HON. ROB PORTMAN

Thursday, March 11, 1999

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Lavatus V. "Vate" Powell, a friend and community leader, who passed away on February 17, 1999.

Vate was known for his integrity, straightforwardness, and positive outlook on life. His life was centered around service to others.

Vate was born in Mississippi and graduated from Jackson State University in 1955. He earned his master of science degree in 1964 from Case Western Reserve University. He was a Cincinnati Public Schools teacher from 1955 to 1965.

He began his career with Procter & Gamble in 1965 as a systems analyst in the Data Processing Systems Department. He went on to hold positions in personnel, urban affairs, and public relations, before becoming public affairs manager. He went on to become vice president of Procter & Gamble's Ohio Government Relations Division, where he served until his retirement in 1997.

Vate was an extraordinary community volunteer. He served as president of the Andrew Jergens Foundation; chairman of Preserving Affordable Housing; chairman of the Purcell-Marian High School Foundation and a member of the Purcell-Marian board of trustees; trustee of the Cincinnati Museum Center; member of the Partners of Children's Defense Fund, and a director of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce. He served as co-founder and treasurer of the Black Male Coalition; Capitol Revival Task Force; chairman of the Cincinnati United Way Government Affairs Committee; and president of the Board of Trustees of Family Service of the Cincinnati area. He was an elder at Carmel Presbyterian Church.

In 1997, he received an Imagemaker Award from Applause magazine for his efforts to promote education. That same year, he was honored by the African American Leadership Network for his work with Procter & Gamble.

Vate was a warm and caring person who gave generously of his time and talents. Cincinnati was blessed to have him as a leading citizen. Many of us were blessed to have him as a friend.

TRIBUTE TO GENE MCCARTHY,
IRISHMAN OF THE YEAR

HON. JACK QUINN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 11, 1999

Mr. QUINN. Mr. Speaker, I am honored to rise today on the floor of this House in recognition of Mr. Gene McCarthy from Buffalo, NY in my district, as the 1999 Goin' South "Irishman of the Year."

Born in Buffalo's "Old First Ward" in 1926, Gene McCarthy is a lifelong member of our community. After high school, Gene began working on Buffalo's waterfront at Pillsbury grain elevators, where he spent twelve years.

In 1955, Gene wed Mary (Dories). He and his wife raised their three children, Patti, Bill, and Maureen to respect their proud Western New York and Irish-American heritage. In addition, the McCarthy's now have seven grandchildren.

Twenty-five years ago, Gene and Mary opened McCarthy's, a fine restaurant and tavern in the heart of the Old First Ward, at the corner of Hamburg and Republic Streets. Famous for its corned beef, fish fries, and friendly service, McCarthy's has become a true landmark. It is a proud symbol of not only his community, and not only the McCarthy family, but of our Irish heritage in Buffalo.

In 1996, I invited the Honorable Dermott Gallagher, then Irish Ambassador to the United States, to Buffalo to dedicate a monument which was erected in honor of the Great Famine in Ireland. During his stay, I took him to McCarthy's. Ambassador Gallagher has said that the tavern was his favorite place in all of Western New York, no doubt a reflection on the McCarthy's overwhelming hospitality.

Whether it is for the famous Notre Dame football parties in the fall, the Shamrock Run, the many local organizations and causes which the McCarthy's support, or the best St. Patrick's Day atmosphere outside of Ireland, McCarthy's Tavern and Gene and Mary McCarthy will always be an important part of the proud history of our City. I am proud to call him my friend.

Mr. Speaker, today I would like to join with the entire McCarthy Family, the Goin' South community organization, and indeed, all of Western New York in tribute to Mr. Gene McCarthy, Irishman of the Year.

DEMOCRACY PROGRESSES IN SLOVAKIA

HON. CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 11, 1999

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, this week a distinguished delegation from the Slovak parliament visited Washington to meet with congressional leaders and other officials. I regret that, because of a hearing on urgent developments in Kosovo, I was unable to meet with them. Nevertheless, the occasion of their visit prompts me to reflect on some of the developments in Slovakia since the elections there on September 25 and 26, 1998.

Since a new government was installed on October 30, there has been a sea change in Slovak political life. The very fact that a peaceful transition of power occurred is something we could not have taken for granted, given the increasingly authoritarian rule of Vladimir Meciar manifested by, for example, the refusal of the parliament he controlled to seat two duly elected members.

Today, the situation is very different. The formation of a new government has included key changes that were much needed and will foster greater confidence in Slovakia's renewed process of democratization. In particular, the appointment of a new head of the intelligence service, the resolution of competing claims to the position of chief of the armed forces, and the selection of a new general prosecutor help address many of the concerns that arose during Meciar's tenure. The new government's efforts to hold previous officials accountable for their violations of the rule of law and manipulation of parliamentary and constitutional democracy is also a positive sign. During local elections in the fall, non-governmental monitors were permitted to observe the counting of the vote, further fostering public and international confidence in Slovakia's democratic structures. Direct presidential elections are scheduled to be held in May, which will fill a constitutional lacuna. The decision to permit, once again, the issuance of bi-lingual report cards restores common sense to the discussion of issues of concern to the Hungarian minority. The government's stated intent to address the concerns of the Romani minority—concerns which have led many Slovak Roma to seek asylum in other countries—is a welcome step in the right direction.

In short, Mr. Speaker, the new government is Slovakia has already undertaken important steps towards fulfilling the promises made when communism collapsed.

Slovakia is now at a critical juncture, having succeeded by a slim electoral margin in peacefully removing Vladimir Meciar after 4 years of increasing authoritarian rule. The new government must struggle to restore Slovakia's good name, repair the economy, and get Slovakia back on track for NATO and EU membership. If Slovakia is to succeed in this effort, it is critical that the current coalition hold together long enough to implement real reforms. As it seeks to do so, the new government will be aided by a wellspring of credibility with the internationally community and certainly in Washington, where as the Meciar government, in the end, had none.

That wellspring of credibility, however, is not bottomless and time is truly of the essence in Slovakia's reform process. I hope all of the parties participating in the ruling coalition will quickly address some of the issues that have been of special concern to the international community, including the adoption in the first half of this year of a minority language law. Such a step would be a concrete demonstration of the differences between this government and the last.

Mr. Speaker, I wish this new coalition government of Slovakia every success in their resolve to make lasting reforms.

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Grandmarie's Chicken Pie Shop on the occasion of their 42nd Anniversary. Grandmarie's has enjoyed 4 decades of success at their Tower District location.

Keeping it simple and keeping it delicious was the slogan of Marie Ross, the restaurant's namesake, original owner, and grandmother of current owner Gary Ross. The Ross chicken pie tradition dates back to the early part of the
