When my colleague talks about $136 million spent in Minnesota with the AMTA payments, it reminds me of what farmers always say, not about the small banks but about the big branch banks: They are always there with the umbrella when there is sunshine outside, but whenever it is raining they take the umbrella away.
August 3, 1999

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE 19113

Of course, the payments were up when we were doing well. But the whole point of what we had in our farm bill before we made a go of it, or when we had some countercyclical measures to make sure there was some price stability. That is the point.

The point is that when part of our export market collapses, and when family farmers can’t make a go of it, or when you continue to have to deal with conglomerates that control almost all phases of the food industry—when I hear my good friend from Kansas talking about laws of supply and demand, I smile. Family farmers in the Midwest want to know, where is Adam Smith’s invisible hand? Family farmers in the Midwest want to know, where is the competition? Because when they look to whom they buy from, and when they look to whom they sell to, they are reeled in with a few large conglomerates that dominate the market.

I say to my good friend from Iowa that in Fayette County—I guess there is a town of Fayette also in northeast Iowa—that went to a pig roast. This farmer said: I am out of business. This is the last pig. This is it for me. Our pork producers are facing extinction, and the packers are in hog heaven. We have a frightening concentration of power.

All of my colleagues who are strong free enterprise men and women, all my colleagues who talk about the importance of the market and competition, ought to look at what my friend from Kansas talks about as a painful truth, which is we don’t have Adam Smith’s invisible hand and law of supply and demand. Everywhere we look in this industry, you have conglomerates that have muscled their way to the dinner table, exercising their raw political and economic power over our producers, over consumers, and I also argue over taxpayers.

In all due respect, when my friend from Kansas says we ought to look at the failed policies of the past, I want to say that we ought to look at the failed policy of the present.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle can talk about anything they want to talk about. All of it is relatively important. Crop insurance is important. We can do better. We can do better in a lot of different areas. But let’s not talk about failed policies of the past. Let’s talk about the failed policy of the present because that is what farmers are dealing with. Family farmers are going under, and time is not neutral.

I want to shout it from the mountain top of the Senate in response to the remarks of my good friend and colleague from Kansas. The most important thing that we can do is rewrite that farm bill. The most important thing we can do is make the kind of structural changes we need to make so that family farmers can get a fair shake because right now what we did in that “freedom to fail” bill is take away any opportunity a farmers to have any kind of leverage and bargaining in the marketplace with these large grain companies. And, in addition, we took away any kind of safety net.

So when part of the export market isn’t there, although we are doing fine and the exporters are doing well, our family farmers aren’t.

The point is that for those farmers who do not have huge reserves for capital and aren’t the conglomerates, they go under.

Senators and United States of America, this debate about this emergency package—and more importantly the debate that is going to take place this fall about how we write a farm bill—is a debate that is as important as we can have for anyone who values the family farm structure of agriculture because we will lose it all if we don’t change this course of policy.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield on that point?

Mr. WELLSTONE. I am pleased to yield.

Mr. HARKIN. Just for a question. I think the Senator from Minnesota put his finger on it. When I heard the Senator from Kansas speak, it seemed as if what he was saying was that we are going to leave farmers and ranchers there at the mercy of the grain companies, the packers, the wholesale, the retailers, and the processors. They are making money in the domestic market, but the farmers are not.

I ask the Senator from Minnesota: Does the Senator believe that it is a viable responsibility for our government to ensure that family farmers have some bargaining power, some power out there in the marketplace so they can get a better share of the consumer dollar that is being spent in America today?

I add to that, I say to the Senator, that under previous farm programs—and under what we have been advocating in terms of raising loan rates and providing for storage and things such as that—they provided that farmers have a little bit better bargaining power in terms of selling their crops, and thus hopefully getting a better portion of their income from the market.

I thought it was a curious argument for a conservative from Kansas to be making that the measure of the success of the Freedom to Farm bill is how the AMTA payments go out to farmers. I find that a curious argument.

My question to the Senator is whether or not it is a legitimate role for the Federal Government to play to help level the playing field between farmers and those who buy their products from the farm.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, let me respond to my friend from Iowa.

First, I agree it is ironic to hear some of our colleagues try to boast about direct payments to farmers when they talk about the “freedom to fail” bill. By definition, if we are spending $17 billion a year for payments to farmers, the market is not doing a very good job.

Second, let me say to my colleague from Iowa, when I hear my good friend from Kansas talk about the law of supply and demand, I smile because the family farmers throughout the country want to know where is Adam Smith’s invisible hand? Where is the competition? It misses the very essence of our debate. Conglomerates basically control almost all phases of the food industry, whether it is from whom the farmers buy or to whom they sell.

There are two questions: No. 1, how can we give family farmers some kind of leverage in the marketplace? We tried to do that in some of our past farm bills through the loan rate, and also a safety net, to try and deal with farmers when prices plummeted. Second, is the compelling case for antitrust action.

Let me say we are going to pass a bill that will provide some assistance to farmers, but there are two questions: What kind of assistance? I will analyze that in a moment. The challenge before the Senate is the kind of assistance. I think there are pretty huge differences.

In our bill, the Democrats bill, we have about $2 billion in assistance for disaster relief. In case anybody hasn’t noticed, we have drought in the country. We have people who are devastated, people who cannot grow anything. We have some disaster relief, $2 billion. I don’t think our colleagues on the other side have anything in that bill, in which case I say to colleagues when they vote on these amendments, it would seem to me Members would be making a big mountain out of an amendment purporting to provide emergency disaster relief that doesn’t take into account the weather. Not only are my colleagues not taking into account the failed policy of the present, they are not taking into account the drought.

My second point: I far prefer, to the extent we can, to make sure the assistance gets to those farmers who need it the most. The AMTA payments tend to go to the larger producers and tend to go to land owners, even if they are not producers. It is quite different than LDP. I would like the LDP targeted, as targeted as possible.

There are some differences between these two proposals. The Republican plan is similar to the tax plan. They parcel out benefits in inverse relationship to need. What farmers are saying to me in Minnesota or when I was in Iowa this past weekend: Look, we want to get the price. We want to deal with the price crisis. We want to have a future.

If you are going to provide some assistance, I didn’t hear farmers talking about AMTA payments because they know the great share of the benefits will go to those who need it the least. We have some major differences. We take into account the drought—small thing, the drought. We make sure there is some direct assistance to people who are confronted with the drought. Our colleagues on the other side don't have such assistance.

In addition, we try to target to production as opposed to AMTA payments, which is all a part of the “freedom to fail” bill. It was transition for people to go out. AMTA payments were great, as my colleague from Kansas points out, when prices were up. Everybody loved it. The problem is the “freedom to fail” bill, which was passed, did not take into account what would happen to family farmers when the markets collapsed, the prices were low, and there was no safety net, no bargaining power and no way that family farmers would be able to cash flow and make a living. There is no future for family farmers in the State of Minnesota with this failed farm policy. I say to my colleagues, we have some votes this afternoon on the whole question of some emergency assistance. That is step one.

I believe for reasons I have explained that our proposal makes much more sense in terms of getting some help to people. If we are going to call it emergency assistance— and that is what it is—then we better get some assistance to people who are devastated because of the drought. We better have disaster relief in a bill which purports to be an emergency assistance package. Second, we ought to try and make sure the benefits go to the people who need it the most.

Finally, I think to my friends on the other side, I don’t believe anybody should have to stand up and say the Freedom to Farm bill was a “freedom to fail.” I don’t care whether people have to admit to a past mistake. I don’t want anybody to believe they have to admit to a past mistake. But we better change the policy. However we do it, whatever Senators want to say, my focus is on the failed policy—not of the past but of the failed policy of the present. My focus is on this “freedom to fail” bill. We have to take the cap off the loan rate, raise the loan rate. We have to get a decent price. We have to target it and have a much tougher and fair trade policy. We have to make sure we have some conservation practices. We have to make sure we don’t have people planting fence row to fence row. We have to make sure we don’t take antitrust action seriously. Teddy Roosevelt was for antitrust action a long time ago.

It is that the United States Senate can go on record to support antitrust action. It seems to me we can be on the side of family farmers.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. I am happy to yield. I thought we were going back and forth but if the Senator would like to speak.

Mr. BYRD. The Senator is very gracious to offer that. I don’t ask that. However, I wanted to have an understanding as to how we are proceeding. I believe I probably was on the floor ahead of most others other than the Senator. If the Senators are alternating, does the Senator from North Dakota wish to go next?

All I want is a chance to speak at some point.

Mr. DORGAN. Let me ask the Senator to yield for a question.

Mr. GRAMM. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. DORGAN. I say to the Senator from West Virginia, I sought an answer to that question some while ago. I have been on the floor an hour. I stepped off the floor for a moment.

The Senator from Mississippi indicated the Senator from Iowa, Mr. GRASSLEY, perhaps wanted to speak next. In any event, I think perhaps it would be helpful if we established some order, and I am willing to accept whatever order the managers wish to establish. If I am not able to speak now or soon, I will ask consent to be recognized at 2:15 to speak.

Mr. BYRD. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. GRAMM. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I propose the following unanimous consent request, if it is agreeable to the Senator from Texas, the Senator who is managing the bill, and Senator HARKIN. I note with amazement that after Mr. GRAMM has completed his remarks, Mr. DORGAN be recognized, then Senator GRASSLEY, and then I be recognized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. I thank all Senators. I thank the Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I did not come over this morning to get into a political debate about farm policy. But the issue is so important that I thought there were some things that needed to be said. I do not believe have been said. I would like to preface my remarks by saying that, to the best of my knowledge, my State is the biggest beneficiary of American farm programs, not on any kind of per capita basis but because we have a lot of farmers and ranchers.

I am very concerned about the drought in some parts of the country, which we have a long tradition of responding to and dealing with. That tradition has been based on documenting the drought, documenting the loss, and then compensating people who lose. It has not been based on anticipating a loss, estimating it, appropriating money on a widely discretionary basis and allowing bureaucrats to give out literally billions of dollars. That has been the past, and I do not think we ought to undertake it today. So before I get into the text of what I wanted to talk about, let me make it clear there are many areas of the country that are suffering from drought. We have a long tradition, an established program. I have been supportive of that program and I intend to continue to be.

I want to talk about is not the drought. What I want to talk about is what is happening in agriculture and my concern that we are partially misreading what is happening. I want to talk about farm prices, and I want to talk about the two remedies that have been proposed and that are currently on the floor. The Senator from West Virginia and I have the make the point that I believe we are drifting far afield from any kind of rational farm policy in what we are doing. Maybe some would view it as an unkind judgment, but in my opinion we are engaged now in a political bidding contest where we simply are seeing figures made up on both sides of the aisle, I would say, where we are competing to show our compassion and competing to show our compassion with somebody else’s money. I would be moved into thinking this was pure compassion if we were debating giving our own money. But since we are debating giving the taxpayers’ money, it is hard to be compassionate with somebody else’s money.

Having said that, I see this farm problem a little bit differently than many of my colleagues. Since I do not think this point has been made in the debate, I want to make it.

First of all, it is clear, and I think everybody is in agreement on this, that American agriculture has been affected by the Asian financial crisis and that the demand for American farm products from Asia has fallen off by 40 percent. The demand for farm products is what economists call “inelastic.” That is, when the price changes, it doesn’t have a substantial impact on demand. So this decline in the demand for products in Asia has had a substantial impact on price.

Obviously, we are all hopeful that Asia is going to recover from its financial crisis and that they are going to be back in the market and that this part of the factors that are driving down farm prices will go away over time. That is the basic logic of the proposal that has been offered by Senator COCHRAN. It basically is that as the Asian financial crisis is solved, as Asians get used to, once again, consuming American farm products—the best rice, the best meat, the best cotton; as they get used to the joys of wearing cotton underderwear made of American cotton—they are going to buy a lot more of it and even if the weather is going to come back and prices are going to be good to. To the extent that thesis is correct, the right thing to do is to adopt the Cochran substitute.

The Democrat substitute is really based on the logic that there are no markets. Our Democrat colleagues do not largely believe in markets and do not, by and large, believe in the basic principles of economics. They would rather the Government make the price of farm products. So it is not surprising that their substitute has grown from $9.9 billion to $10.7 billion, 50 percent bigger than Senator COCHRAN, but they would basically begin to take steps to go back to the old supply mangeriment only. Where the Government would be the setter of prices and where we would, in essence, take American agriculture ultimately under this program out of the world market.

The problem with that, besides having a substantial impact on the state of the American economy, is that primarily, while there are many farm State Senators, there are relatively many few farm district Members of the House. If we go back to supply management, given the appoinment of representation in the House, we will never set prices that will be high enough to produce prosperity in rural America.

So I know all of the rhetoric, going back to the 1920s, much of which has very leftist roots, would lead many of our Democrat colleagues to believe if we could get Government to manage agriculture, we could make it great.
The problem is—and I say this as a person representing an agricultural State, a State that produces most farm products, the only State in the Union that produces both cane and beet sugar, a State that is in virtually every kind of agriculture that you can name—the plain truth is that agriculture does not have enough political clout, day in and day out, to get the Government to set prices high enough that we will ever have true prosperity in rural America.

That is why I am never supporting going back to the Government managing agriculture.

The Cochran program we have to make rural America not just a good place to live—but it is the best place to live. When I ultimately leave Washington—and I hope to be here as long as STROM THURMOND, which would give me another 40 years—I do not ever plan to live in a town that has a stoplight again. I prefer rural America. I think it is the best place to live. I want to make it one of the best places to make a living, which is why I was for Freedom to Farm and why the underlying philosophy of the Cochran program is superior.

It does not appeal to people who want Government to manage things, who believe that Government can do it better.

But the plain truth is, without being unkind, there is only one place in the entire world, and that is in the South, dedicated adherents, and that is on the floor of the Senate and the floor of the House of Representatives. Everywhere else in the world it has been rejected.
But there it still has dedicated adher-ents, people who believe if we just let Government run things—health care, agriculture, whatever—that it would go better. I do not believe that is true.

But I want to go beyond simply pointing out the superiority of the Cochran approach to the Democrat substitute. I want to raise a question about both because there is another force at work that nobody is talking about, and with which we are going to have to come to grips. Frankly, in rep-technology—driven by biology, it is something about which I worry.

It is a blessing that creates a problem.
The blessing is that while America is in the midst of a technological explosion, technology in agriculture is growing twice as fast as technology in the economy as a whole. Productivity per farm worker is growing twice as fast as the productivity of the worker in the economy as a whole. So there is an underlying factor which is driving down farm prices which has nothing to do with the Asian financial crisis. That underlying factor is the explosion of farm technology. Farm technology, by driving down the cost of production, is driving down the cost of farm products by increasing supply.

Let me give an example of it. We have fewer chickens in America today than we had 10 years ago. Yet we are producing more poultry. We have fewer pigs today and yet we are producing more pork. How is that possible? Because, as a technological revolution that is occurring in American agriculture.

As I look at agriculture and as I look at the use of sensors, as I look at the use of new technology, nobody can know the future but it seems to me, looking at it—the only way we can see the future is by looking to the past.
Looking at the recent past, it seems to me we are probably on the edge of an explosion of technology driven by biotechnology—driven by sensing devices, driven by the communication age where we are probably looking at a 20-year period where the natural trend in farm prices, independent of the Asian financial crisis, will be down.

Please do not believe because I say this that I want the trend to be down.
But I think if we are going to set out for a long-term policy, we have to understand the world at which we are looking. I believe these technological changes, which are partially respon-dible for declining farm prices, are probably not going to go away.

One of the things I think that is hidden—I will get to these figures in a moment—is that while farm prices are down, so are farm costs. So this is leading some people to look at farm prices and define a financial crisis which is clearly there but not to the degree that the price of the final product alone would show.

Let me note that we had a recent estimate come out by USDA of net farm income. Let me also remind my Democrat colleagues that the Clinton administration runs the Department of Agriculture, not the Republican majority in Congress. The Clinton administration is now forecasting 1999 farm icome to be $43.8 billion. Farm income in 1998 was $44.1 billion. So that is three-tenths of $1 billion below last year.

If you look at the last 8 years, from 1990 through 1998, average farm income has been $16.6 billion. At what price looking at an income level that is basically $1.9 billion below that level. If you look at the last 5 years of average farm in-icome, it has been $46.7 billion. So in looking at that number, we are looking at an income level there where we are about $2.9 billion below that level.

Part of the story that is not being told in this debate, as we sort of jockey back and forth as to who can tell the grimmiest tale in agriculture, is that that the current farm program is doing a lot for American agriculture.

Last year, the American farm program, in dealing with a decline in prices, put into American agricultural $12.2 billion of income. Under the existing programs that are in place, through guaranteed minimum prices, and other programs, we are looking already, without any legislative action, because of the way the current law is written, at the taxpayer paying $16.6 billion of payments to farmers. Nor is the other way when the Department of Agriculture estimates that net farm income next year is $43.8 billion, 39 percent of that estimate is made up of payments that are being made under the existing farm program.

Especially when our Democrat colleagues get up and talk about the sky falling, they completely leave out of the story that under existing programs we have guaranteed minimum prices, through our loan program, that will mean $16.6 billion of payments. That comes from the Federal Treasury to the American farmer without any legislative action whatevery that the Congress.

So I guess the first question that I pose is, that if farm income today is $2.9 billion below the average of the last 5 years, and if the income for the last 5 years has been the highest level of income in the modern era, Why are we talking about $10.7 billion of new payments to American agriculture?

Part of the story where, is the farm income come? And $10.7 billion added to the level of farm income today would put average farm income substantially above the average for the last 5 years,
substantially above the average for the last 8 years, and substantially above the average of farm income in the modern era of America. From where did the $10.7 billion come?

It seems to me that the $10.7 billion figure is simply a political figure. It started out fairly low at the beginning of the year. It has gotten bigger every month. I now understand that in the House, Democrats are asking for $12.9 billion. So what is happening is we are in a bidding contest.

Let me also say that in terms of the $6.9 billion that has been proposed on our side of the aisle, I do not see the logic of that number, either. It seems to me that since we have a loan program which in some cases has yet to be triggered because we have not harvested the crops, so that we do not know the final value, the extent of the drought or the impact of the bumper crop that is being produced in some parts of the country—we know the impact on price for corn and wheat and cotton and soybeans; we have a guaranteed minimum price—the logical thing to do would be to not get involved in a political bidding game but to simply allow the crop to be harvested, assess the drought damage, and decide how much to do and how to target it to the people who have actually lost money instead of a giant effort to simply throw money at the problem.

I am sure all of my colleagues are aware that from the disaster assistance for agriculture last year, still some of those programs have yet to be spent by the Clinton administration. So rather than getting in a bidding contest, it seems to me, with all due respect, that what we ought to be doing is waiting until our crops are harvested and as soon as possible, present a new program to a norm for the recent historic period, and then decide what we want to do try to make a correction, see to the extent to which programs that are now in effect, have an impact on farm income, and then figure out what the gap is compared to the norm, and then decide who lost money, and then see what we might do about it.

But with $10.7 billion, if you spent the money by giving it to farmers, you would drive incomes far above the normal, you would drive land prices to a norm for the recent historic period, and then decide what we want to do try to make a correction, see to the extent to which programs that are now in effect, have an impact on farm income, and then figure out what the gap is compared to the norm, and then decide who lost money, and then see what we might do about it.

Let me also say that this appropriation bill does not even go into effect until October 1. Not one penny that would be spent will be there until then. One of either these one of these amendments will be available to farmers until October 1, and given the record of the Clinton administration, it is highly probable that most of this money won’t even be distributed until next year. My point is, why don’t we wait until we have the actual data, until we know who actually lost money, and make a rational decision.

Another point I would like to make—

Mr. DORGAN. Will the Senator yield for a unanimous consent request?

Mr. GRAMM. I am happy to yield.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, because of another engagement, I ask unanimous consent to speak at 2:15 when the Senate reconvenes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, there are some other figures I think we need to look at in deciding what we should be doing. I want to raise these. I know people are going to object to the fact that someone would actually try to raise concerns about the actual numbers we are talking about in American agriculture, when we are engaged in a debate about trying to outbid each other and spending money. This is from the Economic Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. This is their agricultural outlook, just published in July of this year on page 55.

Let me tell my colleagues why this is important, and then I will go through the numbers. Why this is important is, we are basically pointing fingers back and forth saying we are not doing enough for American agriculture and that we ought to spend $10.7 billion or we ought to spend, in the House, $12.9 billion. I will go over a few figures which stand out to me in that somehow what is being shown in the actual numbers about agriculture and what is being debated on the floor of the Senate are two entirely different things.

Facts are persistent things. In listening, especially to our colleagues on the Democrat side of the aisle, one would assume that farm assets are falling right through the floor. One would assume we are virtually back in the Depression and the Dust Bowl and that USDA initial estimates for 1999 would be falling dramatically. Anybody who is listening to this debate would believe that is true.

Well, it is not true. In fact, in 1998, the preliminary number is that the total value of farm assets was $1,124,700,000,000. The initial estimate by USDA—this is the Clinton administration—is that farm assets at the end of this year will be $1,140,300,000,000. So while we are talking about the world coming to an end in agriculture, we have to junk the farm program and go back to letting Government dictate farm prices and engage in artificial scarcity and pay farmers not to plant and basically turn agriculture into one giant cooperative on the Soviet style plan because of the collapse in American agriculture. The reality is that we are projecting farm assets to rise this year and not fall. In fact, last year was a terrible year in agriculture. We had a huge farm payment at the end of the year as part of our emergency spending.

What do you think happened to farm assets last year? They went up, not down. They rose from $1,088,800,000,000 to $1,124,000,000,000. Something about this picture doesn’t fit.

Let me go on. What do you think is happening to financial assets held by American farmers? You listen to all this doomsday scenario from our Democrat colleagues about how we have to junk the farm program and go back to a Government-run program, you would think farmers and ranchers are having to sell off financial assets, cash in their retirement, withdraw money out of the bank, close down their IRAs to try to stay in agriculture.

Facts are persistent things. In fact, we are projecting that financial assets held by American agriculture will actually rise this year from $50 billion to $51 billion.

Now, what do you think is happening to farm debt? You listen to all of this doomsday discussion about how we have to junk the farm program and have an American commissar of agriculture who has to go in and say: You cut back production by 20 percent; you plant this crop; you plant that crop; we are going to guarantee your price. We will have artificial scarcity and then we will make all this work through Government edict. What is the justification for all these program proposals? The justification, you would think, would be that farm debt is exploding; right? We are having a crisis?

Does anybody listening to this debate believe that farm debt in America is not exploding? You would never believe it wasn’t exploding. You would think farmers are going deeper and deeper into debt. You would be wrong. In fact, the USDA estimate is that farm debt will actually decline in 1999, and it will decline from $170.4 billion to $168.1 billion.

What would you think would be happening to real estate debt? In listening to our Democrat colleagues talk about how we have to have the Government take over agriculture and go back to a program where you basically work off Government edicts because of a collapse in agriculture, you would think real estate debt is rising. People are having to borrow money against their land. They are having massive foreclosures. Could anybody listening to this debate not believe that real estate debt was exploding in America? They couldn’t. They would know it had to be happening. But they are the persistent tings. The fact is that real estate debt is actually declining in America. The projection by USDA is that the amount of real estate debt that farmers and ranchers will have will decline from $87.6 billion to $87.7 billion of Agriculture.

Could anybody listen to this debate and not believe that non-real estate debt that farmers have is exploding?
That is not possible. You listen to this debate, you have to conclude that every farmer in America is going deeper and deeper and deeper into debt.
They are borrowing money. They are losing money. There is a catastrophe, a crisis, and we have to have Governtment take over agriculture. But asttoundingly, if you actually look at the numbers, non-real estate debt in agriculture is actually projected to decline in 1999 from $82.6 billion to $82.4 billion.

Finally, there could be no doubt about it, listening to this debate. Equty in farms and ranches in America has to be plummeting. There is no way that you can have all these catastrophes we have heard about, leading us to the argument that we need to spend in excess of $10 billion right now in agriculture, and we need to junk our whole export promotion-based farm system to go back to a program that we couldn’t make work in a simpler era when the Government basically ran agriculture. No one could doubt, not one person who listened to this debate, if you did a survey, not one person in 1,000 would have any doubt that farm equity, the equity of farmers and ranchers, what they own, has to be declining as a result of this agricultural crisis. But it is not so. In fact, equity, by the same kind of projection, is actually projected to not only rise but to rise substantially in 1999, to rise from $564.3 billion to $971.2 billion. How can farm equity be rising when we have a crisis of such magnitude that we are debating having the Government take over American agriculture?

Well, the reality is, it is rising.
Let me mention two other figures.
Could anybody listening to this debate believe that the debt-to-equity ratio in American agriculture is actually declining in 1999 or that equity is rising and debt is falling? Could you believe that, listening to this debate? You probably could not, but it is. And in terms of debt-to-assets, it is also declining from a ratio of 15.2 to a ratio of 14.8.

Now, the reason I went through all these numbers is, we should not be having this debate right now. This has turned into a political bidding contest whereby any bidder, any farmer who can spend more money. We need to know what is going to happen in terms of this year’s harvest, and we need to know what farm income is when the harvest is in, before we set out a program to spend billions and billions of dollars to, A, be sure we are helping the people who need help and, B, be sure that the program makes sense.

There are some things we should be doing. We should be working to open world markets. Part of Freedom to Farm was a commitment to change trade policy. We ought to be debating trade today. We ought to be talking about how we can get the President to go ahead and finish the negotiations with China on WTO accession, so that they would have to lower their trade barriers against American agriculture.
We should be debating taxes today.
We committed to a program of letting farmers not only income average but to set aside a certain amount of income for a 5-year period, so that when times are good, they can set aside money so they have it when times are bad.

We ought to be talking about risk management and what we can do to deal with it. We ought to be talking about regulatory reform, where regulations are having a heavier and heavier burden on American agriculture. But we are not. What we are doing is talking about spending vast sums of money when we have no documentation of the exact magnitude of our problem or the distribution of that problem.

Now, I know the vote is going to be on, and I know we are going to have it this afternoon. I know we are going to have an opportunity to spend $10.7 billion to junk the American farm program and go back to supply management. I know we are going to have a vote on spending $5.9 billion to keep the current system and just allocate $6.9 billion to be given away if and when, later on, the administration gets around to allocating it. But surely, the most important thing is: What will average farm income for the last 5 years have been $46.7 billion. The projection by USDA is that farm income will be $43.8 billion, and the adoption of either one of these amendments will produce farm income for above the av-ge of the last 5 years.

Why is that a problem? It is a problem because if I am right that this explosion of technology in agriculture, which is growing twice as fast in terms of technological advances as the whole economy, if this is going to mean that for 20 years we are going to tend to have downward pressure on agriculture prices because of expansion in production and lower cost of production, to be in essence subsidizing and encouraging people to come into agriculture, or stay in it if they are inefficient, we are working counter to what we know has tended to happen for agricultural prosperity in America. No one could doubt, not one person who listened to this debate, whether it was good, bad, or mixed, can doubt that we are going to be faced with a crisis that is going to make our side of the argument a lot less powerful than we thought it would be.

There are some things we should be done. We should be working to open world markets. We should be debating taxes. We should be having a debate about how we can get the President to go ahead and finish negotiations with China on WTO accession. But we are not.
We are a political bidding contest.
We ought to be debating trade. We ought to be debating risk management. We ought to be debating regulatory reform.
We ought to be debating a program of income averaging. But we are not.
We are only debating a program to spend billions and billions of dollars.

I just wish we were having somebody around to allocating it. But surely, I am afraid we are overriding the natural adjustment mechanism whereby, as people can produce more and more product with fewer inputs, what tends to happen is that the cost of production is lowered rather than compensating people partially for their losses. The adoption of either one of these amendments will mean that farm income next year will be above the average for the last 5 years.
Now, I would like farm income to be high. But the point is, I am afraid we are overriding the natural adjustment mechanism whereby, as people can produce more and more product with fewer inputs, what tends to happen is that the cost of production is lowered
midst of an Agriculture appropriation bill. I wish we could wait until the fall and know what the losses were. None of this money will be available until October 1. Then we can come up with a reasonable program to try to compensate for some of these losses. But to simply be making up numbers in the billions is very dangerous and irresponsible, and we would end up really hurting the most efficient farmers and ranchers.

I thank my colleagues for giving me all this time. I yield the floor.

Mr. BYRD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, has the order been entered as yet with reference to the conference luncheons today?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes, it has.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time for the Senate to recess for those luncheons be temporarily extended for a half hour.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Reserving the right to object, the Presiding Officer has something that I have to do in the policy session and would not be able to Chair.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I would be happy to Chair.

I have done a little bit of that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the request were propounded to be here to hear the Senator's speech, the Chair would be willing to do that.

Mr. BYRD. The Chair is very gracious.

I ask unanimous consent that I be permitted to proceed at this point in lieu of Mr. DORGAN. The list of names of Senators, I think, that have been entered up to this point would be, as of this moment, Senator RODGERS, Mr. GRASSLEY, and Mr. BYRD. And I have permission of Mr. DORGAN to substitute myself for his name at the moment, and let his name fall in place for my name under the present circumstance. So it would be Mr. BYRD, Mr. GRASSLEY, and Mr. DORGAN.

I seek the help of the distinguished manager of the bill, Mr. COCHRAN, who is my friend. I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed at this point.

Would it be the wish of the manager, then, that the Senate recess, and the others on the list be recognized following the conferences?

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield, I think that is a good suggestion.

Mr. BYRD. Very well. I thank the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I was on the floor and objected.

Mr. BYRD. If the Senator will allow me, I haven't forgotten my promise to the Senator.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that following the recognition of Mr. DORGAN, in order to comport with the understanding that there be alternative speakers, that a Republican Senator be recognized, and that he then be followed by Mr. BAUCUS. This will all occur after the conference luncheons.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I have no objection. I think that is a good suggestion.

I thank the distinguished Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the distinguished Senator.

Mr. BAUCUS. I thank the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, what is the Chair's understanding after which the conference luncheons will occur.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Until the hour of 2:15.

Mr. BYRD. Yes. At which time those Senators on the list as presently drawn would be recognized in the order stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, usually, in this town, newspaper headlines are about politics. News stories feature articles about tax cuts, health care plans, and various partisan tactics.

But, yesterday's headline in the Washington Post, reads "Drought Is Worst Since Depression," and the story that follows warns of drought conditions that have gripped the Mid-Atlantic which are second only to those seen during the bleak years of the Great Depression.

We have begun to feel the pinch of this drought, with water usage limited in certain areas. With these restrictions, many people are inconvenienced by the loss of their home landscaping investments—watching their grass, flowers, and shrubs slowly withering and turning brown.

But, this drought is more than an inconvenience to those employed in one area's hardest-working, most selfless professions. That is farming. Farming is hard luck even at best.

I speak of the farmers throughout our region, including West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware, they are more than just inconvenienced. They are watching their very livelihoods slowly wither and turn to dust.

In West Virginia, this drought has devastated—devastated—the lives of hundreds of family farmers, and I am deeply concerned about the fate of West Virginia's last 17,000 surviving small family farms. West Virginia farmers work hard on land most often held in the same family for generations. They farm an average of 194 acres in the rough mountain terrain, and they earn an average of just $25,000 annually. That is $25,000 annually for 365 days of never-ending labor.

The distinguished occupant of the Chair, who hails from Wyoming, understands that farming is an every-day, every-week, every-month, 365-day operation every year with no time off. In farming there is no time off. That is $68,50 a day for days that begin at dawn and run past sunset in this scorching heat. Today, as the drought lingers on, West Virginia farmers, particularly cattle farmers, find themselves in critical financial circumstances.

To address this crisis, I urge my colleagues to support the inclusion of a $200 million emergency relief program for cattle farmers in the Fiscal Year 2000 Agricultural Appropriations Bill which will be before the provision—if enacted—would provide Federal disaster payments to cattle farmers for losses incurred as a result of this year's heat and drought. Compensation would depend on the type and level of losses suffered, and would be available to cattle farmers in counties across the Nation which have received a Federal declaration of disaster for severe drought and heat conditions.

My provision provides direct assistance to farmers who have dedicated their lives to feeding this Nation, and who suffer at the will of Mother Nature with no recourse.

In West Virginia, my emergency drought aid for cattle farmers will literally decide the future fate of hundreds of small family farmers. The drought has sucked the life from the land, and is on the verge of draining the last resources from the pockets of the drought-stricken farmers.

As of yesterday, Senator ROCKEFELLER and I went to West Virginia, and were there when the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Glickman, was there to witness some of the drought-stricken areas in the eastern panhandle.

On that trip to West Virginia, Gus Douglas, the West Virginia commissioner of agriculture, told of being at a market where animals were being taken for sale.

One farmer, who had worked his entire life breeding a herd of which he could be proud, was there with his animals. He was there to sell his cattle at this auction. He was not there just with ten or twenty head of cattle. He was there with his entire herd. He knew that he did not have enough feed to make it through winter, so despite the fact that his animals would be poor prospects at auction, he had brought them all to be sold. They had already consumed the fodder that would otherwise sustain them through the coming winter months.
August 3, 1999

This farmer was losing twice. First, he would make no profit on the cattle he would sell. Second, he could no longer afford to keep his herd. It was too time to completely liquidate the herd. As the farmer unloaded his animals at the market, there were tears in his eyes.

It was too late for this farmer, and if we do not act quickly to get an emergency assistance package passed, it will be too late for many, many more family farmers throughout the land.

During our visit to West Virginia, Secretary Glickman declared all fifty-five West Virginia counties a federally designated disaster area. West Virginia is not alone, and my provision will help. If it is accepted, if it is adopted, will help cattle farmers in Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and any other region that receives a natural disaster declaration for excessive heat and drought.

During this visit with the Secretary, more than twenty farmers and their wives, gathered inside a barn on Mr. Terry Dunn's property in Jefferson County to share their personal stories about how the drought is impacting them and what kind of help they need. The overwhelming consensus was that programs that were designed to work at a time when our agriculture markets were strong, are not going to be enough to keep a new generation on the family farm.

In spite of all types of adversity, family farmers have had the ingenuity to keep their farms working for generations. Surely they can be trusted to wisely use direct federal payments, and with this same time-tested ingenuity, keep their farms running. Farmers in West Virginia have wisely diversified their crops. In ordinary years, many farmers grow enough different kinds of crops to be able to feed their animals, their families, and still take produce to market for a good portion of the summer. But, the extraordinary times of this drought require that we act now to help West Virginia’s farmers and other farmers in the non “farm states” who are currently experiencing difficulties as the result of extreme weather conditions.

According to government statistics, West Virginia is experiencing some of the most severe water shortages in the nation. Crop losses in one county alone, Jefferson County, were estimated two weeks ago to be almost $8.7 million and they are above that now. In the Potomac Headwaters region of the state, conditions are much worse. Total damages in the state for crop losses are more than $100 million. This figure does not even include the value of grazing pasture lost and winter feed eaten during the summer, or losses incurred by selling livestock early, due to extreme weather conditions.

Almost fifty percent of West Virginia’s cropland is pasture, forty-six percent is harvested, and the remaining four percent is idle. The hay and corn that would feed the cattle herds are gone. The ponds are shallow and foul, the springs are dried up, and the wells are dry.

Although West Virginia farmers are willing to work day and night to keep up with the backbreaking work of farming, no amount of work will restore the dry fields of grain that are now being used to keep animals alive at the height of the summer growing season, when pastureland should be more than enough to satiate an animal’s hunger. No amount of water can restore vigor to stunted crops that have gone too long without a soaking downpour of rain reaching the deepest roots. There is little that these farmers can do to fill their wells or farm ponds with water.

I traveled to see the damage that the drought in West Virginia is causing for farmers. I heard the stories they told. I saw for myself the impact this drought is having, and I saw on those tired, drawn faces the impact this drought is having on the bodies, the minds, and the souls of men and women who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow, in accordance with the edict that was issued by the Creator Himself when He drove Adam and Eve from the Garden of Eden.

We visited a corn field on Terry Dunn’s farm. The reddish soil was dust at my feet. The corn stalks that should have grown beyond my head by this time of the season were barely knee high.

I wanted to see what kind of ears these stunted stalks were producing. The ear of corn that I reached down and selected snapped too easily from the stalk. The naked ear of corn was barely bigger than two rolls of quarters. I saw the conditions of the cattle and pastureland in West Virginia. I saw the dry, cracked fields; I saw the stunted corn stalks; and I heard the stories of farmers. It all amounts to a heart-breaking picture.

I urge my colleagues to help all cattle farmers in areas declared as Federal disaster areas as a result of excessive heat or drought, and to support my provision in their behalf. My amendment will ensure direct relief to the cattle farmers in the Northeast affected by this natural disaster. It will serve to bolster other important aid for fruit and crop losses.

The swirling temperatures have taken their toll on farmers in the Mid-Atlantic region. Let us not turn the farmers who feed the nation into the furthest reaches of small family farm in his or her hour of need.

My amendment is a part of the Daschle-Harkin bill. I thank all Senators for listening.

I yield the floor.
have a Republican proposal and a Democrat proposal and we are talking past each other. I am hoping sometime before the recess we can sort it out and we have a final document to vote on, that we are able to get together in a Republican and Democrat way and have a bipartisan solution, at least for the escential aspects of the debate today, which is to have an infusion of income into agriculture considering that we have the lowest prices we have had in a quarter century.

I think there are two stumbling blocks to this. I think on the Democrat side the stumbling block to bipartisan cooperation is a belief among some of those Members that some of the money should find its way to the farmers through changes in the LDP programs as opposed to the transition payments. On our side, the stumbling block seems to be that we are locked into no more than $7 billion to be spent on the agricultural program.

So I hope somewhere along the line we can get a compromise on this side and a compromise on that side of those two points of contention. Hopefully, we on this side could see the ability to go some over $7 billion—and that the Democrats would see an opportunity to use the most efficient way of getting all the money into the farmer’s pocket through the AMTA payments.

The reason for doing it that way is because we do have a crisis. The best way to respond to this crisis is through that mechanism because within 10 days after the President signs the bill, the help that we seek to give farmers can be out there, as opposed to a con-voluted way of doing it through the LDP payment.

I do not know why we could not get a bipartisan will. We have $10,000 acres as a cattle farmer in Wyoming or 2,000 or 3,000 acres as a wheat farmer in Kansas or 350 as a corn, soybean, or livestock operation in my State of Iowa, it still is one job or maybe two jobs being created with all that capital investment. Let me tell you, it takes a tremendous amount of capital—both machinery as well as land—to create one job in agriculture compared to a factory, and many times more than for a service job. So those are the family farmers I am talking about whom I want to protect.

Earlier in this debate there was some hinting about the problems of the farmers being related directly to the situation with the 1996 farm bill. I am not going to ever say that a farm bill is perfectly written and should never be looked at, but I think when you have a 7-year program, to make a judgment after 3½ years that it ought to be changed, then what was the point in having a 7-year program in the first place?

It was that we wanted to bring some certainty for the family farmer without politics meddling in their business.

A 7-year program was better than a 4-or 5- or 6-year program. So we wanted to bring some certainty to agriculture. Obviously, a 7-year program does that more so than a shorter program. So a family farm manager would not have to always be wondering, as he was making decisions for the long term: Well, is Washington going to mess this up for me as so many times decisions made by bureaucrats in Washington have the ability to do?

So I am saying some people here are hinting at the 1996 farm bill being that way. Others of us are saying that the trade situation is the problem because farmers have to sell about a third of their product in export if they are going to have a financially profitable situation.

I want to quote from Wallaces Farmer, January 1998, in which there were tremendous prospects, even just 18 months ago, before the Southeast Asia financial crisis was fully known, for opportunities for exports to Southeast Asia. That situation for the farmer was fully exacerbated by the problems in Latin America. So I want to quote, then, a short statement by a person by the name of John Otte: “World financial worries rock grains.”

“Expanding world demand, particularly in Asia, is the cornerstone of the case for continued strength in corn, wheat and soybean prices,” points out Darrel Good, University of Illinois economist.

Quoting further from the article: Asian customers bought 57% of our 1995–96 corn exports, 66% of our 1996–97 corn exports and almost 50% of our wheat exports in both years. They [meaning Asian markets] are important markets. No wonder Asian cur-currency and stock market problems bring grain market jitters.

“Signs of stability in Asian financial markets, including today, because they have seen some of their currency values brought a sigh of relief to U.S. commodity markets,” says Good.

“Whether late fall problems represent an economic hiccup or they are the signs of some more serious problems is still unknown. However, the developments underscore the importance of Asian markets for U.S. crops.”

We know the end of that story. The end of that story is that we did have that collapse of markets. And it very dramatically hurt our prosperity in grains in the United States last year, and more so this year.

Now, just to put in perspective the debate today, because there is so much crepe-hanging going on, particularly from the other side of the aisle, there is a quote here by Michael Barone of the August 26, 1995, U.S. News and World Report, one sentence that will remind everybody of the greatness of our country and our ability to overcome some of the problems we face comes from an article called “A Century of Renewal.” It is a review of the 1980s.

He says: “There is something about America that makes things almost always work out very much better than the cleverest doomsayers predict.”
August 3, 1999

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE 19121

So for my colleagues, particularly those on the other side of the aisle who wash their hands in reproach and want to talk about the disastrous situation we are in right now, I do not want to find fault with their bringing to the attention of our colleagues the seriousness of that problem. But they should not leave the impression that there is no hope because this is America. We have gone through tough times before. All you have to do is remember 1985 and 1986 in agriculture and the 1930s in agriculture. Yet the American family farm that was the foundation in those days, only about 150 acres nationwide; today that is 500 acres nationwide—was a smaller operation, but remember, it was still run by the family farmer, the family making the management decisions, the family controlling the capital, and the family doing the labor.

Please remember that, even the most cleverest of doomsayers here today: Don’t give up on America. Don’t give up on the family farmer. We are in a partnership during the period of time of this farm bill. We have to meet our obligations, and that is what this debate is about. But this debate ought to be about hope for the family farmer as well.

I rise in support of our family farmers. Agriculture producers are in desperate need of immediate assistance. We need to find the best options available in these trying times. The Democrat proposal attempts to address the problems confronting our family farmers but, I think, falls short of our most important goal, which is providing assistance as quickly as possible.

I realize this disaster affects farmers all across the Nation, but at this moment I am most concerned about my friends and neighbors back home. I am concerned that the Democrat alternative by way of revenue relief to the LDP payments, will delay the efficiency of delivering the payment, unlike the transition payment which is more efficient.

The Democrat alternative offers provisions that would have a long-term effect upon agriculture. I don’t want anyone to misunderstand me on that point. There are many enemies of agriculture producers but, I think, falls short of our most important goal, which is providing assistance as quickly as possible.

The Democrat alternative offers provisions that would have a long-term effect upon agriculture. I don’t want anyone to misunderstand me on that point. There are many enemies of agriculture producers but, I think, falls short of our most important goal, which is providing assistance as quickly as possible.

According to the Farm Service Agency’s estimate, the transition payments provided to corn growers this year will pay out at a rate of 36 cents per bushel. The supplemental transition payment Republicans are offering will equal an additional 36-cent increase on every bushel of corn produced this year. That is 76 cents in assistance for Iowa family farmers, before you figure in any income through the loan deficiency payment.

As a Senator from my State of Iowa, I believe it is also particularly important to include language providing relief for soybean growers who are not eligible for the transition payments. That is why our proposal also contains $475 million in direct payments to soybean and other oilseed producers. I am proud to say that Iowa is No. 1 in the Nation in the production of soybeans, but our growers have been hard hit by devastatingly low prices. Prices for soybeans are the lowest they have been in nearly a quarter of a century, down from the $7-a-bushel range just a couple of years ago to less than $4 today, which is way, way below the cost of production. That is why I and other Senators representing soybean-producing States wanted to make sure that soybean growers were not left out of any relief.

Finally, the Democrat proposal falls short in another very important area. I think it undermines our U.S. negotiating objectives in the new multilateral trade negotiations that the United States is entering very soon. It will sharply weaken, and perhaps destroy, our country’s efforts to limit the enormously expensive European Union production subsidies that make it impossible for our farmers to sell to the 540 million European consumers.

I will say a brief word on that point. First, the United States just presented four papers to the World Trade Organization in Geneva outlining U.S. objectives for the new agriculture negotiations starting this fall. The first of these papers deals with domestic support. It states that the United States negotiating objective with regard to domestic support is a negotiation that results in “substantial reductions in trade-distorting support and stronger rules that ensure that any related support is subject to discipline.”

Production-related payments are by definition trade distorting. They are exactly the kind of payments that we want the European Union to get rid of. I don’t know how we can enter into tough negotiations with Europeans, with their production payments our No. 1 negotiating target, while we boost our production-related payments at the same time, which is what is done with the money under the Democrat proposal. This would undermine our negotiators and give the Europeans plenty of reason to hang tough and to not give an inch.

My second point is closely related to the first. We will measure success at the new world trade talks based on how well we do at creating an open global trading system. The European Union’s common agricultural policy nearly torpedoed world trade negotiations as late as 1996. The dissent of the late Senatorobliterated what we were doing. Let’s not make the same mistake again. As the Democrat alternative attempts to address the problems confronting our family farmers, but, I think, falls short of our most important goal, which is providing assistance as quickly as possible.

I urge my colleagues this. We should not hand the European Union an excuse to back away from real reform that opens the European Union’s huge agricultural markets to American farmers.

The proposal that we pass today should be the fastest and most efficient option available to help our family farmers. The most important thing we can do today is to work towards providing emergency revenue relief to our farmers as quickly as possible.

It is for that reason I urge my colleagues to vote for our Republican alternative, to provide ample and immediate relief for hard-hit farmers assuming we are not able to work out some sort of bipartisan agreement between now and that final vote.

I only ask, in closing, for people on the other side of the aisle who are criticizing the 1996 farm bill to remember that what we call the 1996 farm bill relates mostly to agricultural programs and totally to the subject of agriculture. We need to look beyond that basic legislation and realize there were a lot of things promised in conjunction with that farm bill through public policy that we have not given the American farmer, which makes it difficult to say we have fully given the American farmer—the family farmer—the tools he or she needs to manage their operation in the way they should.

Yes, we have given them the flexibility to plant what they want to plant without waiting for some Washington bureaucrat to do that. We have given them the certainty of certainty of certainty of certain payment every year, from 1996 through the year 2002. We have told them, with the 7-year farm program, that they have 7 years where we are going to have some certainty, political certainty, in Washington of what our policies are. But we also promised them something else:

We have not made the maximum use of the Export Enhancement Program so that we have a level playing field for our farmers. We have not given the President fast track trading authority so that in the WTO agreements that have been reached around the world among other countries we could have been at the table, and haven’t been at the table, and that there is no President of the United States looking out for U.S. interests in those negotiations; and for the sake of the American farmer, we should be at some of those tables—at least those tables where agriculture is being talked about.

We have not given the farmer the regularity of payment that has been promised. And from the standpoint of taxes, we haven’t given the farmer the opportunity, through the farmers savings account, to level out the peaks and valleys of his income by being able to retain 20 percent of his income to tax in a low-income year, so that he is not paying high taxes one year and no taxes another year. We haven’t given him the ability to do income averaging without running into the alternative minimum tax. We haven’t reduced the capital gains tax enough. And we still have the death tax, the estate tax, which makes a lot of family farmers who want to keep the farm in the family sometimes have to sell the farm to pay the inheritance tax, instead of keeping the family farm and passing it down from one generation to another. Sometimes, if they can’t afford to do that, they either make their operation so inefficient that they close down business or else they have a terrific tax burden.

So here we have an opportunity—to in the spirit of the 1996 farm bill, when we told the farmers of America we were going to have a smooth transition over the next 7 years, we said to them we are going to set aside $43 billion for each of those next 7 years—not for each, but cumulative for those 7 years. This year, it is $5.6 billion. Well, we look back now, and in 1996 we did not anticipate the dramatic drop-off in exports because we could not have predicted the Southeast Asian financial crisis and the contagion that caught on in Latin America. So we are going back now, unapologetically, on keeping a promise to the family farmers that we are going to keep this smooth transition we promised them, and that is what the amount of money we are talking about here on the floor is all about. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I have waited some while to be able to speak on these disaster bills and on this general issue. I am very pleased to have the opportunity for my colleague from New York who asked if I would yield for a minute for a question. I am happy to do that.

Mr. SCHUMER. First, I thank the Senator from North Dakota and Senators HARKIN and DASCHLE for the farm aid amendment, and for their hard work. This measure will help farmers across the country, including the farmers of New York State, who were hard hit by drought and last year’s storms.

We are in the midst of the worst drought since the Dust Bowl in my State. There is not a penny of relief for farmers with drought assistance. This drought is affecting farmers throughout the Eastern United States. When I meet with farmers in New York who tell me they are facing unprecedented losses, they are now pointing to letting fields go hungry, to conserve water, on other fields. We can’t do anything about the rain, but the Democratic amendment would increase section 32 funding to give farmers some relief from the devastation on the farm and without having to lose it in the disaster relief fund—something that would help New York’s apple and onion farmers who faced tens of millions in losses last year.

In urging my colleagues to support the Democratic amendment, I simply ask them to keep in mind that the Democratic amendment is not about Republicans and Democrats. It is not about Republicans and Democrats. It is not about Republicans and Democrats. It is not about Republicans and Democrats.

Mr. SCHUMER. The Senator from New York is correct. That is one of the distinctions between these two pieces of legislation. As the drought spreads across the eastern seaboard and other parts of the country and begins to devastate producers there, there needs to be some drought and crop disaster relief. The two pieces of legislation proposed today, one of which has no disaster relief at all, even in the face of this increasingly difficult drought.

So the Senator from New York, speaking of producers who are hard-hit in New York, is certainly accurate to say that the amendment we have offered provides drought relief and the alternative does not.

Mr. SCHUMER. I thank the Senator for his support.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, this is not about Republicans and Democrats. I start by saying to my colleague from Iowa that I hope, whatever comes from all of this debate, at the end of the time we can, as Republicans and Democrats, find a way to provide appropriate relief to people who are hurting. There is not a Republican or a Democratic way to go broke on the farm family. The destruction of hopes and dreams on the farm is something that is tragic and something to which we need to respond.

This is not of the family farmers’ making. They didn’t cause prices to collapse or the Asian economies to have difficulty, and they didn’t cause a weather or crop disaster. It is not their fault. We have it; some of us have to respond to it. But it is appropriate, I think, for there to be differences in the way we respond. There is a philosophical difference in the way we respond. Also, there has been a difference in the aggressiveness and interest in responding. I know that if this kind of economic trouble were occurring on Wall Street or in the area of corporate profits, we would have a legislative ambulance, with its siren, going full speed in trying to find a solution. It has not been quite so easy because it is family farmers.

Darrel Sudzback is an auctioneer from Minot, ND, Blake Nicholson, an Associated Press writer, wrote a piece the other day. He said:

Darrel Sudzback likens farm sales to funerals. He said, “If you don’t know the deceased, you are not likely to grieve." But more often than not these days, auctioneers must help a friend or a neighbor sell off a lifetime of hard work. Marvin Hoffman says, “It just hurts me to do this. When they hurt, I hurt.” With many families [Mr. Nicholson writes] sliding deeper into an economic nightmare, it is the number of farm sales in North Dakota continues to rise. It used to be,” one auctioneer said, “that a farm auction was kind of like a social event, a joyful moment when somebody was retiring.” Julian Hagen said that he conducted auction sales for 43 years, but he said, “Now there is a different atmosphere at auction sales. If people know a man is forced out, that is not a good feeling. It is tough to deal with when you have known a family farmer for quite a few years, and now they have to give up a career or property they have had in the family for generations. I try to stay as upbeat as I can. Bankers in north-central North Dakota say that area has been hit by 5 years of in farming and crop disease and many farmers have been forced off the land.

People need to think of this problem in terms of not only lost income, but assume you are on a farm and you have a tractor; you have some land; you have a family; you have hopes and dreams. You put a crop in the ground and see that this is what has happened to your income—to your price.

Then on top of that, add not only collapsed prices, but add the worst crop disease in this century—the worst in a century in North Dakota. On top of that, add a wet spring so that 3.2 million acres—yes, it is 3.2 million acres—of land could not be planted. It was left idle. Add all of those things together, and you have a catastrophe for families out there struggling to make a living.

Will Rogers was always trying to be funny. He used to talk about the difference between Republicans and Democrats. He said on April 6, 1930, “Even the Lord couldn’t stand to wait on the Republicans forever.”

He was talking about the farm program.
There is a difference, it seems to me. There is a difference between Republicans and Democrats in how we construct a solution to the disaster and the crisis, and how we feel the underlying farm bill should be changed.

Will Rogers also said, “If farmers could harvest the political promises made to them, they would be sitting pretty.”

I want to talk a bit about those political promises—the political promises given farmers early on to say that we want to get rid of the farm program as we know it in this country, get rid of the safety net as we know it, and create something called “transition payments” under the Freedom to Farm bill.

I mentioned yesterday that the title was interesting to me. Sometimes titles can change things notwithstanding what might be the real part of a proposal. Early on when people began to sell insurance in this country, they called it death insurance. You know, death insurance didn’t sell too well. So they decided that they had better rename it. So they renamed it life insurance, and it started selling. It was a better name. It is a product that most Americans need and use.

It is interesting. What is in a name. The name for the farm bill a few years ago was Freedom to Farm. We passed a Freedom to Farm bill. The wheat price slump on this chart may be unconnected, or maybe not to Freedom to Farm.

Here are the wheat prices before—Freedom to Farm—and wheat prices since. Chance? Happenstance? Maybe. Maybe not. Maybe we face a circumstance in this country where the underlying farm bill was never aligned to work and allowed for collapsed prices. Maybe that is the fact.

I want to begin with a bit of history. About 40 years ago, a biologist by the name of Rachel Carson wrote a book that in many ways changed our country. It was called “The Silent Spring.” The book documented how the products of America’s industrial production were seeping into our country’s food chain. The modern environmental movement was also from Rachel Carson’s book, “The Silent Spring.”

Today we face another “silent spring” in this country. Like the first, it is of a human making. But it is not about birds, and it is not about fish. It involves our social habitat—the farm communities of which family farmers are the base.

We know that family farmers are hurting. In fact, many would consider it an extraordinary year if they had any opportunity at all to meet their cost of production. I know of cases that break my heart—people who have fought for decades, and now are losing everything they have. What is worse is that some opinion leaders are starting to throw in the towel. They say, well, maybe family farming is a relic of the past. Maybe it is not of value to our country anymore. Maybe it is time to do something else.

I don’t buy that at all. I think one thing we can say about the future is that people will be eating. The world’s population is growing rapidly. Every month in this world we add another New York City in population. Every single month, another New York City in population is added to our globe. We know there is no more farmland being created on this Earth. It doesn’t take a genius to put those two together.

Mr. SARBANES. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DORGAN. I am happy to yield.

Mr. SARBANES. I want to underscore the point the distinguished Senator from North Dakota is making.

Yesterday, I had the opportunity to go with Secretary Glickman and Governor Glendenning to visit one of the farms that has been affected by the drought in our State. It is devastating to see. Of course, it is a compound of two things. The commodity prices, which the Senator is demonstrating with his charts—this is not only wheat but the same thing applies to other basic commodities as well—and the drought, which is crippling certain parts of the country.

We talked to this farmer who has been farming ever since he was a young boy. His father was a farmer. His grandfather was a farmer. He doesn’t know whether he will be in farming next year because of what has hit them—the combination of the low commodity prices and the drought which is now desperately affecting our country.

He is not alone. Farmers across Maryland are finding themselves facing similar circumstances. Nearly one fourth of Maryland’s corn crop is in poor to very poor condition. Likewise, 55 percent of pastures and hay fields are in poor or very poor condition. Milk production has decreased because of the high temperatures. And because pastures and field crops are in such bad shape, cattle and dairy farmers are now faced with a dilemma, whether or not to sell their animals or begin feeding them hay which should be utilized for the winter.

Maryland has suffered extensive drought damage for three consecutive years. However the drought this year is by far the worst. The United States Geologic Survey reported that we may be in the midst of what could become the worst drought of the 20th century. Rainfall throughout Maryland is currently between 10% to 30% of what is normal. Throughout Maryland, counties are reporting losses as high as 100 percent for certain crops. Most alarmingly, there is no end in sight.

But the crisis affecting agriculture is about more than the drought. The dramatic drop in commodity prices, since passage of the Freedom to Farm Act, has had its affect on farmers throughout the country and the State of Maryland. The poultry industry, which is Maryland’s largest agricultural producer, has witnessed a 45-per cent decrease in these funds. The situation for farmers is bleak and many are losing their businesses.

Mr. President, Maryland depends on agriculture. Agriculture is Maryland’s largest industry contributing more than $11 billion annually to our economy. More than 350,000 Marylanders—some 14 percent of our State’s workforce—are employed in all aspects of agriculture from farm production of wholesaling and retailing. Forty percent of Maryland’s food is grown in the State. It is the fabric of Maryland agriculture—more than 2 million acres. So when our family farmers and the farm economy start hurting—everyone suffers.

Our farmers are in trouble and they deserve our assistance. This measure provides that assistance in the form of direct payments and low interest loans. It gives nearly $11 billion in emergency assistance to farmers and ranchers who have been affected by natural disaster and economic crisis. $6 billion of that amount will deliver income assistance to farmers hit hard by the economic disaster. And more than $2.6 billion will be used to address natural disasters such as the drought. Within the disaster funds, nearly $300 million in section 32 and disaster reserve funds has been included to specifically address the Mid-Atlantic drought.

Mr. President, the need for this amendment is real. Until we are able to reform the Freedom to Farm Act or make adjustments in the price support structure, we should make a strong case for the preservation of the farm industry throughout the state of Maryland and the United States.

In my judgment, it is imperative that we pass this legislation.

I very much appreciate the Senator from North Dakota yielding. I want to underscore the crisis nature of the situation to which he is referring.

I want to acknowledge the consistent and effective leadership which he has exercised on many of these issues. He and others of us expressed concerns and questions at the time the 1996 act was passed. Much of that now seems to have come around to hit us—compounded, of course, by these serious weather circumstances which exist not in all parts of the country but in certain parts of the country.

I thank the Senator for yielding.

Mr. DORGAN. I thank the Senator from Maryland. He is talking about a drought which is devastating part of our country even as collapsed prices have been devastating wheat farmers and the grain farmers in my part of the country.
I want to respond to some things that were said earlier today that somehow we are not as efficient as we need to be as family farmers. It's a plague of deliberate public policies—yes, established here in Washington—that undermine their economic interest. They face trade agreements designed for the convenience of food processors rather than food producers. They face a “see-no-evil!” posture toward antitrust agreement that has left family farmers selling into controlled markets that dictate the terms to them. On top of that, they face a 1996 farm bill that fundadamentally doesn't and can't work.

There is a larger issue than dollars and cents; namely, the kind of country we are going to be.

It is not fashionable to raise all of these issues. We are supposed to keep our mouths shut and cash in on the stock market which has done quite well. But the Founding Fathers didn't create this country primarily to be an engine of stock market riches or rising gross domestic product. They created this country to promote a way of life based on freedom and democracy and independent producers in contrast to the aristocracy they left behind in Europe.

The concept of independence and freedom was rooted in the land, and they couldn't conceive of these things being separate.

Wendell Berry, a farmer, testified recently in Washington at a hearing that I chaired. He said:

Thomas Jefferson thought the small land owners were the most precious part of state, and he thought government should give priority to their survival. But increasingly, since World War II our government's manifest policy has been to get rid of them. This country is paying a price for this. That price doesn't show up on the supermarket shelves but rather our Nation's spirit and our character.

Independent family-based agriculture produces more than wheat, beef, and pork. It produces a society and a culture, our main streets, our equipment dealers, our schools, our churches, and our hospitals. It is the "culture" in ag-culture. Take away family-based producers and all that is left are calories. That is a radical change in our country. I am not talking about rural senti-mentalism or nostalgia. It is something we know from experience. Rural communities work. They have so many ties to each other and if you do some research on what is happening in this country say they want, including stable families, low crime rates, neighborliness, a volunteer spirit.

In my hometown of Regent, ND, they still leave the keys in the car when they park on Main Street. They are doing that here. Many Americans have plenty of food on their tables, but what they feel is a growing dearth of the qualities that they want most are the qualities that farm communities represent. It would be insane, in my judgment, to stand by and let these communities wither on the vine by neglect-

There is a larger issue than dollars and cents; namely, the kind of country we are going to be.

It is not fashionable to raise all of these issues. We are supposed to keep our mouths shut and cash in on the stock market which has done quite well. But the Founding Fathers didn't create this country primarily to be an engine of stock market riches or rising gross domestic product. They created this country to promote a way of life based on freedom and democracy and independent producers in contrast to the aristocracy they left behind in Europe.

The concept of independence and freedom was rooted in the land, and they couldn't conceive of these things being separate.

Wendell Berry, a farmer, testified recently in Washington at a hearing that I chaired. He said:

Thomas Jefferson thought the small land owners were the most precious part of state, and he thought government should give priority to their survival. But increasingly, since World War II our government's manifest policy has been to get rid of them. This country is paying a price for this. That price doesn't show up on the supermarket shelves but rather our Nation's spirit and our character.

Independent family-based agriculture produces more than wheat, beef, and pork. It produces a society and a culture, our main streets, our equipment dealers, our schools, our churches, and our hospitals. It is the "culture" in ag-
culture. Take away family-based producers and all that is left are calories. That is a radical change in our country. I am not talking about rural senti-mentalism or nostalgia. It is something we know from experience. Rural communities work. They have so many ties to each other and if you do some research on what is happening in this country say they want, including stable families, low crime rates, neighborliness, a volunteer spirit.

In my hometown of Regent, ND, they still leave the keys in the car when they park on Main Street. They are doing that here. Many Americans have plenty of food on their tables, but what they feel is a growing dearth of the qualities that they want most are the qualities that farm communities represent. It would be insane, in my judgment, to stand by and let these communities wither on the vine by neglecting the economic base that sustains them.

Yes, the Nation's financial establishment is enthused about that prospect. It can't wait to turn hog barns into agrifactories and more. However, that will not advance this country's interest. We can't stop bad weather and we can't stop unruly markets, but we can change Federal policies that turn ad-

There is a larger issue than dollars and cents; namely, the kind of country we are going to be.

It is not fashionable to raise all of these issues. We are supposed to keep our mouths shut and cash in on the stock market which has done quite well. But the Founding Fathers didn't create this country primarily to be an engine of stock market riches or rising gross domestic product. They created this country to promote a way of life based on freedom and democracy and independent producers in contrast to the aristocracy they left behind in Europe.

The concept of independence and freedom was rooted in the land, and they couldn't conceive of these things being separate.

Wendell Berry, a farmer, testified recently in Washington at a hearing that I chaired. He said:

Thomas Jefferson thought the small land owners were the most precious part of state, and he thought government should give priority to their survival. But increasingly, since World War II our government's manifest policy has been to get rid of them. This country is paying a price for this. That price doesn't show up on the supermarket shelves but rather our Nation's spirit and our character.

Independent family-based agriculture produces more than wheat, beef, and pork. It produces a society and a culture, our main streets, our equipment dealers, our schools, our churches, and our hospitals. It is the "culture" in ag-
culture. Take away family-based producers and all that is left are calories. That is a radical change in our country. I am not talking about rural senti-mentalism or nostalgia. It is something we know from experience. Rural communities work. They have so many ties to each other and if you do some research on what is happening in this country say they want, including stable families, low crime rates, neighborliness, a volunteer spirit.

In my hometown of Regent, ND, they still leave the keys in the car when they park on Main Street. They are doing that here. Many Americans have plenty of food on their tables, but what they feel is a growing dearth of the qualities that they want most are the qualities that farm communities represent. It would be insane, in my judgment, to stand by and let these communities wither on the vine by neglecting the economic base that sustains them.

Yes, the Nation's financial establishment is enthused about that prospect. It can't wait to turn hog barns into agrifactories and more. However, that will not advance this country's interest. We can't stop bad weather and we can't stop unruly markets, but we can change Federal policies that turn ad-use that chemical on their canola, plant the canola, harvest it, and ship it into Belfield, ND, to put it at a crushing plant, crush it, and put it into our food chain.

My farmers say: Why is that the case? What is going on here?

What is going on here is family farmers have happened in every single way, set up for failure.

I heard this morning what was being proposed here was socialism. I heard what was being proposed here was being proposed by a bunch of leftists. I heard what was being proposed here was being proposed by people who don’t believe in the principles of economics. I sat here and thought, that is novel; an interesting, pithy new political debate calling people socialists or leftists. Or maybe it isn’t so new. Maybe it is just a tired, rheumatoid, calcified debate by people who can’t think of anything else to say.

Deciding to stand up and help family farmers in a time of crisis and trouble is socialistic? Are you kidding me? It is everything that is right about the instincts of this country.

When part of this country is in trouble, the rest of the country moves to help. I wasn’t there, but in the old wagon train days when we populated the western part of this country with wagon trains, one of the first lessons learned was don’t move ahead by leaving some behind. The lesson is a reliable lesson. The same is true with this country and its economy. Don’t move ahead by leaving some behind. When family farmers are in trouble, we have a responsibility to help, not crow about socialism and leftists. What a bunch of nonsense.

The fact is, the same kind of debate includes this: We are no longer the most efficient in farming. This is nonsense.

As my colleague from New York mentioned, the majority party bill doesn’t even respond to any part of the disaster in the farm sector—no disaster provisions at all. Of course, we have a substantial part of this country now facing a serious drought, so it is a very serious problem. We have very different ways in which we provide income support to family farmers. The majority party follows the Freedom to Farm bill, which of course is a total flop, total failure. It gives payments to people who are not producing. It says: You are not producing; you are not in trouble; you don’t have any crop; here’s some money. What kind of logic is that? It doesn’t make any sense.

We propose a mechanism by which we provide help to people who are producing and are losing money as a result of that production. We want to provide help to shore up that family farm. Our position is simple. When prices hit a valley, we want a bridge across that valley so family farmers can get across that valley. We want to build a bridge, and other people want to blow up the bridge. But if we don’t take the first step to provide some crisis and disaster relief and then follow it very quickly in September and October, as I discussed with my colleague from Iowa and others, with a change in the underlying farm bill, we will not have done much for farmers.

Farmers say to me: We very much appreciate some disaster help, but it will not provide the hope that is necessary for me to plant a crop and believe that I can make it. We need a change in the farm bill. We need a safety net that we think has a chance to work for us in the future.

Mr. HARKIN. If the Senator will yield?

Mr. DORGAN. I will be happy to yield.

Mr. HARKIN. First, I thank the Senator from North Dakota for his statement, which is exemplary in its clarity. The arguments the Senator has made, the point he made, should crystallize clearly what this debate is all about, what is happening, what we are all talking about.

I picked up on one thing the Senator said—that under the Republican’s proposal the payments would go out without regard to whether someone was producing anything or not; it could actually go out to absentee landlords, people who are not on the farm, hadn’t even planted anything.

As the Senator knows, the AMTA payments that are in their bill go out without regard to whether they are planting anything or not. It is based upon outdated, outmoded provisions of base acreages and proven yields. It goes back as far as 1996.

I wonder if it occurred to the Senator from North Dakota—I heard a couple of Republicans this morning talk about the failed policies of the past. Yet they are basing their payments on a policy that goes back 20 years, base acreages and proven yields, which any farmer will tell you is no basis for reality as to what is going on in the farm today.

I am curious. Does the Senator have any idea why they would want to make payments based on something that is not even based on production, not helping the family farmer. I am still a little confused as to why they would suggest that kind of payment mechanism rather than what we are suggesting, which goes out to farmers based on the crops they bring in from the fields.

Mr. DORGAN. The payment mechanism is called an AMTA payment or a transition payment. This would actually enhance the transition payment. The purpose of a transition payment, by its very name, is to transition family farmers out of a farm program. It said: Whatever your little boat is, let it float on, it exists out there. The problem is, they declare it a free market when in fact it is a market that is totally stacked against family farmers. So family farmers cannot make it in this kind of system.

This farm bill that provides transition payments is a faulty concept. Yet even for disaster relief, they cling to this same faulty concept of moving some income out largely because, I think they are worried, if they are not clinging to that, somehow they will be seen as retreating from the farm bill. I would say: Retreat as fast as you can from a farm bill that has put us in this position on wheat prices.

You may think it is totally unfair to say wheat prices have anything to do with the farm bill. I don’t know. Maybe this is pure coincidence. Maybe it is just some sort of a cruel irony that we passed a new farm bill and all these prices collapsed. But I was hearing this morning discussions from people who were standing up to say things are really good on the family farm. I did not look closely at their shoes to see whether they had been on a family farm recently. They looked as if they were wearing pretty good pants and shirts and so on. It occurred to me, if things are so good on the family farm, why are we seeing all these farm auctions and all this misery and all this pain by our farmers losing their lifetime investment? Why? Because prices have collapsed. Things are not good on the family farm. The current farm bill doesn’t provide for disaster relief.

People stand here—I guess I can listen to them—they stand here for hours and tell us how wonderful things are and how much income the current farm bill is spreading in rural America. I would say, however much income that is, it does not make up for the radical, total collapse of the grain markets. What has happened is, we have a payment system that says, under Freedom to Farm, when prices are high, you get a payment that you do not need, and when prices are low, you don’t get a payment that is sufficient to give you the help you need.

Mr. HARKIN. If the Senator will yield further, the Senator has stated it absolutely correctly. I was interested in the chart there of wheat prices. I ask the Senator if he would put it back up there again, on wheat prices. It just about mirrors corn and soybeans, all the major production crops in the Southwest.

I have an article from the Wichita Eagle, from 1996, I believe, it is an article written by the distinguished Senator from Kansas. I think he was a House Member at the time, Senator Roberts. So this article says:

Good Bill for Farm Reality, by Pat Roberts

The first sentence says:

My Freedom to Farm legislation now before Congress is a new agricultural policy for a new century.

“My Freedom to Farm. . . .” That is by Pat Roberts, now Senator Roberts. I want to read to the Senator from North Dakota this paragraph in there. He says:

Finally, Freedom to Farm enhances the farmer’s total economic situation. In fact, the bill results in the highest net farm income over the next seven years of any proposal before Congress.

He says:

The AMTA payment cushions the Nation’s agriculture economy from collapse during the 7-year transition process. I have to ask my friend from South Dakota, are your farmers receiving the highest net farm income that they have received ever in any farm program? Are they receiving the highest farm income? And are your farmers being cushioned by the Freedom to Farm bill?

Mr. DORGAN. I say to the Senator from Iowa, the answer to that question is, clearly, farm income is collapsing. It is collapsing with grain prices, with commodity prices generally, and family farmers are in terrible trouble as a result of it. Many of them are facing extinction.

I have here a report from the Economic Policy Institute that describes the almost complete failure of the current farm bill and current strategy. It is written by Robert Scott. It is about an eight-page report. I ask unanimous consent to have that printed in the Record following my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. Collins). Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibit 1.)

Mr. DORGAN. Let me make one final point, and then I will relinquish the floor. I know my colleagues wish to speak.

This is a map of the United States. This map shows in red the counties of our country that have lost more than 10 percent of their population. It shows where people are moving out, not coming in. We have cities growing in various parts of America, but off center of our country, in the farm belt of our country, we are being depopulated. People are leaving. My home county, which is about the size of the State of Rhode Island, was 5,000 people when I left in population. It is now 3,000. The neighboring county, which is about the same size, the size of the State of Rhode Island, had 920 people last year. The fact is, people are moving out. Why? Because family farmers cannot make a living.

We have had other farm policies that have not worked. I mean we have had Democratic and Republican failures. Both parties have failed in many ways in farm policy.

It is just the circumstance today where we have farm prices, in constant dollars, that are at Depression level; and we have a farm program that, like it or not, was offered by the majority party that does not work all in the context of what our needs are to try to save family farmers.

We will have two votes today: One on a disaster package or a price relief package that offers more help, and one that offers less; one that offers some help for disaster relief, and one that does not.

A whole series of differences exist between these proposals. My hope is that at the end of this day the Senate will have agreed to the proposal that Senators Daschle, Harkin, Conrad, myself, and others have helped draft and that we will be able to send a message of hope to family farmers, to say, we know what is happening, we know what to do. The U.S. Government should: reduce the value of the dollar in order to boost farm prices; shift subsidies away from large farms and corporate farmers to small independent family farmers; increase expenditures for research, development, and infrastructure; and support new uses for farm products.

FREEDOM TO FAIL: THE OMNIBUS 1996 FARM BILL

For more than a half-century after the Great Depression, government policies helped create a highly successful U.S. agricultural sector by reducing risks to family farmers. Crop insurance and disaster programs reduced production risks. A variety of price and income support programs, plus set-aside programs that paid farmers to remove excess land from production, reduced price risks. But the Omnibus 1996 Farm Bill eliminated price and income supports and replaced them with annual income payments, to be phased out, on a fixed-declining schedule, over seven years (Chite and Hickling 1999, 2). The 1996 farm bill also eliminated the set-aside program, thus giving farmers, in the words of one commentator, “the freedom to plant what they wanted, when they wanted. . . . With prices rising and global demand soaring, lawmakers and farmers were happy to exchange the bureaucratic hassle of the ‘Invisible Hand’ for the invisible hand!” (Carey 1999).

The rapid growth in U.S. agricultural exports—they more than doubled between 1985 and 1996—encouraged many farmers to buy into the deregulation strategy. But rising exports have not translated into rising incomes. Due to globalization and relentless declines in the real prices of basic farm products, the structure of American agriculture has been transformed, and, as a result, real U.S. farm income has been declining for many years despite the long-run trend of rising exports.

In the two decades from 1978 to 1997, real grain prices were slashed in half. Then, in 1998, prices fell an additional 10–20%, pushing many family farmers to the brink of bankruptcy.1 In this environment, only the largest and most capital-intensive farms are able to survive and prosper.

Growing concentration throughout the food chain

There are about 2 million farms in the U.S., but three-quarters of those generate minimal or negative net incomes (USDA 1996). Since farms with less than $50,000 in gross revenues tend to be primarily part-time or recreational ventures, this section analyzes working farms that generate gross revenues in excess of $50,000 per year.

Within this group, the number of large farms is growing while small farms are disappearing at a rapid pace, as shown in Table 1. There were 554,000 working farms in the U.S. in 1993. More than 42,000 farms with revenues of less than $250,000 per year disappeared between 1994 and 1997, a decline of about 10%. Nearly 20,000 farms with revenues in excess of $250,000 per year were added in this three-year period, an increase of about 17%. Thus, the U.S. experienced a net loss of about 22,000 farms between 1994 and 1997 alone.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>$1,000,000 or more</th>
<th>$500,000–$999,999</th>
<th>$250,000–$499,999</th>
<th>$100,000–$249,999</th>
<th>$50,000–$99,999</th>
<th>Total</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1993</td>
<td>14,980</td>
<td>30,876</td>
<td>70,982</td>
<td>224,833</td>
<td>215,531</td>
<td>554,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1997</td>
<td>18,767</td>
<td>25,256</td>
<td>153,018</td>
<td>201,058</td>
<td>128,851</td>
<td>421,404</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Percent change</td>
<td>25.3%</td>
<td>12.6%</td>
<td>16.9%</td>
<td>-7.9%</td>
<td>-11.6%</td>
<td>-4.3%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Number gained or lost</td>
<td>3,788</td>
<td>3,888</td>
<td>12,001</td>
<td>-17,165</td>
<td>-24,700</td>
<td>-27,788</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Number lost with gross incomes of $50,000–$250,000</td>
<td>-1,096</td>
<td>1,096</td>
<td>1,096</td>
<td>-1,096</td>
<td>-1,096</td>
<td>-1,096</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Unreliable export markets

The U.S. agricultural trade balance with the rest of the world increased by almost $1 billion between 1990 and 1996 (Table 2), then declined by $4.2 billion between 1996 and 1998. This drop in the volume of exports, which was equal to a 6% decline in farm revenues, was compounded by a sharp decline in domestic commodity prices (discussed below). These two factors combined in 1997 and 1998 to severely depress farm incomes.

Closer examination of regional trends in U.S. farm trade shows that only a limited number of markets were open to U.S. farm products. The U.S. agricultural trade balance with Europe declined sharply between 1990 and 1998, as shown in Table 2. During that time exports to Europe fell by about $2 billion while U.S. imports increased by $3 billion (U.S. Department of Commerce 1999; USDA 1999b). U.S. trade problems with Europe result from continued high subsidies to European farms and European resistance to certain U.S. farm products, such as hormone-treated beef. The Uruguay Round trade agreements were designed, in part, to reduce agricultural subsidies, but European farm spending actually increased from $46.0 billion in 1995 (the year before the agreements went into effect) to $55 billion in 1997. During the same period, U.S. government payments to farmers were $7 billion, less than 13% of the European level. Under NAFTA and the earlier U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement (which went into effect in 1989), the volume of farm trade has significantly increased throughout the region. However, the net result has been a small but significant decline in the U.S. farm trade surplus with Mexico and Canada. This fact contradicts the U.S. Trade Representative’s statement that “NAFTA has been a tremendous success for American agriculture” (Huenemann 1999).

NAFTA has also resulted in a massive shift in the structure of trade and production within North America. U.S. exports of corn and other feed grains (such as sorghum) have increased, but U.S. imports of fruits, vegetables, wheat, barley, and cattle have all increased much more. For example, U.S. grain exports to Canada (primarily corn and other feed grains) increased by 427% between 1990 and 1996, but at the same time U.S. imports of wheat from Canada increased by 249%, from $79 million in 1990 to $278 million in 1998. Similarly, U.S. corn exports to Mexico increased by 47% during that period, while cattle and calf imports from Mexico soared by 1,280%.

Since the trade balance with Europe and North America was relatively flat from 1990 to 1996, what was the source of strongly growing demand for U.S. farm products in the 1990s? Answer: the trade balance with Asia increased by $8 billion (Table 2). Unfortunately for U.S. farmers, though, the demand that pulled in U.S. farm exports to Asia was driven by the same inflationary bubble that ultimately caused the world financial crisis. An unprecedented inflow of short-term capital into Asia stimulated a huge increase in consumption. When this capital flowed out even more quickly in the wake of the Thai financial crisis in July 1997, the U.S. agricultural trade balance with Asia collapsed back to its 1990 level.

Thus, the boom in U.S. agriculture in the early 1990s, which convinced farmers that trade liberalization was the solution to their problems, was built on the false foundation of a speculative bubble. Increased trade has certainly increased the volatility of farm incomes, but it has yet to improve their average level. Globalization has also stacked the deck against family farmers, since they tend to be under-capitalized and more vulnerable to financial cycles in comparison to large and diversified corporate farms.

Globalization and future farm prices

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has fueled expectations that global demand for U.S. agricultural products will increase in the future. Its most recent baseline forecasts predict that commodity prices, net farm income, and U.S. exports will all recover rapidly in 2000 and climb steadily thereafter. The USDA has also forecast that U.S. agriculture would benefit from further trade liberalization. For example, it estimated that the proposed Free Trade Agreement of the International trade: the shen’s song

The growth in agricultural exports, especially in the first half of 1990s, suggested to small farmers that sales to foreign markets were the key to solving their problems. However, export markets have proven to be more volatile than domestic ones, and globalization has increased the vulnerability of farmers to sudden price swings.

Table 2—U.S. Agricultural trade balance with individual countries, 1990–98

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>World</td>
<td>1,292</td>
<td>27,944</td>
<td>84,2</td>
<td>-16,756</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Europe</td>
<td>5,258</td>
<td>5,835</td>
<td>606</td>
<td>-321</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NAFTA</td>
<td>1,404</td>
<td>1,767</td>
<td>651</td>
<td>-106</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Canada</td>
<td>1,454</td>
<td>1,787</td>
<td>711</td>
<td>-126</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mexico</td>
<td>1,581</td>
<td>1,317</td>
<td>781</td>
<td>-164</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asia</td>
<td>16,147</td>
<td>23,249</td>
<td>14,655</td>
<td>8,102</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rest of world</td>
<td>-3,572</td>
<td>-877</td>
<td>-1,196</td>
<td>2,695</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1 Census basis; foreign and domestic exports, f.a.s.
2 Estimates—complete year for all countries.
These results show why farmers have been mislead by those who practiced liberalization. Previous rounds of trade negotiations have failed to generated sustained, reliable growth in demand for U.S. farm products. In addition, the diffusion of advanced agricultural technologies—the "green revolution"—around the globe has had a depressing effect on U.S. farm prices, despite, or perhaps because of, the benefits generated for farmers and consumers throughout the developing world.

TIME FOR A NEW FARM POLICY

There is nothing wrong with expanding trade in agriculture as long as it can be accomplished in ways that benefit U.S. farmers. However, unless the U.S. government is willing to address such fundamental problems as global excess crop supplies and rising currency values, then pushing for freer trade without regard for the consequences will be counterproductive. It is time to stop artificially expanding trade without regard for the consequences.

The Omnibus 1996 Farm Bill was a complete failure. It failed to generate export-led growth, and it transferred substantial risks to farmers with no visible benefits. Given the diffusion of the technology to the rest of the world, and because other countries seek to maintain their own food security, agriculture will never generate a substantial growth industry for the U.S. Economy. For many reasons, the U.S. needs a viable farm sector, one that can deliver a high and rising standard of living for family farmers and consumers. A number of policies could help achieve these goals, including:

- Carefully managed reductions in the value of the dollar.
- The shift of agricultural subsidies away from large farms and corporate farmers to independent, family-run farms.
- An increase in expenditures for research and development, and the construction of infrastructure and distribution systems for new, higher-valued products that can be produced with sustainable technologies and that meet consumer demand for high-quality, niche, and specialty foods such as organic products and humanely raised livestock; and
- The diffusion of more possibilities for stimulating agricultural consumption (such as the conversion of biomass to energy) to build domestic demand for agricultural products.

Mr. CRAIG addressed the Chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho is recognized.

Mr. CRAIG. I yield to the Senator. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi.

AMENDMENT NO. 196, AS AMENDED

Mr. COCHRAN. Madam President, I asked the Senator to yield so I can send a modification of my amendment to the desk. I do send the modification of my amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is so modified.

The amendment, as modified, is as follows:

Beginning on page 1, line 3, strike all that follows "Sec. 1. The Secretary of Agriculture and the Commodity Credit Corporation are authorized to purchase" and insert the following:

EMERGENCY AND MARKET LOSS ASSISTANCE—(a) MARKET LOSS ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Agriculture and the Commodity Credit Corporation to provide assistance to owners and producers on a farm that are eligible for payments for fiscal year 1999 under a production flexibility contract for the farm under the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7271 et seq.). The amount of assistance available to owners and producers on a farm under this subsection shall be proportionate to the amount of the contract payment received by the owners and producers for fiscal year 1999 under a production flexibility contract for the farm under the Agricultural Market Transition Act.

(3) TIME FOR PAYMENT.—The assistance made available under this subsection for an eligible owner or producer shall be provided not later than 45 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) SPECIALTY CROPS.—

(1) ASSISTANCE TO CERTAIN PRODUCERS.—

The Secretary shall use not more than $50,000,000 of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to provide assistance to producers of fruits and vegetables in a manner determined by the Secretary.

(2) PAYMENTS TO CERTAIN PRODUCERS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall use such amounts as are necessary to provide assistance to producers of quota peanuts or additional peanuts to partially compensate the producers for continuing low commodity prices, and increasing costs of production, for the 1999 crop year.

(B) AMOUNT.—The amount of a payment made to producers on a farm of quota peanuts or additional peanuts under subparagraph (A) shall be equal to the product obtained by multiplying—

(i) the quantity of quota peanuts or additional peanuts produced or considered produced to the Secretary under section 155 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7271l); by

(ii) an amount equal to 5 percent of the loan rate established for quota peanuts or additional peanuts, respectively, under section 155 of that Act.

(3) CONDITION ON PAYMENT OF SALARIES AND LOAN DEFICIENCY PAYMENTS.—Notwithstanding section 10012 of the Food Security Act of 1985 (7 U.S.C. 1305(o)), the total amount of the payments specified in section 10013(b) of that Act that a person shall be entitled to receive under the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 72701 et seq.) shall be determined by the Administrator of the Commodity Credit Corporation in such manner, and at such times as the Administrator determines to be necessary.

(d) UPLAND COTTON PRICE COMPETITIVENESS.

(3) IN GENERAL.—Section 138(a) of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7296(a)) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (1), by striking "or cash payments" and inserting "or cash payments, at the election of the recipient"; and

(B) by striking "3 cents per pound" each place it appears and inserting "1.25 cents per pound".

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is agreed to.

Mr. CRONIN. Madam President, I am advised the amendment has been placed on the desk. I do send the modification of my amendment to the desk. I do send the modification of my amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is so modified.

The amendment, as modified, is as follows:

Beginning on page 1, line 3, strike all that follows "Sec. 1. The Secretary of Agriculture and the Commodity Credit Corporation are authorized to purchase" and insert the following:

EMERGENCY AND MARKET LOSS ASSISTANCE—(a) MARKET LOSS ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Agriculture and the Commodity Credit Corporation (the "Secretary") shall use not more than $5,544,453,000 of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to provide assistance to owners and producers on a farm that are eligible for payments for fiscal year 1999 under a production flexibility contract for the farm under the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7271l et seq.). The amount of assistance available to owners and producers on a farm under this subsection shall be proportionate to the amount of the contract payment received by the owners and producers for fiscal year 1999 under a production flexibility contract for the farm under the Agricultural Market Transition Act.

(3) TIME FOR PAYMENT.—The assistance made available under this subsection for an eligible owner or producer shall be provided not later than 45 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) SPECIALTY CROPS.—

(1) ASSISTANCE TO CERTAIN PRODUCERS.—

The Secretary shall use not more than $50,000,000 of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to provide assistance to producers of fruits and vegetables in a manner determined by the Secretary.

(2) PAYMENTS TO CERTAIN PRODUCERS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall use such amounts as are necessary to provide assistance to producers of quota peanuts or additional peanuts to partially compensate the producers for continuing low commodity prices, and increasing costs of production, for the 1999 crop year.

(B) AMOUNT.—The amount of a payment made to producers on a farm of quota peanuts or additional peanuts under subparagraph (A) shall be equal to the product obtained by multiplying—

(i) the quantity of quota peanuts or additional peanuts produced or considered produced to the Secretary under section 155 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7271l); by

(ii) an amount equal to 5 percent of the loan rate established for quota peanuts or additional peanuts, respectively, under section 155 of that Act.

(3) CONDITION ON PAYMENT OF SALARIES AND LOAN DEFICIENCY PAYMENTS.—Notwithstanding section 10012 of the Food Security Act of 1985 (7 U.S.C. 1305(o)), the total amount of the payments specified in section 10013(b) of that Act that a person shall be entitled to receive under the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 72701 et seq.) shall be determined by the Administrator of the Commodity Credit Corporation in such manner, and at such times as the Administrator determines to be necessary.

(d) UPLAND COTTON PRICE COMPETITIVENESS.

(3) IN GENERAL.—Section 138(a) of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7296(a)) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (1), by striking "or cash payments" and inserting "or cash payments, at the election of the recipient"; and

(B) by striking "3 cents per pound" each place it appears and inserting "1.25 cents per pound".

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is agreed to. The amendment has been placed on the desk. I do send the modification of my amendment to the desk. I do send the modification of my amendment to the desk.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

August 3, 1999

such price levels, as the Secretary determines will best effectuate the purposes of cotton user marketing certificates and serting “owned by the Commodity Credit Corporation or pledged to the Commodity Credit Corporation to provide assistance to livestock and dairy producers in a manner determined by the Secretary”.

(A) by striking paragraph (4); and

(B) by redesignating subparagraphs (H)
through (L) as subparagraphs (G) through (K), respectively.

(4) REDEMPTION OF MARKETING CERTIF-ICATES.—Section 115 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 1431) is amended—

(A) in subsection (a)(1) by striking “rice (other than negotiable marketing certificates for upland cotton or rice)” and inserting “rice, including the issuance of negotiable marketing certificates for upland cotton or rice”: (i) in paragraph (1), by striking “and” at the end; (ii) in paragraph (2), by striking the period at the end and inserting “; and”; and (iv) by adding at the end the following:

“(3) redeem negotiable marketing certificates for cash under such terms and conditions as are established by the Secretary”: and

(B) in the second sentence of subsection (c), by striking program or the marketing promotion program established under the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 and inserting “market access program or the export enhancement program esstablished under sections 203 and 301 of the Agricultural Act of 1978 (7 U.S.C. 5623, 5651)”: and

(C) in subsection (e), by striking the quota established under this subsection may be entered into the United States during any marketing year.”; and

(D) by striking paragraph (4).

(2) ENFORCEMENT AVAILABILITY OF UPLAND COTTON.—Section 136(b) of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7236(b)) is amended—

(A) by striking paragraph (1) and inserting the following:

“(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The President shall carry out an import quota program during the period ending July 31, 2003, as provided in this subsection.

(B) PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS.—Except as provided in subparagraph (C), whenever the Secretary determines and announces that for any consecutive 4-week period, the Friday through Thursday average price quotation for the lowest-priced United States growth, as quoted for Middling (M) 15⁄32-inch cotton, delivered C.I.F. Northern Europe, adjusted for the value of any certificate issued under subsection (a), exceeds the Northern Europe price by more than 1.25 cents per pound, there shall immediately be in effect a special import quota.

“(C) TIGHT DOMESTIC SUPPLY.— During any month for which the Secretary estimates the season-end United States upland cotton stocks as determined under subparagraph (D), to be below 16 percent, the Secretary, in making the determination under subparagraph (B), shall not adjust the Friday through Thursday average price quotation for the lowest-priced United States growth, as quoted for Middling (M) 15⁄32-inch cotton, delivered C.I.F. Northern Europe, for the value of any certificates issued under subsection (a).

“(D) SEASON-ENDING UNITED STATES STOCKS TO-USE RATIO.—The purposes of rule estimates under subparagraph (C), the Secretary shall, on a monthly basis, estimate and report the season-ending United States upland cotton stocks-to-use ratio, excluding projected raw cotton imports but including the quantity of raw cotton that has been imported into the United States during the marketing year.”; and

(B) by adding at the end the following:

“(7) LIMITATION.—The quantity of cotton entered into the United States during any marketing year under the special import quota established under this subsection may not exceed the equivalent of 5 week’s consumption of upland cotton by domestic mills at the seasonally adjusted average rate of 3 months immediately preceding the first special import quota established in any marketing year.

(3) REMOVAL OF SUSPENSION OF MARKET-ING CERTIFICATE AUTHORITY.—Section 171(b)(1) of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7236(b)(1)) is amended—

(A) by striking subparagraph (G); and

(B) by redesignating subparagraphs (H)
through (L) as subparagraphs (G) through (K), respectively.

(4) WEED CONTROL.—Section 131(b)(1) of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7236(b)(1)) is amended—

(A) in subsection (b), by striking “and” at the end; (ii) delay or preclude implementation of a report of a dispute panel of the World Trade Organization; and

(C) negotiations within the World Trade Organization should—

(1) carry out an import quota program during the period ending July 31, 2003, as provided in this subsection:

(2) redeem negotiable marketing certificates for cash under such terms and conditions as are established by the Secretary:

(3) the President should—

(a) conduct a comprehensive evaluation of all existing export and food aid programs, including—

(i) the export credit guarantee program established under section 203 of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 (7 U.S.C. 5623); (ii) the market access program established under section 303 of that Act (7 U.S.C. 5722); and

(iii) the export enhancement program established under section 301 of that Act (7 U.S.C. 5651);

(iv) the foreign market development cooperation program established under section 702 of that Act (7 U.S.C. 5722); and

(v) programs established under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1964 (7 U.S.C. 1301 et seq.); and

(B) transmit to Congress—

(i) the results of the evaluation under sub-paragraph (A); and

(ii) recommendations on maximizing the effectiveness of the programs described in subparagraph (A); and

(C) the results of the evaluation made by the Secretary:

(1) regarding future World Trade Organization negotiations—

(A) conduct a comprehensive evaluation of the effectiveness of the programs described in subparagraph (A); and

(B) ensure the successful conclusion of negotiations within the World Trade Organization—

(i) restrict market access for products of such commodities (including soybean oil, soybean oil, textured vegetable protein, and soy protein concentrates and isolates) using programs established under—

(1) the Food for Progress Act of 1985 (7 U.S.C. 1736); and

(ii) in paragraph (1)—

(1) ENFORCEMENT.—The entire amount necessary to carry out this section and the amendments made by this section shall be available only to the extent that an official budget request for the entire amount, that includes designation of the entire amount of the request as an emergency requirement as defined in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended, is transmitted by the President to the Congress: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of such Act.

Mr. COCHRAN. I thank the Senator. Mr. CRAIG addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho is recognized.

Mr. CRAIG. Thank you, Madam President.

For the last 20 minutes, I have listed to my colleague from North Dakota with some degree of clarity discuss the issue that is true in his State and in other States true in most areas of American agriculture. I will in no way attempt to modify or suggest any different kind of impact on the family farm, but I suggest that most family farms in Idaho today are multimillion-dollars operations. I should not attempt to invoke the image of a small farm, a husband and wife, struggling to stay alive.

A husband and wife and family team in production agriculture today are struggling to stay alive in an industry that recognizes their investment in the hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of dollars.
There is no question that the character of American agriculture has changed. What is wrong with those who farm small units today recognized some years ago that their life could not be made there unless they supplemented it with outside income. That, of course, has been the character of the change in production agriculture for the last good number of decades—true in Idaho, true in North Dakota, true in Mississippi, true in almost every other agricultural State in our Nation.

How do I know that? That is what the statistics show.

But in 1965 and 1966, as a young person, I was given a unique opportunity to travel through our Nation on behalf of agriculture as a national officer of FFA, Future Farmers of America. I was almost in every agricultural State in this Nation speaking to young farmers and young ranchers.

I happened to have had the privilege of state speaking to farmers and ranchers. For the course of 1 year, I saw American agriculture like few are ever going to see it. I must tell you, it was an exciting time because I met wonderful people, I saw a unique lifestyle that is true in many instances today, and I did see and feel the heartland of America as few get the opportunity to experience.

While I was traveling, I gave many speeches. The speech oftentimes started like this: That a family farmer or a farmer in American agriculture today produces enough for him or herself and 30 other people. That was 1965.

Today, if I were that young FFA officer traveling the Nation, my speech wouldn't be to change, because I would say that that farmer or rancher does produce enough for him or herself and 170 to 180 additional Americans.

Has the family unit changed? Oh, very significantly. In almost all instances, it is four or five times larger than it was in 1965 and 1966. But it is phenomenally more efficient and much more productive. Because of those efficiencies, instituted by new technology or biogenetics, we have seen great productivity. So it isn't just a measurement of acreage produced against prices for those crops; it is a combination of the whole.

I think it is very important that we portray American agriculture today for what it is and for what it asks from us.

In 1965 and 1966, it was not just Government and politicians that suggested farm policy in this country ought to change; it was American agriculture itself that came to us in 1965 and 1966 and said: Get Government off our back. Agriculture has changed. We don't want to farm to a program. We want to farm to a market. We don't want to be restricted in limited acreages. We don't want to be restricted in limited markets. We want the ability to be flexible to move with the market.

Congress listened. Out of that listening came the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996, which is now called Freedom to Farm. The Senator from North Dakota said it is a failure. The Senator from North Dakota is wrong. It has met every objective it was intended to meet—expanded markets, expanded production, with flexibility for the individual producer. All of those goals that were a part of Freedom to Farm have been met today.

Today, before the Ag Committee, we heard about a comprehensive study that said agricultural income in the decade of the 1990s will surpass any other decade, at a time when the number of farmers has gone down and productivity has gone up dramatically. That is all part of the good news of the story.

So it is not an abject failure, unless you did not vote for it for that reason, and you really do want Government controls, and you really do want a Government plan to which farmers farm instead of the market. My guess is, that is part of what the Senator from North Dakota was talking about. That is not what I am here to talk about today. That is where we differ substantially.

But we do not differ on the other issue. That is the issue of the current commodity price crisis in production agriculture across our Nation and across the world. That is very real today. Many of our commodities are finding their price in the marketplace at or below Depression-era prices. That in itself is a crisis, and that is what we should respond to.

Last year, we did not cast a deaf ear on production agriculture in this country. The taxpayers of this country, recognizing the plight the American producer in agriculture was in, gave handomely. Billions of dollars flowed into production agriculture, and directly through to the farmer, and to the rancher in some instances. As a result of that, farm income was substantially buoyed. That will happen again this year. But it will happen in the context of Freedom to Farm.

We are not going to go in and start changing long-term farm policy until the Senator from North Dakota and the Senator from Idaho can agree that Freedom to Farm was an abject failure—when, in fact, I do not believe it was; and I think the Senator from North Dakota would be hard pressed, looking at the facts and the intent, to argue that it was either.

So we are here today not to talk about a long-term farm policy change but to talk about the current crisis. It is a crisis that is not just taking place within this country; it is a commodity crisis that is worldwide.

Let's talk about 1996, 1997, and part of 1998. That is when we crafted a new farm bill. That is when commodity prices were higher than they had ever been around the world, and we drained all of our reserves, and we were told never again would we see low prices.

But there were some things missing from that “never again” argument. We didn't anticipate a general downturn in world economies, especially the Asian economy, an Asian economy that had increased its overall import of agricultural foodstuffs from the United States by nearly 27 percent in the period of a 5- to 6-year span. Those imports are down by 11 percent today. Those are the facts. Is that a direct result of Freedom to Farm policy failing? I suggest that it isn't. I don't think the Senator from North Dakota would disagree.

Now, what has that caused? It has plummeted commodity prices in our country. We agree that there is a current farm crisis, and we agree that that crisis could extend itself for some time to come. We agree that Congress ought to respond to it so we don't lose those production units and the families and the human side of it that is so critical across our country and to smalltown Idaho just as much as smalltown North Dakota.

The difference, at least in the current situation of the moment, is the heavy hand of politics, tragically enough. Last year we were able to agree, and we worked at crafting a bipartisan package. This morning, while we were there in the Ag Committee holding a hearing with the Secretary, all of a sudden the committee room emptied. I wondered where they had gone. The chairman said: Well, they have gone out to hold a press conference with the Vice President. The Vice President, the head of Presidential politics now tragically plays at this issue. It shouldn't have to be that way and, in the end, it won't be that way, if we are to craft the right kind of policy to deal with a crisis that isn't Democrat or isn't Republican, but it is at the heartland of America's fundamental production unit, American agriculture.

The chairman of the Ag Subcommittee of Appropriations has struggled mightily over the course of the last several weeks to try to see if we couldn't arrive at a package that would respond. Our goal is not to add hundreds of billions of dollars to programs that don't have any sense of immediacy or any sense of getting money directly through to the farmer. Our bill is substantially smaller in that regard than the bill offered by the minority leader of the Senate. But our bill, when it comes to money to production units, money to farmers, and money to ranchers, is there. It's real and it is the same dollar amount.

I am willing to talk farm policy, and I am willing to debate it, but not in the short-term and not in the immediate sense of an emergency, because it is awfully hard to argue that the emergency that was produced by Freedom to Farm. Let me read briefly from a report called "Record and Outlook," put together by a very responsible group called the Sparks Company out of McLean, VA. This report is called "Freedom to Farm, Record and Outlook," prepared for the Coalition for Competitive Food in the Agricultural System.

Here is their analysis. Most people say that the Sparks Company is widely recognized as reputable and is non-partisan in its analyses of those issues that it examines.

Here is what they say:

The recent slowing of the farm economy primarily reflects two major factors: Farm prices are here to stay. And that is what happened, and worldwide production is at an all-time record. They go on: ...and the downturn in the economic and financial health or one region of the world, Asia, which also is the largest market for U.S. farm and food products.

I have already mentioned the tremendous ramp up in the increase in purchases of agricultural foodstuffs in Asia and now the dramatic decline.

The study concludes that both the high record prices of 1995, 1996, and part of 1997, and the more recent readjustments, are the result of "ordinary market deals and reactions, with some unusually good weather patterns helping boost output, while the economic downturn in Asia and elsewhere has weakened the prices. As a result, the current market downturn reflects temporary, rather than fundamental market changes."

Temporary problems, but a real crisis. Permanent problems? They say not so. So if you are going to change permanent policy, you ought to be able to determine that there is first a permanent problem. That is what I think the Senator from North Dakota has failed to argue, while he and I would agree on the sense of immediacy to the current crisis. The report goes on to talk about modest shortfalls in harvests and yields during 1993 through 1995, during the time when these markets were ramping up. Output fell below the 10-year trend and stocks plummeted. In other words, storage and surplus. Strong world economic growth then stimulated demand and record high grain and oilseed prices; world planting and harvests above trends in the United States and worldwide during 1996 through 1998; also good weather and high grain and oilseed yields, especially in the United States, rapidly rebuilding record late stocks and significantly above-trend consumption during that period. In other words, we were pushing production, but the world was consuming. Significant increases in non-U.S. production competing for growing world markets largely in response to record high prices of the mid-1990s. For example, all of the very considerable above-trend wheat production has been outside the United States, while the share of increased production outside the United States has been 44 percent for corn and 35 percent for soybeans.

Lastly, they point out that the downturn in economic and financial health of key world markets, especially Asia, the largest with the passage of increased pressure on U.S. prices, although world grain and oilseed use has been well above trend during the last 3 years. What is the point of those comments? The point is that no matter how we would have designed the policy, we were working against a world situation, both economically and climatically, and production wise that would have been very difficult to foresee. We did not foresee it, nor was it debated in 1995 and 1996, as we were creating Freedom to Farm. We didn't recognize it in 1997. Toward the tail end of 1997, it became an indicator of problems to come. By 1998, it was very clear, and Congress responded. It is now 1999 and Congress will respond again, with a multibillion-dollar direct aid package to production agriculture.

I said before the Ag Committee today and before Secretary Glickman that I am willing, starting next year, to review Freedom to Farm. I don't think production agriculture is going to walk away from the freedoms and the flexibility it has. Is there a way of crafting a safety net or something that causes some adjustments over time? It is possible. I would not suggest that it isn't. But the rest of the story of Freedom to Farm that we have not successfully matched yet, but something that Congress, Democrat and Republican, agreed with and promised production agriculture, Freedom to Farm in 1996, were two other elements.

One was a risk management practice, better known as crop insurance. We have placed that money in the budget, but we can't yet agree on a package that is bipartisan in character, that meets the regional differences within our country, certainly the regional differences between the Midwest and Idaho or the Midwest and the South or the Northwest. So there needs to be a comprehensive risk management crop insurance package today, the very real drought that Washington, DC, and States east of the Alleghenies are in at this moment would have been dramatically offset if farmers had had that kind of risk management tool. But we haven't produced one. It needs to be flexible and diversified in a way that meets those kinds of needs of specialty crops and the uniqueness of agriculture across this country. So a promise made; we have not fulfilled it yet.

The other area, of course, is the expansion of world trade. The Senator from North Dakota is right. We are not trading in world markets like we should. Let me tell you, Bill Clinton and company have been asleep at the switch now for many years. Do they have a division down at the Department of State that goes out and aggressively markets on a daily basis American agricultural surpluses? No, they don't. We offered them and provided them the tools. We offered them the opportunity to expand significantly in the markets. There was a bit of a yawn down at the Department of Agriculture, and that yawn has continued for the last good number of years. So point the finger, I am; but I am pointing the finger at the very agencies of our Government that are responsible for breaking down those political barriers between a consuming market somewhere else in the world and a production unit here in the United States. We have not done that well, and we should. We promised it, in part, last year.

Last year, I and Senators from the other side of the aisle stood together and were able to knock down the sanctions against Pakistan and India to move markets. This year, at our urging—and I applaud the President; now that I have criticized him, let me applaud him for bringing forth an Executive order that said that foodstuffs and medical supplies would not be subject to sanction. That was 3 months ago, and many months later. To be caught in an agriculture crisis, they are just getting the regulations out.

Well, now, give me a break, Mr. President. You mean your bureaucracy takes 3 months to write a regulation that says farmers can supply a world market that they were denied? There is a lot of blame to be shared here, but, Mr. Vice President, you were on the Hill today talking about a farm crisis. Last I checked, the Department of Agriculture and the very agencies were under your watch, and for 3 long months you have sat and watched as the bureaucracy ground out regulations that allow access to world markets. I am sorry, Mr. President and Mr. Vice President, there is blame to be shared all around.

Let me shift just a little of it to you, Mr. Vice President, and you, Mr. President. The spirit is in the right place, but couldn't you have cut to the chase? couldn't you have broken grains, rice, and food commodities, and lentils into mid-Asian and the Central Eastern markets today like we should be? Well, we will be by fall and into the winter, thanks to a policy you put in place, Mr. President. But 3 months later, we are finally beginning to see its regulations. Late is better than not at all. When it is nation-to-nation, our Government at the Federal level has to be responsible, and we fail to be.

My credit goes to the chairman of our Senate Agriculture Committee who, for several years, has been pushing legislation to pull down those barriers. Last year, he offered it on the floor. It passed. This year, it will pass this Senate again, and I hope it passes the Congress. I hope the President can deal with it, and I hope he will sign it.

Those are long-term provisions, but once in place, they are a legitimate and responsible role for Government to participate in.

Manipulating the market, shaping the prices—Absolutely not. We have to let the marketplace work its will. But it is very important that Government play the role it should play, and that is in dealing with the political barriers of trade, most assuredly in times of need, providing some safety nets. We did that last year, and we are going to do it again this year. I hope in the end we can craft a crop insurance plan that will provide the risk management tools that we have said to production agriculture we would provide.

Well, those are the circumstances in which we find ourselves today. In the course of the next few hours, the Senate will have an opportunity to vote on two very different measures, in the sense of the bill. They are very similar in the dollars and cents that go directly to production agriculture. I hope that, in the end, out of this can come a bipartisan package. There is a great deal in the Daschle-Harkin package that may be OK at some point down the road, but my guess is not without hearings held and no understanding of some broad policy changes that are at this moment not necessarily justifiable in this time of dealning with crises, both a price crisis and the situation that deals with weather disaster.

Those are the circumstances as I see it. I hope my colleagues will vote with the chairman of the Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittee in supporting his amendment and not allowing it to be tabled, so we can get at a clear vote and finalize this work today. If that can’t be done, I hope my colleagues on the other side of the aisle will join with us in seeing if we can make some adjustments to a final package. But I believe that the package offered up by the chairman is certainly in good faith and responds in an immediate way to need, and that the money can move directly to production agriculture, sending a very critical message to the fam-elies and the men and women engaged in what we care and we understand the importance of them and what they do for all of us as Americans, and Americans are responding by a substantial ag package of nearly $7 billion.

Mr. BAUCCUS addressed the Chair.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana is recognized.

Mr. BAUCCUS. Madam President, a lot of us have listened quite intently, and some of us not very intently, to the debate. Very simply, cutting to the chase, the question before us is whether to adopt an agriculture emergency assistance bill in the amount of roughly $10 billion—$10.6 billion, I think—which is essentially on this side of the aisle, or, in the alternative, a bill that is about half that much.

The main difference between the two is not only the amount, but also the philosophy. The bill on my judgment, is the other side to provide drought assistance. It is emergency drought assistance. We have all watched on television in the last several days how dry so much of America is and how farmers’ crops are not growing and are not going to be harvested. In some parts of the country, it is not only drought;
paradoxically, strangely, it is flooding.
There is too much moisture in some parts of the country, making it impossible for farmers to grow a productive crop.

Compounding that, there is a very low price. According to the wheat producers and barley producers, livestock, hogs—you name it—the prices are just rock bottom, and they are going to stay low for a long time. So it is a combination of very low prices, historically low prices, for some commodities, and the weather.

The outlook is not good. The outlook for increased prices in the basic commodities we are talking about, as well as livestock, is grim. Nobody can project or foresee a solid, sound reason why prices necessarily are going to go up in the next several years.

What conditions are going to cause prices to go up? What is going to change or be different? To be truthful, there isn’t much we can see that is going to be much different. Producers are going to still produce. Other countries, particularly emerging and devel-opping countries, are going to try to produce more agricultural products than they now are producing. On top of that, there is the phenomenon of a low price of wheat in the grain trade, or in the grain trade, where the middlemen, if you will—that is, the traders, the packing plants, and retailers—are making money but the producers are not.
That is not going to change in the foreseeable future. At least I don’t see anything that will cause that change.

So, essentially, we are here today because farmers are getting deeper and deeper and deeper in trouble. Their prices are continually falling. I hope my colleagues took a good look at the chart presented by my good friend, the Senator from North Dakota, Mr. Don-Gan— the one that showed in current dollars what the price of wheat was in 1930, 1940, 1950, and 1960. The current price of wheat in today’s dollars is roughly $2 a bushel. Back in 1930, in current dollars, adjusted for inflation, it was about $7.50 a bushel. In 1940 and in 1950—I have forgotten the chart, but I think it was as high as maybe $13 or $14 a bushel.

You can see how the price generally has declined over the years for farmers, and it has declined greatly. This is not just a minor drop in price. It is a precipitous drop in price. It is steady. It is constant.

As I said, I can’t see much that is going to cause a significant difference in the decade in the Congress and in the country make the changes, which I will give to in a few minutes.

On the other hand, the prices that farmers pay for their products over the same period of time have risen dramatically—whether it is the prices the farmers pay for fertilizer, for gasoline, for tractors or combines, for fencing, or for labor costs. You name it.

All of the costs that farmers pay have continually risen to a very steep trend over the past 20 or 30 years since the Depression, and at the same time prices that farmers get for their products generally have fallen, although there was a period several years ago when prices were high—$5, $6, or $7 a bushel. But a year or two ago, it was about 5, 6, 7, 8, or possibly $9 a bushel. That was at the end of the Depression. It was about $10 a bushel. But 3 months later, we are finally the end of the Depression, and at the same time prices that farmers get for their products generally have fallen, although there was a period several years ago
when prices were high—$5, $6, or $7 a bushel. But a year or two ago, it was about 5, 6, 7, 8, or possibly $9 a bushel. That was at the end of the Depression. It was about $10 a bushel. But 3 months later, we are finally the end of the Depression, and at the same time prices that farmers get for their products generally have fallen, although there was a period several years ago
when prices were high—$5, $6, or $7 a bushel. But a year or two ago, it was about 5, 6, 7, 8, or possibly $9 a bushel. That was at the end of the Depression.
I submit that we should not only make the direct payments to farmers but we also accommodate the drought. We should accommodate the farm disaster that has beset the farmers in addition to the economic disaster.

That is just a short-term, immediate solution. We should get on it right away, and we should get it passed this week, lock, stock, and barrel—all of it passed this week to give farmers a little bit of hope.

Then, to begin to give farmers a little more hope for the future, we have to pass a modification to the so-called Freedom to Farm bill. We have to pass a new farm bill.

I remember when Freedom to Farm was debated. Most farmers I talked to in my home State of Montana were very leery and very nervous about this Freedom to Farm bill. A lot of them—I daresay a majority of them—went along with it because at that time prices were higher. As I recall it was about one-plus a bushel. The so-called AMTA payments were a little higher. There was more money in farmers’ pockets. But farmers knew—the ones I talked to, and I talked to a whole bunch of them—that we would get on with it then, but on down the road there was going to be a real problem, and probably times were not going to be nearly as good as they were then. But we kind of swept that problem under the rug and thought we would cross that bridge when we got there.

We are there. It has happened. We are in trouble. Farmers know it. So let’s just get this thing passed. But we very quickly have to begin to address the peaks and the valleys in the prices that farmers face.

I would like to remind folks in the cities that farmers are in a much different situation from most any other businessperson because farmers cannot control their price. The price is determined by the vagaries of the market, the vagaries of weather, and it is international; it is an international price in most cases. They have virtually no control over their prices. Take any other businessperson. He or she can raise or lower their prices to sell to retailers or to sell to consumers. There are ways to adjust to help maximize their return.

Moreover, farmers cannot control their costs. They have to pay what that farm implement dealer charges. They have to pay what that fertilizer costs. They just have to pay that price. They have very little control over costs. Any other businessperson has a lot of control over his or her costs—either by downsizing, laying a few people off here or there, making other adjustments, or cutbacks. Big businesses can certainly make big adjustments to costs, and have, with major downsizing. The farmer can’t do that. The farmer has no control over costs and virtually no control over prices.

That is why we have to have some kind of legislation that even out the peaks and valleys and give farmers a modicum of security. We need that desperately, and, for the sake of farmers, we need to get that passed.

One final point: This is a subject for a later day. But we need a level international playing field. We do not have it today. I give a lot of credit to our USTR, to the administration, and to others who have worked to try to make it more level. They have worked hard, if the truth be known, than other administrations have. We are nowhere close to the position where we have to be.

I will mention two subjects, and then I will close. One is export subsidies. We need an end to world export subsidies for agriculture. They have to be eliminated.

Today the European Union accounts for about 86 percent of all the world’s agricultural export subsidies. We Americans account for about 1 to 2 percent.

Europeans have 60 times the agricultural export subsidies that we have. That is a very great distortion of the market. Agricultural export subsidies are paid to European farmers if they export. What is the farmer going to do in Europe? He exports. He gets a subsidy for it—and a big, healthy subsidy for it. That is to say nothing about all the internal price supports the Europeans have that are much greater than ours.

The ministerial in Seattle begins at the end of this year. As we approach the next WTO, one of our main objectives, one of our main goals should be the total elimination of agricultural export subsidies. That is going to help. That is going to help reduce the world-wide supply just a little bit. And every little bit helps. I have a lot of other ideas about what we can do, but that is one that is very critical.

Point No. 2: In general, on the WTO, there are a lot of things we have to do to level the playing field so that Americans are no longer suckers and taken for granted to the degree that we have been.

But to sum it all up, let’s pass this agriculture emergency aid bill immediately. Let’s pass the bill that makes sense, the one that helps farmers. And that is the one that not only puts some money back into farmers’ pockets for the short term but also addresses the drought, which the other bill does not address. It addresses the disaster that has befallen the country by excessive flooding and rain.

Really, what is happening is that the farmer is in intensive care. The farmer needs an oxygen mask, and the farmer needs a blood transfusion. That is what we have to do. We have to give the farmer the oxygen mask. We have to give the farmer the blood transfusion so that the farmer is no longer in intensive care.

That oxygen mask and that blood transfusion is this bill. It is the bill that is sponsored by the Democratic leader and the Senator from Iowa. That is the bill that is going to take care to get that patient back out of intensive care. The next step, which we have to take very soon, is to get that patient rehabilitated and get that patient some physical therapy. We will take some other procedures in the hospital so that the farmer can compete in the real world as a real person again. I hope we get to that point very quickly.

I yield the floor.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Madam President, I urge my colleagues, on both sides of the aisle, to vote for the Harkin-Daschle farm crisis aid amendment. This legislation is the desperately needed response for many thousands of American farmers and their families whose survival is threatened. This is precisely the situation that obligates us to use our authority to enact emergency spending, and to provide enough funding to save our farmers and their livelihoods. This is a crisis that demands the Senate’s immediate approval of emergency spending, and the Harkin-Daschle amendment is the step we must take now to respond to a genuine and severe crisis.

My plea is for the farmers I represent in West Virginia. Yesterday, the President declared all 55 counties of West Virginia a federal drought disaster area, along with over 30 counties from neighboring states. In West Virginia, the relentless drought has dried up our crops, drained our streams, and brought death to livestock and despair to thousands of farmers suffering these horrendous losses.

Yesterday, with the senior Senator of West Virginia and Secretary Glickman, I visited the farm of Terry Dunn in Charles Town, West Virginia. We witnessed the tragic effects of the drought on his farm, and sat down with farmers across the state to hear their similar stories. The drought has devastated agricultural production in West Virginia in a way that even old-time farmers have never seen.

Because of the desperate situation, Senator Byrd has once again stepped in to ensure that help will be on the way. Through his devoted efforts working with the sponsors of the Harkin-Daschle amendment, there are various sources of funds that will be available for West Virginia’s farmers—and, I emphasize this point, funds that will also be available to farmers in similar straits in Kentucky, Ohio, Maryland, Virginia, and Pennsylvania. There is nothing partisan or parochial about voting for this amendment and the drought assistance included. All of us have a responsibility to vote like the one created by the drought.

I share the feelings of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle who have risen to extol the virtues of family
COCHRAN, that won't be nearly enough Appropriations Subcommittee, Senator distinguished chairman of the Agriculture we can settle for the far smaller level to adopt the Harkin-Daschle amendment them in this time of severe crisis, and which he is committed to solving issues, as well as on so many issues relating to the farmer over the years. Again, his eloquence this afternoon clearly illustrates the degree to which he understands their problem and the degree to which he is committed to solving it.

There is a silent death in rural America today—a death that is pervasive, a death that increasingly is affecting not only farmers but people who live in rural America, whether it is on the farm or in the town. Thousands upon thousands of family farmers and small businessmen and people who run the schools and run the towns are being forced to change their lives—are being forced to leave their existence in rural America in an unmentionable way because it isn't economically viable.

The situation we have all called attention to over the course of the last 24 months has worsened. Just in the last 12 months, more than 1,800 family farmers have left the farm in South Dakota alone.

So there can be no question, this situation is as grave as anything we will face in rural America at any time in the foreseeable future. The question is, what should we do about it? Our response is the amendment that Senator HARKIN and I have offered. I will have more of an opportunity to discuss that in a moment.

Let me say, regardless of what legislation I have offered, and what legislation may have been offered on the Republican side, I think there are five factors that should be included, five factors that ought to be considered as we contemplate what kind of an approach and in the framework in which the Congress must subscribe to if we are going to respond to the disastrous situation we find in rural America today.

The first is that this must be immediate. We cannot wait until September, or October, or November, at least to take the first step. I realize the legislative process is slow and cumbersome, but if we don't start now, we will never be able to respond in time to meet the needs created by the serious circumstances we face today. First and foremost, in an immediate way, this has to be responsive to the situation by allowing the Senate to work its will and do something this week.

Second, it has to be sufficient. The situation, as I have noted, is already worse than it was last year. Last year, we were able to pass a $6 billion emergency plan. I believe $6 billion this year is a drop in the bucket, given the circumstances we are facing in rural America today. Our bill recognizes the insufficiency of the level of commitment we made in emergency funding last year. Our bill is sufficient. Our bill recognizes the importance and the magnitude of this problem and commits resources to it: $10.7 billion.

Groups from the Farm Bureau to the Farmers Union to virtually every farm organization I know say that we cannot underestimate how serious this situation is. We recognize that, provide the resources, and provide the sufficient level of commitment that will allow Members to address this problem.

So, No. 2, it has to be fair. Our country is very diverse. I heard Senator SARBANES talk about the disastrous circumstances we are facing right now in Maryland. Maryland is different. We don't have a drought in South Dakota, we have floods. We have low prices. We have commodities that cannot be sold because they cannot be stored. We have agricultural situations, regardless of commodity, that are the worst since the Great Depression in terms of real purchasing power. Southerners have different crop problems. We have to recognize that there are regional differences and there are differences in commodities. Our emergency response has to address them all.

We also have to recognize that we must respond to the disaster that is there. Unfortunately, our Republican colleagues have drafted legislation that, at least in its current form, does not respond at all to the disaster. There is no disaster commitment in that legislation. For a lot of reasons—its insufficiency, its lack of fairness to commodities, its lack of appreciation of the problems within regions, the fact that it doesn't respond to the disaster—this side is convinced that if we were to pass the Republican bill today, it could not do the job.

I congratulate my colleagues for joining in responding to the situation, but I don't think it is broad enough. I don't think it is sufficient enough. I don't think it is fair enough. I certainly don't think it is fair enough, given the circumstances we are facing today.

The final factor is simply this: As my colleague from Montana said, emergency assistance alone will not do it. We passed emergency assistance last year and here we are, back again, less than a year later, with an urgent plea on the part of all of agriculture to provide us with additional assistance. Why? Because the market isn't working. Why is the market not working? There are a lot of reasons, but I argue first and foremost it is not working because we don't have an agricultural policy framework for it to work.

Freedom to Farm is not working. We can debate that on and on and on, but there are more farm organizations, there are more economic experts, there are more people from all walks of life, the people who are helping us who are arguing today that we have to change the framework, that we have to reopen the Freedom to Farm bill. That is a debate for another day.
Today, this week, the debate must be: can we provide sufficient emergency assistance to bridge the gap to that day when we can achieve better prices, a better marketplace, more stability, and greater economic security?

We have many situations where crops have suffered damage, some in 1998 and some in 1999. Where the existing farm programs are not adequately addressing the situation and the problems. We have provided $500 million in our amendment to respond to these situations. In other words, to take a comprehensive view of the disasters that have struck many farmers around the country.

The TEFAP funding is needed relief to farmers totaling nearly $6 billion. The amendment offered by Senator Daschle includes $500 million in our amendment to address the severe drought situation not only in West Virginia, but also in the other states. It has been his effort to work with crops in New Jersey, New Mexico, and California, with apples and onions in New York, that I understand is a $50 million problem. We expect the Secretary to also address that situation with the citrus crop in California, with apples and onions in New York, and that I understand is a $50 million problem. We expect the Secretary to also address that situation with the citrus crop in California, with apples and onions in New York, and that I understand is a $50 million problem.

As I noted, we have two versions that have not yet been reconciled. Because I don’t think the Republican plan is sufficient, because I don’t think it is fair, because it doesn’t respond to all regions and all commodities, I believe today we can do better than that and we must find a way with which to do better than that.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. I thank the leader for yielding before he makes a motion. I will not take more than 5 minutes. I didn’t get a chance to make a couple of points earlier in the day. I want to say a few words about the great work of the Senator from West Virginia. I opened the New York Times this morning and saw his picture. He was standing in a drought-stricken cornfield in West Virginia yesterday with the Secretary of Agriculture, Secretary Glickman. He called me on the phone yesterday before the Secretary had gotten an opportunity to talk to the terrible drought situation facing the farmers in West Virginia. Senator Byrd wanted to make sure that we addressed that situation, which we have in our bill, to address the severe drought situation not only in West Virginia, but also in the other states. It has been his effort on the floor. He has managed our side in this regard. He has led us in working to come up with a comprehensive approach. No one has put more effort and leadership and commitment into this than has Senator HARKIN. I am grateful to him.

Mr. HARKIN. I thank the minority leader.
The result was announced—yeas 47, nays 51, as follows: (Roll Call Vote No. 249 Leg.)

YEAS—47

Akaka  Feinstein  Lieberman
Baucus  Feinsteins  Lincoln
Bayh  Graham  Mikulski
Biden  Graham  Moulton
Bingaman  Harkin  Murray Boxer  Hollings  Reed Breaux  Inouye  Reid
Bryan  Johnson  Robb
Byrd  Kennedy  Rockefeller
Cleland  Kerrey  Santorum
Conrad  Kerry  Sarbanes
Daschle  Kohl  Sarbanes
Dodd  Lautenberg  Schumer
Dorgan  Lautenberg  Torricelli Durbin  Leahy  Wells
Edwards  Levin  Wyden

NAYS—51

Abraham  Fitzgerald  McConnell
Allard  Frust  Murkowski
Ashcroft  Gorton  Nickles
Benetton  Gramm  Roberts
Bond  Grams  Roth
Brownback  Grassley  Sessions
Bunning  Hagel  Shelby
Burns  Heims  Smith (MN)
Campbell  Hutchinson  Smith (OK)
Chaffee  Hutchison  Snowe
Cochran  Inhofe  Specter Collins  Jeffords  Stevens
Coverdael  Kyl  Thomas
Craig  Lott  Thompson
Crapo  Lugar  Thurmond
DeWine  Mack  Voinovich
Enzi  McCaslin  Warner

NOT VOTING—2

Domenici  Hatch

The motion was rejected.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. CRAIG. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 1500, WITHDRAWN

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I now withdraw the amendment I offered on behalf of Senator Cochran, amendment No. 1500.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is withdrawn.

AMENDMENT NO. 1499, WITHDRAWN

(Purpose: To provide emergency and income loss assistance to agricultural producers)

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Iowa [Mr. HARKIN], for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. Kerrey, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Conried, Mr. Baucus, Mr. Dorgan, Mrs. Wellstone, Mrs. Lincoln, and Mr. Sarbanes, proposes an amendment numbered 1506 to amendment No. 1499.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today’s Record under “Amendments Submitted.”)

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I move to table the pending amendment and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a vote occur on the motion to table that I just made at 5 p.m., with the time between now and then equally divided.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask the majority leader, for the purpose of scheduling, as I understand it, this will be the last vote and we will return to the dairy debate following this, is that correct?

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, if I can respond, I understand that, depending on how this vote goes, there may be a second-degree amendment that would be offered by the majority leader.

But after that is dispensed with, that would be the final vote of the day, I believe, once we dispense with this whole process. Then we can go on to debate dairy, and the vote on dairy cloture will be in the morning. We would have time for debate on cloture toight.

Mr. DASCHLE. I thank the majority leader.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, as I understand it, time is equally divided, so we have about 7 minutes on our side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, who yields time?

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, who controls time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The two leaders or their designees.

The Senator from Iowa is recognized on the Democrats’ time.

Mr. HARKIN. Thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is less than 15 minutes remaining before the 5 o’clock vote.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, we just had a vote on a package that was proposed by the other side which would have gone out in direct payments to farmers as sort of income support for the low prices this year. The motion to table was proposed by the Senate Majority Leader. But I note that the vote was 51–47, a very close vote, to be sure. So now, under the previous arrangement, the first-degree amendment offered by Senator Daschle and I, and others on this side, is now the pending amendment.

I would like to explain for a couple of minutes the differences between what we have proposed and what was previously voted on. The package that was previously voted on was basically direct payments to farmers, AMTA payments, transition-type payments, which would go out.

Our package is a lot more comprehensive in that it addresses not only the income loss of farmers this year because of disastrously low prices, but our proposal also has $2.6 billion in there for disaster assistance. It covers such things as the 30-percent premium discount for crop insurance, so we can get farmers to buy more crop insurance all over America. We have money in there for 1998 disaster programs that were not fully compensated for with money from last fall’s disaster package. We have some livestock assistance programs, Section 32 funding, related to natural disasters, and flooded land programs, I might also point out that because of the disastrous drought affecting the East Coast, we have money in our proposal that would cover disaster payments to farmers up and down the Middle Atlantic because of the severe drought that is happening.

In one second, I will also point out that because of the need to get this money out rapidly to farmers, we have adequate funds in our disaster provision for staffing needs for the Farm Service Agency, so they can get these funds out in a hurry to our farmers.

I also point out that in the proposal now before us, we have an emergency conservation program for watershed and for wetlands restoration. We have some trade provisions that I think are eminently very important. They include $1.4 billion that would go for humanitarian assistance. This would be to purchase oilseed and products, and other food grains that would be sent in humanitarian assistance to starving people around the world. That was not in the previous amendment we voted on.

Mr. DORGAN. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. HARKIN. In one second, I will.

Also, we have some emergency economic development because the disasters that have befallen our farmers and the low grain prices have affected many of our people in the smaller communities. We have funds for those problems also.

I yield for a question.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I wonder if the Senator can emphasize disaster relief. As the Senator indicated— and I knew this—the previous initiative we voted on by the majority party, and which was not enough, did not include disaster relief. We know disaster is occurring. Drought is spreading across the country. Disaster relief is necessary. Is it the case that the proposal we just voted on had no disaster relief and the proposal we will vote on at 5 o’clock, which you and I and so many others helped draft, does include disaster relief; is that not a significant difference?

Mr. HARKIN. The Senator from North Dakota is absolutely right. There was no disaster assistance in the other bill. There is disaster assistance in ours—$2.6 billion that would cover the droughts, cover the floods, and... cover a lot of the natural disasters that have befallen farmers all over America.
That makes a big difference in these two bills. That's what it means, a difference in the bill that we have now before us.

Lastly, I would like to say that the payments that go out under our bill go out to producers and go out to actual farmers. Under the bill that we just voted on, some of the payments would go out to people who maybe didn't even plant a thing this year. They may not have even lived on a farm. This has to do with 20-year-old base acreages and program yields. So a lot of money can go out to people who aren't farming any longer. Our payments go out to actual farmers and people who are actually out there on the land.

I yield to my friend from New York.

Mr. SCHUMER. I thank the Senator from Iowa.

I ask the Senator to yield for a question.

I want to underscore the point about disaster relief in the Northeast. We have farmers who are hurting in my State of New York. Further south, in the mid Atlantic States, the drought is probably the worst it has been in this century. It is awful. In my State, it goes from county to county. Some have had some rain. Many have not. In other States, it is the whole State.

The fact that this proposal has money for disaster relief and the other doesn't is going to mean a great deal for the Northeast, I would presume.

Mr. HARKIN. Absolutely. In response to my friend from New York, absolutely for New York and all the States in the upper Northeast. It is not only just the price problem that you have. You have some disasters hitting you up there, and no money to help those farmers on, included in their bill. That is why it is so important that this bill is passed and not tabled.

I hope Senators will recognize that in this bill it is not only income support, but it is also disaster payments to farmers to people who aren't farming any longer. Our payments go out to actual farmers and people who are actually out there on the land.

Mr. President, how much time do we have left on this side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. One minute 19 seconds.

Mr. HARKIN. I reserve that time in case our friends want to use it.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time? If neither side yields time, it will be equally to both sides.

The Democratic leader. I yield to my friend from Iowa.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, it is my understanding that a couple of other colleagues wish to speak. I don’t see them. There is only a minute left. We are not going to delay this vote.

I again compliment the distinguished Senator from Maryland. They are good farmers who, through no fault of their own, have been put in devastating situations. These are farmers we need. I will not stand by and allow them to go under. We must pass this farm package to save our farmers.

I strongly urge my colleagues to vote to help our American farmers and to save our farms.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to voting at this time?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The drought has destroyed between 30 percent and 80 percent of the crops in nineteen counties in Maryland. Loss of crops is making this a very tough season for Maryland farmers. Our farmers need our help. Our farmers are losing crops and they are losing money—without help, they might lose their farms. The package the drought with the record low prices, high costs and a glut in the market and that spells disaster for Maryland farmers.

I am already fighting with the rest of the Maryland delegation to designate Maryland farmland as disaster areas because of the drought. This means the Department of Agriculture will provide emergency loans to our farmers. But we need to do more. Loans do not provide any real long term assistance for our farming community. We must also provide grants for these farmers who are suffering most from the drought. The Democratic package contains direct payments to help our farmers who are suffering in the drought. These grants could mean the difference between saving the family farm or selling out to the highest bidder.

Mr. President, the second reason I support this package is because it supports our family farms. Agriculture is a critical component of the U.S. economy. Our country was built on agriculture. Agriculture helps us maintain our robust economy. It is what fills our store with fresh food and supplies of safe food for our families. It allows us to trade with other countries and build global economies and partnerships. It allows us to assist other countries whose people need food. Agriculture is the number one industry in the State of Maryland. We need to make sure U.S. agriculture is strong. We cannot allow natural disasters to ruin this crucial sector by putting farms out of business for good. These are good farmers who, through no fault of their own, have been put in devastating situations. These are farmers we need. I will not stand by and allow them to go under. We must pass this farm package to save our farmers.
The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CRAIG. I move to reconsider the vote.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

This question, the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative assistant called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Utah (Mr. HATCH) and the Senator from New Mexico (Mr. DOMENICI), are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SMITH of Oregon). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber who desire to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 54, nays 44, as follows:

[Roll Call Vote No. 230 Leg.]

YEAS—54

Abraham Frist McConnell
Allard Gorton Murkowski
Ashcroft Graham Nickles
Bennett Gramm Roberts
Bond Grams Roth
Brownback Grassley Santorum
Bunning Gregg Sessions
Campbell Hagel Shelby
Chafee Heinz Smith (NH)
Cochran Hutchinson Smith (OK)
Collins Hutchinson Snowe
Coverdale Inhofe Specter Craig Jeffords Stevens
Crage Kyl Thomas DeWine Lott Thompson
Enzi Lugar Thurmond
Fitzgerald Mack Voinovich
Fusco McCain Warner

NAYS—44

Akaka Durbin Lieberman
Baucus Edwards Lincoln
Bayh Feingold Mikulski
Biden Harkin Moynihan
Bingaman Hollings Murray Boxer Inouye Reed
Breasei Johnson Reid
Bryan Kennedy Robb
Buns Kerrey Rockefeller Byrd Kerry Sarbanes
Cleland Kohl Schumer
Conrad Landrieu Torricelli
Daschle Lautenberg Welstone
Dodd Leahy Wyden
Dorgan Levin

NOT VOTING—2

Domenici Hatch

To summarize the kind of regime that would be specified in this amendment, the bill would not tie the hands of the executive by making it necessary for the President to get the consent of Congress. The President’s hands wouldn’t be tied. He could still get sanctions. He would simply have to have the agreement of the Congress so that while the President would need the agreement of Congress, his hands would not be tied. He would literally have to shake hands with Congress before he embargoes agriculture or medicine. The amendment would not restrict or alter the President’s current ability to impose broad sanctions with other nations. It certainly does not preclude sanctions on food and medicine. It simply says the President may include food and medicine in a sanction regime, but he must first obtain congressional consent.

We did add a special provision to this amendment with regard to countries that are already sanctioned. For the seven countries under a broad sanction regime today, the bill provides for the President and the Congress some time to review the sanctions on food and medicine on a country-by-country basis. Therefore, the bill would not take effect until 180 days after it is signed by the President. This gives both branches of Government enough time to review current policy and to act jointly, as would be necessary if jointly they were to decide that sanctions against food and medicine should be maintained.

There are some exceptions. If Congress declares war, there is no question about it; the President should have the authority to sanction food and medicine without congressional approval. The President’s authority to cut off food and medicine sales in wartime obviously should exist and would continue to exist.

The bill specifically excludes all dual-use items and products that could be used to develop chemical or biological weapons. There are not many agricultural or medicinal products that have military applications, but the bill provides safeguards to ensure our national security is not harmed.

We made sure that no taxpayer money could be used to subsidize exports to any terrorist governments. We specifically exclude any kind of agricultural credits or guarantees for governments that are sponsors of international terrorism. However, we do allow credit guarantees to be extended to private sector and nongovernmental organizations. This targeted approach helps us show support for the very people who need to be strengthened in these countries, and by specifically excluding terrorist governments, we send a message that the United States will in no way assist or endorse the activities of nations which threaten our interests.
Just last week, the American Farm Bureau and all State farm bureaus across the Nation released an emergency request for $11 billion in emergency funding. I think it is a serious request. It is not a request that I take lightly. We are now considering proposals in the Congress from about $7- to $11 billion. We need to be addressing the emergency needs of farmers, but we also need to reduce our own barriers that our own farmers suffer under such as unilateral agricultural embargoes.

The USDA estimated that there has been a $1.2 billion annual decline in our economy during the mid-1990s as a result of these kinds of embargoes. The National Association of Wheat Growers estimated that sanctions have shut U.S. wheat farmers out of 10 percent of the world's wheat market. The Washington Wheat Commission projects that if sanctions were lifted this year, our wheat farmers could export an additional 4.1 million metric tons of wheat, a value of almost half a billion dollars. The United States sends soybeans to American farmers. American soybean farmers could capture a substantial part of the soybean market in sanctioned countries. For example, an estimated 90 percent of the demand for soybean meal in one country, 60 percent of the demand for soybeans in another. Soybean farmers' income could rise by an estimated $100- to $147 million annually, according to the American Soybean Association.

For us to raise barriers for the freedom of our farmers to market the things they produce and hold them hostage to our foreign policy objectives would require that we could get great foreign policy benefit from these objectives. And there isn't any clear benefit. One of the one of the best studies about agricultural sanctions was the study of our grain embargo against the Soviet Union in the late 1970s. Indeed, there we were upset about activities in the Soviet Union, so we invested we wouldn't sell to the Soviet Union the grain we had agreed to sell to them. It was something like 17 million tons. It turns out that by canceling our agreement the Soviet Union went to the world market, according to the best studies I know of, and they saved $250 million buying grain on the world market instead of buying it from us. So our embargo not only hurt our own farmers but aided the very country to which we had directed our sanction. It seems to me we should not be strengthening our targets when we are weakening American farmers through the imposition of unilateral sanctions on food and medicine—the idea somehow that we allow unilateral sanctions on food and medicine, and it doesn't prohibit them. It simply says that in order for the President to impose them, he would have to gain the consent of the Congress.

I am pleased that there is a long list of individuals who have been willing to cosponsor this amendment with me. Frankly, this amendment is a combination of provisions that were in a measure that were Senator Hagel of Nebraska and I had proposed. We have come together to work on it. Senator Baucus, Senator Roberts, Senator Kerrey of Nebraska, Senator Dodd of Connecticut, Senator Brownback of Kansas, Senator Grams of Minnesota, Senator Warner of Virginia, Senator Leahy of Vermont, Senator Craig of Idaho, Senator Fitzgerald of Illinois, Senator Dorgan, Senator Sessions, Senator Lincoln of Arkansas, Senator Harkin, Senator Conrad, Senator Inhofe and others have been willing to cosponsor this amendment. I think it is an important amendment. I am pleased to have this opportunity to offer the amendment.

I send the amendment to the desk. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Missouri [Mr. Ashcroft], for himself, Mr. Hagel, Mr. Baucus, Mr. Roberts, Mr. Kerrey, Mr. Dodd, Mr. Brownback, Mr. Grams, Mr. Warner, Mr. Leahy, Mr. Craig, Mr. Fitzgerald, Mr. Dorgan, Mr. Sessions, Mrs. Lincoln, Mr. Landrieu, Mr. Inhofe, and Mr. Chafee proposes an amendment numbered S757 to amendment No. 1499.

Mr. Ashcroft. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate Odom of my staff be granted the privilege of the floor during today's session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. Chafee. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be added as a cosponsor of the Ashcroft amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. Kerrey. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the pending amendment regarding agricultural sanctions reform. One only has to run a search for legislation regarding sanctions to see that economic sanctions reform has become a key issue for the 106th Congress. I am pleased to be the cosponsor of several pieces of legislation that seek to address the problem of current U.S. sanctions policies.

In particular, I am pleased to be the cosponsor of Senator Lugar's bill, S. 757, which seeks to create a more rational framework for consideration of future U.S. sanctions. Importantly, this amendment supports the amendment currently pending before the Senate, this is only the first step in addressing economic sanctions reform. It is my hope Congress will continue to work in a bipartisan manner to make our sanctions policy more focused and effective.

I am sure it comes as no surprise to my colleagues from farm states that there is a crisis in rural America. It is a crisis that is threatening the very foundations of family-based agriculture. Export markets have shrunk, commodity prices have plummeted, and rural incomes have decreased at an alarming rate. Yet while this is occurring, both Congress and the President have continued to pursue a foreign policy that places restrictions on our agricultural producers, closes off markets, and lowers the value of commodities.

Too often, we have used the blunt instrument of unilateral economic sanctions—including prohibitions on the sale of U.S. agricultural products—as a simple means to address complex foreign policy problems. These agricultural sanctions end up hurting the most vulnerable in the target country, eroding confidence in the United States as a supplier of food, disrupting our export markets, and placing an unfair burden on America's farmers.

Mr. President, I do not mean to suggest we will bring relief to rural America by simply reforming our sanctions policy. The crisis in agriculture is principally a result of the failure—not of our foreign policy—but of our farm policy. It is time to rewrite the farm bill to safeguard producer incomes and to stop the outmigration from our rural communities. Those who argue sanctions are the sole cause of the problems in agriculture fail to realize the challenges we are facing require a more comprehensive solution. However, while we work to improve farm legislation, we cannot continue to ask our farmers to bear the brunt of U.S. foreign policy decisions.

The amendment we are currently considering would be a positive first step in addressing sanctions reform. Under current law, agricultural and medicinal products may be included under a sanctions package without any special protections against such actions. However, if this amendment is adopted, agricultural products and medicine would be excluded from new unilateral sanctions unless the President submits a report to Congress specifically requesting these products be sanctioned. Congress would then have to approve the request by joint resolution. Furthermore, should an agricultural sanction be imposed, it would automatically sunset after two years. Renewal would require a new request from the President and approval by the Congress.

This amendment undoubtedly sets a high standard for the imposition of unilateral economic sanctions for food and medicine. It is a standard that seeks to end the practice of using food and medicine as a foreign policy weapon at the expense of our agricultural producers.

Mr. President, the strong support we are receiving from commodity groups is a testament to the importance of this amendment to our agricultural producers. Organizations such as the American Soybean Association, the National Corn Growers Association, and the National Association of Wheat Growers—groups that represent America’s farmers—support this amendment because they understand the costs and consequences associated with unilateral economic sanctions.

Mr. President, this measure will help our agricultural producers by returning some common sense to the imposition of U.S. sanctions. I urge my colleagues to join with the cosponsors of this amendment to take the first step toward economic sanctions reform.

Mr. TORRICELLI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the Ashcroft amendment. As every other Member of this institution, I understand the hardship in American agriculture. I know the suffering of American families, and I know something of the problem of the policy. This amendment is based on a false premise. We are telling the American farmer that with all of his problems, a significant difference in his life can be made if only we can stop these sanctions.

It is a false premise. All of these countries combined, their total importation of agricultural products is 1.7 percent of agricultural imports.

So even if they bought nothing from Canada, nothing from Argentina, nothing from Australia, and nothing from Europe, altogether it would be 1.7 percent of imports. What is the potential of those countries that we are being told markets will open by the Ashcroft amendment? How much money is it that these people have to spend to help the American farmer? In North Korea, the total per capita annual income is $480. In Cuba, it is $150.

Mr. President, the American farmer is being told: There is a rescue here for you. Rather than deal with the substantive problems of American agriculture at home, we have an answer for you. We are going to open up importation and export to all these terrorist nations, and that will solve the problem. Really? With $150 in purchasing power in Cuba? The purchasing power for the North Koreans is $480.

The fact of the matter is, to the extent there is any potential in these countries to purchase American agricultural products, the administration has already responded. There may not be much of it, but what there is, we have responded to.

Last week, the administration permitted the limited sale of food and agricultural commodities to these countries by licenses on a country-by-country basis. We did so for a responsible reason. If the North Koreans are going to import American agricultural products, we want to know who is importing them and who is getting them—in other words, that they are going to go to the people of North Korea and not the military of North Korea. If they are going to Cuba, we want to know the Cuban people are getting them, not the Cuban military. The same goes for Iran and Libya.

The potential of what Mr. Ashcroft is asking we have already done but in a responsible way. Indeed, potentially, with Iran, Libya, and Sudan, this could be $2 billion worth of sales to those countries—but ensuring that they go to people—not militaries, not terrorist sects, but the people. Here is an example of the policy the administration has had since May 10 with regard to Cuba. Regulations permit the license and sale of food and commodities on a case-by-case basis if they go to non-governmental, non-religious organizations, private farmers, family-owned businesses. If your intention is to sell food to any of those entities, you can get a license and you can do it. To whom can’t you sell? The Communist Party, the Cuban military, for re-export by the Cuban government for Fidel Castro.

The amendment offered by the Senator from Missouri solves no problem and simply contradicts the administration’s policy of ensuring that this goes to the people we want to be the end users. The same is true in North Korea. Today, the United States is in a humanitarian assistance program to North Korea. Over $459 million worth of food has been donated to North Korea through the World Food Program. UNICEF’s done the same. But we send monitors. When the food arrives in North Korea, we monitor that it is going to the people of North Korea, not the military. We want to know the end users.

The amendment by the Senator from Missouri will be a wholesale change in American foreign policy. Sanctions that have been in place since the Kennedy administration, through Johnson, Nixon, Carter, and Reagan, will be abandoned wholesale—a radical change in American foreign policy.

What are the nations and what are the policies that would be changed? I want my colleagues to walk down memory lane with me. Before you vote to end into a limited amount of American administrations, I want you to understand who will be getting these food exports, without licenses, which are not required to ensure the end users. I cannot be the only person in this institution who remembers Qaddafi’s destruction of an American airliner, his refusal to bring the terrorists to justice who did so to Pan Am 103. We are now in an agreement with Libya to bring those terrorists to trial. Now, in the middle of the trial, while there is no agreement, this amendment would lift the sanctions and allow the exportation of those products.

The Sudan. Sanctions have not been in place long. In an act I am sure my colleagues recall, Mr. bin Laden’s lieutenants plotted and executed the destruction of American embassies in Kenya and Tanzania in August 1998; 224 people were murdered. The administration appropriately responded with sanctions prohibiting the exportation of products of any kind to the Sudan. The amendment of the Senator from Missouri would lift those sanctions.

North Korea. The intelligence community and the Japanese Government have put us on notice that, in a matter of weeks or months, the North Korean Government may test fire an intercontinental long-range missile capable of hitting the United States. We are in discussions with the North Koreans urging them not to do so. We have entered into a humanitarian food program to convince them not to engage in the design or testing of an atomic weapon. The amendment of the Senator from Missouri would negate that program, where we already sell food, knowing its end use and end sanctions.

Iran. The administration has already entered into a program where we can license the exportation of food to Iran if we know its end use. But only this year, the administration again noted that Iran supports terrorist groups responsible for the deaths of at least 12 Americans and has funded a $100 million program to undermine the Middle East peace process, giving direct bilateral assistance to every terrorist group in the Middle East, undermining Israel and America's interest. This is not to say we do not support our friends and disagree with their policies.
August 3, 1999

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE 19141

In October 1997, the United States found that the Cuban Government had murdered four Americans and found them guilty of gross violations of human rights. Last year, 12 Cubans were indicted in Florida for a plot to do a terrorist act against American military facilities in Florida. The United States already licenses food to Cuba, where we know the end use. The amendment of the Senator from Missouri would allow the wholesale exportation of food to Cuba despite these indictments, gross human rights violations, and 30 years of American foreign policy.

I respect the concern of the Senator from Missouri for the American farmer. I understand the plight. But let's deal truthfully with the American farmer, his family, and his plight. The Cuban family who earns $150 a year, through their purchasing power, is not going to save American agriculture. If Cuba was capable of importing food today, they would do so from Argentina, Canada, or Europe. They don't because they can't, because they have no money. The same is true of North Korea. If North Korea had the money to import food, they would do so from every other nation in the world that does not have sanctions on them. They don't because they can't, because they can't afford it, because they have no money. You are making an offer no one can accept—an answer to the American farmer that has no substance. I don't believe there is a single farmer in America who either believes this argument or, even if it would be successful, even if they did have money, would want to buy from the storekeepers who are victims of this kind of terrorism.

I, too, represent an agricultural State. Farmers in the State of New Jersey—the Garden State—are also suffering.

I have yet to find one American farmer—good Americans, patriotic Americans—who believes the answer to their problem is selling Qadhafi products, or the Iranians. American farmers—all of the American people—have long memories.

These people are outliers. Every one of these nations is on the terrorist list. Is our policy to put nations on the terrorist list because they kill our citizens, bomb our embassies, destroy our planes, and then to say: It is outrageous but would you like to do business? Can we profit by you? We know our citizens have been hurt. But, you know, that was yesterday; now we want to make a buck.

Please, my colleagues, don't come to this floor and argue that you are contradicting the foreign policy of Bill Clinton. You are. And you are undermining his negotiations as to the North Korean missile tests and atomic weapons, and you are undermining our efforts to bring people to justice in Libya and for human rights in Cuba. But don't come to this floor and just claim you are undermining Bill Clinton. Half of these sanctions were put in place by Ronald Reagan and George Bush. This is 30 years of American foreign policy with a single vote, with a stroke of a pen, that you would undermine.

Some of you may be prepared to forget some of the things through all of these years. Maybe some of these acts are distant. But my God, Saddan, the destruction of American embassies? Some of these families are still grieving. We haven't even rebuilt the embassies. We are still closing them because of terrorist threats. The man who masterminded it is still being hunted.

The Sudan?

This is our idea of how to correct American foreign policy? My colleagues, I want to see this amendment defeated. But, indeed that is not enough.

If from North Korea to the Sudan to Iran there is a belief that you can just wait the United States out, that we are the kind of people who will forget that quickly, who will profit in spite of these terrible actions against our people, what a signal that is to others. What a signal it is to others who engage in terrorism.

I do not hold a high standard with whom we do business. Business is business. Politics is politics. But there is a point at which they meet. These rogue nations, identified after careful analysis of having engaged in the sponsoring of international terrorism, deserve these sanctions. On a bipartisan basis, we have always given the same sanctions. Don't desert that policy.

Bin Laden in his cave in Afghanistan, Abu Nidal in the Middle East are even now plotting against Israel and the peace process.

I don't know whether the American farmer will know of or appreciate this vote. But I know that in those capitals in those countries where the people committed these acts it will be noted.

This is not a partisan affair. I am very proud that from CONNIE MACK, who has joined this fight for some years, to the distinguished chairman of the committee, Chairman HELMS, to BOB GRAHAM, to our own leadership in HARRY REID, to, indeed, the majority leader, Senator LOTT, they have all joined in defeating this amendment because it is right for American foreign policy.

Let's do justice to the American farmer by dealing with the substantive issues, concerns, and not dealing with other matters. We do nothing by fooling the American farmer. The American farmer stands shoulder to shoulder with every other American against terrorism and the defense of our country and its interests. Mr. President, I yield the Commerce Department.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. HAGEL. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I rise to strongly support this amendment. I am a cosponsor. As Senator ASHCROFT noted, it is the blending of Senator ASHCROFT's bill and my bill that produced this amendment.

This amendment establishes a basic principle: Food and medicine are the most fundamental of human needs and should not be included in unilateral sanctions.

The rate of change in today's world is unprecedented in history. Trade, and particularly trade in food and medicine, is the common denominator that ties together the nations of the world. American exports of food and medicine act to build bridges around the world. It strengthens ties between people and demonstrates the innate goodness and humanitarianism of the American people.

This amendment recognizes that there could be reasons to restrict food and medicine exports and recognizes that, in fact, sometimes unilateral sanctions are in the best interests of this Nation's security. We do not take that ability away from the President of the United States. That is not what this amendment does. We all recognize that there are times when unilateral sanctions should, in fact, be in the arsenal of our foreign policy tools, but it also recognizes that the Congress should have a role in that decision.

This amendment recognizes that there are circumstances where export controls may be necessary, such as in times of war, if it is a dual-use item controlled by the Commerce Department, or if the product could be used in the manufacture of chemical or biological weapons. That is not the debate here. That is not the debate.

But we have had a long and sad history in understanding what unilateral sanctions do to those who impose them. We don’t isolate Cuba. We don't isolate China. We don’t isolate any nation other than our own interests when we say: We will not sell you our grain, our medicines.

Do we really believe that in the world we live in today a nation cannot get wheat from Australia, from Canada, or cannot get soybeans from Brazil? The fact is that the world is dynamic and will always be dynamic.

The challenges change. The solutions to those challenges, the answers to those challenges, must be dynamic as well.

We need to send a strong message to our customers and our competitors around the world that our agricultural producers are going to be consistent and reliable suppliers of quality and plentiful agricultural products.
I heard the discussion on the floor of the Senate today about this amendment—talking about, my goodness, are we going to fix the problems of farmers with this amendment with sanctions reform? No. No, we are not.

But I think it is important we understand that this is connected. This is linked. Trade reform and sanctions reform were, in fact, part of the commitment that this Congress made to our agricultural community in 1996.

We need to lead. We need to be creative. We need to be relevant. We need to connect the challenges with the policy. USDA, for example, reports that the value of agricultural exports this year will drop to $49 billion. That is a reduction from $60 billion just 3 years ago. American agriculture is already suffering from depressed prices and reduced global markets, as we have heard very clearly today, making sanctions reform even more important. Again, let's not blur the lines of this debate.

I noted as well the debate today on the floor regarding the Iranian piece of sanctions reform.

Let's not forget that when America broke diplomatic relations with Iran, Iran was the largest importer of American wheat in the world. I think, as has been noted, Iran this year will import almost $3 billion worth of wheat. Are we talking about just the commercial interests and the agricultural interests of America and national security interests be damned? No, we are not talking about that.

This amendment gives the President the power, when he thinks it is in our national security interests or in our national interests as he defines those through his policy, to impose unilateral sanctions. However, he does it with a Congress as a partner: the Congress has a say when we use unilateral sanctions.

This is not just about doing what is right for the American farmer and rancher, the agricultural producer. This amendment also makes good humanitarian and foreign policy sense. Our amendment will say to the hungry and oppressed of the world that the United States will not make their suffering worse by restricting access to food and medicine.

I have heard the arguments; I understand the arguments. I don't believe I live in a fairyland about where the food goes, where the medicine goes. We understand there always is that issue when we export food, sell food, give food to dictators, to tyrants. We understand realistically where some of that may be placed.

To arbitrarily shut off to the people, the oppressed masses of the world, food, medicine, and opportunities is not smart foreign policy. It is not smart foreign policy. It will make it harder for an oppressive government, the tyrants and dictators, to blame the United States for humanitarian plights of their own people. In today's world, unilateral trade sanctions primarily isolate those who impose them.

For the Senators and many others that Members will hear in comments made yet this afternoon on the floor of the Senate, I strongly encourage my colleagues to take a hard look at what we are doing, what we are trying to do, to make some progress toward bringing a unilateral sanctions policy into a world that is relevant with the borderless challenges of our time. I believe we do protect the national interests of this country, that we sacrifice none of the national interests on behalf of American agriculture. In fact, this amendment accomplishes both.

I yield the floor.

Mr. GRAHAM. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. HAGEL. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. GRAHAM. I am struck with some of the inconsistencies within this amendment. I appreciate my colleague's elucidation as to their significance.

Under “New Sanctions,” it states: . . . the President may not impose a unilateral agricultural sanction or a unilateral medical sanction against a foreign country or a foreign entity for any fiscal year, unless—

And there are certain exceptions. In terms of “new sanctions,” we are speaking as to presidentially imposed.

Under “Existing Sanctions” it says: . . . with respect to any unilateral agricultural sanction or unilateral medical sanction that is in effect as of the date of enactment of this Act for any fiscal year . . .

As my colleague knows, some of the sanctions that would be covered by this existing sanctions language are currently imposed, not presidially imposed.

The question I have is, Why make the distinction for new sanctions, that they must be presidially imposed, assumedly reserving to Congress the right to impose a new sanction? Yet with old existing sanctions, the amendment wipes out both those that were presidially as well as those which had been sanctioned by action of Congress. What is the rationale?

Mr. HAGEL. I will yield to Senator Ashcroft, that is in part of the bill. Our two bills were melded together.

Mr. ASHCROFT. May I respond to the question of the Senator from Florida?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BROWNBACK). The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT. I thank the Senator from Florida for his question.

This bill is to harmonize the regime of potential sanctions and basically requires an agreement by the President and the Congress for any unilateral sanction that would be expressed by this country against exporting agricultural or medicinal commodities to other countries.

This results in having to come back to establish any existing sanctions, and that has been considered in the drafting of this bill. This bill is not to go into effect for 180 days after it is signed by the President, to give time for the consideration of any sanctions that exist in the measure, and if the President and Congress agree that there are additional sanctions to be levied unilaterally against any of these countries, then those can in fact be achieved.

The intention of the bill is to give the Congress and the President the ability to so agree on those issues.

Mr. GRAHAM. To continue my question, I don't think that was quite responsive to the issue I am raising.

Now, a Congress in the future could, the principal argument was that we should not allow the President to unilaterally be imposing these sanctions, and in terms of new sanctions as outlined on page 4, you clearly restrict the application by the President of the prohibition to those that are unilateral.

As it relates to existing sanctions, this language appears to sweep up both sanctions that were unilaterally imposed by the President, such as the one against Sudan last year, as well as those that were imposed by action of Congress, such as the legislation that bears the name of the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee which was adopted some time ago. That was an action which had the support of the Senate, the House of Representatives, and was signed into law by the President of the United States.

Who else does the Senator want to have sanctioned in order to be an effective management of policy of the United States of America?

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, in response to the inquiry of the Senator from Florida, it is clear that the intent of this bill and the language which would be carried forward is that sanctions should be the joint agreement between the Congress and the President. This bill does set aside existing sanctions and establish a singular regime in which sanctions would exist unless another bill or enactment changed that.

I think the Senator from Florida is correct that this measure sets aside existing sanctions and requires that future sanctions, be they initiated by the Congress or by the President of the United States, involve an agreement between the executive and the legislative branches. There is a timeframe
Mr. GRAHAM. Continuing with the question that Senator Ashcroft from Missouri amenable to a modification of this amendment to make the existing sanctions provision on page 5 consistent with the new sanctions standards on page 4?

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I am willing to consider and would like to have an opportunity to discuss that. I am pleased during the course of the debate this evening to see if something can be worked out. If the Senator from Florida believes there is progress to be made in addressing that, we would be pleased to talk about those issues.

Mr. GRAHAM. If I could move to another provision, which is beginning at line 12, we have the “Countries Supporting International Terrorism” section, which requires the following:

This subsection shall not affect the current prohibitions on providing, to the government of any country supporting international terrorism, licenses or export permission, including United States foreign assistance, United States export assistance, or any United States credits or credit guarantees.

What is missing from that set of prohibitions is prohibitions against direct, unaided commercial sales. As I gather from the Senator’s earlier presentation of this amendment, it is his intention that a nonassisted commercial sale between a U.S. entity and one of these terrorist states would be acceptable, i.e., would not be subject to continued prohibitions?

Mr. ASHCROFT. It is our intention, absent an agreement by the President of the United States and the Congress, to embargo such sales. Such entities would be able to use their hard currency to purchase American agricultural or medicinal products. Our underlying reasoning for that is that when these governments invest in soybeans or corn or rice or wheat, they are not buying explosives; they are not repressing their population. As a matter of fact, if we could get them to use all of their currency to buy American farm products instead of buying the capacity to repress their own people or destabilize other parts of the world, we want them to do that. The conspicuous absence here, of course, is that we will not provide credit for them which would release them to spend their hard currency in these counterproductive ways.

So the philosophy of this measure is such that we think any time these people will spend money on food and medicine, they are not spending their resources on other things which are much more threatening, not only to the United States but to the community of nations at large.

Mr. GRAHAM. The concern I have is that what essentially we have, or what the Senator proposes to do—I hope we do not follow this suggestion—is to say, if you are a sufficiently rich terrorist state, you can afford to buy the products without any of the credit or other assistance that is often available in those transactions. If you are rich enough to be able to make the purchase without depending upon that, then these prohibitions that are currently in place—by action of the Congress or action of the President or, in the case of several of these, by action of both the Congress and the President—will not apply. But if you are a poor terrorist country and cannot afford to buy the food unless you have one of these subsidies, then you are prohibited. Is it that a rich terrorist state gets a preference over a poor terrorist state?

Mr. ASHCROFT. No, I do not think so. I really think what we are saying is if you are a terrorist state we would rather have you spend that money on food and medicine than we would have you spend that money on weaponry or destabilizing your surrounding territories. Of course, when you have or do not have, we are willing and pleased to have you spend that to acquire things that will keep you from oppressing individuals.

I suppose you could argue rich terrorist states are going to be better off than poor terrorist states. I think that is something that exists independent of this particular proposal of this particular amendment. Rich nations, be they good, bad or indifferent, generally are better off than poor ones. But I think it is pretty clear that we do not have an intention of saying we are going to take a regime which is in power and we are going to sustain it by allowing it to spend money in other ways. I otherwise be its purchases of food by providing credit so they can then use their hard currency to buy arms or other things that would be repressive.

Our intention is to make sure, if the money is spent, they spend it on food and medicine to the extent we can have them do so.

Mr. GRAHAM. Is it a fair characterization of subsection 4 that commercial sales of food and medicine to a rich terrorist state are acceptable; i.e., would be exempt from the current licensing provisions but humanitarian sales, that is, sales that qualify for one of the various forms of U.S. Government assistance to a poor terrorist state, would continue to be subject to those licensing requirements?

Mr. ASHCROFT. I think one of the things we have sought to do in this legislation is to indicate we are not at war with the people of these regimes. As a matter of fact, these regimes are at war with their people. Our intention is to be able to provide food and medicine to those people because we are not at war with them. As a matter of fact, too frequently their government is.

That means we are willing to sell it to them. We are willing to sell it to nongovernmental organizations, to commercial organizations, even to governments, if the governments will put and remove it. If I find that you have an acceptable indication that we are not against the people of these countries; we are against these countries’ repressive, terrorist ways.

The terror is worse on their own people, in most of these cases. When we align ourselves with the people, align ourselves with the population in terms of their food and in terms of their health care and in terms of their medicine, that is good foreign policy. It shows the United States, while it will not endorse, fund or sustain, creditwise, a terrorist government, is not at war with people who happen to have to sustain the burden of living under a terrorist government.

So, yes, this allows people in those settings to make purchases if they have the capacity to do so. But it does not allow the government to command the credit of the United States, and in our view it should not.

Mr. GRAHAM. So I think the answer to the question is yes. That raises the question: I notice before the amendment was sent to the desk there was a handwritten insertion in the title of the amendment. The original title had said, “to promote adequate availability of food and medicine abroad by requiring congressional approval.” In the handwritten insertion, the prepositional phrase was added so it now reads “promote adequate availability of food and medicine for humanitarian assistance abroad by requiring congressional approval.” It seems actually the substance of the amendment does quite the opposite of the prepositional phrase.

The substance of the amendment says if you are rich enough to be able to buy at commercial standards, you can avoid the necessity of licensing and all of the constraints that have been imposed by action of Congress, action of the President, or both on terrorist states. If you have or a poor terrorist state and have been sanctioned by Congress or the President, or both, and would require some assistance in order to be able to get food, then you are still subject to all of these licensing requirements.

So the actual substance of the amendment is inconsistent with the modification that was made in the title. I suspect I know why that was done.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Let me just say, if it is permissible for me to respond, I thank the Senator from Florida for his careful questioning and the opportunity to make a response. I think this is a very constructive way to handle these issues.

I do not think there is anything that is not humanitarian about allowing nongovernmental organizations, commercial organizations, to buy food so people can eat. I think that is humanitarian. I do not find that to be inconsistent with the title. I do not think in order to have the character of being assistance and humanitarian, they have to be gifts or they have to be credit guarantees. The mere fact that Americans would make possible the sale of vital medicinal supplies and vital food supplies in a world marketplace to people who are hungry and people who need medicinal care is humanitarian.

We do make it possible for certain kinds of nongovernmental organizations and commercial organizations to get credit, but we simply draw a line in extending credit to governments which have demonstrated themselves to be unwilling to observe the rules of human decency and have been perpetrators of international terrorism and partisans of the instability that such terrorism promotes in the world community.

So it is with that in mind that we want people to be able to eat, understanding that the United States is not at war with the people of the world but has very serious disagreements with terrorist governments. We want people to be able to get the right kind of medicinal help, understanding that we are not at war with people who are unhealthy and who need help medically, and understanding that when people get that kind of help, and understand that the United States is a part of it, it can be good foreign policy for the United States.

But we do not believe that addressing the needs of the Government itself, especially allowing them to take their hard currency to buy arms, by our providing them with credit guarantees for their purchase of foodstuffs, would be appropriate.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I appreciate the answers to the questions, and I think the summary of those answers is that we have established an inconsistent policy as between actions of the Congress relative to new sanctions and the existing sanctions.

Second, we have established a policy that, if you are a rich terrorist state and have the money to buy food at straight commercial standards, you can do so; if you are a poor terrorist state that would require the access to some of these various trade assistance programs, then you cannot buy American food.

I do not believe this is an amendment that, once fully understood, the Members of the Senate will wish to be associated with.

Mr. MACK addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from the great State of Florida, Mr. MACK.

Mr. MACK. I thank the Chair.

First, I want to address a point that was made a few moments ago, an argument that went something like this: If we were to open up our markets, that action would, in essence, allow terrorists or countries to buy more food products. I just fundamental things.

I think in fact they are buying all of the product that they can afford to buy now. And I would make the case that if they buy the product from us at a cheaper price because of it being subsidized, we are in fact subsidizing them. So I just fundamentally disagree with where the proponents of this amendment are going.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. MACK. Sure.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Is it the Senator’s belief that somehow all our agricultural products are subsidized; therefore, it would be cheaper than the world market price?

Mr. MACK. I say to my colleague who has raised this question that I do find it strange that at just the time when Members are coming to the floor and asking the American taxpayer to come to the aid of the American farmer, they are at the same time asking us to lift sanctions to allow them to sell products to terrorist states.

I think, in fact, there is a connection between what is happening today—that is, some $6–$7 billion, depending on what this bill finally turns out to produce, $3–$9 billion in aid to American farmers, just after a few months ago with the additional aid to the American farmer—that you would find it appropriate to say to the American taxpayer: Now that you have given us this aid, we would like to have permission to sell our product to terrorist countries. I just find that unsupportable.

I thank the Senator for raising the question.

Mr. ASHCROFT. That is not the question I raise. But if I may ask, the Senator’s answer, then, is that he thinks what we are talking about in disaster assistance to farmers in this aid is a subsidy that would allow us to sell below world market prices, and that is why we will not do that?

Mr. MACK. It clearly is a subsidy to the American farmer. What kind of effect it will have on the world price I do not think I can qualify to say. But it seems to me it is clear that if in fact there is a subsidy being received by the American farmer, that farmer could sell the product at a lower price.

I thank the Senator for his question.

Mr. President. I oppose trade with tyrants and dictators, and I emphatically oppose subsidized trade with terrorist states. Again, make no mistake, that is exactly what this amendment does.

Specifically, with my colleagues from New Jersey, and the distinguished chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, we oppose the amendment to prevent any action by this body to limit the President of the United States’ ability to impose sanctions on terrorist states.

Today’s debate typifies one such moment. The poster which has been shown on this floor indicates the issue before us. For more than a century, the United States has stood that the United States is a part of the human community.

Such terrorism promotes in the world community. Such terrorism promotes the instability that undermines the very values we stand for—values of human decency and have been perpetrating these values. The United States supports terror. But what about America’s real strength comes not from its status as a superpower but from the principles and policies on which it was founded.

Throughout its history, your country has been a beacon of hope for the oppressed and the needy, a source of inspiration for the creative, the courageous and the achieving. It has always been, and may it ever remain, the land of the free and the home of the brave.

We are a nation founded on principles—the principles of freedom, liberty, and the respect for human dignity. And our commitment to these principles gives us our real strength today. It is that simple.

I began this statement by posing a question on freedom versus terror. We know, even take for granted, the answer to that question—the United States opposes terror. But what about the strength or our commitment to these principles? On occasion, a short-term crisis can blind us—cause us to lose sight of our values and their importance to who we are and from where we derive our strength.

Today’s debate typifies one such moment. The poster which has been shown on this floor indicates the issue before us with respect to terrorist nations and their leaders—Gadhafi, Castro, and others.

In exchange for very limited market expansion, some would take away the President’s authority to restrict trade with terrorist regimes—six countries whose combined markets represent a mere 1.7 percent of global agricultural imports; yet these minor importers perpetrate or harbor those who...
commit the world’s greatest acts of terror.

Some would have us open trade in agricultural products with these terrorists—in effect placing our principles up for sale. So what is the strength of our commitment to these principles? If we are to choose freedom over terror, what price should we expect to pay? There can be no doubt in anyone’s mind the value of our commitment to freedom certainly exceeds the U.S. share of 1.7 percent of the world’s agriculture market.

But for those who may actually find this less clear than I do, it gets easier. The request by those who wish to trade with terrorists gets more extreme. With this amendment to language providing subsidies of U.S. agriculture, we are in effect being asked to subsidize global terrorism. The proponents of this amendment are asking the taxpayers of the United States to subsidize American farmers, who will then sell to terrorist states.

The United States must not subsidize terrorist regimes. I find it unconscionable that we would even consider such a proposal. When two countries engage in a trade, even if just one commodity is being exported, both countries benefit from the exchange. So by opening agricultural exports to Iran, Sudan, Cuba, Iraq, Libya, and North Korea, we are offering direct support to the regimes in power. If they chose to purchase from the United States, they would be doing so because they see it as being in their best interest. Their benefit would be greater in this case because the products sold to terrorists would be subsidized by the U.S. taxpayer.

Terrorism poses a direct threat to the United States. The terrorist threat was considerable during the cold war when the Soviet Union and its allies often backed movements or governments that justified the use of terror. The threat is even greater today, when chemical or biological weapons, no bigger than a suitcase, can bring death and devastation to tens of thousands of people. The deaths in the World Trade Center bombing or in Pan Am 103 remind of us what terrorism can produce. Another important reminder is the image of American humanitarian aircraft being blown out of the sky by Cuban Air Force MiG fighters in the Florida Straits. We are moving from a world where terrorists use dynamite or rifles to one where they may use a weapon of mass destruction. The world today is more dangerous in many ways than it was 10 years ago, and the form of that danger is terrorism, which makes it even more dangerous for the United States to engage in trade with terrorist states.

So where does this leave us? With this simple principle—the United States must not trade with any nation that supports terrorism in any way, directly or indirectly. We must insist that there can be no business-as-usual approach to nations that threaten our national interests and values.

We are well aware of the counterarguments. If we don’t sell, some other country will, so what is the point? Or why not sell food? You can’t turn wheat into a bomb, can you? Well, maybe not, but it is possible for a government that supports terror to use our food exports to win popular support, and it is possible to use the money saved by purchasing subsidized American goods for yet more terror.

We can all agree that the United States must stand for freedom and against terror, and I hope the strength of our commitment to this principled stand runs deep. Today we are being asked how deeply are we committed to defend the principles with which our principles provide the real source of America’s strength. If we are serious about battling terrorism, there can be no compromise with terror and no trade with terrorist nations.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. FITZGERALD. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I am proud to rise in support of Senator ASHCROFT’s amendment, of which I am a cosponsor. Before getting into the specifics of Senator ASHCROFT’s amendment, I want to lay the table a little bit by describing what I have heard in the agricultural community in my State and to talk for a moment about a farm rally that I attended last Saturday in Plainfield, IL. At that rally, which was held on the Schulman farm, there were more than 500 farmers, not just from Illinois but from all over the country. There were farmers from as far away as Washington State and from Oklahoma and from the Southern and Eastern States as well.

The one message I heard, talking to the farmers, not just those from Illinois but those from all across the country, was that there is a severe crisis in agriculture right now. Crop prices are at almost record low levels, if you consider the effect of inflation. The prices are low not just for corn and soybeans but also for hogs and wheat, and the list goes on.

On top of that, we are seeing a trade situation now in which the countries in the European Union, to whom we used to export large amounts of our grain and livestock products, are, with increasing frequency, raising not just tariff barriers to the importation of American agricultural goods but also nontariff barriers, high pseudoscientific trade barriers, objections to the safety of our food, objections for which very few in the scientific community have said there is any basis.

Also we have seen a slump in the economy in Asia. The near depression in Asia in the last year has caused a severe drop-off in the amount they are importing from the United States and from our farmers in this country. On top of that, as was said earlier today, some parts of our country are experiencing drought, other parts floods. Farmers have complaints, as we all know, about the tax code and its consequences that are particularly felt by family farmers who can’t deduct health insurance, for example, who have a very hard time meeting the obligations of the death tax, which taxes their family farms at 55 and, in some cases, 60 percent of their value when a farmer dies.

I am very pleased that Senator COCHRAN and the Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittee have cosponsored. I am rising to address the short term. Mr. President, I think it is very important that we think about long-term solutions for the farm crisis in this country so that we don’t have to come back every year and face ongoing crises year after year. Perhaps the best thing we can do for the long-term survival and success of our American farmers is to improve the trade climate.

Several years ago, we passed the Freedom to Farm Act. The farmers in my State of Illinois frequently say: You gave us the freedom to farm, but you didn’t give us the freedom to trade. What good is that freedom to farm, that freedom to plant all the acres we choose, if we don’t have the freedom to sell our products abroad as we need?

So I think it is very important that we work on a variety of fronts in the trade area. I favor fast track trade negotiating authority for our President. I think that normal trade relations with China would help our farmers. Accession of China into the WTO would be helpful. Agriculture needs a seat at the table trade talks in the negotiations for the Seattle round of the multilateral trade negotiations. We need to have representatives from the USDA right there with Charlene Barshefsky when we are negotiating trade issues next fall. We also need strong enforcement of WTO trade disputes and, of course, open access for our GMO food products in Europe.

One step toward improving the trade climate for our Nation’s farmers is the pending amendment that Senator ASHCROFT and I and a number of my colleagues have cosponsored. I am rising today to support that amendment to exempt food and medicine from unilateral sanctions. Unilateral sanctions on food and agricultural products clearly hurt American agriculture... more than anyone else. The target country simply buys its food from someone else and then sells it, leaving the money in our farmers' pockets. When the U.S. Government decides to sanction food and agriculture, it simply tells our international competitors to produce more to meet the excess international demand. Once American agriculture loses these markets to our foreign competitors, our reputation then as a reliable supplier is tarnished, making it difficult for us to regain these markets for future sales.

Our agricultural trade surplus totaled $272 billion just 3 years ago in 1996. But this year, the U.S. Department of Agriculture projects that our ag trade surplus will have dwindled to approximately $12 billion. Reversing this downward trend in the value of our export earnings so that there are escape hatches that, if included in severe cases, the President, working with Congress, can, if he absolutely believes it necessary, go forward and with Congress, can, if he absolutely be ASHCROFT has crafted this amendment in support of the amendment offered by the President from Missouri, Mr. ASHCROFT. I have listened to the arguments of both sides to this point and have found them interesting. I certainly join Senator FITZGERALD in noting that Illinois is a great agricultural State. I have visited that State regularly over the past several months, including Monday, in Lincoln, IL, meeting with farmers who are, in fact, suffering from perhaps one of the worst price depressions that they have witnessed in decades. They need help. That is why the underlying question of unilateral sanctions appropriations bill, and the emergency bill that is part of it, is so important.

It has been portrayed during the course of this debate that addressing the question of unilateral sanctions involving food and medicine exports from the United States will be of some assistance to the farmers. I think that is possible. But I have to concede that the countries we are talking about are generally small as to not have a major impact on the agricultural exports of the United States.

I believe the Senator from New Jersey, who opposes this amendment, mentioned that we are talking about a potential export of 1.7 percent of our entire agricultural budget. That is not the kind of infusion of purchasing in our agricultural economy that will turn it around. So I don't believe this amendment, in and of itself, is a major agricultural amendment, although it clearly will have some impact on agriculture. But I do believe it stands for a proposition that is worth supporting. Let me tell you why.

First, I believe that we have learned over the course of recent history that unilateral sanctions by the United States just don't work. When we decide on our own to impose sanctions on a country, it is usually because we are unhappy with their conduct, so we will stop trade or impose some sort of embargo to show our displeasure. You can understand that because some of the actions we have responded to were horrendous and heinous. The bombings of embassies and other terrorist acts raise the anger of the American people, and through their elected representatives, we respond with sanctions. That is understandable, and it is a natural human and political reaction.

I think we would have to concede that over time those unilateral sanctions have very little impact on the targeted country. In the time I have served on Capitol Hill, about 17 years, I can only think of one instance where the imposition of sanctions had the desired result, and that, of course, was in the case of South Africa. It was not a unilateral sanction by the United States. We were involved in multilateral sanctions with other countries against the apartheid regime in South Africa, and we were successful in changing that regime. But as you look back at the other countries we have imposed unilateral sanctions on, with the United States standing alone, you can hardly point to similar positive results. So I think we have learned a lesson well that merely imposing those sanctions alone seldom accomplishes the goals that we seek.

I applaud the Senator from Missouri for making those provisions. It gives any administration the wherewithal to impose unilateral sanctions under specific situations. Of course, if there is a declaration of war, and usually if the President comes to Congress and asks that we impose sanctions for products which may in and of themselves be dangerous, such as high technology and the like, products which have been identified by the Department of Commerce as being dangerous to America's best interests.

I applaud the amendment to suggest that if we are not dealing with extraordinary cases, we should basically be willing to sell food and medicine to countries around the world.

I have found it interesting that my colleagues who oppose this amendment have come to the floor to describe these potential trading partners as tyrants, dictators, and terrorist states. One of the Senators came to the floor with graphic presentations of some of the dictators in these countries. Not a single person on the floor this evening would make any allowance for the terrible conduct by some of these terrorist regimes. But I must remind my colleagues, it was during the course of this debate that, after World War II, we were engaged in a cold war that went on for almost five decades, which involved the Soviet Union and China. During that cold war, some terrible things occurred involving those countries and the United States.

We expended trillions of dollars defending against the Soviet Union and trying to stop the expansion of communism. We decided they were our major target, and we sanctioned countries involve in the Senate and in the House were predicated on whether or not we were stopping, or in any way aiding, the growth of communism.
August 3, 1999

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE 19147

Despite this cold war's intensity, which more or less monopolized foreign relations in the United States for half of this century, we found ourselves during that same period of time trading and selling food to Russia, the Soviet Union, and selling foodstuffs to China and other countries. I guess we adopted the premise that former Senate Majority Leader Hubert Humphrey used to say should guide us when it comes to this economy. We asked him whether he would sell food to the Communists and he said, "I will sell them anything they can't grow back at home." That point was a practical viewpoint that, when it gets down to it, we are not the sole suppliers of food in the world. For us to cut off food supplies to any given country is no guarantee they will starve. In fact, they can turn to other resources. So I have to say to us we should impose unilateral sanctions on a country such as Cuba, I think, have forgotten the lesson of history that, not that long ago, we were selling wheat -- a time when we were at the height of the cold war. I think that is a lesson in history to be remembered.

The second question is whether or not we should, as a policy, exempt food and medicine when it comes to any sanctions. I believe that is the grave men of the amendment offered by the Senator from Missouri. I think he is right. I say to those who believe that by imposing unilateral sanctions involving the sale of food and medicine from the United States on those dictatorial regimes we will have some impact, please take a look at the pictures of the dictators that you presented for us to view this evening.

Now, I must say I have been watching Mr. Castro in the media for over 40 years and I don't see him thin and emaciated or malnourished. He seems to be finding food somewhere, as do many other people in states where we have our differences. But I do suspect that when you get closer to the real people in these countries, you will find they are the ones who are disadvantaged by these sanctions on food and medicine.

Let me tell you, there was a report issued 2 years ago by the American Association for World Health, "Denial of Food and Medicine: The Impact of the U.S. Embargo on Health and Nutrition in Cuba." It concluded that:

The U.S. embargo of Cuba has dramatically harmed the health and nutrition of large numbers of ordinary Cubans.

The report went on to say:

The declining availability of foodstuffs, medicines, and such basic medical supplies as replacement parts for 30-year-old x-ray machines are tragic human toll. The embargo has closed so many windows that, in some instances, Cuban physicians have found it impossible to obtain life-saving machines from any source under any circumstances. Patients have died.

I quote from a letter I received from Bishop William Purcell from the Diocese of Chicago who told me his experience in visiting villages.

He was especially struck by the impact of the American embargo on people's health. We saw huge boxes of expired bill samples in a hospital. Other than those, the shelves of the pharmacy were almost bare. We talked with patients waiting for surgeons who could not be operated upon because their X-ray machines from Germany had broken down. A woman was choking from asthma from lack of inhaler.

I hope you will pay particular attention to this. The bishop says:

At the AIDS center, plastic gloves had been washed and hung on a line to dry for reuse. The examples of people directly suffering from the impact of our government's policy after all of these years was sad and embarrassing to see.

That was in the letter he sent me. But many other religious groups in the United States have reached the same conclusion. The U.S. Catholic Conference and others have termed our policy with Cuba "morally unacceptable." I don't come to the floor today in any way apologize or defend the policies of Fidel Castro in Cuba or for shooting the plane down in 1997. That was a savage, barbaric act. No excuse can be made for that type of conduct. But when we try to focus on stopping the conduct of leaders such as Castro by imposing sanctions that embargo food and medicine, I don't think we strike at the heart of the leadership of these countries. Instead, we strike at poor people--poor people who continue to suffer.

Many folks on this floor will remember the debate just a few weeks ago when we were shocked to learn that India and Pakistan had detonated nuclear devices. This was a game change in the balance of power in the world, with two new entries in the nuclear club. Countries which we suspected were developing nuclear weapons had in fact detonated them to indicate that our fears were real.

Under existing law, we could have imposed sanctions on India and Pakistan at that time to show our displeasure. We did not. We made a conscious decision to vote in the Senate not to do that. We concluded, even at the risk of nuclear war in the subcontinent, that it was not in our best interests or smart foreign policy to impose these sanctions.

So you have to ask yourself, why do we continue to cling to this concept? Why do we continue to subject the people of Cuba to the embargo? We have learned the lesson from the agricultural crisis that faces America but, from my point of view, a much more sensible approach to a foreign policy goal which all Americans share.

Let us find ways to punish the terrorists and punish those guilty of wrongdoing. But let us not do it at the expense of innocent people, whether they are farmers in the United States or populations overseas which are the unwitting pawns in this foreign policy game.

I support this amendment. I hope my colleagues will join in that effort.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER: The Senator from Connecticut is recognized.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I thank the Chair.

I join with my colleague, Senator Ashcroft, and others in urging the adoption of this amendment with respect to exempting exports of food and medicine from U.S. sanctions regimes.

Mr. President this amendment is quick, simple, and straight forward—it would exempt donations and sales of food, other agricultural commodities, medicines and medical equipment from being used as an economic weapon in conjunction with the imposition of unilaterally imposed economic sanctions.

Since last year, we have heard about the serious economic crisis that confronts America's heartland and is bankrupting American farm families. Not only do American farm families have to worry about weather and other natural disasters which threaten their livelihood. They also must worry about actions of their own government which can do irreparable harm to the farm economy by closing off markets to American farm products because we happen to dislike some foreign government official or some policy action that has been taken. Time and time again unilateral sanctions on agricultural products have cost American farmers important export markets. Time and time again the offending official remains in power or the offensive policy goes into effect.

On July 23 of last year, President Clinton stated that ‘food should not be used as a tool of foreign policy except under the most compelling circumstances.’ On April 28 of this year, the Clinton Administration took some long overdue steps toward bringing U.S. practice in this area into conformity with the President’s pronouncement. It announced that it would reverse existing U.S. policy of prohibiting sales of food and medicine to Iran, Libya, and Sudan—three countries currently on the terrorism list.

In announcing the change in policy, Under Secretary of State Stuart Eizenstat stated that President Clinton had finally recognized what we determined some time ago, namely that ‘sales of food, medicine and other human necessities do not generally enhance a nation’s military capability or its ability to support terrorism.’

I am gratified that the administration has finally recognized what we determined some time ago, namely that ‘sales of food, medicine and other human necessities do not generally enhance a nation’s military capacities or support terrorism.’ On the contrary, funds spent on agricultural commodities and products are not available for other, less desirable uses.

Regrettably, the Administration did not include Cuba in its announced policy changes. It seems to me terribly inconsistent to say that it is wrong to deny the children of Iran, Sudan and Libya access to food and medicine, but it is all right to deny Cuban children—living ninety miles from our shores, similar access. The administration’s rationale, including the particulars, is rather confused. The best I can discern from the conflicting rationale for not including Cuba in the announced policy changes was that policy toward Cuba has been established by legislation rather than executive order, and therefore should be changed through legislative action.

I disagree with that judgement. However, in order to facilitate the lifting of such restrictions on such sales to Cuba, and to prevent such sanctions from being introduced against other countries in the future, I have joined with Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering the Senators Ashcroft, Hagel, Roberts, Leahy and others in offering.
That is why I hope my colleagues will support this amendment and restrict future efforts to water down its scope.

The United States stands alone among all of the nations of the world as an advocate for respecting the human rights of all peoples throughout the globe. In my view denying access to food and medicine is a violation of international recognized human rights and weakens the ability of the United States to advocate what is otherwise a very principle position on this issue. It is time to return U.S. policy to the moral high ground.

Mr. President, I commend my colleague from Missouri, Mr. Ashcroft, and Senator Hagel, Senator Fitzgerald, Senator Craig, Senator Lincoln, Senator Conrad, Senator Brownback, and the President Pro Tempore, Senator Warner, and all of the others who are cosponsors of this amendment. It is a very solid, thoughtful, precise amendment that principally, of course, allows us to be involved as a legislative branch if unilateral sanctions are going to be imposed. That is not a radical idea. We have seen the effects of the importance and the significance of unilateral sanctions.

Certainly those who represent the farm community can speak not just theoretically about this but in practice as to the damage that can be done. It certainly is hard enough to have to face weather conditions, drought, and floods. But when you have to also face unilateral decisions that deny your community the opportunity to market in certain areas, that can make the life of a farm family even more difficult.

I happen to agree with my colleague from Illinois, Senator Durbin, and others who believe that if we are truly interested in creating change, it is not in the interest of our own nation to take actions which would deny innocent people—be they the 11 million innocent people who live 90 miles off our shore in Cuba, or in other nations—the opportunity to benefit from the sale of medicine and food supplies that can improve the quality of their life.

It is radical, in my view, to impose that kind of a sanction, particularly unilaterally. That is not my America. My America is a bigger, a larger country, which has stood as a symbol of understanding, of human decency, and of human kindness, even with adversaries that have taken the lives of our fellow citizens—in a Vietnam, in a Germany, in other nations around the globe. My America, a big America, at the end of the day will not be about denying people in these nations to get them back on their feet again.

Today, I say to you that in these countries around the globe that still, unfortunately and regrettably, use the power of their institutions to impose human rights violations, we will do everything in our power to change these governments but we will not deny these people food and we will not deny them medicines through sales.

That is what Senator Ashcroft, Senator Hagel, and others are trying to achieve. I think it is a noble cause and one we ought to bring Democrats and Republicans together on in common effort and in common purpose to change the policies of Fidel Castro, the leader of Sudan, or Iran, or Libya. It says that when unilateral sanctions are being imposed, we ought to have some say in all of that, and we don’t believe generally that the imposition of unilateral sanctions, except under unique circumstances which the Senator from Missouri and his cosponsors have identified in this bill, ought to deny people in these countries—the average citizen—the benefit of our success in food and medicine. I applaud them for their efforts. I am delighted to be a cosponsor of their amendment.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. Graham. Thank you very much, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I rise in strong support for the Ashcroft food and medicine sanctions reform amendment. While I would prefer this amendment addressed all unilateral sanctions, not just food and medicine, I support the amendment as a good start to reforming our sanctions policy. As a cosponsor of the Lugar Sanctions Reform Act, I believe it is long overdue that the administration and the Congress think before we sanction.

It makes no sense to punish the people of a country with which we have a dispute. Denying food and medicine does nothing to penalize the leaders of any country. Government leaders can always obtain adequate food and medicine, but people suffer under these sanctions, whether they are multilateral or unilateral. Those two areas should never be a part of any sanction.

At the same time our farmers suffer from the lingering effects of the Asian financial crisis as well as those in other areas of the world, we either have, or are debating, sanctions that further restrict markets for our farmers and medical supply companies. And denies that food and medical supplies to some of the world’s most needy.

I need not remind any of you that we are still experiencing the aftermath of the Soviet grain embargo of the late 1970’s when the United States earned a reputation as an unreliable supplier.

Another example of how we have harmed our farmers is the Cuban embargo. For 40 years this policy was aimed at removing Fidel Castro—yet he is still there. This is a huge market for midwestern farmers, yet it is shut off to us. Because Cuba has fiscal problems, many of its people are experiencing hardship. Those who have relationships with Cuban-Americans receive financial support, but those who don’t need access to scarce food and medical supplies. This bill does not aid the government, as U.S. guarantees can only be provided through NGO’s and the private sector not armies, not to terrorists. Currently, donations are permitted, as well as sales of medicine, but they are very bureaucratically difficult to obtain, and they don’t help everyone. Our farmers are in a good position to help and they should be allowed to do so.

I applaud Senators Ashcroft and Hagel for their work to ensure farmers and medical companies will not be held hostage to those who believe sanctions can make a difference. Any administration would have to get congressional approval for any food and medicine sanction. This is our best opportunity to help farmers and provide much-needed food supplies to the overage people in these countries, and to show the world we are reliable suppliers. I urge the support of my colleagues for this long overdue amendment. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ald). The Senator from Florida.

Mr. Graham. Mr. President, it is my intention to raise a point of order. Before I do so, I will provide some context.

We have entered into a unanimous consent agreement to govern the disposition of this legislation. That unanimous consent agreement states that during the consideration of the agricultural appropriations bill, when the Democratic leader or his designate offers an agricultural relief amendment, no rule XVI point of order lie against the amendment or amendments thereto relating to the same subject.

The question is, Does this amendment to the amendment offered by the Republican leader relating to agricultural relief constitute an amendment relating to the same subject? Let me anticipate what might be considered by the Parliamentarian.
In the underlying amendment, there is reference made to two agricultural programs: The Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 and section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949. Both of those statutes are again referenced in the amendment that has been offered by the Senator from Missouri.

Where are they offered in the amendment offered by the Senator from Missouri? They are offered in the section of the amendment which is the definition section, so they are stated to be agricultural programs and then listed in the definition section.

I can find no other reference to those specific statutes other than in the definition section, raising the question as to whether they were inserted in the definition section in order to attempt to override commercial sales that are rendered acceptable by this amendment.

Every beyond that, I point out on page 6, in one of the most significant provisions of this amendment, the provision that relates to countries supporting international terrorism, the only potential relevance of defining those pieces of legislation is to exclude them from the operation of this amendment. So they are put in the definition section so they can be removed from the operation of this amendment on page 6. Clearly, in my opinion, that is a spurious attempt to gain the advantage of the unanimous consent agreement.

One final point. During the colloquy I had with the Senator from Missouri, I think he was quite candid in saying that the purpose of that support for the international terrorism section was to draw a distinction between commercial sales of agricultural and medical products, which were approved under this amendment, could be made without any of the existing conditions such as a license, and sales that were made on a humanitarian basis through one of these various U.S. trade or export of agricultural products provisions which continued to be prohibited.

We have the ironic circumstance that the humanitarian provision is prohibited but commercial sales are rendered acceptable by this amendment.

Yet in the headline, the footnote, the summary of this amendment, by a handwritten insertion, the prepositional phrase is inserted which says “for humanitarian assistance.” The purpose of inserting that specific reference is clearly just to establish the most tenuous connection to the underlying bill and to attempt to create the facade that this amendment has something to do with humanitarian assistance, where, by the very description of the Senator from Missouri, it is for commercial, not assisted humanitarian agricultural, sales.

Mr. President, with that description of what I think the amendment is, what the underlying amendment and what the purpose of the unanimous consent agreement was, was a narrow exception for agricultural relief amendments and amendments to that amendment which related to the same subject, since this fails to meet that standard, I raise the point of order under rule XVI that this amendment constitutes, clearly, explicitly, legislation on an appropriations bill and therefore, under rule XVI, is out of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The agreement precludes making a point of order for an amendment that is considered relevant. This is considered a relevant amendment.

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, inasmuch as the amendment of the Senator from Missouri, however well intentioned, would have the effect of lifting restrictions on trade with terrorist states or governments and would allow trade with the coercive elements of these repressive, hostile, regimes, I move to table the amendment and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion. The yeas and nays have been ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from New Mexico (Mr. DOMENICI) is necessarily absent.

Mr. REID. I announce that the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 28, nays 70, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 251 Leg.]

YEAS—28

Bryan Bunning
Byrd
Byrd (covered) DeWine
Graham
Gramm
Gregg
Helms Kohl
Robb Santorum
Sarbanes
Smith (NJ)
Snowe
Stevens
Thompson
Thurmond
Torricelli

NAYS—70

Abraham
Akaka
Allard Ashcroft
Baucus
Bayh
Bennett Biden Bingaman
Bond Breaux
Brownback
Burns
Campbell
Chafee
Cleland
Cochran
Coons Cosby
Craig
Craig
Dodd Dorgan Durbin
Edwards
Edward Ezzi
Feingold
Feinstein
Fitzgerald
Frist Gorton
Graves
Grassley
Hagel
Harkin
Hatch
Hollings
Hutchinson
Hutchison
Inhofe
Ivies
Johnson Keyes Landrieu

The motion was rejected.

Mr. COCHRAN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LOTT. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, I rise today as an individual who has spent his entire life involved in agriculture. I am extremely concerned about the current state of the agricultural economy. Farmers and ranchers in my state of Montana and across America cannot afford another year of zero profit. Price declines for agricultural commodities have had a devastating impact on agricultural producers in Montana and the economy of the entire state, which depends so heavily on agriculture. The farmers and ranchers in Montana have suffered too much already. With continued low prices, many agricultural producers have been forced to sell their farms and ranches, and many have spent their entire lives working.

They seem to have all the cards stacked against them. Agricultural producers face high numbers of imports as well as a downward trend in demand for their product. Further, the world market is not providing adequate opportunities for international trade. The European Union continues to place non-scientific trade barriers on U.S. beef as well as bans on Genetically Modified grain products. Asia, usually a strong export market, continues to recover from the economic flu and many of our other trade partners have been subjected to sanctions by this administration. Additionally, the value of beef and grain imports have decreased dramatically as a percent of the world market.

Montana may not be able to survive another year of this economic plight. If market prices continue to go down as they have, I am fearful that more farmers and ranchers will be forced out of business. If a drastic measure is not passed in Congress this year, I don’t know how much longer the agricultural community can persevere.

As I said before, the impact is not limited to those working the fields or raising livestock. Look at Main Street, Rural America. The agricultural economy is so bad that other businesses are falling as well. And not just agribusiness. No longer is it just the livestock feed store or seed companies that are falling due to the economic crunch. It reaches much further. All kinds and types of businesses are feeling the depressed agricultural economy. Montana is ranked in the bottom five per capita income by state, in the nation. Ironically, I also read recently that Montana is ranked a nationwide poll as the 7th most desirable place to live in America. That won't be the case much longer if we can't return more of the economic dollar to the agricultural producer. Montana is a desirable place to live because of agriculture. Without the wheat fields and grazing pastures, Montana loses its very being. Without the return of more of the economic dollar to the agricultural producer there will be no more farming or ranching and consequently no more wheat fields or pastures to graze livestock. I have used the comparison before of the agricultural producer drowning. I believe he is. The way I see it, the farmer is drowning in a sea of debt and many, if not most, of our Customs, I will vote to send lifeboats. The problem is, that once the producer makes it into the boat he never makes it to shore. He just keeps paddling trying to keep his head above water, and waiting for the next blow.

I want the farmer to get back to land and on his feet. We have to provide them the oars to get to shore and then keep them out of the water. I would like to see a strong agriculture assistance package passed and then a base for long-term benefits, in the form of laws on country of origin labeling, crop insurance reform and mandatory price reporting.

My Montana farmers and ranchers need help now. They need a package that provides solid short-term assistance. They need AMTA payments at 100% to bring the price of wheat per bushel to a price that will allow them to meet their cost-of-production. Additionally; they need funding for specialty crops, dairy and livestock. I don’t agree with many of the provisions included in the Democratic package. Funding for cotton and peanuts does not help my agricultural producers. Neither does $300 million for the Step 2 cotton program. These provisions bump the price tag up significantly and seem to help other areas of the country more than the Northwest. However, all agriculture is in dire straits. Montana needs funding and they need it now. Thus, I will vote for the package that gets that money to my producers as quickly as possible.

I believe that AMTA is the most effective way to distribute the funding that grain producers need. The Republican package contains 100% AMTA payments, which will bring the price of wheat up to $3.84. It also contains important provisions for specialty crops, lifts the LDP cap and encourages us to be more aggressive in strengthening mutual negotiations authority for American agriculture.

Freedom to Farm needs a boost. It is a good program, but simply cannot provide for the needs of farmers and ranchers during this kind of economic crunch. From 1995 to 1999, $50.9 billion have been distributed as direct payments. This tells us that commodity prices are not going up. Farmers and ranchers are not doing better on their net income sheets.

We need to let Freedom to Farm work. I believe it will. When more of the economic dollar is returned to the producer and when the farmer or rancher receives a price for commodities that meet the cost-of-production. For now, we must keep the agricultural producer afloat. An assistance measure which will provide them a means to stay in business at a profitable level is the only way to do that this year.

Mr. McCaIN. Mr. President, as I travel around the country, I see the devastation caused by the ongoing drought in many sections of the country. Crops are stunted and dying, fields are dusty, streams and lakes are drying up. Many farmers are still reeling from the effects of last year’s Asian economic crisis. Only some form of assistance is needed to prevent the demise of more of America’s family farms, and I support efforts to provide needed government aid to farmers and their families.

Both pending proposals specify that aid to farmers is to be considered emergency spending, which is not counted against the budget caps. Mr. President, again, I recognize the dire circumstances that have many Americans in the agriculture industry facing economic ruin. However, this year, the Senate has approved appropriations bills containing $7.9 billion in wasteful and unnecessary spending. Surely, among these billions of dollars, there are at least a few programs that the country can do without more than desperately needed aid for America’s farmers.

My colleagues should be aware that every dollar spent above the budget caps is a dollar that comes from the budget surplus. This year, the only surplus is in the Social Security accounts, so this farm aid will be paid for by further exacerbating the impending financial crisis in the Social Security Trust Funds. And every dollar that is spent on future emergencies comes from the surplus we just promised last week to return to the American people in the form of tax relief. It is the same surplus that we have to use to shore up Social Security and Medicare, and begin to pay down the national debt.

Unfortunately, though, it seems to be easier to slap on an emergency designation, rather than try to find lower priority spending cuts as offsets.

Once again, Mr. President, Congress is again engaging in the usual opportunistic approach to any disaster or emergency—adding billions of dollars in non-emergency spending and policy proposals to the emergency farm aid proposals.

The competing amendments pending before the Senate contain provisions that provide special, targeted relief to dairy producers and the agricultural community. For example, in addition to the billions of dollars of assistance payments for which all farmers would be eligible:

Both proposals single out peanut producers for special direct payments to partially compensate them for low prices and increasing production costs.

The Republican proposal also provides $50 million to be used to assist fruit and vegetable producers, at the Secretary of Agriculture’s discretion.

Both proposals give the Secretary of Agriculture broad authority to provide some kinds of assistance to livestock and dairy producers, the only difference being the amount of money set aside for this unspecified relief. The Democrats set aside $756 million, the Republicans $235 million.

Both proposals set up more restrictive import quotas and new price supports for cotton producers.

The Republican proposal also specifically targets $475 million for direct payments to olive seed producers, most of which is to be paid to soybean producers.

The Democrat proposal, which is about $3 billion more expensive than the Republican proposal, expands to address non-agricultural disaster-related requirements, such as wetlands and watershed restoration and conservation, short-term land diversion programs, and flood prevention projects. It also establishes a new $500 million disaster reserve account, in anticipation of future disasters, I assume. But the proposal then adds a number of narrowly targeted provisions and provisions wholly unrelated to the purposes of aiding economically distressed farmers, including:

- $90 million for salaries and expenses of the Farm Service Agency, apparently to administer $3 billion in new loan guarantee;
- $100 million for rural economic development;
- $50 million for a new revolving loan program for farmer-owned cooperatives;
- $1 million to implement a new mandatory price reporting program for livestock;
- $8 million for a new product labeling system for imported meat;
- $1 million for rapid response teams to enforce the Packers and Stockyards Act; and finally,
- $1 million for a Northeast multispecies fishery.

These provisions have no place in a bill to provide emergency assistance to America’s farmers. There is an established process for dealing with spending and policy matters that are not emergencies. It is the normal authorization and appropriations process, where each program or policy can be assessed as part of a merit-based review. Many of the provisions I have listed above may very well be meritorious and deserving of support and funding, but the process we are following does not provide an appropriate forum for assessing their relative merit compared to the many other important programs for which non-emergency dollars should be made available. I think even some of the potential recipients of these non-emergency programs would agree that they should be considered in the normal appropriations and authorization processes.

There is one special interest provision of the Republican proposal that I would like to discuss further and that I intend to address directly in an amendment later in the debate. The Republican proposal gives the already heavily subsidized sugar industry one more huge benefit. It would authorize an assessment of just 25 cents on each 100 pounds of sugar. This tiny tax raised just $37.8 million last year, and was supposed to be the sugar industry’s sole contribution to reducing annual budget deficits. Thanks to their successful lobbying, for the next three years, big sugar will not have to pay this assessment if the federal government has a budget surplus. While the assessment was initially imposed to help reduce annual budget deficits, which fortunately have been eliminated as a result of the Balanced Budget Act, what about the $5.6 trillion national debt?

This little bit of targeted tax relief for big sugar comes on top of a $130 million per year government-subsidized loan program for sugar producers, and price supports that cost American consumers over $1.4 billion a year in higher sugar prices at the store. The sponsors of the proposal make no claim that this provision is in any way related to a disaster or drought-related economic crisis in the sugar industry that would merit its inclusion in this emergency farm aid bill. Its inclusion simply adds one more perk to the already broad array of special subsidies for big sugar companies.

I intend to offer an amendment later during the debate on this bill to terminate taxpayer support of the sugar industry. If the Republican farm aid proposal is adopted, as I expect it will be, I will include in my amendment a proposal to strike this newly created perk for big sugar.

Mr. President, I am going to support the more modest Republican proposal, regardless of the outcome of my amendment to eliminate the inequitable and unnecessary sugar subsidies. But I do so only because of the real economic hardship faced by many of our nation’s farmers and their families. I always am wary of attacking pork-barrel spending to any and every bill that comes before the Senate, especially when real disasters are cynically exploited to designate pork as emergency spending. This kind of fiscal irresponsibility undermines the balanced budget and hinders debt reduction efforts which exacerbate the need to preserve and protect Social Security and Medicare, and threatens efforts to provide meaningful tax relief to American families.

Once again, I can only hope that the final farm aid proposal will be targeted only at those in need—America’s farmers. I urge the conferees on this legislation to eliminate the provisions that solely benefit special interests who have once again managed to turn needed emergency relief into opportunism. I also urge the conferees to seek offsets for the additional spending in this bill, to avoid again dipping into the Social Security surplus and putting our balanced budget at risk.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, for the information of all Senators, there will be no further votes this evening. The discussion regarding the dairy issue will occur from 9 a.m. until 9:40 a.m. on Wednesday, with the cloture vote occurring at approximately 9:45 a.m.

Assuming cloture is not invoked on Wednesday morning, I anticipate the Senate will resume consideration of the pending Ashcroft amendment, which is an amendment to the disaster amendment by Senators HARKIN and DASCHLE.

Also, if an opportunity does present itself, I understand that there will be another disaster-related amendment by Senator ROBERTS and Senator SANTORUM. Of course, that will be in line behind the other amendments because of procedure. But at the appropriate time there is a plan by those two Senators, and others, to offer another amendment.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. LOTT. Having said that, I now ask unanimous consent that there be a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. I yield the floor, Mr. President.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I ask that Mr. Sean McCluskie, Mr. Adam Foslid, and Ms. Brooke Russ of my office be granted the privilege of the floor for the duration of the Agriculture appropriations bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Williams, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE

At 2:30 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mr. Berry, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bills, with amendment, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

S. 1297. An act to amend statutory damages provisions of title 17, United States Code.

The message also announced that the House has passed the following bills, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 211. An act to designate the Federal building and United States courthouse located at West 920 Riverside Avenue in Spokane, Washington, as the “Thomas S. Foley Federal Building and United States Courthouse.”

H.R. 695. An act to direct the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Interior to convey an administrative site in San Juan County, New Mexico, to San Juan College.

H.R. 747. An act to protect the permanent trust funds of the State of Arizona from erosion due to inflation and modify the basis on which distributions are made from those funds.

H.R. 1094. An act to amend the Federal Reserve Act to broaden the range of discount window loans which may be used as collateral for Federal reserve notes.

H.R. 1134. An act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to transfer administrative jurisdiction over land within the boundaries of the Home of Franklin D. Roosevelt National Historic Site to the Archivist of the United States for the construction of a visitor center.

H.R. 1152. An act to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to target assistance to support the economic and political independence of the countries of the South Caucasus and Central Asia.

H.R. 1219. An act to amend the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act and the Miller Act, relating to payment protections... for persons providing labor and materials for Federal projects.

H.R. 1442. An act to amend the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 to continue and extend authority for transfers to State and local governments of certain property for law enforcement, public safety, and emergency response purposes.

H.R. 2464. An act to assure the long-term conservation of mid-continent light geese and the biological diversity of the ecosystem upon which many North American migratory birds depend, by directing the Secretary of the Interior to implement rules to reduce the overabundant population of mid-continent light geese.

H.R. 2614. An act to amend the Small Business Investment Act to make improvements to the certified development company program, and for other purposes.

H.R. 2615. An act to amend the Small Business Act to make improvements to the general business loan program, and for other purposes.

The message further announced that the House disagrees to the amendment of the House bill (H.R. 2464) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to sections 105 and 211 of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2000, and agrees to the conference asked by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon; and appoints the following members as managers of the conference on the part of the House:

For consideration of the House bill, and the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. ARCHER, Mr. ARMEE, Mr. CRANE, Mr. THOMAS, Mr. RANGL, and Mr. STARK.

As additional conferees for consideration of sections 313, 315–16, 318, 325, 335, 398, 391–42, 344–45, 351, 362–63, 365, 369, 371, 381, 1361, 1305, and 1406 of the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. GOODLING, Mr. BOEINER, and Mr. CLAY.

The message also announced that pursuant to the provisions of section 539(a)(2) of the Foreign Operation, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1999 (112 Stat. 2681–210) the Minority Leader appoints the following individuals to the National Commission on Terrorism: Ms. Juliette N. Kayyem of Cambridge, Massachusetts.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED

At 4:05 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mr. Hanrahan, one of its reading clerks, announced that the Speaker has signed the following enrolled bill:

H.R. 2464. An act to amend the Clean Air Act to remove flammable fuels from the list of substances with respect to which reporting and other activities are required under the risk management plan program, and for other purposes.

The enrolled bill was signed subsequently by the President pro tempore (Mr. THURMOND).

At 6:20 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mr. Hanrahan, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House disagrees to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2567) making appropriations for the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against revenues of said District for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes and agrees to the conference asked by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon; and appoints the following members as managers of the conference on the part of the House:

Mr. ISTOE, Mr. CUNNINGHAM, Mr. TAHMET, Mr. ADEHOLT, Mrs. EMERSON, Mr. SUNUNU, Mr. YOUNG of Florida, Mr. MORAN of Virginia, Mr. DIXON, Mr. MOLLOHAN, and Mr. OBEY.

MEASURES REFERRED

The following bills were read the first and second times by unanimous consent and referred as indicated:

H.R. 1994. An act to amend the Federal Reserve Act to broaden the range of discount window loans which may be used as collateral for Federal reserve notes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

H.R. 1442. An act to amend the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 to continue and extend authority for transfers to State and local governments of certain property for law enforcement, public safety, and emergency response purposes; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

The following bills were read twice and referred as indicated:

H.R. 2454. An act to assure the long-term conservation of mid-continent light geese and the biological diversity of the ecosystem upon which many North American migratory birds depend, by directing the Secretary of the Interior to implement rules to reduce the overabundant population of mid-continent light geese; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

H.R. 2614. An act to amend the Small Business Investment Act to make improvements to the certified development company program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Small Business.

H.R. 2615. An act to amend the Small Business Act to make improvements to the general business loan program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Small Business.

MEASURES PLACED ON THE CALENDAR

The following bills were read twice and placed on the calendar:

H.R. 211. An act to designate the Federal building and United States courthouse located at West 920 Riverside Avenue in Spokane, Washington, as the “Thomas S. Foley Federal Building and United States Court house”, and the plaza at the south entrance of such building and courthouse as the “Wallace F. Horan Plaza.”

H.R. 605. A bill to direct the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Interior to convey an administrative site in San Juan County, New Mexico, to San Juan College.

H.R. 1104. An act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to transfer administrative jurisdiction over land within the boundaries of the Home of Franklin D. Roosevelt National Historic Site to the Archivist of the United States for the construction of a visitor center.

H.R. 1152. An act to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to target assistance to support the economic and political independence of the countries of the South Caucasus and Central Asia.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. MURKOWSKI, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, with an amendment:

S. 1329. A bill to direct the Secretary of the Interior to convey certain land to Nye County, Nevada, and for other purposes (Rept. No. 106–133).

By Mr. MURKOWSKI, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, without an amendment:

S. 1330. A bill to give the city of Mesquite, Nevada, the right to purchase at fair market value certain parcels of public land in the city (Rept. No. 106–134).

EXECUTIVE REPORTS OF COMMITTEE

The following executive reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. THOMPSON, for the Committee on Governmental Affairs: Earl E. Devaney, of Massachusetts, to be Inspector General, Department of the Interior.

(The above nominations were reported with the recommendation that they be confirmed.)

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second time by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mr. HUMPHREYS: Mr. MURKOWSKI for himself, Mr. DODD, Mr. KENNEDY, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. INOUYE, and Mrs. MURRAY:

S. 1475. A bill to amend the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 to provide incentive grants to improve the quality of child care; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

By Mr. MURKOWSKI (for himself, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. INOUYE, and Mr. AKAKA):

S. 1476. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide an increase in payments for physician services provided in health professional shortage areas in Alaska and Hawaii; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. ROBB:

S. 1477. A bill to reduce traffic congestion, promote economic development, and improve the quality of life in the metropolitan Washington region; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

By Mr. DASCHLE (for himself, Mr. MCCAIN, and Mr. INOUYE):

S. 1478. A bill to amend part E of title IV of the Social Security Act to provide equitable access for foster care and adoption services for Indian children in tribal areas; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. GREGG (for himself, Mr. LOTT, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. BROWNBACK, Mr. 19153 STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. REED (for himself, Mr. DODD, Mr. KENNEDY, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. INOUYE, and Mrs. MURRAY):

S. 1475. A bill to amend the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 to provide incentive grants to improve the quality of child care; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

CHILD CARE QUALITY INCENTIVE ACT OF 1999

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I rise to talk about a crisis that is affecting the families of this country. That crisis is the child care system, the ability to obtain safe, affordable, high-quality child care.

Today there are an estimated 13 million children, 6 million of them infants and toddlers, who require some form of day care. For working families, the price of this day care is exceedingly difficult to meet each and every day.

Full-day child care ranges from $4,000 to $10,000 a year. For some low-income families, that represents 25 percent of their income.

This is a huge obligation. We have, I fear and believe, the responsibility to ensure that we can help these families meet this obligation to protect their children. Not only is this necessary simply for the custodial protection and care of children, it is necessary for their education, their advancement, for their intellectual development.

We have discovered over the last several years, because of all the research that is being done at the National Institutes of Health, and other places, the crucial role of the early development of children in their ultimate intellectual and social development as adults.

We know if we have good, nurturing care in the early days of life, this care will lead to better cognitive performance later on. It will increase classroom success. It will lead to more fully developed individuals who can cope with the challenges of this next century that is just upon us.

So any investment in child care is not simply something that is altruistic—something we want to do because it is for the kids and for working families—it is in the best interests of this country in order to provide for the citizens of this country of the next century.

We know also, as we look around, that one of the problems in child care, I say to Senators, is that because of the low reimbursement rates that the child care centers receive from the States, that these centers cannot retain good employees and that they are not able to train the employees they can retain—particularly in this booming economy we see today.

So what you have in so many child care centers is a situation where they cannot retain their employees, they cannot attract the very best employees, they do not have the resources to fully develop the potential for these employees, and as a result, ultimately, children suffer.

In fact, there have been numerous studies. The one that I found most disturbing is one where four States were studied in the United States, and it was found that in those States only one out of seven children are receiving child care that promoted the healthy development of the child. Even more shocking, one in eight of these child care centers actually provided care that threatened the health of the child.

Prior to welfare reform, there was a law on the books that said the State, when they were subsidizing day care for low-income parents, had to at least try to achieve the 75th percentile in terms of their reimbursement rate. What that means is that they had to have a reimbursement rate that could at least meet the cost of 75 out of 100 of the centers in their particular State. That has gone by the wayside. But in order to keep quality in our child care system, we have to get to reimbursement rates that will, in fact, provide the resources for child care centers to have quality, enhancing care to benefit the children of this country.

What has happened in the last several years is even the attempt by the States to go ahead and do surveys of the market so they know what it costs different child care centers to provide care and know what it costs for the parents to send their children to day-care centers. Having abandoned these market surveys, essentially there is no connection between their subsidy rate and, in fact, the cost of day care. So working families who receive these subsidies—and there are more and more families who are receiving subsidies as we move welfare recipients to work—have no correlation between what they are getting and essentially what the cost of child care is in the real world.

What I have done, along with some of my colleagues, is introduce legislation that would, in fact, give the States an incentive, first to do their market surveys, to find out the cost of day care in their communities, and then to strive to meet those costs in order to move welfare recipients to work.

I have been very pleased to be joined with Senators CHRIS DODD and TED KENNEDY, who are leaders in the field of improving child care in this country, together with Senators FEINSTEIN, INOUYE, and MURRAY in introducing the Child Care Quality Incentive Act. Essential to this legislation is establishing a new mandatory pool of funding, $300 million each year over the next 5 years, as part of the Child Care Development Block Grant Program. This funding would be an incentive for States to first conduct a market survey and then to make significant movement towards raising their subsidy rates to that market rate. In so doing, we can directly contribute to the bottom line of these child care centers. They, in turn, can retain personnel, train their personnel, and create a more enhancing environment for the development of children. This, I think, is a goal we should have.

Increased reimbursement rates also express the clear view of those who have in finding quality child care.

We will also, I hope, at the same time try to increase the overall scope of the child development block grants. One of the consequences of simply increasing the funding for the child development block grant, is many States will not increase the subsidy they pay for children; they will simply try to enroll more children. This puts centers in a very cruel dilemma because the more children they have at that far-below-market rate the greater the economic pressure on the centers.

The program I am presenting today with my colleagues would do what child care providers have argued must be done, and that is to give them additional resources so they can, in fact, improve the quality of day care—not simply the number of children in day care but the quality of day care. If we do these things we are going to be in a strong position to face the challenges ahead.

One of the greatest challenges for working families is the cost of day care for their children. I have been very pleased to note that this legislation has been endorsed by the USA Child Care, the Children's Defense Fund, Catholic Charities of the United States, the Child Welfare League of America, the YMCA of the United States, the National Association of Child Care Resource and Referral Agencies, the National Child Care Association, and a host of other agencies and organizations throughout the country. They recognize, as I do, and as my colleagues who are introducing this legislation do, that we can talk a lot about child care, we can emphasize how important it is to families, we can stress the importance to our economy and to our long-run future in this country, but until we put real resources to work, we are not able to meet the real needs of families. These are pressing day.

I urge strong support for this legislation. Again, I thank and commend my colleagues who have joined me in this effort: Senators Dodd, Kennedy, Feinstein, Inouye, and Murray, and encourage the United States.

I thank my colleagues for joining me, and ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a copy of the legislation.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1757

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Child Care Quality Incentive Act of 1999.”

SEC. 2. INCENTIVE GRANTS TO IMPROVE THE QUALITY OF CHILD CARE.

(a) FUNDING.—Section 658B of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 658G the following:

“SEC. 658B. GRANTS TO IMPROVE THE QUALITY OF CHILD CARE.

“(a) AUTHORITY.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall use the amount appropriated under section 658B(b) for a fiscal year to make grants to eligible States in accordance with this section.

“(2) ANNUAL PAYMENT.—The Secretary shall make annual payments to each eligible State out of the allotment for that State determined under subsection (c).

“(3) ELIGIBLE STATES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In this section, the term ‘eligible States’ means States that—

“(A) provide an annual payment rate to child care services in the State for each eligible child care provider within the 2 years preceding the date of the submission of an application under paragraph (2); and “(B) submit an application in accordance with paragraph (2).

“(2) APPLICATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this section, a State shall submit an application to the Secretary at such time, in such manner, and accompanied by such information, in addition to the information required under paragraph (B), as the Secretary may require.

“(B) INFORMATION REQUIRED.—Each application submitted for a grant under this section shall—

“(i) describe the State’s plan to increase payment rates from the initial baseline determined under clause (i); and “(ii) describe how the State will increase payment rates in accordance with the market survey findings.

“(3) CONTINUING ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENT.—The Secretary may make an annual payment under this section to an eligible State only if—

“(A) the Secretary determines that the State has made progress, through the activities assisted under this subchapter, in maintaining increased payment rates; and

“(B) the amount paid under this section to the State under this subchapter or any other Federal, State, or local funds provided to the State under this subchapter or any other program of the Federal Government is determined under subsection (c).

“(4) REQUIREMENT OF MATCHING FUNDS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this section, the State shall conduct an update of the survey described in paragraph (2) and make contributions to the costs of the activities to be carried out by a State pursuant to subsection (d) in an amount that is not less than 25 percent of the amount paid to the State under this subchapter.

“(B) DETERMINATION OF STATE CONTRIBUTIONS.—State contributions shall be in cash.

“Amounts provided by the Federal Government may not be included in determining the amount of such State contributions.

“(c) ALLOTMENTS TO ELIGIBLE STATES.—

“The amount appropriated under section 658B(b) for a fiscal year shall be allotted among the eligible States in the same manner as amounts are allotted under section 658B(b).

“(d) USE OF FUNDS.—

“(1) PRIORITY USE.—An eligible State that receives a grant under this section shall use the funds received for significantly increasing the payment rate for the provision of child care assistance in accordance with this subchapter up to the 100th percentile of the market rate survey described in subsection (b)(1)(A).

“(2) ADDITIONAL USES.—An eligible State that demonstrates to the Secretary that the State has achieved a payment rate of the 100th percentile of the market rate survey described in subsection (b)(1)(A) may use funds received under a grant made under this section for any other activity that the State demonstrates to the Secretary will enhance the quality of child care services provided in the State.

“(e) EVALUATIONS AND REPORTS.—

“(1) STATE EVALUATIONS.—Each eligible State shall submit to the Secretary, at such time and in such manner as the Secretary may require, information regarding the State’s efforts to increase payment rates and the impact increased rates have on the quality of care, and accessibility to, child care in the State.

“(2) REPORTS TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall submit biennial reports to Congress on the information described in paragraph (1). Such reports shall include data from the applications submitted under subsection (b)(2) as a baseline for determining the progress of each eligible State in maintaining increased payment rates.

By Mr. MURkowski (for himself, Mr. Stevens, Mr. Inouye, and Mr. Akaka):

S. 1476. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide an increase in payments for physician services provided in health professional shortage areas in Alaska and Hawaii; to the Committee on Finance.

HEALTH PROFESSIONAL SHORTAGE IN ALASKA AND HAWAII

Mr. MURKOWSKI: Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation co-sponsored by my colleagues Senator Craig, Senator Stevens, Senator Inouye, and Senator Akaka which will help to alleviate some of the financial hardships that currently face physicians who practice in remote areas of Alaska and Hawaii.

Access to health care is the overriding problem for Alaska’s elderly. Almost weekly, I receive letters from seniors in Alaska who tell me that their doctor is no longer willing to accept Medicare patients. Why? Because Allow continuation of tribal-state IV-E agreements.

In 1995, HHS found that the best way to serve this underfunded group is to provide direct assistance to tribal governments and qualified tribal families. This bill would not reduce the entitlement funding for states, as they would continue to be reimbursed for expenses incurred. I strongly believe Congress should address this oversight and provide equitable benefits to Native American children under the jurisdiction of their tribal governments, and I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting this bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1478

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. AUTHORITY OF INDIAN TRIBES TO RECEIVE FEDERAL FUNDS FOR FOSTER CARE AND ADOPTION ASSISTANCE.

(a) CHILDREN PLACED IN TRIBAL CUSTODY ELIGIBLE FOR FOSTER CARE FUNDING.—Section 472(a)(2)(A) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 672(a)(2)) is amended—

(1) by striking "or (B)" and inserting "(B)"; and

(2) by inserting before the semicolon the following: "or (C) an Indian tribe as defined in section 479B(b)(5), in the case of an Indian child (as defined in section 4(4) of the Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978 (25 U.S.C. 1903(4))) if the tribe is not operating a program pursuant to section 479B and (i) has an agreement with a State pursuant to section 479B(b)(3) or (ii) submits to the Secretary a description of the arrangements, jointly developed or in consultation with the State, made for the payment of funds and the provision of the child welfare services and protections required by title IV-E.

(b) PROGRAMS OPERATED BY INDIAN TRIBAL ORGANIZATIONS.—Part E of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 670 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"PROGRAMS OPERATED BY INDIAN TRIBAL ORGANIZATIONS.

"SEC. 479B. (a) Except as provided in subsection (b), this part shall apply to an Indian tribe that chooses to operate a program under this part in the same manner as this part applies to a State.

"(b)(1) In the case of an Indian tribe submitting a plan for approval under section 471, the plan shall—

"(A) in lieu of the requirement of section 471(a)(3), identify the service area or areas and the population to be served by the Indian tribe; and

"(B) in lieu of the requirement of section 471(a)(10), provide for the approval of foster homes pursuant to tribal standards and in a manner that ensures the safety of, and accountability for, children placed in foster care.

"(c) Trustees. For purposes of determining the Federal medical assistance percentage applicable to an Indian tribe under paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 471(a), the calculation of an Indian tribe's per capita income shall be based upon the service population of the Indian tribe as defined in its plan.
‘(ii) An Indian tribe may submit to the Secretary an alternative program of foster care and adoption assistance as the tribe considers may be related to making the calculation of the per capita income of the tribe, and the Secretary shall consider such information in making the calculation.

‘(B) The Secretary shall, by regulation, determine the proportions to be paid to Indian tribes pursuant to section 474(a)(3), except that in no case shall an Indian tribe receive a lesser proportion than specified for States in that section.

‘(C) An Indian tribe may use Federal or State funds to match payments for which the Indian tribe is eligible under section 474.

‘(3) An Indian tribe and a State may enter into a cooperative agreement for the administration or payment of funds pursuant to this part. Any such agreement that is in effect as of the date of the enactment of this Act shall remain in full force and effect subject to the right of either party to revoke or modify the agreement pursuant to its terms.

‘(4) The Secretary may prescribe regulations that alter or waive any requirement under this part with respect to an Indian tribe or tribes if the Secretary, after consulting with the tribe or tribes, determines—

‘(A) that the strict enforcement of the requirement would not advance the best interests and the safety of children served the Indian tribe or tribes; and

‘(B) provides in the regulations that tribal plans include alternative provisions that would achieve the purposes of the requirement that is to be altered or waived.

‘(5) For purposes of this section, the term ‘Indian tribe’ means any Indian tribe, band, nation, or organized group or community of Indians within the meaning of section 468 of title 25, and includes Alaska Native village corporations that are recognized as eligible for the special programs and services provided by the United States to Indians because of their status as Indians.

‘(6) Nothing in this section shall preclude the development and submission of a single plan under section 471 that meets the requirements of this section by the participating Indian tribes of an intertribal consortium.

‘(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this Act take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to co-sponsor legislation with my colleagues, Senators DASCHELE and INOUYE, to amend the Social Security Act and extend eligibility for Indian tribes to fully implement, like states, the Title IV–E Foster Care and Adoption Assistance Act. This important legislation will finally allow Indian children living in tribal areas to have the same access to services of the Title IV–E Foster Care and Adoption Assistance Program enjoyed by other children nationwide.

The purpose of the Title IV–E program is to ensure that children receive adequate care and placement in foster care and adoption programs. The Title IV–E program operates as an open-ended entitlement program for eligible state governments with approved plans. State governments receive funding for foster care maintenance payments to cover food, shelter, clothing, school supplies, and liability insurance for income-eligible children placed in foster homes by state courts, and for related administrative and training costs.

While Congress intended that the Title IV–E program should benefit all eligible children, Indian children who are under the jurisdiction of their tribal court are not eligible. When enacted, the Title IV–E law did not properly consider that Indian tribal governments retain sole jurisdiction over the domestic affairs of their own tribal members, particularly Indian children.

State administrators have attempted to meet the intended goals of these programs by extending their efforts to Indian country. However, administrative and jurisdictional hurdles make it nearly impossible to provide these services. As a result, Indian children in need of foster care and child support are not accorded the same level of services as children nationwide.

Tribal governments, who are legally responsible for Indian children in foster care, are not entitled to federal reimbursement for children placed in foster care by a tribal court, unless the tribe, as a public agency, enters into a cooperative agreement with the state.

A cooperative agreement may not sound all that difficult, but in reality, such an arrangement can prove impossible. Rather than providing incentives, current law more often discourages states from entering into agreements with tribes. For example, a state is accountable for tribal compliance with Title IV–E requirements. If a tribe cannot fulfill a matching requirement, the state must assume the costs on behalf of the tribe in order to retain federal funds. It is entirely possible that states could lose their Title IV–E funds if tribal records were out of compliance.

State-tribal relations are not always productive, particularly when disputes arise over issues unrelated to child welfare. Providing this direct eligibility for tribal governments, with the same accountability and enforcement requirements, will resolve such problems. State agencies have indicated that direct participation by the tribes would help address an overburden of casework and preclude tension over jurisdictional issues.

I want to make clear that enactment of this legislation will not in any way supplant or discourage State-tribal agreements. Existing agreements will be honored, while allowing Indian tribes to directly access needed resources for further protection of income-eligible Indian children.

I also want to comment briefly on efforts made by the Administration to implement a limited pilot program to provide direct authority to tribes to administer the Title IV–E and Title IV–B programs and Safe Families Act authorized up to ten demonstration programs. Five demonstration programs have been approved by the Administration to meet the needs of Indian children. I applaud the initiative, but this limited approach will not extend to another tribe who may choose to administer their own programs and the needs of many Indian children will still be unmet. I sincerely hope the Administration would seek to include five more tribes as participants in the demonstration program.

We sought to include similar eligibility provisions in the 1996 Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act, but were unsuccessful in finding the necessary offsets to pay for this program.

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) estimates that this legislation would cost $236 million over a five-year period, which generally amounts to less than one percent of total Federal Title IV–E expenditures. While this legislation does not currently include any identified offsets to pay for adding tribal eligibility for this entitlement program, I have assurances from Senators DASCHELE and INOUYE that the inclusion of offsets, prior to final passage, will in no way affect the Social Security Trust Fund or increase the federal debt. We have pledged to work together to find necessary and agreeable offsets for this program.

Mr. President, enactment of this legislation will bring an end to the disparate treatment of eligible Indian children under Title IV–E programs. I urge my colleagues to correct this unfair oversight and make the benefits of the Title IV–E entitlement program available for all children as intended.

By Mr. GREGG (for himself, Mr. LOTT, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. BROWNBACK, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. COVERDELL, Mr. GORTON, Mr. VINOVICh, Mr. MACK, and Mr. SESSIONS):

S. 1479. A bill to amend the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to empower teachers, improve student achievement through high-quality professional development for teachers, reauthorize the Reading Excellence Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions.

TEACHER EMPOWERMENT ACT

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, today I am joined with my colleagues, Senators LOTT, COLLINS, BROWNBACK, HAGEL, COVERDELL, GORTON, MACK, VINOVICh and SESSIONS in introducing the Teacher Empowerment Act (TEA). This Act is similar to H.R. 1995 which recently passed the House.

The bill provides a little over $2 billion annually over 5 years by consolidating funds for Title II of ESEA, GOALS 2000 and Classroom Size into one flexible funding stream for the purposes of increasing teacher quality and the number of high quality teachers in our schools.

Over 300 studies have found that the number one contributor to student TEA improves teacher quality by requiring that professional development activities increase teacher knowledge and skills as well as student achievement. TEA builds upon extensive research on what type of professional development activities improve teacher knowledge and skills. First and foremost, high quality professional development activities must be directly related to the curriculum and subject area in which the teacher provides instruction. Second, they must be of sufficient intensity and duration to have a positive and lasting impact. TEA only funds those professional activities that meet these requirements and only if the activities are tied to challenging State content and student performance standards.

Not only does TEA improve teacher quality but it gives school districts the ability to recruit and retain high quality teachers. Many school districts, especially inner city and rural school districts, are unable to either attract or retain high quality teachers. Blanket classroom size reduction proposals, which have for reduced class size at all costs, only exacerbate the situation.

A recent Rand study found that California's classroom size initiative led to more uncredentialed, underqualified teachers and an increase in, among other things, the number of high quality teachers in our schools; it is readily apparent that we need to focus our efforts on increasing teacher quality. Nothing else will improve our public schools or lead to increased student achievement.

Since teacher quality is the most significant determinant to student success and there is a shortage of high quality teachers in our schools, it is vital that we focus our efforts on increasing teacher quality.

TEA also creates Teacher Opportunity Payments (TOPS), payments that would be provided directly to teachers so they can choose their own professional development. Teachers have reported that professional activities selected by the school districts are often not as helpful as those activities they might have selected themselves. Under TOPS, if a group of teachers is not satisfied with the professional opportunities offered by the school district, they could request that the LEA pay for them to attend a professional development program of their choice, provided the program met the professional activity requirements under the Act. This means that science teachers could attend a local university that has a reputation for intensive professional development programs in math and science; programs that they otherwise might not have had the opportunity to attend.

I urge my colleagues to cosponsor TEA. TEA gives States and schools the resources and the flexibility to use those resources to retain, recruit, train and hire highly qualified teachers. I ask that the bill be printed in the Record.

The bill follows:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the "Teacher Empowerment Act".

SEC. 2. TEACHER EMPowerMENT.

(a) In General.—Title II of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6601 et seq.) is amended—

(1) by striking the heading for title II and inserting the following: "TITLE II—TEACHER QUALITY":

(2) by repealing sections 2001 through 2003; and

(3) by amending part A to read as follows:

"PART A—TEACHER EMPOWERMENT"

"SEC. 2001. PURPOSE. The purpose of this part is to provide grants to States and local educational agencies, in order to assist their efforts to increase student academic achievement through such strategies as improving teacher quality."

"Subpart 1—Grants to States"

"SEC. 2001. FORMULA GRANTS TO STATES."

"(a) In General.—In the case of each State that, in accordance with section 2014, submits to the Secretary and obtains approval of an application for a fiscal year, the Secretary shall make a grant for the year to the State for the uses specified in section 2012. The grant shall consist of the allotment determined for the State under subsection (b).

(b) Determination of Amount of Allotment.—"

"(1) Reservation of funds.—"

"(A) In General.—From the total amount made available to carry out this part for any fiscal year, the Secretary shall reserve—"

"(i) 1⁄2 of 1 percent for allotments for the United States Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, to be distributed among those outlying areas on the basis of their relative need, as determined by the Secretary in accordance with the purpose of this part; and

"(ii) 1⁄2 of 1 percent for the Secretary of the Interior for programs under this part for professional development activities for teachers, other staff, and administrators in schools operated or funded by the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

(B) Limitation.—In reserving an amount for the purposes described in clauses (i) and (ii) of subparagraph (A) for a fiscal year, the Secretary shall not reserve more than the total amount the outlying areas and the schools operated or funded by the Bureau of Indian Affairs received under the authorities described in paragraph (2)(A)(i) for fiscal year 1999.

(2) State allotments.—"

"(A) HOLD HARMLESS.—"

"(i) In General.—Subject to subparagraph (B), the total amount made available to carry out this subpart for any fiscal year and not reserved under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall allot to each of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico an amount equal to the total amount that such State received for fiscal year 1999 under—"

"(I) section 2202(b) of this Act (as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of the Teacher Empowerment Act);"

"(II) section 307 of the Department of Education Appropriations Act, 1996, and

"(III) section 304(b) of the Goals 2000: Educate America Act (20 U.S.C. 5884(b))."

"(ii) Ratable Reduction.—If the total amount made available to carry out this subpart for any fiscal year and not reserved under paragraph (1) is insufficient to pay the full amounts that all States are eligible to receive under clause (i) for any fiscal year, the Secretary shall ratably reduce such amounts for such fiscal year.

(B) Allotment of additional funds.—"

"(i) In General.—Subject to subparagraph (B), the total amount made available to carry out this subpart and not reserved under paragraph (1) for any fiscal year for which the total amount made available to carry out this subpart and not reserved under paragraph (1) exceeds the total amount made available to the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico for fiscal year 2000.

"(ii) Limitation.—" 1999 under the authorities described in sub-paragraph (A) and the Secretary shall allot to each of these States the sum of—

"(I) an amount that bears the same relationship to 50 percent of the excess amount as the number of individuals age 5 through 17 in the State, as so determined; and

"(II) an amount that bears the same relationship to 50 percent of the excess amount as the number of individuals age 5 through 17 from families below the poverty line in the State, as so determined.

(b) ALTERNATIVE FORMULA.—A State may increase the percentage described in subparagraph (A)(ii) (and commensurately decrease the percentage described in subparagraph (A)(i)) by no more than—quantities sold to each of these States.

(c) DISTRIBUTION OF SUBGRANTS TO LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES AND ELIGIBLE PARTNERSHIPS.—(A) COMPETITIVE PROCESS.—A State receiving a grant under this subpart shall distribute a portion equal to 20 percent of the amount described in subsection (b)(1) through a competitive process.

(B) PARTICIPANTS.—The competitive process carried out under subparagraph (A) shall be open to local educational agencies and eligible partnerships (as defined in section 2021(d)). In carrying out the process, the State shall select the entities to carry out subpart 3.

(2) COMPETITIVE SUBGRANTS TO ELIGIBLE PARTNERSHIPS.—(A) IN GENERAL.—To be eligible to receive subgrants under this subpart, an entity—

"(11) an amount that bears the same relationship to 50 percent of the total allotment made to the State under this paragraph (1)(A) and clauses (i) and (ii) of section 2021(d).

"(A) Alternative Formula.—A State may increase the percentage described in subparagraph (A)(ii) (and commensurately decrease the percentage described in subparagraph (A)(i)) by no more than—paragraph or developed using funds provided under this paragraph or developed using funds provided under this paragraph or developed using funds provided under this paragraph or developed using funds provided under this paragraph or developed using funds provided under this paragraph or developed using funds provided under this paragraph or developed using funds provided.

time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may reasonably require.

"(b) CONTENTS.—Each application submitted under this section shall include the following:

"(1) A description of how the State will ensure that a local educational agency receiving a subgrant to carry out subpart 3 will comply with the requirements of such subpart.

"(2)(A) A description of the performance indicators that the State will use to measure the annual progress, or a business.

"(iii) increasing the percentage of classes in core academic subjects that are taught by highly qualified teachers.

"(B) An assurance that the State will require each local educational agency and school in the State receiving funds under this part to publicly report information on the agency's or school's annual progress, as measured by the performance indicators.

"(3) A description of how the State will hold the local educational agencies and schools accountable for making annual gains toward meeting the performance indicators described in paragraph (2).

"(4)(A) A description of how the State will coordinate professional development activities authorized under this part with professional development activities provided under other Federal, State, and local programs, including—

"(i) subject to section 2013(c)(2), improving student academic achievement, as defined by the State;

"(ii) increasing the percentage of classes in core academic subjects that are taught by
highly qualified teachers;

"(B) a description of the comprehensive strategy that the State will use as part of the effort to carry out the coordination, to ensure that teachers are trained in the utilization of technology so that technology and technology applications are effectively used and

"(2) may include other local educational agencies, a public charter school, a public or private elementary school or secondary school, an educational service agency, a public or private nonprofit educational organi-

"(c) APPLICATION SUBMISSION.—A State ap-

certificated or licensed teachers, including teachers certified through State and local alternative routes, in order to reduce class size, or hiring special education teachers.

"(2) Initiatives to assist in recruitment of highly qualified teachers who will be assigned teaching positions within their fields, including—

"(A) providing signing bonuses or other financial incentives, such as differential pay,
for teachers to teach in academic subjects in which there exists a shortage of such teachers within a school or the area served by the teachers to teach in academic subjects in which there exists a shortage of such teachers within a school or the area served by the

"(B) allowing programs that—

"(i) recruit professionals from other fields and provide such professionals with alternative pathways to teacher certification;

"(ii) provide increased opportunities for students with special learning needs (including disabilities), and other individuals underrepresented in the teaching profession; and

"(C) implementing hiring policies that ensure comprehensive recruitment efforts as a way to expand the applicant pool of teachers,
and

"(ii) increasing the percentage of classes in core academic subjects that are taught by
highly qualified teachers;

"(C) testing of elementary school and sec-

"(D) professional development programs that—

"(i) providing signing bonuses or other financial incentives, such as differential pay,
for teachers to teach in academic subjects in which there exists a shortage of such teachers within a school or the area served by the

"(ii) providing signing bonuses or other financial incentives, such as differential pay,
for teachers to teach in academic subjects in which there exists a shortage of such teachers within a school or the area served by the

"(C) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how to teach children with different learning styles and particularly children with disabilities and children with special learning needs (including children who are gifted and talented); and

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how best to discipline children in the classroom and identify, early and appropriate interventions to help children described in subparagraph (C) to learn.

"(5) Programs and activities that are designed to improve the quality of the teacher force, such as—

"(A) innovative professional development programs (which may be through partnerships including institutions of higher education), including programs that train teachers to utilize technology to improve teaching and learning, that are consistent with the re-certificated or licensed teachers, including teachers certified through State and local alternative routes, in order to reduce class size, or hiring special education teachers.

"(2) Initiatives to assist in recruitment of highly qualified teachers who will be assigned teaching positions within their fields, including—

"(A) providing signing bonuses or other financial incentives, such as differential pay,
for teachers to teach in academic subjects in which there exists a shortage of such teachers within a school or the area served by the teachers to teach in academic subjects in which there exists a shortage of such teachers within a school or the area served by the

"(B) allowing programs that—

"(i) recruit professionals from other fields
and provide such professionals with alternative pathways to teacher certification;

"(ii) provide increased opportunities for students with special learning needs (including disabilities), and other individuals underrepresented in the teaching profession; and

"(C) implementing hiring policies that ensure comprehensive recruitment efforts as a way to expand the applicant pool of teachers,
and

"(ii) increasing the percentage of classes in core academic subjects that are taught by
highly qualified teachers;

"(C) testing of elementary school and sec-

"(D) professional development programs
that—

"(i) providing signing bonuses or other financial incentives, such as differential pay,
for teachers to teach in academic subjects in which there exists a shortage of such teachers within a school or the area served by the

"(ii) providing signing bonuses or other financial incentives, such as differential pay,
for teachers to teach in academic subjects in which there exists a shortage of such teachers within a school or the area served by the

"(C) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how to teach children with different learning styles and particularly children with disabilities and children with special learning needs (including children who are gifted and talented); and

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how best to discipline children in the classroom and identify, early and appropriate interventions to help children described in subparagraph (C) to learn.

"(5) Programs and activities that are designed to improve the quality of the teacher
force, such as—

"(A) innovative professional development programs (which may be through parterships including institutions of higher education), including programs that train teachers to utilize technology to improve teaching and learning, that are consistent with the re-

"(B) development and utilization of proven, cost-effective strategies for the implementation of professional development activities, such as through the utilization of technology and distance learning;

"(C) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how to teach children with different learning styles and particularly children with disabilities and children with special learning needs (including children who are gifted and talented); and

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how best to discipline children in the classroom and identify, early and appropriate interventions to help children described in subparagraph (C) to learn.

"(5) Programs and activities related to—

"(A) tenure reform;

"(B) retention merit pay; and

"(C) testing of elementary school and sec-

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how to teach children with different learning styles and particularly children with disabilities and children with special learning needs (including children who are gifted and talented); and

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how best to discipline children in the classroom and identify, early and appropriate interventions to help children described in subparagraph (C) to learn.

"(5) Programs and activities related to—

"(A) tenure reform;

"(B) retention merit pay; and

"(C) testing of elementary school and sec-

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how to teach children with different learning styles and particularly children with disabilities and children with special learning needs (including children who are gifted and talented); and

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how best to discipline children in the classroom and identify, early and appropriate interventions to help children described in subparagraph (C) to learn.

"(5) Programs and activities related to—

"(A) tenure reform;

"(B) retention merit pay; and

"(C) testing of elementary school and sec-

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how to teach children with different learning styles and particularly children with disabilities and children with special learning needs (including children who are gifted and talented); and

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how best to discipline children in the classroom and identify, early and appropriate interventions to help children described in subparagraph (C) to learn.

"(5) Programs and activities related to—

"(A) tenure reform;

"(B) retention merit pay; and

"(C) testing of elementary school and sec-

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how to teach children with different learning styles and particularly children with disabilities and children with special learning needs (including children who are gifted and talented); and

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how best to discipline children in the classroom and identify, early and appropriate interventions to help children described in subparagraph (C) to learn.

"(5) Programs and activities related to—

"(A) tenure reform;

"(B) retention merit pay; and

"(C) testing of elementary school and sec-

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how to teach children with different learning styles and particularly children with disabilities and children with special learning needs (including children who are gifted and talented); and

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how best to discipline children in the classroom and identify, early and appropriate interventions to help children described in subparagraph (C) to learn.

"(5) Programs and activities related to—

"(A) tenure reform;

"(B) retention merit pay; and

"(C) testing of elementary school and sec-

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how to teach children with different learning styles and particularly children with disabilities and children with special learning needs (including children who are gifted and talented); and

"(D) professional development programs
that provide instruction in how best to discipline children in the classroom and identify, early and appropriate interventions to help children described in subparagraph (C) to learn.
"SEC. 2032. PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT FOR TEACHERS.

"(a) LIMITATION RELATING TO CURRICULAR AND ACADEMIC SUBJECTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), funds made available to carry out this subpart may not be provided for a teacher and a professional development activity if the activity is not—

"(A) directly related to the curriculum and academic subjects in which the teacher provides instruction; or

"(B) designed to enhance the ability of the teacher to understand and use State standards for the academic subjects in which the teacher provides instruction.

"(2) EXCEPTION.—A local educational agency may use funds provided under this subpart to provide the opportunity for such local technical assistance from the State in order to improve the performance of local educational agency employees who are not directly involved in the classroom.

"SEC. 2033. TEACHER OPPORTUNITY PAYMENTS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—A local educational agency receiving funds to carry out this subpart may (or in the case of section 2032(c)(3), shall) provide payments directly to a teacher or a group of teachers seeking opportunities to participate in a professional development activity of their choice.

"(b) NOTICE TO TEACHERS.—Each local educational agency distributing payments under this section—

"(1) shall establish and implement a timely process through which proper notice of availability of the payments will be given to all teachers in schools served by the agency; and

"(2) shall develop a process through which teachers will be specifically recommended by principals to participate in such opportunities by virtue of—

"(A) the teachers' lack of full certification or licensing to teach the academic subjects in which the teachers teach; or

"(B) the teachers' need for additional assistance to ensure that their students make progress toward meeting challenging State content standards and student performance standards; and

"(c) SELECTION OF TEACHERS.—In the event that such payments are not available to provide such payments under this section to all teachers seeking opportunities, an eligible State shall establish procedures for selecting teachers for the payments, which shall provide priority for those teachers recommended under subsection (b)(2).

"(d) ELIGIBLE ACTIVITY.—A teacher receiving a payment under this section shall have completed a professional development activity that meets the criteria set forth in subsections (a) and (b) of section 2032.

"SEC. 2034. LOCAL APPLICATIONS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—A local educational agency seeking to receive a payment under this Act other than programs carried out under this Act (other than programs carried out under Act 20 USC 1400 et seq.) and the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Technical Education Act of 1998 (20 USC 2301 et seq.).

"(b) REQUIREMENTS.—On request by a group of teachers, an eligible State shall provide technical assistance to develop a local educational agency application. The local educational agency, the agency shall use a portion of the funds provided to the agency to carry out this subpart, to provide payments in accordance with sections 2031(c), 2032, and 2033.

"(c) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term "professional development activity" means an activity described in subsection (a)(2) or (d) of section 2031.

"SEC. 2035. ALTERNATIVE ROUTES TO TEACHING CERTIFICATION.
"(ii) involves rigorous data analyses that are appropriate to test a set of hypotheses and justify the general conclusions drawn;"

"(iii) relies on measurements or observational methods that provide valid data across evaluators and observers and across multiple measurements and observations; and"

"(iv) has been accepted by a peer-reviewed journal and approved by independent experts through a comparably rigorous, objective, and scientific review.",

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 2002(1) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1221(a)) is amended by striking "2102(b)" and inserting "2102".

SEC. 3. AMENDMENTS RELATING TO READING EXCELLENCE ACT.

(a) REPEAL OF PART B.—Part B of title II of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6641 et seq.) is repealed.

(b) READING EXCELLENCE ACT.—

(1) PART HEADING.—Part C of title II of such Act is redesignated as part B and the heading for such part B is amended to read as follows:

"PART B—READING EXCELLENCE ACT".

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Section 2260(a) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6661(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(3) FISCAL YEARS 2001 THROUGH 2004.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this part $230,000,000 for fiscal year 2001 and such sums as may be necessary for fiscal years 2002 through 2004.",

(c) SHORT TITLE.—The title of part B of title II of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6661) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"SEC. 2261. SHORT TITLE.

This part may be cited as the 'Reading Excellence Act'.".

SEC. 4. GENERAL PROVISIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title II of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6661 et seq.) is amended—

(1) by repealing part D;

(2) by redesignating part E as part C; and

(3) by repealing sections 2401 and 2402 and inserting the following:

"SEC. 2401. PROHIBITION ON MANDATORY NATIONAL CERTIFICATION OR LICENSING OF TEACHERS.

(a) PROHIBITION ON MANDATORY TESTING, CERTIFICATION, OR LICENSING.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary may not use Federal funds to plan, develop, implement, or administer any mandatory national teacher test or method of certification or licensing.

(b) PROHIBITION ON MANDATORY NATURAL CERTIFICATION OR LICENSING OF TEACHERS.

The Secretary may not withhold funds from any State or local educational agency if such State or local educational agency fails to adopt a specific method of teacher certification or licensing.

"SEC. 2402. PROVISIONS RELATED TO PRIVATE SCHOOLS.

The provisions of sections 14503 through 14506 apply to programs carried out under this title.

"SEC. 2403. HOME SCHOOLS.

Nothing in this title shall be construed to permit, allow, encourage, or authorize any Federal control over any aspect of any private, religious, or home school, whether a home school is treated as a private school or the school under the law of the State involved, except that the Secretary may require that funds provided to a school under
At the request of Mr. Grassley, the name of the Senator from Virginia (Mr. Robb) was added as a cosponsor of S. 37, a bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to eliminate the time limitation on use of Medicare for drugs under the Medicare program to provide continued entitlement for such drugs for certain individuals after Medicare benefits end, and to extend certain Medicare secondary payer requirements. S. 659

At the request of Mr. Mowynihan, the name of the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. Kennedy) was added as a cosponsor of S. 659, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to require pension plans to provide adequate defined benefit plans for certain individuals who have served in the Armed Forces in a foreign country. S. 922

At the request of Mr. Lugar, the name of the Senator from California (Mrs. Feinstein) was added as a cosponsor of S. 693, a bill to authorize a new trade and investment policy for sub-Saharan Africa. S. 693

At the request of Mr. Helms, the name of the Senator from Washington (Mr. Gordon) was added as a cosponsor of S. 693, a bill to assist in the enhancement of the security of Taiwan, and for other purposes. S. 766

At the request of Mr. Wellstone, the names of the Senator from Connecticut (Mr. Dodd) and the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. Johnson) were added as cosponsors of S. 796, a bill to provide for full parity with respect to health insurance coverage for certain severe biologically-based mental illnesses and to prohibit limits on the number of mental illness-related hospital days and outpatient visits that are covered for all mental illnesses. S. 796

At the request of Mr. Dorgan, the name of the Senator from Louisiana (Ms. Landrieu) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1022, a bill to authorize the appropriation of an additional amount for fiscal year 2000 for health care for veterans. S. 1022

At the request of Mr. Voinovich, the name of the Senator from Colorado (Mr. Allard) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1144, a bill to provide increased flexibility in use of highway funding, and for other purposes. S. 1144

At the request of Mr. Dorgan, the name of the Senator from Oregon (Mr. Wyden) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1187, a bill to require the Treasury to mint coins in commemoration of the bicentennial of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, and for other purposes. S. 1187

At the request of Mr. Thompson, the name of the Senator from Maine (Ms. 631, a bill to amend the Social Security Act to eliminate the time limitation on use of Medicare for drugs under the Medicare program to provide continued entitlement for such drugs for certain individuals after Medicare benefits end, and to extend certain Medicare secondary payer requirements.
At the request of Mr. Cochran, the name of the Senator from Virginia (Mr. Graham) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1312, a bill to ensure full and expeditious enforcement of the provisions of the Communications Act of 1934 that seek to bring about competition in local telecommunications markets, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Akaka, the name of the Senator from Florida (Mr. Graham) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1317, a bill to reauthorize the Welfare-To-Work program to provide additional resources and flexibility to improve the administration of the program.

At the request of Mr. Akaka, the name of the Senator from Pennsylvania (Mr. Santorum) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1334, a bill to amend chapter 63 of title 5, United States Code, to increase the amount of leave available to a Federal employee in any year in connection with serving as an organ donor, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Campbell, the names of the Senator from North Dakota (Mr. Conrad) and the Senator from South Carolina (Mr. Thurmond) were added as cosponsors of S. 1438, a bill to establish the National Law Enforcement Museum on Federal land in the District of Columbia.

At the request of Mr. Gramm, the name of the Senator from Missouri (Mr. Ashcroft) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1440, a bill to promote economic growth and opportunity by increasing the level of visas available for highly specialized scientists and engineers and by eliminating the earnings penalty on senior citizens who continue to work after reaching retirement age.

At the request of Mr. Hagel, the name of the Senator from Colorado (Mr. Allard) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1464, a bill to amend the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act to establish certain requirements regarding the Food Quality Protection Act of 1996, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Thurmond, the names of the Senator from Delaware (Mr. Roth) and the Senator from North Dakota (Mr. Dorgan) were added as cosponsors of Senate Resolution 95, a resolution designating August 16, 1999, as “National Airborne Day.”

At the request of Mr. Johnson the name of the Senator from Montana (Mr. Baucus) was added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 1062 intended to be proposed to S. 1233, an original bill making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Enzi the names of the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. Daschle) and the Senator from Wyoming (Mr. Thomas) were added as cosponsors of amendment No. 1489 intended to be proposed to H.R. 2466, a bill making appropriations for the Department of the Interior and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Baucus the name of the Senator from Illinois (Mr. Fitzgerald) was added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 1495 intended to be proposed to S. 1233, an original bill making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Daschle the names of the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. Rockefeller) and the Senator from New Mexico (Mr. Bingaman) were added as cosponsors of amendment No. 1499 proposed to S. 1233, an original bill making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes.
ensure that Medicare beneficiaries have access to the health services.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that Congress should—

(1) reject further reductions in the Medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act;

(2) reject extensions of the provisions of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997; and

(3) take new resources for the Medicare program that—

(A) address the unintended consequences of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997; and

(B) ensure the access of Medicare beneficiaries to high-quality skilled nursing services, home health care services, teaching hospitals, inpatient and outpatient hospital services, and health care services in rural areas.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000

CRAPO (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 1505

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. CRAPO (for himself, Mr. BURNS, Mr. BAUCUS, and Mr. CRAIG) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them to the bill (H.R. 2466) making appropriations for the Department of the Interior and Related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes; as follows:

On page 10, line 16, after “herein,” insert “of which $50,000,000 of the amount available for consultation shall be available for development of a voluntary-enrollment habitat conservation plan for cold water fish in cooperation with the States of Idaho and Montana (of which $250,000 shall be made available to each of the States of Idaho and Montana), and”.

AGRICULTURE, RURAL DEVELOPMENT, FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000

HARKIN (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 1506

Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. KERREY, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. WELLSTONE, Mrs. LINCOLN, and Mr. SARBANES) proposed an amendment to amendment No. 1499 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE to the bill, S. 1233, supra; as follows:

Beginning on page 1, line 3, strike all that follows “Sec.” to the end of the amendment and insert the following:

...EMERGENCY AND INCOME LOSS ASSISTANCE.—(a) ADDITIONAL CROP LOSS ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), in addition to amounts that have been made available to carry out section 1102 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999 (7 U.S.C. 121 note; Public Law 105-277) under other laws, the Secretary of Agriculture (referred to in this section as the ‘Secretary’) shall use not more than $765,000,000 of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to provide crop loss assistance in accordance with that section in a manner that, to the maximum extent practicable—

(A) fully compensates agricultural producers for crop losses in accordance with that section; and

(B) provides equitable treatment under that subsection for agricultural producers described in subsections (b) and (c) of that section.

(2) CROP INSURANCE.—Of the total amount made available under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall use not less than $400,000,000 to assist agricultural producers in purchasing additional coverage for the 2000 crop year under the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.).

(3) COMPENSATION FOR DENIAL OF CROP LOSS ASSISTANCE BASED ON TAXPAYER IDENTIFICATION NUMBERS.—The Secretary shall use not more than $70,000,000 of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to provide make payments to producers on a farm that were denied crop loss assistance under section 1102 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999 (7 U.S.C. 121 note; Public Law 105-277) out of funds made available under that section in a manner that, to the maximum extent practicable, lower premiums or higher actual production histories.

(b) INCOME LOSS ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall use not more than $6,373,000,000 of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to provide payments to producers during any crop year that may not exceed $40,000.

(2) PRODUCERS WITHOUT PRODUCTION.—The payments made available under this subsection shall be based on an equitable basis among producers, according to actual production history, as determined by the Secretary, or a major disaster or emergency was declared for losses due to exceptional heat or drought by the President under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.).

(3) TIME FOR PAYMENT.—The assistance made available under this subsection for an owner or producer shall be provided as soon as practicable after the date of enactment of this Act by providing advance payments that are based on expected production and by taking such measures as are determined appropriate by the Secretary.

(4) DAILY PRODUCERS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Of the total amount made available under paragraph (1), $100,000,000 shall be available to provide assistance to dairy producers in a manner determined by the Secretary.

(B) FEDERAL MILK MARKETING ORDERS.—Payments made under this subsection shall not affect any decision with respect to rule-making by the Secretary under section 141 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7233).

(5) PEANUTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Of the total amount made available under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall use not to exceed $45,000,000 to provide payments to producers of quinoa peanuts or additional peanuts produced to partially compensate the producers for the loss of markets for the 1998 crop of peanuts.

(B) AMOUNT.—The amount of a payment made to producers on a farm of quinoa peanuts or additional peanuts produced or considered produced by the Secretary under section 155 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7233) shall be equal to any one of the following:

(i) an amount equal to 5 percent of the loan rate established for quota peanuts or additional peanuts, respectively, under section 155 of that Act.

(7) TOBACCO GROWER ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary shall provide $236,000,000 to be distributed to tobacco growers according to the formulas established pursuant to the National Tobacco Grower Settlement Trust.

(c) FUNDS FOR STRENGTHENING MARKETS, INCOME, AND SUPPLY (SECTION 32).—

(1) IN GENERAL.—For an additional amount to provide emergency livestock assistance, there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $200,000,000.

(2) SET-ASIDE FOR CERTAIN LIVESTOCK PRODUCERS.—Of the funds made available by paragraph (1), the Secretary shall use not more than $300,000,000 to provide assistance to livestock producers.

(a) the operations of which are located in countries with respect to which during 1999 a natural disaster was declared for losses due to excessive heat or drought by the Secretary, or a major disaster or emergency was declared for losses due to exceptional heat or drought by the President under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.); and

(b) that experienced livestock losses as a result of the declared disaster or emergency.

(3) WAIVER OF COMMODITY LIMITATION.—In providing assistance under this subsection, the Secretary may waive the limitation established under the second sentence of the second paragraph of section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935 (7 U.S.C. 1612e), on the amount of losses that may be declared as any 1 agricultural commodity or product.

(d) EMERGENCY LIVESTOCK ASSISTANCE.—For an additional amount to provide emergency livestock assistance, there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $200,000,000.

(4) COMMODITY PURCHASES AND HUMANITARIAN DONATIONS.—

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary shall use not less than $978,000,000 of additional funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation for the purchase and distribution of agricultural commodities, under applicable food aid authorities, including—

(A) section 416(b) of the Agricultural Act of 1916 (7 U.S.C. 1431(b));

(B) the Food for Progress Act of 1967 (7 U.S.C. 1736e); and

(c) the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (7 U.S.C. 1691 et seq.).

(b) LEAST DEVELOPED COUNTRIES.—Not less than 1 percent of the commodities distributed pursuant to this subsection shall be made available to least developed countries, as determined by the Secretary.

(5) LOCAL CURRENCIES.—To the maximum extent practicable, local currencies generated from the sale of commodities under... this subsection shall be used for development purposes that foster United States agricultural exports.

(f) Upland Cotton Price Competitive

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 136(a) of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7236(a)) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (1), by inserting ‘‘(in the case of each of the 1999–2000, 2000–2001, and 2001–2002 marketing years for upland cotton, at the option of the recipient)’’ after ‘‘or cash payments’’;

(B) by striking ‘‘(or, in the case of each of the 1999–2000, 2000–2001, and 2001–2002 marketing years for upland cotton, 1.25 cents per pound)’’ after ‘‘3 cents per pound’’ each place it appears;

(C) in paragraph (3), by striking subparagraph (A) and inserting the following:

‘‘(A) REMISSION, MARKETING, OR EXCHANGE.—

‘‘(i) In general.—The Secretary shall establish procedures for redeeming marketing certificates for cash or marketing or exchange, and at such price levels, as the Secretary determines and announces that for the period at the end the following: ‘‘except that this subparagraph shall not apply to the redemption of certificates under this subparagraph.’’; and

(ii) in paragraph (1), by striking ‘‘and’’ at the end;

(D) REDEMPTION OF MARKETING CERTIFICATES.—Section 115 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 145k) is amended—

(A) in subsection (a)—

(i) by striking ‘‘rice (other than negotiable marketing certificates for upland cotton or rice)’’ and inserting ‘‘rice, including the issuance of negotiable marketing certificates for upland cotton or rice’’;

(ii) in paragraph (1), by striking ‘‘and’’ at the end;

(iii) in paragraph (2), by striking the period at the end and inserting ‘‘; and’’;

(iv) by adding at the end the following: ‘‘(3) redeem negotiable marketing certificates for cash or marketing or exchange as established by the Secretary.’’; and

(B) in the second sentence of subsection (c), by striking ‘‘export enhancement program’’ and inserting ‘‘marketing promotion program established under the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978’’;

(g) Farm Service Agency.—For an additional amount for the Farm Service Agency, there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $30,000,000.

(h) State Mediation Grants.—For an additional amount for grants pursuant to section 502(b) of the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 (7 U.S.C. 5102(b)), there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $2,000,000.

(i) Disaster Reserve.—For the disaster reserve established under section 623 of the Agricultural Act of 1970 (7 U.S.C. 1427a), there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $500,000,000.

(j) Crop and Livestock Indemnity Payments.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary may use the amount made available under this subsection to carry out a program to provide crop or livestock indemnity payments to agricultural producers for the purpose of ameliorating substantial loss resulting from a natural or major disaster or emergency.

(k) Commercial Fisheries Failure.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary shall provide $15,000,000 of the amount made available under this section to the Department of Commerce to provide emergency disaster assistance to persons or entities that have incurred losses from a commercial fishery failure described in section 308(b)(1) of the Interjurisdictional Fisheries Act of 1986 (16 U.S.C. 4107(b)) with respect to a Northeast multispecies fishery.

(l) Flooded Land Reserve Program.—For an additional amount to carry out a flooded land reserve program under the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 (7 U.S.C. 5623, 5624) that is consistent with section 1124 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996 (7 U.S.C. 3021 Note; Public Law 104–277), there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $250,000,000.

(m) Emergency Short-Term Land Division.—For an additional amount to carry out an emergency short-term land diversion program, there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $200,000,000.

(n) Grain Inspection, Packers, and Stockyards Administration.—For an additional amount for the Grain Inspection, Packers, and Stockyards Administration to support rapid response teams to enforce the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921 (7 U.S.C. 181 et seq.), there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $1,000,000.

(o) Watershed and Flood Prevention Operations.—For an additional amount for watershed and flood prevention operations to repair damage to waterways and watersheds resulting from natural disasters, there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $60,000,000.

(p) Environmental Quality Incentives Program.—For an additional amount for the environmental quality incentives program established under section 401, 402, and 404 of the Agricultural Credit Act of 1977 (16 U.S.C. 2201, 2202, 2204) for expenses resulting from natural disasters, there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $30,000,000.

(q) Environmental Quality Incentives Program.—For an additional amount for the environmental quality incentives program established under chapter 4 of subpart 11 of title XII of the Food Security Act of 1985 (16 U.S.C. 3839aa et seq.), there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $52,000,000.

(r) Wetlands Reserve Program.—Notwithstanding section 727 of this Act, for an additional amount for the wetlands reserve program under subchapter C of chapter 1 of subtitle D of title XII of the Food Security Act of 1985 (16 U.S.C. 3837 et seq.), there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $70,000,000.

(q) FOREIGN MARKET DEVELOPMENT COOPERATOR PROGRAM.—For an additional amount for the foreign market development cooperator program established under section 702 of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 (7 U.S.C. 1501c), there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $10,000,000.

(r) RURAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE.—For an additional amount to carry out a program of rural economic assistance, there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $150,000,000, of which—

(1) $100,000,000 shall be used for rural economic development, with the highest priority given to the most economically disadvantaged rural communities; and

(2) $50,000,000 shall be used to establish and carry out a program of revolving loans for the support of farmer-owned cooperatives.

(s) MANDATORY LABELING.—For an additional amount to carry out a program of mandatory price reporting for livestock and livestock products, on enactment of a law establishing such program, there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $1,000,000.

(t) LABELING OF IMPORTED MEAT AND MEAT PRODUCTS.—

(1) Definitions.—Section 1 of the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 601) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(w) BEEF.—The term ‘beef’ means meat produced from cattle (including veal).

(x) IMPORTED BEEF.—The term ‘imported beef’ means beef produced from cattle slaughtered in the United States, whether or not the beef is graded with a quality grade issued by the Secretary.

(y) IMPORTED LAMB.—The term ‘imported lamb’ means lamb that is not United States lamb, whether or not the lamb is graded with a quality grade issued by the Secretary.

(z) IMPORTED PORK.—The term ‘imported pork’ means pork that is not United States pork.

(aa) LAMB.—The term ‘lamb’ means meat, other than mutton, produced from sheep.

(bb) UNITED STATES LAMB.—"United States lamb’ means lamb produced from cattle imported into the United States in sealed trucks for slaughter.

(cc) UNITED STATES BEEF.—"United States beef’ means beef produced from cattle slaughtered in the United States.

(dd) UNITED STATES LAMB.—"United States lamb’ means lamb produced from cattle slaughtered in the United States.

(2) EXCLUSION.—The term ‘United States lamb’ does not include beef produced from cattle imported into the United States in sealed trucks for slaughter.

(3) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘United States pork’ means pork produced from hogs slaughtered in the United States.

(4) EXCLUSION.—The term ‘United States pork’ does not include pork produced from hogs imported into the United States in sealed trucks for slaughter.

(5) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘United States pork’ means pork produced from hogs slaughtered in the United States.

(6) EXCLUSION.—The term ‘United States pork’ does not include pork produced from hogs imported into the United States in sealed trucks for slaughter.

(7) MISHANDLING.—Section 1(n) of the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 601n) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (11), by striking ‘or’ at the end; and

(B) in paragraph (12), by striking the parenthetical following subparagraphs (C) by adding at the end the following:

"(13)(A) if it is imported beef, imported lamb, or imported pork offered for retail sale as muscle cuts of beef, lamb, or pork and does not bear a label that identifies its country of origin;

(B) if it is United States beef, United States lamb, United States pork, imported beef, imported lamb, imported pork, or other designation that identifies the content of United States beef, imported beef, United States lamb, imported lamb, United States pork, and imported pork contained in the product, as determined by the Secretary.

(C) if it is United States or imported ground beef, ground lamb, or ground pork and is not accompanied by labeling that identifies it as United States beef, United States lamb, United States pork, imported beef, imported lamb, imported pork, or other designation that identifies the content of United States beef, imported beef, United States lamb, imported lamb, United States pork, and imported pork contained in the product, as determined by the Secretary.

(8) MANDATORY LABELING.—The Secretary shall provide by regulation that the following offering of a label that identifies its country of origin:

(1) Muscle cuts of United States beef, United States lamb, United States pork, imported beef, imported lamb, imported pork.

(2) Ground beef, ground lamb, and ground pork.

(h) AUDIT VERIFICATION SYSTEM FOR UNITED STATES AND IMPORTED MUSCLE CUTS OF BEEF, LAMB, AND PORK AND GROUND BEEF, LAMB, AND PORK.—The Secretary may require by regulation that retailers, processors, importers, and wholesalers that prepare, stores, handles, or distributes muscle cuts of United States beef, imported beef, United States lamb, imported lamb, United States pork, imported pork, ground beef, ground lamb, or ground pork for retail sale maintain a reliable recordkeeping audit trail that will permit the Secretary to ensure compliance with the regulations promulgated under subsection (g).

(i) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Agriculture shall promulgate regulations to carry out the amendments made by this subsection.

(j) FUNDING.—For an additional amount to carry out this subsection and the amendments made by this subsection, there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $8,000,000.

(k) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection take effect 60 days after the date on which final regulations are promulgated under paragraph (4).

(l) INDICATION OF COUNTRY OF ORIGIN OF PERISHABLE AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES.—

(1) Definitions.—In this section:

(A) FOOD SERVICE ESTABLISHMENT.—The term ‘food service establishment’ means a restaurant, cafeteria, lunch room, food stand, saloon, tavern, bar, lounge, or other similar facility operated as an enterprise engaged in the business of selling food to the public.

(B) PERISHABLE AGRICULTURAL COMMODITY RETAILER.—The terms ‘perishable agricultural commodity retailer’ and ‘perishable agricultural commodity’ have the meanings given in sections 1(b) and 1(c) of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930 (7 U.S.C. 900(b) and (c)).

(2) NOTICED OF COUNTRY OF ORIGIN REQUIRED.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), a retailer of a perishable agricultural commodity shall inform consumers, at the final point of sale, of the country of origin of the perishable agricultural commodity.

(m) EXEMPTION FOR SERVICE ESTABLISHMENTS.—(Paraphrase) (2) shall not apply to a perishable agricultural commodity if the perishable agricultural commodity is—

(A) prepared or served in a food service establishment; and

(B)(i) offered for sale or sold at the food service establishment in normal retail quantities; or

(ii) served to consumers at the food service establishment.

(n) METHOD OF NOTIFICATION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The information required by paragraph (2) may be provided to consumers by means of a label, stamp, mark, placard, or other clear and visible sign on the perishable agricultural commodity or on the package, display, holding unit, or bin containing the commodity at the final point of sale to consumers.

(B) LABELS OF COMMODITIES.—If the perishable agricultural commodity is already individually labeled regarding country of origin by the packer, importer, or another person, the person shall not be required to provide any additional information to comply with this subsection.

(o) VIOLATIONS.—If a retailer fails to indicate the country of origin of a perishable agricultural commodity as required by paragraph (2), the Secretary may assess a civil penalty on the retailer in an amount not to exceed—

(A) $1,000 for the first day on which the violation occurs; and

(B) $250 for each day on which the same violation continues.

(p) DEPOSIT OF FUNDS.—Amounts collected under paragraph (5) shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts.

(q) APPLICATION OF SUBSECTION.—This section shall apply with respect to a perishable agricultural commodity after the end of the 3-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(r) LIMITATION ON MARKETING LOAN GAINS AND LOAN DEFICIENCY PAYMENTS.—Notwithstanding section 1001A of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1965 (7 U.S.C. 1308(a)), the total amount of the payments specified in section 1001A(2)(a) of that Act that an individual, directly or indirectly, shall be entitled to receive under the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7201 et seq.) for 1 or more contract commodities and oilseeds during the 1999 crop year may not exceed $150,000.

(s) SUSPENSION OF SUGAR ASSESSMENTS.—Section 156(f) of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7272(f)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by inserting ‘‘except as provided in paragraph (6),’’ after ‘‘years,’’;

(2) in paragraph (2), by inserting ‘‘except as provided in paragraph (6),’’ after ‘‘years,’’;

(3) by adding at the end the following:

"(6) SUSPENSION OF ASSESSMENTS.—Effective beginning with fiscal year 2000, no assessments shall be required under this subsection during any fiscal year that immediately follows a fiscal year during which the Federal budget was determined to be in surplus based on the most recent estimates available from the Office of Management and Budget as of the last day of the fiscal year.

(t) FARMERS MARKET PROGRAM.—For an additional amount for the Farmers Market Program in the Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children, there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $10,000,000.

(y) Emergency Requirement.—The entire amount necessary to carry out this section and the amount made by this section available shall be available only to the extent that an official budget request for the entire amount, that includes designation of the entire amount of the request as an emergency requirement as defined in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 (2 U.S.C. 903), is transmitted to the President to the Congress: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of such Act.

(2) Availability.—The amount necessary to carry out this section and the amendments made by this section shall be available upon enactment of this Act for the remainder of fiscal year 1999 and for fiscal year 2000, and shall remain available until expended.

ASHCROFT (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 1507

Mr. ASHCROFT (for himself, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. BACCUS, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. KERREY, Mr. DODD, Mr. BROWNBACK, Mr. GLENN, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. FITZGERALD, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. SESSIONS, Mrs. LINCOLN, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. CHAFFEE, Mr. WELSTONE, and Mr. BURNS) proposed an amendment to amendment No. 1498 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE to the bill, S. 1233, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

(REQUIREMENT OF CONGRESSIONAL APPROVAL OF ANY UNILATERAL AGRICULTURAL OR MEDICAL SANCTION.—

(1) definitions.—In this subsection:

(A) agricultural commodity.—The term "agricultural commodity" has the meaning given in section 403 of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (7 U.S.C. 1691).

(B) agricultural program.—The term "agricultural program" means—

(i) any program administered under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (7 U.S.C. 1691 et. seq.);

(ii) any program administered under section 414 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 1431);

(iii) any commercial sale of agricultural commodities, including a commercial sale of an agricultural commodity that is prohibited under a unilateral agricultural sanction that is in effect on the date of enactment of this Act; or

(iv) any export financing (including credits or credit guarantees) for agricultural commodities.

(C) joint resolution.—The term "joint resolution" means—

(i) in the case of paragraph (2)(A)(i), only a joint resolution introduced within 10 session days of Congress after the date on which the request for an emergency under paragraph (5)(A) is received by Congress, the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: 'That Congress approves the report of the President pursuant to section (5)(A) of the Act transmitted on _._._._., with the blank completed with the appropriate date; and

(ii) in the case of paragraph (5)(B), only a joint resolution introduced within 10 session days of Congress after the date on which the report of the President pursuant to section (5)(A) of the Act transmitted on _._._._., with the blank completed with the appropriate date; and

(iii) used to facilitate the development or production of a chemical or biological weapon;

(iv) in the case of paragraph (5)(C), only a joint resolution introduced within 10 session days of Congress after the date on which the request for an emergency under paragraph (5)(A) is received by Congress, the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: 'That Congress approves the report of the President pursuant to section (5)(A) of the Act transmitted on _._._._., with the blank completed with the appropriate date; and

(v) joint resolution.—The term "joint resolution" means—

"that Congress approves the report of the President to the Congress:

(A) not later than 60 days before the date of termination of the sanction, the President submits a report to Congress that—

(I) describes the activity proposed to be prohibited, restricted, or conditioned; and

(II) describes the sanctions by the foreign country or foreign entity that justify the sanction; and

(B) Congress enacts a joint resolution stating the approval of Congress for the report submitted under clause (I).

(ii) Congress enacts a joint resolution stating the approval of Congress for the report submitted under clause (I)."

(2) Restriction.—

(A) New sanctions.—Except as provided in paragraphs (3) and (4) and notwithstanding any other provision of law, the President may not impose a unilateral agricultural sanction or unilateral medical sanction against a foreign country or foreign entity for any fiscal year, unless—

(i) not later than 60 days before the sanction is proposed to be imposed, the President submits a report to Congress that—

(I) describes the activity proposed to be prohibited, restricted, or conditioned; and

(II) describes the sanctions by the foreign country or foreign entity that justify the sanction; and

(ii) Congress enacts a joint resolution stating the approval of Congress for the report submitted under clause (I).

(iii) Exemptions.—Clause (i) shall not apply to a unilateral agricultural sanction or unilateral medical sanction imposed with respect to an agricultural program or activity described in clause (I) or (IV) of paragraph (1)(B).

(2) EXCEPTIONS.—The President may impose (or continue to impose) a sanction described in paragraph (2) without regard to the procedures required by that paragraph—

(A) against a foreign country or foreign entity with respect to which Congress has enacted a declaration of war that is in effect on the date of enactment of this Act; or

(B) to the extent that the sanction would prohibit, restrict, or condition the provision or use of any agricultural commodity, medicine, or medical device—

(i) controlled on the United States Mailing List;

(ii) an item for which export controls are administered by the Department of Commerce for foreign policy or national security reasons; or

(C) joint resolution.—The term "joint resolution" means—

"that Congress approves the report of the President to the Congress:

(A) not later than 60 days before the date of termination of the sanction, the President submits a report to Congress containing the recommendation of the President for the continuation of the sanction for an additional period of not to exceed 2 years and the report of the President to Congress by the Congress with jurisdiction; and

(B) Congress enacts a joint resolution stating the approval of Congress for the report submitted under subparagraph (A).

(6) CONGRESSIONAL PRIORITY PROCEDURES.—

(A) Referral of Report.—A report described in paragraph (2)(A)(i) or (5)(A) shall be referred to the appropriate committee or committees of the House of Representatives and to the appropriate committee or committees of the Senate.

(B) Referral of Joint Resolution.—

(i) In General.—A joint resolution shall be referred to the committees in each House of Congress with jurisdiction.

(ii) Reporting Date.—A joint resolution referred to in clause (i) may not be reported before the eighth session day of Congress after the introduction of the joint resolution.

(C) Discharge of Committee.—If the committee to which is referred a joint resolution has not reported the joint resolution (or an amendment to the joint resolution) within 30 session days of Congress after the date of introduction of the joint resolution—

(i) the committee shall be discharged from further consideration of the joint resolution; and

(ii) the joint resolution shall be placed on the appropriate calendar of the House concerned.

(D) Floor Consideration.—

(i) Motion to Proceed.—

(I) In General.—When the committee to which a joint resolution is referred has reported, or when a committee is discharged under subparagraph (C) from further consideration of, a joint resolution—

(aa) it shall be at any time thereafter in order (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) for any member of the House concerned to move to proceed to the consideration of the joint resolution; and

(bb) all points of order against the joint resolution (and against consideration of the joint resolution) are waived.

(ii) Privilege.—The motion to proceed to the consideration of the joint resolution—

(aa) shall be highly privileged in the House of Representatives and privileged in the Senate; and

(bb) not debatable.

(iii) Amendments and Motions Not in Order.—The motion to proceed to the consideration of the joint resolution shall not be subject to—

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE 19169

August 3, 1999

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Armed Services be authorized to meet at 9:30 a.m., on Tuesday, August 3, 1999, in open session, to consider the nominations of Carol DiBattiste to be Under Secretary of the Air Force and Charles A. Blanchard to be General Counsel of the Department of the Army.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Tuesday, August 3, 1999, at 10 a.m., to conduct a hearing on S. 962, a bill to provide for equitable com-ensation for the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe. The hearing will be held in room 485, Russell Senate Office Building.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Governmental Affairs Committee be permitted to meet on Tuesday, August 3, 1999, at 10 a.m., for a business meeting to consider pending business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO CHARLES BENNETT GREENWOOD

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to a fellow Kentuckian and friend, Charles Bennett Greenwood of Central City, who died July 16, 1999, at his home.

Charles, or C.B. to his friends, was a unique individual who loved his home state of Kentucky and revered life in small-town Central City. You see, C.B. lived all of his 93 years within a four block area of downtown Central City.
Almost all of the milestones of his life occurred within the same four blocks of Central City. C.B. never went away to college and took very few vacations.
It was obvious to everybody who knew him that C.B. was satisfied with his view of the world from Central City.

C.B. was born to William H. and Viola "Louisa" Greenwood on March 6, 106, at the family home on Fourth Street and went to school just a few hundred feet from his birthplace. In 1934, C.B. and his bride, Louise Batsel, were married at the minister's residence on Third Street, just one block away from the homeplace. All of C.B.'s children—daughter Margaret Ann Long of Oklahoma City; and sons Charles Jr., William and David of Central City—were born at their home on Fourth Street.

Incredibly, C.B. never worked more than four blocks from his birthplace. In the 1920s, C.B. worked for J.C. Batsel Meat Market and Perry Drugstore and in 1932, he went to work for J.C. Penney, all of which were located downtown. In 1945, C.B. purchased Barnes Mercantile Clothing Store on Broad Street, again just four blocks away from his birthplace and residence. He worked at the store until he retired in 1989. For 75 years C.B. walked to and from his jobs in downtown Central City in deep snow or 100 degree weather.

An active community leader, C.B. was a member of the First Baptist Church of Central City, and served on both the Central City Council and the Central City School Board. C.B. was laid to rest in the Rose Hill Cemetery in Central City, four city blocks from where he was born, lived his life, raised his children, worked and ran his business, and served his community.

In today's highly mobile society, few people live their lives like C.B., rooted in their hometown. C.B. was a special person who was happy in his life and lived life to the fullest. I express my condolences to C.B.'s family—his wife, Louise, and children, Charles, Jr.; my close friend Bill and his wife Leslie; and David, and Margaret; 10 grandchildren, 9 great-grandchildren, and one great-great grandchild.

TRIBUTE TO HIS HOLLINESS KAREKIN I, CATHOLICOS OF THE ARMENIAN ORTHODOX CHURCH

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to His Holiness Karekin I, Catholicos of the Armenian Orthodox Church. His Holiness passed away on June 29, 1999 at the Holy See in Rome.

The people of Armenia elected Karekin I Supreme Catholicos of the Armenian people in 1985. Karekin I was the first Catholicos in centuries to reign within an independent Armenian state. His Holiness worked tirelessly for the spiritual revival of the Armenian Orthodox Church in Armenia. His Holiness also decentralized the infrastructure of the church in Armenia by adding new diocese throughout the country, and he restored churches and monasteries which had been closed during the era of Soviet rule.

The Armenian people throughout the world are mourning the death of His Holiness, and Armenia will be paying tribute to his extraordinary life by holding a period of national mourning through August 8.

I urge my colleagues to join with the Armenian community in remembering the legacy of hope, courage, and compassion left by His Holiness Karekin I.

TRIBUTE TO LELAND PERRY

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, this Friday, on the campus of Brigham Young University, in Provo, Utah, the family, friends, former associates and successors of Leland M. Perry will gather to honor his quiet but substantial contributions to the dynamic growth and greatness that characterizes BYU.

Leland Perry, who marks his 98th birthday on August 23, and who still lives in Provo, was the director of the physical plant at BYU from April 1947 to July 1957, when he and his late wife, McNone Perry, set their vocations aside for several years to organize and preside over the West Spanish American Mission of the LDS Church.

Afterward, Mr. Perry went on to head the physical plant at Ricks College in Idaho, which is also an institution in the system of higher education affiliated with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, during that college's explosive building program. From there, he was appointed director of all physical plants in the LDS Church's higher education system, except BYU, until he retired in the mid-1980s.

Leland Perry directed BYU's physical plant during a time when the university was beginning an era of enormous growth; and, from the account I have heard, it is clear that he played an important role during that critical period.

One especially noteworthy example typifies his vital contributions. In 1955, he learned about a new concept for heating widely spread, isolated buildings, in a more efficient and less costly way, using pressurized water, which was heated to levels much higher than the boiling point, and combined with a method of forced circulation. Until then, steam was commonly used in such settings, delivered through pipes and boilers and the controls which were often made of cast iron. Engineering was still a young science, so he took it upon himself to learn all he could about this new technique. He then advocated its use in modernizing the BYU physical plant.

Leland Perry did such a good job in mastering the concept and then in explaining and advocating the system that his idea was accepted, and BYU became the first university in the United States to install and use it campus-wide. Since then, virtually all other campuses of any size have followed BYU's lead, savings untold millions of dollars for American colleges and universities—and for students—nationwide.

At the dedication ceremony for the new system in 1957 former BYU President William F. Edwards said, "Leland caught the vision of a new idea and had the courage to promote the idea."

The physical plant of any major facility or complex of buildings is easy to take for granted. We tend not to notice the pipes and the boilers and the controls unless they break down. But they are the structural bones and the circulatory system that make our buildings useful, comfortable, and practical. I might mention that I was a student at BYU during Leland's tenure as plant manager. I confess that I did not fully appreciate at the time that there was heat in the library, the classrooms and in the dorms because of Leland Perry. He, like all plant managers, is truly a pioneer. With humility and dedication, he has made the vocation of caring for Utah's physical plant a calling. And, he led the way through the last half of this century and created the standards applied to his successors who will lead us into the next century.

I want to join my fellow Utahns and fellow Cougars in commending Leland Perry for his years of service and in wishing him a happy 98th birthday.

TRIBUTE TO SIGURD OLSON

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute one of our nation's... most beloved nature writers and dedicated wilderness conservationists, Mr. Sigurd Olson. As an architect of the federal government’s protection of wild-derness areas, as well as a poetic voice that captured the importance of these pristine sites, Mr. Olson left us and our children a legacy of natural sanctuaries and a ethic by which to better appreciate them.

Mr. President, 1999 marks the 100th anniversary of the birth of Sigurd Olson. Over the July recess, I had the opportunity to travel to Northern Minnesota to commemorate and celebrate Sigurd Olson’s life and work. I think it is fitting that the Senate take this opportunity to honor the life of Mr. Olson, who sadly passed away 17 years ago, and to renew our dedication to continue his legacy of wilderness preservation.

Born in Chicago in 1899, Sigurd Olson and his family soon moved to the beautiful Door County Peninsula of Wis-cconsin. It was there that he formed his life-long love of nature and outdoor recreation. Half a century later, he described what he experienced as a boy along the coast of Green Bay: A school of perch darted in and out of the rocks. They were green and gold and black, and I was fascinated by their beauty. Seagulls wheeled and cried above me. Waves crashed against the pier. I was alone in a wild and lovely place, part of the dark forest through which I had come, and of all the wild sounds and colors and feelings of the place I had found. That day I entered into a life of indescribable beauty and delight. There I believe I heard the singing wilderness for the first time.

A few years after graduating from the University of Wisconsin in Madion, Olson moved to northeastern Mineaesota and traveled and guided for many years in the surrounding mil-tions of acres of lakeland wilderness— what eventually became the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness—and he grew convinced that wilderness provided an experience in contrast to the modern society. It was this conviction that formed the basis of both his conservation and his writing careers. As he said at a Sierra Club conference in 1965: I have discovered in a lifetime of traveling in primitive regions, a lifetime of seeing people living in the wilderness and using it, that there is a hard core of wilderness need in everyone, a core that makes its spiritual values a basic human necessity. There is no hiding it. . . . Unless we can preserve places where the endless spiritual needs of man can be fulfilled and nourished, we will destroy our culture and ourselves.

Olson became an active conservationist in the 1920’s, fighting to keep roads, dams and airplanes out of his “special place” in northeastern Mineaesota. He went on to serve as the president of both the National Parks Association and the Wilderness Society. Yet, perhaps his greatest contribution to conservation came during his tenure as an advisor to Secretary of the Interior from 1959 to the early 1970’s, when he helped draft the Wilderness Act, which became law in 1964 and established the U.S. wilderness preservation system that still exists today.

While I never knew Sigurd Olson, those who worked with “Sig,” as he was called, were infected by his unwavtering commitment to the Boundary Waters and his desire to help people truly understand the meaning and legacy of wilderness.

Central to Olson’s agenda was his perserverance as public advocate for the Boundary Waters, in spite of the sometimes quite open hostility that he faced in taking that stand. Twenty-two years ago on July 8, 1977, a public field hearing was held at Ely High School on Congressmen Fraser’s bill that became the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness Act of 1978. Sigurd Olson, then 77 years old, stepped forward to testify in the midst of hisses, catcalls and boos from the roughly thousand-person crowd that packed the hearing. Despite the heat and the swirling flying insects, the listening crowd was hanging outside the school, he testified, saying in part:

Some places should be preserved from development and exploitation for they satisfy a human need for solace, belonging, and perspective. In the end we turn to nature in a frenzied chaotic world to find silence—oneness—wholeness—spiritual release.

I am inspired by Sigurd Olson’s actions, this is my personal and inspiring of my predecessor in the United States Senate Gaylord Nelson. I also share Olson’s great respect for America’s public lands and for the Boundary Waters.

Mr. President, as I mentioned, I recently visited the Boundary Waters and spent a day canoeing in the pristine area that Olson loved so dearly on the Hegman Lake chain. His words, from his first book, The Singing Wilderness, best express the experience:

The movement of a canoe is like a reed in the wind. Silence is part of it and the sounds of lapping water, bird songs, and wind in the trees. It is part of the medium through which it floats, the sky, the water, the shores. . . . There is magic in the feel of a paddle and the movement of a canoe, a magic compound of distance, adventure, solitude, and peace. The way of a canoe is the way of the wilderness, and of a freedom almost forgotten. It is an antidote to insecurity, the open door to waterways of ages past and a refuge from the daily life with its inconsiderate satisfactions. When a man is part of his canoe, he is part of all that canoes have ever known.

In addition to canoeing the Hegman Lakes, I also had an opportunity to visit Listening Point on Burntside Lake with Sigurd Olson’s son, Bob Olson, and Bob’s wife, Vonnie Olson. Many people have a special place where they go to experience nature. Perhaps it is a park, or a campsite, or a favorite hiking trail. For Sigurd Olson, it was a cabin on a tree-covered glaciated point of rock. He called it his “Listening Point,” and it is at the center of his book of the same name.

In his book, Sigurd Olson talks about that place on Burntside Lake from his first night sleeping there under the stars to the eventual building of his cabin. “From this one place I would explore the entire north and all life, including my own,” he wrote. “For me, Listening Point is a window-post from which I might even hear the music of the spheres.”

From his cabin, Olson also experienced the wonder and danger of significant storms in the Boundary Waters, an experience nearly Wheeling to my own. Over the Fourth of July weekend this year, shortly before I arrived, serious winds hit the Boundary Waters, downing trees in a quarter of the wilderness area.

I was fortunate to learn, as I arrived at Listening Point to see Bob Olson clearing trees from the driveway, that Listening Point has weathered significant storms before. Sigurd Olson writes of another storm, and its aftermath in Of Time and Place:

As we approached Listening Point we could see the damage, trees down and twisted, blocking the road to the cabin. We chopped and hacked our way through to the turnaround and found the trail to the cabin was a crisscross of broken treetops, a jackstraw puzzle of tangled debris. It was unbelievable; I looked at the trees, remembering how over the years we had treasured each one of them. . . .

Olson continues: I sometimes wonder about the meaning of such things as this tornado—why it happened, why it leapfrogged over some areas and hit others. We paddled to the islands beyond Listening Point and saw where many trees had been blown over, all old landmarks along the shore. They would lie there for many years until they, too, would sink into the soil and disappear.

Mr. President, I have been a defender of the Boundary Waters, and my constituents adore the area.

I have also joined in the fight to protect the public lands of Southern Utah, and have sponsored legislation to have the lands of wilderness potential in the Apostle Islands National Lakeshore identified. All my efforts are linked to unfinished business that Sigurd Olson began in the Boundary Waters and to his commitment to designating and protecting our country’s special wild places.

In addition to conveying my own admiration for Sigurd Olson, I rise today to share the reflections of my own home state. Wisconsinites have a special fondness for Sigurd Olson for several reasons. Olson, who began his encouragement of wilderness near Northern Wisconsin who loved the outdoors, turned out to be a serious conservationist whose name is among the greatest conservationists of the Twentieth Century. With his special wilderness writing, Olson was a reformer who didn’t come across as some sort of militant.

Second, Wisconsinites truly appreciate an accomplished outdoor enthusiast turned advocate. That’s a rarity.
TRIBUTE TO FREDERICK A. MEISTER

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, my home state, the great Commonwealth of Kentucky is known throughout the world for many fine things—fast horses, bluegrass countryside, the best burley tobacco in the world and winning basketball teams. And of course, Kentucky is also known as the home of fine Bourbon whiskey.

Bourbon is interwoven through the history, heritage and economy of our Commonwealth. First developed in 1797 by an early settler from Virginia named Elijah Pepper who settled in Versailles and built a still behind the Woodford County Courthouse, Bourbon is a distinctively Kentucky product that still plays an important role in our state’s economy.

For the past nineteen years, the interests of this deeply rooted Kentucky industry have been served very well by a gentleman with no Kentucky roots of his own: a man from the snowy plains of Minneosta—Frederick A. Meister. For the past nineteen years, Fred Meister has served as President and CEO of the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States (DISCUS). He is planning to retire soon and I wanted to take this opportunity to thank him, on behalf of the many Kentuckians who are employed by the distillery industry throughout our Commonwealth for a job well done.

While the leadership of many Washington trade associations seems to come and go, Fred’s tenure at DISCUS stands out as a distinguished exception. For almost two decades, the millions of Americans who choose to drink in moderation could not have had a more zealous advocate. At the same time, Fred and DISCUS have wisely taken a hard line against drunk driving and other forms of reckless drinking.

Whether the issue has been taxes, free trade or the First Amendment freedom of distillers to advertise their products on television and radio, Fred has been there making a persuasive case for the spirit industry’s legitimate commercial interests. No one has fought harder or more effectively on these issues than Fred Meister.

At the same time, Fred and DISCUS long ago recognized that the beverage alcohol industry must do its part to stop drunk driving and other forms of reckless drinking. Under Fred’s leadership, the industry has made great progress in this regard.

Under his leadership, DISCUS has successfully developed model legislation, the Drunk Driving Prevention Act, which encourages the states to pass life saving laws preventing drunk driving, including a ban on open containers and “zero tolerance” for under-age consumption. Fred was among the first to call for the establishment of the Presidential Commission on Drunk Driving. Subsequently, he served with distinction on this panel. Under Fred’s leadership, DISCUS has maintained and enforced a strict Code of Good Practice governing the advertising and marketing of distilled spirits. In 1991, the majority of the DISCUS companies made a multi-million dollar investment to form an organization known as the Century Council which went on to develop a number of life saving programs aimed at the problems of underage drinking, drunk driving and, most recently, college binge drinking.

As Fred Meister steps down from the leadership at the Distilled Spirits Council, he leaves behind him a proud and positive legacy and he leaves behind an industry that is both commercially strong and socially responsible.

I know that I can safely speak on the behalf of the thousands of Kentuckians who earn their living in the distilling industry when I say “Congratulations and thank You” to Fred Meister for a job well done.

APPROPRIATION TO JOHN BRADLEY

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, on Friday, August 6, 1999 John Bradley completes a two year assignment to the Senate Committee on Veterans’ Affairs. In view of his outstanding performance on behalf of the Committee, I extend my deep appreciation to John for his courage, his innovation, his professionalism and, above all, his enduring concern for veterans. He shall be missed.

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate immediately proceed to executive session to consider the following nominations on bloc: Executive Calendar Nos. 192, 193, and 200. These nominations are Michael A. Sheehan to be Coordinator for Counterterrorism; Robert S. Gelbard, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the Republic of Indonesia; and William B. Taylor to be Ambassador during tenure of service as Coordinator of the U.S. Assistance for the New Independent States.

I further ask unanimous consent that the nominations be confirmed on bloc, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, any statements be printed in the RECORD, the President be immediately notified of the Senate’s action, and the Senate then return to legislative session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The nominations considered and confirmed on bloc are as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Michael A. Sheehan, of New Jersey, to be Coordinator for Counterterrorism, with the rank and status of Ambassador at Large, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the Republic of Indonesia.

William B. Taylor, Jr., of Virginia, for the Rank of Ambassador during tenure of service as Coordinator of U.S. Assistance for the New Independent States.

the rigorous of staff conferencing with his House counterparts.

It also soon became apparent that John was not a bureaucrat or intent on maintaining the status quo. In fact, he is an intellectual and innovative thinker who is willing to explore new ideas to advance the cause of veterans health care.

During his assignment to the Committee, John played a major role in shaping the following legislation: the Veterans’ Health Care Improvements Act of 1998, the Persian Gulf War Veterans Act of 1998, and the Veterans Compensation Cost of Living Adjustment Act of 1998. Additionally, John has spent many hours this year working on S. 1076, the Veterans Benefits Improvements Act of 1999 which I hope will pass the Senate soon.

Upon his departure, and on behalf of the Committee, I extend my deep appreciation to John for his courage, his innovation, his professionalism and, above all, his enduring concern for veterans. He shall be missed.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate immediately proceed to executive session to consider the following nominations on bloc: Executive Calendar Nos. 192, 193, and 200. These nominations are Michael A. Sheehan to be Coordinator for Counterterrorism; Robert S. Gelbard, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the Republic of Indonesia; and William B. Taylor to be Ambassador during tenure of service as Coordinator of the U.S. Assistance for the New Independent States.

I further ask unanimous consent that the nominations be confirmed on bloc, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, any statements be printed in the RECORD, the President be immediately notified of the Senate’s action, and the Senate then return to legislative session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The nominations considered and confirmed on bloc are as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Michael A. Sheehan, of New Jersey, to be Coordinator for Counterterrorism, with the rank and status of Ambassador at Large, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the Republic of Indonesia.

William B. Taylor, Jr., of Virginia, for the Rank of Ambassador during tenure of service as Coordinator of U.S. Assistance for the New Independent States.

in politics, especially these days. Olson will be long remembered for his character and fundamental decency, defense of the wilderness he loved. On behalf of myself and the citizens of my state, as well as all Americans, I wish Sigurd Olson a very happy birthday. We are a greater country for his dedication.
Both bodies took a different perspective on the allocation of military construction funding for the Department of Defense.

However, in the final conference report, we met our goals of promoting quality of life initiatives and enhancing mission readiness.

Mr. President, this bill has some points I want to highlight. It provides a total of $8.37 billion for military construction.

Even though this is an increase of $2.9 billion over the President's budget for fiscal year 2000, it is still a reduction of $79 million from what was appropriated last year.

The conferees rejected the administration proposal to incrementally fund military construction and family housing projects throughout the Department of Defense. Instead, the conferees believed that fully funding these projects was essential for the well being and moral of the men and women who serve in uniform.

Some 43 percent of the bill is allocated to family housing—a total of $3.6 billion. This includes new construction, improvements to existing units and funding for operation and maintenance of that housing.

We strongly protected quality of life initiatives. We provided $643 million for barracks, $22 million for child development centers, and $151 million for hospital and medical facilities.

We provided a total of $695 million for the Guard and Reserve components. Overall this represents an increase of $560 million from the President's budget request.

Many of those projects will enhance the readiness and mission capabilities of our Reserve and Guard forces, vital to our national defense.

I would like to thank my ranking member, Senator Murray, for her assistance and support throughout this process. She and her staff were extremely helpful.

I commend this product to the Senate and recommend that it be signed by the President without delay.

Mrs. Murray. Mr. President, I am pleased to bring before the Senate this conference report on the fiscal year 2000 military construction appropriations bill—the first of the 13 regular appropriations bills to be completed this year.

This is a good bill, leaner than we would wish but sufficient to meet the Services' most pressing military construction needs, particularly in terms of readiness and quality of life projects. The projects funded in this bill will give the men and women of our armed forces—and their families—a wide array of improved facilities in which to work, to train, and to live.

In my home state of Washington, for example, this bill provides nearly $129 million in funding for 16 different military construction projects plus $9 million for Army family housing at Fort Lewis.

Congress was faced with a difficult situation this year when the Pentagon, in a radical departure from regular procedures, requested incremental funding for the entire slate of fiscal year 2000 military construction projects. Thanks to the cooperation of Chairman Stevens and Ranking Member Byrd, and to the efforts of Senator Burns on the Subcommittee, it didn't happen.

What's more, we included language in our Committee report directing the Administration to fully fund all military construction requests in future budgets.

Unfortunately, this bill reflects a continued decline in the amount of money that is being allocated to military construction. This year's bill is funded at a level of $8.374 billion, which is $76 million less than the fiscal year 1999 bill. And this is at a time when funding for the Defense appropriations bill is heading toward a major increase.

Military construction does not have the glamour of some of the gee whiz, high-tech items in the defense bill, but it is an integral part of readiness and quality of life in the military. If military construction is underfunded, we will wind up undercutting our nation's war fighting capability. We must not allow that to occur.

We will continue to fight the good fight for military construction dollars, ably led by our chairman, Senator Burns, who is an extremely effective advocate for the needs of the military and a pleasure to work with on the Committee. I thank Senator Burns, and Senators Stevens and Byrd, for their unflagging support, and I also thank the Subcommittee staff for their hard work on this bill.

This is a good bipartisan conference report, and I urge my colleagues to accept it so that it can be sent to the President without delay and become the first fiscal year 2000 regular appropriations bills to be signed into law.

Mr. Lott. I ask unanimous consent that the conference report be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements relating to the conference report be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The conference report was agreed to.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

A bill (H.R. 2415) to enhance security of the United States missions and personnel overseas, to authorize appropriations for the Department of State for fiscal year 2000, and for other purposes.

Mr. LOTT. I ask unanimous consent that all after the enacting clause be stricken and the text of S. 886 as passed by the Senate be inserted in lieu thereof. I further ask consent that the bill be read the third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table. I further ask consent that the Senate insist on its amendment, request a conference with the House, and the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees on the part of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 2415), as amended, was passed.

(The text of S. 886 was printed in the RECORD of June 22, 1999)

The Presiding Officer (Mr. ALLARD) appointed Mr. HELMS, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. COVENELL, Mr. GRAMS of Minnesota, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. SARBANES, and Mr. DODD conferees on the part of the Senate.

NATIONAL AIRBORNE DAY

Mr. LOTT. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar No. 241, S. Res. 95.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 95) designating August 16, 1999, as ‘‘National Airborne Day’’.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The resolution (S. 95) was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. 95) was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The resolution is so ordered.

WHEREAS the 501st Parachute Battalion performed in important military and peacekeeping operations, wherever needed, in World War II, Korea, Vietnam, Lebanon, Sinai, the Dominican Republic, Somalia, Haiti, and Bosnia; and

WHEREAS the Senate joins together with the airborne community to celebrate August 16, 1999, as ‘‘National Airborne Day’’: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates August 16, 1999, as ‘‘National Airborne Day’’;

(2) requests that the President issue a proclamation calling on Federal, State, and local administrators and the people of the United States to observe the day with appropriate programs, ceremonies, and activities.

ORDERS FOR WEDNESDAY,

AUGUST 4, 1999

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 9 a.m. on Wednesday, August 4. I further ask consent that on Wednesday, immediately following the prayer, the Journal of proceedings be approved, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate immediately begin 40 minutes of debate on the dairy issue to be equally divided between the opponents and proponents, and the cloture vote occur at 9:45 a.m. with the mandatory quorum having been waived.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. LOTT. Therefore, the Senate will convene at 9 a.m. and we will have 40 minutes of debate, equally divided, on the dairy issue; at 9:45 will be the cloture vote on the dairy amendment. Following the vote, the Senate will resume consideration of the pending Agriculture appropriations bill. Amendments and votes are expected throughout tomorrow’s session of the Senate with the anticipation of completing action on the bill.

After that is completed, we could have a vote on a nomination after some period of debate, and then we would turn to the Interior appropriations bill.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9 A.M.

TOMORROW

Mr. LOTT. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I now ask unanimous consent the Senate stand adjourned under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 8:15 p.m., adjourned until Wednesday, August 4, 1999, at 9 a.m.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate August 3, 1999:

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

MICHAEL J. FRAZIER, OF MARYLAND, TO BE AN ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF TRANSPORTATION, VICE STEVEN G. PALMER, RESIGNED.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

GREGORY RODER, OF NORTH DAKOTA, TO BE ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF COMMERCE, VICE CLARENCE L. IRVING, JR.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

DAVID J. RAYES, OF VIRGINIA, TO BE DEPUTY SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR, VICE JOHN RAYMOND GARAMENDI, RESIGNED.

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

IVAN TINKIN, OF PENNSYLVANIA, TO BE DIRECTOR OF THE OFFICE OF CIVILIAN RADIOACTIVE WASTE MANAGEMENT, DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY, VICE DANIEL A. DREYFUS, RESIGNED.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

EDWARD W. STIMPSON, OF IDAHO, FOR THE RANK OF AMBASSADOR DURING HIS TENURE OF SERVICE AS REPRESENTATIVE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA ON THE COUNCIL OF THE INTERNATIONAL CIVIL AVIATION ORGANIZATION.

THE JUDICIARY

GAIL S. TUSAN, OF GORGIA, TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF GEORGIA, VICE C. HENRY TOWDEL, RETIRED.

RICHARD K. EATON, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, TO BE A JUDGE OF THE UNITED STATES COURT OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE, VICE R. KENTON MUSGRAVE, RETIRED.

DEPARTMENT OF THE JUDICIARY

KATHRYN M. TURMAN, OF VIRGINIA, TO BE DIRECTOR OF THE OFFICE FOR VICTIMS OF CRIME, VICE AILEEN CATHERINE ADAMS.

IN THE ARMY

THE FOLLOWING NAMED ARMY NATIONAL GUARD OF THE UNITED STATES OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADES INDICATED IN THE RESERVE OF THE ARMY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTIONS 624, 628, AND 531:

To be colonel

ROGER F. HALL, JR., 0000 JOHN R. BERGIN, 0000 HOWARD R. HILL, JR., 0000 THOMAS R. JOHNSON, 0000 ROBERT A. MARTINEE, 0000 HINRY C. MCCAIN, 0000 ALAN R. PETTISON, 0000 TIMOTHY L. RUTHER, 0000 ARNOLD H. SORRELL, 0000 STEPHEN C. TRUESDELL, 0000 PAUL K. WOHL, 0000

IN THE AIR FORCE

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADES INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE AND FOR REGULAR APPOINTMENT (IDENTIFIED BY AN ASTERISK (*) UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTIONS 621, 628, AND 631):

To be colonel

MICHAEL L. COLONY, 0000 LEWIS G. GARCIA, 0000 STEVEN J. PINCEKOVSKY, 0000 KEITH L. ROBERTS, 0000

To be lieutenant colonel

MARIO T. AVALOS, 0000 PETE J. BLOME, 0000 LARRY J. CHICERO, 0000 DOUGLAS L. DURAND, 0000 ALAN M. ELAIRED, 0000 MARK R. SHARLITT, 0000 DANIEL E. JOHNSON, 0000 CHARLES E. LATTNER, 0000 RICHARD L. MILLER, 0000

August 3, 1999
IN THE ARMY

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE INDICATED IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY AND FOR REGULAR APPOINTMENT AS CHAPLAIN (IDENTIFIED BY AN ASTERISK (*)) UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C. SECTIONS 624, 531 AND 3064:

*ERIC J. ALBERTSON, 0000
*CARLETON W. BIRCH, 0000
*RANDY L. BRANDT, 0000
*DAVID B. CRARY, 0000
*OCTAVIO J. DIIULIO, 0000
*JACK E. DIXON, 0000
*ORLANDO R. FULLER, 0000
*MARK B. NORDSTROM, 0000
*JEFFREY J. GIANNOLA, 0000
*JOHN W. GRIESSEL, 0000
*KENNETH R. HARRIS, 0000
*JAMES C. HARTZ, 0000
*IRA C. HOUCK III, 0000
*K. KILGORE, 0000
*ROBERT P. LAND, 0000
*RICHARD E. LUND, 0000
*ROBERT C. LYONS, 0000
*JAMES J. MADDEN, 0000
*JO A. MAIN, 0000
*MARK B. NORDBERG, 0000
*RICHARD R. PACANIA, 0000
*KRISTI P. PAPPAS, 0000
*JAMES H. PAULSON, 0000
*JOE R. FREDERICK, 0000
*MARK E. PENFOLD, 0000
*HARRY B. RHEA, JR., 0000
*CHARLES R. REYNOLDS, 0000
*LIR R. RODGERS, 0000
*LINDA R. SCOTT, 0000
*DAVID K. SHURTLEFF, 0000
*FRITZ R. SNYDER, 0000
*TIMOTHY D. WALLS, 0000
*Kevin B. Westin, 0000
*POWELL, 0000
*STANLEY E. WHITTEN, 0000

CONFIRMATIONS

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate August 3, 1999:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

MICHAEL A. SHEEHAN, OF NEW JERSEY, TO BE COORDINATOR FOR COUNTERTERRORISM, WITH THE RANK AND STATUS OF AMBASSADOR AT LARGE:

ROBERT S. GELRAD, OF WASHINGTON, A CAREER MEMBER OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE, CLASS OF CAREER MINISTER, TO BE AMBASSADOR EXTRAORDINARY AND PLENIPOTENTIARY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA TO THE REPUBLIC OF INDONESIA.

WILLIAM R. TAYLOR, JR., OF VIRGINIA, FOR THE RANK OF AMBASSADOR DURING TENURE OF SERVICE AS COORDINATOR OF U.S. ASSISTANCE FOR THE NEW INDEPENDENT STATES.

NATIONAL COMMISSION ON LIBRARIES AND INFORMATION SCIENCE

The above nominations were approved subject to the nominees’ commitment to respond to requests to appear and testify before any duly constituted committee of the Senate.
The House met at 9:00 a.m.

MORNING HOUR DEBATES

The Speaker. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 19, 1999, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning hour debates. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited not to exceed 25 minutes, and each Member except the majority leader, the minority leader, or the minority whip limited to not to exceed 5 minutes, but in no event shall debate continue beyond 9:50 a.m.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) for 5 minutes.

WAIVER FOR VIETNAM

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, it is not often that on the floor of this Chamber we can deal with several major issues simultaneously, but such is the case today as we deal with House Resolution 58, which would deny the waiver of the Jackson-Vanik for Vietnam that will accelerate the economic prospects of that country. We have in the capitol today, Ambassador Pete Peterson, who has performed a tremendous service over the last few years in his work in Vietnam. He is arguably the best qualified person in America to bring about the reconciliation. His political and military experience, his passion and his compassion set him apart and make him uniquely qualified. I continue to be amazed at his efforts.

We have the opportunity to build on his efforts with the rejection of the disallowal, to make progress on human rights, transparency of economic activities. We have the opportunity to help in Southeast Asia, the world's 12th most populous country, hasten their economic progress, but it goes far beyond that. The defeat of House Resolution 58 will help accelerate the integration of Vietnam into the world economy. It will help open up their society, but more important it will be an opportunity for us here on this floor to acknowledge the United States needs to get beyond this terrible legacy.

I have great respect for the men who served in Vietnam. It has been a privilege for me to become acquainted with our colleague, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON), and the suffering that he and his family went through. I have been touched by that extraordinary sacrifice.

Yet, at the same time it is clear to me that it is important for us to acknowledge the problems that we faced as a Nation dealing with the war in Vietnam. We were on the wrong side of history. Just this week, we had before the John Quincy Adams Society, Robert McNamara acknowledging that he was well aware, during his tenure, that the war was not winnable and acknowledged the problems with the rationale that was advanced. These were items that were known, frankly, on college campuses around the country at this time but denied at the highest levels of our government.

Last year, on the eve of the Jackson-Vanik waiver vote, I received a call from Vietnam from my daughter who was visiting. She was struck by the kindness of the Vietnamese people, the beauty of the landscape and as a college student she was not really aware, until her experience in Vietnam, of the tragedy of that conflict.

I have in mind today that conversation and her experience as we come forward. We are going to talk about trade and economic opportunity, and that is important. We are on the verge of signing a major trade agreement with Vietnam that will accelerate the economic prospects of that country. We have in the capitol today, Ambassador Pete Peterson, who has performed a tremendous service over the last few years in his work in Vietnam. He is arguably the best qualified person in America to bring about the reconciliation. His political and military experience, his passion and his compassion set him apart and make him uniquely qualified. I continue to be amazed at his efforts.

We have the opportunity to build on his efforts with the rejection of the disallowal, to make progress on human rights, transparency of economic activities. We have the opportunity to help in Southeast Asia, the world’s 12th most populous country, hasten their economic progress, but it goes far beyond that. The defeat of House Resolution 58 will help accelerate the integration of Vietnam into the world economy. It will help open up their society, but more important it will be an opportunity for us here on this floor to acknowledge the United States needs to get beyond this terrible legacy.

By the VA’s own estimates, the veteran population is now 25 million and will drop to about 16 million in the year 2020. So I am concerned, I think all of us should be concerned, about those facilities that cost so much to operate. More than 40 percent of the VA health care facilities are over 50 years old and we are just not getting a good bang for the buck for the taxpayers. It cost as much as $1 million a day to run these underutilized and unused facilities, according to the GAO; and I do not think we should continue to do that. That is why my colleague, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. EVERETT), who is chairman of the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, have held hearings to discuss this and try to correct this egregious use of taxpayers’ money.

Let us not forget, of course, that veterans pay taxes themselves, so we want...
August 3, 1999

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

19177

OMNIBUS MERCURY EMISSIONS REDUCTION ACT OF 1999

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I introduced the Omnibus Mercury Emissions Reduction Act of 1999, a bill to reduce mercury emissions by 95 percent nationwide. I am pleased to be joined by 27 of my colleagues who have agreed to be original cosponsors of this important bipartisan legislation.

Although mercury is a naturally occurring element, it has built up to dangerous levels in the environment. Mercury pollution impedes the reproductive and nervous systems of freshwater fish and wildlife, especially loons. It can be extremely harmful when ingested by humans. It is especially dangerous to pregnant women, children, and developing fetuses. Ingesting mercury can severely damage the central nervous system, causing numbness in extremities, impaired vision, kidney disease, and in some cases even death.

According to EPA’s mercury study, coal plants that contain mercury poses a significant threat to human health, and concentrations of mercury in the environment are increasing.

The report concludes that mercury pollution in the U.S. comes primarily from a few categories of combustion units and incinerators. Together, these sources emit more than 155 tons of mercury into our environment each year. These emissions can be suspended in the air for up to a year and travel hundreds of miles before settling in bodies of water and soil.

Nearly every State confronts the health risks posed by mercury pollution and the problem is growing. Just 6 years ago, 27 States had issued mercury advisories warning the public about consuming freshwater fish contaminated with mercury. Today, the number of States issuing advisories has risen to 40, and the number of water bodies covered by the warnings has nearly doubled.

In some States, including my home State of Maine, every single river, lake, and stream is under a mercury advisory, and that applies to the States shown in black on this chart.

The growing problem has already prompted action at the State and regional level. Last year, the New England governors and Eastern Canadians premiers enacted a plan to reduce mercury emissions, educate the public, and label mercury containing products. Maine and Vermont have passed legislation to cut mercury pollution, and Massachusetts and New Jersey have enacted strict mercury emission standards on waste incinerators.

Although there is a clear consensus that mercury pollution poses a significant threat, State and regional initiatives alone are not sufficient to deal with this problem. As Congress recognized when it passed the Clean Air Act, the only effective way to deal with airborne pollutants that know no State boundaries. That is why I am introducing legislation to reduce the amount of mercury emitted from the largest polluters. This bill sets mercury emission standards for coal-fired utilities, municipal and industrial boilers, chlor-alkali plants, and Portland cement plants. According to the EPA’s report to Congress, these sources are responsible for more than 87 percent of all mercury emissions waste the U.S.

My bill also phases out the use of mercury in products and ensures that municipalities work with waste incinerators that keep products that contain mercury out of the waste stream. It would also require a recycling program for products that contain mercury as an essential component and increases research into the effects of mercury pollution.

With mercury levels in the environment growing every year, it is long past time to enact a comprehensive strategy for controlling mercury pollution. We have the technology for companies to meet these standards, and this bill will allow them to choose the best approach for their facility.

We have reduced or eliminated other toxins without the catastrophic effects that some industries predicted. Now we should eliminate dangerous levels of mercury. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and stop mercury from polluting our waters, infecting our fish and wildlife, and threatening the health of our children.

A SOURING DEBATE OVER MILK PRICES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, very soon the Congress will be engaged in a very vicious debate about milk. And that may surprise some people; but when we start talking about milk marketing order reforms, it is amazing how aggressive some Members can become.

Mr. Speaker, in the last couple of days our colleague, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. GREEN) and myself have sent to all of our other colleagues a copy of an editorial which appeared recently in the Kansas City Star.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to read some excerpts of that editorial because as far as I am concerned they got the debate exactly right. I read and I quote, in 1996, Congress ordered the administration to simplify the pricing of milk. That is easy enough. Stop regulating it. But this is the farm sector and a free market in milk is somehow inconceivable. Instead, milk prices are calculated from rules and equations running several volumes of the Code of Federal Regulations.

The administration’s proposed re-form would reduce the number of regions for which the price of wholesale... milk is regulated from 33 to 11. Fine, but it would also perpetuate the loopy Depression-era notion that the price of milk should be in some respects be based in part on its distance from Eau Claire, Wisconsin. Under current policy, producers farther away from this supposed heart of the dairy region generally receive higher premiums or differentials.

The administration called for slightly lower differentials for beverage milk in many regions, but in Congress even this minuscule step towards rationality is being swept aside. The Committee on Agriculture has substituted a measure that essentially maintains a status quo. Similar moves are afoot in the Senate. Worse, some dairy supporters are working to reauthorize and expand the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact, a regional milk cartel, and allow similar grouping for southern States. Missouri’s legislature, by the way, has already voted to join the Southern Compact, even though it would result in higher prices for consumers. The Center for a Democratic Federation of America reports that the Northeast Dairy Compact raised retail milk prices by an average of 15 cents a gallon over 2 years.

Dairy producers concerned about the long view should be worried. Critics point out that the higher milk differentials endorsed by the House Committee on Agriculture may well lead to lower revenue for many producers. This is because the higher prices will encourage more production, driving down the base milk price and negating the higher differentials.

The worst idea in this developing stew is the prospect for dairy-compact proliferation. A compact works like an internal tariff, because the cartel prohibits sales above an agreed-upon floor price. Producers within the region are protected from would-be outside competitors.

Opponents point out that more regional compacts, and the higher prices they support, will breed excessive production, creating dairy surpluses that will be dumped into markets of other regions. This will prompt other States to demand similar protection, promoting the spread of dairy compacts.

Ultimately, as in the 1980s, political pressure will build to liquidate the dairy surplus in a huge multibillion dollar buyout of cheese, milk powder, and even entire herds.

Congress should permit the Northeast Compact to sunset or expire, which will occur if the lawmakers simply do nothing. In fact, doing nothing to this administration’s proposal seems to be the best choice in this case, or more properly the least bad. Perhaps some day Washington will debate real price simplification as in ditching dairy socialism and letting prices fluctuate according to the law of supply and demand, closed quote.

Mr. Speaker, the Kansas City Star is right. We should allow Secretary Glickman’s modest reforms to go forward. We should sunset the Dairy Compact. Mr. Speaker, markets are more powerful than armies. They allow the market to set the price of milk in Moscow. Maybe we should try it right here in Washington, D.C.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Speaker, for this week the high profile, main business of the Republican leadership in Congress is to reach a final version of the $800 billion tax cut that has been proposed. Now, the Republican leadership says that their tax cut is for the middle class, but that is clearly not true.

The House-passed version of the bill passed here, passed this branch 2 weeks ago. It added in the $63 billion of highest income taxpayers, which represent about 5 percent of all taxpayers in this country, with incomes over $125,000 a year, would get 61 percent, more than three-fifths of the total tax reduction, while the other 120 million taxpayers in this country, 95 percent of all the taxpayers, they would get only 39 percent of the total tax reduction that is involved.

Now, do not think that many people would consider that a middle class tax cut. In fact, it is designed to make the already rich a very great deal richer, while the broad middle class of people in this country, the families that are living on an income of between $20,000 to say, $30,000 a year, are going to be cut in a tax cut that is worth one or two cups of coffee a day for those families.

But that is only a small part of the story. The rest of the story is what cannot be done if the Republican leadership has its way. It cannot be done if their tax cut bill were to become law. For that, I would like to just indicate a couple of areas of what cannot be done. Look at and consider the question of the national debt. On this chart, this chart shows what the publicly-held national debt of $3.7 trillion is made up of.

These pie chart sections, 38 presidents from 1789 until 1977 produced this blue piece. This is President Carter’s portion of the debt, this is President Reagan’s, this is President Bush’s. The interest on $3.7 trillion of debt now is about as large, it is about $230 billion a year, is about as large as the whole debt that was created during the Carter administration, that was built up during the Carter administration.

What happens? The tax cut makes certain that we will not be able to pay off that debt, and we will have to continue paying $200 billion or more per year for years into the future. That means higher interest rates for every American family that wants to buy a home. That means higher interest rates for every business person who wants to create a business that is going to provide more jobs.

So, the debt problem. Let me take a different issue. If you take a look at the Social Security situation, the tax cut, if it were to become law in its present form, would make it very much more difficult to extend the Social Security system beyond the year 2030. We know the demographics. We know how many people are going to be retiring between now and then. We know how many are going to enter the workforce between now and then, and we know that the reserve funds in the Social Security system will run out in 2030. And we will only be able to operate on the basis of whatever is paid into the Social Security trust fund year by year, which means the benefits for the ever-growing number of senior citizens will have to be reduced or the retirement age for people will have to go up.

At the same time, at the same time, we know that for those people who are businesspeople who are wealthy Americans, the retirement age is going down. People are retiring, if they are wealthy enough, at 50, 55, some even younger than that. Some of them never have worked so they never have to retire.

So the Social Security system is in serious jeopardy of not having any additional revenue to put into the protection and preservation of the Social Security system.

Now, my mother, who is 92 years old, is living now on Social Security that is under $500 per month. She also has a couple hundred dollars of income from other sources but she certainly could not live on a reduced benefit as would happen if this tax cut were to become law.

So those are two reasons. There are many others but those are two of what the problems are with the tax cut that is being proposed.

WE MUST TAKE ACTION TO ENSURE THE SAFETY AND SECURITY OF ALL AMERICANS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. JONES) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, 3 weeks ago I first learned the story of a lieutenant colonel working for the Department of Energy whose job had been threatened. Colonel Ed Morris was the director of the Office of Safeguards and Security for the Department of Energy. He and his staff were responsible for the policy that governs the protection of the Energy Department's national security assets. This includes nuclear weapons, nuclear materials, highly classified information, and personnel clearances.

In his position within the Department, Colonel McCallum was responsible for evaluating and working to prevent security challenges with regard to our Nation's most sensitive technology. In his 9 years as director, Colonel McCallum worked under Clinton appointee Secretary Hazel O'Leary and then under current Energy Secretary Bill Richardson. Under both, he worked to highlight security lapses within the Department. Unfortunately, he faced a steep uphill battle getting anyone in the department to listen to his concerns.

Instead, his reports and memos were ultimately carelessly set aside. Even after public disclosure on our most advanced security at our weapons laboratories. Since coming forward with the truth, Colonel McCallum was placed on administrative leave and his career was threatened. Now with the help of Bill O'Reilly and Fox News, I have been working to draw attention to the subject of China and other nations' efforts to steal American military secrets, as well as the administration's treatment of the men and women who are coming forward with the truth.

Colonel McCallum and members of his staff are working to protect the security of each and every American citizen. Rather than being rewarded for their patriotism, they are being punished for their patriotism.

After appearing on the O'Reilly Factor last month, my office has received numerous calls and letters from concerned citizens asking that we continue working to address this issue.

Mr. Speaker, the American people care that our national security has been compromised. The American people care about what other sensitive U.S. information China and rogue nations have been able to access. Our potential adversaries may have been able to access the nation's security information protected and secret. We must take actions to ensure the safety and security of all Americans.

EILEEN COLLINS, A TESTAMENT OF THE POSSIBILITIES THAT DREAMS PRESENT TO US

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, as a test pilot, she eventually logged over 5,000 hours in 30 different aircraft. She was selected as an astronaut in 1990, became the first woman pilot of the Space Shuttle aboard the Discovery on STS-63 in February of 1995. Going into this most recent mission, she had already logged over 419 hours of time in space.

With her latest mission, however, she embarked on an adventure that marks another moment in history. She became the first woman commander of a mission to space.

As chair of the Subcommittee on Technology, I introduced the legislation that created the Commission on the Advancement of Women and Minorities in Science, Engineering and Technology Development, working to reverse the underrepresentation of these groups in the sciences through better education and encouragement at all levels of learning. Through my work on the Committee on Science, I have had the pleasure of meeting Colonel Collins. I have been impressed by her down-to-earth personality and sense of self in such a historic context. Commenting on the low number of women astronauts, she said, "If you do not have large numbers of women apply, it will be hard to select large numbers of women."

Mr. Speaker, H. Res. 267 seeks to recognize the wider possibilities demonstrated by this flight. This latest mission is a signal to little girls who dream. Space is there for them, too. And the next time humankind endeavors to take another joint leap, it could well be a woman to make it.

NAIVE OR CRASS PARTISAN POLITICAL ADVANTAGE THROUGH SCANDALOUS FUND-RAISING?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, my colleague from Maryland spoke eloquently of the dreams of all Americans, and it is with a sense of profound anxiety that I come to the floor today to talk about the elements in our world that could offer these threats.

The lead story, Mr. Speaker, in today’s Washington Times reads as follows: “China Tests New Long Range Missile.” Bill Gertz, the byline, he writes and I quote, “China successfully test-fired its newest long-range missile yesterday amid heightened tensions with Taiwan over pro-independence remarks by the island’s President. The CIA believes the DF-31 test launched from a base in central China will be the first new Chinese intercontinental ballistic missile to incorporate stolen U.S. warhead design and missile technology, according to U.S. officials.”

Mr. Speaker, when I read those words this morning, I could not help but reflect on the revelations that have rocked our Nation’s capital and our entire country in the past several months. The fund-raising scandals, the apparent absence of concern at our Nation’s nuclear laboratories, the wholesale betrayal of our nuclear secrets and the apparent cooperation of some in the private sector, and some in alleged government service to make it so.

Mr. Speaker, what perverse pride can anyone derive from these revelations? Is there actually pride on the part of the Clinton-Gore gang and their fund-raisers this morning? Is there actually pride in the heart of Bernard Schwartz, the leading giver to the Democratic National Committee, whose firm, Loral, gave technology to the Communist Chinese? C. Michael Armstrong, the one-time CEO of Hughes, another company that gave technology to the Communist Chinese, can he feel pride at these revelations this morning?

I am the security advisor, Sandy Berger, who sat on this information and apparently withheld it from the highest levels of government, does he feel pride this morning that our Nation is at risk?

How proud former Energy Secretary Hazel O’Leary must be this morning, with her socialist utopian vision of sharing our nuclear technology with those who oppose us in the world. And finally and sadly, how proud the President and Vice President of the United States must be.

Mr. Speaker, our constitutional republic has survived scores of scoundrels and scalawags, but to have those at the highest level of government speak of a strategic partnership with Communist China and then have it revealed in the fullness of time just what that strategic partnership meant, crass partisan, political advantage through scandalous fund-raising that has led us to this sorry state of affairs. If it is not by design then at least by naivete, and that leads us to another item in this morning’s paper.

William F. Buckley writes in his column and I quote, “With reference to North Korea, specifically American intelligence has said that as things are now going the North Koreans plan to test-fire an advanced version of the T-1 missile that rocked the world when last August it soared right over the island of Japan. T-2 is designed to do better than T-1, and better means that it could land a nuclear payload in Alaska or in Hawaii.” I recall the words and the intent of this administration by former Defense Secretary William Perry who lectured new Members of Congress on the necessity of giving, giving nuclear reactors to the outlaw nation, that is North Korea, and worse it has been reported in our press that the State Department kept from Congress information that the core of one of those reactors is now missing.

Mr. Speaker, when will we awaken to the threat that has been created by naive or crass political advantage that some have sought in direct contravention and dereliction of the oath of office which we all take as constitutional officials to provide for the common defense, to defend and the Constitution of the United States?

Mr. Speaker, when will the partisan press awaken to these revelations?

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE
August 3, 1999

COOPERATION BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND INDIA REGARDING ENERGY ISSUES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I wanted to take the opportunity this morning to discuss with Secretary of Energy, Bill Richardson, recently announced at the Energy Department that he will be visiting India this fall after the parliamentary elections that are supposed to take place next month, and basically indicated very strongly that the purpose of his visit is to encourage even more cooperation between the United States and India with regard to energy issues.

Yesterday, Mr. Speaker, last night actually on the floor, we initially had a debate on the Burton amendment which was seeking to cut development assistance to India, and wisely the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) decided at the last minute to withdraw his amendment because the votes fortunately were not there; but during that debate many of us who opposed the Burton amendment pointed to increased trade and opportunities between the United States and India in various areas, and the support of the U.S. business community for more investment and trade with India.

I have to say that as Secretary Richardson and many of the Clinton Cabinet members have really taken the lead the last few years in trying to promote more opportunities for cooperation between the United States and India, some of us remember when Ron Brown, who when he was the Commerce Secretary, went to India a few times and did a trade mission to India. After that, Secretary Daley took a mission to talk about the opportunities for trade and investment, and certainly Bill Richardson, when he was the U.N. ambassador and on other occasions, was there in India trying to promote more opportunities between our two countries.

Secretary Shalala did the same thing when she made a trip and talked about health issues. So I think that it is particularly opportune that after the parliamentary elections, which are likely to set a new course for India in terms of its diplomacy in politics but also in terms of its economic policy, would be followed by a trip to India by Bill Richardson this fall.

My understanding is that the Secretary plans to visit New Delhi to expand energy cooperation. During his visit, he will be discussing ways of reducing emission from thermal power plants through better technology and also explore possibilities for cooperation between the two countries in solar energy and related technologies.

So it is renewable resources, in particular, something that I am very concerned about and it is important for the future. We know that in the northeastern part of the United States recently we had blackouts. We know how important it is to try and use renewable resources and to find ways not only in developing countries like India but also in the United States, in developed countries, to try to conserve and find new ways of dealing with the scarce energy resources.

My understanding is that the Energy Secretary would also like for a similar exercise and discuss with Beijing ways to reduce pollution from thermal power generating units.

One other thing that happened relating to the Energy Department, again announced by the Secretary, is that because of his responsibility not only for peaceful uses of energy but also for America’s nuclear weapons laboratories, Richardson announced that his senior advisor for national security, Joan Rohlfing, would work at the U.S. embassy in New Delhi to deal with non-proliferation issues. Essentially, Ms. Rohlfing’s position is effective from September 1 for a specific period of time, and obviously we will be dealing with the whole issue of non-proliferation, ways of trying to deal with the fact that India is now a nuclear power; and we certainly recognize the fact that India is a nuclear power, but obviously we need to have better cooperation between the United States and India with regard to the nuclear issue in terms of security as well, and so I would encourage that.
I am very pleased to see that Secretary Richardson is taking this initiative both with regard to the peaceful uses of energy as well as on the nuclear power issue and what might happen in terms of our national security interests. I think this is a strong indication of further U.S. India cooperation in an area that is very crucial to all of us, and that is our energy resources.

RECESS
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 10 a.m. Accordingly (at 9 o’clock and 45 minutes a.m.), the House stood in recess until 10 a.m.

AFTER RECESS
The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mrs. Wilson) at 10 a.m.

PRAYER
The Reverend Dr. Donald Carter, Pastor, Baptist Temple of Alamance County, Burlington, North Carolina, offered the following prayer:

May we pray. Heavenly Father, thank You for our forefathers who carved out of the wilderness a great Nation, a Nation that has enjoyed the blessings of Almighty God. We acknowledge Your protective and guiding hand upon our Nation during these 223 years. I request that You give the men and women who are servants of our trust and who represent us understanding of the problems and needs of our country. Give them wisdom to address them. We have sinned as a people and as a Nation. Forgive us of our sins. May these who represent us do what is right, not what is popular, as John Adams said.

May that being who is supreme over all, the Patron of Order, the Fountain of Justice and the Protector of all ages of the world of virtuous liberty, continue His blessings upon this, our Nation. In Jesus’ name I pray.

THE JOURNAL
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House her approval thereof. Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. TRAFICANT) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. TRAFICANT led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

WELCOME TO REVEREND DR. DONALD CARTER, BAPTIST TEMPLE OF ALAMANCE COUNTY, BURLINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA

(Mr. COBLE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COBLE. Madam Speaker, the gentleman who opened the House today, Reverend Carter, I came to know him, his wife, Betty, his son David, and the Baptist Temple Church family when I initially was a candidate for Congress in 1984.

Don and his church family and the entire Alamance County Ministerial Association serve their county well, and we are honored to have Don to open our service today.

The bad news is I no longer represent him. As a result of redistricting, Alamance County was assigned to another Congressional District, and they are now ably represented by the gentleman to whom I yield.

I am pleased to yield, Madam Speaker, to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Burr).

Mr. BURR of North Carolina. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Madam Speaker, I also welcome Pastor Carter and his lovely wife. In fact, in every community, we find families that represent us. Pastor Carter represents a family in Burlington of several hundred of his parishioners that every week turn to him for their spiritual guidance and for the leadership that they give individually and professionally. Dr. Carter, we are glad to have you today and your lovely wife. I also pledge to my dear colleague, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Coble) that I will carry on the tradition that he has established, not only with the Baptist Temple, but with Alamance County.

TAX CUTS TO BENEFIT ALL TAXPAYERS

(Mr. ROGAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROGAN. Madam Speaker, we Republicans across the country campaigned last year on the issue of tax relief for working families. We said that Americans are overtaxed, and America agreed. That is why last year more Americans voted for Republicans than voted Democrat in the Congressional elections.

By now it is no surprise that Republicans actually meant what they said.

The House of Representatives under the Republicans have passed tax relief for working families. This is upsetting to many on the left, still locked in the 1960s mentality that demonizes those that save, invest, create jobs, and pay the lion’s share of taxes.

Our relief package is fair and balanced. It puts aside $2 for Social Security and Medicare for every $1 in tax relief for working families.

It does something foreign to the left that controlled this chamber for 40 years before us. It pays down the national debt by some $1 trillion, and it cuts taxes so that all taxpaying families will benefit.

The Republican Party is the party of tax relief for working families.

ADDRESSING THE PROBLEMS OF HEPATITIS C

(Mr. WEINER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WEINER. Madam Speaker, the Queens Courier, a distinguished local newspaper in New York, recently concluded in an exclusive study that they did in this edition that hepatitis C has reached near epidemic proportions in New York City and, in fact, in the Nation as a whole.

The Queens Courier study actually does a great national service to bring our attention to what is an often and unrecognized epidemic: Nearly 4 million Americans have been affected by hepatitis C. As a result, there are almost 10,000 deaths every year in this country, and it causes over $600 million in medical bills in our country. This is indeed an epidemic, albeit a quiet one.

This is particularly poignant to New York City, where there are so many immigrant communities.

Now is the time for not only authorities in New York State, but the Center for Disease Control here in Washington, to finally recognize that hepatitis C has reached a crisis proportion. The Queens Courier has done a very important job by calling this to our attention. Now we in Congress have to take up this call and address the problems of hepatitis C.

NETWORKS NOT COVERING GREEN-SPAN STATEMENTS PROPERLY

(Mr. HEFLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HEFLEY. Madam Speaker, today is the first installment of our Media Watch. Media Watch is an effort to cover the stories which are distorted by liberals, and the stories which are buried in the back pages for political reasons.

As always, there is a lot to choose from, but I think most people would... agree that the way the major networks covered Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan’s comments on the Republican tax proposal deserves a second look.

Anybody watching ABC, NBC, CBS or CNN would come away thinking that the Federal Reserve Chairman opposed the Republican tax cuts and felt them unwise.

Well, Alan Greenspan’s comments were not exactly as they were portrayed. In fact, the Chairman warned against more spending. Those comments were ignored. In fact, the Chairman said that if the choice were between more spending and tax cuts, he thought tax cuts made sense, and that more spending would be the worst of all outcomes.

Surprise, surprise. We get spin from the networks.

STRENGTHENING AND MODERNIZING MEDICARE

(Mr. ALLEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ALLEN. Madam Speaker, anyone who has been paying attention in this country in the last year would think, would know, that we have got some problems with Medicare. The program becomes insolvent in the year 2015.

So let us look at this Republican tax cut proposal. It devotes $792 billion for tax cuts and does absolutely nothing to strengthen and modernize Medicare. The GOP plan does not extend the solvency of Medicare by one day.

By contrast, the Democratic plan invests $325 billion of the on-budget surplus over the next 10 years in the Medicare Trust Fund and extends it out to 2027.

The GOP plan contains absolutely nothing for prescription drug benefits. The Democratic plan contains $45 billion over 10 years to help provide our seniors with help in buying their prescription drugs.

There is no question, this tax cut and helping Medicare, improving Medicare, providing the prescription drug benefit, they cannot both be done. Moreover, the surplus, frankly, is not there.

WESTERN SAHARA PRISONERS OF WAR NEED TO GO HOME

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Madam Speaker, the country of Morocco has been in the news a lot the last couple of weeks. This morning, I rise on behalf of 83 freed Moroccan POW’s in the midst of the Sahara Desert. These men were originally imprisoned due to the conflict between Western Sahara and Morocco.

These prisoners were released in 1997 by Western Sahara as a goodwill gesture when former Secretary of State George Baker, who was the emissary of the UN Secretary General, visited the Sahrawi people in their refugee camps. Eighty-five prisoners were released and filled with anticipation of going home.

Unfortunately, two of the men have died while waiting for permission from their government to visit Morocco.

Last year I visited these released POWs in their camp. You can see these men in the photo around me.

Madam Speaker, some of these men have languished, along with the Sahrawi refugees, in the desert for 20 years. Yet, even though they are free, Morocco has not allowed them to return home to Morocco to their families.

Why? No one knows.

Madam Speaker, I urge the new King of Morocco as a gesture of good will to accept the freed Moroccan citizens so they can return home to their families.

ENACT PATIENTS’ BILL OF RIGHTS NOW

(Mr. STUPAK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STUPAK. Madam Speaker, I rose just about a year ago to join my colleagues in offering a one minute on a proposed patients’ bill of rights. We were discussing this topic in the House because the leadership of the majority, both in the House and the other body, had finally entered into the public discussion on adoption of a Patients’ Bill of Rights.

I regret to say that my optimism was misplaced. Let us say 1 year and 2 weeks later, we still have not passed the Patients’ Bill of Rights.

Since that time, public clamor for a real, genuine Patients’ Bill of Rights has only grown. The public recognizes that, like the first ten amendments to the Constitution, there are real people and real rights that need to be protected. Medical decisions which affect the very livelihood of people and their quality of life must be made by doctors, in consultation with patients, not insurance accountants. Patients must be able to hold HMOs liable, accountable, for decisions that affect their lives and the quality of life, not some travesty of an internal review process.

REPUBLICAN BUDGET PROPOSAL BEING MISREPRESENTED AND MISCHARACTERIZED

(Mr. BALLenger asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BALLenger. Madam Speaker, if you take a look at this chart here, you will notice that the Republican budget proposal will reduce the debt held by the public by approximately $2 trillion. You will also notice that the Republican debt reduction proposal bears absolutely no relation whatsoever to the rhetoric we are hearing on the other side of the aisle.

Democrat after Democrat, over the past several weeks, has come down to the House floor and railed against the Republican tax cut proposal, claiming that it would do nothing for debt reduction, do nothing for Social Security, blah, blah, blah. But our proposal reduces the debt by $2 trillion. The Congressional Budget Office confirms this. Not only that, but the Congressional Budget Office scores our budget proposal as $200 billion better on debt reduction than the Democrat plan. In other words, our plan reduces the debt more than the Democrats do.

How are we to take their rhetoric seriously? How can we possibly have an honest debate, when our budget proposal is routinely mischaracterized and misrepresented beyond any recognition?

All I can say is thank God for C-SPAN.

INTENSIFY WAR ON DRUGS

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Madam Speaker, the Drug Czar said only 38 percent of teenagers in America have tried drugs, and he is all excited.

Now, look, I like the Czar. I think he is doing a good job. But 38 percent is not exactly a number we should be celebrating, folks.

And tell it like it is: Drugs account for 80 percent of all crime, 70 percent of all murder, 50 percent of all healthcare costs, and heroin and cocaine is as easy to get as aspirin in every city in America, and it all comes across the border. Our borders are wide open and our eyes are wide shut.

Beam me up. We do not have a war on drugs going on; we have a propaganda game going on in America.

THE LAKE TAHOE ENVIRONMENTAL SUMMIT

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Madam Speaker, today I rise to pay tribute to Lake Tahoe. Mark Twain once said, as he described Lake Tahoe, it was “the fairest picture the whole Earth afforded.”

With an estimated $300 million of the trees and forests surrounding Lake Tahoe dead or dying, and the lake losing almost a foot of clarity a year, many environmental changes must be made to ensure that we pass on to our children the same wonderful gift of nature in the same pristine condition in which we found it.

A very important first step in this battle was taken when we hosted the Lake Tahoe Environmental Summit in July of 1997. As a result of these meetings $18 million in Federal funds were committed to the Lake Tahoe Basin for clean-up and conservation efforts. But most importantly, the majority of these dollars were available to State and local agencies of Lake Tahoe, and not a Federal bureaucracy.

The agreement reached at Lake Tahoe is a shining example of concerns of environmentalists, conservationists, and even private property owners are not mutually exclusive. I commend all those involved, and look forward to the second annual Tahoe Summit to repeat on the positive and cooperative efforts that would truly benefit this gem in the sky.

SUPPORT THE PATIENTS’ BILL OF RIGHTS

(Mr. SANDLIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SANDLIN. Madam Speaker, insurance companies, there they go again, attempting to mislead and deceive the American public. Television ads that they are placing all across this country incorrectly state that a Patients’ Bill of Rights will make insurance premiums skyrocket.

Nothing could be further from the truth. Madam Speaker, the State of Texas enacted these protections that the insurance companies claim will increase premiums. The Texas experience proves that the insurance companies are dead wrong. One of those protections that is most often cited is the right to sue an HMO if treatment is denied.

Texas enacted a similar provision in 1997. There have been 516 complaints filed, half in favor of the patient, half in favor of the plan. Only three lawsuits have been filed, three lawsuits. That is hardly an explosion in a population of 20 million people.

Texas has some of the lowest premium rates in the entire country, and a study from the Kaiser Family Foundation found that liability accounted for only 3 to 13 cents per person per month in premiums, 3 to 13 cents. Mr. Speaker, the Democrats are working to put the needs of patients first. Let us enact a real Patients’ Bill of Rights, not a bill of goods.

THE TAX RELIEF BILL

(Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, Americans do not want, need, or deserve the highest taxes since World War II. For too long, our tax system has punished the very virtues Americans live by: hard work, marriage, savings, entrepreneurship, and freedom.

Look what happens when we play by the rules. If we get married, the government punishes us with taxes. If we save and invest for our family’s future, we pay taxes on the earnings. If we work hard to earn more, we end up paying what is called an alternative minimum tax, and lose all our family tax credits.

Finally, if we build a successful business and try to leave it to our kids, they will probably have to sell it in order to pay taxes when we die.

We want to end the assault on American values of family, savings, hard work, entrepreneurship, and freedom. It is our money, and we deserve to get it back. Americans do not want or need the President to spend our money on big government.

CONGRESS MUST PASS A MEANINGFUL PATIENTS’ BILL OF RIGHTS

(Ms. DeLAURO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. DeLAURO. Madam Speaker, for the past 2 years the American people have consistently asked for reasonable health care reforms that put those decisions back in the hands of doctors and patients and out of the hands of insurance company bureaucrats. People want to be able to choose their own doctor, to have access to the nearest emergency room, to see a specialist when necessary, to be free from HMO gag rules that prevent doctors from discussing treatment options for them, and to have the right to hold HMOs accountable for their decisions.

This Congress can and should pass these reforms now. The Members of this body who are doctors, whether Democrats or Republicans, almost all agree that these measures will benefit patients, make our health system stronger.

In the past year, thousands of Medicare recipients have been dropped by their HMOs. Millions of Americans have health care without basic coverage protections. We must pass a meaningful Patients’ Bill of Rights. It must reflect our values for quality health care in this country. If we do, we can once again make the doctor’s office a place for medical decisions.

TAXPAYERS KNOW WHICH PARTY IS CAREFUL WITH THEIR MONEY

(Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland. Madam Speaker, for 40 years Democrats controlled Congress. For 40 years Democrats expanded government, spent beyond our needs, and called Republicans extremists or mean-spirited any time they tried to limit spending, cut wasteful government programs, and return power back to the State and local level. They have a 40-year track record of being the party for which fiscal discipline was the last thing on their minds.

So please, with all due respect, Democrat allegations that Republicans are being fiscally irresponsible for proposing tax relief in the face of increasing surpluses do not pass the credibility test. As C-Span junkies know, on virtually every amendment, on virtually every bill, Democrats attempt to increase spending and Republicans try to reduce spending.

How is it that increased spending is not a threat to fiscal discipline, but tax cuts are? Just how liberal am I to conclude the Democrat party has become if tax cuts are viewed as dangerous to the economy? One has to wonder just where they learned economics. Taxpayers know which party is careful with their money and which party is not.

WE NEED A TRUE PATIENTS’ BILL OF RIGHTS

(Mr. WEYGAND asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WEYGAND. Madam Speaker, how many times have we heard about a woman being denied to designate her OB–GYN doctor as her primary care physician? How many times have we heard about a woman being denied emergency room care because an HMO bureaucrat said no to the billing? How many times have we heard doctors say, we need more time to stay for this patient, but the HMO has said no?

Sometimes these decisions cause harm, sometimes even death. The Declaration of Independence states that we are endowed with certain unalienable rights, including life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Serving as the foundation for our Bill of Rights, it is now time to call for a true Patients’ Bill of Rights, a Patients’ Bill of Rights that will provide real access to emergency room care, will strengthen the doctor-patient relationship, and most importantly, provide patients with the right to hold insurance companies for wrongdoing, to be able to sue them when they are wrong.

Let us provide a true Patients’ Bill of Rights, and declare a Declaration of Independence from the gag rules of HMOs. Please support a true Patients’ Bill of Rights.

August 3, 1999
THE REPUBLICAN AGENDA IS THE BEST AGENDA

(Mr. SHIMKUS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHIMKUS. Madam Speaker, what is the Republican agenda? The Republican agenda is the best agenda for all Americans. B is for bolstering our national security, E is for education excellence, S is for strengthening retirement security, and T is for tax relief for working Americans.

Republicans have the BEST agenda. It is a positive, forward-looking agenda that recognizes that our military needs must be given a higher priority in a dangerous world, that our schools need to be improved if our kids are going to enjoy a bright future, that our seniors need to be protected against a looming social security and Medicare crisis, and that Americans who pay the taxes should be given tax relief, not more rhetoric about why Washington needs more money.

Bolstering national security, education excellence, strengthening retirement security, tax relief for working Americans, Republicans have the BEST agenda.

THE PATIENTS’ BILL OF RIGHTS

(Ms. SLAUGHTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Madam Speaker, I am continually amazed by the misinformation spread about the Patients’ Bill of Rights. I know the businesses in my district believe this Patients’ Bill of Rights would allow enrollees to sue their employers for denied benefits, but nothing could be further from the truth. In fact, the Patients’ Bill of Rights contains explicit provisions stating that employers cannot be sued for decisions made by health insurers.

I hope that the American people this time will see through the smokescreen being thrown up by too many groups who have too much interest in killing this legislation. The more time goes by, we risk losing this opportunity altogether. The powerful forces lined up against this legislation will accept another delay to give them the chance to marshall their forces.

We have plenty of time to pass an irresponsible tax cut, time to prevent the Department of Labor from protecting people against workplace injuries, time to name buildings and courthouses, but evidently we do not have the time to protect the very lives and limbs of our constituents.

After this Friday, this Chamber is out of session for 36 days. How many of those days will we fritter away on sound bites and legislation designed for special groups?

POLITICS AS USUAL WHEN IT COMES TO SPENDING THE MONEY OF THE PEOPLE OF AMERICA

(Mr. KINGSTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KINGSTON. Madam Speaker, it is politics as usual when it comes to spending our money, the money of the people of America.

The Republican approach is three-fold. Number one, the Republican party wants to preserve 100 percent of the social security surplus as compared to 62 percent that the President wants to protect.

Now, we do this, we put aside $1.9 trillion for social security and Medicare, and the second thing we do is we pay down the debt. $2 trillion, as seen on this chart. The third thing we do, and only after social security, Medicare, and debt reduction, we return to American people their money for overpayment on taxes.

The President’s attitude is somewhat epitomized in this statement: “We could give the surplus all back to you and hope you spend it right.” Gee, whiz, people of America, Bill Clinton can spend your money better than you can spend it. Does that not make us feel good?

All I can say is, the people in America must not know how to spend money at all, judging by the responsibility exhibited over at the White House the past 2 years.

Let me say this, this is Americans’ money. It ought to go back to them.

UNDER THE REPUBLICAN TAX CUT, WORKING AMERICANS GET THE SHAFT

(Mr. SHERMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHERMAN. Madam Speaker, I ran down to this floor when I heard my colleague, the gentleman from California, refer to the Republican tax cut as fair and balanced. I thought, how could such a huge tax cut, aimed almost exclusively at the super wealthy and the giant corporations, be called balanced? And then I understood what he must have meant.

See, under this tax cut, the top 1 percent wealthiest Americans get ten times the tax relief as 100 million Americans, constituting the lower 40 percent of income earners. At the same time, this tax cut provides more tax relief to job-exporting corporations than it provides to over 50 million Americans.

Madam Speaker, that is the balance. Compared to the super wealthy, working Americans get the shaft. Compared to giant corporations, working families get the shaft. That is the only sense in which the Republican tax cut is balanced.

CONGRESS MUST PASS THE PATIENTS’ BILL OF RIGHTS

(Mr. HOEFFFEL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOEFFFEL. Madam Speaker, we must pass the Patients’ Bill of Rights. Our system of HMOs has run amok.

As evidence, I offer a survey of doctors conducted by one of the newspapers in my district, the Reporter, in Lansdale, Pennsylvania. Most of the doctors responding were not against the original idea of HMOs, they have just said the rules have gone haywire.

Eighty-seven percent of the doctors responding have had conflicts with HMOs. Fifty-eight percent of those say the conflicts have been serious, and happen frequently. Seventy percent of the doctors say they do not have sufficient control over treatment.

Another doctor said, “The American people need to wake up. Their lives are in danger with HMO control. Doctors have to put away their medical books and do what the HMO manual says for their patients.”

Another doctor said, “The American people need to wake up. Their lives are in danger with HMO control. Doctors have to put away their medical books and do what the HMO manual says for their patients.”

A third doctor was afraid to sign his survey for fear of HMO retaliation. Something has gone wrong. “HMO” stands for How Much Outrage must the American people put up with? Pass the Patients’ Bill of Rights.

FOREIGN OPERATIONS, EXPORT FINANCING, AND RELATED PROGRAMS APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. WILSON). Pursuant to House Resolution 263 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 2606.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose on Monday,
A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 115, noes 272, not voting 16, as follows:

[Roll No. 360]
AYES—115

Aderholt
Archer
Armey Bachus
Baker
Barrett (NC)
Bartlett Barton
Bilirakis
Bilirakis
Blunt Bonilla Bono Bryant
Burr
Burrton
Buyer Calvert
Camp
Canada
Cannon Chabot
Chambliss
Chenoweth
Coble
Coburn
Collins
Collins
Combett
Cook
Costello
Cotter
Craig
Cubin
Danner
DeFazio DeLauro
Dent
Dingell
Dodd
Dooley
Duncan
Emerson English Erevett
Fischer
Forbes
Fosseille
Goode Goodlatte
Gohm

AYE—145

Goodling
Graham
Green (WI)
Green (FL)
Hansen
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Herger
Hill (MT)
Hillery
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstra
Hoechstr
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

HOUSE

August 3, 1999

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIRMAN

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 263, the Chair announces that he will reduce to a minimum of 3 minutes the period of time within which a vote by electronic device will be taken on the additional amendment on which the Chair has postponed further proceedings.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. PAUL

The CHAIRMAN. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will redesignate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. PAUL:

Page 116, after line 5, insert the following:

LIMITATION ON FUNDS FOR EXPORT-IMPORT BANK OF THE UNITED STATES, OVERSEAS PRIVATE INVESTMENT CORPORATION, AND THE TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT AGENCY

Sec. 3. None of the funds made available pursuant to this Act for the Export-Import Bank of the United States, the Overseas Private Investment Corporation, or the Trade and Development Agency, may be used to implement our foreign policy. With that thought in mind, I say to Members, it may be asked to sustain a presidential veto.

The allocation of discretionary resources available in this bill is insufficient to make the investments that our citizens need and expect in implementing our foreign policy. With that thought in mind, I say to Members, it may be asked to sustain a presidential veto.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—atayes 58, noes 360, not voting 15, as follows:

AYES—58

Mr. Chairman, I rise to commend the distinguished chairman of the committee. He had too little money to work with, but he allocated it well. I also commend staff: Mark Murray and Carolyn Bartholomew on the Democratic side; and Charlie Flickner, John Shank, Chris Walker, Lori Maes and Nancy Tippins on the Republican side.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Ms. PELOSI. I yield to the gentleman from New York, chairman of the authorizing committee.

Mr. GILMAN. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to commend both the gentleman and the distinguished chairman of the Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, Export Financing and Related Programs for an outstanding bill and for their hard work and to their staffs for bringing this to the floor in a very expeditious manner. They worked long and late last night to wind up this measure. I urge our colleagues to fully support this measure.
THORNBERRY, Chairman of the Committee, says, “The citizens of the world, ask not what your country can do for you but what you can do for your country.” That is a responsibility that we have in this bill. That is why we are disappointed the funding level is so low, but we want to move it forward in the hope that the funding level will be raised so that we can work together with the people of the world for the freedom of mankind.

The CHAIRMAN. There being no further amendments, under the rule the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. HANCOCK) having assumed the chair, Mr. THORNBERRY, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2866) making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 263, he reported the bill back to the House with sundry amendments adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment? If not, the Chair will put them on the table.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

Pursuant to clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 385, nays 35, not voting 14, as follows:

[Vote totals not listed]

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed an amendment in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 2857. An act making appropriations for the Government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against revenues of said District for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate insists upon its amendment to the bill (H.R. 2857) “An Act making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against revenues of said District for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes,” requests a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. KYL, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. DURBIN, and Mr. INOUYE to be the conference of the part of the Senate.

The Senate also announced that the bill had passed the Senate by the following, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:
S. 335. An act to amend chapter 30 of title 59, United States Code, to provide for the nonavailability of certain deceptive matter relating to sweepstakes, skill contests, facsimile checks, administrative procedures, orders, and civil penalties relating to such matters, for the purpose of enforcement.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 880) “An Act to amend the Clean Air Act to remove flammable fuels from the list of substances which reporting and other activities are required under the risk management plan program.”

TWENTY-FIRST AMENDMENT ENFORCEMENT ACT

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 272 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 272

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 2031) to provide for injunctive relief in Federal district court to enforce State laws relating to the interstate transportation of intoxicating liquor. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule for a period not to exceed two hours. It shall be in order to debate on original bills the purpose of amendment under the five-minute rule the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on the Judiciary now printed in the bill. The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be considered as read. During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may accord priority in recognition on the basis of whether the Member offering an amendment has caused it to be printed in the portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose in clause 8 of rule XVIII. Amendments so printed shall be considered as read. The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may, (1) postpone until a time during further consideration in the Committee of the Whole a request for a recorded vote on any amendment; and (2) reduce to five minutes the minimum time for electronic voting on any postposed question that follows another electronic vote without intervening business, provided that the minimum time for electronic voting on the first in any series of questions shall be 15 minutes. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the same to the House. In the event that the Committee fails to report such amendments as may have been adopted. Any Member may demand a separate vote in the House on any amendment adopted in the Committee of the Whole to the bill or the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto and the bill and amendments thereto shall be taken up with amendments by preference. The Speaker shall reserve the right to determine whether a question is amendable.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HANSEN). The gentleman from Florida (Mr. Goss) is recognized for one hour.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY), my friend and colleague, pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During the course of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purposes of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, this is a fair rule. It provides for adequate and appropriate consideration of H.R. 2031, the Twenty-first Amendment Enforcement Act. It is a modified open rule that will accommodate Member interests in the amendment process while keeping us on track to meet our Friday deadline for August recess, a deadline that many Members, including the minority leader, have urged the Speaker, in writing, to keep.

While the lack of time may argue for a more closed structure, the Committee on Rules has erred on the side of openness and provided an open rule with a 2-hour limit on amendments. Of course, the rule also provides for a motion to recommit, with or without instructions.

Introduced by my colleague, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH), H.R. 2031 was reported favorably by the Committee on the Judiciary on July 20 by voice vote. I understand that while hearings were not held in this Congress, the Subcommittee on Courts and Intellectual Property did convene hearings in the 105th Congress on nearly an identical bill.

I would like to commend the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) for his continued efforts on behalf of American children, particularly when it comes to the tricky business of alcohol access. It is clearly a difficult question to resolve. However, it is encouraging any speakers to come forward and driving.

Mr. Speaker, in my home State of Massachusetts, Massachusetts is considered a limited personal importation State. We allow Massachusetts residents to buy alcohol from outside of Massachusetts but only for their own consumption and only in limited quantities. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts determined how alcohol could cross its borders. If a liquor distributor outside of Massachusetts breaks that law, our attorney general another option. If they believe someone is in violation of their State’s liquor laws, this bill will enable them to file suit that will get them to stop. It says you cannot ship alcohol into a State in violation of that State’s liquor laws. It is that simple.

It is not a new Federal law, it is not a new State law. It is not a threat to anyone who sells alcohol legally. It is just a way for State attorneys general to get people who sell alcohol illegally to stop.

Mr. Speaker, in my home State of Massachusetts, Massachusetts is considered a limited personal importation State. We allow Massachusetts residents to buy alcohol from outside of Massachusetts but only for their own consumption and only in limited quantities. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts determined how alcohol could cross its borders. If a liquor distributor outside of Massachusetts breaks that law, our attorney general another option. If they believe someone is in violation of their State’s liquor laws, this bill will enable them to file suit that will get them to stop.

This bill will help stop the illegal interstate shipment of alcohol by giving State attorneys general power to enforce State laws. In particular, Mr. Speaker, it takes us a step closer to stopping the sale of alcohol to minors over the Internet. But I still believe we can do more to stop underage drinking, especially underage drinking and driving.

This is a good bill, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my dear friend, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Goss), for yielding me the customary half-hour.

Mr. Speaker, as most people know, the Twenty-First Amendment to the Constitution ended prohibition. It also bestowed upon the States the authority to write their own liquor laws. The problem, Mr. Speaker, is there is no interstate enforcement mechanism. The way the law is written, States have virtually no way to enforce the liquor laws when they are violated by distributors in other States, especially now that there are so many ways to buy alcohol.

People can call a 1-800 number, they can order over the Internet, they can do all sorts of things to buy alcohol, and with the limited judicial options available to them now, State attorneys general are having a very hard time making sure that people abide by the law.

This bill will give the State attorneys general another option. If they believe someone is in violation of their State’s liquor laws, this bill will enable them to file suit that will get them to stop. It says you cannot ship alcohol into a State in violation of that State’s liquor laws. It is that simple.

It is not a new Federal law, it is not a new State law. It is not a threat to anyone who sells alcohol legally. It is just a way for State attorneys general to get people who sell alcohol illegally to stop.

Mr. Speaker, in my home State of Massachusetts, Massachusetts is considered a limited personal importation State. We allow Massachusetts residents to buy alcohol from outside of Massachusetts but only for their own consumption and only in limited quantities. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts determined how alcohol could cross its borders. If a liquor distributor outside of Massachusetts breaks that law, our attorney general another option. If they believe someone is in violation of their State’s liquor laws, this bill will enable them to file suit that will get them to stop.

This bill will help stop the illegal interstate shipment of alcohol by giving State attorneys general power to enforce State laws. In particular, Mr. Speaker, it takes us a step closer to stopping the sale of alcohol to minors over the Internet. But I still believe we can do more to stop underage drinking, especially underage drinking and driving.

This is a good bill, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we have no requests for time, and I do not anticipate any. Again, the purpose of this hour of debate is to discuss the rule, which is an open and fair rule. I would prefer that we spend the debate in the debate on the substance of the bill until we get to the time carefully set aside. I have not encouraged any speakers to come forward.
Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Goss), pursuant to House Resolution 272 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 2031.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 2031) to provide for injunctive relief in Federal district court to enforce State laws relating to the interstate transportation of intoxicating liquor, with Mr. Hansen in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN, pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered as having been read the first time.

Under the rule, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH).

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to begin my testimony by reading Section 2 of the Twenty-First Amendment to the Constitution: The transportation or importation into any State, Territory, or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.''

Mr. Chairman, the Twenty-First Amendment’s import is clear. States have been given the right to stop interstate bootlegging. This right was re-affirmed by Congress in the Webb-Kenyon Act 65 years ago, by 6 decades of Supreme Court case law, and by subsequent Congressional acts. Yet, today, some modern-day bootleggers still seek refuge from the Twenty-First Amendment.

They seek to avoid State laws and constitutional amendments so they can sell their liquor more profitably than small businesses who dare to play by the rules. Bootleggers sell liquors to minors over the Internet, again avoiding State laws given preeminence by the Twenty-First Amendment.

Shamed by the countless media stories detailing how young children are buying liquor from these modern-day bootleggers over the Internet, they have shrugged off such media stories, calling them nothing more than stings by their economic enemies. But the only sting here comes from the harsh reality that too many young children can buy alcohol over the Internet.

Selling liquor to minors, or anyone, illegally, is simply wrong. It is bootlegging, and bootlegging is not protected by the commerce clause. Bootlegging is not cleansed by full page ads or media campaigns or by hiring public relations firms. You can dress it stylistically, but, in the end, just like Fitzgerald’s Jay Gatsby, a bootlegger is a bootlegger.

Mr. Speaker, our bill allows States simply to protect themselves from illegal alcohol sales. It also allows States to protect children, like my 11- and 8-year-old boys, from interstate bootleggers over the Internet, and it allows States to enforce the laws that they passed because of direction given them by the Twenty-First Amendment.

With that in mind, this bill allows State attorneys general to seek injunctive relief to stop illegal direct shipments of alcohol into their respective States. Nothing more. Nothing less. This bill only affects those people who break liquor laws.

Now, you will have people coming up here today, saying some of these laws are not fair and saying some of these laws do not allow wineries to sell to this State or that State.

The bottom line is if you do not break the law, then this bill will not apply to you. If you play by the rules, you have nothing to worry about. Yet we are going to have red herrings piled high on this floor today, like we had in the Committee on the Judiciary. Opponents will distract. They will talk about fairness. They will talk about the commerce clause. They will talk about the Internet, trying to claim it will destroy some wineries in California. We are going to have a lot of people from California talking today on the floor, talking about how small wineries are going to be destroyed.

Let me tell the Members something. This bill is narrowly focused. It will simply allow them to enforce these laws in the Constitution, and to use Federal courts to enforce their laws against individuals, against modern-day bootleggers who are illegally shipping alcohol products into States from other jurisdictions.

These direct shipments bypass a key part of the States’ control method, the face-to-face transaction, in order to sell their products at the highest possible profit margin.

This new black market in alcohol is dangerous. It is dangerous because, if left unchecked, it will ultimately frustrate the ability of States to regulate and control the shipment of alcoholic products, a responsibility mandated under the 21st Amendment to the Constitution. It will also cut off the regulation, it will cut off any fees they collect, it will cut off tax revenue that States depend on to regulate alcohol inside their own border. That is the way we have set this up. That is the way the way we have set it up.

Mr. Speaker, it is very important today to ask those coming to the floor and opposing this bill, to ask the simple question: How does the bill affect people that play by the rules, that abide by the law, and that understand the Constitution and the constitutional amendments?

I think if we ask those direct questions, we will understand that this is something that needs to be passed to stop illegal interstate bootlegging, and to protect not only minors but to protect everybody from the scourge of illegal alcohol shipping across State lines.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the bill. As my friend, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) indicated, this bill is very simple, Mr. Chairman. It does nothing more than to confer upon a State the right to go to Federal court to stop someone from outside the State from violating its liquor laws. It is nothing more, it is nothing less. It in no way changes substantive law at the State or Federal level.

The bill is necessary not only to prevent illegal shipments to minors, but to enable States to police licensing... standards, track sales, and collect taxes on those sales.

Last year, illegal alcohol shipments cost States some $600 million in lost revenues. State taxes on alcohol are an important source of support for State programs, and protecting that funding stream is a legitimate State objective. Some who are opposed to this legislation argue that it would impede the development of electronic commerce by taxing the Internet, or chilling direct sales of wine and spirits over the Internet. Well, whatever the merits of chilled wine are, Mr. Chairman, there is no merit whatsoever to these arguments.

As my friend, the gentleman from Florida, pointed out, lawful sales of alcohol over the Internet are thriving. Such online enterprises as wineshopper.com, sommelier.com, and virtualvineyard.com, generated hundreds of millions of dollars in lawful online sales last year alone.

Just last month, Geerlings & Wade of Massachusetts, which has endorsed this bill action as the nation’s largest direct marketer of wines, announced another new website called winebins.com, which will sell thousands of labels in the 27 States in which the company is operating, is licensed to operate. No doubt it will continue to add new labels.

Let us be clear, the bill would impose no new taxes on any of these electronic transactions, nor would it make them illegal. The State laws we seek to defend were put into place to regulate alcohol sales after the failure of Prohibition. In effect, they were the instrument by which an illegal enterprise, bootlegging, was turned into a lawful enterprise.

Some will argue that now these laws are an anachronism. Well, maybe they are correct. Maybe there is a better way for States to protect minors, track sales, ensure quality control, and to raise taxes. But that is an argument better addressed by State legislatures, which have the power to rewrite those laws. Until they do so, they have a right to expect that the laws on the books will be enforced.

That is really what the legislation is all about. If we permit States to pass laws but then allow them to become law when those laws are broken, we encourage disrespect for the law. It is really that simple. That is why attorneys general from across the country support this legislation.

I include for the RECORD Mr. Chairman, letters of support from the chief law enforcement officers of Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, and Wyoming, and my own Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The letters referred to are as follows:

Congressional Record—House

August 3, 1999

Attorney General of Iowa

CARLA J. STOVALL, Attorney General of Kansas.

JENNIFER GRANHOLM, Attorney General of Michigan.

JOSHD. MAZUREK, Attorney General of Montana.

DON SPENCER, Attorney General of Nevada.

FRANKIE SIR DIS COMPA, Attorney General of New Hampshire.

PHILIP T. MCLAUGHLIN, Attorney General of New Mexico.

MICHAEL F. EARLEY, Attorney General of New York.

TOM MILLER, Attorney General of New York.

PHILIP T. MCLAUGHLIN, Attorney General of New Hampshire.

BRUCE M. RUTZ, Attorney General of North Carolina.

HEIDI HEIKAMP, Attorney General of North Dakota.

HARDY MYERS, Attorney General of North Dakota.

DON STENBERG, Attorney General of North Dakota.

DARRELL V. MCGRAW, JR., Attorney General of North Dakota.

GAY WOODHOUSE, Attorney General of North Dakota.

HON. JOHN CONYERS, House of Representatives, Longworth House O.B., Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN CONYERS: I am writing to ask that you support and co-sponsor H.R. 2031, a bill introduced by Congressman Scarrow, which will give my office the ability to better enforce our laws against underage access to alcohol and sales tax collection and other restrictions on alcoholic beverage distribution and sale.

H.R. 2031 will allow states to file for federal court injunctions against out-of-state wineries and retailers who illegally bypass our state system and ship alcohol directly to consumers. These clandestine shipments make it easier for young people to obtain alcohol and make a mockery of our other alcoholic beverage laws. Recent court decisions in Utah and Florida make it clear that all states need this federal court access to ensure their ability to enforce their alcoholic beverage laws.

H.R. 2031 is common sense legislation that makes no change in current state law and makes no restrictions on Internet or catalogue sales. H.R. 2031 simply gives my office the tools we need to take on out-of-state interests that bypass our existing regulations and controls with impunity. As you may know, H.R. 2031 may be brought to the House floor in the next few days. I would appreciate your support of this bill.

Very truly yours,

JENNIFER M. GRANHOLM, Attorney General.
In addition to contacting my own state's Congressional delegation, in support of this amendment, I have written other attorneys general encouraging them to do the same.

If anyone in your office has questions about this legislation, they can call Jonathan Amacker in my office at 804–786–4596. Thank you for your consideration of this matter.

Sincerely,

Mark L. Earley
Attorney General.

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA,
Office of the Attorney General,
Richmond, VA, June 14, 1999.

Hon. DENNIS HASTERT,
Office of the Speaker,
The Capitol, Washington, DC

DEAR Speaker Hastert: The Violent and Repeat Juvenile Offender Accountability and Rehabilitation Act passed in the U.S. Senate recently, and the U.S. House of Representatives plans to vote on similar legislation next week. The legislation contains an amendment to help stop the illegal shipment of alcohol to minors and other violations of state alcohol laws.

The amendment was first introduced last March as S. 577 by Senator Orrin Hatch (R–UT) in response to dozens of television station investigative reports showing how teenagers can have alcohol sent directly to them by ordering it through the mail, over the Internet, through toll-free phone services, and by other means. The amendment was offered to the juvenile justice bill by Senator Robert C. Byrd (D–WV) and passed by an overwhelming bipartisan vote.

The amendment gives state attorneys general access to federal courts to seek injunctive relief against those who are violating our state laws and regulations and in so doing jeopardize the health and welfare of our children. On behalf of the citizens of the Commonwealth of Virginia, I urge your support for H.R. 2031, the proposed "Twenty-First Amendment Enforcement Act." This legislation, introduced by Congressmen Scarborough (R–FL), Delahunt (D–MA) and Sansenbrenner (R–WI), will help prevent illegal shipments of alcohol to minors and the evasion of state tax laws.

The "Twenty-First Amendment Enforcement Act" would give state attorneys general access to federal courts to seek injunctive relief against individuals and businesses who violate state liquor laws by shipping alcohol directly to consumers. These transactions, usually completed over the Internet, allow purchases to be made without adequate proof of age, giving minors easy access to alcohol.

It is important to note that this measure will have no impact on legitimate sales of alcoholic beverages by manufacturers, wholesale, or retailers who operate within the parameters set by law. House Resolution 2031 merely gives the states a better opportunity to enforce their current liquor and tax laws.

The problem of underage drinking has been exacerbated by the explosion of Internet liquor sales. Passage of H.R. 2031 would provide a valuable tool with which state attorneys general can work to prevent the direct shipment of alcohol to minors. Again, I urge you to support this important legislation.

Very truly yours,

MARK L. EARLEY
Attorney General.

STATE OF UTAH,
Office of the Attorney General,
Salt Lake City, UT, June 14, 1999.

Deputy Attorney General JAMES V. HANSEN House of Representatives, Rayburn Building,
Washington, DC

DEAR HANSEN: I am writing to enlist your support for H.R. 2031, a bill introduced by Congressmen Scarborough, Delahunt, Sansenbrenner and Cannon, to provide State Attorneys General with the ability to seek injunctive relief against out-of-state manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers who are complying with the Liquor Control Act and who are engaging in the illegal, direct shipment of alcohol to minors.

I urge you to support this important amendment, H.R. 2031, introduced by Congressmen Scarborough (R–FL), Delahunt (D–MA), and Sansenbrenner (R–WI). It will give attorneys general the option to use the federal court system for injunctive relief to stop the direct shipment of alcohol to minors and other violations of state alcohol laws.

This is an effort to prevent the importation and transportation of alcohol directly to consumers. These transactions, usually completed over the Internet, allow purchases to be made without adequate proof of age, giving minors easy access to alcohol.

It is important to note that this measure will have no impact on legitimate sales of alcoholic beverages by manufacturers, wholesale, or retailers who operate within the parameters set by law. House Resolution 2031 merely gives the states a better opportunity to enforce their current liquor and tax laws.

I urge you to support this important legislation.

Very truly yours,

TOM REILLY
Attorney General.

STATE OF NEBRASKA,
Office of the Attorney General,
Lincoln, NE, June 17, 1999.

Deputy Attorney General DON STENBERG
Rayburn House Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR H. BARRETT: H.R. 2031 would give states access to federal courts to enforce their laws against illegal, direct shipping of alcoholic beverages. I urge you to support this bill.

Illegal, direct shipping of alcoholic beverages into the State of Nebraska undercuts Nebraska's Liquor Control Act, creates unfair competition for Nebraska liquor wholesalers and retailers who are complying with the Liquor Control Act and who are paying applicable taxes, and creates a risk of alcohol shipment of under-age persons.

A copy of H.R. 2031 is enclosed for your quick reference. As you can see it is a simple, common sense approach to a rapidly growing problem.

Yours truly,

DON STENBERG
Attorney General.
Mr. DEUTSCH. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 2031, the 21st Amendment Enforcement Act. The rational for this bill is simple and straightforward. State laws governing alcohol shipping and distribution must be followed and enforced. This bill ensures that States have the tools needed to fully enforce their laws, especially those governing the distribution of alcohol to minors.

This bill will ensure that States have legal recourse against alcohol distributors who violate State laws. Any vintner, retailer, or marketer who ships alcohol to adults in compliance with laws governing the shipments’ destination should support this legislation. H.R. 2031 will simply allow States to take legal action in Federal courts against illegal business practices which often jeopardize the welfare of children.

Just as law enforcement officials need the proper tools to fight crime, and drug enforcement officials need the proper tools to fight the war on drugs, liquor enforcement officials need the tools to enforce State liquor laws. These laws keep alcohol out of the hands of minors, and ensure that consumers receive products from people who sell these products.

I urge my colleagues to support the 21st Amendment Enforcement Act.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR).

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I rise to ask that your support and co-sponsor H.R. 2031, a bill introduced by Congressman Scarboroug that will give my office the ability to better enforce our laws against underage access to alcohol, excise and sales tax collection and other restrictions on alcoholic beverage distribution.

H.R. 2031 will allow states to file for federal court injunctions against out-of-state wineries and retailers who illegally bypass our state system and ship alcohol directly to consumers. These clandestine shipments make it easier for young people to obtain alcohol and make a mockery of our other alcohol control laws, recent court decisions in Utah and Florida make it clear that all states need this federal court access to ensure their ability to enforce their alcoholic beverage laws.

H.R. 2031 is common sense legislation that makes no change in current state law and makes no restrictions on Internet or catalogue sales. H.R. 2031 simply gives my office the tools we need to take action against out-of-state interests that bypass our existing regulations and controls with impunity. As you may know, H.R. 2031 may be brought to the House floor in the next few days. I would appreciate your prompt co-sponsorship of this important legislation and your vote of support if it should be offered as an amendment to the Juvenile Justice bill.

Very truly yours,

CARLA J. STOVALL,
Attorney General.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, let us make no mistake, the online bootleggers who evade State alcohol control laws are hopefully not the future of electronic commerce. They are a throwback to a bygone era. Let us embrace E-commerce and do all we can to encourage it, but let us do it in a manner that respects the rule of law.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DEUTSCH).

Mr. DEUTSCH. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 2031, the 21st Amendment Enforcement Act. The rational for this bill is simple and straightforward. State laws governing alcohol shipping and distribution must be followed and enforced. This bill ensures that States have the tools needed to fully enforce their laws, especially those governing the distribution of alcohol to minors.

This bill will ensure that States have legal recourse against alcohol distributors who violate State laws. Any vintner, retailer, or marketer who ships alcohol to adults in compliance with laws governing the shipments’ destination should support this legislation. H.R. 2031 will simply allow States to take legal action in Federal courts against illegal business practices which often jeopardize the welfare of children.

Just as law enforcement officials need the proper tools to fight crime, and drug enforcement officials need the proper tools to fight the war on drugs, liquor enforcement officials need the tools to enforce State liquor laws. These laws keep alcohol out of the hands of minors, and ensure that consumers receive products from people who sell these products.

I urge my colleagues to support the 21st Amendment Enforcement Act.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBERGER). Mr. SENSENBERGER. Mr. Chairman, this legislation will allow State Attorneys General to seek Federal court injunctions against any out-of-State companies that illegally direct ship alcohol to consumers. These illegal direct shippers are bypassing State excise and sales taxes, operating without required licenses, and most appallingly, illegally selling alcohol to underage persons.

It is important to note what H.R. 2031 does not do. It does not change existing State laws, and makes no restrictions on legal Internet or catalog sales. It does not open the door to Internet taxation. In fact, the word “Internet” does not appear anywhere in the text. It does not create a new Internet E-commerce regime, nor deals with direct shipments of alcohol.

The legislation has bipartisan support. It was adopted overwhelmingly as an amendment to the other body’s juvenile justice bill. Attorneys General from 22 States have signed a letter of support from their respective States.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of States’ rights, and urge my colleagues to allow States to enforce their own alcohol laws by voting in favor of this much needed legislation.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DEUTSCH).

Mr. DEUTSCH. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 2031, the 21st Amendment Enforcement Act. The rational for this bill is simple and straightforward. State laws governing alcohol shipping and distribution must be followed and enforced. This bill ensures that States have the tools needed to fully enforce their laws, especially those governing the distribution of alcohol to minors.

This bill will ensure that States have legal recourse against alcohol distributors who violate State laws. Any vintner, retailer, or marketer who ships alcohol to adults in compliance with laws governing the shipments’ destination should support this legislation. H.R. 2031 will simply allow States to take legal action in Federal courts against illegal business practices which often jeopardize the welfare of children.

Just as law enforcement officials need the proper tools to fight crime, and drug enforcement officials need the proper tools to fight the war on drugs, liquor enforcement officials need the tools to enforce State liquor laws. These laws keep alcohol out of the hands of minors, and ensure that consumers receive products from people who sell these products.

I urge my colleagues to support the 21st Amendment Enforcement Act.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR).

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding time to me, and I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts and the gentleman from Florida for their leadership on this very important issue.

What is going on today, Mr. Speaker from Florida said, is this an issue about States’ rights. It is not anti-commerce, it is not anti-free enterprise. What we must keep in mind is that there are legitimate areas where States have carved out the responsibility in support of their constituencies to regulate certain types of activity, whether it be illicit drugs or sale of alcohol to minors.

We must constantly try and balance the rights of States, the powers of States, to exercise legitimate supervision in those particular areas which, if not properly supervised, would be harmful to the citizens of that State against what we all here believe in, and that is free enterprise and the capitalist system.

But we must ask ourselves, in that regard, at what price is free enterprise allowed to reign? We have witnessed in recent weeks tragedies due to our national security, information on that damage coming forward, where secrets and very important military national security information was disclosed and made available to China, including information made available to China by companies seeking to exercise so-called free enterprise.

Free enterprise does not mean that corporations and companies in America can do whatever they want whenever they want with whom they want. They have to act responsibly, and they have to subject themselves to legitimate exercise of State authority.

The sale of alcohol to minors in particular States, and other laws within those States regarding the regulation of the sale of alcoholic beverages, is a long-standing authority recognized by the courts and by this Congress. As a matter of fact, in the Constitution itself, as the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) indicated, is a legitimate area where there are going to be placed and have been placed some restrictions. But that power is hollow if, in fact, companies are allowed, as they are doing now, to circumvent State law by Internet sales of alcohol in circumvention of and derogation of and flouting State laws.

This legislation that the gentleman from Florida has proposed, supported by the gentleman from Massachusetts, mandates nothing. It simply empowers those States which wish to exercise the power through their attorneys general, duly elected by the people of the several States, to enforce laws against the sale of alcoholic beverages in their State which are in violation of State laws. It does nothing more. It does nothing less.

We hope to keep the debate focused. Mr. Chairman, with regard to amendments that might be opposed on that fundamental power of States' rights.

One certainly will see, as amendments are proposed, we suspect that it is commercial interests that are behind the amendments. Again, while all of us are very, very strong proponents of free enterprise, we also are proponents of States rights and to protect American families.

In an age where we are seeing far too much youth violence, for example, Mr. Chairman, I think we need to be especially mindful that our families all across America need to be empowered and need to be able to rely on the legitimate authorities that they have elected in their States, such as the attorneys general, to protect their children in those legitimate areas where State exercise of authority can, indeed, do so in regulation of alcohol; and sales of alcoholic beverages is one such area.

We must take a very specific, very narrow, very limited response to a problem that has developed in recent years that is a very real problem. Again, to emphasize Mr. Chairman, while we are in favor of Internet sales, we are in favor of commerce generally between the States, this is a legitimate area long recognized by the Congress, by the courts, and by the legislatures of the several States for State regulation.

In order for that State regulation to be meaningful, the State attorneys general must have the power to enforce the interstate sale of alcoholic beverages in derogation of State laws. I urge support of this bill.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I yield as much time as he may consume to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. THOMPSON).

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Speaker, it is unfortunate that this bill is on the floor today. This bill is no more than an attempt, to advantage one industry group over another. It comes at a time when we should be working to find a solution to the problem, the problem of consumers not having access to the wines of their choice because distributors are unable to service the growth in small wineries.

In 1963, there were 375 wineries. Today, in 1999, there are 2,000 wineries. In 1963, we had 10,900 distributors. Today, we have 300 distributors. This is the problem. This is why small wineries and consumers who want to buy premium wine from small wineries are looking for other available places in order to purchase it.

There is an Amador Foothill grower in California that was interviewed by the press; and he said, "A lot of large distributors look on wineries of our size as a nuisance. They cannot sell much of our wine. And the larger wineries are banking on them to sell 10 percent more each year, so they do not have time to sell small premium wines."

That is the problem. This problem is not about kids buying wine in cyberspace. As a matter of fact, that argument does not even pass the giggle test. The fact of the matter is, teenage kids across this Nation are not going in order to be purchasing premium Cabernet wine from my district, from anywhere for $40 to $150 a bottle.

Everyone has been able to see through this clever cover. As a matter of fact, two of the original supporters of this idea, the Mothers Against Drunk Driving and the Emergency Room Nurses have withdrawn their support. The Mothers Against Drunk Driving stated that, in fact, this is a battle between various elements within the alcohol beverage industry. They go on to say that they are dismayed that the industry would go this far or go to such lengths to misrepresent their views.

We have given the National Council on State legislatures is opposed to this measure. They have been working on this issue for the past couple of years, and they see some progress being made. Last week, they voted 41 to 7 in opposition to this legislation. They, too, understand it is a turf issue and have asked this Congress not to interfere.

The Wall Street Journal just editorialized against this, citing it as "an obstacle to interstate commerce of precisely the type the Founders intended to prohibit." The Journal goes on to say and to warn that "Today wine; tomorrow any out-of-State competition that some local interest with campaign money did not want to deal with."

I also want to point out that this bill deals with all liquor violations, not just the ones that were mentioned by the supporters of the bill.

Attorneys General across this Nation could take all and any liquor violation regarding importation and transportation to the Federal courts. This is true even in States that allow direct shipment of wine.

Oklahoma, for example, has a limited personal importation. However, they disallow any transaction on Memorial Day, Labor Day, or Election Day. So if one transports an alcoholic beverage in Oklahoma on the day of a special election to pass a school bond, one could find oneself in Federal court.

Wyoming has a law that prohibits the sale of private labeled wines. So if one sells or transports private labeled wines in Wyoming, it could be Federal court.

Now, the supporters will tell us that this is farfetched; that an Attorney General would not do that. I want to tell my colleagues that it is no more farfetched than the supporters' claims that kids are buying high-priced premium wine over the Internet.

Most troubling, Mr. Chairman, is the fact that one of the coauthors of this bill has informed me that small wineries and consumers who are looking to sell these wines.

Finally, I want to point out that this bill has had no public input. It was rushed to the floor. It was a markup in the Committee on the Judiciary. The public has not been able to speak. Small wineries have not been able to speak. Consumers have not been able to speak. That is particularly troubling, given the long list of amendments that we are looking at today on the bill.

One of the amendments, I understand, is going to provide immunity for Internet service providers. What does this mean, that Yahoo can go online and sell direct in States that prohibit the direct sale of alcoholic beverages? I think this is a huge loophole, and it is one that the supporters of this bill were not counting on.

There was also a great deal of discussion about the loss of tax revenue. I can tell my colleagues that, without an analysis of this bill, I do not know how one can ascertain what the impact, the economic impact of this bill would be one way or the other.

I also want to point out that there are a couple of local laws that could end up landing their constituents in Federal court. Indiana allows a person to bring one bottle of wine home per trip every time they come back to Indiana. If one brings back two bottles of wine, they could be good in their eyes for the distributors who are trying to sell these wines.

Finally, I want to point out that this bill has had no public input. It was rushed to the floor. It was a markup in the Committee on the Judiciary. The public has not been able to speak. Small wineries have not been able to speak. Consumers have not been able to speak. That is particularly troubling, given the long list of amendments that we are looking at today on the bill.

One of the amendments, I understand, is going to provide immunity for Internet service providers. What does this mean, that Yahoo can go online and sell direct in States that prohibit the direct sale of alcoholic beverages? I think this is a huge loophole, and it is one that the supporters of this bill were not counting on.

There was also a great deal of discussion about the loss of tax revenue. I can tell my colleagues that, without an analysis of this bill, I do not know how one can ascertain what the impact, the economic impact of this bill would be one way or the other.

I also want to point out that there are a couple of local laws that could end up landing their constituents in Federal court. Indiana allows a person to bring one bottle of wine home per trip every time they come back to Indiana. If one brings back two bottles of wine, they could be good in their eyes for the distributors who are trying to sell these wines.

Finally, I want to point out that this bill has had no public input. It was rushed to the floor. It was a markup in the Committee on the Judiciary. The public has not been able to speak. Small wineries have not been able to speak. Consumers have not been able to speak. That is particularly troubling, given the long list of amendments that we are looking at today on the bill.

One of the amendments, I understand, is going to provide immunity for Internet service providers. What does this mean, that Yahoo can go online and sell direct in States that prohibit the direct sale of alcoholic beverages? I think this is a huge loophole, and it is one that the supporters of this bill were not counting on.

There was also a great deal of discussion about the loss of tax revenue. I can tell my colleagues that, without an analysis of this bill, I do not know how one can ascertain what the impact, the economic impact of this bill would be one way or the other.

I also want to point out that there are a couple of local laws that could end up landing their constituents in Federal court. Indiana allows a person to bring one bottle of wine home per trip every time they come back to Indiana. If one brings back two bottles of wine, they could be good in their eyes for the distributors who are trying to sell these wines.

Finally, I want to point out that this bill has had no public input. It was rushed to the floor. It was a markup in the Committee on the Judiciary. The public has not been able to speak. Small wineries have not been able to speak. Consumers have not been able to speak. That is particularly troubling, given the long list of amendments that we are looking at today on the bill.
California, and one comes back with a six-pack of premium wine, the little six-pack containers that are common for people to carry without the airplane, one can be in violation of this district's laws, and one can be prosecuted in Federal court.

Mr. Chairman, this bill should be defeated, and this issue should be left up to the States to decide without the heavy hand of the Federal Government's interference.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I would just like to ask if the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMPSON) would be open to a few questions about some statements he made. The gentleman from California criticized selected State laws.

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Chairman, I have not criticized any State laws. I am simply pointing out that this measure could put violation of something, of a law such as the Oklahoma measure that allows transportation of an alcoholic beverage product, into Federal court. I do not think that is what the gentleman's intention is.

I do not think it is the intention of the gentleman's supporters that, if the Internet service provider does direct sales, that they could sell wine in Florida, which makes it a felony to directly ship to Florida. It is completely at odds with the State law that you claim that the gentleman is trying to protect.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time for a question, I need to ask the gentleman from California this question. Does the gentleman from California understand that all this provides is Federal injunctive relief for attorneys general to ward businesses that continually ship to Florida. It is completely at odds with the State law that you claim that the gentleman is trying to protect.

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Chairman, I understand that. I also understand that the Federal court is not the place to determine how much wine one can bring back if one decides to go to the vineyards of Virginia over the course of a weekend that one spends here in D.C.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I think the gentleman said it is his position that minors are not purchasing alcohol over the Internet. Is that the gentleman's position?

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Chairman, I think it is a clever cover for what the gentleman from Florida is trying to do, and that is advantage one industry player. I believe that the gentleman was privy to the same tape that I saw in Mr. HATCH's committee hearing that showed a 14-year-old girl accessing the Internet to buy an alcoholic beverage. But the thing that was not talked much about in that hearing was the fact that her older brother or father was standing right there next to the television camera operator and filming this using his credit card. It is a far stretch from leading us to believe that some youngster is going to plan weeks ahead to purchase some alcoholic beverage and, in the case that impacts my district, a bottle of Cabernet.

I do not think the teenagers of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) are going to buy Opus Cabernet over the Internet with their parents' credit card.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR).

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, one might ask the opponents of this very measured legislation why they think the International Association of Chiefs of Police is endorsing it. The International Association of Chiefs of Police certainly has no problem with the legitimate sale of alcohol. They are not beholden to the wine industry, large or small. They are not beholden to the beer industry, large or microbrew. Yet, they are very strongly in support of this legislation.

The reason they are very strongly in support of this legislation is that they know, as I suspect the opponents do also, but will not admit it, that there are in fact numerous documented instances of minors purchasing alcoholic beverages over the Internet. For anybody to claim otherwise, they are simply misleading this debate or cannot make that argument with a straight face.

There is a case, a documented case just recently reported in Alabama, of a 17-year-old boy able to buy alcoholic beverages over the Internet according to some plan where they will send it periodically once a month.

There is also, documented through Americans for Responsible Alcohol Access, a documentary that shows teenagers in various States, including Mississippi, buying alcoholic beverages.

Also for the opponents of this very measured legislation, also to make the speechless argument that there has been no public input, that is absolutely wrong. There have been debates on this issue in the Congress. There have been hearings on this. Two hearings. This passed overwhelmingly in the United States Senate. Every one of those Senators who voted in support of this, I would presume maybe the opponents of this measured bill know otherwise, but I would certainly presume that those Senators were speaking for their constituents, the citizens of the State.

Mr. Chairman, this is a very measured response to a real problem. I urge support of the legislation.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY).

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to this legislation that would criminalize the efforts of the small wineries in my district in responding to their consumers. This bill is a wolf in sheep's clothing. It is not about State's rights, it is not about combating the problem of underage drinking. Instead, this bill is about wholesalers and distributors that do not want small wineries to move into their turf.

Make no mistake, I firmly believe that we have a national obligation to take care of our children and protect them from threats to their health and safety. Nobody speaks more to that than I do. Too many young people are starting to drink at an early age leading to alcohol and other substance abuse problems. That is why I have fought so strongly in this Congress to support the passage of zero tolerance legislation for underage drinking and driving.

But this legislation does not address that pressing issue. In fact, Mothers Against Drunk Driving, MADD, will not even endorse this bill. That is because they recognize this bill for what it is: A power grab by wholesalers and distributors.

This power grab involves a 65-year-old regulatory scheme that grew out of prohibition and stands on three legs: Politics, policy, and profits. Through the three-tier system, manufacturers are required to sell their beer, wine, and liquor to licensed wholesalers who are the sole suppliers for stores, bars and restaurants, sports arenas, and other retailers. They have got it all tied up, and they do not want to give any of that up.

But guess what, this distribution system does not work for consumers who want to access hard-to-find good wines from small wineries. The wineries in my district in Sonoma and Marin Counties, just north of the Golden Gate Bridge, produce some of the world's finest wines, and we will have to say Napa too, because that is where my colleagues, the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMPSON) is from but many of them cannot get their products to markets the traditional ways.

Wholesalers and distributors will not carry their products because the wineries are not big enough. These winemakers now are joining the point-and-click world of Internet commerce to get their products directly to the consumers. So, do not inhibit their ability to sell their product.

At another time support efforts to ensure that children and teenagers do not buy alcohol from the competition. If we are not sure if it is the day to address that. Vote against H.R. 2031.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 4 minutes.

The gentlemen have made that alcohol sales to minors over the Internet is not a real problem. In fact, one individual stood up and said that I was clever in using this as a front. I thank him for calling me clever, but I am not clever enough to have about 30 news stations across the country running stories specifically on minors purchasing alcohol over the Internet.

WBRQ–TV in Birmingham; WITI–TV in Milwaukee; KPOM in Phoenix, Arizona; KMST in Santa Barbara; WUSA–CBS in Washington; WPEC in West Palm Beach; WPLG in Miami; WWSB in Sarasota, Florida; WICS in Springfield, Illinois, a three-part series; WEVV–TV in Evansville, Indiana, a two-part series; WBFF in Baltimore; stations also in Boston; Lansing, Michigan; Greeneville, Mississippi; Syracuse, New York; Charlotte, North Carolina; Columbus, Ohio; Cleveland; Phoenix; Pennsylvania; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Providence, Rhode Island; Spartanburg, South Carolina; Amarillo, Texas, a three-part series; San Antonio; Salt Lake City; Norfolk; Seattle; Green Bay; WISC Wisconsin; WMTW, Wiscosin & CNN Morning News, Hard Copy; NWCN–TV cable news in Seattle; and ZDTV cable news have all done stories on illegal sales of alcohol to minors over the Internet.

While the gentleman for saying I am clever and suggesting that I would be resourceful enough to set up such a media explosion on this happening from coast to coast, but regrettably I would have to disagree with the gentleman and say I am not quite that clever.

Also, regarding the question of no public input, I sat through the Committee on the Judiciary hearings and can report we heard all the input we could get about 5 or 7 hours. There have been 2 other days and two other committee hearings over the past several years where this issue has been debated over and over and over again.

In all it comes down to the fact that there are some people that want to allow small businesses to sell wine illegally over the Internet. I want to be able to have my rich Republican supporters to be able to purchase the finest wine from Napa valley or purchase the finest wine from Sausalito, a beautiful region I recently visited. I have nothing against that. It just has to be legal.

And it does not matter how small the winery is, it does not matter how fine the wine is, it does not matter how strengthens the businesses may support my colleagues in their districts, or how strong my wine lovers in my district may support me. If it is illegal, it is illegal. If it is bootlegging, it is bootlegging. The only thing this bill does is stop the illegal shipment of alcohol into States, and it does it by allowing the State's attorney general to file an injunction. Nothing more, nothing less.

Mr. Chairman. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DELAHUNTY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume to concur with my friend from Florida. I too want my middle class Democrats to have availability on the Internet to purchase the wines out in Sausalito, California.

Mr. Chairman. I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL).

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Chairman, I would like to agree that the gentleman from Florida is clever, and I do hope he can use his ingenuity as relates to the interstate sale of guns. Because, clearly, we ought to have as much concern about these dangerous weapons as we do about our children consuming wine.

Now, in the old days, when I was a kid, kids did not wait 2, 3, 4 days in order to get wine. They used to get outside the liquor store and get someone to go there and buy wine for them. So if they are clever enough to use the Internet to do it, I do not really think that this law is going to catch too many of them.

It seems to me, coming from a State that has wineries, that we have a major problem here, and that is whether or not some of my Republican opponents want to throw the baby out with the bathwater. We want to be able to have as much competition in this great Republic of ours that we can. I do not think it can be challenged that we have some 1700 small wineries that are unable to penetrate the larger distributors that we have in this country. They have fine products, but they do not have the money and the know-how to get it into the stores.

Finally, technology has given them the opportunity to break through these barriers and to be able to sell their products, subject to State law. Now, we know that one of the things that Congress wants to do is to get government out of the lives of people, especially the Federal Government, and we do not have a lot of attorneys general pleading, knocking down our doors and saying, for God's sake come in here and provide oversight for us.

If we are going to start doing this with wine, there is no reason why we do not start controlling competition in books and recordings and in clothing and taking away the same technology that is pumping up our economy and allowing people to be able to get their wares to the marketplace.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 30 seconds just to respond.

There is a big difference between books and liquor. Amazon.com can still continue to sell books. There is nothing in the Constitution regarding the importance of books. There is nothing in the Constitution regarding swasters from J. Crew. There is something in the Constitution regarding the Twenty-First Amendment, which says it is going to be the province of the States to regulate alcohol sales. So there is a big difference.

Regarding guns, guns can also be shipped, they just have to be shipped legally.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. RADANOVICH). We violently disagree on this issue, but he is a good friend, nonetheless.

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time on this issue, even though I oppose this legislation.

I am not a lawyer. I am a small winery owner. I am one of more than 2,000 wineries in about 47 States, however, only 50 wines are available in a typical retail marketplace. More specifically, about 20 wineries produce 90 percent of all the wine produced. Despite this, sales of regional or limited availability wine, of which there are perhaps over 10,000 labels, have grown. Unfortunately, at the same time the traditional distribution avenues have decreased from over 20,000 wholesalers to fewer than 400.

These wholesalers are not sufficient to handle the shipment and delivery of wines from numerous small producers. Direct mail and the Internet, on the other hand, have allowed small wineries stay afloat, while at the same time helping to satisfy a growing consumer demand for smaller, lesser-known wines produced in this country.

The reason H.R. 2031 is proposed is to stop these alternative avenues to market in favor of existing monopolistic wholesalers. The Twenty-First Amendment to the Constitution is not an absolute divestment of Federal power of the States. The United States Supreme Court has long established that the amendment has its limits and must be considered in the context of the constitutional provisions, including Congress' exclusive right to regulate interstate commerce.

Proponents of this legislation claim that it is necessary to curb the delivery of alcohol products to underage purchasers. I believe that there are few more important causes than to stem the tide of underage drinking in this country, however, I am convinced that direct shipment of wine, beer, and spirits does not contribute to the problem.

The two States with the highest consumption of wines, California and New York, have long permitted interstate shipments over the phone or by mail. Surely if these mechanisms were inherently open to abuse in those States would have discovered that by now, but they have not.

I am sure we can all remember when we were kids, when we were teenagers in high school and we stole our dad's credit card to order a $200 case of premium wine over the phone to have parties with our friends 30 days down the line. And in the meantime, 38 percent of those kids who go into retail stores in the District of Columbia to purchase beer over the counter succeed. So my advice to those that are so concerned about underage purchasers is to focus their direction where the problem really is. The issue is not an issue under this piece of legislation.

The National Conference of State Legislatures recently passed a resolution that opposed legislation which allowed Federal interference in the purchase and delivery of wine across State borders. Forty-one States joined in the passage of the resolution, with only 7 States supporting this attempt to Federalize the laws. The Federal Government should not empower States to engage in this kind of activity. This is monopoly protection at its best. And even those wineries can ship into approximately 12 States now, they will through the support of the attorneys general, limit that as well.

I am a California farmer. In 1982, I established a small vineyard and winery in the Sierra foothill community of Mariposa, my hometown. The Radanovich Winery, which produces Sauvignon blanc, Chardonnay, Merlot, Zinfandel and Cabernet Sauvignon, has grown to over 4,000 cases annually.

Like most wineries, mine is small. Of the more than 2,000 wineries in this country, only 50 are available in a typical retail marketplace. More specifically, about 20 wineries produce 90% of all the wine produced. Despite this, sales of regional or limited availability wine—of which there are perhaps over ten thousand labels—have grown. Unfortunately, traditional distribution agreements are insufficient for the shipment and delivery of wines from these numerous small producers. Direct mail, the Internet and other alternative forms of distribution have helped these small wineries stay afloat, while at the same time helping to satisfy the growing consumer demand for smaller, lesser known wines produced in this country.

Grape growing is a very important agricultural crop, the largest crop in California and the sixth largest crop in the nation. Over 60% of the grape crop is used in the production of wine. The resulting wine industry in total annually contributes over $45 billion to the American economy; provides 556,000 jobs, accounting for $12.8 billion in wages; and pays $3.3 billion in state and local tax revenues. In addition, wine is our third largest horticultural export. Wine is commercially produced in 47 states.

Consumers in every state should be able to obtain access to a wide variety of wines, especially the wines of small producers who lack the distribution channels of the major wine producers in this nation. To meet these consumer needs, I point to the 20 states which have chosen to enact limited interstate shipments directly from winery to consumer or retailer to consumer. Infrastate direct shipments are legal in 30 states. I also direct your attention to recently passed "shipper permit" legislation in New Hampshire and Louisiana and the special order system developed and implemented by the Pennsylvania state liquor monopoly.

I am concerned that passage of the proposed legislation would have a chilling effect on efforts underway to lift creative state-by-state solutions such as these.

Legislation to allow states to bring to Federal court an action to enjoin shipment or transportation of liquor in violation of the laws of a particular state would have the unintended consequence of crippling small wineries in this country. The proposed legislation does much more than simply providing a remedy for a violation of the Webb-Kenyon statute that generally governs states authority over interstate shipments. I fear that it will authorize barriers to interstate commerce, which will be used to favor in-state commercial interests to the detriment of out-of-state wine producers. The Commerce Clause protects against state imposed barriers to free trade. That protection should apply to wineries as well as all other businesses.

The twenty-first amendment to the Constitution is not an absolute divestment of Federal power to the States. The U.S. Supreme Court has long established that the amendment has its limits and must be considered in the context of other constitutional provisions, including Congresses exclusive right to regulate interstate commerce.

Further, existing remedies are available for violations of liquor laws. In the case of wine (as with harder liquors) there is an underlying federal permit which is required to operate a winery. That permit is subject to oversight by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, and requires conformance to applicable laws. There have been successful compliance actions through this mechanism. An additional mechanism is not necessary.

Professor Jesse H. Choper, a distinguished scholar in the field of constitutional law from the University of California has written expressing his concerns about the possible consequences of Federal legislation in this arena. Professor Choper concludes that the proposed legislation would violate the Commerce Clause protection against barriers to free trade among the states, by allowing states, rather than the Congress, to establish those barriers.

I am also concerned that the thrust of this legislation is to allow states to use the Federal courts to obtain direct jurisdiction over small businesses located in other states in a manner which invites abuse of the court system and a trampling of the rights of out-of-state citizens in order to satisfy the demands of politically powerful local interests. Allowing the federal courts to be used as enforcement machinery for state action seems to me a huge expansion of federalism and a very dangerous precedent.

Proponents of this legislation claim it is necessary to curb the delivery of alcohol product to underage purchasers. I believe that there are few more important causes than those who have chosen to enact limited interstate shipments directly from winery to consumer or retailer to consumer. Infrastate direct shipments are legal in 30 states. I also direct your attention to recently passed "shipper permit" legislation in New Hampshire and Louisiana and the special order system developed and implemented by the Pennsylvania state liquor monopoly.

However, I am convinced that direct shipment of wine, beer or spirits does not contribute to the problem. The two states with the highest consumption of wines—California and New York—have long permitted Infrastate shipments ordered by phone or mail. Surely, if such mechanisms were inherently open to abuse the authorities in those states would have discovered that by now. But they have not.

Manuel Espinoza, Chief Deputy Director of the California Alcoholic Beverage Control agency has written to Congressman Thompson and myself that as a result of remote sales of alcohol in California, a practice that has been legal for almost fifty years, the state has experienced no enforcement problems or impediments in its ability to enforce laws related to sales to minors. California has only received one complaint about the delivery of alcohol to underage recipients via interstate mail orders. That complaint originated from a private organization "sleuth" and subsequent investigation determined that the actual delivery, though left at the door, was accepted by the minor's mother.

Another concern raised by proponents is the avoidance of state excise taxes on interstate shippers. There is no indication that taxes avoided by shippers constitute a significant loss of revenue to any state. It is estimate that interstate direct shipments consist primarily of ultra premium wine and never constitute more than one-half of one percent of a state's total wine volume. For the entire country, a tax loss of that magnitude would be $2 million annually.

For the State of Maryland, even if it were to allow direct shipment of wine, annual tax losses at full volume would be less than $250,000 per year.

To address even this minuscule problem, forty-one members of California's Congressional delegation have written to the Advisory Commission on Electronic Commerce requesting that the Commission address this problem when it examines means to ensure the fair imposition of consumption, sales and use taxes arising from remote sales of all products, a far more significant revenue problem estimated to involve many billions of dollars in lost revenue. Congress established this Commission for just such a purpose, and this member suggests that we wait for the report we requested of them.

Legislation which preempts the Advisory Commission on Electronic Commerce regard-

Congressional Record — House
August 3, 1999

19196 reaching impacts on the sale of anything through the Internet. That is why Andy Sernovitz, the President of the Association for Interactive Media (AIM) a 300 member Internet trade group, said; "If they can stop you from selling wine on the Internet, books and music are next.”

States, the National Conference on State Legislatures recently passed a resolution that opposed legislation which allowed federal interference in the purchase and delivery of wine across state borders.” Forty-one states joined in passing that resolution, with only 7 states supporting this bodies attempt to federate state laws.

Mr. Chairman, I am not convinced there is an urgent national problem which needs to be solved by allowing virtually unprecedented use of federal courts to solve state problems which can be addressed by state legislative and judicial means. States can make it a crime for a person under 21 to attempt to purchase alcohol. Most have. Why don’t the Attorneys general in the states prosecute their own citizens when they violate state laws?

Rather than the proposed legislation, alternatives include legislation which would encourage the development of open markets so that consumers can have access to the products which they wish to purchase.

I close by quoting for you a letter by Florida Governor Bob Butcher, urging the veto of a bill making direct inter-state shipment of wine to a Florida consumer a felony: “[The bill] is the perfect tool for the vested interests who seek additional control over the marketplace, at the expense of competition and consumer choice.”

The federal government should not empower states to engage in anti-competitive actions favoring their in-state businesses. The federal government should not use the power of the courts to suppress competition. The federal government should not expand its reach into the private purchases of consumers, or the activities of the small businesses, which make up the largest part of the wine business.

Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman once again for yielding me this time, but I would ask my colleagues to join me in opposing the bill.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. BARRETT.)

Mr. BARRETT of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the 21st Amendment Enforcement Act, which will help States such as my home State of Wisconsin crack down on the illegal shipment of alcoholic beverages.

But I am concerned that today’s debate is being framed as an effort to restrict E-commerce.

Ironically, this bill does not even mention Internet and would have no effect on the direct shipment of alcohol and other products just as long as those shipments comply with State law.

The issue today is whether a State should have the right to take action against a company that violates the law of that State by shipping alcohol directly to the customer.

The 21st Amendment to the Constitution repealed prohibition but gave each State the right to regulate the sale of alcoholic beverages. Direct sales, whether over the Internet, by phone, or through the mail, violate the laws of certain States, make it easier for children to obtain alcohol, and drain needed tax revenue. This bill merely gives these States an additional tool to stop a practice that is already illegal.

Commerce over the Internet continues to grow at an incredible rate, and Congress should do nothing to discourage fair growth. But companies in one State should not be able to disregard the laws of another State in an effort to reach new customers.

So I urge my colleagues to cast a vote for fair Internet commerce and for States’ rights by passing the 21st Amendment Enforcement Act.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. NETHERCUTT) another friend and classmate with whom I disagree today.

Mr. NETHERCUTT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Florida for his gracious yielding of time even though we disagree on this.

My colleagues, I think this is a legislation that is ill-advised. And I commend to the sponsors and the managers today, the gentlemen from Florida, Massachusetts, and Georgia, to the National Conference of State Legislatures, vote which occurred on July 29, just a few days ago, by a vote of 41–7.

Forty-one States oppose H.R. 2031, including Massachusetts, Georgia, and Florida. These State legislators who mentioned in the judgment believe that the direct shipping issue should be resolved at the State and local levels of government. And so I think there is a disconnection here between a perceived problem, as I see it, by the sponsors and an actual problem.

I come from a State and represent a district, Washington State, and the Fifth Congressional District, where we have emerging small wineries who do direct customer transfers and shipments. They are not trying or do not violate the law. But there is a chilling effect that this legislation would have on it on this emerging business.

It is clear to me that this is a job loser to the extent that there is a restriction on these emerging companies over the Internet. What they do and what they have explained to me very clearly is there is a very complicated process they must go through in order to ship a bottle of wine or a case of wine from manufacturer A to customer B in another State.

The Federal Express transfer company has to make sure there is a signature on the other end from an adult over the age of 18 able to buy this kind of product. And if not, it has to be sent back. So it is the shipper and the shipping company that is the most at risk.

The 21st Amendment Enforcement Act, which will help States such as my home State of Wisconsin crack down on the illegal shipment of alcoholic beverages.

But I am concerned that today’s debate is being framed as an effort to restrict E-commerce.

Ironically, this bill does not even mention Internet and would have no effect on the direct shipment of alcohol and other products just as long as those shipments comply with State law.

The issue today is whether a State should have the right to take action against a company that violates the law of that State by shipping alcohol directly to the customer.

So I urge my colleagues to cast a vote for fair Internet commerce and for States’ rights by passing the 21st Amendment Enforcement Act.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. GORDON).

Mr. GORDON. Mr. Chairman, as I have listened to the debate this morning, I have discovered that there has been an abundance of debate on pros and cons of this legislation, contradictory pros and cons.

However, there has been one common denominator. That common denominator is that no one wants to see the Internet used to encourage alcohol abuse by minors. So the real question before us today is how can we stop the Internet from using or being used as a vehicle for alcohol abuse by minors?

After reviewing this legislation, it seems to me that there is a better way, that is to legislate it away and that a better approach would be requiring sellers and shippers to clearly label packages as containing alcohol and that they obtain proof that the recipient is of legal drinking age.

I am co-sponsoring legislation to do that and would suggest that is a better approach.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) has 3 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT) has 7 1/2 minutes remaining.

Mrs. CAPPS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me the time.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. CAPPS).

Mrs. CAPPS. Mr. Chairman, I thank my colleague for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to H.R. 2031. This legislation would restrict interstate commerce and limit consumers’ choices throughout the country. It would also seriously undermine small wineries in my district, and around this Nation.

Let me explain how some people from our States and districts like to buy wine. They come to places like the central coast of California and spend a few days touring the vineyards and tasting the wines of my district and maybe they buy some to take home.

After they get home, they will discover they cannot find any wine from these lovely vineyards in Paso Robles or the Santa Maria Valley that they like so much. So they try to order some over the phone or through the Internet, until the vineyard tells them, “No, sorry, but your State will not let us ship to you. You’re out of luck.”

Right now a number of States have adopted laws that restrict the right of their citizens to order wine from out-of-state wineries. This bill would encourage more State legislatures to adopt these anti-consumer laws.

Is that really what the authors of this legislation want to do? restrict the choices of law-abiding adult consumers?

Let me quote from the Wall Street Journal, “Shutting down shipments of 300 cases of wine is not a reasonable regulation of intoxicating beverages; it is an obstacle to interstate commerce of precisely the type the founders intended to prohibit.”

What this legislation will do is harm the little guy, the small family vintners and wineries. I have heard from so many wineries in my district who would like to be able to reach more consumers throughout the country. However, this is not possible without going through a large distributor who simply will not ship small quantities of wine. And besides, retailers only have so much shelf space and certainly not enough for the wine produced by 1,600 small wineries throughout the United States.

So vintners seek to expand their businesses and serve their loyal customers through phone orders or through the Internet. This bill will seek to shut down that avenue of commerce. The authors of this legislation claim that its purpose is to cut down on underage drinking, and that is a noble goal.

As a school nurse for 20 years, I have worked very hard to fight underage drinking. But this bill is not about stopping kids from drinking. If it were, we would think Mothers Against Drunk Driving should be in favor of it. They are not.

California has allowed direct sales for over 20 years, and it has had no measurable effect on underage drinking. If we really want to discourage underage drinking, we should support programs like Fighting Back in my district, which works through public awareness initiatives and provides youth services, or we should challenge the drug czar to include anti-youth drinking ads as part of the government’s anti-drug ad campaign.

If this were a bill to cut down on underage drinking, we should support programs like Fighting Back in my district, which works through public awareness initiatives and provides youth services, or we should challenge the drug czar to include anti-youth drinking ads as part of the government’s anti-drug ad campaign.

If this were a bill to cut down on underage drinking, we should support programs like Fighting Back in my district, which works through public awareness initiatives and provides youth services, or we should challenge the drug czar to include anti-youth drinking ads as part of the government’s anti-drug ad campaign.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to join me in opposition to this misguided legislation.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH, Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 30 seconds to respond to something that the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. CAPPS) said.

She said that this would restrict choices of legal purchases of wine. That is not just the case. If they sell alcohol legally, this does not apply to them. If they sell alcohol illegally, it applies to them.

Because all this language says is, if they sell alcohol illegally, that States’ attorneys general will be able to go to court and stop them from selling alcohol illegally and stopping interstate bootlegging.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. HULSHOF).

Mr. HULSHOF, Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time, especially as time is drawing short.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the bill of the gentleman and in the interest of full and complete disclosure.

I have got to tell my colleagues that I am an avid wine enthusiast and that my wife and I took our honeymoon vacation to the wineries in California, and we have enjoyed our subsequent visits there. But I will tell my colleagues, Mr. Chairman, this is not just an issue that affects California but one that impacts Texas, Oregon, Washington, Virginia, New York. And my own beloved State of Missouri is home to many family-run wineries whose intentions are not criminal.

Instead, these small businesses attempt to satisfy long-time repeat customers and cultivate new ones, those who have left those well-worn tourist paths and have chosen to adventure to experience the adventure and hospitality of a small but friendly winery.

These long-time family businesses in my district, one dating back to 1855, nonetheless depend on E-commerce, a way to attract new business and survive alongside the large wholesalers. Mr. Chairman, this law, in my belief, is unnecessary. I have listened and I have accepted the invitation of my friend from Florida, and I have listened to the debate; and I have got to tell my colleagues that I am unmoved by arguments offered by the proponents that purchasers of underage drinkers are searching the Internet for base- ment bargains of bottles of Bordeaux to binge with their friends on their parents’ next night out. I am struck, however, by the apparent inconsistency of some of those who are leading the charge in favor of this measure.

A few weeks ago, the gentleman from Georgia, we were leading the charge, a very emotional debate, about the availability of alcohol to minors. There are long-time family businesses in my district, one dating back to 1855, nonetheless depend on E-commerce, a way to attract new business and survive alongside the large wholesalers.

Here is my question: If gun manufacturers are immune from civil liability in the case of criminal conduct committed by a violent felon who has purchased a firearm, and I support that immunity, then how can we hold vintners responsible for the unlawful purchases of wine?

I urge the defeat.

The CHAIRMAN. Both gentlemen have two minutes remaining. The manager of the bill has the right to close.

Mr. GOODLATTE, Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR).

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, this particular analogy just put forth by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. HULSHOF) with gun liability is completely misplaced.

We are not saying that anybody should or should not be immune from ultimate illegal use of the alcohol, such as the drunk driver. This bill simply goes to the shipping into the State in violation of an existing State law.

Now, if those States, and we have heard from a number of Members that are speaking for the wineries, if those States have a disagreement with a particular alcoholic restrictive law of a particular State, then their remedy should be going to the State legislators and change the State laws that relate to how liquor can be brought into and distributed within that State.

But again, to make perfectly clear, and let us remove the clouds of the gun debate and the e-commerce debate here, this is a bill that simply empowers attorneys general of the States to seek injunctive relief to stop shippers, large or small, from shipping into their State in violation of State laws. It does not affect the legal sale of liquor.

I urge support of the bill.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO).

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman for the generous grant of time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the bill. Where in this bill do we target or state explicitly that what we are doing is going after underage purchasers of wine over the Internet or microbrew over the Internet?

This is a very broad bill. The target is much larger than underaged drinking and access to alcohol. They are still going to go down to the concern and give the guy an extra couple of bucks who is a bad guy to go into the store and buy the stuff. They are not going to do it over the Internet and buy an expensive case of wine. That is still going to be done by the guy who lives in violation of an existing State law.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, how much time do I have remaining?

Mr. DELAHUNT. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) has 1½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT) has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I think the point has been made again and again that this particular proposal has nothing whatsoever to do with impeding the growth of E-commerce in terms of the sales of wine or any spirits or alcohols.

What it has to do is with respect to State laws. The fact and the reality is that we should be here to respect and provide an opportunity to States that did not affect the legal shipped capacity and ability to enforce their own laws.

Now, the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) spoke to the issue of...
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

August 3, 1999

H.R. 2031’s proponents contend that it will address the problem of illegal sales to minors. I strongly support cracking down on underage drinking, but this bill does nothing to address this serious problem. Rather, H.R. 2031 is nothing more than an intra-industry battle between liquor wholesalers and Internet liquor retailers. Under the guise of protecting minors from Internet alcohol sales, this bill’s true intent is to tie up Internet liquor retailers in federal litigation.

Supporters of this legislation have failed to provide evidence of any wide-spread problem with illegal, underage Internet alcohol sales. In fact, in California, we have had telephone and mail-ordered wine deliveries since 1963 and our law enforcement agencies report they have not encountered problems with these deliveries. Moreover, legitimate concerns over underage Internet purchases of alcohol have been adequately addressed by the industry’s practice of visibly labeling packages as containing alcohol and requiring the signature of persons over the age of 21 for receipt. Finally, state and federal enforcement mechanisms already exist to address illegal alcohol sales. H.R. 2031 will add a duplicative and unnecessary layer to already existing law.

I find it ironic that one of the chief proponents of this bill, the National Beer Wholesalers Association, actively opposed my efforts to include language in the Treasury-Postal Appropriations Bill to include underage drinking in the million-dollar anti-drug media campaign administered by the Office of National Drug Control Policy. If the National Beer Wholesalers are so devoted to fighting underage drinking, you would think they would have joined forces with me. Instead, they fought tooth and nail against establishing an effective tool to combat illegal alcohol use by teenagers.

Not only is this bill bad policy, it’s also anti-business. As small vintners in California and across the nation seek innovative ways to promote their quality product, they are naturally looking for new marketing opportunities presented by the Internet. This bill would work directly against such marketing and trade opportunities.

Direct access has been a long-standing problem for the 1,600 family-owned wineries who compete with the 10 mega-wineries that produce 90% of the wine in the United States. Wholesalers cannot supply all of the unique wines available from smaller wineries to the majority of consumers and thus, these small wineries are excluded from the national market. The Internet is a vital sales tool for the small wineries to directly promote their wines to consumers.

H.R. 2031’s true design is simple: it would protect wholesalers of wine, beer and distilled spirits from Internet competition. I urge my colleagues to defeat this proposal and work instead to promote interstate trade. Let’s support the 1,600 small wineries in California and across the United States who are using their good business sense to expand markets and create jobs in their communities.

The CHAIRMAN: All time for general debate has expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the bill is considered as an original bill for the purpose of amendment and is considered read. The text of the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

H.R. 2031

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the “Twenty-First Amendment Enforcement Act”.

SEC. 2. SHIPMENT OF INTOXICATING LIQUOR INTO STATE IN VIOLATION OF STATE LAW.

The Act entitled “An Act divesting intoxicating liquors of their interstate character in certain cases”, approved March 1, 1913 (commonly known as the “Webb-Kenyon Act”) (27 U.S.C. 121) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 2. INJUNCTIVE RELIEF IN FEDERAL DISTRICT COURT.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) the term ‘attorney general’ means the attorney general of any State or agency thereof; and

(2) the term ‘intoxicating liquor’ means any spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented, or other intoxicating liquor of any kind;

(b) ACTION BY STATE ATTORNEY GENERAL.—If the attorney general has reasonable cause to believe that a person is engaged in, or has engaged in, any act that would constitute a violation of a State law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor, the attorney general may bring a civil action in accordance with this section for injunctive relief (including a preliminary or permanent injunction or other order) against the person, as the attorney general determines to be necessary to—

(1) restrain the person from engaging, or continuing to engage, in the violation; and

(2) enforce compliance with the State law.

(c) FEDERAL JURISDICTION.—

(1) GENERAL.—The district courts of the United States shall have jurisdiction over any action brought under this section by an attorney general against any person, except one licensed or otherwise authorized to produce, sell, or store intoxicating liquor in such State.

(2) VENUE.—An action under this section may be brought only in accordance with section 1391 of title 28, United States Code, or in the district in which the recipient of the intoxicating liquor resides or is found.

(d) REQUIREMENTS FOR INJUNCTIONS AND ORDERS.—

(1) GENERAL.—In any action brought under this section, upon a proper showing by the attorney general of the State, the court may issue a preliminary or permanent injunction or other order to restrain a violation of this section.

(2) PROCEDURE.—A proper showing under this paragraph shall require clear and convincing evidence that a violation of State law as described in subsection (b) has taken place. In addition, no temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction may be granted except upon—

(A) evidence demonstrating the probability of irreparable injury if injunctive relief is not granted; and

(B) evidence supporting the probability of success on the merits.
Mr. Chairman, aiming injunctive relief at the individual engaged in the commercial activity we are concerned about, not the corporate entity or the company, is a common-sense solution. Unlike the seller or transporter engaged in an illegal transaction, the communications company has no idea what States the transaction affects and is not in a position to tailor the transaction to comply with the different laws of 50 States. Furthermore, Internet service providers and other communications companies are in no position to monitor the conduct of their users or to prevent transactions. Indeed, enforcement approaches such as injunction to block Internet sites can seriously disrupt lawful Internet communications and slow the operations of a service provider's network for all users.

Mr. Chairman, if we do not adopt this amendment, we risk needless legal uncertainty and pointless litigation against Internet service providers and other communications companies. The amendment has the support of groups such as America Online, the Commercial Internet Exchange, Prodigy, PSI Net, BellSouth and Bell Atlantic.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to adopt the tech-friendly, commonsense solution and pass this amendment.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment.

I want to applaud the gentleman from Virginia and the gentleman from California. I concur that this is an amendment that is needed and it addresses a problem. I support the amendment.

Mr. COX. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I wish to thank the author of the bill to offer the amendment from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) who just offered this amendment for their excellent work in support not only of the main purpose of the law but also in another area, and, that is, Internet freedom. Internet freedom from regulation and Internet freedom from taxation so that that dynamic medium can continue to grow and prosper.

The amendment's language makes it clear that search engines, Internet service providers, web hosting services and other interactive computer services will not be adversely affected by this bill. In addition, the bill makes it clear, as presently written with this amendment, that it is for the enforcement of the 21st amendment that we are granting State attorneys general the power to enter Federal court. This is not the beginning of a slippery slope in which new laws can be written to restrict the Internet under the guise of regulating alcoholic beverage transactions. To the contrary, it is the 21st amendment which will control, and the Supreme Court has told us that... the 21st amendment did not have the effect of repealing the interstate commerce clause. Rather, States are free to regulate within their boundaries the sale, distribution and production of alcoholic beverages and the importation of alcoholic beverages produced and sold elsewhere in order to promote temperance, in order to maintain their status as dry States or even counties to be dry counties, to promote those social purposes behind the 21st amendment. But in doing so, in vindicating the purposes of the 21st amendment, a State cannot discriminate as mere economic protectionism against other sellers, other producers in the rest of the United States. I think that this language that is agreed upon all around makes it clear so that today what we are talking about is alcohol, we are talking about the 21st amendment. We are not talking about new-found powers of the parochial, of the municipality, the county, the State, to tax or regulate either instrumentalities of commerce, whether it be the Internet and other telecommunications, and neither are we talking about new opportunities to tax and regulate the things that move across it. We are limiting ourselves, as properly we should, to those things that are covered by the 21st amendment and nothing else.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COX. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would engage in a brief colloquy. It is, then, with the language that the gentleman is proposing here, if in fact, hypothetically, if you have the recipient State which prohibits the sale of alcoholic beverages to anyone under the age of 21 and you have a seller winery in another State and there is a transaction made over the Internet, the alcoholic beverage to somebody in the recipient State who is in fact under 21, the language that the gentleman is proposing here, which is clearly clarifying language, would not prohibit the attorney general of the recipient State from seeking injunctive relief if they can otherwise meet the burdens of the legislation, is that correct?

Mr. COX. Yes. That is true if the underlying state legislation is itself consistent with the 21st amendment and the interstate commerce clause.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. In other words, if a State, as many States do, have a flat out prohibition on the sale of alcoholic beverages to a person under the age of 21, then the language that the gentleman is proposing here would not prohibit the recipient State from seeking injunctive relief from an out-of-State seller using the Internet to sell the alcoholic beverage to somebody under 21 in the recipient State?

Mr. COX. Yes. The State law itself is authorized, to the extent it is authorized, by the 21st amendment to the Constitution. And because the United States Supreme Court has interpreted the 21st amendment to mean that it does not empower States to pass laws that favor local liquor industries by erecting barriers to competition and that State laws that constitute mere economic protectionism are not entitled to the same deference as laws enacted to combat the perceived evils of an unrestricted traffic in liquor. We are simply restating those constitutional principles in the statute.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. In other words, so long as there is the basis for the recipient State’s prohibition on the sale of alcoholic beverages to somebody under 21.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. COX) has expired.

(On request of Mr. BARR of Georgia, and by unanimous consent, Mr. COX was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. COX. Mr. Chairman, I continue to yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. In other words, just to clarify the point, I propose that the underlying State laws that constitute mere economic protectionism, and then under the scenario that I indicated, the attorney general of the recipient State could, under this legislation as proposed to be amended by the gentleman from California, seek injunctive relief. Mr. COX. Yes. That is correct. What we are trying to do is restate in simple, easy to understand language the balance that the courts, I think, have properly struck between vindicating the purpose of the 21st amendment and at the same time making sure that we do not subtract in any way from the interstate commerce clause. They are both parts of the Constitution, both read together. I think that the current case law that we have cited and that we repeat in the statute expresses it as elegantly and simply as it can be expressed.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I do want to comment briefly on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. COX).

I will support this amendment. It does clarify issues relative to Internet service providers and to the Net itself. However, I do want to explicitly state that, although this amendment should be supported and I intend to vote for it, it does not cure other problems that we find troubling in the underlying bill.

The issues relate to the commerce clause and to the conflict between that clause and the 21st amendment. This conflict continues to be problematic. As we discussed at some length in the Committee on the Judiciary when the bill was considered, the 21st amendment did not repeal the commerce clause, even though this amendment does accommodate the Internet—and I credit the gentleman from California (Mr. COX) for bringing this forward and commend the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYNS) for their considerable effort on Internet issues—the problem in the underlying bill persists. If this bill becomes law, State AG’s shall be able to burden impermissibly interstate commerce using the cover of the 21st amendment.

Thus, even with this fine amendment, the underlying bill continues to be overbroad. We can’t seem to agree to limit it to the one issue that we all agree is significant, namely that we not permit under-age drinking. By contrast, this bill would allow a variety of arcane blue laws that have nothing whatsoever to do with under-age drinking or any other legitimate concern of the Federal Government to be enforced by a State attorney general in a Federal court.

I will wholeheartedly support this amendment, and I sincerely hope it is approved, but I intend, even if it is optimal, to oppose the underlying bill because of the other problems I’ve enumerated.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to enter into a colloquy with the gentleman from California (Mr. COX) briefly just to clarify a few things.

The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) was asking whether a gentleman if a State would still be able to enforce their alcohol laws, and the gentleman said they could. If he can explain the purpose of this clarifying language regarding economic protectionism and a bill a State legislature passes for the mere purposes of economic protectionism.

Mr. COX. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. COX. Yes. The language in section 1 is now written as section 3(b) on Line 17 of the amendment, as reported, states that no State may enforce under this a law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor and with some additional language interpolated that constitutes mere economic protectionism, and that is the existing Supreme Court test, and that is the one that we wish simply to confirm our statute with.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, reiterating my time, let me ask the gentleman another question.
We go to support for Internet and other interstate commerce, and it says nothing in this act may be construed to prevent State regulation or taxation of Internet services or any other related interstate telecommunications, and it is important for us to differentiate here that we are talking about the actual Internet service itself or the telecommunications service and not the goods that are sold over the Internet.

Mr. COX. Yes, I think that that is correct.

In addition, when combined with the preceding section, we make it clear that the goods that we are talking about letting States regulate and tax are alcoholic beverages and those things covered by the 21st amendment, so that it is also true what we are not doing in this legislation today is opening up new vistas of taxation and regulation of products that move across the Internet. We are restricting ourselves only to the four corners of the power that States have under the 21st amendment.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. And the gentleman's actual language, the language that we have all agreed to, goes again to the Internet service and not the goods, and the goods here being alcohol.

Mr. COX. Yes, and the reason we hope that this is a belt-and-suspenders operation, that this is surplusage, but perhaps not because States and localities have been very aggressive about taxation and regulation of the Internet. We want to make sure that no State abuses its powers to tax or regulate the Internet or the means of interstate communication. It is very important that we allow E-commerce to flourish without new barriers blocking them.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. And reclaiming my time, I just like to say I agree with the gentleman and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) 100 percent, and it is very important that we allow E-commerce to flourish without new regulations or tax burdens, and I believe this language does so while still allowing the State to enforce its alcoholic laws as it was given the right in the 21st amendment some 60 or 65 years ago.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, I just want to make it clear that it is my intention and I believe the intention of the gentleman from California, and he may want to speak for himself, that if there is an existing State law that taxes the sale of alcohol in that State and the sale happens to come into the State, that taxation or taxation of the personal purchase made over the Internet, that that taxation still applies as it does with the Internet Tax Freedom Act.

Mr. COX. Yes, the purpose of the Internet Tax Freedom Act was to prevent new taxes on the Internet and discriminatory taxes that were applied to the Internet.

Mr. DELAHUNT. And if the gentleman yields, nothing that this bill proposes in any way impacts that moratorium on new taxes.

Mr. COX. Again, Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from Florida will yield?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. COX. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman. That is correct.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. CONYERS TO THE AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GOODLATTE

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, I offer a perfecting amendment to the amendment.

The Clerk reads as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. CONYERS to the amendment offered by Mr. GOODLATTE. At the end of the matter proposed to be inserted, strike the period and add the following text: "used by another person to engage in any activity that is subject to this Act.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank my friends who have introduced this. I had an amendment quite similar to it, and I do not think it will be necessary to offer it now. But the perfecting amendment I am offering will clarify that Internet service providers and electronic communication services will be exempted only where they are used by another person to engage in activity covered by the act. Thus, for example, if Yahoo or another Internet provider goes into the business of selling or shipping liquor, they would not be exempted from liability.

Now, Mr. Chairman, Internet commerce has opened new doors of opportunity around the country as well as provided consumers with a vast array of new choices of goods and services; and with the expansion of commerce over the Internet comes the added benefit of greater competition which will lead to lower prices for consumers.

Of course, we do not want people to use Internet to violate the law, but we also do not want to create unnecessary and burdensome regulations that will hinder this emerging new marketplace, nor do we want to hinder the types of commercial transactions that permit direct contact between producers and consumers.

The best marketplace is one that promotes robust competition, and therefore we want to encourage new entrants to the market and not erect barriers blocking them.

As is currently written, the legislation could have negative repercussions for the emerging Internet marketplace.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. And I urge that we proceed cautiously when we grant a Federal forum for these types of State actions to ensure the Hon. JOHN CONYERS,
Ranking member, House Judiciary Committee,
Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC.

Hon. BOB GOODLATTE,
Ranking member, House Judiciary Committee,
Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE CONYERS AND REPRESENTATIVE GOODLATTE: We write to express our strong support for the amendment you intend to offer tomorrow to H.R. 2031 to clarify that injunctive relief under the bill is available against those carriers of communications services who are not engaged in the sort of shipments that are the subject of the bill. This is an important clarification. If I could engage the gentleman from Virginia in a brief colloquy and elicit from him if he thinks it is accurate, just a simple yes or no. We think in fact, under the legislation as proposed and as amended, to be amended by the gentleman from California, if State A has a law on the books that prohibits the sale of alcoholic beverages to anyone under 21, and the attorney general of that State seeks to go into Federal court under this law simply based on that law to seek an injunction to enjoin a seller of an alcoholic beverage from State B from shipping that alcoholic beverage into State A and it being directed to or received by somebody under 21 in violation of State law, this proposal would still allow the attorney general of State A to seek injunctive relief. Is that correct?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, the one word answer is yes, and that is certainly my intention in offering this amendment to make sure that the underlying purpose of the bill is preserved, but make sure that, A, there are no efforts here to create new taxes or new regulations of Internet activities, and, B, that there is no unconstitutional discriminatory action taken by a State that would disfavor out-of-State purveyors of these products.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, this is the problem, and maybe the gentleman from Florida could listen also, this is the problem that I have with this language. It has taken us approximately half an hour to debate this, trying to get just a simple yes or no.

If State A has a law on the books that says no sales of alcoholic beverages to somebody under 21, with this law simply based on that law to seek an injunction to enjoin a seller of an alcoholic beverage from State B from shipping that alcoholic beverage into State A and it being directed to or received by somebody under 21 in violation of State law, this proposal would still allow the attorney general of State A to seek injunctive relief. Is that correct?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, the one word answer is yes, and that is certainly my intention in offering this amendment to make sure that the underlying purpose of the bill is preserved, but make sure that, A, there are no efforts here to create new taxes or new regulations of Internet activities, and, B, that there is no unconstitutional discriminatory action taken by a State that would disfavor out-of-State purveyors of these products.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, this is the problem, and maybe the gentleman from Florida could listen also, this is the problem that I have with this language. It has taken us approximately half an hour to debate this, trying to get just a simple yes or no.

If State A has a law on the books that says no sales of alcoholic beverages to somebody under 21, with this law simply based on that law to seek an injunction to enjoin a seller of an alcoholic beverage from State B from shipping that alcoholic beverage into State A and it being directed to or received by somebody under 21 in violation of State law, this proposal would still allow the attorney general of State A to seek injunctive relief. Is that correct?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, the one word answer is yes, and that is certainly my intention in offering this amendment to make sure that the underlying purpose of the bill is preserved, but make sure that, A, there are no efforts here to create new taxes or new regulations of Internet activities, and, B, that there is no unconstitutional discriminatory action taken by a State that would disfavor out-of-State purveyors of these products.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, this is the problem, and maybe the gentleman from Florida could listen also, this is the problem that I have with this language. It has taken us approximately half an hour to debate this, trying to get just a simple yes or no.

If State A has a law on the books that says no sales of alcoholic beverages to somebody under 21, with this law simply based on that law to seek an injunction to enjoin a seller of an alcoholic beverage from State B from shipping that alcoholic beverage into State A and it being directed to or received by somebody under 21 in violation of State law, this proposal would still allow the attorney general of State A to seek injunctive relief. Is that correct?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, the one word answer is yes, and that is certainly my intention in offering this amendment to make sure that the underlying purpose of the bill is preserved, but make sure that, A, there are no efforts here to create new taxes or new regulations of Internet activities, and, B, that there is no unconstitutional discriminatory action taken by a State that would disfavor out-of-State purveyors of these products.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, this is the problem, and maybe the gentleman from Florida could listen also, this is the problem that I have with this language. It has taken us approximately half an hour to debate this, trying to get just a simple yes or no.

If State A has a law on the books that says no sales of alcoholic beverages to somebody under 21, with this law simply based on that law to seek an injunction to enjoin a seller of an alcoholic beverage from State B from shipping that alcoholic beverage into State A and it being directed to or received by somebody under 21 in violation of State law, this proposal would still allow the attorney general of State A to seek injunctive relief. Is that correct?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, the one word answer is yes, and that is certainly my intention in offering this amendment to make sure that the underlying purpose of the bill is preserved, but make sure that, A, there are no efforts here to create new taxes or new regulations of Internet activities, and, B, that there is no unconstitutional discriminatory action taken by a State that would disfavor out-of-State purveyors of these products.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, this is the problem, and maybe the gentleman from Florida could listen also, this is the problem that I have with this language. It has taken us approximately half an hour to debate this, trying to get just a simple yes or no.

If State A has a law on the books that says no sales of alcoholic beverages to somebody under 21, with this law simply based on that law to seek an injunction to enjoin a seller of an alcoholic beverage from State B from shipping that alcoholic beverage into State A and it being directed to or received by somebody under 21 in violation of State law, this proposal would still allow the attorney general of State A to seek injunctive relief. Is that correct?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, the one word answer is yes, and that is certainly my intention in offering this amendment to make sure that the underlying purpose of the bill is preserved, but make sure that, A, there are no efforts here to create new taxes or new regulations of Internet activities, and, B, that there is no unconstitutional discriminatory action taken by a State that would disfavor out-of-State purveyors of these products.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, this is the problem, and maybe the gentleman from Florida could listen also, this is the problem that I have with this language. It has taken us approximately half an hour to debate this, trying to get just a simple yes or no.

If State A has a law on the books that says no sales of alcoholic beverages to somebody under 21, with this law simply based on that law to seek an injunction to enjoin a seller of an alcoholic beverage from State B from shipping that alcoholic beverage into State A and it being directed to or received by somebody under 21 in violation of State law, this proposal would still allow the attorney general of State A to seek injunctive relief. Is that correct?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, the one word answer is yes, and that is certainly my intention in offering this amendment to make sure that the underlying purpose of the bill is preserved, but make sure that, A, there are no efforts here to create new taxes or new regulations of Internet activities, and, B, that there is no unconstitutional discriminatory action taken by a State that would disfavor out-of-State purveyors of these products.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, this is the problem, and maybe the gentleman from Florida could listen also, this is the problem that I have with this language. It has taken us approximately half an hour to debate this, trying to get just a simple yes or no.

If State A has a law on the books that says no sales of alcoholic beverages to somebody under 21, with this law simply based on that law to seek an injunction to enjoin a seller of an alcoholic beverage from State B from shipping that alcoholic beverage into State A and it being directed to or received by somebody under 21 in violation of State law, this proposal would still allow the attorney general of State A to seek injunctive relief. Is that correct?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?
way limit the ability that the attorney general would have in the bill as proposed to stop an Internet sale of alcoholic beverage coming in from another State to that person?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, it would not stop the attorney general of a State that wishes to seek an injunction against a company violating that State’s laws, prohibiting either the sale of alcoholic beverage in the State or the sale of alcoholic beverage to minors in that State from continuing to seek that injunction. I strongly support the gentleman and the gentleman from Florida’s efforts to allow the States to go into Federal court to achieve that injunction.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, is it the purpose of this amendment to limit the scope of the Webb-Kenyon Act?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, it is not the purpose of this amendment to limit the scope of the Webb-Kenyon Act.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Does this amendment create any new right of action to challenge State laws regulating alcohol?

Mr. GOODLATTE. In my opinion, it does not, and it is not my intention in offering this amendment to in any way affect the rights of the States to regulate the sale of alcohol in their State as provided by the Twenty-First Amendment to the Constitution.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Would this language, as proposed, permit a defendant in the recipient State or in the shipping State to delay enforcement of a valid State alcohol law by claiming that the law creates a barrier to competition, that this language creates a barrier to competition?

Mr. GOODLATTE. That may be an issue in seeking an injunction, but certainly is not the intention of this amendment, to allow anybody to delay State enforcement of State laws controlling the sale of alcohol in their State borders.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Finally, are there any State laws today that would be subject to a challenge under this proposed language?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Would the gentleman repeat the question?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Are there any State laws today that would be subject to a challenge under this proposed language by the gentleman from California?

Mr. GOODLATTE. I am not aware of any laws that would be subject to them. However, I would say to the gentleman, the way I read section 3(b) of the amendment, that if they would be subject to challenge, they would have already been subject to challenge as being unconstitutional to begin with. I think that portion of this amendment reinforces the gentleman from California’s concern that we do not have any unconstitutionally discriminatory treatment, but, if it exists, I think it would have been treatable under existing law and certainly would also be treatable under this law.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. The gentleman from Virginia, who has researched this issue extensively, is not aware of any State laws that would be subject to challenge under the proposed language today under this law.

Mr. GOODLATTE. None that I know of.

Mr. NETHERCUTT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, let me ask the gentleman from Virginia further clarification. I heard the gentleman say in the colloquy with the gentleman from Georgia that under the example that the gentleman from Georgia gave, that one of the States that could go into Federal court there was an alleged violation relating to a sale to a person under 21, I thought I heard the gentleman say that if there was a violation, that the State attorney general would thereafter be enabled under this amendment to prohibit any further Internet sales into that State, even though it was to someone over the age of 21. Did I misunderstand the gentleman?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman will the gentleman yield?

Mr. NETHERCUTT. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GOODLATTE. The gentleman misheard. The question from the gentleman from Georgia was whether or not anything in my amendment would undermine the purpose of the underlying bill, which is to allow the attorney general to go into Federal Court and to seek an injunction restraining the sale of alcohol to minors. Then later in our discussion in reference to a dry State, whether they could seek an injunction from violating the laws of the State for shipping any alcohol into the State.

If you have a dry State that prohibits the sale of alcohol, now or in the future, this amendment would not affect that one way or another. That is the assurance the gentleman from Georgia wanted, that the underlying bill would still have the effect the gentleman intends, which is that the attorney general of the State could go into Federal Court and seek an injunction, but he would not be able to seek an injunction for the sale of alcohol to an adult unless that sale itself violated that State law in some way, shape, or form. This amendment does not in any way change that.

Mr. NETHERCUTT. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I appreciate the clarification.

Mr. Chairman, I want to rise in support of the Goodlatte amendment, which I believe improves significantly on H.R. 2031. The proponents have argued that this bill does not inappropriately interfere with Internet commerce. It is true they worked very hard to avoid any reference to the Internet on this legislation, but the reality is quite different.

A great many of the wine sales we are discussing occur over the Internet sites of small wineries. The entrepreneurial owners of these wineries have learned, like many other small businesses and women, that the Internet levels the playing field and makes it possible for small proprietors to reach customers. These companies cannot afford sales departments or national advertising. They are forced by their size to rely on Internet sales. That is what I want to be sure that this legislation does not prohibit.

This amendment ensures that Internet sales by wineries are not treated any differently than any other product. The Internet Tax Freedom Act blocked the imposition of new Internet taxes, and this amendment ensures compliance with that act.

Proponents of this legislation have called small wineries and brewers bootleggers and smugglers, suggesting somehow their intent in selling wine is criminal. To the contrary, these small businesses play by the rules and only want an opportunity to sell their superior product in the interstate marketplace. There is no pressing problem of minors buying cases of ultra-premium wines, and the authors of the legislation have shown no evidence to the contrary, notwithstanding the few news clips that they have discussed.

I have talked with wineries in Washington State about the supposed problem of minors purchasing alcohol. They have told me that in fact they know virtually all of their customers. Their buyers have in virtually all cases bought wine in person from the winery in the first place. These are repeat customers who have taken the time to travel all the way to rural wineries in eastern Washington. Once they get home, these customers enjoy the superior product that Washington State provides and that these wineries provide, and they want to order again. Many of these customers are from other States and would be unable to purchase wines with this legislation.

Small businesses are the actual target of this legislation. These small wineries will never be able to ship their product through normal distributor channels. They simply do not produce enough to be worth the large distributors’ time. These producers bottle 2,000 cases a year, an insignificant amount to a distributor, but a very significant quantity when the survival of these small businesses is on the line.

We are adding a winery in our State of Washington every 18 days. It is a growth industry that creates new jobs in rural areas. These are small wineries, specialty wineries. Any Member representing constituencies that...
Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this particular amendment, but I remain opposed to the underlying bill. I oppose the legislation because it is clearly anti-small business, and it is also anti-economics.

We are moving into a new economy, an economy that is giving opportunities for small business people to participate by offering their products over the Internet. One of the greatest innovations and greatest opportunities that we are seeing in E-commerce is the fact that we are almost eliminating all barriers to entry. We are allowing almost any company to set up and develop a web page, and they can immediately be in a worldwide business.

What we are doing with this legislation is to preclude a lot of small business people that are involved in the wine industry, that do not have the volumes to work with the archaic structure that is currently in place in many parts of the country to distribute their product, from having the opportunity to have the access to consumers that they need. This is clearly not a direction that we should be going, and is clearly a direction that is inconsistent with the changes in the United States' economy and the changes in the international economy.

This legislation is a heavy-handed approach that would chill the rights of adults to purchase wine over the Internet, unfairly discourage small wineries from marketing their products nationwide through E-commerce, and create a new Federal remedy for a problem that is already addressed by State and Federal statutes.

Supporters of this legislation contend that the bill is being done at the behest of States' rights, but nothing could be further from the truth. As we saw just in the last week, the National Conference of State Legislatures overwhelmingly passed a resolution opposing this legislation.

The arguments that this is somehow going to result in more alcohol being in the hands of minors is also equally without foundation and substantiation. Nothing could be further from the truth.

I ask my colleagues to oppose this legislation. We ought to be passing policies which encourage and provide greater opportunity for more families to enter into business, for more families to live out a dream. What we are doing here, in so many ways, is impeding that opportunity.

Also speaking as a wine consumer, I almost think it is un-American because I might live in a particular part of the country, in a particular State, that I am precluded from purchasing a bottle of wine over the Internet. That is not what our Founding Fathers had in mind when they passed the interstate commerce clauses. They had in mind that we would allow for free competition that would benefit consumers and keep the winesales.

I urge my colleagues to oppose this legislation.

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, although I rise in support of the pending amendment, which I think certainly improves the bill, I do want to express my concerns about the legislation as a whole, H.R. 2031.

This is legislation that directly impacts interstate commerce, and it drastically tips the scales of commerce in favor of large wholesale distributors at the expense of consumers and small local vineyards, which rely heavily on direct sales for their business. This legislation gives attorneys general the power to sue out-of-State wine and beer distributors in Federal court for violations of State liquor laws.

As a recent editorial in the Wall Street Journal makes clear, giving State attorneys general the power to sue out-of-State shippers on behalf of local wholesalers to help keep the competition out is a violation of justice. It will, instead, tip those scales against consumers who have found in the Internet a cornucopia of goods and services heretofore unknown to them.

I urge us to defeat this legislation.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment, as amended.

On page 1 of the amendment offered by Mr. GOODLATTE at line 16, strike the words "thus" and continuing to the end of line 17, and inserting the following:

"erecting barriers to competition and constituting mere economic protectionism."

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, this simply cleans up the language.

It struck a number of us, in trying to analyze the final language on this page of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) that the words "thus erecting barriers to competition" was unusual language to use in a statutory provision. Therefore, what we do is simply keep the same intent, but clarify it so it reads, "erecting barriers to competition and constituting mere economic protectionism."

We are just taking out and changing the grammar so that it is consistent with our earlier language in the particular provision.

Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) if he has any problem with the clarifying language.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding. This language is perfectly fine with us. We have no objection to the amendment, and urge its adoption.
sites can seriously disrupt lawful Internet communications, and slow the operations of a service provider's network for all other uses.

In sponsoring this clarifying amendment today with my colleagues, I want to alleviate the concern I had that in its current form, H.R. 2031 could be misinterpreted as authorizing injunctions by the states against communications companies who are not involved in the shipping or importing of liquor, but are simply used by third parties for communications purposes. I want to ensure that in enacting this legislation, we do not implement a burdensome Federal enforcement action that would hamper the growth of the Internet. Not just when it comes to the sale of alcohol over the Internet, but we must consider the message we send to business—from the small entrepreneurs to large industry—when they make commercial decisions about how they use the Internet to do business.

While the Twenty-First Amendment Enforcement Act does not specifically mention the Internet, there is no doubt that it is the innate nature of the Internet that has spurred the call for this legislation. It is my firm belief that Federal policy must use market-driven principles as the underpinning for any enacted legislation affecting the Internet. Despite the Federal Government's initiation and financing of the Internet, its expansion and diversity has been driven mainly by the private sector. Each piece of legislation that will change people's commercial behavior must be thoroughly examined and the consequences understood. Otherwise, we unleash a federal mandate or restriction that will harm the Internet's success and growth as the primary tool for communication between people and business.

The Federal Government can be the leader in developing incentives to move the Internet forward as the primary tool of businesses, educators, scholars, students, and the ordinary citizen. We must ensure the no Government can hinder that development. I ask my colleagues to support the Goodlatte/Conyers/Davis/Dundell amendment and guarantee the continued growth of the Internet as a tool of business.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, today, I rise in support of the Twenty-First Amendment Enforcement Act, which will provide individuals the ability to enforce state laws regulating the distribution and sale of alcoholic beverages within their border, a right guaranteed by the Twenty-First Amendment. Most states, including my home state of Georgia, employ a three-tiered system of alcoholic beverage distribution to control the distribution and sale of alcoholic beverages within their borders. Under this system alcohol producers go through state-licensed wholesalers, who must go through retailers, who alone may sell to consumers. Furthermore, Georgia is one of nineteen “express prohibition” states that expressly outlaw direct shipments of alcohol from out-of-state. Georgia’s system has proven quite effective in combating illegal alcohol sales to minors.

While Georgia’s alcohol statutes have proven successful throughout the years, the recent development of electronic commerce via the Internet has presented new challenges to preventing illegal shipments of alcohol into our state. Confronted with this new challenge, as well as the difficulty of enforcing its laws in court, Georgia in 1997 enacted statutes making the illegal shipment of alcoholic beverages, their bringing into the state by any person or entity, a violation of state law. This action was necessary to ensure the state would have jurisdiction over violators of its state liquor transportation laws.

I believe if states are unable to effectively enforce their laws against illegal interstate shipment of alcoholic beverages, they may also lose some ability to police sales to underage purchasers. Illegal direct shipments also deprive the state of the excise and sales tax revenue that would otherwise be generated by a regulated state, placing regulated businesses at a distinct commercial disadvantage. Finally, if direct shippers violate state law, they exclude themselves from other state obligations such as submitting to quality control inspections, licensing requirements, and complying with other restrictions placed upon sellers of alcohol.

As an advocate of smaller government and state’s rights, I favor a resolution to this problem that does not mandate changes to any existing state laws or alter existing case law interpreting the Commerce clause of the Constitution. I believe the Twenty-First Amendment Enforcement Act is the common-sense solution to this problem as it allows Georgia and other states the ability to seek enforcement, through a federal district court injunction, of its state laws regulating the importation and transportation of intoxicating liquors without infringing on states’ rights or creating Constitutional confusion.

For these reasons, I support the passage of H.R. 2031, the Twenty-First Amendment Enforcement Act, and urge its adoption.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE), as amended. The amendment to the amendment, as amended, was agreed to.

The amendment is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE), as amended. The amendment, as amended, was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to the bill?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. LOFGREN

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. LOFGREN:

Page 21, after line 17, insert the following (and make such technical and conforming changes as may be appropriate):

“(2) the term ‘firearm’ shall have the meaning given such term in section 921(a) of title 18 of such code;”

Page 3, line 128, insert “or firearm” after “liquor”.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. A point of order is reserved by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) to the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Ms. LOFGREN).

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Chairman, I offer this amendment on behalf of myself, as well as my colleagues from New York, Mrs. McCARTHY and Mrs. LOWEY.

As I mentioned earlier, Mr. Chairman, in a discussion on the Cox amendment, I do have concerns about the underlying amendment and its ability to constrain interstate commerce unreasonably. However, if this House is insistent upon pursuing the remedies outlined in the Scarborough bill, I would suggest that we ought to provide those tools equally to the chief law enforcement officers of our States in the enforcement of gun laws.

As many of my colleagues know, the State of California has recently passed, by wide margins in the assembly and the State Senate, and these measures have been signed into law by the Governor, a whole series of gun safety measures that I believe put California on the cutting edge of gun safety measures among the 50 States.

It seems to me that if we are going to give the Attorneys General of the 50 States the ability to go into Federal court to protect their citizens from $20 bottles of cabernet, we ought to be at least as willing to give the attorney general of the State of California the ability to go into Federal court to protect his citizens against the Tech–DC9, the AK-47, and other weapons of mass destruction.

Mr. Chairman, as we know, we failed to come together across the aisle on a bipartisan basis to adopt gun safety measures earlier in this Congress, but we have an opportunity here to at least allow those States that have been more progressive and more receptive to the people of the country than has the United States Congress to have an additional tool to protect the citizens of the States who have forward-thinking State legislatures and forward-thinking Governors.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, I want to commend the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN), who finds it, as do many of us, ironic that this House apparently does not demonstrate the same concern for the dangers of interstate shipment of firearms as they claim to have about the interstate shipment of alcohol.

If we opened the Federal courts to State alcohol suits, we should at least do the same for firearms. I thank the gentlewoman for making the connection in this debate.

Ms. LOFGREN. I thank the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS), the ranking member.

I would note, as to the issue of germanness, noting that the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) has reserved a point of order, that it is my contention that the amendment isgermane.
As we know, the underlying bill deals with issues that are governed by the Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms Bureau, as is the issue of guns. It seems to me, if we are going to give a tool to States to use the Federal courts for an item that is regulated by ATF, to wit, bottles of cabernet, that we ought to provide a remedy and tool to States to deal with another item which is within the jurisdiction of ATF, to wit, firearms, as defined in title 18 of the U.S. Code.

I would hope that we might move apace to adopt this resolution. I have two teenage children. They will be starting high school again this fall. They will be starting school, before this House finishes our annual recess. I would like to be able to tell them and to tell their classmates that the House of Representatives has done something, anything rational, to preserve and to enhance gun safety in America. I think we owe that to the mothers and fathers across the United States.

Although we have not been able previously to come together, although we have not been able to support the gun safety measures that have passed the United States Senate, although we have not been able to deliver that level of safety to the American people, we could act today and at least do this much.

So I am hopeful that we can approve this amendment. It is so important to me that I believe I would vote for the underlying bill, despite the reservations I have, in order to get this important new enforcement tool for State Attorneys General.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I ask to speak on the point of order, the fundamental purpose of the bill is to provide the attorney general of any State with the authority to bring a civil action in Federal court to enjoin any person or entity that the attorney general has reason to believe is engaged in an act that would constitute a violation of State law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor.

The fundamental purpose of the amendment is to expand the single class of merchandise covered by this bill, to wit, intoxicating liquor, by adding another class of merchandise, to wit, firearms, to the one class covered by this bill.

A distinction also exists that the distinguished ranking member of the Committee on the Judiciary did not touch on when he said we ought to be able to ship and fire arms together in this sort of stew. The main difference is that none of us here support the illegal transportation of firearms across State lines.

What this amendment does is this amendment tries to bring in the gun amendments. We all agree illegal transportation of firearms across State lines should not be permissible. Unfortunately, illegal alcohol sales being transported across State lines is still being defended by many people here today.

According to House Practice Germaneness section 9: “One individual proposition is not germane to another individual proposition.” This is clearly one individual proposition being added to another. Accordingly, Mr. Chairman, the amendment is not germane, and I insist on my point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) desire to be heard on the point of order?

Ms. LOFGREN. Yes, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman, I believe that the amendment the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) would ask to consider clearly even if there is a question as to germaneness, it does not need to be raised if all Members agree that the underlying measure should be supported by us all. I was glad to hear the comments of the gentlewoman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) that none of us support the illegal transport of firearms across State laws. The question is whose laws? In California, it is now, because of what the State legislature has done, it is illegal. TEC-9s are covered. TEC DC-9s are covered.

That is not the case under Federal law. So this would allow those States’ Attorneys General, the State of California, to go to Federal court to enforce California State laws vis-a-vis firearms.

I hope that we might be able to come together, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) and I, to allow this amendment to be offered and adopted; and that, sir, if we were to draw his point of order, we need not discuss the germaneness issue any further.

I would hope that he would do that since, if I understood him correctly, he agrees or says he agrees with the intention of the amendment. Therefore, I would hope, and I do not know if he wishes to respond, but I would hope that he might withdraw his objection on this point.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) desire to be heard on this point of order?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. I do, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman, I am not quite sure whether the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) correctly characterized the earlier remarks of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) who has sponsored the underlying bill here and who has risen and asserted and insisted on a point of order against the amendment of the gentlewoman from California.

I think he points out thatFlorida has made very clear that he is opposed to this amendment. I think the point that the gentleman was making earlier is a very accurate one; and that is that Federal law already provides that, when one ships a firearm in interstate commerce, it has to be shipped consistent with State laws, and if it has to be shipped, for example, to a licensed firearms dealer if it is shipped through the mails.

There already, in other words, are very severe limitations on the interstate shipment of firearms. And to open that Pandora’s box or that can of worms now to insert into a piece of legislation that is very specific, very clear, very limited, very reasonable, a whole new issue on which there have not been hearings, I mean, the opponents of the bill of the gentleman from Florida earlier were bemoaning the fact, erroneously as it turns out, bemoaning the fact that there had not been hearings and debate and information against a person who violates a State law. In fact, as the gentleman from Florida correctly stated, there have been hearings. There has been information. There has been evidence to support his legislation.

The gentlewoman from California is now proposing to do is to raise another whole issue which has not been debated certainly in the context of the intent of this legislation.

I believe the gentleman from Florida is very correct when he points respectfully to the Chair on section 9 of House Practice on Germaneness. The proposed amendment from the gentlewoman from California has nothing whatsoever to do with the intent or the effect of the underlying bill proposed by the gentleman from Florida.

I rise in support of the reservation on this and I join the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) in insisting on his point of order. I respectfully urge the Chair to strike the amendment as not germane and out of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is prepared to rule on the point of order.

The bill permits a State Attorney General to bring a civil action in Federal court against a person who has violated a State law regulating the importation and transportation of intoxicating liquor.

The amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California attempts to create an additional Federal cause of action against a person who violates a State law regulating firearms.

As stated in section 798a of the House Rules and Manual, an amendment must address the same subject as the bill under consideration.

This amendment addresses a separate subject matter (regulating traffic in firearms) that is different from the bill (regulating traffic in intoxicating liquors).

Accordingly, the amendment is not germane and the point of order is sustained.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. LOFGREN

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.
Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida reserves a point of order on the amendment.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Chairman, I believe that the amendment offered by myself and by the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCarthy) and the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. Lowey) adequately addresses the germaneness issue that was the subject of the point of order on the prior amendment we offered.

There are a series of cases that relate to the amendment and the amendment following: (a) Application of Amendment with regard to Certain Violations of Law. This Act and the amendment made by this act shall take immediate effect with regard to any violation of a state law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor when committed from any violation of a state's firearms laws.

CITATION TO CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

Congressional Record. August 3, 1999

I would hope that we could come together on the aisle on a bipartisan basis and resolve this matter so as to help guarantee the safety of the children of this country and the children of the high schools in California, even if it is only some modicum of increased safety when they return to school in September.

(Cite as: 657 N.E.2d 1, 212 Ill. Dec. 306)

SIP & SAVE LIQUORS, INC., AN ILLINOIS CORPORATION, PLAINTIFF-APPELLANT, V. RICHARD M. DALEY, MAYOR AND LOCAL LIQ-UOR CONTROL COMMISSIONER OF THE CITY OF CHICAGO, AND WILLIAM D. O'DONAGHUE, CHAIRMAN OF THE LICENSE APPEAL COMIS-
SION, DEFENDANTS-APPELLEES

No. 1–95–0760
Appeal Court of Illinois, First District, Third Division, Sept. 6, 1995, Rehearing Denied Nov. 9, 1995.

Liquor retailer sought review of revocation of retailer's license by mayor and city liquor control commissioner. The Circuit Court, Jock Carty, J., denied relief, and retailer appealed. The Appeal Court, Cerda, J., held that: (1) municipal code section placing time limit on issuance or revocation of liquor licenses; (2) state's five-day time limit, not code's 60-day limit, was applicable to revocation of liquor license; (3) failure to issue revocation within five days did not deprive commissioner of jurisdiction; (4) retailer was not deprived of due process; and (5) revocation was warranted.

Affirmed.

[1] INTOXICATING LIQUORS—106(1)—223K106(1)
City code section allowing mayor to suspend or revoke any license issued under code and state reasons for any revocation or suspension within 60 days was applicable to liq-

[2] INTOXICATING LIQUORS—108.1—223K108.1
City code section allowing mayor to suspend or revoke any license issued under code and state reasons for any revocation or suspension within 60 days was applicable to liq-

[3] INTOXICATING LIQUORS—102(2)—223K102(2)
Liquor control is subject to concurrent jurisdiction of state and local government; home-rule municipalities may legislate in area of liquor control, except as restricted by state, pursuant to home-rule provisions of state constitution. S.H.A. Const. Art. 7, § 6.

Liquor control is subject to concurrent jurisdiction of state and local government; home-rule municipalities may legislate in area of liquor control, except as restricted by state, pursuant to home-rule provisions of state constitution. S.H.A. Const. Art. 7, § 6.

State statute requiring that revocation of liquor license be issued within five days of hearing prevailed over municipal code secction imposing 60-day time limitation for issuing revocation, as code expanded state's time limit and was thus inconsistent with state law. S.H.A. 235 ILCS 5/7–5; Chicago, Ill., Municipal Code § 4–4–280.

State statute requiring that revocation of liquor license be issued within five days of hearing prevailed over municipal code sec-section imposing 60-day time limitation for

Liquor retailer issued a notice that he was denied due process because the retailer was charged with possessing in license revocation proceedings. The retailer was allowed to testify to its measurement, where retailer did not object to testimony, and did not make motion in limine at hearing, and did not raise issue until penalty hearing.

Liquor retailer issued a notice that he was denied due process because the retailer was charged with possessing in license revocation proceedings. The retailer was allowed to testify to its measurement, where retailer did not object to testimony, and did not make motion in limine at hearing, and did not raise issue until penalty hearing.

[10] INTOXICATING LIQUORS—108.2—223K108.2
Liquor retailer issued a notice that he was denied due process because the retailer was charged with possessing in license revocation proceedings. The retailer was allowed to testify to its measurement, where retailer did not object to testimony, and did not make motion in limine at hearing, and did not raise issue until penalty hearing.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. Lofgren: On purpose, the amendment following:

(c) Application of Amendment with regard to Certain Violations of Law. This Act and the amendment made by this act shall take immediate effect with regard to any violation of a state law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor when committed from any violation of a state's firearms laws.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida reserves a point of order on the amendment.

Ms. Lofgren. Mr. Chairman, I believe that the amendment offered by myself and by the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCarthy) and the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. Lowey) adequately addresses the germaneness issue that was the subject of the point of order on the prior amendment we offered.

There are a series of cases that relate to the amendment and the amendment following: (a) Application of Amendment with regard to Certain Violations of Law. This Act and the amendment made by this act shall take immediate effect with regard to any violation of a state law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor when committed from any violation of a state's firearms laws.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida reserves a point of order on the amendment.

Ms. Lofgren. Mr. Chairman, I believe that the amendment offered by myself and by the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCarthy) and the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. Lowey) adequately addresses the germaneness issue that was the subject of the point of order on the prior amendment we offered.

There are a series of cases that relate to the amendment and the amendment following: (a) Application of Amendment with regard to Certain Violations of Law. This Act and the amendment made by this act shall take immediate effect with regard to any violation of a state law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor when committed from any violation of a state's firearms laws.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida reserves a point of order on the amendment.

Ms. Lofgren. Mr. Chairman, I believe that the amendment offered by myself and by the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCarthy) and the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. Lowey) adequately addresses the germaneness issue that was the subject of the point of order on the prior amendment we offered.

There are a series of cases that relate to the amendment and the amendment following: (a) Application of Amendment with regard to Certain Violations of Law. This Act and the amendment made by this act shall take immediate effect with regard to any violation of a state law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor when committed from any violation of a state's firearms laws.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida reserves a point of order on the amendment.

Ms. Lofgren. Mr. Chairman, I believe that the amendment offered by myself and by the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCarthy) and the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. Lowey) adequately addresses the germaneness issue that was the subject of the point of order on the prior amendment we offered.

There are a series of cases that relate to the amendment and the amendment following: (a) Application of Amendment with regard to Certain Violations of Law. This Act and the amendment made by this act shall take immediate effect with regard to any violation of a state law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor when committed from any violation of a state's firearms laws.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida reserves a point of order on the amendment.

Ms. Lofgren. Mr. Chairman, I believe that the amendment offered by myself and by the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCarthy) and the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. Lowey) adequately addresses the germaneness issue that was the subject of the point of order on the prior amendment we offered.

There are a series of cases that relate to the amendment and the amendment following: (a) Application of Amendment with regard to Certain Violations of Law. This Act and the amendment made by this act shall take immediate effect with regard to any violation of a state law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor when committed from any violation of a state's firearms laws.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida reserves a point of order on the amendment.

Ms. Lofgren. Mr. Chairman, I believe that the amendment offered by myself and by the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCarthy) and the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. Lowey) adequately addresses the germaneness issue that was the subject of the point of order on the prior amendment we offered.

There are a series of cases that relate to the amendment and the amendment following: (a) Application of Amendment with regard to Certain Violations of Law. This Act and the amendment made by this act shall take immediate effect with regard to any violation of a state law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor when committed from any violation of a state's firearms laws.

223k106(4)
Presence of sawed-off shotgun on premises of liquor retailer warranted revocation of liquor license. The shot gun was not improperly found guilty of failing to register gun which was not registerable, location of shotgun permitted inference that retailer had control of guns and factors both in favor of and against revocation existed.

[12] INTOXICATING LIQUORS—108.10(a)— 223k108.10(a)
Appellate court may reverse licensing decision of liquor control commission only if manifest weight of evidence supports opposite conclusion.

* * * Lamendella & Daniel, Chicago (Joseph A. Lamendella, Kris Daniel, of counsel), for appellant.

Corp. Counsel, Chicago (Susan S. Sher, Lawrence J. O'Brien, of counsel), for appellees.

Justice CERDA delivered the opinion of the court.

Plaintiff, Sip & Save Liquors, Inc., an Illinois corporation, appeals from the revocation of its retail liquor license. It argues on appeal that: (1) The City of Chicago Local Liquor Control Commission (the commission) lost jurisdiction when it did not timely issue a decision; (2) plaintiff was denied due process; and (3) revocation was an unreasonable penalty.

The commission charged in a notice of hearing on August 19, 1991, that plaintiff had a full hearing in aggravation and mitigation of charges.

On October 16, 1992, the commission suspended “charge one” and revoked the license. The following findings of fact were made. Shubalis admitted that he saw the sawed-off shotgun eight or nine years before the burglary and that he did nothing to assure that the shotgun was removed from the premises. Shubalis’s testimony that the gun was hidden in the old safe and that he did not even think of it after first seeing it was not credible. The licensee had a history of a prior violent incident of which it resulted in a fine of $300. The weapon was an extremely dangerous type of weapon. In light of the serious nature of the offense, revocation was appropriate.

On January 22, 1993, the trial court denied plaintiff’s motion to reverse and to reinstate the license, denied plaintiff’s motion to reverse the post-revocation order of revocation, and affirmed the order of revocation.

Plaintiff filed a notice of appeal on February 19, 1993.

I. JURISDICTION

 Plaintiff first argues that the commission lost jurisdiction to impose any sanction when it failed to render a decision within the 15 days following the hearing as prescribed by section 4–4–280 of the Code (Chicago Municipal Code § 4–4–280 (1990)), which was amended in 1992 to expand the time period to 60 days (Journal of the Proceedings of the City Council of the City of Chicago, July 29, 1992, at 2041–42). If the proceedings were initiated exclusively under the Liquor Act, then the procedural requirements of section 7–5 of the Liquor Act were not met (235 ILCS 5/7–5 (West 1995)). The term “shall” was mandatory and not directory.

The mayor shall have the power to * * * suspend, revoke or annul any liquor license issued under the provisions of this code * * *

If the mayor shall determine after a hearing that the license should be revoked or suspended, the hearing shall be held not later than 60 days after the finding of the committee, or of the mayor in the case of a hearing before the commission. L. S. A. 1909, §§ 5040, 5043, 5044.

According to the Journal of the Proceedings of the City Council of the City of Chicago, the ordinance was:
The Code's longer time for the issuance of the local liquor control commissioner's license for the sale of alcoholic liquor shall be issued by the local liquor control commissioner, subject to the provisions of an act entitled "An Act relating to alcoholic liquor," approved January 31, 1994, as amended, and subject to the provisions of this chapter and Chapter 4-4 relating to licenses in general or under the local liquor control ordinances pursuant to the Liquor Act. In the case of Puss N Boots, Inc. v. Mayor's License Commission (1992), 232 Ill.App.3d 984, 173 Ill.Dec. 676, 597 N.E.2d 650, an appeal by the city of Chicago revoking the public place of amusement license of the plaintiff, Plaintiff argues that this court should follow the decision in Puss N Boots. One of the issues in that case was whether the mayor had lost jurisdiction to revoke the public place of amusement license because of failure to act within a 15-day time period prescribed by ordinance section 4-4-230. The court pointed out that the Code section providing for "interpretation of language" expressly stated that "(t)he word "shall" is mandatory rather than directory." (Emphasis added.) Chicago Municipal Code § 4-60-070 (1994)." *5 310 The next issue is whether section 4-4-260 of the Code states a valid time requirement that a statement of reasons for revocation be given within five days of hearing controls over Code section 4-4-280's time frame for the decision. Section 7-5 of the Liquor Act states in part: "The local liquor control commissioner shall within 5 days after a hearing, if he determines after such hearing that the license should be revoked or suspended or that the licensee should be fined, state the reason or reasons for such determination in a written order within 5 days." (West 1993.) (3) Liquor control is subject to concurrent jurisdiction of the State and local government. (Easter Enterprises, Inc. v. Illinois Liquor Control Commission (1983), 114 Ill. App.3d 855, 858-59, 70 Ill. Dec. 666, 449 N.E. 2d 1013.) Home-rule municipalities such as Chicago may legislate in the area of liquor control, and the local liquor control commission would have lost jurisdiction when the mayor failed to act within the 15-day period in this case if only the local code were involved. (Puss N Boots, 232 Ill.App.3d at 987, 173 Ill.Dec. 676, 597 N.E.2d 650.) The court concluded that "shall" in section 4-4-260 was mandatory and the commissioner was required to render a decision within the mandatory time depriving the mayor of jurisdiction. Puss N Boots, 232 Ill.App.3d at 987-88, 173 Ill.Dec.676, 597 N.E.2d 650.

We agree with the decision rendered in the Puss N Boots case. The word "shall" in section 4-4-280 of the Municipal Code of Chicago is mandatory rather than directory. (Puss N Boots, 232 Ill.App.3d at 987, 173 Ill.Dec. 676, 597 N.E.2d 650.) The word "shall" is used (1) the Liquor Act provided that it was to be liberally construed to protect the welfare of the people. (Alpern, 38 Ill.App.3d at 567, 348 N.E.2d 271.) The five-day provision did not contain language denying the exercise of the power after the time named and no right of plaintiff would be injuredly affected by a failure to serve the revocation order timely. Alpern, 38 Ill. App.3d at 568, 348 N.E. 2d 271.

Several first district cases have followed Alpern; Dugan's Bistro, Inc. v. Daley (1977), 38 Ill.App.3d 565, 567, 348 N.E. 2d 271; Alpern; Dugan's Bistro, Inc. v. Daley (1977), 38 Ill.App.3d 565, 567, 348 N.E. 2d 271. The five-day provision did not contain language denying the exercise of the power after the time named and no right of plaintiff would be injuredly affected by a failure to serve the revocation order timely.

II. DUE PROCESS

Plaintiff next argues that the plaintiff was denied due process because the shotgun was

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

August 3, 1999

19210
August 3, 1999

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

19211

* * * [3] INTOXICATING LIQUORS—102—223k102

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-

by administrative procedure statute per-
by the board of objections to the [renewal] signed by persons authorized to do so."
§ 28–10–3A(a)(6), Ala. Code 1975. The record of the ABC Board's hearing reflects that the lounge is located in Mobile, at 1385 Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Avenue, an area of mixed commercial and residential properties. Neighborhood residents testified that the lounge's patrons discharged firearms; brawled in the parking lot; made excessive noise; trespassed; deposited weapons and narcotics in neighborhood yards; illegally parked their cars; and urinated, defecated, and engaged in sexual activities on the residents' properties. Support testimony was offered by George Boan and Kenneth Kirkland, two ABC Board employees, and by Sgt. Kay Taylor of the Mobile Police Department. Boan, an ABC Board district supervisor, testified that he had personally observed loitering, noise, and illegal parking at the lounge, and he stated that during the investigation of the lounge he had been approached by prostitutes working the area. Kirkland, an ABC Board agent, played a videotape that he had made of the parking lot and the area surrounding the lounge; on that tape he had captured an apparent drug deal. Sgt. Taylor presented a telephone log listing 95 complaints lodged with the police department between January 1, 1990, and September 25, 1991, concerning activities allegedly occurring inside the lounge or on its premises.

Davis denied that his patrons were responsible for the illegal activities that had occurred in the vicinity, blaming persons driving by and the occupants of a nearby house for causing the trouble. However, after a thorough review of the record, we find that the ABC Board heard substantial evidence that the operation of the lounge was prejudicial to the health, welfare, and morals of the community. Consequently, we cannot hold that the Board's action was clearly erroneous, unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious, or an abuse of discretion.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentlewoman from California yield to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS)?

Ms. LOFGREN. I have yielded to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Parliamentary inquiry, Is this for the first 5 minutes?

Ms. LOFGREN. Yes, it is.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Parliamentary inquiry. Is it the rule of the Chair, then, that they can yield during the first 5 minutes when a point of order has been raised?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentlewoman from California yield to the gentleman from Florida for a parliamentary inquiry?

Ms. LOFGREN. I will yield for a parliamentary inquiry which has been stated. May I yield time to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS) for the ranking member, under regular order?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida may state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, the parliamentary inquiry, earlier I had tried to yield some time on reserving a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair controls debate on the point of order when it is raised.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Chairman, re-claiming my time, that was on the germaneness issue. This is on the 5 minutes.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I am trying to get a ruling from the Chair.

The CHAIRMAN. Members will suspend. Earlier the gentleman tried to yield time during argument on a point of order. That cannot be done under the rules.

The gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) controls 5 minutes and can yield to the gentleman from Florida for a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Okay.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS).

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman from California for yielding to me.

I am glad the gentlewoman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) realizes that this is a perfectly orderly procedure. I wanted to just thank the gentlewoman for her persistence in trying to connect at a Federal level the relationship between gun safety, the shipment of firearms, and the shipment of alcoholic beverages. There is nothing illogical or irrational about it. They are both very related subject matter.

The need for using these regulations and looking at them from this perspective of a Federally licensed firearm dealer and wine distributor or alcohol beverage distributor is related.

I am glad that the gentlewoman has reformulated her amendment. I think it now attaches to this bill with a great rationality, and it is an amendment on its own that I support very strongly.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the ranking member for his kind comments.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak on the point of order that I reserved.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman may state his point of order.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, again, the fundamental purpose of this bill is to provide the attorney general of any State with the authority to bring a civil action in the United States district court to enjoin any person or entity that the attorney general has a reasonable cause to believe is engaged in any act that would constitute a violation of State law regulating the importation or transportation of intoxicating liquor.

Now, the fundamental purpose of this amendment is again to expand the single class of merchandise covered by the bill from intoxicating liquor to now adding another class of merchandise, which is firearms to the one class covered by the bill.

Secondly, it makes absolutely no sense because it adds an unrelated contingency in the final line when, again, reading the amendment, it says: "This Act and the amendment made by this act shall take immediate effect with regard to any violation of a State law regulating the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor which results from any violation of a State's firearms laws."

Now that is clearly, clearly, an unrelated contingency.

Also, I think it is very important to understand the worst thing that is going on here is we are commingling again two issues. Instead of the single issue of alcohol that is being illegally shipped across State lines, we are actually talking about gun sales or the transporting of guns inside of a State. Obviously, that can already be taken care of inside the State by a State attorney general who simply goes to State court. The State attorney general also has the power to simply take away the State liquor license of the person who is illegally selling guns, and so it is unnecessary.

Again, it is a commingling of two issues and, as I said earlier, the fundamental purpose of this bill is a single issue, and that is to stop the illegal sales of alcohol across State lines. So for those reasons and many others, I think, once again, we have to go back to House Practice, Germaneness, section 9, which says, "One individual proposition is not germane to another individual proposition." And this is clearly one individual proposition that is being added to another in a mix, sort of a legislative goo that I think even gives sausage making a bad name.
Accordingly, Mr. Chairman, I do not believe this amendment is germane and I insist on my point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentlewoman from California wish to be heard on the point of order?

Ms. LOFGREN. Yes, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) is recognized.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Chairman, I would disagree with my colleague from Florida on the germaneness issue. In the example I gave in my 5 minutes in support of my amendment, I mentioned the issue where we had the possession of a Tech DC 9 by the owner of a winery and the holder of a Federal license of a winery. That is not a State license, that is a Federal license. And in order to affect that Federal license, recourse first of the ATF and later, and arguably necessarily, to the Federal courts, would be necessary. The State does not have jurisdiction over the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Further, I would note that the forum of a Federal court gives multi-State enforcement opportunities that arguably are not available to the attorneys general by recourse to a State forum. And if that is not the case, if that turns out to be incorrect, then the entire basis for this act being asserted by the proponents of the Scarborough bill evaporates. Because if the point of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. CONYERS) is recognized.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the point of order that the amendment of the gentleman from Michigan wish to be heard on the point of order?

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE [19x20]19213

The CHAIRMAN. The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) is recognized.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. He does.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) is recognized.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I am looking at this amendment. I have to conclude that Rube Goldberg is alive and well. If the Chair can figure out what this amendment means, the Chair is indeed very smart.

I think, though, that it can be stated very clearly, very succinctly, Mr. Chairman, that this is simply an evidence of the gun control advocates seeking to interject gun control into any piece of legislation they can at whatever the cost. And the cost here would be at the price of clarity and germaneness.

What the gentlewoman is proposing here in bringing in the issue of State firearms laws, which have nothing whatsoever to do with a State regarding the sale of alcoholic beverages, is to try to bring in an unrelated contingency. That, Mr. Chairman, is specifically precluded by House rules, number 22, on germaneness, entitled Conditions or Qualifications, which I would respectfully quote to the Chair. It says, "A condition or qualification sought to be added by way of amendment must be germane to the provisions of the bill."

The provisions of this bill relate solely and exclusively to State laws regarding the sale of alcoholic beverages. They have nothing whatsoever to do with firearms violations. This is not germane, it is unrelated, and I urge the Chair to sustain the point of order raised by the gentleman from Florida.

The CHAIRMAN. The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Michigan wish to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. CONYERS. Yes, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS) is recognized.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the point of order that is made, and I simply want to make it clear that this is a completely different amendment that is being brought forward.

What the gentlewoman is pointing out is that this is a subset of liquor violations, and some liquor violations result from gun violations. She is merely setting a different effective date for those violations. This is just empowering the States to enforce their own liquor laws, which sometimes involve gun laws.

So this supports the principle purpose of the bill. It in no way is caught by germaneness. It is stopping the sale of alcohol in violation of State laws. It does this by allowing cases where firearms use violate State alcohol laws to be heard immediately. She merely changes the date.

So to argue the same non-germaneness arguments that were previously advanced fails to recognize that this is a substantially different amendment, and that it is clearly germane and is in accord with the precedence of the House.

This amendment does nothing whatsoever to expand the scope of the bill. It merely deals with the effective date issue, and for that reason I urge that the point of order be rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is prepared to rule on the point of order raised by the gentleman from Florida.

The gentleman from Florida raises a point of order that the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from California is not germane.

The bill amends the Webb-Kenyon Act to authorize an attorney general of a State to bring a civil action in a Federal court against a person that an attorney general believes has engaged in an act in violation of a State law regulating the importation or transportation of intoxicating liquor. The bill also establishes certain parameters for Federal judicial review of an action brought under the new law.

Clause 7 of Rule XVI, the germaneness rule, provides that no proposition on a "subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment." One of the central tenets of the germaneness rule is that the fundamental purpose of an amendment must be germane to the fundamental purpose of the bill.

The Chair discerns that fundamental purpose of a bill by examining the text of the bill and the report language accompanying the bill as evidenced by the ruling of the Chair on July 18, 1990, recorded in Volume 10, Chapter 28, section 5.6 of the Deschler-Brown Precedents. As indicated on page 5 and 6 of the committee report, the underlying bill was "introduced in order to specifically provide States with access to Federal court to enforce their laws regulating interstate shipments of alcoholic beverages."

The fundamental purpose of the amendment appears to be to single out certain violations of liquor trafficking laws on the basis of their regard for any and all firearms issues. The Chair is of the opinion that the question illustrated the principle that an amendment may relate to the same subject matter, yet still stray from adherence to a common fundamental purpose, by singling out one constituent element of the larger subject for specific and unrelated scrutiny.

The fundamental purpose of the amendment is not the same as the fundamental purpose of the bill, nor is it a mere component of the larger purpose. Rather, the amendment pursues a purpose that, by its specialized focus, bears a corollary relationship to that pursued by the bill.

The proponent of this amendment has argued that her amendment merely... addresses a subset of those State laws already addressed in the bill and is germane based on subject matter grounds. The Chairman would note that the general principle found on page 618 of the House Rules and Manual that the standards by which the germaneness of an amendment may be measured are not exclusive. Thus, while the amendment may arguably address the same subject matter, or a subset thereof, as that of the underlying bill, the fundamental purpose of the amendment must still be germane under every application thereof to that of the bill.

In the opinion of the Chair, the amendment is not germane and the point of order is sustained.

Are there further amendments to the bill?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. JACKSON-LEE OF TEXAS

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida is recognized.

The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk reads as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Page 6, line 19, strike the close quotation marks and the period at the end.

Page 6, after line 9, insert the following (and make such technical and conforming changes as may be appropriate):

"SEC. 3. REQUIREMENTS APPLICABLE TO CERTAIN CARRIERS IN CONNECTION WITH DELIVERY OF INTOXICATING LIQUOR TO A PLACE OF RESIDENCE.

"(a) DELIVERY OF INTOXICATING LIQUOR BY NON-GOVERNMENTAL CARRIERS FOR HIRE.—It shall be unlawful for a nongovernmental carrier for hire knowingly deliver a container transported in interstate commerce that contains intoxicating liquor to a place of residence of any kind if such carrier fails to obtain the signature of the individual to whom such container is addressed.

"(b) PENALTY.—Whoever violates paragraph (1) shall be liable for a fine of $500.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas (determining the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. BARRETT of Nebraska). Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Texas?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Objection, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Objection is heard.

The Clerk will continue the reading. The Clerk continued reading the amendment.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I continue to reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is recognized.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I hope my colleague will see fit to join me in this amendment, and I would like to share with him language in H.R. 2031 in particular that specifically states, if the Attorney General is reasonable to believe that a person is engaged or has engaged in any act that would constitute a violation of State law regulating the importation or transportation of any liquor. In part, this provision reads that we are dealing with the illegal transportation of liquor. And the supporting materials that my colleagues have circulated to even support this legislation all goes to the underage drinking of our young people.

We realize and have seen documentation, Mr. Chairman, that underage drinking is more devastating in our youth community than drugs. And interestingly enough, the amendment that I have just offered, and I might add that is pretty appropriate to see if the gentleman would accept a friendly amendment to my amendment or a perfecting amendment that deals with narrowing the opportunity by way of requiring the carrier, and I might amend that to be shipper, to in fact make sure that the signature of the individual to whom the container is addressed, would, in and of itself, help to bring down the amendment of illegal alcohol being shipped and transported to youth.

In particular, materials that were sent out by the beer wholesalers, national beer wholesalers, speak to this issue, as well as some additional new faces and anecdotal stories that tell us what happens when young people use the Internet and these amounts of liquor come without any restraint whatsoever.

In Greenville, Mississippi, a teenage girl says ordering liquor or alcohol over the Internet is easier than walking into a store and buying it. February 16, 1999, in Boston, Massachusetts, indicates an 18-year-old lies about his age and uses his own debit card to order wine by the Internet. One package is left at the door without an ID check. One winery uses a deceptive return label that indicates the package was shipped from a printing company.

In addition, on May 13, 1999, another beer is sent to a 17-year-old. The UPS delivers it to an unmarked box. No ID check.

Materials that the beer wholesalers have offered to us have said several things. There is a new black market in alcohol. It says State laws are broken. Today this sensitive marketplace structure is in jeopardy, a national problem with local impact. Television stations in more than three dozen communities across the Nation have produced investigative reports that document how easy it is for teenagers to use the Internet to acquire beer.

If this is the premise upon which this legislation has been written, if we are to assist the attorney general in preventing illegal intoxicating liquors from being shipped across State lines, then we also agree that in fact this is an amendment that should be accepted. Because what it asks the carrier to do is to simply get a signature of the individual on the container that is addressed.

I would say to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) as well that we need to do what he says the legislation is attempting to do and that is to respond to underage drinking. We can all rally around underage drinking, Mr. Chairman. For many of the carriers who are receiving alcohol from the shippers, they are in fact shipping to teenagers, leaving it, getting no ID, getting no signature, getting absolutely nothing that allows our teenagers, our youth, our college students to engage in alcohol abuse, which enhances and increases the numbers of those who are abusing alcohol.

I ask the gentleman from Florida to consider this amendment and, as well, be happy to offer a friendly amendment that should say that such requirement that requires the carriers to get the signature would be subject to the passage of a State law.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, I want to compliment the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

If I understand the amendment, all she is asking is that the outside package have some identifying label that this is alcohol. Is that correct?

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I am asking for the signature.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, if the gentlewoman would continue to yield, plus the signature when it is received to determine that it is going into the proper hands.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, that is correct.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, first of all, I am sure that is consistent with the bill. I mean, I hope we do not have a germaneness problem.

Secondly, it makes a pretty good sense. It would seem that those who support the bill might want to make this improvement merely because it makes more efficacious the whole process.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I insist on my point of order and disagree with the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) and also the ranking member of the Committee on the Judiciary. This is not consistent at all with the bill, and it is far outside the fundamental scope of this legislation.

Mr. Chairman, again, the fundamental purpose of this bill is to provide... the attorneys general of any State with the authority to bring civil action in the United States District Court to enjoin any person or entity that the attorney general has reasonable cause to believe is engaged in any act that would constitute a violation of State law regulating the importation or transportation of an intoxicating liquor.

Now, what we have here from the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is actually a new set of substantive laws that would actually apply fines, penalties, and hold them accountable in Federal court for actual criminal or civil penalties. It is a substantive approach.

It is very important to remember, in this legislation the only thing we are talking about is providing States' attorneys general a procedural mechanism to go into State courts.

So by proposing this bill and if it passes, after it passes, we have not proposed new criminal laws regarding the sale of alcohol. We have not proposed any new civil penalties. We have not proposed any new criminal penalties.

The only thing that we are doing is providing States' attorneys general with a procedural mechanism to go into court and stop illegal wine sales that are transported across State lines.

So when the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) offers this amendment, she is taking us out of this very narrowly limited procedural safeguard for States' attorneys general and instead expanding it to a point where we are going to have an entirely new class of individuals and businesses that are going to be liable under Federal law that are going to be able to be dragged into Federal court and be held accountable under civil or criminal penalties.

Despite the debate that has preceded this conversation on the floor right now, there is nothing in my legislation and in the legislation of the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT) that would hold anybody accountable under any new civil or criminal penalty. Again, it only provides a simple procedural safeguard so States' attorneys general are allowed only to stop the illegal shipment of alcohol into their States.

According to House Practice Germaness Section 9, one individual proposition is not germane to another individual proposition.

This is clearly our individual proposition that is being added to another. We are clearly bringing in an entirely new group of people who will be liable under this. We are trying to add new Federal regulations, telling shippers, nongovernmental shippers, what they may or may not ship and when they ship and how they ship and what procedures they must go through so they are not dragged into Federal court and then held liable.

So accordingly, Mr. Chairman, this amendment is clearly not germane. And I will hold my point of order.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. BARR of Nebraska). Does the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) wish to speak to the point of order? Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Yes, I would, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman, I am disappointed in my colleague from Florida. And I realize that he has turned the debate away from the premise of the bill.

Again I say, Mr. Chairman, that this bill was argued on and discussed in the Committee on the Judiciary on the question of underaged drinking. What are we here for on the floor of the House?

Again I refer to H.R. 2033, which says, “if the attorney general has reasonable cause to believe that a person is underage or has engaged in any act that would violate a constitution of State law regarding the importation or transportation of any intoxicating liquor.”

That is what this amendment proposes to do. It proposes to make illegal for a nongovernmental carrier to deliver liquor to a place of residence without a signature.

I have already indicated to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) that I would be more than willing to make it subject to the passage of such State law. But we have a problem with underage drinking. And as the materials have indicated, sent out by the supporters of this bill, the national beer wholesalers who indicate that, if I might just cite some of their information, Mr. Chairman, State laws are broken. A national problem with local impact exists. They cited a number of instances where students were receiving large amounts of alcohol and, of course, without any identification and, therefore, engaging in alcohol abuse.

I would simply raise the specter to the gentleman that germaneness is a process issue that jumps to the fore in trying to do.

I have already indicated to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) that I would be more than willing to make it subject to the passage of such State law. But we have a problem with underage drinking. And as the materials have indicated, sent out by the supporters of this bill, the national beer wholesalers who indicate that, if I might just cite some of their information, Mr. Chairman, State laws are broken. A national problem with local impact exists. They cited a number of instances where students were receiving large amounts of alcohol and, of course, without any identification and, therefore, engaging in alcohol abuse.

I would simply raise the specter to the gentlewoman that germaneness is a process issue that jumps to the fore in trying to do.

I think, Mr. Chairman, that we can do no less. If this bill is argued on the premise of bringing down underage drinking, then I clearly believe this amendment should be ruled not only in order but should be ruled as germane.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I wish to be heard on the point of order.

Mr. Chairman, here again, similarly, though not exactly the same as the prior amendments, there is a germaneness issue that jumps to the fore in looking at the amendment proposed by the gentlewoman from Texas.

I would note particularly in the House Practice Volume, Section 27, that what the gentlewoman is proposing to do is to amend a bill that amends existing law and going beyond the proposed amendment to the existing law.

It says, “A germaneness rule may provide the basis for a point of order against an amendment that is offered to a bill amending existing law.”

The gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) is proposing an amendment to an existing law in a very narrow respect.

What the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is proposing to do by way of an amendment to the bill of the gentleman goes beyond that. It indeed would establish not an amendment to what the gentleman is proposing, and that is a change to Section 28 of the Federal Rules of Procedure relating to injunctive relief, but she is proposing a new substantive provision of the Federal Criminal Code.

We are talking about two entirely different titles of the Federal Code. We are talking here about the Civil Code. She is talking about a new substantive criminal provision.

It clearly raises germaneness questions. She is attempting to amend a bill that amends existing law in a way that is clearly improper pursuant to precedent and House Practice.

I would urge the Chair to sustain the point of order raised by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH).

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Does the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) have further argument on the point of order?

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Yes, Mr. Chairman, I do.

Mr. Chairman, I am disappointed. And I hear the opponents’ arguments.

As I indicated, the bill itself speaks to the attorney general being able to prohibit the illegal transfer or interstate transfer of alcohol. The underlying arguments for the bill speak to underage drinking.

My amendment in particular deals with carriers shipping interstate, in the course of interstate commerce, alcohol and the requirement thereof for a signature to the addressee.

I cannot imagine the unwillingness of the proponents of this legislation to be willing to accept this amendment based on the premise of the legislation to reduce underage drinking.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The Chair is prepared to rule on the point of order.

The gentleman from Texas raises a point of order that the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Texas is not germane.

Under clause 7 of rule XVI, one of the fundamental tenets of the germaneness test is that the amendment must have the same fundamental purpose as the bill. The fundamental purpose of the bill under consideration is the creation of Federal court jurisdiction for civil actions arising under State laws regulating the transportation or the transportation of intoxicating liquor. The fundamental purpose of the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Texas is the creation of new Federal prohibitions regarding the transportation of intoxicating liquor under Federal law. Therefore, the amendment has a different fundamental purpose and is not germane.

The point of order is sustained.

ADDITION OFFERED BY MS. JACKSON-LEE OF TEXAS

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas:
At the end of the bill, add the following:

SEC. 4. EFFECTIVE DATE.
(a) STUDY.—This Act shall not take effect until 90 days after the Attorney General submits to the Congress the results of a study to determine the impact of the amendment made by this Act on underage drinking and to stop the abuse of alcohol, has really occurred by passage of this legislation.

(b) COMPLETION OF STUDY.—The Attorney General shall carry out the study required by subsection (a) and shall submit the results of such study not later than 180 days by subsection (a) and shall submit the results of such study not later than 180 days.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. BARRETT of Nebraska). The gentleman from Florida reserves a point of order.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, we commit ourselves as Members of the United States Congress to not waste the taxpayers’ dollars, to solve national crises, and to respond to the immediacy of the issue. As I indicated in all of the underlying arguments and supporting documentation that the proponents of this legislation have utilized, they have utilized the premises of teenagers getting alcohol, underage drinking, the abuse of alcohol. In fact, in their own documentation, there is a recounting of the tragedies of what happens when underage drinkers or how they get alcohol.

This amendment is a simple request, Mr. Chairman. I would ask my good friend from Florida to reconsider his point of order, because it simply asks for a study to determine the impact of the amendment, and then asks for the Attorney General to carry out the study required by subsection A and it asks for these results to be presented back to us, this Congress, to ensure that what we are trying to do, to stop illegal bootlegging to people over 21 years of age as it is to stop illegal bootlegging for people under 21 years of age. I am hopeful that the gentlewoman from Texas will be able to support this over-all bill.

I must say that I was a bit confused in committee after she had expressed her deep concerns about underage drinking and said that it was a national crisis and that it was extraordinary important for us to stop the illegal bootlegging to minors. The gentlewoman is not going to support this over-all bill. If she believes that illegal alcohol sales to minors is a national crisis, then this is the way you stop it. The argument that you oppose stopping illegal bootlegging to minors through a bill form because you also are trying to stop illegal bootlegging to people over the age of 21 is an argument that quite bluntly I just do not understand. I certainly am hopeful that the gentlewoman is not going to oppose this bill if again she is concerned about this national crisis.

Let me, first of all, respond to some things that have been said by the gentlewoman from Texas. She has been the same times today regarding the main purposes of this bill being to stop the illegal sales of alcohol to minors. That certainly is a very important part of it, but I believe it is just as important that we stop illegal bootlegging to people over 21 years of age as it is to stop illegal bootlegging for people under 21 years of age. I am hopeful that the gentlewoman from Texas will be able to support this over-all bill.

I do obviously withdraw the point of order that I reserved. I do understand the purpose of this amendment. I will not be supporting this amendment. I do not think we need to stall an additional 90 days. If it is a crisis, I do not think we should give minors or people over 21 an additional 3 months to purchase alcohol illegally over the Internet. Likewise, I do not think you need a study for 180 days from the Attorney General to the State attorneys general telling them that illegal wine sales are occurring. They are occurring. Everybody knows they are occurring.

Again the only thing this bill does, the overall bill that she is seeking to amend, is it differentiates between illegal alcoholic sales and legal alcoholic sales.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. CONYERS. I was wondering over here on our side, if we strike out the not taking effect for 90 days and make this a straight study, would that meet the objections and then the approval of the leading on that side?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Again, my only concern with that is if we strike out the 90 days, I am concerned that that gives in to the argument that this measure strictly is concerned with illegal sales to people under the age of 21.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) has expired.

(On request of Mr. CONYERS, and by unanimous consent, Mr. SCARBOROUGH was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I continue to yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. CONYERS. Suppose we make it a study of the impact of this legislation assuming cases, so that there would be no taking of effect and it would have no negative implications.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. If it will have no negative effect on the effective date, I certainly will consider it. I cannot give the gentleman an answer right now, but I certainly would consider that. My main concern is that we do not delay implementation of this obviously, because if it is a national crisis, as the gentlewoman from Texas says it is, we do not want to waste 3 months.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. I am still not quite sure what the purpose of a study just to have a study is. Members on the other side have spoken very eloquently in committee as well as on the floor today recognizing that there is indeed a very serious national problem with underage drinking. That conclusion has been reached in the absence of a magical study by the Attorney General. So we all know there is a problem out there. This bill has nothing to do with Federal authorities. This bill has to do with the authorities of State attorneys general, not the United States Attorney General. I think this is airkrok, I do not think we need this, and I would urge my colleagues, and especially the gentleman from Florida, to oppose the amendment as unnecessary and costly. The Attorney General of the United States has far too many issues, including what I presume my colleagues on the other side would agree is inadequate enforcement of gun laws already, and now we are saying take some of those scarce resources and conduct a study of an issue that we are not even proposing here because what we are proposing here is the authority of State attorneys general, not the U.S. Attorney General. I would oppose the amendment.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Reclaiming my time, let me ask the gentleman, is he saying here that it is his position that this study would not delay the implementation of this?

Mr. CONYERS. Absolutely. I am trying to save the bill actually. I am trying not to go to a vote and all of that, if we could merely have the impact of the legislation studied, which is not inconsistent with anything in the bill, nor anything that either of us on either side have debated in this matter.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) has again expired.

Mr. CONYERS. Chairman, move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, what we are trying to do is suggest that there be a study, an impact study on the legislation if and when it is passed. I do not think that will hurt anybody pro or con. It should be very helpful to us, particularly on the Committee on the Judiciary, who will be looking at this matter across the years. This is not some fly-by-night provision. And it expedites time. We are working under 2 hours of amendments. The gentleman from California has an amendment she would like to put forward. It would save us a vote. I think that without a not taking effect for 90 days taken out of this, we are in a position to move forward expeditiously.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONYERS. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. We have concerns from the gentleman from Georgia regarding the cost of this. Is there any estimate, CBO estimate or any other estimate on what the cost of this study would be? Because certainly if it is a national crisis, as you say it is, it is certainly something that we need to address and we need to know the depth of that national crisis and certainly we know what kind of impact this is having.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, let me comfort the gentleman by saying that I am sure that the Attorney General has one or two or three people who would conduct a study here that would be negligible in the budget of the Department of Justice. I think cost would be no immediate concern whatsoever.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would yield one more time.

Mr. CONYERS. Of course.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, is the gentleman also willing to get rid of the age issue and not only look at under-age, illegal alcohol sales to under age drinkers, but also illegal bootlegging for all ages? Would he be willing to do that?

Mr. CONYERS. Yes, we are looking at an impact of this entire legislation. So we have taken out the specific references.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. So, Mr. Chairman, all aspects of this legislation, including lost revenues to States to enforce their laws.

Mr. CONYERS. Absolutely.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I have got to say I have no objection to that. I would like to see the draft.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, we as sure the gentleman that there is nothing but fairness exuding from this side of the aisle, no underhanded motives, and the impact study of the legislation, nothing could be more neutral than that.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Certainly, and the gentleman would yield, if the gentlewoman would withdraw this amendment and then have the modified language offered at the desk, I would have no objection to that.

Mr. CONYERS. There is no other way we can do that.

I want to assure the gentleman that from my point of view there is no other way we can proceed without withdrawing this and advancing the other, and because I know the gentleman’s good faith is no less than mine, I am prepared to go that way.

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this bill and in support of the amendment offered by my friend from California.

I share the concern of my friend from Florida and other supporters that we must do everything possible to reduce underage drinking, and I would be proud to vote for this bill if I thought it would achieve that goal.

But in reality, Mr. Chairman, this bill will do little to stop underage drinking while potentially crippling an industry that is very important to our nation and to my home state of New York.

New York, like many other states across the country, has a thriving wine industry dominated by small vineyards.

These vineyards have taken advantage of the Internet to sell their products across the nation.

The vast majority of these sales are to responsible adult consumers.

This legislation threatens these small wineries by permitting other states to seek action in federal court to block them from distributing their wines.
This bill is an unjustified intrusion by the federal government into matters that should be left to the state legislature—by the National Conference of State Legislatures—the very same people that this bill is supposed to be helping. Moreover, it would effectively give states the authority to regulate interstate commerce, in direct violation of the Constitution.

Mr. Chairman, the real purpose of this bill is not to prevent underage drinking. The real purpose of this bill is to protect the large beer and wine wholesalers from competition from independent producers, like many of the small wineries found in my home state of New York.

The amendment, by contrast, will target our efforts toward preventing underage drinking, the real purpose of this bill. The amendment, by contrast, will target our efforts toward preventing underage drinking, the real purpose of this bill. The amendment, by contrast, will target our efforts toward preventing underage drinking, the real purpose of this bill. The amendment, by contrast, will target our efforts toward preventing underage drinking, the real purpose of this bill.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment, and to oppose this bill.

The CHAIRMAN. All time authorized under the rule for consideration of amendments is not required.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE). The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will not vote on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE). All right, Mr. Chairman. I now withdraw my request for a vote.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, can we ask unanimous consent for additional time of 10 minutes? It is always better when we can work together.

I ask unanimous consent for an additional 10 minutes to be able to respond to these concerns and work out some of the issues that we are working on.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair continues a quorum for a quorum, but the gentlewoman from Texas is advised that the Committee of the Whole cannot entertain such a unanimous consent request to change the rule adopted by the House.

Does the gentlewoman withdraw her request?

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Can the Chair restate the motion that he cannot entertain for clarification?

The CHAIRMAN. The Committee of the Whole may not entertain such a unanimous consent request.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. All right, Mr. Chairman. I now withdraw my request for a vote.

The CHAIRMAN. The request for a vote on Amendment No. 4 offered by the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is withdrawn.

The amendment is rejected. The question is on the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the rule, the Committee rises.
Mr. HASTINGS of Florida and Mr. ENGEL changed their vote from “yea” to “nay.”

Messrs. CRANE, SISISKY, LAFAUCE, HINOJOSA, MALONEY of Connecticut, CUNNINGHAM, LAHOOD, BLILLEY, ADERHOLT and SAWYER and Ms. BROWN of Florida changed their vote from “nay” to “yea.”

So the bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time and was read the third time.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

MOTION TO REcommit OFFERED BY MR. CONYERS

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion to recommit was offered by Mr. CONYERS.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion to recommit was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 310, nays 112, not voting 11, as follows:

YEAS—310

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, acting under the instructions of the House on behalf of the Committee on the Judiciary, I report the bill, H.R. 2031, back to the House with an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment:

At the end of the bill, add the following:

SEC. 4. STUDY.

The Attorney General shall submit to the Congress the results of a study to determine the impact of this Act. The Attorney General shall carry out the study required by subsection (a) and shall submit the results of such study not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 310, nays 112, not voting 11, as follows:

[Roll No. 364]
Mr. FOSSELLA changed his vote from "nay" to "yea."

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated for:

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous materials on House Joint Resolution 58.

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield one-half of my time to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) in opposition to the joint resolution and that he be permitted to yield further blocks of time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?
Because Vietnam and the United States have not yet finalized and approved the bilateral agreement, the effects of the Jackson-Vanik waiver at this time is quite limited. The waiver enables U.S. exporters doing business with Vietnam to have access to U.S. trade financing programs, provided that Vietnam meets the relevant program criteria.

Renewal of the Jackson-Vanik waiver is a key step in this direction. We strongly oppose H.J. Res. 58. With renewed waivers, and important step in the ability of the U.S. business community to compete in the Vietnamese market.

Terminating Vietnam's waiver will give Vietnam an excuse to halt further reforms. Vietnam is not an easy place to do business; however, our engagement enables us to influence the pace and direction of Vietnamese reform. I will insert in the RECORD a letter I received for more than 150 U.S. companies and trade associations supporting Vietnam's waiver.

The American business and agricultural community believes that a policy of economic normalization with Vietnam is in our national interest. We urge you to support the renewal of the Jackson-Vanik waiver as an important step in this process. We also stand ready to work with Congress toward passage of a trade agreement that opens Vietnamese markets to U.S. goods, agricultural products, services and investment. Sincerely, ABB; Ablondi, Foster, Sobin, Davidow; ACE International; AEA International SOS; Acterna International, Inc.; AdvaCo Inc.; Allianz SE; American Apparel Manufacturers Association; American Chamber of Commerce in Australia; American Chamber of Commerce in Canada; American Chamber of Commerce in China; American Chamber of Commerce in Colombia; American Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong; American Chamber of Commerce in Korea; American Chamber of Commerce in the Philippines; American Chamber of Commerce in Spain; American Council of Life Insurance; American Electronics Association; American Express Company; American Farm Bureau Federation; American International Group, Inc.; American-Vietnamese Management Consortium, Inc.; Amstel Sanitaryware, Inc.; ARCO; Arthur Anderson Vietnam; Asia-Pacific Council of American Chambers of Commerce; Associated General Contractors of America; Association for Manufacturing Technology; AT Kearney; Banker and McKenzie, Vietnam; BHDO; Advertising, Black & Veatch; Bridge Creek Group, Brown & Root; California Chamber of Commerce; Caltex; Camp Dresser & McKee International; Cargill; Caterpillar, Inc.; Centrifugal Casting Machine Co., Inc.; Chamber of Commerce of the Princeont Area; Checkpoint Systems, Asia Pacific; Commercial Corporation; Clalicothe-Ross Chamber of Commerce Citigroup; Coalition for Employment through Exports, Inc.; Commerce Advisory Partners; Conder International Connect; Croker Brothers Company, Ltd.; Condert Brothers, Vietnam; Craft Corporation; Crown Worldwide Ltd.; DAI-Ast; Dames & Moore; James & Delco Chamber of Commerce; Delta Equipment and Construction Company; Direct Selling Association; Eastman Kodak Co.; East-West Trade and Investment, Inc.; Electronic Industries Alliance; Eli Lilly (Asia) Inc.; Ellicot International; Emergency Committee for American Trade; Environmental Protection Agency; Ernst & Young; Exact Software; Fashion Garments Ltd.; FDX Corporation; Fertilizer Institute; Firmenich Inc.; Foster Wheeler Corporation; Freshhills Electronics; International Chamber of Commerce; Freshfields Vietnam; General Electric Company; Habersham County Chamber of Commerce; Halliburton Company.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER), though we disagree perhaps at times.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I certainly appreciate the gentleman yielding me this time, as I am the author of the bill; and I wanted to have this opportunity to speak at this time. It has been 1 year since President Clinton issued the first Jackson-Vanik waiver for Vietnam. Unfortunately, there has been no progress concerning democracy and human rights in Vietnam. And more specifically, in violation of Jackson-Vanik, the U.S. Government reports systematic corruption in Vietnam's refugee program.

My joint resolution disapproving Jackson-Vanik waivers for the Vietnamese dictatorship does not intend to isolate Vietnam nor stop U.S. companies from doing business there. It simply prevents Communist Vietnam from enjoying a trade status that enables American businesses to invest there with loan guarantees and subsidies provided by the U.S. taxpayer. If private banks or insurance companies will not back up or insure private business ventures in Vietnam, American taxpayers should not be asked to do so.

Rampant corruption and mismanagement are as valid a reason to oppose this waiver as repression in Vietnam. And during the last year, rather than open up its state-managed economy, the Vietnamese Communist regime has further tightened its grip. There has been no move whatsoever towards free elections. And yesterday's Reuters News Agency reported that the Vietnamese government's claim that opposition parties will not be tolerated. This morning's Washington Times reports a new campaign in Vietnam to crush Christians.
The lack of real progress to honestly resolve the MIA–POW cases and the continued persecution of America’s former Viet–Nam MIA–POW Families is why House Joint Resolution 58 is strongly supported by the American Legion, our country’s largest veterans’ organization, as well as other veterans’ organizations and the National League of MIA–POW Families, and the National Alliance of POW–MIA Families.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I reclaim my time, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCNULTY. Mr. Speaker, I claim the time in support of the joint resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that half the time be yielded to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER) and that he be yielded to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER) on immigration issues.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. CRANE), and the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER)?

There was no objection.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that half the time be yielded to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER) on immigration issues.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER)?

There was no objection.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER) for yielding me the time.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER)?

There was no objection.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROYCE).
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. Speaker, opponents of this resolution say they are opposed to this resolution because they support a more free and open Vietnam. Well, I too support a more free and open Vietnam. But I support this resolution because by passing it we send a clear signal that business as usual is not acceptable.

No one is looking to take away the right of American corporations to do business in Vietnam. First, let us be clear. Since the U.S. trade embargo on Vietnam was lifted in 1994, businesses have had the ability to trade with and invest in Vietnam, and some have done so. The debate over Jackson-Vanik waiver for Vietnam is not about trade and investment. This is about government subsidies for companies operating in Vietnam.

This resolution is also about maintaining the focus on changes we would like to see in Vietnam. And I thought this was why we first normalized relations with Vietnam, with the expectation that normalization would result in a genuine reform, a genuine effort at progress. It is no secret that the Vietnamese government wants this waiver, but in granting the waiver once again we are saying it is okay that religious freedom continues to be restricted, it is okay that there is minimal political freedom, it is okay to have repression and to have it intensified this past year.

If this waiver is upheld or rejected, American companies will be no more or less free to invest in Vietnam. It should be noted, however, that the investment climate in Vietnam is not good and that several American companies have pulled out and several others are considering pulling out. We should realize that one simply cannot do business, whether a foreigner or as a Vietnamese, in a place where the rule of law is disregarded.

For the U.S. to subsidize companies that do business in Vietnam through OPIF or Ex-Im would be for us to ignore this reality. As long as the Vietnamese government continues to jam Radio Free Asia, which is an attempt to deny the Vietnamese people access to objective news, and as long as it violates human rights and disrespects economic freedom, we should not waive Jackson-Vanik.

It is only through taking these steps that we can leverage and bring about the necessary changes concerning respect for individual rights, religious freedom and liberalized markets in one of the world’s most politically and economically repressive countries.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BERIEUTER).

Mr. BERIEUTER. Mr. Speaker, as chairman of the Subcommittee on Asia and the Pacific, I rise in opposition to the resolution.

The Jackson-Vanik waiver does not constitute an endorsement of the communist regime in Hanoi. However, our support has been that the isolation and disengagement does not promote progress in human rights.

New sanctions, including the symbolic disapproval of the Jackson-Vanik waiver, only strengthen the position of the Communist hard-liners at the expense of those in Vietnam’s leadership who are inclined to support more openness.

Engagement with Vietnam has resulted in some improvements in Vietnam’s human rights practices, although we still remain disappointed at the limit scope and nature of those reforms.

Mr. Speaker, Americans must conclusively recognize that the war with Vietnam is over. It has resulted in diplomatic relationships in 1995, the U.S. and Vietnam embarked on a new relationship for the future. It will not be an easy or quick process.

The emotional scars of the Vietnam war remain with many Americans. In the mid-1960s, this Member was an intelligence officer with the First Infantry Division; less than a month after the completion of my service, members of my tight-knit detachment of that division were in Vietnam taking casualties the very first night after arrival.

Like other Vietnam-era veterans, this Member has emotional baggage. A great many Americans have emotional baggage on Vietnam, but this Member would suggest it is time to get on with our bilateral relationship and not reverse course on Vietnam.

Distinguished Americans like JOHN MCCAIN, Pete Peterson, ROBERT KERREY, JOHN KERRY, BUCK HAGEL, MAX CLEFLAND, CHUCK ROBB, and others support the effort to normalize our relationships with Vietnam. If they can do it, so can we.

Passing this resolution of disapproval on the Jackson-Vanik waiver would represent yet another rejection of anmosities of the past at a time when Vietnam is finally looking ahead and making changes towards integration into the international community.

A retribution on our part by this disapproval resolution is not in America’s short- and long-term national interest.

Accordingly, this Member strongly urges the rejection of House Resolution 58.

By law, the underlying issue is about emigration. That is what Jackson-Vanik is all about and that is what we ought to be addressing. Since March of 1998, the United States has granted Vietnam a waiver of the Jackson-Vanik emigration provisions of the Trade Act of 1974. In January of an annual waiver, the President decided on June 3, 1999 to renew this extension because he determined that doing so would substantially promote greater freedom of emigration from that country in the future. This determination was based on Vietnam’s record of progress on emigration and on Vietnam’s continued cooperation on U.S. refugee programs over the past year. As a result, we are approaching the completion of many refugee admissions categories under the Orderly Departure Program (ODP), including the Resettlement Opportunity Program (ROD) and the Vietnam Refugee Diversion Camp Detainees, “McCain Amendment” sub-programs and Montagnards. The Vietnamese government has also agreed to help implement our decision to resume the ODP program for former U.S. Government employees, which was suspended in 1996. The renewal of the Jackson-Vanik waiver is an acknowledgment of that progress. Disapproval of the waiver would, undoubtedly, result in Vietnam’s immediate cessation of cooperation.

The Jackson-Vanik waiver also symbolizes our interest in further developing relations with Vietnam. Having lifted the trade embargo and established diplomatic relations four years ago, the United States has tried to work with Vietnam to normalize instrumentally our bilateral political, economic and economic relationships. This policy builds on Vietnam’s own policy of political and economic reintegration into the world. In the judgment of this Member, this will be a lengthy and challenging process. However, he suggests that now is not the time to reverse course on Vietnam. Over the past four years, Vietnam has increasingly cooperated on a wide range of issues. The most important of these is the progress and cooperation in obtaining the fullest possible accounting of POW/MIA, including the final version of the agreement that has been reached.

Those Members who attended the briefing by the distinguished Ambassador to Vietnam, a former Prisoner of War and former Member of this body, the Honorable “Pete” Peterson, learned of the significant efforts to which Vietnam is now extending to address our concerns regarding the POW/MIA issue, including their participation in remains recovery efforts which are physically very dangerous.

The Jackson-Vanik waiver does not provide Vietnam with any new trade benefits, including Normal Trade Relations (NTR) status. However, with the Jackson-Vanik waiver, the United States has been able to negotiate a new bilateral commercial trade agreement in principle with Vietnam. Achieving such an agreement is in our own short and long term national interest. Vietnam remains a very difficult place for American firms to do business. Vietnam needs to undertake additional fundamental economic reforms. A new bilateral trade agreement will require Vietnam to make these reforms and will result in increased U.S. exports. When the final version of the agreement is complete, Congress will then have to decide whether to approve it or reject it and whether or not to grant NTR. As the Jackson-Vanik waiver is only a limited prerequisite for any future trade agreement, the renewal of the Jackson-Vanik waiver only keeps the U.S. from starting new negotiations.

Mr. Speaker, contrary to the claims of some, renewal of the Jackson-Vanik waiver does not automatically make Vietnam eligible for possible coverage by U.S. trade financing programs. Such coverage is administered by the Overseas Private Investment Corporation, the Export-Import Bank, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The waiver only allows Vietnam to be eligible for such coverage and that country must still face separate individual reviews against relevant criteria.

Mr. McNULTY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SANCHEZ).

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support House Joint Resolution 58, the resolution to disapprove the Jackson-Vanik waiver to Vietnam. This provision was first waived in 1998 on the premise that it would promote free and open emigration with Vietnam. Sadly, things have not turned out that way. My colleagues, let us consider the facts. An average immigrant now must pay about $1,000 in bribes to have access to U.S. refugee programs, three times the average annual salary of a Vietnamese worker.

A recent report to Congress stated that over 15,000 former United States Government employees and their families have been denied exit visas, leaving them trapped in Vietnam. In my hand I have copies of hundreds of unresolved constituent casework, unresolved because the emigration policy of the Vietnamese Government still results in far too many people being prevented from leaving Vietnam due to unfair decisions. These are the parents, the siblings, and the offspring of families who have fought communism for two decades. I will support H.J. Res. 58 because I believe the Government of Vietnam has not earned the right to improve trade privileges.

I urge my colleagues to put pressure on the Government of Vietnam to meet the conditions of emigration and to improve their political and human rights record by voting “yes.” Do not surrender our principal leverage with this regime. Vote “yes” for free immigration. Vote “yes” for family reunification. Vote “yes” to end religious persecution. Vote “yes” to promote free speech and democracy. Vote “yes” to honor the values which we are sworn to uphold.

The fact is the Vietnamese Government does not meet the conditions of good emigration. And by rewarding Vietnam regardless of its lack of cooperation, we are sending them the wrong message.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, how much time is remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BURR). The gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER) has 11 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. CRANE) has 10 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN) has 12 minutes remaining. The gentleman from New York (Mr. McNULTY) has 9 minutes remaining.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.J. Res. 58 and in support of the President’s waiver of the Jackson-Vanik amendment with respect to Vietnam. In considering this resolution, I ask my colleagues to bear a few matters in mind. First, today’s vote is not a vote on whether to give normal trade relations, NTR, to Vietnam. For that to happen, the United States first must enter into a bilateral commercial agreement with Vietnam and that agreement must be approved by Congress.

Second, if we reject this resolution, as we did last year, the result would be a continuation of Vietnam’s eligibility to participate in financing programs, those administered by OPIC, the Export-Import Bank, and the Department of Agriculture.

Those programs support U.S. exports to and investments in Vietnam and thereby enable U.S. businesses and workers to compete in Vietnam with businesses and workers from other countries. The programs have been available since the President first waived Jackson-Vanik for Vietnam in April of last year. To cut them off now would be to pull the rug from under U.S. producers of goods and services. It would be a setback in our effort to improve U.S. relations with Vietnam and to encourage the development of a market economy in that country.

By contrast, continuing those programs for another year represents a small but important step forward. Importantly, it should bolster our efforts to encourage the development of the bases of a free market and rule of law in Vietnam.

Third, our trade negotiators have been negotiating a trade agreement with Vietnam, which is a prerequisite to giving Vietnam NTR.

On July 25, the U.S. trade representative announced that an agreement in principle had been reached. She also stated that the administration “will now consult with Congress and others, and work toward completion of a formal Bilateral Commercial Agreement and a mutual grant of normal trade relations.”

We look forward to those consultations which would give us an opportunity to review negotiations to date and other trade issues and any other additional issues relating to trade of concern to us in the Congress. At the June 17 Subcommittee on Trade hearing on relations with Vietnam, I cited a number of important issues that have to be resolved before we can agree to full normalization. Of particular concern is the pace of economic reform in Vietnam. They are taking steps to reform the economy, including steps to root out corruption, enforcement of intellectual property rights, and improvement of the reliability of government-published data. Another area of concern that I mentioned at that time is the potentially disturbing effects that Vietnam’s labor market structure, including the exploitation of child labor, may have on competition. Labor market issues are trade issues.

Progress on each of the foregoing fronts is necessary to ensure that the benefits of U.S. businesses and workers from normalization with commercial relations with Vietnam are real.

Our ambassador to Vietnam and our former distinguished colleague, Pete Peterson, testified before the Subcommittee on Trade of the Committee on Ways and Means. He stated, based on his active work as ambassador, as follows: “I urge all to listen to the conclusions or the findings, the experiences of our ambassador: ‘Vietnam has eased restrictions on emigration,’ he said. ‘Over 500,000 people have left Vietnam for the U.S. under the Orderly Departure Program.’”

Next: “Vietnam continues to cooperate fully with the U.S. on locating Americans missing in action.”

In 1998, he also mentioned, “there were 60 independently organized workers strikes protesting unfair wages and working conditions.”

“The Government is in the process of writing legislation to protect the freedom of association.”

And lastly, that the “United States,” he says, under his leadership, “continues to engage with Vietnam in a very frank dialogue on human rights. The most recent round in this dialogue took place at the assistant secretary level in mid-July.” Members of Congress will be watching for further progress closely. For now, let us support the accomplishments that have been made to date toward normalization of our relationship with Vietnam. Let us take a cautious step forward by continuing the Jackson-Vanik waiver for Vietnam.

In short, let us keep intact the groundwork on which a meaningful and enduring relationship can be built. Support the waiver. Vote against H.J. Res. 58.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on International Relations, a veteran, and a great leader in international relations in this Congress.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.
Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of House Joint Resolution 58 offered by the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER) in disapproving the extension of the Jackson-Vanik waiver for the Socialist Republic of Vietnam.

The issue before us is progress, progress in human rights, freedom of religion, freedom of emigration, and obtaining the fullest possible accounting for our POW/MIAAs from the war in Southeast Asia.

Simply stated, the Vietnamese Government has not demonstrated the progress on these issues to warrant an extension of the Jackson-Vanik waiver. Many of us have voiced our concerns with regard to the rapid pace of normalizing relations with Vietnam.

The President insists that extending the waiver of the Jackson-Vanik amendment and its ensuing privileges is in our best national interest and will encourage the Vietnamese Government to cooperate on many issues, including economic reforms, political liberalization, and respect for human rights.

OPIC guarantee and Export-Import Bank financing programs should be a reward for achievement and not offered as an incentive for future conduct.

Despite the opening of diplomatic relations 4 years ago, prisoners of conscience are still in prison in Vietnam. Many of our former comrades in arms are still unaccounted for in the Vietnam War.

The Vietnamese Government still arbitrarily arrests and detains its citizens, including those who peacefully express political and religious objections to government policies.

The hard-line communist government also denies its citizens the right to fair and expeditious trials and still hold a number of political prisoners.

Moreover, Radio Free Asia is continuing to prevent the free flow of information which Congress has worked to promote.

Vietnam continues to “severely restrict those religious activities it defined as being at variance with State laws and policies,” as stated in the State Department Report on Human Rights Practices.

Along with a number of Members of Congress, I recently wrote to President Clinton expressing our concern over the persecution of the Unified Buddhist Church, the Catholic Church, Protestant Christians, and the Montagnards in Vietnam.

In conclusion, a proposed extension of the Jackson-Vanik would essentially reward a lack of progress on human rights, political liberalization, economic reform, and the POW/MIA effort. This is illogical.

Accordingly, I call upon my colleagues to vote “yes” on this resolution of disapproval of the extension of the Jackson-Vanik waiver and send a strong message that our Nation still values principle over profits.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to our distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOHLER).

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to House Joint Resolution 58.

As a Vietnam War veteran, I empathize with many of the arguments that are made by opponents to this waiver. I, too, am concerned about freedom of emigration. I, too, want a full accounting for our MIA and POWs.

But I strongly disagree with how this solution proposes to resolve these problems.

Denying the Jackson-Vanik waiver for Vietnam will do nothing to further progress in any of these areas. In fact, it will have the opposite effect.

I hope my colleagues will take a moment to consider the changes that have occurred and that are occurring to Vietnam.

Vietnam is not the same country it was 30 years ago when I was there. Over the past 15 years, 500,000 Vietnamese have emigrated to the United States. Over 96 percent of the resettlement opportunities for Vietnamese returnees cases have been cleared for interview by Vietnam. On emigration issues, we are clearly headed in the right direction.

On POW/MIA accounting, we have had and continue to have substantial cooperation from the Vietnamese Government in all areas.

At each of these meetings, religious freedom has been a major topic of discussion; and each time U.S. officials have been able to report that progress is being made.

In October of this year, five American Catholic bishops will be visiting Vietnam, the first visit by an American bishop since 1975. This will be a momentous event.

Let me be clear. While there is progress, the situation in Vietnam today is far from perfect. But it is important that we put this vote in its historical perspective. In 1991, President Bush proposed a road map for improving our relations with Vietnam. To follow the road map, Vietnam had to take steps to help us account for our missing servicemen. In return for this cooperation, the United States was to move incrementally toward normalized relations. We have moved in that direction.

I urge my colleagues not to abandon progress of the past 20 years has arrested, tortured and put hundreds of thousands of people into prisons and reeducation camps for crimes like forming independent trade unions, for worshipping in churches, for, quote, using freedom and democracy to injure national unity.

This is a government that for the past 20 years has arrested, tortured and put hundreds of thousands of people into prisons and reeducation camps for crimes like forming independent trade unions, for worshipping in churches, for, quote, using freedom and democracy to injure national unity.

The Vietnamese government people should have the opportunity to learn, to be able to live longer and healthier lives, to enter into better relationships with the United States and the rest of the world. However, rubber-stamping the President’s waiver makes a mockery of our Constitution and the provisions in the 1974 Trade Act that uphold human rights, that uphold worker rights, that uphold religious rights.

Mr. Speaker, I would hope that my colleagues would join us in affirming that human rights and those principles that our country stands for do count for something. We should not just waive them. I urge my colleagues to support this resolution and to support trade agreements that require nations to first enter the family of nations, agreements that support free trade between free people.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the very capable and distinguished gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EVANS).

Mr. EVANS. Mr. Speaker, today’s vote on the resolution of disapproval is really a vote on if we are truly dedicated to the hard work of getting a full accounting of the missing in action from the Vietnam War. As the Veterans of Foreign Wars has argued, passing the resolution of disapproving will only hurt our efforts at a time that they are receiving the access and cooperation we need from the Vietnamese to determine the fate of our POW/MIA.

There is no more authoritative voice on this issue than our former colleague and now Ambassador to Vietnam, Pete Peterson, who supports the waiver. As a prisoner of war who underwent years of imprisonment in the notorious Hanoi Hilton, he should have every right to be skeptical and harbor bitterness against the Vietnamese. Yet he believes the best course of action is to develop better relations between our countries. We have achieved progress on the POW/MIA issue because of our evolving relationship with the Vietnamese, not despite it. Without access to the jungles and rice paddies, to the archival information and documents, and to the witnesses of these tragic incidents, we cannot give the families of the missing the answers they deserve.

Our Nation is making progress in providing these answers. Much of this is due to the Joint Task Force-Full Accounting, our military presence in Vietnam who are looking into missing issues. I have visited these young men and women and they are among the finest and bravest and most gung ho soldiers I have ever met. Every day from the searches of battle sites in treacherous jungles to the excavation of crash sites on precarious mountain summits, they put themselves in harm’s way to perform a mission they truly believe in.

It is moving to see these men and women in action, some of whom were not even born when our missing served, perform a mission that they see as a sacred duty. They tell me time and time again one thing: “Allow us to remain here so we can do our job.”

This resolution before us today puts that at risk. I urge my colleagues to please vote against this resolution.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER).

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I have a certain degree of irony being here on the floor having this resolution debated today, when earlier this week we had former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara here on Capitol Hill meeting and admitting basically that the college students were right 30 years ago and that the government and Mr. McNamara were not telling the American people the truth.

I think it is amazing for us to look at the progress that has in fact occurred over the last third of a century. We have heard referenced on the floor the 500,000 people that have been able to legally emigrate. We had opportunities today for Members of this assembly to meet with our former colleague Pete Peterson to talk about his experience with the progress in terms of religious freedom in Vietnam and the rebuilding of churches and pagodas, the progress on the MIAs where we have more accountability than any war in American history. Even in the area of democratic government, there were 61 people reelected to the Vietnamese Assembly who were independents, who were not Communists. Consider this, given where they have been, that one even is a former South Vietnamese military officer.

Pete Peterson has made huge progress in his life’s work of trying to bring 350 million people together between our two countries, the majority... of whom in both countries were not even alive during the Vietnam War. I strongly urge a rejection of this resolution because it would accelerate the resolution in order to hasten the day when we can get beyond the tortured struggle that has, I think, divided our country unnecessarily and bring about a healing and an integration of the Vietnamese nation into the world economy and allow us to be able to deal honestly with the history that got us here in the first place.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS) who represents thousands of Vietnamese Americans who know full well what repression their family members live under in Vietnam.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.J. Res. 58, disapproving the extension of emigration waiver authority to Vietnam. As Members know, last year the President granted Vietnam a waiver of the Jackson-Vanik’s condition, but not much really I think has been cited or documented in that last year. But if Ex-Im is forced to leave Vietnam because of problems of corruption and government repression, there is rampant corruption in Vietnam and the Vietnamese government and it continues to exclude thousands of former political prisoners and former U.S. Government employees from participating in the U.S. refugee programs. On average, an applicant has to pay $1,000 in bribes to gain access to these programs. In a country where the average Vietnamese’s salary is $250, how can an impoverished former political prisoner or former U.S. Government employee who the government already discriminates against afford a $1,000 bribe per person just to apply for these programs? Since last year’s waiver, the Vietnamese government has not deemed a single case among this group of thousands to be eligible for the refugee program.

Corruption exists not only in the Vietnamese government but it also underlines U.S. exchange programs as well.

We have support of outstanding Vietnamese students the opportunity to participate and study in the U.S.; however, the Vietnamese Government excludes those students whose parents are not members of the Communist cadre.

I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting this resolution.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Illinois (Mr. MANZULLO).

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, a small business exporter of telecommunications equipment from Torrance, California, had never sold to Vietnam. Telemobile’s Japanese, French, and Canadian competitors all had the support of their home government’s export credit agencies. Telemobile’s president is willing to Vietnam until the President and Congress approved the Jackson-Vanik waiver last year allowing the Export-Import Bank and other Federal export promotion programs to operate in Vietnam. The $6 million contract with Vietnam to sell their product backed with the letter of interest from the Export-Import Bank.

The purpose of the vote today is to allow those types of partnerships so American companies can utilize our export credit agencies in order to have American jobs. With the already large U.S. trade deficit, we should not impose yet another sanction on our exports. We should vote against this resolution of disapproval.

Open letter to Congress from Telemobile is as follows:

TELEMOBILE, INC.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
House of Representatives.

OPEN LETTER TO CONGRESS: I am President of a small electronics manufacturing company, employing about 100 people in the Los Angeles metropolitan area. I am writing to express my opposition to the resolution of disapproval regarding Vietnam’s Jackson-Vanik’s waiver (H.J. Res. 58) because it will have a serious impact on our business and our employees who live and work here.

Telemobile is a manufacturer of wireless telecommunications equipment. We compete against Canadian, French, and Japanese manufacturers of similar equipment. They all have the support of their home governments in the area of trade promotion, including their government-supported export credit agencies. We had no hope of winning any business in Vietnam until the President and Congress supported a waiver of the Jackson-Vanik amendment last year. Since then, we received a Letter of Interest from the Ex-Im Bank of the United States (Ex-Im) for a project we plan to do in Vietnam worth about $6 million. We would have to rely on this contract if we did not have the background of the Ex-Im Bank. Even still, all of our foreign competitors tell our Vietnamese customers to abandon their project with us because their governments do not go through this annual Jackson-Vanik waiver process. Fortunately, the Vietnamese want to buy American products.

But if Ex-Im is forced to leave Vietnam because of the passage of H.J. Res. 58, then our Vietnamese customers will have no choice but to go with one of our foreign competitors. Thus, if this bill passes, the real-life practical effect upon Telemobile is that the work on this $6 million contract will be transferred from the 100 employees here in Torrance, California to Japan, Japan, or France. While a $6 million sale may be insignificant in the eyes of Washington, it is significant to our small business, which is 95 percent export oriented.

I firmly believe that renewal of the Jackson-Vanik waiver is a necessary step in the process of normalizing our relations with Vietnam and would be good for the American people, as well as the business activities of American workers engaged in exports. Please oppose H.J. Res. 58.

Very truly,

W.I. THOMAS,
President.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN).

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this resolution and in favor of the Jackson-Vanik waiver.

I rise in opposition to this resolution and urge my colleagues to uphold the current waiver from the Jackson-Vanik provision.

Mr. Speaker, the Jackson-Vanik provision of the 1974 Trade Act was intended to encourage communist countries to relax their restrictive immigration policies. At that time, the Soviet Union was prohibiting Soviet Jewry from emigrating to the U.S. and Israel.

It specifically granted the President the power to waive restrictions on U.S. government credits or investment guarantees to communist countries if the waiver would help promote significant progress toward relaxing immigration controls.

The co-author of this provision, Senator Scoop Jackson was a staunch anti-communist.

Yet, he was willing to consider incentives to encourage the Soviet Union to relax its immigration policy.

Vietnam is experiencing a new era, driven by a population where 65% of its citizens were born after the war. Vietnam today is thirsty for U.S. trade and economic investment.

Last year, Charles Vanik, former Member and co-author of the Jackson-Vanik provision, sent me a letter expressing his strong opposition to the motion to disapprove trade credits for Vietnam.

Ironically, the economic incentives provided in Jackson-Vanik are all one sided favoring U.S. firms doing business in Vietnam.

A waiver of Jackson-Vanik does not establish normal trading relations with Vietnam.

The Vietnamese Government has made tremendous progress in meeting the emigration criteria in the Jackson-Vanik amendment.

Despite problems of corruption and government repression, there is reason to believe that the Vietnamese Government would improve the situation and encourage its government to become less isolated and to follow the rule of law.

Through a policy of engagement and U.S. business investment, Vietnam has improved its emigration policies.

As of June 1 of this year, the Vietnamese Government had cleared nearly 20,000 individuals, or 96% of applicants, for interviews under the Resettlement Opportunity for Vietnamese Returnees (ROVR).

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has approved 15,833 ROVR applicants for admission to the United States as refugees—14,715 of which have left Vietnam for the U.S.

According to the State Department, we are also obtaining “the fullest possible accounting” of missing in action from the Vietnam War.

Just last week, the U.S. and Vietnam finalized the terms of a bilateral trade agreement to address issues ranging from import quotas, import bans, and high tariffs to financial services, telecommunications, and other issues that are critical to opening Vietnam to U.S. products and services.

U.S. Ambassador to Vietnam, Pete Peterson, our esteemed former colleague and former POW, has been one of our nation's strongest advocates for expanding trade with Vietnam. Reopening the Jackson-Vanik waiver will increase market access for U.S. products and services in the 12th most populous country in the world.

Disapproval of this waiver will have several negative outcomes. It will discourage U.S. businesses from operating in Vietnam, arm Soviet-style hardliners with the pretext to clamp down on what economic and social freedoms the Vietnamese people now experience, and eliminate what opportunity we have to influence Vietnam in the future.

I can see nothing gained by overturning the waiver and urge my colleagues to defeat this resolution.

Mr. CRANE. Yes, Mr. Speaker. I yield 1 minute as well to our good colleague and friend from San Diego, California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, for some of us this issue is very, very difficult, when heart, economics, pain are all tied up into one. I understand the version of the gentleman from New York (Mr. McNULTY) of this, and I understand the gentleman's, and what I would do is point out a couple things on each side because I still do not know how I am going to vote on this issue.

When one lives through Private Ryan, it is very difficult for something like this, and one side we see economies, like the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. RYAN) had talked about for his constituents, and on the other side, Mr. Speaker. I went with the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS) to Vietnam. He asked me to go four times, and I said no, it is too hard, and then he said, Well, Pete Peterson asked you to come and help raise the American flag for the first time in 25 years.

I saw American children there, Eurasians, that can not be helped by this on one side, but yet I saw very strong Communism. As a matter of fact, the Communist premier told me, he said, Duke, we don't engage in free trade. I can't do this quickly. He is very open, he said, because it will put us out of a job, which meant Communism.

To me on one side that says, Hey, American involvement is good because it hammers away at Communism; but yet on the other side I see where not even Pete Peterson can be there when an American citizen is tried in their courts, and it is difficult, Mr. Speaker.

I had a young lady in my district named Foo Lee, had to work a year. Her whole family escaped in a boat, lives in my district, and the mom had to stay behind because they knew that if they were caught, they would be put into a reeducation camp, and not many survive; and I voted to get her back into the United States and rejoined with the family.

And on that side it is very hard for this. I look at that we cannot go in with intellectual property rights, but on the other side we have the same problem with China, and I voted for trade with China, so why not for this? And it is one of the more difficult. For most of my colleagues it is not, but for us, and Sam, and I understand both sides of this issue. I see my friend Pete Peterson spent 6 years as a POW there, and it is very difficult to look at heart, to look at logic, to look at economics.

Mr. Speaker, I will not chastise anybody for either side of this vote.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to our distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCHREST).

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding this time to me, and what I would like to do is address my remarks to all of my colleagues, but especially to the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

As a young soldier in Vietnam, I like to speak to my colleagues through the eyes of many young soldiers in Vietnam where we would every once in a while help corps men deliver babies, some alive and some dead. We as very young men saw leprosy for the first time. We saw the eyes of the dying Viet Cong. We saw the eyes and looked into the eyes of dying young Americans and said good bye. We laughed and cried with the Vietnamese people, the very old and the very young.

One incident, we moved into a small village, pulled an old man out of a grass hut with one leg, and the old woman in the grass hut began to cry because we thought he was shooting at us and we were going to take him away. And a little girl about 10 screamed and cried and grabbed at our clothes as we were walking this old man away from the village, and then suddenly we young soldiers just stopped. We looked into the eyes of the old man. The old woman froze in fear as to what might happen next, and the little girl just stopped crying, and then the old man looked at us, and we looked back at him, and we suddenly realized something. We were just all people together caught in a horrible struggle, none of which we created.

There was an Israeli soldier in 1967 that said, We need to learn to love our children more than we hate each other. We can never forget the pain of the past. But in this vote I think it is the time that we think of the future for us, for the Vietnamese children.

We remember the quote from President Kennedy at the Berlin Wall where he said:

"We all cherish our children's future, we all breathe the same air, and we are all mortal. Let us vote for America and Vietnam."

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Indiana (Mr. ROEMER).

Mr. ROEMER. Mr. Speaker, on August 3 in 1949 Christopher Columbus set sail on a new journey across the Atlantic, and he set sail with new maritime instruments, a quadrant, an astrolabe, a cross staff, that helped him find the shores of the Bahamas. Today the new instruments to help us navigate to help our workers, to help our businesses, to navigate the complicated world of international trade are access to OPIC, agricultural loans and Ex-Im Bank loans. That is why we should reject this resolution and allow us the opportunity for Boeing to compete against Airbus and sell our planes to Vietnam. Now Pete Peterson, a good friend of mine, has been mentioned as our ambassador who spent 6 years as a POW. Pete Peterson will never forget, nor will Congress forget the MIAs, and we are ripping up highways and searching in mountains for every clue to find those MIAs, and we will never forget the 58,000 soldiers that were lost in that war.

But it is also time for us to move in a positive way to bring Vietnam into the community of nations. Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) one of the most distinguished and ferocious champions of human rights in this body.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, a few weeks ago the U.S. sent a representative to Vietnam to conduct a human rights dialog with the government there. At the conclusion of the discussions, the Vietnamese government issued a statement essentially denying that the U.S. had any right whatsoever to concern itself with human rights outside of its borders. However, less than 2 weeks later, with the obligatory dialogue out of the way, the U.S. sent another representative to Vietnam, and this time we signed an agreement in principle to give MFN, or normal trading status to Vietnam, sending a clear message to the Hanoi dictatorship that they can safely ignore everything else we say about human rights and still get what they want from our government.

Mr. Speaker, let us be very clear on one thing. There is no freedom of immigration from Vietnam. To me as a former POW, there would be no need for this waiver. The administration could simply certify that Vietnam complies with the Jackson-Vanik freedom of immigration requirement. Instead, by waiving the requirement, the administration has condoned that there is no freedom.
to get the waiver was to finally begin letting us interview people under the rover program. Now I happen to be a very enthusiastic supporter of this program, and for the Record Members will recall that I was the prime sponsor of the amendment on this floor that stopped us from doing what I think would have been very, very cruel, and that would be to end the CPA, the Comprehensive Plan of Action, to just send the people back without giving them any opportunity to get re-reviewed after some bogus reviews were done, or interviews.

The refugee program, the rover program, works when there was a real push, and the ambassador, Pete Peterson, did do a good job in pushing when he had the effort of ourselves holding up the waiver, 13,000 people were cleared. And as soon as the waiver was granted, the clearances slowed right back to a trickle.

Mr. Speaker, let us not forget the prisoners of conscience; let us not forget, the clearances slowed right back to a trickle.

Mr. Speaker, a few weeks ago the United States sent a representative to Vietnam to conduct a “human rights dialogue” with the government there. At the conclusion of the dialogue, the Vietnamese Government issued a statement essentially denying that the United States had any right at all to concern itself with human rights outside its own borders. Less than two weeks later with the obligatory dialogue out of the way, the United States Representative to Vietnam, Mr. Peter Peterson, did do a good job in pushing when he had the effort of ourselves holding up the waiver, 13,000 people were cleared. And as soon as the waiver was granted, the clearances slowed right back to a trickle.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support for the gentleman from California’s (Mr. Rohrabacher) resolution.

Mr. Speaker, a few weeks ago the United States sent a representative to Vietnam to conduct a “human rights dialogue” with the government there. At the conclusion of the dialogue, the Vietnamese Government issued a statement essentially denying that the United States had any right at all to concern itself with human rights outside its own borders. Less than two weeks later with the obligatory dialogue out of the way, the United States Representative to Vietnam, Mr. Peter Peterson, did do a good job in pushing when he had the effort of ourselves holding up the waiver, 13,000 people were cleared. And as soon as the waiver was granted, the clearances slowed right back to a trickle.

Mr. Speaker, let us not forget the prisoners of conscience; let us not forget, the clearances slowed right back to a trickle.

Mr. Speaker, let us not forget the prisoners of conscience; let us not forget, the clearances slowed right back to a trickle.

Mr. Speaker, let us not forget the prisoners of conscience; let us not forget, the clearances slowed right back to a trickle.

Mr. Speaker, let us not forget the prisoners of conscience; let us not forget, the clearances slowed right back to a trickle.

Mr. Speaker, the Vietnamese Government and its victims will both be watching this vote. We must send the message that economic benefits from the United States absolutely depend on decent treatment of Vietnam’s own people. We may not be able to insist on perfection, but we must insist on minimal decency.

Mr. McNulty. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Sanchez) who represents the largest number of Vietnamese Americans in the country.

Ms. Sanchez. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask my colleagues to explain to Dr. Giang why the Communist government of Vietnam should be rewarded and granted the Jackson-Vanik waiver. On March 4 of this year, Dr. Giang was a respected geophysicist and writer and was arrested in Hanoi for allegedly possessing anti-Communist documents. Unfortunately, this was not the first time that he had been harassed by the authorities for peacefully expressing his viewpoints.

In January of 1997, he wrote an essay and argued the universality of human rights and concluded that the world needs to unite its actions for human rights.

Mr. Giang. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask my colleagues to explain to Dr. Giang why the Communist government of Vietnam should be rewarded and granted the Jackson-Vanik waiver. On March 4 of this year, Dr. Giang was a respected geophysicist and writer and was arrested in Hanoi for allegedly possessing anti-Communist documents. Unfortunately, this was not the first time that he had been harassed by the authorities for peacefully expressing his viewpoints.

In January of 1997, he wrote an essay and argued the universality of human rights and concluded that the world needs to unite its actions for human rights.

In March of 1997, Dr. Giang was also summoned to appear before the Communist Party for a session of public accusation. After a storm of international protest of governments and human rights organizations, Dr. Giang was finally released. In fact, I went to Vietnam in April to try and find him.

Officials in communist-ruled Vietnam never explained to Giang why he was arrested on March 4 or formally charged.

In my hand, I have a copy of a letter that he sent to my office detailing his thoughts with you today.
Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Virginia, Mr. BOUCHER.

Mr. BOUCHER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the President’s decision to extend the Jackson-Vanik waiver for Vietnam and in strong opposition to the resolution of disapproval.

The Jackson-Vanik waiver process is designed to promote immigration from countries that do not have market economies. In the case of Vietnam, the waiver is working as intended.

Since the waiver was granted, Vietnam has made steady progress under both the ROVRA and the orderly departure programs. If the waiver is rescinded through the passage of this resolution, that progress, which depends entirely upon the cooperation of the Vietnamese government, will almost certainly be reversed.

We have now negotiated a bilateral trade agreement with Vietnam and progress is being made on human rights and on religious freedom matters.

I urge the Members to reject this resolution and, in doing so, to give a vote of confidence to the very fine work of our former colleague, the Ambassador to Vietnam, Pete Peterson, and his excellent staff, under whose guidance this outstanding progress is being made.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, earlier this year I had an opportunity to travel to Vietnam and to talk to members of the business community, to the international environmental community, to workers, to representatives of labor organizations, and to U.S. manufacturers and had an opportunity to travel throughout the country. I think that my conclusion is that the waiver can continue to be justified because of the progress that is being made.

I think it is also clear that the waiver helps to empower our ambassador, Pete Peterson, who may be the greatest catalyst for change inside this country, so that he can continue his work to get Vietnam to improve its human rights conditions, to improve its labor conditions, to improve its environmental conditions, and to make a process where we can continue to make progress.

Unlike the vote last week on China, where I voted against extending the relationship with China because, in fact, there we have gone backwards, here we have an opportunity to continue the progress forward.

We will have much debate on the trade agreement and whether or not that can be justified or not be justified, but the fact of the matter is, in this particular case, the continued waiver for another year so that we can continue to monitor, continue to work with the government of Vietnam on all of these issues, is a positive step that we should and can take today.

Mr. Speaker, I had the opportunity to travel to Vietnam earlier this year on official business to attend an international environmental conference, to inspect labor conditions at factories that subcontract for United States manufacturers, and to meet with our Embassy officials on a broad range of United States-Vietnam issues.

Vietnam today is a country struggling to become a player in the global economic market. It is once again a major agricultural power and is the world’s second largest exporter of rice. Hundreds of foreign companies are investing in this nation of 80 million people, the 12th largest in the world, because of its key role in Asia and its educated and diligent work force.

Most of the representatives of American businesses with whom I spoke in Vietnam praise the local business opportunities and actively promote the normalization of economic relations so that trade between the United States and Vietnam, now less than $300 million a year, can expand and investment can flourish.

The conditions for waiving Jackson-Vanik are quite specific, and in my view, Vietnam has met those tests and should again be granted this waiver for another year by nearly a 100-vote margin in the House.

Jackson-Vanik was developed to use our economic leverage to force political and immigration reforms, and it has had the desired effect in Vietnam where we have seen significant and steady movement towards expanded emigration.

Our Ambassador, who is our former colleague and a distinguished Vietnam veteran, Pete Peterson, has documented broad cooperation by the Vietnamese government with the immigration program and has even noted that in some cases, it has been impossible to fill the slots allocated for some categories of applicants. Ambassador Peterson has also noted expanding religious activity and I was able to observe the expanded construction of churches in northern Vietnam. Lastly, the Vietnamese and United States governments now operate a Joint Task Force that conducts interviews, archaeological digs, genetic testing, and other efforts to locate the remains of United States soldiers and pilots. Nearly 400 remains have been repatriated since the end of the war, several just last month.

Vietnam has a considerable way to go to fully open its economy and bring it into conformity with international standards on transparency. Moreover, I remain concerned by the continued denial of labor rights by the government, including the fundamental right to join an independent labor union. Some of these issues will be addressed when we have the opportunity later this year to debate the United States-Vietnam Trade Agreement.

Last week, this House voted on granting normal trade relations to China and many members took the floor to denounce, rightly I believe, that nation’s continued repressive government and its unacceptable human rights record. It is terribly important that, during this current debate, we distinguish what is different in Vietnam from the Chinese example. For Vietnam has made and continues to make major steps forward on economic reform, is cooperating on emigration and MIA issues, and is showing promising signs of political liberalization. If we move forward in Hanoi, then I believe many of those who today are prepared to vote for this waiver and for expanded trade between our countries will reconsider their decision.

We vote to waive Jackson-Vanik in recognition of Vietnam’s changing political system and to encourage further liberalization. But understand that the Congress and the American people are serious about assuring that open trade is also fair trade: that working men and women in America are assured that their counterparts in Vietnam labor under reasonable conditions and with the enjoyment of basic human and labor rights recognized by international law.

The continued waiver of the Jackson-Vanik restrictions should be voted by the House tonight to recognize Vietnam’s steady steps towards reform. Similarly, the Congress should expect that the waiver of Jackson-Vanik will promote a continuation of democracy in Vietnam, unlike the China case where despite expanded trade relations, political reform has worsened.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, Jackson-Vanik, this waiver we are talking about, yes, it deals with immigration. For the record, I have a statement issued by the United States embassy in Bangkok on July 14 of this year stating that the orderly departure program has some severe problems. So much for all the progress we have made for Jackson-Vanik just in terms of the immigration issue.

We are also told that there has been so much progress in other areas, especially in the area of democratization, which is not directly to Jackson-Vanik. But the fact is today all of us understand that we are sending a message to Vietnam, and that by moving forward in the area of Jackson-Vanik, we are giving them the idea that they can get away with the type of repression that they have been getting away with and still have better trading relations and make more money off their relations with the United States.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE 19231

I have something here, a report just yesterday, August 2, talking about in Hanoi where the government in Hanoi has declared they will not tolerate any other political parties except the Communist Party of Vietnam. I will submit both of those for the record.

Let us get right down to brass tacks. Over this last year since we came here and went along with the Jackson-Vanik waiver that this administration has decided to give to the communist government of Vietnam, there has been no human rights progress. There has been no political parties that have been able to be formed. There has been no more free speech. There has been no examples whatsoever of more freedom of the press. There have been many examples also of repression of religious individuals. So we have no progress on that front whatsoever.

I would hope that my colleagues, maybe they can enlighten me to the parties that are springing up in opposition to the Communist Party or these other examples of freedom of speech or freedom of press or freedom of religion that are nonexistent. Please, tell us about that.

No, that does not exist in Vietnam. That is why we will not hear about that and have not heard about it in this debate.

A constituent of mine, Mr. Ku Noc Dong, went back to Vietnam. He is an American of Vietnamese descent. He went back to Vietnam and I can tell you that he was thrown in jail. For what? For passing out leaflets talking about liberty and justice. He is imprisoned as we speak. Do not tell me there has been human rights progress in Vietnam. There has been none, and by moving on this legislation, we are giving the stamp of approval of this Congress on that type of behavior by this regime.

Let me just suggest something else. We have heard about the progress in MIA/POWs. I totally reject that contention. I am afraid that some of our other Members, including our former distinguished Member, Mr. Peterson, are sadly misinformed about what is going on in this effort.

I have two pictures that were taken that I would submit for the record of MIA/POWs who were incarcerated in Vietnam. Their remains were never returned. Plus, none of the records of the prisons that held our POWs has ever been turned over to us after requests for those records of 5 years.

Mr. Speaker, I would suggest that this body vote against the Jackson-Vanik waiver, and send the Vietnamese communists a message that we stand for freedom.

VIETNAM COMMUNISTS SAY TO KEEP SINGLE-PARTY SYSTEM

HANOI, AUG. 2, 1999 (Reuters).—A top ideologue from Vietnam’s ruling Community Party said on Monday Hanoi would not tolerate a multi-party system.

“The Communist Party of Vietnam is the leader of Vietnam’s entire society, we will not accept any opposition to a single-party system,” said Dao Duc Quat, deputy head of the party’s powerful Ideology and Culture Commission. He was speaking at a rare news conference held for foreign media and diplomats that discussed party-building and a two-year criticism and self-criticism campaign.

But one veteran diplomat in Hanoi was unconvinced, questioning how legitimacy could be gauged when Vietnam’s vast internal security machine went to such extremes to isolate or silence contradictory voices. “They want power, on that there is no compromise,” he said. “They stamped out all opposition in the past—even those groups that supported the same aims—and see absolutely no reason to liberalise.”

Several governments and international human rights groups say Vietnam imprisons people for the peaceful expression of political or religious beliefs—a charge that Hanoi denies. Quat said the party would not repress minority views unless people violated the law. Anti-socialist activities in Vietnam are treated as a crime.

MEMORANDUM

JOINT VOLUNTARY AGENCY ORDERLY DEPARTURE PROGRAM, AMERICAN EMBASSY, BANGKOK, JULY 9

Re request for refugee statistics and assessment of ODP cases.

ODP Cases: The Socialist Republic of Vietnam has frequently determined applicants did not meet ODP criteria, despite our confirmation that they did; many applicants are still awaiting interview authorization. As of July 9th, there are 3,532 ODP refugees, applicants and 747 ROVR applicants awaiting Vietnamese Government authorization for interview. ODP has continually received requests from non-governmental organizations dealing with local officials; many applicants originally applied to ODP as long ago as 1988 but have yet to be given authorization by the Vietnamese Government to attend an interview.

Impact of Jackson-Vanik Waiver: It would not appear that Jackson-Vanik had a telling impact on ODP activities. Staff are of the opinion that there has been little, if any, indication of improvement in the Vietnamese Government’s efforts to deal with remaining ODP cases.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DEUTSCH).

Mr. DEUTSCH. Mr. Speaker, I, along with I think probably 30 of my colleagues last week, had an interesting dinner meeting with Bob McNamara. If there is any lesson that he has learned in looking back on Vietnam, it is really hearing and receiving, giving the wrong messages and not talking to each other. We really have an opportunity right now in some of the lessons that he talked about.

Vietnam is making progress, contrary to the previous speaker. There is a great deal of evidence which our former colleague, the Ambassador, has articulated to us, and the press as well. It is a relationship that can continue to be good for the United States as we are moving a young nation towards moving into the community of nations, of living within international standards. It is a region in the world that for 4,000 years has faced uncertainty and conflict.

What we are talking about is normal trading relationships. That is really what this issue is about. Fortunately people can see it differently, but I urge the defeat of the resolution.

Mr. McNULTY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, as I grow older, I try to keep my priorities in proper order. I am not always successful at that, but I work at it. That is why when I get up every morning, the first two things that I do are to thank God for my life and for the privileges for which I am thankful because had it not been for my brother Bill and all those who gave their lives in service to this country through the years, had it not been for people like SAM JOHNSON and Pete Peterson and JOHN MCCAIN, who endured torture as prisoners of war, had it not been for people like Pete Dalessandro, a World War II Congressional Medal of Honor winner from my district who was just laid to rest last week in our new Veterans National Cemetery in Saratoga, if it had not been for them and all of the men and women who wore the uniform of the United States military through the years, I would not have the privilege of going around bragging about how I live in the freest and most open democracy on the face of the Earth. Freedom is not free. We paid a tremendous price for it.

So today, Mr. Speaker, based upon the comments that I made earlier and on behalf of all 2,063 Americans who are still missing in Southeast Asia, I ask my colleagues to join me, the American Legion, the National League of POW/MIA Families, the National Alliance of POW/MIA Families, the National Vietnam Veterans Coalition, the Veterans of the Vietnam War and the Disabled American Veterans in supporting this resolution of disapproval.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, there have been arguments raised here, ones that I think are worth listening to by all of us, regardless of our position on the issues, and I respect the disagreements that I have with some of my colleagues, but I think personally that if you examine the evidence, you will realize that the boycott of Vietnam is an economic stumbling block in moving down this path of expanding our relationships with one another and especially expanding our economic relationships.

[1700]

Keep in mind, too, that as Ambassador Peterson told a group of us this morning, 65 percent of the population over there has been born since the end of the Vietnam War. The overwhelming majority of those people know nothing about it except what they have heard from those who preceded them.

In that regard, I think it is important to note, too, that since we have a recent report that just came out from the U.S. Ambassador for International Religious Freedom, this was in July, last month, mentioning that three-fourths of the population are nominally Buddhist now, an estimated 6 to 7 million are Roman Catholics, and there are a variety of other religious affiliations, including Mormons in Vietnam. In addition to that, they are growing in population.

I think further that it is important for us to recognize that in the last national election in Vietnam, which has not improved, deplorably, deeply concerned about the human rights situation in Vietnam which has not improved dramatically, the material benefits here as we go along. This simply provides an expanded opportunity for increased business contact in Vietnam. I would remind Members, including Mormons in Vietnam. In addition to that, they are growing in population.

We have also something else, I think, to keep in mind. That is a point that the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM) brought up, the response he got from a Communist he spoke to while he was there who said that they could not advance free trade because that would put him out of a job. Think about that for a moment, Mr. Chairman, a Communist cannot participate in the advancement of free trade because that will put him, a Communist, out of a job; to which I say, amen. That is a free benefit to us.

The immediate benefit is the material benefits to the people of Vietnam, and the material benefits here as we advance down that path creating expanded free trade worldwide.

I would remind Members also, this is not a vote on normal trade relations. This simply provides an expanded opportunity for increased business contact in Vietnam. I would urge all of my colleagues to vote no on H.R. 58. I think it is in the interest of our country and the best interests of the people of Vietnam.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.J. Res. 58. I do so because I am deeply concerned about the human rights situation in Vietnam which has not improved despite normalization of relations between the U.S. and Vietnam.

Religious persecution has continued to intensify. I submit for the RECORD a recent Reuters story about The Venerable Thich Quang Do, head of the Buddhist Church of Vietnam (UBCV). This 80-year-old Buddhist leader has been in prison for over twenty years. Before we rush down the path of providing U.S. taxpayer dollars to businesses wanting to get into Vietnam, we must consider people like Thich Quang Do.

Earlier this week, the International Liberty Commission of the World Evangelical Fellowship issued a report describing the intense persecution of Christians in the Hmong minority group in Vietnam's Northwest province and as well as members of the Hare and Bahmari minority groups. It has pages and pages of testimony from persecuted believers and evidence from the Vietnamese government regarding its anti-religion policies.

The U.S. should be keeping the pressure on Vietnam to improve its human rights record, not rewarding them.

Monk Urges Hanoi to Free Buddhist Leader

By Andy Solomon

H O CHU MINH CTRY. Vietnam, Aug. 3 (Reuters)—A dissident Buddhist monk in Vietnam has demanded the country's communist rulers immediately release from detention the aged patriarch of the banned Unified Buddhist Church of Vietnam (UBCV).

Thich Quang Do, head of the UBCV's Institute for the Propagation of the Dharma and a former long-term political prisoner, said 80-year-old Huyen Quang should either be tried or unconditionally released.

The policy was adopted at Quang Phuc pagoda in central Quang Ngai province. The United Nations and international human rights groups say he has been held without trial since 1981.

Hanoi rarely makes mention of Quang, but routinely denies it detains or jails people for the peaceful expression of religious or political views.

"On what grounds have they detained him for nearly 20 years?" Do said in a recent interview at the Buddhist monastery where he lives in the former Saigon.

"If he is guilty of a crime he should be put on trial, but they can find no (legitimate) reasons."

Quang and Do were prominent Buddhists who led protests in the former South Vietnamese army, a former major.

All his visitors are checked and questioned. We ask for international help to put pressure and use influence to press the government to release him as soon as possible," Do said.

Following World War Two, Quang led Buddhists against French colonial forces, but he also opposed the communist Viet Minh, who killed him in 1952.

In the years following the end of the Vietnam War in 1975, the victorious communists banned the UBCV and replaced it with the state-sponsored Vietnam Buddhist Church.

Quang, Do and other UBCV activists remained a constant thorn in the side of the Hanoi authorities.

In March, 72-year-old Do secretly travelled for his first meeting with Quang in 18 years, but he was detained by police and questioned for hours before being escorted back to Ho Chi Minh City.

Abdulahath Amor, the U.N. Special Rapporteur for Religious Intolerance, in a visit to Vietnam last October, said he was travelling to meet the patriarch and was physically barred by security personnel from meeting Do.

In a report, Amor slammed Vietnam for failing to allow its religious freedoms—a charge Hanoi rejected.

Do, who has spent much of the last 20 years under detention or in prison, was freed under amnesty last September after serving three-and-a-half years of a five-year sentence for offenses connected with attempts to send relief supplies to flood victims in 1994.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BURT of North Carolina). All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to the order of the House of Friday, July 30, 1999, the joint resolution is considered as read for amendment, and the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the joint resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Mr. MCNULTY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 360, nays 297, not voting 6, as follows:

[Roll No. 365]

YEAS—130

Aderholt  Goodling
Adams  Goodworth
Baker  Hollingsworth
Barca  Graham
Bartlett  Green (TX)
Barten  Barcia
Bilirakis  Garrison
Blonld  Hatfield
Bonior  Billingsley
Brown (OH)  Hillrey
Bryant  Himes
Canady  Hunter
Casen  Hitchhenson
Chabot  Hyde
Chenoweth  Jackson-Lee
Coble  Jenkins
Collin  Johnson, Sam
Cook  Jones (NC)
Costello  Kastel
Cox  Kelly
Cunningham  Kennedy
Davis (VA)  King (NY)
Deal  Kingston
Diaz-Balart  LaHood
Deal  Lantos
Duncan  LaBlonde
Ehrlich  Laforenze
Emerson  Martinez
English  McColain
Everett  McIntyre
Foxx  McKinney
Frelinghuysen  McNulty
Gibbons  Menendez
Gillman  Miller (FL)
Goode  Miller, Gary Goshorn  Velasquez

Norwood  Paul
Polos  Pombo
Pomeroy  Quimby
Radanovich  Rogers Regula  Riley Rivers  Rolfner
Rogan  Rohrabacher
Rothsman  Roy
Ryan (KS)  Sanchez
Sanford  Schaffer
Saxton  Scarborough
Schaff  Scudder
Serrano  Seng
Sheehy  Shuler
Shuster  Smith
Smith NJ  Smith (TX)
Sondel  Spence
Stearns  Strickland
Stupak  Sweeney
Talent  Taylor (NC)
Thornberry  Traficant
Turner  Towns
Traxler  Tester
Tyler  Tymney
Velasquez
Mr. "DAVIS" of Illinois and Mr. POMEROY changed their vote from "yea" to "nay."

Messrs. HAYWORTH, KINGSTON, STRICKLAND, GIBBONS, ROTHMAN, BUYER, SMITH of Texas, and WELDON of Florida changed their vote from "nay" to "yea."

So the joint resolution was not passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Non-aggregate votes recorded: Agree 333; Opposed 92; Not Voting 6

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON H.R. 2587, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 2587) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against revenues of said District for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes, with a Senate amendment thereto, disagree to the Senate amendment, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate. The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BURR of North Carolina), Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BURR of North Carolina), Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, we have no objection to this motion. We do want to use this opportunity, though, to thank the gentleman from Oklahoma (Chairman ISTOOK) and congratulate him for the 333 to 92 vote on final passage of the D.C. appropriations bill.

I do not know that anybody in this body is aware of this, but over the past 20 years, no D.C. appropriations bill has ever passed the House of Representatives with a higher margin of votes. This strong bipartisan support reflects a vote of confidence on a number of positive developments in the district.

It is important to understand that that was unprecedented, virtually unprecedented to get that kind of mar-that the final conference report will be a document we can all support and, thus, I yield the President.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for letting us express our views on this again. We are not going to try to instruct the conferences. We had an overwhelmingly positive vote, and I hope we can bring back a bill to this floor that will get the same type of overwhelming vote in support of it and get a bill signed by the President.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Speaker, I very much appreciate the gentleman’s very positive comments, and like him, I am committed to acceding the positive on this bill.

As we know, I certainly made a commitment, and I intend to honor the conference report.

We are both aware of the issues surrounding the needle program, and there is a privately funded needle program operated. We certainly do not intend anything that would go beyond the language the President signed into law last year.

I do not think we are in a position where he would take the extreme action of vetoing something, but I look forward to working with the gentleman on this and all other issues in this conference.

Robert Mollohan served with distinction during his time in the House, working for the people of his Congressional District for 17 years. He was a compassionate and caring representative of his people, and a pillar of his community throughout his lifetime.

Indeed, Mr. Speaker, it was not until he retired from this body that this corner back here became known as the Virginia Corner. Prior to that, it was known only as the West Virginia Corner.

But again let me conclude where I started. I thank the chairman for his cooperation and his leadership on this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Buch of North Carolina). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Speaker, the Chair appoints the following conferences: Messrs. ISTOOK, CUNNINGHAM, TIAHRT, ADEHROLT, Mrs. EMERSON, and Messrs. SUNUNU, YOUNG of Florida, MORAN of Virginia, DIXON, MOLLOHAN and OBEY.

There was no objection.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PASSING OF ROBERT H. MOLLOHAN, FORMER MEMBER OF THE HOUSE FROM WEST VIRGINIA

(Mr. RAHALL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Speaker, it is with a great deal of sorrow that I rise to announce the passing of a former Member of the House of Representatives from West Virginia, Robert H. Mollohan.

Bob Mollohan served the United States Senate early in his career as Clerk of the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia from 1949 to 1952. He was elected to this body in 1953, where he served until 1957, at which time he ran for governor of West Virginia.

He returned to the House in the 91st Congress, serving from 1969 to 1983 when he retired, and returned to the family insurance business in Fairmont, West Virginia.

Bob Mollohan is the father of our distinguished colleague and dear friend, Alan B. Mollohan, who succeeded his father when he was first elected to fill his seat in 1982.

Robert Mollohan served with distinction during his time in the House, working for the people of his Congressional District for 17 years. He was a compassionate and caring representative of his people, and a pillar of his community throughout his lifetime.

Indeed, Mr. Speaker, it was not until he retired from this body that this corner back here became known as the Pennsylvania Corner. Prior to that, it was known only as the West Virginia Corner.

He will be sorely missed by West Virginians who will remember his dedication, his compassion, and his thoughtful, caring nature. Robert Mollohan was greatly beloved by his people for his tireless efforts to bring quality and dignity to the lives of West Virginians, and for his deep personal commitment to making sure that their government served them well.

But more, he will be missed by his family. Our thoughts and prayers go out to Mrs. Robert, Helen, Mollohan, who survives her husband, and to his son, Representative ALAN B. MOLLOHAN, his wife, Barbara, and children, and to other family members as they mourn the great loss of a husband, father, and grandfather, Robert H. Mollohan.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 2670, DEPARTMENTS OF COMMERCE, LABOR, AND STATE, THE JUDICIARY AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000

Mr. REYNOLDS, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 106–284) on the resolution (H. Res. 271) providing for consideration of H.R. 2670, for the consideration of any pending question.

There was no objection.

WORKPLACE PRESERVATION ACT

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 271 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 271
Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 987) to require the Secretary of Labor to wait for completion of a National Academy of Sciences study before promulgating a standard or guideline on ergonomics. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the Chairman of the Committee on Education and the Workforce. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule for no more than two hours. The bill shall be considered as read. During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chairman of the Committee on Education and the Workforce may accept amendments in recognition on the basis of whether the Member offering an amendment has caused it to be in the portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose

Amendments so printed shall be considered as read. The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may: (1) postpone any amendment; and (2) reduce to five minutes the minimum time for electronic voting on any postponed question that follows another electronic vote without intervening business, provided that the minimum time for electronic voting on the first in a series of questions shall be five minutes. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may be accepted. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York (Mr. REYNOLDS) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. FROST), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

House Resolution 271 is a modified open rule, providing for the consideration of H.R. 987, the Workplace Preservation Act.

The purpose of this legislation is to ensure that the National Academy of Sciences completes and submits to Congress its study of a cause-and-effect relationship between repetitive tasks
Mr. Speaker, H.R. 987 proposes for at least another year and a half the promulgation of a rule that will provide needed health and safety standards for American workers. There is sound scientific evidence that shows that workplace factors cause musculoskeletal injuries and that show these injuries can be prevented.

Many employers have seen the benefit in improving workplace conditions to prevent these injuries and have, as a result, seen injuries fall and productivity rise.

If the Republican majority really wanted to do something for working men and women in this country, they would drop their opposition to these workplace protections and withdraw this bill. I urge a "no" vote on the rule providing for consideration of H.R. 987 and a "no" vote on the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BALLINGER.)

Mr. BALLINGER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this open rule.

Mr. Speaker, I also rise in strong support of H.R. 982. It is a very simple bill. It simply says that the National Academy of Sciences must complete its study on ergonomics and report to Congress in calling for an NAS study. If OSHA regulates before the causes are understood, OSHA may very well save American businesses money in lost productivity, worker compensation claims, and disability insurance. If the House is going to call time-out, Mr. Speaker, it ought to be on the consideration of this bill and not on the health and safety of the American workforce.

Mr. Speaker, work-related musculoskeletal disorders cost employers between $15 and $20 billion a year in workers compensation costs. Ergonomic injuries and illnesses are the single largest cause of injury-related lost workdays, with nearly 650,000 lost-time injuries each year. These injuries are found in every sector of our economy and cause real pain and suffering.

Women workers are particularly victimized by ergonomic injuries and illness. They represent 69 percent of workers who lose time due to carpal tunnel syndrome, 63 percent of those who suffer repetitive motion injuries, and 61 percent who lose work time to tendinitis.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, nearly half of all injuries and illnesses to women workers are due to ergonomic hazards. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 987 proposes for at least another year and a half the promulgation of a rule that will provide needed health and safety standards for American workers. There is sound scientific evidence that shows that workplace factors cause musculoskeletal injuries and that show these injuries can be prevented.

Many employers have seen the benefit in improving workplace conditions to prevent these injuries and have, as a result, seen injuries fall and productivity rise.

If the Republican majority really wanted to do something for working men and women in this country, they would drop their opposition to these workplace protections and withdraw this bill. I urge a "no" vote on the rule providing for consideration of H.R. 987 and a "no" vote on the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BALLINGER.)

Mr. BALLINGER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this open rule.

Mr. Speaker, I also rise in strong support of H.R. 982. It is a very simple bill. It simply says that the National Academy of Sciences must complete its study on ergonomics and report to Congress in calling for an NAS study. If OSHA regulates before the causes are understood, OSHA may very well save American businesses money in lost productivity, worker compensation claims, and disability insurance. If the House is going to call time-out, Mr. Speaker, it ought to be on the consideration of this bill and not on the health and safety of the American workforce.

Mr. Speaker, work-related musculoskeletal disorders cost employers between $15 and $20 billion a year in workers compensation costs. Ergonomic injuries and illnesses are the single largest cause of injury-related lost workdays, with nearly 650,000 lost-time injuries each year. These injuries are found in every sector of our economy and cause real pain and suffering.

Women workers are particularly victimized by ergonomic injuries and illness. They represent 69 percent of workers who lose time due to carpal tunnel syndrome, 63 percent of those who suffer repetitive motion injuries, and 61 percent who lose work time to tendinitis.
In conclusion, I urge the Members to vote for the rule and H.R. 987.

Mr. PROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLAY).

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the rule.

H.R. 987 is a measure of how antagonistic the majority of the Republican majority is to the interest of working people.

Despite 7 years of unprecedented prosperity under the Clinton administration, there remains much that this House can do to improve the well-being of workers. We should be considering legislation to make a job pay a decent salary and increase the minimum wage. We should be ensuring that all workers have access to affordable health care and that those who are being disabled, so disabled that one cannot hold a book to read to their child. Imagine being unable to caress their newborn or to give him or her a shower or a bath.

Mr. Speaker, there is no excuse for further delaying OSHA’s ergonomic standard.

The National Academy of Sciences recently reviewed the existing scientific literature. It is not intended and will not produce new information. Two previous studies of the existing scientific literature, one by NIOSH and one by NAS, have already confirmed that ergonomic injuries and illnesses are work-related and that they cannot be prevented by workplace interventions.

More importantly, Mr. Speaker, practical experience by thousands of companies has proven that ergonomic injuries and illnesses can be significantly reduced without the need for extensive government regulation. It is time to stop the one-size-fits-all Federal approach. Instead of another in a long line of attempts to impose costly restrictions on these industries, we must resist another attempt to frustrate government regulation on these industries. We should be ensuring better family leave coverage. We should be expanding pension coverage. We should be ensuring better health insurance coverage.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. HAYES).

Mr. HAYES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support this rule and in support of the Workplace Preservation Act.

During the Easter recess, I embarked on an industry tour in my district in North Carolina. The industries of the 8th district are primarily agriculture and textile related.

I visited eight small- and medium-sized manufacturers, including Cuddy Farms in Monroe and Clayton Knitting Mill in Star. These companies and many others like them represent the backbone of our district’s economy.

The number one concern on their minds was the new ergonomics regulations being considered by OSHA. They were truly fearful of the burdensome regulation that would not only create paperwork and costly, unneeded changes but would also hinder communications between employer and employee.

As one employer from the district wrote to me, “My company is begging employers to design jobs with it in mind. We should be expanding pension coverage. We should be ensuring better family leave coverage. We should be expanding pension coverage. We should be ensuring better health insurance coverage. We should be ensuring better family leave coverage. We should be expanding pension coverage. We should be ensuring better health insurance coverage. We should be ensuring better family leave coverage. We should be expanding pension coverage. We should be ensuring better health insurance coverage.

Mr. Speaker, there is no question that politically powerful forces are at work here. Why else would OSHA hastily recognize a causal relationship between repetitive tasks and repetitive stress injuries without complete scientific documentation?

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation. I am proud to have led the National Academy of Sciences to complete its work. With all the facts, Congress can step back and prudently evaluate the need for new ergonomic guidelines. We must resist another in a long line of attempts to impose costly restrictions upon employers and employees with the one-size-fits-all Federal approach.

Please support the rule and this bill.

Mr. PROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEN).

Mr. OBEN. Mr. Speaker, every time I tour a plant in my district I run into workers, especially women, who are wearing wrist braces. When I ask them about their problem, the answer over and over again is the same: carpal tunnel syndrome.

Where does carpal tunnel syndrome or many of those other injuries come from? They come from workers having to do the same thing hundreds of times and thousands of times without properly designed equipment and work stations. And workers I see are not isolated examples.

Repetitive motion injuries affect 650,000 workers each year. That is more than the number of people who die each year from cancer and stroke. Those injuries account for more lost workday injuries than any other cause, especially for women workers. Nearly half of all workplace injuries for women are due to repetitive motion problems.

Now, there are those in this chamber who say there ought to be more delay in protecting those workers, but they are virtually alone in the world. Every industrialized country has recognized that there is more than enough evidence to move forward on a repetitive motion standard.

Most progressive businesses recognize it is their duty to protect workers and to protect their stockholders from the economic impact of huge amounts of lost work time.

But a powerful band of economic royalists in this country and in this Congress continue to fight that protection, and it is time to get on with it.

In 1990, that well-known “radical” liberal Elizabeth Dole said that it was time to move forward on this. In 1995, the Republican majority attached a rider blocking the issuance of draft regulations. In 1996, they tried to prevent OSHA from even collecting the data on repetitive motion injuries.

In 1997, they tried to block it again but failed. At that time, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health conducted a detailed review of more than 600 scientific studies on the problem, and they found a strong correlation between workplace conditions and worker injuries.

That study was peer reviewed by 27 experts throughout the country. But that was not good enough for some of my colleagues. So in 1998, they pushed the National Institutes of Health to fund another study at the National Academy of Sciences. They convened 65 of the world’s leading scientists, and again they found evidence that clearly demonstrates that specific intervention can reduce injury.

But that is not good enough for some of my colleagues. They want yet another delay. That delay does not hurt anybody in this room. The only repetitive motion injury that Members of Congress are likely to get are knee injuries from continuous genuflecting to big business special interests who want unfettered access to the market and to protect their stockholders from the economic impact of huge amounts of lost work time.

Maybe the time has not come for my colleagues. But, by God, it has come.
for those workers. We need action and we need it now. No delays. No foot dragging. No excuses. We need action and we need action now.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. ISAKSON).

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman yield me the time. I appreciate the opportunity.

Mr. Speaker, I want to address myself to the rule first because that is what we are debating. I have heard it said here today that we should not wait any longer for the scientific evidence to be evaluated by the National Academy of Science, what we should immediately do is proceed to pass rules and regulations.

That is a little bit like going into a waiting room of a sick patient and saying, let us just not do any diagnostic testing, let us go ahead and operate. It is risky business.

Secondly, I want to agree completely that this is about the cost to American business and the safety of American workers. In a period of unprecedented prosperity, in a period of full employment, the last thing an employer wants for a moment is to have workers getting hurt on the job, because there are not good replacements, because we are fully employed.

They want workplace safety. But the last thing they want, also, is conflicting scientific data dictating to a bureaucracy to go ahead and establish rules and regulations preceding a final determination.

In committee on this bill, whether my colleagues agree with the bill or not, no one can argue that professionals and physicians from both sides of the musculoskeletal disorder syndrome agree that there were conflicting data and it was time to have a decision.

Mr. Speaker, I believe we should move forward with what will be a very contested debate. To vote against this rule makes no sense. When the debate on the rule is over and the rule passes, I think the evidence will come forward that we are doing what is right for workers and what is right for the employer and what is right for America, to depend on conclusive evidence and not conflict opinions.

Mr. BONILLA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS).

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this rule, but I welcome the opportunity to discuss the platforms of the two parties in respect to the lives of working people and what kinds of programs we would like to offer our citizens.

One party is clearly against working families and they express it in many ways. This particular piece of legislation has a symbolic significance far beyond what you see written on the paper. It is one part of an overall attack by the majority Republicans on working people and what is right for America, to take steps to deal with the ergonomics of the workplace which have benefited the businesses as well as the workers.

I think the President has made it clear in his message on this bill what we are about here today and it is pretty simple. The administration has written that it strongly opposes enactment of H.R. 987, a bill that would unnecessarily delay the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's issuance of a protective standard on ergonomics until the National Academy of Sciences has completed a second study of the scientific literature regarding musculoskeletal disorders and ergonomics.

I think that it is very clear that what the Republican majority is saying is, let the workers suffer, let the working families and workers suffer needlessly by these work-related musculoskeletal disorders, but it does not matter, let the workers suffer. They are only working families. We are Republicans. We care only about the upper income and we want to spend our time getting benefits out to them in the form of a massive $794 billion tax cut over 10 years.

I would like to see all of the Members come to the floor and use this opportunity. I think we may have about 3 hours to discuss the working families of America and which party really represents them and their welfare. Let them suffer for another 2 years, that is what the immediate concrete message is. So what?

We have had studies. The studies clearly show that there is a cause and effect. The new studies that the NAS will be attempting and continuing to undertake relate to intervention strategies. Let me define intervention strategies. These are strategies that have been put forward and do you intervene to lessen the impact of unhealthy working conditions in the workplace? They want to go on gathering evidence and data which can go on forever and that is the way that any scientific gathering of evidence should take place. But why make the workers wait before you issue standards and you begin the process of intervening to lessen the impact of the injuries?

The Republicans say, let them wait. Small businesses and even the big businesses are going to suffer because the amount of workmen's compensation payments will continue to go up. It is around $20 billion a year now, related to these various disorders, and there have been many successful attempts by businesses to install ergonomic standards and to take steps to deal with the ergonomics of the workplace which have benefited the businesses as well as the workers.

By preventing OSHA from formalizing these procedures and allowing DSHA to do what some businesses have done and what the State of California has done with their standards; by preventing OSHA from moving forward with the number of positive kinds of developments that have taken place, all we are doing is seeing workers suffer unnecessarily. We have case histories of workers in every State in the union; terrible things have happened in terms of injuries that have wrecked whole families. No, people do not bleed a great deal, they do not have concussions, it is not the kind of dramatic workplace accident situation that you have in the construction industry, but the slow death that is taking place more and more as we increase our digital world and people are more and more sitting before keyboards, eyestrain, all kinds of carpal tunnel syndromes from the actions of the wrists, all kinds of disorders are developing rapidly that injure more and more workers. More and more women, also, are drawn into the more women incidentally who happen to be the wage earners and their families have been drawn into this.

Why let the workers suffer? Let us get it over with. Let us get the standards out there and stop the suffering.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BONILLA).

Mr. BONILLA. Mr. Speaker, the American worker makes up the lifeblood of our economy and we can all agree in this Chamber that our utmost concern is their safety and well-being in the workplace. Every employer in America understands that it is to their advantage and the employee's advantage to keep workers healthy and happy on the job. In fact, we should all be celebrating today here that because of the safety measures that have been taken in the private sector. Working with some folks in OSHA, we have dropped employee injuries by 17 percent. The number of injuries dropped by 17 percent since 1985 because of the changes that employers have made in the workplace. There is no crisis at hand. Let us be honest about what we are debating here. We are debating a power grab by a government agency and by America's big labor unions who are trying to get a stranglehold on America's businesses both small and large. The debate we have here today is about the rush to promulgate and to write a rule dealing with repetitive stress injuries, with ergonomics, something that would be far more dangerous to the American worker if it is written too fast versus waiting for sound science to guide them versus having political science guide them.

Imagine for 1 second if OSHA rushes to write a rule without sound science, a one-size-fits-all rule that would apply to florists as it would to people who work in manufacturing plants, to people who work in auto parts stores, at restaurants and on farms and ranches.
throughout this country. What a nightmare this would be for the American workers. They would suddenly have their jobs placed on the line to spend gobs of money, money that could go to raise wages and better benefits and instead trying to comply with a one-size-fits-all regulation.

Let us all remember that the first draft that OSHA had of this rule was 600 pages long. Imagine if you are working in a bakery out in the heartland in America, you are working in a dentist’s office, in a lab, in an auto parts store or a restaurant and you suddenly saw this regulation show up on your doorstep. That is why the calculation of what this would cost the American workers in this country is at about $4 billion, because this is the kind of penalty we pay in our American workplaces. What we want is the one-size-fits-all regulation hastily written and showing up at the doorstep of America’s workplaces.

All we are asking in this bill and in this rule is to allow us to stop the rush. There is no need to rush. We can wait for the sound science to take over and have the political science take a back seat so that we can do this the right way. There is no guarantee. When this National Academy of Science study is ultimately completed, it could in fact recommend that an ergonomics regulation move forward. We understand that. But let us let the scientists decide, let us let the researchers decide. Let us not turn this process over to a power-hungry Federal agency and labor unions that are also behind it.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. VENTO).

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this rule and in opposition to this measure which is not letting the scientists decide, it is not letting the experts at OSHA decide. It is putting it here on the floor in a political way and letting all the experts here, the political experts, decide.

This Congress ought to take its political and go home with it and leave the experts that are supposed to be working on this issue and rule do their job. We should defeat this rule and defeat this bill.

This measure, H.R. 987, seeks to study to infinite worker injuries and yet again delay Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) action on rules that would govern and prevent such injuries. This is no less than a frontal attack on all of OSHA to frustrate, dismantle and renege on worker safety embodied in the Occupational Safety Act. Repetitive work related motion trauma is not some arcane, isolated occurrence—nearly half of all workplace illnesses documented are caused by such repetitive motion disorders.

Each year injuries which result from such work-related musculoskeletal disorders harm nearly 650,000 workers and are estimated to cost businesses $60 billion dollars in worker compensation payments and other costs. More than 100 different injuries can result from repetitive motions causing painful wear and tear to the bodies of working men and women. Women are especially affected by this problem, comprising 60 to 70 percent of those injured in many categories.

This repetitive injury OSHA rule is an all too common example of bad news, bad news. The good news is that for almost every job that results in such injuries, there are alternative methods of working which can decrease the risk of harm. The bad news is that there is not a focus on such prevention, and in fact some want to frustrate implementation. In February 1999, OSHA released a discussion draft for an ergonomics standard which would implement the use of ergonomics in the workplace. This draft proposal is an important step toward protecting workers from musculoskeletal injuries in a way which allows employees flexibility to adopt solutions that fit their workplaces.

The legislation we are debating today, H.R. 987, is euphemistically titled the “Workplace Preservation Act.” This bill is an unnecessary tactic which could ultimately result in thousands more workers being needlessly injured or killed, then the 500,000 already affected. Proponents of H.R. 987, playing a game of delay, mock and question the soundness and effectiveness of a well researched ergonomics standard, all the time wrapping themselves in “sound science”. However, both a 1998 National Academy of Science study and a 1997 National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health study provides scientific evidence linking musculoskeletal disorders to the job. A document based on 600 research studies of such injuries and 2000 scientific articles build a solid foundation upon which to act. Even beyond official studies, there is practical proof that ergonomics programs work. The draft standard that OSHA is developing is actually based on programs which have been implemented and proven successful in various work sites across the country. OSHA would be irresponsible and delaying the implementation of a solid standard upon such a clear record which pinpoints the cause of one half of workplace illnesses.

We have waited long enough to address this problem, any opposition by Congress now will only serve to needlessly delay the process even further. For every day that we waste on redundant research, life-altering impairment which could have been avoided will occur. It is truly a travesty that our workforce continues to suffer serious disabling injuries while Congress debates whether or not a known solution should be set in place. Clearly, this is exactly the kind of issue that OSHA was created to address, and attempts to block this organization from implementing solution to improve harmful work environments are disingenuous, misdirected and counterproductive.

This Congressional measure to delay sound OSHA action should be identified for what it is; “The Right to Risk Worker’s Health Act.” Enough is enough—too many bodies and limbs have been needlessly worn to numbness and a life of pain and permanent injury. Workers have to earn work and dignity and fairness to accord workers the OSHA rule and safeguard, to prevent working conditions which force them to sacrifice their health and cripple their bodies to earn a living.

Mr. Speaker, I will oppose this harmful legislation and encourage my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON).

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I cannot believe the rhetoric I am hearing today. I listened to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BONILLA). He is absolutely on track. All that is happening is a takeover by big government trying to interfere in individuals’ lives.

Last year, the Congress and the President agreed to spend nearly $1 million on a study, and it is going to be completed in 2001. Why can we not wait until then? OSHA instead wants to rush an agenda and cost us thousands of jobs and cost us billions of dollars while failing to assure the prevention of one single injury. Some single industry estimates go as high as $18 to $30
Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. KLINK).

Mr. KLINK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. It is very plain to me that this rule should not be on the floor and this bill should not be on the floor. This is probably the biggest health and safety vote that we will see this year if not this Congress. The impact that ergonomic injuries have had on workers will touch every part of the family of labor. If this is such a big organized labor deal as some of the speakers have talked about, then that tool of organized labor, Elizabeth Dole, back in 1990 when she was Secretary of Labor, and I do not think anyone has ever accused her of being that closely aligned with organized labor, but her comment was that these injuries, and this is a direct quote, "one of the Nation's most debilitating across-the-board worker safety and health illnesses of the 1990s." Ms. Dole was right then and she is right today.

Business has to recognize the need to incorporate a new philosophy. We have to be able to adjust the way we manufacture, to adjust our equipment rather than asking workers to adjust their bodies to the way we manufacture. If we do that, the workers will be healthier and they will miss fewer days of work; workers' comp costs are going to go down, productivity would be higher, jobs would be secure and, yes, profit margins for our companies would go up.

Let us look at the figures in 1997. There were 620,459 lost workdays due to workplace ergonomic injuries. These injuries were overexertion, repetitive motion, carpal tunnel syndrome, back injuries. This represents 34 percent, over one-third, of all the workdays that were lost by injured workers were due to ergonomic injuries. There has been some discussion on the other side about what this might cost the employers of this Nation. Someone threw out the figure of $4 billion. I do not know if that is true, I do not know if it is an exaggerated figure, but these ergonomic injuries each year cost businesses and workers between 15 and $20 billion.

We ought to take a look at what Red Wing Shoes did. Here is an example of a company that modified its work stations. This was not an inexpensive thing for them to do. It cost them money. But at Red Wing, they reduced their workers' comp costs by 75 percent over a 4-year period.

There was also some discussion on the other side about the fact that studies have not been done yet. The fact is the studies have been done. If you take a look at the NIOSH report it says, and I am quoting here, NIOSH director Dr. Linda Rosenstock, it found strong evidence of its association between musculoskeletal disorders and work factors such as heavy lifting.

Then we go to this bill, H.R. 987, in the "Findings" section, you quoted exactly the opposite. You say that there is insufficient evidence to assess the level of risk that workers have from repetitive motion.

When the finding section of their own bill is exactly opposite of the finding that is actually in the study, no wonder they brought a cockeyed bill to the floor, because they do not know how to read the findings.

Whoops, I am sorry.

What was it Gilda Radner said? Excuse me.

My colleagues have got to read the findings section of the bill and find that in fact repetitive motion does cause injuries. We have seen it; we have heard that. People who injure themselves on the job through ergonomic problems, they cannot comb their children's hair, cannot wash dishes, cannot clean the floors at home.

This bill should go down; the rule should go down. In fact, we should not even be here.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself as much time as I may consume just to make out a simple point that House Resolution 271 is a modified and open, fair rule for consideration of H.R. 987. The rule provides for the debate and amendments on this measure to consume up to three full hours. It is an extremely fair rule and given the amount of work that Congress is need- ed to do to complete its work this week, there will be ample time to have great debate on the merits of the legis- lation.

But I remind my colleagues my view is we have a fair and open rule.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GOODLING), the chairman of the Committee on Education and the Work- force.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I want to make sure that everybody under- stands exactly what we are doing today. No one is saying that we are here to say that there will not be any ergonomic regulations in the future. In fact, I am sure there will be, but it seems to me, if there are going to be, then we should have the best scientific knowledge we possibly can so we do it right because we may just do the oppo- site of what we should be doing to try to help the people who we are trying to help.

I would point out very quickly to my colleague from Pennsylvania that the NIOSH study also said additional research would be very, very valuable, and in many instances nonpayable. That is what it is all about: that is what the discussion is all about.

We said in legislation, agreed by the President and by the Congress, that we would spend up to almost a million dol- lars of taxpayers' money to get the kind of scientific knowledge that we need in order to make sure what regu- lations are promulgated, that they are done properly, that they are done to help. That is all this legislation says:

Get the study, colleagues asked for the study, they are willing to pay pay- taxpayers' dollars for the study, get the study, use it, and then write the regu- lations that go with it.

As my colleagues know, we have had 2 years of hearings where we have heard, if nothing else, a lot of inconclusive evidence, a lot of people who are not positively sure what the cause is and are not positively sure how to solve the problem. That is why we asked the National Academy of Sciences to help us, help us determine what the problem is, help us determine what the direction is that we should be going.

We had one of the finest back sur- geons, one of the most prominent back surgeons in the country who said after years of his study and years of his deal- ing with the issue he found that in many instances it is not physical fac- tors like how often you lift or how often you bend. In fact, he said that it is in many instances nonphysician fac- tors, just stress in life, not enjoying one's job, and I think we can all relate to that. Get down low enough, boy, people can have aches and pains. We all go through that process.

And so here is a back surgeon, a prominent back surgeon who made that statement. So again, all the hear- ings that we have had, there is so much indecision as to what is the proper way to go, what do we specifically know and how do we handle the issue? And so all we are saying, wait, get the study. We are paying almost a million bucks for it, and then see whether you can pro- mulgate regulations that will truly help the men and women that we are trying to help.

So my colleagues are here trying to prevent forever ergonomic regulations. We are here saying let us do it right, let us get the scientific evidence first, and then proceed.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI).

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding this time to me.

Mr. Speaker, today we vote on legislation to block OSHA from protecting America’s working men and women from workplace injuries and illnesses caused by ergonomic-related issues. My colleagues have the figures, but they bear repeating. Each year more than 2 million workers suffer these injuries, more than 1 million workers lose time at work, and each year this costs the economy $15 to $20 billion in worker compensation, an overall $60 billion, all things considered.

I oppose this legislation and support workplace protection for American workers.

What is ergonomics? What is that word? What does it mean? Ergonomics and what are ergonomic-related injuries? Ergonomics is the science of adapting the workplace to the physical needs of the workers such as giving telephone headsets to telephone operators to avoid cradling the phone to reduce neck and shoulder pain, a work place that is poorly adapted to workers’ causes, ergonomics injuries.

One type of injury, repetitive motion injuries frequently mentioned here, is caused when a worker repeats a specific motion hundreds or thousands of times. For example, secretaries and office workers often suffer wrist and arm injuries.

Similarly, America’s poultry workers who cut up and sliced up the chicken parts for our meals repeat the same cutting and slicing motion hundreds of times an hour each day as they cut up thousands of chickens for our meals. The cumulative stress of these repetitive motions cause secretaries, poultry workers, and other workers to suffer health problems.

But I want to get personal about this, Mr. Speaker. I want to talk about one particular poultry worker.

Betty Yvonne Green. Betty worked as a chicken fillet puller for seven years. Her job required her to use her hands to separate the fillet from the bone, cut the tips off the fillet with scissors and then place the product in a tub. Betty performed this task 16 to 17 times a minute for 2½ hours straight without a break.

In 1984, Betty began to feel pain in her right arm and reported it to her supervisor, the directors of personnel and the plant manager. They all told her there was nothing wrong and she would have to live with this problem. Management felt her pain did not warrant medical assistance, and nothing was to be done until Betty went to her personal physician.

Betty’s doctor found that both her rotator cuffs had been torn and required surgery. She went back to work after both surgeries, but was unable to continue to do her fillet job. She worked some light duty, but to no avail. Betty was terminated by the company for what they said was excessive absenteeism. She was denied employment and only received workers’ compensation after retaining an attorney.

On behalf of Betty Yvonne Green and many, many workers throughout this country who deserve our respect, in fact deserve our protection, I urge our colleagues to vote nay on this so-called Workplace Preservation Act. Indeed it should be called the Workplace Persecution Act because that is exactly what it does to the American worker. We can study this thing to death. Of course we know more science, but we have to also know when we have enough science to proceed and learn many more ways that we can do better in the workplace, but not to deny, not to deny what has been fully documented by NIOSH, which has been fully documented by the National Academy of Sciences as a relationship between repetitive motion and ergonomic disease.

I urge my colleagues to vote no.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Frost) says that the Democrats are for working people, for working men and women, but yet every piece of legislation that they have put forward, they support, is to support the union. That is wrong, but yet our union brothers and sisters have the right to do it.

Davis-Bacon, that increases inflation 15 to 35 percent of construction for school buildings, but yet will they waive for the children? No, they will support the unions. Now we are asking for a scientific study, and I would say that even Republicans, we need to go one step further because when colleagues say based on science you need to look at who pays for the science. Is it the Republican groups or the Democratic groups, and people need an individual peer review to be fair, a non-partisan independent review. Sometimes that does not exist, and I will give into that and we need that.

If my colleagues know in the office the people that work with computers all the times, they have carpool tunnel. There is good scientific basis that we need to help those people and provide the pads and make sure there is rotation and lights, and we have some pretty good science on it. But the problem is our colleagues want to go in without a study or agenda instead of science, and we are saying, no, let us back it up with the science to show so there will not be a big input on it, and I brought up yesterday www.dsa/usa.

Democrat Socialists of America, progressive caucus, has a 12 point agenda: government control of health care, government control of education, government control of private property, and guess what? Union over small business and cut military by half, by 50 percent, and it is to support the Union. Is that their working men and women, but not the 90 percent of the people that have all of the interest.

My colleagues should put their mouth and money where their rhetoric is. Support the people, the working men and women.

Who is for this? The union bosses. Who is against it? Chamber, NFIB, every small business group out there because they know that the only thing that my colleagues are focusing on is the union bosses who give them their campaign finance money. Admit it. Why do they fight against 90 percent of the small businesses and workers every single bill that we have? They do not support the networking men and women in this country; they only support the union members.

As my colleagues know, I take a look at the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT) who gets up here and says, Oh, the poor lady in the red dress, not again, and he talks about the working men and women and the class warfare, only the rich versus the poor.

Well, cut out the rhetoric. Do things based on science; the environmentalists, the same thing. We want environmental changes. Do my colleagues think we want bad environment, the Republicans over the Democrats? We just want it based on good science, and then we want a peer review. The same thing with ergonomics. We want a good science, and not peer review; they do not destroy the 90 percent of the jobs that are out there in favor of their union bosses.

And that is what we are asking, Mr. Speaker. We are tired and we are the other and tired and tired of the Democrats’ rhetoric trying to make points for the year 2000 where they get their campaign money, and that is what they support.

If my colleagues support the working men and women, support the Republican position on this.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. PETERSON).
Mr. PETE RSON of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to this rule and this bill, and I would hope that we can cut back a little bit on the rhetoric.

First of all, people need to understand this talk about this study. There is no study that is going on. All that is happening is it is going to be a compilation of a bunch of studies that have already been done. So we need to get that clear.

Second thing I think that people need to understand is that it would help if somebody would have talked to the people in the department that are actually working on this.

I have met with Secretary Jeffers more than once and talked to him about this proposed rule that they are looking at. They have been working on it a long time. There is a lot of science that has gone into this. I do not think a lot of people that are talking on this floor have actually looked into what this is about.

This only applies to manufacturing and manual lifting businesses, where 60 percent of these injuries take place. If you do not have an injury, this is not going to apply to you. It only applies when you have an injury where there is ergonomics involved, and at that point, you have to come up with a way to deal with it.

If you have got a situation where it is only one injury and you are a small employer, they have something called a quick fix where you can go in and work on this without having to put a plan together. So they have listened to small business, they have tried to make this workable, and if anybody sat down and read this, they would understand that.

The other thing is that businesses that have gone out and actually worked on this have found it to be cost effective. It saves money for their company, and it is good for their employees. This afternoon I talked to 3M. They have an ergonomist on their staff. That person has saved them money. It is better for the company and better for the workers. This is something that clearly works. So I urge that people will focus on what is really going on here.

Back in October of 1998, then appropriations Chairman Livingston and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) sent a letter to Alexis Herman saying we are funding this NAS study and it is in no way our intent to block or delay issuance by OSHA of a proposed rule on ergonomics.

Well, it looks to me today like what is going on here is delay, and is contrary to what was said. So I urge my colleagues to reject this rule and reject this bill.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER) the Chairman of the Committee on Rules.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for yielding me time, and I assure him I will reserve time for my friend from Louisiana and will not fill out the entire hour here.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the rule and congratulate my friend from Buffalo for his super management.

We have an expression that we have been trying our doggonest to successfully implement around here in the 106th Congress, and we call it regular order. We try to, as much as possible, follow regular order.

Frankly, that is exactly what the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman GOODLING) is trying to do with this legislation. We authorized $1 million for the National Academy of Sciences to come up with some sort of finding before the Occupational Safety and Health Administration proceeds with implementation of its regulations on ergonomics.

The fact of the matter is, nothing, as has been said by several of my colleagues, nothing prevents them from moving ahead. But what we are saying is get every bit of information you possibly can so that you come up with good public policy.

Now, that will be unique for OSHA in the eyes of many, because a number of us have been very critical of the fact that regulations that they over the years have imposed have been extraordinarily costly to the private sector, and, in turn, to the consumers of this country.

But, obviously we are all wanting to deal with the problems of stress-related repetitive actions taken in their work, so all we are saying is let us do it right. This is a very fair and balanced rule which allows for a free-flowing debate, while at the same time recognizing that most of my colleagues with whom I have spoken over the last few days want us to complete our work by the end of this week so we can go home for August. This rule allows us to have a debate and do it in a fair way, and also get this, and I hope the rest of our work, done. So I urge support of the rule.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS).

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend from Texas for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the rule. I listened intently to my friend from New York, a member of the Committee on Rules who spoke about this rule a few minutes ago, and I wanted to make several points about the rule.

We are operating here under the facade that this will give, as the chairman of the Committee on Rules just said, a free-flowing and open debate about worker safety.

I want to point something out: There are many of us who believe that OSHA is understaffed, that OSHA does not have enough inspectors to go find workplace violations and do something about them. But, if I am not mistaken, and my friend from the Committee on Rules can correct me, an amendment that would add inspectors to OSHA's inspection force would be ruled out of order because it is not germane.

There are many of us who are concerned about sick building syndrome, about people going to work, day after day, in buildings where the heating and air conditioning systems do not work properly and they cannot breathe properly and their asthma is aggravated or their other breathing related disabilities is aggravated by the building. And we believe OSHA should do something about that.

And the amendment that would address that problem would be out of order because it would not be germane.

In fact, it is almost impossible to think of any amendment that could be offered under this bill that would do anything other than kill this regulation or delay this regulation that would be germane.

So let us get the record straight here. There are dozens of important worker safety issues that confront this country. None of them, none of them, are in order for debate under this rule on the floor. The only thing we can do is either accept or reject this attempt to delay, and I think ultimately defeat, the new ergonomic standard by OSHA.

So let us be very clear about this, that this is an open rule in form only. Every other consideration in worker safety is not in order. That is why the rule should be defeated.
minds. These are real injuries, not only costing billions of dollars, but destroying people’s everyday lives, people who can no longer work in their chosen professions, no longer cook at home, no longer play the guitar, no longer ride their bicycles even, and even no longer picking up their little children. That is what we are talking about here.

I cannot understand how my colleagues could want to delay the implementation of a standard that would not only reduce pain and suffering but save the business community of this country billions of dollars each year. I applaud last year’s appropriation funding of the National Academy of Sciences study of ergonomic injuries. However, that is no reason to delay the implementation of a highly researched and needed OSHA standard. Stand up for healthy workplaces. Vote against this needed OSHA standard. Stand up for the scientific literature and concluded that this is a compelling workplace safety and health issue.

This is about delaying the implementation of a regulation that OSHA has crafted after consulting with and taking advice from employers around the country on the actions those employers have taken to prevent workplace injuries.

There is simply no need to further delay a regulation that OSHA has crafted after consulting with and taking advice from employers around the country on the actions those employers have taken to prevent workplace injuries. Each year more than three-quarters of a million serious and chronic disorders related to repetitive motion occur in our workplaces. These ergonomic injuries cost billions annually. Let me remind colleagues this is a women’s health issue. Women are five times more likely to develop carpal tunnel syndrome than men, one of the most painful ergonomic problems. Women are disproportionately represented in the jobs and workplaces where ergonomic hazards are the most common.

We know that many ergonomic problems are prevalent. OSHA’s draft proposal provides clear guidance to employers and employees on how to prevent ergonomic injuries, relieve the suffering, and save billions in healthcare and productivity costs. Let us stop delaying. Let us give OSHA the authority they need to work with employers to prevent these serious health problems. I urge a ‘no’ vote.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN).

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I am often asked when I am at home, when is the government going to live by the same rules and by the same procedures that it asks other Americans to live by? For example, if I wanted to get a permit from the government in an area that might be considered a wetland, I have got to go through all the procedures of finding out whether or not an EPA assessment is required, and we have to file all those reports before we can get a permit.

If I have a drug I want to sell in this country, I cannot say to the FDA, let me sell it first; we will do the scientific work later on, whether or not it works or whether or not it is going to hurt anybody.

Americans are subjected to a simple rule when it comes to many of those agencies; get the science done, and then we will tell you whether you can do something or not. What the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman GOODLING) is doing, what this rule proposes, is a simple proposition, that this agency, OSHA, ought to get its good science done before it issues a regulation. It ought to have in front of it the best science possible to make the best rule that is the most efficient in our society. Not that it should not regulate, not that this is not a problem in the workplace, we know it is, but it ought to do it right, it ought to do it efficiently, and, most importantly, it ought to do it according to the best science.

Now, this Congress funded that good science; it put out nearly $900,000 to get that work done. All the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GOODLING) is asking is that that work be completed so that we can have the best rule, the most efficient rule, one that works, without causing undue cost or burden on the rest of the citizens of this country who pay their taxes and go to work every day and expect to be treated decently in our society.

They are asking, is this government agency going to live by the rules we have to live by? Is this government agency going to do the good science first before it imposes a regulation on us, the same required to do the good science first before we can get a permit from this government? It is that simple.

Please support this rule, and please support the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GOODLING) in the bill.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I urge the rule be defeated, and I yield back the balance of my time.
August 3, 1999

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consider necessary.

Mr. Chairman, H. R. 987 is a very simple bill. It ensures that the National Academy of Sciences completes the congressionally mandated study of ergonomics and reports its findings to Congress before OSHA promulgates a proposed or final standard.

As I said during the debate on the rule, everyone knows that eventually there probably will be standards and regulations, but certainly we should make sure that science precedes regulation, not the other way around. We get in real trouble when we reverse that.

There is a great deal of scientific and medical uncertainty in this debate about ergonomics. Our Subcommittee on Work, I would hope, as I indicated also during the discussion of the rule, has had many hearings during the last 2 years. The only thing that was certain was that there was a great deal of uncertainty.

I indicated that even a very well known back surgeon indicated that, with all of the work that he has done, he realizes that in many instances, it is distress in life and job dissatisfaction. Well, I sure hope that OSHA does not start writing regulations in relation- ship to distress in life and job dissatisfaction, or we will be in real trouble. So we really need to wait, because that is what the Congress said.

Who said that in the Congress? Three hundred thirty-three Members said that should be an in-depth scientific study, and we will put up almost $1 million for that purpose, agreed to by the President, agreed to by the Congress. Three hundred thirty-three Members agreed to that legislation that contained that.

Now all of a sudden we hear, oh, but two people said that they do not have to pay any attention to what the Congress said and what the law said. That is a pretty interesting turn of events. Two people said? That probably was the best kept secret. Probably 331 others who voted for it did not know that.

They thought that as a matter of fact, they were saying let us get the facts before we write regulations.

So again, that we remind ourselves that it was we, the Congress, 333 Members, who said it is very necessary to get this additional information by a nonpartisan group, by people who do this for a living, people who are scientists, before we delve into reguulating something that we are not sure will help or hurt the very people we are trying to help.

Any time a broad government regulation like this proposal goes into effect, livelihoods of our constituents are in jeopardy, so we want to make very, very sure that we have the facts, the scientific facts, so that we can write regulations that as a matter of fact will help, not hurt. One-size-fits-all could really do great damage to the very people we are trying to help.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this bill. Mr. Chairman, there is such a thing as political speech, and courts have sanctioned it under the first amendment.

In reality, it allows politicians to exaggerate incidents, to embellish facts, and still maintain protection under that first amendment.

What we just heard is a perfect example of political speech. Members will probably hear it over and over from that side today. President Clinton never agreed to delaying the issuance of ergonomic rules while the study is being conducted.

Of course, they are entitled to politcical speech, according to the Federal courts. Mr. Chairman, H.R. 987 prohibits the Secretary of Labor from promulgating any standard or guidelines on ergonomics until the National Academy of Sciences completes a study. This bill is simply one more attempt to delay and ultimately block the issuance of critical ergonomic workplace guidelines which are needed to reduce an epidemic of work-related stress and strain injuries.

Ergonomic injuries and illnesses remain the most serious health risk factors, and ergonomic injuries and illnesses remain the single largest cause of injury-related lost work days. In 1997, there were more than 600,000 lost workday injuries and illnesses due to overexertion, repetitive motion, and other bodily reactions related to ergonomic hazards. This represents 34 percent of all lost workday illnesses and injuries.

Work-related musculoskeletal disorders cost employers between $15 and $20 billion in workers compensation costs each year. Women workers are particularly victimized by ergonomic injuries and illnesses. For example, women are 69 percent of those who lose work time due to carpal tunnel syndrome.

The contention that we do not know enough to regulate in this area is disbputed by the overwhelming majority of scientific opinion, and has been disproved by the real world experiences of thousands of employers who have taken steps to address ergonomic hazards and have substantially reduced injuries as a result.

This bill is opposed by the AFL-CIO and all the major labor organizations that represent working people. It is contrary to the recommendations of the major occupational associations, the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, and the clear conclusions of the National Academy of Sciences.

Additionally, President Clinton will veto this bill if it reaches his desk.

Mr. Chairman, how odd, how unfortunate, that the first significant labor measure to reach the floor of this Congress attempts to strip working people of their rights, instead of enhancing them. We should be taking action on behalf of working families to pass a comprehensive Patients' Bill of Rights, to pass an increase in the minimum wage, and to address inadequate family leave and retirement savings of workers.

This bill says a good deal about the misguided priorities of the majority and the failure of this Congress to take action on behalf of working families.

Mr. Chairman, I urge Members to oppose this anti-worker legislation, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT), the author of the legislation.

Mr. BLUNT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, where I am from, and where my friend, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLAY), is from, the State of Missouri, $1 million is still a lot of money. It may not be a lot of money here in Washington, but it is a lot of money where I am from.

I keep asking myself as I hear this debate, as I have looked at this issue over the last several months, why are we spending this money? Why did the administration agree to this study? Why did the Congress appropriate the money? Why are we spending the money?

We are spending the money because the one weekend study that NAS has already done is not adequate. We are spending the money because there is a tremendous lack of clarity and agreement in these issues. These issues are not as simple as political speech, according to the Federal courts. Mr. Chairman, H.R. 987 prohibits the Secretary of Labor from promulgating any standard or guidelines on ergonomics until the National Academy of Sciences completes a study. This bill is simply one more attempt to delay and ultimately block the issuance of critical ergonomic workplace guidelines which are needed to reduce an epidemic of work-related stress and strain injuries.

Ergonomic injuries and illnesses remain the most serious health risk factors, and ergonomic injuries and illnesses remain the single largest cause of injury-related lost work days. In 1997, there were more than 600,000 lost workday injuries and illnesses due to overexertion, repetitive motion, and other bodily reactions related to ergonomic hazards. This represents 34 percent of all lost workday illnesses and injuries.

Work-related musculoskeletal disorders cost employers between $15 and $20 billion in workers compensation costs each year. Women workers are particularly victimized by ergonomic injuries and illnesses. For example, women are 69 percent of those who lose work time due to carpal tunnel syndrome.

The contention that we do not know enough to regulate in this area is disputed by the overwhelming majority of scientific opinion, and has been disproven by the real world experiences of thousands of employers who have taken steps to address ergonomic hazards and have substantially reduced injuries as a result.

This bill is opposed by the AFL-CIO and all the major labor organizations that represent working people. It is contrary to the recommendations of the major occupational associations, the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, and the clear conclusions of the National Academy of Sciences.

Additionally, President Clinton will veto this bill if it reaches his desk.
would be not to hire more people but their push would be to make a greater capital investment instead of a people investment. In other words, by the way the standards are written.

In our country, a person's job has a degree of sanctity to it that I think we have to be careful about here in Washington. If we treat that casually, if we decide that, based on the instincts of some bureaucrat over at OSHA who had not lifted anything that day heavier than a pencil, that that is the person who is going to decide what is hard to do at the workplace and somebody's job winds up eliminated because of that, I think that is a serious concern. I think that is a serious problem.

I think there is much evidence as to why we need this standard. The SBREFA group said that the draft standard was a problem. One of the reasons was the vagueness. One of the reasons was the vagueness of the terms. Well, this study will solve problems like that. This study will create the sound science that the study will create an atmosphere where people are encouraged to show up at a safe workplace every day, but that their jobs are still there.

This is about people's jobs. This is about some political play here in Washington. This is about people's jobs. It is a $1 million study, and it is about seeing that study before the final regulation is drafted.

Mr. Chairman, I urge support of the bill.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY).

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Chairman, back in the seventies, I was the human resources manager at an electronic manufacturing company. At one point we started to see a large number of repeated stress injuries. It was not hard for us to figure out why the problems were occurring, because our printed circuit board assemblers were using the same motions repeatedly to insert electronic components into their printed circuit boards. But it was difficult to figure out why it was happening and what was the solution.

So I did something that most of those who speak so negatively about OSHA on the other side probably would think very odd. I asked CAL OSHA to come to our company and help us work through our problems. With their help, we changed some of our assembly processes and the symptoms stopped.

Mr. Chairman, we knew that it was important to protect our workers from injuries because if we did not, our company would not be able to become a Fortune 500 company, which, by the way, it did.

But it would not have without a healthy workforce.

Mr. Chairman, all businesses and all employers and all employees will benefit from ergonomic standards. We already have sound science regarding the problems caused by repetitive motion. The problem appears that, when the Republican majority disagrees with science, they insist on more studies. They hope that science will eventually support what they want it to say.

H.R. 987 is an inexcusable delay tactic that benefits no ones and financially not business, and certainly not workers. I urge my colleagues to oppose it. A vote against H.R. 987 is a vote for workers.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNKER), chairman of the Subcommittee on Employer-Employee Relations.

Mr. BOEHNKER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GOODLING), the chairman of the Committee on Education and the Workforce, for yielding me this time, and I appreciate his efforts and my colleagues' efforts for bringing this bill before us.

Mr. Chairman, I rise tonight in favor of H.R. 987, the Workplace Preservation Act. I am sure that if we went out and explained this bill to most Americans, they would wonder why we are even here tonight having to debate this.

First, let us be very clear about this. We are not prohibiting OSHA from regulating ergonomics. We are simply saying that before OSHA issues a set of sweeping new regulations that impact millions of employees and employers, we ought to at least look at the science that we paid for just a year ago and what the American people paid for when Congress appropriated $980,000 to the National Academy of Sciences to take a comprehensive look at this issue. We are simply saying let us let good science precede regulation, not the other way around.

If OSHA meets its current timetable, the final ergonomics regulations will be in place before the National Academy of Science's studies are even finished. Not only will the efforts of the National Academy be wasted, but the money that the taxpayers put up last year for the study will be wasted as well.

Mr. Chairman, that is just not acceptable. That is why we are here to pass H.R. 987 tonight. OSHA's decision to disregard the need for sound science, to not mention the will of this Congress, is an example of the kind of bureaucratic arrogance that is making Americans cynical about their government today.

Many questions remain about the nature of the relationship between workplace activities and these types of injuries. But OSHA has concluded that it does not need time to wait for the scientific communities to answer these questions. OSHA has decided it already has the answers, and it is going ahead with its new regulation as it sees fit.

I think we can all agree that this kind of bureaucratic free-wheeling is wrong. Mr. Chairman, the debate today is not about whether we assure the safety in the workplace for the American workers. There can be no debate about that. The debate today is about whether we expect regulatory agencies to base their rules on medical evidence and sound science. I do not think there can be any debate that either, Mr. Chairman.

So I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support the bill of the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT), H.R. 987, and allow the taxpayers to get their money's worth for the science and the study that we paid for last year before proceeding down this very dangerous path.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BONIOR), the distinguished minority whip.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Chairman, recently I traveled to the Eastern Shore of Maryland and the district of the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GRUMMET) to learn about the poultry industry and to talk with some of the people who have been suffering injuries in the Nation's chicken processing plants.

Chickens are processed on something akin to an assembly line. Most of the actual cutting up is done hand by hand, chicken by chicken, day after day, hour after hour. One of the cutters that we talked to was a woman named Sharon Mitchell. She made her living as a cutter on the line, standing on a wet concrete floor, in a factory as cold as a refrigerator, with a knife in her hand, deboning breasts and thighs.

Earlier today, as I was in my office, I had the sound off, I had it on mute, and I was watching the screen and this debate, and the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUSIN) was making this motion.

Sharon Mitchell makes that motion. She told us as we were sitting there, "You try to do this." I invite everybody who is watching me today to do this. Because she does this 50 times a minute, 8 hours a day, at least 5 days a week. I want my colleagues to feel the repetitiveness of what this is about.

Mr. Chairman, that Sharon Mitchell performs the same cutting motion 3,000 times an hour, 24,000 times a day, 120,000 times per week, and more than 6 million times a year. It is no wonder that the poultry industry has a hard time keeping healthy workers.

Ergonomic injuries are the leading cause of turnover, 100 percent in some of the plants. Do my colleagues know what the wage is, the average wage for people who do this 6 million times a year, 3,000 times an hour? Five dollars and sixty-one cents.

Ergonomic injuries affect virtually every economic sector in the country, truckers, nurses, cashiers, computer operators, construction workers, meat cutters, assembly line workers, 600,000 Americans are hurt every year from these injuries.

Workers compensation costs related to these injuries top $20 billion a year. Study after study have documented the problems, beginning with studies under the Bush administration a decade ago. So ignoring Sharon Mitchell’s concern and that of literally thousands of people that work with her will not make this go away.

Now, several companies like Ford and 3M and AT&T, for example, have adopted a low-cost measure to prevent these injuries from happening. It is time that we follow their lead.

I will never forget that woman standing there with tears in her eyes doing this and suggesting to us that we can do better. That is what we need. One hundred percent of the workers in some of these plants turn over every year because of these injuries.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3½ minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. SCHAFFER).

Mr. SCHAFFER. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman from Pennsylvania for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, my first job out of college was in a salmon cannery in Alaska. The opportunities for injury associated with repetitive motions were ones our employers new an awful lot about and upon which they spent a lot of time ensuring safety came first. They understood it to be an economic issue, as well as one that, in the context of humane treatment of employees and compassion of workers, was an integral part of business.

I have often said that standing boot deep in fish heads, gut, and entrails was probably the best training that I ever received for serving in Congress. But I also point out that OSHA’s decision to move forward on regulations without benefit of thorough study is a classic example of the phrase often used in business “ready, fire, aim.”

Our goal here in proposing this bill’s passage is to arrive at a set of goals, rules, and regulations that actually hit the mark, that actually are useful goals and regulations that actually can, with some confidence, be attributed to a safer workplace. That is a major target.

Now, that huge difference is not just because of an increase in injuries. In fact, workplace injuries have been declining in recent years. The difference between the 3 percent in 1990 and the 34 percent that OSHA refers to today is simply due to the Department of Labor’s changing definition.

There has not even been a consistent, uniform definition of what injuries would be addressed by an ergonomics regulation. Now that in itself is a good indication of the scientific and medical uncertainty itself surrounding this issue and why we need the NAS study.

Now, the conclusion reached here in the study is that: “better understanding of the course of these disorders would provide information that would assist in formulating strategies for tertiary intervention.”

So the new studies, the continuing studies will seek ways to intervene. There is no certainty that a complex area for studies for a long time to come. I hope that we do not stop after we complete 2 more years of study. But there will be an ongoing set of gathering of evidence and development of intervention strategies that make it safer for the people in the workplace. That is no reason to delay.

What we really hear today is a clear statement of the Republican platform on the workplace. The workplace is not a place that they want to make safe for the workers. They are indicating their great contempt for workers, as they have indicated repeatedly. OSHA, of course, is a major target.

They have several bills which attack OSHA, and they always give them strange names or names that camouflage the real intent. There is the “Science Integrity Act,” which is actually a bill to allow businesses with financial interest in particular regulations to place their own experts on the peer review panels. That is a majority Republican bill for OSHA.

There is a “Safety Advancement For Employees Act,” and that is a bill to exempt penalties to employers who violate the OSHA standards.

There is the “OSHA Reform Act of 1999” which would totally eliminate OSHA’s enforcement of standards in its protection of whistle blowers. Then there is the “Fair Access to Indemnity Act,” which is a bill to chill OSHA enforcement by awarding attorney fees to businesses whenever OSHA lost a case.

They are consistent. They have been plugging away at OSHA for a long time. They are consistently hostile to working families. That is what we are hearing today. It is good that we are having this debate to have the destructive Republican platform for working families clearly stated on this floor.

by the National Academy of Sciences does not matter because there was some kind of letter signed by the chairman of the Committee Appropriations and the ranking member telling OSHA it was not barred from going forward with its intended regulations. But the fact of the matter is, while every one knew about the study, no one, with the exception of a few Members of Congress, was aware of the letter. It certainly would not stand up in any court as the basis for expression of legislative intent.

Second, the opponents argue that OSHA has worked on ergonomics for almost a decade and that fact somehow makes the NAS study irrelevant. Well, again, Congress and the President agreed to fund the comprehensive study by the National Academy of Sciences just in October, not 10 years ago. We, Congress, decided the issue needed more study, and we were willing to spend nearly a million taxpayer dollars to finally get the comprehensive and impartial look at the scientific and medical evidence before OSHA should regulate.

Looking back, 10 years is instructive in one regard. Ten years ago, the Department of Labor claimed that ergonomics-related injuries accounted for about 3 percent of all workplace injuries and illnesses. OSHA now claims that ergonomic-related injuries account for 34 percent of workplace injuries.

Now, this huge difference is not just because of an increase in injuries. In fact, workplace injuries have been declining in recent years. The difference between the 3 percent in 1990 and the 34 percent that OSHA refers to today is simply due to the Department of Labor’s changing definition.

There has not even been a consistent, uniform definition of what injuries would be addressed by an ergonomics regulation. Now that in itself is a good indication of the scientific and medical uncertainty itself surrounding this issue and why we need the NAS study, that OSHA wants to ignore.

A vote in favor of H.R. 987 is an exercise in prudent judgment and a responsible step towards sound workplace safety regulation. To reject this bill is to advance the misguided philosophy of “ready, fire, aim.”

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS).

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Chairman, it would be good to have a few facts on the record. I think it important to take another section from the President’s veto message where he states that the administration agreed to the inclusion of funding for this study based on a clean understanding that these studies would not be used as a reason to delay OSHA’s proposed ergonomic standards. H.R. 987 would reverse this agreement by forcing OSHA to wait up to 2 years before issuing a standard in expectation that the conclusions of a new NAS study were different from those already reached by NAS just a decade ago. These two studies do exist. They keep saying they do not exist. This NAS study was completed in 1998, published in 1999.

The conclusion reached here in the study is that: “better understanding of the course of these disorders would provide information that would assist in formulating strategies for tertiary intervention.”

So the new studies, the continuing studies will seek ways to intervene. There is no certainty that a complex area for studies for a long time to come. I hope that we do not stop after we complete 2 more years of study. But there will be an ongoing set of gathering of evidence and development of intervention strategies that make it safer for the people in the workplace. That is no reason to delay.

What we really hear today is a clear statement of the Republican platform on the workplace. The workplace is not a place that they want to make safe for the workers. They are indicating their great contempt for workers, as they have indicated repeatedly. OSHA, of course, is a major target.

They have several bills which attack OSHA, and they always give them strange names or names that camouflage the real intent. There is the “Science Integrity Act,” which is actually a bill to allow businesses with financial interest in particular regulations to place their own experts on the peer review panels. That is a majority Republican bill for OSHA.

There is a “Safety Advancement For Employees Act,” and that is a bill to exempt penalties to employers who violate the OSHA standards.

There is the “OSHA Reform Act of 1999” which would totally eliminate OSHA’s enforcement of standards in its protection of whistle blowers. Then there is the “Fair Access to Indemnity Act,” which is a bill to chill OSHA enforcement by awarding attorney fees to businesses whenever OSHA lost a case.

They are consistent. They have been plugging away at OSHA for a long time. They are consistently hostile to working families. That is what we are hearing today. It is good that we are having this debate to have the destructive Republican platform for working families clearly stated on this floor.
Mr. GOODLING. What is the division of time at the present time, Mr. Chairman?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GOODLING) has 17 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLAY) has 18½ minutes remaining.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. McKEON), our erstwhile Subcommittee Chair.

Mr. McKEON. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I rise in strong support of H.R. 987, the Workplace Preservation Act.

For years, the issue of ergonomics has been fiercely debated. Unfortunately, many would like to make this a partisan debate, when, in fact, we all want what is best for the American worker. Therefore, in order to best address the issue, last year Congress and the President agreed to fund a comprehensive 2-year study to look at the scientific evidence surrounding repetitive tasks and workplace injuries. I supported this provision when it was included in last year’s omnibus bill because it provided a commonsense solution to a very difficult issue. As such, I was alarmed when I heard that OSHA was moving forward earlier this year on a proposed ergonomics standard barely before the study had begun. Consequently, I cosponsored H.R. 987 and voted for it when it was considered by the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

To me, this bill is very basic. It simply says that the Labor Department must wait to move forward until the fundamental medical and scientific questions surrounding ergonomics are answered. We owe that to the Members of this body who supported the provision. We owe that to the taxpayers, who funded this million dollar study. We owe it to the thousands of businesses who would be accountable to the new standards. And most importantly, we owe it to the American workers who deserve a safe and healthy workplace.

Again, I urge all my colleagues to vote for H.R. 987.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHLERS) from the committee.

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I am very sympathetic to the ailments I have encountered, and I will amplify on that during debate later on.

The American Public Health Association’s national women’s groups, according to Women Work, the National Network for Women’s Employment, all urge a “no” vote on this resolution. I urge my colleagues to join them.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO).

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Workplace Preservation Act, which bars OSHA from issuing vital ergonomics standards until the National Academy of Sciences has completed its study on this issue.

This legislation is unnecessary. The NAS study duplicates work that has already been completed by the National Association for Occupational Safety and Health. OSHA could have published regulations this year if it could move forward on this issue. This is another example of prohibiting OSHA from carrying out its mandate, which is to protect employees across the country from hazards of the workplace.

Ergonomic injuries are the most common serious workplace health problems that face workers. Each day means another 220,000 employees involved in everything from heavy lifting to data entry will suffer injuries associated with repeated trauma such as carpal tunnel syndrome. One of three workers’ compensation dollars goes to ergonomic injuries. The number continues to rise.

Let me just mention that, in fact, ergonomic guidelines are good for employees and are good for business. Let me give my colleagues two examples from the State of Connecticut. In New Haven, at the Ives Company, which is a hardware manufacturer, they reduced employee injuries by 90 percent by cutting out manual lifting. Aetna Life redesigned its workstations and productivity increased by 24 percent. Businesses can win. Ives cut its injury costs from $38,400 to $8,700. Aetna calculated its productivity increase and brought it to $621,000 annually.
Ergonomic guidelines are good for hard-working men and women. They are good for businesses, large and small. We need to end this delay, and we need to support progress. We need to support and protect hard-working men and women and save money in health care costs and lost wages.

I urge my colleagues to oppose this bill.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, may I have the division of time again?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GOODLING) has 19% minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLAY) has 14% minutes remaining.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. ISAKSON), a member of the committee.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I rise in support of H.R. 987, as introduced by the distinguished gentleman from Missouri.

I rise to make really two points. The first is my personal experience. In the State of Georgia, for years, where I worked in the legislature on workers compensation legislation, without question, the preponderance of the cases that went to final court were cases over musculoskeletal disorders. I believe if we were to check the other 50 States in the United States of America, we would find also the preponderance of those cases that had to go to court were over musculoskeletal disorders. And we would also find that in every case a physician of renown, a physician with experience, testified on behalf of the injured party and on behalf of the business. And decisions fell on both sides. And why? For a very simple reason. It is a very difficult task to determine exactly what the cause was.

To wait for scientific data to be conclusive is important, and to wait for this study that has been funded to come back before those regulations is also very important.

But I also want to address what the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS) said. This is not a battle of us against workers and someone else for them. This is not a battle against the lady that the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Boxer) mentioned, who over and over repeated those motions. But it is a battle over looking at all the interest of regulation.

So let me personalize the story. Let me talk about James Abney, a doctor in Marietta, Georgia, who employs his wife and two dental assistants. A few years ago, when a major problem in our country arose over the possible spread of AIDS in the use of dentistry, and many will remember that case, immediate regulations came down which caused the acquisition of almost $40,000 in additional equipment, additional techniques, additional coverings in treatment and additional policies.

None of us would argue that was not the appropriate response, but they were quick, and that absence of data, that lack of data of those within a year were repealed as being unnecessary. But the $40,000 was not paid back to Dr. Abney.

Businesses deserve the right to have scientific data before business does what it will do, and that is take care of the best interest of its workers.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY).

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Earlier, one of our colleagues said this was ready, fire, aim. I think that we really have here is ready, aim, delay, delay some more, delay forever if we can.

They talked about this being an effort not to prohibit, but it is in fact an effort to delay this for up to 2 years.

They talked about wanting to make sure they have all the studies before there are some sweeping regulations. The irony is that their proposed study would merely review existing information in literature.

This is the same group standing up saying delay, we want to wait the National Academy of Sciences report, which rejected the National Academy of Sciences report saying that there should be statistical sampling in the census. They threw that out. But now, because it is to their benefit to wait and delay, they want to wait for the National Academy of Sciences report.

There are reports out there, Mr. Chairman. Let me say that the National Institute of Safety and Health has already had the most comprehensive, most effective study ever done to try to determine the relationship between those types of injuries and the exposure to the workplace risk factors was shown. They have identified over 2,000 studies of work-related injuries and hazards, two thousand.

They selected 600 of the studies for detailed review based on well-accepted criteria, that included strength of association, consistency, temporality, and coherence of evidence. Twenty-seven peer reviewers examined that document including epidemiologists and other scientists, physicians, ergonomists, engineers, industrial hygienists, employers and employee representatives. Based on that review of the scientific evidence, they had a substantial body of credible research that showed strong evidence of association between those types of injuries and work-related physical factors.

The NAS study in 1998, Mr. Chairman, reviewed the same body of evidence, but it supplemented that evidence by including reviews of biomechanical and other control intervention studies. They then had scientists review it and had panel discussions.

They had a 10-member steering committee prepare the report. They had a peer review by an additional 10 scientists.

Mr. Chairman, I think my colleagues get the point. This is ready, aim, delay, delay, delay.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume to again remind everyone that NIOSH said that an in-depth study would be very, very beneficial.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. TERRY).

Mr. TERRY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 987. Prior to my service here in the House, I was a trial lawyer in Omaha, Nebraska. Now, I know that is not necessarily a term of endearment on this side of the aisle; but it does give me certain experiences and insight into issues such as this because as much as 50 percent of my practice was representing people with injuries, worker compensation claims.

I represented many women who suffered from repetitive motion injuries, the most common of which is to the wrists, known as carpal tunnel syndrome, and I sympathize with these folks. I have seen it affect people minimally, and I have seen it affect them seriously, some enough to lose their jobs.

I have learned from speaking to many medical experts and reading a great many medical studies on this subject that there is much controversy on the cause of these injuries, including how much repetitive motion versus trauma is necessary to cause the onset of symptoms.

Until we know more facts about the various causes of repetitive motion injuries, how do we know the best method to avoid reducing these injuries? We are only guessing at the best way to protect workers.

I am concerned that without the National Academy of Sciences study, we may allow regulations that have the unintended consequences of one extreme doing nothing and the other exacerbating injuries or causing different types of injuries. And I am not willing to accept that risk.

Mr. Chairman, I support H.R. 987; and I urge my colleagues to join me in voting for it.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH).

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I thank the distinguished gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to vote against H.R. 987, the so-called ‘‘Workplace Preservation Act.’’ Perhaps it ought to be called ‘‘Worker Out of the Workplace Act.’’ Because this legislation is against working women.

This bill is about our aunts. It is about our mothers, our sisters. It is
Mrs. American taxpayer before we should not wait until the National Administration almost $1 million to complete study on ergonomics to ensure the status quo and simply allow the National passage of this bill maintains the status. It increases claims. It increases litigation. It cuts business profits. But it also hurts businesses in reduced productivity. It cuts business profits. It increases claims. It increases litigation.

This is time for new thinking. We are entering a new millennium. Let us have new thinking and let us start by voting “no” on H.R. 987.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. HILLEARY), another member of the committee.

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Chairman, I am proud to stand before this House today as a cosponsor and strong supporter of H.R. 987, the Workplace Preservation Act.

Do not let some of the opponents of this legislation fool us. They say that if this legislation passes, workers will be subject to an endless amount of illnesses and workplace injuries.

However, to forget that passage of this bill maintains the status quo and simply allows the National Academy of Sciences to complete a study on ergonomics to ensure the safety of American workers.

In last year’s omnibus appropriations bill, Congress gave the Clinton administration almost $1 million to complete this study. That is the law. The President signed the bill. He agreed to do this study as a prudent first step.

What I do not understand is why we should not wait until the National Academy of Sciences study comes back with that study paid for by Mr. and Mrs. American taxpayer before we make a decision on the issue. It is silly to throw the American taxpayers’ money away in order to prematurely enact a regulation that has been referred to as counterproductive.

While the administration continues to threaten to enact a regulation on ergonomics before a study is completed, I find their actionsakin to a doctor delivering a treatment before diagnosis. There is no scientific certainty in the causes, the diagnosis, prevention, and correction of workplace injuries, and we should not hastily make rules without having proper scientific evidence.

Meanwhile, the potential impact of the administration’s regulatory scheme could reach into the billions of dollars. OSHA estimated the compliance cost within the trucking industry alone at $257 million and $3.5 billion for all industries. Private studies have estimated that it might cost as much as $6.5 billion.

Now, who is going to pay for this additional cost? Consumers? Businesses, of course, will pass on this new cost to those who purchase products. So not only are we throwing away the $1 million the taxpayers give us, but we are also telling them that they would have to pay more in order to provide food and other items for their families.

Another claim my colleagues may hear is that ergonomics regulations will help the American worker. Yet, these regulations also alarm many of the people that they are designed to help. Several workers who would be covered under an ergonomics standard make their money based on the number of items they deliver. If we restrict the amount they can officially deliver, the workers themselves lose money.

So let us see, where does this leave us?

The American taxpayers. They lose under any new regulation because we are throwing $1 million of their money away and forcing them to pay higher prices.

American business? They lose because it will likely cost billions for them to comply with these prospective regulations.

Does the American worker win? No. Many of them will lose because they will receive less in salary and commissions thanks to the new regulations. And some of them will lose their jobs altogether to off-shore labor.

Let us protect hard-working Americans and not establish uncertain ergonomic standards.

I urge a “yes” vote on H.R. 987.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire as to how much time remains on both sides?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GOODLING) has 10½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GOODLING) has 7 minutes remaining.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

Mr. KIND. Mr. Chairman, I thank the ranking member for yielding to me the time.

There has been a lot of reference this evening in regards to the money appropriated last fall in the omnibus appropriations bill for the 2-year NAS study. While that may be true, the legislative history behind that bill is perfectly clear. At least it was on this side, and it was with the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations when they wrote to Secretary Herman a letter in which they stated, “We are writing to urge Congress to fund the NAS study, it is no way our intent to block or delay issuance by OSHA of a proposed rule on ergonomics.”

Mr. Chairman, as a member of the Committee on Education and the Workforce, I rise in opposition to H.R. 987. And let us also be clear that if H.R. 987 does pass tonight, it will be the fourth time in 5 years in which this Congress has been able to effectively block and move forward on issuing ergonomics rules from the Department of Labor and OSHA.

Proponents of the legislation claim that there is not enough science to justify moving forward. This, however, is an issue that has been studied to death, over 2,000 studies exist examining ergonomics.

As my friend from Massachusetts (Mr. TERRNEY) already indicated, in 1997 the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health evaluated over 600 of those 2,000 studies; and they concluded that there is a substantial body of credible evidence showing the cause and effects of repetitive motion injuries and illnesses in the workplace.

I am concerned that Members are using the 2-year NAS study as an excuse to go into a four-corner offense and just delay, delay, and delay and hope that no rule is ever promulgated.

Quite frankly, I do not understand why. There are a lot of companies in western Wisconsin that are already implementing their only ergonomic standards in the workplace, of which is 3M, one of the largest manufacturing companies in the Nation, three fairly large signifficant plants are located in my district. And they are doing it for two reasons: first, because they recognize the need for it and, second, because it makes good business sense.

In fact, the chief ergonomics officer for 3M, Tom Alban stated, “Our experience has shown that incorporating good ergonomics into our manufacturing and administrative process can be effective in reducing the number of and the severity of work-related MSDS, which not only benefits our employees but also makes good business sense.”

3M’s evolving ergonomics process has been effective at reducing the impacts of these disorders on their employees and their business.
From 1993 to 1997, 3M has experienced a 50-percent reduction in ergonomics-related OSHA recordable and a 70-percent cut in ergonomics-related lost time. I think that is another good reason to vote against this legislation tonight.

I would encourage my colleagues tonight to stand up for working families. Do we want a lot of good ergonomics-related laws already doing? Allow OSHA to move forward on implementing rules on ergonomics standards. It makes sense. It makes good business sense. And in the long run it is going to help the working people in this country.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. GRANGER).

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the bipartisan Workplace Preservation Act (H.R. 987).

I do so because of a very simple premise: we cannot prescribe a solution until we diagnose the problem. Doctors know this. In fact, every day they examine patients' symptoms hoping to discover underlying disease. But no doctor will ever order a specific medication until he or she is satisfied the actual sickness has been discovered.

Mr. Chairman, I believe it would serve us well to remember this analogy as we consider this issue. Workplace injuries is a serious matter. There is no question this issue is an important concern to millions of Americans. But there are a great many questions as to the cause and effect of ergonomics.

In fact, over the last few years, many of the country's leading physicians and researchers on injuries of hand, back, and upper extremities have testified before Congress that the causes and impact of these disorders are not easy to discover.

Are they caused by too much typing on a computer or too many hours in front of a scanner? We do not know. But we need to know, and we are trying to find out.

That is why last year Congress appropriated $890,000 for the National Academy of Sciences to conduct a study of all the available scientific literature examining the cause-and-effect relationship between repetitive task and physical pain. The study is scheduled to be completed by the middle of the year 2001. Yet, amazingly, in a March hearing before the Subcommittee on Workforce Protections, the Assistant Secretary of the Office of Health and Safety Administration vowed that issuing an ergonomic standard was the agency's top priority for this year.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues not to confuse motion with action. I am afraid that is exactly what the Office of Health and Safety Administration is about to do.

Congress had it right last fall. Let us take our time and let us do it right. Let us put science before politics, and let us determine exactly what the problem is before we prescribe the solution.

I hope all of my colleagues will support this common sense bill, which simply requires the Secretary of Labor to wait for the National Academy of Sciences to complete their study before it issues any new regulations.

Is this too much to ask? After all, is this not what we expect when we do see our doctors? Why should we expect our Congress to do anything less?

Mr. Chairman, let us get our facts straight before we legislate. Let us pause before we determine a cause. I urge my colleagues to support this bipartisan bill.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from Hawaii (Mrs. MINK).

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Chairman, I thank the ranking member for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the passage of H.R. 987, the Workplace Preservation Act. It is merely another delaying tactic. We have seen this every year when this matter comes up.

H.R. 987 requires the Secretary of Labor to wait for the completion of another National Academy of Science study. We have had many studies. This delay is simply not supported by the evidence. Scientific literature supported by safety experts already shows that the workplace factors cause musculoskeletal disorders.

The National Academy of Sciences and National Institute for Occupational Safety and Environmental Medicine have clearly demonstrated the relationship between ergonomic problems and the onset of these disorders.

The American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine has confirmed that there is adequate scientific foundation for the OSHA to proceed.

Since 1995, we have seen one request after another for a delay. The Department of Labor is prepared to issue these standards. We need the standards to prevent injuries.

It is incomprehensible why an industry that is suffering from $20 billion of losses because of these injuries is still seeking to block the issuance of standards which could save these injuries and in fact keep the workers at the workplace producing the goods, producing the values that these industries fully need.

I hope that this bill will be defeated and that the workers' safety will come first.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Georgia (Mr. NORWOOD), a member of the committee.

Mr. NORWOOD. I thank the gentleman very much for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 987, the Workplace Preservation Act, and I commend the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT) for pushing this bill.

The purpose of this bill is pretty clear and I think very compelling. It requires the Secretary of Labor to hold off issuing standards and regulations on ergonomics until the National Academy of Sciences completes a study on the actual cause of ergonomic injuries.

This Congress has spent nearly $1 million to determine with some degree of accuracy just what is the status of medical science with respect to the diagnosis and the classification of ergonomics problems. Why in the world OSHA would want to proceed before we have a good understanding of this is simply not comprehensible. We have sat through where scientists and doctors have come before us and testified they do not know or understand the cause-and-effect relationship between work activities and musculoskeletal disorders.

Now, what is ergonomics? It is simply a repetitive motion syndrome. If you take two people and both of them work and in their work they move their hand like this all day in doing their job, that is in fact repetitive motion. The question may be, will one of them have a carpal tunnel, will one of them have a musculoskeletal pain? If that is the case, why does one have it and not the other? We do not understand that. Medicine does not understand why one does and one does not.

In addition to that, one of those two people may go home every night and knit and they use that motion over and over. Do they have a carpal tunnel pain, the question then would be, was that caused? Is there a direct correlation between that motion and the pain? Is that pain being caused by knitting every night or is that pain being caused by working every day?

Never fear, OSHA is here. OSHA is an agency that is incompetent in writing these standards. OSHA cops are incompetent in regulating people on this subject. The business community, it is true, is working very, very hard to try to make the workplace an easier place, in lifting, in turning, in twisting, in doing the same repetitive motion all day. They frankly are doing a pretty good job. Why is OSHA wanting to regulate that? Well, it is an agency that likes to regulate. They are trying their best to give themselves something else to do. We all know agencies up here spend a lot of the taxpayers' money getting studies to say exactly what they want to say. What do the doctors and scientists tell us is that they do not know for sure. There is not a direct correlation. OSHA, of course, tells us it is very sure, that it knows, and it is sure they know what to do.
Mr. Chairman, we should absolutely wait until this study is complete. Use good science.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 1/2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SANCHEZ).

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the ranking member for yielding me this time.

American workers should not have to wait for OSHA to proceed with its ergonomic standards. In fact, 16 years ago while an MBA student, we as future employees and employers were studying ergonomic standards and what to do in the work area. This is not new.

Scientists and researchers have documented over and over again that musculoskeletal disorders, or MSDs, are related to workplace risk factors. These disorders affect people of all types of occupations, laborers, nurses, accountants, and many of us here know about the injuries personally.

For example, my first job in high school was scooping ice cream 20 hours a week, 6 years. That job involved the same motion over and over again 20 hours a week. I still have problems with one of my wrists today.

It is estimated that every year, over 600,000 workers suffer from work-related MSDs. For many workers, these injuries are debilitating, causing constant and intense pain. It is estimated that these work-related injuries cost employers between $15 and $20 billion a year in workers' compensation.

We need to allow OSHA to proceed with its ergonomic standards. I ask that my colleagues vote "no" on this bill.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 1/2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ROEMER).

Mr. BELFER. Mr. Chairman, we all know in Congress and throughout the country that smoking is bad for you and that cigarettes can do great harm to your health and possibly kill you. We also know that repetitive stress disorders and ergonomics hurt, harm, put people out of work to the number of 600,000 people a year.

Now, we did not wait with cigarettes to identify every carcinogenic agent before we finally said, "We are going to do something about cigarettes." We have had 2,000 studies on ergonomics and what they do to people to harm them doing the same thing over and over in the workplace. We need to now act. That is why people in our home States send us here.

Now, who supports this kind of action? I have a press release here from the Secretary of Labor:

"These painful and sometimes crippling illnesses now make up 48 percent of all recordable industrial workplace illnesses. We must do our utmost to protect workers from these hazards not only in the red meat industry but all U.S. industries." Secretary Reich? No. Secretary Herman? No. That is dated August 30, 1990. That is Secretary Elizabeth Dole. Secretary Elizabeth Dole.

Now, I have kind of worked this on science that we need to act and act now? Well, the list goes on and on. The American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine, a pretty reputable organization. The National Advisory Committee on Occupational Safety and Health, I would go with them. The National Academy of Sciences. Those are pretty good organizations, Mr. Chairman.

When you have businesses like Intel and Chrysler and GM and Ford Motor Company out there doing this in the workplace, we need to act now.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 1/2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS).

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I rise in strong opposition to this bill.

There is something attractive about the argument that we should just wait and listen for more science. But that was the argument that was made prior to 1990 when Secretary of Labor Elizabeth Dole said, "It's time to do this."

And that was the argument that was made prior to 1992 and Secretary of Labor Lynn Martin said, "No, it's time to do this."

Mr. Chairman, this is not about more science or when we do this because, I assure you, another attempt later on to stop this regulation. This debate is about the merits of this regulation. I would ask my Republican friends, Mr. Chairman, to think about what comes naturally to them and that is, trusting the marketplace.

This regulation reminds me of the furor that took place in the late 1960s and early 1970s about unleaded gasoline. There was a proposal to have a Federal law that would eventually bar the use of leaded gasoline by making us make cars that could not use it. We were told at that time it would be the end of the auto industry, the end of the gasoline industry, it would cripple domestic producers of automobiles. It would raise costs. It would be a disaster. But we went forward and did it, anyway.

What happened? The marketplace responded. People throughout American industry built a better mousetrap. The amount of ambient lead in our air dropped dramatically and so did the price of gasoline, in real terms.

I believe here as well, if we set a clear standard that says you shall protect your employees from repetitive stress syndrome, it will say to a whole class of inventors and entrepreneurs and good businessmen, there is profit in finding ways to do that. Different kind of chairs, different kind of screens, different kind of keyboards on computers. The market will respond.

Trust the market. Let entrepreneurs get to work in finding safer working conditions to help workers stay safe.

Mr. Chairman, this is going to be a very close vote. I would urge Members do consider the merits and reject this bill.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, two quick observations: One, OPEC has a lot to say about the price of gasoline. Secondly, they always say if you are going to get a campaign, you have to get to be known. Elizabeth could not have paid for any more attention than she got this evening. She certainly is known all over the country, if she was not before, after this debate and I am sure she thanks all of you for giving her that great opportunity this evening.

Let me again say that so many times we rush into things, so many times we do legislation, so many times we promulgate regulation without any scientific knowledge as to will this help anyone and the people we are trying to help or will it not?

Last October, 333 Members of this House of Representatives, the Senate, the President said, "We believe that the National Academy of Sciences should do an in-depth study so that when we regulate, we regulate to help, not regulate to harm." They also said at that time, we should pay $800,000 of taxpayers' money to do it. All we say now is, "Let's see what they say," so that we do it. Let us not regulate and then see that we have caused more problems than we have cured. Let us regulate with the scientific knowledge before the regulations are written.

Again, I would ask all to vote in favor of the legislation to help those that we want to protect in the workplace. Vote "yes" on this legislation.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, the implication of the so-called "Workplace Preservation Act" is clear—passage of this bill will do nothing more than unnecessarily delay the adoption of a standard for ergonomics in the workplace. As a matter of fact, the only thing preserved by H.R. 987 is the employers' ability to further exploit the hard-working American laborer.

Since 1990 the number of workers that have suffered from MSDs totaled over 5 million people. Adoption of this bill won't do anything to help our workforce, rather it would only ensure that another 1 million workers will suffer the same fate. And as if these 5 million injured workers isn't enough evidence that something has to be done, we have studies from the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health and the National Academy of Sciences that conclude that musculoskeletal disorders can be reduced and prevented through ergonomic intervention in the workplace.

The evidence is comprehensive and clear. This request for more research is a weak attempt to stall the adoption of safe ergonomic conditions for our hard-working laborers. We already know what must be done to provide
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Chairman, I oppose H.R. 987, the Workplace Preservation Act.

The human body is a complicated machine. There is a lot we are still learning about the body, how it works, and how to protect it. Far better for me as a scientist to say that we should avoid studies to get the facts, I expect, in fact, that we will learn a lot about the human body and how to take care of it in the workplace for decades to come.

But several of my colleagues here have talked about the unpredictability of workplace injuries. They may not be sure why they have back problems or other injuries. Well, in fact that is the point. Because the human body is so complicated, in many cases, it is difficult to determine the cause of an individual musculoskeletal disorder.

If we try to identify the cause of injury in each case, we could rely on the employer’s altruism or self-interest or worker’s comp findings or even the threat of a lawsuit to see that each individual threatening situation was taken care of. But it is in just such circumstances where we have statistical evidence about this complicated machine that we need the kind of general regulations and protections that OSHA provides. We want to continue the effort to obtain the best evidence, but that is not a reason to delay providing guidelines.

There is now concrete evidence. There are clear relationships between occupational assignments and musculoskeletal injuries. See the National Research Council, National Academy report and the NIOSH report. There are clear techniques and equipment for reducing injury or, as the National Academy says, specific interventions.

Ergonomic guidelines are not antibusiness. There are hundreds of outstanding businesses around the country that are working on ergonomic solutions and applying ergonomic remedies. The cost industry total of something like $20 billion a year lost due to ergonomic injuries. And we have to remember there are hundreds of thousands of people who are not able to pick up and hug their children due to ergonomic injuries.

So what we need, of course, are good studies and we need the facts, and I hope we will continue to get them. But we have now enough knowledge about specific interventions in the workplace that will help reduce this cost to our economy and, more important, will reduce this harm and pain and suffering to individuals. We don’t need political delay.

Congress should vote against H.R. 987.

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Chairman, I rise to express my opposition to the passage of H.R. 987, the Workplace Preservation Act.

H.R. 987 requires the Secretary of Labor to wait for completion of a National Academy of Sciences study before issuing regulations creating standards or guidelines for ergonomics in the workplace.

This delay is unnecessary. Scientific literature supported by safety and health experts already documented that workplace factors cause musculoskeletal disorders. The National Academy of Sciences and National Institute for Occupational Safety and Environmental Medicine have clearly demonstrated a relationship between ergonomic problems and the onset of musculoskeletal disorders.

The American Collected of Occupational and Environmental Medicine has confirmed that “there is an adequate scientific foundation for OSHA to proceed . . . . and no reason for OSHA to delay the rulemaking process while the National Academy of Science panel conducts its review.”

Duplicative studies are doing nothing to prevent injuries already suffering by millions of workers in all sectors of society: nurses, meatpackers, cashiers, computer users, and construction workers. Since 1995 the implementation of ergonomic guidelines have been repeatedly blocked, and this opposition has resulted in over 6 million workers suffering preventable injuries. Workers’ compensation costs have totaled $20 billion annually.

Further delay will be even more costly to industries as well as to workers. Clearly, we cannot afford to wait any longer for the issuance of workplace standards on ergonomics.

For the health and safety of America’s workers, I urge my colleagues to vote against the passage of H.R. 987. Mr. Chairman, I would like to express my support for H.R. 987. The Workplace Preservation Act. This legislation will block proposed OSHA rules regarding ergonomic injuries until a scientific study comparing workplace conditions and repetitive stress injuries is complete.

It is estimated that if the OSHA rules are put into effect, it could cost American businesses an extra $3.5 billion per year. H.R. 987 simply allows for the completion of the study by the National Academy of Sciences, which is expected in the next year, to discover if in fact there is a link between repetitive stress injuries and work conditions. Completing this study before implementing this costly regulation is simply common sense.

The fact is, these regulations could cost our country billions of dollars without guaranteeing the prevention of a single injury. Small business is the engine which drives our economy. We owe more to small business owners than to blindly allow implementation of these potentially devastating regulations. We must correct this proposed federal rule.

Mr. Chairman, I urge American workers should have the best working conditions. However, I do not believe we are moving forward to prevent workplace injuries by initiating rules that may not even address the problem. I urge my colleagues to support the further examination of these regulations by voting in favor of H.R. 987.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I oppose H.R. 987, the Workplace Preservation Act.

This legislation would prevent the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) from promulgating a desperately needed rule on ergonomics. H.R. 987 will needlessly subject hundreds of thousands of workers to occupational injuries while yet another study is completed.

Repetitive injuries are one of the leading causes of work-related illness. More than 647,000 Americans suffer serious injuries and illnesses due to musculoskeletal disorders, costing businesses $15 to $20 billion annually in workers’ compensation costs. Total costs of these injuries are estimated at $60 billion a year.

Ergonomics is the science of fitting the job physically to a worker—for example, by altering chairs, adjusting the speed of an assembly line, or using special braces to ease back strain from lifting heavy loads. A federal ergonomics standard is needed to protect American workers from employers who refuse to protect their employees. Unfortunately, the majority leadership would rather kowtow to industry and delay promulgation of an inevitable standard.

For the past several years, OSHA has been working toward the implementation of a regulation designed to reduce workplace injuries attributable to ergonomic factors in the workplace. OSHA has advanced a draft proposal that would provide an urgently needed health and safety standard for working Americans. The proposal draws from the businesses that have successfully prevented ergonomic injuries or reduced their severity in the workplace.

The issue of ergonomics and its impact on workplace injuries has been studied. It has been documented that ergonomic solutions prevent workplace injuries. For example, in 1997, the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health produced a study demonstrating the validity of the science underlying an ergonomics standard. A 1998 review by the National Academy of Sciences also found that musculoskeletal disorders in workers are caused by ergonomic hazards in the workplace.

A nursing home in Maine implemented ergonomics changes in the workplace. The nursing home cut their number of lost workdays from 573 in 1991 to 12 in 1996 by investing $60,000 on patient lifting devices and instituting a policy banning the lifting of patients unless there was more than one worker present to assist. This saved the employer more than $730,000 annually in workers’ compensation premiums as a result of this policy. This nursing home provides a clear example of the potential benefits of a uniform ergonomics standard.

Despite the multiple studies already completed, the FY 1999 Labor, Health and Human Services Appropriations Act provided $890,000 for the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) to review the scientific literature on the issue of work-related musculoskeletal disorders. The study was expected to take at least 24 months to complete. However, on October 19, 1999, Appropriations Chairman BOB LIVINGTON and Ranking Democrat DAVID OBEY assured Labor Secretary Alexis Herman in a letter that “by funding the NAS study, it is in no way our intent to block or delay issuance by OSHA of a proposed rule on ergonomics.”

Unfortunately, nine months later, the Republicans have broken their promise. This bill requires OSHA to delay its work until the next government study is concluded. The facts are clear—providing guidance to employers and employees on ergonomics will prevent tens of thousands of injuries, alleviate considerable human suffering, and save billions of dollars.

We should not have to wait for completion of yet another study to tell us what we already know. We must defeat H.R. 987. I urge my colleagues to join me in opposing H.R. 987.
SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Workplace Preservation Act”.

SECTION 2. FINDINGS.

(a) Congress finds the following:

(1) The Department of Labor, Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has announced that it plans to propose regulations during 1999 to regulate “ergonomics” in the workplace. A draft of OSHA’s ergonomics regulation became available in January 1999.

(2) A July, 1997, report by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) reviewing epidemiological studies that have been conducted of “work related musculoskeletal disorders of the upper extremities” showed that there is insufficient evidence to assess the level of risk to workers from repetitive motions. Such characterization would be necessary to write an efficient and effective regulation.

(3) An August 1998, workshop on “work related musculoskeletal injuries” held by the National Academy of Sciences also reviewed existing research on musculoskeletal disorders. It also showed that there is insufficient evidence to assess the level of risk to workers from repetitive motions.

(4) OSHA imposing a “solution” to ailments and disorders that are grouped as “repetitive stress injuries” and “musculoskeletal disorders” before sufficient scientific information about the diagnosis, causes, and prevention of such injuries and disorders is shown by the fact that such disorders have often increased in workplaces and increased recognition of musculoskeletal disorders.

(5) In October, 1998, Congress and the President agreed upon a comprehensive study by the National Academy of Sciences of the medical and scientific evidence regarding musculoskeletal disorders. The study is intended to evaluate the basic questions about diagnosis, causes, and prevention of such injuries and disorders is shown by the fact that such disorders have often increased in workplaces and increased recognition of musculoskeletal disorders. Given the level of uncertainty and dispute about these basic questions, and Congress’ intention that they be addressed in a comprehensive study by the National Academy of Sciences, it is premature for OSHA to decide that a regulation on ergonomics is necessary or appropriate to improving workers’ health and safety before such study is completed.

(b) The estimated costs of OSHA’s proposed ergonomics regulation range from OSHA’s low national estimate of $20,000,000 to some industry costs of $18,000,000,000 to $30,000,000,000. Any regulation with this kind of research and these numbers would be a stalling tactic, to use it as a reason to do nothing. We should not see this as a reason to stall; we should see this as a reason to look forward for additional information that gives us additional ways in which we can respond to the workers.

So I urge our colleagues to understand that this study completion does not deny and should not prevent us from having enough scientific data to go into the workplace and say we need to raise these standards, and if we get additional information, as I hope we will, we will have the courage again to say that we need to refine that.

Consider also there are already companies not waiting for these studies. They are doing it on their own. Why? Because they want to protect their workers. They also want to have a more productive workforce.

In my district alone, I know many of the workers compensation claims I get from workers are related to repetitive motion, and those people are suffering severely. They are not producing for their workers, and they are certainly not producing for themselves.

So this bill needs to be defeated. It is flawed in its logic, and it is only a stalling tactic that should be recognized for what it is. We should be protecting the workers with the clear, scientific data we have in hand, and there is sufficient scientific data to know that fact. I heard one of my colleagues say that there have been thousands of studies, and this is not something new. This is something that will be evolving as we go forward, and to use this as a tactic to do nothing clearly is seen by the workers as a way of not respecting their rights, and I think we do a disfavor.

We indeed support this. I urge a defeat of the Workplace Preservation Act.

Mr. NORTHHUP. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak in strong opposition against the Workplace Preservation Act. I do that with recognition that what we did in the appropriation bill last time when we indeed funded $500,000 for a study to be completed by the National Academy of Sciences was the right thing to do.

Mr. Chairman, I think the question is, why is this bill needed? Why is this act needed? Assuming the very best in intention, the sponsors of this bill say this act is needed because we have a study that is in progress, a study that indeed would give us additional scientific information as to how best to respond to the illness caused by repetitive motion. I support that study. I think we ought to go forward and complete that study.

But that reason is so faulty on its premise. Why is it that we can go to a study of higher standards before you get that? You do not do that with cancer, you do not do that with AIDS, you do not do that with any other illness. You work with the scientific knowledge you have, because you want to alleviate the illness there may be.

In fact, if this study is completed, and I hope it is, and I think it will give us valuable information, it would supplement what is already there.

By the way, in 1998 I think the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS) put it poignantly. In 1998 there was a study. In 1998 there was a study. Again in 1998. The year we passed this bill, there was a study that showed a direct relationship, a cause factor, between the illness suffered and the repetitive motion.

So there is not any question that indeed there is evidence, scientific evidence.

Now do we need more studies? Of course we do. Even after the next study is completed, if we are true to trying to relieve this illness, we will always have to do diligent, frugal and always doing the kind of research that allows us to gain the best scientific method.

I say we should really be about protecting our workers with the current science we have now as we seek additional science. They are not in contradiction with each other. This is only a stalling tactic, to use it as a reason to do nothing. We should not see this as a reason to stall; we should see this as a reason to look forward for additional information that gives us additional ways in which we can respond to the workers.
the costs that are involved in jobs, we have to consider that what government does may cause some high costs that we drive or add to the job cost for working men and women, overseas.

As we look at workers compensation, it is a very delicate balance that we have designed the workers compensation program for. We are trying to balance the very important aspect of protecting workers who are injured on the job, to provide for their medical expenses, to pay them a portion of their missed wages and to help them get back to work as quickly as they possibly can.

At the same time we are eager not to just write a blank check because the Congress does not write the blank check; the workplace writes the check for paying for these workers’ costs, and so if we don’t miss a day because costs higher and higher, if we begin to incur a super amount of costs that have not been paid for in the past, what we really do is encourage our companies to finally realize that, if they are going to compete internationally, that they are going to have to move these workplaces overseas in order to avoid an absolutely unassumable cost.

Mr. Chairman, we know that the human body wears out. All of us that have moms and dads know today that they are getting hip replacements; they are getting knee replacement operations. As my colleagues know, I myself after fixing dinner for years for a family of 6 children find that slicing up food has caused my thumb joint to wear out. The fact is who can say whether it is that or the fact that I sit at a desk now and write that has caused thumb joint to wear out.

Mr. Chairman, before we enact huge new costs from the workplace, a workplace that might steal away our best jobs, we ought to have the science to figure out whether or not these are work induced, what we can do to prevent them and make sure that we do not create an enormous cost that take away our good jobs.

As my colleagues know, the truth is today that Congress could pass workers compensation laws that would cover everything. We could cover employees that get sick and miss a day because they caught a cold or caught a virus or the flu at work. We could cover every thing for our workers, and all of us who care about workers would like to do that. But if in doing that we caused some of our best jobs to leave this country so that they could continue to be competitive, we would create the worst for our workers.

Secondly, the effect we have is that we supersede all State laws here. What we do not say today is the standard, not only do we say this has to be prevented, but we say all workers who have an injury and suffer an injury get super benefits over and above any other benefits that are established in State laws today.

We would say they get a hundred percent of their weekly pay; we say that this has to continue for 6 months, and so all the State programs right now that are designed in a way to help the worker and the employer have the incentive to get the worker back to work so that they can have the best resolution of this and they can have the opportunity to get back to work, all of that is lost.

It creates an incentive for every worker, no matter what the particular cause is, to see to it that their injury would fall under the repetitive motion scheme so that they would get more than anybody else in their workplace that would have an injury under any other scheme. We take away all of the benefits that workers have been designed to fairly meet workers’ needs and workers’ compensations for injuries and instead drive everybody into this new super-sized scheme for paying for injuries.

I am sorry tonight that this debate has been framed as a debate about pro workers or against workers because I believe that everybody here in this Congress wants workers to have the best. They want our American workers to have their good jobs, and they want them to stay in this country, and they want the workers compensation to be affordable.

Let us vote yes on this bill and continue this.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California.

Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

I rise in opposition to this legislation. I appreciate the speech just given by the gentlewoman, except this is a little different than what she outlined. This is about preventing the injuries to those workers. This is about the fact that if we do this right, those workers will not have to go on workers comp, their employers will not have to pay their compensation costs, and people can stay on the job, and they can feed their families and provide the wherewithal for their children.

That is what this legislation is about.

To suggest somehow that what we need is one more study, we need good science. The opposition to this legislation is not about good science; it is not about one more study. It is about a flat out opposition to the imposition of these rules and regulations to try to protect workers from musculoskeletal syndrome, and the purpose of that is this, that we can keep people on the job where they can remain productive.

Now to listen to the Republican argument here simply we must suspend re ality. We must suspend the reality of what every Member of Congress experiences when they fly back to their districts, and that is the number of flight attendants and others who are working on the airplane, delivering meals, taking care of us while we are there, who are wearing wrist braces, elbow braces, tendon braces, all the rest of it because of repetitive motion. The redesign of the carts on the airplanes because of repetitive motion, the baggage handlers and others because of repetitive motion who are wearing belts and back supports and all those kinds of activities because of repetitive motion because they understand that if they do not do that, they are going to end up disabled, they are going to end up with health care costs, and they are going to end up out of work, and their employer understands that.

Suspend reality when going into the Home Depot, suspend reality when going into the Price Club or into Costco where we see people engaged in repetitive motion, who are wearing the kinds of preventive apparatus on their backs, on their arms and the rest of it so that they will not lose the working hours; they will not lose that kind of income. Again, their employers understand that, their insurers understand that, and they require that to be part of the workplace.

Mr. Chairman, that is what this legislation is really about. It is about the recognition of the reality of the workplace and what we can now do, what we can do to do, and what we know from a medical/scientific standpoint will help prevent these kinds of injuries, injuries that plague hundreds of thousands of workers a year who are disabled and lose income, employers who lose the productivity of those workers, who have to train and retrain new people, who have to go out and find replacements for these individuals. That is what this legislation is about. It is not about one more study. We have peer reviewed the evidence here until we are blue in the face. We have provided the studies, and it has been going on and on.

As somebody mentioned earlier, it was originally Elizabeth Dole who said the time has come now to deal with this problem because of the injuries that were occurring in the workplace. We see this being responded to where we redesign keyboards or structuring for the keyboard that will not induce the kind of pain for people who have to work at it all the time at the checkout counters in the supermarket. We are redesigning the checkout counter so that people, the clerks there, will not suffer these kinds of injuries to their arms and to their elbows as they do their job.

So that is the kind of recognition that we are looking for; that is the kind of remedial activities that can be dealt with that can reduce the cost to the employer, can reduce the cost in the workplace and reduce health care costs.

That is why it is so urgent that we not pass this legislation which is an attempt to obstruct the imposition of this rule, because this is a rule that workers deserve. This is a rule that workers need, that their families need if they are going to be able to continue to be gainfully employed.

The evidence is clear, the science is clear, the health is clear on this measure, and the time has come, the time has come to implement this rule.

We have had statements before from the Committee on Appropriations, as I was saying, that the effort was not to delay this. We now see that this is an effort to delay this because the Republicans believe somehow that if they win the election, they can cut a better deal 18 months from now. Well, the better deal is not for the American workers. It may be for the Republican Party, but it is not for the workers.

This rule ought to be implemented, it ought to be implemented now, and we ought to start protecting. We ought to start protecting working men and women in this country who exhibit to us every day in the crafts and the trades and in the occupations in which they are employed at, the need for this rule because they are the damage that is done to them. This damage is evident on its face, and that is why we ought to deal with this rule.

Mr. Delay. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this bill. I think OSHA should not be trying to tie down American businesses and the American worker with regulations based on potentially unsound science.

The gentleman from California said we should be doing what is right. Well, Mr. Chairman, how does he know what is right? Is he telling us what we are wanting? Is this a study, a pure scientific study, not some conjecture, not something that has been cooked up by some politico sitting over in OSHA or the Department of Labor, real science.

The gentleman listed all kinds of wonderful things that are happening for the workers out there. Most of what is happening, in order to work with repetitive action, is happening within the marketplace without regulations.

I am not saying we should not regulate, but we should know what we are doing and have a study and rely on these studies in order to know what we are doing, because if we do not, we end up costing these same workers their jobs.

Last fall, President Clinton agreed with this Congress to authorize a study by the National Academy of Sciences to determine whether there is a need for some ergonomic regulation. I guess to the President and his OSHA, that agreement with this Congress is no good anymore, that his word is no good anymore.

This study will be done in a year or so. Despite this sincere effort to guarantee that regulations are at least based on sound science, OSHA has decided that it does not want to wait for the scientific findings. Why, do you ask, do they not want to wait? It is amazing to me that the workers or the unions would be against this bill because it is to the benefit of the workers to do what is right and what science dictates.

No, this is a political move by Washington union bosses in order to control the marketplace. That is all this is about. It has nothing to do with protecting the workers, because if they truly wanted to protect the workers, they would want to do it based on sound science.

OSHA wants to regulate as much as it can as soon as possible, and they are planning to do so, in direct contradiction to the belief that surely something is happening right now. We know it, it is happening, in order to work with reasonable ergonomic standards have been delayed excessive regulatory zeal of OSHA, it hurts American companies and the American worker with regulations already hinder American businesses and American workers.

Many of these regulations are outdated, they have been unnecessarily oppressive. OSHA has just simply based on trendy but unproven scientific theories of the moment.

It is amazing, when the bureaucrats have taken this approach, and many times are proven to be embarrassed by the approach that they take because in actual practice, the regulations are undermined and proven to be onerous and unproductive.

Irresponsible regulation of this kind hurts American companies and the workers that they employ. Despite the excessive regulatory zeal of OSHA, it should be the policy of the United States to research before we regulate, and this is all that this legislation does, it mandates that OSHA must work with the research that is completed by NAS before it starts sticking its fingers deeper into American business.

It is age-old advice, Mr. Chairman, to look before you leap. Likewise, government must research before it regulates.

So, Mr. Chairman, there is simply no consensus in the scientific community regarding the need to implement widespread, oppressive ergonomic policies. No new OSHA regulation should be enforced until conclusive research shows that legislation should be taken. But that time has not yet come, and I urge my colleagues to vote for this legislation.

Ms. Woolsey. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mrs. Fowler. Mr. Chairman, ergonomic standards have been delayed enough. I have been here long enough myself to be able to get the pattern and the rhythm of what goes on on the other side of the aisle when they do not agree with scientific studies. When we asked OSHA to answer to studies and that science does not say what they wanted to hear, then they demand more studies, and that is exactly what is happening right now. We know it, they know it, and it is not going to work. We can only delay this so long.

Mr. Chairman, before I close, let me just ask this. I resources professional in the electronics manufacturing industry. That was back in the seventies when I first went into that business. And at that time, we understood the problems that were caused by related stress injuries. In fact, it was trendy to take care of our employees and find solutions when we had carpal tunnel syndrome on our assembly floor.

In fact, the company I worked for began to see a large number of repetitive stress injuries. And when we figured out that the problems were occurring with one group of workers, we realized that our printed circuit board assemblers were using the same motions repeatedly. We realized that this was something that was possibly as possible but in inserting electronic components into printed circuit boards, they were causing themselves carpal tunnel syndrome. The company was causing it without knowing it.

Well, little by little, you can imagine what a different kind of thing happened to their arm. Now, today, to prevent such injury to employees, most electronic companies have automatic insertion machines. Employees do not even use those same processes, but back then the repeated push with the thumb did result in carpal tunnel syndrome over time.

Well, what I did as the human resource manager for the company was something that I am sure everybody over there would think is pretty darn odd. I called CAL-Osha and brought them into the company, and they came. They observed the workers carrying out their task. We worked with them as partners and came up with the appropriate solution for our workers, and their symptoms disappeared.

You see, it was important for us, because we were a company that was growing rapidly. And we knew that our workers’ injuries would certainly inhibit our growth and we probably would not become what had been our goal, to become a Fortune 300 company, which we did, but it would not have happened without a healthy workforce.

The point is that business knew about repetitive stress injuries years and years and years ago. Many employers have stepped up to the challenge to prevent repetitive stress injuries. They worked with OSHA, they worked with their workers comp carriers, because they know that their workers comp costs go up when they have injured workers. So we do not need further studies. Employers and employees will not benefit from further studies, but they will benefit from ergonomic standards.

We already have sound science regarding the problems caused by repetitive motion. The problem, I said it before and I will say it again, the problem appears to be when the Republican majority disagrees with science, they insist on more studies. The problem really should be to put together ergonomic standards to prevent injury in the workplace, to make the workplace safe for our employees, and this bill, H.R. 987, is an inexcusable delay tactic.

This delay tactic benefits no one. It does not benefit business, and it certainly does not benefit workers. I would urge my colleagues to oppose H.R. 987, because a vote against H.R. 987 is a vote for workers.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of this legislation. First, I want to commend the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT) and the Committee on Education and Workforce, the proper committee of jurisdiction on this issue, for advancing through the normal process this legislation to address ergonomics.

This is an issue that we have examined in Appropriations Committee hearings in recent years, and it is an issue of major concern to both employers and employees. Indeed, through fiscal year 1998, we carried a provision in appropriations law to bar any ergonomics regulation before agreeing in that year that such a bar was better left to consideration by the authorizers.

Mr. Chairman, there are situations where poor workplace ergonomics cause serious injuries that can and should be avoided. Clearly, in modern times, injuries demand risk management of employers, and employers are concerned not only with the health and safety of their workers, but also with the minimizing of the cost burden of injuries and illnesses of their employees on the bottom line. As Director Jeffries of OSHA has testified before our subcommittee on other occasions, such cases are already actionable in many circumstances under the general duty clause.

The issue today is whether the present state of science justifies imposing a prophylactic regulation of broad scope. I think that it does not. And make no mistake about it, the draft proposed regulation is a very broad one. It would apply to any general industry whose employees engage in manufacture or manual handling, and such workplaces would be required to implement a full ergonomics program upon the reporting of a work-related musculoskeletal disorder, notwithstanding the difficulties in determining whether such disorders are in fact work-related.

My own exploration of this issue has left me convinced that such a broad regulatory approach cannot be justified by that state of science, and should not be advanced without further study.

In 1996, after OSHA had already moved forward with stakeholder discussion on a draft ergonomic standard, I asked Dr. Katz, the director of the National Institute of Arthritis and Musculoskeletal and Skin Diseases at the National Institutes of Health if we knew enough scientifically for the Federal Government to be promulgating ergonomic standards.

His response was not yet. He went on to explain that despite extensive study, we are a long way from knowing the best medical management of repetitive motion disorders. I do not believe the science has moved enough in the intervening years, that is, 2 years, to justify OSHA’s draft proposed regulation. I note that the Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons supports this conclusion.

At a minimum, the burden of proof should be upon the proponents of broad ergonomics regulation to show that there has been such a dramatic change in the state of science in the past 2 years that a sweeping regulation can be justified. It seems to me that the NAS study provides such a needed check.

Mr. Chairman, this is a major regulatory change and one that should not be undertaken lightly. I think the gentleman from Missouri’s legislation adopts a wise approach to the issue, and I urge all Members to support passage of this bill.

Mrs. MALLOKEY of New York. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I am rising really in opposition strongly to H.R. 987. This is a needless delay to give American workers the protections they need and deserve. Since 1995, this is the fourth delay in 5 years. And each year the standard is delayed, another 650,000 workers will suffer disabling injuries.

In the interest of time, because many of my colleagues want to speak on this subject, I would like to put in the record case studies of constituents who have suffered from this disease and really the success stories of several businesses that have implemented their own ergonomic programs and greatly reduced the repetitive motion injury claims in their companies.

We need to go forward with these OSHA rules. It truly helps businesses too, because these disorders cost employers between $15 billion and $20 billion each year in workers compensation costs.

I would also like to point out that it is very much of a woman’s issue. Sixty percent of the claims are women that are in these repetitive typing jobs.

Mr. Chairman, I include for the RECORD information on ergonomics from articles and studies.

The material referred to is as follows:

SUCCESS WITH ERGONOMICS

State: New York, 14th.

Industry: Newspaper.
Employees: 5,000.

Success Brief: Reduced the number of workers’ compensation cases by 84%, cut lost-time cases by 75% and reduced the total days lost by 91%.

THE PROBLEM

In 1991, The New York Times began addressing work-related musculoskeletal disorders (MSDs) informally. By 1992 the company realized it needed to take a more structured approach to reduce the increasing number of MSDs. Many of the newspaper’s hardest working and most creative employees were getting hurt.

THE SOLUTION

The newspaper implemented an ergonomics program that included worksite and work-process evaluation, workplace re-design and renovation, training, on-site medical management, ergonomic equipment, a computerized tracking system and an in-house hotline telephone number to address ergonomic concerns and requests. Workstations were redesigned to fit the variety of jobs (graphic designers, reporters, editors) at the newspaper. Management support and employee involvement were key factors to the success of the newspaper’s program.

THE IMPACT

Over the four-year period (1992–1996), the company’s efforts resulted in an 84% drop in the number of MSD workers’ compensation cases, a 75% drop in lost-time case and a 91% decrease in total days lost.

ANGELA DIAZ (ILGWU)—NEW YORK, NY, LADIES’ GARMENT WORKERS

Angela Diaz has been a seamstress for 25 years.

Now 48, Diaz has suffered with a severe case of carpal tunnel syndrome for seven years.

With help from the ILGWU, she finally has gotten some relief through treatment at the union’s Occupational Health Clinic and surgery. The ILGWU also guided Diaz through the maze of applying for workers’ compensation; a two-year wait is normal for victims of carpal tunnel syndrome. During that period, most workers lose their health benefits and some must apply for welfare benefits to support their families.

Diaz says her life has been turned upside down. She cannot physically do the work necessary to maintain her home and family, much less the activities she once enjoyed.

SUCCESS WITH ERGONOMICS

State: New York, 8th.
Company: Banker’s Trust Co., New York, N.Y.

Industry: Banking and Finance.
Employees: Not available.

Success Brief: Claims tied to ergonomic issues dropped by almost 50% in one year.

THE PROBLEM

With one employee facing her second surgery for carpal tunnel syndrome, Banker’s Trust recognized a potential problem early on and decided to implement an ergonomics program. In 1995, the company received more

---

SUCCESS WITH ERGONOMICS

State: New York, 14th.

Industry: Newspaper.
Employees: 5,000.

Success Brief: Reduced the number of workers’ compensation cases by 84%, cut lost-time cases by 75% and reduced the total days lost by 91%.

THE PROBLEM

In 1991, The New York Times began addressing work-related musculoskeletal disorders (MSDs) informally. By 1992 the company realized it needed to take a more structured approach to reduce the increasing number of MSDs. Many of the newspaper’s hardest working and most creative employees were getting hurt.

THE SOLUTION

The newspaper implemented an ergonomics program that included worksite and work-process evaluation, workplace re-design and renovation, training, on-site medical management, ergonomic equipment, a computerized tracking system and an in-house hotline telephone number to address ergonomic concerns and requests. Workstations were redesigned to fit the variety of jobs (graphic designers, reporters, editors) at the newspaper. Management support and employee involvement were key factors to the success of the newspaper’s program.

THE IMPACT

Over the four-year period (1992–1996), the company’s efforts resulted in an 84% drop in the number of MSD workers’ compensation cases, a 75% drop in lost-time case and a 91% decrease in total days lost.

than 100 workers' compensation claims tied to ergonomic issues.

The Solution

Banker's Trust initiated an ergonomics program in 1993. The company's program focuses on two main issues: acquiring the right equipment and making sure it is used properly. A committee of representatives from all departments was formed to design new work stations, and a video was created to train staff on proper postures and the correct way to set up one's workstation. Banker's Trust also distributes a workstation safety handout to employees.

The Impact

In one year, Banker's Trust significantly reduced repetitive motion injuries. In 1995, the bank faced more than 100 claims tied to ergonomic issues, while in 1996 there were only 60 claims. Employee morale has increased, and the company has seen an improvement in its lost workday injury rate.

Ergonomics is a Women's Issue

Women are Affected Disproportionately. In 1997 women made up 46% of the American workforce and accounted for 33% of all workplace injuries. Yet, in certain jobs, such as typing or key entry, they suffered 91% of all repetitive motion injuries. Overall, women experienced 70% of all lost-time cases caused by carpal tunnel syndrome and close to two-thirds of all lost work-time cases caused by tendinitis. A study from Washington State reported that when women submit less than ½ of all workers compensation claims in the state, 61% of all claims for Carpal Tunnel Syndrome are submitted by women.

Many Occupations with a Majority of Women Employees are Disproportionately Impacted by Musculoskeletal Disorders (MSDs). For example, women in the health care profession are hard hit by musculoskeletal disorders. Just one profession—Registered nurses, Licensed Practical Nurses, Nurses Aides, and Healthcare Aides—accounted for 12% of all cases reported in 1997 according to BLS. A significant number of textile sewing machine operators, data key operators, and secretaries suffer numerous cases of MSDs. Carpal Tunnel Syndrome is More Prevalent in Female-Dominated Industries. Ninety-one percent of cashiers who suffer from carpal tunnel syndrome are women. Women make up 85% of packagers who experience carpal tunnel syndrome. Female assemblers experience 70% of all cases. Virtually all cases of carpal tunnel syndrome among data-entry keyers, textile sewing machine operators, general office clerks, telephone operators, bank tellers, and typists are experienced by women.

Top Jobs in which women are at risk for MSDs.

1. Registered nurses, Licensed Practical Nurses, Nurses Aides, and Healthcare Aides—accounted for 12% of all cases reported in 1997 according to BLS.
2. Textile sewing machine operators.
3. Data key operators.
4. Office clerks.
5. Telephone operators.
6. Bank tellers.
7. Typists.

Ergonomic-Related Injuries are Crippling. According to BLS, workers with Carpal Tunnel Syndrome average more days away from work than workers who suffer amputations, falls, and fractures. Carpal Tunnel Syndrome cases average 25 days away from work; amputations average 18 days. Workers who suffer MSDs may be forced to leave the job or may never be able to handle simple, everyday tasks such as combing their hair or picking up a baby.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentlewoman from New York for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, what we are talking about here is whether or not OSHA should be allowed to go forward with the rules they have established. Proponents of this bill say no, kill it, delay it, do whatever you can, but do not implement it. They use the same excuse or tactic that they have used before, simply to propose yet another study.

The irony here is that the delay would be for 24 months, 2 years. The irony in particular is that the proposed study would merely review existing literature. Even more ironic is the study that they seek to be done; they seek it by the National Academy of Sciences, a group whose studies they rejected when it came time for the Census, because this particular group said the Census should be done with statistical sampling.

Our friends on the other side did not like it then, but now, because they want a delay, they do not want to see the standards go into effect, they cannot wait to put this off and have the National Academy of Sciences do yet another study.

The harm is not just to working men and women, although that harm is severe. The harm is also to businesses. We do not hear that from the other side, but $15 billion to $20 billion a year is going to be spent on workers' compensation costs because of workers' injuries.

My small businesses want to know that they can rely on reasonable regulations to help them stop that kind of expenditures. Up to $60 billion is spent every year on these kinds of injuries. The harm to workers, Mr. Chairman, each year more than 600,000 American workers suffer work-related musculoskeletal disorders.

No one champions excessive regulation, but no one can seriously argue that there should be a total absence of oversight, or that that is appropriate. If it is the government's appropriate function to strike a balance for businesses, for workers, and for consumers, it is especially so, Mr. Chairman, in this particular instance, when good regulation can save business money, can enhance efficiency, as well as save individuals from painful and debilitating injuries.

Mr. Chairman, the standards in this particular instance are limited in scope. They are based on science. There have been, in fact, some 2,000 studies done, and they have been reviewed and reviewed again by peer groups and scientists from all walks. These proposals provide flexibility for each employer to tailor the program to their particular workplace. It covers manufacturing and manual handling operations, which account for about 60 percent of these types of injuries.

Mr. Chairman, the science shows that this is warranted. There is no need to delay it again for yet another study when that in fact has been done. Workers say they need it, and businesses clearly say they see the merits and need these standards.

Mr. Chairman, we have to just listen to what some of these businesses say. 3M said they estimate that because of these efforts since 1993, over 1,000 employees did not develop work-related musculoskeletal disorders, and it resulted in approximately 16,000 fewer lost work days. 3M's experience is that implementing an ergonomics program is effective for reducing the number of work-related musculoskeletal disorders, and additionally, is good business. Mr. Chairman.

Peter Meyer, the human resources director for Sequins International Quality in New York, Mr. Chairman, agrees, as does the General Accounting Office, this is good for business, as well as good for workers.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the bill and amendments thereto be limited to 20 minutes, divided equally between myself and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLAY).

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

Mr. CLAY. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, the gentleman said 20 minutes, 10 on each side?

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CLAY. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. GOODLING. Yes, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. CLAY. I have no objection, Mr. Chairman, and I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHLERS).

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me. Mr. Chairman, as I mentioned earlier, I am somewhat sympathetic to this because of my experience with a serious back problem, a lumbar laminectomy and carpal tunnel surgery.

At the same time, when I asked where these came from, did they come from the workplace, I am not engaged in heavy lifting, unless I am dealing with heavy issues on the floor; or did it... come from my history of driving a 30-foot semi trailer truck when I was younger? Again, the answers are not clear.

My carpal tunnel injury, did it come from repetitive motion? No. I rarely engage in repetitive motion with my hands.

My point simply is that these are very, very complex issues. That is why Congress asked for and provided funding for the National Academy of Sciences study, because of the continuing controversy of the medical and scientific questions relating to ergonomics.

There are other issues here, other than separating out what happens at home, such as what are the effective treatments? For example, I wore wrist splints for my carpal tunnel surgery. Did it help? It turned out to be more treatment? For example, I wore wrist splints for my carpal tunnel surgery. Did it help? It turned out to be more

Mr. Chairman, some costs are not just economic. When a mother has carpal tunnel syndrome and cannot lift her child as a result, when a father injures his back on the workplace and cannot play ball with his daughter or son, those are also real impacts. We need to stop those impacts. This legislation would limit our ability to stop those impacts.

People do not just lose time with their families, they lose their jobs. They sometimes become permanently unemployed or are forced to take severe pay cuts. I want to emphasize that as a scientist myself, as a teacher of the scientific method and as a practicing clinician, I am dogged in demanding a strong peer reviewed science in making important public health decisions.

But my colleagues should know by now that the American Public Health Association, the National Academy of Sciences, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, and the American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine, have all indicated the strong need for a standard. We have that draft standard. We need to implement it.

This bill is not really about requiring science, because if it were, the people who have introduced it would have supported funding for scientific studies in the past, but in fact they have opposed it.

It is not about science, because common sense tells us if we do the same repetitive motion for 8 hours a day, we are going to injure ourselves. We do not need more science, we need to implement the regulations we have put forward.

There was a time, Mr. Chairman, when in our country workers were considered expendable. If they injured themselves on the job, tough luck, they were dismissed with no compensation, their family lost a breadwinner, they lost mobility, and they simply replaced them with whoever else was willing to work for the cheapest wage in the most dangerous conditions imaginable.

That time was past, but this legislation would like to see us move back. This legislation is wrong.

A very interesting thing just happened on the floor of this House. We saw a negotiation between the two parties, which was good. We said, folks, we are all tired. It has been a long day. It is going to be a long week. We have worked hard. Let us cut this debate a little short so we can go home to our families. I favor that negotiation. I am glad we supported it.

But here is the problem. Working people, men and women in this country who work in unsafe conditions, or where they risk ergonomic injuries, do not always have that opportunity. They cannot go to their boss or their supervisor and say, I am getting injured on this job.

We need to change the conditions. They do not have that right to negotiate, the very negotiation we just conducted here. They are forced to work in situations that injure them. We have an obligation to create standards that protect them from those injuries, to protect the mothers, fathers, and the working people throughout this country.

I urge my colleagues to vote no on this anti-worker, anti-safety, anti-family legislation.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BALLENGER).

Mr. BALLENGER. Mr. Chairman, my subcommittee had several hearings with specialists in these fields. This is what the experts said.

For example, Dr. Morton Kasden, a clinical professor of surgery at the University of Louisville, testified that "There is a lack of scientific evidence that using our hands repetitively causes so-called cumulative trauma." A quote on the chart from Dr. Stanley Bigos, professor of orthopedics at the University of Washington:

"We cannot provide a universal mandate without knowing specific dimensions that might work. How high should the bench be? How tall is too tall and too short? What about differences in age?"

Who will all of a sudden determine, without data, what is right or wrong, legal or illegal, borderline or punishable? From whose pockets will the costs come? As usual, they will probably come from the employees take-home pay. Do not be confused by those who want to oversimplify the model of the human body. Usually the human body does not mean you wear it out. Discomfort from spring gardening and spring training is not caused by damage but deconditioning of the winter rest.

Dr. Howard Sandler, a former medical officer with NIOSH and a consultant to OSHA, said:

"Considerable interest and concern has been focused on the relationship between work and musculoskeletal disorders. At the present time, the risk factors, their interactions and their thresholds for causing effects have not been sufficiently identified. Once this information is-established, risk can be effectively predicted and appropriate preventive actions can be instituted across a wide range of business and industry. Research presently underway should help to establish the scientific data which is currently lacking."

Finally, on the chart, Dr. Morton Hadler, who is from the University of North Carolina:

Any attempt to construct an ergonomic standard as a remedy for regional musculoskeletal injuries in the workplace is not just premature, it is likely to be counter-productive in its application and enforcement.

Finally, Dr. Michael Vender, who is with the American Society of Surgery of the Hand: “With our present level of understanding, we cannot distinguish between on-the-job and off-the-job activities because the quantitative relationships” are bad. This proves that we need a complete study.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS).

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Chairman, the following informational items can contribute greatly to the lifting of the veil of confusion being promulgated by the Republican majority.

I am also submitting examples of victims of ergonomic disorders and examples of businesses owning in establishing their own ergonomic standards.

Truth is on the side of the American working families.

The material referred to is as follows:

MISLEADING MYTHS ON ERGONOMICS

THE PROBLEM

Fact: All workplace injuries and illnesses—just 4 percent. However, when these injuries are combined with back injuries due to repetitive motions or overexertion, they account for over one-third of lost workday injuries and illnesses. An OSHA standard would help protect the more than 600,000 industries that offer serious and potentially disabling work-related musculoskeletal disorders each year.

Myth: There is no proof that ergonomics programs reduce injuries.

Fact: There are many examples of companies that have established ergonomic programs, reduced injuries, cut costs and increased productivity and worker morale.

Hundreds of stakeholders have shared their successes with OSHA in stakeholder meetings and best practices ergonomics conferences.

Myth: An OSHA ergonomics standard will be extremely costly for businesses.

Fact: Today, U.S. businesses are spending $15 to $20 billion each year in workers’ compensation costs alone for work-related musculoskeletal disorders. As employers fix ergonomic problems in line with their ergonomic programs, injuries—and costs—will decline. Ergonomics programs ultimately save money—for everyone. Good ergonomics is good economics.

SUCCESS WITH ERGONOMICS

State: New York 8th; Company: King Kullen Grocery, New York; Industry: Retail grocery; Employees: 4,500; Success Brief: Over four years, reduced workers’ compensation claims from 21 to 5.

In 1992, King Kullen faced a rising rate of carpal tunnel syndrome (CTS) among its cashiers. The company attributed the increase in CTS cases to the checkout scanners introduced in the store in the late 1980s.

THE SOLUTION

The company implemented a comprehensive ergonomics program. King Kullen modified its checkout stations and scanners to reduce lifting and twisting motions. The company’s medical management program ensured immediate care and treatment to employees who were experiencing problems on the job. Employees also received training on the causes and symptoms of work-related musculoskeletal disorders (MSDs) and on good work practices.

THE IMPACT

Angela Diaz (ILGWU), New York, NY; Ladies Garment Workers.

Angela Diaz has been a seamstress for 25 years. Now 48, Diaz has suffered with a severe case of carpal tunnel syndrome for seven years.

With help from the ILGWU, she finally has gotten some relief through treatment at the union’s Occupational Health Clinic and surgery. The ILGWU also guided Diaz through the maze of applying for workers’ compensation: a two-year wait is normal for victims of carpal tunnel syndrome. During that period, most workers lost their health benefits and some must pay out-of-pocket for their own medical care.

Diaz says she has been turned upside down. She cannot physically do the work necessary to maintain her home and family, much less the activities she once enjoyed.

Nadine Brown (USWA), Local 1753, Buffalo, NY; FEDCO Automotive.

Nadine works for FEDCO Automotive Components Company, Inc. of Buffalo, a manufacturer of heat exchangers for the automotive industry. She has worked at FEDCO for ten years. For the past five years, Nadine has worked lifting heater cores that weigh at least 2-4 pounds onto an assembly line. Each day, Nadine lifts between 4,000 and 6,000 heater cores. She gets 2 fifteen minute breaks a day, plus a half hour for lunch. Last August Nadine underwent surgery to relieve the pain in her hand caused by carpal tunnel syndrome.

The pain in her hand started several years ago. It made it difficult to grip things, to dress her daughter's hair. She went to a doctor, who referred her to a specialist. He told her she needed surgery. Nadine spent about four months recovering from the surgery and returned back to work in the same job. No adjustments have been made, so she is doing the exact same work now that caused her injury. Several other people in the company have had surgery for similar injuries.

Lorraine Baker (USWA), Solvay, NY; Landis Plastics.

Lorraine was injured on the job and was diagnosed with bilateral carpal tunnel in 1996. She found out she had been fired when she tried to use her insurance for her daughter and was told that it had been canceled even though she continued to make her weekly co-payments to her employer.

She was forced to file a lawsuit in Federal Court before her employer would re-instate her and her insurance. In 1997 the company's doctors agreed that she did in fact have bilateral carpal tunnel but they said that it didn't happen at work. Her compensation was reduced by 50 percent and would not appropriate the surgery that the surgeons recommended. Her attorney was seeking an expedited hearing with the Workers’ Compensation Board.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MILLER).

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Mr. Chairman, let me first of all commend the chairman of the Committee on Education and the Workforce for bringing this common sense legislation to the floor today. This really is common sense.

One thing we can all agree on in this Chamber, all 435 of us, is we do not want to have workplace injuries. We want to eliminate them. We want to minimize them. We all agree on that. The debate is where we want power and the influence to control that.

My friends on the other side believe Washington knows the answer. The more power we can bring to Washington, the better it is for the Washington bureaucracy, and also for the benefit of organized labor. Those of us on this side of the aisle believe it belongs to business and State and local relations. It does not belong in Washington. Washington does not know all the answers.

I am a former small business man. Before I entered Congress, I served for 19 years in family businesses back in Florida. We were highly motivated in our business to keep workplace injuries to a minimum. First of all, it is the right thing to do. You do not want to see your friends and employees hurt.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

August 3, 1999

But workmen's compensation insurance was so expensive you were highly motivated to keep injuries at a minimum, because in some economic sense, because it affected your bottom line by not having people injured. So you were motivated to have people trained to avoid injuries, lifting injuries or hand injuries and such.

The other reason you are motivated is that you do not want to have your employees lose work. You have a trained employee and that is a valuable asset. The last thing you want to do is have that person hurt and miss work. So employers are motivated to minimize those injuries, just like the government thinks they can decide it up here in Washington. This regulation is common sense. This says, let science address the issue.

The other question that is unanswered, besides science, is cost. I know OSHA says, Oh, it is only $3.5 billion a year on business. That is costing jobs, $3.5 billion, and that is a ball park estimate. Other estimates are in the tens of billions of dollars a year. That is like a tax on small business.

This makes common sense. Let us wait for science to give us some answers.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. Brown).

Ms. BROWN of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I have been an elected official for 17 years, and never in those 17 years have I voted against the working people of the country. I rise today in opposition to this bill. This is another attempt by the Republicans to trample upon the rights of the American workers.

Working men and women are the backbone of this country. As usual, this Republican bill ignores the problems of worker safety.

OSHA is finally moving forward to develop a standard to prevent unnecessary injuries, and this bill would only cause those workers more pain.

I urge my colleagues to stand up for the working men and women and vote "no" on this bill.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER), a member of the committee.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak in support of the bill, and I certainly thank the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GOODLING), the committee chairman, for their work to ensure that we make sure that we evaluate fully what we are doing before we begin to promulgate regulations that can have extensive effects upon the workers, the workplace, and job availability.

I think we all agree on both sides of the aisle that paramount in our concern is worker safety, making sure that we have the kind of jobs that are needed, that are safe jobs, that folks do have the kind of protections that they need so that they do not have injury, permanent injury and problems that will affect their livelihood and their families.

But when we look at past history of OSHA, sometimes they promulgated regulations that really do not make a whole lot of sense. Let me give my colleagues just one simple illustration of what they have gotten it wrong.

I generally keep a cup of coffee sitting right on the counter, so that when I come out from seeing a patient, I just grab it and get a sip of coffee. But OSHA passed a regulation that, because I have a microscope right there on the counter, and I do some urinalysis on it, that somehow this is a major safety hazard, and this is against the law for me to have that cup of coffee setting there because it may be a detriment to my health.

I think it is clearly that, many times, regulations are promulgated that are not fully thought out, that have not been investigated thoroughly.

We have certainly petitioned, the Congress has, a study by the National Academy of Sciences to study this. We have allocated almost $1 million of taxpayers' money so that they can do this study so that we can hopefully resolve the conflict.

We find physicians in medical organizations on both sides of this issue. Clearly it is not resolved. Musculoskeletal disorders are very complicated disorders. There are folks that have opinions on both sides.

I think it is paramount and very necessary that we make sure that we have definitive studies, a review of studies by an organization of the National Academy of Sciences. Then we can promulgate the regulations that are necessary to ensure the safety, ensure that we do things properly and do not do some ridiculous things that OSHA has a history of doing in the past.

I encourage my colleagues to vote for this bill.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I thank the distinguished gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to raise an enormous issue with respect to H.R. 987. I have been a member of the committee, just a few weeks ago, I visited a factory in my district that was about to close. As I was walking through, I inquired of those who were there, the working people of America, "How long have you been at this plant, using your hands, and putting things together?" Forty years, 25 years, 18 years. The working people of America are committed to their work.

This is a horrific bill that takes away the respect and the humanity and the dignity of working men and women. It says to them we do not care about their injuries. We do not care about the fact that they need to work to provide for their family. If they get hurt, there will be no regulations. We will just throw them out the door.

OSHA has worked yesterday, it works today, and it will work tomorrow. Any time we start hearing people talking about putting in a study on working people's rights, we know what they are trying to do. Cast the ballot.

H.R. 987 does not address the question of the commitment of working men and women to their positions. It is a bad bill. It should be defeated.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 4 1/2 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. WATT).

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I am observing this debate in somewhat disbelief about 25, 30 years ago, when I was a young lawyer just starting to practice law in North Carolina, I tried the first carpal tunnel syndrome case under the North Carolina workers compensation law. Ever since that time, in North Carolina, carpal tunnel has been recognized as a compensable workers compensation injury in North Carolina.

It comes as a substantial surprise to me that my colleagues who say that they are using the States as laboratories on many issues are now back here 25 or 30 years later questioning whether carpal tunnel and other ergonomic injuries are even workplace injuries.

It strikes me that, if a number of people were getting sick in a plant, and we did not know exactly the best way to solve the problem of keeping them from getting sick, maybe we should write some regulations and not pass any kind of safety rules to address the situation in the interim. That is what my Republican colleagues seem to be seeking.

I am not opposed to the study that is being done. But what I do wonder is, what happens between now and the time the study is completed. Why should the American workers not be protected when we know that they are walking into these workplace situations, engaging in motion activities, developing carpal tunnel syndrome and other kinds of ergonomic injuries; and we should just turn around and walk away and pretend that this is not happening.

This is an unbelievable, unreal debate that we are having here on this bill. It is like we want the perfect to be the enemy of the good. Because the department had not written the perfect set of regulations to deal with this issue, we want to delay any kind of regulation when we know full well that these injuries are caused by repetitive motion and workplace conditions.

This is an unreal debate that can only be engaged in in a Congress that has no acknowledgment of the rights of working people. Over 650,000 workers were injured last year by repetitive motion and ergonomic-related injuries. The bulk of those were women who sit at a desk or do some repetitive motion kind of activity, and they do it over and over and again. We are going to penalize those people trying to say that we ought to hold off on writing any kind of regulations until we can get a perfect set of regulations.

We can revise a regulation at any point in the process. It is not a big deal. We can revise regulations all the time in the Federal Government. So what is the purpose of putting some regulations in place, operating under those, and then, if necessary, in response to that study, revising the regulations to make them better?

We cannot afford in this situation to let the perfect be the enemy of the good. I urge my colleagues not to engage in this unbelievable kind of activity and slam against the working people. Over 650,000 workers were injured last year by repetitive motion and workplace conditions. A dentist, a lady came and said, Look, it is going to cost me $5,000 just to determine the extent to which I am covered by this regulation.

OSHA says, Well, we do not take into account costs like that because they are indirect. We do not figure out the costs that people are going to have to incur to determine whether or not they are required to do so; we do not change the regulation to accommodate people like you.

That is why we are here year after year after year. That is what this bill is trying to address.

Mr. Chairman, look, it is time to stop treating America’s small business people like they were the enemies of their workers, like they were the enemies of the public interest. They want worker safety. Let us work in partnership with them. Develop a regulation based on good science; that is what this bill is about.

The CHAIRMAN. All time for debate has expired. If there are no further amendments, under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose, and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. MILLER of Florida) having assumed the Chair, Mr. SHIMKUS, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 987) to require the Secretary of Labor to wait for completion of a National Academy of Sciences study before promulgating a standard or guideline on ergonomics, pursuant to House Resolution 271, he reported the bill back to the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Speaker pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 217, nays 209, not voting 8, as follows:

[Roll No. 366]

YEAS—217

Mr. Young (FL), Mr. Boucher, Mr. Bono, Mr. Bonilla, Mr. Boustany, Ms. Brown (NC), Mr. Butterfield, Mr. Buyer, Mr. Calaway, Mr. Camp, Mr. Cano, Mr. Cantor, Mr. Cardenas, Mr. Carlson, Mr. Cavenaugh, Mr. Caveman, Mr. Cramer, Mr. Cunningham, Mr. Davis (VA), Mr. Delahunt, Mr. Demint, Mr. Diaz-Balart, Mr. Dickens, Mr. Dreier, Mr. Duncan, Mr. Dunn, Mr. Ehlers, Mr. Ehrlich, Mr. Emerson, Mr. Everett, Mr. Fogleman, Mr. Foxx, Mr. Furse, Mr. Gallegly, Mr. Ganske, Mr. Geaux, Mr. Gibbons, Mr. Abercrombie, Mr. Ackerman, Mr. Ackerman, Mr. Andrews, Mr. Baird, Mr. Baldacci, Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Barcia, Mr. Gallegly, Mr. Ganske, Mr. Geaux, Mr. Gibbons, Mr. Abercrombie, Mr. Ackerman, Mr. Ackerman, Mr. Andrews, Mr. Baird, Mr. Baldacci, Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Barcia, Mr. Gallegly, Mr. Ganske, Mr. Geaux, Mr. Gibbons, Mr. Abercrombie, Mr. Ackerman, Mr. Ackerman, Mr. Andrews, Mr. Baird, Mr. Baldacci, Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Barcia, Mr. Gallegly, Mr. Ganske, Mr. Geaux, Mr. Gibbons.
Mr. BALDACCI changed his vote from "yea" to "nay."

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 967, the Workplace Preservation Act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the provisions of clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair announces that he will postpone further proceedings today on any motion to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the vote is objected to under clause 6 of rule XX.

Such rollcall votes, if postponed, will be taken tomorrow.
Louisiana Avenue, NorthWest. This property is adjacent to the Capitol Grounds.

The Union plans to demolish its existing headquarters and construct a new larger facility. In order to do this, a small section of parking spots and a sidewalk on Louisiana Avenue will be closed for about 2 years.

Let me be clear about the affected area along Constitution Avenue and Louisiana Avenue. It is the curbside lane between 1st and 2nd Street, Northwest only. This authority in no way extends beyond those two streets insofar as the Capitol Grounds are concerned.

This activity will not interfere with the needs of Congress and will not cost the government. The building owners will restore all affected areas of the Capitol Grounds to its original condition once construction is completed.

I support this resolution wholeheartedly and urge my colleagues to join in support.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

[2130]

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

First, Mr. Speaker, may I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) for the way in which he has shepherded this matter through committee and to the floor. I am very grateful for the attention he has given it. May I also thank the distinguished ranking member of the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR) for his invaluable assistance in getting this matter to the floor this evening. I very much appreciate the work of my own chairman the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. FRANKS) who in committee today cleared this matter from the committee floor and was expeditiously handled in the subcommittee itself. This straightforward resolution will allow the Architect of the Capitol to permit temporary construction and necessary other work on the Capitol grounds. The site is along Constitution Avenue in my district between Second Street and Louisiana Avenue Northwest and along Louisiana to First Street Northwest. The construction project will create a high end building with class A office space right here at the foot of Capitol Hill. The new building will be 10 stories high and will contain 500,000 square feet. The Architect has requested a resolution to permit the temporary closing of the curb lane along Louisiana Avenue and Constitution Avenue.

Again I want to thank the gentleman from New Jersey for the very expeditious way in which he has handled this matter and for his continued support for activities that positively affect the economic health of the Nation's capital, the District of Columbia.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR), the ranking member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I rise to support the resolution and to express my great appreciation to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) for moving so expeditiously on this matter which is very timely for the carpenters union for the replacement and construction of this facility so near to the Capitol. I appreciate the support of the chairman of the subcommittee also for acting so quickly. I want to compliment the gentleman from the District of Columbia on her steadfast persistence and leadership on this matter. She is a true advocate and champion for the District and a great voice.

This facility has one of the prime locations in all of Washington. It shall be very interesting if the facility is removed and reconstructed. I understand that there is a splendid plan to replace that facility. It is very important to all who are concerned, not only those building the structure but those who are going to rent, the various associations that would be a part of this.

I just wanted to rise and express my great appreciation to the majority for moving so quickly on a matter of such timely importance to those involved and again to compliment the gentleman for her leadership and express my great appreciation to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) for his cooperation.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I very much appreciate the remarks of the ranking member the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR). I do want to say that I know that the carpenters union is as grateful for the way in which this has been handled this evening as I am. I want to assure the House that the matter under construction has received already the approval of the appropriate Federal and local authorities and will continue to go through those approvals. We needed only now the approval of the House to make sure the construction could indeed proceed.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FRANKS of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1907) to amend title 35, United States Code, to provide enhanced protection for inventors and innovators, protect public terms, reduce patent litigation, and for other purposes, as amended.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

August 3, 1999

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. FRANKS of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on House Concurrent Resolution 167, the measure just considered by the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

AMERICAN INVENTORS PROTECTION ACT OF 1999

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1907) to amend title 35, United States Code, to provide enhanced protection for inventors and innovators, protect public terms, reduce patent litigation, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

Title I—Inventor's Rights

Sec. 1. Short title.

Sec. 2. Table of contents.

Title II—Inventor's Rights

Sec. 101. Short title.

Sec. 102. Invention promotion services.

Sec. 103. Effective date.

Title II—First Inventor Defense

Sec. 201. Short title.

Sec. 203. Effective date and applicability.

Title III—Patent Term Guarantee

Sec. 301. Short title.

Sec. 302. Patent term guarantee authority.

Sec. 303. Continued examination of patent applications.

Sec. 304. Technical clarification.

Sec. 305. Effective date.

Title IV—United States Publication of Patent Applications Published Abroad

Sec. 401. Short title.

Sec. 402. Publication.

Sec. 403. Time for claiming benefit of earlier filing date.

Sec. 404. Provisional rights.

Sec. 405. Prior art effect of published applications.

Sec. 406. Cost recovery for publication.

Sec. 407. Conforming amendments.

Sec. 408. Effective date.

Title V—Optional Inter Partes Reexamination Procedure

Sec. 501. Short title.

Sec. 502. Ex parte reexamination of patents.

Sec. 503. Definitions.

Sec. 504. Optional inter partes reexamination procedures.

Sec. 505. Conforming amendments.

Sec. 506. Report to Congress.

Sec. 507. Estoppel effect of reexamination.

Sec. 508. Effective date.
TITLE VI—PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE

Sec. 610. Short title.
Sec. 611. Establishment of Patent and Trademark Office.
Sec. 612. Powers and duties.
Sec. 613. Organization and management.
Sec. 614. Public Advisory Committees.
Sec. 615. Patent and Trademark Office fund.
Sec. 616. Conforming amendments.
Sec. 617. Trademark Trial and Appeal Board.
Sec. 618. Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences.
Sec. 619. Annual report of Director.
Sec. 620. Suspension or exclusion from practice.
Sec. 621. Pay of Director and Deputy Director.

CHAPTER 5—INVENTION PROMOTION

Sec. 624. Definitions.
Sec. 625. Authorization.
Sec. 626. Authorization and funding.
Sec. 627. Authorization and appropriation.
Sec. 628. Authorization.
Sec. 629. Authorization and appropriation.
Sec. 630. Authorization.
Sec. 631. Authorization.
Sec. 632. Authorization and appropriation.

Subtitle A—United States Patent and Trademark Office

Sec. 640. Authorization.
Sec. 641. References.
Sec. 642. Authorization and funding.
Sec. 643. Authorization.
Sec. 644. Authorization and funding.
Sec. 645. Delegation and assignment.
Sec. 646. Authority of Director of the Office of Management and Budget with respect to functions transferred.
Sec. 647. Certain vesting of functions transferred.
Sec. 648. Availability of existing funds.
Sec. 649. Definitions.

TITLE VII—MISCELLANEOUS PATENT PROVISIONS

Sec. 700. Provisional applications.
Sec. 701. Provisional applications and continuations.
Sec. 702. International applications.
Sec. 703. Certain limitations on damages for patent infringement not applicable.
Sec. 704. Electronic filing and publications.
Sec. 705. Study and report on biological deposits in support of biotechnology patents.
Sec. 706. Prior invention.
Sec. 707. Prior art exclusion for certain commonly assigned patents.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

TITLE I—INVENTORS’ RIGHTS

Sec. 101. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the “Inventors’ Rights Act”.

Sec. 102. INVENTION PROMOTION SERVICES.

Part I of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding after chapter 4 the following chapter:

CHAPTER 5—INVENTION PROMOTION SERVICES

Sec. 510. Definitions.
Sec. 511. Contracting requirements.
Sec. 512. Contracting requirements.
Sec. 513. Contracting requirements.
Sec. 514. Contracting requirements.
Sec. 515. Contracting requirements.
Sec. 516. Contracting requirements.
Sec. 517. Contracting requirements.
Sec. 518. Contracting requirements.
Sec. 519. Contracting requirements.

§ 51. Definitions.

For purposes of this chapter—

‘(a) the usual business terms of contracts; (b) the approximate amount of the usual fees or other consideration that may be required from the customer for each of the services provided by the invention promoter.

‘(c) RIGHT OF CUSTOMER TO CANCEL CONTRACT.—(1) Notwithstanding any contractual provision to the contrary, a customer shall have the right to terminate a contract for invention promotion services by sending a written notice to the invention promoter stating the customer’s intent to cancel the contract. The notice of cancellation must be deposited with the United States Postal Service or on or before 5 business days after the date upon which the customer or the invention promoter executes the contract, whichever is later.

’(2) Delivery of a promissory note, check, bill of exchange, or negotiable instrument of any kind to the invention promoter or to a third party for the benefit of the invention promoter, without regard to the date or dates appearing in such instrument, shall be deemed received by the invention promoter on the date received for purposes of this section.

§ S3. Standard provisions for cover notice

‘(a) CONTENTS.—Every contract for invention promotion services shall have a conspicuous and legible cover sheet attached with the following notice imprinted in bold-face type of not less than 12-point size:

YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO TERMINATE THIS CONTRACT. TO TERMINATE THIS CONTRACT, YOU MUST SEND A WRITTEN LETTER TO THE COMPANY STATING YOUR INTENT TO CANCEL THIS CONTRACT.

THE LETTER OF TERMINATION MUST BE DEPOSITED WITH THE UNITED STATES POSTAL SERVICE ON OR BEFORE FIVE (5) BUSINESS DAYS AFTER THE DATE ON WHICH YOU OR THE COMPANY EXECUTE THE CONTRACT, WHICH EVER IS LATER.

THE TOTAL NUMBER OF INVENTIONS EVALUATED BY THE INVENTION PROMOTER FOR COMMERCIAL POTENTIAL IN THE LAST FIVE (5) YEARS IS XXXXX. OF THAT NUMBER, XXXXX RECEIVED POSITIVE EVALUATIONS AND XXXXX RECEIVED NEGATIVE EVALUATIONS.

IF YOU ASSIGN EVEN A PARTIAL INTEREST IN THE INVENTION TO THE INVENTION PROMOTER, THE INVENTION PROMOTER MAY HAVE THE RIGHT TO SELL OR DISPOSE OF THE INVENTION WITHOUT YOUR CONSENT AND MAY NOT HAVE TO SHARE THE PROFITS WITH YOU.

THE TOTAL NUMBER OF CUSTOMERS WHO HAVE CONTRACTED WITH THE INVENTION PROMOTER IN THE PAST FIVE (5) YEARS IS XXXXX. THE TOTAL NUMBER OF CUSTOMERS KNOWN BY THIS INVENTION PROMOTER TO HAVE RECEIVED LICENSE AGREEMENTS FOR THEIR INVENTIONS.

THE OFFICERS OF THIS INVENTION PROMOTER HAVE COLLECTIVELY OR INDIVIDUALLY BEEN AFFILIATED IN THE LAST TEN (10) YEARS WITH THE FOLLOWING INVENTION PROMOTION COMPANIES:

THE NAMES AND ADDRESSES OF ALL PREVIOUS INVENTION PROMOTION COMPANIES WITH WHICH THE PRINCIPAL OFFICERS HAVE BEEN AP-PILLATED, AGENTS, OR EMP-LOYEES), YOU ARE ENCOURAGED TO CHECK WITH THE UNITED STATES PAT-ENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE, THE FED-ERAL TRADE COMMISSION, YOUR STATE ATTORNEY GENERAL’S OFFICE, AND THE BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU FOR ANY COMPLAINTS FILED AGAINST ANY OF THESE COMPANIES WHICH RESULTED in REGULATORY SANCTIONS OR OTHER CORRECTIVE ACTIONS.
YOU ARE ENCOURAGED TO CONSULT WITH ONE OF YOUR LAWYERS BEFORE CHOOSING BEFORE SIGNING THIS CON-TRACT. BY PROCEEDING WITHOUT THE ADVICE OF AN ATTORNEY REGISTERED TO PRACTICE BEFORE THE UNITED STATES PATENT AND TRADEMARK OF-FICE, YOU COULD LOSE ANY RIGHTS YOU MIGHT HAVE IN YOUR IDEA OR INVEN-TION.

§ 54. Reports to customer required

With respect to every contract for invention promotion services, the invention promoter shall deliver to the customer at the address specified in the contract, at least once every 3 months throughout the term of the contract, a written report that identifies the contract and includes—

(1) a full, clear, and concise description of the specific acts or services that the invention promoter undertakes to perform for the customer;

(2) a statement that the customer may avoid entering into the contract by not making the initial payment to the invention promoter;

(3) a full, clear, and concise description of the specific acts or services that the invention promoter undertakes to perform for the customer;

(4) a statement as to whether the invention promoter undertakes to construct, sell, or distribute one or more prototypes, models, or devices embodying the invention of the customer;

(5) the full and principal place of business of the invention promoter and the name and principal place of business of any person, subsidiary, agent, independent contractor, and any affiliated company or per-sion who it is known will perform any of the services or acts that the invention promoter undertakes to perform for the customer;

(6) if any oral or written representation of estimated or projected customer earnings is given by the invention promoter (or any agent, employee, officer, director, partner, or independent contractor of such invention promoter) with respect to the customer’s representation; and

(7) the name and address of the custodian of all records and correspondence relating to the contracted for invention promotion sertices, and a statement that the invention promoter is required to maintain all records and correspondence relating to performance of the invention promotion services for such customer for a period of not less than 2 years after expiration of the term of such contract;
and

(8) a statement setting forth a time schedule for performance of the invention promotion services, including an estimated date in which such performance is expected to be completed.

(b) Invention promoter as fiduciary.—

To the extent that the description of the specific acts or services affords discretion to the invention promoter with respect to what specific acts or services shall be performed, the invention promoter shall be deemed a fiduciary.

(c) Availability of information.—

Records and correspondence described under subsection (a)(7) shall be made available after 7 days written notice to the customer or the representative of the customer to review and copy at a reasonable cost on the invention promoter’s premises during normal business hours.

§ 56. Remedies

(a) In General.—(1) Any contract for invention promotion services that does not comply with the applicable provisions of this chapter shall be voidable at the option of the customer.

(2) Any contract for invention promotion services entered into in reliance upon any material false, fraudulent, or misleading information, representation, notice, or advertisement of the invention promoter (or any agent, employee, officer, director, partner,
or independent contractor of such invention promoter) shall be voidable at the option of the customer.

(3) Any waiver by the customer of any provision of this chapter shall be deemed contrary to public policy and shall be void and unenforceable.

(4) Any contract for invention promotion services which provides for filing for and obtaining utility, design, or plant patent protection shall be voidable at the option of the customer unless the invention promoter of-ters to perform or performs such act through consumer duly registered to practice before, and in good standing with, the Patent and Trademark Office.

(b) Civil Action.—(1) Any customer who is charged by a violation of this chapter by an invention promoter or by any material failure to perform any act or representation, or any omission of material fact, by an invention promoter (or any agent, employee, director, officer, partner, or independent contractor of such invention promoter) or by failure of an invention promoter to make all the disclosures required under this chapter, may recover in a civil action against the in-vvention promoter (or any agent, employee, director, or partner of such invention promoter) in addition to reasonable costs and attorneys’ fees, the greater of—

(A) $5,000; or

(B) the amount of actual damages sustained by the customer.

(2) Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the court shall have the discretion to award not more than 3 times the amount awarded, taking into account past complaints made against the invention promoter that resulted in regulatory sanctions or other corrective actions based on those record compiled by the Director under section 57.

(c) Rebuttable presumption of injury.—

For purposes of this section, substantial violation of any provision of this chapter by an invention promoter or execution by the customer of a contract for invention promotion services in reliance on any material false or fraudulent statements or representations or omissions of material fact shall establish a rebuttable presumption of injury.

§ 57. Records of complaints

(a) Release of complaints.—The Director may make all complaints received by the United States Patent and Trademark Oflice involving invention promoters publicly available, together with any response of the invention promoters.

(b) Request for complaints.—The Direc-or may request complaints relating to invention promotion services from any Federal Office or State agency and include such complaints in the records maintained under subsection (a), together with any response of the invention promoters.

§ 58. Fraudulent representation by an invention promoter

Whoever, in providing invention promotion services, knowingly provides any false or misleading statement, representation, or omission of material fact to a customer or fails to make all the disclosures required under this chapter, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $10,000 for each offense.

§ 59. Rule of construction

Except as expressly provided in this chapter, no provision of this chapter shall be construed to affect any obligation, right, or remedy provided under any other Federal or State laws.

SEC. 103. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This title and the amendments made by this title shall take effect 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

TITLE II—FIRST INVENTOR DEFENSE

SEC. 201. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the “First Inventor Defense Act”.

SEC. 202. DEFENSE TO PATENT INFRINGEMENT
BASED ON EARLIER INVENTION.
(a) Definition.—Chapter 28 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

§ 273. Defense to infringement based on earlier invention.

(a) Definitions.—For purposes of this section—

(1) the terms ‘commercially used’ and ‘commercial use’ mean use of a method in the United States, so long as such use is in connection with an internal commercial use or an actual arm’s-length sale or other arm’s-length commercial transfer of a useful end result, whether or not the subject matter at issue is accessible to or otherwise known to the public, except that the subject matter in question is not subject to a premarketing regulatory review period during which the safety or efficacy of the subject matter is established, including any period following an application filed in section 156(g), shall be deemed 'commercially used' and in 'commercial use' during such regulatory review period.

(2) In the case of activities performed by a nonprofit research laboratory, or nonprofit entity such as a university, research center, or hospital, a use for which the public is the intended beneficiary shall be considered to be a use described in paragraph (1), except that the use—

(A) may be asserted as a defense under this section only for continued use by and in the laboratory or nonprofit entity; and

(B) may not be asserted as a defense with respect to any subsequent commercialization or use outside such laboratory or nonprofit entity;

(3) the term 'method' means a method of doing or conducting business; and

(4) the 'effective filing date' of a patent is the earlier of the actual filing date of the application for the patent or the filing date of any earlier United States, foreign, or international application to which the subject matter at issue is entitled under section 119, 120, or 365 of this title.

(B) Derivation.—A person may not assert the defense under this section is not entitled to use of a generic patent which would have been exhausted had such sale or other disposition been made by the patent owner.

(3) LIMITATIONS AND QUALIFICATIONS OF DEFENSE.—A defense under this section is subject to the following:

(A) Patent.—A person may not assert the defense under this section unless the invention for which the defense is asserted is for a method.

(B) Derivation.—A person may not assert the defense under this section if the subject matter on which the defense is based was derived from the patentee or persons in privity with the patentee.

(1) GENERAL LICENSE.—The defense asserted by a person under this section with respect to that useful end result shall be deemed to be a use described in paragraph (1), except that the defense may be asserted only as part of a good faith assignment or transfer of an entire enterprise or line of business to which the defense relates.

(2) LIMITATION ON SITE.—A defense under this section may be asserted only with respect to that useful end result that is produced by a patented method, by a person engaged at any time after the date on which the issue fee was paid under section 151 and all outstanding requirements were satisfied; the term of the patent shall be extended one year for each day after the end of the period specified in clause (1), (ii), (iii), or (iv), as the case may be, until the action described in such clause is taken.

(2) LIMITATION ON SITE.—A defense under this section may be asserted only with respect to that useful end result that is produced by a patented method, by a person engaged at any time after the date on which the issue fee was paid under section 151 and all outstanding requirements were satisfied; the term of the patent shall be extended one year for each day after the end of the period specified in clause (1), (ii), (iii), or (iv), as the case may be, until the action described in such clause is taken.

(2) LIMITATION ON SITE.—A defense under this section may be asserted only with respect to that useful end result that is produced by a patented method, by a person engaged at any time after the date on which the issue fee was paid under section 151 and all outstanding requirements were satisfied; the term of the patent shall be extended one year for each day after the end of the period specified in clause (1), (ii), (iii), or (iv), as the case may be, until the action described in such clause is taken.

(2) LIMITATION ON SITE.—A defense under this section may be asserted only with respect to that useful end result that is produced by a patented method, by a person engaged at any time after the date on which the issue fee was paid under section 151 and all outstanding requirements were satisfied; the term of the patent shall be extended one year for each day after the end of the period specified in clause (1), (ii), (iii), or (iv), as the case may be, until the action described in such clause is taken.
SEC. 304. TECHNICAL CLARIFICATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 151(b)(6) of United States Code, as amended in the matter preceding paragraph (1) by inserting "of each such filing not later than 45 days after the date of the filing of such foreign or international application. A failure of the applicant to provide such notice within the prescribed period shall result in the application being regarded as abandoned, unless it appears to the satisfaction of the Director that the delay in submitting the notice was unintentional.

(iv) If a notice is made pursuant to clause (iii), or the applicant rescinds a request pursuant to clause (ii), the Director shall publish the application on or as soon as is practical after the date that is specified in clause (i).

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Subject to paragraph (2), each application for patent, except applications for patents for which a delay in submitting the notice was unintentional, that requires publication of the invention in the application filed in the Patent and Trademark Office or the description of the invention in such application shall be published in the Patent and Trademark Office and no information concerning any such application shall be given without authority of the applicant or owner unless necessary to carry out the provisions of an Act of Congress or in such special circumstances as may be determined by the Director.

(2) The determination of a patent term adjustment under this subsection shall not be subject to appeal or challenge by a third party prior to the grant of the patent.

(c)(i) If an applicant, upon filing, makes a request that the invention disclosed in the application has not been the subject of an application filed in another country, or under a multilateral international agreement, that requires publication of applications 18 months after filing, the application shall not be published as provided in paragraph (1).

(ii) An application may rescind a request made under clause (i) at any time.
Representatives and the Senate the results of the study conducted under this subsection.

SEC. 403. TIME FOR CLAIMING BENEFIT OF EARLIER FILING DATE.

(a) IN A FOREIGN COUNTRY.—Section 118(b) of title 35, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

“(b)(1) No application for patent shall be entitled to this right of priority unless a claim, identifying the foreign application by specifying its application number, country, and the day, month, and year of its filing, is filed in the United States Patent and Trademark Office at such time during the pendency of the application as required by the Director.

“(2) The Director may consider the failure of the applicant to file a timely claim for priority as a waiver of any such claim. The Director may establish procedures, including the payment of a surcharge, to accept an unintentionally delayed claim under this section.

“(3) The Director may require a certified copy of the original foreign application, specified by the Director, to be submitted, a translation if not in the English language, and such other information as the Director considers necessary. Any such certification of the original foreign intellectual property authority in which the foreign application was filed and issued, a translation if not in the English language.

(b) IN THE UNITED STATES.—Section 120 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(((1) In general.—In addition to other rights provided by this section, a patent shall include the right to obtain a reasonable royalty from any person who, during the period beginning on the date of publication of the application for such patent pursuant to section 122(b), or in the case of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) designating the United States under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty, the date of publication of the application, and ending on the date the patent is issued—

“(A)(i) makes, uses, offers for sale, or sells in the United States the invention as claimed in the published patent application or imports into the United States any such invention into the United States;

“(B) if the invention as claimed in the published patent application is a process, uses, offers for sale, or sells in the United States products or imports into the United States products or processes made by that process as claimed in the published patent application; and

“(C) to cause the patent to be published;

“(D) the Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office shall recover the cost of early publication required by the amendment made by section 402 by charging a separate publication fee after notice of allowance is given pursuant to section 151 of title 35, United States Code.

“(2) The amendment made by section 401 and this subsection—

“(A) in the section caption by inserting ‘‘and applications’’ after ‘‘patents’’; and

“(B) by inserting ‘‘and applications’’ after ‘‘patents’’; and

“(3) Section 13 is amended—

“(A) in the section caption by inserting ‘‘and applications’’ after ‘‘patents’’; and

“(B) by inserting ‘‘and applications’’ after ‘‘patents’’.

“(4) The item relating to section 122 in the table of contents for chapter 11 is amended by inserting ‘‘and applications’’ after ‘‘patents’’.

“(5) The item relating to section 154 in the table of contents for chapter 14 is amended by inserting ‘‘and applications’’ after ‘‘patents’’.

“(6) Subsection 186(b) is amended—

“(A) in the first undesignated paragraph—

“(i) by inserting ‘‘or application for patent’’ after ‘‘application’’;

“(ii) by inserting ‘‘the publication of the application or’’ after ‘‘withhold’’;

“(B) in the second undesignated paragraph by inserting ‘‘by the publication of the application or’’ after ‘‘withhold’’;

“(C) in the third undesignated paragraph—

“(i) by inserting ‘‘by the publication of the application or’’ after ‘‘withhold’’;

“(ii) by inserting ‘‘by the publication of the application or’’ after ‘‘withhold’’;

“(D) in the fourth undesignated paragraph by inserting ‘‘the publication of the application or’’ after ‘‘withhold’’;

“(E) in the second undesignated paragraph by inserting ‘‘substantially identical’’ before ‘‘identical’’ each place it appears.

“(7) Section 252 is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(8) Section 294 is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(9) Section 374 is amended to read as follows:

“§ 374. Publication of international application: effect

“Sec. 1. The publication under the treaty defined in section 351(a) of this title of an international application designating the United States shall confer the same rights and shall have the same effect under this title as an application for patent published under section 122(b), except as provided in sections 102(e) and 154(d).’’.

“SEC. 408. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This title and the amendments made by this title, shall take effect on the date that is 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act and shall apply to all applications filed under section 111 of title 35, United States Code, on or after that date, and all applications complying with section 371 of title 35, United States Code, that resulted from international applications filed on or after that date. The amendments made by sections 401 and 405 shall apply to any such application voluntarily published by the applicant under procedures established under this title that is pending on the date that is 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act. The amendment made by section 404 shall apply to international applications designating the United States that are filed on or after the date that is 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act.

TITLE V—OPTIONAL INTER PARTES REEXAMINATION PROCEEDURE

SEC. 501. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the ‘‘Optional Inter Partes Reexamination Procedure Act’’.

December 12, 1999

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE
SEC. 502. EX PARTE REEXAMINATION OF PATENTS.

Chapter 30 of title 35, United States Code, is amended in the title by inserting “EX PARTE” before “REEXAMINATION OF PATENTS.”

SEC. 503. DEFINITIONS.

Section 100 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(e) The term ‘third-party requester’ means a person requesting ex parte reexamination under section 302 or inter partes reexamination under section 311 who is not the patent owner.”.

SEC. 504. OPTIONAL INTER PARTES REEXAMINATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part 3 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding after chapter 30 the following new chapter:

“CHAPTER 31—OPTIONAL INTER PARTES REEXAMINATION PROCEDURES

“Sec.

311. Request for inter partes reexamination.

312. Determination of issue by Director.

313. Inter partes reexamination order by Director.

314. Conduct of inter partes reexamination proceedings.

315. Appeal.

316. Certificate of patentability, unpatentability, and claim cancellation.

317. Inter partes reexamination prohibited.

318. Stay of litigation.

§ 311. Request for inter partes reexamination

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Any person at any time may file a request for inter partes reexamination by the Office of a patent on the basis of any prior art cited under the provisions of section 301.

“(b) REQUIREMENTS.—The request shall—

“(1) be in writing, include the identity of the real party in interest, and be accompanied by payment of an inter partes reexamination fee established by the Director under section 41; and

“(2) set forth the pertinency and manner of applying cited prior art to every claim for which reexamination is requested.

“(c) COPY.—Unless the requesting person is the owner of the patent, the Director promptly shall send a copy of the request to the owner of record of the patent.

§ 312. Determination of issue by Director

“(a) REEXAMINATION.—Not later than 3 months after the filing of a request for inter partes reexamination under section 311, the Director shall determine whether a substantial new question of patentability affecting any claim of the patent concerned is raised by the request, with or without consideration of other patents or printed publications. On the Director's initiative, and any time, the Director may determine whether a substantial new question of patentability is raised by patents and publications.

“(b) RECORD.—A record of the Director’s determination under subsection (a) shall be placed in the official file of the patent, and a copy shall be promptly given or mailed to the owner of record of the patent and to the third-party requester, if any.

“(c) FINAL DECISION.—A determination by the Director pursuant to subsection (a) shall be final and nonappealable. Upon a determination that no substantial new question of patentability has been raised, the Director may refund a portion of the inter partes reexamination fee required under section 311.

§ 313. Inter partes reexamination order by Director

“If, in a determination made under section 312(a), the Director finds that a substantial new question of patentability affecting a claim of a patent is raised, the determination shall include an order for inter partes reexamination of the patent for resolution of the question. The order may be accompanied by the initial action of the Patent and Trademark Office on the merits of the inter partes reexamination conducted in accordance with section 314.

§ 314. Conduct of inter partes reexamination proceedings

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (b), reexamination shall be conducted according to the procedures established for initial examination under the provisions of sections 132 and 133, except as provided for under this section. In any inter partes reexamination proceeding under this chapter, the patent owner shall be permitted to propose any amendment to the patent and a new claim or claims, except that no proposed amended or new claim enlarging the scope of the claims of the patent shall be permitted.

“(b) REQUIREMENTS.—The request shall apply to any inter partes reexamination proceeding in which the order for inter partes reexamination is based upon a request by a third-party requester.

“(2) With the exception of the inter partes reexamination request, any document filed by either the patent owner or the third-party requester shall be accompanied by payment of an inter partes reexamination fee required under section 311.

“§ 315. Appeal

“§ 316. Certificate of patentability, unpatentability, and claim cancellation

“(a) PATENT OWNER.—The patent owner involved in an inter partes reexamination proceeding under this chapter—

“(1) may appeal under the provisions of sections 134 through 144, with respect to any decision adverse to the patentability of any original or proposed amended or new claim of the patent; and

“(2) may be a party to any appeal taken by a third-party requester under section 317.

“(b) THIRD-PARTY REQUESTER.—A third-party requester may—

“(1) appeal under the provisions of section 134 with respect to any final decision favorable to the patentability of any original or proposed amended or new claim of the patent; or

“(2) be a party to any appeal taken by the patent owner under the provisions of section 314, subject to subsection (c).

“(c) Civil Action.—A third-party requester whose request for an inter partes reexamination results in an order under section 313 is entitled to file an appeal at a later time, in a civil action arising in whole or in part under section 3138 of title 28, the invalidity of any claim finally determined to be valid and patentable on any ground which the third-party requester raised or that was raised during the inter partes reexamination proceedings. This subsection does not prevent the assertion of invalidity based on newly discovered prior art unavailable to the third-party requester, the Patent and Trademark Office at the time of the inter partes reexamination proceedings.

“§ 317. Inter partes reexamination prohibited

“(a) ORDER FOR REEXAMINATION.—Notwithstanding any provision of this chapter, once an order for inter partes reexamination of a patent has been issued under section 313, neither the patent owner nor the third-party requester, if any, nor privies of either, may file a subsequent request for inter partes reexamination of the patent until an inter partes reexamination certificate is issued and published under section 316, unless authorized by the Director.

“(b) FINAL DECISION.—Once a final decision has been entered against a party in a civil action arising in whole or in part under section 313, the party has not sustained its burden of proving the invalidity of any patent claim in suit or if a final decision in an inter partes reexamination proceeding instituted by the third-party requester is favorable to the patentability of any original or proposed amended or new claim of the patent then neither that party nor its privies may thereafter request inter partes reexamination of any such patent claim on the basis of issues which that party or its privies raised or could have raised in such civil action or inter partes reexamination proceeding, and an inter partes reexamination requested by that party or its privies on the basis of such issues may not thereafter be maintained by the Office, notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter.

This subsection does not prevent the assertion of invalidity based on newly discovered prior art unavailable to the third-party requester and the Patent and Trademark Office at the time of the inter partes reexamination proceedings.

“§ 318. Stay of litigation

“One or an order for inter partes reexamination of a patent has been issued under section 313, the patent owner may obtain a stay of any pending litigation which involves an issue of patentability of the patent which are the subject of the inter partes reexamination order, unless the court

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

August 3, 1999

19268
A prior Art Citations to Office and Ex Parte Reexamination of Patent Applications, for the reasons given in the President’s message, is made by this title are inequitable to any of the patent owner, the United States Code, is amended to provide for the development of a performance-based process that includes qualitative and quantitative measures and standards for evaluating cost-effectiveness and is consistent with the principles of impartiality and competitiveness;

(3) shall provide for the development of a performance-based process that includes qualitative and quantitative measures and standards for evaluating cost-effectiveness and is consistent with the principles of impartiality and competitiveness;

(4) shall provide for the development of a performance-based process that includes qualitative and quantitative measures and standards for evaluating cost-effectiveness and is consistent with the principles of impartiality and competitiveness;

7. Powers and duties

(a) In general.—The United States Patent and Trademark Office, subject to the policy direction of the Secretary of Commerce—

(1) shall be responsible for the granting and issuing of patents and the registration of trademarks, and

(2) shall be responsible for disseminating the public information with respect to patents and trademarks;

(b) Specific Power.—The Office—

(1) shall adopt and use a seal of the Office, which shall be judicially noticed and with which letters patent, certificates of trademarks, and registrations, and papers issued by the Office shall be authenticated;

(2) may establish regulations, not inconsistent with law, which—

(A) shall govern the conduct of proceedings in the Office;

(B) shall be made in accordance with section 553 of title 35, United States Code, is amended to provide for the development of a performance-based process that includes qualitative and quantitative measures and standards for evaluating cost-effectiveness and is consistent with the principles of impartiality and competitiveness;

(C) shall facilitate and expedite the processing of patent applications, particularly those which can be filed, stored, processed, searched, and retrieved electronically, subject to the procedures of section 122 relating to the confidential status of applications;

(D) may govern the recognition and conduct of agents, attorneys, or other persons representing applicants or other parties before the Office, and may require them, before being recognized as representatives of applicants or other parties, to show that they are of good moral character and reputation and are possessed of the necessary qualifications to render to applicants or other persons valuable service, advice, and assistance in the presentation or prosecution of their applications or other business before the Office;

(E) shall recognize the public interest in consistent, prompt, and effective issuance of letters patent, certificates of trademarks, and registrations, and the products of such processes, as it considers necessary to carry out its functions;

(F) may make such purchases, contracts for the construction, maintenance, or management and operation of facilities, and contracts for supplies or services, without regard to the provisions of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (40 U.S.C. 471 and following), the Public Buildings Act (40 U.S.C. 601 and following), and the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C.11301 and following); and

(G) may enter into and perform such purchases and contracts for printing services, including the processes of composition, platemaking, presswork, silk screen processes, binding, microform, and the products of such processes, as it considers necessary to carry out the functions of the Office, without regard to sections 501 through 517 and 1101 through 1123 of title 41;

(H) may use, with the consent of others, equipment, facilities, and instrumentality of the Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such departments, agencies, and instrumentality of the Federal Government, on a reimbursable basis, and cooperate with such
“(6) may, when the Director determines that it is in the public interest, and cost-effective to do so, use, with the consent of the United States and the agency, instrumentality, patent and trademark office, or international organization concerned, the services, properties, facilities, or personnel of any State or local government agency or instrumentality or foreign patent and trademark office or international organization to perform functions on its behalf;

“(7) may retain and use all of its revenues and receipts, including revenues from the sale, lease of any real, personal, or mixed property, or any interest therein, of the Office;

“(8) shall advise the President, through the Secretary of Commerce, on international and certain international intellectual property policy issues;

“(9) shall advise Federal departments and agencies on matters of intellectual property policy in the United States and intellectual property protection in other countries;

“(10) shall provide guidance, as appropriate, to agencies by agencies to assist foreign governments and international intergovernmental organizations on matters of intellectual property protection;

“(11) shall, programs, studies, and changes of items or services regarding domestic and international intellectual property law and the effectiveness of intellectual property protection, domestically and throughout the world;

“(12) shall advise the Secretary of Commerce on programs and studies relating to intellectual property policy that are conducted, or authorized to be conducted, cooperatively with foreign intellectual property offices and international intergovernmental organizations, and

“(b) may conduct programs and studies described in subparagraph (A); and “(13) in coordination with the Department of State, may conduct programs and studies cooperatively with foreign intellectual property offices and international intergovernmental organizations; and

“(c) clarify of specific powers.—(1) The special payments under subsection (b)(13)(B) shall be in addition to any other payments or contributions to international organizations described in subsection (b)(13)(B) and shall not be subject to any limitations imposed by law on the amounts of such other payments or contributions by the United States Government.

“(2) Nothing in subsection (b) shall derogate from the duties of the Secretary of State or from the duties of the United States Trade Representative as set forth in section 141 of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2171).

“(3) Nothing in subsection (b) shall derogate from the duties, powers, and functions of the Register of Copyrights or otherwise alter current authorities relating to copyright matters.

“(4) In exercising the Director’s powers under paragraphs (3) and (4)(A) of subsection (b), the Director shall consult with the Administrator of General Services.

“(d) In no case may any provision of this section be construed to nullify, void, cancel, or interrupt any pending request for professional let or contract issued by the General Services Administration for the specific purpose of relocating or leasing space to the United States Patent and Trademark Office.’’

"§ 432. ORGANIZATION AND MANAGEMENT."

Section 3 of title 35, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 3. Officers and employees.

’’(a) Under Secretary and Director.—

'(1) IN GENERAL.—The United States Patent and Trademark Office shall be vested in an Under Secretary of Commerce for Intellectual Property and Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office (in this title referred to as the ‘Director’), who shall be a citizen of the United States and who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Director shall be a person who has a professional background and experience in patent or trademark law.

'(2) Duties.—

'(A) IN GENERAL.—The Director shall be responsible for providing policy direction and management supervision for the Office and shall be responsible for the registration of trademarks. The Director shall perform these duties in a fair, impartial, and equitable manner.

'(B) CONSULTING WITH THE PUBLIC ADVISORY COMMITTEES.—The Director shall consult with the Patent Public Advisory Committee established in section 5 on a regular basis on matters relating to the trademark operations of the Office, and shall consult with the respective Public Advisory Committee before submitting budgetary proposals to the Office of Management and Budget or changing or proposing to change patent or trademark fees or fees or trademark regulations which are subject to the requirement to provide notice and opportunity for public comment pursuant to section 553 of title 5, as the case may be.

'(3) Oath.—The Director shall, before taking office, take an oath to discharge faithfully the duties of the Office.

'(4) Removal.—The Director may be removed for cause by the President. The President shall provide notification of any such removal to both Houses of Congress.

'(b) Officers and Employees of the Office.—

'(1) Deputy Under Secretary and Deputy Director.—The Secretary of Commerce, upon nomination by the Director, shall appoint a Deputy Under Secretary of Commerce for Intellectual Property and Deputy Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office who shall be vested with the authority to act in the capacity of the Director in the event of the absence or incapacity of the Director. The Deputy Director shall be a citizen of the United States who has a professional background and experience in patent or trademark law.

'(2) Commissioners.—

'(A) Appointment and Duties.—The Secretary of Commerce, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint a Commissioner for Patents and a Commissioner for Trademarks, without regard to chapter 33 of title 5, or 35 of title 5. The Commissioner for Patents shall be a citizen of the United States with a professional background and experience in patent law and serve for a term of 5 years.

'(B)嘉rides and Merit.—The Commissioner for Trademarks shall be a citizen of the United States with demonstrated management ability and professional background and experience and serve for a term of 5 years. The Commissioner for Trademarks shall serve as the chief operating officer for the operations of the Office relating to patents and trademark operations, respectively. The Secretary may reappoint a Commissioner to successive terms of 5 years as long as the term is set forth in the performance agreement in subparagraph (B) is satisfied.

'(B) Salary and Performance Agreement.—The Commissioners shall be paid an annual rate of basic pay not to exceed the maximum rate of basic pay for the Senior Executive Service established under section 5302 of title 5, including any applicable locality-based comparability payment that may be authorized under section 5304(h)(2)(c) of title 5. The compensation of the Commissioners shall be consistent with the performance agreements of section 507(c)(2)(A) of title 18, to be the equivalent of that described under clause (ii) of section 507(c)(2)(A) of title 18. In addition, the Commissioners may receive a bonus in an amount of up to, but not in excess of, 50 percent of the Commissioner’s annual rate of basic pay, based upon an evaluation by the Secretary of Commerce, acting through the Director, of the Commissioners’ performance as defined in an annual performance agreement between the Commissioners and the Secretary. The annual performance agreements shall incorporate measurable organizational and individual goals in key operational areas as delineated in an annual performance plan agreed to by the Commissioners and the Secretary. Payment of a bonus under this subparagraph may be made to the Commissioners only to the extent that such payment does not cause the Commissioners’ total aggregate compensation in a calendar year to equal or exceed the amount of the salary of the Vice President under section 504 of title 5.

'(C) Removal.—The Commissioners may be removed from office by the Secretary for misconduct or nonperformance as herein described in subsection (B), without regard to the provisions of title 5. The Secretary shall provide notification of any such removal to both Houses of Congress.

'(3) Other Officers and Employees.—The Director shall—

'(A) appoint such officers, employees (including attorneys), and agents of the Office as he considers necessary to carry out the functions of the Office; and

'(B) define the title, authority, and duties of such officers and employees and delegate to them such of the powers vested in the Office as the Director may determine.

The Office shall not be subject to any administrative or statutorily imposed limitations on positions or personnel, and no positions or personnel of the Office shall be taken into account for purposes of applying any such limitations.

'(4) Training of Examiners.—The Office shall submit to the Congress a proposal to provide an incentive program to retain or attract an adequate number of examiners of the primary examiner grade or higher who are eligible for retirement, for the sole purpose of training patent and trademark examiners.

'(C) Continued Applicability of Title 5.— Officers and employees of the Office shall be subject to the provisions of title 3 relating to Federal awards from such member or:

(d) ADOPTION OF EXISTING LABOR AGREEMENTS.—The Office shall adopt all labor agreements which are in effect, as of the day before the effective date of this section, by the United States Patent and Trademark Office Efficiency Act, with respect to such Office (as then in effect).

(ii) CARETAKER OF PERSONNEL.—

(1) The President shall provide for the performance of the Federal awards for which the Office is the Administrative Head, including agreements which are in effect, as of the day before the effective date of the Patent and Trademark Office Efficiency Act, with respect to such Office.

(2) Other Personnel.—An individual who, on the day before the effective date of the Patent and Trademark Office Efficiency Act, is an officer or employee of the Department of Commerce (other than an officer or employee under paragraph (1)) shall be transferred to the Office, as necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act, if—

(A) such individual serves in a position for which the performance of the Federal awards is reimbursed by the Patent and Trademark Office, as determined by the Secretary of Commerce;

(B) such individual serves in a position that performed work in support of the Patent and Trademark Office during at least half of the incumbent’s work time, as determined by the Secretary of Commerce; or

(C) such transfer would be in the interest of the Office, as determined by the Secretary of Commerce.

Any transfer under this paragraph shall be effective as of the same effective date as referred to in paragraph (1), and shall be made without a break in service.

(iii) TRANSITION PROVISIONS.—

(1)  INTERIM APPOINTMENT OF DIRECTOR.—On or after the effective date of the Patent and Trademark Office Efficiency Act, the President shall appoint an individual to serve as the Director until the date on which a Director is appointed by the President.

(2)  CONTINUATION IN OFFICE OF CERTAIN OFFICERS, EMPLOYEES, AND PERSONNEL.—

(A) Assistants for the Commissioner for Patents on the day before the effective date of the Patent and Trademark Office Efficiency Act may serve as the Assistant Commissioner for Patents until the date on which a Commissioner for Patents is appointed under subsection (b).

(B) The individual serving as the Assistant Commissioner for Trademarks on the day before the effective date of the Patent and Trademark Office Efficiency Act may serve as the Commissioner for Trademarks until the date on which a Commissioner for Trademarks is appointed under subsection (b).

SEC. 614. PUBLIC ADVISORY COMMITTEES.

Chapter 1 of part I of title 35, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 4 the following:

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF PUBLIC ADVISORY COMMITTEES.—

(1) APPOINTMENT.—The United States Patent and Trademark Office shall have a Patent Public Advisory Committee and a Trademark Public Advisory Committee, each of which shall have 9 voting members who shall be appointed by the Secretary of Commerce and serve at the pleasure of the Secretary of Commerce. Members of each Public Advisory Committee shall be appointed for a term of 3 years, except that of the members first appointed, which term shall be for a term of 3 years, and 3 shall be appointed for a term of 2 years. In making appointments to each Committee, the Secretary of Commerce shall consider the risk of loss of competitive advantage through interference with other harm to United States companies as a result of such appointments.

(2) CHAIR.—The Secretary shall designate a chair of each Advisory Committee, whose term as chair shall be for 3 years.

(3) TIMING OF APPOINTMENTS.—Initial appointments to each Advisory Committee shall be made within 3 months after the effective date of the Patent and Trademark Office Efficiency Act. Vacancies shall be filled within 3 months after they occur.

(b) BASIS FOR APPOINTMENTS.—Members of each Advisory Committee—

(1) shall be citizens of the United States who shall be chosen so as to represent the interests of diverse users of the United States Patent and Trademark Office with respect to patents, in the case of the Patent Public Advisory Committee, and with respect to trademarks, in the case of the Trademark Public Advisory Committee;

(2) shall include members who represent small and large entity applicants located in the United States in proportion to the number of applications filed by such applicants, but in no case shall members who represent small entity applicants include small business concerns, independent inventors, and nonprofit organizations, constitute less than 25 percent of the members of the Patent Public Advisory Committee and such members shall include at least 1 independent inventor; and

(3) shall include individuals with substantial background and expertise in science, management, labor relations, science, technology, and office automation.

In addition to the voting members, each Advisory Committee shall include a representative of each labor organization recognized by the United States Patent and Trademark Office. Such representatives shall be nonvoting members of the Advisory Committee to which they are appointed.

(c) MEETINGS.—Each Advisory Committee shall meet at the call of the chair to consider an agenda set by the chair.

(d) DUTIES.—Each Advisory Committee shall—

(1) receive the policy, goals, performance, budget, and user fees of the United States Patent and Trademark Office with respect to patents, in the case of the Patent Public Advisory Committee, and with respect to Trademarks, in the case of the Trademark Public Advisory Committee, and advise the Director on these matters;

(2) within 60 days after the end of each fiscal year—

(A) prepare an annual report on the matters referred to in paragraph (1);

(B) transmit the report to the Secretary of Commerce, the President, and the Committees on the Judiciary of the Senate and the House of Representatives; and

(C) publish the report in the Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office.

(e) COMPENSATION.—Each member of each Advisory Committee shall be compensated for service at a rate which is the daily equivalent of the annual rate of basic pay in effect for level III of the Executive Schedule under section 5314 of title 5.

(f) TRANSITION PROVISIONS.—

(A) such individual serves in a position for which the performance of the Federal awards is reimbursed by the Patent and Trademark Office, as determined by the Secretary of Commerce;

(B) such individual serves in a position that performed work in support of the Patent and Trademark Office during at least half of the incumbent’s work time, as determined by the Secretary of Commerce; or

(C) such transfer would be in the interest of the Office, as determined by the Secretary of Commerce.

Any transfer under this paragraph shall be effective as of the same effective date as referred to in paragraph (1), and shall be made without a break in service.

SEC. 615. PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE FUNDING.

Section 42(c) of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding after "(1)" the following: -

(1) by striking " Fees available" and inserting "All fees available"; and

(2) by striking "and" and inserting "shall."
Title II—Establishment, Officers and Employees, Functions

SEC. 632. TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

(a) AMENDMENTS TO TITLE 35—

(1) The item relating to part I of the table of parts for chapter 35, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Part I—United States Patent and Trademark Office</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>..................................................................</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(2) The heading for part I of title 35, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"PART I—UNITED STATES PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE."

(3) The table of chapters for part I of title 35, United States Code, is amended by inserting the item relating to chapter 1 to read as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter</th>
<th>Title</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>&quot;Establishment, Officers and Employees, Functions&quot;</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(b) Other Provisions of Law—

The title and the amendments made by this title shall take effect 4 months after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Subtitle B—Effective Date; Technical Amendments

SEC. 631. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This title and the amendments made by this title shall take effect 4 months after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(14) Section 129(a)(4) of title 28, United States Code, is amended—
(A) in subparagraph (A) by inserting “United States Patent and Trademark Office”;
(B) in subparagraph (B) by striking “Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks” and inserting “Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office”;

(15) Chapter 115 of title 28, United States Code, is amended—
(A) in items relating to section 1741 in the table of sections by striking “Patent Office” and inserting “United States Patent and Trademark Office”;
(B) in section 1741—
(i) by striking “Patent Office” each place it appears in the text and section heading and inserting “United States Patent and Trademark Office”;
(ii) by striking “Commissioner of Patents” and inserting “Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office”;
(C) by striking “commissioner” and inserting “Director”.

(18) Section 204 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2181) is amended in subsections c. and d. by striking “Commissioner of Patents” and inserting “Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office”.

(20) Section 305 of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 (42 U.S.C. 2457) is amended—
(A) in subsection (c) by striking “Commissioner of Patents” and inserting “Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office”;
(B) in section 12(a) of the Solar Heating and Cooling Demonstration Act of 1974 (42 U.S.C. 5510(a)) is amended by striking “Commissioner of Patents” and inserting “Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office”.

(21) Section 1111 of title 44, United States Code, is amended by striking “the Commissioner of Patents”.

(22) Section 1111 of title 44, United States Code, is amended by striking “the Commissioner of Patents”.

(23) Section 1123 of title 44, United States Code, is amended by striking “the Patent Office.”

(24) Sections 1337 and 1338 of title 44, United States Code, and the items relating to those sections in the table of contents for chapter 13 of such title, are repealed.

(25) Section 18(1) of the Trading with the enemy Act (50 U.S.C. App. 18(1)) is amended by striking “Commissioner of Patents” and inserting “Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office”.

Subtitle C—Miscellaneous Provisions

SEC. 641. REFERENCES.

(a) In General.—Any reference in any other Federal law, Executive order, rule, regulation, or delegation of authority, or any document of or pertaining to a department or office to which a function is transferred by this title—
(1) to the head of such department or office is deemed to refer to the head of the department or office to which such function is transferred;
(2) to such department or office is deemed to refer to the department or office to which such function is transferred;

(b) Specific References.—Any reference in any other Federal law, Executive order, rule, regulation, or delegation of authority, or any document of or pertaining to the Commissioner of Patents, is deemed to refer to the Commissioner of Patents;

(c) to the Assistant Commissioner for Trademarks is deemed to refer to the Commissioner for Trademarks.

SEC. 642. EXERCISE OF AUTHORITIES.

Except as otherwise provided by law, a Federal officer to whom a function is transferred by this title may, for purposes of performing the function, exercise all authorities under any other provision of law that were available with respect to the performance of that function to the official responsible for the performance of the function immediately before the effective date of the transfer of the function.

SEC. 643. SAVINGS PROVISIONS.

(a) Legal Documents.—All orders, determinations, rules, regulations, permits, grants, loans, contracts, agreements, certificates, licenses, and privileges—
(1) that have been issued, made, granted, or allowed to become effective by the President, the Secretary of Commerce, or by or against any officer or employee of any office transferred by this title, or any other Government official, or by a court of competent jurisdiction, in the performance of any function that is transferred by this title, and
(2) that are in effect on the effective date of such transfer (or become effective after such date pursuant to their terms as in effect on such effective date), shall continue in effect according to their terms until modified, terminated, superseded, set aside, or revoked in accordance with law by the President, any other authorized official, a court of competent jurisdiction, or operation of law.

(b) Proceedings.—This title shall not affect any proceeding, or any application for any benefits, service, license, permit, certificate, or financial assistance pending on the effective date of this title before an office transferred by this title, but such proceedings and applications shall be continued. Orders shall be issued in such proceedings, appeals shall be taken therefrom, and payments shall be made in accordance with such orders, as if this title had not been enacted, and orders issued in any such proceeding shall continue in effect until modified, terminated, superseded, or vacated by a duly authorized official of the department or office from which a function is transferred, or by a court of competent jurisdiction, or by operation of law. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to prohibit the performance of any such proceeding under the same terms and conditions and to the same extent that such proceeding could have been discontinued or affected if this title had not been enacted.

(c) Suits.—This title shall not affect suits commenced before the effective date of this title, and in all such suits, proceedings shall be had, appeals taken, and judgments rendered in the same manner and with the same effect as if this title had not been enacted.

(d) Nonabatement of Actions.—No suit, action, or other proceeding commenced by or against the Department of Commerce or the Secretary of Commerce, or by or against any individual in the official capacity of such individual or an officer or employee of the office transferred by this title, shall abate by reason of the enactment of this title.

(e) Continuance of Suits.—If any Government official in the official capacity of such officer is party to a suit with respect to a function of the officer, and under this title such function is transferred to any other officer or office, then such suit shall be continued with the other officer or the head of such other office, as applicable, substituted or aided as a party.

(f) Administrative Procedure and Judicial Review.—Except as otherwise provided by law, any statutes or regulations relating to the performance of any functions under this title shall apply to any function transferred by this title, and shall apply to such function by the head of the Federal agency, and other officers of the agency, to which such function is transferred by this title.

SEC. 644. TRANSFER OF OFFICE

Except as otherwise provided in this title, so much of the personnel, property, records, and unexpended balances of appropriations, allocations, and other funds employed, used, held, available, or to be made available in connection with a function transferred to an official or agency by this title shall be available to the official or the head of that agency, respectively, at such time or times as the Director of the Office of Management and Budget directs for use in connection with the functions transferred.

SEC. 645. DELEGATION AND ASSIGNMENT

Except as otherwise expressly prohibited by law or otherwise provided in this title, an official or agency to whom functions are transferred under this title (including the head of any office to which functions are transferred under this title) may delegate any of the functions so transferred to such office, or to any other official or employee of the office of the official as the official may designate, and may authorize successive redelegations of such functions as may be necessary or appropriate. No delegation of functions under this section or under any other provision of this title shall relieve the official to whom a function is transferred under this title of responsibility for the administration of the function.

SEC. 646. AUTHORITY OF DIRECTOR OF THE OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET WITH RESPECT TO FUNCTIONS TRANSFERRED

(a) Determinations.—If necessary, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall make any determination of the functions that are transferred under this title.

(b) Incidental Transfers.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, at such time or times as the Director shall provide, may make such determinations as may be necessary with regard to the functions transferred by this title, and to make such additional incidental dispositions of personnel, assets, liabilities, grants, contracts, programs, records, and balances of appropriations, authorizations, allocations, and other funds held, used, arising... from, available to, or to be made available in connection with such functions, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this title. The Director shall provide for the termination of the affairs of all entities terminated by this title and for such further measures and dispositions as may be necessary to effectuate the purposes of this title.

SEC. 647. CERTAIN VESTING OF FUNCTIONS CONCERNING BIOLOGICAL DEPOSITS.

For purposes of this title, the vesting of a function in a department or office pursuant to reorganization of such department or office shall be considered to be the transfer of the function.

SEC. 648. AVAILABLE OF EXISTING FUNDS.

Existing appropriations and funds available for the performance of functions, programs, and activities terminated pursuant to this title shall remain available, for the duration of their period of availability, for necessary expenses in connection with the termination and resolution of such functions, programs, and activities, subject to the submission of a plan to the Committees on Appropriations of the House and Senate in accordance with the procedures set forth in section 605 of the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999, as contained in Public Law 105-277.

SEC. 649. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this title—

(1) the term ‘function’ includes any duty, obligation, power, authority, responsibility, right, privilege, activity, or program; and

(2) the term ‘office’ includes any office, administration, agency, bureau, institute, council, unit, organizational entity, or component thereof.

TITLE VII—MISCELLANEOUS PATENT PROVISIONS

SEC. 701. PROVISIONAL APPLICATIONS.

(a) ABANDONMENT.—Section 111(b)(5) of title 35, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:—

*(1) in subsection (a)—

(1) by inserting ‘‘or in a WTO member country or’’ after ‘‘patent for the same invention’’; and

(2) by inserting ‘‘WTO member country or’’ after ‘‘application in the same’’; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

‘‘(f) Applications for plant breeder’s rights filed in a WTO member country (or in a foreign UPOV Contracting Party) shall have the same effect as applications of the right of priority under subsections (a) through (c) of this section as applications for patent, subject to the same conditions and requirements of this section as apply to applications for patents.’’

*(g) As used in this section—

(1) the term ‘‘WTO member country’’ has the meaning given that term in section 212(b) of the Uruguay Round Agreements Act; and

(2) the term ‘‘UPOV Contracting Party’’ means a member of the International Convention for the Protection of New Varieties of Plants.’’

SEC. 703. CERTAIN LIMITATIONS ON DAMAGES FOR PATENTINFRINGEMENT NOT APPLICABLE.

Section 283(c)(4) of title 35, United States Code, is amended by striking ‘‘before the date of enactment of this subsection’’ and inserting ‘‘based on an application the earliest effective filing date of which is prior to September 30, 1990’’.

SEC. 704. ELECTRONIC FILING AND PUBLICATIONS.

(a) PRINTING OF PAPERS FILED.—Section 22 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by striking ‘‘printing or typewritten’’ and inserting ‘‘printed, typewritten, or on an electronic medium’’.

(b) PUBLICATIONS.—Section 11(a) of title 35, United States Code, is amended by adding the matter preceding paragraph 1 to read as follows:

‘‘(a) The Director may publish in printed, typewritten, or electronic form, the following:—

‘‘(1) The dates of the filing, publication, or transfer of ownership of a patent or patent application; and

‘‘(2) The name and address of the owner of a patent or patent application.

(c) COPIES OF PATENTS FOR PUBLIC LIBRARIES.—Section 224 of title 35, United States Code, is amended by striking ‘‘before the date of enactment of this subsection’’ and inserting ‘‘after the date of enactment of this Act’’.

SEC. 705. STUDY AND REPORT ON BIOLOGICAL DEPOSITS IN SUPPORT OF BIO-TECHNOLOGY PATENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—No later than 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States, in consultation with the Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office, shall conduct a study and submit a report to the Congress on the potential risks to the United States biotechnology industry relating to biological deposits in support of biotechnology patents.

(b) The study conducted under this subsection shall include—

(1) an examination of the risk of loss and the risk of transfers to third parties of biological deposits, subject to the same''; and

(t) any related recommendations.

(c) CONSIDERATION OF REPORT.—In drafting regulations affecting biological deposits (in support of biotechnology patents), the United States Patent and Trademark Office shall consider the recommendations of the study conducted under this subsection.

SEC. 706. PRIOR INVENTION.

Section 112(g) of title 35, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

‘‘(g)(1) during the course of an interference contraception, the invention was made in this country by another inventor who had not abandoned, suppressed, or concealed it. In determining priority of invention under this subsection, there shall be considered only the respective dates of conception and reduction to practice of the invention, but also the reasonable diligence of one who was first to conceive and last to reduce to practice from a time prior to conception by the other.’’.

SEC. 707. PRIOR ART EXCLUSION FOR CERTAIN COMMONLY ASSIGNED PATENTS.

(a) PRIOR ART EXCLUSION.—Section 102(c) of title 35, United States Code, is amended by striking ‘‘subsection (f) or (g)’’ and inserting ‘‘one or more of subsections (e), (f), and (g)’’.

SEC. 708. EFFECTIVE DATE FOR CERTAIN TRANSFERS.

Section 110(a) of title 35, United States Code, is amended by striking ‘‘the effective filing date of which is prior to September 30, 1990’’.

SEC. 709. REPEAL OF ORGANIZATIONAL TRANSFERS.

Sections 116(k), 116(m), 116(n), 116(o), and 116(p) of title 35, United States Code, is amended by striking ‘‘the effective filing date of which is prior to September 30, 1990’’.

SEC. 710. TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS RELATING TO BIOLOGICAL DEPOSITS IN SUPPORT OF BIO-TECHNOLOGY PATENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—No later than 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States, in consultation with the Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office, shall conduct a study and submit a report to the Congress on the potential risks to the United States biotechnology industry relating to biological deposits in support of biotechnology patents.

(b) The study conducted under this subsection shall include—

(1) an examination of the risk of loss and the risk of transfers to third parties of biological deposits, subject to the same'"
Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, the gentlewoman from Ohio is not a member of the committee of jurisdiction and is not, therefore, eligible to manage our time. I would ask for a ruling.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman from Ohio is eligible if the gentlewoman from California is not opposed.

Ms. LOFGREN. Then I will claim opposition.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman from California is opposed?

Ms. LOFGREN. I will claim opposition and the time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Then the gentlewoman from California qualifies since the gentlewoman is opposed to the bill.

The gentlewoman from California will then be recognized for 20 minutes.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Point of order. Mr. Speaker. With all fairness here, claiming opposition is not what the question is. If the gentlewoman from Ohio is indeed opposed to the bill, she deserves time as compared to someone who is unwilling to say that they are opposed to the bill.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, if I may, I have reservations about the changes made today. I hope that I can be convinced that they are adequately made by the time the debate is over.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. At this point, the Chair does not question the motives of the Member. The Member has stated she is in opposition to the bill.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE).

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Continuing my point of order, Mr. Speaker, does the Member not just claiming opposition, does she oppose the bill?

Ms. LOFGREN. I believe the Chair has ruled.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. If not, if she cannot state this, I would state as a point of order, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), who does say she is opposed to the bill, this is not in my interest to do this, this is in the interest of fairness, we should make sure the time is allotted to someone who opposes the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman from California has stated that she is in opposition to the bill; is that correct?

Is the gentlewoman from California in opposition to the bill?

Ms. LOFGREN. Until convinced about the changes made, yes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. At this point the gentlewoman from California is in opposition to the bill. The gentlewoman qualifies.

POINT OF ORDER

Ms. KAPTUR. Point of order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, do I take it, then, that under your ruling, I, as someone who is opposed to this measure, will not be allowed my own time during debate this evening? The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a motion to suspend the rules, only two Members may control the time. The gentlewoman from California has qualified to claim the time in opposition. She will, of course, be able to yield time if she so inclined.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Chairman, if I may, I plan to expansively yield time to the gentlewoman from Ohio.

Ms. KAPTUR. I wanted to ask, Mr. Speaker, how much time would that be of the total time allotted, then?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Each side has 20 minutes. The gentlewoman from California will control 20 minutes.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. HOYER. Am I correct that under the rules as they now exist, that if in fact the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) were recognized in opposition, she would receive half of the time allotted to the minority side of 20 minutes? Is that correct?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Only one Member may control time in opposition. The gentlewoman from California is indeed opposed to the bill. A member of the committee controls the time because she is opposed.

Mr. HOYER. So if she were in opposition, she would receive the entire 20 minutes?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. If the gentlewoman from California were not in opposition, someone else could seek that time.

Mr. HOYER. Further parliamentary inquiry. If that in fact occurred, could the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) yield time to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) 10 minutes?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Any Member in control of time can yield time to anyone else.

In other words, there would be nothing to preclude her from doing so?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Repeat your question, please.

Mr. HOYER. The Speaker’s response was, as I take it, if the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) were recognized as an opponent to the legislation, she could yield such time as she desired to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) who obviously has been asked by the committee to represent the minority side of the committee in this action.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That would be possible. But the gentlewoman from California, a member of the committee, has claimed the time because in opposition and will have the 20 minutes and will be able to yield that time as she so desires.

Mr. HOYER. I understand.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, could I ask unanimous consent to control my time?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Ohio?

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I object. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard.

The gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) controls the time.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I have a point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, the point of order is such that it seems to me that by being a little heavy-handed here, we are undermining this process.

Ms. LOFGREN. Will the gentleman yield?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state his point of order first.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. I withdraw my point of order.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to make a 10-second statement that will save us all a lot of time.

After I make my opening statement, it is my intention to yield 10 minutes to the gentlewoman from Ohio.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman may take 10 seconds of her time and solve the problem.

Ms. LOFGREN. I think we just solved it, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Very well.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 15 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say to my friend from California and to my friend from Ohio, the gentlewoman from California’s comments, I think, make it clear that no one is trying to roll anyone. I think that has been made clear by the gentlewoman from California’s comment subsequent to the beginning of the debate.

I rise tonight, Mr. Speaker, in support of H.R. 1907, the American Inventors Protection Act, and urge the House to adopt the measure.

Mr. Speaker, a coalition of Members, staff, administration officials, and other contributors have negotiated in good faith into the early evening to clarify what few outstanding issues remain in this 100-plus-page bill. I now
The gentleman from California (Mr. CAMPBELL), each of whom opposed this the last session, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. MANZULLO) and the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), in addition to other administration and industry officials.

The gentlewoman from California (Ms. MANZULLO), the ranking member of the subcommittee, among others, have been very helpful in this process. I want to thank all the participants and others too numerous to name for their patience and insight as we have labored to bring this bill finally to the floor.

Mr. Speaker, with a bill this complex and lengthy, no one who participates in its construction can get everything he or she wants. I think we have all done a good job, however, of addressing those legitimate concerns registered by independent inventors while retaining the core protections of the legislation. There is no doubt in my mind that H.R. 1907 will make our patent and trademark system, already the world's best, even better in the new millennium.

Mr. Speaker, I place an exchange of letters in the RECORD concerning committee jurisdiction on the bill H.R. 1907 between Chairman BURTON and myself.

Dear Mr. Chairman: I am writing with regard to H.R. 1907, the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999. As you know, under House Rule X of the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight has jurisdiction over the federal civil service and the overall economy, efficiency, and management of government operations and activities. Sections 612, 613, 614, and 621 of the amended bill address matters that are within the jurisdiction of this Committee.

In the interest of expediting floor consideration for this measure, the Committee on Government Reform will agree not toexercise its jurisdiction over those sections on the understanding that you have agreed to amend the bill as follows:

1. Section 613 will be revised to provide that the total compensation of the Commissioner for Patents and the Commissioner for Trademarks may not exceed the salary of the Vice President. (You are correct in your understanding that the Under Secretary of Commerce for Intellectual Property and Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office, and the Deputy Under Secretary of Commerce for Intellectual Property and Deputy Director of the United States Patent and Trademark Office will not be eligible for bonuses under any future consideration of related matters.

Sincerely,

HENRY HYDE
Chairman.

Ms. LOFGREN. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, it is limited, I say to the gentlewoman from California., to the State Street Bank case. There was some discussion early on that. Perhaps the first inventive defense should apply to processes as well as methods. But we finally concluded that we would restrict it to methods only, and that, by having done that, we were able to satisfy some folks who were opposed to the bill otherwise.

Ms. LOFGREN. All right. So that is an accommodation that we have done, given that legislation is sausage making, to move this whole process forward.

On title IV there is a provision permitting applicants to request the issuance of a patent as soon as one claim was allowed with the remaining claims to be added later, and that was deleted. I am concerned that this would change the bill as passed by the Committee on the Judiciary, but there may be a good reason for that, and I am not aware of for the change that is proposed.

Can the gentleman convince me as to why this should be supported?

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. LOFGREN. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. COBLE. This deletion was done at the request of the United States Patent and Trademark Office, and the reason given by PTO was that it considered it a constitutional of an additional administrative burden, and for that reason that change was made.

On title V, and this is something of actual considerable concern to me, the bill was amended to retain existing law for ex parte reexaminations. For inter partes reexaminations the basic framework in the bill was retained under title V but with the limitation that a third party requestor cannot appeal an adverse decision to the court of appeals for the Federal circuit court.

I am wondering if the gentleman can convince us why this change made after the bill was reported from the committee was necessary and why it should compel our support.

Mr. COBLE. If the gentlewoman from California would continue to yield?

Ms. LOFGREN. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. COBLE. Primarily this was done for the benefit of the independent inventors to balance the interest of a third party with the interest that I am concerned, patentee, by allowing a third party to pursue reexamination under the existing system or opting for a strictly limited ex parte reexamination while assuring that a patentee would not be subject to harassment in such proceeding.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, under title VI the Public Advisory Committee for Patents has been altered to provide a quarter of the representation to independents, so-called independent inventors. There is concern that institutional inventors, including universities, might be disadvantaged by this change. Can the gentleman advise us as to the wisdom of this proposal?

Mr. COBLE. If the gentleman would yield?

Ms. LOFGREN. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. COBLE. This title VI, as the gentleman knows, came in for much discussion. It was part of the cause for the delay. The distinguished gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Buzroon) chairs a committee that has jurisdiction over this title. He asserted that jurisdiction, and we were in exchange with him since May, to be specific, for the desired language that he preferred; and we finally got it, I think, by myself. It was guaged handed to us late today, and the purpose for his insisting upon that, and probably a good idea, was to ensure that independent inventors are not without a voice in the oversight of the operation of the PTO as far as sitting on one of the boards is concerned.

Ms. LOFGREN. Finally at this point, Mr. Speaker, I note that one change that I think I support but I have some concerns about is that the Patent and Trademark Office would be authorized to publish documents electronically. That makes sense, but because of the lack of vigorous encryption involved in the world and in government offices, I do have concerns as to the security of such publication. I do not know whether that can be addressed in the bill, but I do want to raise the issue, and my 5 minutes is expired. I want to reserve the time for the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), so I will leave that out for a later answer.

Mr. COBLE. We will get to that substantially.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER).

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 1907, as amended. This bill is the culmination of a long process of negotiations that followed floor battles in the last Congress between the leadership of the committee on the Judiciary and a group of Members led by myself. It was far more than sausage making because we have people with honest beliefs on both sides, and I certainly can see where people can have honest differences on something as complicated as patent law.

I began this fight in 1994 when I fought against provisions that were inserted into the GATT trade agreement implementation bill to eliminate our Nation’s traditional guarantee of a 17-year term for inventions, and the attempt to harmonize our patent law with those of other nations with a 20-year-from-filing limit that was imposed through that legislation, thus taking away a guaranteed patent term that had been the right of every American inventor. This change, by the way, would have imposed an additional limit that was imposed through the Patent Office for more than 3 years, which is a common occurrence with breakthrough technologies.

I was further energized in this fight when additional changes in our patent system were proposed, including the publishing of all patent applications 18 months after filing, even when no patent had been issued, and establishing prior user rights for all inventions, opening up new opportunities to challenge already-granted patents through reexamination and the turning of the Patent Office into a government corporation. These things caused me great pain and concern.

We want to have had ultimately resulted in a standoff in the Senate in which no patent legislation was adopted, and I am pleased to note that the negotiations I referred to earlier have resulted in a bill that is very much different from the one that went through the Committee on the Judiciary last year and the fights we have had in the last 4 years.

Instead of making minor, tenuous extensions in the patent term, H.R. 1907 goes most of the way in reversing the 1994 patent term reduction by extending patent term completely to compensate for delays in the processing of the Patent and Trademark Office or any other delay resulting from actions taken by anyone else other than the patent applicant. Instead of publishing all patent applications after 18 months, 1907 publishes only, the pending applications that have been published abroad, and thus they are already published and already known to the people and only the extent that they are published abroad.

Instead of a prior user defense that applies to all inventions which we just heard a question about a moment ago, H.R. 1907 contains a very limited prior user defense that applies only to those business methods which have only been considered patentable in the last few years, and this, of course, flows from an adverse case before the court that changed patent law.

We want to have our say in what is going on here, and we are correcting it in this legislation; and instead of corporatizing the Patent Office and removing civil service protection from patent examiners, H.R. 1907 leaves the PTO as an agency within the Department of Commerce while including valuable provisions keeping patent revenue within the Patent Office and providing for enhanced training and professional development for patent examiners and retaining their civil service status.

Mr. Speaker, although as in all compromises both sides have to give up something, maybe a little, I would say that my Committee on the Judiciary colleagues will not mind that I am stating for the RECORD that I believe that H.R. 1907 represents a major victory for the independent inventor whose interests I have vigorously defended these last 5 years.

I ask my colleagues to give H.R. 1907 their overwhelming support and to join me in urging the other body to take up this compromise as is and send it to the President for his signature without change.

Mr. Speaker, I have some more detailed comments, and I will be inserting them at this point in the RECORD, but I would not want to let this moment go by without thanking the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) who has, as my colleagues know, stepped forward in a spirit of goodwill and the negotiations we have had have resulted in a superior bill that is going to do great things for America and to keep us technologically ahead.

I also thank the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. MANZULLO). In his late-breaking contributions to this fight he has greatly improved this legislation, and he can be justly proud he has done a good job for America in doing so. Finally, I would like to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. CAMPBELL) and the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), and Ms. KAPTUR has been deeply involved in these negotiations from the beginning.

Ms. KAPTUR has been very deeply involved in this whole fight from the very beginning, and over the last 4 years, we have stood firm in fact in the last month we have had meetings in her office trying to negotiate these details out. We have been working with her staff, and I do not know, it sounds like we have not satisfied all of her concerns, but she has certainly played an important role in this process, and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINCICH) and the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER).

All of these people played such a significant role along with, of course, the gentleman and we have California (Mr. COBLE) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) in giving us this incredible piece of legislation that I believe is going to do great things for America. Also, my staff members Rick Dykema and Wayne Paugh and other science fellows who worked with me, Paul Crilly, John Morgan, Biff Kramer, Dick Backe and Richard Cowan, for all the thinking and the work we have done that represents a major victory for the independent inventor whose interests I have vigorously defended these last 5 years.

Mr. Speaker, for the last several years, this is a day I had hoped would come. I have fought long and hard to protect the products of our nation’s independent inventors. I have fought diligently to strengthen our patent system and to prevent changes in the name of harmonization. Now, after the continued competition and polemicization of the past, this was finally a time for cooperation. Chairman Coble and I have both spent many hours of individual effort pursuing our respective goals for patent reform the past several years, and indeed the time was ripe to work together toward a unified effort. It was time to have an open-ended process in which everyone had an opportunity to come to the table.

With that, I am proud to say that after a long and successful negotiation period with my friend from North Carolina, Chairman Coble, and with the invaluable help of my fellow colleague from California, Mr. Campbell, and with late-breaking help from my friend from Illinois, Mr. Manzullo, we were finally able to reach agreement on the issues. As was always the case, the devil has been in the details. Therefore, this is an important limitation in scope to the patent system.

In the patent bill that passed the House last year, all patents were subjected to prior user rights. This Congress, we were finally able to reach an agreement on the issues. As was always the case, the devil has been in the details. Therefore, this is an important limitation in scope to the patent system.

As everyone is aware, the current law governing patent term is 17 years from the date a patent is granted. Failing that, I have insisted on a guarantee that the PTO will extend the patent term as necessary to assure a term of 17 years from filing for non-dilatory applicants. The language of this bill clearly codifies this approach.

As everyone is aware, the current law governing patent term is 20 years from the date of file. Since June 8, 1995, when the 17-years-from-grant was changed, patents have been losing precious time under the current law. Inventors can no longer rely on a guaranteed term of protection. In some cases, several years of effective post-grant protection is lost due to delay for which the applicant has no responsibility.

This approach effectively eliminates the claimed submarine patent dilemma while providing a specific framework from which the Patent and Trademark Office must monitor and compensate the loss of any patent term due to delay for which the applicant has no responsibility.

This approach essentially gives back to the non-dilatory patent holder what I have fought so hard for—a guaranteed 17 year patent term. The patentee once again will have the right to exclude the public from using his invention for a limited time—a time that is guaranteed and clearly defined. This Title essentially regains what GATT gave away. It has been my core initiative and now I am proud to say that it is my most significant success in this bill.

As I supported last year, this bill includes a provision similar in spirit to the amendment successfully offered last year to H.R. 400 by my friend from Ohio, Marcy Kaptur. Essentially, this year's effort only permits early publication of U.S. patent applications that are filed abroad in a country that also publishes early. Additionally, the U.S. application will not be published before the foreign application, and in no greater content.

Curiously, this title has generated an abundance of controversy, although its provisions are of a positive nature. There are over 170 patent systems that currently exist globally. Our nation cannot control foreign policies on early publication. A majority of foreign nations choose to publish patent applications prior to granting a patent. The published patent application is also normally printed in the home language of each respective foreign patent system.

Generally, this title will affect large corporations, because they are more likely to file abroad than the independent inventor community. Since American patent applications filed abroad are indeed published early and are in a foreign language, foreign nations have a chance to view them at their leisure. This is the reality and the argument from the other side in the last Congress that was the hardest to counter.

Thus we have agreed to permit the PTO to publish after 18 months only those applications that are filed internationally. If an applicant files an application only domestically, he will have the additional protection conferred by the patent at issue.

This title was an attempt to provide an alternative to existing law and to further encourage potential litigants to use the PTO as a lane to resolve patentability issues without expanding the process into one resembling courtroom proceedings. Fundamentally, in addition to the reexamination process in law today, this title creates an additional reexamination option that permits a third party requestor to file additional written briefs. The price paid by those who would challenge a patent, however, is that the 3rd party requestor is barred from any appeals outside of the PTO and from subsequently litigating the same issues in a district court or making a second reexamination request. This stoppage is the insulation that effectively protects patent holders.

The current statute permits any patent holder or third party to submit prior art in the form of non-patent and printed publications throughout the term of the patent for the PTO to determine whether a substantial new question of patentability exists. Reexamination procedures currently limit a third party's participation to arguing why there is a substantial new question of patentability.

This title was an attempt to provide an alternative to existing law and to further encourage potential litigants to use the PTO as a lane to resolve patentability issues without expanding the process into one resembling courtroom proceedings. Fundamentally, in addition to the reexamination process in law today, this title creates an additional reexamination option that permits a third party requestor to file additional written briefs. The price paid by those who would challenge a patent, however, is that the 3rd party requestor is barred from any appeals outside of the PTO and from subsequently litigating the same issues in a district court or making a second reexamination request. This stoppage is the insulation that effectively protects patent holders.

Ultimately, the expanded reexamination option does not subject the patent to any greater challenge in scope than currently exists today. It merely allows a reexamination requestor the option to further explain why a particular patent should not have been granted.
Mr. Speaker, this bill does not create new opportunities to pursue litigation and does not create additional ways to invalidate patents. In fact, they would seek to provide even further ways to reduce the incentive for litigation in the courts and to protect against the needless wasting of dollars independent inventors don't have.

CONCLUSION

Certainly, last year's bill was an exercise in harmonization brought about by the interests of large corporations. In contrast, this year's bill, H.R. 1907, is designed to protect the products of our nation's inventors and to help sustain our unprecedented technological leadership. I saw to that through many intense negotiations with my colleagues. Unfortunately, there are still those who cannot recognize victory even when it staves them in the face.

I assure you, Mr. Speaker, that if H.R. 1907 was similar to either H.R. 400 or S. 507 last Congress, my views would not have changed this Congress. But that is not the case. H.R. 1907 is a brand new effort reached through an open-ended and fair debate, and it is a bill I am unequivocally supporting today. It is also a bill that I will stand firmly behind as it moves through the Senate.

I know it is up to Congress to carry on the tradition of Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, and the will of our Founding Fathers. It was they who provided our newly formed nation with a foundation for freedom and the power to protect the achievements of our inventors.

I have been intimately involved in these issues because I want to ensure that our patent system continues to respect the fundamentals of our Founding Fathers while at the same time enhancing its operability in modern society. We have a chance this Congress to enhance a system that better provides a stronger protection for our nation’s inventors.

Our patent system always has—and always will—stimulate the creation of jobs, advance our technological leadership, and help sustain our standard of living. It has helped to fortify our economic success, strengthen our national defense, and reinforce our global leadership.

I look forward to passing this bill with the resounding support of my colleagues on the House side and I look forward to the unshakeable support for its text when it is reported in the Senate.

I want to make sure that we will firmly stand behind the text of this bill in the event of contrary action by the Senate. But I am confident that the other noble body of this Congress will accept the House's efforts in patent reform and will move our version of the bill forward without delay.

Mr. Speaker, I applaud my colleagues who have endured a labor-intensive process to reach the final accord we have today. I know it was not an easy thing to do and that it was a long time coming, but it is the American people who will ultimately benefit.

This body can rest assured knowing we faithfully served American technology. Mr. Speaker, there is much work that will ultimately benefit American technology. Mr. Speaker, although I know there is much work that will ultimately benefit American technology. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I must say I find it very interesting here close to 10 p.m. Washington time that we have had walked to the floor less than a half an hour ago the bill that we are going to be asked to vote on tomorrow. This is likely to be the last item of business tonight. This bill is 105 pages long, and I must say I am extremely disappointed that I could not even talk about a measure that has been worked on in this Congress for several years, and now under the unusual, unusual procedure of bringing up a major bill like this with constitutional implications it is brought up under suspension, and I, as the only person in opposition here with perhaps the exception of one other are allowed 10 minutes. Mr. Speaker, I will not yield time at this point, having so few minutes myself.

Mr. Speaker, any reasonable person would ask why the silence. Why are we being silenced and not allowed to explore some of the questions that have troubled us over several years?

I listen very carefully to those that have been involved in these negotiations: the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. MANZULLO), the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER), the gentleman from California (Mr. CAMPANELLI).

Frankly I was not involved in the negotiations that have been occurring here over the last several weeks. There were two meetings I think in my office where we tried to gain clarification of language that never came back, and I would like to ask the chairman of the full committee, if I might, my good friend, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE), if this bill before us, H.R. 1907, is the same bill that was voted out of the Committee on the Judiciary on May 4 of this year, 1999.

Is this the same bill?

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Ms. KAPTUR. There is a manager's amendment here over the last several weeks, but the reason for my objection is this:

The Constitution of the United States sets up a very precious right of property. I am going to read it. It is only 32 words. It says article I, section 8, "The Congress shall have power to promote the progress of science and useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right—"exclusive right—"to their respective writings and discoveries.

Now, this is not some little amendment that is part of a manager's effort. This is the Constitution of the United States. Therefore, when a 105-page bill comes before us on suspension, those of us who value this document and devote much of our lives to preserving it under the oath that we take are very suspicious of any bill of such consequence that comes before us on suspension when we are allowed only 10 minutes to debate. I also would say that with all due respect to the excellent minds that were involved in crafting this manager's amendment, it is only a handful of Members of this institution. This bill is not up on the web. I cannot ask the inventors I represent back home to go to any site to look at it so I can be advised on how to vote tomorrow morning.

I know a fast ball when I see one. I have been here long enough to know that, I am offended by this, simply because I think the constitutional issues are so very important. I am not afraid of sunshine on this issue or any other issue, and I would say to my good friends from California, some of whom are on the floor tonight, I understand a little bit about industry differences, and I know that there are some industries that will benefit more than others from the publication in foreign locales of some of these patents. I would say, and I have only marked one paragraph that I will read here, because the public will know nothing of this bill before it is voted on tomorrow, but on page 33 there is this section that is called “United States publications of applications published abroad.” It says, “Subject to paragraph (2), each application for patent except applications for design patents filed under chapter 16 and provisional applications filed under section 111(b) shall be filed in accordance with procedures determined by the Director, promptly upon the expiration of a period of 18 months after the earliest filing date for which a benefit is sought under this title.”

Now, that is an interesting set of words there, but I guess I would want to take sections like that and let the sun shine in, let those back home whose livelihoods and futures, and, frankly, the future of this country depend on, have an opportunity to think and comment before this particular vote.

I agree with the chairman: this is complex, it is very important, and it is often misunderstood. I would have to say as a Member, I take some offense myself. You must understand this frustration is sought under this title.

So I do really feel that we are being closed out. That means that some interests are being looped in, and it means not to be given the chance to review this extremely important measure with constitutional consequences before we are asked to vote on it tomorrow.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to my good friend, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), who has fought so hard trying to get reform that is fair to all concerned.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding, and I want to express my concerns about the process.

The gentleman from California, myself, and others as well as the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) throughout the process of consideration of legislation, the history of which Mr. ROHRABACHER gave a little earlier, have raised very significant concerns. Those concerns were raised not for those who can lobby this House very effectively, but for those small inventors who have said that if they go through the system they will lose the integrity of their patent application.

Because of that concern we have raised repeatedly the reservations, I do not even want to say opposition, but reservations to this bill that were expressed to us by hundreds of small inventors, perhaps thousands of small inventors represented by them around this country.

My concern tonight is that the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER), for whom I have a great deal of respect, has fought so hard for our American inventors (Mr. MANZULLO), for whom I have a great deal of respect, who signed a letter with me, with the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) and the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) with respect to the bill in its previous form, we did not want it to move quickly.

We have now had changes in the bill which the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) has referred to which, frankly, not being a Member, I do not fully understand, to review fully, and I have a sense that maybe I am with the 430 people in this House. There perhaps have been four or five who have reviewed this legislation. But I am very concerned that we are not going to review until tomorrow, I understand that, without having the opportunity to fully review, debate, the provisions of this bill.

The gentleman from California made a very good statement, I thought, going through various provisions in the bill which we had concerns. I regret I do not have more time to speak.

Mr. Speaker, I regret the gentleman does not have more time as well. I wish to say to the gentleman, thank you very much for being here this evening, and to say thanks to our colleagues who have also labored on this bill.

There is regular order here. We should have regular order, especially on a bill of constitutional magnitude.

We all recognize it is.

So why are we so afraid to take the time to let Members read these provisions? If the bill is so good, then it will go through on its own merits, but not through clamping down on regular order, to debate that should proceed on a measure with constitutional consequences.

Frankly, if it is a bad bill, it is going to end up in the courts and it is not going to go anywhere. So we owe it to the American people to do it right the first time.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me the 10 minutes, but I truly wish at a minimum 20 minutes for a constitutional question, is this really asking too much?

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SANCHEZ). Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleagues from California for generously giving me time tonight on this subject.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2654, the American Inventors Protection Act. The bill improves current patent law and it is in our national interests. The United States is currently the only industrial nation without a first invention defense, and this bill will close that gap.

The first invention defense allows a company who is using a manufacturing process, if someone patents that process after the company has been using it, to continue to use it. This is in the best interests of competitive growth and our industrial technology. The bill also makes the Patent and Trademark Office better equipped to deal with the flood of patent applications that come in every day.

Clearly this is a bill that is good for American business, and it will therefore be good for the American consumer. I urge my colleagues to vote for H.R. 2654.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the gentlewoman from Ohio said she was offended. Well, I am becoming offended too, when I think of all the time that we have put in listening to every person who wanted to be heard. The gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) submitted a FOLIO fee for study for small businesses. It is in the bill. Her own study is in the bill, section 622.

The Alliance for American Innovation, a group known to the gentleman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) and adamantly opposed to our bill, I invited them not once, but twice to send a witness to a public hearing. On each occasion, Mr. Speaker, my invitation was declined. So, yes, I am becoming a little bit impatient as well, because I think we have indeed turned the other cheek, and I am proud of it.

My friend the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), when she was reading earlier the provision that she read, of paragraph 2, when she read paragraph 2, exceptions for independent inventors who file only in the United States. That is covered.

I apologize, Mr. Speaker, if I am becoming a little wrought, but I am a little bit, and I am an easy dog with which to hunt. But when I think about all we have done, and then I see the gentlewoman from California, Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, let me just note that the section of the
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE 19281

August 3, 1999

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I want to address a question that the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) asked earlier, and I want to do it before I forget it. When the gentlewoman talked about the PTO authorizing the publishing of documents electronically, it was done to ensure that the users of the Patent and Trademark Office may have a more expeditious and thorough access to patent-related information. I think I know from where the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) is coming from, and I will be happy to discuss the security aspect with her at a subsequent time.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COBLE. I yield to the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I do not believe we need to specify the security issues in the bill. I believe the chairman’s commitment to work with us, and I am sure with the gentlewoman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE), to ensure the encrypted security of these measures.

Mr. COBLE. I thank the gentlewoman.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. MANZULLO).

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, these past 2 days have been perhaps the most challenging in my life as a United States Congressman. I, first of all, want to thank the gentleman from North Carolina (Chairman COBLE) for his patience, his understanding, his wisdom, and his knowledge of this subject. I come to this gentleman’s desire to protect the scholarship and the reputation he has for honesty in this country, but also for the fact that many people have attacked the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) personally because of this bill. I believe that if there is any attack, it should be to the legislative language, and not to an individual’s integrity.

These have been challenging days. In addition to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE), I want to thank the gentlewoman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER), the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE), the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary.

We have labored endlessly in these past 2 days to come up with a bill that protects the integrity of the patent system of this country, while giving fair and open access to it by large corporations and by individual inventors.

The bill is not a compromise in that parties give up or gain any rights. Rather, it is a coming together of all interests in forging a bill that represents openly and fairly the interests of everybody, especially and including the American people.

I worked in two areas of the bill, first with regard to title II of the first inventor defense. Before the State Street Bank and Trust case as to which in 1998 the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the Appeal of the Federal court, it was universally thought that methods of doing or conducting business were not patentable items.

Before that case, everybody would keep that secret and never tried to patent it. In recognition of this pioneer clarification in the law by that case, we felt that those who kept their business practices secret had an equitable cause not to be stopped by someone who subsequently reinvented the method of doing or conducting the business or obtaining a patent. We, therefore, limited the first inventor defense solely to that class of rights dealing with methods of doing or conducting business.

It is succinctly to be understood that we do not intend to create by legislative fiat the first inventor defense or any prior user rights for any other process, method, or product or other statutorily recognized class of patentable rights.

Second, with regard to title V, Optional Inter Partes Reexamination Procedure, what we did in that was, in addition to keeping the present law of ex parte reexamination, what we gave certain rights to the inventor and to the challenger, we came up with an additional section, the inter partes reexamination which, if selected by the third party requestee, would entitle that person to participate further by filing written documents within the Patent Office.

In exchange for that, there would be a complete estoppel or prohibition to contest the decision. The purposes of our making those changes was to stop any additional litigation that may come as a result of this law.

This means fairness for everybody. For the inventor who has a request for reexamination filed against him, in the present ex parte reexamination process, he still has the same rights he does under the present law; that is, the third party has to rely on his initial written documents. The third party has no right to appeal in the event that he loses a challenge. If the inventor loses, he still may obtain his right to appeal to the Court and have his patent rights restored.

To the third party, he may proceed under the present law or the option to file the inter partes reexamination.

So it is a matter of fairness to everybody in maintaining the integrity of the Patent Office. Sure, we have had a lot of people help us on this in addition to the Members and Bob Rines who founded the Franklin Pierce Law Center at MIT, founder of the Academy of Applied Science, an inductee of the Inventors’ Hall of Fame, an inductee of the Army Signal Corps Wall of Fame, a Lecturer at the MIT since 1933, a former lecturer of patent law at Harvard, the inventor of the sonogram, a person who has practiced patent law for 55 years and has no interest other than to maintain the rule of law and the integrity of the patent system. He came and helped everybody out.

But, Mr. Speaker, this bill is a good bill because it protects everybody. But most of all, it protects the integrity of the patent system. I would ask that when the Senate takes it up that the bill would be unchanged in its present form.

Mr. Speaker, these past 2 days have been two of the most challenging I have had as a Member of Congress. I have had the opportunity to work with my good friends and colleagues, Congressmen HENRY HYDE, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, HOWARD COBLE, chairman of the Judiciary Subcommittee on Intellectual Property, and DANA ROHRABACHER. We have labored endlessly these past 2 days to come up with a bill that protects the integrity of the patent system in the country, while giving fair and open access to it by large corporations and individual inventors. The bill is not a compromise in that parties “give up” or “gain” any rights; rather, it is a coming together of all interests in forging a bill that represents openly and fairly the interests of everybody—including and especially the American people.

I have had a hand in working in the following areas of the bill.

First, with regard to title II—First Inventor Defense: Before the State Street Bank and Trust case, as to which in 1998 the U.S. Supreme Court denied certiorari and thereby upheld the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, it was universally thought that methods of doing or conducting business were not among the statutory items that could be patented. Before that case, everybody would keep their methods of doing or conducting business as secret as they could and never tried to patent them. In recognition of this pioneer clarification in the law, we felt that those who kept their business secrets secret had an equitable cause not to be stopped by someone who subsequently reinvented the method of doing or conducting business and obtained a patent. We, therefore, limited the first inventor defense solely to that class of rights dealing with “methods of doing or conducting business.” It is distinctly to be understood that we do not intend to create first inventor defense or prior user rights for any other process, method, product, or other statute.

Second, with regard to title V—Optional Inter Partes Reexamination Procedure: We clearly retain the present existing ex parte reexamination rules without change, Chapter 30 of title 35, United States Code. In addition we added an optional inter partes reexamination procedure, which, if selected by a third party requester, would entitle that requester to participate by filing written documents within the Patent Office only, and would bar the requester from appealing to the Federal Court of Appeals of the Federal Circuit if the Patent Office decided the patent reexamination in favor of the inventor. In selecting this optional inter partes procedure, however, the requester would be bound by the decision of the Patent Office and estopped (or prohibited) to contest the decision in any other civil action outside the Patent Office.

This means fairness for everybody. For the inventor who has a request for reexamination filed against him in the present ex parte reexamination process, he still has the same rights as he does under the present law: (a) the third party has to rely on his initial written documents and cannot participate in the discussion between the inventor and the patent office; (b) the third party has no right to appeal in the event he loses his challenge; and (c) if the inventor loses, he still maintains his right to appeal to the Court of Appeals.

For the third party, he may either proceed under the present law, as outlined above, or have the option to file under the inter partes reexamination procedure, and file further documents (as opposed to just the initial documents) and thus participate in the proceedings in the patent office, but with no right to a court appeal if the Patent Office decides against him, and with an estoppel (prohibition) against his challenging the Patent Office decision in any forum.

With regard to title VI—Patent and Trademark Office, we are proud to say that the sole mission of the Patent Office is to protect intellectual property rights, and the title lets the Patent Office retain and use for its purposes all the revenues and receipts. This means the Patent Office will have additional funds to retain professional staff, provide increase training and facilities, and make the patent system as affordable as possible for all inventors.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, how much time is remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MILLER of Florida). The gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) has 4 minutes remaining. The gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) has 3 minutes remaining.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 revamps our patent system so it is ready to meet the challenge of our Nation’s high-tech industry and the global economy.

We had a spirited debate in the last Congress on our predecessor bill, H.R. 400. While H.R. 400 did pass the House, it died in the Senate. This year I believe we made the changes that meet the concerns raised during the floor debate in committee.

The bill was first published as a committee print so everyone could make known their objections and so final details could be carefully considered before the bill’s formal introduction.

Now that the Subcommittee on Courts and Intellectual Property has favorably reported the result of all that effort, as has the full committee, I encourage support of the bill.

It requires early publication of our foreign competitors’ technology, it protects American investors from unscrupulous invention promoters, it protects domestic manufacturers and jobs from late-filed and issuing patents, half of which are foreign owned, it provides an inexpensive and efficient system for challenging improvidently granted patents, and it gives the Patent and Trademark Office operational flexibility that it needs.

Under this bill, no U.S. inventor who seeks patent protection only in the United States will have to publish their patent application, that is, if they wish to maintain their invention’s secrecy.

But a U.S. inventor will get to see what foreign competitors are seeking to patent here more than a full year earlier than is the case under current law.

While the administrative procedure for testing patents in the PTO by expert examiners will be made fairer, thus enhancing its utility, a number of safeguards have been added to ensure that patentees, especially those of limited financial means, will not be harassed or otherwise subject to predatory tactics.

In addition to the PTO’s being reorganized into a performance-based organization, the creation of the statutory advisory committee will be of value both to the Congress, the President, and the public.

This Act will strengthen our Nation’s technological leadership, protect American workers, and reduce the cost of obtaining and enforcing patents in the United States.

When I stood earlier this evening, I expressed reservations about the changes that were made in the bill between reporting, I would say unanimously by the full committee, and record of the bill today.

As I mentioned, legislating is like making sausage. There are many aspects that are not delightful. But I would note that the changes that have been made are explained by the chairman are really discrete ones.

As the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER) pointed out, the bulk of this bill is exactly what was reported by the committee. It has been available to everybody any time as I may consume. It has been available to every Member of the public and this House for many months.

The five changes that have been made, although not what I necessarily would have crafted, are those that I can tolerate, that I think American inventors can tolerate. I understand that they are necessary in order to garner the kind of broad consensus that is required in order to move this bill forward.

We know that the intellectual property is the coin of the realm in an information-based economy that ours has become. Without strong protection of intellectual property, including patent law, we put at risk the tremendous prosperity that we have created here in America, our wonderful country.

This bill will go a long ways towards enhancing the protection that we need for our intellectual property. Therefore, I can now, understanding the five discrete changes, support the bill. I urge that my colleagues would support the bill. I hope that the Senate will act swiftly to get this long overdue measure enacted into law.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I say to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) I did not yield to her earlier because I did not have the time; and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) did yield 10 minutes, so I do not think anybody was cutting anybody off.

Much has been said about coming here tonight. Last night, this bill was on the calendar. But in an effort to make yet more changes for the independent inventors, we are here tonight, almost at the bewitching hour. Fifty-five cosponsors, Mr. Speaker, nine hearings have been conducted, 90 witnesses have been before three sessions of the Congress.

No, this is not a Johnny-come-lately. This is not a guy who came to the party at midnight. We know this visitor. This visitor is well known to all of us.

Let me tell my colleagues, Mr. Speaker, who sponsors it, who supports the bill: Inventors Digest and independent inventor Robert Rines. I mentioned the gentleman from California
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE
19283

H.R. 1907 comes before us as a consensus bill. In the last Congress we had a battle on the floor when we debated this issue. Now we have a bill before us, and, as we have heard, there is very limited opposition. I believe almost all of us can support. A manager's amendment contains the core provisions of H.R. 1907 which enjoys 56 cosponsors nearly equally represented by both sides of the aisle.

H.R. 1907 makes a number of commonsense improvements to our patent system. It is the culmination of over 4 years of extensive hearings and debate among Members of differing views on patent reform who have had many opportunities to refine the legislation to what we will be voting upon today.

Members have agreed upon these provisions because they recognize that we in Congress cannot continue to postpone action on this critical topic of how our patent system interacts with our competitive businesses, and women know that to be successful, you must constantly refine how your organizations operate in order to remain competitive in the face of a changing environment. The same is true to our patent system.

We are facing an economic environment that is changing more rapidly than ever, and we must give our inventors, entrepreneurs, and patent system the tools they need to address these changes.

H.R. 1907 provides significant benefits and additional protection for all those who pay patents who later usurp their technology and patent it; Publication of U.S. patent applications which are also filed abroad, thus eliminating an advantage our patent system gives to foreign companies; Reducing costly patent litigation by improving the Patent Trademark Office reexamination process for patents which may have been issued inappropriately.

We are all working hard to make sure that U.S. inventors and entrepreneurs are positioned to take advantage of the significant transformations underway in our economy, transformations that are unsurpassed in increasing new jobs. These transformations, many of which can rightly be labeled electronic commerce, are generating significant innovation. However, not all innovations are patented. We must make sure that true innovators have the incentives and protection they need to continue the process of invention, whether or not they elect to patent their inventions. However, nothing in H.R. 1907 eliminates a patentee's exclusive right to collect royalties on his or her invention. At the same time, we must continue to provide new incentives for our patentees, and to make sure that a U.S. letter patent remains a thing of quality and value.

H.R. 1907 does all these things, and I urge its passage by this Body and its enactment at the earliest opportunity. In short, I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting this important legislation to keep America competitive in the 21st century. I thank you, Mr. COBLE, Chairman HYDE and all others in making this bill a reality.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of this important legislation, and I want to congratulate those who worked so hard to reach this agreement. This is a very good bill and a very, very important bill to protect the competitiveness of American business and American inventors, large and small. I commend the gentleman from North Carolina, my good conservative friend, and the gentleman from California, Mr. ROHRABACHER, for pushing this legislation forward. Both gentlemen know how important this legislation is for the American people.

We are currently dealing with a situation where we have got to act and act now to protect American inventors from a situation where that technology is being stolen under current law.

Under current law, every single patent that is filed in the other major industrial countries around the world is published after 18-months, in Japanese, in German, in French, for those inventors and those countries to see. Forty-five percent of all the patents filed with the U.S. Patent Office are filed by foreign inventors, and U.S. inventors do not get to see that technology filed here in the United States.

This bill provides greater protection for the small inventor by improving the patent pending provisions of the law. This bill protects the small inventor in this country by giving them the opportunity to get capital behind those inventions much sooner than they get under current law.

Mr. Speaker, this is a good bill. It is a good bill for the little guy, and we should vote for the bill and get this major improvement to competitiveness in the United States against our foreign competition done.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 1907. As ranking member of the Subcommittee on Courts and Intellectual Property, I can attest to the longstanding efforts of my colleagues and predecessors on the Subcommittee, Carlos Moorehead, Pat Schroeder, and BARNEY FRANK, on behalf of this legislation. Now thanks to the very hard work of the gentleman from North Carolina and his staff, with the assistance of the gentlelady from California, we now move one step closer to enactment of reforms that will more effectively protect the creativity and investments of American inventors, entrepreneurs, and businesses.

A voluminous record has been compiled by our subcommittee in support of this legislation, comprising many days of hearings over several Congresses. As a result of that record, I am convinced that this bill is unquestionably in the national interest. I embrace the conclusions of the 21st Century Patent Coalition that the bill will improve the quality of patents, reduce the costs of resolving patent disputes, put an end to rules favoring foreign applicants over American companies, protect American businesses and jobs, and not least of all, strengthen the rights of inventors who now...
suffer from delays at PTO that are not their fault.

In view of the strong support of a wide range of associations and interests, including a very large number of Fortune 500 companies, the Biotechnology Industry Association, the Computer and Communications Industry Association, the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers Association, the Business Software Alliance; the National Association of Manufacturers—why even the Indiana Manufacturers Association—the obstacles that have been thrown up to our efforts to get this bill scheduled for consideration are very hard to understand.

While I supported earlier versions of this legislation, including H.R. 400 as approved by our Committee last year, I am always loathe to make the best enemy of the good. Today's legislation has won broader support than previous versions of this legislation, and I salute my colleagues from North Carolina and his staff for their patience and persistence in bringing us a giant step closer today to our mutual goal of patent reform.

I strongly support this bill, and urge my colleagues to do so as well.

Mr. COBLE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 1907, the American Inventors Protection Act. The bill, introduced by Representatives COBLE and BERNSTEIN, and now cosponsored by a bipartisan coalition, will provide much needed patent protection to American inventors. This bill also makes the Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) more accountable to its customers, and allows customers to recoup patent term lost during the patent process at the PTO. Without a doubt, H.R. 1907 is a pro-growth bill that would foster technological advancements without leaving the small businessperson behind.

The United States is by far the world's largest producer of intellectual property. Many other nations have learned from our success, and have enacted laws targeted at protecting intellectual property developed by small businesses, individuals, and industries. Major changes are needed in U.S. patent law to ensure that American inventors and businesses that are largely dependent on the development of intellectual property have the opportunity to compete and win in the global marketplace.

Enactment of this legislation is crucial to promoting growth in the New Economy and to ensuring that the competitiveness of the U.S. high-tech sector, including biotechnology will be enhanced by this bill.

The bill would require the publication of patent applications at eighteen months—a requirement that would make U.S. patent law consistent with the laws of our leading foreign competitors. Under the current two-tiered system almost 80 percent of all patent applications pending in the United States are also filed and published in other countries and printed in the language of the host country. This publication requirement means that foreign competitors may review the U.S. patent application. But because the U.S. system does not require patent publication prior to issuance, foreign competitors are not required to reveal the subject of their applications until after a U.S. patent is issued.

Patent reform legislation also targets a practice known as "submarine patenting," in which a patent applicant deliberately files a very broad application and then delays the issuance of a patent for several years until someone else, who is unaware of the hidden patent application, invests in research and technology to develop a new consumer product. When the product is developed, the holder of the "submarine patent" rises above the surface to sue those who have developed the technology.

Submarine patent filings have risen sharply since the early 1980's. One of these submarine patents cost one company more than $500 million, not including court costs, taking R&D dollars out of the system. Reform is needed to prevent individuals from manipulating the system at great costs to others who are investing in research and innovation.

The U.S. should promote industries and sectors of our economy that provide the U.S. with the greatest relative competitive advantage, to foster innovation. The U.S. is a leader in research, innovation, and the development of intellectual property, but this advantage could be jeopardized if U.S. patent law is not reformed to create a level playing field with our competitors. U.S. patent law should be reformed to ensure that our businesses and researchers are well positioned to compete in the global economy today and into the future.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1907, as amended.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1907, as amended, is agreed to.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF INTENTION TO OFFER MOTION TO INSTRUCT ON H.R. 1905, LEGISLATIVE BRANCH APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000

Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 7(c) of House rule XX, I hereby notify the House of my intention to-morrow to offer the following motion to instruct House conferees on H.R. 1905, making appropriations for the Legislative Branch for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion.

Mr. Speaker moves that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the Senate amendments to the bill H.R. 1905 be instructed to insist upon—

(1) the House provisions for the funding of the House of Representatives under title I of the bill;

(2) the Senate amendment for the funding of the Senate under title I of the bill, including funding provided under the heading "JOINT ITEMS—ARCHITECT OF THE CAPITOL—Capitol Buildings and Grounds—senate office buildings";

(3) the House provisions for the funding of Joint Items under title I of the bill, other than the funding provided under the heading "JOINT ITEMS—ARCHITECT OF THE CAPITOL—Capitol Buildings and Grounds—senate office buildings"; and

(4) the House version of title II of the bill.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. NORTHUP). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

VACATION OF SPECIAL ORDER AND GRANTING OF SPECIAL ORDER

Mr. DELAY. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to vacate the time allotted to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) and take it myself.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

PRESIDENT IS REWRITING HISTORY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DELAY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to set the record straight. The President of the United States was in Chicago today taking all kinds of credit for the successes of the Welfare Reform Act that was passed by this Congress and signed by the President.

This President has taken a lot of credit for a lot of things over the last few years, particularly over the years that the Republicans had maintained a majority of this Congress. Frankly, Madam Speaker, I have had just enough.

This President, Madam Speaker, has not initiated one thing, one piece of legislation that he takes credit for.

I will grant him that he finally signed many of the pieces of the legislation, but he has not lifted one finger to pass any of this legislation that he takes credit for through this Congress.

There should be no mistake about it, the well-documented success of welfare reform is the work of the Republican majority in this Congress. Back in 1994, Republicans campaigned on a plan that included comprehensive welfare reform. The Contract With America put Republicans in control of Congress, and we delivered on our agenda.

History should not be rewritten. The President and the Democrats in Congress fought Republicans tooth and nail on welfare reform. And, frankly, Madam Speaker, the debate was not very civil. My colleagues on the other side of the aisle charged that Republicans wanted to kick desperate people out on the street to fend for themselves. Our opponents on welfare reform screamed that the Republicans would be responsible for countless starving people in this country. Our opponents maintained that reforming welfare would create an unmitigated social disaster.

Well, it is time to set the record straight. Americans are not starving due to the Republican insistence for welfare reform. Americans are not sleeping on park benches due to Republican insistence on welfare reform. And without question, there have been no social upheavals of any kind as a result of the Republicans’ insistence to restructure welfare reform.

In fact, quite the opposite is true. The results of Republican welfare reform have been so incredible that President Clinton has typically been taking credit for welfare reform’s success, despite the fact that he vetoed welfare reform twice before reluctantly signing it into law. That is right, President Clinton vetoed welfare reform not once but twice, and now he is trumpeting the success on his own and traveling around the country looking for all this success as being his success, his idea, his initiative.

Well, this tactic is nothing new. We are used to it. We have been used to it for 4½ years now. Republicans are accustomed to working hard to initiate commonsense reforms that the Democrats oppose only to watch Democrats adopt these ideas after they succeed. Democrats even tried to take credit for the budget surplus, even though everyone knows that it was the Republican Party that reduced the budget deficit those deficits.

But the American people know better. The American people understand what separates the Republican philosophy from the Democrat philosophy. The Republican philosophy wants the government to do more with less. The Republican philosophy seeks to empower communities with more local control by freeing them from the restraints of big government spending in Washington. And the Republican philosophy places ultimate trust in the individual, who, in most cases, will succeed if he is cut free from the chain of dependence.

This stands in stark contrast to the big government philosophy of the liberal Democrats. They do not trust the strength and dedication of the average American. The Democrats do not think that individuals can succeed without the government holding their hands all throughout their lives.

Well, the record speaks for itself, Madam Speaker. In the 3 years since welfare reform was passed, over 12 million Americans have moved from welfare to work. That is 12 million Americans who have moved from dependency to independence and dignity.

By December of last year, welfare rolls had dropped by 45 percent. And that is a national average. Many of the States have much higher success rates. For example, caseloads are down by 81 percent in Idaho and over 70 percent in Wisconsin. And this is very important. Child poverty rates and overall poverty rates have declined every year since welfare was reformed. Beyond any doubt, these facts show that hope for those on welfare is found in more personal responsibility not more government bureaucracy.

So, Madam Speaker, the spirit of the American people is based on the free-market, the work ethic, and combating the odds. From the beginning of this Nation, Americans of all walks of life have fought uphill battles and won. The Republicans in Congress believe in the American spirit, and that is why we fought so hard to reform welfare reform and we should have the credit.

The President has no right to take credit. When the going gets tough, the tough get going, and the Republican Congress is responsible for welfare reform, not the President of the United States.

REVISING HISTORY

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. Northup). Under a previous order of business, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOYER. Madam Speaker, I was constrained to rise and respond to my friend, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY). The gentleman revises history. On a normal night, perhaps no one would rise to say that it was revisionist history at best, or at worst, deploring upon one’s perspective.

In 1992, Bill Clinton ran for President of the United States, and he put forward a document called The New Covenant. Not a contract on America, a new covenant, a new promise, a new commitment, a new cooperation, a new working arrangement with America. And in that new covenant he said that, yes, we expect government to do good things for people.

Government, in my perspective, is our community at large trying to work together trying to make lives better. But in that new covenant, that my Republican friends so quickly forget, I am sure, Bill Clinton said that we need to expect of each American personal responsibility; that they will commit the desires to use their best talents to enhance their own lives because that, in turn, would enhance the lives of our community, if each and every one of us carried our share of the load.

It was the President, in 1992, who said that personal responsibility ought to be a key word for America’s revival. America heard that, and America elected him. And in that new covenant as well, when he talked about personal responsibility, he said we need welfare reform. I guess the Republicans forget that.

They chuckle, Madam Speaker, but I will remind my colleagues of some history, for those who were not here, when every Democrat voted for a welfare reform bill sponsored by NATHAN DEAL. Does that name ring a bell? He was a Democrat at that time, but he had a bill that we worked on that demanded personal responsibility; the expectation that if we could, we would be expected to work, because the work ethic is critical to the success of a family, of our family, and of a society. That bill did not become law, but we had other bills.

Now, my colleagues, how many times have we all heard it complained, oh, if the President would only let us do this, we could have done great things? They know that they could not possibly have overridden the veto of the President of the United States. If he had not been committed, and if he had not led the fight for welfare reform, the Republicans could not have done it. And they know that.

My friend, the majority whip, likes to say we did it, we get the credit. Very frankly, everybody in this House deserves the credit, and Americans deserve the credit, and governors deserve the credit, and State legislators deserve the credit. Why? Because we all perceived that there was a system that existed which did not encourage and have the expectation of work. But for the fact that Bill Clinton was president and that effort, it could have happened because he could have vetoed it. And all of my colleagues know that his veto would have been sustained because there were more than 146 Democrats in this House and more than 40 Democrats in the United States Senate.

Now, let me go on to balancing the budget. Frankly, my colleagues, what the Republican Party has been responsible for since I have been in Congress, is the gargantuan deficits and debt that confronts our country. Period. Why? Because Ronald Reagan and George Bush proposed in their budgets those deficits.

Now, my Republican colleagues may say it is absurd that the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) would say that. Well, look at the budgets. Presidents Reagan and Bush asked for more spending in those 12 years than the Congress appropriated. Now, if they didn’t seriously they planned for those deficits.

Now, were the priorities slightly different? They were. But the fact of the matter is Ronald Reagan never vetoed a bill for spending too much that was not sustained by the Congress. In other words, not a nickel could have been spent in this country that Ronald Reagan did not put his signature on. Not a nickel.

So the budget balancing came at the hands of Bill Clinton, when for 7 years in a row now the budget deficit has decreased, for the first time in this century. ALL THE ARROWS ARE DOWN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MORAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MORAN of Kansas. Madam Speaker, I keep a board in my office that lists the cash the major commodities grown in my state of Kansas. An arrow next to the price indicates whether the price is up or down, and for too long now, and for more days than not, all the arrows are down.

Prices for our major commodities grown in the State of Kansas are at historic lows. The wheat crop in Kansas is worth $500 million less this year than last, and prices for corn, soybeans, and milo paint a similar picture for the fall crops. The prices for beef and pork are depressed as well. And behind these numbers are real people. Every day, farmers and ranchers are being forced out of business and off the farm and ranch never to return.

Madam Speaker, I appreciate the statements made on Friday about the crisis in agriculture and the call upon President Clinton to work with Congress to provide relief soon. I could not agree more. We need to do something and we need to do something now.

On July 21, I introduced H.R. 2568, the Market Loss Assistance Act. H.R. 2568 would provide supplemental farm income program payments equal to 75 percent of a producer’s 1999 payment under the Agricultural Market Transition Act. This is the same mechanism that Congress used last year to provide emergency relief to farm country. Today, the need is greater and more urgent than it was a year ago.

I hope the House will honor my request to consider H.R. 2568 or other disaster relief before Congress goes home for the August recess. Our farm and ranch constituents are counting on us to do the right thing and to do it sooner rather than later. Farmers need assurance that Congress and this administration will respond to the crisis. Otherwise we will lose another generation of family farmers and rural America will continue its difficult struggle.

Over the long haul there are many things that Congress can and must do to get the price arrows up on the chart and pointed in the right direction. We need to open new markets and expand trade opportunities for U.S. producers. We need a farm policy that preserves flexibility and provides price protection. We need adequate risk management tools that enhance our competitiveness. But these are all long-term solutions to a near-term crisis.

H.R. 2568 can get assistance to farm country immediately. I ask my colleagues to join me in supporting this legislation. The time to respond is now, not later.

RESTORING THE HONOR OF JOSEPH JEFFERSON “SHOELESS JOE” JACKSON

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. DEMINT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DEMINT. Mr. Speaker, this is a true story. In 1908, a textile mill worker from Greenville, South Carolina, who learned to play baseball on mill lines, made his minor league baseball debut for the Greenville Spinners. He couldn’t read or write, but he could sure play the game. His name was Joseph Jefferson Jackson. And in my town and in my State and in baseball circles around the world, he is a legend.

During a game in his first year in the minor leagues, Joseph Jackson’s feet began to hurt because of his shoes, so he took them off. He then proceeded to hit a triple, sliding into third. One of the fans in the crowd heckled him, saying he was a shoeless son of a gun. The nickname ‘Shoeless’ stuck.

Shoeless Joe Jackson had one of the most mythical careers in baseball history. He is mentioned among the greats: Babe Ruth, Ted Williams, Hank Aaron, Lou Gehrig. His .356 lifetime batting average achieved over a 13-year career is third only behind Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby.

In 1911, in his first major league season with Cleveland, Shoeless Joe batted .408, the highest batting average ever by a rookie. Traded to the Chicago White Sox in 1915, he led the team to victory in the 1917 World Series against the New York Giants.

Yet, while his name is mentioned among the greats, Joe Jackson is not with them in the baseball Hall of Fame. After the infamous 1919 Black Sox scandal, Jackson was suspended for life from the league by the commissioner of baseball.

Madam Speaker, this was a bad call. In 1919, a New York gambler allegedly bribed eight players of the Chicago White Sox, including Shoeless Joe, to throw the first and second game of the 1919 World Series. When the news came out the following year, the case was brought to criminal court.

A number of individuals, including local sportswriters and White Sox owner Charles Comisky, all testified to Jackson’s innocence. After the trial he was acquitted. However, the new commissioner of baseball, Judge Kennesaw Landis, decided to ban all the players who were allegedly involved without even conducting an investigation.

If Commissioner Landis had taken some time to review the evidence, I believe he would have found that Shoeless Joe played no part in throwing the Series. It was obvious by the way he played.

In the 1919 World Series, Shoeless Joe Jackson batted .375, the highest of any player on either team. He set a World Series record with 12 hits. His fielding was flawless. He had six of the White Sox’s 17 RBIs, and he hit the only homerun of the series.

A number of people from Senator Tom HARKIN of Iowa to the great Ted Williams have called for Commissioner Bud Selig to review the judgment made in haste 80 years ago. I would like to add the names of every Member of this House to that list.

Shoeless Joe was undoubtedly one of the greatest to play America’s favorite pastime. He worked his way up through the textile mills of South Carolina and lived the American dream. He loved the game of baseball. The time has come for the commissioner to review the record and give Joe Jackson his rightful place of honor.

When the heroes of today, McGuire, Sosa, Ripken, Griffey, and when the heroes of tomorrow who are still dreaming their dreams on little league fields and school playgrounds, when they all come to Cooperstown to be enshrined with the other greats in the baseball Hall of Fame, they deserve to be alongside one of the greatest players who ever played the game.

I think they would all want Shoeless Joe there with them. The people from my district and people from all over the country have been working for years to have Jackson’s good name cleared and his honor restored.

I want to do whatever I can to give him the honor that he is due and to honor the people who have been inspired by his memory to rebuild and revitalize his hometown, West Greenville, to honor his name.

On behalf of the people of my district who have worked so hard to uphold the memory and the honor of Shoeless Joe Jackson and along with the entire South Carolina Congressional Delegation, last Friday I introduced a resolution calling for Shoeless Joe to be appropriately honored. I am thrilled this resolution is an opportunity to pay respect to one of the all-time great players of America’s great national pastime. I urge my colleagues to support this resolution to restore the name of Shoeless Joe.
The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. Northup). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. Sherman) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ShERMAN. Madam Speaker, after 20 years as a CPA, 6 years as a tax judge, I can tell you when I see it. The tax bill passed by the Republican majority is truly tax fraud.

It is a giant shift of our national income to the wealthiest one percent, cleverly disguised as a grand expedition to the furthest reaches of fiscal irresponsibility.

Many speakers have come to this floor and explained how this country cannot now afford to lock itself into an $800-billion tax cut exploding in its second 10 years to a $3-trillion cut, that we should not take steps today which Alan Greenspan has cautioned us against, that we should not risk the greatest economic expansion of our lifetimes.

But after all the conversation about this $800-billion to $3-trillion tax cut and what it means in its fiscal effect, there has been precious little discussion about what is actually in the bill.

Well, I will tell my colleagues what is not in it. A repeal of the marriage penalty is not in this bill. They could not find a way to do it, limited as they were to $800 billion. In fact, there is far less marriage penalty relief in this bill than there was in the Democratic alternative that cost only $250 billion.

What also is not in this bill is any real help for school construction. The Democratic alternative said we as a Federal Government would pay the interest on school bonds so that if school districts have more classrooms for smaller class sizes, the Federal Government would help.

All this bill does is relax the arbitrage rules, inviting local school boards to invest their money in debentures and derivatives and other things that caused Orange County to go bankrupt. It does nothing more for schools than give the school boards a free ticket to Las Vegas with the bond money.

So what is in this bill? How have they managed to allocate 45 percent of the benefits to the top one percent in our society?

Well, for example, they have got the interest allocation rules, costing over $13 billion over 10 years that turn to major multinationals and say, if you close down your factories in the United States and invest abroad, we will cut your tax.

But there is more. There is the modification of treatment of worthless securities, certain financial institutions. There is a whole lot of stuff in here for the oil companies. My favorite and their favorite is the repeal for special foreign tax rules.

This means that if Texaco gives a ton of money to Saudi Arabia or Kuwait in return for the oil that they remove from their desert sands, Uncle Sam reimburses them penny for penny for what they pay foreigners that they then charge you and me for.

But there is more for the oil companies, like allowing a 5-year carry-back of NOL carry-forwards under a special rule; suspending the 65-percent tax limit on the percentage depletion allowance; allowing geological and geophysical costs to be deducted currently; allowing delay rental payments to be deducted currently, while modifying the section 633(d)(4) rules so that integrated oil producers can get the same benefits as independent wildcatters.

Then there is the stuff for the big chain store, such as the liberalization of the tax treatment of certain construction allowances and contributions received by retail operators.

What does that mean? It means the big chains can get a big payment to put a big store as the anchor tenant in a big mall, and they do not have to pay taxes on that big payment. But of course, people have to pay taxes on salaries and small business has to pay taxes on their profit.

There is the repeal of the 5-year limitations relating to life insurance companies filing consolidated tax returns with the affiliated group including non-life insurance companies. There is a host of others that I have no time to get into.

But then finally there is the phase-in repeal of the estate gift and generation skipping tax. What does that mean? That means that Bill Gates saves $50 billion. But what is in it for working families? For the 50 million Americans, 8 cents a day.

CHINA TRADE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Vitter). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Manzullo) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, our relationship with China will always be extremely difficult and complex. We must continue the hard engagement process with China. But we do not need to sacrifice national security for trade. This has been and always will be a false choice.

The Cox report was a good sturdy point for us to more realistically evaluate our relationship with China. We have already begun to implement many of the Cox committee recommendations, such as requiring Defense Department monitors at satellite launch sites. Let us also be vigilant by enforcing existing laws.

If further correction needed to enhance national security, then Congress should not shy away from changing the law. But as we go through this process, we must not fool ourselves into thinking that more restrictions on our exports to China will protect us.

When we think about trade sanctions and export controls, we should not go down this road alone. We only put our heads in the sand if we think we can enhance our national security by ignoring our foreign competitors. The world has changed, and the U.S. is no longer the only manufacturer of high-technology products.

Congress overreacted 2 years ago in placing unrealistic limits on computer sales abroad. Now China has a home-grown computer industry. Soon one penny and a chip the size of your fingernail will exceed the supercomputer definition. And European machine tool manufacturers have almost totally captured the high-end market in China because of our Government’s export control policy. This at the same time domestic consumption of U.S. machine tools has dropped 45 percent.

Europe sells the more sophisticated machines to China that we could do that same things, but we are barred by selling them because of our export policy. We only hurt ourselves.

We are now learning the same lesson on commercial satellite exports. Last week, a major satellite manufacturer reported a loss of nearly $100 million because of delays in development and delivery of new satellites. This is an industry that has made a dramatic shift away from relying on Government procurement to commercial sales.

They also compete against German, French, and Japanese satellite manufacturers of similar equipment. These foreign firms would eagerly seize export opportunities from U.S. satellite makers if they are denied permission to launch by our Government. We can protect our national security and our national economic interests by engaging China at the same time. But we should not put up walls that will block our high-technology industry and hurt our overall national interests.

We solve the same problems highlighted in the Cox report but keep our export opportunities open in China.

ILLEGAL NARCOTIC TRAFFICKING IN AMERICA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Mica) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I come to the floor again tonight to talk about the problem of illegal narcotics. Tonight I would like to help set the record straight.

Over years and months of nearly deadly silence by the President of the United States on one of the most pressing issues facing our Nation, that is the problem of illegal narcotics use and abuse, the President spoke out yester-
He said, "When we were out there running for office in 1992, the Vice President had this hilarious rap about everything that should be up was down and everything that should be down was up, and everything was all mixed up. And it is true." And then the President said, and again let me quote him, "And one of the sad things that was up was cocaine. This is what the President of the United States said yesterday.

Mr. Speaker, this does not gibe with the facts. In fact, we did a little bit of research and we found, and this chart states quite clearly, that long-term trends in lifetime prevalence of drug use, from 1980 when President Reagan took office, and this is the Reagan administration, through 1988, with President Bush during that period, we found that the trend in prevalence of drug use actually went down. These are the facts.

Now, again the President said, "And one of the sad things that was up was drug use." That is what the President said. These in fact, Mr. Speaker, are the statistics. These are not tainted or misconstrued in any way or partisanly presented. Those are the facts.

Then if we looked at individual narcotics, the trends in cocaine use, the President said, "And one of the sad things that was up was drug use." So we can look at drugs individually. We see that during President Reagan and Bush's era, that the point at which President Clinton took office that there was a downward spiral in cocaine use. In fact, when President Clinton took office, we see the resurgence of that in fact returning and going up. This does not show the dramatic increase in drug use. Because of the Clinton policy, we in fact had a shift of more people going not only to cocaine but also to heroin in unprecedented amounts and also to methamphetamine which did not appear on any of these charts. So what the President said, "And one of the sad things that was up was drug use" is not in any way correct or does it relate to facts.

Then if we look at heroin, in the Reagan administration and Bush administration, we see downward trends. He said, "And one of the sad things was that drug use was up." We see in fact during President Clinton's term, it dramatically shot up, and heroin, deadly heroin, in incredible quantities. I do not have a chart on methamphetamine, but meth was not even on this chart and now is staggering up. The only reason we see any change here in a downward spiral in the last several years is because of the Republicans taking over the Congress and restarting the war on drugs.

Finally, the President also said, "We tried to do more to keep drugs from coming into the United States." This is the quote of the President. I do not have all the charts with me, but under the legislation by the Democratic-controlled Congress, the White House and the Senate, this other controlled legislative body, 1992 to 1993 dramatically decreased the source country programs, they cut them by over 50 percent, dramatically cut the military. He said, "We tried to do more to keep drugs from coming into the United States." Dramatically cut the military and interdiction programs. Nearly cut in half the Coast Guard drug programs, stopped antidrug resources from getting to Colombia which is now the major source of heroin and cocaine coming into the United States. And certified Mexico, which is the greatest source of illegal narcotics and now methamphetamines of anywhere coming into the United States. And our President said yesterday, "We tried to do more to keep drugs from coming into the United States."

Mr. Speaker, the President says one thing. The facts prove something totally different. It is sad that after years and years of deadly silence, we finally have the President come out in one of the rare occasions he ever mentions illegal narcotics and says two things that do not gibe in any fashion with the facts as to what actually took place.

It is very sad that I report this to the House, but I think that the facts relating to this important problem that is facing our Nation that has condemned so many families tragically to losing loved ones, 14,000 people died last year alone because of direct results of illegal narcotics. It is very sad, indeed, that the President of the United States paints a picture that does not gibe with the facts.

MANAGED CARE REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. VITTER). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 27 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, in just 3 days, this House will adjourn without having brought to the floor the Patients' Bill of Rights, the Democrats' legislation for comprehensive HMO reform.

I bemoan the fact that that is the case. I think that this legislation and the need to address the issue of HMO reform is really the preeminent issue that needs to be addressed in this House, in this Congress, in this session of Congress.

I have to say that the Republican leadership since the beginning of the year has made many promises with regard to health care professionals, doctors, dentists, have made the point that they will vote for a strong HMO reform bill, something akin to the Democrats' Patients' Bill of Rights. When they made that statement and basically indicated to the Republican leadership that they would join with the Democrats in passing a bill, well, all of a sudden this week we find that the Speaker and the Republican leadership say, "No, no, we're not going to bring a bill to the floor. We can wait until the fall. We'll have further discussions. No action will be taken now."

I just want to commend the Republicans on the other side of the aisle, those few, all of whom, I think, who have been most outspoken are health care professionals, doctors, because they have stood up and said that we need a strong HMO reform bill and they refuse to say that the action taken by the other body meets that
Mr. Speaker, if the House leadership is not willing to bring it up, I think we will simply have to get every Democrat to sign the discharge petition and join with some of the Republicans who are willing to sign it to force the issue to make sure that the Patients’ Bill of Rights or some strong comprehensive reform like it comes to the floor.

As now, Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to point out that increasingly we are seeing every comprehensive report, every study that is being done around the country about what the American people want, what the health professionals want, what people see basically as common sense reform with regard to HMOs, that we need some kind of action taken.

There were two reports that came out just in the last week that I wanted to mention tonight. One of them was basically a report, if you will, where various doctors and health care professionals were interviewed. It was a survey that found nearly nine in 10 doctors and more than one in four consumers are having trouble receiving the medical care and services they need within the context of HMOs managed care, and as a result between one-third and two-thirds of the doctors said the service denial resulted in adverse health consequences for the patient.

The types of problems that we are seeing that myself and others have documented on the floor about people who have had abusive situations with managed care and with HMOs, this is becoming commonplace, and both consumers, patients as well as doctors, are decrying the situation, and I say to my colleagues and, I guess, to the American people as well, why is it that the Republican leadership will not allow us to take action when the majority of us in a bipartisan way would like to see comprehensive HMO reform? And it always comes back to the same thing, and that is the money spent by the insurance industry that is medical necessary. In the Democratic bill we provide for adequate specialty care. It provides the right in our Patients’ Bill of Rights to specialty care if specialty care is medically indicated. It ensures no extra charge for use of non-network specialists if the HMO has no specialist in the network that is appropriate to treat the condition.

I just wanted to mention a couple other things that I think that are really crucial in terms of the differences between the Democratic bill and what the Republicans passed in the Senate, and one of those most important distinctions on the issue of medical necessity. The issue of medical necessity is basically whether or not a particular type of care, operation, equipment, length of stay in the hospital will be provided in a given circumstance if you get sick, and basically the Republican Senate bill allows HMOs to define what is medically necessary. No matter how narrow or unfair to patients, the HMO’s definition is their definition controls in any coverage situation including decisions by an independent third-party reviewer.

The Democratic bill by contrast codifies a traditional definition of medically necessary or appropriate means of service or benefit consistent with generally accepted principles of professional medical practice. In other words, what we are saying in the Patients’ Bill of Rights is that the doctor and the patient have to decide based on standards that are used for most physicians in a given circumstance. It is an independent standard, if you will, not defined by the HMO.

Most important also, the distinction on the issue of external appeals. The Republican Senate bill allows the HMO... to choose and pay the appeal entity that decides the case. It also allows the HMO to be insured to define medical necessity, and the fact that research is derived on a patient and on a specialist basis forces them to defer to the HMO’s definition. It does not provide, the Republican bill, an appeal when most rights under the bill are denied. For example, when emergency care is denied, let us put together a bill I think that is very close to the Patients’ Bill of Rights that really provides comprehensive HMO reform. This is what the public wants, this is what we keep hearing every day from our constituents, and I know that I am going to use the time during this August break to go out and explain to the public why we need to bring this up on the floor of the House when we come back in September.

TheManaged Care Reform

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. VITTER). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. GANSKE) is recognized for 34 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. GANSKE. Mr. Speaker, here it is, about 9:30 p.m. We know that our families will be happy to know that we are here on the floor, taking care of the country’s business. I wish to speak for the remainder of this evening about managed care reform. One of these days we are going to pass this, and my friend from New Jersey and I will maybe have to stop passing like ships in the middle of the night, coming to the floor to speak about this issue.

But, Mr. Speaker, it has become I think commonplace knowledge that we have problems with managed care in this country. That is recognized by a lot of the humor that we see in the country.

Several years ago, a joke started going around the country about the three doctors who died and went to heaven. The first doctor was a neurosurgeon. St. Peter asked him, “What did you do for a living?” He said, “I took care of victims of automobile crashes who had injured their heads before I got them back to a normal life.” St. Peter said, “Enter, my son, and enjoy heaven.”

The Speaker who came up to the pearly gates was asked by St. Peter...
After medical school and residency, I physician in solo practice for 10 years okay if I tell her what her three op-tracts that required the doctor to check my contract before I answer that. Here is a physician sitting behind his desk. He is reading a paper. Behind him is an eye chart that says "enough uppance. I think that is part of the humor.

The humor of HMOs, in order for something to be humorous, people have to understand the underlying point. So let us just look, for example, at some of the cartoons that we have seen around the country. Here is one. We see a doctor sitting at a desk. He is reading a paper. Behind him is an eye chart that says "enough is enough," and the doctor is saying, "Your best option is cremation, $359 fully covered." The patient, sort of nonplussed, is sitting there saying, "This is one of those HMO gag rules, isn't it doctor?"

Now, this is a little harder to see for my colleagues here in the audience to understand. I will have to read this to you. Here he is sitting behind his desk. He is talking to a patient. The physician is saying, "I will have to check my contract before I answer that question."

Now, what is the point of this cartoon? Well, about 3 years ago it became known that HMOs were writing contracts that required the doctor to check with the HMO before they told the patient all their treatment options. Now, think about that.

Let us say that one is a woman, one has a lump in one's breast, one goes in to see one's doctor. One's doctor takes one's history, does one's physical exam, and then says, ah-huh, excuse me, and steps outside, gets on the phone to the HMO and says, "Mrs. So-and-so has a lump in her breast. She has got three treatment options. One is more expensive than the other. Is it okay to tell her what her three options are?"

I mean, that is awful. As a practicing physician in solo practice for 10 years after medical school and residency, I can tell my colleagues, that the doctor-patient relationship will not stand that type of restriction on communication. But having the physician to be able to tell them the whole story. It may be that the HMO is not going to cover part of the treatment or one of the options, but the patient has every right to know what all the options are at a minimum.

Then we start to get into some things that are a little less than funny on an issue like this. Here is a headline from the New York Post: "What his parents did not know about HMOs may have killed this baby." Now, here is an in-fant that died possibly because his HMO prevented his physician from communicating to his parents the entire story. It is not so funny anymore.

Let us go to the case of a lady whose story was recently in a magazine a couple years ago, well documented. This lady is no longer alive. Her HMO made a medical decision to try to limit her and her family, her husband, from knowing all of her treatment options. They put a lot of pressure on the medical center to prevent and actually change their opinion on what kind of treatment this patient should have.

This lady could be alive today as a mother to her children and a wife to her husband had not that HMO made a medical decision that limited the information that she got. Not so funny any-more.

So what happened? Well, I and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MARKEY) in a bipartisan fashion reached across the aisle, and we got about 285 co-sponsors to sign a bill called the Patient Right To Know Act. This was about 3 years ago now, 285 bi-partisan co-sponsors.

We discussed some suspension bills here tonight. Just with the cosponsors alone, we could have brought that to the floor and passed it under suspension. Not to be. I could not get my leadership to allow that limited bill with such widespread bipartisan support to pass. They say that the problem that HMOs were limiting communications between the doctors and their patients. I could not get the leadership to allow that to be voted on and debated on the floor.

Well, let us go back to some of the humor that has gone on about HMOs. Remember the movie "As Good As It Gets?" I went with my wife to this movie in Des Moines, Iowa, and something happened I had never seen before. When Helen Hunt was describing the care that her HMO gave in the movie to her asthmatic son, she expressed a rather strong expletive about her HMO and the treatment she was getting for her son. It elicited a lot of laughs in the audience.

But something else happened that I had never seen in a comedy in a movie theater. Some people stood up and clapped. They actually started clapping for her strong statement of dis-approval about the way her son was being treated. Now, that does not hap-pen. Humor like that is not effective if it doesn't strike a nerve and a cord. But it sure did in that movie.

Now, she was having problems with her son getting care and was frequently having to take him to emergency rooms.

Here is another cartoon, sort of, that I saw. Here is a nurse on the phone. I think this is from an old TV show, this picture. She is saying, "Chest pains? Well let me find the emergency room preapproval forms."

What is one of the other problems that we have seen with HMOs? Well, it happens to be that a lot of HMOs, a few have refused to pay for emergency room visits. Let us say a patient gets a chest pain, severe crushing chest pain. The American Heart Association says this is a sign one could be having a heart attack.

One's wife takes one to the emer-gen-cy room. They do the EKG, but it is normal. They then say, "This is one of those HMO gag rules, isn't it?" One is saying, "Well, it may be that the HMO is not going to cover these things that the common layperson would say is an emergency, maybe I should just take my time a little bit. Except that we know, when that happens, a certain number of people die before they get to the hospital.

Now there certainly is such a thing as black humor, and this cartoon has some of the blackest humor I have seen. What we have here is a medical reviewer at an HMO, and I am going to read this for my colleagues. She is speaking on the telephone.

She says, "Cuddly Care HMO. My name is Bambi. How may I help you?"

She continues speaking on the phone. "Oh, you are at the emergency room and your husband needs approval for treatment. He is gasping? Whirring? Eyes rolled back in his head? It does not sound all that serious to me."

Far side. She says, "Clutching his throat? Turning purple? Uh-huh. Have you tried an inhaler? Oh, he is dead? Well, then he certainly does not need treatment, does he?"

Her last comment is, "People are al-ways trying to rip us off."

Pretty black humor.

But let us talk about a real case. Let us say about this young woman who, about a year and a half ago was hiking in the Appalachian Mountains. She fell off a 40-foot cliff. She was lying at the bottom of that cliff with a broken... skull, a broken arm, a broken pelvis, semi-comatose, almost drowning in a pool of blood and vomit.

Fortunately, her boyfriend was able to get an air ambulance in. They took her to the hospital. Here she is all bundled up on the stretcher going to airlift her to the hospital.

She makes it to the hospital emergency room. She is stabilized. She is treated. She is in the hospital for a month or so, in the ICU for a couple of weeks. She is on a morphine drip. Those are pretty painful problems that she had. Plus she has broken her head. She has got a fractured skull.

What happens to this young woman? Her HMO refuses to pay the bill. Now, why is that? Well, the HMO said that she did not call ahead for prior authorization. I mean, think of that. She was supposed to know that she was going to fall off this cliff. Maybe when she is lying at the bottom of the cliff with the broken skull, a broken arm, and a broken pelvis, she is supposed to reach into her coat pocket with her non-broken arm, pull out a cellular phone, dial and say, “Barbara, I have a broken skull. I need to go to the emergency room. Is that okay?”

I mean that is the type of thing that we do not need to see; that we need to fix. And we need to fix it because Congress passed a law about 25 years ago called ERISA, and what it did for employer plans was it took them out of State oversight.

State insurance commissioners and State legislatures, they do not have much to say about plans that are offered by employers. We talk a lot as Republicans about devolving power back to the States, but I have not seen my leadership too much interested in making sure that the States can provide proper oversight for health plans.

And so we have this law that Congress created that basically left a vacuum. State insurance commissioners cannot tell a plan, like that woman who fell off the cliff, they cannot tell her plan, if she is in an employer plan, that they have to cover her services. Those plans have been exempted from State oversight. Congress made that problem; Congress needs to fix it.

Let us look at a few other cartoons that have been in the press. Here is one called the HMO bedside manner, and we have an individual lying there with broken arms, in traction. And on the wall is the HMO bedside manner, and it says, “Time is money. Bed space is loss. Turnover is profit.” And then we have a physician at the bedside saying, “After consulting my colleagues in accounting, we have concluded you’re well enough. Now go home.”

Or how about this one. “Remember the good old days, when we took refresher courses in medical procedures,” this doctor is saying to a colleague. Now they are going into the HMO medical school and the course directory for the HMO medical school is, first floor, basic bookkeeping and accounting; second floor, advanced bookkeeping and accounting; third floor, graduate bookkeeping and accounting.

Now here we have another example of the HMO emphasis on bottom line profits versus taking care of the patient. This is the HMO claims department, and we have a claim’s reviewer saying into her telephone, “No, we don’t authorize that specialist.” Then she goes on, “No, we don’t cover that operation.” Then she says, “No, we don’t pay for that medication.” Then, apparently the person on the other end of the line says something where she kind of jolts, and she says, “No, we don’t authorize that specialist.”

How about this cartoon that appeared in the Boston Globe. We have an HMO doctor here and the patient is saying, “Do you make more money if you give patients less care?” The HMO employee is saying, “Yes, I am more efficient. Time is money. Bed space is money.”

The patient comes back and says, “Are you saying I’m paranoid?” The HMO employee says, “Yes, but we can treat it in three visits.”

Now, my colleagues may think that this is kind of funny, but as a plastic and reconstructive surgeon, I took care of a lot of patients with this type of defect. This is a little child born with a cleft lip and a cleft palate. Now, the standard treatment for correction of this child’s cleft palate is a surgical repair. That gets the roof of the mouth together so that this child can learn to speak normally. It also keeps food and liquids from going out his nose. That is standard treatment.

Do my colleagues know what some HMOs are doing now? They are writing into their contract language a definition of medical necessity that says we will only authorize payment for the cheapest, least expensive care. Under Federal law, they can do that and nobody can challenge it because that is written into their contract.

So what does that mean for a little baby that is born with this type of defect? It means that that HMO, under Federal law, could tell the parents that this child is not going to undergo surgery. That they are not going to provide their child with a little piece of plastic to kind of shove up into the roof of his mouth that will kind of fill in that hole.

Of course, if baby spits it out, that does not matter. If baby chokes on it, I guess that could be a problem. And, of course, the baby will not be able to learn to speak normally, and eventually will continue to have problems with his mouth. But under current Federal law, the current Employee Retirement Income Security Act law, that HMO can write that medical definition any way they want.

Not exactly the best way to take care of patients, and of the reasons why we need to do something to fix this. I just read this. This is from the Albany Times Union. Here is another emergency room story, and this is about a lady by the name of Elsa Goldstein. She had a medical emergency one night. She went to the hospital emergency room. She was given a medication in the hospital by the emergency room doctor. She was supposed to take the medicine twice a day. So she went to the local pharmacy where she has coverage through her HMO, but the pharmacy would not provide her the medicine. They wanted to charge her $109 for the medication.

So she said, why is that? I mean my insurance company is supposed to pay for this, is it not? And she was told, So what did the HMO try to do? They tried to just dun this patient. If they do it enough, enough people will just give in, they just buy it on their own and then the HMO just makes more money.

Now, what did the HMOs come up with as a great idea a few years ago? Remember this? Remember when they were saying, oh, people can just go to the hospital and go home right away?

In fact, we are going to mandate those sort of drive-through deliveries. So here we have an emergency room story, and we have our little baby at the community hospital and we have here the drive-through window. Now only 6-minute stays for new moms. “Congratulations. Would you like fries with that?” And you have this as far as the woman in the car holding her newborn baby ready to drive through and drive out.

By the way, this was the result of one of those Millenman and Robertson guidelines that the HMOs like to use to charge their patients like this. They like to Plaintiff as their solutions.

How about Dr. Welby? Now maybe he would be saying, she had her baby 45 minutes ago; discharge her.
Once again we are getting into a little bit more black humor. Because here we have intensive operating room. We have the doctors here, the patient is sleeping. They do the operation. They use the "scalpel," and the HMO bean counter says, "pocket knife." And then the HMO bean counter says, "Band-Aid." And then the doctor says, "suture," and the HMO bean counter says, "Call a cab." But here is a real story, front page headlines. New York Post: "HMO’s Cruel Rules Leave Her Dying for the Doc She Needs." All of a sudden it is not so funny anymore. Because now we have a picture of a person who has probably lost her life because of an HMO medical decision, which, by the way, under Federal law, an employer plan is not liable for the consequences of these decisions. The only one who is on the ventilator. Well, providing the cost of care not delivered. And if the patient happens to die early, then they are not responsible for anything.

Well, Mr. Speaker, it is getting kind of late and I want to talk about two more patients. I want to talk about a conversation I had about a year ago with a pediatrician who worked in the Washington, D.C. area. She is now doing research at one of the national labs.

I asked her why she left the practice of medicine. She was a pediatric specialist in a pediatric ICU. And she said, well, I just got past the point of being able to deal with those HMOs anymore. But the straw that really broke my back was one day we had come into the intensive care unit a 5-or 6-year-old boy who had been drowning. He was still alive but just barely. We had him plugged into the IV. We were giving him all the medicine that we could. He was on the ventilator. We had him hooked up to the ventilator. We had him plugged into the IV. We were giving him saline that we could not make him to try to save his life. We were standing around the bedside. It was not looking good. But we were expending every effort to try to save this child’s life. And the phone rings in the ICU and it is some HMO reviewer a thousand miles away wanting to know about the case, probably looking at a computer screen and an algorithm, and the questioning went sort of like this: Well, tell me about this young patient. Oh, he is on the ventilator. Well, what is his prognosis? The doctor says, well, it is not too good. We are trying to do everything to save his life. He has only been here an hour or so.

This HMO reviewer from a thousand miles away, never having seen this patient, then says this incredible thing, probably looking at that computer screen, on the ventilator, poor prognosis. Next suggestion from the HMO, one of these HMO guidelines: Well, if his prognosis is so bad, why do you not just send him home on a home ventilator? And if his prognosis is so bad, why do you not just send him home on a home ventilator?

Now, for anyone who has any medical experience on this, that would make needs a lot of help on getting on his bilateral hook prostheses. We will have to work together, both Republicans and Democrats, put aside partisan differences, and fix this for the people in our country.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

August 3, 1999

Speaker’s table the bill (S. 1467) and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I object. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is not able to entertain the gentleman’s request at this time.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. Oberstar), I understand, is reserving the right to object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) is not recognized for that purpose.

Mr. SHUSTER. May I ask why the gentleman is objecting? Is it in order, Mr. Speaker, for me to ask why the gentleman is objecting?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s guidelines, the Chair is not recognizing the gentleman from Pennsylvania for that purpose at this time.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. HOYER) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material):

Ms. WOOLSEY, for 5 minutes, today.
Mr. HASTINGS of Florida, for 5 minutes, today.
Mr. SPRATT, for 5 minutes, today.
Mr. SHERMAN, for 5 minutes, today.
(The following Members (at the request of Mr. TOOMEY) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material):

Mr. MANZULLO, for 5 minutes, today.
Mr. JONES of North Carolina, for 5 minutes, today.
Mr. DELAY, for 5 minutes, today.
Mr. MICA, for 5 minutes, today.
(At the request of Mr. HOYER to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous material):

Mr. HOYER.

SENATE BILL REFERRED

A bill of the Senate of the following title was taken from the Speaker’s table and, under the rule, referred as follows:

S. 880. An act to amend the Clean Air Act to remove exemptions from the list of substances with respect to which reporting and other activities are required under the risk management plan program, and for other purposes.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. GANSKE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accorded the House.

The motion to adjourn was agreed to; the House adjourned.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 8 of rule XII, executive communications were taken from the Speaker’s table and referred as follows:

3381. A letter from the Secretary of Agriculture, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Tart Cherries [Docket No. AB90] received July 28, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3382. A letter from the Acting Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Grapes Grown in a Designated Area of Southeastern California and Import Table Grapes; Revision in Minimum Grade, Container, and Pack Requirements [Docket No. FV98–4498–1–01] (RIN: 2070–AC10) received July 26, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3384. A letter from the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Congressional Review Coordinator, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Grapes Grown in a Designated Area of South Carolina and Imported Table Grapes; Revision in Minimum Grade, Container, and Pack Requirements [Docket No. FV98–925–3 (FPR)] received July 16, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3386. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Public and Indian Housing, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Technical Amendment to the Section 8 Management Assistance Payment Program [Docket No. FV98–4498–1–01] (RIN: 2577–AC10) received July 26, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

3387. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Public and Indian Housing, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Technical Amendment to the Section 8 Management Assistance Payment Program [Docket No. FV98–4498–1–01] (RIN: 2577–AC10) received July 26, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

3388. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Cedar Creek Lake; Additional Urban Development Area [Docket No. FV98–601–1 (RIN: 6079–AB80)] received July 16, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3389. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Noxious Weeds; Permits and Interstate Movement [Docket No. FV98–601–1 (RIN: 6079–AB80)] received July 16, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3390. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Tebufenozide; Pesticide Tolerance [Docket No. AB78] received July 9, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3391. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Fosetyl-Al; Pesticide Tolerance for Emergency Exemptions [Docket No. AB78] (RIN: 2070–AB78) received July 9, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3392. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Amended Assessment Rates [Docket No. FV98–601–1 (RIN: 6079–AB80)] received July 16, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3393. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Limited Ports; Memphis, TN [Docket No. AB78] received July 9, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

3394. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Federal Register Changes [Docket No. AB78] received July 9, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

August 3, 1999

CDBG Expenditure Documentation [Docket No. FR–452–1] (RIN: 2504–AC00) received July 26, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

3389. A letter from the President and Chairman, Export-Import Bank, transmitting a report involving U.S. exports to China, pursuant to 12 U.S.C. 635(b)(3)(i); to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

3399. A letter from the President and Chairman, Export-Import Bank, transmitting a report involving U.S. exports to Taiwan, pursuant to 12 U.S.C. 635(b)(3)(i); to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

3404. A letter from the Director, Office of Management and Budget, transmitting a report to Congress on appropriations legislation within seven days of enactment; to the Committee on the Budget.

3405. A letter from the Assistant Attorney General, Office of Justice Programs, Violence Against Women Office, Department of Justice, transmitting the Department's final rule—Grant Violation Compliance Agreements Against Women on Campuses (RIN: 1121–AA49) received July 20, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

3407. A letter from the General Counsel, Consumer Product Safety Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Requirements for Child Resistant Packaging; Household Products Containing Methacrylic Acid—received July 26, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3408. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulatory Law, Department of Energy, transmitting the Occupational ALARA Program Guide; to the Committee on Commerce.

3409. A letter from the Acting Assistant General Counsel for Regulatory Law, Department of Energy, transmitting the Management and Administration of Radiation Protection Programs Guide; to the Committee on Commerce.

3411. A letter from the Acting Assistant General Counsel for Regulatory Law, Department of Energy, transmitting an Acquisition Letter pertaining to Nuclear Facilities Safety Board; to the Committee on Commerce.

3412. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulatory Law, Department of Energy, transmitting an Acquisition Letter pertaining to Nuclear Facilities Safety Board; to the Committee on Commerce.

3413. A letter from the Acting Assistant General Counsel for Regulatory Law, Department of Energy, transmitting an Acquisition Letter pertaining to Nuclear Facilities Safety Board; to the Committee on Commerce.

3415. A letter from the Senior Attorney, NHTSA, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Civil Penalties [Docket No. NHTSA–99–5448; Notice 2] (RIN: 2127–AH48) received July 9, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

3420. A letter from the Secretary, Federal Trade Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Trade in Cigarette Sales and Advertising and Promotional Expenditures for Calendar Years 1996 and 1997; to the Committee on Commerce.

3421. A letter from the Acting Director, Regulatory Policies and Management Staff, Food and Drug Administration, transmitting the Administration’s final rule—Secondary Diagonal Manufacturing License Agreement for export of defense services under a contract to Turkey [Transmittal No. DTC 80–99], pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(c); to the Committee on International Relations.

3422. A letter from the Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting certification of a proposed manufacturing License Agreement for export of defense services under a contract to Spain [Transmittal No. DTC 2–99], pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(d); to the Committee on International Relations.

3423. A letter from the Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting certification of a proposed Manufacturing License Agreement for export of defense services under a contract to Turkey [Transmittal No. DTC 80–99], pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(c); to the Committee on International Relations.

3424. A letter from the Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting certification of a proposed Manufacturing License Agreement for export of defense services under a contract to Japan [Transmittal No. DTC 78–99], pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(c); to the Committee on International Relations.

3425. A letter from the Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting certification of a proposed Manufacturing License Agreement for export of defense services under a contract to Turkey [Transmittal No. DTC 2–99], pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(c); to the Committee on International Relations.

3426. A letter from the Secretary, Federal Trade Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Trade in Cigarette Sales and Advertising and Promotional Expenditures for Calendar Years 1996 and 1997; to the Committee on Commerce.

3427. A letter from the Acting Director, Regulatory Policies and Management Staff, Food and Drug Administration, transmitting the Administration’s final rule—Secondary Diagonal Manufacturing License Agreement for export of defense services under a contract to Turkey [Transmittal No. DTC 80–99], pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(c); to the Committee on International Relations.

3434. A letter from the Comptroller General, transmitting a list of GAO reports from the previous month; to the Committee on Government Reform.

3435. A letter from the Associate Administrator for Human Resources and Education, General Services Administration, transmitting a list of vacancies; to the Committee on Government Reform.

3436. A letter from the Director, Office of Management and Budget, transmitting the Office’s report entitled the “1999 Federal Financial Management Status Report and Five-Year Plan,” pursuant to Public Law 101–576, section 301(a) (104 Stat. 2889); to the Committee on Government Reform.

3437. A letter from the Director, Office of Management and Budget, transmitting Amendment to Deferred Maintenance Reimbursement; to the Committee on Government Reform.

3438. A letter from the Acting Deputy Director, Office of Management and Budget, transmitting the report entitled, “Electronic Purchasing and Payment in the Federal Government”; to the Committee on Government Reform.

3439. A letter from the Director, Office of Personnel Management, transmitting notification of the approval of the final plan for a human capital management demonstration project at the Naval Research Laboratory; to the Committee on Government Reform.

3440. A letter from the Office of Special Counsel, transmitting the Annual Report of the Office of the Special Counsel (OSC) for Fiscal Year (FY) 1998, pursuant to Public Law 101–12, section 3(a)(11) (103 Stat. 209); to the Committee on Government Reform.

3441. A letter from the Secretary of Education, transmitting notification that effective September 30, 1999, the National Center for Education Statistics resigned; to the Committee on Government Reform.

3443. A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting the 1998 Annual Report for the Office of Surface Mining (OSM), pursuant to 30 U.S.C. 1211(b), 1267(g), and 1269; to the Committee on Resources.

3444. A letter from the Assistant Secretary, Lands and Minerals Management, Department of the Interior, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Leasing of Sulphur or Oil and Gas in the Outer Continental Shelf—Bonus Payments with Bids (RIN: 1015–AC49) received July 26, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3445. A letter from the Acting Assistant Secretary, Lands and Minerals Management, Department of the Interior, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Amendments to Deferred Maintenance Reimbursement; to the Committee on Resources.

3446. A letter from the Manager, Yakima River Basin, Department of the Interior, transmitting a report on Biologically Based Flows for the Yakima River Basin; to the Committee on Resources.

3447. A letter from the Acting Director, Office of Sustainable Fisheries National Marine Fishery Service, Department of Commerce, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Amendments to the Exclusive Economic Zone Off Alaska; Deep-Water Species Fishery by Vessels Using Trawl Gear in the Gulf of Alaska (Docket No. 99034062–0963–01; I.D. 0712199A) received July 27, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3448. A letter from the Assistant Administrator for Fisheries, National Marine Fishery Service, Department of Commerce, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Leasing of Sulphur or Oil and Gas in the Outer Continental Shelf—Financial Assistance for Research and Development Projects to Strengthen and Develop the U.S. Fishing Industry (Docket No. 96022394–9151–04; I.D. 0507796B) (RIN: 0668–ZA09) received July 21, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3449. A letter from the Assistant Administrator for Fisheries, National Marine Fishery Service, Department of Commerce, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Amendments to the Exclusive Economic Zone Off Alaska; Off Alaska Park Service; Requirements for Pollock Catcher/Processors; Extension of Expiration Date (Docket No. 99011301–0911–01; I.D. 016896A) (RIN: 0648–AM52) received July 19, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3450. A letter from the Director, Fish and Wildlife Service, transmitting the Service’s final rule—Safe Harbor Agreements and Candidate Conservation Agreements with Assurances (RIN: 1018–AD56) received July 2, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3451. A letter from the Deputy Assistant Administrator for Fisheries, National Marine Fishery Service, Department of Commerce, transmitting the Administration’s final rule—Fisheries of the Caribbean, Gulf of Mexico, and South Atlantic; Finalization of the Fishery of the Gulf of Mexico; Certification Bycatch (Docket No. 99030083–9166–02; I.D. 031999B) (RIN: 0648–AK32) received July 28, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3452. A letter from the Assistant Administrator for Fisheries, National Marine Fishery Service, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, transmitting the Administration’s final rule—Atlantic Highly Migratory Species (HMS) Fishery; Fishery Management Plan (FMP); Plan Amendment, and Consolidation of Regulations (Docket No. 98121638–9124–02; I.D. 071668B) (RIN: 0648–AJ67) received July 19, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3453. A letter from the Acting Assistant Administrator for Fisheries, National Marine Fishery Service, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, transmitting the Administration’s final rule—Atlantic Highly Migratory Species Fishery; Fishery Management Plan (FMP); amendment, and Consolidation of Regulations. (Docket No. 99034062–0962–01; I.D. 071699B) received July 26, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3454. A letter from the Acting Director, Office of Sustainable Fisheries, National Marine Fishery Service, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, transmitting the Administration’s final rule—Fisheries of the Exclusive Economic Zone Off Alaska; Pacific Ocean Perch in the Western Regulatory Area of the Gulf of Alaska (Docket No. 99030062–9062–01; I.D. 071669C) received July 25, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

3455. A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting notification that the Department of the Interior purchased lands and interests in land in Katmai National Park and Preserve, Alaska, and has conveyed other lands into private ownership within the unit of the National Park System; to the Committee on Resources.

3456. A letter from the Assistant Secretary for Employment and Training, Department of Labor, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Labor Certification Process for the Temporary Employment of Nonimmigrant Aliens in Agriculture in the United States; Administrative Measure To Improve Program Performance (RIN: 1205–AB19) received July 2, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on the Judiciary.

3457. A letter from the Secretary of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s annual report entitled “Report to Congress Semi-Annual Report for Fiscal Year 1997,” pursuant to Public Law 101–604, section 102(a) (104 Stat. 3068); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3458. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, FAA, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s annual report entitled “Report to Congress Semi-Annual Report for Fiscal Year 1999,” pursuant to Public Law 101–604, section 102(a) (104 Stat. 3068); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3459. A letter from the Secretary of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s annual report entitled “Report to Congress Semi-Annual Report for Fiscal Year 1998,” pursuant to Public Law 101–604, section 102(a) (104 Stat. 3068); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3460. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, FAA, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s annual report entitled “Report to Congress Semi-Annual Report for Fiscal Year 1997,” pursuant to Public Law 101–604, section 102(a) (104 Stat. 3068); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3461. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, FAA, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s annual report entitled “Report to Congress Semi-Annual Report for Fiscal Year 1996,” pursuant to Public Law 101–604, section 102(a) (104 Stat. 3068); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.
3463. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, FAA, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Establishment of Class E Airspace; Taylor, AZ [Airspace Dock- et No. 99-AIR-20] received July 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3464. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, FAA, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Correction of Class D Airspace; Buffalo, NY [Airspace Docket No. 99-AIR-8] received July 29, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3465. A letter from the Chief, Office of Regulations and Administrative Law, USCG, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Management Information System (MIS) Requirements [USCG–1998–4469] (RIN: 2115–AP67) received July 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3466. A letter from the Regulations Officer, Federal Highway Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s final rule—National Standards for Traffic Control Devices; Metric Conversion [FHWA Docket No. FHWA–97–2353; 96–20] (RIN: 2123–AD6) received July 9, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3467. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Amendment to Class E Airspace; York, NE [Airspace Docket No. 99–ACE–20] received June 21, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3468. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Revision of Class E Airspace, Santa Catalina, CA [Airspace Docket No. 99–CE–23] received June 19, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3469. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Establishment of Class E Airspace; Taylor, AZ [Airspace Docket No. 97–AIR–2] received June 21, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3471. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Airworthiness Directives; Embraer EMB 120 Legacy Series [Airspace Docket No. 99–ACE–20] received June 21, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3472. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Establishment of Class E Airspace; Emporia, KS [Airspace Docket No. 099–ACE–24] received June 21, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

3473. A letter from the Associate Administrator for Procurement, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, transmitting the Administration’s final rule—MIS Requirements [USCG–1998–4469] (RIN: 2115–AP67) received July 2, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Science.

3475. A letter from the Secretary of Veterans’ Affairs, transmitting a response to the Report of the Congressional Commission on Servicemembers and Veterans Transition Assistance; to the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs.

3476. A letter from the Chief Counsel, Bureau of the Public Debt, Department of the Treasury, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Establishment of Class E Airspace; Macon, MO [Airspace Docket No. 99–ACE–20] received July 2, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3478. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service’s final rule—BLS-LIFO Department Store Indexes—June 1999—received July 29, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

3479. A letter from the Secretary of Health and Human Services, transmitting notification that the Department is allotting emergency funds to the District of Columbia; jointly to the Committees on Commerce and Education and the Workforce.

3480. A letter from the Secretary of Health and Human Services, transmitting a draft of proposed legislation entitled, “Medicaid and Children’s Health Insurance Program Amendments of 1999”; jointly to the Committee on Commerce and Ways and Means.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mr. LINDER: Committee on Rules. House Resolution 273, Resolution providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 279) making appropriations for the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes (Rept. 106–284). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska: Committee on Resource, H.R. 940. A bill to establish the Lakawanna Heritage Valley American Heritage Area; with amendments (Rept. 106–285), referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

Mr. WALSH: Committee on Appropriations. H.R. 2984. A bill making appropriations for the Department of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and for sundry independent agencies, boards, commissions, corporations, and offices for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes (Rept. 106–286). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

DISCHARGE OF COMMITTEE

Pursuant to clause 5 of rule X, Committee on Government Reform discharged. H.R. 1907 referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

REPORTED BILLS SEQUENTIALLY REFERRED

Under clause 5 of rule X, bills and reports were delivered to the Clerk for printing, and bills referred as follows:

Mr. COBLE: Committee on the Judiciary. H.R. 2768. A bill to amend title 35, United States Code, to provide enhanced protection for inventors and innovators, protect patent terms, reduce patent litigation, and for other purposes; with amendments (Rept. 106–247), for consideration of such provisions of the bill and amendment as fall within the jurisdiction of that committee pursuant to clause 1(b), rule X (Rept. 106–267, Pt. 1). Ordered to be printed.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XII, public bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred, as follows:

By Mr. McCOLLUM: H.R. 2768. A bill to amend title 35, United States Code, to provide for the establishment of a notification system under which individuals may elect not to receive mailings related to sweepstakes and skill contests or sweepstakes, and to other purposes; to the Committee on Government Reform.

By Mr. SHUSTER (for himself, Mr. OBERSTAR, Mr. PETRI, and Mr. RANALD): H.R. 2769. A bill to amend title 49, United States Code, to establish the National Motor Carrier Administration in the Department of Transportation, to improve the safety of commercial motor vehicle operators and carriers, to strengthen commercial driver’s licenses, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas (for herself, Mr. CONYERS, Mr. BERMAN, Mr. GUTIERREZ, and Mr. MEHDAI): H.R. 2830. A bill to replace the Immigration and Naturalization Service with the National Immigration Bureau, to separate the immigration enforcement and adjudication functions performed by officers and employees of the Office of Immigration and Urban Development, and for other purposes (Rept. 106–248). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

By Mr. SHUSTER (for himself, Mr. OBERSTAR, Mr. PETRI, and Mr. RANALD):
H.R. 2681. A bill to establish a program, coordinated by the National Transportation Safety Board, of assistance to families of passengers involved in rail passenger accidents; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. SHEARER (for himself, Mr. OBERSTAR, Mr. PETRI, and Mr. RAHALL) (all by request):

H.R. 2682. A bill to amend title 49, United States Code, to enhance the safety of motor carrier operations and the Nation's highway system, including highway-rail crossings, by amending safety laws to strengthen commercial driver licensing, to improve compliance, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

H.R. 2683. A bill to authorize activities under the Federal railroad safety laws for fiscal years 2000 through 2003, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. WALSH:

H.R. 2684. A bill making appropriations for the Department of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and for sundry independent agencies, boards, commissions, corporations, and offices for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes.

By Mr. BONILLA (for himself and Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas):

H.R. 2685. A bill to guarantee the right of all active duty military personnel, merchant mariners, and their dependents to vote in Federal, State, and local elections; to the Committee on House Administration, and in addition to the Committees on Veterans' Affairs, and the Judiciary, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. DAVIS of Virginia:

H.R. 2686. A bill to amend subchapter III of chapter 83 of title 5, United States Code, to make service performed as an employee of a nonappropriated fund instrumentality after 1965 and before 1987 creditable for retirement purposes; to the Committee on Government Reform.

By Ms. LOFGREN (for herself, Mr. CONYERs of California, Ms. ESHOO, Ms. PELOSI, Ms. SANCHEZ, Mrs. TAUCHER, Ms. WOOLSEY, Mr. MATHUIl, Mr. THOMPSON of California, Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, Mr. BERMAN, Mr. MEHARIAN, and Mr. KIND):

H.R. 2687. A bill to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to establish a 5-year pilot program under which certain aliens who choose not to join or financially support such labor organization to employees who choose not to join or financially support such labor organization; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Concurrent Resolution No. 6 memorializing the President and Congress to return 40 percent of the average per pupil expenditure in public elementary and secondary schools in the United States as promised under the IDEA to ensure that all children, regardless of disability are treated with the dignity and respect they deserve; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. SHUSTER (for himself, Mr. PETRI, and Mr. RAHALL):

H.R. 2689. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and titles XVIII and XIX of the Social Security Act to provide a range of long-term care services; to the Committee on Ways and Means, and in addition to the Committees on Commerce, Government Reform, and Education and the Workforce, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. WEINER:

H.R. 2690. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to expand the child tax credit; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Ms. WOOLSEY:

H.R. 2693. A bill to amend the Child Care and Development Grant Act of 1990 to provide for improved care for young children; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

H.R. 2694. A bill to increase the availability of child care for children whose parents work contractual hours or shifts; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. SHUSTER (for himself, Mr. GELTNER, Mr. PETRI, and Mr. RAHALL):

H. Con. Res. 171. Concurrent resolution congratulating the American Public Transit Association for 25 years of commendable service to the transit industry and the Nation; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

MEMORIALS

Under clause 3 of rule XII, memorials were presented and referred as follows:

179. The SPEAKER presented a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Colorado, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 19-1043 memorializing Congress to pass legislation requiring labels that disclose the country of origin on meats, poultry, and fresh produce; to the Committee on Agriculture.

180. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Illinois, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 14 memorializing Congress and the Department of Agriculture to re-examine our national agricultural policy and give due attention and action to remedy the current agricultural economic dilemma; to the Committee on Agriculture.

181. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 9-1043 memorializing Congress to prohibit recoupment by the federal government of state tobacco settlement funds; to the Committee on Commerce.

182. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 12 memorializing Congress to enact legislation amending the Social Security Act to prohibit recoupment by the federal government of state tobacco settlement funds; to the Committee on Commerce.

183. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 9 memorializing Congress to prohibit recoupment by the federal government of state tobacco settlement funds; to the Committee on Commerce.

184. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Concurrent Resolution No. 12 memorializing Congress to enact legislation amending the Social Security Act to prohibit recoupment by the federal government of state tobacco settlement funds; to the Committee on Commerce.

185. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Concurrent Resolution No. 12 memorializing Congress to enact legislation amending the Social Security Act to prohibit recoupment by the federal government of state tobacco settlement funds; to the Committee on Commerce.

186. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Colorado, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 9-1037 memorializing Congress to require the EPA to recognize that the State of Colorado has the sole authority to determine experience, and resources to administer delegated federal environmental programs; to the Committee on Commerce.

187. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 2 memorializing federal air pollution programs to not punish early adopters of air pollution control technology; to the Committee on Commerce.

188. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 9 memorializing Congress to eliminate the oxygen requirements of the Air Act without imposing any new federal requirements to reduce air pollution; to the Committee on Commerce.

189. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 12 memorializing Congress to enact legislation amending the Social Security Act to prohibit recoupment by the federal government of state tobacco settlement funds; to the Committee on Commerce.

190. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 12 memorializing Congress to eliminate the oxygen requirements of the Air Act without imposing any new federal requirements to reduce air pollution; to the Committee on Commerce.

191. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Alabama, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 178 memorializing Congress to enact legislation amending the Social Security Act to prohibit recoupment by the federal government of state tobacco settlement funds; to the Committee on Commerce.

192. Also, a memorial of the General Assembly of the State of Rhode Island, relative to...
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

August 3, 1999

to Joint Resolution 99–S 1063 memorializing the President of the United Nations convention on the Rights of the Child; to the Committee on International Relations.

193. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Hawaii, relative to House Resolution No. 219 HD1 memorializing the United Nations Children’s Fund to establish a center for the health, welfare, and rights of children and youth in Hawaii and support for the center is respectfully requested from the President of the United States to convey its opinion to the Committee on International Relations.

194. Also, a memorial of the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Guam, relative to Resolution No. 128 memorializing Guam’s Delegate to the U.S. Congress introduce legislation that would further amend the Organic Act of Guam to allow for the first election of the Attorney General of Guam to be held in the General Election in the year 2000; to the Committee on Resources.

195. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Colorado, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 99–1023 memorializing the Department of the Interior and the Bureau of Land Management to withdraw a proposal to amend the federal regulations, 43 C.F.R. subpart 3809 and published at 64 F.R. 6422 on February 9, 1999, governing hardrock mining activity; to the Committee on Resources.

196. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Colorado, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 99–1023 memorializing opposition towards H.R. 829, the “Colorado Wilderness Act of 1999”; to the Committee on Resources.

197. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Colorado, relative to House Joint Resolution No. 99–1051 memorializing Congress to adopt certain amendments to the federal Endangered Species Act of 1973”; to the Committee on Resources.

198. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of Colorado, relative to House Resolution No. 99–1023 memorializing support for the most integrated setting mandate in regulations adopted by the United States Attorney General pursuant to the Americans With Disabilities Act of 1990”; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

199. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Concurrent Resolution No. 4 memorializing the Secretary of Transportation to expeditiously authorize the inclusion of U.S. Route 2 through the states of Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont as a designated border corridor highway under the auspices of Section 1118 and 1119 of the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

200. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Concurrent Resolution No. 11 memorializing Congress and the Internal Revenue Service to make changes to the Internal Revenue Code and federal tax regulations necessary to broaden the ability of taxpayers to make tax-deductible contributions to Nuclear Decommissioning Reserve Funds and to the hold harmless contributions towards decommissioning expenses to receive beneficial tax treatment; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

201. A memorial of the Senate of the State of Nevada, relative to Senate Joint Resolution No. 22 memorializing Congress to ensure that the provisions of H.R. 10, S. 900 and S. 915 to amend and extend the Internal Revenue Code and federal tax regulations not to interfere with the jurisdiction of Nevada to regulate providers of insurance for the protection of its residents; jointly to the Committee on Commerce and Banking and Financial Services.

202. Also, a memorial of the Legislature of the State of Idaho, relative to House Joint Memorial No. 5 memorializing Congress for the stabilization of payments of the United States Forest Service to county governments through the State Treasurer; jointly to the Committees on Resources and Agriculture.

203. Also, a memorial of the Senate of the State of Colorado, relative to Senate Joint Memorial No. 99–003 memorializing Congress to establish a block grant program for the distribution of federal highway moneys, to use a uniform measure when considering the donor and donee issue, to eliminate demonstration projects, and to expand activities to combat the evasion of federal highway taxes and fees; jointly to the Committees on Transportation and Infrastructure and Ways and Means.

204. Also, a memorial of the House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, relative to House Concurrent Resolution No. 9 memorizing the federal government to review Medicare policies and procedures to ensure that New Hampshire senior citizens retain their Medicare options; jointly to the Committees on Ways and Means and Commerce.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 3 of rule XII,

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts introduced a bill (H.R. 2695) to provide for the relief of Kathy Barrett, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Under clause 7 of rule XII, sponsors were added to public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 44: Mr. COOK, Ms. Eshoo, Mr. McHugh, Mr. GARY MILLER of California, and Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma.

H.R. 269: Mrs. THURMAN, Mr. STARK, and Mr. HILLIARD.

H.R. 274: Mr. ENGLISH and Mr. SMITH of Indiana.

H.R. 303: Ms. STABENOW, Mr. Ryan of Wisconsin, and Ms. LEE.

H.R. 382: Mr. DOYLE and Mr. WEXLER.

H.R. 393: Mrs. NAPOLITANO.

H.R. 405: Mr. NVIN, Mr. MURTHA.

H.R. 410: Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma.

H.R. 437: Mr. STARK.

H.R. 489: Mr. BLUMENAUER.

H.R. 531: Mr. OXLEY.

H.R. 552: Mr. PACKARD.

H.R. 566: Mr. GALLAGHER.

H.R. 583: Mr. KUCINICH and Mr. CUNNINGHAM.

H.R. 601: Mr. REYES.

H.R. 605: Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma.

H.R. 660: Mr. BASS.

H.R. 655: Mr. SMITH of Washington.

H.R. 679: Mr. SNYDER.

H.R. 776: Mr. LAMPSDII.

H.R. 783: Mr. LAMPOO.

H.R. 784: Mr. ACKERMAN and Mrs. MORELLA.

H.R. 809: Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma.

H.R. 852: Mrs. EMERSON.

H.R. 854: Mr. WEYGAND.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

August 3, 1999

H.R. 2657: Mr. Petersen of Pennsylvania and Mr. Bliley.
H.R. 2120: Mr. Hastings of Florida and Mr. Edwards.
H.R. 2211: Mr. Vitter.
H.R. 2241: Mr. Kolbe, Mr. Delahunt, Mr. Mica, Mr. GilDEFOR and Mr. GeKas.
H.R. 2245: Mr. Whitfield.
H.R. 2256: Mr. Davis of Illinois.
H.R. 2267: Mr. Ryan of Wisconsin, Mr. Quinn, Mr. Bliley, and Mr. Gallagher.
H.R. 2268: Mr. Kolbe.
H.R. 2282: Mr. Nethercutt.
H.R. 2303: Mrs. Tauscher, Mr. Portman, Mr. Hayes, Mr. Hastings of Washington, Mrs. Cubin, Mr. Doyle, Mr. Rogula, Mr. Bunning, Mr. Hall of Ohio, and Mr. Nadler.
H.R. 2308: Mr. Udall of New Mexico.
H.R. 2354: Mrs. Mee of Florida.
H.R. 2357: Mrs. Jones of Ohio, Mr. Hall of Ohio, Mr. Oxley, Mr. Steckel, Mr. Horser, Ms. Kaptur, Mr. Kucinich, Mr. Brown of Ohio, Mr. Sawyer, Mr. Ney, Mr. Lantos, Mr. Portman, Mr. Flingay, Mr. Frank of Massachusetts, Mr. LaTourette, Mr. Portman, Mr. Flingay, Mr. Frank of Massachusetts, Mr. Clay, Mrs. Christensen, Mrs. Thurman, Mr. Skelton, Mr. Mee of Florida, Mr. Hilliard, Mr. Chabot, and Mr. Gillmor.
H.R. 2372: Mr. McHugh, Ms. Pryce of Ohio, Mr. Watkins, Mr. Shimkus, Mr. Boyd, Mr. Deal of Georgia, Mr. Thornberry, Mr. Turner, Mr. Foley, Mr. Hutchinson, Mr. Horkema, Mr. Stramis, Mr. Hilleary, Mrs. Emerson, Mr. Holden, Mr. Horser, Mr. Hoiver, and Mr. Pombo.
H.R. 2395: Mr. Berruter and Mr. Simpson.
H.R. 2419: Mr. Hilliard, Mr. Rodriguez, Mr. Ray, and Mr. Rogers.
H.R. 2420: Mr. Jones of North Carolina, Mr. Boyd, and Mr. Isakson.
H.R. 2424: Mr. Davis of Illinois.
H.R. 2434: Mr. Barrett of Nebraska, Mr. Bliley, Mr. Lewis of Kentucky, and Mr. Nethercutt.
H.R. 2476: Mr. Lipinski.
H.R. 2494: Mr. Largent.
H.R. 2496: Mr. Ramstad, Mrs. CappS, and Mr. Smith of Washington.
H.R. 2512: Ms. McCarthy of Missouri, Mr. Ford, and Mr. Sawyer.
H.R. 2515: Ms. Lofgren.
H.R. 2535: Mr. Lowry and Mr. Moore.
H.R. 2543: Mr. Stramis and Mr. Gilman.
H.R. 2548: Mr. Burton of Indiana, Mr. Jones of North Carolina, Mr. Traficant, and Ms. Kilpatrick.
H.R. 2558: Mr. Frost.
H.R. 2569: Mr. Hill of Montana, Mr. Gilman, Mr. Smith of Michigan, and Mr. Crockatt.
H.R. 2574: Mrs. Napolitano, Mr. Udall of Colorado, and Mrs. McCarthy of New York.
H.R. 2586: Mr. Roe, Mr. Barcelo.
H.R. 2631: Mr. Underwood and Mr. Dickens.
H.R. 2662: Mr. Houghton.
H.R. 2665: Mr. Foster.
H.R. 2667: Mr. Werner.
H.R. 2681: Mr. Weiner and Ms. Sanchez.
H.R. 2686: Mr. Pope.
H.R. 2696: Mr. Oberstar.
H.R. 2724: Mr. Pelosi, Mr. Hoiver, Mr. Hunter, Mrs. Lowry, and Mr. Stark.
H.R. 2731: Mr. Baker.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 3 of rule XII, petitions and papers were laid on the clerk’s desk and referred as follows:

43. The SPEAKER presented a petition of the Constitutional Assembly of Isabela, relative to Resolution No. 87 petitioning the President of the United States to withdraw the Navy from Vieques, Puerto Rico; to the Committee on Armed Services.
44. Also, a petition of the City of Strongsville, relative to Resolution No. 199-141 petitioning support for the ratification, by the United States, of the United Nations Convention on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women; to the Committee on International Relations.
45. Also, a petition of the Legislature of Rockland County, relative to Resolution No. 191 of 1999 petitioning Congress to return to state side Land and Water Conservation Fund funding in the 1999-2000 Federal Budget; to the Committee on Resources.
46. Also, a petition of the City of Miami Commission, relative to Resolution No. 99-359 petitioning support for Stiltsville, and recommending that it not be demolished as presently intended, and supporting efforts to have Stiltsville reconsidered as a designated Historic National Park or Unit of the National Park Service, the U.S. Department of the Interior, and further directing the City Clerk to transmit a copy of this resolution to the officials designated herein; to the Committee on Resources.
47. Also, a petition of the Common Council of the City of Albany, relative to Resolution No. 79.102.98R petitioning support for the adoption of pending federal and state hate crimes legislation and urging speedy action by colleagues in the Congress and State Legislature; to the Committee on the Judiciary.
48. Also, a petition of the Legislature of Rockland County, relative to Resolution No. 204 of 1999 petitioning Congress to adopt the Immunosuppressive Drug Extension Coverage Act of 1999; jointly to the Committees on Ways and Means and Commerce.

AMENDMENTS

Under clause 8 of rule XVIII, proposed amendments were submitted as follows:

H.R. 2670

AMENDMENT NO. 4: At the end of title I, in the item petitioning support for the adoption of federal and state hate crimes legislation and urging speedy action by colleagues in the Congress and State Legislature; to the Committee on the Judiciary, insert the following: "(reduced by $3,700,000)".

AMENDMENT NO. 10: Page 19, line 24, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $5,600,000)"

AMENDMENT NO. 11: Page 18, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $11,972,000)"

AMENDMENT NO. 9: Page 18, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $3,700,000)"

Page 27, line 17, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $3,700,000)"

AMENDMENT NO. 8: In title IV, under DEFENSE, insert the following: "(increased by $2,500,000)"

Page 43, line 1, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $11,972,000)"

Page 43, line 3, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $11,972,000)"

Page 43, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $11,972,000)"

Page 43, line 12, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $11,972,000)"

AMENDMENT NO. 7: At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following:

TITLE VIII—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 801. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for joint training programs between the Royal Ulster Constabulary and any Federal law enforcement agency.

H.R. 2670

AMENDMENT NO. 8: In title IV, under DEPARTMENT OF STATE, insert the following:

AMENDMENT NO. 9: Page 18, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $3,700,000)"

AMENDMENT NO. 10: Page 19, line 24, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $15,600,000)"

AMENDMENT NO. 11: In title I, in the item relating to "DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE—OFFICE OF JUSTICE PROGRAMS—COMMUNITY ORGANIZATIONS POLICING INITIATIVES," insert the following:

(1) after the third dollar amount, insert "(increased by $500,000)"; and

(2) after the fourth and eighth dollar amounts, insert "(reduced by $500,000)"

H.R. 2670

AMENDMENT NO. 6: Page 28, line 11, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $2,500,000)"

Page 28, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $2,500,000)"

Page 28, line 25, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $2,500,000)"

Page 43, line 1, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $11,972,000)"

Page 43, line 3, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $11,972,000)"

Page 43, line 6, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $11,972,000)"

Page 43, line 12, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $11,972,000)"

H.R. 2670

AMENDMENT NO. 11: Page 18, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $3,700,000)"

AMENDMENT NO. 10: Page 19, line 24, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $15,600,000)"

AMENDMENT NO. 9: Page 18, line 18, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $3,700,000)"

AMENDMENT NO. 8: In title IV, under DEFENSE, insert the following:

AMENDMENT NO. 7: At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following:

TITLE VIII—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 801. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for joint training programs between the Royal Ulster Constabulary and any Federal law enforcement agency.
$25,000,000 is for community-based organizations for community outreach in census tracts undercounted in the 1990 census;''.

H.R. 2670

OFFERED BY: Mr. GEORGE MILLER OF CALIFORNIA

AMENDMENT NO. 13: At the end of the bill (preceding the short title), add the following:

TITLE —LIMITATION

Sec. . Of the amounts made available by this Act, not more than $2,350,000 may be obligated or expended for the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission.

H.R. 2670

OFFERED BY: Mr. OBESY

AMENDMENT NO. 14: In title II, in the item relating to “BUREAU OF THE CENSUS—PERIODIC CENSUSES AND PROGRAMS”, strike “the entire amount” the first and third places it appears and insert “of this amount, $1,723,000,000”.

H.R. 2670

OFFERED BY: Mr. SANFORD

AMENDMENT NO. 15: Page 110, after line 6, insert the following new title:

TITLE VIII—OTHER GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 801. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be available for a United States assessment contribution for membership during calendar or fiscal year 2000 to the following international organizations:

(1) Bureau of International Expositions.
(2) International Copper Study Group.
(3) International Cotton Advisory Committee.
(5) International Institute for the Unification of Private Law.
(6) International Lead and Zinc Study Group.
(7) International Natural Rubber Organizations.
(8) International Vine and Wine.
(9) International Union for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources.

H.R. 2670

OFFERED BY: Mr. STEARNS

AMENDMENT NO. 16: Page 110, after line 6, insert the following new title:

TITLE VIII—LIMITATION PROVISIONS

Sec. 801. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be available for the official entertainment expenses of the Secretary of State until Linda Shenwick, a former senior executive service level employee of the Department of State, (1) is reinstated to her former position as Minister Counselor for Resources Management at the United States Mission to the United Nations, (2) is fully reimbursed for all lost wages and expenses incurred in defending herself from the Department of State’s retaliation against her, and (3) has her employment files expunged of the unprecedented and punitive “Unsatisfactory” evaluation and the documentation used to support such evaluation.

H.R. 2670

OFFERED BY: Mr. STEARNS

AMENDMENT NO. 17: At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new title:

TITLE VIII—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 801.(a) None of the funds provided under this Act to combat violence in schools in the item relating to “DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE—Community Oriented Policing Services” may be used to provide funds to a State that has not enacted a law requiring local educational agencies to expel from school for a period of not less than 1 year a student who is determined—

(1) to be in possession of an illegal drug, or illegal drug paraphernalia, on school property under the jurisdiction of, or on a vehicle operated by an employee or agent of, a local educational agency in that State; or
(2) to have brought a firearm to a school under the jurisdiction of a local educational agency in that State;

(b) Nothing in subsection (a) shall be construed to prevent a State from allowing a local educational agency to expel from school any student who is determined—

(1) to be in possession of an illegal drug, or illegal drug paraphernalia, on school property under the jurisdiction of, or on a vehicle operated by an employee or agent of, a local educational agency in that State; or
(2) to have brought a firearm to a school under the jurisdiction of a local educational agency in that State;

except that the State law shall allow the chief administering officer of the local educational agency to modify the expulsion requirement for a student on a case-by-case basis.

(b) Nothing in subsection (a) shall be construed to prevent a State from allowing a local educational agency that has expelled a student from the student’s regular school setting from providing educational services to the student in an alternative setting and the provisions of subsection (a) shall be construed in a manner consistent with the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1400 et seq.).

H.R. 2670

OFFERED BY: Mr. TERRY

AMENDMENT NO. 18: Page 53, line 26, after the dollar amount insert “(reduced by $14,000,000)”.

Page 54, line 12, after the dollar amount insert “(reduced by $14,000,000)”.

Page 54, line 13, after the dollar amount insert “(reduced by $14,000,000)”.

Page 54, line 19, after the dollar amount insert “(reduced by $14,000,000)”.

Page 58, line 2, after the dollar amount insert “(increased by $10,000,000)”.

H.R. 2670

OFFERED BY: Mr. TRAFFICANT

AMENDMENT NO. 19: At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following:

TITLE VIII—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 801. None of the funds made available to the Department of Justice in this Act may be used for the purpose of transporting an individual who is a prisoner pursuant to conviction for crime under State or Federal law and is classified as a maximum security prisoner, other than to a prison or other facility classified as a maximum security prison or facility.

H.R. 2670

OFFERED BY: Mr. VISCLOSKY

AMENDMENT NO. 20: At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following:

TITLE VIII—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 801. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to negotiate or otherwise enter into any suspension agreement under section 734 of the Tariff Act of 1930, with respect to any of the following categories of steel products: semifinished, plates, sheets and strips, wire rods, wire and wire products, rail type products, bars, structural shapes and units, pipes and tubes, iron ore, and coke products.

H.R. 2670

OFFERED BY: Mr. WU

AMENDMENT NO. 21: Page 52, line 19, after the dollar amount insert “(increased by $194,996,950 for the Advanced Technology Program)”.

At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following:

TITLE VIII—ADDITIONAL GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 801. Total appropriations made in this Act for “DEPARTMENT OF STATE—Administration of Foreign Affairs” are hereby reduced by 5 percent.
Mr. Speaker, I submit the text of Dr. Brademas’s address in Spain.

ADDRESS OF JOHN BRADEMAS AT A FORUM TO LAUNCH A DEMOCRACY FOUNDATION IN SPAIN

There are several reasons I was pleased to accept the invitation to take part in this conference to mark the launch of the “Comisión Española de Apoyo a la Democracia.”

In the first place, Spain has been especially important in my own life. I first came to this country nearly fifty years ago as a student at Oxford University where I produced a doctoral dissertation on the anarcho-syndicalist movement in Spain from the mid-1920s through the first year of the Spanish Civil War.

Essential to my research on the Confederación Nacional del Trabajo were interviews in Paris, Toulouse and Bordeaux with Spanish anarchists in exile, such as the remarkable Federica Montseny and Felip Alaió, one of the founders of the Federación Anarquista Ibérica.

While at Oxford, I several times visited Barcelona where I met one of the leaders of the democratic Socialist underground who went on to positions of great responsibility in this country, Joan Reventós Carner, now the distinguished President of the Parliament of Catalonia, even as I recall, in 1952, lunching with the monks at Montserrat and listening to their caustic comments on both General Franco and certain Bishops of the Church of Spain.

Although this is my first visit to Ibiza, I today recall having in 1952 in Mallorca had tea with the famed British writer, Robert Graves, and my wife and I were pleased only this week to have spent some time in Palma.

SERVICE IN CONGRESS

As all of us here are by definition engaged in politics, I should tell you that in 1958, five years after leaving Oxford to return to my hometown in Indiana, I was on my third attempt elected to the Congress of the United States where I served for twenty-two years, all on the committee with responsibility for legislation affecting education.

In 1980 I led a delegation of Congressmen to visit Spain where, at Moncloa, we talked with Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez, then in Barcelona visited the campaign headquarters of the two candidates seeking, in the first post-Franco free election, the presidency of the Generalitat of Catalonia. Their names were Jordi Pujol and Joan Reventós Carner.

Later that year, seeking my 12th term, and a Democrat, was defeated in Ronald Reagan’s landslide victory over President Jimmy Carter.

In fact, one of my major commitments as NYU’s president was to strengthen our capacity for teaching and research about other countries and cultures. During my tenure, New York University established a Center on Japan-U.S. Business and Economic Studies, an Onassis Center for Hellenic Studies, a Casa Italiana and a Department and Hebrew and Judaic Studies.

Finally, given my own interest in Spain and that Spanish is now the second language of the United States—indeed, 25 percent of the people in New York City speak Spanish—I decided to move on the frente espanol! In 1983 I awarded my first honorary degree to His Majesty, King Juan Carlos I of Spain, and established a cátedra in his name under which there have come to NYU, as visiting professors, some of the world’s leading authorities on modern Spain, including Francisco Ayala, José Ferrater Mora, John Elliott, José María Maravall, Hugh Thomas, Eduardo Subirats, Jon Juaristi, Estrella de Diego and my own Oxford dissertation advisor, Raymond Carr.

In the relatively brief life of the Center, we have developed an intensive program of activities. We have been honored by visits of the former Prime Minister of Spain, Felipe González, and his successor, José María Aznar. Last year, under the leadership of the distinguished former Mayor of Barcelona, Pasqual Maragall, we conducted a forum on the future of cities. Among those participating were the Mayors of Barcelona, Joan Clos; Sevilla, Soledad Becerril; Santiago de Compostela, Xerardo Estévez; XaracoSí, Estévez; Santiago de Chile; Cuauhtemoc Cárdenas of Mexico City; Rio de Janeiro; New York City; Indianapolis and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

In September the King Juan Carlos Center conducted a symposium on “Twenty Years of Spanish Democracy”, with eminent intellectuals from Spain joining American scholars. The conference included such persons as Javier Tussell, Charles Powell, Juan Linz, Victor Pérez-Díaz and José Pedro Pérez-Llorca and featured addresses by the new United States Ambassador, Eduardo Romero, and the distinguished Foreign Minister of Spain, Abel Matutes, whose consistency, I am well aware, is Ibiza.

In November I was in Buenos Aires, speaking at the National Academy of Education in Argentina and the University of Buenos Aires while in December I was here in Spain, to speak at the University of Alcalá, in Alcalá de Henares, birthplace of Cervantes.

In April I was in Cádiz, birthplace of the Constitution of 1812, for nearly two centuries an inspiration to peoples throughout the world who cherish the principles of democracy, freedom and the protections of constitutional government.

In all these places, I took note of the rising importance in the United States of Spanish speakers, now some 28 million—and urged that even as we have been forging, with increased investment in Latin America by Spanish business firms and continuing U.S. investment there, a "triangular" economic relationship, so, too, we should develop what I would call "triangular" relationships among universities in the United States, Latin America and Spain.

So from what I've said, you will understand why I rejoice at the opportunity to be back in Spain.

But there is another reason I'm pleased to participate in this conference. For over two decades, as I have said, I was a working politician—one among many others elected to the Congress of the United States, winning eleven and losing three campaigns.

So I am deeply devoted to the processes of democracy and that my late father was born in Greece—I was the first native-born American of Greek origin elected to Congress—enhanced that commitment.

NATIONAL ENDOYMENT FOR DEMOCRACY

For the last several years, however, I've had a direct involvement with an entity dedicated to encouraging democracy in countries that do not enjoy it.

I speak of the National Endowment of Democracy, established in 1983 by a Republican President, Ronald Reagan, and a Democratic Congress. NED, as we call it, is a non-governmental organization, albeit financed with government funds, that makes grants to private organizations in other countries, organizations struggling to develop free and fair elections, independent media, independent judiciary and the other components of a democratic society.

I am pleased that the able President of NED, Carl Gershman, will take part in our discussions in Ibiza later this week.

In light of developments in Kosovo, I must note that last March I joined a colleague in the United States and several in Europe to create a Center for Democracy and Reconciliation in Southeast Europe, the Balkans.

Based in Salonika, the Center is governed by persons, the majority of whom are from the region itself.

We know that the task of building democracy in that troubled part of Europe will be daunting and require a decade or more. Yet we want at least to plant the seeds of free and democratic institutions in the Balkans.

I think it significant in this respect that several eminent Spanish leaders have been playing significant roles in pursuing this same objective. I cite here, to illustrate, Felipe Gonzalez, Javier Solana, Carlos Westendorp and Alberto Navarro, Director of ECHO, the European Community Office for Human Assistance.

This observation brings me to the third and final reason I'm pleased to be here. As a sometime scholar, practicing politician and university president, I have pursued careers central to which has been the connection— or lack thereof—between ideas and action. For the purpose of this forum is to consider how the political parties of modern, democratic Spain can, working together, help translate the idea of democracy into reality throughout the world where the institutions of self-government either do not exist or are struggling to survive.

"DEMOCRATIC SPAIN HAS A DEMOCRATIC VOCIATION"

The thesis of my remarks today is simple and straightforward. It is that democratic Spain has a democratic vocation, a calling, a responsibility—use whatever word you like—to join the National Endowment for Democracy, the Westminster Foundation and other democracy-promoting organizations in contributing to that cause.

I am especially impressed that representatives of the major Spanish political parties are cooperating to that end even as, in the United States, the National Endowment for Democracy was the product of collaboration between a Republican President, Ronald Reagan, and a Congress controlled in both chambers by the Democratic Party.

Now having been coming to Spain since before some of you here were born, I have observed at first hand the transition that Spaniards have made from an authoritarian regime to democratic governance.

The drama of that transition is exciting and one of which Spaniards can be justly proud. At the same time, you and I know that Spain still has much work to do to ensure that the institutions of democracy in your country are functioning as they should and that all the peoples of Spain are effectively engaged in the democratic process.

I add that I have just read a splendid new book that I commend to you as a history of the Spanish transition and an articulation of the challenges ahead. The book, by my friend, the distinguished Spanish scholar, Victor Perez-Diaz, is entitled, Spain at the Crossroads: Civil Society, Politics and the Rule of Law, to be published in September by Harvard University Press.

I hasten to note that in the United States we have challenges to our own political system.

For example, far too few eligible citizens even bother to vote, and the scramble for huge sums of money to finance electoral campaigns is an ongoing threat to the integrity of the American democracy.

In any event, I believe that Spain, and Spanish political parties in particular, can offer lessons of immense value to other parts of the world where democracy is under siege.

I have already noted Spanish leadership in Southeast Europe. You here will much better appreciate the express purpose of combating corruption in international business transactions.

Footnotes follow address.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

1 The thesis of my remarks today is simple and straightforward. It is that democratic Spain has a democratic vocation, a calling, a responsibility—use whatever word you like—to join the National Endowment for Democracy, the Westminster Foundation and other democracy-promoting organizations in contributing to that cause.

2 Notes follow address.

3 Notes follow address.

4 Notes follow address.

PRESIDENT CARTER'S FORUM

Here I note that last May I was in Atlanta, Georgia, to take part in a forum convened by former President Jimmy Carter who brought together former presidents and prime ministers from Latin America to discuss issues of transparency, corruption and political reform in the region.

In Argentina and Mexico, as we are all aware, corruption scandals at the highest levels of government have commanded the attention of observers all over the world. Indeed, I think you will agree that the issue of corruption today is far more visible than it has ever been.

I myself am active in the organization, Transparency International, founded several years ago for the express purpose of combating corruption in international business transaction.

Obstacles to genuine democracy in Latin America include, in too many countries—Peru is a blantant example—of a rubber-stamp Congress and a judiciary controlled by the executive.

In many Latin American countries, on the other hand, we have seen the development of lively and vigorous non-governmental organizations, essential to a flourishing civil society which, in turn, is indispensable to an effective democracy.

I must note another Journal of Democracy article whose author, Professor Scott Mainwaring of the University of Notre Dame (in the district I once represented in Congress) reminds us that although "in 1978, the outlook for democracy in Latin America was bleak . . . [t]he situation has now changed profoundly in the last two decades. By 1990, virtually every government in the region was either democratic or semidemocratic. . . . 6"

Mainwaring observes that since 1978, "The number of democracies in Latin America has been dramatic, and the demise of authoritarianism even more so," but lists two countries “where democracy has lost ground: Venezuela and arguably, Colombia.”
Mainwaring adds that despite often dismal economic performance and continued presidentialism, a number of Latin American countries with elected governments have survived.

CHALLENGES TO DEMOCRACY IN LATIN AMERICA
What then are the challenges to effective democracy in Latin America, democracy that goes beyond the characteristic, essential but not sufficient, of “elected government”?
I can do no better in listing these challenges than by referring to the testimony, on June 16, 1999, before the Committee on International Relations of the United States House of Representatives, of the Senior Program Officer for Latin America and the Caribbean of the National Endowment for Democracy, Christopher Sabatini.
All the areas cited by Dr. Sabatini are ones to which the United States, other countries, international organizations and, I am asserting, especially Spain, can make a significant, and positive, contribution:
Strengthening the rule of law and enhancing citizen access to the judicial system. The ad-mnistration of justice is weak in most countries of Latin America.
Fighting corruption. This means finding ways in which civil society can press elected officials for public access to information and can work to increase the transparency and efficacy of law and campaign finance Building democratic political parties. Establishing viable and representative political parties is essential to democratic participation, governance and stability in Latin America.

 Battling crime. The democratic solution to rising crime requires improving the criminal justice system, bolstering the police and involving civil society groups both to combat crime and check state encroachment on civil liberties.

Improving civil-military relations. Both civilians and military leaders need to understand their respective responsibilities. The armed forces should be educated on their roles and duties in a democracy.

Defending freedom of the press. Liberty of expression is fundamental to a transparent, democratic system but such freedom is under attack in Latin America. Each country must develop a national network to defend a freedom indispensable to genuine democracy.
Pressing economic growth and reducing inequality of incomes. The wide gap between rich and poor in Latin America is a continuing threat to democratic development there.

Modernizing local governments. Decentralization of resources and responsibilities can better serve citizens but only if accompanied by measures to ensure local levels of accountability.
I add, by way of generalization, that it seems to me imperative, if democratic institutions must, like the media, be independent of control by the executive branch of government.

ROLE OF UNIVERSITIES IN STRENGTHENING DEMOCRACY
In all these respects, I take the further liberty of suggesting, I believe there are potential contributions to the development of democracy to be made by universities. Institutions of higher learning can play a valuable role in strength-ing democracy... As two respected scholars, Jorge Balan of the Ford Foundation and Daniel C. Levy of the State University of New York at Albany, have insisted, in shaping an agenda for research on higher education policy in Latin America, it is not enough to focus on modernization. Although, they argue, political economics, public policy-making, management and leadership are all legitimate subjects for university courses, they do not suface. Universities must also look to the study of democracy, of civil society, freedom, of transitions from authoritarianism, of the consolid-ad of democratic regimes.

WORDS OF KING JUAN CARLOS I Allow me to conclude these remarks with words spoken at my university just sixteen years ago by a distinguished foreign visitor.
Upon receiving the degree of doctor of laws,
the monarch told us, "We have three causes that we must stand up for. First, the cause of freedom. Second, the cause of the poor of the world. Lastly, the cause of the humanities." And the spirit that draws us together today.

I congratulate all of you on your historic achievement in creating the “Comision Espan˜ola d´e Apoyo a la Democracia” and wish you well.

FOOTNOTES
1 Latin America’s Imperiled Progress, Journal of 2 Ibid.
3 Ibid.
4 Ibid.
5 Ibid.
6 The Surprising Resilience of Elected Governments,” Journal of Democracy, vol. 10, no. 3, July 7 Ibid., p. 103.
8 Ibid., p. 106.

RECOGNIZING SHIRLEY LOCKE
HON. JOHN SHIMKUS
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this time to thank Vandalia resident Shirley Locke who has selflessly volunteered at the Fayette County Hospital’s long-term care unit for the last 23 years. As a volunteer, 64-year-old Shirley Locke works seven days a week for five to nine hours a day calling bingo, seriously, and going on outings with the patients. “She’s here more often than any other volunteer”, Shelly Rosenkoetter, activties director for long-term care, said. “We don’t know what we’d do without her.”
Shirley wouldn’t trade her volunteer work for anything. “I just wanted something to do,” she said. “It’s like a second home to me. I’m going to do it as long as I can.” I think it is great to see people like Shirley who are willing to volunteer long hours to lend a hand to the people of her community.

IN HONOR OF OFFICER JOAN HONEBEIN AND HER 25 YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE RESIDENT’S OF UNION CITY, CA

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to honor and congratulate Patrol Officer Joan Honebein on her retirement from twenty-five years of service to the residents of the 13th Congressional District.

Officer Honebein began her career with the Union City Police Department in 1974 when she was assigned to the patrol division. She was one of the first female patrol officers in South County, Joanie, like every other officer, was responsible for handling a beat within Union City.

In 1977, Joan was selected to be the director of the Youth Services Bureau. She supervised two youth and family counselors at Y.S.B. and served as the Union City Police Department’s Juvenile Officer until 1984.
In 1984, Officer Honebein returned to the patrol division to resume the duties of patrol officer and the responsibility of a beat. Joan remained a patrol officer until 1992 when she was selected to be the Court Liaison and Juvenile Detective. As a Court Liaison it was Joan’s responsibility to take all pending court cases to the District Attorney’s office for review by the District Attorney. As the Juvenile Detective, she handled all juvenile cases referred to her by the patrol division. In 1997, Joan returned to the patrol division once again
as a patrol officer responsible for a beat.
Joan has been a member of several Union
City Police Officers Association Executive Boards, rising to the rank of Vice-President.
She was also a member of the Union City Lions Club for many years and is a past President. She has volunteered for many of the projects sponsored by the Lions Club in Union City.

In 1998, Joan was voted Officer of the Year by the members of the Union City Police Officers Association in recognition of her willingness to go the extra mile when providing service to the citizens of the community. It was a fitting tribute to an excellent career.

On August 20, 1999 the Union City Police Officer’s Association will honor Officer Honebein at a recognition dinner. I would like to join them in expressing my appreciation for her hard work and dedication. I wish her success in all her future endeavors.
August 3, 1999

RETIREE OF ROGER W. PUTNAM, PRESIDENT OF THE NON COMMISSIONED OFFICERS ASSOCIATION

HON. BOB STUMP OF ARIZONA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. STUMP. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an outstanding American, a true patriot, and veteran of the Armed Forces of the United States. On August 31, 1999, Roger W. Putnam will retire from his position as president and chief executive officer of the Non Commissioned Officers Association. On that date, Roger Putnam will bring to a close more than 40 years of service to the Nation and military members and veterans.

A retired U.S. Army Command Sergeant Major, Roger Putnam’s military service was indeed distinguished and varied. He originally entered the Air Force in 1949 and served until his discharge in 1952. He continued his public service as a Detroit police officer before returning to the Army in September 1961. During the ensuing 24 years, he rose through the enlisted ranks to Command Sergeant Major in various assignments overseas, including Japan, Ethiopia and Germany, and within the United States. He is a combat veteran of both the Korean and Vietnam Wars. Among numerous campaign and service awards, Roger earned the Silver Star for gallantry in action, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star Medal with 1st Oak Leaf Cluster and Air Medal (5th Award). Roger also earned and is entitled to wear the Master Aircraft Crewman Badge.

Roger is the Past President of the Enterprise Alabama Rotary Club and has been recognized by the Rotary International as a Paul Harris Fellow. He is a Past Chairman of the Commanding General’s Retiree Council, Fort Rucker, Alabama, and has served on the Board of Directors of the Enterprise Chamber of Commerce and the Army Aviation Museum Foundation. Roger also served as vice president of the Community Bank and Trust at Fort Rucker and Enterprise, Alabama.

In March 1998, the NCOA International Board of Directors elected Roger to his current office as President and Chief Executive Officer of the Association. This position was preceded by membership on the International Board of Directors since 1983, including service as its Chairman, and as NCOA’s Vice President for Field Membership Development.

Mr. Speaker, veterans of all eras, indeed all Americans, have benefited from the magnanimous service of veterans like Roger Putnam to ensure the good is often called evil and evil called good, our nation cries out for examples of genuine virtue from which our citizens may take inspiration. That is why I am proud that my home State of New Jersey is the headquarters of the Order of the Noble Companions of the Swan; an international order of Christian chivalry dedicated to perpetuating traditional virtues in the modern world in memory of those Soldiers of the Cross who embarked upon the First Crusade with Godfrey de Bouillon to free the Holy Sepulcher.

Under the leadership of their Grand master, William Anthony Maszer of North Brunswick, New Jersey, who is a hereditary prince of Alabama-Ostrogojis and Garama, the Order of the Noble Companions of the Swan has been raised to the high and noble estate of knighthood amongst Christian chivalry. The members of the Order have sworn solemn knightly oaths to bring chivalric virtues into the modern world by preferring honor to worldly wealth, by being just and faithful in words and deeds and by serving as guarantors of the weak and humble through their private acts of mercy and charity.

The exemplary efforts of the Order of the Noble Companions of the Swan have brought them international recognition from the Russian College of Heraldy as well as the Diccionario de Ordenes de Caballeria y Corporaciones Nobilares in the Kingdom of Spain. Closer to home they have been honored and formally recognized by a Resolution of the New Jersey State Senate and count our Governor, Christine Todd Whitman, among their well-wishers. Governor Whitman has observed that “the principles of chivalry are as relevant today as ever before” and expressed her hope that the Order’s efforts to preserve the notion of chivalry are rewarded by a renewed commitment to these values throughout society.”

Mr. Speaker, I join with Governor Whitman in the fervent desire that the knightly works of the Order of the Noble Companions of the Swan shall continue to serve as an example of virtue in a world modern world desperately in need of a moral compass. I would call upon all of our citizens to aspire toward the traditional virtues embodied in this noble Order.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an outstanding American, a true patriot, and veteran of the Armed Forces of the United States. On August 31, 1999, Roger W. Putnam will retire from his position as president and chief executive officer of the Non Commissioned Officers Association. On that date, Roger Putnam will bring to a close more than 40 years of service to the Nation and military members and veterans.

A retired U.S. Army Command Sergeant Major, Roger Putnam’s military service was indeed distinguished and varied. He originally entered the Air Force in 1949 and served until his discharge in 1952. He continued his public service as a Detroit police officer before returning to the Army in September 1961. During the ensuing 24 years, he rose through the enlisted ranks to Command Sergeant Major in various assignments overseas, including Japan, Ethiopia and Germany, and within the United States. He is a combat veteran of both the Korean and Vietnam Wars. Among numerous campaign and service awards, Roger earned the Silver Star for gallantry in action, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star Medal with 1st Oak Leaf Cluster and Air Medal (5th Award). Roger also earned and is entitled to wear the Master Aircraft Crewman Badge.

Roger is the Past President of the Enterprise Alabama Rotary Club and has been recognized by the Rotary International as a Paul Harris Fellow. He is a Past Chairman of the Commanding General’s Retiree Council, Fort Rucker, Alabama, and has served on the Board of Directors of the Enterprise Chamber of Commerce and the Army Aviation Museum Foundation. Roger also served as vice president of the Community Bank and Trust at Fort Rucker and Enterprise, Alabama.

In March 1998, the NCOA International Board of Directors elected Roger to his current office as President and Chief Executive Officer of the Association. This position was preceded by membership on the International Board of Directors since 1983, including service as its Chairman, and as NCOA’s Vice President for Field Membership Development.

Mr. Speaker, veterans of all eras, indeed all Americans, have benefited from the magnanimous service of veterans like Roger Putnam to ensure the good is often called evil and evil called good, our nation cries out for examples of genuine virtue from which our citizens may take inspiration. That is why I am proud that my home State of New Jersey is the headquarters of the Order of the Noble Companions of the Swan; an international order of Christian chivalry dedicated to perpetuating traditional virtues in the modern world in memory of those Soldiers of the Cross who embarked upon the First Crusade with Godfrey de Bouillon to free the Holy Sepulcher.

Under the leadership of their Grand master, William Anthony Maszer of North Brunswick, New Jersey, who is a hereditary prince of Alabama-Ostrogojis and Garama, the Order of the Noble Companions of the Swan has been raised to the high and noble estate of knighthood amongst Christian chivalry. The members of the Order have sworn solemn knightly oaths to bring chivalric virtues into the modern world by preferring honor to worldly wealth, by being just and faithful in words and deeds and by serving as guarantors of the weak and humble through their private acts of mercy and charity.

The exemplary efforts of the Order of the Noble Companions of the Swan have brought them international recognition from the Russian College of Heraldy as well as the Diccionario de Ordenes de Caballeria y Corporaciones Nobilares in the Kingdom of Spain. Closer to home they have been honored and formally recognized by a Resolution of the New Jersey State Senate and count our Governor, Christine Todd Whitman, among their well-wishers. Governor Whitman has observed that “the principles of chivalry are as relevant today as ever before” and expressed her hope that the Order’s efforts to preserve the notion of chivalry are rewarded by a renewed commitment to these values throughout society.”

Mr. Speaker, I join with Governor Whitman in the fervent desire that the knightly works of the Order of the Noble Companions of the Swan shall continue to serve as an example of virtue in a world modern world desperately in need of a moral compass. I would call upon all of our citizens to aspire toward the traditional virtues embodied in this noble Order.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this time to recognize the extraordinary work of Carrollton's home town hero, former Speaker of the House Henry T. Rainey. A memorial to the famous resident still hangs in the new visitors center in Alton. "Rainey put the Alton area into the world trade and transportation market by pushing an appropriation through the U.S. House to build Locks and Dam 26 in Alton in 1938," Greene County historian Phil Alfred said. Rainey worked closely with President Roosevelt during the depression until his sudden death in 1934.

Although Rainey served in Congress for thirty years and became one of the most powerful speakers in the history of the U.S. House, he never forgot his roots in Carrollton. He always came back to his farm to visit the people of his home town. My colleague Congressman JERRY COSTELLO and I are extremely proud of the residents of the Alton area for taking pride in their community and honoring a great man.

IN HONOR OF SERGEANT JAMES SUK AND HIS 28 YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE RESIDENTS OF UNION CITY, CA

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to honor Sergeant James Suk, a dedicated member of the Union City Police Department. Sergeant Suk recently retired from service after twenty-eight years of service, and will be honored by the Union City Police Department at a dinner on August 20, 1999.

Officer Suk began his law enforcement career in Union City as a Patrol Officer in 1968, just two years after the Union City Police Department was formed. For the first six years of his career, Jim worked as a regular beat officer, handling calls for service. During this time, he also worked in the Traffic Section and as a detective in the Investigations Section.

In 1974, Jim was promoted to the rank of Police Sergeant and was assigned to the Patrol Division as a Watch Commander. He was the first director of the Youth Services Bureau. He also supervised the Investigations and Juvenile Sections. Jim's many assignments have included supervision of the Reserve Police Officer Program, the Prisoner Transportation Section, and the Crime Scene Technicians.

During his long tenure at the Union City Police Department, Jim worked for every Chief of Police the department has had, and is one of the first Police Officers to retire.

Each year, members of the Union City Police Officer's Association vote one outstanding officer as Officer of the Year. In 1996, the honor was awarded to Sergeant James Suk. It was an appropriate recognition for a career of exemplary performance.

James genuinely cares about the people with whom he works. He has taken many new officers under his wing and help guide them in their careers. He is well respected by both his peers and the officers he supervises.

The city will be honoring Sergeant Suk at a retirement dinner on August 20, 1999. I would like to join them in applauding his hard work and dedication. He has a fine record of accomplishments and is an inspiring example of citizenship. I wish Sergeant Suk the best in all his future endeavors.
the Fourth Congressional District of Colorado, The New Belgium Brewing Company of Fort Collins. Recently I visited the brewhouse and saw firsthand the innumerable aspects that is the key to this successful company. Employees participate, manage, and run the business providing a stimulating and diversified job experience, and a competitive, first-rate product.

Mr. Speaker, the New Belgium Brewery recently received the distinguished honor of the 1999 Ernst & Young Rock Mountain Entrepreneur of the Year Award in the manufacturing category, and also won the “emerging entrepreneur” category in the past. Their output increased 31 percent in 1998, maintaining their prominence within the competitive market of micro brewers.

I hereby commend the success of this outstanding Colorado entrepreneurial company, New Belgium Brewing Company of Fort Collins, Colorado.

RECOGNIZING KEVIN ANDERSON OF GODFREY, ILLINOIS

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this time to recognize the artistic talent possessed by Kevin Anderson of Godfrey, Illinois. Kevin’s painting of a red woodpecker has been chosen as one of the ten pieces to be featured in the Illinois Audubon Society’s Wildlife Art Challenge exhibit which will be on display at shopping centers, libraries, and other locations throughout the state this year.

Kevin, the son of Sam and Myra Anderson, is a second grade student at Lewis and Clark School. Kevin is the youngest of the 10 pupils whose artwork is included in the Audubon Society display. When Kevin was asked about his painting he responded, “The woodpecker is one of my favorites. I like its bright red head.” It is great to see our youth take interest in our local wildlife. It is very important to educate our young people to appreciate wildlife so that it can be enjoyed for future generations.

THE RYDER ELEMENTARY CHARTER SCHOOL

HON. ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, Thursday, August 19, will mark the opening of the Ryder Elementary Charter School in my district in Miami, Florida where Ryder System, Inc. will ensure quality education for children of their valued and respected employees. The Ryder Elementary Charter School will be the nation’s first “charter school-in-the-workplace.”

Children of Ryder employees will be educated at no cost with a unique curriculum designed specifically to ensure success for its students. Providing child care in the mornings before school and in the early evening while parents are still at work, the Ryder Elementary Charter School will enable parents to continue working in order to better provide for their children, all the while knowing that they are safe and among friends with a 43 percent increase in population and 43 percent increase in employment. This growth and increased dependency on the automobile is expected to fall short of the region’s long-term transportation needs.

Any solution to current and future congestion demands strategic investment in both our road and mass transit system. It demands better land use and planning decisions and better interjurisdictional cooperation. And it also demands that this region come together and raise additional revenue to finance priority transportation projects that will provide immediate congestion relief. It may not be a popular idea, but we have to do more, and we have to do it ourselves. It seems to me, that the only way to ensure that we get 100 percent of the funds we need for our transportation projects is to raise more ourselves and spend it locally.

It is also a process that ensures that the money is spent where we determine it is needed most. I think the key to public support is identifying a list of priority projects that could be completed on a fast track providing the public with the assurances that their additional tax dollars will buy specific congestion relief. A large number of urban communities have already established a dedicated funding source for their transit systems.

In the past, leaders from this region have shared a vision and worked together successfully to address important transportation needs, through such institutions as the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority, the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, and the National Capital Region Transportation Planning Board at the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments. We need a similar vision to carry us forward another 30 years. The Metropolitan Washington Regional Transportation Act will help us craft this vision.

The legislation we are introducing today has five key elements:

1. It provides a new option to help the metropolitan Washington region more effectively address its transportation needs;
2. It empowers the National Capital Region Transportation Planning Board to consult with the metropolitan Washington region jurisdictions and the public to achieve consensus on a list of critical transportation projects and a funding mechanism that is needed to address the growing congestion crisis in the region but cannot be funded within the current and forecasted federal, state and local funding levels for such projects;
3. It establishes a corporation with the power to accept revenue and issue debt to provide short-term funding for projects that have been agreed to by the region;
4. It grants consent to the metropolitan Washington region jurisdictions to enter into an interstate compact or agreement that would help meet the region’s long-term transportation needs; and
5. It provides $60 million in matching federal grants as an incentive to encourage the creation of the federal corporation.

Providing national cooperation and a framework under which regional transportation needs could be addressed. It requires consultation with state and local officials at every level and in an effort to win state support, the legislation...
preciously guards state control of both the corporation and the authority through veto power. It does not raise anyone's taxes, but it does provide a mechanism or a "vehicle" through which the local jurisdictions could coordinate and commit future revenues to finance the construction of specific transportation projects that otherwise will not get built or built anytime soon.

The "Metropolitan Washington Regional Transportation Act" gives us a choice and helps start a debate on how we should take control and improve our future transportation system and improve our quality of life. Our failure to act and meet our transportation needs will have a much higher cost. The Board of Trade places the cumulative regional economic losses from the failure to meet our transportation needs in the year 2020 at between $70.2 billion to $182 billion. That economic loss includes: a 350 percent of $345 million increase in shipping costs; $1.3 billion to $2.6 billion in higher warehousing and inventory costs; $1.365 per household, per year, higher consumer costs; and more than $1,000 per household, per year, in higher personal travel costs.

I note that this legislation is supported by the county chairs and mayors of all eight Northern Virginia jurisdictions, D.C. Mayor Anthony Williams and D.C. City Council, the Greater Washington Board of Trade, and the Alexandria, District of Columbia and Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce.

SPECIAL RECOGNITION TO LEONARD A. HADLEY FOR 40 YEARS OF SERVICE TO MAYTAG

HON. LEONARD L. BOSWELL OF IOWA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. BOSWELL. Mr. Speaker, I take this opportunity to give special recognition to Mr. Leonard A. Hadley, for his 40 years of service to Maytag Corporation of Newton, Iowa. I am privileged to represent Iowa's 3rd Congressional District, which is home to Maytag Corporation. I, along with the residents of the 3rd Congressional District, wish to recognize the many valuable contributions made by Mr. Hadley as he enters retirement.

We, in Iowa, are particularly proud of the Maytag Corporation. It is recognized as a worldwide leader in the appliance industry. Mr. Hadley's contributions as Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, since 1992, contributed greatly to that success. The continued emphasis on developing unique, innovative products while maintaining its reputation for quality and traditional Iowa values makes Leonard A. Hadley's tenure at Maytag Corporation particularly noteworthy.

Mr. Hadley has also distinguished himself through his service on the boards of other leading businesses, indicating his strong commitment to building and maintaining a vibrant business climate in Iowa and the nation. He was recognized within the business community for his dedication and commitment to excellence by being inducted into the Iowa Business Hall of Fame in 1997.

Another important contribution by Leonard A. Hadley was his commitment to education. With education serving as the great equalizer, we must continue enhancing opportunities for our youth to secure a strong education. Mr. Hadley has done just that through his efforts on the Board of Visitors of the University of Iowa College of Business, the Iowa College Foundation and the Board of the University of Iowa Foundation.

I am confident we will continue to hear of many future contributions made by Mr. Hadley in his retirement which will greatly enhance our community, state and nation. I ask my colleagues to join me in offering a hearty congratulations and special recognition to Leonard A. Hadley as he prepares to retire after 40 successful years at Maytag Corporation.

CONGRATULATIONS DAVID BAILEY

HON. SCOTT McINNIS
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take a moment to recognize the career and contributions to small businesses of one of Colorado’s esteemed citizens, president and chief operating officer of Norwest Bank Colorado, David E. Bailey. In doing so, I would like to honor this man who, for many years, has exhibited dedication and experience to the banking industry.

Mr. Bailey has recently been honored for his achievements for small businesses. He began his career in 1969 by holding several managerial positions, at Norwest Bank in Denver. He went on to undertake the responsibilities of chairman, president, and CEO of Norwest Banks in Boulder, Greeley, and Fort Collins. At this time he also took responsibility for eight banks in northern Colorado. From there Mr. Bailey was elected chairman of the board and was in charge when the merger of Norwest Colorado, N.A. went into effect. He was then named president of Norwest, Colorado, N.A.

David Bailey has more than proven himself a valuable asset to the business and banking system of Colorado. As a trustee of the Colorado State University Research Foundation, a member of the Denver Rotary and Colorado Concern he has also proven himself as an asset to the community of Colorado in general.

It is with this, Mr. Speaker, that I say thank you to David E. Bailey on his truly exceptional career in the Norwest banking system and for his dedication to small businesses and our community at large. Due to Mr. Bailey's dedicated service, it is clear that Colorado is a better place.

FOREIGN OPERATIONS, EXPORT, FINANCING, AND RELATED PROGRAMS APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000

SPEECH OF
HON. MARK UDALL
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, August 2, 1999

The House in Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2606) making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes:

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. The amendment would cut off funding for the World Heritage Committee and the Man in the Biosphere program. I think this would be a mistake. It could set back important programs for protection of internationally-important cultural, historical, and environmental resources.

I noted that these programs are a threat to Congress’ authority over federal lands, but in fact they don’t lessen that authority. They also don’t affect any other part of the Constitution, or any private property rights. Let me repeat—these programs don’t have an effect on those rights.

But the amendment would have an effect. It would undermine America’s international leadership in environmental conservation and in the protection of historical and cultural resources. So, I think this amendment is bad for our country—and I know it’s bad for Colorado.

In Colorado, we have several Biosphere Reserves—areas that are part of the Man in the Biosphere program. One is the Niwot Ridge Research area. Another is Rocky Mountain National Park. This amendment could terminate their participation in the program.

Earlier this year, I asked Professor William Bowman, the Director of the University of Colorado’s Mountain Research Station, about the significance of Niwot Ridge’s participation in the program.

He explained that having Niwot Ridge in the Biosphere Reserve System had provided a framework for international cooperation in important research efforts, including work with a Biosphere Reserve in the Czech Republic to address air pollution problems—a matter of great importance to Colorado as well as to the Czechs.

He also told me that the Biosphere Reserve program had been helpful to the people at Niwot Ridge as they worked with the Forest Service to develop a land-management plan that would promote multiple use by minimizing conflicts between recreational, scientific, and other uses—again, a matter of great importance to Colorado and other public land states.

I also contacted the National Park Service, to find out what it meant to have Rocky Mountain National Park included as a Biosphere Reserve. They told me that it not only meant more research activities occurred in the park, but also that it meant a significant increase in park visitation—tourism that not only provides... important educational benefits for the visitors but also provides important economic benefits to Colorado.

So, ending this program would be bad for Colorado, and something that I can't support. I urge the defeat of the amendment.

FOREIGN OPERATIONS, EXPORT, FINANCING, AND RELATED PROGRAMS APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000

SPEECH OF
HON. PATSY T. MINK OF HAWAII
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, July 29, 1999

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2606) making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes:

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Chairman, I rise to express my support for the Moakley amendment to H.R. 2606, Foreign Operations Appropriations for FY2000.

The Moakley amendment would prohibit funding for the United States Army School of the Americas (SOA) located in Fort Benning, GA—a school which has produced some of the most notorious human rights violators in Latin America. Currently $20 million of the U.S. taxpayers money goes to train approximately 2,000 Latin American soldiers in military techniques, ostensibly to advance respect for civil authority and human rights.

Supporters of the SOA claim this school is a key foreign policy tool for the U.S. in Latin America and the Caribbean, helping to shape the region's leadership in ways favorable to American interests. They assert that the school has played a constructive role in promoting democracy in Latin America over the last decade; in reducing the flow of illicit drugs to the United States; and in emphasizing respect for human rights and civilian control of the military through their academic curriculum.

In fact, the SOA has repeatedly proven its disregard for human rights and democratic values. In a school professing to advance democratic values and human rights, only 15 percent of the courses offered relate to these subjects. Less than 10 percent of the student body enroll in these courses. Only 8 percent of students enroll in the counter-narcotics course in any given year. Dozens of those who have taken this course have been tied to drug trafficking.

With the help of courses such as "Methods of Torture" and "Murder 101," the SOA has produced adept pupils. When six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper, and her daughter were murdered on November 16, 1989 in El Salvador, 19 of the 26 implicated in the murders were graduates of the SOA. Two of the three officers responsible for the assassination of pacifist Archbishop Romero went to the SOA. The officer who commanded the massacre of 30 defenseless peasants in the Colombian village of Mapiripan graduated from the SOA.

Panamanian dictator and drug kingpin Manuel Antonio Noriega is one of the SOA's distinguished alumni.

These atrocious examples of terror and violence exhibit the extent to which the SOA has violated human rights and undermined democratic values throughout the Western hemisphere. Clearly, officers who attended SOA are not spreading American values of peace and democracy throughout Latin America.

It is not in American interests to continue support for the U.S. Army School of the Americas. For the sake of human rights and democracy, I urge my colleagues to support the Moakley amendment to end funding for the SOA.

FOREIGN OPERATIONS, EXPORT FINANCING, AND RELATED PROGRAMS APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000

SPEECH OF
HON. LUCILLE ROYBAL-ALLARD
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, July 29, 1999

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2606) making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes;

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Chairman, the Foreign Operations Appropriation bill for fiscal year 2000 that was reported by the appropriations subcommittee, was a fair and bipartisan bill, given the tight funding restrictions.

Although the subcommittee's allocation of $12.8 million was $2.7 million below the FY 1999 funding level, I am pleased that the panel included increases in critical programs such as, the Child Survival Account and the Assistance for Displaced and Orphaned and Children Account within U.S.A.I.D. These programs provide critically needed assistance to sick, needy, or orphaned children in developing countries.

I would like thank Chairman SONNY CALAHAN and Ranking Member NANCY PELOSI for including $34 million, for the U.S. Agency for International Development's Collaborative Research Support Programs—a 100% increase over last year's funding. This program utilizes our leading universities, including the University of California, to help developing countries make improvements in agriculture. Supporting agricultural research is critical because we know that political stability is largely dependent on a developing country's ability to maintain a stable food supply. The Collaborative Research Support Program helps developing countries achieve this goal, thereby furthering our own interests as well as theirs.

However, despite the increases in these valuable programs, I must strongly object to the $200 million that was cut from the World Bank's International Development Association at the direction of the Republican leadership. Cutting funds from this multilateral development program sends a message to other member-countries that the U.S. believes it is O.K. to shirk one's responsibility to developing countries. We should not send this message. Bank's International Development Association, not only the substance of this cut, but also to the manner in which this cut was made. As I previously stated, the bill reported out of subcommittee was a fair, bi-partisan bill. Unfortunately, the continuing insistence of the Republican leadership to make last minute cuts to our appropriations bills during full committee and House floor consideration has sorely undermined what should be a bi-partisan process.

Not providing responsible levels of funding for our government programs not only hurts our country, but results in increased emergency spending in the long run. While I will vote in favor of the bill in order to move the process along, it is my hope that the Republican leadership will recognize the shortsightedness of this strategy and restore this bill and others to their original funding levels.

FOREIGN OPERATIONS, EXPORT FINANCING, AND RELATED PROGRAMS APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2000

SPEECH OF
HON. NORMAN D. DICKS OF WASHINGTON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, August 2, 1999

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2606) making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes:

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, the United States is the world's largest trader. Our exports directly support almost 12 million U.S. jobs and have accounted for 30 percent of the U.S. economic growth over the past decade. With 94 percent of the world's population and the fastest-growing markets all located overseas, there is no question that U.S. exports are key to our nation's economic success and future.

Competition for these growing markets is fierce, and competitive financing is often the critical element to winning sales for U.S. goods and services. It is therefore crucial to our nation's interest to preserve and strengthen U.S. export finance and the Export-Import Bank to provide the foundation and means for expanding overseas trade.

In FY 1998, the Bank supported $13 billion in exports that otherwise may not have been sold. These sales have sustained tens of thousands of well-paying jobs here in the United States. Furthermore, the Bank is working to help U.S. exporters maintain a foothold in countries like South Korea and Brazil, which are suffering difficulties yet still offer important opportunities for exporters.

The Ex-Im Bank is also an important source of assistance to small businesses to sell their products overseas. Each year, the Bank services about 2,000 new small business transactions, and is involved in more than 10,000 small business transactions.

Although the overall funding for the Bank was reduced by $1 million, the Committee did
The following is a detailed outline of the provisions of this legislation. We invite members of the House to join us in considering this legislation. We intend to be public in suggesting refinements and additions to the legislation to make it more comprehensive, workable, and effective legislation to help the millions of Americans facing the problems of obtaining quality long-term health care.

Title I: Long-term Care giver tax credit

Title I of the bill provides a $1000 tax credit similar to the one described by the President in his State of the Union address. Our proposal has several notable differences. First, our tax credit is completely refundable, and there is no distinction between care for an adult or a child. If the credit is not refundable, it will fail to help those families in greatest need of help.

To be honest, $1000 is not that much money for long-term care, but it does provide a family with modest relief that they can use as they see fit. That is why we have structured the bill to ensure who most need the support will receive the refund.

Another important distinction between our proposal and the President’s is the treatment of children with long term care needs. The President’s proposal would limit the tax credit to $500 for children with long term care needs. We do not agree with this policy. The long-term care needs of a disabled child are just as expensive and emotionally and troubling as they are for an adult.

Our legislation also has a broader definition of individuals with long-term care needs. The President’s proposal includes individuals who require assistance in to perform activities of daily living (bathing, dressing, eating, continence, toileting, and transferring in and out of a bed or chair). This is a good start but does not include people with severe mental health disabilities or developmental disabilities who cannot live independently.

Finally, our legislation limits the amount of the refund for the wealthy, not the poor. In our bill, reductions in the refund begin at the upper income levels, not the lower income levels. The full refund is available up to income of $110,000 for a joint return, $75,000 for an individual return, and $55,000 for a married individual filing a separate return. Above these levels, the refund is decreased by $50 by every $1,000 over the threshold level.

Title II: Long-term care Medicare Improvements

Title II of the legislation addresses a range of reforms and improvements to Medicare benefits. The goal of this title is to provide adequate long-term coverage to patients with chronic health care needs. We believe that we can adjust Medicare benefits so that people can continue to live in their homes and communities, and enjoy the contact with their families and friends. These proposals are cost effective as they rely on services in facilities other than hospitals and skilled nursing facilities, and allow people to continue to live in familiar surroundings with their family.

1. Long-term Care Medicare Benefits

The first section extends Medicare Home Health Aid-Type services to chronically dependent individuals. This section establishes a new “long-term” home health benefit to maintain people with chronic conditions at home rather than in more expensive settings. Many people can no longer take care of themselves because physical or mental disabilities impair them to perform basic activities of daily living (ADLs), including eating, bathing, dressing, toileting, transferring in and out of a bed or chair, and continence. These are activities that we all take for granted. The inability to do any of these independently is distressing for the patient and a clear indication of the extent of the impairment.

This provision allows individuals who suffer from a chronic physical or mental condition that impairs two or more ADLs to receive in home care. To help contain costs, the provision would require competitive bidding of these services.

The second section of this title’s reforms is a provision for Medicare Substitute Adult Day Care Services. This provision would incorporate day care setting into the current Medicare home health benefit. The provision allows beneficiaries to substitute any portion of their Medicare home health services for care in an adult day care center (ADC). Adult day care centers provide effective alternatives to complete confinement at home. Many States have used Medicaid funding to take advantage of ADCs for their patients.

For many, the ADC setting is superior to traditional home health care. The ADC can provide skilled therapy like the home health provider. In addition, the ADC also provides rehabilitation activities and means for the patients. Similarly, the ADCs provide a social setting within a therapeutic environment to serve patients with a variety of needs.

To achieve cost-savings, the ADC would be paid a flat rate of 95% of the rate that would have been paid for the service had it been delivered in the patient’s home. The care would include the home health benefit and transportation, meals and supervised activities. As an added budget neutrality measure, the title allows the Secretary of Health and Human Services to lower the payment rate for ADCs if growth in those services is greater than current projections under the traditional home health program.

This program is not an expansion of the home health benefit. It would not make any new people eligible for the Medicare home health benefit. Nor would it expand the definition of what qualifies for reimbursement by Medicare for home health services. This legislation recognizes that ADCs can provide the same services, at lower costs, than traditional home health care. Furthermore, the legislation recognizes the benefits of social interaction, activities, meals, and a therapeutic environment in which trained professionals can treat, monitor, and support patients.

The legislation also includes important quality and anti-fraud protections. In order to participate in the Medicare home care program, ADCs must meet the same standards set for home health agencies. The only exception is that the ADCs would not be required to be “primarily” involved in the provision of skilled nursing services and therapy services. The exception recognizes that ADCs provide services to an array of patients and that skilled nursing services and therapy services are not their primary activity.
EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

19811

August 3, 1999

Here is an example of how the system would work. A physician prescribes home care for the patient. Next, the patient and his or her family arrange to arrange for the services. They could choose to receive all services through home care, or choose a mix of adult day care and home care services. Therefore, if the patient required three physical therapy visits and two home health aide visits, the patient could receive the physical therapy at the ADC while retaining the home health aide visits. When the patient goes to the ADC, he or she will receive the physical therapy and other benefits the ADC provides. All of these services would be incorporated into the payment rate of 95% of the home setting rate for the physical therapy service. This plan offers a savings for Medicare and an improved benefit to the patient.

3. HOME HEALTH CARE MANAGERS

The third section of this title makes a number of improvements in the quality of services provided through home care. First it establishes a program that will oversee the provision of home health care. This section of the legislation will ensure that those in need of long-term health care will receive necessary and cost effective care.

The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 (BBA) implemented a number of policies designed to slow the growth of a health benefit that was doubling in cost every three or four years. Prior to the BBA, the incentive to home health agencies was to over-use services to boost profits. In the BBA’s prospective payment system (PPS), the incentive will be the opposite, and there are real concerns about potential under-utilization of services. The Medicare Home Health Case Manager legislation would ensure that an independent case manager evaluates the patient’s needs and service level. The case manager will be financially independent of the home health agency and would be paid through a Medicare fee-schedule, independent of the amount or type of care the patients receive. The legislation would also provide the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) with the flexibility to implement case management programs. Case managers would work. A physician prescribes home care for the patient. Next, the patient and his or her family arrange to arrange for the services. They could choose to receive all services through home care, or choose a mix of adult day care and home care services. Therefore, if the patient required three physical therapy visits and two home health aide visits, the patient could receive the physical therapy at the ADC while retaining the home health aide visits. When the patient goes to the ADC, he or she will receive the physical therapy and other benefits the ADC provides. All of these services would be incorporated into the payment rate of 95% of the home setting rate for the physical therapy service. This plan offers a savings for Medicare and an improved benefit to the patient.

4. COORDINATED CARE

Another section recognizes that there are many medical conditions, such as congestive heart failure, that create severe long-term care needs that need coordinated, comprehensive care. Many people suffer an acute condition that leaves them weakened and in need of health care long after the acute phase of the condition passes. Currently, Medicare does not adequately cover an expensive recuperation that can last for months. This section directs the Secretary to identify 10 medical conditions, clustered by diagnostic related groups (DRGs) that consistently require intense follow-up care. Along with the 10 DRGs, the Secretary would determine reasonable costs to cover comprehensive case management, caregiver education and training, and other general assistance. Our proposal requires the Secretary of Health and Human Services to identify those medical conditions, clustered into logical DRGs that represent the most expensive home health services, most consistently require home health services, and require the longest period of convalescence. Using these DRGs, the Secretary will be able to develop a better system of coordinating care and helping families.

5. OTHER HOME HEALTH SERVICE IMPROVEMENT

Adopting a provision from Rep. Jim McGov- ern’s bill, we propose an outlier policy. In brief, this provision requires that HCFA develop a home health agency outlier program, so that agencies do not avoid the money-losing, hard to care for cases. We also propose to strengthen the provisions in the BBA that require hospitals to give more objective information to patients about the full range of post-hospital services, and not just direct patients to their hospital-owned services. Finally, we give more flexibility to the “homebound” rule.

6. HOSPICE IMPROVEMENTS

Another section provides broad revisions and improvements to the hospice care benefit. Hospice care includes interdisciplinary professional services for patients whose health condition will not benefit from cure-based treatment. Hospice can be offered to the person’s residence or a skilled facility, provides palliative care to reduce pain and enhance the patient’s quality of life. For those patients in the terminal phase of their life, hospice care offers final comfort for the patient and the patient’s family. The current rules governing hospice care require few incentives to recommend this alternative for their patients.

In a 1999 report to Congress, MedPAC commented that, “Another vulnerable population is the near-term beneficiaries who die each year. Too many of their physical, emotional, and other needs go unmet, although good care could minimize or eliminate this unnecessary suffering. Even hospices—which pioneered care for the dying—help only a fraction of patients and are often used far later than they should be. Ensuring that beneficiaries receive appropriate, appropriate care at the end of their life should be a priority for the Medicare program.

The consequence of our current medical practice is that patients remain in more expensive treatment facilities and do not receive the palliative care they require. This section of the bill offers three specific interventions:

First, the legislation would direct the Secretary to designate DRGs that indicate a chronic and terminal condition that is most likely to lead to death, and for which hospice care may provide assistance. These DRGs would then be used as a part of the patient’s discharge planning. The intent of this section is to ensure that patients receive a complete review of their treatment and care options, including hospice options in the patient’s community.

A second solution is to ensure that information regarding hospice care becomes a part of physician training. This section does not require that physicians become proficient in the medical practice of hospice care, only that they become more aware of its services as an option for terminally ill patients.

7. HELP FOR LOW-INCOME SENIORS AND DISABLED

Another section of this title will help all lower-income Medicare beneficiaries—and the chronically ill, the disabled, and the frail ‘old-old’ who tend to be those with the least in- come. This amendment is a repeat of a bill intro- duced by Rep. Mc Dermott and Stark (HR 1455) which coordinates SSA and IRS data to presume that individuals who show income below the poverty level are eligible for the QMBs and SLMBs programs and presup-pose that they become more aware of its services as an option for terminally ill patients.

The legislation would also include hospice care within the federal employees health ben- efits program (FEHBP). We hope that by in- cluding this benefit for our nation’s federal em- ployees, we will set a standard for other insur- ance providers. The net result would be that patients will obtain necessary hospice care during the final days of their lives.

TITLE III: NURSING HOME IMPROVEMENTS

Another section of this title will help all lower-income Medicare beneficiaries—and the chronically ill, the disabled, and the frail ‘old-old’ who tend to be those with the least in- come. This amendment is a repeat of a bill intro- duced by Rep. Mc Dermott and Stark (HR 1455) which coordinates SSA and IRS data to presume that individuals who show income below the poverty level are eligible for the QMBs and SLMBs programs and presup- pose that they become more aware of its services as an option for terminally ill patients.

Title three of the legislation provides a num- ber of reforms to laws and regulations govern- ing skilled nursing facilities. Earlier this year, the General Accounting Office released a report that several members of Congress and Rep. Stark requested. That report, “Nurs- ing Homes: Additional Steps Needed to Strengthen Enforcement of Federal Quality Standards (GAO/HEHS—99–46)” indicated that more than 40 percent of the skilled nursing fa- cilities did not comply with fundamental quality standards. In many cases, these deviations from the standards represent a serious threat to the health of patients living in nursing homes. At least 25 percent of the homes re- viewed violated standards that eventually cre- ated actual harm to the residents.
Currently, 1.6 million elderly live in skilled nursing facilities. These people are among the sickest and most vulnerable segments of the population. A major portion of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 (OBRA 87) brought sweeping reforms to the nursing home industry. That legislation did much to improve and ensure the quality of health care provided in skilled nursing facilities. Fortunately, the majority of skilled nursing facilities responded well to these changes and continue to offer quality care for their patients. Unfortunately, a sizable minority of skilled nursing facilities continues to place profits ahead of quality care. Because of the continued failure of these providers, we must give the states and health care regulators the legal tools to bring these providers into line or remove them from the system.

This title provides several important modifications and additions to the OBRA-87 legislation. First, all skilled nursing facilities will be required to conspicuously post in each ward of the facility a list of the names and credentials of the on-staff employees directly responsible for resident care and the current ratios of residents to staff. This simple requirement will allow families and the nursing home ombudsman program to determine whether the facility provides adequate staff to attend to the residents’ needs. In addition, the legislation would direct the Secretary of Health and Human Services to issue guidelines for adequate staffing for skilled nursing facilities.

The second provision of this title gives states alternative punitive measures to use with repeatedly noncompliant nursing facilities. One of the distressing trends identified in the GAO report is a phenomenon they describe as a “yo-yo” effect. A nursing facility will correct the problem and avoid the fines or penalties. Once found to be in compliance, the facility will slip back and provide substandard services until cited again by regulators.

Our proposed legislation offers two fixes. First, the legislation would allow states to require the existence of resurveying and re-inspecting the skilled nursing facility where there has been a substantial violation of the regulations. Second, the legislation would prohibit the facility from including the costs of the resurveying and reinspection in its reasonable costs figures. In other words, they cannot pass the bill of rectification onto Medicare or Medicaid. This proposal is a clear financial disincentive for homes to practice a yo-yo management and adds an important regulatory tool for the states.

The third major initiative in our legislation is the requirement of criminal background checks. Skilled nursing facilities would be required to conduct a criminal background check of all employees and would be prohibited from hiring any person who has been convicted of patient or residence abuse. This portion of the legislation makes clear that we do not want felons who have a history of abusing others working with one of the most vulnerable groups of people in the nation.

Finally, the legislation requires skilled nursing facility operators to report cases when an employee has harmed a patient or resident. The legislation calls for revising the current Nursing Employee Registry and will list any nursing facility employee who has been convicted or had a finding of abuse or neglect of a patient.

TITLE IV: LONG-TERM CARE INSURANCE

Title four of the legislation addresses long-term care insurance. The first chapter encourages long-term health care policies for federal and nongovernmental employees. The second chapter extends the consumer protection standards contained within the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act to all long-term care policies.

First, it directs the Office of Personnel Management to provide for the sale to the general public of group long-term care insurance policies that are offered to federal employees. The legislation keeps separate the premiums and costs of nongovernmental employers. The second chapter extends the consumer protection standards contained within the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act to all long-term care policies. Currently, these standards apply only to tax-qualified policies. Without these protections, some insurance providers may be tempted to provide long-term care policies that do not provide the level of financial protection that consumers need. Because of the expense of these policies, the consequences of purchasing inadequate insurance, and the difficulty of understanding these policies, we need to ensure that reasonable quality standards protect consumers from buying inadequate and inappropriate long-term care policies.

The next section extends the consumer protection standards contained within the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act to all long-term care policies. Currently, these standards apply only to tax-qualified policies. Without these protections, some insurance providers may be tempted to provide long-term care policies that do not provide the level of financial protection that consumers need. Because of the expense of these policies, the consequences of purchasing inadequate insurance, and the difficulty of understanding these policies, we need to ensure that reasonable quality standards protect consumers from buying inadequate and inappropriate long-term care policies.

TITLE V: REALAUTHORIZATION OF THE OLDER AMERICANS ACT OF 1965

Title five of the legislation is an extension of the Older Americans Act of 1965, as proposed by the President to include grants for care giver assistance.

TITLE VI: EARLY BUY-IN FOR MEDICARE

Title six of the legislation would provide caregivers an early option to join Medicare. This health insurance program would provide increased access to health coverage for Americans who are the primary caregivers for family member with long-term care needs.

Many Americans must quit job or retire early to care for a family member who has long care needs. In addition, they tend to range in age from 55 to 64. Consequently, health insurance companies refuse to insure them or charge huge premiums. Our proposal would cover nearly five million early caregivers who face the prospect of being uninsured and who are helping all of us by keeping other individuals out of taxpayer-subsidized institutions. This provision allows qualifying individuals to receive Medicare coverage when they leave their employment to provide long-term care for a spouse or relative.
Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Manuel A. Esquivel, who is retiring this month from his position as City Manager of Selma, California. He has dedicated his life to improving the quality of life for Selma residents.

Mr. Esquivel was born and raised in Colorado, and earned a degree from the University of Southern Colorado. He has served in local government for over 25 years, holding the positions of Assistant City Manager of Pueblo, Colorado, and later City Manager of Lindsborg, Kansas.

In 1975, Mr. Esquivel began his current position as City Manager of Selma, California. During his tenure in Selma, he has developed an effective community team approach and a motivational management style, generating excellence among city staff members.

Mr. Esquivel has been a leader in promoting economic development in Selma, participating in the "Team Selma" program, which led to the creation of over 3,500 new jobs. During his term as City Manager, Selma has received regional, state, and national recognition in the promotion of economic development. Mr. Esquivel played a critical role in planning President Clinton's successful visit to Selma in 1995.

Mr. Esquivel's tremendous dedication to Selma is surpassed only by his dedication to his family. He and his wife, Beverly, have two children—Renee and Tony—and four grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me today in congratulating Manuel Esquivel for his tireless service and countless contributions to the City of Selma. We wish him nothing but the best as he begins a long and successful career in public service.

A TRIBUTE TO THE LATE STANTON CRAIG HOEFLER

HON. GARY G. MILLER OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. GARY MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the late Mr. Stanton Craig Hoefler. He passed away on February 18, 1999 of natural causes. Born in San Francisco on February 25, 1924, Mr. Hoefler at-

A TRIBUTE TO MANUEL A. ESQUIVEL

HON. CALVIN M. DOOLEY OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Manuel A. Esquivel, who is retiring this month from his position as City Manager of Selma, California. He has dedicated his life to improving the quality of life for Selma residents.

Mr. Esquivel was born and raised in Colorado, and earned a degree from the University of Southern Colorado. He has served in local government for over 25 years, holding the positions of Assistant City Manager of Pueblo, Colorado, and later City Manager of Lindsborg, Kansas.

In 1975, Mr. Esquivel began his current position as City Manager of Selma, California. During his tenure in Selma, he has developed an effective community team approach and a motivational management style, generating excellence among city staff members.

Mr. Esquivel has been a leader in promoting economic development in Selma, participating in the "Team Selma" program, which led to the creation of over 3,500 new jobs. During his term as City Manager, Selma has received regional, state, and national recognition in the promotion of economic development. Mr. Esquivel played a critical role in planning President Clinton's successful visit to Selma in 1995.

Mr. Esquivel's tremendous dedication to Selma is surpassed only by his dedication to his family. He and his wife, Beverly, have two children—Renee and Tony—and four grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me today in congratulating Manuel Esquivel for his tireless service and countless contributions to the City of Selma. We wish him nothing but the best as he begins a long and successful career in public service.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

19313

KING HASSAN II OF MOROCCO—AN APPRECIATION BY DR. JOHN DUKE ANTHONY

HON. TOM LANTOS OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, on July 23, His Majesty King Hassan II of Morocco passed away and his son, Sidi Mohammad ben Al Hassan assumed the throne of Morocco. I would like to call the attention of my colleagues to a particularly thoughtful and insightful essay on the passing of Morocco's King Hassan II—written by Dr. John Duke Anthony, the president of the National Council on U.S.-Arab Relations, secretary-treasurer of the U.S.-Gulf Cooperation Council Corporate Cooperation Committee, and a distinguished American scholar of Middle Eastern affairs.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that Dr. Anthony's essay be placed in the RECORD, and I urge my colleagues to reflect upon his discerning appreciation of the role and significance of the reign of King Hassan II.

THE PASSING OF MOROCCO'S KING HASSAN II

(By Dr. John Duke Anthony)

In the history of America's foreign affairs, a long-running chapter with Morocco, one of our country's oldest and most important allies, closed and a new one opened this past week.

The King of Morocco, the first country to recognize the fledgling U.S. republic during the Administration of President George Washington, was laid to rest. As anticipated, accession to the kingship of King Hassan II's eldest son and Heir Apparent, the 36-year-old Moulay, now King, Mohammad VI, proceeded smoothly and effectively. Also as expected, no significant changes in Morocco's domestic and foreign policies are envisioned at this time.

What, if anything, are the implications for American and other international interests in the passing of Africa's and one of the Arab and Islamic world's longest-serving heads of state?

At first glance, the most important certainty is the certainty that key Moroccan policies are likely to continue as before. In this, for the many who have applauded some of the routes less traveled that Morocco chose to traverse for the past decade—in the areas of constitutional reform, economic liberalization, political pluralism, advancement of human rights, the pursuit of a just and durable peace between Arabs and Israelis—there is comfort.

For President Bush and plot for the quicker rather than later passing of hereditary systems of governance—for the demise of the Arab and Islamic world's emirs, shahs, sultans, and monarchs—their day, certainly with regard to Morocco, appears to be no nearer to hand than before.

Indeed, a case can be made that, in large measure because of the timelines of relevance, and overall popularity of the late King's reforms, the imminence of the Moroccan monarchy's political demise is even more distant than it was when Hassan II succeeded his father as King of Morocco in 1960.

To say this is but to underscore the extent to which the Middle East has become so topsy-turvy within the adult lifetime of a single person: the late King of Morocco.

Had Hassan II lived and chosen to speak his mind on the subject, it's likely that he would have agreed with Diogenes, who is alleged to have requested that he be “buried with my fact to the ground, for in no time at all the world will look inside down.”

There are ironies here. For one, search any library on the Middle East from the mid-1980s onward, and the work of one political scientist who was then and is now—having predicted with a certainty bordering on arrogance that, in short order, all the Arab world's dynasts would be overthrown, blanketed as so many will-o'-the-wisp demolitions into the dust.

Conventional wisdom of the day postulated that the wave of the future belonged to the Nasserists and their camp followers from Morocco to Muscat, from Baghdad to Berbera, from Aden to Algiers and Aleppo in between.

Pundits prognosticated that the coming generation, nowadays' Tomorrow's nines—yesterday's tomorrow—would be led not by Hassan II and his dynastic counterparts, or anyone else whose lot was hereditary, but, rather, by the proverbial middle-class military officer, the khaki-clad knight on horseback.

But, in Morocco, as elsewhere in the Arab world, this was not to be. That it proved not to the case was in large measure because Hassan II was not bereft of equestrian political skills of his own.

That those who sought to precipitate the late King's political demise failed in the end was not, however, for lack of trying. Twice, in 1970 and again in 1971, they came close to succeeding. Nor, for that matter, can it be said that they truly failed. Indeed, the King's opponents can claim credit for having quickened a common sense to realize Morocco's national interests dictated that he institute sweeping constitutional, political, economic, and human rights reforms.

Few developing countries have traveled as far as and as fast in reforming the underpinnings and trappings of its economy and socio-political system as Morocco in the last decade of the late King's reign.

In the past few years, a steady stream of American leaders have become eyewitnesses to the ongoing implementation of a range of economic and political reforms launched during the era of Hassan II.

Together with Tunisia, Morocco has been a pace-setter in embracing the economic precepts of globalization and in forging a multifaceted trade and investment relationship with the member-states of the European Union.

In heightening their awareness of the opportunities for American businesses in the "new Morocco," U.S. Congressional Representatives and staff have not been far behind. In March 1999, 110 Members of Congress signed a "Congressional Friends of Morocco" letter to President Clinton. Shortly afterwards, First Lady Hillary Clinton visited Morocco, Egypt, and Tunisia.
In keeping with this momentum, Under-Secretary for Economic Affairs Stuart Eizenstadt visited the region and articulated a vision of enhanced foreign investment, liberalized trade arrangements, and regional economic cooperation between the U.S. and the three OPEC nations—Algeria, Morocco, and Tunisia.

It is too soon to gauge the full measure of the legacy that Hassan II bequeathed to his son and the Moroccan people. However, beyond the fact that the baton of national leadership has been passed to the new king, Mohammed VI, and with it the task of governing one of the developing world’s most fascinating and important countries, there is much else of interest and value for Americans and others to ponder.

Consider for a moment the following. Morocco is a country that is at once African, Arab, Maghrebian, Mediterranean, Middle Eastern, and Islamic. Its international strategic importance is underscored by its coastal frontage and twenty ports on two of the world’s largest and most fabled seas. Morocco’s geography and natural resource base—with its mountains, valleys, rivers, trees, and verdant fields—are as variegated as any in the developing world. Its people of an extraordinary rich culture and heritage that, long before we became an independent nation, had links to our own. With Morocco’s archives, and continuing to this day in the country’s international relations, is abundant and ongoing evidence of a record of friendship with the United States and the American people that, among the world’s politics, is second to none.

The implications of the change in Morocco’s leadership for American interests are that the U.S. shouldn’t change any of its policies toward this oldest among contemporary Arab kingdoms. They are to underscore the value of Morocco’s having stood by the U.S.—and the U.S. having stood by Morocco—throughout the Cold War and after, and our joint commitment to remain each other’s ally in the future.

They are to take heart in the realization that, if anything, the new King, who is no stranger to the United States and American values, has proven even harder at strengthening the U.S.-Morocco relationship.

The implications of the smooth and effective passing of the mantle of leadership from father to son, as had been envisioned all along, were encapsulated in the act of Presidents Clinton and Bush walking with other heads of state behind the King’s coffin on the day of his funeral.

They lie in the predictability of continued American national interest from the leadership of a ruling family that, from the time of Eisenhower’s visit to Morocco in the midst of World War Two, straight through until the present, has never buckled when the going got rough.

They lie in the agreement of American and Moroccan foreign affairs practitioners on the ongoing relevance of a leader with the courage to face his convictions. For Hassan II, the world was blessed with a visionary and dedicated leader who never shied from tackling the controversial issue of Middle East Peace.

Longer than any other living Muslim leader, the late king, always far from the lime- light, generated an immense amount of trust and confidence among Arab and Jew alike.

In the end, Hassan II will be remembered for many things. Among them, not least will be the fact that, for more than a quarter of a century, he worked tirelessly at nudging, but never shoving, the protagonists much nearer to an enduring peaceful settlement than would have been likely had he, and now his son, upon whom the burden falls to continue the effort, not passed our way.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. MARILYN JONES MORRING OF HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA

HON. ROBERT E. (BUD) CRAMER, JR. OF ALABAMA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. CRAMER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize Mrs. Marilyn Morring of Huntsville, Alabama, for her many years of outstanding service to our community.

In the Huntsville community, Mrs. Morring is an emblem of education. She has lovingly devoted 25 years of her life to the service of imparting wisdom and a love of learning to the children of our community. In her many years of teaching both in public and private schools, Mrs. Morring taught every subject from sixth to twelfth grade, produced musicals for the school and initiated an organized a bus tour to Washington, D.C.

In her modest and selfless manner, Mrs. Morring has touched the lives of so many families in my district. To me, she symbolizes the model educator, dedicated, intelligent, caring and leading by example. Her reflections on her long career in education exemplify the simple joy she finds in children, teaching and life: “... by teaching others I learned about my own self, my community, and about other people. I made life-long friends and have watched with wonder the lives and achievements of the young people I taught.”

This is a fitting honor for one who has instilled in several generations of Huntsville citizens a respect and understanding for history and government. In 1982, her school honored her by establishing the Marilyn J. Morring History and Alabama Government Award.

Mrs. Morring’s volunteer work has been essential in building the quality of life the people of Huntsville enjoy today. Described as the “glue” that holds it all together, Mrs. Morring has given of herself in countless capacities including the Huntsville Symphony Orchestra, the Huntsville Museum of Art, the Huntsville Public Library, Burritt Museum, the Leukemia Society and the Arts Council. In 1996, she won the prestigious Virginia Hammill Sims Award. Her nominators said it best, “For over 46 years she has been a part of the beginning, growth and development of the cultural ‘best’ in this city, working tirelessly behind the scenes to make her home town a better place in which to live.”

I want to offer my best wishes to Mrs. Morring and her family. She has indeed inspired me and countless other students old and new to seek knowledge and to use that knowledge to serve others.
the elderly. The simple fact is that old age and the need for long-term care is a modern pheomenon. In the 1930s, the life expectancy of most people was about 50, and many are now expected to live to 78. A woman born the same year will live to 85, an additional 7 years. Improvements in general public health and medical practice, and changes in lifestyle will continue to extend the average age that people can expect to live. The practice of medicine has witnessed monumental changes during recent decades. What was once considered medically impossible is now common place. Lifestyles have changed as well. Our constituents are learning to ignore the lies spread by cigarette manufacturers and are turning away from this deadly habit. Similarly, more Americans now understand how diet and exercise can improve their health and extend their lives.

A common urban legend we must avoid is the belief that families gladly dump their parents into nursing homes, as a ready conventience. The truth is that families want to look after each other and use nursing homes only as a last resort when the burden of care is beyond their control. The majority of the persons with long term health care needs continue to live in their homes. On the extreme elderly, those 85 and older, only 21 percent live in nursing homes. Most of those residents are not there by choice, but because they require skilled nursing services.

We need to focus on the facts and plan for the future. The end of World War II was the begining of the baby boom. By 2010, those children born in 1945 will begin to retire. According to a recent CBO report, in the year 2010 there will be 40.6 million people over the age of 65—a 14 percent increase from the year 2000. Then this trend will continue. By 2030 there will be 77.9 million people over the age of 65, 118 percent more than in 2000. Indeed, the 85 and older age group is the fastest growing segment of the population. As the avverage age of Americans increases, the proportion of citizens with disabilities will also increase. According to the CBO, by 2040 over 40 million of the elderly will be disabled by a physical or mental condition. The growth in the number of persons with Alzheimer’s disease illustrates the need to develop a comprehensive long-term care program.

As many as 10 million of the nation’s elderly currently suffer Alzheimer’s disease. Unless someone finds a cure for this condition, the numbers are sure to grow. Within the next 20 to 30 years, there may be over 14 million persons with this terrible disease that slowly destroys the brain. According to recent surveys, over 50 percent of persons with Alzheimer’s disease continue to live with a relative or spouse who sees to their day-to-day care. This personal care may last for many years and represents the equivalent of a full-time job.

Most Americans neither understand nor have prepared for their long-term care needs. Many of our constituents do not understand the difference between Medicare and Medicaid. They also have many misperceptions of the benefits available from Medicare. The general public does not understand that Medicare does not cover for long-term care. This error is compounded by the fact that most people mistakenly believe that their health care will cover their long-term care needs. For these reasons, and many others, Americans do not have sufficient financial resources to pay for long-term care.

Women are especially hard hit by the lack of planning for long-term care. In general, women live longer, earn less money, and are often required to be the primary care giver. The consequence is that they do not have sufcient resources to meet their own health care needs. Take as an example a young woman who decides to take time from her career, stay at home, and raise a family. The time out of the job market means that she is not earning an income and contributing to a retirement plan in addition, she is not contributing to social security. Finally, she is not keeping pace with her career and her salary will be less than those who remained in the work force.

These facts and trends lead to a clear conclusion: We must plan for the future and act decisively now. If we do not, millions of our fellow citizens will face catastrophic health care problems without ample financial and social support.

We cannot depend on single simple-minded solutions. Neither private insurance nor Medicaid can cover long-term care to any meaningful extent. Long-term care insurance is a shell game of dollar trading. Those who can afford these policies are usually better off investing their money in other ventures that produce better financial yields. Those who need long-term care typically cannot afford the insurance. Those who are young enough to afford the policies typically have other pressing financial obligations including raising a family, mortages, and college tuition. Any mandate to require folks to buy long-term insurance is a regressive tax hidden behind a fancy name.

We cannot count on Medicaid as it is the resource of last resort. Patients cannot use this benefit until they have exhausted all their personal resources. Do we really intend to demund that people face financial ruin to maintain health care? Suffering a severe physical or mental health problem is stressful enough, we should not further burden patients with the anxiety surrounding financial disaster.

Mr. Speaker, my colleagues, we have the opportunity to create the golden era for long-term care, but we must start now. The legislation that we have today sets the stage for better long-term care.

Our legislation recognizes that there is no single quick fix for long-term care. For this reason, we propose a range of legislative initiatives that, when combined, offer a comprehensive package. We describe the details of the Comprehensive Long Term Health Care Act elsewhere in today’s Record. We hope that our colleagues and advocacy groups will join in support and in recommending refinements and improvements.

SILK ROAD STRATEGY ACT OF 1999

SPRECH OF

HON. DAN BURTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, August 2, 1999

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, the House, today, considered H.R. 1152, which seeks to promote free market policies in the new republics of Central Asia and the Caucasus and to encourage foreign investment, increased trade and other forms of commercial ties between the countries of these regions and the rest of the world.

These are praiseworthy objectives, and legislation expressing U.S. support for the fledgding democracies of the Silk Road region deserves priority attention. Consequently, I support the goals of H.R. 1152, the Silk Road

At the same time, however, many companies from OECD countries, including the United States, have substantial direct investments in several of the Silk Road countries and are not being accorded fair treatment. Investment contracts are not being honored, export permits are not being issued and de facto nationalizations of foreign investment have occurred. In several instances, formal complaints have been lodged by investors through U.S.
and other embassies in the region.

In an effort to discourage this kind of mistreatment, the International Relations Committee amended the bill to include language conditioning U.S. assistance on the fair treatment of foreign investors. Specifically, the amendment requires recipient governments to demonstrate “significant progress” in resolving investment and other trade disputes that have been registered with the U.S. Embassy and raised by the U.S. Embassy with the host government.

I was pleased to sponsor this amendment, because without it the Silk Road bill could have caused the beneficiary governments to conclude that they had a green light to renege on commitments to foreign investors, jeopardizing hundreds of millions of dollars of investments. In this regard, a number of pension plans have investments in companies doing business in countries such as Kazakhstan.
The average worker participating in a pension is adversely affected as well, and this must stop.

As amended, this bill should send a strong signal to countries that should not expect to recieve U.S. assistance if they mistreat companies that provide critical investment capital and employment opportunities.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 1152.
Yesterday, Willie Morris died. Willie lived in my nation's greatest artists has passed away. Willie was honest about himself and his culture. Yet while embracing the truth, Willie told us about it. He told us about childhood friends like Bubba and Henjie. His years of service had a lasting impact on the politics of my state. As Lou Rainone, a friend and colleague of Mr. Karcher, has said, Mr. Karcher was "the architect of the modern legislature in New Jersey. He made the Legislature an equal branch of government with the Governor's administration."

Governor Christine Todd Whitman agrees. On Tuesday, she ordered state government flags flown at half-staff for the remainder of the week, and remarked that Mr. Karcher "was a worthy and capable adversary who truly embodied the spirit of the loyal opposition."

Mr. Karcher began his remarkable political career early in life. In 1966, while still a student at Rutgers University Law School, Mr. Karcher served as Secretary to the President of the New Jersey Senate. After several more years of staff service to the legislature, Mr. Karcher was elected to office himself in 1973. Mr. Karcher went on to become Majority Leader in 1980 and Speaker of the Assembly in 1981. A political upset in 1985 brought the Republicans a majority in the assembly and removed Mr. Karcher from the speaker's chair. Yet Mr. Karcher continued to serve in New Jersey politics, campaigning unsuccessfully for the Democratic Governor's nomination in 1989 and serving in the Democratic National Convention in 1984 and 1988. Mr. Karcher retired from the New Jersey Assembly in 1990. Mr. Karcher's service to his state and country did not end there. In 1990, Mr. Karcher accepted an appointment as a fellow in residence at the Institute of Politics at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government. He wrote two books on political issues and helped found the successful Sayreville law practice of Karcher & Rainone. In 1987, he served as an appellate counsel for Mary Beth Whitehead-Gould in the historic "Baby M" surrogate-mother case which was successfully argued before the New Jersey Supreme Court.

After retiring to Princeton, New Jersey several years ago, Mr. Karcher's last great accomplishment was to rebuild the Democratic party of Mercer County, where in 1998 he helped to bring about my own upset victory against a favored incumbent. Mr. Speaker, Alan Karcher's life was a model of public service, commitment, and political integrity. He stands as an example to us all, regardless of party and persuasion. I hope
HONORING DR. JOE TARON

HON. WES WATKINS OF OKLAHOMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Dr. Joe Taron, a faithful servant of the people of Pottawatomie County, in the Third Congressional District of the Great State of Oklahoma. Dr. Joe has committed his life to improving the quality of life of the people around him, and his accomplishments over the years are well documented.

For 23 years Dr. Joe’s vision, hard work, perseverance and leadership have been the inspiration of the effort to build the Wes Watkins Reservoir near McLoud, Oklahoma, to provide a permanent new water source to the citizens of Pottawatomie County. On Monday, August 9, the lake will be officially dedicated, providing not only a valuable new source of drinking water to the cities of Shawnee and Tecumseh, but also providing the citizens of Pottawatomie County and the people of central Oklahoma with a great recreational resource for swimming, boating and fishing.

I am proud to call Dr. Joe my friend. He is a wonderful “role model” for our children and grandchildren, and our country is a better place because of his work to help those around him. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Dr. Joe Taron for his outstanding commitment to his community, state and country. I urge my colleagues to join me in wishing Dr. Joe many more years of continued joy and happiness.

THE ANTHRAX ISSUE IN THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

HON. WALTER B. JONES OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, earlier today, a number of my colleagues joined me in a press conference to discuss an issue that I believe may jeopardize the readiness of our military—the Department of Defense Anthrax Vaccination Immunization Program.

I wanted to take a few moments to share some of my thoughts on the press conference and the anthrax issue as a whole.

In March of this year, I met with a number of reservists from Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in the Third District of North Carolina, which I am proud to represent, to hear their concerns about the mandatory anthrax vaccination program.

After listening to their concerns, I contacted Secretary Cohen and requested the program be halted until the questions surrounding the program could be answered.

The Department denied my request. It also failed to address my concerns. Mr. Speaker, all branches of the military are currently experiencing great difficulty in recruiting and retaining quality military personnel.

Since the announcement of the mandatory vaccination program in 1997, growing numbers of military personnel—particularly Guard and Reservists—are choosing to resign rather than take what may be an unsafe anthrax vaccine.

Now, military personnel across the country are struggling with their options: take the vaccine or leave the service.

Unfortunately, too many are choosing the latter. At Travis Air Force Base alone, 32 pilots in the 301st Airlift Squadron have resigned or are planning to do so because of the anthrax vaccine.

That is more than a fifty percent attrition rate. The Air Force estimates it costs $6 million to train each pilot.

If this figure holds true, the United States is losing over $190 million dollars worth of training and over 450 years worth of combined experience in the cockpit! These statistics are not isolated to one unit or one base.

A recent Baltimore Sun article reported that as many as 25 F–16 pilots of 35 pilots in the 122nd Fighter Wing of the Indiana National Guard might refuse the vaccination. This could effectively ground the squadron.

At least one-third of the F–16 pilots in the Wisconsin National Guard’s 115th Fighter Wing is expected to refuse the vaccinations. Another Air National Guard unit in Connecticut reportedly lost one-third of their pilots for the same reason.

The active duty force is also plagued by this problem.

Fourteen Marines in Hawaii and at least a dozen in California have refused the vaccine and are awaiting likely court-martials and dishonorable discharges.

Other reports indicate that even the Department of Defense estimates several hundred active personnel have refused the vaccine and are awaiting disciplinary action.

In a time when all branches of our military are faced with severe challenges in recruiting and retaining quality military personnel, we should be looking for ways to recruit and retain these men and women, not drive them away.

For this reason, Mr. GILMAN and I each introduced separate pieces of legislation to address the problem.

My legislation, H.R. 2543, the American Military Health Protection Act, would make the current Department of Defense Anthrax Vaccination Immunization Program voluntary for all members of the Uniformed Services until either: (1) The Food and Drug Administration has approved a new anthrax vaccination for humans; or (2) The Food and Drug Administration has approved a new, reduced shot course for the anthrax vaccination for humans.

Mr. GILMAN’s legislation, H.R. 2548, stops the vaccination program until the National Institutes of Health has completed additional studies.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

However, today’s press conference was not about pushing a single bill. Instead, we were there today because despite our respective differences, there is solidarity in our goals.

Each of the men and women at the press conference represented differing views on how to best deal with the anthrax vaccination program.

But, we all agreed on one point: The mandatory anthrax program must be changed!

For that reason, today Mr. GILMAN and I were able to announce our joint efforts to secure a hearing in the Armed Services Committee on our respective legislative proposals. If we become addicted to this effort to risk their lives to defend this great nation, the least we can do is ensure their questions of safety have been adequately addressed before requiring them to take it.

It is important to respond to this issue before a small readiness problem affects the entire force.

I am hopeful that all of our colleagues will join us in working to achieve that goal.

TOBACCO AND U.S. INTELLIGENCE ISSUES

HON. BERNARD SANDERS OF VERMONT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. Speaker, I submit for printing in the RECORD statements by high school students from my home State of Vermont, who were speaking at my recent town meeting on issues facing young people today. I believe that the views of these young persons will benefit my colleagues.

TOBACCO

(On behalf of Sara Sinclair)

Sara Sinclair: Hi. My name is Sara Sinclair.

I’m here to talk about an issue that in many ways relates to nationwide health care, and in many ways would make it more affordable, and that is tobacco control.

Right now in the state of Vermont, 36 percent of our peers are addicted to nicotine, which is the active drug in tobacco. 2,000 of us became addicted to tobacco in 1998, and roughly 12,000 of us, alive and in high school now, will die because of tobacco use. And personally, that scars me a whole bunch.

I remember when I was in elementary school—I will be graduating next year. I am a junior this year—and we were the Smoke Free Class of 2000. In elementary school, we had all these wonderful programs, and everyone said, “Okay, I’m not going to smoke. I’m not going to smoke.” And as time wore on, we got into high school, and the program sort of fell away. And now I look at my peers, and I see a huge number of them addicted to tobacco. Their skin is becoming wrinkled. They get shaky when they don’t have their cigarette. They have this strong need for it.

And it’s very frightening for me to see my peers addicted to that so early, and to know that they will probably suffer long-term effects from their tobacco use now. I have a ten-year-old sister right now who says, “I’m not going to smoke, I’m not going to smoke.” And I hope she will be able to hold true to that. But I fear that, even if she does, that many of her peers won’t.
I think that the government needs to take strong measures to stop tobacco use in children and in teens, because it is a very serious issue. And even though people say, sometimes, “Oh, teens are going to do whatever they want no matter what,” there are effective programs out there. I believe, in the state of Massachusetts, the smoking rate amongst pregnant mothers was cut in half by one program. And I believe that there are effective programs out there that need to be organized by our government. Luckily, our state government here in Vermont has taken steps in that direction, but we need it on a nationwide level, we need it to be comprehensive, it needs to start before a child is in school, in their preschool, on television, in the newspapers, and it needs to continue right up through adulthood.

I also believe that there should be programs out there to help adults, like my father not just now, who is addicted to nicotine and struggling with it. He is having an awful time quitting. And there needs to be a program out there to help people like him get rid of that addiction.

Congressman Sanders: Thank you for a very strong presentation.

U.S. INTELLIGENCE ISSUES
(On behalf of Bethany Heywood and Laura Freeman)
Bethany Heywood: How would you feel if a total stranger demanded your money and wouldn’t tell you what it was being used for, but assured you it wouldn’t be misused? Would you trust this person? Of course not. But this is essentially what the CIA does to the American taxpayer, and with their track record, we certainly shouldn’t trust them to use our money properly.

Taxpayers don’t even know how much money the CIA receives, although a rough estimate is $3.1 billion per year. In the past, the CIA has used a substantial part of its budget to finance covert operations, many of which we are just finding out about. Details of covert operations aren’t declassified until decades after the actual event. Conveniently, by the time a covert operation is disclosed, any people that might have been killed will have been squelched by the time lapse. Whether they’re in the past or now, some of the CIA’s activities have been inexcusable: assassinations, torture, psychological warfare, and dissemination of assassins. The School of the Americas, or SOA, has become a school that does exactly these things. The School of the Americas, or SOA, was started in Panama in 1946. Its original purpose was to train Latin Americans in military techniques, which would allow them to create stable democratic governments in Latin America, as well as repress communist activities and revolutions.

SOA students learn combat skills, military intelligence, counterintelligence, training, torture techniques, and psychological warfare. Most of the courses resolve around what they call counterinsurgency, states Father Bourgeois, a priest who has dedicated his life to protecting the SOA. Who are the insurgents? They are the poor. They are the people in Latin America who call for reform, they are the landless peasants who are hungry. They are healthcare workers, human rights activists, labor organizers, theologians. How do these graduates of the School of the Americas use their skills? They murder priests and archbishops, missionaries, and, perhaps worst of all, they murder each other.

With the advent of the SOA’s move to Fort Benning, Georgia, the school has become something we are less and less able to dissociate from. As Father Bourgeois said: “We are talking about a school of assassins right here in our backyard, being supported by our tax money. It’s being done in our name.”

What can we do to clear our name of this stain? The answer is simple: Close the School of the Americas. We must act to save the lives of people all over Latin America. To quote Salvadoran Archbishop Oscar Romero: “We who have a voice, we have to speak for the voiceless.”

THE INTRODUCTION OF THE OMNIBUS LONG-TERM CARE ACT OF 1999
HON. EDWARD J. MARKEY OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999
Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join my good friend PETE STARK today as we introduce a comprehensive long-term care bill. PETE and I have been concerned about the long-term care needs of seniors, near-seniors, and the disabled for decades—and PETE has been a real leader on this issue in the Congress. In the reports Rep. STARK has made for the RECORD, he gives an excellent summary of our bill. We hope that our bill begins to get Congress and the American people focused on the issue of long-term care because doing something about people’s long-term care needs will be one of our Nation’s biggest challenges in the next century.

This bill contains a number of important provisions. It’s got a $1,000 refundable tax credit for family caregiver expenses. The legislation makes some changes to Medicare which will result in the program being more useful to beneficiaries with chronic care needs that are best met in the home or in adult day care and other community-based settings. We clarify the meaning of long-term care insurance at group rates through the Office of Personnel Management and require that a plan be developed to allow all Americans to buy these types of policies—all the while paying special attention to the highest consumer protection standards. We have adopted the President’s proposal to create a family caregiver support program through grants to the States. Our bill will extend Medicare eligibility to family caregivers who are qualified to receive the tax credit. And finally, we protect family caregivers who must leave the workforce to care for a loved one by making them eligible for Social Security credits to protect their retirement income.

This legislation is not perfect. We will need to iron out some kinks along the way. But it is a beginning. It will be expensive and we don’t specify from where the money will come. Earlier this year, I proposed the 2 Percent Solution which would provide a 2 percent increase in future budget surplus to fund a long-term care program for in-home and community-based chronic care and respite care. I offered the proposal as an amendment in the Budget Committee and every Republican voted against it—a party line vote. The Republicans needed every penny they could find to pay for $800 billion in tax cuts. Surely, we can do better. This problem is not going to go away.

One of the greatest American achievements of the 20th century has been our ability to increase life expectancy. From the dawn of time to the year 1900, the average life expectancy in the United States was 47 years. Over the last 99 years, we have nearly doubled the life expectancy of Americans. We have done so with a massive infusion of Federal research dollars, and through thoughtful and compassionate programs that provide health care for millions of Americans—Medicaid and Medicare.

What of the quality of that longer life however? I believe we have a moral obligation to ensure that people who are living longer are not living sicker and poorer.

Today, Alzheimer’s Disease is on track to wreak havoc on our nation’s health care system and leave millions of American families in emotional and financial ruin. The disease affects over 4 million people nationwide and will affect as many as 14 million by 2050. Alzheimer’s patients will symptomatically lose ability to perform routine tasks, and suffer impaired judgment, personality change and loss of language and communication skills. More than 7 out of 10 people with this disease live at home. Their caregivers are not wealthy, yet they spend on average $12,500 per year to support the person with Alzheimer’s they are caring for. They work hard, but often must leave, reduce, or change employment to care for their loved ones. Ninety percent of Alzheimer’s caregivers are giving care to a relative, and an overwhelming majority, 75 percent, of caregivers are women. Studies have shown that the typical family caregiver is in her 70’s and has two chronic health problems.

Of course, the real tragedy of Alzheimer’s is the human cost associated with the disease—it ravages the mind and robs caregivers of millions, being an Alzheimer caregiver means giving up more hours for more years and more money. It means less time, less energy, and fewer resources for other family members, for dear friends, and for the caregivers themselves.

Alzheimer’s is now the third most expensive disease in our country after heart disease and cancer, and yet the federal commitment to Alzheimer’s research is three to five times less than the commitment the government has made to research on those other diseases. Last year, I led the effort to have Congress increase Alzheimer’s funding at NIH by $100 million—we got $50 million. This year I’m working to increase that funding by $100 million again.

Alzheimer’s Disease is only part of the problem, however. We have a chronic care crisis in our country today. Without a coherent and comprehensive approach to care for people with disabling chronic conditions, this situation will only worsen. People with chronic diseases and disabilities will continue to suffer the consequences of deteriorating health if a strategy is not implemented to meet their long-term care needs.

As part of that strategy, we must recognize that there are thousands of spouses and other family members struggling to provide care for their loved ones in their homes each year. A new study in the latest issue of Health Affairs estimates the current market value of unpaid caregiving to adults who are disabled or chronically ill to be nearly $200 billion a year. These family caregivers are heroes—they fill a virtual 24 hour a day caregiving role. Far more than have no chronic care coverage but still have chronic care needs that require monitoring, oversight, and assistance.

The cuts passed as part of the Balanced Budget Act have had a devastating impact on real people’s lives. In my district, one hospital has closed and two have been radically altered—one of them became a “hospital without beds” performing only outpatient day surgeries and closing its emergency room and maternity ward. Home health agencies and community health centers are closing. And the community hospital system serving my hometown of Malden and the surrounding communities has slashed its home health visits from 470,000 in 1997 to 332,000 in 1998 and they estimate only 260,000 for 1999. 1,400 patients have been cut from the system’s home health care roster.

The Congressional Budget Office is having a hard time explaining the remarkably slow rate of growth in Medicare. At the same time, the CBO has drastically miscalculated the level of Medicare cuts attributable to the Balanced Budget Act. The CBO now predicts that the BBA will result in $207 billion in “Medicare savings” over the 1997–2002 period, nearly double its August 1997 estimate of $112 billion. The collapse of Medicare growth will result, in budget terms, in over $63 billion in unanticipated savings in the next three years. These unanticipated savings should be redirected to their unintended victims.

Our plan will help to alleviate some of the pain caused by the BBA and ease the burdens of patients and families affected by conditions like Alzheimer’s, Parkinson’s, Congenital Heart Failure, Cerebral Palsy, Spinal Cord Injury, Muscular Dystrophy, and Stroke to name a few.

Our bill will help these caregivers in many different ways—through refundable tax credits, and a change in Medicare to better meet chronic care needs at home or in adult day care and other community-based settings to name just a few.

This legislation is not perfect. But it is a beginning. It will be expensive—but I think there is a compelling argument to be made that long-term care needs are to be at the top of our priority list. In 1995, Republicans were prepared to let Medicare “wither on the vine.” In 1997, in the mad rush to pass the BBA the Republicans said Medicare is too expensive, and by the way, we need to cut it to pay for a tax cut. So in 1997 they chose Millionaires over Medicare. Earlier this year, I proposed the 2 percent Solution—using 2 percent of the projected future budget surplus to fund a long-term care program for in-home and community-based chronic care and respite care. I offered the proposal as an amendment in the Budget Act. Every Republican voted against it—they said covering long-term care through Medicare is too expensive, and by the way, we need every penny to pay for $800 billion in tax cuts. So, despite a soaring economy that’s filling the pockets of the wealthy, and despite the fact that the Republicans gave them a Balanced Budget Bonus in 1997, the 1999 atrocity is their choice of Billionaires over Beneficiaries.

What’s worse, in 10 years, just as the first wave of baby boomers is set to retire—the price tag for the second 10 years of this year’s Republican tax cut will explode to nearly $3 trillion. Surely, we can do better.

We have entered a new era in Washington—an era with surplus as far as the eye can see—an era when the stock market is soaring, unemployment is at record lows, and American prosperity is unparalleled in the world. We can afford to give America’s caregiver heroes help—PETE STARK and I have a plan which will send the message to these heroes that help is on the way.

I am pleased to join in introducing this bill today. Rep. STARK and I will be devoting a lot of time and energy recruiting members who will join us and they estimate 200 representatives. And the community hospital system serving my hometown of Malden and the surrounding communities has slashed its home health visits from 470,000 in 1997 to 332,000 in 1998 and they estimate only 260,000 for 1999. 1,400 patients have been cut from the system’s home health care roster.

The Congressional Budget Office is having a hard time explaining the remarkably slow rate of growth in Medicare. At the same time, the CBO has drastically miscalculated the level of Medicare cuts attributable to the Balanced Budget Act. The CBO now predicts that the BBA will result in $207 billion in “Medicare savings” over the 1997–2002 period, nearly double its August 1997 estimate of $112 billion. The collapse of Medicare growth will result, in budget terms, in over $63 billion in unanticipated savings in the next three years. These unanticipated savings should be redirected to their unintended victims.

Our plan will help to alleviate some of the pain caused by the BBA and ease the burdens of patients and families affected by conditions like Alzheimer’s, Parkinson’s, Congenital Heart Failure, Cerebral Palsy, Spinal Cord Injury, Muscular Dystrophy, and Stroke to name a few.

Our bill will help these caregivers in many different ways—through refundable tax credits, and a change in Medicare to better meet chronic care needs at home or in adult day care and other community-based settings to name just a few.

This legislation is not perfect. But it is a beginning. It will be expensive—but I think there is a compelling argument to be made that long-term care needs are to be at the top of our priority list. In 1995, Republicans were prepared to let Medicare “wither on the vine.” In 1997, in the mad rush to pass the BBA the Republicans said Medicare is too expensive, and by the way, we need to cut it to pay for a tax cut. So in 1997 they chose Millionaires over Medicare. Earlier this year, I proposed the 2 percent Solution—using 2 percent of the projected future budget surplus to fund a long-term care program for in-home and community-based chronic care and respite care. I offered the proposal as an amendment in the Budget Act. Every Republican voted against it—they said covering long-term care through Medicare is too expensive, and by the way, we need every penny to pay for $800 billion in tax cuts. So, despite a soaring economy that’s filling the pockets of the wealthy, and despite the fact that the Republicans gave them a Balanced Budget Bonus in 1997, the 1999 atrocity is their choice of Billionaires over Beneficiaries.

What’s worse, in 10 years, just as the first wave of baby boomers is set to retire—the price tag for the second 10 years of this year’s Republican tax cut will explode to nearly $3 trillion. Surely, we can do better.

We have entered a new era in Washington—an era with surplus as far as the eye can see—an era when the stock market is soaring, unemployment is at record lows, and American prosperity is unparalleled in the world. We can afford to give America’s caregiver heroes help—PETE STARK and I have a plan which will send the message to these heroes that help is on the way.

I am pleased to join in introducing this bill today. Rep. STARK and I will be devoting a lot of time and energy recruiting members who will join us
It is for these reasons that I spoke in opposition to the Burton amendment last night. I am glad that my colleague withdrew his amendment in light of the overwhelming opposition he faced.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. CHARLES W. "CHIP" PICKERING OF MISSISSIPPI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. PICKERING. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall votes Nos. 360, 361, and 362, I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted “aye” on No. 360; “no” on No. 361; and “aye” on No. 362.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MAJOR R. OWENS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 3, 1999

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, I was unavoidably absent on a matter of critical importance and missed the following rollcall votes:

On the amendment to H.R. 2606 by the gentleman from Colorado, Mr. TANCREDO, regarding the reduction of funding for international organizations, specifically UNESCO, I would have voted “nay.”

On the amendment to H.R. 2606 by the gentleman from Texas, Mr. PAUL, to prohibit the use of funds in the bill for international population control or family planning activities, I would have voted “nay.”

On the amendment to H.R. 2606 also by the gentleman from Texas, Mr. PAUL, to prohibit the export-import bank, the overseas private investment corporation or the trade and development agency from entering into new obligations, I would have voted “nay.”

Finally, Mr. Speaker on final passage of H.R. 2606, the foreign operations appropriations, I would have voted “yea.”