The House met at 12:30 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. PETRI).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE
The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:
WASHINGTON, DC.
May 24, 1999.
I hereby appoint the Honorable Thomas E. PETRI to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.
J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING HOUR DEBATES
The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PETRI). Pursuant to the order of the House of January 19, 1999, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning hour debates. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to 30 minutes, and each Member except the majority leader, the minority leader, or the minority whip, limited to 5 minutes.
The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) for 5 minutes.

PARTNERSHIPS FOR A CLEAN ENVIRONMENT AND BETTER COMMUNITIES
Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, since I was elected to Congress, I have been focusing on the issue of livable communities and how we can create better partnerships between the Federal Government and our citizens. Unfortunately, one of the obstacles we face is the efforts by some people to create false choices. Last week, we saw two examples here in Congress, one dealing with efforts to reduce gun violence, and the other an important environmental announcement a week after a Federal appeal panel, in a radical departure from established judicial precedent, invalidated air quality regulations set by EPA which were designed, in part, to decrease ground level ozone, a major contributor to smog. If that ruling is upheld, efforts like Ford’s will take on much more significance.

Ford is taking this initiative because they recognize that consumers want cars and trucks that are environmentally sound, and that by producing them, Ford will have a competitive advantage. Jacques Nasser, Ford’s chief executive and president, said that Ford is doing this because it will benefit the company financially and because “it is the right thing to do.”

As the use of pickup trucks and SUVs has increased, so has the amount of smog-producing gas they produce. Manufacturers cleaning up their trucks will allow for cleaner air and easier breathing. Ford’s action on the national level will allow each individual driver to contribute less pollution to their community every day, and this new equipment will not adversely affect performance and will come to Ford customers at no extra cost, since Ford has agreed to absorb the $100 per truck cost.

Clean air and a healthy environment benefit each of us and all of our communities. Ford has acknowledged that their industry must be a partner in our efforts to protect and preserve our environment. They are to be commended for this action, and I challenge other car and truck manufacturers to do the same.

This example of the private sector stepping forward and acting on behalf of the environment should be a wake-up call to this Congress as well. We need to do our part by considering rewarding those companies rather than potentially even penalizing them. We must also work together to avoid the debacle that occurred last week with unrelated environmental riders that were added to the supplemental appropriations bill.

Ford’s action demonstrated that preserving the environment is a priority for the American people, and that we must do all we can to create an environmental record we can be proud of. I would hope that as we approach further efforts dealing with the environmental protection and, for that matter, the reduction of gun violence, we can avoid the false choices offered by the extreme.

SUPPORT THE SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE "SAFE DEPOSIT BOX"

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. STEARNS) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Speaker, tomorrow we will consider legislation to ensure we will no longer use the Social Security Trust Fund for any other purpose than for what it was intended for.

Now, my colleagues might ask, "Why is this necessary?" The answer is quite simple. Despite repeated efforts over the years, we have not been able to stop perpetual raids on the Social Security Trust Fund. We have attempted to stop this violation of the trust fund going as far back as 1990.

Now, that we have enacted legislation, the Budget Enforcement Act, which removed Social Security taxes and benefits from the budget and from calculations of the budget deficit. That was done to prevent Social Security from masking the true size of the deficit and to protect it from budgetary cuts.

The rationale was that if this was done, Congress would not use Social Security in devising the Nation's overall fiscal policy. Historically, the Social Security Trust Fund Board has invested surplus Social Security revenues in U.S. Government securities. These investments are honored just like investments from the private sector. Interest is earned on the monies invested, and returned to the trust fund to help offset long-term obligations to future beneficiaries. It was felt that without such an enforcement mechanism, this practice would continue, and Congress took action to prevent this dishonest bookkeeping from continuing.

Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, the intent of the 1990 law has not been fully adhered to, and to guarantee honesty in budgeting we must end the misuse of Social Security Trust Fund investments. This Social Security Trust Fund surplus should not be used to fund any other programs, and it should not be used to mask our Nation's debt. We have been very zealous in cutting wasteful spending and reducing the size of our government's bureaucracy. We should keep up our efforts to continue to cut unnecessary and wasteful spending. That is why I applaud my colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. HURLEY) for introducing H.R. 1259 which will, among other things, provide a mechanism to ensure that all Social Security surpluses are dedicated to saving the program and Medicare.

I feel this concept and believe we will be fulfilling our pledge to our Nation's seniors if we pass this legislation. We must stop this phoney bookkeeping and leave Social Security money alone. Right now, the trust fund is running a $126 billion surplus and it is used to mask the yearly deficit.

In 1997, Congress passed the historic Balanced Budget Act of 1997, which of course reduced wasteful government spending. We believed it was a restraint on Federal spending that has led to a reduction in our yearly deficits. With our Nation's strong economy and fiscal responsibility, there has been a strong revenue growth in this country and it has helped the national Treasury. These two factors make it possible to stop the much-used practice of commingling the Social Security Trust Fund money with the general revenue.

So, my colleagues, this week we can make history, make history by standing up for not only what we believe to be right, but what is absolutely necessary if we are going to make good on our promise to save Social Security and Medicare for this and future generations. We can pass H.R. 1259, stop this practice which started when President Lyndon Johnson unified the budget in 1969. It was then that Social Security and the other Federal trust funds were officially accounted for in the entire Federal budget.

So this "Safe Deposit Box Act" establishes the submission of separate Social Security budget documents by excluding outlays and receipts of the old-age, survivors, and disability program under the Social Security Act, thereby, Mr. Speaker, preventing Social Security surpluses from being used for any other purpose other than for the Social Security Trust Fund and the Medicare program.

So I urge my colleagues tomorrow and this week to support H.R. 1259.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 2 p.m. Accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 41 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until 2 p.m.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. PEASE) at 2 p.m.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend James David Ford, D.D., offered the following prayer:

We pray, gracious God, that Your spirit of comfort and serenity will be with the refugees of the world who turn to You with their life's concerns. We remember the refugees of the world and all those who suffer pain or hunger or fear for the days ahead. Remind us all, O God, that when the resources of the world are not with us, we can rely on Your grace. And when people must walk through the roads of danger and hostility, we earnestly pray that Your healing power and Your reconciling spirit will be with them whatever their need or trouble. O loving and eternal God, bless us and all Your people, now and evermore. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from New York (Mr. SERRANO) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. SERRANO led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

CHINESE ESPIONAGE

(Mr. WICKER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WICKER. Mr. Speaker, this headline from the New York Times says it all: China Stole Nuclear Secrets for Bombs. Although the bipartisan Cox report on Chinese espionage will not be officially released until tomorrow, we already know enough that all Americans should be outraged.

According to Chairman Cox, the threat to our security from this major intelligence catastrophe will not be years into the future but within the next few months. Look to the Chinese Communist government to begin testing nuclear ICBMs within a few months, using United States nuclear secrets. While our law enforcement officials were asleep, our national security was compromised. It is not just Attorney General Janet Reno. The entire Clinton-Gore administration owes the United States public an explanation for this outrage.

TWO FORMS OF VIOLENCE

(Mr. SERRANO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SERRANO. Mr. Speaker, the debate goes on in this country as we try earnestly to find solutions for the problem of violence in our schools and throughout our society. At the same time the 6 o'clock news reports school violence, it reports the violence of war. So I wonder and I ask out loud, is it possible that our children are imitating the actions of our government, that every time we have a difference with another country, we use violence to solve that difference? Second, this week on the agriculture appropriation bill we will say “no” once again to selling food and medicine to Cuba. Food and medicine. Economic violence. Is it possible that our children are simply imitating the violence they see coming from our adult behavior?

ON MILK POLICY

(Mr. GUTKNECHT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, very soon a great debate will begin to rage here in the halls of Congress. That debate will be about how we price milk. My friends from other regions of the country will complain that if the system is reformed and the playing field is leveled, their dairy farmers would receive less or they would lose relative to other parts of the country.

But, Mr. Speaker, we should understand that dairy farmers in my region of the country have been losers under the current convoluted milk marketing order system for over 60 years. This makes no economic sense. Even Justice Anton Scalia has called the system “Byzantine.” All we are asking for is equal pay for equal milk, and we will not give up this fight until we get it.

TRADE DEFICIT HITS RECORD

HIGH

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, another record. For the third straight month, America’s trade deficit is going through the roof. It is now averaging $20 billion a month. That is 400,000 good-paying American jobs being lost every single month. It is so bad even Commerce Secretary Daley said America cannot continue to subsidize the world. Unbelievable. Something stinks.

Why is this administration still coddling to China on MFN and WTO membership? Enough is enough. America is going bankrupt at warp speed and Uncle Sam is buying the rocket fuel. I say it is time to get to the bottom of this action with China. Tell us the truth, White House, before we do not have a job left.

OPPOSE H.R. 45 AND KEEP NUCLEAR WASTE OUT OF NEVADA

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, when I was a young child, people used to say that little green men lived on Mars and the moon was made of cheese. That is when fantasies and rumors were the tools that shaped opinions and science was the unattainable. Unfortunately, many of my colleagues look at transporting and storing high-level nuclear waste in Nevada in much the same way.

Fantasy and nonsense have no place in scientific studies, studies which prove that a repository site at Yucca Mountain is 10 times more prone to earthquakes and lava flows than government scientists previously estimated, studies that show Nevada ranks third in the Nation for current earthquake activity and has experienced over 650 earthquakes in the last 20 years.

That means with over 30 earthquakes a year. Clearly Yucca Mountain is not suitable and is one of the worst places to store the deadliest material ever created by man.

The space program proved that the moon is not made of cheese and that little green men do not live on Mars, and if the DOE properly addresses this new scientific information as the law requires them to do, they will not force green people to live in Nevada.

Mr. Speaker, oppose H.R. 45 and place true science before fantasy, misinformation and conjecture.

COMBATTING SCHOOL VIOLENCE

(Mr. WISE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, mercifully events in Georgia last week produced no deaths in the school shooting. But this shows why it is that all of us at every level of government and every part of our community have to be working harder to reduce school violence. There are things that this Congress can be doing, things that our communities can be doing.

One area that I have been working on in West Virginia and which I hope might be of benefit in other areas is we are designing a school safety report card: What are the elements of a safe school, listing them and then giving that to each community so each community can evaluate its own school.

One thing that I have learned following four hearings across our State is that there is no one-size-fits-all. We have to tailor our responses to each community and to each school. But we also have to dedicate ourselves to the proposition that as school ends this year, that when it resumes next year the schools will be safer than they have been.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COLLEGE ACCESS ACT

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 974) to establish a program to award high school graduates from the District of Columbia the benefits of in-State tuition at State colleges and universities outside the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows: H.R. 974

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “District of Columbia College Access Act.”

SEC. 2. ESTABLISHMENT OF SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM.

There is hereby established the District of Columbia College Access Scholarship Program (hereafter in this Act referred to as the “Program”) under which the Mayor of the District of Columbia shall award scholarships in accordance with section 4 using amounts in the District of Columbia College Access Fund established under section 3.

SEC. 3. DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COLLEGE ACCESS FUND.

(a) Establishment.—There is hereby established the District of Columbia College Access Fund (hereinafter in this Act referred to as the “Fund”), which shall consist of the following amounts:

(1) Amounts appropriated to the Fund under law.

(2) Gifts and bequests.

(3) Refunds paid under section 4(b)(4).

(4) Interest earned on the balance of the Fund.

(b) Administration.—The Mayor of the District of Columbia shall administer the Fund, in consultation with the Secretary of Education.

(c) Use of Fund.—

(1) In General.—Amounts in the Fund shall be used solely to award scholarships in accordance with section 4, except that not more than 10 percent of the balance of the Fund of each fiscal year may be used for the administration of the Fund during such year.

(2) Determination of Amount Available for Scholarships.—With respect to each academic year for which scholarships may be awarded under this Act, the Mayor shall determine the amount available from the Fund for awarding scholarships.

(d) Investment.—The Mayor shall invest such portion of the Fund as is not in the

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE
SEC. 4. ADMINISTRATION OF SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM.

(a) APPLICATIONS.—Any qualified graduate seeking a scholarship under the Program shall submit an application to the Mayor in such form and containing such information as the Mayor may prescribe by regulation. The Mayor shall make applications for scholarships under the Program available not later than July 1 of the academic year preceding the academic year for which the scholarships will be awarded, and shall announce the recipients of scholarships under this section not later than a date determined by the Mayor in consultation with the Secretary of Education.

(b) AWARDS AUTHORIZED.

(1) AWARDS TO EACH QUALIFIED GRADUATE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—From the amount available from the Fund under section 3(c)(2) for any academic year, the Mayor shall award scholarship aid to each qualified graduate submitting an application that is approved pursuant to subsection (a).

(B) AVOIDS TO STUDENTS AT ELIGIBLE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.—Subject to subparagraph (D) and paragraph (2), such scholarship shall provide, for attendance at an eligible public institution located outside the District of Columbia, an amount equal to the difference between—

(i) the amount of the tuition normally charged by that institution to a student who is not a resident of the State in which that institution is located for the program of instruction in which the qualified graduate is enrolled or accepted for enrollment; and

(ii) the amount of the tuition normally charged by that institution to a student who is a resident of such State for such program of instruction, or the amount of the tuition normally charged by that institution to a student who is a resident of the county in which the institution is located for such program of instruction, whichever is less.

(C) ELIGIBLE PRIVATE INSTITUTIONS.—Subject to paragraph (2), such scholarship shall provide, for attendance at an eligible private institution located outside the District of Columbia, an amount equal to the difference between—

(i) the amount of the tuition normally charged by that institution to a student who is a resident of the United States, able to provide evidence from the Immigration and Naturalization Service that he or she is in the United States for other than a temporary purpose with the intention of becoming a citizen or permanent resident, or a citizen of the Republic of Palau; and

(ii) the amount of the tuition normally charged by that institution to a student who is a resident of the United States, able to provide evidence from the Immigration and Naturalization Service that he or she is in the United States for other than a temporary purpose with the intention of becoming a citizen or permanent resident, or a citizen of the Republic of Palau; and

(D) CAP ON AMOUNT PROVIDED.—The amount of a scholarship provided to an individual under subparagraph (B) for an academic year may not exceed $10,000.

(2) RATABLE REDUCTION IF FUNDS INSUFFICIENT.—If the amount available from the Fund under section 3(c)(2) for any academic year is not sufficient to pay the scholarship amount determined under paragraph (1) for each qualified graduate submitting an application that is approved pursuant to subsection (a), the amount of such scholarships shall be ratably reduced. If additional sums become available for such academic year, such reduced scholarships shall be increased on the same basis as they were reduced (until the amount allotted equals the amount determined under paragraph (1)).

(3) DISBURSEMENT.—The scholarships awarded under this section shall be disbursed to the eligible institution at which the qualified graduate is enrolled or accepted for enrollment by check or other means that is payable to and requires the endorsement or other discharge by such graduate.

(4) REFUNDS.—The Mayor may prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to provide for the refund of the Fund to the amount awarded under this section if the Mayor determines that the enrollment by check or other means that is payable to and requires the endorsement or other discharge by such graduate.

SEC. 5. ADMINISTRATION OF PROGRAM AND FUND.

In carrying out the Program and administering the Fund, the Mayor of the District of Columbia shall consult with the Secretary of Education; and

(2) may enter into a contract with a non-governmental agency to administer the Program and the Fund if the Mayor determines that it is cost-effective and appropriate to do so.

SEC. 6. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are appropriated to be appropriated for payment to the Fund such sums as may be necessary for fiscal year 2000 and for each of the 5 succeeding fiscal years.

SEC. 7. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR UNIVERSITY OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

There is authorized to be appropriated to the University of the District of Columbia for fiscal year 2000 and each of the 5 succeeding fiscal years such sums as may be necessary to enhance educational opportunities for the University.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS) and the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) each will control 20 minutes. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS). Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, first of all my thanks to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARMLEY) for permitting the expeditious consideration of this bill. My thanks as well to the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) the ranking member of the Subcommittee on the District of Columbia, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), the gentleman from California (Mr. TONKIN), the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) and all the cosponsors and those who have expressed encourage-
I would also like to thank some of the staff people who have worked so hard on this legislation: My former staff director Peter Sich, staff director and counsel Howie Denis, communications director Trey Hardin, Anne Mack Barnes, Jon Bouker the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia's staff, and Noah Woofy of the legislative counsel's office.

Today we take a giant step forward in our quest to enhance educational opportunities in the Nation's capital. My thanks to the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia, the ranking member of the subcommittee I chair, and all the others who have expressed encouragement and support for our efforts.

The bill we consider today, H.R. 974, the District of Columbia College Access and Student Support Act reflects the reality that Congress is the de facto State legislature for the District of Columbia. The city by its very nature lacks the capacity for a university system of higher education as that concept is understood in the 50 states. The same choices and opportunities simply do not exist for students and parents here as exist elsewhere in the United States.

This has too often led to an out-migration of population in order to take advantage of the higher educational opportunities all other Americans enjoy as residents of a particular State.

A strong element in all of our reform legislation since the creation of the Subcommittee on the District of Columbia has been directed at stopping the bleeding of the population out of the District. This is critical for us all, as you cannot have a healthy Washington region without a healthy city.

The District has lost hundreds of thousands of residents in recent decades, particularly middle-income taxpayers. The Subcommittee on the District of Columbia has helped to lead a strong bipartisan effort in Congress to change that. Our efforts have included economic development, such as facilitating the MCI Center and the new convention center project. We have encouraged home ownership with the $5,000 tax credit for first-time homebuyers. We have improved personal safety, water quality and financial stability itself. Congress can be proud of its efforts to revitalize the Nation's capital.

Congress, in full cooperation with the city and the Federal Government, has in fact restructured relationships so as to have the Federal Government assume many of the functions normally performed by States, such as care for felony prisoners. This has put the District on a glide path to recovery. It is now in the right position to improve delivery of municipal services.

I am pleased to commend those leading local foundations and companies that have banded together in an extraordinary and historic effort to assist District students. The legislation we are voting on today is essential to those great efforts in the private sector.

It is my strong belief that this is the best money the Federal Government will ever spend in this city.

Mayor Williams has characterized H.R. 974 as "very, very important legislation not only in improving education but in bringing our city back." This bill can be a shining example of a bipartisan urban agenda.

While giving graduates more choices, subject to the caps and limits in the bill, this legislation fully respects and leaves untouched college admission policies and standards.

The bill will enable District residents who are high school graduates to attend public institutions at in-State rates in other States in the union. We have included tuition assistance grants as another option for other colleges in D.C., Virginia and Maryland. This is yet another incentive to encourage local population stability through educational enhancement. This TAG program is highly successful in Virginia and many other States.

H.R. 974 helps to level the playing field for District high school graduates. I was deeply moved by the reaction to this bill as I saw it in the eyes of students at Eastern High School, not far from our Capitol building. These students need and deserve a break. They need and deserve the same opportunities that students in other school systems in other States across this land have.

As the students took my hand, I looked into my eyes and thanked me for introducing this bill, I knew we were on the right track. Fighting for educational opportunity legislation is one of the reasons I entered public life. I look forward with my colleagues who share this vision for the future as we move this bill to the other body.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The District of Columbia College Access Act before us is but one example of a series of bipartisan bills benefiting the residents of the Nation's capital on which the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS) and I have worked since he became chair of the Subcommittee on the District of Columbia. I want particularly to thank the gentleman from Virginia and Maryland. This is a bipartisan collaboration. We have worked closely together on H.R. 974 in an indispensable collaboration. We have worked closely with officials of the administration including Mrs. Clinton, Secretary Richard Riley and Assistant Secretary Scott Fleming in crafting H.R. 974.

I want to particularly thank the President, who included funds for this bill in his own budget, raising substantially the amount that would otherwise have been available.

In its three features, H.R. 974 goes a considerable distance toward offering District residents and students the State public higher education available to residents of the 50 States. Funds are authorized for grants for students to attend State colleges and universities anywhere in the United States at in-State rates for a limited private college alternative, such as some States offer to broaden the State's option, and for the District's own public admissions university, the University of the District of Columbia.

The central feature of H.R. 974 is authorization for funding for students to attend any State college or university where admission has been granted at in-State tuition rates. This provision is essential because unlike every State in the Union, the District has only one public institution of higher education, an open admissions university. One size does not fit all in higher education and certainly not in today's fast-moving technological society.

In addition, the in-State tuition provision is critical to keeping and attracting taxpayers, the sine qua non for the continuing recovery of the city. The cost of higher education is so high today that it alone drives many parents with children out of the city.

H.R. 974 also provides more limited funding for private colleges in the District, Maryland and Virginia, just as States often offer some funding for private college attendance in order to increase the diversity of options students need today.

Encouraged by H.R. 974, the private sector is raising an even larger amount to help District residents prepare for and attend college. Business leaders in the District and the region approached the chairman, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS), and me some months ago...
agio, disturbed that many students in the District did not go to college or dropped out for lack of funds. These leaders raised nearly $20 million in private funds to supplement money D.C. parents and students raise or win on their own. They suggested that in-State tuition rates could greatly enhance the educational opportunities they were raising funds to expand. Thus, H.R. 974 is a true public-private effort with the private sector, more than equaling what we do here today.

The symmetry and opportunities in this bill take higher education in the Nation’s Capital a great distance toward providing D.C. residents with equal opportunity, compared with opportunities routinely available to the residents of every State as a matter of right.

I want to again not only express my personal thanks to the leaders of my committee and the members of my subcommittee, but also to assure the House that the parents and the children of the Nation’s Capital are particularly grateful for the opportunities provided in the District of Columbia College Access Act.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, let me just note, as my colleagues, this does not level the playing field for District students as opposed to other States, but it goes a long way toward that. They still have to compete to get into these university systems out-of-State as out-of-State students, which in many cases is an admissions hurdle that one would not get if they lived within that State; so they are not taking in-State slots, they are taking out-of-State slots.

But should they achieve that, should they overcome this, this legislation simply says they would then only have to pay in-State. At least it makes that dream affordable for them, and that is all this legislation does.

We are giving to the students in the District of Columbia, our Nation’s Capital, the same affordable educational opportunities that we are finding in the other 50 States. It is a modest step forward, but it is a very important one if we are to integrate our kids in our District with the rest of the region. We want the District of Columbia to be part of this regional economy as well. There is no reason that they should not be given the equal opportunity and affordable educational opportunities this legislation offers.

Mr. Speaker, I am just very proud to support this bill, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, while I appreciate the words of our chairman, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS), this bill in and of itself will encourage youngsters to go to college in the first place who simply would never have tried, despite their qualifications. They know full well that they have the money only for a semester or for a year, and now with this bill, providing 4 years of tuition to go to college, what we have here is a bill that encourages youngsters to do well in school, in junior high school and in high school.

The District of Columbia College Access Group that is supplementing our own efforts with private funds has indicated that it was astonished at how many of our youngsters simply drop out of college after getting into college and earning the right to go to college. The gentleman from Virginia has indicated something very important here, and that is that these youngsters have to get into college in the first place. So hooray, Mr. Speaker, for an initiative to do well enough to get into college, and what this will do for youngsters is indicated by reference to the gentleman’s own premier university, the University of Virginia, one of the best colleges in the United States.

Well, a youngster in Virginia, no matter what the family income, from the richest to the poorest, pays less than $5,000 to go to one of the best universities in the United States. If a youngster from my side of the river applies to go to University of Virginia, those parents must come up with about three times that amount of money, or $16,000. Imagine what it means to my taxpayers to know that they can encourage youngsters to go to UVA or to go to University of Maryland and that the parents will be able to afford that.

I want to mention something else to the gentleman. The gentleman from Virginia and I have worked very hard for this bill to be nationwide, and I want to inform the gentleman that he and I are going to have to continue that fight.

Our bill says that if one gets into the University of Michigan, if one gets into a junior college in Texas, they can take this money and have it follow the student, and we are going to have to fight for that provision. And I think that is a very important provision, as much as I admire the roster of colleges in Maryland and Virginia, but I want to encourage youngsters to fly, to broaden their horizons, and this is a provision we are going to have to fight for.

One of the reasons that I want us to fight for this provision is that they have other bills introduced which do not have nationwide application, but the reason they do not have nationwide application is because there is a need to make sure that there is enough money. The bill that the gentleman and I have worked on recognizes that it may be necessary to circumscribe the bill based on the amount of money. So the chairman, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS), and I have delegated to the mayor of the District of Columbia, whenever he appoints his task of drawing the bill in to fit the funds.

Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS) has acted wisely in this regard, not only for home rule reasons, because, of course, the mayor and those closest on the ground know best, but because we do not want to have the first year or two some of these funds go unused because we have prematurely circumscribed who can, in fact, get these funds. How many of our youngsters may get scholarships to private schools, they do not want to go to school in Maryland and Virginia, we have leftover funds from this bill that

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, let me just add one final point and that is this, if we really want to change the culture in this city where education becomes the thing to do for high school students, where it becomes matter of fact that one goes to high school and they move on to college or higher education, this is the kind of legislation that is needed because right now it is only a dream and not an achievable dream for many.

To be able to go to a quality private or State university system and have an array of choices and have that affordable to someone, we think will break that cycle and will encourage more people to go in.

The contrast between the surrounding suburbs where sometimes over 90 percent of the kids who graduate from high school go on to higher education in this area is astounding. This, I think, could help change that around by making it truly achievable. Again, I commend my friend, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) for her efforts in this and look forward to prompt passage.

Ms. NORTON. I could not agree more with the words of the gentleman, and so much so that I want him to know that I will be working with the city to see if residents can use this bill beginning with this school year.

If they tool up, I think that they can make it happen, even though our fiscal year begins October 1 and school usually begins in August and September. I thank the gentleman again for his leadership and for his great assistance on this bill.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 974, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Ms. NORTON. I have just a final point that I would like to make.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I urge all Members to support this bill, H.R. 1251.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. COOK of Utah. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Utah (Mr. COOK) introduced H.R. 1251 on March 21, 1999, designating the United States Postal Service building located at 8850 South 700 East, Sandy, Utah, as the "Noal Cushing Bateman Post Office Building".

H.R. 1251

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DESIGNATION.

The United States Postal Service building located at 8850 South 700 East, in Sandy, Utah, shall be known and designated as the "Noal Cushing Bateman Post Office Building".

SEC. 2. REFERENCES.

Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the building referred to in section 1 shall be deemed to be a reference to the "Noal Cushing Bateman Post Office Building".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS) and the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Utah (Mr. COOK) introduced H.R. 1251 on March 21, 1999, designating the United States Postal Service building located at 8850 South 700 East, Sandy, Utah, as the "Noal Cushing Bateman Post Office Building". This legislation is cosponsored by each Member of the Utah delegation to the House of Representatives pursuant to the policy of the Committee on Government Reform.

The Congressional Budget Office has determined that enactment of this measure would have no significant impact on the Federal budget and would not affect direct spending and receipts.

Pay-as-you-go procedures, therefore, would not be applicable.

Mr. Bateman, honored by the bill before us, served in the Sandy City council for 20 years and was mayor for 6 years. He also served as head of the local PTA chapter and led a successful school construction bond campaign. He attained leadership positions in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all Members to support this bill, H.R. 1251.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to join my colleague, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS), in bringing to the House Floor five postal-naming bills. These five measures have met the Committees on Government Reform's requirement and enjoy the full support and cosponsorship of their respective House congressional delegations. All of these bills were reported unanimously out of the Subcommittee on Postal Service and the full committee. I urge their immediate consideration and approval.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia, Mr. Speaker, have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia, Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. Cook).

Mr. COOK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, today the House of Representatives is poised to pass H.R. 1251, a bill to rename the post office in Sandy, Utah, the Noal Cushing Bateman Post Office. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Noal Cushing Bateman represents the best of Utah. In his lifetime, he has seen Sandy City grow from a struggling farming community of 3,000 to a thriving business center with over 100,000 residents. Not only has he witnessed the growth but his planning and vision in large measure made it possible. His service to the community has spanned the last 20 centuries.

Beginning in 1935, he served 20 years on the Sandy City council, 14 years as Sandy City treasurer and 6 years as mayor. He served for 35 years as the director for the Salt Lake County Water Conservancy District. At an age when many people retire, Noal Bateman was just catching his second wind. At age 69, he chaired the Community Development Block Grant Committee, a position he held for 9 years.

He was president of the Sandy PTA and lead a campaign for a bond issue to build the present Sandy Elementary School. Today, at age 87 he remains active in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and in the community.

Sandy City presents an annual award to the person who best exemplifies the volunteer and community service that makes Sandy such a wonderful place to live, to work, to raise a family. This award is called the Noal Bateman Award. It is only fitting that we honor the man whose vision made Sandy what it is today by renaming the Sandy Post Office at 8850 South 700 East the Noal Cushing Bateman Post Office.

The measure is a small gesture of gratitude for decades of tireless efforts by Mayor Bateman on behalf of the citizens of Sandy.

I would like to thank the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Burton), chairman of the Committee on Government Reform, for his prompt measure on this action in the committee, and I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia, Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1251.

The question was taken.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia, Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays. The yeas and nays were ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 1251.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

JOHN J. BUCHANAN POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia, Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1377) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service at 13234 South Baltimore Avenue in Chicago, Illinois, as the "John J. Buchanan Post Office Building".

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 1377

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DESIGNATION.

The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 13234 South Baltimore Avenue in Chicago, Illinois, is hereby designated as the "John J. Buchanan Post Office Building". Any reference to such facility in a law, regulation, map, document, paper, or other record of the United States shall be considered to be a reference to the "John J. Buchanan Post Office Building".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Davis) and the gentleman from the District of Columbia (Ms. Norton) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Davis).

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia, Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Weller).

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, as we work this year to strengthen our local schools, lower taxes for the middle class and save Social Security and Medicare, I particularly want to thank the hardworking women and men from Virginia (Mr. Davis) and the committee for this opportunity to honor the work and dedication of Alderman John J. Buchanan who retired last month as alderman for the 10th Ward in the City of Chicago after almost 20 years of public service.

I introduced H.R. 1377 to recognize Alderman Buchanan's outstanding public service record in Chicago and honor him through the designation of the United States Post Office at 13234 South Baltimore Avenue as the John J. Buchanan Post Office. And I have enjoyed working with the alderman personally over the last 4 years in a bipartisan effort to help 10th Ward residents who have particularly worked very closely for improvements to Brainard Avenue in the Hegewisch area and the continued construction of the Deep Tunnel Project designed to protect our Lake Michigan drinking water.

John Buchanan has been a life-long resident and public servant for the 10th Ward. The only time he left the community was during his years of service in the United States Navy. He was first elected to office in 1963 and served the community until 1971.

From 1972 until 1977, he served as co-ordinator for economic development for the Chicago Mayor's office. While in this position, he successfully instituted programs for the retention and attraction of new business and industry. In 1991, Alderman Buchanan was once again elected to serve the alderman of the 10th Ward of Chicago. His city council committee membership included Aviation; Budget and Government Relations; Rules and Ethics; Economic and Capital Development; Finance; Human Relations; and Police and Fire.

Alderman Buchanan and his wife, who I would point out is his high school sweetheart, have two children and five grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to report that every Member of the Illinois Congressional Delegation has agreed to support this legislation as cosponsors. I want to thank the gentleman and the committee for this opportunity to recognize the exceptional public service of Alderman John J. Buchanan through this special honor.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 1377 was introduced by my colleague, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Weller), on April 13, 1999. This measure designates the United States Postal Service facility located at 13234 South Baltimore Avenue in Chicago as the John J. Buchanan Post Office Building.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, as a City of Chicago alderman who recently retired as a life-long resident and public servant of Chicago's 10th Ward. He has resided in Chicago his entire life. John Buchanan serves on the board of directors of several community organizations, including the south Chicago YMCA and Trinity Hospital Governing Council. We are pleased to support this naming bill for John J. Buchanan.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

CLIFFORD R. HOPE POST OFFICE
Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 197) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 410 North 6th Street in Garden City, Kansas, as the “Clifford R. Hope Post Office”.

Mr. Speaker, it is a great honor for me to speak today on behalf of this legislation to honor a man by his accomplishments. I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MORAN).

Mr. MORAN of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS) yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, it is a great honor for me to speak today on behalf of this legislation to honor Clifford R. Hope. Mr. Hope was an active public servant involved in Kansas politics for more than 37 years. Naming the post office in his hometown of Garden City, Kansas, is an honor. It is a small tribute to Mr. Hope’s lifetime accomplishments.

During Mr. Hope’s political career, his first leadership opportunities presented themselves as a member of the Kansas House of Representatives. First elected in 1921, Mr. Hope at the age of 31 became the youngest speaker of the Kansas House of Representatives. As in many other States in the 1920s, tension mounted surrounding civil rights issues. Mr. Hope, an ardent opponent of the Ku Klux Klan, took the politically difficult stance to ensure that Kansas’ history as a free State was not marred by individual liberties of all its citizens were protected.

After 3 terms in the State legislature, Clifford R. Hope was elected to Congress in 1926. Mr. Hope became a respected leader in this House, ultimately serving as the chairman of the Committee on Agriculture from 1946 to 1951. Mr. Hope was the last Republican chairman of the committee until another Kansan, Pat Roberts, assumed that position in 1965.

Mr. Hope was deeply involved in establishing many of the agricultural programs that still exist today. In addition to his work on behalf of agriculture, Mr. Hope was a strong advocate for defense programs and was heavily involved in vital programs essential to our successful war efforts during World War II.

Mr. Hope was a veteran of World War I.

Spanning the presidential administrations of Presidents Coolidge, Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower, Mr. Hope’s time in Congress was a period of extraordinary change in our nation. Through the end of the roaring 1920s, the Depression and World War II, and the critical rebuilding years that followed, Mr. Hope faithfully served Kansans and was actively involved in many legislative achievements that we take for granted today.

He was an avid supporter of conservation programs. Mr. Hope first experienced legislative success by passing into law the bill creating the Cheyenne Bottoms Wetlands in Kansas. It was created in 1928, and this wetland still today serves the goals of environmental restoration and preservation. While Mr. Hope’s initial bill was aimed at Kansans, it was followed by one of the largest nationwide conservation programs, the Small Watershed Program, which was developed under Mr. Hope’s tenure as the Committee on Agriculture Chairman. Passed in 1954 and known as P.L. 566, the Small Watershed Program has been successful in reducing runoff, controlling erosion and protecting countless communities from flooding for more than 40 years.

In addition to conservation programs, Chairman Hope also had great success in promoting the United States’ humanitarian role in the world. The Food for Peace Program, P.L. 480, was signed into law by President Eisenhower in July of 1954. From its inception, Food For Peace has been the backbone of the United States’ food donation efforts around the world. Hope was not alone. The feeding programs had such worldly goals. Authorized in 1946, the zeal with which Mr. Hope promoted the School Lunch Program earned him the title of “Hot Lunch Cliff.”

While it is often common to measure a man by his accomplishments, it is the manner in which those accomplishments are achieved that is truly important. In this day of harsh rhetorical battles, it is refreshing to honor a Member with character and demeanor. Our former Governor of Kansas, William H. Avery, also a former member of this body, perhaps said it best about Mr. Hope’s character:

“I never heard Cliff speak a harsh word against those with whom he disagreed, either in debate or in personal conversation. He had the respect and admiration of all who knew him. He will always be remembered as an honest man with an infectious personality, kind to both his friends and adversaries, but unshakable in his convictions.”

In the epilogue to the book “Quiet Courage,” written in 1997 by Congressman Hope’s son, Clifford Hope Jr., also a distinguished Kansan, the son speaking of his Congressman father concludes that:

First of all, Congressman Hope had a record of substantial legislative accomplishments. He probably spent more time from 1933 until 1957 on farm support legislation than any other single issue, seeking to secure a safety net for farmers and, equally important, striving to ensure a stable supply of inexpensive food and fiber for consumers. His more lasting legislative accomplishments were in the area of soil and water conservation, agricultural research and marketing, and the Food for Peace program.

Although preoccupied with agriculture problems, Congressman Hope spent many hours studying and seeking the truth on all important issues. Hope’s legislative achievements were not. In his son’s opinion, his primary reason that he considered his father a role model Congressman and considered so by many of his contemporaries as well. He was a role model, rather, because of the virtues and values he held dear. In recent years there has been a rediscovery of, or at least a renewed interest in, personal virtues.

William J. Bennett, in his “Book of Virtues” quotes stories and poems which exemplify 10 virtues and responsibilities, self-discipline, compassion, friendship, work, courage, perseverance, honesty, loyalty and faith. Senator Frank Carlson, also a former member of the House of Representatives, in his congressional ceremony honoring his friend Cliff Hope in 1956 cited a list of nine virtues that make up the stature of the perfect man: patience, kindness, generosity, humility, courtesy, unselfishness, sincerity, good temper, and guilelessness.

Hope would be the first to disclaim that he was a perfect man, but in large measure, he did possess the virtues cited by Bennett and Drummond. All of these in particular were ones imparted and taught to all of those he came in contact with.

So, Mr. Speaker, today as we seek passage of this legislation, H.R. 197, I encourage all of us to strive for these characteristics. We too will leave a mark on the history of this country, and I hope that during my term of service in the United States Congress that I will never forget a fellow Kansas, Clifford R. Hope, that he provided a role model for those of us who engage in this business each and every day, and that we will all strive to serve with quiet courtesy, unselfishness, sincerity, good temper, and guilelessness.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 197, introduced by the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MORAN) on January 6, 1999, designates the 2037 Chestnut Street Postal Facility at 410 North 6th Street in Garden City, Kansas as the Clifford R. Hope Post Office. Mr. Hope was a former Member of Congress representing the 7th congressional district in Kansas from 1927 to 1959. His political career began in the Kansas House of Representatives, where he served as Speaker of the Kansas House. Following his election to Congress, Mr. Hope became Chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture.

I am pleased to honor such a distinguished colleague, and we are pleased to support this bill from this side of the aisle.

Madison Street as the “Mary Alice (Ma) Henry Post Office Building.” Ma Henry was known as one of the leading activists on the West Side, dedicating her life to serving humanity and building her community. She developed a plan for a primary care clinic at Garfield Hospital and that was dedicated in 1976 as the Mary Alice “Ma” Henry Family Health Center, and it presently serves more than 20,000 patients yearly. “Ma” Henry died in 1995.

H.R. 1191, in section 4, also names the postal facility located at 50001 West Division Street as the “Robert LaFlore, Jr. Post Office Building.” Mr. LaFlore served in the Illinois General Assembly for 11 years and was known as a powerful voice for the disadvantaged and underprivileged. Prior to his death in 1993, Mr. LaFlore left behind legislation to help children and senior citizens. Mmithcoah

Mr. Speaker, this legislation has passed both the subcommittee and the committee levels. I urge all Members to support this bill in particular, and I know that the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Davis) will regret that he was detained on an airplane and unable to perform this particular service for a woman I know is also his very good friend.

The second postal facility is named for Otis Grant Collins, who, prior to his death in 1992, was recognized as one of the premier activists in apprenticeship training in this country. In addition, while serving as state representative in the Illinois General Assembly, he was a champion of laws that protected minority communities from redlining.

The third postal facility is named for Mary Alice Ma Henry, who, prior to her death in 1986, was recognized as one of Chicago’s most caring and compassionate community activists. She is remembered as a courageous leader for the poor, uninsured and the left out of our society. In 1976, the Mary Alice Ma Henry Family Health Center was dedicated and now serves over 20,000 patients every year.

The fourth postal facility is named after former state representative Robert LeFlore, Jr., who, prior to his death in 1993, was recognized as a leading advocate for the disadvantaged and the underprivileged. He was a tireless worker on behalf of seniors and children, and his contributions will be remembered for a long time.

These individuals represent the best of Chicago and the nation. Their contributions have been significant and their legacies have been embedded in the communities they touched. I am pleased to sponsor this bill on behalf of some of the great African American leaders in the Chicago community and in our country.

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, today I join with my colleagues in commemorating the contributions of an outstanding former Member of Congress, Cardiss Collins, who served in Congress from 1973 to 1985 representing Illinois’ 7th district, was a leader in so many ways. Naming a Chicago postal building after her is a much deserved honor.

After losing her husband in a tragic plane crash, Cardiss Collins committed to continuing the fight for social justice, won the 1973 special elections and began a distinguished tenure here in Washington. Her six terms of service were then the longest service for an African American female.

Cardiss Collins’ career in Congress was highlighted by a number of notable positions. Congressman Collins was the ranking minority member on the Government Operations Committee, Where she chaired the Subcommittee on Manpower and Housing. Cardiss Collins was the first African American and the First woman to serve as Democratic whip-at-large. In 1979, Collins was the Chairwoman of the Congressional Black Caucus.

The gentlewoman Collins’ commitment to the people of her district and the people of Illinois was apparent even before she came to Congress. A graduate of Northwestern University, she began her career at the Illinois Department of Labor. She later went on to the Illinois Department of Revenue. Cardiss Collins’ commitment to the American political system was also evident through her service as Democratic Committee of the 24th Ward.

Again, I applaud the most honorable career and dedication of Congresswoman Collins. I am proud to join my colleagues in the Illinois delegation who share this sentiment.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 1191.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 1191.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

NURSING RELIEF FOR DISADVANTAGED AREAS ACT OF 1999

Mr. ROGAN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 441) to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act with respect to the requirements for the admission of nonimmigrant nurses who will practice in health professional shortage areas.

H.R. 441

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Nursing Relief for Disadvantaged Areas Act of 1999”.

SEC. 2. REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION OF NONIMMIGRANT NURSES IN HEALTH PROFESSIONAL SHORTAGE AREAS DURING 4-YEAR PERIOD.

(a) Establishment of a New Nonimmigrant Classification for Nonimmigrant Nurses in Health Professional Shortage Areas.—Section 101(a)(15)(H)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)) is amended by striking “;” or “or” at the end and inserting the following: “;” or (c) who is coming temporarily to the United States to perform services as a registered nurse. The definitions in section 212(m)(1) and with respect to whom the Secretary of Labor determines and certifies to the Attorney General that an unexpired attestation under section 212(m)(2) for the facility (as defined in section 212(m)(6)) for which the alien will perform the services; or

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—Section 212(m) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(m)) is amended as follows:

(i) Definitions referred to in section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(c), with respect to an alien who is coming to the United States to perform nursing services for a facility, are that the alien—

(A) has obtained a full and unrestricted license to practice professional nursing in the country where the alien obtained nursing education or received nursing education in the United States;

(B) has passed an appropriate examination (recognized in regulations promulgated in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services) or has a full and unrestricted license under State law to practice professional nursing in the State of intended employment;

(C) is fully qualified and eligible under the laws (including such temporary or interim licensing requirements which authorize the right to be employed) governing the place of intended employment to engage in the practice of professional nursing as a registered nurse immediately upon admission to the United States, and is authorized under such laws to be employed by the facility;

(2)(A) The attestation referred to in section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(c), with respect to a facility and the registered nurses (including those temporarily or intermittently licensed) who are authorized to perform nursing services for the facility, is an attestation as to the following:

(i) The facility meets all the requirements of paragraph (6). (ii) The employment of the alien will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of registered nurses similarly employed.

(iii) The alien employed by the facility will be paid the wage rate for registered nurses similarly employed by the facility.

(iv) The facility has taken and is taking timely steps designed to recruit and retain sufficient registered nurses who are United States citizens or immigrants who are authorized to perform nursing services, in order to remove as quickly as reasonably possible the dependence of the facility on nonimmigrant registered nurses.

(v) There is not a strike or lockout in the course of a labor dispute, the facility did not lay off and will not lay off a registered nurse employed by the facility within the period beginning 90 days before and ending 90 days after the date of filing of any visa petition, and the employment of such an alien is not intended or designed to influence an election for a bargaining representative for registered nurses of the facility.

(vi) At the time of the filing of the petition for registered nurses under section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(c), notice of the filing has been provided to the registered nurses at the facility or, where there is no such bargaining representative, notice of the filing has been provided to the registered nurses employed at the facility through posting in conspicuous locations.

(vii) The facility will not, at any time, employ aliens issued visas or otherwise provided nonimmigrant status under section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(c) that exceeds 33 percent of the total number of registered nurses employed at the facility.

(viii) The facility shall, with respect to any alien issued a visa or otherwise provided nonimmigrant status under section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(c),—

(1) authorize the alien to perform nursing services at any worksite other than a worksite controlled by the facility; or

(2) transfer the place of employment of the alien from one worksite to another.

Nothing in clause (i) shall be construed as requiring a facility to have taken significant steps to meet conditions before the date of the enactment of the Nursing Relief for Disadvantaged Areas Act of 1999. A copy of the attestation shall be provided, within 30 days of the date of filing, to registered nurses employed at the facility on the date of filing.

(b) For purposes of subparagraph (A)(iv), each of the following shall be considered a significant step reasonably designed to recruit and retain registered nurses:

(1) Operating a training program for registered nurses at the facility or financing (or providing participation in) a training program for registered nurses elsewhere.

(2) Providing career development programs, such as loan repayment, for facility health care workers to become registered nurses.

(3) Paying registered nurses wages at a rate not less than the prevailing wage rate, the prevailing wage rate being paid to registered nurses similarly employed in the geographic area.

(4) Providing reasonable opportunities for meaningful salary advancement by registered nurses.

The steps described in this subparagraph shall not be considered to be an exclusive list of the significant steps that may be taken to meet the conditions of subparagraph (A)(iv).

Nothing in this subparagraph shall require a facility to take more than one step if the facility can demonstrate that taking a second step is not reasonable.

(c) Subject to subparagraph (E), an attestation under subparagraph (A)—

(I) shall expire on the date that is one year later than the later of—

(i) the end of the one-year period beginning on the date of its filing with the Secretary of Labor; and

(ii) the end of the period of admission on the date of issuance of the alien's visa; and

(II) transfer the place of employment of the alien from one worksite to another.

Nothing in clause (i) shall be construed as requiring a facility to have taken significant steps to meet conditions before the date of the enactment of the Nursing Relief for Disadvantaged Areas Act of 1999. A copy of the attestation shall be provided, within 30 days of the date of filing, to registered nurses employed at the facility on the date of filing.

(d) For purposes of subparagraph (A)(iv), each of the following shall be considered a significant step reasonably designed to recruit and retain registered nurses:

(1) Operating a training program for registered nurses at the facility or financing (or providing participation in) a training program for registered nurses elsewhere.

(2) Providing career development programs, such as loan repayment, for facility health care workers to become registered nurses.

(3) Paying registered nurses wages at a rate not less than the prevailing wage rate, the prevailing wage rate being paid to registered nurses similarly employed in the geographic area.

(4) Providing reasonable opportunities for meaningful salary advancement by registered nurses.

The steps described in this subparagraph shall not be considered to be an exclusive list of the significant steps that may be taken to meet the conditions of subparagraph (A)(iv).

Nothing in this subparagraph shall require a facility to take more than one step if the facility can demonstrate that taking a second step is not reasonable.

(c) Subject to subparagraph (E), an attestation under subparagraph (A)—

(I) shall expire on the date that is one year later than the later of—

(i) the end of the one-year period beginning on the date of its filing with the Secretary of Labor; and

(ii) the end of the period of admission on the date of issuance of the alien's visa; and

(II) transfer the place of employment of the alien from one worksite to another.

Nothing in clause (i) shall be construed as requiring a facility to have taken significant steps to meet conditions before the date of the enactment of the Nursing Relief for Disadvantaged Areas Act of 1999. A copy of the attestation shall be provided, within 30 days of the date of filing, to registered nurses employed at the facility on the date of filing.

(d) For purposes of subparagraph (A)(iv), each of the following shall be considered a significant step reasonably designed to recruit and retain registered nurses:

(1) Operating a training program for registered nurses at the facility or financing (or providing participation in) a training program for registered nurses elsewhere.

(2) Providing career development programs, such as loan repayment, for facility health care workers to become registered nurses.

(3) Paying registered nurses wages at a rate not less than the prevailing wage rate, the prevailing wage rate being paid to registered nurses similarly employed in the geographic area.

(4) Providing reasonable opportunities for meaningful salary advancement by registered nurses.

The steps described in this subparagraph shall not be considered to be an exclusive list of the significant steps that may be taken to meet the conditions of subparagraph (A)(iv).

Nothing in this subparagraph shall require a facility to take more than one step if the facility can demonstrate that taking a second step is not reasonable.

(c) Subject to subparagraph (E), an attestation under subparagraph (A)—

(I) shall expire on the date that is one year later than the later of—

(i) the end of the one-year period beginning on the date of its filing with the Secretary of Labor; and

(ii) the end of the period of admission on the date of issuance of the alien's visa; and

(II) transfer the place of employment of the alien from one worksite to another.

Nothing in clause (i) shall be construed as requiring a facility to have taken significant steps to meet conditions before the date of the enactment of the Nursing Relief for Disadvantaged Areas Act of 1999. A copy of the attestation shall be provided, within 30 days of the date of filing, to registered nurses employed at the facility on the date of filing.

(d) For purposes of subparagraph (A)(iv), each of the following shall be considered a significant step reasonably designed to recruit and retain registered nurses:

(1) Operating a training program for registered nurses at the facility or financing (or providing participation in) a training program for registered nurses elsewhere.

(2) Providing career development programs, such as loan repayment, for facility health care workers to become registered nurses.

(3) Paying registered nurses wages at a rate not less than the prevailing wage rate, the prevailing wage rate being paid to registered nurses similarly employed in the geographic area.

(4) Providing reasonable opportunities for meaningful salary advancement by registered nurses.

The steps described in this subparagraph shall not be considered to be an exclusive list of the significant steps that may be taken to meet the conditions of subparagraph (A)(iv).

Nothing in this subparagraph shall require a facility to take more than one step if the facility can demonstrate that taking a second step is not reasonable.

(c) Subject to subparagraph (E), an attestation under subparagraph (A)—

(I) shall expire on the date that is one year later than the later of—

(i) the end of the one-year period beginning on the date of its filing with the Secretary of Labor; and

(ii) the end of the period of admission on the date of issuance of the alien's visa; and

(II) transfer the place of employment of the alien from one worksite to another.

Nothing in clause (i) shall be construed as requiring a facility to have taken significant steps to meet conditions before the date of the enactment of the Nursing Relief for Disadvantaged Areas Act of 1999. A copy of the attestation shall be provided, within 30 days of the date of filing, to registered nurses employed at the facility on the date of filing.

(d) For purposes of subparagraph (A)(iv), each of the following shall be considered a significant step reasonably designed to recruit and retain registered nurses:

(1) Operating a training program for registered nurses at the facility or financing (or providing participation in) a training program for registered nurses elsewhere.

(2) Providing career development programs, such as loan repayment, for facility health care workers to become registered nurses.

(3) Paying registered nurses wages at a rate not less than the prevailing wage rate, the prevailing wage rate being paid to registered nurses similarly employed in the geographic area.

(4) Providing reasonable opportunities for meaningful salary advancement by registered nurses.

The steps described in this subparagraph shall not be considered to be an exclusive list of the significant steps that may be taken to meet the conditions of subparagraph (A)(iv).

Nothing in this subparagraph shall require a facility to take more than one step if the facility can demonstrate that taking a second step is not reasonable.
For States with populations of 9,000,000 or more based upon the 1990 decennial census of population, 50 visas.

(C) If the total number of visas available under this paragraph for a fiscal year quarter exceeds the number of qualified nonimmigrants who may be issued such visas during those quarters, the visas made available under this paragraph shall be issued without regard to any numerical limitation under subparagraph (A) or (B) of this paragraph during the last fiscal year quarter.

(5) A facility that has filed a petition under this section (A)(15)(H)(i)(c) to employ a nonimmigrant to perform nursing services for the facility—

(A) shall provide the nonimmigrant a wage rate and working conditions commensurate with those of nurses similarly employed by the facility; and

(C) shall not interfere with the right of the nonimmigrant to join or organize a union.

(6) For purposes of this subsection and section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(c), the term ‘facility’ means a subsection (d) hospital (as defined in section 1888(d)(1)(B) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395-ee(d)(1)(B))) that meets the following requirements:

(A) As of March 31, 1997, the hospital was located in a health professional shortage area (as defined in section 332 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 234)).

(B) Based on its settled cost report filed under title XVIII of the Social Security Act for its cost reporting period beginning during fiscal year 1994—

(i) the hospital has not less than 190 licensed acute care bed capacity; and

(ii) the number of the hospital's inpatient days for such period which were made up of patients who (for such days) were entitled to benefits under part A of such title is not less than 35 percent of the total number of such hospital's acute care inpatient days for such period; and

(C) the number of the hospital's inpatient days for such period which were made up of patients who (for such days) were eligible for medical assistance under a State plan approved by the Secretary of Health and Human Services (or an equivalent independent credentialing organization which has been approved under section (a)(5)(C) for the certification of nurses under this subsection).

SEC. 3. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR ALTERNATIVE REMEDY FOR NURSING SHORTAGE.

Not later than the last day of the 4-year period described in section 2(e), the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Secretary of Labor shall jointly submit to the Congress recommendations (including legislative specifications) with respect to the following:

(1) A program to eliminate the dependence of facilities described in section 212(m)(6) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (as amended by section 2(b)) on nonimmigrant registered nurses providing for a permanent solution of the shortage of registered nurses who are United States citizens or aliens lawfully admitted for permanent residence.

(2) A method of enforcing the requirements imposed on facilities under sections 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(c) and 212(m) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (as amended by section 2(b)) that would be more effective than the process described in section 212(m)(2)(E) of such Act (as so amended).

SEC. 4. CERTIFICATION FOR CERTAIN ALIEN NURSES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) Section 212 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

(‘‘(i) Subsection (a)(5)(C) shall not apply to an alien who seeks to enter the United States for the purpose of performing labor or services as a nurse who presents to the consular officer (or in the case of an adjustment of status, the Attorney General) a certified statement of the nonimmigrant to join or organize a union.

(2) A method of enforcing the requirements imposed on facilities under sections 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(c) and 212(m) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (as amended by section 2(b)) that would be more effective than the process described in section 212(m)(2)(E) of such Act (as so amended).

(b) IMPELEMNTATION.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Attorney General shall promulgate final or interim regulations to carry out section 212(m) of the Immigration and Nationality Act as amended by this section.

(c) LIMITING APPLICATION OF NONIMMIGRANT CHANGES TO 4-YEAR PERIOD.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to classification petitions filed for nonimmigrants only during the 4-year period beginning on the date that interim or final regulations are first promulgated under subsection (d).

SEC. 5. COMMISSION ON GRADUATES OF FOREIGN NURSING SCHOOLS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) Section 212 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(5)(C)) is amended by striking ‘‘any alien who seeks’’ and inserting ‘‘Subject to subsection (f), any alien who seeks’’.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act, without regard to whether or not final regulations to carry out such amendments have been promulgated by such date.

(c) ISSUANCE OF CERTIFIED STATEMENTS.—The Commission on Graduates of Foreign Nursing Schools, or any approved equivalent independent credentialing organization, shall issue certified statements pursuant to section 212(m)(1) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(m)(1)), only if the applicant files more than 35 days after the receipt of a complete application for such a statement.

The Speaker pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. ROGAN) and the gentleman from Guam (Mr. UNDERWOOD) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. ROGAN).

Mr. ROGAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 441.

The Speaker pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California? There was no objection.

Mr. ROGAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, because of a shortage of nurses in the late 1980’s, Congress passed the Immigration Nursing Relief Act of 1989. That act created for a period of 5 years the H-1A temporary visa program for registered nurses. When the H-1A program sunset, the House of Representatives decided against extending it.

There does not appear to be a national nursing shortage today, so there is no need to revive the H-1A program. However, a number of hospitals with unique circumstances are still experiencing great difficulty in attracting American nurses. Hospitals serving medically poor patients or rural institutions have special difficulties. So do certain hospitals in rural areas.

H.R. 441, the Nursing Relief for Disadvantaged Areas Act of 1999, introduced by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. RUSH), has been drafted very narrowly to help precisely these kind of hospitals. It will create a new temporary registered nurse visa program designated H-1C that would provide up
The legislation being considered today is nearly identical to the legislation the House approved last Congress. It would allow up to 500 fully qualified foreign nurses to enter the United States each year to work for 3-year periods at hospitals that have not been able to hire enough nurses from the American workforce.

Since there are facing a temporary shortage of workers, the legislation sunsets in 4 years. The bill also provides for a determination to be made on whether the hospitals are taking reasonable steps to recruit and retain nurses from the American workforce. In addition, the Department of Labor and the Department of Health and Human Services would be required to conduct a study to establish ways for these American hospitals to meet their staffing needs with nurses from the American workforce instead of continuing to rely on foreign labor.

Additional protections have also been added. H–1C nurses cannot be able to comprise more than 33 percent of a hospital’s workforce of registered nurses and a hospital cannot contract H–1C nurses to work at another facility.

Our goal should be that set out by the Immigration Nursing Relief Advisory Committee created by the Immigration Nursing Relief Act of 1989. We need to balance both the continuing need for foreign nurses in certain specialties and localities for which there are not adequate domestic registered nurses and the need to continue to lessen employers’ dependence on foreign registered nurses and protect the wages and working conditions of U.S. registered nurses.

Mr. Speaker, I believe this bill successfully balances both these needs. Because it is so narrowly drafted it is not opposed by the American Nurses Association. I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this legislation introduced by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Rush) which addresses a pressing need for nurses at low income inner-city hospitals. A similar legislation was proposed last Congress, I expressed my concerns that it did not include adequate safeguards to protect American workers. Fortunately, this legislation was amended to specify that the relief was only temporary and to allow us to move more firmly in the direction of developing a more permanent solution to this problem that will utilize nurses from the American workforce instead of continuing to rely on foreign labor. I supported the revised bill, which passed the committee in the House last year before we ran out of time in the Senate.

Overall, ANA believes that we need to address the root causes for the instability of the nursing workforce that has led to swings in the supply and demand of registered nurses. It is clear that over reliance on foreign educated nurses by the hospital industry serves only to postpone real efforts to address the nursing workforce needs of the United States.

However, they remain neutral, and state they will “look forward to ongoing discussions with the Committee to address this complex issue.”

Mr. Speaker, I include the letter for the RECORD.

American Nurses Association, 600 Maryland Avenue, NW, Washington, DC, March 18, 1999.

Hon. Sheila Jackson Lee, Ranking Minority Member, Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims, Washington, DC.

Dear Congresswoman Lee: The American Nurses Association (ANA) appreciates the opportunity to comment on H.R. 441, the Nursing Relief for Disadvantaged Areas Act of 1999. As the only full-service professional nursing organization, we have a long-standing interest in the development of nursing workforce policy.

Overall, ANA believes that we need to address the root causes for the instability of the nursing workforce that has led to swings in the supply and demand of registered nurses. It is clear that over reliance on foreign educated nurses by the hospital industry serves only to postpone real efforts to address the nursing workforce needs of the United States.

With regard to H.R. 441, ANA has taken a position of neutrality. However, ANA will adamantly oppose any amendments which seek to broaden the application of this visa or would lessen the protections afforded registered nurses under this measure.

ANA looks forward to opportunities for ongoing discussions with the Committee as they seek to address this complex issue.

Sincerely, Beverly L. Malone, PhD, RN, President.

Mr. Speaker, they too recognize the importance of addressing the question of the shortage of nurses. I want to thank them for their responsible letter that says that they will not oppose this legislation and will work along with us.
They have worked with us during this process to ensure that the process would be limited and, I believe, with the leadership of the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. RUSH) and the gentleman from Texas (Chairman SMITH), that we have come to a point where all of us can agree on this legislation.

The Registered Nurse Temporary Visa Program was created by the Immigration Nursing Relief Act of 1989 and expired in 1997. The Immigration Nursing Relief Act was enacted in response to a nationwide shortage of nurses sufficient to disrupt the delivery of services to patients in some of our health care institutions and to potentially place patients in jeopardy.

The program allowed health care institutions who attested there would be a substantial disruption in the provision of health care services without the help of the alien nurses to essentially sponsor such a nurse.

Nurses admitted under the program were permitted to stay in the United States for an initial period of 3 years, but that period was subject to a possible extension up to a total of 5 years. The New York City, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles and Miami areas accounted for two-thirds of all petitions filed because of the enormous need in these communities.

I support H.R. 441 because it creates a new registered nurse temporary visa program that would sunset after 5 years in collaboration with the insight provided for us by the American Nurses Association. It would limit the number of visas that can be issued to 50 a year and hospitals would be able to petition for an alien nurse to those in need. H.R. 441 would serve to decrease the nursing shortage in the United States and set up a new H–1C visa program.

I would also like to note, as I indicated earlier, that the American Nurses Association has offered themselves to work and collaborate with us on stabilizing the nursing profession. There is no greater asset to our hospital and health profession industry, if you will, or the nurturing of Americans that does not include our nursing professionals, whether it is in home care, whether it is in our community clinics, or whether it is in our hospitals. They are an important aspect of our medical system in this Nation.

So I am delighted that they are not opposing this legislation. I also want to close, simply, Mr. Speaker, by acknowledging again the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. RUSH) who has worked on this legislation for now two sessions, and we are delighted that we are able to bring to the floor of the House a bill that the American Nurses Association has offered themselves to work and collaborate with us on stabilizing the nursing profession. There is no greater asset to our hospital and health profession industry, if you will, or the nurturing of Americans that does not include our nursing professionals, whether it is in home care.

I know that the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. RUSH) was en route, but all of us has found ourselves struggling with the air traffic today. I know that he will want to submit his statement into the RECORD. I want to congratulate him.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I certainly would like to again reiterate our congratulations to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. RUSH) for his diligence in this, and I thank the majority for their cooperation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to encourage my colleagues to vote for H.R. 441, the Nursing Relief for Disadvantaged Areas Act of 1999.

My reason for introducing and encouraging support for this legislation is simple—it will assist the underserved communities of this nation by providing adequate health care for their residents.

Today, there are some areas in this country which experience a scarcity of health professionals, even though numbers indicate that no nursing shortage exists nationally. Such an area exists in my district, the First Congressional District of Illinois. The Englewood community, a poor, urban neighborhood with a high incidence of crime, is primarily served by St. Bernard's Hospital. This small community hospital’s emergency room averages approximately 31,000 visits per year; 50% of their patients are Medicaid recipients and 35% receive Medicare.

The Immigration Nursing Relief Act of 1989 created the H–1A visa program in order to allow foreign educated nurses to work in the United States. The program, as acknowledged by the AFL–CIO, the American Nurses Association and others, was to address spot shortage areas. St. Bernard's Hospital utilized the H–1A program to maintain an adequate nursing staff level. The H–1A program was vital to St. Bernard's continued existence. Prior to this program, St. Bernard hired temporary nurses. As a result, the hospital's nursing expenditures increased by approximately $2 million in an effort to provide health care to its patients in 1992. This additional cost put the hospital on the verge of closing its doors. The H–1A visa program expired on September 30 1997. Currently, no program exists that would assist hospitals such as St. Bernards in their effort to retain qualified nurses.

My legislation merely seeks to close the gap created by the expiration of the H–1A program. H.R. 441, prescribes that any hospital which seeks to hire foreign nurses under these provisions must meet the following criteria: (1) be located in a Health Professional Shortage Area; (2) have at least 190 acute care beds; (3) have a Medicare population of 35%; and (4) have a Medicaid population of at least 28%.

As one who has always fought for the American worker, I can assure you, that this proposal does not have a detrimental effect on American nurses. My legislation sets a cap on the number of new visas that may be issued each year. The legislation also includes processing requirements, that require employers to attest that the hiring of foreign nurses will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of registered nurses. The Secretary of Labor will oversee this process and provide penalties for non-compliance.
into law expeditiously. I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. CONyers. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this legislation, introduced by Mr. Rush, which addresses a pressing need for nurses at low income, inter-city hospitals.

When similar legislation was proposed last Congress, I expressed my concerns that it did not include adequate safeguards to protect American workers. Fortunately, the legislation was amended to specify that the relief was only temporary and to allow us to move firmly in the direction of developing a more permanent solution to this problem that will utilize nurses from the American work force instead of continuing to rely on foreign labor. I supported the revised bill which passed the committee and the House last year, before we ran out of time in the Senate.

The legislation being considered today is nearly identical to the legislation the House approved last Congress. It would allow up to 500 fully qualified foreign nurses to enter the United States each year to work for three-year periods at hospitals that have not been able to hire enough nurses from the American work force. Since we are facing a temporary shortage of workers, the legislation sunsets in four years.

The bill also provides for a determination to be made on whether the hospitals are taking reasonable steps to recruit and retain nurses from the American work force. In addition, the Department of Labor and the Department of Health and Human Services would be required to conduct a study to establish ways for these hospitals to meet their staffing needs with nurses from the American work force instead of continuing to rely on foreign labor.

Finally, the legislation also includes a provision creating an abbreviated certification process for foreign nurses who meet specified qualification standards. This change is needed to eliminate unnecessary and inappropriate steps in the certification process for ensuring the qualifications of these nurses to work in the United States.

Mr. ROGAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleagues for their comments.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The question is on the motion to reconsider.

The question is on the motion to reconsider the resolution. The provisions of the resolution would set the rules for further consideration of H.R. 441.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The Speaker pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

OFFICE OF THE CLERK,
U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Hon. J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker, House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

With best wishes, I am
Sincerely,
JEFF TRANDAIL.

EDUCATIONAL EXCELLENCE FOR ALL CHILDREN ACT OF 1999—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 106-88)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States:

To the Congress of the United States:

I am pleased to transmit for your immediate consideration the "Educational Excellence for All Children Act of 1999," my Administration's proposal for reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (ESEA) and other elementary and secondary education programs.

My proposal builds on the positive trends achieved under current law. The "Improving America's Schools Act of 1994," which reauthorized the ESEA 5 years ago, and the "Goals 2000: Educate America Act" gave States and school districts a framework for integrating Federal resources in support of State and local reforms based on high academic standards. In response, 48 States, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico have adopted State-level standards. Recent results of the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) show improved performance for the academically disadvantaged and other at-risk students who are the primary focus of ESEA programs. NAEP reading scores for 9-year olds in high-poverty schools have improved significantly since 1992, while mathematics achievement has also increased nationally. Students in high-poverty schools and the lowest-performing students—the specific target populations for the ESEA Title I program—have registered gains in both reading and math achievement.

I am encouraged by these positive trends, but educational results for many children remain far below what they should be. My proposal to reauthorize the ESEA is based on four themes reflecting lessons from research and the experience of implementing the 1994 Act.

First, we would continue to focus on high academic standards for all children. The underlying purpose of every program within the ESEA is to help all students reach challenging State and local academic standards. States have largely completed the first stage of standards-based reform by developing content standards for all children. My bill would support the next stage of reform by helping States, school districts, schools, and teachers use these standards to guide classroom instruction and assessment.

My proposal for reauthorizing Title I, for example, would require States to hold school districts and schools accountable for student performance against State standards, including helping the lowest-performing students continually to improve. The bill also would continue to hold States, elementary and secondary education resources on those students furthest from meeting State and local standards, with a particular emphasis on narrowing the gap in achievement between disadvantaged students and their more affluent peers. In this regard, my proposal would phase in equal treatment of Puerto Rico in ESEA funding formulas, so that poor children in Puerto Rico are treated similarly to those in the rest of the country for the purpose of formula allocations.

Second, my proposal responds to research showing that while qualified teachers are critical to improving student achievement, far too many teachers are not prepared to teach to high standards. Teacher quality is a particular problem in high-poverty schools, and the problem is often exacerbated by the use of paraprofessionals in instructional roles.

My bill addresses teacher quality by holding States accountable for stronger enforcement of their own certification and licensure requirements, while at the same time providing substantial support for State and local professional development efforts. The Teaching to High Standards initiative in Title II would help move challenging educational standards into every classroom by providing teachers with sustained and intensive high-quality professional development in core academic subjects, supporting new teachers during their first 3 years in the classroom, and ensuring that all teachers are proficient in relevant content knowledge and teaching skills. The Technology for Education initiative under Title III would expand the availability of educational technology as a tool to help teachers implement high standards in the classroom, particularly in high-poverty schools. My bill also would extend, over the next 7 years, the Class-Size Reduction initiative, which aims to reduce class sizes
The bill would increase support for safe, healthy, disciplined, and drug-free learning environments where all children feel connected, motivated, and challenged to learn and where parents are welcomed and involved. The recent tragedy at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colorado, reminds us that we must be ever vigilant against the risks of violence and other dangerous behaviors in our schools. Our reauthorization bill includes several measures to help mitigate these risks.

We propose the Safe and Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act by concentrating funds on districts with the greatest need for drug- and violence-prevention programs, and by emphasizing the use of research-based programs of proven effectiveness. Moreover, with respect to students who bring weapons to school, this proposal would require schools to refer such students to a mental health professional for assessment and require counseling for those who pose an imminent threat to themselves or others; allow funding for programs that educate students about the risks associated with guns; expand character education programs; and promote alternative schools and second chance programs.

My High School Reform initiative would support innovative reforms to improve student achievement in high schools, such as expanding the connections between adults and students that are necessary for effective learning and healthy personal development. This new initiative would provide resources to help transform 5,000 high schools into places where students receive individual attention, are motivated to learn, are provided with challenging courses, and are encouraged to develop and pursue long-term educational and career goals.

Fourth, in response to clear evidence that standards-based reforms work best when States have strong accountability systems in place, my proposal would encourage each State to establish a single, rigorous accountability system for all schools. The bill also would require States to end social promotion and traditional retention practices; phase out the use of teachers with certificates that say ‘out of field;’ and implement sound discipline policies in every school. Finally, the bill would give parents an important new accountability tool by requiring State, district, and school-level report cards that will help them evaluate the quality of the school their children attend.

Based on high standards for all students, high-quality professional development for teachers, safe and disciplined learning environments, and accountability to parents and taxpayers, the Educational Excellence for All Children Act of 1999 provides a solid foundation for raising student achievement and narrowing the achievement gap between disadvantaged students and their more advantaged peers. More important, it will help prepare all of our children, and thus the Nation, for the challenges of the 21st century. I urge the Congress to take prompt and favorable action on this proposal.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12 of rule 1, the Chair declares the House in recess until 6 p.m. Accordingly (at 3 o’clock and 18 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until 6 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The Speaker pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will now put the question on each motion to suspend the rules on which further proceedings were postponed earlier today in the order in which that motion was entertained.

Votes will be taken in the following order:

H.R. 1251, by the yeas and nays; H.R. 100, by the yeas and nays.

After 6 p.m., the House will suspend the rules and proceed to the consideration of the pending business in the order in which that business was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Speaker pro tempore. The pending business is the question of suspending the rules and passing the bill, H.R. 1251.

The Clerk then read the following bill:

Title: The Noal Cushing Bateman Post Office Building Act

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 1906, AGRICULTURE, RURAL DEVELOPMENT, FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS BILL, 2000
Mr. LINDER, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 106–159) on the resolution (H. Res. 185) providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 1906) making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 1259, SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE SAFE DEPOSIT BOX ACT OF 1999
Mr. LINDER, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 106–160) on the resolution (H. Res. 186) providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 1259) to amend the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 to protect Social Security surplusitures through strengthened budgetary enforcement mechanisms, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.R. 1083
Ms. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. CRANE) be removed as a cosponsor of H.R. 1083. He was inadvertently added last week.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PETTIT). Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Washington?
There was no objection.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.J. RES. 33
Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that my name be withdrawn as a cosponsor of House Joint Resolution 33.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE
The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:
OFFICE OF THE CLERK,
U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
WASHINGTON, DC, MAY 24, 1999.

HON. J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives,
U.S. House of Representatives,
WASHINGTON, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Pursuant to the permission granted in Clause 2(h) of Rule II of the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, I have the honor to transmit a sealed envelope received for the White House on May 24, 1999, at 4:30 p.m. and said to contain a message for the President whereby he submits certain documents with the resolution of advice and consent to ratification of the Amended Mines Protocol of the Convention on Conventional Weapons.

With best wishes, I am
Sincerely,
JEFF TRANDAHL.

CERTIFICATIONS REGARDING AMENDED MINES PROTOCOL OF CONVENTION ON CONVENTIONAL WEAPONS—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES
The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on International Relations:
To the Congress of the United States:
In accordance with the resolution of advice and consent to ratification of the Amended Protocol on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Mines, Booby-Traps and Other Devices, together with its Technical Annex, adopted by the Senate of the United States on May 20, 1999, I hereby certify that:
In connection with Condition (1)(B), Pursuit Deterrent Munition, the Pursuit Deterrent Munition shall continue to remain available for use by the United States Armed Forces at least until January 1, 2000, unless an effective alternative to the munition becomes available.
In connection with Condition (6), Land Mine Alternatives, in pursuing alternatives to United States anti-personnel mines or mixed anti-tank systems, I will not limit the types of alternatives to be considered on the basis of any criteria other than those specified in the sentence that follows. In pursuit of alternatives to United States anti-personnel mines, or mixed anti-tank systems, the United States shall seek to identify, adapt, modify, or otherwise develop only those technologies that (i) are intended to provide military effectiveness equivalent to that provided by the relevant anti-personnel mine, or mixed anti-tank system; and (ii) would be affordable.

In connection with Condition (7), Certification with Regard to International Tribunals, with respect to the Amended Mines Protocol, the Convention on Conventional Weapons, or any future protocol or amendment thereto, the United States shall not recognize the jurisdiction of any international tribunal over the United States or any of its citizens.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

SPECIAL ORDERS
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 1999, and under a previous order of the Speaker, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

URGENCY REQUIRED IN DEALING WITH GUN SAFETY LEGISLATION
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of my remarks is to try and gain support within the Republican leadership to move and to move in an urgent fashion with respect to the gun safety provisions that have passed the Senate.

Mr. Speaker, this country has been shocked over the past 2 years as we have witnessed the shootings in Springfield, Oregon; Fayetteville, Tennessee; Edinboro, Pennsylvania; Jonesboro, Kansas; West Paducah, Kentucky; Pearl, Mississippi; and in Littleton, Colorado, as we have seen children take up arms against their schoolmates, against their friends, in school.

And while we will be discussing these matters at great length for a long period of time in the Congress as the Nation and the Congress come to grips with what we might do to try and prevent these actions in the future, one thing seems to be very clear among the people in this country, and I would hope among the people in the Congress and certainly among the Republican leadership, and that is that keeping guns out of the hands of kids will help to ensure that the feelings of anger and hostility do not lead to fatal shooting sprees.

We clearly need to listen to children and parents and make sure that school counseling and mental health resources are sufficient, and we must understand that the causes of youth violence are complicated and that the solutions must be broad-based, and we must strive to understand what brings children to this point where they would take up this violent action with guns against their schoolmates.

It is urgent to the American public that the Congress be able to respond to the problems of children having guns, having easy access to guns, and the irresponsibility of some parents who make those guns available or negligently leave those guns lying around the house, in many instances loaded and unlocked, with easy access by these children.

Last week the Senate passed several pieces of legislation designed to improve the margins of gun safety. If you will, requiring background checks for all gun sales, including gun shows. We have a companion bill here by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. BLAGOJEVICH) requiring new handguns to be sold with safety locks. We have companion legislation here by the gentlewoman from Indiana (Ms. CARSON) outlawing high lubration here by the gentlewoman from Virginia (Ms. BLUMENAUER) requiring new handguns to be sold with safety locks. We have companion legislation here by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. BLAGOJEVICH) requiring new handguns to be sold with safety locks.

I think that these are measures that the American public can understand, that the American public supports, that the American public, whatever their positions are with respect to gun control, understand that these are gun safety issues about the safety of our children.

Our children are, in many instances, some of our most vulnerable citizens, who go to school with all the expectations that we all went to school with when we were growing up, only to find out that it can become a shooting gallery because of the easy access of a troubled teen or a troubled youngster to these kinds of guns. Yet what we see is an effort to somehow not address this legislation on a timely fashion, not to take that legislation from the Senate and to pass it, not to have a freestanding piece of legislation which we can pass and send to the Senate that is identical to that which they passed so that they might be able to put it on the President's desk before we leave for Memorial Day.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN).

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BLAGOJEVICH) for yielding to me, and I strongly associate with his comments.

I have only been in Congress 3 years; but in the course of the time that I have been in Congress there have been eight multiple shootings on school yards.

I look at my colleague, the gentlewoman from Colorado (Ms. DEGETTE), and I was present earlier before tragic shootings in our State, seeking the attention of the Republican leadership and of this Congress to at least allow a vote on simple, common sense, direct approaches that would minimize the impact of gun violence with our children.

We pleaded, for instance, to have the opportunity to at least vote on the most benign of child access protection legislation in the last Congress. We were denied the opportunity in the last Congress, Mr. Speaker.

Guns cause one in every four deaths among young people. It was frustrating for me that we could have 15 States, starting with the State that was the home of the Chair of that subcommittee, that had child access protection, the State of Florida, 15 States have followed, and yet we have not been able to have the most innocuous of votes in this Chamber.

That is why we are asking the Republican leadership to schedule this debate, to schedule this vote this week before we go home for Memorial Day, Memorial Day, a rather significant day in the history of this country. But tragically now many will be celebrating Memorial Day at the loss of their children because of this tragic shootings. I think that is why we cannot play this by the ordinary rules of legislative procedure and process and jurisdiction and all of those arguments that are designed to keep these common sense approaches from coming to the floor of the House to be voted on.

Why are they doing that? Because the people who oppose trigger locks on guns that are accessible to children, that the American public supports, because the American public can understand, that the American public wants, that is not available.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER).

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me, and I strongly associate with his comments.

Last week the Senate passed several pieces of legislation designed to improve the margins of gun safety. If you will, requiring background checks for all gun sales, including gun shows. We have a companion bill here by the gentlewoman from Indiana (Ms. CARSON) outlawing high lubration here by the gentlewoman from Virginia (Ms. BLUMENAUER).
I am pleased that finally we are starting to see some movement that we have seen some action on the Senate side on this issue. In fact, the Republican leadership will find it in their heart to allow a vote on the floor of this Chamber. There are a number of proposals that have absolutely nothing to do with the rights of the hunting population around this country. In fact, they are supported by the overwhelming majority of gun owners.

Why? Why do we still sell guns in this country that do not tell one whether or not there is a bullet in the chamber? There are dozens of proposals that we do not spend a few cents, up to 75 cents or a dollar, to have a mechanism so that when the clip is removed from the magazine that, perhaps, we do not have some kind of mechanism that sweeps the chamber and unloads it? Why is it that there are more consumer protection devices for toy guns than real guns?

Mr. Speaker, I think the time has come for more people on this floor to seize control of this issue ourselves. If it takes a discharge petition in order to bring this issue to the floor, let us try it. If it takes a petition to get these simple, common sense steps that will save children's lives, that are in fact supported not just by the majority of Americans, but by the majority of the gun-owning Americans, I think that the time has come.

I deeply appreciate the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) yielding me some time. I appreciate this discussion that is taking place here this evening. I hope the American public will add their voice so that they are in fact heard and this Congress here this evening. We hope the American public will support this discussion that is taking place from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) and perhaps the Republican leadership will find it in their heart to allow a vote on the floor of this Chamber.

America.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Colorado (Ms. DEGETTE).

Ms. DEGETTE. Mr. Speaker, Columbine High School is just a few blocks from my congressional district. Columbine High School had its graduation this last weekend, honoring those kids who graduated with their class and honoring those who could not be there.

No one would be so shallow as to suggest that the only solution to these terrible shootings we have had in high schools around the country is gun control. But a troubled youth who does not have a gun is a troubled youth. A troubled youth with a gun is a killer.

I have been inundated with calls. Many of my colleagues have been inundated with calls from around the country, from suburban parents, moms and dads, from urban and rural parents, moms and dads, asking the simple question: Why cannot we do something, a little something, to keep guns out of the hands of troubled young people?

No one believes that children in an unsupervised way, especially in or around a school, should have a gun. There are several proposals that we can pass on behalf of the American public and on behalf of American children, simple proposals which will give safety for guns and kids.

The first proposal is one which will make gun shows comply with the same laws that gun shops comply with. Gun show owners, to sell a gun in somebody's hands, have got to conduct a background check. They have got to have some identification to know that the person buying the gun is 18 years old or older. They have to have some kind of registration and way to trace that they sold the gun.

Gun shows can have numerous dealers which are not registered and which can sell guns to anybody for any amount of money, no questions asked. Congress has not been as effective as it should. Last June, a staff member from my Denver office walked into a gun show in the Denver area, the Tanner Gun Show. The Tanner Gun Show is held 10 times a year. He bought a gun, no questions asked, cash on the barrel head, $450. It was a semi-automatic weapon. The two boys at Columbine High School bought their guns at the Tanner Gun Show, the very same gun show we had been at just a few months before.

Another thing we can do before we leave this week is we can pass legislation banning once and for all multiple-round ammunition cartridges. Why on earth does one need a cartridge of 15 or 25 or 30 bullets to hunt? One does not need those. Those cartridges are designed to kill human beings, and kill human beings they did, at Columbine High School. They kill police officers around the country every year. We thought we banned them in 1996. But because of a loophole in the law, these cartridges are still legally available, and that loophole needs to be closed.

Last, but certainly not least, Congress can pass legislation this week which will establish child safety locks on guns. This would prevent kids who should not have been getting them and using them. This is a common sense proposal. Parents across this country want to know why Congress has not enacted this law already.

As I said, Columbine High School's graduation was last Friday. Many more schools will still be in session through next week. Congress should send a message to the parents across America that we care; that part of the solution, although not all of the solution, is that Congress will take steps to enact child gun safety laws, not next month, not next fall, not sometime in the future, but now, before school is out, to begin to ensure the safety of every child across America.

That is why I appreciate the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) taking on this important task tonight. That is why I intend to work this week to let our Speaker and every member of this Congress know Congress must discuss child gun safety legislation and pass common sense, narrowly drawn rules before we leave for the Memorial Day recess. The only and best way we can memorialize these kids this week in Congress is to pass legislation before Memorial Day.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman very much for her remarks and thank her for the kind of vehicle she is going to provide the Congress to express its opinion to get this done now.

As she points out, these are provisions, the safety locks on guns, the getting rid of the loophole provided by gun shows as opposed to gun shops, and multiple rounds, high-density ammunition clips, these are very common-sense remedies and closure of loopholes that the American people understand and that they support.

The Senators in the United States Senate have passed these provisions.
They should be sent over here. We should pass a freestanding bill and make sure that. We can have this become law before our children get back to school. It is important that we address it with that kind of urgency.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. Jackson-Lee).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding. I particularly thank him for allowing me to join him and my colleagues on an issue of such moment. If you will, and to be able to say to the American people and to my colleague, common sense tells us that guns do kill.

They do kill. Ask any law enforcement officer, any person who is responsible for keeping law and order. Ask teachers. Ask police. Ask anyone who has asked injured children and ask the loved ones of those who are killed.

I have heard the response by those who are advocates of the idea that the Second Amendment should prevail above all, that guns do not kill, people do. But people use guns to kill. And I think the American people are way out in front on this issue right now, because if we read the Second Amendment, it has to do with the keeping of a militia for a founding country of 13 colonies trying to survive.

And do my colleagues know what? We have a militia, the National Guard. And no one is trying to take guns away from the National Guard. We also know that the people of America have guns in their homes, and no one is trying to take guns away from the American people.

But in 1995, over 440 children died just of unintentional shootings alone. In my home City of Houston, a few years ago, almost 10 years ago, I did something unheard of. I rose up off of City Council and said, we are going to pass an ordinance that holds adults responsible for allowing guns to get in the hands of children.

If my colleagues know Texas, and I do not think my fellow Texans will allow me to praise them as well as to cite that it was an unheard of thing to do for a City Council member to do in the City of Houston. And there was a lot of opposition. The National Rifle Association sent people in to testify against it. But the mothers came forward and said, we want this.

Out of that ordinance came a State law that is now in place in the State of Texas that holds parents responsible, holds parents responsible, for letting guns get in the hands of children. And what we have seen is a 50-percent decrease in unintentional shootings since that was what it was to be directed toward.

To the family in Conyers, Georgia, if those guns had been more secure, as we are attempting to say to parents, not only in a nice display case with a glass front that could be broken, but away from the eyesight of children, it is our responsibility to try and keep them out of their hands so we can keep law enforcement officers safe as well.

Firearms are the fourth leading cause of accidental death among children 5 to 14 and the third leading cause of death among 15 to 24 years old. If this were a medical problem, we would call it an epidemic. In 1994, 70 percent of the murder victims between the ages of 15 and 17 were killed by a handgun and 2 in 25 high school students, almost 8 percent, reported having carried a gun in the last 30 days.

As a member of the House Committee on the Judiciary, we have had an opportunity to move this legislation forward. In fact, we could have done just what the Senate did to amend the juvenile bill to be a Senate, just passed with common-sense response to these gun issues.

We could, for example, stamp out the loophole in gun shows. Enormously important. We could provide for the safety devices that would protect our children and to realize that they protect others, as well.

My colleagues could not imagine the gun shows that travel around the Nation. And many times there are store owners that participate in these gun shows. But let me assure my colleagues, there are a lot of individuals who come and say, I have no license. I have no permit. I have nothing. I am just here. And the reason I have nothing is because these are in my personal possession.

This is a loophole. And so, we get the individual driving up to the gun show with 25 AK–47s and they say, this is part of my personal ownership. And they sell 10 or 15 to an individual who gives no reason. I have talked to law enforcement officers who went and bought a gun from someone, an automatic rifle, and said, “I am going to use this to kill a cop in New York.”

And the person who was unlicensed. “All right. Here is a silencer to go with it. But make sure when you do it, do not call my name.”

There are too many guns in America. And most Americans want to be safe in their homes. They want law enforcement officers to be safe, as well. And so, I am joining with my colleagues to ensure the closing the loophole in the gun shows. I would like to see a Brady waiting period for those gun shows to protect individuals. I want to see raising the handgun purchase age from 18 to 21.

I think child safety locks are an imperative.

And frankly, I wish we could pass the same legislation in the comprehensive gun legislation offered by my colleagues from New York (Mrs. McCarthy) to deal with the idea of holding adults responsible.

When I spoke to some parents and teachers and explained to them that, no, I am not trying to disadvantage parents, I chair the Congressional Children’s Caucus, I do not want to point the blame and put parents, who are already distraught, in a situation where they are criminally liable, but I think such a piece of legislation is common sense, and I think if they understand it fully, they would be running towards supporting it.

Because what it says is, know what your children are doing. Do not leave guns on coffee tables and in places conspicuously, where the child can get it. And if their child is in a garage or reading the Internet and building bombs, they need to know what is going on. Because we have to protect their children and our children. And how much more can we get from not listening to our children.

Let me close by simply saying to my colleagues, and I thank again the gentleman from California for yielding, that we know that there are other aspects of this, the video and entertainment industry. I am working on legislation that deals with the mental health services, an omnibus mental health services for our children that deals with schools but also deals with other needs that our children have, so that if they are on medication they are not off of it one day and on it the next day.

I think America should be ashamed that we have a children’s memorial that acknowledges the number of children that have been killed by guns. And allow me to share with my colleagues.

Chris Hollowell, age 5, was unintentionally shot and killed by his 10-year-old brother.

Brian Crowell, 12, was unintentionally shot by a 14-year-old.

Amanda Garza died from a gunshot wound to the head after shooting herself with a .357 Magnum.

Amanda Rogers, dead, 6 years old, was playing with a Nintendo with her cousin and was unintentionally shot by them.

Karissa Miller, 2, was unintentionally shot and killed by a 7-year-old boy.

Christopher Murphy, 11 years old, the son of two police officers, unintentionally shot and killed by his 11-year-old friend.

Christopher David Holt, 4, unintentionally shot and killed himself with a .357 Magnum.

Amanda Zuckenberg, 13, shot and killed at home when a teenage boy was showing off his gun.

I can go on and on, pages and pages of young children who died at the hand of a gun. Not a knife, not a stick, but a gun.

I think it is time now to say that we will not go home for this Memorial Day recess unless we stand up and be counted in the United States Congress and...
I yield to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HASTERT), join us in getting this legislation on the floor of the House because our children are dying and we cannot stand by any longer.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, my colleague from California (Mr. George Miller), he and I are on the same Committee on Education and the Workforce; and in the last past year and a half, we have talked about violence in our schools, we have talked about what can be done.

A week ago Tuesday, we had six young people come in to talk to us, talk to us about how gun violence has affected their lives. And it was very hard because here we had so many young people that faced death, lost their friends.

There are many of us that are victims. A lot of us are adults. We try and say we can handle that kind of pain. But even as adults, it is always hard. But to hear the young people talk about what is happening in their schools, it was a real heartbreaker. And yet, here in Congress we continually hear silence.

I came to Congress to try and reduce gun violence in this country. That was a promise I made to my son. It is a promise I have made to my new grandson. It is something I plan on doing. And we have had our Littletons, we have had our shootings in Georgia, so many shootings. But I want people to look at this because this is where people do not realize what is happening. We have a Littleton every single day.

Every single day, we lose 13 young people, whether it is an accidental death, whether it is a suicide, or whether it is a homicide, we lose 13 young children a day.

We have an opportunity here in Congress to try and do something. We have been talking about comprehensive reform on reducing gun violence and helping our young people. And yet in the Senate the other night, when they asked for more money for school counselors and psychologists, it was voted down. That can be a package.

No one is saying that it is not just guns. There are a lot of factors that go into gun violence. The young fellow in Georgia, when he shot six of his classmates, he was really on the verge of suicide. He does not understand why he did what he did.

We can help a lot of these kids. What I am hearing constantly is, this is too big for all of us to handle. We cannot do anything about it. But do my colleagues know what? That is what we hear when they want defeat before they even start.

We have to change the debate. When I am home in my district, I have NRA members that come up to me all the time, “Carolyn, we support what you are doing.” But then we have so many Members that are afraid of the NRA leadership. They are afraid of what they can do to them as congresspersons.

Certainly, they are not going to come after me about guns in my district because the people in my district support me on what I am trying to do. But we have Members here, and they have every right to be afraid of the NRA because the NRA will come in and say “we have to have a reloading bill” “we have absolutely nothing to do with guns, or make up lies. And they do make up lies.

What I am asking the American people, the mothers, the fathers of this land, call their congresspersons, give them the support that they need. Because if we only hear from one side, I guarantee my colleagues, in a couple of months, we will be back here when school opens again and there will be another shooting in the school and people will say, why can we not do something?

A year ago, when we had a committee hearing, a psychologist said it was not a matter of if there would be another school shooting, it was a matter of when there would be another school shooting.

But a lot of these young people that were shot, killed, injured, they did not make the newspapers across the country. They might have made it in their hometown newspaper, but they did not make it on the front pages, because they are all individuals.

My colleague before me talked about a health care crisis. We have four young people left in Colorado that have spinal cord injuries. Do you know what it is going to cost the American people on health care? The estimates, the low estimates of health care to our young people on a yearly basis for those that survive their injuries is $14 billion. $14 billion. Can you imagine what we could do with that? Can you imagine what we could do with that money here in Congress? Education, health care, all the things that we want to do.

I am asking every mom, every dad, let us hear from you. We have to hear your voices. Grassroots, that is what we need. That is what changes and certainly motivates this Congress, but not, there are a number of us that will continue to fight to reduce gun violence in this country, but it would be nice if we had a few more voices to be heard so we could give our colleagues the strength to do the right thing. They have got to hear from you. If you want to make a difference, then your voice does count. Do not sit there saying, “Oh, so and so will call. I don’t have to.” You have to let the Congresspeople here know what you want. Then we will win.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I thank the gentlewoman very much for her remarks and think she makes a very important point. It is highly unlikely that we will have this kind of common sense gun legislation to help protect our children, to help protect our communities from the easily accessible and irresponsible ownership of guns, if the American people do not call their Members of Congress and insist upon it.

Over the last couple of weeks as I have been talking in my district and talking to groups and just being on the streets of my district, people have come to me and asked time and again: Why can you not do this and do it now?

When they saw the Senate did not do it, they were infuriated, and the Senate doubled back and took a new vote and then came in line with what the American people wanted. Then the Senate doubled back a second time and came in line with what the American people wanted.

But apparently the Republican leadership in this House and the NRA are going to delay this legislation, fully understanding that delay is the enemy of legislation, that you get it jammed up at the end of the session against a recess, against the appropriations bills, and this starts to fall through the cracks, and it is nobody’s fault and it is everybody’s fault.

We need the American people to call the Republican leadership, to call their Members of Congress and tell them that these three or four measures, very common sensical measures, should be passed and should be passed immediately. They could, if in fact the leadership wanted to do it, be passed before we leave for Memorial Day.

They are having a hearing on the day we leave town, because then they are hoping for a week where there will not be any discussion of this measure and there will not be any action of our measure. I want the American people to have Congress address this when we come back, and pretty soon we will find ourselves addressing it in September or October. It is the oldest legislative strategy in this town, just delay and delay.

Already we see Members that are supporters of the NRA going around the floor with checklists from the NRA trying to line up their support, who we have given their contributions to, how will they stand tough on this. That is why they want the time. They want the time to kill this bill, not to give it great general consideration but to kill these ideas that have passed overwhelmingly in the Senate of the United States. I would hope that people would heed your call for them to call Members of Congress and ask them to pass these child gun safety measures that have been passed by the Senate.

I yield to the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding and I particularly thank him for his leadership on this special order, because there is a hunger and a thirst in the American public for this legislation and for education about this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, this chart came home to the American people finally in Littleton and in Georgia. Close to 60,000 deaths during the tragic Vietnam War are 11 years. That is compared to 11 years at home, close to 400,000 deaths, increasingly the deaths of children. The reason that so many of us on both sides of the aisle cannot go home for Memorial Day without a bill is that we cannot find our constituents without a bill, not after the massacre in Littleton and the attempted massacre in Georgia.

I want to focus for just a few minutes on gun shows, because frankly I was ignorant until recently of the fact that anybody can buy a gun at a gun show free of any federal requirement. I am sure most of the public does not know that there is no Federal requirement that says that a person with a mental defect has to be checked before buying at a gun show, with a felony conviction has to be checked before buying at a gun show, or even that a child has to be checked before buying at a gun show. Remember that some of the guns used in Littleton were bought at a gun show.

The gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) was on the floor earlier. He is from the district adjoining mine. My district has an absolute ban on guns of any and every kind. Many of those guns come from gun shows in Virginia, because anybody can buy a gun at a gun show in Virginia. Maryland also provides guns through gunrunning into the District of Columbia.

That is why we need Federal law and Federal regulation. State by State is almost useless, given how porous are the boundaries in our country. We can go from one place to the other. You do not have to go through any kind of check to go from one place to the other, and it is a free country and we would not want you to have to go through a check. But we do want to contain these guns so that we can begin to deal with these contrasts.

The gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN), the ranking member of the Committee on Government Reform, and I sat on a special hearing before the Georgia incident where we heard astounding testimony from the GAO on how easy it is to buy .50 caliber sniper rifles from dealers, leave aside gun shows. Now, a .50 caliber sniper rifle is a rifle that can penetrate armor if you stand out on the back steps of the Capitol and aim it toward the Lincoln Memorial.

The GAO went undercover and asked for .50 caliber weapons of the kind, to use their words, that would pierce a limousine or bring down a helicopter. My friends, this is the Nation’s capital. The people who ride in limousines and helicopters are Members of Congress, the President, the Vice President, and members of the Cabinet.

What this says, of course, is that even here, someone who wanted to take out anybody from the highest official to anyone that is if it will not make much a city or the region could buy a gun from a legitimate dealer, even telling them virtually that that is what they wanted to do. Imagine what a person with a mental defect could do by going to a gun show.

We must remember that this very building was the site of the assassination of two brave Capitol policemen. That gun was shot by a schizophrenic man. At a gun show, he might easily have purchased such a weapon.

The long and short of it, my friends, is that what we have in this country is massive gunrunning across the borders, between one State and another, sometimes shipped in large numbers. The result is that in the large cities such as the one I represent, the District of Columbia, the murders take place one by one. Now in the suburbs the murders take place in groups, by massacre. Choose your style. The difference is the same. They are all our children.

I focus this evening because of the ages of the youngsters in the last two incidents. A 15-year-old in Georgia, a 17 and an 18-year-old in Littleton. These are precisely the ages of children that could go into a gun show today in many States and purchase a weapon.

Sometimes we are told that what was passed in the Senate the other day will not make much difference, it is at the margins, why pass it? The simple answer to that make much a difference, then pass it. If in fact those who cherish guns think that these bills will not hurt them very much, then pass the bills. There will be some slight inconvenience to the legitimate public, but who would say that that inconvenience would not be worth it if the lives of only a few children were saved?

And may I remind the House that most of the deaths we will never hear about because they are accidental deaths. We hear about the massacres, we hear about the drive-by shootings. But when these guns are kept in homes, they are most often used accidentally by family members or friends within the homes. The 15-year-old youngster broke into a locked chest to get the gun that he used in suburban Georgia last week.

The silent deaths, the accidental deaths will be reduced, and certainly the deaths that have outraged the country will be reduced if we pass the legislation that has been passed finally from the Senate last week. That is the very least this House can do if we want to make sure that this gap never appears again in our country.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. I thank very much the gentlewoman for her remarks. I want to thank my colleagues who joined me in this special order to try and urge the Republican leadership to pass this week the common sense gun safety provisions that have passed the Senate of the United States.

We do so with the full understanding that the problems and the tragedies in Littleton or in Georgia or in Oregon or in Kentucky and other such States where young people have taken up guns and assaulted and killed their classmates and their friends, that that problem will not be addressed solely with the questions of gun safety legislation. But clearly in each of these cases or most of these cases, what we find is the easy access of young children, in some cases disturbed young children with the irresponsible possession of guns in the home.

We believe that trigger locks will help increase the margin of safety in our communities. We believe that not letting young people go into gun shows or people go into gun shows on behalf of young people and with no questions asked be able to buy a gun, a gun they could not buy if they went into a gun shop. They could not do that. They would have to undergo that check. We urge the leadership to pass these common sense gun safety measures.

I yield to the gentlewoman from Guam.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding. I want to extend my congratulations for this excellent special order on the issue of the proliferation of guns. Even in a place as remote as Guam, which lies some 9,000 miles away from here, a couple of weeks ago a couple of young ladies in middle school were detained in school for having handguns, bringing handguns to school. Guam, the place that I come from, is a place where lots of people own weapons.

Fortunately, most people on Guam who feel that they need to own weapons are in total agreement with their registration and with their regulation, so I am happy to report that. But it appears to me that certainly the country’s supply of weapons, the availability of weapons, the easy access of weapons is really the crux of what we are getting at.
It is rather clear that the guns in and of themselves may not be causing these violent episodes that our Nation has been subjected to, but certainly the fact that the weapons are so easily available has made sometimes what would be seen as minor violent acts turn into major, major tragedies, and I cannot help but wonder where is the wisdom that is supposed to be part of the legislative body that we belong to in trying not to address this issue when it is rather obvious that this cries out for action.

As a career educator, and actually early on in my career I was what would be seen as a disciplinarian in a very large high school, and I served in that capacity for several years, one of the things that certainly would help us in trying to deal with all the issues that are at Littleton to the growth of children and the work of children inside educational institutions is to not allow the opportunity to have things that would be harmful to them. And we think of all the things that we deny them that would be harmful to them, think of all the efforts, extraordinary efforts, that we go through to deny them things that we know are not in their own best interests, things which may lead to tragic circumstances; and yet we seem to hesitate, we seem to falter when it comes to the issue of guns.

So I certainly appreciate and I want to congratulate the work of the gentleman from California (Mr. MILLER) and all the other speakers during this special order.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Guam.

Finally, I just like to say, Mr. Speaker, the opportunity we have been given with a group of students at Pinole Valley High School in my district and had subsequent conversations with five of those students, Brian Davenport, Marcus Maxwell, Jamiann Johnson, Kari Washington and Brett Parsons about Littleton, and those students and the students in the larger group had spent a great deal of time watching the news, listening to the news on the Internet, over the networks and elsewhere, acquiring information about what took place.

They clearly understood that this was about them, it was about their peers, it was about their generation, children of their same age, and they were terribly troubled about it, and they understood that this is not a problem that can be answered with one solution, that it is, in fact, very complex. I was also quite pleasantly surprised, the extent to which the students understood they clearly had a very strong role that is the solution to these outbreaks of rage and the violence and the killing that have taken place in these schools, that they understood that maybe they should be nicer to some of their fellow students, that there were students who they knew were somewhat loners or did not feel a part of the school body but these students should extend themselves, they should go over and talk to them, that maybe they should stop making fun of students or characterizing students because of the way they dressed, whether they had the latest clothes or they did not have the latest clothes, or the latest sneakers, or the wrong color clothes or what have you; that they had to think about not doing that, that students should not be characterized and categorized whether or not they participate in a religious organization after school or the debate club or they were on the track team or the football team.

All of these cliques that are natural, very much the natural during the adolescent years in schools, they understood that that was unfair to those students. They had formed, they had many celebrations of their differences at Pinole High School over the years. The day I was there, they decided to celebrate their unity, to celebrate their sameness, to celebrate the fact that they were part of one student body drawn from many different communities.

It was a very exciting thing to see happen in response to Littleton.

So while we are focused on guns this evening and while we are focused on the need of the Republican leadership to expedite the consideration of these common sense gun safety measures, we also appreciate the complexity and the magnitude of this problem.

And let us not forget, let us not forget as we keep talking about children and schools and violence and killings, the 25,000 children who are enrolled in 20,000 schools nationwide. Eight of those youths in six schools perpetrated the school killings of the last 8 months. Twenty-five million children came and went to school every day without being subjected to this danger or perpetrating this danger. We are talking about a handful of young children.

Some people have suggested, and I think the minority whip said it this week in Salt Lake City: The problem is not guns, the problem is we are raising children to kill children.

No, we are not raising children to kill children. Twenty-five million teenagers went to school yesterday, the day before, and the day before Littleton and the day before all of these tragedies, and afterwards, and did not engage in the killing of their classmates or their friends. But a very small handful, because of the easy access and proximity and the irresponsible ownership of these guns in their homes and the easy ability to purchase them through a loophole in the law at gun shows; that handful of students was able to perpetrate an incredible amount of violence and incredible amount of killing on their school friends and on their communities.

So this is not to suggest that these are children of a generation of a culture of violence and killing because it is not true. Those kinds of generalizations will cause us to miss the problem, will cause us to miss the complexity of it.

But what we do know in this particular case was these young people had relatively easy access to these guns, and what we do know is that we have that part, as my colleagues know, that part of the solution coming together in the passage of these measures that have passed the Senate.

So I think we ought to keep and we ought to understand our children, and we should not, we should not paint them with the very broad brush of a really bad and very, very small handfuls of children that have perpetrated this kind of violence over the last 18 months. If this was the culture of violence in this young generation, as Michael Males, who is at the School for Social Ecology at the University of California, Irvine, points out, if this was a culture of violence, if we had raised children to kill children, then these killings would not be thousands of miles apart and months apart. This is what all children would be doing.

But they are not doing it. Like all of the children before them, they are going to school to get an education, to socialize and become part of their community, to grow up and to mature and decide what they are going to do with the rest of their lives. Their parents did not raise them to kill children.

But some parents unfortunately have been very irresponsible about leaving loaded guns and leaving firearms around, easily accessible to their children, apparently have not had the kind of communication imposed upon their children the kind of discipline I grew up with about a gun.

I hunted, my father hunted, my children hunt. We have very, very strict rules about when one can touch a gun and when they cannot touch a gun and what to do with a gun in the house and what to do with the gun in the field.

Now some parents apparently have not been able to convey that or not willing to convey that or do not understand the kind of risk. We have got to deal with the questions of that kind of parental irresponsibility and with placing some responsibility and liability on those who fail to be the proper custodians of their children and of these firearms.

Mr. WU. Mr. Speaker, the tragedy at Columbine was heartbreaking for all Americans, but it was particularly difficult for the people in my home state of Oregon, where we endured a similar tragedy just one year ago at Thurston High School in Springfield.

At Thurston High, two young students were killed, and America reacted with sadness and sympathy.

At Columbine High, as we all know, thirteen students were killed by the two gunmen. America reacted with profound grief and a renewed sense of urgency.

Ladies and Gentlemen, thirteen children die every day in America—the result of handgun violence. Columbine happens every single day.

It is not nearly as dramatic, there are no CNN cameras, the nation does not stop and hold its breath, and watch . . .

But, every day in America, 13 children die unnecessary deaths from guns.

This is a children’s health epidemic—and it is high time this Congress start paying attention to it, and take some steps in the right direction. Now is the right time to begin the search for answers. Clearly, this is not an easy task. There are many approaches we can take to reduce youth violence:

- We can make it easier for parents to spend time with their children.
- We can reduce class size so teachers can identify troubled children, and get them the help they need.
- We can better teach our young people the value of human life.
- We can devote more resources to school counselors and mental health providers.
- And we can simply open up the channels of communication between adults and teenagers . . .

What I’ve learned from listening to Oregon students in their schools, is that perhaps the most important thing we can do to make schools safer, is to create an atmosphere where it is more acceptable for students to talk to adults when they see danger signs.

These are all important steps . . .

Each will be helpful, but none alone or all together will be effective enough to curb this health epidemic without a commitment from this Congress to make guns less accessible to young people.

Conflicts and emotions that get the better of people can sometimes be sorted out with words, sometimes they get sorted out with fists, or with knives . . .

But the only tool of anger that can mow down thirteen students in a school library—is a gun.

Simply passing laws will not address the root causes of this tragedy, but there are steps we can take to keep guns out of the hands of violent juveniles.

That is why I urge my colleagues to support reasonable gun safety measures being introduced by Democrats:

First, let’s close the “gun show loophole,” which allows criminals to trade weapons anonymously. By instituting background checks for those seeking to anonymously purchase firearms at gun shows, we can make guns less accessible to criminals, and to violent youths.

Second, let’s raise the minimum age for handgun purchases from 18 to 21.

Third, let’s make sure that guns are childproofed at least as well as a bottle of aspirin—by requiring gunmakers to equip all guns with child safety locks.

And finally, let’s show the American people that we’re serious about stopping the illegal transfer of guns. I hope my colleagues will join Mr. WEXLER of Florida, myself, 95 other Democrats and Vice President, Ms. MORELLA, in supporting HR 315—a bill which limits the number of handgun purchases to one per month.

Once again, I don’t think that any law will ever be a complete solution. None of us do.

But we’re not expected to always find the complete solution. We are here to do what we can to make this country better, safer, healthier, and more prosperous.

These sensible measures are steps in the right direction, steps down a right and sensible path.

I hope our colleagues on the other side of the aisle will take these steps with us. Sooner rather than later.

Because this is an epidemic that waits for none of us. Every day we wait—thirteen more children die—another Columbine—every single day.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California.

Mr. Speaker, these three measures that have passed the Senate are the beginning step in that area, so I want to thank my colleagues who joined me in this special order. I plead with the American public to call their Member of Congress, to call the Republican leadership, ask them to schedule these gun safety measures as soon as possible, to do it this week. We have a relatively clear calendar. It can all be passed and wrapped up before we go home for the Memorial Day break.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that all Members have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the subject of my special order today.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

CLINTON ADMINISTRATION CREATING PERCEPTION THAT ALL IS WELL IN THE WORLD

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. WELDON) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, we can only spin national security issues and concerns so long, and eventually the truth catches up to us.

The truth is about to hit the fan this week in Washington on the national security concerns of this country.

For 7 years, Mr. Speaker, we have heard the rhetoric coming from the White House that the world is safe, there are no problems, our security is intact, and therefore, we can dramatically cut the size of our defense forces and we can, in fact, shift that money over to other purposes.

During the 7 years that that has occurred, Democrats and Republicans alike in this body and the other body have joined together to constantly remind the administration that things were not quite as good as they were being portrayed to the American people.

Unfortunately, we were not as successful as we would have liked. In fact, Mr. Speaker, State of the Union speech after State of the Union speech the President would stand before the American people and would talk about the economy, would talk about jobs, would talk about crimes domestically, but no mention of national security concerns.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, this past January, as I sat through the State of the Union speech in this very room, I timed the President’s speech. He spoke for 1 hour and 17 minutes.

The total amount of time he devoted to national security was 90 seconds, 90 seconds to talk about the problems we have with our relationship with China, 90 seconds to talk about the problems that are resulting from the economic instability in Russia, 90 seconds to talk about the proliferation that has now caused Iran and Iraq and Syria and Libya to begin to develop medium- and eventually long-range missile systems, 90 seconds to talk about the sabre-rattling between India and Pakistan, 90 seconds to talk about the problems with North Korea, both our nuclear development program and their testing of long-range missiles which the CIA acknowledges now for the first time ever can actually hit the mainland of the U.S.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, during those 90 seconds, all the President did was point up to the gallery and praise one of our young pilots.

Mr. Speaker, support for our military is not when the commander in chief parades a group of soldiers down the White House lawn for a photo op, it is not when the commander in chief stands on the deck of an aircraft carrier and talks about the pride in our services while morale is reaching an all-time low. We have serious problems, Mr. Speaker, and this week, starting tomorrow, those problems are going to be made available for the American people to see first hand.

Now, as I said earlier, Mr. Speaker, we are aware that this administration has tried to create the perception, and with a great deal of success, that everything is okay in the world, all is safe, Russia is our new friend, China is our new friend and partner, we do not have to worry about the Balkans because we have got our troops deployed.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, what has been occurring over the past 7 years with Secretary of State Madeleine Albright’s concerns expressed by both Democrats and Republicans alike in this body is that we have committed our troops to too many places in a short period of time to be effective in modernizing for the future and in protecting America's vital interests around the world.

I brought this comparison frequently, Mr. Speaker, and I want to use it again:

In the time period from the end of World War II until 1991, during the administration of all those Presidents in between, from Harry Truman through Democrat and Republican administrations ending with George Bush, all of those commanders in chief, as they have the ability to under our Constitution, deployed our troops a total of 10 times, 10 times at home and around the world. Some of those deployments were very serious, like Korea and Vietnam and Desert Storm.

Since 1991, Mr. Speaker, our current commander in chief has deployed our troops 33 times, 33 times in 8 years versus 10 times in 40 years. Mr. Speaker, none of these deployments were paid for, none of them were budgeted for, none of these deployments had the administration asking the Congress to vote in support of the deployment before our troops were committed. In the case of Bosnia, it was not that this Congress is isolationist. Nothing could be further from the truth. The problem in this Congress among Democrats and Republicans was why was America putting 36,000 troops into Bosnia when, for instance, Germany right next door, our friend and ally, was only committing 4,000 troops? It was a question of fairness. Why was America being asked in each of these 33 deployments to pick up an unusually large amount of the responsibility?

In Kosovo today, when we see the nightly news of the bombing raids the previous night, we see U.S. and British planes conducting the bulk of those air strikes, yet largely paid for by NATO. I, Mr. Speaker, as NATO's candidate, the U.S. is only supposed to provide 22 percent of the support for NATO.

So Members of Congress rightfully ask the question, where are the other NATO allies? Why is not Europe paying a larger role in these kinds of operations?

In fact, Mr. Speaker, that was the reason why we passed the supplemental bill several weeks ago and just last week approved the defense authorization bill, calling for increases in funding to partially replace the funds that were siphoned off to pay for these 33 deployments, none of which were budgeted for.

When the President would commit our troops to, say, Bosnia or to Haiti, we would then have to find the money in our defense budget, taking it from other programs or from quality of life issues for the troops to pay the costs of these operations. The comptroller of the Pentagon estimates that that cost us $19 billion over the past 7 years. In fact, Bosnia alone has already cost us close to $10 billion. At a time where we have been convinced that the world is safer, when the number of our troops are today at this time deployed all over the world, we have decimated our ability to prepare for the future in our military.

Some other things have occurred, Mr. Speaker and I want to talk about them briefly.

First of all, this President, working along with Tony Blair from Great Britain, decided it was in the best interest of the U.S. and Britain, along with our NATO allies. And make no mistake about it, the bulk of NATO is decided by our President and Tony Blair. NATO really is dependent upon the leadership of the U.S. and Britain. I do not think Luxembourg would have much of a chance in stopping America from doing anything it wanted in terms of NATO. The decision to go into Kosovo was one that required the debate and the consent of this body, but that was not to be.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, hindsight always being 20/20 we can now look back, as I have, and talk to some of our analysts in the intelligence operation, which I have. In fact, Mr. Speaker, I have learned that every CIA analyst in the CIA, every one of them, unanimously agree that an aerial attack on Serbia and Kosovo would not stop ethnic cleansing.

The CIA, for all of its faults, and I have learned, and talked to some of our analysts on the Balkans told this administration that the bombing that we eventually got involved in would cause a massive problem of refugees. The CIA Balkan analysts told the administration that the bombing that we would not work; would not stop the ethnic cleansing.

All of this was done prior to the administration's decision. In fact, there were documents internally within the intelligence community, submitted to the administration, outlining the CIA's concern that if the bombing took place it would cause a humanitarian catastrophe, and that is exactly what has happened. It is far worse than just the humanitarian catastrophe.

In fact, many of those analysts said that we actually contributed to the refugee crisis because when we bombed, it obviously caused the observers who were in the former Yugoslavia to leave that country, which then gave Milosevic a free hand to continue at a much higher level the ethnic cleansing and the significant attacks on innocent people.

So in effect, Mr. Speaker, what the intelligence community was saying to us, as a pre-condition to conduct the aerial campaign, was that if we went ahead, we would cause the situation to become much worse. That is exactly what has occurred.

We are now into our 60-something day of consecutive bombing and many in this body, having seen the fact that we have the money lined up forward to pay for the Kosovo deployment, which is now in excess of probably $2 billion, are now wondering what our strategy is to stop the bombing, what is our strategy to end the crisis. Since many of our colleagues, including myself, do not feel that we have a legitimate strategy to end the conflict, we wonder what the strategy is to win the conflict, because we are controlling what our military can and cannot do in Kosovo, in Serbia.

We are limiting the strikes. We never committed to a ground force. So the question we have to ask is, if we do not have a strategy to end the conflict, and if we do not have a strategy to win the this country really is evil? So why? For many of us, there is no strategy, Mr. Speaker. It is just a continuing massive amount of aerial attacks that in many cases are harming innocent civilians.

Now, let me add further, Mr. Speaker, if we have to look at the situation in the former Yugoslavia and see what we have done, we can look certainly at three different things. We have now rallied all of the people in Serbia, many of whom are against Milosevic, many of whom are ready to try to remove him forcefully, we have managed to rally all of them in support of Milosevic as their hero.

We have managed to help cause an extensive increase in the refugee crisis, to the extent now that we have almost 1 million men and women and children in outlying regions around Kosovo, with no decent housing and no decent food and no timetable to return them to their country.

We have done something else, Mr. Speaker. We have managed to do what one colleague of mine from the Russian Duma told me the Soviet communist party could not accomplish in 70 years, after expending billions of dollars, to convince the Russian people that America was evil, that we really were designed as a nation to hurt innocent people. He said Russians are now convinced, after some 55 days of bombing, which it was when he was here, that this country really is evil? So why? For many of us, there is no strategy, Mr. Speaker. It is just a continuing massive amount of aerial attacks that in many cases are harming innocent civilians.

with America, we who want to help you solve the proliferation problem in our country, we who want to get rid of the communist and the ultranationalist, you are being driven out because your policies in the Balkans are causing the Russian people to identify with the communists and the ultranationalists.

When the elections are held this year, if you continue this policy, you are going to drive Russia back into a Cold War era like we saw in the Soviet days.

Our policies in the Balkans are very much of a concern to me, not just because of the crisis being created with the Serbs and with the Kosovars and the refugees, but also because of the long-term implications in our relationship with Russia.

Now, make no mistake about it, Mr. Speaker. Like all of our colleagues in this body, I abhor what Milosevic has done. He is a thug. He is a war criminal, and after this is over we need to proceed in convening a war crimes tribunal.

Our policies, Mr. Speaker, have not succeeded either. We need to have this administration understand that continuing a mistake is worse than trying to find an honorable solution. We have that opportunity.

As I said on this floor several times, 11 Members of this body, 5 Democrats and 6 Republicans, attempted to find common ground with members of the Russian Duma 2 weeks ago in Vienna. We found that common ground. In fact, the agreement that we reached became the basis for the G-8 accord that came out 5 days later, which the U.S. was a signatory of.

That agreement calls for a negotiated settlement along the lines of the five key NATO principles that our President has laid out for us, which are most important for us. Now is the time for us to use the leverage that we have and our NATO partners have and Russia has to convince Milosevic that he must come to the table on our terms.

I am not convinced our administration is still at this very moment doing enough to engage the Russians in applying the appropriate pressure to Milosevic.

Mr. Speaker, the agreement that we reached in Vienna we brought back to Washington, we faxed to the 19 parliaments of all the NATO countries, and we asked them to apply pressure to their governments, not to cave into Milosevic, not to hand him a victory but to say now is the time to use our leverage to get this crisis done at the negotiating table, which I am firmly convinced can occur.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, we introduced a resolution in support of our framework agreement in this Congress last week, and held a congressional hearing in the Committee on International Relations last week on that resolution. The Duma, following our lead, did the same, and on Friday of last week the State Duma of the Russian Federation passed that document as a formal document.

We are now asking our leadership to work with us to accomplish a similar task, not because we are trying to embarrass the administration but because we understand the urgency of solving this crisis before any more lives are lost, before any more Americans are placed in harm’s way. Now is the time for this administration to stand up and do what is right, and that is to bring Milosevic to the table and to do it directly, and to use the Russian leverage, which is considerable, in having Milosevic agree to the terms that we laid out with our NATO friends. This disaster is having a terrible effect on our long-term relationship with Russia.

Mr. Speaker, we were supposed to have on Thursday of this week the Russian parliamentarians come back to Washington for a public press announcement in support of the work that we are doing. Because of the press of business and the fact that we will break for the Memorial Day recess this week, they will be coming back the first full week in June.

Something else will happen tomorrow, Mr. Speaker. Two things of significant importance to all of our colleagues, which I hope our colleagues will convey to every constituent all across America. The first is, between 4:00 and 6:30 we will host probably one of the most significant reporters on security issues in this city at a book signing ceremony in EF-100 of the U.S. Capitol building. Bill Gertz, who writes for the Washington Times, will be here to unveil to Members of Congress and our staff his book entitled "Betrayal." Every Member of Congress should read this book. In fact, it has hit the bestseller list in just the first week it was on the stands. Why is this book so important, Mr. Speaker? Because it details, in depth, an analysis of this spin on defense concerns in this country over the past 7 years.

In one chapter in this book Mr. Gertz goes into great detail to talk about an incident involving a Canadian and a U.S. military officer that were flying in a helicopter out in the Seattle area, when a Russian ship that was supposedly spying, pointed and fired a laser weapon at that helicopter. The laser beam hit our American officer in the eye and did permanent eye damage to him.

That incident, Mr. Speaker, if one reads the Gertz book, was covered up for 30 days. To this day, our government has never acknowledged that that was done, nor has that been admitted by a Russian laser generator on a Russian vessel. We did not do the proper investigation. We did not hold the Russians accountable.

Mr. Speaker, as my colleagues know, I am someone who spends a lot of time working on improving relations with Russia, but with Russia we have to understand one very basic tenet that Ronald Reagan knew very well. We must deal with the Russians from a position of strength, consistency and candor. When we are not candid with the Russians, when we do not call them when they violate treaties, when we do not ask them about things like Yamburg Mountain in the Urals where they are spending billions of dollars on a huge underground complex that we just do not know the purpose of, the Russians lose respect for us.

That is the problem this administration has with Russia. We were so concerned with not embarrassing Boris Yeltsin that we forgot over the past seven years that Russia had to be held accountable for those things that it did that were in violation of arms control regimes, that were things that destabilized our relationship, and we are now paying the price for those policies.

A second chapter in Mr. Gertz’s book deals with a letter that, in this book, has been classified. The letter was sent and signed by President Bill Clinton to President Boris Yeltsin. Mr. Speaker, every one of our colleagues needs to read this letter because in the letter our President tells Yeltsin, “Don’t worry. Our policies will help you in your reelection effort.”

We were so concerned about not doing anything to expose Russian problems for what they were that we even went to the length of ignoring reality. When the Russians transferred technology to Iran for the SHAHAB-3 missile, we ignored it. When we caught the Russians transferring accelerometers and gyroscopes to Iraq, we ignored it. We are now paying the price for those policies, Mr. Speaker, and our national security has been harmed because of the absolutely overwhelming proliferation that has gone out from Russia to every destabilized country in the world, technology being used for missile proliferation, weapons of mass destruction, because we did not want to hold the Russians accountable for violations and for their lack of tight controls in terms of technology that could be used abroad. We are now paying the price for those policies, and Russia is a much more destabilized nation.

Now, because of the Kosovo conflict, we are backing Russia into a corner, and the pro-western leaders in Russia are saying we are going to hand Russia over to the Communists and the ultranationalists if we do not get our policy back together. The Gertz book documents these stories, Mr. Speaker, and I would encourage our colleagues to stop by EF-100.
tomorrow between 4 o'clock and 6:30 to meet Bill Gertz personally and get a copy of his book to read for themselves.

In fact, I saw an article last week that the FBI may be considering actually pressing charges against Gertz for some of the revelations that he has exposed. It is an absolute shame and outrage, when, in America, we have to have a reporter for a newspaper expose to us information that Members of Congress and the public should have a legitimate right to understand and know.

It reminds me of that famous national intelligence estimate that this administration spun out four years ago when the President said we have no need to worry about any long-range missiles hitting America for at least 15 years, when the CIA publicly put that document developed a document that that document to veto our defense bill. Three years later, after tremendous pressure from many of us in this room from both sides of the aisle, the CIA has now publicly reversed itself and has acknowledged that North Korea has a long-range ICBM today. That is the kind of spin that this administration has placed on national security issues for seven years, but now it is about to unfold.

Also tomorrow, Mr. Speaker, at 10:30 in the morning the gentleman from California (Mr. Cox) and the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Dicks) and nine members in total of the Cox committee, the Select Committee to look at technology transfer from the U.S. to China, which I was honored to be a member of, will issue our public statement.

For five months, Mr. Speaker, we have tried to get the administration to declare the Select Committee's report, and for five months we have been stonewalled. Nine Members of Congress, five Republicans and four Democrats, very honorable people, met behind closed doors all during the breaks, all during the holidays from July through January 1 and 2 of this year. Behind closed doors we interfaced with the FBI, the CIA, the Defense Intelligence Agency. We held hearings, we called witnesses in, and we said, "You must tell us, Mr. Tenet, what are those documents that you leaked to the public, that we have seen?

No, Mr. Speaker, the reason why, as we will see tomorrow, we have had such problems with our technology has, in my opinion, largely been the direct result of this government, our own government. We have sent the mixed signals. We have lowered the threshold. We have not told heads of government, we have not told Congress, we have not told our W-88 missile technology, or our nuclear warhead technology, we have not told Congress, we have not told the American people, how they can get access to technology that they should never have gotten access to. We have not told them.

Mr. Speaker, the administration would also have some believe, through its spin efforts, that it is all the fault of China, and China is this bad country that has been able to use espionage to get access to technology that they should never have gotten access to. And in some cases, that is the story. We are unable to resolve that with the story on our laboratories.

But, Mr. Speaker, how can we blame a country like China for buying technology if we as a Nation voluntarily allow that technology to be sold abroad? That is what has occurred over the past seven years. We allowed technology to be sold abroad that up until this administration was very tightly controlled and regulated, and was checked by a series of efforts within the intelligence community and the defense and State Department establishments to make sure that that technology would not enhance the capability militarily of a potential or current adversary. So blaming China alone is not going to be acceptable.

leader for our country. In that report we made 32 recommendations for changes, but we also reached a very simple conclusion, and that conclusion, Mr. Tenet, you know is that America’s national security has been harmed in a significant way by technology transfers to China. I asked Mr. Tenet, “Do you agree with that assessment that the nine of us reached unanimously?”

This was his answer, Mr. Speaker, two days after Sandy Berger gave the media an unclassified response to our recommendations. George Tenet said, “Mr. Congressman, can I get back to you? I have not finished reading the report yet.”

So here was the White House on February 1 issuing to selected media outlets unclassified response to a report that Mr. Speaker, the Director of Central Intelligence two days later said he had not finished reading yet.

Mr. Speaker, that is why we have problems with our national security. Tomorrow, the American people get to see these charts. They get to hear about the warheads and the technology that we have lost. They get to hear about the neutron bomb. They get to hear about technology involving our space launch capability. They get to hear about the MIRVing nuclear warhead. They get to hear about military-industrial technology, high-performance computers.

They get to hear about all of these things, and in the end, the administration is going to try to blame someone. They are either going to try to find a scapegoat within the administration who they can say caused these problems, as they are currently trying to do in the Department of Energy, trying to blame the labs, when some of the labs were doing an adequate job but others were not; or they are going to try to blame someone up in the Cabinet who can be the fall guy or gal who takes the blame for what has occurred.

In the end, Mr. Speaker, I am convinced that the blame for our security lapses, as Harry Truman said, started at the top where the buck stops. The administration sets the policy.

Now, some would say, well, the President cannot know everything, and this is true. Some of my CIA friends have told me that this is one of the first Presidents since Eisenhower who never sees the CIA’s morning briefers, never sees them. He chooses not to see the briefers who are coming in to advise him of security concerns. The CIA does not even know if the President reads the daily brief provided to him. What the CIA analysts that I have talked to say is that they think that what Clinton gets is filtered through Madeleine Albright and Susan Berger.

Mr. Speaker, this is going to be a bad week in the history of America. The Kosovo crisis continues; Russia is being backed into a corner, to the point where they are now very antagonistic toward America; Bill Gertz comes out with a book called ‘Beijing’s Nuclear Arsenal,’ written by one of my friends, a former CIA analyst, and now the President of the Heritage Foundation. It is a book that makes a very strong case that the Chinese are trying to acquire technology that is very sensitive and is being used by the Chinese military today, most of it with the support of our government.

The second chart, Mr. Speaker, will be a depiction of a time-line, starting in 1993 and running through 1999. It will take every major technology area of concern that we have, encryption, high performance computers, military-industrial technology, space launch capability, nuclear weapons, it will take all of those technology disciplines and will track them through that 6 year time period, and it will list specific dates when actions took place in this administration to allow those technologies to be transferred. Almost all of those actions were done voluntarily by our country.

Mr. Speaker, in the end we have got to understand that we are now going to begin to pay the price for 7 years of flogging over our economy, 7 years of gloating over what was supposed to be world security, 7 years of pretending that the United States and Russia and China had no problems, it is just the rest of the world that was having problems. We pretended things were not happening. We told Yeltsin we would help him get reelected. We did not want to offend Jiang Zemin. In doing that, we gave away technology that America is going to have to deal with for the next 50 years.

Mr. Speaker, this is not a partisan issue. Democrats and Republicans in this body and the other body have been together on national security concerns. Democrats and Republicans have worked hand-in-hand over the years in protecting America’s security.

This battle, Mr. Speaker, is between the White House and the Congress. This White House has done things that this Congress has tried to stop and overrule.

Starting tomorrow and continuing through the next year and a half, until the presidential elections and both parties attempt to win the White House, the American people will have to judge as to whether or not our security has been harmed, how extensively it has been harmed, what is going to be the remedy for us to deal with these concerns that we have relative to technology flowing into hands that eventually, and we argue, could be our enemies and allow them to buy these technologies?

I want to caution our colleagues, Mr. Speaker, not to rush to snap judgments. We should not tomorrow when the China Select Committee reports come out and bash all Chinese citizens, or certainly Chinese-Americans. Some of our most capable leaders in this country are Chinese-Americans. In fact, some of my best friends are Chinese-Americans, leaders in the academic world, the scientific world, the technology world. We must make sure that we let them know that they are solid Americans that we respect.

We must not let this report come out and be an effort where Members of Congress come out and trash China and trash our relationship with those Chinese American leaders in our communities across this country.

The problem in the end, Mr. Speaker, is with us. It is within our own government. We should not try to find any scapegoat or not try to blame the industry. We should not try to just blame the Chinese. We should not just try to blame any one group.

The bulk of the problems I think we will find were caused by our own actions, by our own decisions, to ease up on the control mechanisms, to make technology available for sale. This is not to say there are not cases of espionage, because there are, and they need to be dealt with, as in our laboratories and the network that the Chinese established and paid off to allow China to set up front companies and buy technology from us, who is wrong? The Chinese, who are abiding by our laws and buying technology in many cases that we sell them, or are we at fault for loosening our controls and allowing them to buy these technologies?

The same thing is true with companies. American industry by and large wants to do the right thing, but if we send mixed signals, if we change the regulations, if we loosen up the standards, then most American industry should not be blamed when these very technologies are then sold abroad because we have allowed those practices to go on.

As I have earlier, there are companies that deserve to be investigated, and two are under criminal investigation right now. But I would hope tomorrow and for the rest of this week as we get ready to celebrate the Memorial Day holiday that we can step back and begin to seriously consider our national security.

It has not been a high focus for the past 7 years. We have been lulled into a false sense of complacency. The economy is going strong, people are working, inflation is low, unemployment is low, and we have been convinced that the world is safe. Now, all of a sudden, we wake up and see Russia backed into a corner. China involved in technologies that we never thought they should have, North Korea deploying long and short range missiles that now threaten not just our territories, but the mainland of the U.S., Iran-Iraq developing medium range systems with the help of Pakistan and Pakistan saber rattling with nuclear warheads and medium-range missiles.

Where did they get the weapons from, Mr. Speaker? Where? We saw China supplying Pakistan with the M-11 missiles. We saw China supplying Pakistan with ring magnets. We saw China supplying Pakistan with the technology for the nuclear furnaces. We saw Russia supplying India with technology.

Why are we surprised? All of a sudden we come with the realization, we have problems in the world, and we have not dealt with those problems in a fair, open and honest way, in spite of tremendous efforts by Republicans and Democrats in this body and the other body.

It is time to end the spin. Mr. Speaker. It is time for this administration to end the nauseating spin, the spin doctors at the White House who want to spin everything, to make it look as if they have no role to play, just as they did when they lost the Congressional elections and did not want to accept any responsibility in the White House. It was all the fault of those Members of Congress who were out of touch.

It is about time this administration and this President understand that once in awhile he needs to accept the responsibility for his actions and the collective actions of this administration.

ASIAN PACIFIC AMERICAN HERITAGE MONTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Guam (Mr. UNDERWOOD) is recognized for 60 minutes. Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to share with the American people and the Members of the House a special order on Asian Pacific American Heritage Month.
the ancient civilizations of the Indian subcontinent and China, to the island Pacific, from Japan, Korea, Vietnam and the Philippines. We add our customs and traditions to the beautiful tapestry which makes up American life.

This diversity is good for America. Sometimes we think of minority groups, minority communities as somehow areas of problems to resolve, that there is always some dimension of them that invites solutions to some preceding problem.

I want to happily acknowledge that, as Pacific Americans, indeed all Americans of all races and all ethnic backgrounds should be proud of who they are and the contributions that they have made to America's social fabric.

Despite the diversity of the backgrounds that make up the Asian Pacific American community, we are united by a characteristic concern for our family, for making sure that we protect and nurture each other, those in our immediate once commonly referred to as nuclear family, as well as in our extended family, whether in education, in business, and just about everything in life, we are working hard not only for ourselves, but for our families, and making sure they get better opportunities and encouraging our young people while we pay attention to our elders.

This concern for family across generations I think is characteristic, good strong characteristic of all of the communities which make up Asian Pacific America, and it is something that we proudly wish to share with the rest of America.

This is the month where we can call attention to the best of our community and to demonstrate to Washington and to the Nation that Asian Pacific Americans are making their mark and making their contributions in all segments of society.

There are people like Vera Wang and Josie Natori, both fashion designers who are internationally renowned for their creations. There are entrepreneurs like Jerry Yang, founder of Yahoo, Incorporated, and Robert Nakasone, president and chief executive officer of Toys “R” Us. We also shine in the education field. Dr. Chang-Lin Tien is the former chancellor of U.C. Berkeley and has made many outstanding contributions to the field of scientific research and journal publications and government consultation.

In the field of the arts, we have performers like Yo-Yo Ma, a cellist who dazzles us with his artistry and has some 12 Grammy awards to his name.

We also have actresses like Ming-Na Wen, who not only starred in critically acclaimed movies such as the “Joy Luck Club,” but also lent her voice to the famous animated musical “Mulan.”

In the arena of government, we have outstanding civil leaders such as Bill Lann Lee, acting attorney general for civil rights, who has led our Nation’s fight for equal opportunity for the past year and a half and has done an outstanding job.

In our armed forces, we have General Eric Shinseki, current Vice Chief of Staff for the U.S. Army, who has had 33 years of military service, won numerous awards, and has recently been nominated to the post of Chief of Staff for the U.S. Army, which would make him the highest ranking officer in the U.S. Army, certainly the highest ranking officer of Asian Pacific American ancestry to rise to that position in our country’s history.

In the scientific field, we have innovative doctors such as Dr. David Ho, Times Magazine’s 1996 Man of the Year. He is a leader in his groundbreaking research on HIV and AIDS, and he is currently the scientific director of the world’s largest independent AIDS research laboratory.

Kalpana Chawla, on the other hand, is renowned in her work on the 1997 Columbia Space Shuttle mission. She is the first East Indian American who has traveled to space.

In the area of government, we are graced with such talented television journalists as Ann Curry, a two-time Emmy award winning anchor, and she has joined the cast of “NBC Dateline” and the highly popular national morning news show, “The Today Show.”

Michelle Kwan’s artistry and elegance on the ice have demonstrated to us just how far determination and dedication can take us. On the other hand, the grace of Michelle Kwan is balanced by the skill and force of Junior Seau. American Samoan by ancestry, Junior is a football player with the San Diego Chargers, has been voted for six consecutive Pro-Bowls and was named 1994 NFL Lineman of the Year. We have, of course, the gentleman from American Samoa (Mr. Faaleomavaega), who, despite the size of his congressional district, has more players in the NFL than probably any six other congressional districts combined. So I am sure he will tell us a little bit more about that.

Of course we have in politics, we have not as many as we would like, but we certainly have a number of them.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to Vice Chair of the Asian Pacific American Caucus, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Wu), who has recently been featured in a very complimentary article in A Magazine, which is a national Asian magazine. I want to congratulate him for that. He has a number of issues to share. I was certainly glad that he has come to this House to grace us with his presence.

Mr. Wu. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Guam (Mr. Underwood) for yielding to me.

It is a special pleasure for me to stand here in honor of Asian Pacific American Heritage Month. I am proud to serve as the Vice Chair of the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus, and it is my great privilege to stand on the floor of this House as the first Chinese American to serve in this body in the 220-year history of this country.

We all may have our small footnotes in history, but I try to keep a touch of humor, and in this town maybe even tougher, a touch of humility about what happens around here.

I would like to share a little story that happened right here in this Chamber. The story is only slightly humorous, but perhaps more importantly, it helps illustrate the point which I would like to make tonight.

When I was younger, I attended one year of medical school, and sometime during the fall of that year decided that I wanted to leave medical school to make a broader difference. When I called home to share that with my father, he just said that he was not pleased. He was not pleased at all.

During the next year, when I took a leave of absence and worked for a while, I received a stream of articles, newspaper articles from my parents, from my dad in particular, and it was all about doctors, doctors who were doing wonderful things in impoverished neighborhoods, really working in communities where they were needed. It was also about lawyers and those articles about ambulance-chasing lawyers who were up to no good. My father was really, really hoping, I think, that I would go back to medical school.

Now fast forward 20 years, and I was sitting just about there on this floor. It was February of last year. I was about to be sworn in as a Member of Congress, probably the proudest day of my life. My parents were sitting right up there. My wife was somewhere over here. My in-laws were somewhere over here, and I could not see them.

But I could see my father. I could see my father. As I looked up at him, I could not help but think, I wonder if he still wishes that I graduated from medical school?

I am telling that story because I think that it is something very positive in our community, that we have a lot of people who have become prosperous, who are engineers, who are scientists, who are business owners, but very few people who have gone on to fields like law and politics.

But I am proud to say that there is a movement afoot across America, and I am proud to report to the House tonight that there is a very positive trend occurring in Asian American communities. Gordon Hon, Max Inger in New York City, Barry Chang, whom I just visited in California, Silicon Valley, Charlie Woo, who is visiting in Washington today.
but who is starting a movement in Los Angeles, and other places like my home in Portland, Oregon, from Chicago to Washington, D.C., where Asian Americans are recognizing the importance of encouraging the next generation to branch out, to branch out from the traditional professions like science, like engineering, as good as those professions are, from dentistry, from medicine, into new fields like art or journalism or law or even politics.

I believe that it is vitally important for Asian Americans to participate in the political process. We often hear complaints about not being fairly treated in the media or in other public bodies. But I submit to my colleagues that the only way to make a truly lasting and positive and constructive difference is to get involved and to stay involved, to become part of shaping the dialogue and influencing the process ourselves.

That is what is happening across the Nation today, to do what groups across America are doing to continue to insist in still in our generation and the next the importance of taking school seriously, and not just taking school seriously but taking participation in the political process seriously, to pass on to our young folks what we have learned from our lives and the lives of our parents: that the opportunity to participate in the American dream is a gift of the American spirit, and that we should not let any part of this gift slip away. We must fully participate in the process.

I am grateful every day to share in that process. I do my job each and every day with the faith that we are serving a larger process. We all need to participate as Americans. This is the message being brought to other Asian Americans, to urge them to get involved and to stay involved.

Each new immigrant group that comes to America has learned, sometimes the hard way, that to be a voice at the table, you must make sacrifices. We as Asian Americans are clearly in the early formative stages of political participation.

Like every other group that has come to America before us, so many sacrifices have been made, so one more sacrifice is left to be made. I add this to our Asian Americans of the older generation, to those of my parents’ generation, perhaps to anyone who is older than I. You who have made so many sacrifices already, you have come to a foreign country, learned a foreign language, you have worked hard to make your families prosperous. You have really helped your children get an education and help them become Americans.

That is perhaps one of the largest sacrifices that you have made, to encourage your children to grow up in this country, to be a part of this culture and, in so doing, to become different from you. It is a great sacrifice for any parent to make, and countless generations of immigrants before you have made that sacrifice.

But I am here to ask you to make one more sacrifice, and that is to encourage your children to pursue their passions, no matter what that passion is, whether it is to become a doctor or become a dentist or teacher. But if they choose to become an artist, a journalist, a lawyer, or even to enter into public life, to encourage them in the pursuit of that passion, to make one more sacrifice for your children.

I will say to your children that it is a two-way street. When I was young, my parents encouraged me to keep up my Chinese and to study hard. There was always something better to do, whether it was to go out and play with my friends or because the ice cream truck was coming by.

I say to the younger generation, listen to what your parents have to say. Keep in touch with the culture and the language. It is good for you, and you parents are asking something that will be ultimately good for you, and you will appreciate it in the years to come.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to stand on the floor of the House tonight on the occasion of Asian Pacific American Heritage Month and report to my colleagues that, while much still remains to be accomplished, we have made great progress, and we will continue to make that progress year by year, generation by generation.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Wu) for his remarks, and he certainly made a magnificent job in coordinating this event today.

A few years ago, I was privileged, along with my Asian-Pacific colleagues on Capitol Hill, to attend a special White House ceremony where President Clinton signed an official proclamation declaring the month of May as “National Asian-Pacific Heritage Month.”

Today I am privileged again to be here before my colleagues to speak to the Nation and to our colleagues and to share this occasion honoring the enduring legacy of those Americans whose roots extend from the soils of nations in the Asian-Pacific region.

Mr. Speaker, in honoring this month as our national Asian-Pacific Heritage Month, it was my privilege to have been invited recently to speak before our men and women in uniform stationed at Fort Campbell, Kentucky, Fort Knox, Kentucky, and Fort Irwin, California, to share with them an historical perspective on the contributions of the Asian-Pacific community as part of our Nation’s heritage.

Mr. Speaker, I want to personally thank Major General Robert Clark, the Commanding General of the 101st Airborne Division; Colonel Virgil Packett, II, the Assistant Division Commander; and Command Sergeant Major Iuni Savusa, both members of the 101st Airborne Division, and Mr. Jack Eubanks, the Chief Protocol Officer; and Sergeant First Class Emani Masani of Fort Knox, Kentucky.

These gentlemen received me during my visit at Fort Knox, and they did a splendid job in making the proper preparations for the special event and the opportunity to meet with the active duty and retired military personnel and their families. I thank them for my visit to Fort Knox.

Last but not least, Mr. Speaker, I want to also extend my sincere thanks and appreciation to Major General Richard Reynolds, the Commanding General of the Edwards Air Force Base Flight Test Center; Mr. Jim Papa, the Executive Director of the Air Force Flight Test Center; Ms. Mary Jane Guggiato, the Protocol Officer; Ms. Leonilla Marcelino of the Asian-Pacific Employment Office; Mr. Nuu Moa of the Samoan community; and Air Force Major Kevin Toy from the Air Force Congressional Liaison Office. I want to thank them all for making my stay at Edwards Air Force Base a positive experience that I will not forget.

In particular, I want to thank General Reynolds of our nation’s Air Force and General Reynolds of the Edwards Air Force Base Test Center for the depth of their knowledge of our Nation’s security needs. And I thank both of these gentlemen for the outstanding leadership roles that they demonstrate not only to the airmen and soldiers under their commands, but more importantly their commitment to provide as best as possible for the needs of our men and women in uniform and especially their families.

Mr. Speaker, I am privileged today to be here before my colleagues to speak to the Nation and to share this occasion in celebrating the contributions of the Asian-Pacific American community, well over 10 million strong and among the fastest growing demographic group in the United States today.

During this time for celebration, it is only fitting that we honor our fellow citizens of Asian-Pacific descent, both from this country and from that part of the world that have blessed and enriched our Nation. I submit that the Asian-Pacific Americans have certainly been an asset to our country’s development, and it is appropriate that we make this recognition accordingly.

As many of you are aware, immigrants from the Asia-Pacific countries are amongst the newest wave to arrive in the United States in recent years. However, they are merely the latest chapter in the long history of Asian-Pacific Americans in our nation.

The people of Asia-Pacific have contributed much to America’s development in the field of sciences and medicine. For example, nothing exemplifies this more than Time Magazine’s selection of a Chinese American in 1996 as its Man of the Year, Dr. David Ho, head of the prestigious Aaron Diamond AIDS Research Center at New York City’s New York University Medical School.

Dr. Ho’s journey started as a 12-year-old immigrant from Taiwan. Gracing the cover of Time Magazine has given hope to millions of people around the world afflicted by the HIV virus. His story is a stirring testimony to the significant concrete contributions that Asian-Pacific American immigrants have made to America. Dr. Ho’s scientific advances continue a long record of service by Asian-Pacific Americans.

In 1899, a Japanese immigrant arrived on the shores of this Nation. After years of study and work, this man, Dr. Hideyo Noguchi, isolated the syphilis germ, leading to a cure for the deadly, widespread disease.

For decades, Dr. Makio Murayama, a Japanese-American, conducted vital research in the United States that laid the groundwork for combating sickle cell anemia.

In 1973, Dr. Leo Esaki, another Japanese-American, an immigrant also to our country, was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in physics for his electron tunneling theories.

And in engineering, Mr. Speaker, few have matched the architectural masterpieces created by the genius of Chinese-American, I.M. Pei.

In the field of business and commerce, the names of prominent Asian-Pacific American corporate leaders and legal scholars are too numerous to mention. One only need read our Nation’s top periodicals and newspapers to document that Asian-Pacific American students, both in high school and at secondary and post-secondary levels are among the brightest minds that our Nation has produced.

In the entertainment field and sports, American martial arts expert Bruce Lee, the late Bruce Lee, captivated the movie audiences of this Nation while destroying the stereotype of the passive, quiet Asian-American male.

World-class conductor Seiji Ozawa has led the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra to brilliant performances over the years.

About 70 years ago, Mr. Speaker, a native Hawaiian named Duke Kahamamoku shocked the world by winning the Olympic Gold Medal in swimming, followed by Dr. Sammy Lee, a Korean-American who also won an Olympic Gold Medal in high diving.

And the strange thing about Dr. Sammy Lee, Mr. Speaker, at the time when the Olympic members of our community were participating for the Olympics at that time, Dr. Lee was not even permitted to practice along with his fellow divers, American divers, simply because he was not white.

Then there was Tommy Kono of Hawaii, also an Olympic Gold Medalist in weightlifting. And, yes, perhaps the greatest Olympic diver ever known to the world, a Samoan-American by the name of Greg Louganis, who recorded a record in gold medals and national championships that will be in the books for a long, long time.

And, yes, the enthralling Olympic ice-skating performances of Japanese-American Kristi Yamaguchi and Chi-nese-American Michelle Kwan continue the legacy of milestone achievements by our Asian-Pacific community.

In professional boxing, I would suggest to my colleagues and to my fellow Americans to keep an eye on this young Samoan-American heavyweight boxer by the name of David Tua. Yes, David Tua. He now ranks among the top 10 in the world in the heavyweight division in boxing.

And one of the brightest stars to emerge recently from our community, Mr. Speaker, is none other than Tiger Woods. Yes, Tiger Woods, the professional golfer. I think Tiger Woods could not have said it better. He is part American Indian, he is part black American, he is part white; but his mother is from Thailand. And he said this is what makes him the best golfer there is in the world.

Tiger made history, of course, in one of the world’s most important golf tournaments. And before his career is finished, I submit, Mr. Speaker, he will reinvent the game of golf.

We also have Asian-Pacific Americans who are making their mark in history not in our country, but in the Far East. Yes, a Samoan-American by the name of Salevaa Atisanoe weighs over 578 pounds and participates in the ancient sport in Japan called sumo wrestling and wrestles by the name of Konishiki. Yes, he weighs only 578 pounds, Mr. Speaker, but he can bench press 600 pounds. Figure that out. Konishiki was the first foreigner in Japan’s centuries-old sport to break through to the rared air of sumo’s second highest rank.

And another of Tongan-Samoan descent, Mr. Leitani Peitani, who now is 70 years old, Mr. Speaker, but he can bench press 600 pounds. Figure that out. Konishiki was the first foreigner in Japan’s centuries-old sport to break through to the rared air of sumo’s second highest rank.

And another of Tongan-Samoan descent, Mr. Leitani Peitani, who now is known basically as Musashimaru, has gained prominence in the sport of sumo wrestling.

And, yes, we also have native Hawaiian Chad Rowen, who wrestles by the name of Akebono, the first foreigner to achieve the highest ranking in this ancient sport and the rank of Yokozuna.

Mr. Speaker, in honoring the Asian-Pacific Americans that served in our country, I would be remiss not only as a Vietnam veteran, but as a former member of the 100th Battalion 442nd Infantry Reserve Unit in Hawaii if I did not honor the contributions of the Japanese-Americans that served in the U.S. Army’s 100th Army Battalion and 442nd Infantry Combat Group.

Mr. Speaker, history speaks for itself in documenting that none have shed their blood more valiantly for America than the Japanese-Americans who served in these units while fighting enemy forces in Europe during World War II.

Mr. Speaker, the records of the 100th Battalion and 442nd Infantry are without equal. These Japanese-American units suffered an unprecedented casualty rate of 314 percent and received over 18,000 individual declarations, many awarded posthumously, for bravery and courage in the field of battle.

Given the tremendous sacrifices of lives, a high number of medals were awarded to these units: 52 Distinguished Service Crosses; 560 Silver Stars; 9,480 Purple Hearts. I find it unusual, Mr. Speaker, that only one Medal of Honor was awarded.

Nonetheless, 442nd Combat Group emerged as the most decorated combat unit of its size in the history of the United States Army. President Truman was so moved by their bravery on the field of battle, as well as that of black American soldiers who served in World War I and World War II, that he issued an executive order to desegrate the armed services.

I am proud to say we can count on the Honorable DANIEL INOUYE and the late Japanese-American Japanese-Marksman from the State of Hawaii, as not only Members of Congress that distinguished themselves in battle as soldiers with the 100th Battalion and 442nd Infantry. It was while fighting in Europe that Senator INOUYE lost his arm and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, the second highest medal for bravery, as it is noted today.

These Japanese-Americans, Mr. Speaker, paid their dues in blood to protect our Nation from its enemies. And I am proud, Mr. Speaker, on the history of our country that when the patriotic survivors of the 100th Battalion and 442nd Infantry returned to the United States, many of these soldiers were reunited with their parents, their brothers and sisters, who were locked up behind barbed wire fences living in concentration camps.

Mr. Speaker, I do not know if I am ever able to perform what these Japanese American soldiers could. If someone comes home from war, facing the reality that you might never return and then when you come home, you have to find your parents and your brothers and sisters in these concentration camps. I say, Mr. Speaker, something was awfully wrong at that time in our country.

The wholesale and arbitrary abolishment of the constitutional rights of these loyal Japanese Americans will forever serve as a reminder and testament that this must never be allowed to occur again. When this miscarriage of justice unfolded in World War II, while some Americans of German and Italian ancestry were discriminated against, these Americans were not similarly treated. All Japanese Americans. Some declared the incident as an example of outright racism and bigotry in its ugliest form. After viewing the Holocaust Museum recently, Mr. Speaker, in Washington, D.C., I understand better why the Genocide of some 6 million Jews has prompted the cry, “Never again. Never again.” Likewise, I sincerely hope that mass internments on the basis of race will never again darken the history of our great Nation. I am also told that probably one of the reasons why the Italian Americans were not also placed in concentration camps, can you imagine if Joe DiMaggio’s father was given the same treatment at the time when Joe DiMaggio was the great American baseball player and hero of all the people? That is exactly what happened.

To those that say, “Well, that occurred decades ago,” I say, we must continue to be vigilant in guarding against such evils today.

I am pleased by General Shinseki’s announcement for the first time, as has been mentioned earlier by my colleague from Guam, that President Clinton has nominated General Eric Shinseki, an American of Japanese descent from the State of Hawaii, to become the new Chief of Staff for the Army. General Shinseki is currently the Vice Chief of Staff for the U.S. Army. Previous to his current position, General Shinseki was formerly Commanding General of U.S. Army Europe and the Land Forces in Central Europe and was Commanding General of the NATO Stabilization Force in Bosnia.

I am pleased by General Shinseki’s appointment. It was not long ago we had the case of Bruce Yamashita, a Japanese American from Hawaii who was discharged from the Marine Corps officer training program in an ugly display of racial discrimination. Marine Corps superiors taunted Yamashita with ethnic slurs and told him, “We don’t want your kind around here. Go back to your own country.” The situation was made worse when the Commandant of the Marine Corps at the time who appeared on television’s “60 Minutes” stated, “Marine officers who are minorities do not shoot, swim or use compasses as well as white officers.”

After years of perseverance and appeals, Mr. Speaker, Mr. Yamashita was vindicated after proving he was the target of vicious racial harassment during his officer training program. The Secretary of the Navy’s investigation into whether minorities were deliberately being discouraged from becoming officers in the Marine Corps resulted in Yamashita receiving finally his commission as a captain in the United States Marine Corps.

I am also disturbed, Mr. Speaker, by events of recent years involving campaign funding where the integrity of the Asian Pacific American community has been unfairly tarnished in the media for the alleged transgressions of a few.

I find this racial scapegoating to be repugnant and morally objectionable. Playing up fears of the “Asian connection” serves to alienate Asian Pacific Americans from participating in our political process. Moreover, this negative reporting acts to marginalize Asian Pacific American political empowerment at a time when we are coming of age in American politics.

When whites raise money for whites, it is called gaining political power. But when Asian Pacific Americans begin to participate, we are accused of being foreigners trying to infiltrate the mainstream of our Nation’s political system. On this note, Mr. Speaker, remember the Oklahoma City bombing incident? Americans of Arab descent were immediately targeted and investigated by local Federal law enforcement agencies. Mr. Speaker, I submit it is simply wrong and un-American to react this way.

To protect America’s greatness, we should all be sensitive to the fact that democratic participation by people of all races and backgrounds, including Asian Pacific Americans, is crucial to our Nation’s health and vitality.

I believe Yamashita’s case and the hysteria surrounding the Asian Pacific American contributions bear implications not just for the military and the military-industrial complex, but for our society as a whole. It asks the question, how long do we have to endure the attitude of those who consider Asian Pacific Americans and other minorities as lesser Americans?

I applaud Captain Yamashita and others like him who have spoken out to ensure that racial discrimination is not tolerated. During this month as we recognize the diverse experiences and contributions of the Asian Pacific American community to our Nation, I would hope that we will all take inspiration from this example.

When I envision America, I do not see a melting pot, Mr. Speaker, designed to reduce and remove racial differences.
The America I see is a brilliant rainbow, a rainbow of ethnicities and cultures, with each people proudly contributing in a distinctive and unique way. That is what America is all about. And Asian Pacific Americans wish to find a just and equitable place in our society that will allow them, like all Americans, to grow, to succeed, to achieve, and contribute to the advancement of this great Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I wish there were no labels. I wish I was not considered a Pacific American or an Asian American or a Black American or a Native American. I never hear of people classifying themselves as French Americans, or British Americans. But why these labels?

With that in mind, Mr. Speaker, I would like to close my remarks by asking, why? It could not have been said better than on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial in 1963 in that hot summer when a Black American, an American, by the name of Martin Luther King Jr. echoed this saying, "I have a dream."

My dream is that one day my children will be judged not by the color of their skin but by the content of their character."

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from American Samoa for those very inspirational remarks and the cataloging of a number of successes that members of various Asian Pacific American communities have had and their contributions that have been made to this country. Nevertheless we continue to face many serious issues. Sometimes we must address those issues in a way that communities must in order to find ways to resolve problems that continue to exist. Some of these problems are long-standing. Some of them have to do with new immigration and some of them have to do with current practices and current laws and current perceptions.

I know that in that regard and in working on those issues, the gentlewoman from Hawaii has been on the forefront of many of those issues. She has had a very distinguished career here in the House of Representatives and has served as previous chair of the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus, Mr. Speaker, and in that capacity I only continued the struggle for fairness and justice and equality in this country but continued to serve as a mentor for those of us who are following in her footsteps.

I yield to the gentlewoman from Hawaii.

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Guam (Mr. UNDERWOOD), and I want to express the appreciation of all of the members of the Asian Pacific Congressional Caucus for his strong effort in making sure that we have this time this evening in which to express our thoughts about Asian Pacific issues. The gentleman from American Samoa (Mr. FAKOMA'AVEA) has certainly demonstrated in the short time that he took this evening the extensive record that has been accomplished by many Asian Pacific individuals throughout this country. I know that he just elaborated on a few. If we had time, we could document many, many more individuals who certainly have brought great credit and recognition to the Asian Pacific community throughout this country. I do not think that there is a single individual in the Congress of the United States that does not recognize the contributions that have been made by Asian Pacific individuals, even in their constituencies. But notwithstanding the tremendous accomplishments of so many of our distinguished Asian Pacific brothers and sisters throughout the world, there are still some very nagging problems that confront us, problems that have to do with the way we look and the assumptions that people make because of the way we look, the way we are treated when we enter certain places, how we are looked upon, the more the impact of our Asian appearance. The conclusions that are leaped to, that we neither speak English nor have been educated in this country, and that we are undoubtedly immigrants, recent immigrants, or some characterization like that. This is very hurtful for many Asians. And so compounding on this day-to-day experience that we have to endure and suffer throughout our lives, the crescendo of criticism that has been levied upon all of us because of the misconduct of a few or the apparent misconduct of a few among us is an extremely painful experience. As the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. WU) suggested, we have a huge task, therefore, as Asian Pacific Individuals in the Congress of the United States to serve as role models, to make sure that the young people who are thinking in terms of government service, of elective office, or seeking high positions in their local communities, that they are not discouraged by this dramatic news coverage that hits us every now and then.

Following the 1996 campaign, there was so much controversy that even the Congress got overwhelmed by a lot of that discussion. Out of it, I believe came some of the very, very discouraging amendments that were added to welfare reform legislation and campaign spending reform legislation which singled out people in our society who are legally present in this country, who are legal residents but notwithstanding were somehow characterized by virtue of their status as not worthy Americans. They could not participate in programs, even though they had paid their legal 10 years and paid their taxes into Social Security, they were somehow unworthy because they had not seen fit to become U.S. citizens and therefore were pushed aside and denigrated and certain programs were denied them.

In the campaign spending reform, what was the most egregious provision that was added in a floor amendment was to say that a legal resident could not make a political contribution to a Federal candidate, and that the Federal candidate in receiving a contribution from a non-legal resident would be held accountable and even criminally found accountable for having received such a contribution. That was the most egregious of all the provisions that have been added over the years. I found that so egregious, that notwithstanding the fact that I was a strong supporter from the very beginning of campaign spending reform, I felt compelled in the end to vote against that legislation because I could not tolerate the idea that we were enacting into law this kind of disparate treatment of people who are legally within the United States.

So I would hope that when we take up campaign spending reform again this year, that that provision is not included or not considered for an appropriate amendment.

My point is that we have achieved a lot as a group, but there are continuing problems as we go through our lives. And it is important for the Asian Pacific community to stand up as a group, to be proud of their contributions to American life, proud of their citizenship, proud of their ancestry and of those who have come in recently, and to always work to defend their right to live here under the Constitution and to be fully protected by all of the provisions of the Constitution of the United States.

I want to take this opportunity this evening to thank the members on both sides, the House and the Senate, in their work in the committee in approving the $4.3 million which is the last funding for the payment of the reparations that the gentleman from American Samoa mentioned had been enacted in 1988 to pay for the great harm, the insult, the travesty that occurred in their being placed in relocation camps during World War II.

Congress finally said this is a terrible wrong, the Constitution was totally abrogated in this instance, and so for all those who survived, in 1988 they were provided a payment of $20,000 for each survivor. The funds simply ran out, and there was not enough money in the fund to pay the last several hundred of those that have been found eligible. So the Congress in its wisdom provided the extra dollars to make sure that every single person found eligible received their sum that the Congress had promised.

One added implication to this whole issue was the fact that late in the whole process it became known that Japanese individuals who were living in Latin America were picked up in the dark of the night and put on board ship, and placed in the same types of concentration camps with the concurrence of the Latin American governments and under the instruction by the United States Government. These individuals have been trying to qualify for the same benefits that have been accorded our own Japanese American citizens, but despite their efforts they were denied under some sort of legal argument that they were not legally here.

Well, how could they be legally here if they were kidnapped in the middle of the night? Most of these individuals, now part of our communities, many of them have become citizens and are part of our family. They have been treated very much discriminated against when they were excluded from the arrangements that the Congress made in 1988.

Thankfully, Mr. Speaker, the Justice Department entered into a settlement with these individuals, not quite as much as the other AJAs, but at least a recognition of the great harm that had been perpetrated upon these individuals, several thousand of them who were captured in the night and brought here under the assumption that they would be traded with our prisoners of war that were captured by Japan, and indeed about 800 of them were, in fact, bartered in this way and were moved over to Japan and perhaps continued to live there. But nonetheless, the Congress has accepted responsibility, the administration has accepted responsibility for this terrible act in the middle of war and made some measure of compensation.

I would hope, as the delegate from American Samoa said, that there would be continuing lessons to be learned by what happened during World War II, and I think it is our job to continue this education process, and so in moments like this it is important to remind the country about what happened. In another generation it will be forgotten. In another generation it will probably be forgotten. That is the tragedy: We have no place in which this story can be permanently told so that the people in this country can understand what happened, and they tell a very much discriminated against when they were excluded from the arrangements that the Congress made in 1988.

So, Mr. Speaker, I hope that there will be efforts to establish a fund, an education fund that will be meaningful and will carry this story not in a negative sense of condemnation, but in a hopeful sense that this kind of history would never be repeated again, ever, to any segment of our population.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Hawaii for her eloquent statement, and as the gentlewoman will know, tomorrow is going to be a very important occasion whereby the Cox committee is going to submit a report to the Congress and to the Nation. This is in reference, of course, to the issue of the Chinese government's treatment of this country, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. WELDON).

The fear that I have in what is going to happen tomorrow and in the coming weeks, and I am just going to simply label it China bashing, and I am very concerned about this because this is going to be exactly the issue that we have tried to discuss this evening where the stereotyping and the labeling becomes so instantaneous, and I must submit that the media is not going to do anything but that we can just see what is going to happen to the Chinese American community. They are all going to be looked upon with suspicion and having some second thoughts about them being not American simply because they are Chinese.

And I sincerely hope that this is not going to be the case, but I am fearful, just as has been my experience in the several hearings that we have held in the Committee on International Relations where we talk about human rights. It seems that we have only focused on human rights violations in China, but not on other countries and other regions of the world. And I seriously raise the issue if there is fairness and equity in the process, just as I would like to submit that in tomorrow's presentation that there should be a firm understanding that this has nothing to do with the Chinese people.

And what I am really puzzled about is that even our own allies have spied upon this government, and there seems to be no word or indication from the media that Chinese are not the only ones that are spying, if they, in fact, are doing this. But I understand through the media that the report is quite firm, with whatever data that they are going to submit, that this did happen. But I am at least grateful to the gentleman from Pennsylvania saying this should not be taken as an attack, not only to our Chinese-American community, but even to the Chinese government, because it was our own government and officials that were responsible.

So I think that again I want to thank the gentlewoman for yielding and to allow me to submit this concern that I have in listening to the gentleman from Pennsylvania, the remarks he had made earlier about this report that is going to be submitted tomorrow.

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. The temptation to mark up the media frenzy and all of that that will follow does not in any way characterize that it is up to us to be completely vigilant on how this debate is characterized, that when they are talking about the government of China, that they make absolutely clear that they are not disparaging in any way the Chinese American people who are living in the United States. I mean that to be the bottom line for all of us, to be there, to make sure that the debate, the media frenzy and all of that that will follow does not in any way characterize the loyal, hard-working, diligent, wonderful Chinese Americans who are living within the United States.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, the point is well made by the gentlewoman from Hawaii.

A classic example: The gentleman that has been fired from the Department of Energy for giving secrets, in the media, the first instance, it is a Chinese American. Never say the name of the gentleman, but why does it have to be stated that he is a Chinese American? That is my point, and I think it is wrong for the media to make these types of stereotypes.

I do not hear my fellow Americans saying a French American doing this or a British American or a Scandinavian American or a Balkanese American. Why the labels? And I just think that the media has done a real disservice in adding this frenzy or this hype on this race issue which I really think is not only inappropriate but is just out of place.

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, we have our task cut out for us, and I think the gentleman from Guam (Mr. UNDERWOOD) again for making this time available to me. I did want to go into the matter of the Filipino veterans and the great inequity that they have had to endure, but understanding that we are having a special order of issues along some time during the week, I will refrain from putting these remarks in at this time and await that other period.

So I thank the gentleman from Guam (Mr. UNDERWOOD), I appreciate his leadership in this effort tonight.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I thank very much the gentlewoman from Hawaii (Mrs. MINK), and as she has indicated, we will have a special order on the matter of the Filipino veterans I believe on Wednesday, and the gentleman from California (Mr. FUKNUR), who has taken a strong leadership position on that issue, and the gentlewoman’s own work in terms of the work of the Congressional Asian Pacific Caucus has been remarkable in this. Many serious issues of to attend issues that is a remnant of the war experience, Filipinos who have fought under the U.S. flag, but being denied the veterans’ benefits that were promised to them as a result of them fighting under the American flag against the common enemy.

Just to add a little bit more to the issue of how the espionage should be dealt with, it is important, and not just for perceptual reasons, because that in itself is important, but it will have an impact on the employment and contractual opportunities of individuals, and that is where the rubber hits the road on issues like this, in much the same way that was experienced during all the discussion of the fund-raising scandals. I know that I heard many reports from individuals who had difficulties having access to elected officials, who had appointments broken, and to the same extent that if we are not careful in how we deal with this particular issue, there will be national questions asked of Asian American scientists. And in fact Asian American scientists continue to make this country much more secure, not less secure, and certainly much stronger and not weaker.

The Asian Pacific American Caucus has many serious issues of to attend to: the issue of Filipino Veterans’ Rights v. Cayetano, a native Hawaiian case; an effort to try to get President Clinton to meet leaders of the South Pacific nations; census issues; immigration rights issues; and health issues which we will continue to work on as a caucus. But we tend to look at APA month as a time to bring recognition to this enormous community which has made significant progress in this country and enormous contributions to strengthen this country, and we will continue to pursue those issues.

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Speaker, it is with great honor that I join my colleagues of the Congressional Asian Pacific Caucus in recognizing the month of May as Asian Pacific American Heritage Month.

This year’s theme, “Celebrating Our Legacy,” commemorates the contributions Americans of Asian and Pacific Islander descent have made to our country. What better place than our nation’s Capitol to highlight the historical legacy of Asian and Pacific Islander Americans.

Their contributions, which have enriched our American society and strengthened its core values, are vast and varied. This evening I would like to focus on their valiant efforts to protect our nation.

There is no better example of the critical role Asian Pacific Islanders played in defense of our country than during World War II. Although their families and friends were forcibly moved out of their homes and put into internment camps encircled by barbed wire, they remained Americans and, being allowed to fight for their country. This resulted in the formation of the 442nd Regimental Combat Team.

Among the 442nd’s many heroes is Sadao Munemori from Los Angeles. Mr. Munemori received the Medal of Honor posthumously for saving the lives of his fellow soldiers while sacrificing his own.

In Europe, on April 5, 1945, Mr. Munemori led the attack against the last stronghold of Hitler’s army in Italy. Thrust into command when his squad leader was wounded, Munemori attacked two German machine gun nests that had pinned down his squad in a minefield. After withdrawing due to heavy enemy fire, Munemori took refuge in a shell crater already occupied by two of his men. When an unexploded hand grenade bounced off his helmet and rolled toward his companions, Munemori jumped on it, absorbing the blast.

In the South Pacific, Filipino American soldiers fought along side American soldiers in some of the bloodiest battles of the war. For almost four years, during the most intense and strategically important phases of World War II, more than 200,000 Filipinos fought side-by-side with Allied forces and willingly sacrificed their lives and well-being in defense of freedom. By holding off the enemy at the Battle of Okinawa, these Filipino American veterans enabled forces to mobilize back home. Moreover, many Filipino American soldiers lost their lives as POW’s during the Bataan Death March, demonstrating their ultimate loyalty to our country. These courageous men won the freedom of the Filipino people and made a tremendous impact on our ability to prevail in the Pacific Theater.

There are many more unsung heroes like Mr. Munemori and the Filipino veterans. And it is their legacy that we celebrate during the month of May. Generation after Asian American has given us our culture, traditions, and values and greatly enriched American society. I ask all my colleagues to join us in expressing our heartfelt appreciation to all Americans of Asian and Pacific Islander descent for their contributions to our country.

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Asian Pacific American Heritage Month this month and to introduce a congressional resolution which condemns prejudice against Asian and Pacific Islander Americans and supports the political and civic participation by Americans of Asian and Pacific Islander ancestry.

All too often, Asian and Pacific Islander Americans are subject to prejudice and acts of violence that often go unnoticed by the public eye. These Americans have suffered unfounded and demagogic accusations of disloyalty throughout the history of the United States. A 1992 report of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights found that Asian and Pacific Islander Americans are still frequent victims of racially motivated bigotry and violence. As recently as this past weekend, the Los Angeles Times published a story reciting recent and increasing incidence of ethnic prejudice at our nation’s nuclear weapon laboratories because of the ongoing investigations at Los Alamos.

Mr. Speaker, we should recognize the rich cultural heritage of the Asian and Pacific Islander American and Pacific Islander American. And in a way it is an American story, a story of the ongoing investigations at Los Alamos.

AMENDMENTS

Under clause 8 of rule XVIII, proposed amendments were submitted as follows:

H.R. 1259

OFFERED BY: Mr. Traffant

AMENDMENT No. 1: Add at the end the following new section:

SEC. 6. BUDGETARY TREATMENT OF THE OLD-AGE, SURVIVORS, AND DISABILITY INSURANCE PROGRAM AND THE HOSPITAL INSURANCE PROGRAM.

It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) the moneys of the United States held for purposes of the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program and the hospital insurance program maintained under the Social Security Act and related laws of the United States should always be held in separate and independent trust funds and should always be accounted for by the United States as the respective trust funds.

(2) the receipts and disbursements of such programs (including revenues dedicated to such programs and any payments on account of any trust fund for any purpose other than for providing for the prompt and effective payment of benefits) should be included in any budget totals set forth in the budget of the United States Government as prepared by the President or any budget prepared by the Congress, and

(3) the Congress should never make any law authorizing the use of such trust funds for any purpose other than for providing for the prompt and effective payment of benefits, payment of administrative expenses, and payment of such amounts as may be necessary and appropriate to correct prior incorrect disbursements.

H.R. 1401

OFFERED BY: Mr. Traffant

AMENDMENT No. 2: At the end of title XXVIII (page 1176, line 8), insert the following new section:

SEC. 104. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the moneys of the United States held for purposes of the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance programs, the hospital insurance program maintained under the Social Security Act and related laws of the United States as the respective trust funds, and the Social Security Trust Fund (as defined in section 2103 of the Social Security Act) shall be used or diverted to any other purpose.

The Senate met at 11 a.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, who knows us as we really are and whose grace gives us the courage to change and become more of what we were meant to be, we thank You for this quiet moment in which no secrets are hidden from You, and our deepest longings are revealed. As we begin this new work week, wash out of our minds any negative thinking or any emotions resistant to Your will. Help us to form and hold the picture of ourselves as servant-leaders filled with Your power, patriotism, and enthusiasm. May we completely be absorbed with what is best for our Nation and work together with a cooperative attitude. Free us of the pride that thinks too much about the perpendicular pronoun. We want to be motivators rather than manipulators of the people around us. May this be a great day of progress for the work of the Senate. To that end, bless the Senators with Your grace and goodness. Through our Lord and Savior. Amen.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER
The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The able acting majority leader is recognized.

Mr. HAGEL. I thank the Chair.

SCHEDULE
Mr. HAGEL. This morning the Senate will be in a period of morning business until 1 p.m. Following morning business, the Senate will begin consideration of S. 1059, the Department of Defense authorization bill. Amendments to the defense authorization bill are expected to be offered during today's session of the Senate. If votes are ordered with respect to S. 1059, those votes will be stacked to occur at 5:30 p.m. this evening. As always, Senators will be notified as votes are ordered.

It is the intention of the leader to complete action on the defense authorization bill this week as well as the defense appropriations bill. Therefore, Senators can expect votes into the evening throughout the week.

I thank my colleagues for their attention and cooperation.

Mr. President, I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative assistant proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum be suspended.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HAGEL). Without objection, it is so ordered.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business not to extend beyond the hour of 1 p.m. with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes. The time until 12 noon shall be under the control of the Senator from Illinois, Mr. DURBIN, or his designee, with 20 minutes of the time to be under the control of the Senator from North Dakota, Mr. CONRAD.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I designate myself to control approximately 10 minutes of time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. I thank the Chair.

WORK INCENTIVES IMPROVEMENT ACT
Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I wish to speak for a few moments today about a bill that many Senators, some 70 of us, believe will improve the lives of millions of disabled Americans. The Work Incentives Improvement Act would allow disabled adults to enter the workforce without placing their Medicaid or Medicare benefits at risk. I particularly thank Senators KENNEDY, JEFFORDS, MOYNIHAN, and ROTH for their outstanding leadership in crafting this legislation. I am very proud to be a cosponsor.

Today, more than 8 million working-age adults receive disability payments from the Federal Government for conditions that range from paralysis to multiple sclerosis. A recent Harris poll showed that 72 percent of these disabled people would really like to work, but disabled Americans face a terrible Catch-22. The Federal Medicaid program won't cover people who continue to work and remain disabled. So if a disabled adult earns more than $500 a month, he or she loses their Medicaid. That is the rub.

The eligibility criteria for Medicaid benefits have had a devastating effect on disabled Americans. The Medicaid program equates having a disability with being poor and unable to work, furthering inaccurate stereotypes about disability. To make things worse, the Medicaid programs that disabled people who do work end up having to shoulder the cost of their care by themselves.

For all but the best-off disabled Americans, these costs are prohibitive. Millions of dollars can't pay the out-of-pocket costs of their medical treatment. These costs can run into the tens of thousands of dollars each year. In other words, if a disabled American does have a job, the minute that disabled American earns more than $500 a month, they fall off a cliff and they lose their Medicaid or their Medicare. So millions of disabled Americans remain dependent on cash assistance from the Federal Government simply because they can't work and keep Medicaid at the same time.

Last year, I wrote to President Clinton urging a remedy to the situation. I am proud to be an original cosponsor of the Work Incentives Improvement Act. This bill allows Americans with disabilities to enter the workforce without losing their health coverage under Medicaid or Medicare. Even if disabled people are working in full-time jobs with health benefits, they will be able to buy their Medicaid coverage for medical expenses that their regular insurance does not cover.

In addition, the Work Incentives Improvement Act sets up a new system called Ticket to Work, to provide better job training and placement services for the disabled. The Work Incentives Improvement Act will enable disabled Americans to pursue self-sufficiency, to achieve independence, and to contribute in meaningful ways to our economy. It is certainly an idea whose time has come. That is why over 70 Senators have signed on as cosponsors.

Unfortunately, the Senate has not had the chance to vote on this important legislation. The reason I am on the floor today, as well as others who I hope will be coming to the floor, is to urge Senate Majority Leader TRENT LOTT to bring the Work Incentives Improvement Act to the Senate floor for a vote soon. No one should have to choose between a job and their health. By preserving Federal health benefits for disabled workers, we can avoid the cliff and, most importantly, we can help the disabled to live full and healthy lives.

Mr. President, I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.
The legislative assistant proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to speak for up to 25 minutes in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(Crises in the Farm Economy)

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I rise today to talk about the continuing crisis in the farm economy. I have just been home the weekend before last. Everywhere I went in my State, people were saying to me: Senator, something has to be done. We are facing a crisis in rural America. The prices we are getting for things continues to be at very low levels—in fact, we have the lowest prices in 53 years—and at the same time everything we buy is going up. That is putting us in a cost/price squeeze that is truly strangling American farmers.

the pattern all through 1997, 1998, 1999, the year 2000—and these are projections for 2001 and 2002—that our competitors are providing much more support to their producers than we are providing ours.

I conclude by saying we have a crisis in rural America. It requires a Federal response. I hope very much before this year has concluded that we have said farming is important in this country, that we understand it is in crisis, and that we are prepared to respond.

SUSPEND BOMBING IN KOSOVO

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I rise to call for a suspension of the bombing in Kosovo, not because of anything Milosevic has said or done, such as the release of three American servicemen; not because of differing opinions within NATO, such as those currently being expressed by the Italians and the Germans; not because of the inadvertent damage done to accidental targets, such as the Chinese Embassy; and not because of any personal animus or distrust of any individuals in this administration. No; I oppose continuation of the bombing in Kosovo because it has not worked. It is not working and shows no signs of working in the future.

The bombing has been of no help to the Kosovars, hundreds of thousands of whom have lost their homes, their neighbors, their children and perhaps even their lives while the bombing has gone on. It has been of no help to the Albanians or the Macedonians who have seen hundreds of thousands of refugees flood cross the borders into their ill-equipped countries. It has been of no help to NATO, an alliance that has seen its military stocks drawn down to dangerously low levels with no effect on the atrocities going on in the killing fields. And the bombing has been of no help to our relationships with nations outside of NATO, particularly Russia and China, who have vigorously opposed our decision to proceed.

Again, in short, the bombing has not worked, even though we have persisted for a longer time than we bombed in Desert Storm. My call for suspending the bombing comes from the modern wisdom that says: If at first you don’t succeed, try something else.

There are those, including my colleagues on the Senate floor, commentators andcolumnists for whom I have the utmost respect, who say we cannot even consider suspension of the bombing. We are at war, they say; we must press on to victory. Anything else would be dishonorable, and on a practical geopolitical level, would send the wrong signal to others who might choose to confront us in the future.

Such language is often called Churchillian, echoing the electrifying rhetoric of the indomitable prime minister speaking in the darkest days of World War II.

No one has a higher regard for the magnificent rhetoric and the deeds of Winston Churchill than I, but, to me, the mantra, “Because we’re in, we have to win,” is more suitable for a bumper sticker than it is for Winston Churchill.

Let me take you to a Churchillian episode that I think applies here, and it comes not from the darkest days of World War II but World War I.

Those who remember their history will remember that Winston Churchill fell into great disregard during World War I as a result of his sponsorship of the Dardanelles operation. He was removed from responsibility. But because he was still an officer in the British Army, he agreed, in fact sought for, the opportunity to go to the front in France. And so, as Major Churchill, he went to the front, and unlike most British officers of the time, he really went to the front. He went all the way to the front lines and saw for himself over a period of time the horrors and the futility of trench warfare. He saw it firsthand, and he came away convinced that it was not working.

When he returned to England, he became Minister of Munitions and put his full support and strength behind the continuation of the bombing will not work. If you will, he put aside the patriotic rhetoric of his time and sought for a policy that would work. William Manchester, in his biography of Churchill called the “Last Line,” refers to Churchill as the”father of the modern tank.” It was Winston Churchill who caught the vision of the fact that you could do something different and created the modern tank, or created the prototype of what became the modern tank, and revolutionized warfare, eliminating the failures of trench warfare.

If at first you don’t succeed, try something else. The legacy of Winston Churchill was that he was willing to try something else when he saw the reality of the failure on the ground. I think, frankly, that is the Churchillian example we should seek to follow now: Suspend the bombing and try something else.

There are many suggestions on the table. The one, of course, we hear the most these days is send in the ground troops. To those who urge this, I ask, as I asked when the bombing was proposed in the first place: Will it work? Will it accomplish our goals? And with that question, next obvious question: What are our goals?

When Secretary Madeleine Albright made the case for the bombing to the Senators in the Capitol, she told us if we did not bomb, the following would have happened: First, there would be brutal ethnic cleansing and thousands killed through- out all of Kosovo with tens of thousands of people being slaughtered and hundreds of thousands driven from their homes.

Second, she said there will be a flood of refugees and across the borders into neighboring countries, swamping their already fragile economies.

Third, she said there will be splits within NATO. This alliance will be torn apart by disagreements.

And finally, she said Milosevic will strengthen his hand on his local political situation.

That was 8 weeks ago. Now, 8 weeks later, the bombing has failed to prevent any of those results. All four of the goals on the table have failed: ethnic cleansing and the brutality and the atrocities have gone on; the refugees have appeared across the borders; NATO is split with arguments going on among its top leaders; and Milosevic is a stronger leader, a martyr, hero, if you will, of the Yugoslavs. We have not achieved a single goal that the bombing set out to accomplish. I come back to the same question: What are our new goals?

As best I can understand them, from the various statements that have been made, one list of the new goals would be as follows: No. 1, removal of all Serbian influence in Kosovo; No. 2, a return of the Kosovars physically to their land; No. 3, a rebuilding of their homes and villages; and No. 4, an international police force in there for an indefinitely long period of time to guarantee that their homes will always be protected and people accept those goals for just a moment. I ask the same fundamental question I asked in the beginning with respect to bombing. Will it work? Will continuation of the bombing achieve these four new goals when it did not achieve the four old ones? And what about ground troops? Will ground troops achieve these new goals?

On the first question, as to whether the continuation of the bombing will achieve these new goals, there is disagreement from the experts. In this morning’s Washington Post, General Short says: “Yes, we will see the achievement of these goals within a matter of months.” Last Friday, the Defense Department spokesman Kenneth Bacon said, “No, there was no indication that bombing would achieve the goals.”

I ask this fundamental humanitarian question: Do we have to continue to destroy the economy of Yugoslavia, depriving the civilian population of power and water, as we did over the weekend, raising the specter of the epidemic spread of typhoid while we decide who is right, while we decide which opinion is the correct one? Can we not suspend the bombing while that debate goes on?

Wilbur was asking to ground troops, and those who say ground troops are the only answer, those who are calling for an invasion and an indefinitely long occupation of part of Serbia, that part known as Kosovo, to them I would refer the words of Daniel Ellsberg that appeared in the New York Times last Friday.
I find them chilling. I would like to read them now at some length. I cannot paraphrase them and put them in any better form than Mr. Ellsberg himself. He says, referring to a ground invasion in Kosovo:
I believe, it would be a death sentence for most Albanians remaining in Kosovo.
By all accounts, it would take weeks to months to deploy an invasion force to the region once to so was made, and Slobodan Milosevic already has troops there fortifying the borders. Wouldn’t the prospect of an invasion lead him to order hisforces and all the military-age male Albanians and hold the rest of the population as hostages rather than continuing to deport them?
A very, very important question.
Daniel Ellsberg goes on:
We don’t know how many male Kosovars of military age—broadly, (those) from 15 to 60 years old—have been killed already.
He says:
But even if the number is in the tens of thousands . . . that would mean that most of the men were still alive. Facing invasion, would Mr. Milosevic allow any more men to leave Kosovo to be recruited by the K.L.A., or to live to support the invasion? The Serbs could quickly slaughter 100,000 to 200,000 male Kosovars. (In Rwanda five years ago, an executioner of the people we were fighting could quickly slaughter 100,000 to 200,000
Kosovar women and children—women, children and old people—tens of thousands of them could be used against the invasion as human shields, in a way never before seen in warfare. Fighting in built-up areas, NATO troops would probably be firing on buildings that were packed on every floor with Kosovar women and children.
Using the traditional means—explosives, artillery and rockets—to destroy those buildings would make NATO forces the mass executioners of the people we were fighting to protect.
The column goes on. I shall not continue with it except to summarize the grim conclusion. Mr. Ellsberg says:
I found that a chilling summary in terms of some of the language we are hearing now: We must never compromise until our goals are secured.
The first goals laid out were not secured. We now have a new set of goals and we are determined once again not to give in.
When I first went into the briefing room to hear Secretary Albright, Secretary Cohen, National Security Adviser Berger, and General Shelton give us the justification for proceeding in this area, I went in with no preconceptions one way or the other. Contrary to assumptions that have been made in the press about those of us who voted against the bombing, I did not carry any impeachment baggage into that briefing.
I have a history of backing President Clinton when I think he is right. I supported him on the recognition of Vietnam, on the Mexican peso bailout, on NATO expansion, on NAFTA and GATT and fast track, all to the discomfort of some of my constituents. I did so because I thought the President was right. And I went into that briefing very much capable of being convinced.
But during the briefing, as I became more and more uneasy about what I was hearing, when it came my turn to speak, I said to Secretary Albright: Let me give you a little bit of history.
I did that because she had quoted history to us, talking about the Balkans being the beginning of World War I and the battleground of World War II.
And she said: If we don’t act quickly enough, this will be the spark that sets off World War III.
I did not choose to argue with her history. World War II did not begin because of a fight over the Balkans.
While there were battles in World War II which occurred there, to be sure, the main theatres of World War II were in places like North Africa, Stalingrad, Normandy, and Bastogne, not to mention, of course, Guadalcanal, Iwo Jima, and Leyte Gulf.
No. I said to her: Madam Secretary, let me give you a little piece of history. This comes out of the Eisenhower administration, presided over by a military general who had achieved international fame for his strategic vision. This is when he was President.
I said: “A group of his advisers came to him to describe an international situation and to recommend a military solution. They laid out all of the military actions they wanted to take and then said, Mr. President, it will achieve these results.”
President Eisenhower listened very carefully and then asked: “Are you willing to take the next step?” They replied, “What do you mean, Mr. President?”
He said, “If this doesn’t work, this first step that you have outlined, are you willing to take the next step?”
“Oh, Mr. President,” they said, “the next step won’t be necessary. There won’t need to be any next steps. This first step will work.”
President Eisenhower, the President President Clinton, was asked, “What will you do if the bombing does not work?” He was asked by the Prime
Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I have cleared this request. I ask unanimous consent that the Secretary of Defense be extended until the hour of 1:30, and that at 1 I be recognized for 20 minutes in morning business. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HAGEL. I thank the Chair, and I thank my friend and colleague from Utah for some additional time.

I rise today to commemorate the 75th anniversary of a vital corporation: the modern American Foreign Service.

We have all traveled abroad. I have visited over 60 countries over the years. As many Americans, I have seen firsthand the dedication of professional Foreign Service officers to some of the most difficult and dangerous working environments in the world.

There is no longer any clear division between domestic and international issues. Transportation, trade, telecommunications, technology, and the Internet have changed all that.

As our Nation grew, it became more globally engaged. Over the last 200 years, year after year, America has become an international community. In 1860, we had only 33 diplomatic missions around the world. But we had 253 consular posts abroad, primarily involved in supporting our Nation's dramatic economic growth and trade expansion. As America's role in the world grew, we took on more responsibility. America's diplomatic corps expanded to draw from the breadth of our democratic society. And that, too, grew.

The solution was the Rogers Act of 1924. This act created America's first professional competitive Foreign Service. It merged the small, elite diplomatic corps with the more broadly based consular services. The Rogers Act established a merit-based examination system to recruit the best our growing Nation had to offer without regard to family ties or political favors.

America's diplomats are unsung heroes. Americans understand and appreciate the sacrifices of duty, honor, and country we ask every day from our embassies around the world. But we have had 253 consular posts abroad, primarily involved in supporting our Nation's dramatic economic growth and trade expansion. As America's role in the world grew, we took on more responsibility. America's diplomats expanded to draw from the broad strength of our democratic society. And that, too, grew.

America's diplomats are unsung heroes. Americans understand and appreciate the sacrifices of duty, honor, and country we ask every day from our embassies around the world. However, not enough Americans know about the sacrifices we also ask every day from our American Foreign Service officers around the world. Just like our military, they serve our national interests abroad in an increasingly uncertain and dangerous world.

Our military's purpose is to fight and win wars. The purpose of our diplomats is to prevent wars. This makes recognition for their work more difficult. This is a little like listening for the dog that doesn't bark. But our Foreign Service officers do much more than prevent wars and resolve crises. They negotiate agreements to expand trade and open up foreign markets. They protect Americans abroad who find themselves in trouble and many more important responsibilities. They explain American policies to often hostile nations. They help negotiate arms control agreements to stem the dangerous proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

The work of the Foreign Service is relevant. It is very relevant to the daily lives of every American. Their many successes are often unheralded. We take them for granted. The Foreign Service has endured the same underfunding and poor working conditions as has our military services. In the last decade, the Foreign Service has experienced similar recruitment and retention problems, as has the military.

Since 1992, the Foreign Service has declined 11 percent, even while we have asked the Foreign Service to open up new missions in Central Asia and Eastern Europe and increase staffing in China. This has led to sharp staff reductions elsewhere in the world.

In my travels, as I am sure in your travels, Mr. President, and all of our colleagues' travels, we have also seen how run down and dangerous many of our embassies around the world have become. This has a real impact on our national interest. This is as dangerous as what we have been doing to our military. It is like asking the Air Force to permanently maintain an increased flight tempo with aging aircraft and a severe shortage of pilots. This all has serious consequences to our country. Few appreciate how dangerous it has become for our diplomats who defend America's interests in the world.

Since World War II, more ambassadors have been killed in the line of duty than generals and admirals. The Secretary of State has commemorated 186 American diplomats who have died under "heroic or inspirational circumstances."

Finally, in today's global community, we have a greater need for an active, energetic, and visionary foreign policy and those who carry out that foreign policy than ever before.

Today, we all commemorate the 75th anniversary of the creation of the modern American Foreign Service, and we are stronger and better for it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time between 12:30 and 1 p.m. shall be controlled by the Senator from New Hampshire.

The distinguished Senator from New Hampshire is recognized.

Mr. HAGEL. I am happy to yield to my colleague from North Dakota.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, if the Senator from Nebraska will yield.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. HAGEL. I am happy to yield to my colleague from North Dakota.
The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KYL). The time of the Senator has expired. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator Johnson be added as a cosponsor to S. 1022, the Veterans Emergency Health Care Act of 1999.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Josh Akin, a member of my staff, be given the privilege of the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FEDERAL SON OF SAM LEGISLATION

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, last week we debated the Juvenile Justice Act. A number of provisions, especially dealing with guns, gun shows, and gun sales that were very controversial. I did not speak last week on an amendment I offered to the juvenile justice bill that became a part of that and is now a provision that has been passed by the Senate. I want to take a few minutes today to describe the amendment I offered and its importance.

Some while ago, I was watching a television program. It was about a serial killer, a man who killed four women and one man in Gainesville, FL. The program described the book this serial killer has written: “The Making of a Serial Killer: The Real Story of the Gainesville Murders in the Killer’s Own Words.”

I thought: That cannot be the case. If you murder four or five people and are sent to prison, you lose your right to vote and you lose certain rights. Do you have a right to write a book and profit from it? This television program described the dilemma.

There was a murderer in New York who was described as the “Son of Sam” murderer many years ago. He was sent to prison and wrote a book in order to profit from his murder. In other words, a violent murderer goes to prison and spends his time writing a book to sell to the public to make money. Is that right? Prisons in this country after committing a violent crime? Is there a constitutional right to profit from a violent crime in America? I do not think so.

The State of New York passed a statute, the “Son of Sam” statute, and the Federal Government passed a statute saying that the proceeds from a book written by a violent offender who is sent to prison cannot be retained by the violent criminal.

That was appealed and went to the U.S. Supreme Court. Guess what. The U.S. Supreme Court said: No, you may not prohibit the expressive writings of a violent criminal, because that is a violation of the First Amendment. I am truncating the Supreme Court decision, but essentially the Supreme Court invalidated the “Son of Sam” laws. The Federal law has never been enforced, to my knowledge, and the States have added the Son to Sam. So we had a circumstance where, on the program I watched, this serial killer was interviewed. The woman with whom he apparently is romantically involved, who is one of the sponsors of this book, was interviewed. It raised the question in my mind: Shouldn’t we correct this issue and these statutes so the next time this goes to the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court will not overturn the law?

I wrote a piece of legislation, after consultation with some constitutional lawyers, that I think does solve this issue and will say to any prospective author, some disgusting human being who murders four young girls and a young man in Gainesville, FL, who now says, I want to write a book to describe the detail, the horrible detail of these murders: You can write until you are dead, but you will never ever profit, you will never profit by writing the accounts of your murders and sell a book and keep the money. Not just you, but your agent, those to whom you assign the profits—you will not be able to reap the rewards of telling the gruesome, dirty tales of your sordid criminal lives.

The Juvenile justice bill which passed last Thursday has an amendment in it that closes the loophole and rewrites the Federal law. It says that any individual convicted of any Federal or State felony or violent misdemeanor, if that convicted defendant tries to sell his book, movie rights, or other expressive work or any property associated with the crimes—a bloody glove, murder weapon, photos and so on—whose value has been enhanced by that crime, then the U.S. attorney will make a motion to forfeit all proceeds that would have been received by the defendant or the defendant’s transferee—spouse, partner, friend, and so on.

Is this important? I think it is. I think we ought to have a Federal statute, and if the Supreme Court said the “Son of Sam” statute is not valid, we ought to have a Federal statute that says to anybody in this country: If you commit a violent crime and you go to prison, do not expect to sit in prison and write and profit by publishing a book about your crime.

I offered that in the Senate last Thursday, and I was joined by my colleague, Senator EVAN BAYH. He has now passed the Senate, and my hope is my colleagues in the House will see fit to keep this in the Juvenile Justice Act, and it will go to the President and be signed into law.

(Congressional Record, May 24, 1999)

COMPREHENSIVE NUCLEAR TEST BAN TREATY

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I want to make a point about something which I think is critically important to the Senate and to this country and its future. It is something we are spending no time on and pay no attention to. It is the issue of the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty.

In the past two State of the Union Addresses, the President has asked Congress to report out and approve the nuclear test ban treaty.

Going back to a time when President Eisenhower talked about this issue, I think most Americans understand the value of and the interest in a test ban treaty.

Since 1945, six nations have conducted 2,046 nuclear test explosions. That is an average of one test every 9 days. There are a few countries that have the capability of producing a nuclear weapon and testing a nuclear weapon. There are many countries that want that capability. Stopping the spread of nuclear weapons, stopping the spread of nuclear technology, the means by which nuclear warheads can be delivered, is critically important.

It seems to me one of the underpinnings of those efforts must be the passage of the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty. The United States has been under a moratorium of nuclear tests. We have not been testing since that moratorium began in 1992. We do not test nuclear weapons. We have been a leader. In this area, ratifying the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty is not only important public policy for our country and the world, it is important in the context of our leadership in these areas.

The difficulties we now have in the Balkans and the ruptures that have occurred with our relationship with the Russians, it seems to me, ought to emphasize to us how important it is to turn back to these issues of arms control.

We know that the Iranians are testing medium-range missiles. We know that the North Koreans are testing medium-range missiles. We know that India and Pakistan exploded nuclear weapons under each other’s nose, and they do not like each other. Ought that be of some concern to us? Of course it should. Yet, the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty—the CTBT it is called—the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty is here in a committee without movement. There were no hearings on the treaty in the last session of the 105th Congress. We are now 5 months into the 106th Congress. I very much want our country to do the right thing: Ratify that treaty before September of 1999, then the committee will have four of the countries that are signatories to that treaty and who have ratified that treaty, about how it will be brought into force and how it will be verified.

I know some say: Well, if you have a treaty on banning nuclear weapons tests, only those who are willing to ban them will ban them, and you can’t deal with the rogues or the outlaws.

Look, if that is the attitude, no arms control of any type is worth pursuing. But, of course, that is absurd. Arms control has brought real rewards and real reductions in nuclear weapons.

I have in my desk here in the Senate a piece of a backfire bomber. I am not at my desk to get it, but it is a piece of a wing of a bomber. Normally you would get a piece of a potential adversary’s bomber wing by shooting down a bomber. We did not do that. We cut the wing off the bomber as part of an arms control agreement in which they reduced the number of bombers, they reduced the number of missiles, and they reduced the number of warheads.

Arms control reductions have worked. So too will the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty. I intend to work with a number of my colleagues to see if we are able, in the coming weeks, to speak with some aggressiveness on this issue here on the floor of the Senate and, on behalf of the American people, to make the case that we ought to have the opportunity to vote on the ratification of the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty. We ought to do it soon.

I have seen the agenda that has been offered by the Majority Leader as to what he hopes in bringing to the floor the Senate before Memorial Day, before the Fourth of July. This is not on it. It must be. It should be. I hope it will be, because this is a critically important issue to our country and to the world.

Efforts to stop the proliferation of nuclear weapons are critical to our future.

Many countries want them. Only a few countries have access to them. We must, at every step of the way, try to forge arms control agreements that work. The Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty is one step in that direction.

Other steps include forging additional alliances with Russia, who, as all of us know, is in some significant economic difficulty. We worry a lot about a range of issues with respect to their command and control of nuclear weapons.

But the first step, I think, is for the Senate to be given the opportunity to vote on and ratify the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty. I hope that is sooner rather than later.

Mr. President, I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative assistant proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The remarks of Ms. LANDRIEU pertaining to the submission of S. Con. Res. 33 are printed in today’s RECORD under “Submission of Concurrent and Senate Resolutions.”

Ms. LANDRIEU. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative assistant proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2000

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill.

The legislative assistant read as follows:

A bill (S. 1059) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2000 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

The Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the staff members of the Committee on Armed Services appearing on the list appended hereto be extended the privilege of the floor during consideration of S. 1059.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, today the Senate begins consideration of S. 1059, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2000.

It is my distinct privilege as chairman to make the initial statement regarding this bill. I acknowledge the presence on the floor of my senior and most respected member, Mr. THURSDAY, the former chairman of the Armed Services Committee. He will be speaking to the Senate just after the statements by the chairman and the ranking member. I thank Senator Levin, the ranking member. We came to the Senate together. I think this is our 21st year. We have collaborated on many, many special assignments given to us by previous chairmen and/or ranking members through the years. I value our professional relationship and, indeed, our friendship.

I also wish to pay special acknowledgment to the subcommittee chairman of the Armed Services Committee. Prior to this year, for some 20 years, I was a subcommittee chairman. I understand the role of a subcommittee chairman on our committee. But I must say, with great humility, I think each of the subcommittee chairmen this year exceeded beyond any current precedent their hard work together with their ranking member, in preparing the respective parts of this bill over which their subcommittees have jurisdiction.

We have on our committee today marvellous participation by all members of the committee, on both sides of the aisle. I think our committee has historically operated and tried in every way to be nonpartisan on matters of defense, and we have succeeded.

We are supported by just an extraordinary professional staff, and indeed other Members have their various personal staff members who work with the professional staff, and it is all a team together working to produce not only the bill but the more responsive to each and every member of the Senate with regard to their requests, or whatever the case may be, as they relate to the jurisdiction of our committee. So I thank them all at this time, as we begin this very important presentation to the Senate for the year 2000.

I am extremely pleased to observe that this is the first time in nearly 15 years—15 consecutive years—that the defense budget before the Senate represents an increase in real terms, real dollars in our defense spending. This is a much-needed change, one that recognizes the problems brought on by 14 years of decline in defense spending. This overlaps, as the Chair will quickly recognize, both Republican and Democratic administrations. So this is not a political statement, although I do believe that the cuts under President Clinton have been too long and too deep. It was this year that the President—this year, the urging of a very courageous and fine Secretary of Defense, our former colleague, Secretary Cohen, and, indeed, members of the Joint Chiefs, gave his support to raising defense spending levels.

Today, particularly under President Clinton, who has sent forward our troops into war’s way more times on more different specific missions than any other President in the history of this country, we are asking every month, every year, more and more of the men and women of the armed services at a time when we have this very, very low level of manning of all branches of our services.

At the same period, this world remains a place of ever-increasing violence and uncertainty. As U.S. national interests are challenged throughout the globe, it is incumbent upon our military to be prepared to act when necessary, and act they have, with extraordinary commitment and professionalism.

Our military forces are currently strained by ongoing day-to-day operations. The contingency operations in Bosnia, Iraq, and throughout the Balkan regions are putting a very severe strain on our overall manning and combat readiness. The families—may I underline “the families”—of these service members. In order for the military to respond effectively, it must receive the resources necessary to equip, train, and operate.

Unfortunately, after years of declining budgets and continually increasing deployments overseas, the military services are showing the beginning signs of this overburdening. Recruiting and retention problems are leading to shortages in key skills. Insufficient procurement budgets have left our forces with equipment that is somewhat unreliable because of age and, indeed, more costly every day to maintain. Inadequate infrastructure funding has resulted in the degradation of the facilities in which our military personnel work and live.

We must provide additional resources if we are to preserve this Nation’s security and the readiness of its Armed Forces. And before the Senate authorizes $298.8 billion in budget authority for fiscal year 2000—$8.3 billion above the President’s request.

I commend the majority leader of the Senate, Senator Lott, for his support and his leadership. It doesn’t just go back a few weeks; it goes back well into last year. When consulting with him and, indeed, our distinguished chairman at that time, Senator Thurmond, the three of us recognized, together with other leaders in the Senate, such as Senator Stevens and Senator Domenici, that we have to bring about a reversal in this decline of defense spending. Those are the origins of the change of this current year, which is why I want to give extraordinary relationship that exists today between our committee and the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee. I particularly thank Senator Stevens and his staff director, Steve Cortese, for their cooperation and support throughout the process of putting this bill together.

Hopefully, Senator Stevens will follow suit. I hope that his bill so that the Senate can have both to consider.

At this point I wish to take a moment to give credit to the Joint Chiefs of Staff for helping to secure the additional funding for defense. I think this is the first year in my 21 years that they have stepped forward with such absolute determination, vigor, and professional honesty and integrity and told the Senate—in effect, told the American people—of the concerns they have not only for their personnel but for the lack of funding needed to train the personnel, the research and development, and the procurement decline we have experienced through these years. They came before the Senate committee last September and again in January, and they were very forthright. I don’t doubt for a minute that their determination was the primary reason President and the Secretary of Defense stepped up and began to support additional funding.

The Secretary of Defense, of course, all along had been counseling the President, but I want to pay special respect to the Joint Chiefs.

It is by necessity that I address this question of the shortfall in defense spending and lay it out historically over these 15 years.

But let no one, let no nation, let no leader, let no rogue or terrorist think for a moment that the men and women of the Armed Forces of the United States, together with their equipment and their readiness and training, aren’t prepared to turn back any threat posed against this Nation, or this Nation together with its allies.

In numerous committee hearings this year, the frightening magnitude of some of these problems was revealed. General Shelton, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff stated, “Anecdotal and now measurable evidence indicates that our current readiness is straining and that the long-term health of the Total Force is in jeopardy.” General Shelton further informed the committee that our ability to execute our national military strategy has declined so severely that it would “...take us more time, and that time to victory would mean that we would lose terrain that we subsequently would have to regain. It means that the casualties to the U.S. would be higher.” Furthermore, according to the latest Quarterly Force Report: “...there are currently 115 CINC-identified readiness deficiencies, of which 32 are designated category 1 deficiencies—ones which entail significant war fighting risk to execution of the National Military Strategy and are key risk drivers for the MTW, Major Theater War, scenarios.”

During the committee’s hearings on September 29, 1998 and January 5, 1999, the Service Chiefs outlined the essential funding requirements necessary to maintain the readiness of the armed forces. General Shelton and the Chiefs identified a series of readiness and modernization problems that, without additional funding of approximately $17.5 billion per year, would continue to degrade our military capability.

This figure does not include the additional funding necessary for contingency operations such as those we are facing in Kosovo today and in Bosnia and Iraq. It does not include additional funding for these contingency operations and increased pay and retirement benefits necessary to address the serious problems in recruiting and retention. This would cause additional requirements to exceed $20 billion per year.
While the committee acknowledges that the administration’s budget request contained additional monies for defense—a total increase of approximately $500.0 million over the fiscal year 1999 budget request, it does not adequately fund the requirements for the fiscal year 2000 military construction. This incremental funding would actually result in increased costs and delays in the construction of critical facilities. In addition, although the administration’s fiscal year 2000 request represents an increase of approximately $500.0 million over the fiscal year 1999 budget request, it does not adequately fund the requirements for military construction. Such incremental funding would actually result in increased costs and delays in the construction of critical facilities.

In addition, the administration’s fiscal year 2000 request represents an increase of approximately $3.3 billion to MILCON to fully fund the fiscal year 2000 military construction and family housing programs requested by the Administration, and to fund additional quality of life programs—those determined by the members of our committee to have that high priority.

A focus of the committee’s action this year has been to address the serious problems we are having with recruiting and retaining a quality force. In January, the committee moved quickly to report out—and the Senate subsequently passed—S. 4, The Soldiers’, Sailors’, Airmen’s and Marines’ Bill of Rights Act of 1999. The act authorized a 4.8-percent pay raise, reformed the military pay tables, and improved the military retirement system.

The National Defense Authorization Act for 2000—this bill—includes pay and benefits improvements of S. 4, as well as other innovative proposals to offer incentives to potential recruits and active-duty personnel.

We believe the policies recommended in this bill will enable the military services to recruit and retain the number of quality personnel required to meet our national military strategy.

That is the heart and soul of this bill. Again, I wish to commend Senator Levin and others who let this committee and I know that we are putting together the very capable leadership of the Senate to send out the message to the men and women in the Armed Forces all across the world that the Congress of the United States—certainly the Senate—stands beside them to see they are properly compensated and that their families receive a fair return for their services and the risks they take.

There it is. It is in here. I hope it receives the strongest support of the Senate.

The funding level of $288.8 billion for defense contained in the bill before the Senate represents a real increase of 2.2 percent over the fiscal year 1999 level. With the additional $8.3 billion over the budget request, the committee has done the following:

- Authorized more than $1.2 billion to primary readiness accounts, including ammunition, training funds, base operations, and real property maintenance.
- Two, authorized net increases of $59.3 million for ballistic missile defense programs; $218 million for military space programs and technologies; $111.6 million for strategic nuclear delivery vehicle modernization; and $55 million and a fraction for military intelligence programs; authorized $12.2 billion for atomic energy defense activities under the Department of Energy, an $137 million increase over the 1999 funding levels. That is an area in which the Presiding Officer has taken a great deal of interest through the years.
- Recommended a comprehensive set of provisions to enhance safeguards, security and counterintelligence at DOE facilities in response to recent and very, very grave and serious allegations regarding lack of security at DOE laboratories.
- We are learning every day about this breakdown in our counterintelligence. Members are participating in this analysis. It is very serious and requires the closest attention by every single member of the Senate.
- The committee has spent a good deal of time examining the allegations of Chinese espionage at the DOE facilities. The initiatives contained in this bill, I believe, will go a long way toward fixing the problems that Congress continues to discover. I say “continues,” because more and more comes out every day.
- In addition to the other items contained in this provision, we have put into statute many of the items contained in the Presidential Decision Directive 61. The Secretary of Energy has indicated his support for our legislation. That is in this bill. We passed these provisions with strong bipartisan support in the committee.
- We also authorized a $855 million increase to the procurement budget request and a $213 million increase to research, development, test, and evaluation for the Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force weapons and strategic lift programs. In addition, the committee authorized the budget requests for construction of six new ships and robust research and development in the future ships DD-21, CVN(X), the Virginia class submarines, and CVN-77.
- We added nearly $1.9 billion to procure a range of critical, unfunded requirements, and over $280 million of vital research and development activities for both air and land forces.
- We established 17 National Guard Rapid Assessment and Initial Detec-
Speaking for myself, I have historically supported BRAC as a means of reducing excess military infrastructure. As Secretary of the Navy, I remember vividly having closed the Boston Naval Shipyard, one of the most significant base closings since World War II. I know how difficult it is on the local community and the State to see one of these facilities close. It is not just a matter of economics, although that is very serious; it is a matter of pride; it is a matter of patriotism; it is a matter of generations of association of the men and women of the military forces who were trained at and operated these bases. It goes back into the sinews of our history.

Today, it is quite clear that the infrastructure and our inventory exceeds that which is needed by the current level of security of our Nation. Historically, the country has always been behind. The country has always been behind.

As Senator WARNER, who had done an extraordinary job. Senator THURMOND, who is on the floor, was chairman of our committee for many years. This year he turned that responsibility over to Senator THURMOND. Senator THURMOND has carried on with great strength and great commitment that is in keeping with the leadership Senator THURMOND showed when he was chairman of this committee. I commend Senator WARNER for carrying on that tradition of Senator THURMOND and, indeed, those before Senator THURMOND.

As Senator WARNER has pointed out, our staffs have been instrumental in helping us bring this bill to the floor. We had a unanimous vote for this bill in committee. I think that is a real testament to the chairman's leadership. I commend him for it.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield, it was a partnership between the Senator from Michigan and myself and my colleagues in bringing this great Nation, formed 209-plus years ago, to closing these bases, they had long since outlived their military contribution to the overall security of our Nation. Historically, the country has always been behind.

Again, I was the coauthor of the last BRAC bill. However, this time I declined and voted against the BRAC legislation. We closed a number of the old cavalry outposts that were built for the sole reason of protecting the territories when Americans were settling the West.

By the time we got around, I think, 10.12 or 15 years ago, to closing these bases, they had long since outlived their military contribution to the overall security of our Nation. Historically, the country has always been behind.

I urge my colleagues to send a strong signal of support, a strong signal of support to the men and women of the Armed Forces bravely performing their responsibilities as their forefathers have done throughout the history of this great Nation, formed 209-plus years ago. I anticipate with this bill and the bills that will follow we will always keep America strong, a beacon of hope and freedom and security to the whole world.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join the chairman of the Armed Services Committee in bringing S.1059 to the floor. This is our fiscal year 2000 defense authorization bill. It is the product of many months of hard work by the committee under the leadership of our new chairman. Senator WARNER, who has taken the baton from Senator THURMOND, who had done an extraordinary job. May 24, 1999

I sincerely hope we will find a way to adopt these proposals. They are very important proposals. They are important to the retention we need to enhance. They would be important even if there were not a retention problem, in terms of opportunities we should offer to the men and women in our Armed Forces.

The bill reported by the committee also provides full funding for the Department of Defense Cooperative Threat Reduction Program with Russia and with other countries of the former Soviet Union. Unfortunately, all of these programs make important contributions to the Department of Energy received substantially less funding than requested by the administration. The bill also contains some unfortunate restrictions on the DOE Nuclear Cities Program, which I hope we will be able to address on the Senate floor.

The Cooperative Threat Reduction Program and the related Department of Energy programs are one positive cornerstone of our relationship with Russia. They play a vital role in our national security by reducing the threat of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction from Russia and from rogue nations with which Russia might be pressured to form closer ties in the absence of these programs.

One area where I am most disappointed with the outcome of the markup is base closures, and our chairman has made reference to this issue.

The case for additional rounds of base closures is overwhelming. The Secretary of Defense has told us that more base closures are critical to meeting our future national security needs. The Secretary’s letter reads, in part, as follows:

[No other reform—]

No other reform—

even comes close to offering the potential savings afforded by even a single round of BRAC.

Which is the base closing process.

There is no substitute for base closure and realignment.

He went on to say:

The two additional rounds under consideration by the Committee will ultimately save $25 billion and generate $3.6 billion annually. Both the Congressional Budget Office and the GAO affirm the reasonableness and credibility of our estimates for savings from BRAC. In exchange for property that we neither want nor need, we can direct $3.6 billion on an annual basis into weapons that give our troops a life-saving edge, into training that keeps our forces the finest in the world, and into the quality of life of military families.

I will appreciate both the difficult decision you and your colleagues now face, as well as the legitimate concerns of bases and communities potentially affected by additional rounds of BRAC. At the same time, many success stories across the nation prove that base closure and realignment can actually lead to increased economic growth. In fact, the GAO recently noted that, in most post-BRAC communities incomes are actually rising faster and unemployment rates are lower than the national average. Moreover, the Department continues to examine the process, making it even easier for communities to dispose of base property and to create jobs in the future.

The Department’s ability to properly support America’s men and women in uniform today and to sustain them into the future hinges in great measure on realizing the critical savings that only BRAC can provide. As such, the Chairman and Joint Chiefs are unanimous in their support of our legislative proposals, and I most strongly solicit your support and that of your colleagues.

The Chiefs themselves—all of them, the Chairman and the other Chiefs—wrote to us on May 10, a very strong letter, about the need of adopting an additional round of base closings. Here is what they wrote to our chairman:

Previous BRAC rounds are already producing savings—$3.6 billion net in 1999 and $20 billion through 2003. We believe that two additional rounds of BRAC will produce even more savings—an additional $3.6 billion each year after implementation. This translates directly into the programs, forces, and budgets that support our national military strategy. Without BRAC, we will not have the maximum resources to flex and operate future forces while protecting quality of life for our military members. We will also be less able to provide future forces with the modern equipment that is central to the plans and vision we have for transforming the force.

These are our top military officials telling us about the importance of additional rounds of base closings, to remove the unneeded infrastructure that we no longer need, and to reallocate plentiful resources that are needed for modernization, for readiness, for morale, for training.

We cannot justify maintaining excess infrastructure that we do not need and, at the same time, say we have needs that must be addressed. We cannot have this both ways. We do have needs that must be addressed, and we have infrastructure we do not need which, if removed, will provide the resources to meet those needs.

Our top uniformed officers tell us the following:

BRAC is the single most effective tool available to the Services to realign their infrastructure to meet the needs of changing organizations and to respond to new ways of doing business. No other initiative can substitute for BRAC in terms of ability to restructure and reorganize. Simply stated, our military judgment is that further base closures are absolutely necessary.

Absolutely necessary is what the chairman and the members of the Joint Chiefs tell us.

These are not words of subtlety; these are very direct words which come from our unified leadership in this country, and we should heed them. I hope we will do that during consideration of this bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the two letters to which I have referred, in addition to a letter from the Service Secretaries dated May 11, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Hon. CARL LEVIN, Ranking Member, Armed Services Committee, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: We are writing to you to express our strong and unified support for authorization of additional rounds of base closures when the Senate Armed Services Committee marks up the FY 2000 Department of Defense Authorization Bill next week.

Previous BRAC rounds are already producing savings—$3.9 billion net in 1999 and $25 billion through 2003. These savings have proven absolutely critical to sustaining ongoing operations and current levels of military readiness and the quality of life of our men and women in uniform. Even still, the General Accounting Office (GAO) points out that the Department of Defense continues to retain excess infrastructure, which we estimate at roughly 23 percent beyond our needs.

We are aggressively reforming the Department’s business operations and support infrastructure to realize savings wherever possible. Nevertheless, no other reform even comes close to offering the potential savings afforded by even a single round of BRAC. There simply is no substitute for base closure and realignment.

The two additional rounds under consideration by the Committee will ultimately save $20 billion and generate $3.6 billion annually. Both the Congressional Budget Office and the GAO affirm the reasonableness and credibility of our estimates for savings from BRAC. In exchange for property that we neither want nor need, we can direct $3.6 billion on an annual basis into weapons that give our troops a life-saving edge, into training that keeps our forces the finest in the world, and into the quality of life of military families.

I well appreciate both the difficult decision you and your colleagues now face, as well as the legitimate concerns of bases and communities potentially affected by additional rounds of BRAC. At the same time, many success stories across the nation prove that base closure and realignment can actually lead to increased economic growth. In fact, the GAO recently noted that, in most post-BRAC communities incomes are actually rising faster and unemployment rates are lower than the national average. Moreover, the Department continues to examine the process, making it even easier for communities to dispose of base property and to create jobs in the future.

The Department’s ability to properly support America’s men and women in uniform today and to sustain them into the future hinges in great measure on realizing the critical savings that only BRAC can provide. As such, the Chairman and Joint Chiefs are unanimous in their support of our legislative proposals, and I most strongly solicit your support and that of your colleagues.

BILL COHEN.

CHAIRMAN OF THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF,

Hon. JOHN WARNER, Chairman, Committee on Armed Services, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: We are writing to you to express our strong and unified support for authorization of additional rounds of base closures when the Senate Armed Services Committee marks up the FY 2000 Department of Defense Authorization Bill next week.

Previous BRAC rounds are already producing savings—$3.9 billion net in 1999 and $25 billion through 2003. These additional rounds of BRAC will produce even more savings—an additional $3.6 billion each year after implementation. This translates directly into the programs, forces, and budgets that support our national military strategy. Without BRAC, we will not have the... maximum possible resources to field and operate future forces while protecting quality of life for our military members. We will also be less able to provide future forces with the modern equipment that is central to the plane and vision we have for transforming the force.

The Department’s April 1998 report to Congress demonstrates that 23 percent excess capacity exist. The Congressional Budget Office agrees that our approach to estimating excess capacity yields a credible estimate. The General Accounting Office also agrees that DOD continues to retain excess capacity.

The importance of BRAC goes beyond savings, however. BRAC is the single most effective tool available to the Services to realign their infrastructure to meet the needs of changing organizations and to respond to new ways of doing business. No other initiative can substitute for BRAC in terms of ability to reduce and reshape infrastructure. Simply stated, our military judgment is that further base closures are absolutely necessary.

BRAC will enable us to better shape the quality of the forces protecting America in the 21st century. As you consider the 2000 budget, we ask you to support this proposal.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, as our chairman indicated, the committee spent a great deal of time addressing security concerns at the Department of Energy. The revelations of Chinese espionage directed at the DOE nuclear weapons program underscore 20 years of failure by the FBI and the Department of Energy, over the course of three administrations, to take adequate steps to address security problems in the Laboratories.

This problem has been ongoing for 20 years, through three administrations, and we have not seen, until a Presidential decision directive last year, an effort to significantly tighten security at the Laboratories.

We have in that Presidential decision directive, which is called PDD–61, a strong effort by this administration to tighten that security. What we do in this bill is to support those efforts, and we do so in a way which does not undermine the ability of the Department of Energy to perform its vital national security function.

I commend our chairman for his leadership in this effort. It is important that we do strengthen the security at the Department of Energy. It is important that we take the effort which finally was made when this administration signed a Presidential decision directive, and the President did so, but that we build additional safeguards which need to be in law.

Here is what we have done. We have written much of that Presidential decision directive into law. We have established an outside Commission on Safeguards, Security and Counterintelligence at the Department of Energy facilities. We have required a certification of the security aspects of the lab-to-lab and foreign visitors programs from the Secretary of Energy, the Director of the CIA, and the Director of the FBI.

The bill reported by our committee includes many other important provisions which will contribute to the national security and the effective management of the Department of Defense. Some of these provisions include a provision establishing a single account for all Department of Defense funds to combat terrorism, both at home and abroad; a series of provisions to improve the effectiveness and efficiency of health care provided to service men and women under the Tricare Program; a provision promoting reform of Department of Defense financial management systems; a series of provisions promoting more effective management of defense laboratories and test and evaluation facilities; a provision extending the Department’s mentor-protege program for small disadvantaged businesses.

I conclude by, again, thanking our new chairman, Senator WARNER, for the manner in which he and his staff have handled this bill. He has maintained a great tradition of this committee, working with all members to make sure that all voices are heard in the effort which will always be needed to protect the Nation’s security.

I know there is going to be vigorous debate on some provisions of this bill. We hope that Senators will, indeed, consider the floor and offer amendments so that we can complete Senate action on the bill in a timely manner and go to conference.

But whatever the outcome of the debate on specific amendments or the whole debate on that debate, I think I can say unequivocally that our chairmen, following in the footsteps of Senator THURMOND, has done so with tremendous strength and has, in doing so, enhanced the security of this Nation. I yield the floor.

Mr. WARNER addressed the Chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. I thank my colleague. I think his statement reflects the partnership in which we have worked and will continue to work.

We do urge Members to bring their amendments to the floor. Currently, we have the following—I share with my colleague, and I think he is aware of this: Senator ROBERTS has an amendment, Senator SPECTER has an amendment, and Senator ROTH has an amendment, the subject matter I am sure the Senator is familiar with.

It is the desire of the majority leader, and I presume with the concurrence of the minority leader, that votes on these amendments will occur not before 5:30, but as soon thereafter as we can package them and have them sent electronically. So the staff has been working hard for the information of all Senators.

I now yield the floor.

I see our distinguished former chairman, the senior Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. THURMOND addressed the Chair. Mr. LEVIN. Will the Senator yield for one moment?
Mr. WARNER. Yes.
Mr. LEVIN. Will the Senator yield for an explanation?
Mr. THURMOND. Certainly.
Mr. LEVIN. I thank you.
I want to withhold comment on what the chairman just said in terms of se- quencing votes, because we are checking with some Senators on this side who may wish to debate one or more of those amendments to which the Sen- ator has referred. We have not seen final language on any of them, I do not believe, so I want to at least alert the chairman I would not want my silence to indicate concurrence in what he in- dicated and said until we have had a chance to review that. There is the pos- sibility we would want to withhold votes on those until tomorrow, for in- stance, but we would need to see the language on those amendments.
Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, we will provide our distinguished colleague with those amendments. I believe at the desk now is the Specter-Landrieu amendment. So one is before the Sen- ate. Working with Senator ROBERTS on a revision of his. I presume that the Roth amendment is pretty well in final form. I hope someone can inform the Senator from Virginia as quickly as possible as to the text of the amendments.
I yield the floor.
Mr. THURMOND addressed the Chair.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sen- ator from South Carolina.
Mr. THURMOND. Senator WARNER and Senator LEVIN and my colleagues, as the Senate begins consideration of the national defense authorization bill for fiscal year 2000, I join my col- leagues on the Armed Services Com- mittee in congratulating Chairman WARNER and the ranking member, Sen- ator LEVIN, on their leadership in pre- paring a strong, bipartisan defense bill.
As the former chairman of the Armed Services Committee, I am well aware of the demands and challenges we faced in the preparation of the bill and believe they achieved all the objectives the committee established at the start of the year.
At the Armed Services Committee hearing on September 29, 1999, General Shelton, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, stated:
"It is the quality of the men and women who serve that sets the U.S. military apart from all potential adversaries. These talented people are the ones who won the Cold War and ensured our victory in Operation Desert Storm. These dedicated professionals make the U.S. military possible for the United States to accomplish missions we are committed to perform around the world every single day."
The national defense authorization bill for fiscal year 2000 ensures that our Armed Forces can continue to carry out their global responsibilities by fo- cusing on readiness, future national se- curity threats, and quality of life. I am especially pleased with the focus on the quality of life issues. Our military per- sonnel and their families are expected to make great sacrifices in the de- fense of our nation. Therefore, I strongly support the 4.8 percent pay raise, the changes in the retire- ment system, and the authority for military personnel to participate in the Thrift Savings Plan. These are critical provisions, which when coupled with the additional family housing and barrack construction, will result in a well-earned improvement in the stand- ard of living for all of our military per- sonnel.
During the past several years many Senators have raised the specter of the declining readiness of our Armed Forces. The administration had continually denied this assertion until last fall, when each of the Service Chiefs— I repeat, each of the Service Chiefs—acknowledged that readiness was in fact a serious problem within our Armed Forces.
General Reimer, the Army Chief of Staff stated: "Your Army is under- funded today to adequately meet all the competing demands."
The Chief of Naval Operations, Admi- ral Johnson, stated: "I am deeply con- cerned that we are at the beginning of a free-fall in terms of readiness."
And General Krulak, the Com- mandant of the Marine Corps, put it in these words: "We are ready today, but in order to maintain readiness and the current budgetary shortfall and those of previous years, we are effectively mortgaging the readiness of tomor- row's Marine Corps."
The defense bill before us is a signific- ant step toward correcting the readi- ness issues identified by our Service Chiefs. It increases primary readiness accounts by $2 billion; it increases the procurement budget by more than $855 million and increases research and development by more than $200 million. Despite these signific- ant funding increases, I must empha- size that they are but a first step to- ward reversing the readiness trends. We cannot be satisfied with these in- creases and ensure continued robust funding increases for these programs in future bills.
Since the fall of the Berlin Wall our Nation has faced ever changing threats. Among these are the spread of nuclear and weapons of mass destruc- tion, international terrorism, and the ever increasing sophistication of weap- ons in the hands of countries through- out the world. The bill provides the funding for the Department of Defense and the Department of Energy to en- sure that the nation’s military forces, both active and reserve, are prepared to counter these threats as we enter the new millennium of the 21st century.
As with all legislation, there are pro- visions in this bill that I did not sup- port during the markup that I hope will be amended. Specifically, I am op- posed to the provision that would limit the ability of the Federal Prison Indus- tries to sell products to the Depart- ment of Defense and the provision in Title C of the bill regarding Tritium production. In my judgement, the Armed Services Committee is overstep- ping its jurisdiction by legislating on the Federal Prison Industries, which is under the purview of the Judiciary Committee. Regarding Tritium produc- tion, I am concerned that the provision has been weakened to the point where the reliability and viability of our Na- tion’s nuclear weapon’s stockpile may be at risk. Unless we have strong lan- guage to support the Secretary of En- ergy’s decision to complete design for the Advanced Tritium Production source there is a strong possibility that those who oppose a reliable and effec- tive nuclear stockpile will delay tritium production beyond the time we need tritium.
I have previously congratulated the chairman and ranking member for their work on this bill. Before closing, I want to congratulate each of the sub- committee chairmen: Senator SMITH, Senator INHOFE, Senator SNOWE, Sen- ator SANTORUM, Senator ROBERTS, and Senator ALLARD, and the ranking members for their contribution to this bill. Their leadership and work pro- vided the foundation for this legisla- tion. Finally, I believe it is important that we recognize Les Brownlee and David Lyles for their leadership of a very professional and bipartisan staff. I desire to thank Col. George Lauffer for his fine work.
This national defense authorization bill is a strong and sound bill. I intend to support it and urge my colleagues to join me in showing our strong support for the bill and our men and women in uniform.
Thank you, Mr. President. I yield the floor.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sen- ator from Virginia.
Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, we thank our distinguished former chairman for that powerful statement. His firm hand and leadership are very much a part of the everyday activities of the Senate Armed Services Com- mittee. I can think of no Member of this body who has served in uniform longer than our distinguished col- league, who entered, in my recollec- tion, through the Army Reserve. I was there at a ceremony.
What was the year that you entered the Army Reserve, Senator? Anyway, way back.
Mr. THURMOND. What was the ques- tion?
Mr. WARNER. What was the year you entered the Army Reserve? I re- member I was there when we recog- nized—
Mr. THURMOND. I finished college in 1923 and became 21 years of age in De- cember of that year.
Mr. WARNER. Isn’t that interesting. I remember when we gathered on the steps of the West Wing of the Capitol to recognize the Senator for his service. He fully understands the commitments made by men and women in the Armed Forces through several generations. That historical knowledge has been brought to bear many times on the decision-making responsibilities of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Mr. THURMOND. Thank you very much.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, seeing no other Senator at the moment seeking recognition, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Bill Adkins, a legislative fellow of Senator ABRAHAM’s staff, be granted floor privileges during the consideration of S. 1059.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ROBERTS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 377 (Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate regarding the legal effect of the new Strategic Concept of NATO)

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Kansas [Mr. ROBERTS], for himself, proposes an amendment numbered 377 to Amendment No. 377.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent of the amendment being dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(c) REPORT.—Together with the certification under subsection (a)(1), the President should submit to the Senate a report containing an analysis of the potential threats facing NATO in the first decade of the next millennium, with particular reference to those threats facing a member nation or several member nations where the commitment of NATO forces will be “out of area”, or beyond the borders of NATO member nations.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I send the amendment.

Mr. ROBERTS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 377

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, before I make remarks on behalf of the amendment, which pretty well dovetails the second-degree amendment introduced by the distinguished chairman of the committee, I would like to pay a deserved tribute to our distinguished chairman, the Senator from Virginia, for his leadership in forging a defense bill during a time of great, great challenge.

During a time when our military is stressed, strained, and some of us believe hollow, our Nation needs those who will take a stand—a stand, if you will—to really try to fulfill the first obligation of our Federal Government, and that is to safeguard our national security.

Our new chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, in the tradition of Senator THURMOND, has been the right man at the right time for the right job. He has, without question, reaffirmed the standing of the influence of the committee. He has actually given the committee—in this case, the creation of a new Emerging Threats Subcomittee on Capabilities—a chance to take a look at really what our Nation faces in terms of our national security threat in the post-cold-war period. I want to thank him publicly for discussing with me the possibility of being the chairman of that committee and for that appointment.

I think the thing I want to mention the most in regard to the chairman’s leadership and also that of Senator LEVIN is the pay raise and retirement reform contained in this bill. After hearing from the Joint Chiefs and knowing that we have a crisis in regard to retention of our men and women in uniform, the chairman, actually during the impeachment process, sat us down and really hit the ground running.

Despite the criticism of those who wanted a much larger bill, a more comprehensive bill, to address all of the problems that we face in the military, and the way I mentioned that these challenges include the quality of life issues, the health care issues, the issue of the operations tempo, the issue of the personnel tempo, and then that of mission quality. There are those who said, we are not quite sure that this pay raise or this retirement reform will really address the retention problem. There are others who said they wanted to study it further. I suggest to them that if we studied it actually further, we would be in such a problem with retention we would be past the marrow of the bone.

JOHN WARNER really took the issue by the horns and provided the leadership. We are sending a message to every man and woman in uniform, saying that we care and we care that action, as I said before, despite the impeachment proceedings and despite a very, very busy schedule here in this Congress.

So thank you to JOHN WARNER and also to Senator LEVIN, whose expertise in regard to his oversight and his policy actually keeps the committee with very strong leadership. It is a privilege to serve with both Senators. I will make a statement at a later time in regard to the efforts by Senator BINGA MAN, who is the distinguished ranking member of the Emerging Threats Subcommittee, and what we think we have been able to achieve.

Mr. President, I yield to the Chairman of the committee, as well as my colleague from Georgia, Senator CLELAND, to offer an amendment to this bill, S. 1059. It is my hope that this amendment will reaffirm the Senate’s important responsibility of either rejecting or consenting to fundamental changes in the letter and spirit of existing treaties—in particular, when those changes actually broaden the nature of U.S. military missions.
responsibilities, and obligations overseas.

I ask my colleagues’ support for a simple sense-of-the-Senate resolution that calls for complete transparency on the part of the President and Senate consideration in regard to the de facto editing of the original North Atlantic Treaty.

My sense-of-the-Senate simply asks the President to certify whether the new strategic concept of NATO, this formalization of new and complicated United States military responsibilities in Europe, as evidenced by the war in Kosovo and the possibility of future NATO deployments in the Balkans, around the world, is in fact a document that obligates the United States in any way, shape, or form. If so, my sense-of-the-Senate affirms that this body be given the opportunity to debate, to discuss, to consider and endorse or reject the new blueprint for future NATO actions. These future actions will undoubtedly include substantial components of our own Armed Forces engaged completely outside the province of the original treaty. We should today in regard to the ongoing operations in Bosnia, Albania, Macedonia, and over the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. These deployments are dominated by U.S. forces, ostensibly because of our responsibilities as a NATO member.

During the cold war, the Congress and the American people believed the original NATO Treaty was in our vital national security interest. I am not so sure we know now whether these new NATO missions meet that important criteria for the possibility of spilling American blood and treasure. There has been a transformation Mr. President, and, while yes the world has transformed since 1949, Congress still needs to be given the opportunity to formally, clearly, and endorse or reject the new NATO missions that we’re signing up for and committing to do in Europe and everywhere around the world. Given this situation, I believe it is imperative the Senate ask the President to formally certify whether the new Strategic Concept, which was adopted during the 50-year anniversary here in Washington about a month ago, represents commitments by the United States, and, if so, submit the document for formal congressional scrutiny.

Let’s be honest American people, Mr. President. If the new Strategic Concept of 1999 is the particular direction we’re headed in regards to Europe, let’s give this body the American people a chance to formally agree or disagree. If only for budgeting reasons, let’s understand what we are committing to do so we can plan and budget for it.

In this discussion, we must not lose sight of the fact that NATO is a military alliance and the new Strategic Concept of 1999 is its guide for the 21st century. This is a very important document the nineteen nations of NATO have drafted and I encourage every Senator to examine it closely, comparing it with the original North Atlantic Treaty. I believe Senators will find that the new Strategic Concept of 1999 document is completely inconsistent with the spirit of the original treaty in critical areas. That means the treaty has been changed, albeit rather quietly, during the 50-year anniversary celebration, and the United States has formally committed to a new strategic direction in Europe.

It’s time for the Senate to stop, take notice of what is happening to NATO, and go on record asserting its constitutional role.

Through the new Strategic Concept of 1999, President Clinton, along with the member nations of NATO, has quite possibly taken the common sense notion of mutual consultation for self-defense and humanitarian relief operations. As a matter of fact, I think the Strategic Concept is reflective for the most part in reference to a speech the President gave over 2 years ago at The Hague outlining what he thought the Strategic Concept and the new goals of NATO should be.

Additionally, I believe the new Concept document is not merely a tool for justifying existing extraterritorial NATO deployments of American military forces, but is a precedent toward formalizing as U.S. policy the lazy tendency of this Administration and yes, others to rely increasingly on the military services to solve social and political problems in Europe and elsewhere. Problems, I would say, Mr. President, that are more appropriately handled by other instruments of power are clearly better suited for those tasks.

I want to assure my colleagues, Mr. President, I have decided to submit my amendment as a Sense of the Senate because my objective is not to brazenly force the President to do something he, in his authority as Chief Executive to represent the nation in foreign affairs, has decided not to do or would not do. However, I am trying to encourage the Administration to be clear with the Congress and the American people—indeed to seek our consent and the public’s approval—in regards to this national security policy divergence.

I am sure opponents of my amendment will argue that the new Strategic Concept of 1999 is only that, a concept, an intellectual exercise, mere musings off the horse. First, let’s get our definitions straight. The U.S. Department of State Circular 175, Procedures on Treaties, defines a treaty as “an international agreement regardless of title, that is to say, that is only because the Senate has not given nor had an opportunity to give its advice and consent. If we formally adopted the logic that the President should only send actual treaties to the Senate, the treaty clause of article II of the Constitution would become irrelevant, contrary to the framers’ intent.

My point is that the decision of the President to submit an international agreement to the Senate is largely a political decision. Nonetheless, when a document tacitly commits the United States to a new strategic direction in Europe, it should contain the Senate’s stamp of approval. It does not have it.

Opponents of my amendment will further argue that the new Concept is, at best, an agreement, not a formal treaty and therefore, much less a potential treaty. I believe any document that contains even tacit commitment by the United States and other nations to engage in new types of NATO missions outside the domain of the original treaty, as well as the commitment to structure military forces accordingly, can be considered an international agreement.

Incidentally, the U.S. Department of State Circular 175, Procedures on Treaties, also sets forth eight considerations available for determining whether an agreement or an accord should be submitted to the Senate for ratification. Among them: The extent to which the agreement involves commitments or risks affecting the Nation as a whole—If that is not a description of Kosovo, I do not know what it is—whether the agreement can be given effect without the enactment of subsequent legislation by the Congress; past practices as to similar agreements and the preference of Congress as to a particular type of agreement.

In mentioning these criteria, I must note that last year Senators Cleland, SNOWE, and I attempted to clarify administration policy in the use of military forces by attaching several consulting requirements to the fiscal year 1999 defense spending legislation.

My question is: In order to determine what the strategic plan is, what our obligations are, what we are doing in Kosovo and other areas of the world, does that have to be done each year? Let’s get the Senate involved at the outset. It is the Strategic Concept that is at the genesis of this kind of policy. The first State Department consideration is one of the most significant for purposes of our discussion. I genuinely believe that the new Strategic Concept of 1999 and its predecessor document, without question, involved commitments and risks affecting the Nation as a whole. In fact, I could not have put it more succinctly. That is one of the reasons our distinguished chairman, Senator WARNER, wrote to the administration on this issue as the recent NATO summit, the 50-year anniversary, approached. He knew the document’s revision was imminent. He wanted to have a debate here in the Congress before moving forward with the other 19 nations. I commend our chairman for his knowledge, his foresight, and his leadership on this issue.

As the second State Department consideration I mentioned, the new Concept of 1999 probably cannot be given effect without the enactment of subsequent legislation by the Congress—without, that is, huge defense appropriation and authorization acts that try to balance the readiness and the modernization and quality-of-life requirements which this bill tries to address with numerous peacekeeping enforcement missions.

Members on both sides of the aisle may also argue—in good faith, I might add—that the Resolution of Ratification for an expanded NATO which passed this body last spring contained conditions for revising NATO’s Strategic Concept which, if efficiently constituted a Senate endorsement of the new Strategic Concept of NATO.

Again, I disagree. When we compare the actual text of the new Concept and the Resolution of Ratification adopted only last year, I would do well to point out that the complete abandonment of the original 1949 treaty, but it is also a document that has gone way beyond what the Senate actually intended.

Section 3 of the Resolution of Ratification as passed by the Senate April 30 of last year contained the following conditions for the new Strategic Concept. Let’s compare these with the Concept document. The Ratification Resolution stated:

(i) First and foremost a military alliance: NATO is first and foremost a military alliance. NATO’s success in securing peace is predicated on its military strength and strategic unity.

(ii) Principal foundation for defense of security interests of NATO members: NATO serves as the foundation collectively defending the security interests of its members against external threats.

However, Senators, I urge you to read this—this document is on your desks—in the Strategic Concept adopted at the 50th anniversary celebration in Washington last month:

Strategic Concept point #24: Any armed attack on the territory of the Allies, from whatever direction, would be covered by Article 5 of the Washington Treaty. However, Alliance security must also take account of the global context [emphasize the word “global”]. Alliance security interests can be affected by other risks of a wider nature, including acts of terrorism, sabotage, organized crime, and by the disruption of the flow of vital resources. The uncontrolled movement of large numbers of people, particularly as a consequence of armed conflicts, can also pose problems for security and stability affecting the Alliance. Arrangements exist within the Alliance for consultation among the Allies under Article 4 of the Washington Treaty and, where appropriate, co-ordination of their efforts including legal and financial measures of this kind.

I must point out, that last phrase is completely original. There is nothing in article 4 of the original NATO treaty even remotely similar to the term “the coordination of their efforts including their responses to risks of this kind.” It is just not there. I cannot imagine a more substantive change to the NATO treaty than adding a collective response obligation for the United States to respond to terrorism and other asymmetrical threats not only in Europe but all over the globe.

The Resolution of Ratification continues—again, that was the expansion treaty that was passed as of last year:

(iii) Promotion and protection of United States vital national security interests: [For example:] Strong United States or NATO actually promotes and protects United States vital national security interests.

(iv) United States leadership role: [Now, this is in last year’s language in regard to the ratification of the expansion.] The United States maintains its leadership role in NATO through the stationing of United States combat forces in Europe, providing military commanders for key NATO commands, and through the presence of United States nuclear forces on the territory of Europe.

However, 1 year later in the Strategic Concept, point No. 18—and I urge Senators to pay attention to it:

As stated in the 1994 Summit declaration and reaffirmed in Berlin in 1996, the Alliance fully supports the Euro-Atlantic Partnership and the European Security and Defense Identity (ESDI) within the Alliance by making available its assets and capabilities for Western European Union (WEU)-led operations. To this end, the Alliance and WEI have developed a close relationship and put into place key elements of the ESDI as agreed in Berlin. In order to enhance peace and stability in Europe and more widely, the European Allies are strengthening their capacity for action, including by increasing their military capabilities. The increase in military capabilities and capacities of the European Allies with respect to security and defense enhances the security of the environment of the Alliance.

Now, Mr. President, the WEU will be using NATO military equipment paid for by the taxpayers of the United States. That may be proper, that may be a role for NATO, but I think we need to review that proposal.

The Resolution of Ratification of last year does continue:

Common threats: NATO members will face common threats to their security in the post-Cold War environment including—

(I) the potential for the re-emergence of a hegemonic power confronting Europe;

(II) rogue states and non-state actors possessing nuclear, biological, or chemical weapons and the means to deliver these weapons by ballistic or cruise missiles, or other unconventional delivery means;

(III) threats of wider nature, including the disruption of the flow of vital resources, and political and all other transnational threats; and

(IV), conflict in the North Atlantic area stemming from ethnic and religious enmity, the revival of historic disputes, and the activities of undemocratic states. The resulting tensions could lead to [the] crises affecting [the] Euro-Atlantic stability, to human suffering, and to armed conflicts.

Nonmilitary risks, Mr. President? Inadequate or failed efforts at reform? What are we talking about? I do not recall those phrases in the Resolution of Ratification. Why would a military alliance such as NATO care about a nonmilitary risk? What is a nonmilitary risk anyway?

The Resolution of Ratification continues, as of last year:

(v) Core mission of NATO: Defense planning will affirm a commitment by NATO members to a credible capability for crisis, or other conventional or nuclear targets.

(vi) Core mission of NATO: Defense planning will affirm a commitment by NATO members to a credible capability for crisis, or other conventional or nuclear targets.

No argument there. That is the historical purpose of NATO and that is collective self-defense, which remains the core mission of NATO. All NATO members will contribute to this core mission.

No argument there. That is the historical purpose of NATO and that is collective self-defense, which remains the core mission of NATO. All NATO members will contribute to this core mission.

One year later, with the Strategic Concept, while they were popping champagne corks in regard to NATO being 50 years old:

Strategic Concept point #18: To achieve its essential purpose, as an Alliance of nations committed to the Washington Treaty and the United Nations Charter, the Alliance performs the following fundamental security tasks:

Deterrence and defense: To deter and defend against any threat of aggression against any NATO member state as provided for in Article 5 of the Washington Treaty.

Crisis management: To stand ready, case-by-case and by consensus, in conformity with Article 7 of the Washington Treaty, to contribute to effective conflict prevention and to engage actively in crisis management, including crisis response operations.

I am glad to see that deterrence and defense is still there. But, again, this emphasis on conflict prevention and crisis management is extremely disconcerting and not consistent with the Resolution of Ratification that was passed in the Senate as of last year.

The Resolution of Ratification continues—we are talking about section 7:

(vii) Capacity to respond to common threats: NATO’s continued success requires a credible military capability to deter and respond to common threats. Building on its core capabilities for collective self-defense of its members, NATO will ensure that its military force structure, defense planning, command structures, and force goals promote NATO’s capacity to project power when the security of a NATO member is threatened, and provide a basis for ad hoc coalitions of willing partners among NATO members. This will require that NATO members preserve national military capabilities to rapidly deploy forces over long distances, sustain operations for extended periods of time, and operate jointly with the United States in high-intensity conflicts.

However, 1 year later, in the Strategic Concept point No. 49:

In contributing to the management of crises through military operations, the Alliance’s forces will have to deal with a complex and diverse range of actors, risks, situations and demands, including humanitarian emergencies. Some non-Article 5 crisis response operations may be as demanding as some collective defense missions. Well-trained and well-equipped forces at adequate levels of readiness and in sufficient strength to meet the full range of contingencies as well as appropriate support structures, planning tools and command and control capabilities are essential in providing efficient military contributions.

I do not know how long this Nation is to fund, structure, and train U.S. military forces to manage parochial crises in Europe, no matter how small, through military operations. Nor do I think that is the best use of our forces, if you consider already we must meet the two major regional conflict response thresholds within serious budget constraints.

Again, I do not see this use of military forces endorsed in the Resolution of Ratification that the Senate passed last year. The Resolution of Ratification does continue:

The fundamental importance of collective defense:

This was last year.

The Senate declares that—

(i) in order for NATO to serve the security interests of the United States, the core purpose of NATO must continue to be the collective defense of the territory of all NATO members; and

(ii) NATO may also, pursuant to Article 4 of the North Atlantic Treaty, on a case-by-case basis, engage in other missions where there is a consensus among its members that there is a threat to the security and interests of NATO members.

However, once again, in the Strategic Concept, 1 year later, at the celebration, the 50-year celebration. No. 48:

The maintenance of the security and stability of the Euro-Atlantic area is of key importance. An important aim of the Alliance and its forces is to keep risks at a distance by dealing with potential crises at an early stage. In the event of crises which jeopardize Euro-Atlantic stability and could affect the security of Alliance members, the Alliance’s military forces may be called upon to conduct crisis response operations. They may also be called upon to contribute to the preservation of international peace and security by conducting operations in support of other international organizations, complementing and reinforcing political actions within a broad approach to security.

What do we mean by this—"keep risks at a distance by dealing with potential crises at an early stage"? Isn’t that the job of diplomacy? Anyway, the list of inconsistencies between the Resolution of Ratification and the new Strategic Concept of 1999 goes on and on and on.

I have taken a great deal of time of the Senate and my colleagues to be specific about this. Even if they were more consistent, it does not change the fact that the Strategic Concept of 1999 fundamentally alters the nature and the domain of the original treaty that this Senate ratified just a year ago.

So, in closing, I think my bipartisan amendment, warrants support because it is time to go on record that the Senate insists that changes to the original treaty that this Senate ratified just a year ago.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia, Mr. WARNER, Mr. President, this amendment, which the Senator and I refer to as the Roberts-Warner amendment, is one which obviously I strongly support.

I first ask unanimous consent that the correspondence the Senator from Virginia had with the President of the United States be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. (See Exhibit 1.)

Mr. WARNER. I commend the Senator. We have been working on parallel tracks on this issue for some months now. I cannot think of a more important amendment to add to this bill than the one of which my distinguished colleague from Kansas is the principal sponsor. At this very moment, well over half of the tactical aircraft are being operated by U.S. air and armed forces; well over 70 percent of the support aircraft, the tankers, the intelligence aircraft and all of those, the spotters and the like, are being operated by U.S. airmen.

It is the Strategic Airlift Command which is heroically—together with the Air Guard, I add, which, of course, is part of that concept of the vast preponderance of the missions associated with airlift in this operation in Kosovo.

If there is one thing this operation tells us, it is that future conflicts are becoming more and more dependent on modern technology. The weapons being employed in this air-only campaign are guided missiles, again predominantly provided by the United States.

The other nations of NATO, for whatever reasons, simply have not equipped themselves or trained their personnel in sufficient numbers to conduct an operation of this magnitude. That is not in any way to detract from their courage in flying their missions, and approach which in itself is so filled with uncertainty, but whenever the hostilities are ongoing, we are joining in this air operation. Whether they are single aircraft, or two aircraft or one mission a day—whatever it is—they are an integral part. I salute them, and I respect them, but statistically it is the taxpayers of the United States and it is the young men and women wearing the uniform of the United States who are carrying the brunt of this operation.

The Senate brings to the attention of the House that at this 50th anniversary summit conference, this document, to which he has referred several times, was adopted. In any reading of this document by this Senator, and I think any other Senator, it will clearly show that it is the intention of the summit to push beyond the horizon of the original NATO of 1949, to push beyond the horizon of the 1991 Strategic Concept the potential missions of this historic organization.

I yield the floor. The Senate Armed Services Committee will conduct a series of hearings once the hostilities and the risk of NATO forces is in one way or another—

I hesitate to use the word "terminated" because I am not certain if that word is applicable to this situation which in itself is so filled with uncertainty, but whenever the hostilities are contained to the point where the Armed Services Committee can begin to look at what went right and what went wrong in the conduct of the military operations and, most particularly—most particularly—this consensus by the 19-nation doctrine by which this operation has been, is, and will be conducted for an indefinite period of time.

It is the absolute fundamental right of the Senate, under the treaty clause of the Constitution, to review in detail, and I say carefully, what is proposed—I repeat, proposed—by the 50th anniversary summit. The Senate Armed Services Committee will conduct a series of hearings once the hostilities and the risk of NATO forces is in one way or another—

I hesitate to use the word "terminated" because I am not certain if that word is applicable to this situation which in itself is so filled with uncertainty, but whenever the hostilities are contained to the point where the Armed Services Committee can begin to look at what went right and what went wrong in the conduct of the military operations and, most particularly—most particularly—this consensus by the 19-nation doctrine by which this operation has been, is, and will be conducted for an indefinite period of time.

I first became concerned about this new doctrine early this spring. I wrote to the President on April 7 urging him not to allow the summit to "finalise"—that is the word I used—or write in The main difference in the security tasks identified in the 1991 Strategic Concept and the document adopted this April in the new "Strategic management" task, and an emphasis on non-article 5 crisis operations. Non-article 5 operations were not even mentioned in the 1991 Strategic Concept.

I say to my colleague from Kansas, they were not even mentioned, but they are written throughout this new one which was promulgated this April. I will read one paragraph:

"The security of all allies is indivisible. An attack on one is an attack on all. With respect to collective defense under article 5 of the Washington Treaty—"

Of course, that is the 1949 treaty—

the combined military forces of the alliance must be capable of deterring any potential aggression against it, of stopping an aggressor’s advance—whereas the non-article 5 operations should an attack nevertheless occur and assure the political independence and territorial integrity of its member states.

Here is the key sentence: They must have the capability to contribute to conflict prevention and to conduct a non-article 5 crisis response operation.

That means going beyond the territorial boundary of the 19 nations.

The vote of the American people through its elected Members of the Senate is absolutely essential before we sign on to such a mission. I commend my colleague for bringing that to the attention of the Senate in the form of this amendment.

According to the new Strategic Concept, the alliance is tasked "to stand ready, case-by-case by consensus...to contribute to effective conflict prevention, and to engage actively in crisis management, including crisis response operations." Kosovo is an example of a non-article 5 crisis response operation.

COMMITTEE ON ARMED SERVICES, Washington, DC, April 7, 1999.

The President, The White House, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: The Administration, in consultation with our NATO allies, is now finalizing various documents to be submitted to the Heads of State for ratification at the upcoming 50th anniversary NATO Summit to be held in Washington later this month. A key decision in any new document is the revision of the Strategic Concept for the future—perhaps a decade—that will guide NATO in its decision making process regarding the levels of military forces.

I am recommending, Mr. President, that a draft form of this document be reviewed by the principals, but not finalized, at this 50th anniversary Summit. Given the current situation in Kosovo, a new Strategic Concept for NATO—the document that spells out the future strategy and mission of the Alliance—should not be written "in stone" at this time. In my view, the most important task, the "management" task, and an emphasis on non-article 5 crisis operations. Non-article 5 operations were not even mentioned in the 1991 Strategic Concept.

I say to my colleague from Kansas, they were not even mentioned, but they are written throughout this new one which was promulgated this April. I will read one paragraph:

"The security of all allies is indivisible. An attack on one is an attack on all. With respect to collective defense under article 5 of the Washington Treaty—"

Of course, that is the 1949 treaty—

the combined military forces of the alliance must be capable of deterring any potential aggression against it, of stopping an aggressor’s advance—whereas the non-article 5 operations should an attack nevertheless occur and assure the political independence and territorial integrity of its member states.

Here is the key sentence: They must have the capability to contribute to conflict prevention and to conduct a non-article 5 crisis response operation.

That means going beyond the territorial boundary of the 19 nations.

The vote of the American people through its elected Members of the Senate is absolutely essential before we sign on to such a mission. I commend my colleague for bringing that to the attention of the Senate in the form of this amendment.

According to the new Strategic Concept, the alliance is tasked "to stand ready, case-by-case by consensus...to contribute to effective conflict prevention, and to engage actively in crisis management, including crisis response operations." Kosovo is an example of a non-article 5 crisis response operation.

NATO is by far the most successful military alliance in contemporary history. It was the decisive factor in avoiding widespread conflict in Europe throughout the Cold War. Subsequent to that tense period of history, NATO was, again, the deciding factor in bringing about an end to fighting in Bosnia, and thereafter providing the security essential to allow Bosnia to achieve the modest gains we have seen in the reconstruction of the economic, political and security base of that nation.

New NATO is engaged in combating the widespread evils of Milosevic and his Serbian followers in Kosovo. I visited Kosovo and Macedonia last September and witnessed Milosevic’s repression of the Kosovar Albanians. Thereafter, I spoke in the Senate on the essential need for a stabilizing military force in Kosovo to allow the various international humanitarian organizations to assist the people of Kosovo—many then refugees in their own land, forced into the hills and mountains by brutal Serb attacks. Since then, I have consistently been supportive of NATO military action against Milosevic.

Unfortunately, it is now likely that the NATO Summit will take place against the backdrop of continuing events relating to Kosovo. At this time, no predictions can be made as to a resolution.

We are just beginning to learn important lessons from the Kosovo conflict. Each day is a new chapter. For example, NATO planners and many in the Administration, and in Congress, have long been aware of the disparities in military capabilities and equipment between the United States and our allies. Now, the military operation against Yugoslavia has made the American people equally aware of our interdependence. The U.S. has been providing the greatest proportion of attack aircraft capable of delivering precision-guided munitions. Further, the United States is providing the preponderance of airlift to deliver both military assets (such as the critically needed Apache helicopters and support equipment) and humanitarian relief supplies, to which are now in competition with each other.

Until other NATO nations acquire, or at least have in place firm commitments to acquire, comparable military assets, the United States will continually be called on to carry the greatest share of the military responsibilities for such ‘out of area’ operations in the future. This issue must be addressed, and the Congress consulted and the American people informed.

It is my understanding that the draft Strategic Concept currently under consideration by NATO specifically addresses NATO strategy for non-Article 5, ‘out of area’ threats to our common interests—threats such as Bosnia and Kosovo. According to Secretary Albright in a December 8, 1998 statement to the North Atlantic Council, ‘The new Strategic Concept must find the right balance between affirming the centrality of Article V collective defense missions and ensuring that the fundamental tasks of the Alliance are intimately related to the broader defense of the common interests of the Alliance. Further, it is critical that any agreement on broad commitment to be accepted in final form, just weeks away at the 50th anniversary Summit.’

During the Senate’s debate on the Resolution of Ratification regarding NATO expansion, the Senate addressed this issue by adopting a very important amendment put forward by Senator Kyl. The President, therefore, should, in consultation with the United States, provide the full facts regarding the events in Kosovo. The lessons of Kosovo could even change this position.
The intent of this letter is to give you my personal views. Final decisions by NATO on the Strategic concept should not be taken—risked—against the uncertainties emanating from the Kosovo situation.

As of this writing, the Kosovo situation is having a destabilizing effect of the few gains made to date in Bosnia. This combined situation must be carefully assessed and evaluated before the U.S. and our allies sign on a new Strategic Concept for the next decade of NATO.

A brief period for study and reflection by ourselves as well as our Allies would be prudent. NATO is too vital for the future of European and American leadership. With kind regards, I am

Respectfully,

JOHN WARNER
in the vital interest of the United States of America for our families to be asked to make those commitments of life and limb. That is the central question, as you pointed out, I think very carefully.

If I might, because I think it bears worth repeating: "The NATO charter requires the use of force in only one instance"—now this is the 1949 treaty, under article 5—"to respond to an armed attack against one or more of the member nations." Strike one, strike all. There is nothing in that charter that calls for the use of force to protect common interests.

This being created out of whole cloth, this non-article 5 combat. It is as if we are writing a new article to the original treaty. It is for that reason that we should bring this before the Senate. By the use of the phrase of calling it a strategic concept through the panoply of the 50th anniversary, what they have done here, in my judgment, is create a new article to the fundamental treaty of 1949, and that they cannot do without the advice and consent of the Senate.

Mr. ROBERTS. Would my distinguished chairman yield for one additional question?

Mr. WARNER. Yes.

Mr. ROBERTS. I am worried about the future of NATO. If in fact our involvement in Kosovo was at one time not in our vital national interest, there is, I think, a good argument that can be made—has been made by the national security team and the President—that since NATO's credibility or the future of NATO is now on the line, it is in our vital national security interest.

Having said that, and having looked at the issue in Kosovo, and the tactics used, and the result, and all six of the goals, as outlined by the distinguished Secretary of State in our briefings, being turned on their head as a result of the tactics that have been used in the military strategy, and the law of unintended effects, can you imagine a situation under this Strategic Concept that all 19 nations will ever agree to ever bomb anybody again? On a proactive basis? Where we are going outside of the NATO territory, ignoring the treaty?

Eight nations, right now as I speak, more especially three, want the bombing ended. Many others in this Chamber—not this Senator, for reasons that I could go into, but I will not—did not want to start the bombing campaign. Others wanted to start it. Others wanted to use the ground forces. That debate is going on right now.

We are negotiating within the NATO—within the NATO—alliance as opposed to trying to negotiate, as we are trying to do, with Mr. Milosevic, who, by the way, is a thug and an international terrorist and all the things people say about him. That does not enter into this. But can you imagine, Mr. Chairman, under what circumstance, after Kosovo, that NATO would bomb again, or for that matter ever use ground troops?

What kind of message does that send to the bad guys and the hard targets and the real people that we should be worrying about all around the world? I think we have decimated—well, there is a stronger word for it, but I will not use it—in regards to NATO. I think under this Strategic Concept we have wandered so far afield and into a dangerous posture that we are endangering the true mission of NATO, which is collective security, not to mention all the rest of these things that are in this concept.

That is what worries me.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I say to my good friend, as I say to my good friend, Mr. President, I say to my good friend, Mr. President, I say to my good friend, among other things, predicated on a lot of study in the lifetime of this Senator of the NATO treaty, the doctrine of consensus was predicated on keeping the operations within the borders.

And now, under this proposed 1999 Strategic Concept, to take it beyond the borders, I question whether or not the doctrine of consensus will work.

What a tragedy it would be if we took this magnificent NATO organization, which fulfilled beyond the dreams of all its mission, as laid down in 1949, which kept the peace in Europe for that half century, and allow it to be pulled apart by a doctrine such as this new Strategic Concept. I think the Senator is quite right. We are in this conflict, in all probability, not because of our national vital security interests but because of NATO. It is because of NATO that we cannot allow our military commanders to promulgate the actions which are necessary to go ahead and win it.

I often think, I say to my good friend, as over 50 percent of the airmen are flying tactical missions and over 70 percent of the support missions and the airlift, are we unfairly asking those young aviators to bear the brunt of war disproportionately because NATO did not devise and put in place, concurrently with the air operations, starting a ground operation? Because a ground operation would have transformed this conflict considerably. It might well, in my judgment, have brought about a far earlier conclusion of this conflict and saved the prolonged risk to airmen which is going on today and tomorrow and for the indefinite future, given the absence of bringing together all the force capable of the 19 nations to bear.

Indeed, the other nations that do not have the air power, as we have it, could have been the primary components of the ground action, leaving to the American airmen the operations in the sky but they undertake the operations on the ground. It would have forced Milosevic to put in place, making in all probability his ground assets a better target than they are today, widely dispersed and hidden in the villages and towns throughout Kosovo and elsewhere.

I think the whole dynamics of this conflict would have been changed had we not limited solely to air but done a ground-air combination, for which our forces have trained these 50 years in NATO, as well as the other NATO nations, for a ground-aired coordinated defense.

I point out, NATO was always to be a defense treaty.

Mr. ROBERTS. If I may ask my distinguished friend, the chairman, one other question; that is, I do not think there is any question in the minds of many that to state that you are not going to use ground forces before you decide to use force was a mistake. There is no question about that.

I am not sure I could still support or still support—I never did support—the use of ground troops, unless I know their specific mission is: What do we expect them to do. And then, if you "win," if we could ever define "winning," what is it that we have won.

So from the standpoint of tactics, I say again to the chairman, I am very hopeful, once this war is over, we hope and pray that all of this talk that has been rather critical will be secondary, and, if Milosevic would agree to some of the negotiating principles that have been offered, we shall see. I see where one NATO general indicated it is going to take another 2 months. I hope that is not the case.

I hope the Senate Armed Services Committee—and I ask the chairman, would it be his intent to take a hard look. I have a subcommittee that looks at low-intensity conflicts—this became a high-intensity conflict—and military tactics and strategy, I hope we can look at this, especially with the asymmetrical threat that Mr. Milosevic has used so well against us. He basically took one look at our tactics and acted accordingly and played rope-a-dope. He has achieved most of his objectives. That seems to me to be a real problem here. I hope we have those hearings.

Again, I go back to the genesis of this whole business, and that is a Strategic Concept that puts us in far different pastures. I know there will be some of my colleagues who say this is not a treaty. The fact that we are having this debate today, I think, is encouraging. We had a debate on ratification of NATO expansion last year. To my knowledge, we have not had any debates very long or very little on this Strategic Concept and what it means.

So the Senator's cosponsorship of this amendment is much appreciated. If, in fact it is not a treaty, it has the effect of a treaty.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, we are going to have that series of hearings. I do not want to have a hearing or a series of hearings on the Armed Services Committee until the men and women of the NATO forces are, hopefully, in a very limited situation with regard to personal risk.

Mr. ROBERTS. If the chairman will, I heartily agree. The war must be over.

Mr. WARNER. Let me just bring up a final condition as a member of my good friend here. I know others want to speak to this. Then we will have to lay it aside.

I point out that during the 1994 debate on modifications to the ABM Treaty, the Senate Armed Services Committee included a provision, and I was a co-sponsor of that effort in the 1995 DOD authorization act—I ask my colleague to listen carefully—which required the President to submit to the Senate for advice and consent any international agreement which would substantially modify the ABM Treaty. I think that is a direct parallel and an exact precedent for what the Roberts-Warners amendment seeks.

I yield the floor.

Mr. LEVIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, first I commend our good friend from Kansas for the energy he has put into a very significant issue which has to do with the new Strategic Concept of NATO.

This is not a new issue. The question of NATO’s role since the fall of the Soviet Union has been an issue of a number of new Strategic Concepts. Listen to what NATO said in 1990. We have heard a lot about 1999 in Washington, but just listen to the heads of state in July 1990, speaking in London. Here is what the heads of state said: While reaffirming the basic principles on which the alliance has rested since its inception, they recognized the developments taking place in Europe would have a far-reaching impact on the way in which its aims would be met in the future and the need for a fundamental strategic review, fundamental strategic review.

And what came out of that strategic review in 1991, fundamental strategic review for NATO? They have listed many new security challenges and risks in 1991. Listen to risk No. 9, language very similar to what was adopted in Washington this year:

Risks to allied security less likely to result from calculated aggression against a territory of allies but, rather, from the adverse consequences of instabilities that may arise from the serious economic, social and political difficulties, including ethnic rivalries and territorial disputes...

I didn’t hear too many calls then for a submission of amendments to the NATO treaty. I don’t think we heard any calls then, although the risks changed. They changed in a significant way: They came from calculated aggression against the territory of the allies but from adverse consequences of instabilities.

I don’t think there was a change to the NATO treaty then, and I don’t think there is a change to the NATO treaty now. There were no new commitments or obligations for the United States then, in 1991, nor do I believe there are any now.

Are there different challenges? Yes. Is there a different strategic concept? Yes. Are there different risks? Yes. But is there a change to the treaty, new commitments or obligations for the United States now? I don’t think so. Were there in 1991 when all the allies signed a new strategic concept? No. Even though the Soviet military capability still was constituting the most significant factor, all of a sudden because of the decline and fall of the Soviet Union, we now had new risks. Listen to these words in paragraph 12. This is in the 1991 Strategic Concept, paragraph 12:

Alliance security must also take account of the global context.

Wow. You talk about a different challenge and you talk about a new strategic concept. In 1991, the NATO allies suddenly say that alliance security must take account of the global context. Those are pretty broad words. But I didn’t hear any suggestion back in 1991 that it was an amendment to the NATO treaty that required submission to the Senate—and for a good reason. There were no commitments or obligations undertaken in 1991, and there are no strategic concepts which contain new commitments or obligations in 1999. In 1999, the allies said that alliance security interests can be affected by other risks of a wider nature, including proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, disruption of the flow of vital resources, and actions of terrorism and sabotage. That is a lot different from an attack on the territory of the allies. But nobody suggested any amendment to the NATO treaty, to the Washington Treaty.

Why didn’t anyone suggest that in 1997? Because that did not constitute the undertaking of new commitments or obligations for the United States, even though we all agreed that alliance security must take into account the global context—and that is a lot beyond Europe. In 1991, everyone agreed to that. I don’t remember one amendment, not one amendment, not one provision that suggested a new Strategic Concept constituted a commitment or obligation binding upon the United States which would require a change in the NATO treaty. It wasn’t suggested in 1991 because there was no new commitment or undertaking binding upon us, because there was simply a new strategic concept. The 1999 Strategic Concept does not constitute a new commitment or obligation, either. The same principle applies now as it did then.

So the amendment of the Senator, which says if there are new undertakings, whether or not the new Strategic Concept imposes any new commitments or obligations on the United States, it seems to me is a requirement on the President that is perfectly appropriate. I have no difficulty whatsoever in asking the President to tell us whether or not the 1999 Strategic Concepts constitute new commitments or undertakings. It is perfectly appropriate—as this resolution does—to call on the President to inform us as to whether or not there are new commitments or undertakings.

As a matter of fact, the President has already informed us of exactly what this resolution says he should inform us. The President wrote Senator WARNER on April 14 that “the Strategic Concept will not contain new commitments or obligations for the United States.” Those are the President’s words.

So what this resolution does is say: Does it? The President said, in April, that it won’t. I have no doubt that the President will report that. But I must say I don’t have a difficulty with what Senator ROBERTS is doing because it is perfectly appropriate to ask the President: Is there anything in this new Strategic Concept which imposes upon us a new obligation for commitment? If so, submit it to us as a treaty amendment.

This is very different from some earlier language that was circulated in the Armed Services Committee. This doesn’t make a finding that there are new commitments or obligations in this agreement in Washington in 1999. The language before us doesn’t make any such finding. The language before us in the Senator’s resolution, which I find to be appropriate, requires the President to determine and certify whether or not the Strategic Concept imposes any new commitment or obligations on the United States—whether or not.

And so as I read this resolution, I think the language is appropriate in this resolution, that the President reaffirm what he told us on April 14, tell us if there is any change in his thinking on that. Again, as he wrote Senator WARNER on April 14—and this letter has been made part of the RECORD now, I believe—the President said:
The Strategic Concept will not contain new commitments or obligations for the United States, but rather will underscore NATO’s enduring purposes, outlined in the 1949 North Atlantic Treaty.

There has been reference here to the significance of changes in strategic concepts, and I think it is important that the Senate spend some time doing what Senator ROBERTS and others have done, both on the committee and off, in focusing on this Strategic Concept. It is important that we understand what these new threats and risks are. It is important, in my judgment, that we make a determination as to whether or not we do have new legal commitments and obligations.

I don’t believe the 1999 Strategic Concept creates any new binding obligations or commitments any more than I did that the 1991 Strategic Concept created any new binding commitments and obligations. But our committees of jurisdiction surely should focus on that resolution.

Senator WARNER has indicated in the last few minutes that the Armed Services Committee will, indeed, be holding a series of hearings on this subject. As he stated it, if I heard him correctly, those hearings will occur after the events in Kosovo are resolved. But as of this time, we have not yet had such hearings. I am not certain of this. But I don’t believe that the Foreign Relations Committee has either, at least after the Washington agreement was signed. There may have been a hearing before the Washington agreement. But I don’t believe there has been one since it was signed. The agreement has some very significant provisions in it relative to a European commitment to take on greater responsibility for European security.

Senator WARNER made reference to the European Security and Defense Initiative, a very significant change—a very significant initiative in terms of what Europe will do. It is something that I have believed for some time that Europe should do. The reference is very specific inside of the Washington agreement.

Two, the European allies taking on— in the words of the agreement—“assuming greater responsibility in the security and defense field in order to enhance the peace and stability of the Euro-Atlantic area, and, thus, the security of all allies.”

Then it goes on to say: “On the basis of decisions taken by the Alliance in Berlin in 1996 and subsequently, the European Security and Defense Initiative will continue to be developed within NATO.”

I think it is a very significant change. It is something which we in the United States should welcome. It means that the Europeans will be taking on greater responsibility for the defense of Europe against threats, old and new.

We ought to welcome as well the reference or the discussion of a new initiative. These European countries will have greater defense capabilities to address appropriately and effectively the risks that are associated with weapons of mass destruction; new capabilities so that they can deploy more readily greater mobility, greater survivability of forces, greater infrastructure and sustainability. These are initiatives inside of the new strategic doctrine which will make it possible for Europe to take greater responsibility for the defense of Europe. We should welcome this.

I don’t think there has been very much emphasis in the United States on what Europe has agreed to do in the new Strategic Concept—what they have, in effect, put into black and white. We have a commitment to greater European resources being used for the European defense.

As I said a few moments ago, this resolution which is before us says that if there are new commitments and obligations—if then the President should so certify to the Senate. And I believe there is none.

Indeed, the Senator from Virginia has been assured by the President in the letter which he put in the Record that the Strategic Concept will not contain new commitments or obligations. I believe there is none in this 1999 Strategic Concept, and I believe there was none in the 1991 Strategic Concept. There was none in 1991.

Even though the language is very similar—again, my good friend from Virginia being here—I just want to read some of the language in the 1991 Strategic Concept again. I will be very brief. But article 12 of the 1991 Strategic Concept said that “alliance security is not to be confused with global concepts.” “Alliance security interests can be affected by other risks of a wider nature, including proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, disruption of the flow of vital resources and actions of terrorists and sabotage.”

That was in 1991. That is just one part of a Strategic Concept which we all agreed to.

Did that represent changes in the North Atlantic Treaty? No, it did not, in my judgment. Nobody suggests that it did not then. Nobody suggests that the President back then, President Bush, submit that kind of change in the treaty, for a very good reason: It did not constitute a legal obligation or commitment which represented a change in the North Atlantic Treaty. That is why nobody proposed back then that we have to ratify this.

Those are broad words in here, section 9 of the 1991 new Strategic Concept—it was called new Strategic Concept 1991:

Risks to allied security are less likely to result from calculated aggression against the territory of the allies than from the adverse consequences of instabilities that may arise in serious economic, social and political difficulties—

Listen to this—including ethnic rivalries and territorial disputes which are faced by many countries in Central and Eastern Europe.

They could lead to crises in European stability.

Did that create legally binding obligations and commitments on the United States? No, it didn’t. And nobody suggested that the President should submit that language, because there is no legally binding obligation or commitment from that kind of language, although in the words of the Strategic Concept in 1991 they recognized—this is what our leaders said in all of the NATO nations—that “the developments they can place in Europe would have a far-reaching impact on the way in which NATO’s aims would be met in the future.”

I commend—and I had an opportunity to do this a few minutes ago—the efforts of the Senator from Kansas, the Senator from Virginia, and the Senator from Maine, and others to bring to our attention what this new Strategic Concept is, so that we as a Senate can understand what it is that NATO is looking at in terms of a strategic concept. It is very important that those hearings the Senator from Virginia made reference to take place.

In my own opinion, if the Foreign Relations Committee has not already done so—and I don’t believe they have, but I may be wrong—it is important that the Foreign Relations Committee have hearings on this Strategic Concept.

Again, I don’t have any difficulty with the language in this resolution, because I think it is appropriate that the President tell us whether or not we have undertaken in this language any new obligations or commitments. The President wrote my good friend from Virginia on April 14 that the Strategic Concept will not contain new commitments or obligations for the United States. I assume that he will reaffirm that in fact there are no new commitments or obligations when he signs us the certification which is required in this resolution.

I just want to summarize by saying that I have no difficulty with this language, because I think it is appropriate that we have that assurance, because if there are new commitments or obligations—it seems to me there should be—then it would be presumably an amendment to a treaty which should be submitted to the Senate. But, again, just as there was none in 1991 when that new Strategic Concept which I just read was adopted by NATO, I don’t believe there are more important—my belief is that the President has written the good Senator from Virginia that in fact there are no new commitments or obligations contained in this new Strategic Concept in 1991.

Again, I want to commend the Senators who have focused on this. I think we must address the new kind of environment we face in this world, and that it is important that NATO, which is going to play such a critical role in the stability of Europe and the new kinds of threats which we and Europe face, address those threats, that we do so in the context of the most successful alliance in the history of mankind, an alliance which is now growing, an alliance which when we added three new countries in this Senate, on this floor—we adopted the Kyl amendment that, as I remember it, contained 10 provisions—very similar to what is in this 1999 Strategic Concept.

I won't take the time to read more than just one section of the 10 principles in the Kyl amendment.

The Senate understands that the policy of the United States is that the core concepts contained in the 1991 Strategic Concept of NATO, which adapted NATO's strategic strategy of the post-cold-war environment, remain valid today in that the upcoming revision of that document will reflect the following provisions, and there are many.

One is:

(IV) conflict in the North Atlantic area stemming from ethnic and religious enmity, the revival of historic disputes, or the actions of undemocratic leaders.

That is one of the principles of the Kyl amendment in which we confirmed three nations would be added to the NATO alliance.

I yield for a question.

Mr. WARNER. I want to engage in a few more minutes of colloquy. Other Senators are waiting and we have momentum under this bill. One Senator desires to lay down some additional amendments. I cannot let this opportunity go by.

Article 5 of the 1949 treaty laid out in very clear language exactly the reasons for which NATO was established. It could be understood by anyone, whether he or she wears four stars or is a private. It simply says:

The parties agree that an armed attack against one or more of them in Europe or North America shall be considered an attack against them all.

The word “attack” goes all the way through article 5.

We will assist the parties so attacked. It was a defensive treaty, whether it was armed aggression across the border against a member nation. That is the only reason that NATO was founded.

Now in the Bosnia and Kosovo operation, there wasn't any attack on a member nation but it was unsettling to the security of Europe. There was no attack.

They decided it was a non-article 5 military operation. There is no non-article 5 in here. You have to go to a preamble. You have to work a strain for the basis on which we are in Bosnia and in Kosovo.

We are there; we are committed as a nation. If in the next decade we want to do something beyond article 5, then let's put it down as a new article. Let's write it as a new article, article 15, and put it down in very clear language so that everybody can understand what it is we want to do, rather than going back and getting a strange interpretation of a preamble to begin to justify putting men and women of the Armed Forces of the United States in harm's way.

The burdensharing concept: The financial relationship between the United States, which pays 25 percent of the costs of NATO—eventually our commitment will equal all those states and spread them out. I think we ought to, plain and simple, start a new article if we want to do something different than article 5 and not go back within the confines of this magnificent document and let some strained, whatever it is, to justify military action beyond the borders.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, in 1991 this is what the NATO new Strategic Concept said:

Risks to Allied security are less likely to result from calculated aggression against the territory of the Allies, but rather from the adverse consequences of instability that may arise from the serious economic, social, and political difficulties, including ethnic rivalries and territorial disputes which are faced by many countries in central and eastern Europe.

They could . . . lead to crises imincible to European stability and to armed conflicts.

That is section 9.

Then they say, in addition to article 5, article 6 which they made reference to, an armed attack of the allies from whatever direction. In 1991, this new Strategic Concept said, “However, alliance security must also take account of the global context.” That is 1991—“Global context.”

Mr. WARNER. I suggest my good friend is making my argument.

What I am saying is this is likened to statute law. What the Senate is reading are regulations. How often in the history of our country have regulations just about enacting the statute? Mr. LEVIN. My only point in response to the Senator from Virginia, is that nobody suggested in 1991 that those words created a new binding obligation or commitment on the United States. I didn’t hear it in 1991. I didn’t hear it in 1992. I didn’t hear it in 1993; I didn’t hear it in 1994.

“Global context!” alliance security must take account.

Why didn’t anybody make that argument in the 8 years since 1991? The answer is, because it didn’t create any commitment or obligation, or else I assume somebody on this floor would have argued there was a new commitment or argument—the very similar language.

In 1990, NATO got together and said the Soviet Union has fallen apart, and developments taking place in Europe have a far-reaching impact. This is a fundamental strategic review.

The only point I am making is I have no difficulty with the language in the good Senator’s amendment, because I think we should have the assurance that there is no binding obligation or commitment represented by these new strategic concepts that NATO adopts. I happen to think that is very important.

I repeat that the Senator has received that assurance from the President of the United States.

I yield the floor.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, if I may, I want to address what I believe is about to take place. The good Senator from Pennsylvania and the good Senator from Louisiana have an amendment which will soon be presented to the Senate and become the pending business. However, before, as I understand it, the Senator from Minnesota will lay down three amendments and we will immediately lay them aside; then our distinguished colleague and member of the committee will address the Senate with regard to the bill for about 10 minutes.

Mr. SPECTER. I have worked out with the Senator from Maine that I will speak first and then yield to the Senator from Maine and the Senator from Louisiana who will speak at somewhat greater length.

Mr. WARNER. I yield the floor.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 380 THROUGH 382, EN BLOC

Mr. WELLSTONE. I ask unanimous consent to send three amendments to the desk and then have them temporarily laid aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WELLSTONE] proposes amendments Nos. 380 through 382, en bloc.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendments be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendments en bloc are as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 380

Purpose: To expand the list of diseases presumed to be service-connected for radiation-exposed veterans.

SEC. 1061. EXPANSION OF LIST OF DISEASES PRESUMED TO BE SERVICE-CONNECTED FOR RADIATION-EXPOSED VETERANS.

Section 1110(x)(2) of title 38, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(P) Lung cancer.
Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, after conferring with the distinguished manager, I, too, wish to send an amendment to the desk and ask it be laid aside after it has been read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Pennsylvania (Mr. SPECTER) proposes an amendment numbered 383.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place add the following new section:

Scc. ___. Directing the President, pursuant to the United States Constitution and the War Powers Resolution, to seek approval of ground troops from the United States Armed Forces in connection with the present operations of the United States Armed Forces in Kosovo, except for peacekeeping personnel, unless authorized by a declaration of war or a joint resolution authorizing the use of military force.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I can describe this very briefly. It provides that none of the funds authorized or otherwise available to the Department of Defense may be obligated or expended for the deployment of ground troops from the United States Armed Forces in Kosovo, except for peacekeeping personnel, unless authorized by a declaration of war or a joint resolution authorizing the use of military force.

The purpose, in a nutshell, is to preserve the congressional authority to declare war or have the United States engage in war.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SPECTER. Now, on behalf of Senator LANDRUE and myself, I send a sense-of-the-Senate amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Pennsylvania (Mr. SPECTER), for Ms. LANDRUE, for herself and Mr. SPECTER, proposes an amendment numbered 384.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of title 10 add the following:

The Senate finds that:

The United Nations Security Council created the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (in this concurrent resolution referred to as the 'ICTY') by resolution on May 25, 1993.

Although the ICTY has indicted 84 people since its creation, these indictments have only resulted in the trial and conviction of 8 criminals.

The ICTY has jurisdiction to investigate: grave breaches of the 1949 Geneva Conventions (Article 2), violations of the laws or customs of war (Article 3), genocide (Article 4), and crimes against humanity (Article 5); the Prosecutor of the ICTY, Justice Louise Arbour, stated on July 7, 1998, to the Contact Group for the former Yugoslavia that '[t]he Prosecutor believes that the nature and scale of the fighting indicate that an 'armed conflict', within the meaning of international law, exists in Kosovo. As a consequence, she intends to bring charges for use of violence against humanity or war crimes, if evidence of such crimes is established';

Reports from Kosovar Albanian refugees provide detailed accounts of systematic efforts to displace the entire Muslim population of Kosovo:

In furtherance of this plan, Serbian troops, police, and paramilitary forces have engaged in intentional and summary execution of men of all ages, wanton destruction of civilian housing, forcible expulsions, mass executions in at least 60 villages and towns, as well as deliberate and organized rape of women and young girls;

These reports of atrocities provide prima facie evidence of war crimes, crimes against humanity, as well as genocide;

Any criminal investigation is best served by the depositions and interviews of witnesses as soon as possible;

The indictment, arrest, and trial of war criminals would provide a significant deterrent to future atrocities;

The ICTY has issued 14 international warrants for war crimes suspects that have yet to be served, despite knowledge of the suspects' whereabouts;

Vigorous prosecution of war crimes after the conflict in Bosnia may have prevented the ongoing atrocities in Kosovo; and Investigative reports of verified specific documentary evidence implicating the Serbian leadership in the commission of war crimes.

Scc. 2. It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the United States, in coordination with other United Nations contributors, should provide sufficient resources for an expeditious and thorough investigation of allegations of the atrocities and war crimes committed in Kosovo;

(2) the United States, through its intelligence services, should provide all possible cooperation in the gathering of evidence of sufficient specificity and credibility to secure the indictment of those responsible for the commission of war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide in the former Yugoslavia;

(3) where evidence warrants, indictments for war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide should be issued against suspects regardless of their position within the Serbian leadership;

(4) the United States and all nations have an obligation to honor arrest warrants issued by the ICTY, and the United States should use all appropriate means to apprehend war criminals already under indictment; and

(5) the United States, in coordination with other United Nations contributors, should provide sufficient resources for an expeditious and thorough investigation of allegations of the atrocities and war crimes committed in Kosovo.
Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, as stated very briefly before, I intend to speak for about 10 minutes. Then we have worked out an arrangement where the Senator from Maine will speak for about 10 minutes. We will be preceding Senator LANDRIEU, because she intends to talk for about 30 minutes. That is the speaking order which we have arranged.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is that in the form of a unanimous consent request?

Mr. SPECTER. It is.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, the sense-of-the-Senate resolution which has been submitted provides for the prosecution of war criminals in Kosovo, arising out of the atrocities and war crimes which have been so blatantly committed in Kosovo.

The somewhat polite term of “ethnic cleansing” has been used to describe these atrocities. But they are, in effect, mass murders and executions committed by the Serbian forces against the people of Kosovo. We have, to the credit of the civilized world, established a War Crimes Tribunal in the Hague. The establishment of this War Crimes Tribunal to prosecute crimes in the former Yugoslavia has already returned 84 indictments and the resulting conviction of some 8 criminals there.

The importance of establishing the rule of law is something that may be the most important legacy that will come out of the Bosnian war and the war in Kosovo. I commend the efforts by the evidence to continue to prosecute and identify war criminals and those responsible for war crimes committed in Kosovo.

Fourth, that the United States, through its intelligence services, should provide all cooperation in the gathering of evidence to secure the indictments of those responsible for war crimes.

Third, that where the evidence warrants indictment, those indictments will be brought for war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide, regardless of the position of the indictees within the Serbian leadership.

This is directed at President Milosevic himself.

Fourth, that the United Nations and all nations have an obligation to honor the warrants issued by the War Crimes Tribunal, and the United States and other responsible nations should use all possible cooperation to arrest and bring to justice war criminals already under indictment.

Well, in effect, an indirect negotiation is not a whole lot different. It may be—and I made this statement at the time of the hearing—that the line could be drawn so that the United States would maintain its position that it would not be a party to any settlement which, by way of a plea bargain, gave immunity or absolved Milosevic or any other high-ranking diplomatic official or anyone from responsibility for the war crimes warranting indictment and warranted by the evidence.

I commend Senator LANDRIEU for her leadership on this important resolution, and I yield the floor.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise to cosponsor the amendment offered by my colleagues from Pennsylvania expressing the sense of Congress regarding the need for vigorous prosecution of war crimes, genocide, and crimes against humanity in the former Republic of Yugoslavia.

This amendment expresses the Sense of Congress that:

The United States should provide sufficient resources for an expeditious investigation of the allegations of war crimes committed in Kosovo;

Second, that the United States should provide all possible cooperation to the Tribunal in the gathering of evidence;

Where evidence warrants, indictments should be issued for war crimes and that the United States and all nations have an obligation to honor arrest warrants; and, NATO should not accept a settlement in Kosovo that would bar the indictment, apprehension, or prosecution of war criminals.

(5) NATO should not accept any diplomatic resolution to the conflict in Kosovo that would bar the indictment, apprehension, or prosecution of war criminals for crimes committed during operations in Kosovo.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, as stated very briefly before, I intend to speak for about 10 minutes. Then we have worked out an arrangement where the Senator from Maine will speak for about 10 minutes. We will be preceding Senator LANDRIEU, because she intends to talk for about 30 minutes. That is the speaking order which we have arranged.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is that in the form of a unanimous consent request?
During the past two months, Kosovo has witnessed carnage and bloodshed unseen in Europe for almost fifty years. The way to an ugly conclusion of a decade-long campaign of terror and bloodshed in the Balkans engineered by Mr. Milosevic.

Over 1.2 million Kosovar Albanians are now displaced, having been forced to flee their homes. Over 700,000 Kosovars are now refugees, most in Albania, Macedonia, and Montenegro. Others have been forced to hide in the forests and mountains.

The United States now has hard evidence that war crimes have been committed. A report issued by the State Department earlier this month entitled “Erasing History: Ethnic Cleansing in Kosovo” argued that: “At this writing, the forces of Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic, an international war criminal, loot, rape, shell, and depopulate Kosovo, and thousands of refugees continue to flee into neighboring Albania and Macedonia. The refugees coming out of Kosovo are now only beginning to tell their stories. Yet even these fragmented accounts portray a systematic policy of ethnic cleansing.”

This report alleges that:

- Serbian forces have made Pristina, the capital of Kosovo, a ghost town.
- Serbian military, police, and paramilitary forces expelled between 100,000 to 120,000 persons from Pristina in only four days. Kosovars in Macedonia indicate that only 100 ethnic Albanians remain in Pristina. Serbian forces are looting and “confiscating” furniture from abandoned homes.
- In Pec, Serbian forces herded young Albanian women to the Hotel Karagac (Kara-jack), and raped them repeatedly. The commander of the local base used a roster of soldiers’ names to allow refugees to visit the hotel on a rotating basis.
- Violence in western Kosovo is stronger than in any other region of the province. Pec was emptied of ethnic Albanians in 24 hours. In Dajkovica’s (Jack-o-vika) old city, Serbian forces burned 200 to 600 homes the day after NATO airstrikes began. By the next day, the rest of the old city had been torched.
- The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees stated that the Dajkovica region, and particularly, “undoubtedly has been one of the most violent and cruel in the whole of Kosovo, turning it at times into a virtual killing field.”

In fact, the bulk of these crimes are being committed by the Serb paramilitary units, such as the “White Eagles” and “Tigers” under the direct control of the Ministry of the Interior, and, in turn, accountable to Mr. Milosevic. Indeed, the campaign waged by Mr. Milosevic against Kosovo is a virtual catalog of systematic crimes which I believe merit investigation by the International War Crimes Tribunal. The crimes, to summarize, are:

- Forced expulsions: Over one million people have been forced from their homes;
- Looting and Burning: Some 500 residential areas have been burned since late March, including over 300 villages burned since April 4;
- Detentions: Consistent refugee reports that Serbian forces are separating military-aged men from their families in a systematic pattern. Some analysts estimate that the total number of missing men is as high as 100,000. Their fate is unknown;
- Summary Execution: Refugees have provided accounts of summary executions in at least 70 towns and villages throughout Kosovo;
- Rape: Ethnic Albanian women are reportedly being raped in increasing numbers. Refugee accounts indicate systematic and organized mass rapes in Dajkovica and Pec;
- Identity Cleansing: Refugees report that Serbian authorities have confiscated passports and other identity papers, systematically destroyed voter registers and other aspects of Kosovo’s civil registry, and even removed license plates from departing vehicles as part of a policy to prevent returns to Kosovo.

The civilized world must send a strong and unambiguous message that ethnic cleansing, genocide, and mass rape are not acceptable, and will not be tolerated.

I will never forget, about 4 years ago, I picked up a copy of the New York Times and opened it. There was a rather large picture of a young girl about 15 years old. She had sort of a Dutch cut, bangs hanging over her forehead. She had on a school uniform. But there was something very wrong with the picture: She was hanging from a tree. Dead in Srebrenica.

And then it came out that there was a major massacre of thousands of people in that supposedly protected enclave by the Serbian military. And to this day, 5,000 to 7,000 Muslim men and boys are simply missing. A few have been found in mass graves, but the most still remain missing.

This crime, too, was committed by those who followed Mr. Milosevic’s orders.

I would say that when any nation on earth permits their military police to wear hoods and cover their face while they are carrying out their official duties, then you know that what they are doing is not legal.

And there can be little doubt that those who are responsible for these activities in Kosovo—be they in the Yugoslav military or in paramilitary outfits such as the “White Eagles” or the “Tigers”—that they are acting on orders which come from Mr. Milosevic.

And now there are reports that Yugoslav authorities have begun to dig up the mass graves in Kosovo in an effort to destroy evidence that could be used against them in war crimes trials.

Try as they might to hide their crimes, the world now knows what has happened in Kosovo. The regime of Mr. Milosevic has weakened the people of the Balkans for close to ten years now. The international community must stand up to this, or we will set the stage for further bloodshed and tragedy in Asia, in Africa, and elsewhere in Europe. Mr. Milosevic must be held accountable for the orders which he has given, and the crimes which he has ordered committed.

I urge my colleagues to join me and the distinguished Senators from Pennsylvania and Louisiana and support this amendment. It sends a clear message to Mr. Milosevic and others who commit crimes against humanity: You will be held accountable, and you will be brought to justice.

Mr. PRESIDENT. OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from Maine is recognized for 10 minutes.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise in strong support of the Fiscal Year 2000 National Defense Authorization Act. This bipartisan legislation brings the military to the threshold of a new century posing new challenges to the U.S. national security. Under the superb leadership of our distinguished chairman, the senior Senator from Virginia, the Armed Services Committee has reported a bill that shapes a more flexible, mobile, and precision Total Force required for the future.

This bill takes a proven and fundamental approach to enhancing our national defense by devoting more resources to readiness and modernization accounts and improving the quality of life for military families. The total authorized funding of $288 billion in the legislation increases the administration’s request by 8 billion and represents a 2.2 percent increase in real terms over the fiscal year 1999 level.

These responsible funding levels try to rescue a defense budget that, as a percentage of the Nation’s GDP, has reached its lowest points in 50 years. In modernization programs—those for weapons procurement—funding has fallen by 67 percent since 1985.

At the height of the Reagan buildup, the Pentagon obligated $138 billion for procurement. Since then, the spending fell to a low point of $44 billion in 1997. The fiscal year 2000 budget increases the account to $56 billion, and I commend Secretary Cohen for planning the first budget of this administration that brings procurement back to a threshold of $60 billion, as recommended by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, starting in the year 2001.

The major weapons and systems authorized by this bill, particularly service combatants, strategic and tactical airlift, and high-speed armored vehicles, will give the armed services more endurance and firepower at lower life cycle costs. Smooth construction materials will deceive the enemy radars.

that can detect the hard angles of older platforms. Information technologies will give ships, tanks, and aircraft battlefield data that shows potential enemy movements before they occur. A new series of rapid transporters will bring forces to the shorelines of instability. And from safe distances in the air or at sea, smaller crews will program missiles for strategic inland targets.

As chair of the Seapower Subcommittee, I had the honor of witnessing firsthand the revolution in capabilities by traveling to the Persian Gulf to visit the sailors of the carrier Enterprise and the guided-missile cruiser U.S.S. Gettysburg and the minesweeper U.S.S. Ardent during the Easter recess. Without exception, the men and women of these ships, forward deployed: The USS Florida and Iraq, demonstrated a solid commitment to defending the interests of their nation in some of the most dangerous waters on the planet.

I listened and talked with dozens of sailors who returned to Washington with a fresh understanding of the human dimension of readiness. Only dedicated people can deliver the capabilities needed to project our military power. Far removed from their families and the luxuries of life ashore, the crews of the Enterprise, the Ardent, and the Gettysburg admirably performed their missions of containing the Iraqi military and ensuring the freedom of commerce.

The diligence of the crews of these ships makes a visitor forget their youth. From galleys and control rooms to flight decks and bridges, sailors cooperated with professionalism to ensure that our maritime power upheld peace and stability.

They reminded me that patriotism hinges on sacrifice, and that Congress can perform no greater service in defense policy than to improve the quality of life for military families.

Therefore, I think the legislation before us reinforces the wisdom of additional personnel provisions in both this authorization bill, as well as the legislation that was passed by the Senate that would increase the retirement and the pay for the members of our Armed Forces. The pending legislation, as well as the fiscal year 1999 supplemental, will move closer to this goal by authorizing a universal active-duty pay increase of 4.8 percent, the largest since 1982, and giving troops enrolled in the retirement plan the option of drawing pension benefits calculated under the same formula as other personnel who served for at least 20 years.

I believe this certainly reinforces the commitment to ensure that we have had with a group of senior noncommissioned officers aboard the Enterprise who stressed the need for equity in the Pentagon’s compensation and retirement systems. I repeatedly heard that uniformed personnel could not obtain timely care for their families and waited months for reimbursement.

As a result, I sponsored a provision in this bill permitting TriCare beneficiaries to receive treatments at qualified medical offices if they live more than 50 miles from a DOD health installation. This initiative, combined with the Bill of Rights Act, directs to the Defense Department to rely on more efficient claims processing procedures to tackle the issue of access to quality treatment that several sailors raised in their encounters with me.

I also include a provision in this legislation—of course, it was authored with Senator KENNEDY—that would create a Defense Department task force on domestic violence. This is another issue that was demonstrated concern within our Armed Forces.

This task force will consist of military representatives, family advocacy program experts, and civilian domestic violence professionals to develop guidelines in response to this tragic problem that has grown from 14 reported cases per 1,000 families in 1990 to 22 per 1,000 families by 1998.

The second major provision of the Kennedy-Snowe amendment mandates creation of a central departmentwide database to receive information on reported domestic violence cases in the Armed Forces.

No military family should endure the trauma, fear, and alienation that flows from acts of domestic violence. I am hopeful that the Kennedy-Snowe amendment will represent a crucial beginning in the process of setting standards and imposing penalties to deter spousal and child abuse in the armed services.

I want to highlight a few provisions under this legislation which were within the jurisdiction of my Seapower Subcommittee. I thank Senator KENNEDY, the ranking Democrat of the subcommittee, along with the panel’s other diligent work on this year’s legislation.

The Seapower Subcommittee held five hearings in our review of the fiscal year 2000 budget request. Our hearings focused on the overarching question of how the Pentagon can sharpen its ability to reinforce U.S. political and economic objectives overseas with an agile maritime fleet.

Towards this end, we explored programs designed to maintain the sea lanes vital to international trade. The seapower Subcommittee also summoned Navy and Marine Corps witnesses to discuss strategic air and sealift in support of regional commanders in chief, littoral force projection and protection, evolving maritime requirements, and priorities in the realms of research and acquisition.

Witnesses before the Seapower Subcommittee testified that the prolifera-Marine Corps have experienced a dramatic increase in forward presence and contingency operations.

In the past 50 years, naval expeditionary forces have responded to over 250 crises worldwide. Since 1992 alone, as this "Commander-in-Chief Requirements" chart illustrates, naval forces have responded to 77 different contingency operations or threats around the world—that is between 1992 and 1998—while between the years of 1988 and 1991, they only responded to 27 different threats worldwide. So it shows the disparity in the threats between this decade and the previous decade, to show the tremendous pressures that are being placed on our naval and our marine forces.

During the cold war, Marines were called upon to respond to a threat on average of once every 15 weeks. Since 1990, the Marines have been responding to a threat once every 5 weeks. That is a threefold increase. So as a result of the naval force structures, as one witness said during the Seapower Subcommittee's hearing, there is "no shock absorbency left" when it comes to our force structures and the demands they are placing on our naval and marine forces.

Again, as this chart will illustrate in terms of where we are today on the 300-ship Navy, we are going to have to build, on an annual rate, 8 to 10 ships a year in order to sustain a 300-ship Navy. We are going to decline pretty rapidly. As we are in 1999, we have 315 ships; for the year 2000, 314; by the year 2005, we will be down to 305 ships. In order to sustain 300 ships, we will have to increase the number of ships we are building to 8 to 10 a year from the 6 we are building currently.

Based on the testimony, and also my visits to the deployed fleet units, and discussions with the Navy, the Marine Corps, the Army and Air Force officials, the subcommittee reached the following conclusions:

First, the Navy and Marine Corps capabilities must remain ahead of the threats designed to disrupt or deny maritime operations on the high seas and in the littorals. To respond to this conclusion, the Seapower portion of this bill adds $321 million to the budget request for research, development, testing, and evaluation.

Second, the Navy and Marine Corps future readiness will decline if recapitalization and modernization are deferred. I think again these charts illustrate the problem. So to respond to this challenge, the Seapower portion of this bill adds $1.068 billion to the budget request for procurement.

Third, strategic sea and airlift are required to support daily operations over the littorals, and sustained military campaigns of a major theater war. The force deployment goals of the 1995 Mobility Requirements Study Bottom-Up Review Update established the strategic lift requirements as those required for one major theater war and, later, to swing that lift to support the second nearly simultaneous MTW.

So to respond to this challenge, the bill adds $40 million to the budget request for national defense features in ships.

In addition, the full committee approved the budget request for $3 billion for procurement of 15 C-17 aircraft, $200 million for modifications to the C-5 aircraft, $170 million for the C-17 research and development, and $65 million for the C-5 research and development.

Fourth, the Navy must build no fewer than 8 ships per year to maintain a force structure of approximately 300 vessels, as I mentioned earlier. Ship deployment and so shared with Congress to these challenges of both the littorals and the open ocean warfare. Quantity has a quality of its own, especially when naval operations occur at the same time in different geographic regions. The Seapower portion of the bill therefore adds $375 million advanced procurement for the LHD-8 and extends the DDG-51 multiyear procurement authority to include the fiscal years 2002 and 2003 ships.

The committee, however, remains concerned with the overall shipbuilding rate included in the administration's budget requests. The topic of ship force structure was discussed more than any other issue in the Seapower hearings.

Witnesses stated repeatedly that the current force structure of 324 ships already strains worldwide operations. This problem will only grow, since the projected size of the fleet, as I said, will decrease to 305 platforms in the next 5 years. Unfortunately, the Department of Defense has provided few specifics on the planned size of the Navy force structure beyond the calendar year 2015 and how it intends to address the impending ship shortfall problem beyond lowering acquisition costs and reducing the size of ships' crews.

The time has come for the administration to demonstrate an understanding of the ship acquisition problem and to propose a systematic plan to address this serious national security concern.

The report accompanying this bill requires the Secretary of Defense to submit, with the fiscal year 2001 budget request, a report that details the Department's long-range shipbuilding plan through fiscal year 2030 and describes the annual funding required to procure 8 to 10 ships a year between fiscal years 2001 and 2030.

Finally, we attack submarines have reached the limits of sustainable operations. The submarines of the 21st century will generate key strategic and tactical intelligence, deploy surveillance and reconnaissance teams, and enhance the firepower of carrier battle groups. In recognition of these facts, the bill approves $116 million for submarine advanced technology and adds $22 million for the Advanced Deployable System.

Finally, the key to reducing the operating costs of ships lies in research and development to design future ships that can operate effectively with smaller crews. Our bill approves well-funded research and development programs for developing new ship designs to reduce overall life-cycle costs.

All of these naval programs, as well as the major systems of the other three Services, will require an adequate domestic basing structure for maintenance and deployment. This factor, along with the changing mix of threats based systems that triggered the two bipartisan Armed Services Committee votes this year against amendments authorizing additional base realignment and closure rounds.

The committee first rejected the BRAC amendments because no base closure round yet has yielded the taxpayers any clear or proven savings. To appreciate this point, one only need to consider the conclusion of the leading advocate of BRAC, the Department of Defense. DOD's April 1998 base closure report to Congress stated explicitly "no audit trail, single document, or budget account exists for tracking the end use of each dollar saved through BRAC."

Furthermore, the conflict in Kosovo illustrates how hostilities can strain our ability to project military power in unstable areas of the world. Since this war began in March, the United States has diverted its only aircraft carrier in the Western Pacific, near North Korea, to help America's Adriatic Sea basin. We have more than 400 aircraft from airfields across the country now engaged over Kosovo.

In the meantime, the Department of Defense has almost depleted the nation's air-launch precision missile stocks, strained our aerial tanker fleet, and called up 33,000 reservists. Congress and the administration should therefore consider how to improve, rather than phase out, the shore- and land-based systems that sustain our deployed forces.

We cannot forget that America's overseas basing infrastructure has declined by more than 40 percent since the end of the cold war. The four previous BRAC rounds have eliminated about 25 percent of domestic military installations.

The key challenge of the 21st century force will focus on long-range deployments from American territory to protect interests and allies on short notice. We need a master base plan, still undeveloped, that identifies categories of ports, staging grounds, airfields, depots, and maintenance facilities to meet these strategic requirements. The administration cannot ask Congress to approve more closure commissions in a vacuum about what physical support assets at home the troops of tomorrow will need to complete their missions abroad.

This authorization bill advances the goals of shaping the modernized Armed Forces on which Americans will rely to safeguard their interests in a changing and volatile world.

I again thank the committee chairman, Senator WARNER, for his leadership, and the ranking member, Senator LIVSEY, for his leadership as well in crafting this significant bipartisan legislation. I urge all Senators to support it.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Laurell Brault, my military fellow for privilege during the Senate consideration of S. 1059.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. HUTCHISON). The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, first I thank our distinguished colleague from Maine. She comes from a great State which has a maritime tradition that really pertains to the United States of America. Am I not correct in that?

Ms. SNOWE. That is correct.

Mr. WARNER. How fortunate we are in the Senate to have one with that traditional background as now head of the Seapower Subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee of the Senate. You share that with another distinguished Senator. You share that with another distinguished colleague in the next-door state. You share that with another distinguished Senator in the next-door state. You share that with another distinguished Senator in the Seapower Subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana is recognized.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under a previous unanimous consent order, the Senator from Louisiana is recognized for 30 minutes.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Thank you, Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana is recognized for 30 minutes.

Ms. LANDRIEU. On an equally important note, I rise to support the sense-of-the-Senate resolution, now in amendment form, offered by the distinguished Senator from Pennsylvania and myself. We both very strongly about presenting it to the whole chamber, and we hope to get a very strong bipartisan vote, in just a few minutes, on this resolution.

Madam President, at the close of World War II, Europe was devastated. The allied armies, in liberating Eastern Europe, had uncovered a horror beyond imagination—6 million Jews, men, women, and innocent children, had been massacred, and millions of other civilians and soldiers had been killed on all sides by fruitless wars of aggression.

Once Germany itself had been occupied, the documentary evidence of these atrocities came to light. Along with victory came the eventual capture of the Nazi leadership, and slowly but surely, the German war leaders who did not kill themselves outright, fell into our hands. At that time there were two competing ideas on how to deal with these prisoners. The English and the Russians simply wanted to take the leaders of Nazi regime outside and shoot them. After all, it was the war victors who had treated the vanquished in Europe for hundreds of years, particularly when the vanquished had been so merciless themselves.

However, the American Secretary of War, Henry Stimson, proposed a very different, and actually, radical solution. He wanted to use the atrocities perpetrated by Nazi Germany to make real the notion of international law. In retrospect, it seems very strange, indeed, that a Secretary of War would be the primary advocate for holding a legal proceeding. But Secretary Stimson was wise. He understood something very fundamental: America had not joined World War II to prop up the same, tired cycle of war and revenge that had made Europe the bloodiest continent on Earth during the 20th century. We entered the war to create a fair and lasting peace. We had no territorial demands. We asked for no war reparations, and we did not come to loot and rob Germany of its treasures. All we wanted in exchange for the great sacrifice that we made as a people was the assurance that after the war, peace, democracy and freedom would prevail.

The Nuremberg trials were one of the central steps in fulfilling this objective. Instead of revenge, the trials stood for justice. Instead of collective blame, these trials stood for individual accountability. The Nuremberg trials held the promise that we could break the cycle of violence.

Over 50 years since the conclusion of those trials, the Nuremberg principles are being called into question. I believe we reached the right conclusions at those trials. We hit upon some universal truths about what needs to be done to bring true peace to a region wracked by war. We determined it was necessary to establish justice, to hold individuals responsible for their acts, and to try to stop future wars of revenge. Those principles ring true even today.

Ironically, as this map shows and as we are well aware, another conflict in Europe now puts the lessons of the Nuremberg Trials to the test. We began strongly enough. In May of 1993, the United Nations Security Council created the first international war crimes court since the Second World War, since the Nuremberg trials. The International Criminal Tribunal for former Yugoslavia was formed to investigate and try war crime cases resulting from the war in Bosnia. It was hailed then as the first step towards reconciliation of the warring sides.

The international community could bring justice to Bosnia, if they could expose the wanton destruction of human life by the Bosnian Serbs, there might be a real chance for the same collective soul searching that occurred in Germany at the end of World War II. That reflection and acknowledgment of wrongdoing has generated a peace between the great powers of Western Europe that was simply unthinkable at the beginning of this century. If it can happen between the Germans and the French, why not between the Croats and the Serbs?

For a number of reasons, mostly political, the international community has simply not grasped the opportunity that this international tribunal has offered to us.

In the 6 years since its formation, the Tribunal has indicted 84 people. However, of those 84 indicted, it has completed only 1 case. Twenty-five persons are now in custody, either awaiting trial, or involved in proceedings. But six convictions in 6 years is a very mediocre showing for a conflict that was so horrific and so drawn out. And we are aware of where they are, but they continue operating unmolested. The reality is that while the vast majority of war crime indictments are against Bosnian Serbs, the Croatian and Muslim indictees are far more frequently apprehended than the Serbs.

Although the indictment process is clearly an improvement over the previous attempted prosecutions of the Yugoslavian regime, it is far from enough. To fully make the Tribunal truly effective, it is necessary to establish justice, to hold responsible for these crimes with the same determination as we did at Nuremberg. We need to ensure that when this war is over—and one way or another, it should happen soon, it will be—the parties responsible for these crimes will be made to answer personally. Our amendment addresses a number of the obstacles currently facing the tribunal.

First, the amendment asks that the United States, in coordination with other United Nations contributors, provide the resources necessary for a rigorous investigation of the war crimes committed in Kosovo. I am happy to announce, as my friend from Pennsylvania, that an additional $18 million has already been passed by this Senate in the supplemental appropriations bill for this specific purpose.

Secondly, the resolution calls on our country to undertake a project of the enormity presented by Kosovo. Clearly, the Tribunal is undermanned to undertake such a project. That indentifies a more than 70 investigators at its disposal. This number covers not only the 600,000 refugees from Kosovo, but all of the ongoing investigations of Bosnian war crimes. Clearly, the Tribunal is undermanned to undertake a project of the enormity presented by Kosovo.

Additionally, we cannot be afraid of where the war crimes evidence leads. This resolution will make it clear that no one—no one—is beyond the law. We shall not compromise long-term peace prospects for short-term political expedience. Wherever the evidence leads, indictments will follow.

Equally important, this resolution reflects the fact that all nations have an obligation to honor arrest warrants issued by the International Criminal Tribunal. Many of those already indicted are living normal lives while their whereabouts are well known. Such selectivity and the inhibition breeds cynicism and creates an atmosphere that supports the sort of thugs now operating in Serbia. It undermines our effort and it should not be tolerated. This must stop.

The resolution I introduce today calls on the United States to use all appropriate means to apprehend war criminals already under indictment.

Lastly, and most critically, this resolution insists that NATO should not accept any diplomatic resolution to the war in Kosovo without an indictment, apprehension, or prosecution of war criminals. The proper resolution of this conflict may be our last opportunity to bring a lasting peace to this region. It cannot be done if those responsible for the war are not punished for their actions.

It is often easier to exclude tyrants from justice to secure a temporary lull in the fighting than to support a thorough and complete peace. If we go for easy answers, we will doom the people of that region to repeat these same horrors again and again. As historians have often noted, one war frequently sows seeds for the next. This is particularly true of the kind of incessant ethnic warfare going on in the Balkans. The only way to change this reality is to insist that individuals be held accountable for their barbaric actions and be brought to justice.

People must understand that there are international standards of behavior and they will be held accountable. It makes a huge difference in the way they interact with their neighbors. In short, we must demonstrate that might does not make right and that no one can benefit from the misery of their neighbors.

Our State Department recently issued a report entitled “Erasing History: Ethnic Cleansing in Kosovo.” This is one of a hundred pictures that have been taken, showing the horrors of mass executions and murder of innocent men, women and children. That report details much of what is already known—700,000 refugees forced to flee their homes; 500 villages looted and burned; at least 70 instances of summary execution; over 2,000 cases of gang rapes and arson, but such evidence rarely addresses the crimes of a conflict that lasted over two years. This resolution insists that NATO should not accept any diplomatic resolution to the war in Kosovo without an indictment, apprehension, or prosecution of war criminals. The proper resolution of this conflict may be our last opportunity to bring a lasting peace to this region. It cannot be done if those responsible for the war are not punished for their actions.

The entire history of the Balkans reads like a giant tragedy where the past motivates evil in the present. Instead of erasing history, Yugoslavia must move beyond it, and NATO needs to continue to press them in that direction to achieve those ends. Justice, provided impartially and equally, is the most effective means for doing that, and we can do that through a strong, well-financed, determined War Crimes Tribunal.

There may be no clean hands in the Balkans, but there can be new beginnings. I believe this resolution will anchor the United States policy to creating one.
Mr. WARNER. Madam President, will the Senator allow me to interrupt to make a unanimous-consent request?

Ms. LANDRIEU. Yes.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that at 5:30 today, which is just minutes away, the Senate proceed to vote on or in relation to the Specter-Landrieu amendment No. 384 with no amendments in order to the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I now ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, if I might draw the Senate’s attention to the last paragraph, which is section 5, can the Senator read that?

IT IS CURRENTLY THE POSITION OF NATO that it should not accept any diplomatic resolution to the conflict in Kosovo that would bar—and then, my first question is, Is it conceivable that the United Nations should likewise not accept any? I mean in the final analysis, it is difficult to predict what will happen now. Certainly, NATO will have a voice in the matter. But it could be that this thing would be involved before the United Nations. Is the spirit of this to include the United Nations, so to speak?

Ms. LANDRIEU. Yes, I would say so. The spirit of this resolution is clear that no diplomatic end to this war should allow any immunity for those who are guilty of war crimes.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I don’t have an objection. I would want to talk with Senator Specter about adding reference to the United Nations. Clearly, though, it is a NATO conflict.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I yield the floor.

The Senator used the key phrase, she doesn’t want any amnesty or anything to prohibit the prosecution, and I think the Senator said “of those who are guilty.” But who has to establish guilt in terms of who is and who is not guilty? It seems to me if this were to read that it would “bar the indictment, apprehension, or prosecution of persons alleged to have committed,” because the Senator said “war criminals,” that could be interpreted as saying somebody is already designated one, two, three, and four as a war criminal and, therefore, you cannot give them amnesty, but there are some, I would presume, in this conflict who have not been designated “war criminals” but there are accusations to that effect, and they would have to proceed through the indictment process. But as this is written, the date of the agreement might cut off a class of individuals who are guilty but have not been as yet designated “war criminals.”

Do I make myself clear?

Ms. LANDRIEU. I understand, I believe, what the Senator from Virginia is asking me. But I think the language of this amendment covers his concerns. We have not been allowed into Kosovo 1 day, but when we are, it will reveal atrocities and evidence of those responsible. It will happen in the same way as when we entered into Central Europe to find the concentration camps. This resolution states that no resolution of this conflict should give immunity in advance to anyone who could be charged and then later convicted of war crimes.

I think the language is clear on that intent.

Mr. WARNER. Let’s hope this colloquy has cleared up any other questions. Before we started the debate, I talked with the Senator, and I thought she was very candid in her private comments to me.

Supposing that this frightful conflict drags on and the only basis on which anyone can reach any resolution is the question of amnesty, do I understand the Senator’s position to be that under no circumstances should the sole remaining provision to stop this conflict be waived by those negotiating and those who eventually have to accept the resolution? Is that your position?

Ms. LANDRIEU. Absolutely. It is quite a serious point of this resolution, and I recognize that it may take a tool off the table, but it is purposefully done that way. I happen to believe it would be a great mistake for this Nation and our NATO allies to enter into any agreements that give immunity to people who are charged with war crimes, with the brutality of gang rapes. There are hundreds of examples that we have had now from eyewitness accounts that we hope to prosecute.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I don’t take the Senator’s time. I intend to support the resolution. I thought a colloquy would bring out questions that others might have in mind and would clarify any doubts. Madam President, thank you.

Mr. LEVIN. If the Senator will yield further while she is being interrupted, I want to commend the good Senator from Louisiana for her steadfastness, and for the sponsors’ steadfastness on that very point. There was no provision for amnesty in Dayton. There was no provision for amnesty at Rambouillet. There should be no such provision, nor should the door be opened a crack and any such possibility. People must be held accountable for war crimes. I do not think for 1 minute that there is room for negotiation on that issue, or else we will see an endless repetition of the kind of cleansing of ethnic groups that we have seen in Yugoslavia. I commend the sponsors, and particularly the Senator from Louisiana for her strength and support.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I likewise commend the esteemed colleague from Pennsylvania. It is a very interesting combination of two Senators coming to the floor on an important point.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I thank the Senator. The Senator from Pennsylvania surely brings a tremendous amount of expertise, having been a prosecutor and buying dealt with these issues on a domestic basis and an international basis.

Let me just conclude by pointing out and explaining what this picture is. This looks like a picture of people burying bodies. But actually, because this is part of a 20-minute video, this is a snapshot, of people exhuming bodies, digging up a mass grave, to try to hide or relocate these victims. The State Department believes that the Serbs are planting the bodies and bomb sites to mislead the Yugoslavian people and the international community.

This is an important part of the world. If I can close by putting up a map of Yugoslavia—this is not a small, insignificant area—Yugoslavia lays in the heart of Europe on the Mediterranean Sea where civilizations have lasted for thousands and thousands of years. We have fought wars and millions of soldiers have died. Americans have spent fortunes and generations of blood helping Europe to achieve peace. In large part we have succeeded. With this one important exception. Establishing law and order through the Tribunal is the first step on a long road of recovery. That is the point of this resolution.

I hope we will be successful today, and that it will give us the strength to maintain our resolve to bring justice to people who are depending on us.

Thank you, Madam President. I yield the floor.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that I be added as a cosponsor to the amendment.

One of the points raised by the Senator from Virginia is a technical drafting issue, which I think is a relevant one. I believe we can correct it in conference. I think its importance was pointed out.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The hour of 5:30 having arrived, the question is on agreeing to Amendment No. 384.

The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Alaska (Mr. MURKOWSKI), the Senator from Arizona (Mr. MCCAIN), and the Senator from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCHINSON) are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCHINSON) would vote “yea.”
Mr. REID. I announce that the Senator from Delaware (Mr. BIDEN), the Senator from Georgia (Mr. CLELAND), the Senator from Wisconsin (Mr. FEINGOLD), the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY), the Senator from Connecticut (Mr. LIEBERMAN), the Senator from Rhode Island (Mr. R. REED), and the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. TORRICELLI) are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Rhode Island (Mr. R. REED) and the Senator from Connecticut (Mr. LIEBERMAN) would each vote “yea.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FITZGERALD). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 90, nays 0, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 141 Leg.]

YEAS—90

NOT VOTING—10

Biden  Kennedy  Reed
Cleland  Lieberman  Torricelli
Feingold  McCain  Turing
Hutchison  Murkowski

The amendment (No. 384) was agreed to.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, Senator MURkowski was unable to cast a vote on this amendment because of unavoidable flight cancellations back to Washington.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LEVIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, at this time on behalf of the distinguished majority leader, I ask unanimous consent that at 9:30 on Tuesday, tomorrow, the Senate resume the DOD authorization bill and Senator SERRR of New Hampshire be recognized for up to 30 minutes on a matter regarding the historic connection of the U.S.S. Indianapolis to the history of our Nation, to be immediately followed by 30 minutes for debate, equally divided, with an additional 10 minutes under the control of Senator GRAMM relatively to Senator ROTT's amendment regarding Admiral Kimmell and General Short.

I further ask consent that following that debate, the amendment be temporarily set aside and then there be 1 hour for debate equally divided relative to the Roberts-Warner amendment No. 377.

I further ask that following that debate, the amendment be laid aside and then there be up to 1 hour equally divided relative to the Wellstone amendment No. 382.

I finally ask consent that at 2:15 on Tuesday, the Senate proceed to vote on or in relation to the Roth amendment and, following that vote, the Roberts-Warner amendment No. 378 be agreed to and the Senate immediately proceed to a vote on amendment No. 377, as amended, to be followed by a vote on or in relation to amendment No. 382, with 2 minutes for explanation prior to each vote.

For the information of all Senators—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. LEVIN. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President—no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there is no objection, so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. I thank the Chair.

For the information of all Senators, the next votes will occur at 2:15 p.m. on Tuesday. It is the hope of leadership that passage could occur by close of business Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. On behalf of the majority leader and, I am sure, the minority leader, we urge our colleagues to do everything they can to make this possible.

The distinguished whip.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I don't know of two more able managers of a bill than the Senator from Virginia and the Senator from Michigan. But on behalf of the majority leader and, I am sure, the minority leader, we urge our colleagues to do everything they can to make this possible.

We in the minority are going to cooperate in every way we can. The fact that we have these two fine managers doesn't mean we can perform a miracle.

Additionally compounding the issue, I have been told that there has been an amendment filed dealing with the Kosovo situation that could take days of debate, no hours of debate.

We are willing to cooperate. There is no one on this side who wants to hold up this bill for any purpose other than the fact that we want to have a good bill. In short, we have shown in the past few months since this Congress has been in session that we have cooperated every way we can, as indicated by the work that was done in reducing 91 Democratic amendments on the juvenile justice bill to a mere handful of amendments so we could get that passed by Thursday evening.

In short, we want to help. We want to cooperate in any way we can. But we cannot be part of this miracle, because it won't happen.

Mr. LEVIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, let me thank the Senator from Nevada for not only all of his help in getting bills passed but also in realistically assessing situations, which is part of his job. I must say, given the amendments we already know of, while I am hopeful, too, of completing action on this bill at some point this week, I do not see how the hopes, as expressed here, can come to reality, given the substance of some of those amendments.

Again, the Kosovo amendment alone, I think, would precipitate a significant, lengthy debate on this floor, given all of the circumstances and the length of time which that subject has already required for debate, and, given that we are in the middle of a conflict right now, and the ramifications for that conflict and the signals which would be sent to the prime creator of that conflict, Mr. Milosevic. It would be a lengthy debate. I think I would like to finish this bill by Wednesday, too, but I just can't see, given that amendment and other amendments which are significant, that that is a realistic assessment.

Mr. REID. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. LEVIN. I would be happy to. Mr. REID. It is not a member of the minority who filed that amendment. It is a member of the majority who has filed that amendment. Is that true?

Mr. LEVIN. That is correct. Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

(The remarks of Mr. DOMENICI pertaining to the submission of S. Res. 106 are printed in today's RECORD under "Submission of Concurrent and Senate Resolutions.")

AMENDMENT NO. 388

(Purpose: To request the President to advance the late Rear Admiral (retired) Husband E. Kimmel on the retired list of the Navy to the highest grade held as Commander in Chief, United States Fleet, during World War II, and to advance the late Major General (retired) Walter C. Short on the retired list of the Army to the highest grade held as Commanding General, Hawaiian Department, during World War II, as was done under the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 for all other senior officers who served in positions of command during World War II.)

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the previous amendments will be set aside, and the clerk will report.
The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senate from Delaware [Mr. ROTH], for himself, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. THURMOND, and Mr. KENNEDY, proposes an amendment numbered 388.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I unanimously consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment (No. 388) is printed in today's RECORD under "Amendments Submitted.")

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I rise today on behalf of my colleague from Delaware, Senator BIDEN, and on behalf of Senator THURMOND and Senator KENNEDY to introduce an amendment whose intent is to redress a grave injustice that haunts us from the tribulations of World War II.

Admiral Husband Kimmel and General Walter Short were the two senior commanders of U.S. forces deployed in the Hawaiian Islands. At the time of the disastrous surprise attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor, in the immediate aftermath of the attack, they were unfairly and publicly charged with dereliction of duty and blamed as singularly responsible for the success of that attack.

Less than 6 weeks after the Pearl Harbor attack, in a hastily prepared report to the President, the Roberts Commission—perhaps the most flawed and unfortunately most influential investigation of the disaster—levelled the dereliction of duty charge against Kimmel and Short—a charge that was immediately and highly publicized.

Admiral William Harrison Standley, who served as a member of this Commission, later disavowed its report, stating that these two officers were "martyred" and "if they had been brought to trial, they would have been cleared of the charge."

Later, Admiral O. D. Richardson, who was Admiral Kimmel’s predecessor as Commander-in-Chief, U.S. Pacific Fleet, wrote:

In the impression that the Roberts Commission created in the minds of the American people, and in the way it was drawn up for that specific purpose, I believe that the report of the Roberts Commission was the most unfair, unjust, and deceptively dishonest document ever printed by the Government Printing Office.

After the end of World War II, this scapegoating was given a painfully enduring veneer when Admiral Kimmel and General Short were not advanced on the retired lists to their highest war-time ranks—command—despite the fact that war-time investigations had exonerated these commanders of the dereliction of duty charge and criticized their higher commands for significant failings that contributed to the success of the attack on Pearl Harbor. More than six studies and investigations conducted after the war, including one Department of Defense report completed in 1995 at Senator Thurmond’s request, reconfirmed these findings.

Our amendment is a rewrite of Senate Joint Resolution 19, the Kimmel-Short Resolution, that I, Senator BIDEN, Senator THURMOND, Senator HELMS, Senator STEVENS, Senator COCHRAN, Senator KENNEDY, Senator DOMANICK, Senator ENZI, Senator MURkowski, Senator ABRAHAM, Senator CRAIG, Senator DURBIN, Senator JOHN KERRY, Senator KYL, Senator HOLLINGS, Senator BOB SMITH, Senator COLLINS, Senator LANDRIEU, Senator Voinovich, Senator Dewine, and Senator Feinstein—a total of 23 cosponsors—introduced last month.

The amendment calls upon the President to take corrective action. These studies and investigations clearly should not fall solely on the shoulders of Admiral Kimmel and General Short; it should be broadly shared.

The President to take corrective action. It should be broadly shared. We believe that the President should take corrective action.

The information made available to Admiral Kimmel and General Short. In my review of this fundamental point, I was most struck by the honor and integrity demonstrated by General George Marshall who was Army Chief of Staff at the time of the December 7, 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor.

On November 27 of that year, General Short interpreted a vaguely written warning message sent from the high command in Washington as suggesting the need to defend against sabotage. Consequently, he concentrated his aircraft away from perimeter roads to protect them, thus inadvertently increasing their vulnerability to air attack. When he reported his preparations to the General Staff in Washington, the General Staff took no steps to clarify the reality of the situation.

The amendment requests a Joint Congressional Committee on the Pearl Harbor disaster. General Marshall testified that he was responsible for ensuring the proper disposition of General Short’s forces. He acknowledged that he must have received General Short’s report, which would have been his opportunity to issue a corrective message, and that he failed to do so.

Mr. President, General Marshall’s integrity and sense of responsibility is a model for all of us. I only wish it had been able to have greater influence over the case of Admiral Kimmel and General Short.

A third theme of these investigations concerned the failure of the Department of War and the Department of the Navy to properly manage the flow of intelligence. The 1995 Department of Defense report stated that the handling of intelligence in Washington during the time leading up to the attack on Pearl Harbor was characterized by, among other faults, a limited coordination, ambiguous language, and lack of clarity and follow-up.

The fourth and most important theme that permeates the aforementioned reports is that blame for the disaster at Pearl Harbor cannot be placed only upon the Hawaiian commanders. They all underscored significant failures and shortcomings of the senior authorities in Washington that contributed significantly—if not predominantly—to the success of the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

The 1995 Department of Defense report put it best, stating that “responsibility for the Pearl Harbor disaster should not fall solely on the shoulders of Admiral Kimmel and General Short; it should be broadly shared.”

This is an important quote. It shows that the Department of Defense recognizes that these two commanders should not be singled out for blame. Yet, still today on this issue, our government’s words do not match its actions.

Kimmel and Short remain the only two officials who have been forced to... pay a price for the disaster at Pearl Harbor.

Let me add one poignant fact about the two wartime investigations. Their conclusions—that Kimmel’s and Short’s forces had been properly disposed according to the information available to them and that their superiors had failed to share important intelligence—were kept secret on the grounds that making them public would have been detrimental to the war effort.

Be that as it may, there is no longer any reason to perpetuate the cruel myth that Kimmel and Short were singularly responsible for the disaster at Pearl Harbor. Admiral Spruance, one of our great naval commanders of World War II, shares this view. He put it this way:

“I have always felt that Kimmel and Short were held responsible for Pearl Harbor in order that the American people might have no reason to lose confidence in their government in Washington. This was probably justifiable under the circumstances at that time, but it does not justify forever damning those two fine officers.”

Mr. President, to do so is not only unfair, it tarnishes our nation’s military honor.

Mr. President, the sense of the Senate has been endorsed by countless military officers, including those who have served at the highest levels of command. These include former Chairmen of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Admiral Thomas H. Moorer and Admiral William J. Crowe, and former Chiefs of Naval Operations Admiral J.L. Holloway III, Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt and Admiral Carlisle A.H. Trost.

Moreover a number of public organizations have called for posthumous advancement of Kimmel and General Short. Let me add that Senator Robert Dole, one of our most distinguished colleagues and a veteran who served heroically in World War II, has also endorsed this sense of the Senate resolution.

This resolution now in amendment form is about justice, equity, and honor. Its purpose is to redress a historic wrong, to ensure that Admiral Kimmel and General Short are treated with the dignity and honor they deserve, and to ensure that justice and fairness fully permeate the memory and lessons learned from the catastrophe at Pearl Harbor.

As we approach Memorial Day and prepare to honor those who served to protect our great nation, it is a most appropriate time to redress this injustice. This correction is long overdue. I urge my colleagues to support this joint resolution.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a number of exhibits be printed in the RECORD, including a statement from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, including a resolution adopted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, a letter from several distinguished admirals of the U.S. Navy who are alive and sent this to us comparatively recently, likewise a letter from the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association, Inc., and finally a copy of a letter from Senator Bob Dole to myself.

There being no objection, the materially was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

To: All Members of the United States Senate

From: Thomas A. Pouliot, Commander-in-Chief
Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States

Date: 28 September 1998.

On August 31, 1998, the delegates to 99th National Convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States unanimously approved Resolution Number 441, “Restore Pre-Attack Ranks to Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and General Walter C. Short.” A copy of VFV Resolution Number 441 is attached for your review.

Based on our resolution and a review of S.J. Res. 55, we believe the goals of both the Senate and VFV resolutions are similar and consistent.

Therefore, we strongly endorse this bill and ask that the Senate remove the burden of guilt for the attack on Pearl Harbor from the shoulders of Admiral Kimmel and General Short.

Respectfully,

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS OF THE UNITED STATES

HON. WILLIAM S. COHEN,
The Secretary of Defense,
The Pentagon, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SECRETARY: Last month, Senators Joe Biden and William Roth of Delaware sent a letter urging you to recommend to the President that Admiral Husband Kimmel and General Walter Short be advanced posthumously to their wartime ranks of four-star Admiral and Lieutenant General respectively.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States supports the recommendation of Senators Biden and Roth, and asks that you consider their request.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

JOHN E. MOON,

THOMAS A. POULIOT,
Commander-in-Chief

UNITED STATES, Congress of the United States of America,
A review of the historical facts available on the subject of the attack on Pearl Harbor demonstrates that these officers were not treated fairly.

1. They accomplished all that anyone could have reasonably expected to do.
2. They were well supported by their superiors in terms of operating forces (ships and aircraft) and information (instructions and intelligence). Their disposition of forces, in view of the information made available to them by the command structure in Washington, was reasonable and appropriate.

3. Historical information now available in the public domain in declassified files, and post-war statements of many officers involved, clearly demonstrate that vital information was routinely withheld from both commanders. For example, the "Bomb Plot" message and subsequent reporting orders from Tokyo to Japanese agents in Hawaii as to location, types and number of warships, and their replacement plans.

4. The code-breaking intelligence of PURPLE did provide warning of an attack on Pearl Harbor, but the Hawaiian Commanders were not informed. Whether deliberate or for some other reason should make no difference, they had no bearing. These officers did not get the support and warnings they were promised.

5. The fault was not theirs. It lay in Washington.

We urge you, as Members of the United States Senate, to take a leadership role in assuring justice for two military careerists who were willing to fight and die for their country, but not to be humiliated by its government. We believe that the American people—whose national characteristic of fair play—would wish the record set straight. Thank you.

Respectfully,
ADM. THOMAS H. MOORER

PEARL HARBOR SURVIVORS ASSOCIATION, INC.

Re: Resolution No. 6.

EDWARD R. KIMMEL,
Wilmington, DE.

DEAR MR. KIMMEL: I am writing to you in regards to the resolution that we of the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association, Inc. passed at our National Convention in Albuquerque, NM, this past December 6, 1990.

Subject: (1) That the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association urges the Secretary of the United States to make the aforesaid nominations and send them to the Senate of the United States for its advice and consent with the recommendation that they be favorably acted upon by that body. Resolved further: (2) That the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association urges the President of the United States to make the aforesaid nominations and send them to the Senate of the United States for its advice and consent with the recommendation that they be favorably acted upon by that body. Resolved further: (3) That the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association urges the Senate of the United States to give its advice and consent to the aforesaid nominations. Resolved further: (4) That the Secretary of the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association, Inc. forward copies of these resolutions to the Senate of the States of the United States, the Secretary of the U.S. Senate, and to the Chairman and each member of the Senate Armed Forces Committee.

Submitted by Alex D. Cobb, Jr.

We the officers of the Association are now in the process of complying with the above resolutions and hopefully will have it in place for the 50th Anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

If I can be of further help please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,
KENNETH R. CREASEE,
National Secretary.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE
May 24, 1999

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I will join my voice with yours in support of the amendment sponsored by my friends from Delaware—Senators ROTH and BIDEN.

Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and General Walter C. Short were both unfairly maligned for their roles during the invasion of Pearl Harbor. They were blamed for not anticipating nor preparing for the attack. Admiral Kimmel was commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific, and General Short was commander of U.S. Army forces. The overwhelming consensus of the academic community and retired flag officers, most notably naval officers, concurs that history must be set straight in this matter.

Admiral Kimmel and General Short were, in my opinion, the two final victims of Pearl Harbor. Both officers were relieved of their commands, their careers and reputations destroyed after being blamed for negligence and dereliction of duty. These men were doing their duty to the best of their ability, and without full cooperation from superiors in their chain-of-command. Despite the fact that the charge of dereliction of duty was never proved, that charge still exists in the minds of many people.

Surprisingly, almost everyone above these two officers escaped censure. Yet, we know now that civilian and military officials in Washington withheld vital intelligence information which could have more fully alerted the field commanders to their imminent peril.

In judging Admiral Kimmel and General Short, the following facts have been repeatedly substantiated, but wrongfully and continually ignored:

The intelligence made available to the Pearl Harbor commanders was not sufficient to justify a higher level of vigilance than was maintained prior to the attack.

Neither officer knew of the decoded intelligence in Washington indicating the Japanese had identified the United States as an enemy.

Both commanders were assured by their superiors that they were getting the best intelligence available at the time.

There were no prudent defensive options available for the officers that would have significantly affected the outcome of the attack.

Military, governmental and congressional investigations have provided clear evidence that these two commanders were single out for blame that should have been widely shared.

In 1995, I held an in-depth meeting to review this matter which included the officers' families, historians, experts in field and retired high-ranking military officers, who all testified in favor of the two commanders.

In response to this review, Under Defense Secretary Edwin Dorn's subsequent report disclosed officially—for the first time—that blame should be "broadly shared." The Dorn Report stated members of the high command in Washington were privy to intercepted Japanese messages that in their totality strongly pointed toward an attack on Pearl Harbor on the 7th of December, 1941 . . ." and that this intelligence was never sent to the Hawaiian commanders.

The Dorn Report went so far as to characterize the handling of critically important decoded Japanese messages in Washington as revealing "ineptitude . . . unwarranted assumptions and misinterpretations, limited coordination, ambiguous language, and lack of clarification and follow-up at higher levels."

They are eligible for this advancement in rank by token of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, which authorizes retirement at highest wartime rank. All eligible officers have benefitted. All except for two: Admiral Kimmel and General Short. This advancement in rank would officially vindicate them. No retroactive pay would be involved.

The posthumous promotion of Admiral Kimmel and General Short will be a small step in restoring honor to these men.

It is time for Congress and the Administration to step forward and do the right thing.

I urge adoption of the amendment and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER, the Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, with respect to the Knox Investigations, Secretary of Defense Cohen here in 18, November, 1994; again on 22 November, 1994; President Reagan, 1 December, 1994; Deputy Secretary John Deutch, 10 December, 1994; Perry, 5 March, 1995; Deutch, 24 March of 1995; the Dorn Report on 6, October, 1995; Deputy Secretary Defense John White, December of 1995; Secretary Cohen here in 18, November, 1995; and P&R de Leon, on 29, July, 1998.

In other words, for 5 years the Department of Defense has devoted a good deal of time and effort to try—I presume and I certainly assume—to make an objective analysis of all of these letters, and have turned down the various requests from my two senior colleagues.

First, I ask my distinguished colleague from Delaware, because I look at this very imposing collection of documents and I reflect on the number of inquiries that have been held throughout history, these are the inquiries that have been held regarding these two officers and their association with the tragic losses of men, women, and assets of the United States on December 7, 1941.

We start with the Knox Investigation, December 9 through 14, in 1941. That was followed by the Roberts Commission, December 18 through January 29, 1942; the Hart Investigation, February 12 through March 15 of 1944; the Army Pearl Harbor Board, July 20 through October 20, 1944; Navy Court of Inquiry, July 24 through October 19, 1944; the Clark Investigation, August 4 through September 20, 1944; the Hewitt Inquiry, May 14 through July 11, 1945; the Clausen Investigation, January 24 through September 12, 1945; the Joint Congressional Committee, November 15 through May 23, 1945.

Based on the results of all these investigations, Secretary of Defense Cohen wrote to Senator THURMOND and presumably Senator ROTH. He said:

Dear Mr. Chairman: Thank you for your interest in exonerating the names of Admiral Kimmel and General Short. In the years since the fateful events at Pearl Harbor there have been numerous formal investigations of the events leading up to the attack, including sharp debate over our state of readiness at the time.

While Under Secretary of Defense for Personnel and Readiness, Mr. Edwin Dorn conducted a thorough review of this issue in 1986. He carefully considered the content contained in nine previous formal investigations, visited Pearl Harbor and personally met with the Kimmel and Short families. His conclusion is that responsibility for the Pearl Harbor disaster must be broadly shared, but that the record does not show that advancement of Admiral Kimmel and General Short on the retired list is warranted.

I appreciate the fact that the overwhelming consensus of the organizations and personnel mentioned in your letter recommend exoneration of Admiral Kimmel and General Short. Absent significant new information, however, I do not believe it is appropriate to order another review of this matter.

Ed Dorn and I both agree that responsibility for this tragic event in American history must be broadly shared, yet I remain confident in the findings that Admiral Kimmel and General Short remain accountable in their positions as leaders.

The first question to my distinguished colleague, this amendment would have the effect of no longer holding them accountable for this tragedy. If that be the case, who is to be held accountable for the tragedy?

Mr. ROTH. I point out to my distinguished colleague that first of all, the Dorn Report makes the very clear finding that responsibility for the Pearl Harbor disaster should not fall solely on the shoulders of Admiral Kimmel and General Short. It should be broadly shared.

When it says it should be broadly shared, it seems to me it is saying in effect that all of those who had any responsibility for this act should be treated the same. That is basically what we are saying here. These two distinguished gentlemen gave a lifetime of service to their country with distinction. There are many factors that were shown in the other investigations: That they did not have the intelligence, they did not have the information that they were entitled to if they were going to properly discharge their responsibility.

We are not saying here that they were not partly responsible, but they were no more responsible than other leaders in Washington. To me, it is unfair, inequitable and not in the tradition of the military to treat two individuals differently from others.

This is not an effort of a younger generation trying to correct what we think is an unfair situation. I, like the distinguished chairman of the Armed Services Committee, served in World War II with the military. I just think it is only right, it is only just that we treat them exactly the same and let them be promoted to their higher wartime ranks.

There is a responsibility, accountability, among many. Any number of these studies clearly showed that a large part of that responsibility was in Washington.

All we are asking is, let's treat all these people alike—fair and with justice.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I think the Senator has raised a very key point. That is, equality of treatment.

First, the Dorn Report specifically said that they—Kimmel and Short—do bear part of the responsibility. We are in agreement on that.

Mr. ROTH. Yes.

Mr. WARNER. Can the Senator point to any of the investigations that I recited, beginning back in 1941, which in any way totally or otherwise, exonereated Kimmel or Short?

Mr. ROTH. There were some findings that because of the lack of intelligence, they were not advised of the most up-to-date information that Washington had; they were not at fault.

As a matter of fact, the finding was made that their disposition based on the information they had was appropriate and proper.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, before we leave that point, if none of these reports that I recited—some nine in number which had before them live witnesses, clarity of mind and clarity of recollection—did not exonerate these officers, then why should we now at this lateness in history try to make a different finding? There could have been other officers who possibly were not advanced in rank. You cite they should be treated equally. How do I know there are not other officers, Army and Navy, who were not advanced in rank because they bore part of the responsibility for this tragedy? So, when you ask for equality, it would seem to me you would have to come forth with all the cases of all those who bore part of the responsibility and show that they were treated differently than Kimmel and Short.

Mr. ROTH. With all due deference to my colleague, that is hypothetical. It is possible that somewhere someone was mistreated. But those facts are not before us. I am not aware of any such charges.

But here we have two individuals about whom many different people agree, from those like Bob Dole, who served with great distinction, from the admirals who were in command, both of the Navy and our military forces, all coming forward with the recommendation, that to be fair, these two individuals should be advanced to their highest wartime rank.

The point the Senator is making is true in life. Many times lawsuits are brought but you cannot, in settling that lawsuit, with the individuals before you—you are not going to solve all the problems of mankind because you only have the facts of those you are considering. Our resolution is a follow-through for two individuals, about whom, time and time again, it was said they served with distinction.

Mr. WARNER. But the Senator said let's treat two individuals equally with others who bear part of the responsibility—a reasonable request. But I would want to know beforehand, are the others? How were they treated? Was their treatment commensurate with what the Senator asked for tonight?

Mr. ROTH. No one of whom I am aware, who served in World War II at the time of Pearl Harbor and had any responsibility in Washington, was held accountable and given less rank.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I admit that he had a responsibility, but I do not think anyone suggested, or would want to suggest, that he should have been penalized.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I am primarily concerned with the junior officers in the command of the Army in Hawaii, the command of the Navy in Hawaii. There may have been a number of officers and, indeed, enlisted men—say an intelligence officer. There was a good deal of intelligence out there that the situation was getting very serious, and I will refer to that momentarily. But how do I know their careers were not impeded? They may not have been generals, but they were officers of the U.S. Navy. But whether they were lieutenants or commanders, their careers may well have been blocked. There may be relatives out here and descendents of those officers who feel just as strongly as to the punishment that was meted out to their grandparents or whatever the case may be.

If you are going to open up a case like this, it seems to me it is in the nature of a class action: Let everybody come forward.

Mr. ROTH. I say to the good chairman, the others have not presented the case. These individuals, their families, have tried to correct what I think is a serious wrong. Again, all I can say is that rare is it that by one stroke of action you correct all inequities, all injustices. But here we have two individuals who were scapegoated. Let’s face it. They needed to blame somebody. I think as a matter of fact the Roberts investigation was not known for the legal jurisprudence with which it was conducted.

I believe, in fairness to these individuals, the record ought to be set straight. They served their country with great distinction through the years. Disaster occurred at Pearl Harbor, but they alone cannot be held responsible. Most of these reports will admit that. The others were permitted to rise to their highest rank, and I just say as a matter of justice—

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, we do not know. You make an assumption that others were allowed to rise to the highest rank. I do not know that. There is no evidence before the Senate tonight.

This is but one of, what? How many volumes here? The hearings before the Joint Committee on the Investigation of Pearl Harbor, U.S. Congress, 1945, I count, what, 15 volumes here? To me, that is thoroughness of an investigation. I mean, document after document, page after page in which—let’s see, how many Members of Congress, if they list the committee here? I do not see on this volume, but perhaps it is on another. How many Members of Congress were involved. Usually they list them.

How many Members were involved, does the Senator know?

Mr. ROTH. Let me say this. What I do know, as far as the record shows, only two officers were penalized, were punished.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, what record does the Senator speak of, that shows only two? Is there any record that shows only two officers in the U.S. military were ever penalized?

Mr. ROTH. No. But to me it is the same sort of thing. You are in a law case. Can you talk about the others who may be involved in the same kind of a problem? We are only trying to correct what I think are two serious cases.

Let me point out any number of distinguished groups and organizations who have come out in support.

Mr. WARNER. The Senator has recited them. Certainly, I accept that for the record. I also commend your able assistant, Mr. Brzezinski here, who has worked tirelessly on this for several years and done the research. But let me ask you this question. We are both lawyers; we spent years in courtrooms. What new evidence do you bring before the Senate tonight to ask for a reversal of some nine different boards and commissions that have reviewed this over a period of these many years? What new evidence do you bring in support of your petition?

Mr. ROTH. It really is not a question, I say to my colleague, of new evidence. The evidence has been there for many years, since 1944, when investigations were made both by the Army and Navy. Time passes, it has been found that these two individuals were not the only ones responsible. Admittedly, they share blame with others. But everybody else in the Service was permitted to keep their rank or raised to their high seat.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, we do not know that as a fact. The Senator keeps repeating everyone else was allowed to advance. I do not see anything before me.

Mr. ROTH. I say, to the contrary, what is the evidence that there are others? Theoretically, you keep saying there are others. Who are they?

Mr. WARNER. Look at the Dorn report. I would like to refer to that at some point here. Let's just go over the Dorn report. This is a very comprehensive analysis by the Department of Defense over a considerable period of months. I would like to refer to some of their findings.

First, that these officers did receive warning messages on November 27, stating that Japan might take hostile action at any moment. Kimmel and Short concluded the attack would occur in the western Pacific and not Hawaii.

That was apparently their independent judgment.

The Army and Navy were separate departments reporting directly to the President. There is a question about the collaboration of these two senior officers on the islands of Hawaii.

Lack of mission discussion between Kimmel and Short on defense plans for Hawaii and long-range air patrols—in other words, they had not collaborated to coordinate the assets of the United States as a deterrent, or indeed a defense against any attack on which they had warning on November 27. Kimmel and Short did not share their internal intelligence with each other. That, to me, is a very troubling fact.

Just to say, as this report does, that responsibility is broadly shared does not absolve Kimmel and Short of accountability for this action to some degree. For example, the commander has plenary power to complete and absolute, responsibility for the welfare of the people under his command and is directly accountable for everything the unit does or fails to do. That is legendary in military history.

Even in the Navy, there are cases where the captain was in his quarters, properly, perhaps, taking a rest and arose with the ship, and there are hundreds of cases where he is held accountable, even though he was not on the bridge at the time.

Three- and four-star positions are listed as positions of importance and responsibility. Both commanders made errors in judgment. The most serious ones were failure to establish a state of readiness in light of warnings received and to liaison between the two commands, i.e., Army and Navy, and to coordinate defensive measures and to maintain effective reconnaissance. Intelligence available to Kimmel and Short was sufficient to justify a higher level of vigilance than was maintained. An officer may be relieved of command if a superior decides the officer has failed to exercise sound judgment. And that is precisely what was done in this case.

The Senator points out that history does show, facts and mitigation, that responsibility was shared in Washington for failure to communicate on a timely basis some intelligence. But it does not absolve them from taking prudent actions as field commanders at a time of very high tension. That is the point I make. Indeed, those facts may have been mitigating facts that these men were not actually court-martialized and incarcerated for this tragedy. This was an absolute, at the time, frightful blow against the United States of America. All of us have seen the pictures, and we know the history well. That is why it is my motion to try this revisionist action at this late date.

Relief does not require a finding of misconduct or unsatisfactory performance, merely a loss of confidence with regard to the specific command in question. There is a vast difference between court-martial action and a level of performance which warrants removal of command.

Promotion is based on potential and not past performance. That is, promotion is based on expectation of performance to the level at which the individual is being considered for promotion. Posthumous advancement in rank would be based on the judgment that, at a minimum, they had served satisfactorily at the three- and four-star level. Their superiors at the time decided they had not, and there is no compelling basis to contradict this earlier decision, made at a time when there were live witnesses and clarity of memory in many.

There may be a debate as to fairness and justice, but there can be no argument about the legitimacy of those who exercised their power for relief in retirement. The official treatment—this report goes on—of Kimmel and Short was subsequently temperate and procedurally proper; mention of court-martial but no charges brought; some allegations that there was no court-martial because the Government feared bringing charges would implicate other senior military and civilian leaders; could also be there were sufficient grounds for successful court-martial prosecution.

Mr. President, there is no new evidence before the Senate tonight. I would like to go on. I am going to put this in the RECORD. Is there some other point the Senator wishes to make? If I understand—you have been very forthright—there has been no new evidence. So what we are really doing is trying to give these two fair and impartial judgment by giving our own independent assessment of facts that were deduced in a timely manner in the period of 1941 to, say, 1946. That is the conclusion of this congressional review.

Now we are determining from those facts which were deduced at the time of clarity of memory and presumably many witnesses who testified before the Congress. We are now asked to make this important decision which is tantamount, in the minds of many Americans, to exonerating totally these two officers from any misconduct or dereliction of duty at the time of Pearl Harbor. I just simply cannot go along with that. I say to the Senator.

First, again, there are no new facts. We are agreed on that.

Mr. ROTH. The issue is not the question of new facts. The issue is the question of fairness. I believe that is as critically important today as it was at the time. It is clear that these individuals, General Short and Admiral Kimmel, did not have the intelligence information available at the time that would have enabled them to better address the challenge from the Japanese.

Mr. WARNER. May I ask, is that fact not borne out in many of these hearings that were held in the period of 1941 to 1947? My recollection is that that was always presented at that time, or at least certainly in the congressional one when the war was over.

Mr. ROTH. To me, it is just a difference, I guess, in approach. If you take the position that it happened in the past and it should not be changed, I think that is wrong. I think there is a strong case that these individuals were not treated fairly. The President was given authority under the 1947 act to raise any retired flag officer to the rank.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I remember it well. The Senator will recall we did not raise them to their wartime ranks, as the tombstone promotion; am I not correct?

Mr. ROTH. That is correct.

Mr. WARNER. That shows our vintage.

Mr. ROTH. I just think it is not fair to these individuals, to their reputation. Admittedly, even the Dorn report makes all kinds of conclusions that they did not have the information to which they were entitled, that others shared in the responsibility for what happened.

In this country, in the tradition of the military—and I am not a professional soldier, although I did have the pleasure of serving several years in the military——

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I might say, with distinction; a fine officer.

Mr. ROTH. I appreciate that. I think the important thing is to show that in our country, individuals who were not treated equitably, the record can be set straight.

Mr. WARNER. On that point, so the Senator’s argument tonight is one of fairness. But I say to him, if the Senate were to go along with him, implicitly it would say that all of these reports involving hundreds of conscientious men and perhaps women who were on these boards, some seven or eight boards, were unfair.

Mr. ROTH. I go back to the fact, it was the President who decided in the 1947 act not to raise them to their wartime ranks. I think it is a rank in-jus tice. I think it is a blot on the history of World War II. There are many people one can probably point out who said this, that, or the other.

Here were two gentlemen, one an ad-siral who had been in command, a naval CO, who was in charge in Hawaii. General Short was in command of the Army Hawaiian department. They did not have the intelligence.

One has to remember, in a time of war and stress, one of the concerns was that the country was so shocked by what took place in Hawaii that there was concern over what would be the reaction of the American people. Even though they were found innocent of dereliction of duty, that did not become public information, for the simple reason they wanted to make certain that the American people sup-supported the efforts of this country and more. That was kept secret indefinitely, until 1947, at which time it came out.

But I know the chairman is a fair man. I admire him greatly. I know there are those in the military saying: Well, don’t go back and change now. Let history judge. I just think it is unfair to these individuals who did serve with excellence, who did serve with distinction, to be penalized when they were the only two.

Mr. WARNER. But, Senator, what do you say to all of these people—I wish we had the volume here that showed how many Members of Congress participated? Perhaps you can provide that. I do not know how many sat on all the boards that Frank Knox had. I recited all of them here, but I did serve in the Department of Navy as an Under Secretary for 5-plus years.

Mr. ROTH. With great distinction.

Mr. WARNER. I am not so sure, but you are nice to say it. It was a challenge. I was privileged and humbled to do so.

But my point is, a naval court of inquiry, that is usually about 9 or 10 officers certainly for a matter of this importance. All of these investigations involved, I think, at a minimum 10 or 12 people, not to mention all the staffs on both sides. I am sure they had the opportunity for these two officers to make known their own views and to turn over all of the investigation reports and say that they did not act fairly towards these two men.

Here we are, here in May of 1999, with no new evidence. I do not have the records of all these boards. I suppose somebody has gone through them. And Mr. Brzezinski maybe has.

Could I ask, have you got an estimate of how many persons were involved in all these boards which rendered a judgment that these two men must be held accountable for this tragedy at Pearl Harbor? Does anyone have an estimate of how many Members of Congress?

Mr. ROTH. I think the point is that in these investigations, the purpose of them was not to determine who was accountable but, rather, it was a statement of fact. But, again, let me underscore. You keep coming back and saying: Why should we be looking at it today?

I think that is what makes this country different. If there is a wrong, an error, it is never too late to correct it. However, if these individuals were found not to be solely reponsible for the attack on Pearl Harbor. As a matter of fact, there were findings in agreement that many in Washington played a key role. Most persuasive to me is the fact that the intelligence they needed to address the threat the only two men who were treated unfairly. You come back to that.

Mr. ROTH. We do know——

Mr. WARNER. I reject that argument.

Mr. ROTH. You reject the argument, but you give me no names. Who else was involved? These are the two who many distinguished former officers of the service, of the Navy, of the Army, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, find this is unfairly treating these individuals. I am merely trying to correct a wrong. I recognize different people—I think we are both fair minded, to be honest. We just happen to disagree.

Mr. WARNER. All right. You want to correct. On what basis do you correct other than the palpitations of your heart?

Mr. ROTH. Because of the fact that

Mr. WARNER. Where is the evidence?

Mr. ROTH. There were findings that these individuals did not have the intelligence to which they were entitled. In Washington, it was known that war was imminent. If you had the full information, it was fairly clear that there could be an attack on Pearl Harbor. There was a so-called bomb, 14-part message, all of which indicated that attack was an immediate threat.

That information was denied the two individuals with the key critical responsibility in Hawaii. I just think you hold them responsible and not to give them the lifetime is unfair.

Mr. WARNER. If I could again refer to the Dorn Report:

The failure of Kimmel and Short to make adequate preparations in light of the information they did have.

That was a major finding.

They knew their primary mission, arguable their only mission, was to prepare for war.

They knew that war with Japan was highly likely.

They knew that a surprise attack probably would precede a declaration of war.

They knew Japan, not the US, would strike the first blow.

They knew the initial Japanese attack would fail on Pearl Harbor.

They knew that an attack on Pearl Harbor could come from aircraft carriers.

They knew from their own staffs of the danger of a surprise air attack.

They knew from recent events that the idea of a carrier air attack on Pearl Harbor was not new.

They made statements prior to December 7 that acknowledged the possibility of an air-attack on their forces.

Now, that was the finding of the Dorn group here just in 1995. I have it here, some numerous pages of this report.
Mr. ROTH. Let me make—I do not want to interrupt.

Mr. WARNER. No, please go ahead.

Mr. ROTH. Let me point out those findings were general findings. But the fact is, the up-to-date intelligence that Washington had in the days immediately before Pearl Harbor was not made available to General Short or Admiral Kimmel.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, that sum portion of intelligence, I think that all throughout history has been concealed. And these tribunals, particularly the Congress, had that before it. It is for that reason maybe they were not court-martialed and incarcerated, if found guilty.

Mr. ROTH. Yes, you knew an air carrier attack was possible. But to know, for example, as they knew in Washington in the days right before the attack that the Japanese wanted to know where the warships were located, it was this kind of information that gave immediacy to the threat. To me, that was critical.

You talk about the Dorn Report. Let me just say, as part of the Dorn Report, they sort of are all over the map in their finding. They say:

It is clear today, as should have been clear since 1946 to any serious reader of the JCC hearing record, that Admiral Kimmel and General Short were not solely responsible for the defeat at Pearl Harbor.

* * * * *

* * * * *

New, this is the Dorn report—which provided crucial confirmation of the imminence of war. Read together and with the leisure, focus, and clarity of hindsight, these messages strongly towards an attack on Pearl Harbor at dawn on the 7th.

That is the Dorn Report:

The immediacy of an attack on Pearl Harbor at dawn on the 7th.

The evidence of the handling of these messages in Washington reveals some inaptness, some unwarranted assumptions and misstatements, limited coordination, ambiguous language and lack of clarification and follow through at higher levels.

I could go on.

A careful reading of the proceedings and reports of those panels suggests clear recognition of the faults at all levels. Yet these two gentlemen were singled out and were not given advance to their wartime rating.

I think it was inequitable. I think it was not fair, and it seems to me the greatness of this country is that we can go back and make changes where warranted.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President. I have just added, I think, a document that interests me a great deal. It is entitled, "Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack: Report of the Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack," pursuant to a resolution of Congress, S. Res. 27. And it was reported on.

Just listen to those Senators who were on this commission: Alben Barkley, you remember him. What an extraordinary man; Walter George, George was considered one of the great. Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Illinois, one of the most senior Senators from the State of Illinois, the Presiding Officer's State; Owen Brewster from Maine; Homer Ferguson from Michigan.

I say to my good friend, those names still reverberate with absolute distinction and credibility in this Chamber today. They made the findings which left history intact. And we here, just the two of us, really, on the floor tonight, are to judge our colleagues tomorrow to reverse that history?

With all due respect, there is not the foundation, in my judgment, for the Senate to so act and overrule the findings of these three gentlemen.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, as the Senator knows, I have the greatest respect for his soundness of judgment, for his honesty and integrity. I have the same for the Senators named. But the fact remains, honorable men and women often disagree. Here we do disagree.

I am just trying to join my colleagues—there are 23 of us—in seeking to correct what we think was unfair treatment to two individuals who devoted a lifetime of service to this country. Yes, there are differences of opinion on this matter, but nothing seems to me more important than to try to correct a record which I think, on the basis of the studies I have seen, results in unfairness. We are trying to correct that.

I understand you disagree with the basis of our proposal, but I think both of us want the same thing, and that is fairness.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, there is no one in this body for whom I have greater respect than my dear friend and colleague, Senator ROTH. He has put a lot of work, together with his able staff, into this case. But it seems to me that we stand in a momentous hour in the history of this country. We are asking our colleagues to trust in our own judgments and our findings as to whether or not one of the most remarkable and tragic chapters in the history of this Nation, in effect, should have this significant reversal these many years hence, based on no new evidence, based on the fervent plea of my colleagues, Senator ROTH and Senator THURMOND.

I shall take the floor tomorrow and most vigorously oppose this. I think for the night we have pretty well concluded this debate. I have to tell the Senator, it is an interesting one for me, and not altogether without some implications in my own life, thinking back in that period of history. I will never forget Pearl Harbor.

If I could just reminisce for a moment, it is hard to believe that shortly thereafter this city, the Nation's Capital, was under attack. And I remember it very well, as a small—well, I wasn't so small. I remember my father was a physician and he was able to drive at night only with a slit on the headlight to get to the hospital. I remember very well our home was equipped with blackout curtains. All the streetlights went out. We were fearful of an attack here in Washington, DC, and, indeed, other east coast cities. There were Nazi submarines patrolling off the east coast of the United States, sinking ships.

How well I recall on the beaches of Virginia there was washed up debris from sunken ships. The people on the west coast lived in constant fear that there would be an invasion. These were serious and strenuous times, calling on the men and women of the Armed Forces for a duty and a commitment and an assumption of risk without parallel, because this Nation in many respects was unprepared. How well we recall the pictures of the Army practicing maneuvers with broomsticks rather than rifles.

When I think of the tragic death, loss of life and property, indeed, if we were to follow your logic—President Roosevelt had that intelligence—we could go back and judge the record of many others. It seems to me that what is before the Senate tonight is clear facts that men and women of clear conscience, with the ability to assess fresh information, have painstakingly gone through it, reached their conclusion year after year, and then a President, Harry Truman, is my recollection, am I correct, made the decision that he did with respect to these two officers. I just do not believe that the Senate at this time should reverse that history.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE VERY BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, at the close of business Friday, May 21, 1999, the federal debt stood at $5,596,857,521,196.34 (Five trillion, five hundred ninety-six billion, eight hundred fifty-seven million, five hundred twenty-one thousand, one hundred ninety-six billion, eight hundred fifty-seven million, five hundred twenty-one thousand, one hundred ninety-six dollars and thirty-four cents).

One year ago, May 21, 1998, the federal debt stood at $5,503,780,000,000 (Five trillion, five hundred thirty billion, seven hundred eighty million).

Fifteen years ago, May 21, 1984, the federal debt stood at $1,485,189,000,000 (One trillion, four hundred eighty-five billion, one hundred eighty-nine million.)

Twenty-five years ago, May 21, 1974, the federal debt stood at $470,357,000,000 (Four hundred seventy billion, three hundred fifty-seven million) which reflects a debt increase of more than $5 trillion—$5,126,500,521,196.34 (Five trillion, one hundred twenty-six billion, five hundred million, five hundred twenty-one thousand, one hundred ninety-six dollars and thirty-four cents) during the past 25 years.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Williams, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting a withdrawal and sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.)

REPORT OF PROPOSED LEGISLATION "EDUCATIONAL EXCELLENCE FOR ALL CHILDREN ACT OF 1999"—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT RECEIVED DURING ADJOURNMENT—PM 30

Under the authority of the order of the Senate of January 6, 1999, the Secretary of the Senate on May 21, 1999, during the adjournment of the Senate, received the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report, which was referred to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

To the Congress of the United States:

I am pleased to transmit for your immediate consideration the "Educational Excellence for All Children Act of 1999," my Administration's proposal for reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (ESEA) and other elementary and secondary education programs.

My proposal builds on the positive trends achieved under current law. The "Improving America's Schools Act of 1994," which reauthorized the ESEA 5 years ago, and the "Goals 2000: Educate America Act" gave States and school districts a framework for integrating Federal resources in support of State and local reforms based on high academic standards. In response, 48 States, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico have adopted State-level standards. Recent results of the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) show improved performance for the economically disadvantaged and other at-risk students who are the primary beneficiaries of ESEA programs. NAEP reading scores for 9-year-olds in high-poverty schools have improved significantly since 1992, while mathematics achievement has also increased nationally. Students in high-poverty schools and the lowest-performing students—the specific target populations for the ESEA Title I program—have registered gains in both reading and math achievement.

I am encouraged by these positive trends, but educational results for many children remain far below what they should be. My proposal to reauthorize the ESEA is based on four themes reflecting lessons from research and the experience of implementing the bill:

First, we would continue to focus on high academic standards for all children. The underlying purpose of every program within the ESEA is to help all children reach challenging State and local academic standards. States have largely completed the first stage of standards-based reform by developing content standards for all children. My bill would support the next stage of reform by helping States, school districts, schools, and teachers use these standards to guide classroom instruction and assessment.

My proposal for reauthorizing Title I, for example, would require States to hold school districts and schools accountable for student performance against State standards, including helping the lowest-performing students continually to improve. The bill also would continue to target Federal elementary and secondary education resources on those students furthest from meeting local standards, with a particular emphasis on narrowing the gap in achievement between disadvantaged students and their more affluent peers. In this regard, my proposal would phase in equal treatment of Puerto Rico in ESEA funding formulas, so that poor children in Puerto Rico are treated similarly to those in the rest of the country for the purpose of formula allocations.

Second, my proposal responds to research showing that qualified teachers are critical to improving student achievement, far too many teachers are not prepared to teach to high standards. Teacher quality is a particular problem in high-poverty schools, and the problem is often exacerbated by the use of paraprofessionals in instructional roles.

My bill addresses teacher quality by holding States accountable for stronger enforcement of their own certification and licensure requirements, while at the same time providing substantial support for State and local professional development efforts. The Teaching to High Standards initiative in Title II would help move challenging educational standards into every classroom by providing teachers with sustained professional development in core academic subjects, supporting new teachers during their first 3 years in the classroom, and ensuring that all teachers are proficient in relevant content knowledge and teaching skills.

The Technology for Education Initiative under Title III would expand the availability of educational technology as a tool to help teachers implement high standards in the classroom, particularly in high-poverty schools. My bill also would extend, over the next 7 years, the Class-Size Reduction initiative, which aims to reduce class sizes in the early grades by helping districts to hire and train 100,000 teachers. And second chance programs. A new initiative would help ensure that all teachers are well trained to teach students with limited English proficiency, who are found in more and more classrooms with each passing year.

Third, my bill would increase support for safe, healthy, disciplined, and drug-free learning environments where all children feel connected, motivated, and challenged to learn and where parents are welcome and involved. The recent tragedy at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colorado, reminds us that we must be ever vigilant against the risks of violence and other dangerous behaviors in our schools. Our reauthorization bill includes several measures to help mitigate these risks.

We would strengthen the Safe and Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act by concentrating funds on districts with the greatest need for drug- and violence-prevention programs, and by emphasizing the use of research-based programs of proven effectiveness. Moreover, with respect to students who bring weapons to school, this proposal would require schools to refer such students to a mental health professional for assessment and require counseling for those who pose an imminent threat to themselves or others; allow funding for programs that educate students about the risks associated with guns; expand character education programs; and promote alternative schools and programs. The School Emergency Response to Violence program would provide rapid assistance to school districts that have experienced violence or other trauma that disrupts the learning environment.

My High School Reform initiative would support innovative reforms to improve student achievement in high schools, such as expanding the connections between adults and students that are necessary for effective learning and healthy personal development. This new initiative would provide resources to help transform 5,000 high schools into places where students receive individual attention, are motivated to learn, are provided with challenging courses, and are encouraged to develop and pursue long-term educational and career goals.

Fourth, in response to clear evidence that standards-based reforms work best when States have strong accountability systems in place, my proposal would encourage each State to establish a single, rigorous accountability system for all schools. The bill also would require States to end social promotion and traditional retention practices; phase out the use of teachers with emergency certificates and the practice of assigning teachers “out-of-field”; and implement sound discipline policies in every school. Finally, the bill would give parents an important new accountability tool by requiring State, district, and school-level report cards that will help them evaluate the quality of the schools their children attend.

Based on high standards for all students, high-quality professional development for teachers, safe and disciplined learning environments, and accountability to parents and taxpayers, the Educational Excellence for All Children Act of 1999 provides a solid foundation for raising student achievement and narrowing the achievement gap between disadvantaged students and their more advantaged peers. More important, it will help prepare all of our children, and thus the Nation, for the challenges of the 21st century. I urge the Congress to take prompt and favorable action on this proposal.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petitions and memorials were laid before the Senate and were referred or ordered to lie on the table:

POM-124. A resolution adopted by the Senate of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois relative to senior citizens; to the Committee on Finance.

SECURITY NUCLEAR NON-PROLIFERATION NO. 70

Whereas, The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 established a new reimbursement system for Medicare home health services effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1997, that was threatened to ruin the home health industry; and

Whereas, The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 created an interim payment system which is cost-based with reduced limits and is in effect until a prospective payment system is initiated with cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 2000; and

Whereas, While the 105th Congress made strides to rectify the interim payment system, the real effect of the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1998 was to raise the per-beneficiary limits; and

Whereas, The Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1998 raised the per-beneficiary limits by less than 5% for the majority of home health agencies; and

Whereas, Health Care Financing Administration, which is only 9% of the overall Medicare budget, is slashed, other programs will bear the burden, and in many cases Medicare patients will be transferred to the Medicaid program; and

Whereas, If these patients are not served by home health agencies, delaying up health care costs in other arenas, including nursing homes, hospitals, and emergency care; and

Whereas, One out of every 10 Medicare beneficiaries received some form of home health care in 1996; and

Whereas, On average, a home care visit in 1996 cost between $40 and $140, while the cost of staying in a hospital per day is $2,071, and a skilled nursing facility, $443; and

Whereas, The average home health agency has seen a 39% reduction in Medicare revenue since implementation of the interim payment system; and

Whereas, Fifty-eight, or 15%, of Illinois home health agencies have closed in the past year; and

Whereas, Rural home health agencies report revenues at least one-third lower than the same period last year; and

Whereas, Three-fourths of Illinois Home Care Council freestanding agency members (those not affiliated with a hospital or network) estimate that, unless something changes with the interim payment system, they will be closed within 6 months to a year; and

Whereas, The interim payment system is based on average costs, which creates strong incentives to avoid caring for patients with complex or long-term medical problems, forcing many Illinois home health agencies to choose between staying in business and serving highly complex, high visit volume patients; and

Whereas, Three prominent public policy research organizations, George Washington University, the Commonwealth Fund, and the Lewin Group, independently concluded that the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 are causing a crisis in the Medicare home health benefit by: (i) eliminating access to medically necessary services for many Medicare patients, most frail Medicare beneficiaries; (ii) rewarding higher cost and penalizing lower cost home health agencies by establishing radically different payment methods which reflect current patient mix or efficiency; and (iii) eliminating access to Medicare home health care in rural areas; and

The prospective payment system is a system by which home health agencies are paid according to types and numbers of patients actually served that assures a predictable reimbursement rate and schedule, beneficial to both the federal government and home health agencies; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate of the Ninety-First General Assembly of the State of Illinois, that we urge Congress to hold the Health Care Financing Authority accountable for the timely implementation of a fair prospective payment system; and be it further

Resolved, That we urge the federal government to rectify some of the damage wrought by the interim payment system by raising the per-beneficiary and per-visit limits, so that agencies can keep serving patients until the prospective payment system is implemented; and be it further

Resolved, That we urge Congress to hold the federal government accountable for the timely implementation of a fair prospective payment system; and be it further

Resolved, That suitable copies of this resolution be delivered to the President, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the other members of the Illinois Congressional delegation.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 26

Whereas, In 1994, the Michigan Legislature passed legislation (HR 5281) granting lending institutions the authority to sell all lines of insurance; and

Whereas, That legislation, which became 1995 PA 139, includes nearly 40 sections seeking to separate lending and insurance transactions; prohibits against offering or discussing insurance while a loan transaction is pending; requiring separate lending and insurance areas; requirements for full written disclosures to customers; and inclusion of strong prohibitions against sharing confidential insurance-related information in bank loan files with bank-affiliated agencies; and

Whereas, A joint letter published November 7, 1994, HB 5281 was lauded and strongly supported by the Michigan Bankers Association, Michigan Association of Insurers, Michigan Savings Institutions, Michigan Association of Life Underwriters, Michigan Chamber of Commerce, Michigan Consumer Federation, Michigan Property and Casualty Insurance Association of Michigan, Michigan Association of Credit Unions, Michigan Retail Hardware Association, Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, Michigan State Chamber of Commerce, Michigan Construction Association, Michigan Association of General Contractors Association (Michigan Chapter); and

Whereas, In 1995, the Rhode Island Legislature resoundingly passed legislation substantially similar to Michigan law, granting lending institutions the authority to sell insurance; and

Whereas, In 1997, the overall home health benefit by: (i) eliminating access to medically necessary services for many Medicare patients, most frail Medicare beneficiaries; (ii) rewarding higher cost and penalizing lower cost home health agencies by establishing radically different payment methods which reflect current patient mix or efficiency; and (iii) eliminating access to Medicare home health care in rural areas; and

WHEREAS, The Comptroller of the Currency is an appointed, federal bureaucrat who has a track record of promulgating regulations that serve to expand bank insurance powers. These new insurance activities, deemed to be banking issues by the Comptroller, often conflict with established state laws;

WHEREAS, On January 13, 1997, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) issued a request on Rhode Island’s Financial Institution Insurance Sales Act to assist in the determination as to whether Section 92 of the Federal Bank Act provided the Comptroller of the Currency sufficient authority to preempt Rhode Island’s banks-in-insurance statute; and

WHEREAS, The McCarran-Ferguson Act of 1945 relegates authority to the individual states for regulation of the insurance activities of all entities; and

WHEREAS, The preemption of state insurance laws by an unselected federal bureaucracy is in direct conflict with the fifty-four-year tradition of state regulation of insurance under McCarran-Ferguson and thereby raises vital questions of states’ rights and the primacy of duly elected representatives to enact laws governing insurance activities within their state borders; and

WHEREAS, In the Eighty-ninth Michigan Legislature, Michigan’s Senate Majority and Minority Leaders, Speaker of the House and House Minority Leader, members of the Senate Finance Committee, and Minority and Majority Chairs of the House Insurance and Banking Committees all delivered letters to the Comptroller of the Currency formally opposing the OCC’s Mission to preempt Rhode Island’s banks-in-insurance statute; and

WHEREAS, The National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC); National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL); and the National Conference of Insurance Legislators (NCOIL) all submitted letters strongly opposing the Comptroller of the Currency’s desire to preempt state insurance law; and

WHEREAS, In past court disputes between federal and state insurance regulators, federal courts have granted “unequal deference” to federal regulators, thereby rendering decisions based not on the merits of the case but on the deference to the federal regulator; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That we memorialize the Congress of the United States, the President of the United States; the President of the United States Senate; the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives; and the American Legion, Department of Maine.

RESOLUTION NO. 85

WHEREAS, Guam in the last year has become a prime target for a human smuggling operation run by the infamous Chinese criminal organization known as the “Snakeheads”; and

WHEREAS, as a result of concerted efforts by organized criminal operations, Guam has been flooded with illegal aliens of this smuggling activity; and

WHEREAS, Six hundred (600) illegal immigrants have been apprehended and detained at the Guam Department of Corrections correctional facility, including four hundred (400) illegal immigrants currently in detention, to the expense of Guam taxpayers and to the danger of other inmates in an already overpopulated facility; and

WHEREAS, Guam law enforcement officials estimate that more than two hundred (200) other illegal immigrants have gotten through Guam’s borders without detection, and are already in the community at-large; and

WHEREAS, Guam law enforcement officials estimate that another several thousands illegal immigrants will arrive on Guam in the near future; and

WHEREAS, the humans smuggled off cannot pay the full price of transportation, estimated at Twenty Thousand Dollars to Thirty Thousand Dollars ($20,000.00–$30,000.00), and the immigrants therefore become basically indentured servants; and

WHEREAS, under United States immigration laws, the efforts of these criminal organizations are rewarded because the illegal immigrants they transport immediately claim asylum under U.S. law, and are often paroled and allowed to walk free; and

WHEREAS, the impact of this human smuggling operation on the government of Guam and the local community has been great and is potentially devastating, with costs estimated in the millions, with the mass of illegal immigrants using law enforcement, corrections, hospital, public health, and many other local resources, which are already strained by the recent economic slump; and

WHEREAS, because of Guam’s unique status under United States immigration laws, the illegal immigrants who have likely come into Guam’s borders unnoticed, and the illegal immigrants who have been apprehended and then paroled and let free in the community are a serious public health hazard, as more than a few have been diagnosed with tuberculosis and other diseases; and

WHEREAS, neither the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service, nor the United States Coast Guard, currently have sufficient resources stationed on Guam to combat this influx of illegal immigrants, resulting in an alarming lack of enforcement of the very laws that have created this emergency situation; now therefore, be it

Resolved, that I Mina Bente Singko Na Liheslaturan Guahan (Twenty-Fifth Guam Legislature) does hereby, on behalf of the people of Guam, respectfully request the Federal Government of the United States of America to permanently upgrade the U.S. Coast Guard facility, vessels and equipment, and properly man these facilities and vessels carrying illegal immigrants; and be it

Resolved, that I Mina Bente Singko Na Liheslaturan Guahan does hereby, on behalf of the people of Guam, respectfully request the Federal Government of the United States of America to apply Six Dollars ($6.00) of the funding source to support the intent of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, that I Mina Bente Singko Na Liheslaturan Guahan does hereby, on behalf of the people of Guam, respectfully request the President of the United States and his Administration to identify and set a permanent location for the government of Guam to take control of the ability to patrol the seas surrounding Guam and detect, intercept and redirect any vessels carrying illegal immigrants; and be it

Resolved, that I Mina Bente Singko Na Liheslaturan Guahan does hereby, on behalf of the people of Guam, respectfully request the Federal Government of the United States of America to apply Six Dollars ($6.00) of the U.S. Immigration departure fee currently collected from each passenger departing the Guam International Air Terminal, at a funding source to support the intent of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, that I Mina Bente Singko Na Liheslaturan Guahan does hereby, on behalf of the people of Guam, respectfully request the President of the United States and his Administration to identify and set a permanent location for the government of Guam to take control of the ability to patrol the seas surrounding Guam and detect, intercept and redirect any vessels carrying illegal immigrants; and be it

Resolved, that I Mina Bente Singko Na Liheslaturan Guahan does hereby, on behalf of the people of Guam, respectfully request the Federal Government of the United States of America to reimburse the government of Guam for all expenses associated with this illegal immigrant operation; and be it fur-and the members of Iowa’s congressional delegation.

We, Brent Siegert, Speaker of the House and Mary Kramer, President of the Senate; Elizabeth A. Isaacson, Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives; E. Marshall, Secretary of the Senate, hereby certify that the above and foregoing Resolution was adopted by the House of Representatives and the Senate of the State of Pennsylvania.

POM–132. A resolution adopted by the Senate of the General Assembly of Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relative to moneys earmarked for abandoned mine land reclamation; to the Committee on Appropriations.

Senate Resolution No. 33
Whereas, The biggest water pollution problem facing this Commonwealth today is polluted water draining from abandoned coal mines; and
Whereas, Over half the streams that do not meet water quality standards in this Commonwealth are affected by mine drainage; and
Whereas, The Commonwealth has over 250,000 acres of abandoned mine lands, 300 abandoned mine shafts, 160 abandoned coal mines, 60 abandoned coal mines in 45 of Pennsylvania’s 67 counties, more than any other state in the nation; and
Whereas, The Department of Environmental Protection estimates it will cost more than $15 billion to reclaim and restore abandoned mine lands; and
Whereas, Pennsylvania now receives about $20 million a year from the Federal Government to do reclamation projects; and
Whereas, There is now a $1 billion balance in the Federal Abandoned Mine Reclamation Trust Fund that is set aside by law to take care of pollution and safety problems caused by old coal mines; and
Whereas, Pennsylvania is the fourth largest coal producing state in the nation, and coal operators contribute significantly to the fund by paying a special fee for each ton of coal they mine; and
Whereas, Pennsylvania is not seeking to rely solely on Federal moneys to address its abandoned mine reclamation needs and has undertaken a comprehensive program designed to maximize reclamation opportunities by increasing community involvement, making existing resources effective, encouraging private and public participation in reclamation activities and reducing the cost of abandoned mine reclamation projects; and
Whereas, The Department of Environmental Protection and 39 county conservation districts through the Western and Eastern Pennsylvania Coalitions for Abandoned Mine Reclamation have worked as partners to improve the effectiveness of mine reclamation programs; and
Whereas, Pennsylvania has been working with the Interstate Mining Compact Commission, the National Association of Abandoned Mine Land Programs and other states to free more of these funds to clean up abandoned mine lands; and
Whereas, Making more funds available to states for abandoned mine reclamation should preserve the interest revenues now being received by the United Mine Workers Combined Benefit Fund; and
Whereas, The Federal Office of Surface Mining, the United States Environmental Protection Agency, and Congress have not agreed to make more funds available to states for abandoned mine reclamation; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Senate of Pennsylvania urge the President of the United States, and Congress make the $1 billion of Federal moneys already earmarked for abandoned mine land reclamation available to states to clean up and make safe our abandoned mine lands; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, to the Secretary of the Navy of the United States, to the Secretary of the Treasury, to the Secretary of Commerce, to the Secretary of the Interior, to the Secretary of Labor, to the Secretary of State, to the Committee on Armed Services, to the Committee on Appropriations, and to the Committee on Armed Services.

Concurrent Resolution No. 45
Statement of Purpose
In the course of the last one hundred years, the People of Puerto Rico have shown their loyalty to the democratic values of liberty, equality and respect for human rights consecrated by and set forth in the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the People of Puerto Rico have responded affirmatively and participated in all of the armed conflicts in which our Nation has been forced to take part, and in the Korean and Persian Gulf wars. In these conflicts, over two thousand (2,000) Puerto Rican fellowmen and women have made the ultimate sacrifice, giving their lives for the freedom and security of the Commonwealth and the Nation.

Humbly, other thousands of other Puerto Ricans have been wounded while participating in these conflicts.

The Preamble of the Constitution of the United States of America provides that it was ordained to constitute, establish, ensure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity. However, despite the fact that the United States Constitution was established to promote for the general welfare and ensure domestic tranquility, the People of Puerto Rico have suffered the direct consequences of military practices, including air, land and naval activities for the last hundred years. In the administration of Governor Roberto Sanchez-Vilella from 1965 to 1969, the Department of Defense has been made aware of the grave problems created by the constant bombing and other military activity in Vieques and the physical and emotional health of the people of Vieques have suffered the direct consequences of military practices, including air, land and naval activities for the last hundred years. In the administration of Governor Roberto Sanchez-Vilella from 1965 to 1969, the Department of Defense has been made aware of the grave problems created by the constant bombing and other military activity in Vieques and the physical and emotional health of the United States citizens who reside in Puerto Rico has been made aware of the grave problems created by the constant bombing and other military activity in Vieques.

Moreover, and in light of our modern world realities, we request that the courageous men and women of the Navy of the United States of America to our collective security, and recognize the vital strategic importance, for our collective defense, of the Navy bases located in Vieha and Vieques. Nevertheless, and in light of the constant bombing and other military activity in Vieques and the physical and emotional health of the people of Vieques, we have to conclude that these have dramatically affected the lives of its people. The constant bombing and other military practices using live ammunition have affected the physical and emotional health of the residents of Vieques.

In the light of these considerations, the Legislature of Puerto Rico believes that it is imperative that the United States Navy cease using live ammunition in its firing and bombing military practices in Vieques. Once again, we reaffirm the need for the residents of Vieques to live in an environment of tranquility and to enjoy the happiness that all Americans aspire to.

Resolved by the Legislative Assembly of Puerto Rico:

Section 1.—To request that the President, the Congress and the Navy of the United States of America, on behalf and in representation of the People of Puerto Rico, immediately respond to the plea of our people to cease the use of live ammunition in firing and bombing military practices in the island municipality of Vieques and its surrounding waters.

Section 2.—To request that the President, the Congress and the Navy of the United States of America, once the firing and bombing military practices mentioned in Section 1 have ceased, deactivate and remove all undetonated explosive artifacts used during its firing and bombing military practices which might reasonably constitute a risk to the inhabitants of Vieques.

Section 3.—This Concurrent Resolution shall be remitted to the Honorable William Jefferson Clinton, President of the United States of America; the Congress of the United States of America, the Vice President of the United States of America, the Chair- man of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Secretary of the Department of Defense, and the Secretary of the Navy of the United States of America.

Section 4.—This Concurrent Resolution shall take effect immediately after its approval.

Introduction of Bills and Joint Resolutions

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second time by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mr. GRAMS. S. 1162. A bill to guarantee the right of individuals to receive full social security benefits under title II of the Social Security Act in full with an accurate annual cost-of-living adjustment; to the Senate.

S. 1103. A bill to reform Social Security by creating personalized retirement accounts, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

S. 1104. A bill to amend the Social Security Act to provide simplified and accurate information on the social security trust funds, and personal earnings and benefit estimates to eligible individuals; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. BAUCUS (for himself, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mrs. LINCOLN, and Mr. DASCHLE):

S. 1105. A bill to assist local governments and States in assessing and remediating brownfield sites, increase fairness and reduce litigation, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

By Mr. TORRICELLI (for himself and Ms. SNOWE):

S. 1106. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act and Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 to require that group and individual health insurance coverage and group health plans provide coverage for qualified individuals for bone mass measurements (dual energy x-ray absorptiometry) to prevent fractures associated with osteoporosis; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

By Mr. WIDENER:

S. 1107. A bill to reform the conduct of Federal elections; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

By Mr. COCHRAN (for himself, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. COVADER, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. CLELAND, Mr. HOLLINGS, Mr. SHELBY, Mr. ROBB, and Mr. HUTCHINSON):

S. 1108. A bill to amend the Federal Crop Insurance Act to improve crop insurance coverage and administration, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

By Mr. MCCONNELL (for himself, Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, Mr. KOHL, Mr. FEIST, Mr. GHIONIS, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. WARNER, Mr. CLELAND, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. ALLARD, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. AKAKA, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. ENZI, Mr. PALLIS, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. LUGAR, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. COCHRAN, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. INHOFFE, Mr. MACK, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. THOMAS, Mr. SHEALY, Mr. CAMPBELL, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. HELMS, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. BUNNING, Mr. MOYNIHAN, Mr. KERRY, Mr. WYDEN, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. REID, Mr. LEVIN, and Mr. LIEBERMAN):

S. 1109. A bill to conserve global bear populations by prohibiting the importation, exportation, and interstate trade of bear viscera and items, products, or substances containing, or labeled or advertised as containing, bear viscera, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

By Mr. LOTT:

S. 1110. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to establish the National Institute of Biomedical Imaging and Engineering; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

By Mr. BOND:

S. 1111. A bill to provide continuing authorization for a National Conference on Small Business, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Small Business.

By Mrs. BOXER (for herself and Mr. LEVIN):

S. 1112. A bill to protect children and other vulnerable subpopulations from exposure to environmental pollutants, to protect children from exposure to pesticides in schools, and to provide parents with information concerning toxic chemicals that pose risks to children, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

SUBMISSION OF CONCURRENT AND SENATE RESOLUTIONS

The following concurrent resolutions and Senate resolutions were read, and referred (or acted upon), as indicated:

By Mr. DOMENICI (for himself, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. MCCAIN, Mr. HATCH, Mrs. HITCHISON, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. CHAFEE, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. ABRAHAM, Mr. SANTORUM, and Mr. WARNER):

S. Res. 105. A resolution expressing the sense of the Senate relating to consideration of Slobodan Milosevic as a war criminal; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

By Mr. WARNER:

S. Res. 106. A resolution to express the sense of the Senate regarding English plus other languages; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire:

S. Res. 107. A resolution to establish a Select Committee on Chinese Espionage; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

By Ms. LANDRIEU (for herself and Mr. SPECTER):

S. Con. Res. 33. A concurrent resolution expressing the sense of Congress regarding the need for vigorous prosecution of war crimes, genocide, and crimes against humanity in the former Republic of Yugoslavia; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

SOCIAL SECURITY INFORMATION ACT OF 1999

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I want to take a little time this morning to talk about Social Security. I know our Nation has been engaged in Social Security reform discussions for about 2 years now kind of formally. But, informally, many have been talking about what we are going to do to ensure a safe, sound, secure Social Security system in the future.

We all expected that we could work in a bipartisan manner during this Congress to be able to complete the important task of saving and strengthening Social Security for the American people.

Unfortunately, President Clinton has failed to take leadership on this issue and has failed to present an honest plan to this Congress to address Social Security's rapid approaching crisis. There is widespread and reluctance to move forward on reform due to political considerations. Yet, if we keep delaying essential reform until after the "next election"—it is always after the next election—we will never be able to complete our goal of ensuring retirement security for future generations of Americans.

Now, on the positive side, the debate has surely raised the public's awareness of their own retirement security shortcomings. It has brought attention to the Social Security crisis and has led to a variety of solutions to fix the system.

I believe this is a healthy debate, one that we must continue to encourage. I am sure that when our elected officials muster the political will to make some of those hard choices we face, the Nation will be ready to support those choices.

Regardless of when we actually consider Social Security reform, we must continue the job of educating Americans about the importance of savings and retirement planning. We must continue to debate the role of future Social Security benefits in our retirement security decisions.

That is why I am here. I rise today to introduce three pieces of legislation as first steps to save Social Security. To outline the bills, my first bill, very simply, would grant every current and future Social Security beneficiary a legal right to those Social Security benefits.

The second is a comprehensive plan to move Social Security from the current pay-as-you-go system to one that is fully funded, personalized retirement system, to ensure a safe, sound, secure retirement program that maximizes benefits for the retiree. The third bill would provide real information about the costs and the benefits under the current Social Security system.

Mr. President, each working American devotes his or her entire life to a job, or series of jobs, and pays hundreds of thousands of dollars in Social Security taxes into the retirement system. In fact, Social Security taxes are the largest tax that many families will ever pay. Accounting for one-eighth of the total lifetime income that will go into Social Security.

Many people, including myself, believe that Social Security benefits are our "earned right." We think that because we have paid Social Security taxes, we are legally entitled to receive Social Security benefits. But this "earned right" is nothing but an illusion—an illusion created by politicians. who call Social Security taxes “contributions” and make Social Security sound like it is a regular insurance program. The truth is that the American people do not have any legal right to their Social Security benefits, though they pay Social Security taxes all of their lives. Their benefits are always at the mercy of the Government and politicians who can adjust them and can even spend them on unrelated Government programs. This fact—that Americans currently have no legal right to Social Security—was decided by the courts when the Social Security was just getting started.

Mr. President, it was back in 1937, less than 2 years after the creation of Social Security, that the Supreme Court decided in the case of Helvering v. Davis that Social Security was not an insurance program.

The court held:
The proceeds of both the employee and employer taxes are to be paid into the Treasury like all other revenue generally, and are not earmarked in any way.

So, basically, Social Security is just a tax, not a retirement system.

The Court also pointed out:

Congress did not impose a premium when it found that the award of old-age benefits would be conducive to the general welfare. The President’s committee on economic security made an investigation and report... with the loss of savings inevitable in periods of idleness, the fate of workers over 65, when thrown out of work, is little less than desperate. . . . Moreover, laws of the separate States cannot deal with this effectively. . . . Only a power that is national can serve the interests of all.

What it meant was that Social Security was not and is not an insurance program at all, but a tax—a tax, pure and simple—that leaves retirement benefits solely determined by the political process—not the benefits of the plan, but the political process.

This decision was later confirmed in another important case, Fleming v. Nestor. In this case, the Supreme Court more expressly ruled that workers have no legally binding contractual rights to their Social Security benefits, and that those benefits can be cut or even eliminated at any time.

Mr. President, this is a very interesting and striking case. Ephraim Nestor was a Bulgarian immigrant who paid Social Security taxes from 1936 until he retired in 1955. He received a $35.60-per-month Social Security check during his retirement. But in 1956, Nestor was deported for having been a member of the Communist Party in the 1930s. His Social Security checks were stopped in accordance with the law.

Nestor sued the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, claiming that because he had paid Social Security taxes, he had a right to Social Security benefits.

The Supreme Court rejected his claim, clearly stating:

To engraft upon the Social Security system a concept of "accrued property rights" would deprive it of the flexibility and boldness in adjustment to ever changing conditions which it demands.

The Court also held:

It is apparent that the non-contractual interest of an employee covered by the [Social Security] Act cannot be soundly analogized to that of holder of an annuity, whose right to benefits is based on his contractual payments.

It strikes me that these Supreme Court decisions prove that if Social Security is considered more of a welfare program, there is no assurance that retiree benefits are to be actually determined by laws of the separate States, while retaining and strengthening the Social Security system.

But more importantly, it would put millions of current and future Social Security beneficiaries at ease, allowing them to sleep at night without fearing the loss or reduction of their retirement benefits.

Mr. President, once we have secured Social Security benefits, taking the difficult steps to reform the Social Security system will be easier. The current system has served us well until now. The changing demographics of our society makes it impossible for the system to survive without reform. I believe a fully-funded, market-based, personalized retirement system would give Americans full property rights to their retirement investment.

Not only could personal retirement account, or IRA, benefits be three to five times higher than current Social Security benefits, workers would actually own the money in their account and could pass the assets on to their children. It would be part of your estate, which today, as you know, Social Security does not transfer. Congress would no longer spend the surplus money.

That’s the reason I am today reintroducing my legislation, the “Personal Security and Wealth in Retirement Act.”

Mr. President, Americans today are living longer and retiring earlier than ever before. American retirement security is supposedly built on a three-legged stool: Social Security, private pensions, and personal savings. These are the three cornerstones of a secure retirement.

Unfortunately, today these cornerstones have eroded. Without major repair, the stool will collapse, causing serious financial hardship for millions of Americans.

Most Americans rely increasingly on Social Security for their retirement income. Not everyone has a private pension and some are unable to save. Yet Social Security, upon which rests their hopes for a secure retirement, is headed for bankruptcy.

Benefits for 75 million baby boomers and future generations of retirees will not be there unless something is done soon.

I believe the best solution to our retirement crisis is to reform Social Security by moving it from a pay-as-you-go retirement system to a fully-funded, market-based system. The legislation I am introducing today will do just that.

The first criticism you will hear is that a market-based retirement system is risky. However, my proposal would guarantee benefits for current and future beneficiaries, while retaining and expanding the current safety net under Social Security.
At the same time, workers would have the freedom to control their funds and resources for their own retirement security within certain safety and soundness parameters. Workers and their employers could divert 10 percent of a worker’s income into personal retirement accounts.

In addition, workers could also contribute to personal retirement accounts they’ve established for their non-working children.

Let me focus on the proposed safety net provisions under my plan: One key component of my proposal is to ensure that a safety net will be there at all times for disadvantaged individuals. This can be done without government guarantees of investments or overly strict regulation of investment options.

Under this legislation, a safety net would be set up and would involve a guaranteed minimum benefit level: 150 percent of the poverty level. When a worker retires, if his or her PRA fails to provide the minimum retirement benefits for whatever reason the government would make up the difference. So nobody would retire into poverty. They would retire at least with a minimum of 150 percent of the poverty level.

The same applies to survivor and disability benefits. If a worker dies or becomes disabled, and his or her PRA doesn’t accumulate sufficient funds to provide minimum survivor and disability benefits, the government would match the shortfalls.

This simple safety net is necessary, and the minimum benefit would guarantee that no one in our society would be left impoverished in retirement, while still allowing workers to enjoy the freedom and prosperity achievable under a market-based retirement system.

This would operate in a manner similar to the federal government’s Thrift Savings program, which includes safe investments and a far higher return than Social Security. If the system works for us, others should also be able to benefit from it.

Another feature of the fully funded retirement system I’m outlining could provide better survivor and disability benefits than the current Social Security system offers.

Under my plan, for instance, when a worker dies, his family would inherit all the funds accumulated in his PRA.

I use my father as an example. He died at the age of 61, and from Social Security he was entitled to a death benefit. But that was all. Under our system, all the money that you have paid in during a lifetime of working would be yours. And, if you happen to die early, it would then be a part of your estate and transferred to your heirs. The savings wouldn’t disappear into the black hole of the Social Security trust funds, or become tangled in a survivors’ benefit bureaucratic debate.

The system would also provide, besides the retirement savings, a survivors’ benefit package. My plan provides for funds that manage PRAs to use part of their annual contribution, or interest on the trust fund, to buy life and disability insurance, supplementing their accumulated funds to at least match the promised Social Security survivor and disability benefits.

By requiring retirement funds to purchase life and disability insurance for everyone, all workers in each individual fund would be treated as a common pool for underwriting purposes. The insurance would be purchased as a group policy not by individual workers by investment firms or financial institutions, thus avoiding insurance policy underwriting discrimination while providing the largest amount of benefits at the lowest possible cost.

Mr. President, again, a major criticism of a market-based personal retirement account system is that it’s inherently volatile, subject to the whims of investors and the market, exposing a worker’s retirement income to unnecessary risks.

My plan specifically addresses this concern by requiring the approved investment firms and financial institutions that manage PRAs to have insurance against investment loss. By approximating the role of the FDIC, we ensure that every PRA would generate a minimum rate of return of at least 2.5 percent, which is more than current Social Security benefits. In fact, Social Security is paying less than 1 percent today, and for future generations it would actually be a negative rate of return.

Regardless of the ups and downs of the markets, workers would still do better under this system than under the current Social Security program.

This is another safety net built into my plan to give the American people peace of mind when it comes to their retirement investment.

To further reduce risks to a worker’s PRA, my legislation also requires that rules, regulations, and restrictions similar to those governing IRAs would apply to personal retirement accounts. PRAs must be properly structured and follow strict, sensible guidelines set forth by the independent federal board that will oversee the system.

In choosing qualified investment firms and financial institutions to manage the PRAs, the oversight board is responsible for examining the credibility and ability of these companies, and then approving them as PRA managers accordingly. In other words, to put in place a very safe and sound retirement system, much like the FDIC is in banks. People are confident their money is safe with the FDIC; they should be the same with their retirement accounts. They would be protected. This will generate much better returns, as much as three to five times more at retirement than today’s Social Security—three to five times more benefits when you retire than under the current Social Security retirement accounts, unlike Social Security, make real investments which produce new income and produce wealth.

That means improved benefits for everybody, including low-wage earners, without the redistribution of private income.

Mr. GRAMS. The third bill I am introducing today deals with the flow of information related to an individual’s Social Security contribution.

Most working Americans are poorly prepared for their retirement. That is because of a disturbing lack of information. Congress needs to help them better plan for retirement by providing useful and accurate information about the Social Security benefits they are going to receive.

In other words, let people know exactly what the system is, how much is in the trust fund, how much money they can expect to receive at retirement, and what will be the rate of return of their investment.

Americans currently receive Social Security information as part of their personal earnings and benefits estimate statements or the PEBES, provided by the Social Security Administration. However, a recent GAO report shows that the report, although useful, is actually incomplete for many Americans to understand exactly what is in the account for them at Social Security.

As a result, many workers, even those near retirement, continue to overestimate their likely Social Security benefits, which, bottom line, threatens their quality of life throughout their retirement years.

Social Security taxes are the largest tax that many family pay. It will account for up to one-eighth of the total lifetime income they will make. Few Americans know the value or the yield of their investment, because the Government never tells them the whole truth about Social Security by providing them with this key information.

Reliable information on Social Security is crucial to enable Americans to better understand the value of their Social Security investment and to help them determine exactly how much they should supplement their expected Social Security benefits with other savings in order to have a certain level of retirement security.

This is particularly important for some demographic studies, because research shows that African Americans have lower rates of return from Social Security. They get less back from the system than others who pay in. Low-income, single, African American males have a much lower rate of return. As I said, overall it is about a 1 percent rate of return. For many, it will be a negative rate of return. But for low-income, single, African American males today, they already have a negative rate of return on the money they pay into the system.

My bill would improve the reports by requiring the Social Security Administration to provide an estimate of the Social Security benefits a worker is going to receive in terms of inflation-adjusted dollars, as well as an estimated rate of return the worker is projected to receive from Social Security.

In real dollars, it means today if you are 20 years old, the report says when you retire you could expect to receive about $98,000 a year in retirement benefits. You say, that is great, 98,000 a year; but if you take in the inflation-adjusted amount those dollars is going to be 40 years from now so that you can make better plans on how you are going to plan for your retirement.

Given the crucial role of information about retirement income in retirement planning and the fact that, beginning this year, the statements from Social Security will be mailed annually to every eligible individual over 25, immediate improvement of these standards is imperative. These numbers are already going to be sent out, so this isn’t an added cost, this isn’t asking for a new program from the Government; this is saying that the report the Social Security Administration is going to send to every American over 25 needs to be more accurate than the information provided today.

Information will not solve all the problems we have with Social Security, but I think it will surely give working Americans some useful tools to help them plan for their retirement.

In closing, American workers labor mightily to put money aside for retirement. They should have full property rights to their money. They deserve the security of owning their retirement benefits and savings. My legislation gives American workers legal protection to their retirement savings. It will stop politicians from cutting their benefits to spend money in other unrelated programs out of our Social Security trust fund. It also allows American workers maximum freedom to better plan for their retirement by giving them more accurate information on their Social Security benefits.

In closing, retirement security is essential to millions of Americans and we must do everything we can to help them achieve that security and the peace of mind that will go along with it.

My legislation charts a course which I believe will lead us there.

By Mr. BAUCUS (for himself, Mr. LAUTENBERG, MRS. LINCOLN, and MR. DASCHEL)

S. 1105. A bill to assist local governments and States in assessing and remediating brownfield sites, increase fairness in superfund litigation, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

SUPERSOFT LITIGATION REDUCTION AND BROWNFIELD CLEANUP ACT OF 1999

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, today, along with Senator LAUTENBERG, LINCOLN, and DASCHEL, I am introducing legislation to reauthorize and reform the Superfund program, the Superfund Litigation Reduction and Brownfields Cleanup Act.

The Environment and Public Works Committee has been working on Superfund reauthorization legislation for more than six years. It’s time to finish the job. To my mind, the best way to accomplish this is to focus on a set of modest but important reforms about which we are likely to be able to achieve a broad bipartisan consensus.

What is that our bill aims to do. Superfund has been criticized as creating disincentives for cleaning up "brownfields"—generally, sites in older neighborhoods or industrial areas that are contaminated, but not to the extent that they are likely to be put on the National Priorities List. The main charge is that fear of Superfund liability makes some developers reluctant to invest.

Title I of the bill addresses this concern. It eliminates Superfund liability for prospective purchasers of contaminated property who are not responsible for the contamination, and thereby removes a potential disincentive for brownfields cleanup. The bill also provides liability relief for current owners of contaminated property who are not responsible for and had no reason to know of the contamination when they bought the property, and persons whose property is contaminated as a result of migration from neighboring property.

In addition, the bill authorizes funding for three purposes:

$25 million per year for five years for grants to local governments, States and Indian tribes to inventory and assess contamination at brownfield sites; $60 million per year for five years for grants to local governments, States and Indian tribes to utilize revolving loan funds and for site cleanup; and $15 million per year for five years to States to develop and enhance voluntary cleanup programs.

Perhaps the most well-known criticism of Superfund relates to the toll it can take on small businesses that, despite their often minimal contribution of waste to a site, have been forced to incur significant sums in attorney fees and payments toward cleanup. A significant proportion of these businesses that sent waste to a site sent only municipal waste or very small amounts of hazardous waste. In addition, many small businesses simply cannot afford to pay the costs associated with retaining an attorney and cleanup.

To address these problems, the bill provides two liability exemptions. The first is an exemption for parties that sent a de minimis amount of hazardous waste—presumed to be less than 110 gallons of liquid material or 200 pounds of solid material. (Note that this provision is not limited to small businesses; it also would exempt a large company that sends only de minimis amounts of waste.)

The second is an exemption for small business and homeowners that sent municipal solid waste from their home or business. There is no limit on the amount of municipal waste these parties sent.

In addition, the bill provides relief for those who sent a relatively small amount of hazardous waste, but more than allowed under the de minimis exemption, and for all businesses with a limited ability to pay. Specifically, the bill provides expedited settlements for contributors of de minimis amounts of waste and persons with a limited ability to pay. These provisions require EPA to make settlement offers as expeditiously as practicable to these parties. A party who contributed 1% or less of the waste to the site is presumed to be de minimis.

Together, these provisions would provide relief for virtually every small business and homeowner that should get relief. The bill also requires that EPA establish a small business Superfund assistance section within the small business ombudsman office of EPA.

Under Superfund, contributors of municipal solid waste and municipal sewage sludge have been sued, and in some instances, found liable, based on the fact that even municipal waste contains some small amount of hazardous substances. At municipal waste (such as municipal landfills), frequently the majority of waste by volume is municipal waste, but the conditions that result in listing the site on the NPL were caused by the more toxic industrial waste. Hence, there has long been controversy as to whether contributors of municipal waste, and municipalities that own municipal landfills on the NPL, should be treated the same as contributors of other waste.

Last year EPA published a policy for settlements with municipal owners and operators of NPL landfills, and for public and private contributors of municipal waste. The policy was developed through negotiations with several municipal organizations.

Our bill codifies EPA's policy. Under that decision, municipalities that own or operate landfills that are on the NPL are entitled to settle for 20% of the cleanup costs at a site, and for 10% if they have a population below 100,000.
Contributors of municipal waste, including municipalities and private parties, can settle for $5.90 a ton. This number was added based on the cost of cleaning up a municipal landfill that does not also have hazardous waste.

Title IV provides exemptions for contributors of certain "recyclable materials"—paper, plastic, glass, textiles, rubber (other than whole tires), metal and batteries—that meet specified conditions. It is virtually identical to the Lott/Daschle bill in the 105th Congress. In particular, I appreciate the work of Senator Lincoln on this issue.

Contributions of orphan funding from the Superfund can mitigate much of the perceived unfairness of the joint and several liability system. Allocation pilot studies conducted by EPA revealed a need for a new tool for achieving settlements, and in the process reducing transaction costs, for EPA to offer some contribution of funding to offset costs attributable to parties that are unable to pay.

This bill authorizes $200 million per year for five years in mandatory spending to be used by EPA in cleanup settlements. It is so used to offset costs attributable to parties that are insolvent or defunct or otherwise unable to pay, or for other equitable purposes. This mandatory spending is conditional, however, on the Superfund cleanup program being appropriated at least $1.5 billion annually, exclusive of the $200 million for orphan funding. That so-called "firewall" is intended to ensure that cleanups are not sacrificed in order to pay orphan funding. Assuming the program is funded at the required level, EPA would be required to contribute $200 million per year to cleanup settlements. However, to maintain this soft firewall, EPA would have the discretion to determine how much of the $200 million to allocate to which sites.

The bill authorizes appropriations of $7.5 billion over five years, or $1.5 billion a year. At this level, EPA would be able to maintain the current pace of cleanups, which is resulting in the completion of construction at 85 sites a year. Now that we finally are making good progress in cleaning up sites, it is important to maintain this pace.

On a related point, the bill continues to fund cleanups principally through the Superfund Trust Fund. In doing so, it assumes the reinstatement of the two Superfund taxes—the excise taxes on petroleum and chemical feedstocks and the corporate environmental tax of .12 percent of corporate alternative minimum taxable income above $2 million. By doing so, the bill would retain the current reliance on the trust fund to pay the majority of cleanup costs, with a limited payment from general revenues.

Mr. President, the chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee and its Superfund Subcommittee, Senators Chafee and Smith, also introduced a Superfund reauthorization bill, S. 1090. There are several areas of general agreement between the bill that we are introducing today and S. 1090. Some examples are the exemption for bona fide prospective purchasers and other exemptions intended to promote brownfields redevelopment; exemptions for contributors of recyclable material; and exemptions and expedited settlements for contributors of municipal waste or small amounts of hazardous waste, to protect municipalities and small businesses.

There are, however, some significant differences between the approaches taken in the two bills, particularly with respect to providing an adequate federal safety net to protect public health and the environment. The allocation system, and, perhaps most significantly, providing adequate and assured funding to operate the program.

I hope that we can work cooperatively and expeditiously to resolve these differences so that we can pass a Superfund reauthorization bill with broad, bipartisan support.

Mr. Lautenberg. Mr. President, I rise to introduce the Superfund Litigation Reduction and Brownfield Cleanup Act along with Senators Daschle, Baucus, and Lincoln. This bill will strengthen and improve the current Superfund program by cleaning up urban and rural brownfields and removing small, innocent parties from unnecessary superfund litigation.

Unlike the alternative Superfund proposal offered by the Republicans on Environment and Public Works Committee, this bill continues what is best about the Superfund program and makes the minor adjustments necessary to make it effective.

Mr. President, way back in the 103rd Congress, the critics of Superfund raised a number of issues. They asserted that the program was too slow, that not enough cleanups were taking place, that there was too much litigation.

At the time, we were seeking solutions which would make the program faster, streamlining cleanups, treat parties more fairly and get the little guys out of court more sensibly. Those responsible for the problem also responsible for cleaning it up. This was all within the general goals of achieving more cleanups and therefore providing better protection of human health and the environment.

I am proud of those proposals, and many of us still on the Environment and Public Works Committee, including Chairman Chafee, who voted for that bill way back in the 103rd Congress. The essence of many of those proposals, although never enacted into law, were adopted administratively by EPA and radically altered the Superfund Program as we know it.

Others have been tested and been improved upon. In general, the thrust of this bill has resulted in many of the achievements of the current program.

According to a report issued by the General Accounting Office, by the end of this fiscal year all cleanup remedies will have been selected for 95 percent of nonfederal NPL sites (1,169 of 1,198 sites).

In addition, approximately 900 NPL sites have final cleanup plans approved, approximately 5,600 emergency removal actions have been taken at hazardous waste sites to stabilize dangerous situations and to reduce the threat to human health and the environment.

More than 30,900 sites have been removed from the Superfund inventory of potential waste sites, to help promote the economic redevelopment of these properties.

During this same time, EPA has worked to improve the fairness and efficiency of the enforcement program, even while keeping up the participation of potentially responsible parties in cleaning up their sites.

EPA has negotiated more than 400 deminimis settlements with over 18,000 small parties, which gave protection for these parties against expensive contribution suits brought by other private parties. Sixty-six percent of these have been in the last four years alone.

Since fiscal year 1996, EPA has offered "orphan share" compensation of over $1.45 million at 72 sites to responsible parties who were willing to step up and negotiate settlements in their cases. EPA is now offering this at every single settlement, to reward settlers and reduce litigation, both with the government, and with other private parties.

There are just a few highlights of the improvements made in the program, many drawn from our earlier legislative proposals. Other improvements, such as instituting the targeted review of complex and high-cost cleanups, prior to remedy selection, have reduced the cost of cleanups without delaying the pace of cleanups.

EPA's administrative reforms have significantly improved the program, by speeding up cleanups and reducing senseless litigation, and making the program fairer, faster and more efficient overall.

But despite the fact that this is a program that has finally really hit its stride, we are now faced with proposals from the majority which could undercut the progress in the program, and which are premised on a goal of closing down the program rather than a goal of cleaning up the sites. Indeed, the very title of their bill, the Superfund Program Completion Act, reflects this intent.

I am deeply troubled by many of the provisions in the Republican bill, which would have the effect of ramping CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE May 24, 1999 the program down without regard to the amount of site work left to be done. This bill provides for lowered funding levels, a cap on the NPL, waivers of the federal safety net, and some broad liability exemptions.

At the same time, it creates a number of new, expensive obligations which would further reduce the amount of money available for cleanup. It also shifts the costs of the program to the taxpayers and would not include an extension of the Superfund tax.

In short, while I am encouraged by the fact that the Republican bill drops some troubling provisions from prior bills, it introduces a whole set of new issues that are cause for great concern.

I think it is very clear that what we need here is a better Superfund program, not a retreat from tackling our environmental problems.

We submit a bill that continues to accelerate the pace of cleanups, keeps cleanups protective, reduces litigation and transaction costs, is affordable and does not shift costs to the American taxpayer.

That is why I am introducing the Superfund Litigation Reduction and Brownfield Cleanup Act of 1999. I believe that this bill, is in some areas very close to the provisions supported by my Republican colleagues, but differs in some critical areas.

It would protect cleanups, reduce litigation and not shift costs to the American taxpayer. I hope that these goals we can agree on. And I urge my colleagues to not throw the Superfund baby out with the bathwater.

I look forward to working with my colleagues to strengthen the Superfund program in the 21st century not dismantle it.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill and a summary of the Legislation be printed in the RECORD.

I look forward to working with my colleagues to strengthen the Superfund program.

I urge my Republican colleagues, but differ in some critical areas.

TITLE VIII—DEFINITIONS

Sec. 801. Definitions.

SEC. 101. FINALITY FOR BUYERS.

(a) Limitations on Liability.—Section 107 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9607) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(o) Proactive Purchaser and Windfall Lien.—Section 107 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (as amended by subsection (a), to the extent the liability of a person, with respect to a release or the threat of a release from a facility, is based solely on subsection (a)(1), the person shall not be liable under this Act if the person—

“(1) is a bona fide prospective purchaser of the facility; and

“(2) does not impede the performance of any response action or natural resource restoration at a facility.”

(b) Proactive Purchaser and Windfall Lien.—Section 107 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (as amended by subsection (a), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(p) Proactive Purchaser and Windfall Lien.—

“(1) in general.—In any case in which the United States has incurred unrecovered response costs at a facility for which an owner of the facility is not liable by reason of subsection (o), the conditions described in paragraph (3) are met, the United States shall—

“(A) have a lien on the facility; or

“(B) may obtain, from the appropriate responsible party or parties, a lien on other property or other assurances of payment satisfactory to the Administrator, for the unrecovered costs.

“(2) Amount; duration.—The lien shall—

“(A) be for an amount not to exceed the lesser of the amount of—

“(i) the response costs of the United States; or “(ii) the increase in fair market value of the property attributable to the response action at the time of a subsequent sale or other disposition of the property; and

“(B) arise for amounts are first incurred by the United States with respect to a response action at the facility; in paragraph (1); and “(D) continue until the earlier of satisfaction of the lien or recovery of all response costs incurred at the facility, notwithstanding any statute of limitations under section 113.

“(3) Conditions.—The conditions referred to in paragraph (1) are the following:

“(A) Response action.—A response action for which the United States has incurred unrecovered costs of a response not inconsistent with the National Contingency Plan is carried out at the facility.

“(B) Fair market value.—The response action increases the fair market value of the facility above the fair market value of the facility that existed before the response action commenced.

“(4) Settlement.—Nothing in this subsection prevents the United States and the purchaser from entering into a settlement at any time that extinguishes a lien of the United States.”

(d) Proactive Purchaser and Windfall Lien.—The term ‘bona fide prospective purchaser’ means a person or a tenant of a person that acquires ownership of a facility after the date of enactment of this paragraph that can establish each of the following by a preponderance of the evidence:

“(A) Disposal prior to acquisition.—All active disposal of hazardous substances at the facility occurred before the person acquired the facility.

“(B) Inquiries.—

“(i) in general.—The person made all appropriate inquiry into the previous owner and uses of the facility in accordance with generally accepted good commercial and customary standards and practices.

“(ii) Standards.—The standards and practices referred to in paragraph (3)(B) or those issued or designated by the Administrator under that clause shall satisfy the requirements of this subparagraph.

“(C) Notices.—The person provided all legally required notices with respect to the discovery or release of any hazardous substances at the facility.

“(D) Care.—The person exercised appropriate care with respect to hazardous substances found at the facility by taking reasonable steps to—

“(i) stop ongoing releases;

“(ii) prevent threatened future releases of hazardous substances; and “(iii) prevent or limit human, environmental, or natural resource exposure to hazardous substances previously released into the environment.

“(E) Cooperation, assistance, and access.—The person—

“(i) provides full cooperation, assistance, and access to the persons that are authorized to conduct the response and restoration actions at the facility, including the cooperators and the use of the equipment; and

“(ii) cooperates with the cooperators to conduct the removal of contamination, installation, preservation of integrity, operation, and maintenance of any complete or partial response action at the facility; and

(ii) has fully complied and is in full compliance with any land use or activity restrictions on the property established or relied on in connection with a response action at the facility for purposes of clause (v) if a copy or reasonable facsimile of the record is publicly available by request (within reasonable time and cost constraints) and the record is practicably reviewable.

APPROPRIATE.—A person shall not be treated as having made all appropriate inquiry under clause (ii)(I) unless—

(1) the person has maintained a compilation of the information received and gathered in the course of any site assessment;

(II) with respect to hazardous substances found at the facility, the person, at a minimum, takes reasonable steps to—

(‘‘aa) stop ongoing releases of hazardous substances;

(bb) prevent threatened future releases of hazardous substances;

(cc) prevent or limit human, environmental, or natural resource exposure to hazardous substances previously released into the environment;

(III) the person provides full cooperation, assistance, and facility access to such persons as are authorized to conduct response actions at the facility, including the cooperation and access necessary for the installation, integrity, operation, and maintenance of any complete or partial response action at the facility; and

(IV) the person has fully complied with and is in full compliance with any land use or activity restrictions on the property established or relied on in connection with a response action at the facility, including informing any other party that the person allows to occupy or use the property of such restrictions and taking prompt action to correct any noncompliance by such parties.

(viii) SITE INSPECTION AND TITLE SEARCH.—In the case of property for residential use or otherwise similar use purposes or governmental or noncommercial entity, a site inspection and title search shall satisfy the requirements of clause (vii) if—

(aa) any investigation report for the facility;

(bb) any record of activities likely to cause or contribute to contamination at the real property, including any landfill or other disposal location record, underground storage tank record, hazardous waste handler and generator record, and spill reporting record; and

(cc) any reasonably ascertainable Federal, State, and local government environmental record that could reflect an incident or activity that is likely to cause or contribute to contamination at the real property.

(vi) R EASONABLY ASCERTAINABLE.—A record shall be considered to be reasonably ascertainable for purposes of clause (v) if a copy or reasonable facsimile of the record is publicly available by request (within reasonable time and cost constraints) and the record is practicably reviewable.
TITLE II—SMALL BUSINESS LIABILITY EXEMPTIONS
SEC. 201. LIABILITY EXEMPTIONS.

Section 107 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9607) is amended by adding at the end the following:

'(r) De Minimis Exemption.—
''(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) through (3) of subsection (a), and except as provided in paragraph (2), a person shall not be liable under this Act to the United States or any other person (including any entity for which the person is responsible) for any response costs incurred with respect to a facility if—
''(A) liability is based solely on paragraph (3) or (4) of subsection (a);
''(B) the total of materials containing a hazardous substance that the person arranged for disposal or treatment of, arranged with a transporter for transport for disposal or treatment of, or accepted for transport for disposal or treatment, at the facility, was less than 110 gallons of liquid materials or less than 2,240 pounds of solid material, or such greater quantity as the Administrator may determine by regulation; and
''(C) the acts on which liability is based took place before May 1, 1999.
''(2) EXCEPTION.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply in a case in which the Administrator determines that—''(A) the material containing a hazardous substance referred to in paragraph (1) contributed or could contribute significantly, individually or in the aggregate, to the cost of the response action with respect to the facility;
''(B) the person has failed to comply with any request for information or administrative subpoena issued by the President under this Act or has impeded or is impeding the performance of a response action with respect to the facility.

SEC. 202. EXPEDITED SETTLEMENT FOR DE MINIMIS CONTRIBUTIONS AND LIMITED ABILITY TO PAY.

(a) Parties Eligible.—Section 107(g) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9622(g)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by redesignating subparagraph (B) as subparagraph (E);
''(2) by striking ''(g)'' and all that follows through the end of paragraph (1)(A) and inserting the following:
''(g) Expedited Final Settlement.—
''(1) Parties Eligible.—
''(A) IN GENERAL.—The President shall, as expeditiously as practicable, determine the eligibility for a settlement, and offer to reach a final administrative or judicial settlement with, each potentially responsible party that the President, meets 1 or more of the conditions stated in subparagraphs (B), (C), (F), and (G).
''(B) De Minimis Contribution.—The condition stated in this subparagraph is that the liability of the potentially responsible party for response costs based on paragraph (3) or (4) of subsection (a) and the potentially responsible party's contribution of hazardous substances at a facility is de minimis. For the purposes of this subparagraph, a potentially responsible party's contribution shall be considered to be de minimis only if the President determines that both of the following criteria are met:
''(i) The quantity of material containing a hazardous substance contributed by the potentially responsible party to the facility is minimal relative to the total quantity of material containing hazardous substances at the facility; and
''(ii) The potentially responsible party's contribution shall be presumed to be minimal if the quantity is 1 percent or less of the total quantity of material containing hazardous substances at the facility, unless the Administrator identifies a different threshold based on site-specific factors.
''(C) Contribution to Facility.—The material containing a hazardous substance contributed by the potentially responsible party to the facility is minimal relative to the total quantity of material containing hazardous substances at the facility.
''(D) Reduction in Settlement Amount Based on Limited Ability to Pay.—
''(i) IN GENERAL.—The conditions stated in this subparagraph are that the potentially responsible party—
''(ii) is—
''(aa) a natural person; or
''(bb) a small business; and
''(iii) demonstrates to the President an inability or a limited ability to pay response costs.
''(ii) Small Businesses.—
''(I) Definition of Small Business.—In this subparagraph, the term 'small business' means a business entity that, together with its parents, subsidiaries, and other affiliates, had an average of not more than 75 full-time employees, and whose gross annual income was not more than $3,000,000 in annual gross revenues, as reported to the Internal Revenue Service.
Service, during the 3 years preceding the date of the demand, any entity first received notice from the President of its potential liability under this Act.

(v) OTHER BUSINESSES.—A business shall be eligible for a settlement under this subparagraph if the business—

(aa) has an average of no more than 75 employees or an average of no more than $3,000,000 in annual gross revenue; and

(bb) meets all other requirements for a settlement under this subparagraph.

(iii) RESPONSIBILITY TO PROVIDE INFORMATION.—At the request of a small business entity, the President shall consider the ability of the small business to pay response costs and still maintain its basic business operations, including consideration of the overall financial condition of the small business and demonstrable constraints on the ability of the small business to raise revenues.

(iv) INFORMATION.—A small business requesting settlement under this paragraph shall promptly provide the President with all relevant information needed to determine the eligibility of the small business to pay response costs.

(v) DETERMINATION.—To be eligible to be covered by this subparagraph, the business shall be responsible for responding to a demand under section 107 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Liability, and Compensation Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9607) that the party may have qualified for an expedited settlement.

(A) DETERMINATION.—The President shall determine the availability of the small business to pay response costs. If the small business employs fewer than 25 full-time equivalent employees and has average gross revenue revenues of less than $2,000,000, the President shall, on request, perform any analysis that the President determines may assist in demonstrating the impact of a settlement on the small business' ability to maintain its basic operations. The President may perform such analysis for any other party or request such other analysis.

(vi) ALTERNATIVE PAYMENT METHODS.—If the President determines that a small business is unable to pay its total settlement quantity immediately, the President shall consider such alternative payment methods as may be necessary or appropriate.

(vi) ADDITIONAL CONDITIONS FOR EXPEDITED SETTLEMENTS.—(1) waiver of claims.—The President shall require, as a condition of settlement under this paragraph, that a potentially responsible party sign a waiver to release the claims (including a claim for contribution under section 113) that the party may have against other potentially responsible parties for response costs incurred with respect to the facility, unless the President determines that requiring a waiver would be unjust.

(ii) EXCEPTION.—The President may decline to offer a settlement to a potentially responsible party under this paragraph if the President determines that the potentially responsible party has failed to comply with any request for access or information or an administrative subpoena issued by the President under this Act or has impeded or is impeding the performance of a response action with respect to the facility.

(iii) RESPONSIBILITY TO PROVIDE INFORMATION AND ACCESS.—A potentially responsible party that enters into a settlement under this paragraph shall not be relieved of the responsibility to provide any information or access requested by the President in accordance with subsection (e)(3)(B) or section 106(f).

(iv) BASIS OF DETERMINATION.—If the President determines that a potentially responsible party is not eligible for settlement under this subparagraph, the President shall state the reasons for the determination in writing to any potentially responsible party that requests a settlement under this paragraph.

(v) NO JUDICIAL REVIEW.—A determination by the President under this paragraph shall not be subject to judicial review.

(b) SETTLEMENT OFFERS.—Section 122(g) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Liability, and Compensation Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9622(g)) is amended—

(1) by redesignating paragraph (6) as paragraph (9); and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (5) the following:

"(6) SETTLEMENT OFFERS.—

(A) NOTIFICATION.—As soon as practicable after receipt of sufficient information to make a determination, the Administrator shall submit a written settlement offer to each potentially responsible person that the Administrator determines is eligible under paragraph (1) of the person's eligibility for the expedited final settlement.

(B) OFFERS.—As soon as practicable after receipt of sufficient information, the Administrator shall submit a written settlement offer to each potentially responsible person that the Administrator determines, based on information available to the President at the time at which the determination is made, to be eligible for a settlement under paragraph (1).

(C) INFORMATION.—At the time at which the Administrator submits an offer under paragraph (1), the Administrator shall, at the request of the recipient of the offer, make available to the recipient any information available under section 552 of title 5, United States Code, on which the Administrator bases the offer.

(D) MUNICIPALITIES AND CONTRIBUTORS OF MUNICIPAL WASTE.

Section 107 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Liability, and Compensation Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9607) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(t) MUNICIPAL OWNERS AND OPERATORS.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clauses (ii) and (iii), the President shall offer a settlement to a municipality with a population of 100,000 or more.

(ii) CLAUSES (ii) and (iii) OF SECTION 117 OF THE COMPREHENSIVE ENVIRONMENTAL RESPONSE, LIABILITY, AND COMPENSATION ACT OF 1980.—Section 117 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Liability, and Compensation Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9617) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(A) MUNICIPALITIES WITH A POPULATION OF 100,000 OR MORE.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clauses (ii) and (iii), the President shall offer a settlement to a municipality with a population of 100,000 (as measured by the 1990 census) and with respect to liability to avoid environmental contamination or exposure with respect to a facility; or

(ii) DECREASED AMOUNT.—The President may increase the percentage under clause (i) with respect to a municipality to not less than 10 percent if the President determines that the municipality took specific acts of mitigation during the operation of the facility to avoid environmental contamination or exposure with respect to the facility.

(iii) INCREASED AMOUNT.—The President may increase the percentage under clause (i) to not more than 35 percent if the President determines that—

(A) the municipality committed specific acts that exacerbated environmental contamination or exposure with respect to the facility; or

(B) the municipality committed specific acts that exacerbated environmental contamination or exposure with respect to the facility; or..."

(II) the municipality, during the period of ownership of the facility, received operating revenues substantially in excess of the sum of the waste system operating costs plus 20 percent of total estimated response costs incurred with respect to the facility for the period the facility was owned by the municipality.

(II) MUNICIPALITIES WITH A POPULATION OF LESS THAN 100,000.—The President shall offer a settlement to a municipality with a popu-lization of less than 100,000 (as measured by the 1990 census) with respect to liability de-mained by the party may have against other po-den may require that the municipality perform or participate in the performance of the response actions at the facility.

(IV) OWNERSHIP OR OPERATION BY 2 OR MORE MUNICIPALITIES.—A combination of 2 or more municipalities that jointly own or operate (or own or operate a facility at) a single time or during continuous operations under munici-黑恶势力 shall be considered to be a single owner or operator for the purpose of calculating a settlement offer under this subsection.

(5) WAIVER OF CLAIMS.—The President shall require, as a condition of a settlement under this subsection, that a municipality or combination of 2 or more municipalities waive some or all of the claims (including a claim for contribution under section 113) that the party may have against other potentially responsible parties for response costs incurred with respect to the facility, unless the President determines that requiring a waiver would be unjust.

(6) EXCEPTIONS.—The President may decline to offer a settlement under this subsection with respect to a facility if the President determines that a municipality or operator has failed to comply with any request for information or administrative subpoena issued by the United States under this Act.

SEC. 302. EXPEDITED SETTLEMENTS WITH CON-TRIBUTORS OF MUNICIPAL WASTE.

Section 122(g)(1) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9622(g)(1)) (as amended by section 202(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(F) Contribution of municipal solid waste and municipal sewage sludge.—

“(1) In general.—The condition stated in this subparagraph is that the liability of the potentially responsible party is for response costs based on paragraph (3) or (4) of section 107(a) and the potentially responsible party arranged for disposal or treatment of, arranged with a transporter for transport for disposal or treatment of, or accepted for transport for disposal or treatment at, a facility listed on the National Priorities List—

“(II) municipal sewage sludge.

“(ii) Settlement amount.—

“(I) In general.—The President shall offer a settlement referred to in clause (i) with respect to liability under paragraph (3) or (4) of section 107(a) on the basis of a payment of $5.30 per ton of municipal solid waste or municipal sewage sludge that the President estimates is attributable to the party.

“(II) Revisions.—

“(a) In general.—The President, after consulting with local government officials, may revise the per-ton rate by regulation.

“(b) Basis.—A revised settlement amount under item (aa) shall reflect the estimated response costs incurred with respect to the facility for the period the facility was owned by the municipality.

“(III) Adjustment for inflation.—The Administrator shall make adjustments to the settlement amounts under clause (i) to the Consumer Price Index (or other appropriate index, as deter-ried by the Administrator).

“(IV) Other material.—

“(D) In general.—Notwithstanding clause (i), a potentially responsible party that the President estimates is attributable to the party.

“(II) Parties eligible for de minimis exemption.—If a potentially responsible party demonstrates to the President's satisfaction that, with respect to the material other than municipal solid waste or municipal sewage sludge contributed by the party, the party qualifies for de minimis exemption under section 107(c), the party shall qualify for the per-ton settlement rate under clause (ii) with respect to its municipal solid waste and municipal sewage sludge in an expedited settlement under this paragraph.

“(III) Parties eligible for expedited de minimis settlement.—If a potentially responsible party demonstrates to the President that, with respect to the material other than municipal solid waste or municipal sewage sludge contributed by the party, the party qualifies for de minimis exemption under section 107(c), the party shall qualify for the per-ton settlement rate under clause (ii) with respect to its municipal solid waste and municipal sewage sludge at the time that the party agrees to an expedited settlement under this paragraph with respect to its de minimis contribution of other material containing hazardous substances.

“(IV) Other parties.—If a party does not make the demonstration under subclauses (I) and (III), the President shall offer to resolve the party's liability with respect to the material other than municipal solid waste or municipal sewage sludge at the per-ton settlement rate under clause (ii) at such time as the party agrees to a settlement with respect to other mate-

ial containing hazardous substances on terms and conditions acceptable to the President.

“(G) Municipality with limited ability to pay.—

“(1) In general.—The conditions stated in this subparagraph are that the potentially responsible party is a municipality and demonstrates to the President an inability or a limited ability to pay response costs.

“(ii) Facts.—The President shall consider the inability or limited ability to pay of a municipality to the extent that the municipality provides necessary information with respect to—

“(a) the general obligation bond rating and information about the most recent bond issue for which the rating was prepared;

“(b) the amount of total available funds (other than dedicated funds or self-insurance payments for remediation of inactive hazardous waste sites);

“(c) the amount of total operating revenues (other than obligated or encumbered revenues);

“(d) the amount of total debt and debt service;

“(e) per capita income and cost of living;

“(f) real property values;

“(g) unemployment information; and “(h) population information.

“(III) Evaluation of impact.—A municipality may also submit for consideration by the President an evaluation of the potential impact of the settlement on the provision of municipal services and the feasibility of making delayed payments or payments over a long period.

“(IV) Risk of default or violation.—A municipality may establish an inability to pay for purposes of this subparagraph through an affirmative pay-ent of its liability under this Act would—

“(I) create a substantial demonstrable risk that the municipality would default on debt obligations existing at the time of the showing, be forced into bankruptcy, be forced to dissolve, or be forced to make budgetary cutbacks that would substantially reduce the level of protection of public health and safety; or “(II) necessitate a violation of legal requirements or limitations of general application concerning the assumption and maintenance of fiscal municipal obligations.

“(V) Other factors relevant to settlements with municipalities.—In determining an appropriate settlement amount with a municipality under this subparagraph, the President may consider other relevant factors, including the fair market value of any in-kind services that the municipality may provide to support the response action at the facility.

“(H) Applicability of expedited settlements requirements.—

“(i) In general.—The requirements set forth in subparagraph (D) shall apply to settlements described in subparagraphs (F) and (G).

“(ii) Other requirements.—The requirements set forth in subparagraph (B)(ii) shall apply to settlements described in subpara-graph (F)(I)(I).

TITLE IV—CLARIFICATION OF LIABILITY FOR RECYCLING TRANSACTIONS

SEC. 401. RECYCLING TRANSACTIONS.

Title I of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9621 et seq.), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 127. RECYCLING TRANSACTIONS.

“(a) Liability clarification.—A person who arranged for recycling of recyclable ma-

“recyclable material" means scrap paper, scrap plastic, scrap glass, scrap textile, scrap rubber, spent CRT phosphor, spent silver, spent lead-acid, spent nickel-cadmium, and other spent battery, as well as minor quantities of material incident to or adhering to the scrap material as a result of its normal and customary use prior to becoming scrap.

(2) EXCLUSIONS.—The term ‘recyclable material’ does not include shipping containers of any capacity, from 30 liters to 3,000 liters, whether intact or not, having any hazardous substance (but not metal bits and pieces or hazardous substances that form an integral part of the container) contained in or adhering to the containers.

(c) TRANSACTIONS INVOLVING SCRAP METAL, TEXTILES, OR RUBBER.—A transaction involving scrap paper, scrap plastic, scrap glass, scrap textile, or scrap rubber (other than whole tires) shall be considered to be arranging for recycling if the person who arranged for the transaction (by selling recyclable material or otherwise arranging for the recycling of recyclable material) demonstrates by a preponderance of the evidence that all of the following criteria were met at the time of the transaction:

(1) The recyclable material met a commercial standard certified available for use as feedstock for the manufacture of a new saleable product.

(2) A market existed for the recyclable material.

(3) A substantial portion of the recyclable material was made available for use as feedstock for a virgin raw material, or the product to be made from the recyclable material is a replacement or substitute for a product made, in whole or in part, from a virgin raw material.

(5) In the case of a transaction occurring 90 days or more after the date of enactment of this section, the person exercised reasonable care to determine that the facility where the recyclable material was handled, processed, reclaimed, or otherwise managed by another person (referred to in this section as a ‘consuming facility’) was in compliance with substantive provisions of any Federal, State, or local environmental law (including regulations, standards), regarding the storage, transport, handling, processing, reclaimation, storage, or other management activities associated with recyclable material.

(6) Relied on in this subsection, reasonable care shall be determined using criteria that include the following:

(A) The price paid in the recycling transaction.

(B) The ability of the person to detect the nature of the consuming facility’s operations concerning its handling, processing, reclaimation, or other management activities associated with recyclable material.

(C) The result of inquiries made to appropriate Federal, State, or local environmental agencies regarding the consuming facility’s past and current compliance with substantive provisions of any Federal, State, or local environmental law (including a regulation, compliance order, or decree issued pursuant to the law) applicable to the handling, processing, reclaimation, storage, or other management activities associated with recyclable material.

(D) Transactions INVOLVING SCRAP METAL.

(1) IN GENERAL.—A transaction involving scrap metal shall be considered to be arranging for recycling if the person who arranged for the transaction (by selling recyclable material or otherwise arranging for the recycling of recyclable material) demonstrates by a preponderance of the evidence that at the time of the transaction the person—

(A) met the criteria set forth in subsection (c) with respect to the scrap metal;

(B) was in compliance with any applicable regulations or standards regarding the storage, transport, management, or other activities associated with the recycling of scrap metal that the Administrator promulgates under the Solid Waste Disposal Act (42 U.S.C. 6901 et seq.) on or before the date of enactment of this section and with regard to transactions occurring after the effective date of the regulations or standards; and

(C) did not melt the scrap metal prior to the transaction.

(2) THERMAL SEPARATION.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(C), melting of scrap metal does not include the thermal separation of 2 or more materials due to differences in their melting points.

(3) DEFINITION OF SCRAP METAL.—In this subsection, the term ‘scrap metal’ means—

(A) bits and pieces of a metal part (such as a bar, turning, a rod, a sheet, and a wire) or a metal piece that may be combined together with other metal pieces (such as turning in items such as a radiator, scrap automobile, or railroad box car), which when worn or superfluous can be recycled, other than scrap metal that is to be melted as fuel, or for energy recovery or incineration; or

(B) with respect to a transaction involving any other spent battery, the person did not exercise reasonable control, through source control, contamination of the recyclable material by hazardous substances; or

(C) a substantial portion of the recyclable material was made available for use as feedstock for a virgin raw material, or the product to be made from the recyclable material is a replacement or substitute for a product made, in whole or in part, from a virgin raw material.

(4) TRANSACTIONS INVOLVING BATTERIES.—A transaction involving a spent lead-acid battery, a spent nickel-cadmium battery, or other spent battery shall be considered to be arranging for recycling if the person who arranged for the transaction (by selling recyclable material or otherwise arranging for the recycling of recyclable material) demonstrates by a preponderance of the evidence that at the time of the transaction—

(1) the person met the criteria set forth in subsection (c) with respect to the spent lead-acid battery, spent nickel-cadmium battery, or other spent battery, and the person exercised reasonable care to determine that the facility where the recyclable material was handled, processed, reclaimed, or otherwise managed by another person (referred to in this section as a ‘consuming facility’) was in compliance with substantive provisions of any Federal, State, or local environmental law (including regulations, standards), regarding the storage, transport, handling, processing, reclaimation, storage, or other management activities associated with recyclable material.

(2) Relied on in this subsection, reasonable care shall be determined using criteria that include the following:

(A) The price paid in the recycling transaction.

(B) The ability of the person to detect the nature of the consuming facility’s operations concerning its handling, processing, reclaimation, or other management activities associated with recyclable material.

(C) The result of inquiries made to appropriate Federal, State, or local environmental agencies regarding the consuming facility’s past and current compliance with substantive provisions of any Federal, State, or local environmental law (including a regulation, compliance order, or decree issued pursuant to the law) applicable to the handling, processing, reclaimation, storage, or other management activities associated with recyclable material.

(3) EXCLUSIONS.—The term ‘recyclable material’ does not include shipping containers of any capacity, from 30 liters to 3,000 liters, whether intact or not, having any hazardous substance (but not metal bits and pieces or hazardous substances that form an integral part of the container) contained in or adhering to the containers.

(2) EXCLUSIONS.—The term ‘recyclable material’ does not include shipping containers of any capacity, from 30 liters to 3,000 liters, whether intact or not, having any hazardous substance (but not metal bits and pieces or hazardous substances that form an integral part of the container) contained in or adhering to the containers.

(3) A substantial portion of the recyclable material was made available for use as feedstock for the manufacture of a new saleable product.

(4) The recyclable material is a replacement or substitute for a virgin raw material, or the product to be made from the recyclable material is a replacement or substitute for a product made, in whole or in part, from a virgin raw material.

(5) In the case of a transaction occurring 90 days or more after the date of enactment of this section, the person exercised reasonable care to determine that the facility where the recyclable material was handled, processed, reclaimed, or otherwise managed by another person (referred to in this section as a ‘consuming facility’) was in compliance with substantive provisions of any Federal, State, or local environmental law (including regulations, standards), regarding the storage, transport, handling, processing, reclaimation, storage, or other management activities associated with recyclable material.

(6) Relied on in this subsection, reasonable care shall be determined using criteria that include the following:

(A) The price paid in the recycling transaction.

(B) The ability of the person to detect the nature of the consuming facility’s operations concerning its handling, processing, reclaimation, or other management activities associated with recyclable material.

(C) The result of inquiries made to appropriate Federal, State, or local environmental agencies regarding the consuming facility’s past and current compliance with substantive provisions of any Federal, State, or local environmental law (including a regulation, compliance order, or decree issued pursuant to the law) applicable to the handling, processing, reclaimation, storage, or other management activities associated with recyclable material.

(7) The exemptions provided under this subsection affect the liability of a person who is not liable by operation of this section.

(8) EFFECT ON OTHER LIABILITY.—Nothing in this section affects the liability of a person with respect to materials that are not recyclable materials (as defined in subsection (b) under paragraph (1), (2), (3), or (4).

(9) REGULATIONS.—The Administrator has the authority, under section 115, to promulgate additional regulations concerning this section.

(10) EFFECT ON PENDING OR CONCLUDED ACTIONS.—The exemptions provided under this section shall not affect any concluded judicial or administrative action or any pending judicial action initiated by the United States prior to the date of enactment of this section.

(11) LIABILITY FOR ATTORNEY’S FEES FOR CERTAIN ACTIONS.—Any person who commences or participates in a judicial or administrative action against a person who is not liable by operation of this section shall be liable to that person for all reasonable costs of defending that action, including all reasonable attorneys and expert witness fees.

(12) RELATIONSHIP TO LIABILITY UNDER OTHER LAWS.—Nothing in this section affects—

(A) liability under any other Federal, State, or local law (including a regulation), SEC. 301. BROWNFIELDS FUNDING.

Title I of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9601 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"SEC. 128. BROWNFIELDS FUNDING FOR STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS.

"(a) BROWNFIELDS INVENTORY AND ASSESSMENT GRANT PROGRAM.—

"(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Administrator shall establish a program to award grants to States or local governments to inventory brownfield sites and to conduct site assessments of brownfield sites.

"(2) SCOPE OF PROGRAM.—

"(A) GRANT AWARDS.—To carry out this subsection, the Administrator may, on approval of an application, provide financial assistance to a State or local government.

"(B) GRANT APPLICATION PROCEDURE.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall establish a grant application procedure for this section.

"(ii) NATIONAL CONTINGENCY PLAN.—The Administrator may include in the procedure established under clause (i) requirements of the National Contingency Plan, to the extent that those requirements are relevant and appropriate to the program under this subsection.

"(C) GRANT APPLICATION.—An application for a grant under this subsection shall include, to the extent practicable, each of the following:

"(I) An identification of the brownfield sites for which assistance is sought and a description of the effect of the brownfield sites on the community, including a description of the nature and extent of any known or suspected environmental contamination within the areas in which eligible brownfield sites are situated.

"(II) A description of the need of the applicant for financial assistance to inventory brownfield sites and conduct site assessments.

"(III) A demonstration of the potential of the grant assistance to stimulate economic development, including the extent to which the assistance would stimulate the availability of other funds for site assessment, site identification, or environmental remediation and subsequent redevelopment of the areas in which eligible brownfield sites are situated.

"(IV) A description of the local commitment as of the date of the application, which shall include a community involvement plan that demonstrates meaningful community involvement.

"(V) A plan that demonstrates how the site assessment, site identification, or environmental remediation and subsequent redevelopment will be implemented, including—

"(A) an environmental plan that ensures the undisturbed preservation of any area designated as an environmental remediation site; or

"(B) an explanation of the appropriate government authority and support for the project as in existence on the date of the application;

"(VI) proposed funding mechanisms for any additional work; and

"(VII) a proposed land ownership plan.

"(b) BROWNFIELDS GRANT PROGRAM.—

"(1) ELIGIBILITY.—The applicant shall be a State or local government for financial assistance to carry out site assessment, site identification, or environmental remediation, and subsequent redevelopment of the area or areas in which eligible brownfield sites are situated.

"(2) DETERMINATION.—In determining whether to award a grant under paragraph (1)(B), the Administrator shall consider, in addition to other requirements of this subsection—

"(A) the ability of the applicant to carry out inventory and site assessments of brownfield sites; and

"(B) the extent to which the funds from the grant would be used for creation or preservation of undeveloped or for other nonprofit purposes and

"(C) the benefits of a revolving loan program described in paragraph (1)(A) in promoting the long-term availability of funding for brownfields.

"(3) USE OF FUNDING.—The grant shall be used—

"(I) by the State or local government to capitalize a revolving loan fund to be used for cleanup of 1 or more brownfield sites; or

"(II) in the case of a grant under paragraph (1)(B), by the local government for cleanup of brownfield sites.

"(C) GRANT APPLICATION.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall establish a grant application procedure for this subsection.

"(2) INCLUSIONS.—The procedure established under clause (1) shall include criteria for grants under paragraph (1)(B) that—

"(A) would be appropriate to the program under this subsection;

"(B) are situated.

"(D) APPROVAL OF APPLICATION.—

"(I) IN GENERAL.—In making a decision on whether to approve an application under subparagraph (A), the Administrator shall—

"(II) consider the benefit of the grant to stimulate economic development of the area on completion of the environmental remediation.

"(VII) Other such factors as the Administrator considers relevant to carry out this title.

"(F) Waiver.—The Administrator may waive the limitation on the amount of a grant under subparagraph (E), or any other factor relating to the facility that the Administrator considers appropriate, taking into consideration the impact of the increase on the Administrator's ability to provide grants at other facilities.

"(G) TERMINATION OF GRANTS.—If the Administrator determines that a State or local government that receives a grant under this subsection is in violation of a condition of a grant referred to in subparagraph (D)(ii), the Administrator may terminate the grant made to the State or local government and require full or partial repayment of the grant.

"(H) GRANTS AND LOANS FOR CLEANUP OF BROWNFIELD SITES.—

"(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Administrator shall establish a program to award grants to—

"(A) State or local governments to capitalize revolving loan funds for the cleanup of brownfield sites; and

"(B) local governments that are not liable under section 107, in accordance with paragraph (3), for the purpose of cleaning up brownfield sites.

"(2) LOANS.—The loans may be provided by the State or local government to finance cleanups of brownfield sites by the State or local government, or by an owner or operator or purchaser of a brownfield site (including a local government) at which a cleanup is being conducted or is proposed to be conducted.

"(3) DETERMINATION.—In determining whether to award a grant under paragraph (1)(B), the Administrator shall consider, in addition to other requirements of this subsection—

"(A) the demonstrated financial need of the applicant for a grant, including whether the applicant would be financially able to repay a loan; and

"(B) the extent to which the funds from the grant would be used for the creation or preservation of undeveloped space or for other nonprofit purposes and

"(C) the benefits of a revolving loan program described in paragraph (1)(A) in promoting the long-term availability of funding for brownfields.
(5) GRANT APPROVAL.—In determining whether a grantee, subject to subsection (a) of this section, the Administrator shall consider, as applicable—

(A) the need of the State or local government to clean up brownfield sites that are the subject of the application, taking into consideration the financial resources available to the State or local government;

(B) the ability of the State or local government to ensure that the applicant repays the loans in a timely manner;

(C) the extent to which the cleanup of the brownfield site or sites would reduce health and environmental risks caused by the release of contaminants at, or from, the brownfield site or sites;

(D) the demonstrable potential of the brownfield site or sites for stimulating economic development on completion of the cleanup;

(E) the demonstrated ability of the State or local government to administer such a loan program in accordance with this subsection;

(F) the demonstrated experience of the State or local government that the Administrator considers relevant to carry out this subsection; and

(G) the experience of administering any loan programs by the entity, including the loan repayment rates.

(6) GRANT AMOUNT TO CAPITALIZE REVOLVING LOAN FUNDS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), the Administrator may waive the limitation on the amount of a grant made to a State or local applicant under paragraph (1) to the extent of the increase on the Administrator’s ability to provide grants at other facilities.

(B) LIMITER.—The Administrator may waive the limitation on the amount of a grant made to a State or local applicant under paragraph (1)(B) to the extent of the increase for which the Administrator has determined are necessary to protect the financial interests of the United States and to protect human health and the environment.

(7) CLEANSUP GRANT AMOUNT.—The amount of a grant made to a State or local applicant under paragraph (1)(B) shall not exceed $200,000.

(8) GRANT APPROVAL.—Each application for a grant to capitalize a revolving loan fund under this subsection shall, as a condition of approval by the Administrator, include a written statement by the State or local government that the funds to be used under this subsection shall be used for a grant agreement that shall include, at a minimum, provisions that ensure the following:

(A) the need of the State or local government to clean up brownfield sites that are the subject of the application, taking into consideration the financial resources available to the State or local government;

(B) the ability of the State or local government to ensure that the applicant repays the loans in a timely manner;

(C) the extent to which the cleanup of the brownfield site or sites would reduce health and environmental risks caused by the release of contaminants at, or from, the brownfield site or sites;

(D) the demonstrable potential of the brownfield site or sites for stimulating economic development on completion of the cleanup;

(E) the demonstrated ability of the State or local government to administer such a loan program in accordance with this subsection;

(F) the demonstrated experience of the State or local government that the Administrator considers relevant to carry out this subsection; and

(G) the experience of administering any loan programs by the entity, including the loan repayment rates.

(9) GRANT AGREEMENTS.—Each grant under this subsection shall be made under a grant agreement that shall include, at a minimum, provisions that ensure the following:

(A) COMPLIANCE WITH LAW.—The grant recipient shall comply with all laws applicable to the cleanup and shall ensure that the cleanup is protective of human health and the environment.

(B) REPAYMENT.—For grantees made under paragraph (1)(A), the State or local government shall require repayment of the loan consistent with this subsection.

(C) USE OF FUNDS.—

(i) REVOLVING GRANTS.—For grantees made under paragraph (1)(A), the State or local government shall use the funds, including repayment of the principal and interest, solely for purposes of establishing and capitalizing a loan program in accordance with this subsection and of cleaning up the environmental contamination at the brownfield site or sites.

(ii) CLEANUP GRANTS.—For grantees made under paragraph (1)(B), the local government shall use the funds solely for the purpose of cleaning up the environmental contamination at the brownfield site or sites.

(D) REPAYMENT OF FUNDS.—For grantees made under paragraph (1)(A), the State or local government shall require in each loan agreement and take necessary steps to ensure, that the loan recipient shall use the loan funds solely for the purposes stated in subparagraph (C), and shall require the return of any funds immediately upon determination by the appropriate State or local official that the cleanup has been completed.

(E) NONTRANSFERABILITY.—For grantees under paragraph (1)(A) or (1)(B), the loan funds shall not be transferable, unless the Administrator agrees to the transfer in writing.

(F) LIENS.—

(i) DEFINITIONS.—In this subparagraph, the terms "security interest" and "purchaser" have the meanings given the terms in section 6623(h) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(ii) LIENS.—A lien in favor of the grant recipient arising at the time a security interest is perfected shall continue until the terms and conditions of the loan agreement have been fully satisfied.

(iii) TIMING.—The lien shall—

(A) arise at the time a security interest is appropriately recorded in the real property records of the appropriate office of the State, county, or other governmental subdivision, as designated by State law, in which the real property subject to the lien is located; and

(B) be subject to the rights of any purchaser, holder of a security interest, or judgment lien creditor whose interest is or has been perfected under applicable State law before the notice has been filed in the appropriate office of the State, county, or other governmental subdivision, as designated by State law, in which the real property subject to the lien is located.

(G) OTHER CONDITIONS.—The State or local government shall comply with such other terms and conditions the Administrator determines are necessary to protect the financial interests of the United States and to protect human health and the environment.

(c) REPORTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, and not later than January 31 of each of the 3 calendar years thereafter, the Administrator shall prepare and submit a report describing the results of each program established under this title to—

(A) the Committee on Environment and Public Works of the Senate; and

(B) the Committee on Commerce of the House of Representatives.

(d) LIMITATIONS ON USE OF FUNDS.—

(1) EXCLUDED FACILITIES.—A grant for site inventory and assessment under subsection (a) or (b) to capitalize a revolving loan fund or conduct a cleanup under subsection (b) may not be used for any activity involving—

(A) a facility that is the subject of a planned or an ongoing response action under this Act, except for a facility for which a preliminary assessment, site investigation, or removal action has been completed and with respect to which the Administrator has determined not to take further response action, including cost recovery action;

(B) a facility included, or proposed for inclusion, on the National Priorities List maintained by the Administrator under this Act.

(2) A facility with respect to which a record of decision, other than a no-action record of decision, has been issued by the President under section 104 with respect to the facility;

(3) A facility that is subject to corrective action under section 3004(h) or 3008(h) of the Solid Waste Disposal Act (42 U.S.C. 6924(u), 6926(h)) to which a corrective action permit or order has been issued or modified to require the implementation of corrective measures;

(4) An any land disposal unit with respect to which a closure notification under subtitle C of the Solid Waste Disposal Act (42 U.S.C. 6913(b)) has been issued, and all requirements for a closure plan or permit have been satisfied.

(5) A facility at which there has been a release of a polychlorinated biphenyl and that is subject to the Toxics Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2601 et seq.);

(6) A facility with respect to which an administrative or judicial order or a consent decree requiring cleanup has been issued or entered into by the President and is in effect under—

(A) subsection (a) or (b) of the Solid Waste Disposal Act (42 U.S.C. 6901 et seq.); or

(B) the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2601 et seq.);

(7) A facility at which there has been a release of a polychlorinated biphenyl and that is subject to the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2601 et seq.); or

(8) A facility at which there has been a release of a polychlorinated biphenyl and that is subject to the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2601 et seq.); or

(9) A facility at which there has been a release of a polychlorinated biphenyl and that is subject to the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2601 et seq.);
United States, except for land held in trust by the Federal Government, or to meet any Federal or State, tribal, or local governments.

(2) FACILITY GRANTS.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the President may, on a facility-by-facility basis, allow a grant under subsection (a) or (b) to be used for an activity inside a facility or portion of a facility listed in subparagraph (D), (E), (F), (G)(i), (G)(iii), (G)(iv), (G)(v), or (H) of paragraph (1), if the Administrator considers it to be necessary, including procedures and standards as the Administrator considers to be appropriate.

(3) FINES AND COST-SHARING.—A grant made under this title may not be used to pay any fine or penalty owed to a State or the Federal Government, or to meet any Federal cost-sharing requirement.

(4) OTHER LIMITATIONS.—

(4)(A) In general.—Funds made available to a State or local government under the grant programs established under subsections (a) and (b) shall be used only to inventory and assess brownfield sites as authorized by this title and for capitalizing a revolving loan fund or cleanup of a brownfield site as authorized by this title, respectively.

(B) RESPONSIBILITY FOR CLEANUP ACTION.—Funds made available under this title may not be used to relieve a local government or State of the commitment or responsibilities of the local government or State under State law to carry out cleanup actions at brownfield sites.

(5) REGULATIONS.—The Administrator may issue regulations as necessary to carry out this section.

(6) PROCEDURES AND STANDARDS.—The regulations shall include such procedures and standards as the Administrator considers necessary, including procedures and standards for evaluating an application for a grant or loan submitted under this section.

(7) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Nothing in this title affects the liability or response authorities for environmental contamination under any other law (including any regulation), including—

(A) this Act;

(B) the Safe Drinking Water Act (42 U.S.C. 2021 et seq.); and

(C) the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (33 U.S.C. 1251 et seq.).

SEC. 502. RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, DEMONSTRATION, AND TRAINING. —Section 311 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9660) is amended by striking sub- section (c) and inserting the following:

(c) REGULATIONS.—The Administrator shall encourage the States to main- tain a public record of facilities, by name and location, that have been or are planned to be addressed under a State voluntary re- response program.

(3) REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—Not later than the end of the first calendar year after the date of enactment of this section, and annually thereafter, each State that receives financial assistance under this section shall submit to the Administrator a report de- scribing the progress of the voluntary re- response program of the State, including infor- mation, with respect to that calendar year, on—

(A) the number of sites, if any, undergoing voluntary cleanup, including a separate description of the number of sites in each stage of voluntary cleanup;

(B) the number of sites, if any, entering voluntary cleanup; and

(C) the number of sites, if any, that re- ceived a certificate from the State indicating that a response action is complete.

SEC. 504. AUDITS.—

Section 111 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liabil- ity Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9611) is amended by adding at the end the following:

(1) AUDITS.—The Inspector General of the Environmental Protection Agency shall audit a portion of the grants awarded under section 129 to ensure that all funds are used in a manner that is consistent with that section.

(2) FUTURE GRANTS.—The result of the audit shall be taken into account in awarding any future grants to the State or local government under this section.

TITLE VI—SETTLEMENT INCENTIVES

SEC. 601. FAIRNESS IN SETTLEMENTS. —Section 122 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9622) is amended by adding at the end the following:

(1) FAIRNESS IN SETTLEMENTS.—

(A) ASSISTANCE FOR CLEANUP SETTLE-

MENTS.—In an agreement under subsection (a) may, in the discretion of the President, pro- vide for payment of sums appropriated under section 111 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9611) is amended by adding at the end the following:

(B) application toward cleanup settlements.—The President may enter into settlements under paragraphs (3), subparagraphs (B), (C), (D), and (E) of section 122(c)(1), and section 106(f) that include terms providing for the disposition of the proceeds of the settlements in a manner that is fair and reasonable, including, as appro- priate, the placement of settlement proceeds in interest-bearing accounts to conduct or enable other persons to conduct response ac- tions at the facility.

(B) ADDITIONAL SETTLEMENTS BASED ON ABILITY TO PAY.—The President shall have the authority to evaluate the ability to pay of any potentially responsible party, and to enter into a settlement with the party based on that party's ability to pay.

TITLE VIII—DEFINITIONS

SEC. 801. DEFINITIONS.

Section 101 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9611) is amended by striking paragraph (1) and inserting the following:

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The term 'brownfield site' means a property—

"(i) an onsite evaluation; and

"(ii) subsequent sampling, and other field-data-gathering activities to accurately determine whether the brownfield site is contaminated and the threats to human health and the environment posed by the release of contaminants at the brownfield site; and

"(iii) may include—

"(I) a review of such information regarding the brownfield site and previous uses as is available at the time of the review; and

"(II) an offsite evaluation, if appropriate.

"(2) MUNICIPAL SOLID WASTE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'municipal solid waste' means—

"(i) waste material generated by a household (including a single or multifamily residence); and

"(ii) waste material generated by a commercial, institutional, or industrial source, to the extent that the waste material—

"(I) is essentially the same as waste normally generated by a household; or

"(II) is collected and disposed of with other municipal solid waste or municipal sewage sludge as part of normal municipal solid waste collection services, and, with respect to each source from which the waste material is collected, qualifies for a de minimis exemption under section 107(r).

"(B) EXAMPLES.—Examples of municipal solid waste shall include food and yard waste, paper, clothing, appliances, consumer product packaging, disposable diapers, office supplies, cosmetics, glass and metal food containers, elementary or secondary school, laboratory waste, and household hazardous waste.

"(C) EXCLUSIONS.—The term municipal solid waste does not include—

"(I) combustion ash generated by resource recovery facilities or municipal incinerators; and

"(ii) waste material from manufacturing or industrial Reauthorization (including pollution control) operations that is not essentially the same as waste normally generated by households.

"(3) VOLUNTARY RESPONSE PROGRAMS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'municipality' includes a city, county, village, town, township, borough, parish, school, school district, sanitation district, water district, or other public entity performing local governmental functions; and

"(ii) a natural person acting in the capacity of an official, employee, or agent of a political subdivision of a State or an entity described in clause (I) in the performance of governmental functions.

"(4) OWNER, OPERATOR, OR LESSEE OF RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'owner, operator, or lessee of residential property' means a person that—"(i) owns, operates, manages, or leases residential property; and

"(ii) uses or allows the use of the residential property exclusively for residential purposes.

"(B) RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY.—For the purposes of subparagraph (A) the term 'residential property' means a single or multifamily residence (including incidental accessory land, buildings, or improvements) that is used exclusively for residential purposes.

"(5) SMALL NONPROFIT ORGANIZATION.—The term 'small nonprofit organization' means an organization that, at the time of disposal—

"(A) did not distribute any part of its income or profit to its members, directors, or officers;

"(B) employed not more than 100 paid individuals at the chapter, office, or department disposing of the waste; and

"(C) was an organization described in section 501(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 that is exempt from taxation under section 501(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

"(6) AFFILIATE.—The terms 'affiliate' and 'affiliated' have the meanings that those terms have in section 121.103 of title 13, Code of Federal Regulations (or any successor regulations).

"(50) MUNICIPAL SEWAGE SLUDGE.—The term 'municipal sewage sludge' means solid, semisolid, or liquid residue removed during the treatment of municipal wastewater, domestic sewage, or other wastewater at or by publicly owned or federally owned treatment works.'"

S. 1105—SUMMARY
1. BROWNFIELDS LIABILITY RELIEF
Finality for Buyers (limitation on liability for prospective purchasers).

Finality for Owners and Sellers (liability relief for innocent owners and contiguous property owners).

2. BROWNFIELDS FUNDING
Grants to municipalities, states and tribes to assess conditions at brownfields sites.

Grants to municipalities, states and tribes to capitalize revolving loan funds for cleanup of brownfields sites.

Grants to states to develop and enhance state voluntary cleanup programs.

3. SMALL BUSINESS LIABILITY RELIEF
Liability exemptions:
De micromis (generators and transporters that send less than 110 gallons of liquid material or less than 200 pounds of solid material, or present amount determined by the Administrator on a site-specific basis)

Generators and transporters of municipal solid waste who are small businesses, residential homeowners or small non-profits.

Expedited settlement:
De Minimis (presumed to be 1% or less of waste at site).

Limited ability to pay.

4. CLARIFICATION OF LIABILITY FOR RECYCLING TRANSACTIONS
Exemption for generators and transporters of recyclable material, as provided in the Lotto/Daschie bill in the 105th, and endorsed by ISRI, environmental groups, the Administration and others.

5. RELIEF FOR GENERATORS AND TRANSPORTERS OF MUNICIPAL WASTE AND FOR MUNICIPAL OWNERS OF LANDFILLS
Cap on liability of generators and transporters of municipal solid waste and sewage sludge, and of municipalities that own or operate municipal landfills on the NPL, per EPA 1998 policy that was negotiated with and has the support of several municipal representatives (including National Association of Counties, National League of Cities): expedited settlement based on dollar per ton limits, for generators and transporters; percentage of total costs cap for owners and operators.

6. FUNDING
Authorization levels consistent with recent years and, consistent with past, majority of funding from the Superfund trust fund, with $250 million from general revenues.

EPA continue to provide orphan funding as a successor regulation.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

Prevent fractures associated with osteoporosis; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pension.

Mr. TORRICE(1) Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Early Detection and Prevention of Osteoporosis and Related Bone Diseases Act of 1999

Mr. TORRICE.

Early detection and prevention of osteoporosis and related bone diseases pose a major public health threat. More than 28 million Americans, 80 percent of whom are women, suffer from, or are at risk for, osteoporosis. Between three and four million Americans suffer from related bone diseases like Paget’s disease or osteogenesis imperfecta. Today, in the United States, 10 million individuals already have osteoporosis and 18 million more have low bone mass, placing them at increased risk.

Osteoporosis is often called the ‘silent disease’ because bone loss occurs without symptoms. People often do not know they have osteoporosis until their bones become so weak that a sudden bump or fall causes a fracture or a vertebra to collapse. Every year, there are 1.5 million bone fractures caused by osteoporosis. Half of all women, and one-eighth of all men, age 50 or older, will suffer a bone fracture due to osteoporosis.

Osteoporosis is a progressive condition that has no known cure; thus, prevention and treatment are key. The Early Detection and Prevention of Osteoporosis and Related Bone Diseases Act of 1999 seeks to combat osteoporosis, and related bone diseases like Paget’s disease by requiring private health plans to cover bone mass measurement tests for qualified individuals who are at risk for developing osteoporosis.

Bone mass measurement is the only reliable method of detecting osteoporosis in its early stages. The test is non-invasive and painless and is as predictive of future fractures as high cholesterol or high blood pressure is of heart disease or stroke. This provision is similar to a provision in the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 that requires Medicare coverage of bone mass measurements.

Medical experts agree that osteoporosis is preventable. Thus, if the toll of osteoporosis and other related bone diseases is to be reduced, the commitment to prevention and treatment must be significantly increased.

Last year, Congress reauthorized the Women’s Health Research and Prevention Act. This legislation authorized $3 million for a national resource center to increase public knowledge and awareness of osteoporosis, and $40 million for osteoporosis research at the National Institutes of Health (NIH). This was an important first step in the fight against osteoporosis. Congress must now maintain this commitment to prevention by ensuring women have access to bone mass measurement tests.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 1106

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; FINDINGS.

(a) Short Title.—This Act may be cited as the ‘Early Detection and Prevention of Osteoporosis and Related Bone Diseases Act of 1999’.

(b) Findings.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Nature of Osteoporosis.—

(A) Osteoporosis is a disease characterized by low bone mass and structural deterioration of bone tissue, leading to bone fragility and increased susceptibility to fractures of the hip, spine, and wrist.

(B) Osteoporosis has no symptoms and typically remains undiagnosed until a fracture occurs.

(C) Once a fracture occurs, the condition has usually advanced to the stage where the likelihood is high that another fracture will occur.

(D) There is no cure for osteoporosis, but drug therapy has been shown to reduce new hip and spine fractures by 50 percent and other treatments, such as nutrition therapy, have also proven effective.

(2) Incidence of Osteoporosis and Related Bone Diseases.—

(A) 28 million Americans have (or are at risk for) osteoporosis, 80 percent of which are women.

(B) Osteoporosis is responsible for 1.5 million bone fractures annually, including more than 300,000 hip fractures, 700,000 vertebral fractures and 200,000 fractures of the wrists.

(C) Half of all women, and one-eighth of all men, age 50 or older will have a bone fracture due to osteoporosis.

(D) Between 3 and 4 million Americans have Paget’s disease, osteogenesis imperfecta, hyperparathyroidism, and other related metabolic bone diseases.

(3) Impact of Osteoporosis.—The cost of treating osteoporosis is significant:

(A) The annual cost of osteoporosis in the United States is $13.8 billion and is expected to increase precipitously because the proportion of the population comprised of older persons is expanding and each generation of older persons tends to have a higher incidence of osteoporosis than preceding generations.

(B) The average cost in the United States of repairing a hip fracture due to osteoporosis is $32,000.

(C) Fractures due to osteoporosis frequently result in disability and institutionalization of individuals.

(D) Because osteoporosis is a progressive condition causing fractures primarily in aging individuals, preventing fractures, particularly for post menopausal women before they become eligible for Medicare, has a significant potential of reducing osteoporosis-related costs under the Medicare program.

(4) Use of Bone Mass Measurement.—

...
(A) Bone mass measurement is the only reliable method of detecting osteoporosis at an early stage.

(B) Low bone mass is as predictive of future fractures as is high cholesterol or high blood pressure of heart disease or stroke.

(C) Phlebotomy measurement is a non-invasive, painless, and reliable way to diagnose osteoporosis before costly fractures occur.

(D) Under section 4106 of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, Medicare provides coverage, effective July 1, 1999, for bone mass measurement for qualified individuals who are at risk of developing osteoporosis.

(5) Research on osteoporosis and related bone diseases—

(A) Technology now exists, and new technology is developing, that will permit the early diagnosis and prevention of osteoporosis and related bone diseases as well as management of these conditions once they develop.

(B) Funding for research on osteoporosis and related bone diseases is severely constrained at key research institutes, including the National Institute of Arthritis and Musculoskeletal and Skin Diseases, the National Institute on Aging, the National Institute of Digestive and Kidney Diseases, the National Institute of Dental Research, and the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

(C) Further research is needed to improve medical knowledge concerning—

(i) cellular mechanisms related to the processes of bone resorption and bone formation, and the effect of different agents on bone remodeling;

(ii) risk factors for osteoporosis, including newly discovered risk factors, risk factors related to groups not ordinarily studied (such as men and minorities), risk factors related to genes that help to control skeletal metabolism, and risk factors relating to the relationship of aging processes to the development of osteoporosis;

(iii) bone mass measurement technology, including more widespread and cost-effective techniques, more precise measurements and for interpreting measurements;

(iv) calcium (including bioavailability, intake or loss) and the role of calcium in building heavier and denser skeletons, and vitamin D and its role as an essential vitamin in adults;

(v) prevention and treatment, including the efficacy of current therapies, alternative drug therapies for prevention and treatment, and the role of exercise; and

(vi) rehabilitation.

Further educational efforts are needed to increase public and professional knowledge of the causes of, methods for avoiding, and treatment of osteoporosis.

SEC. 2. REQUIRING COVERAGE OF BONE MASS MEASUREMENT UNDER HEALTH PLANS.

(a) Group Health Plans—

(1) Public Health Service Act amendment—

(A) In general—Subpart 2 of part A of title XXVI of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 300gg-4) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 2707. STANDARDS RELATING TO BENEFITS FOR BONE MASS MEASUREMENT."

"(a) Requirements for Coverage of Bone Mass Measurement.—A group health plan, and a health insurance issuer offering group health insurance coverage, shall include (consistent with this section) coverage for bone mass measurement for beneficiaries and participants who are qualified individuals.

"(b) Definitions Relating to Coverage.—

In this section:

"(1) Bone Mass Measurement.—The term "bone mass measurement" means a radiologic or radioisotopic procedure or other procedure as determined by the Food and Drug Administration performed on an individual for the purpose of identifying bone mass or detecting bone loss or determining bone quality, and includes a physician's interpretation of the results of the procedure. Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as requiring a bone mass measurement to be conducted in a particular type of facility or to prevent such a measurement from being conducted through the use of mobile facilities that are otherwise qualified.

"(2) Qualified Individual.—The term "qualified individual" means an individual who—

(A) is an estrogen-deficient woman at clinical risk for osteoporosis;

(B) has vertebral abnormalities;

(C) is receiving chemotherapy or long-term glucocorticoid (steroid) therapy;

(D) has primary hyperparathyroidism, hyperthyroidism, or excess thyroid replacement therapy;

(E) is being monitored to assess the response to or efficacy of approved osteoporosis drug therapy;

(F) is a man with a low trauma fracture; or

(G) the Secretary determines is eligible.

"(2) Limitation on Frequency Required.—

Taking into account the standards established under section 1861(t)(3) of the Social Security Act, the Secretary shall establish standards regarding the frequency with which an individual shall be eligible to be provided benefits for bone mass measurement under this section. The Secretary may vary such standards based on the clinical and risk-related characteristics of qualified individuals.

"(3) Restrictions on Cost-Sharing.—

(1) In general.—Subject to paragraph (2), nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent a group health plan or issuer from imposing deductibles, coinsurance, or other cost-sharing in relation to bone mass measurement in accordance with a health insurance coverage offered in connection with a plan.

(2) Limitation.—Deductibles, coinsurance, and other cost-sharing or other limitations for bone mass measurement may not be imposed under paragraph (1) to the extent they exceed the deductibles, coinsurance, and limitations that are applied to similar services under the group health plan or health insurance coverage.

"(e) Prohibitions.—A group health plan, and a health insurance issuer offering group health insurance coverage in connection with a group health plan, may not—

(1) deny to an individual eligibility, or continued eligibility, to enroll or to renew coverage under the terms of the plan, solely for the purpose of avoiding the requirements of this section;

(2) provide incentives (monetary or otherwise) to individuals to encourage such individuals not to be provided bone mass measurements to which they are entitled under this section or to discourage such providers not to provide such measurements to qualified individuals;

(3) prohibit a provider from discussing with a patient osteoporosis preventive techniques or medical treatment options relating to this section; or

(4) penalize or otherwise reduce or limit the reimbursement of providers of services or supplies for which such provider provided bone mass measurements to a qualified individual in accordance with this section.

"(f) Rule of Construction.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to require an individual who is a participant or beneficiary to undergo bone mass measurement, or insurance coverage for bone mass measurement, under a group health plan, in the case of this part shall comply with the notice requirement under section 714(g) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 with respect to the requirements of this section as if such section applied to such plan.

"(g) Level and Type of Reimbursements.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent a group health plan or a health insurance issuer offering group health insurance coverage from negotiating the level and type of reimbursement with a provider for care provided in accordance with this section.

"(1) Premption.—

"(1) In general.—The provisions of this section do not preempt State law relating to health insurance coverage for such treatment. Nothing in this State law provides greater benefits with respect to osteoporosis detection or prevention.

"(2) Construction.—Section 2723(a)(1) shall not be construed as superseding a State law described in paragraph (1)."

(2) ERISA Amendment.—Section 2722(c) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 300gg-22(c)) is amended by striking "section 2701" and inserting "sections 2701 and 2707".

(3) Employees Retirement Income Security Act of 1974—

"(a) Rule in General.—Subpart B of part 7 of subtitle B of title I of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C. 1185 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 714. STANDARDS RELATING TO BENEFITS FOR BONE MASS MEASUREMENT."

"(a) Requirements for Coverage of Bone Mass Measurement.—A group health plan, and a health insurance issuer offering group health insurance coverage, shall include (consistent with this section) coverage for bone mass measurement for beneficiaries and participants who are qualified individuals.

"(b) Definitions Relating to Coverage.—

In this section:

"(1) Bone Mass Measurement.—The term "bone mass measurement" means a radiologic or radioisotopic procedure or other procedure approved by the Food and Drug Administration performed on an individual for the purpose of identifying bone mass or detecting bone loss or determining bone quality, and includes a physician's interpretation of the results of the procedure. Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as requiring a bone mass measurement to be conducted in a particular type of facility or to prevent such a measurement from being conducted through the use of mobile facilities that are otherwise qualified.

"(2) Qualified Individual.—The term "qualified individual" means an individual who—

(A) is an estrogen-deficient woman at clinical risk for osteoporosis;

(B) has vertebral abnormalities;

(C) is receiving chemotherapy or long-term glucocorticoid (steroid) therapy;

(D) has primary hyperparathyroidism, hyperthyroidism, or excess thyroid replacement therapy; or

(E) is being monitored to assess the response to or efficacy of approved osteoporosis drug therapy;

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE 10643

"(F) is a man with a low trauma fracture; or

"(G) the Secretary determines is eligible.

"(c) LIMITATION ON FREQUENCY REQUIRED.—The standards established under section 2707 of the Public Health Service Act shall apply to benefits provided under this section in the same manner as they apply to benefits provided under section 2707 of such Act.

"(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing a group health plan or issuer from imposing deductibles, coinsurance, or other cost-sharing in relation to bone mass measurement under the plan (or health insurance coverage offered in connection with a plan).

"(2) LIMITATION.—Deductibles, coinsurance, and other cost-sharing or other limitations for bone mass measurement may not be imposed under paragraph (1) to the extent they exceed the deductibles, coinsurance, and limitations that are applied to similar services under the group health plan or health insurance coverage.

"(e) PROHIBITIONS.—A group health plan, and a health insurance issuer offering group health insurance coverage in connection with a group health plan, may not—

"(1) deny to an individual eligibility, or continued eligibility, to enroll or to renew coverage under the terms of the plan, solely for the purpose of avoiding the requirements of this section;

"(2) provide incentives (monetary or otherwise) to individuals to encourage such individuals not to be provided bone mass measurements to which they are entitled under this section or to providers to induce such providers not to provide such measurements to qualified individuals;

"(3) prohibit a provider from discussing with a patient osteoporosis preventive techniques or medical treatment options relating to this section; or

"(4) penalize or otherwise reduce or limit the reimbursement of a provider because such provider provided bone mass measurements to a qualified individual in accordance with this section.

"(f) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to require an individual who is a participant or beneficiary to undergo bone mass measurement.

"(g) GROUP HEALTH PLAN.—The imposition of the requirements of this section shall be treated as a material modification in the terms of the plan described in section 102(a)(1), for purposes of assuring notice of such requirements under the plan; except that the summary description required to be provided under the last sentence of section 104(b)(1) with respect to such modification shall be provided by not later than 60 days after the first day of the first plan year in which such requirements apply.

"(h) PREEMPTION.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The provisions of this section do not preempt State law relating to health insurance coverage to the extent such State law provides greater benefits with respect to osteoporosis detection or prevention.

"(2) CONSTRUCTION.—Section 2762(a) shall not be construed as superseding a State law described in paragraph (1).

"(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 2762(b)(2) of such act (42 U.S.C. 300gg-62(b)(2)), as added by section 665(b)(3)(B) of Public Law 104-204, is amended by striking "section 2751" and inserting "sections 2751 and 2753".

"(1) GROUP HEALTH PLANS.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to group health plans for plan years beginning on or after January 1, 2000.

"(2) INDIVIDUAL MARKET.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to health insurance coverage offered, sold, issued, renewed, in effect, or operated in the individual market on or after such date.

By Mr. WARNER:

S. 1107. A bill to reform the conduct of Federal elections; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

CONSTITUTIONAL AND EFFECTIVE REFORM OF CAMPAIGNS ACT OF 1999

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, today I introduce the Constitutional and Effective Reform of Campaigns Act, or "CERCA", which I first introduced during the 106th Congress. This legislation is the product of two years of hearings during my Chairmanship of the Rules Committee, discussions with numerous experts, party officials, and candidates, and nearly a year of educating a majority of my colleagues in campaigns and campaign finance debates in the Senate. Many of the proposals in this bill have been made in some form by several of my Senate colleagues and by Members of the House, and I readily acknowledge drawing on their expertise. The important discussions in the Senate and House of Representatives concerning this legislation, and the meetings of a task force headed by Senator NICKLES, at the request of Majority Leader LOTT, were invaluable.

This legislation offers an opportunity for bipartisan support. It is a good faith effort to strike middle ground between those who believe reducing the financing of campaigns is the solution, and those who believe the solution is to remove current regulations. It offers a package of proposals which realistically can be achieved with bipartisan support and meet the desire of the majority of Americans who believe that our present system can be reformed. In my judgment, we will not succeed with any measure of campaign reform in this complicated field without a bipartisan consensus.

In drafting this legislation, I began with four premises. First, all provisions had to be consistent with the First Amendment: Congress would be acting in bad faith to adopt provisions which have a likelihood of being struck down by the federal courts. Second, I oppose public financing and mandating "free" or reduced-cost media time which in my mind is neither free nor a good policy idea. Why should seekers of federal office get free time, while candidates for state office or local office from governors to local sheriffs—do not receive comparable free benefits? Such an inequity and imbalance will breed friction between federal and state office seekers. Third, I believe we should try to increase the role of citizens and the political parties. Fourth, any framework of campaign reform legislation must respect and protect the constitutional right of individuals, groups, and organizations to participate in advocacy concerning political issues.

This bill is designed to be a "bilateral" agreement encompassing issues of soft money and union dues: each side must give up equivalent ground. The Republicans should give ground by placing a cap on soft money which has tended to favor our side. And Democrats should give ground by allowing union members to decide voluntarily for themselves whether to contribute the portion of dues which goes to political contributions or activities.

Specifically, on the issue of soft money, no reform can be considered true reform without placing limits on the corporate and union donations to the national political parties. This bill places a $100,000 cap on such donations. While this provision addresses the public's legitimate concern over the propriety of these large donations, it allows the political parties sufficient funds to maintain their headquarters and conduct their grassroots efforts. In addition, the current limits on "hard" contributions must be updated. The ability of citizens to contribute voluntarily to a wide range of candidates and to their parties is fundamental to our system of government. At the same time, the practice of mandatory union dues going to partisan politics without union members' consent must end: it is counter to all the political freedoms that make America a true democracy. The concept of "paycheck protection" must be included in any campaign finance reform, so that these deductions are voluntary, whether these dues fund direct contributions to candidates or parties, or pay for undisclosed spending on phone banks, get-out-the-vote efforts, literature, and television ads.

Under this legislation, unions would be required to obtain advance, written consent before deducting money for political activities from union members' paychecks. The bill requires most union workers to give up their rights to participate in the union if they seek refunds of that portion of dues going to politics. In addition, this section would strengthen the reporting requirements and public disclosure of political activities and enhance an aggrieved union member's right to challenge a union's determination of the portion of dues going to political activities.

In the Senate debates thus far, there has been much discussion about whether corporations should be required to obtain shareholder approval to make political contributions. This is an issue which warrants consideration. My proposal not only limits these corporate and union contributions to $100,000, it also includes a requirement that companies disclose their donations to federal political parties in their annual reports. And under current policies of the Securities and Exchange Commission, shareholders who own a substantial percentage of a corporation can make recommendations to boards of directors on the propriety of political donations as they do on any business issue related to the company.

In addition, the SEC is in the process of making it easier for shareholders to raise questions related to social policy matters at annual meetings. I am monitoring how these changes are implemented: if they are insufficient to guarantee adequate rights to shareholders, I will consider amending my bill to protect these rights.

As an aside, I reject the notion that the status of union members is similar to those who belong to groups such as the National Rifle Association or the Sierra Club. Nobody is compelled to join these types of organizations, and those that do, know or should know that their dues are going in part to political causes.

Furthermore, I considered including in the bill narrower-tailored disclosure requirement for individuals and groups spending large sums on public advertising affecting the public image of candidates during election seasons. However, in keeping with my first basic premise that reforms must pass the federal court test of constitutionality, I concluded that such a provision, in view of a long line of Supreme Court cases, likely would be declared unconstitutional, and thus I did not include the provision.

The McCain-Feingold bill was thoroughly debated in the Senate, and any objective observer of the Senate would agree that we are genuinely deadlocked. This body needs to move beyond the debate of McCain-Feingold. I hope that all Members will review my bill as an objective and pragmatic approach to current problems with our campaign system. I encourage other Members to come forward, as I have, with proposals which objectively represent pragmatic approaches to what can be solved in a constitutional manner—are the most pressing. Here are these problems, in no particular order, and my proposed solutions:

Problem 1: Politicians spend too much time fundraising, at the expense of their legislative duties for incumbents, and, for both incumbents and challengers, at the expense of debating the issues with voters.

Solution: The current individual contribution limit of $1,000 has not been raised, or even indexed for inflation, for over 20 years. This fact requires that candidates must spend more and more time seeking more and more donors. The limit should be doubled, as well as indexed for inflation.

Problem 2: The influence of voters on campaigns has been diminished by the activities of political action committees and interest groups.

Solutions: I propose a $100 tax credit for contributions made by citizens, with incomes under specified levels, to Senate and House candidates in their states: this credit should spark an influx of small dollar contributions to balance the greater ability of citizens with higher incomes to participate.

In addition, the increased individual contribution limit should balance the activities of political action committees.

Problem 3: The influence of voters on campaigns has been diminished by contributions from those not eligible to vote.

Solution: If you are not eligible to vote, you should not contribute to campaigns. My bill would prohibit contributions by those ineligible to vote, including non-citizens, children, and persons under felony convictions. It also codifies current regulations concerning political donations by domestic subsidiaries of foreign companies.

Problem 4: Compared to incumbents, challengers face greater difficulties raising funds and communicating with voters, particularly at the outset of a campaign.

Solutions: This legislation will allow candidates to receive "seed money" contributions of up to $10,000 from individuals and political action committees. This provision should help get candidates off the ground. The total amount of these "seed money" contributions could not exceed $100,000 for House candidates or $300,000 for Senate candidates. To meet the constitutional test, this provision would apply to both challengers and incumbents alike, but in the case of an incumbent with money carried over from a prior cycle, those funds would count against the seed money limit.

Second, Senate incumbents would be barred from using the franking privilege to send out mailings during the election year, rather than the sixty day ban in current law.

Problem 5: Candidates with personal wealth have a distinct advantage through their constitutional right to spend their own funds.

Solution: If a candidate spends more than $25,000 of his or her own money, the individual contribution limits would be raised to $10,000 so that candidates could raise money to counter that personal spending. Again, to meet constitutional review, this provision would apply to all candidates.

Problem 6: Current laws prohibiting fundraising activities on federal property are weak and insufficient.

Solution: The current ban on fundraising on federal property was written before the law created such terms as "hard" and "soft" money. This bill updates this law to require fundraisers to take place on federal property.

Problem 7: Reporting requirements and public access to disclosure statements are weak and inadequate.

Solutions: Under this proposal, the FEC would be required to post reports on the Internet for all to see, and to require that candidates, and groups making independent expenditures, make faster and more complete reports. In addition, registered lobbyists would be required to report their campaign contributions and those of their employer on their lobbyist disclosure reports.

Problem 8: The Federal Election Commission is in need of procedural and substantive reform.

Solutions: This legislation contains a number of procedural and substantive reforms of the FEC, including term limits for commissioners, and increases in penalties for serious violations.

Problem 9: The safeguards designed to protect the integrity of our elections are compromised by weak aspects of federal laws regulating voter registration and voting.
Solutions: The investigations of contested elections in Louisiana and California have revealed significant weaknesses in federal laws designed to safeguard the registration and voting processes. The requirement that states allow registration by mail has undermined confidence that only qualified voters are allowed to vote and only registering once: states should be allowed to decide whether to allow mail-in registrations. In addition, states should be allowed to require proof of citizenship when registering and proof of identity after voting: we require a photo ID to buy beer or cigarettes and can certainly allow states to protect the voting process by requiring a photo ID.

Lastly, this bill would allow states to purge inactive voters and to allow state law to govern whether voters who move without reregistering should be allowed to vote.

These are the problems which I believe can be solved in a bipartisan fashion. Attached to this statement is a section by section review of the legislation. I look forward to working with my colleagues to enact meaningful campaign reform, by looking at reform beyond the usual sound bites and adressing the real problems with our present campaign system.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill summary be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

CONSTITUTIONAL AND EFFECTIVE REFORM OF CAMPAIGNS ACT—SECTION-BY-SECTION

TITLE I—ENHANCEMENT OF CITIZEN INVOLVEMENT

Section 101: Prohibits those ineligible to vote (non-citizens, felons) from making contributions (‘hard money’) or donations (‘soft money’). Also bans foreign aliens making independent expenditures and codifies FEC regulations on foreign control of domestic donations.

Section 102: Updates maximum individual contribution limit to $200 per election (primary and general) and limits both individual and PAC limits in the future.

Section 103: Provides a tax credit up to $100 for contributions to in-state candidates for Senate and House for incomes up to $60,000 ($200 for jointfilers up to $120,000).

TITLE II—LEVELING THE PLAYING FIELD FOR CANDIDATES

Section 201: Seed money provision: Senate candidates may collect $500,000 and House candidates $100,000 (minus any funds carried over from a prior cycle) in contributions up to $1,000,000 from individuals and PAC’s. Section 202: ‘Anti-millionaires’ provision: when one candidate spends over $25,000 of personal funds, a candidate may accept contributions up to $10,000 from individuals and PAC’s up to the amount of personal spending minus a candidate’s funds carried over from a prior cycle. Section 203: Bans use of Senate frank for mass mailings from January 1 to election day for incumbents seeking reelection.

TITLE III—REMOVAL OF POLITICAL CONTRIBUTIONS

Section 301: Union dues provision: Labor organizations must obtain prior, written authorization for portion of dues or fees not to be used for representation: Establish civil action for coerced payments. Requires employers to post notice of rights. Amends reporting statute to require better disclosure of expenses unrelated to representation.

Section 302: Soft money contributions must disclose soft money donations in annual reports.

TITLE IV—ELIMINATION OF CAMPAIGN EXCUSES

Section 410: Adds soft money donations to present ban on fundraising on federal property and to other criminal statutes.

Section 420: Hard money contributions or soft money donations over $500 which a political committee intends to return because of illegality must be transferred to the FEC and may be given to the Treasury as part of a civil or criminal action.

Section 630: ‘Soft’ and ‘hard’ money provisions. Soft money cap: no national party, congressional committee or senatorial committee shall accept donations from any source exceeding $100,000 per year. Hard money increase: raised from $25,000 to $50,000 per individual per year with no sub-limit to party committees.

Section 640: Codifies FEC regulations banning conversion of campaign funds to personal use.

TITLE V—ENHANCED DISCLOSURE

Section 510: Additional reporting requirements for candidates: weekly reports for last month of reporting period and quarterly reports for contributions of large contributions extended to 90 days before election, and end of ‘best efforts’ waiver for failure to obtain occupation of contributors over $200.

Section 520: FEC shall make reports filed available on the Internet.

Section 530: 24-hour disclosure of independent expenditures over $1,000 in last 20 days before election, and of those over $10,000 made anytime.

Section 540: Registered lobbyists shall include their own contributions and soft money donations and those of their employers and the employers’ coordinated PAC’s on lobbyist disclosure forms.

TITLE VI—FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION

Section 610: FEC shall develop and provide, at no cost, software to file reports, and shall issue regulations mandating electronic filing and allowing for filing by fax.

Section 620: 24-hour disclosure of large contributions to 100 individuals, one quarter of the largest contributors, within a period of one year, and a menu of policy options developed in consultation with the FEC.

Section 630: Decreases the term of a commissioner from eight years to four.

Section 640: Increases penalties for knowing and willful violations of $5,000 or 30 percent of the contribution or expenditure.

Section 641: Requires that FEC create a schedule of penalties for minor reporting violations.

Section 650: Establishes availability of oral arguments at FEC when requested and two commissioners vote for oral arguments. Requires that FEC create index of Commission actions.

Section 660: Changes reporting cycle for committees to election cycle rather than calendar year.

Section 670: Classifies FEC general counsel and executive director as presidential appointments requiring Senate confirmation.

TITLE VII—IMPROVEMENTS TO NATIONAL VOTER REGISTRATION ACT

Section 701: Repeals requirement that states allow registration by mail.

Section 702: Requires that registrants for federal elections provide social security number and proof of citizenship.

Section 703: Provides states the option of removing registrants from eligible list of federal voters who have not voted in two federal elections and did not respond to postcard.

Section 704: Allows states to require photo ID at the polls.

Section 705: Repeals requirement that states allow people to change their registration at the polls and still vote.

By Mr. COCHRAN (for himself, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. COVERDELL, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. CLELAND, Mr. HOLLINGS, Mr. SHELBY, Mr. ROBB, and Mr. HUTCHINSON):

S. 1108. A bill to amend the Federal Crop Insurance Act to improve crop insurance coverage and administration, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

CROP INSURANCE EQUITY ACT OF 1999

Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. President, I am pleased to be joined today by my colleague from Arkansas, Mrs. Lincoln, Mr. Sessions and others in introducing the Crop Insurance Act of 1999 to reform the federal crop insurance program. The other cosponsors of the bill are: Mr. COVERDELL, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. CLELAND, Mr. HOLLINGS, Mr. SHELBY, Mr. ROBB, and Mr. HUTCHINSON.

The Crop Insurance Equity Act of 1999 is based on several principles. First, we do not believe that the current insurance program should be the next iteration of a farm bill. Therefore, this bill maintains the current policy with regard to federal subsidy for revenue insurance products.

This bill also establishes a fixed percentage as the federal contribution to a farmer’s crop insurance premium. Current law provides higher contributions for lower levels of coverage. This bill would treat all farmers fairly.

We believe that one of the simplest ways to make crop insurance more attractive is to make it operate more like other common forms of insurance, such as homeowners or auto insurance. This bill establishes a process of discounts and a menu of policy options from which farmers can choose. These include discounts for coverage of larger, less risky units of production, employment of technologically advanced agricultural management practices, and the reinstatement of good experience discounts. In addition, farmers will be able to choose whether to purchase specific coverages for protected planting, quality losses, and cost of production coverage.

Mr. President, this bill raises the basic coverage level for the lowest crop insurance unit—catastrophic. Catastrophic coverage is available to all farmers who will benefit from this legislation. For the same minimal fee as established in current law, this bill will provide catastrophic coverage for sixty percent of a farmer’s historical production at seventy percent of the market price.

Our bill also makes other important changes to the Crop Insurance program. It protects new farmers or those who rent new land or produce new crops by ensuring they are assigned a fair yield until they generate adequate actual production data.

The legislation improves the management and oversight of the crop insurance program by establishing the Farm Service Agency as the sole agency for acreage and yield record keeping within USDA. It restructures the board of directors of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation to include more farmers, and establishes a new office to work with private sector companies who develop new crop insurance products.

One of the major complaints that I have heard about crop insurance is the abuse and fraud that exists in the current program. To address this complaint, our bill also improves the monitoring of agents and adjusters to combat fraud. We also tighten the penalties available to USDA for companies, agents, and producers who engage in fraudulent activities.

I believe that we have developed a sound proposal which Senators will find good reason to support.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill and a summary of the legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the matter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1108

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, “TITLE I—CROP INSURANCE COVERAGE

SEC. 101. PREVENTED PLANTING.

Section 508(a) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

(7) PREVENTED PLANTING—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Corporation shall offer coverage for prevented planting of an agricultural commodity only as an endorsement to a policy.

(B) QUALITY ADJUSTMENT.—The Corporation shall—

(i) implement new rating methodologies for prevented planting coverage to include more actual production data.

(ii) assign a fair yield until they generate adequate actual production data.

(iii) ensure that the producer has been prevented from planting to the original agricultural commodity.

(C) PLANTING OF SUBSTITUTE AGRICULTURAL COMMODITY.—In the case of prevented planting coverage that is offered under this paragraph, the Corporation shall allow producers that have the coverage, and elect to receive a prevented planting indemnity, to plant an agricultural commodity other than the commodity covered by the prevented planting coverage, on or before the prevented planting date, and the results from the agricultural commodity not eligible to be covered by the prevented planting coverage are available, the Corporation shall offer an equal level of prevented planting coverage.

(D) INEQUALITY FOR COVERAGE.—A substitute agricultural commodity described in subparagraph (C) shall not be eligible for coverage under a plan of insurance under this title.

SEC. 102. ALTERNATIVE RATING METHODOLOGIES.

Section 508(a)(8) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)) (as amended by section 101) is amended by adding at the end the following:

(8) ALTERNATIVE RATING METHODOLOGIES—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than September 30, 2000, the Corporation shall develop and implement new rating methodologies for rating plans of insurance under subsections (b) and (c), and rates for the plans of insurance, that take into account—

(i) the largest average acreage; and

(ii) the lowest percentage of producers that purchased coverage under subsection (c).

(B) SCOPE.—The Corporation shall carry out the pilot program in at least 40 counties that are determined by the Corporation to be adequate to provide a comprehensive evaluation of the feasibility, effectiveness, and demand among producers for a low-risk producer program.

(C) QUALITY ADJUSTMENT POLICIES.—The Corporation shall promulgate such regulations as are necessary to carry out the pilot program.

SEC. 103. QUALITY ADJUSTMENT.

Section 508(a) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)) (as amended by section 102) is amended by adding at the end the following:

(9) QUALITY ADJUSTMENT POLICIES.—The Corporation shall offer, only as an endorsement to a policy, coverage that permits a reduction in the quantity of production of an agricultural commodity produced during a crop year, or any similar adjustment, that results from the agricultural commodity not meeting the quality standards established in the policy.

SEC. 104. LOW-RISK PRODUCER PILOT PROGRAM.

Section 508(a)(10) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)) (as amended by section 103) is amended by adding at the end the following:

(10) LOW-RISK PRODUCER PILOT PROGRAM.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—For each of the 2000 through 2003 crop years, the Corporation shall carry out a pilot program that is designed to encourage participation in the Federal crop insurance program established under this title by producers who rarely suffer insurable losses.

(B) SCOPE.—The Corporation shall carry out the pilot program in at least 40 counties that are determined by the Corporation to be adequate to provide a comprehensive evaluation of the feasibility, effectiveness, and demand among producers for a low-risk producer program.

(C) PREMIUM REFUND.—Notwithstanding section 508(a)(10)(A), if a producer participating in the pilot program incurs a yield loss in any crop year that is more than 10 percent but not more than 35 percent of the yield that is eligible under subsection (g), the Corporation shall—

(i) refund all or part, as determined by the Corporation, of the premium that was paid by the producer for a plan of insurance for the crop that incurred the qualifying loss; or

(ii) apply the amount to be refunded under clause (i) against the premium payable for the crop for the subsequent crop year.

(D) REGULATIONS.—The Corporation shall promulgate such regulations as are necessary to carry out the pilot program.

SEC. 105. CATASTROPHIC RISK PROTECTION.

Section 508(b)(2)(A) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(b)(2)(A)) is amended—

(i) the update the manner in which rates are applied to the individual producer level, as determined by the Corporation;

(ii) the largest average acreage; and

(iii) the lowest percentage of producers that purchased coverage under subsection (c).

SEC. 107. COST OF PRODUCTION PLANS OF INSURANCE.

(a) In General. Under Section 508(c) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(c)) is amended by striking paragraph (5) and inserting the following:

"(5) EXPECTED MARKET PRICE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—For the purposes of this title, the Corporation shall establish or approve the price level (referred to in this title as the "expected market price") of each agricultural commodity for which insurance is offered.

"(B) AMOUNT.—The expected market price of an agricultural commodity—

"(i) except as otherwise provided in this subparagraph, shall be not less than the projected market price of the agricultural commodity at the time of harvest, as determined by the Corporation;

"(ii) may be based on the actual market price of the agricultural commodity at the time of harvest, as determined by the Corporation; or

"(iii) in the case of cost of production or similar plans of insurance, shall be the projected cost of producing the agricultural commodity, as determined by the Corporation.

"(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 508(h) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(h)) is amended—

"(1) by striking paragraph (9); and

"(2) by redesignating paragraph (10) as paragraph (9).

SEC. 108. DISCOUNTS.

Section 508(d) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(d)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(B) AMOUNT.—The expected market price of an agricultural commodity—

"(i) except as otherwise provided in this subparagraph, shall be not less than the projected market price of the agricultural commodity at the time of harvest, as determined by the Corporation;

"(ii) may be based on the actual market price of the agricultural commodity at the time of harvest, as determined by the Corporation; or

SEC. 112. ACTUAL PRODUCTION HISTORY ADJUSTMENT FOR DISASTERS.

Section 508(h)(2) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(h)(2)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(E) SUBSTITUTION OF TRANSITIONAL YIELD.—Beginning with the 2000 crop year, if the producer's yield of an agricultural commodity in any crop year is less than 85 percent of the transitional yield established by the Corporation for the agricultural commodity, the Corporation shall, at the option of the producer, consider the producer's yield for the crop year to be 85 percent of the transitional yield.

"(F) CORPORATION'S SHARE OF COSTS.—In the case of any yield substitution under paragraph (E), in addition to any other authority to pay any portion of the premium and administrative expenses associated with the substitution, the Corporation shall—

"(i) the portion of the premium or indemnity that represents the increase in premium associated with the substitution of the transitional yield under subparagraph (E); and

"(ii) all additional indemnities associated with the substitution; and

"(iii) any amounts that result from the difference in the administrative and operating expenses owed to an approved insurance provider as the result of the substitution.

SEC. 113. PAYMENT OF PORTION OF PREMIUM.

Section 508(h)(2) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(h)(2)) is amended in the second sentence by inserting before the period at the end the following: ", except that the Corporation will pay any portion of the premium for any plan of insurance that offers coverage for losses associated with a change in price

SEC. 114. LIMITATION ON PREMIUMS INCLUDED IN UNDERWRITING GAINS.

Section 508(k) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(k)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

TITLE II—ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 201. BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF CORPORATION.

Section 505 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1505) is amended by striking subsection (a) and inserting the following:

"(a) BOARD OF DIRECTORS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The management of the Corporation shall be vested in a Board subject to the general supervision of the Secretary.

"(2) COMPOSITION.—The Board shall consist of—"(A) 4 members who are active agricultural producers with or without crop insurance, with 1 member appointed from each of the 4 regions of the United States (as determined by the Secretary);

"(B) 1 member who is active in the crop insurance business;

"(C) 1 member who is active in the reinsurance business;

"(D) the Under Secretary for Farm and Foreign Agricultural Services;

"(E) the Under Secretary for Rural Development; and

"(F) the Chief Economist of the Department of Agriculture.

"(3) APPOINTMENT AND TERMS OF PRIVATE SECTOR MEMBERS.—The members of the Board described in subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) of paragraph (2)—

"(A) shall be appointed by, and hold office at the pleasure of, the Secretary;

"(B) shall not be otherwise employed by the Federal Government;

"(C) shall be appointed to staggered 4-year terms, as determined by the Secretary; and

"(5) STAFF.—The Board shall employ or continue at least 1 or more persons who are knowledgeable and experienced in quantitative mathematics and actuarial rating to assist the Board in reviewing and approving all standardized materials with respect to plans of insurance authorized or submitted under section 508.".
SECTION 202. OFFICE OF RISK MANAGEMENT.
(a) HEADED BY AN ADMINISTRATOR.—Section 226(a)(1) of the Department of Agriculture Reorganization Act of 1994 (7 U.S.C. 6933(a)) is amended by striking ‘‘independent Office of Risk Management’’ and inserting ‘‘Office of Risk Management, which shall be under the direction of the Board of Directors of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation’’.

(b) FUNCTIONS.—Section 226A(b) of the Department of Agriculture Reorganization Act of 1994 (7 U.S.C. 6933(b)) is amended by striking paragraph (1) and inserting the following:

‘‘(1) Assistance to the Board in developing, reviewing, and recommending plans of insurance under section 508(a)(7) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)(7)) to ensure that each agricultural commodity (including each new or specialty crop) is adequately served by plans of insurance.’’

SEC. 203. OFFICE OF PRIVATE SECTOR PARTNERSHIP.
The Federal Crop Insurance Act is amended by inserting after section 1507 (7 U.S.C. 1507) the following:

‘‘SEC. 507A. OFFICE OF PRIVATE SECTOR PARTNERSHIP.
‘‘(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary shall establish and maintain in the Department an Office of Private Sector Partnership, which shall be under the direction of the Board.

‘‘(b) OFFICE OF PRIVATE SECTOR PARTNERSHIP.—(1) The Corporation shall provide for a mechanism to head up the Office of Private Sector Partnership.

‘‘(2) The Office of Private Sector Partnership shall provide for a mechanism to independently review the performance of loss adjusters.

‘‘(3) The Corporation shall submit an annual report to the Secretary, acting through the Farm Service Agency, concerning policies of the Office of Private Sector Partnership for the crop insurance participants, including policyholders, agents, and approved insurance providers, and other sources that the Office considers appropriate.

‘‘(4) The Office of Private Sector Partnership shall conduct an annual report to the Secretary, acting through the Farm Service Agency, concerning policies of the Office of Private Sector Partnership for the crop insurance participants, including policyholders, agents, and approved insurance providers, and other sources that the Office considers appropriate.

‘‘(5) ANNUAL REPORTS.—Beginning with fiscal year 2001, the Corporation shall submit an annual report to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate, the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives, the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate, the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate, the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives, concerning the compliance program established under this subsection, including any recommendations for legislative or administrative changes that could improve program compliance.’’

SEC. 204. PENALTIES FOR FALSE INFORMATION.
Section 506(b) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1506(b)) is amended—

SEC. 212. FLEXIBLE SUBSIDY PILOT PROGRAM.

Section 508(h) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(h)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(3) Reinsurance agreements.—

“(I) Each reinsurance agreement of the Corporation with a reinsured company shall require the reinsured company to bear a sufficient share of any potential losses resulting from adverse selection and other factors that cause rates to be less than the actual cost of insurance provided. The reinsurance agreement shall also require that the reinsured company will sell and service policies of insurance in a sound and prudent manner, considering the financial condition of the reinsured company and the availability of private reinsurance.

“(B) Compliance.—To promote program completeness and integrity, the Corporation shall:

“(i) require the reinsurance agreements with the reinsured companies to include the following:

“(II) may deposit any civil fines collected under section 508(h)(5)(B), civil fines under section 508(k)(3)(B)(ii)(I),” after “premium

CROP INSURANCE EQUITY ACT OF 1999—

Sec. 101.—Prevented Planting. Ensures that producers have the ability to reduce premium cost by giving them the option whether to choose prevented planting coverage for a commodity. Ensures that prevented planting coverage offered under the crop insurance program is equivalent among all commodities. Also eliminates current ‘black dirt’ requirements allowing producers who are prevented from planting their insured crop to receive the prevented planting indemnity but still plant another, uninsured crop on the same acreage without penalty. Amendment ensures that productive crop land is not idled because of crop insurance requirement.

Sec. 102.—Alternative Rating Methodologies. The preliminary conclusions from a review of current rating methodologies indicates that many of FCIC’s rates and rating procedures are outdated. The bill directs FCIC to develop and implement alternative methodologies for rating insurance plans by September 30, 2000, that takes into account the costs of the insurance to be provided and the extent to which the insurable risk is the result of adverse selection. The bill directs FCIC to develop and implement alternative methodologies and rates by the 2001 crop year, based on expected future losses (adjusted to correct for adverse selection and old data), program errors and other factors that can cause errors in methodologies and rates. The bill requires FCIC to implement the rating methodologies in a manner that results in the lowest premium payable by producers of a commodity in a particular geographic area. Priority will be given to those commodities within the same level of participation in buy-up coverage plans.

Sec. 103.—Quality Adjustment. Ensures that quality adjustment coverage is offered as an optional coverage.

Sec. 104.—Low-risk producer pilot program. Establishes a pilot program designed to encourage participation in crop insurance by producers who rarely suffer insurable losses. Participating producers would receive a reduction in their premium payable if they incur a yield loss greater than 15%, but not great enough to trigger an indemnity.

Sec. 105.—Catastrophic Risk Protection. Increases the coverage level for catastrophic coverage to 60% of APH at 70% of the price. Otherwise, the reductions required underinsuring gains and unearned loss adjustment expenses being generated as a result of CAT coverages.

Sec. 106.—Cost of Production plans of Insurance. Provides permanent authority for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation to provide cost of production and revenue insurance coverage.

Sec. 107.—Records. The bill requires FCIC to retain records to provide discounts for production practices that reduce the risk of loss and for insurance services that offer larger, more cost-effective insurable units.

Sec. 109.—Adjustment to Subsidy Levels. The bill provides for 50% subsidization of all levels of buy-up coverage.

Sec. 110.—Sales Closing Dates. The bill restores flexiability to FCIC in determining sales closing dates.

Sec. 111.—As-Installed Yields. Ensures that beginning farmers or farmers who rent new land or produce new crops will be assigned a full yield.

Sec. 112.—Actual Production history adjustment for disasters. Requires FCIC to adjust APL yields for producers who suffer multi-year disasters by directing FCIC to assign a yield equal to 85% of the county transition yield for any year in which a producer’s yield falls below that 85% level.

Sec. 113.—Payment of Portion of Premium. Prohibits FCIC from subsidizing revenue or price insurance policies.

Sec. 114.—Limitation on Underwriting Gains. The bill limits the amounts of underwriting gains companies can make on catastrophic policies to 50 percent of the premium.

TITLE II

Sec. 201.—Board of Directors of Corporations. Expands the board to include 4 producers from 4 regions of the United States, 1 person engaged in the crop insurance business, 1 person engaged in reinsurance, the Undersecretary for Farm and Foreign Agricultural Services, the Under Secretary for Rural Development and the Chief Economist of the Department of Agriculture.

Sec. 202.—Office of Risk Management. Clarifies that the FCIC board of directors shall have direct oversight of RMA.

Sec. 203.—Office of Private Sector Partnership. Establishes the Office of Private Sector Partnership, reporting directly to the FCIC and OPM. The OPSP will have the authority to review and make recommendations on both privately and RMA-developed policies. It will also have the authority to improve insurance review and make recommendations concerning subsidy for new crop policies and, with board concurrence, approve new rating structures.

Sec. 204.—Penalties for false information. Allows anyone convicted of providing false information in connection with any crop insurance claim to be disbarred from all USDA programs.

Sec. 205.—Regulations. Allows certain RMA rulemaking activities to be exempted from the Administrative Procedures Act and other federal statutes.

Sec. 206.—Program Compliance. The bill enhances the compliance authority of FCIC by 1) requiring FCIC to develop and implement an effective program for monitoring program compliance by all crop insurance participants; and 2) requiring regular oversight of loss adjusters.

Sec. 207.—Payment of rebates to cooperative associations. Allows the payment of rebates to cooperatives who engage in the sale of crop insurance.

Sec. 208.—Limitation on Double Insurance. Prohibits purchasing insurance for two crops on the same acreage where there is an established practice of double-cropping.

Sec. 209.—Consultation with state committees of farm service and other agencies. Requires FCIC to consult with state FSA committees on the feasibility of polices of insurance being offered in their state.

Sec. 210.—Records and reporting. The bill strengthens requirements for accurate recordkeeping and reporting of crop production by participants and non-participants in crop insurance.

Sec. 211—Fees for plans of insurance. Establishes a system of payment for the sale of policies developed by other companies.

Sec. 212—Flexible subsidy pilot program. Provides for the creation of a flexible subsidy program for the 2000–2002 crop years.

Sec. 213—Reinsurance Agreements. Provides for the purchase of reinsurance for crop insurance programs.

Sec. 214—Funding. Makes necessary adjustments in funding provisions to take into account the establishment of the Office of Private Sector Partnership.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I am pleased to be here today with my colleague from Mississippi, Senator Cochran, to introduce the Crop Insurance Equity Act of 1999. We believe this bill makes insurance delivery, major reinsurance difficulties, and requires a regular review of the Standard Reinsurance Agreement.

As we all know, the government’s role in farm programs has changed. The 1996 Farm Bill phased out traditional support for our farmers, and current farm programs require producers to assume more risk than ever before. Due to the Ag economic crisis, there has been much discussion lately on the issue of the “safety net” for our nation’s producers. On that point I would like to be perfectly clear. Crop insurance is a risk management tool to help producers guard against yield loss. It was not created and was never intended to be the end all be all solution for the income needs of our nation’s producers. As the crop insurance reform debate proceeds, I am hopeful that my colleagues will be cognizant of the various needs in the agriculture community and less and less while the American rice industry was reassured and you haven’t had a week or a ticket over a significant period of time, then your premium is reduced. Crop insurance should not be any different.

The bill also provides for a more equitable subsidy method by setting the premium discount for crop insurance premiums at a flat rate, regardless of the level of coverage a producer purchases. Current law provides higher levels of federal subsidy to producers who purchase the lowest levels of coverage.

In an attempt to improve the record keeping process within USDA, this legislation establishes the Farm Service Agency (FSA) as the central repository for all acreage and yield record keeping. Current USDA record keeping, split between FSA and RMA, is redundant and insufficient. By including both crop insurance program participants and non-program participants in the process, we hope to enhance the agricultural data held by the agency and make record keeping levels of a hassle for already overburdened producers.

In addition, this bill establishes a role for consultation with state FSA committees in the introduction of new crop insurance programs. The need for this provision was made abundantly clear to Arkansas’ rice producers this spring.

A private insurance policy was offered to farmers at one rate, only to have the company reduce the rate once the market was realized. In my discussions with various executives from the company on this issue it became apparent that their knowledge of the rice industry was fairly minimal. Had they consulted with local FSA committees who had a working knowledge of the rice industry before introduction of the policy, the train wreck that occurred might have been stopped in its tracks.

Many of the problems associated with the crop insurance program have been addressed in previous reform measures, however, fraud and abuses are still present to some degree. This bill strengthens the monitoring of agents and adjusters to combat fraud and enhances the penalties available to USDA for companies, agents and producers who engage in fraudulent activities. There is simply no room for bad actors that recklessly cost the taxpayers money.

While this bill was crafted with the input of producers from Arkansas and Mississippi, there is no preferential treatment toward any commodity or geographic region. We have attempted to include provisions that will make the crop insurance program more effective across the nation. We hope that we have achieved this goal and look forward to working with our colleagues to address any measures that will make the crop insurance program more effective.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that letters of support for this bill be included in the RECORD from the following commodity organizations: The National Cotton Council, USA Rice Federation, American Sugar Cane League, the Southern Peanut Farmers Federation and the Alabama Farmers Federation.

These organizations have been very helpful in the drafting of this bill and we certainly appreciate the input they have provided.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DEAR SENATORS COCHRAN AND LINCOLN: On behalf of the American Sugar Cane League of the U.S.A., Inc., which represents the entire sugar producing and processing industry in the state of Louisiana, I offer to you our full support of your efforts to improve the crop insurance with the introduction of the Crop Insurance Equity Act of 1999. Agriculture in this great country has been in a crisis mode for the last several years and the federal crop insurance program, as it is presently structured, is of limited or no utility to our growers.

In particular, we are pleased with the language which directs the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (PCIC) to review the rating methodologies, giving high priority to those commodities with the lowest level of participation. Due to the inherent problems with the program, as presently structured, sugar-cane growers in Louisiana have not considered crop insurance an affordable or viable management tool. Again, it is with great enthusiasm that we support this bill which we hope will benefit the entire agricultural community and our industry, and allow us the opportunity to have available to us a viable risk management tool that is affordable.

We appreciate tremendously your initiative with this bill language which seeks to make crop insurance more useful for southern commodities. The Louisiana sugar-cane industry will continue to review the reasons that crop insurance has not worked thus far...
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

S. 1109. A bill to conserve global bear populations by prohibiting the importation, exportation, and interstate trade of bear viscera and items, products, or substances containing, or labeled or advertised as containing, bear viscera, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

THE BEAR PROTECTION ACT

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Bear Protection Act. This legislation, which I sponsored in the 105th Congress, is aimed at eliminating the poaching of America’s bears for profit. As you may know, bear parts, such as gall bladders and bile, which are commonly referred to as viscerum, have traditionally been used in myriad Asian medicines—for everything from diabetes to heart disease to hangovers, and in luxury shampoos and cosmetics. Due to the popularity of these products containing bear viscerum, Asian bear populations have been decimated, causing poachers to run to American bears to meet the increasing demand.

Mr. President, the practice of poaching bears for viscerum is both a national and international problem. Asian and American bear populations are threatened by high demand and low supply of bear parts and by the black market trade in exotic and traditional and would like to reserve the option to make additional comments to you as the process moves forward. Thanks again for taking on a challenge that stands to give American agribusiness what the rest of the manufacturing and business community of this country has always had—a viable and affordable risk management tool.

Sincerely,

CHARLES J. MELANSON,
President and General Manager.

NATIONAL COTTON COUNCIL OF AMERICA,
May 18, 1999.

Hon. THAD COCHRAN,
Hon. BLANCHE LINCOLN,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Dear Senators Cochran and Lincoln: On behalf of the National Cotton Council, I would like to convey our sincere appreciation and strong support for your efforts to improve the Federal crop insurance program.

The legislation that you are about to introduce, The Crop Insurance Equity Act of 1999, makes many needed changes to the program, improves compliance, and should increase participation as well.

The profitability crisis we are experiencing in American agriculture and the policy direction we have taken on farm programs has greatly increased the cotton industry's interest in more sound risk management tools to help weather the tough times. Your legislation takes a very comprehensive approach towards improving the current system. We are especially pleased with your provisions that will result in a reformed rating and policy process that significantly improves record keeping requirements through the Farm Service Agency, equitable prevented planting coverage for all crops, and a streamlined private product approval process.

Finally, we appreciate the efforts of Hunt Shipman and Ben Noble on your staffs who worked tirelessly with the cotton industry to include provisions that would make the program more equitable for all commodities. They are both an asset to your offices.

Thank you again for your efforts and all you do for our industry. We look forward to working with you any way we can to insure passage of your bill.

Sincerely,

RON RAYER,
President, National Cotton Council,
ALLEN HELMS,
Chairman, American Cotton Producers Association.

USA RICE FEDERATION

Hon. BLANCHE LAMBERT LINCOLN,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Dear Senator Lincoln: On behalf of the USA Rice Federation, which represents producers of over 80 percent of America’s rice crop and virtually all U.S. rice millers, I would like to express our appreciation for the leadership that you and Senator Cochran have provided on the issue of reforming Federal crop insurance. Specifically, we want to express our strong support for the Crop Insurance Equity Act of 1999 which represents a positive direction in addressing the concerns that U.S. rice producers have had with the existing crop insurance program.

As you probably are aware, most rice producers have not participated in the Federal crop insurance program because premiums have been viewed as too high relative to the minimal coverage the program offers. During the 1998 crop year, only 43 percent of 3 million acres planted to rice was covered by catastrophic policies while only another 20 percent of the acreage was covered by buy-up policies. In general, the low level of participation by U.S. rice farmers has occurred because: CAT coverage offers farmers minimal coverage and buy-up policies are too expensive; ari ditional data that are used to calculate premiums are more relevant to cat risk than to insurance risk; and rice farmers, who traditionally experienced relatively low levels of yield variability, want price/revenue protection versus traditional yield coverage. We believe that the Crop Insurance Equity Act begins to seriously address each of these three major issues.

Again, Senator Lincoln, we want to thank you and your staff for working so closely with the USA Rice Federation during the development of this important bill. We are proud to support this bill and look forward to working with you to enact the legislation in 1999.

Sincerely,

A. ELLEN TERPSTRA,
President and Chief Executive Officer.

THE REDDING FIRM,
333 MASSACHUSETTS AVENUE, N.E., WASHINGTON, DC

We are very appreciative of Senators Cochran and Lincoln taking the lead on reforming the Federal Crop Insurance Program. Growers in the Southeast want sound product options that are affordable. The Cochran-Lincoln bill moves crop insurance in this direction. Disaster bills do not adequately address the problems growers face in a bad crop year. Crop insurance has to be reformed where growers can plan and address difficult financial times.

The problem is compounded by the fact that the poaching of bears for their viscera is a very profitable enterprise, which on average, at least 18 Asian countries are known to participate. In fact, bear gall bladders in South Korea, for instance, are worth more than their weight in gold, fetching a price of about $10,000 a piece.

Mr. President, each year, nearly 40,000 black bears are legally hunted in 36 States and Canada. Unfortunately, it has been estimated that roughly the same number is illegally poached every year, according to a former chief law enforcement officer with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. While I am pleased to report that for the most part, U.S. bear populations have remained stable or are increasing, I continue to remain concerned about the threat of unchecked poaching.

Since 1981, State and Federal wildlife agents have conducted many successful undercover operations to attempt to expose the illegal slaughter of American bears. As recently as this past February, State and Federal officers arrested 25 people in Virginia and charged them with 112 wildlife violations including bear poaching as part of Operations SOUP, or “Special Operation to Uncover Poaching.” Operation SOUP is a major undercover investigation, which has been ongoing for three years and is aimed at the trafficking of gall bladders and other bear parts from black bears in Virginia and Shenandoah National Park.

Mr. President, I have with me two press releases from the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fishing, as well as an article from the Washington Post which I would like to have placed in the RECORD.

Mr. President, these and other news reports will attest, this problem with poaching and trading bear parts must be addressed. Although many States and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service are making efforts to combat this problem, these agencies have neither the funds nor the resources to adequately solve the problem. Moreover, there are loopholes created by a patchwork of State laws that allow these illegal practices to flourish. There are fourteen States in which the sale of bear gall bladders is legal—eight of those States limit the sale to viscera taken from bears in other States, and there are five States that have no law in this regard. This patchwork of State laws enables poachers to "laundry" the gall through the States that permit the sale of gall bladders. As long as a few States allow this action to go on, poaching for profit will continue.

Mr. President, as I mentioned earlier, this is both a national and international trade problem, and it is a growing problem. The Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES), to which the United States is a party, has recognized the issue of bear conservation as a global issue. In fact, CITES has noted that "the continued illegal trade is bear parts and derivatives of bear parts undermines the effectiveness of the Convention and that if CITES parties . . . do not take action to eliminate such trade, poaching may cause declines of wild bears that could lead to the extirpation of certain populations or even species.” The Convention goes on to say that in order to achieve this goal, “submitted and measurable action” must be taken—this includes adopting national legislation.

I would like to point out that members of the U.S. delegation to the CITES Convention contributed to the drafting of that resolution, and in doing so, made a strong statement about the need to strengthen our national laws in addressing the poaching of bears. Recently, the Secretariat pointed out that bear poaching is most likely to flourish in countries that have inconsistent internal trade, import, and export controls. In such instances where there are differences in national, Federal, and State laws, the Secretariat asserts that confusion and enforcement difficulties arise which will contribute to the availability of bear viscera that can become available for international trade.

Mr. President, in order to halt the poaching of America’s bears, we need to effectuate legislation that not only prohibits the import and export of bear viscera, but we need to close the loopholes in State laws that encourage poachers to evade the law. To effectively reduce the laundering of bear viscera through the United States, all States must have a minimum level of protection. We must also stop the import and export of bear viscera, so that we can ensure that all international trade before America’s bear populations suffer the same fate as Asian bear populations.

The Bear Protection Act will do just that. It will establish national guidelines for trade in bear parts, but will not weaken any existing state laws that have been instituted to deal with this issue. The outright ban on the trade, sale or barter of bear viscera, including items that claim to contain bear parts, will close the existing loopholes and will allow State and Federal wildlife officials to focus their limited resources on much needed conservation efforts.

Mr. President, let me underscore that my bill would in no way infringe on the rights of hunters to legally hunt bears. These sportmen would still be allowed to keep trophies and furs of bears killed during legal hunts.

The Bear Protection Act will also bolster efforts to curtail the international bear trade by directing the Secretaries of the Interior and State, as well as the United States Trade Representative to establish a dialogue with the counties that share our interest in conserving bear species. This, too, is an important element of the legislation because I believe efforts to both reduce the demand for bear parts in Asia and encourage the increased usage of synthetic and other natural products as an alternative to bear gall should be made a priority.

Mr. President, it is important that we act now to protect the American bear population. The United States must take a stand and be an example to the rest of the world by prohibiting the illegal taking and smuggling of American bears. If we act now, we can stop the poaching of bears, which left unchecked, will lead us down a path toward these magnificent creatures’ extinction. That is why I urge my colleagues to join me in support of this worthwhile legislation.

Mr. President, I ask that the full text of my legislation and additional material to be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Bear Protection Act of 1999.”

SEC. 2. FINDINGS. Congress finds that—

(1) all 8 extant species of bear—Asian black bear, brown bear, polar bear, American black bear, spectacled bear, giant panda, sun bear, and sloth bear—are listed on Appendix I or II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (27 UST 1067; TIAS 8249) (referred to in this section as “CITES”);

(2) Article XIV of CITES provides that Parties to CITES may adopt domestic measures regarding the conditions for trade, taking, possession, or transport of species on Appendix I or II, and the Parties to CITES adopted a resolution after the Parties to CITES (Conf. 10.8) urged Parties to take immediate action to demonstrably reduce the illegal trade in bear parts and derivatives;

(3) the Asian bear populations have declined significantly in recent years, as a result of habitat loss and poaching due to a strong demand for bear viscera used in traditional medicines and cosmetics;

(4) Federal and State undercover operations have revealed that American bears have been poached for their viscera;

(5) while most American black bear populations are generally stable or increasing, commercial trade could stimulate poaching and threaten certain populations if the demand for bear viscera increases; and

(6) prohibitions against the importation into the United States and exportation from the United States, as well as prohibitions against the interstate trade in bear viscera and products containing, or labeled or advertised as containing, bear viscera will assist in ensuring that the United States does not contribute to the decline in bear populations as a result of the commercial trade in bear viscera.

SEC. 3. PURPOSES. The purpose of this Act is to ensure the long-term viability of the world’s 8 bear species by—
May 24, 1999

(1) prohibiting international trade in bear viscera, and any product, item, or substance containing, or labeled or advertised as containing, bear viscera;
(2) encouraging bilateral and multilateral efforts to eliminate such trade; and
(3) ensuring that adequate Federal legislation concerning trade with respect to domestic trade in bear viscera and products containing, or labeled or advertised as containing, bear viscera.

SEC. 4. DEFINITIONS. In this Act:

(1) BEAR VISCERA.—The term ‘‘bear viscera’’ means the body fluids or internal organs, including the gallbladder and its contents but not including blood or brains, of a species of bear.

(2) IMPORT.—The term ‘‘import’’ means to land on, bring into, or introduce into any place subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, whether or not the landing, bringing, or introduction constitutes an import within the meaning of the customs laws of the United States.

(3) PERSON.—The term ‘‘person’’ means—

(A) an individual, firm, association, body politic or corporate, partnership, trust, trust association, or other private entity;

(B) an officer, employee, agent, department, or instrumentality of—

(i) a State, municipality, or political subdivision of a State; or

(ii) any foreign government;

(C) a State, municipality, or political subdivision of a State; and

(D) any other entity subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

(4) SECRETARY.—The term ‘‘Secretary’’ means the Secretary of the Interior.

(5) STATE.—The term ‘‘State’’ means a State, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, American Samoa, and any other territory, commonwealth, or possession of the United States.

(6) TRANSPORT.—The term ‘‘transport’’ means to move, convey, carry, or ship by any means, or to deliver or receive for the purpose of movement, conveyance, carriage, or shipment.

SEC. 5. PROHIBITED ACTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b) or (c) of this section, no person shall—

(1) import into, or export from, the United States any bear viscera or any product, item, or substance containing, or labeled or advertised as containing, bear viscera; or

(2) sell or barter, offer to sell or barter, purchase, possess, transport, deliver, or receive, in interstate or foreign commerce, bear viscera or any product, item, or substance containing, or labeled or advertised as containing, bear viscera.

(b) EXCEPTION FOR WILDLIFE LAW ENFORCEMENT PURPOSES.—A person described in subparagraph (B) or (C) of section 4(3) may import into, or export from, the United States, or transport between States, bear viscera or any product, item, or substance containing, or labeled or advertised as containing, bear viscera if the importation, exportation, or transportation is for a law enforcement purpose.

(c) PENALTIES AND ENFORCEMENT.

(a) CRIMINAL PENALTIES.—A person that violates section 5 shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both.

(b) CIVIL PENALTIES.—

(1) AMOUNT.—A person that knowingly violates section 5 may be assessed a civil penalty by the Secretary of not more than $25,000 for each violation.

(2) MANNER OF ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTION.—A civil penalty under this subsection shall be assessed and may be collected, and the manner in which a civil penalty under the Endangered Species Act of 1973 may be assessed and collected under section 11(a) of that Act. This subsection shall be administered as necessary to carry out this section.

(c) PRODUCTS, ITEMS, AND SUBSTANCES.—Any bear viscera, or any product, item, or substance sold, imported, or exported, or attempted to be sold, imported, or exported, in violation of this section (including any regulation issued under this section) shall be seized and forfeited to the United States.

(d) REGULATIONS.—After consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, and the United States Trade Representative, the Secretary shall issue such regulations as are necessary to carry out this section.

(e) ENFORCEMENT.—The Secretary, the Secretary of State, and the United States Trade Representative shall, when necessary in the performance of their official duties, enforce this Act and any regulation issued pursuant to this Act.

SEC. 6. PENALTIES AND ENFORCEMENT.

(a) CRIMINAL PENALTIES.—A person that violates section 5 shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both.

(b) CIVIL PENALTIES.—

(1) AMOUNT.—A person that knowingly violates section 5 may be assessed a civil penalty by the Secretary of not more than $25,000 for each violation.

(2) MANNER OF ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTION.—A civil penalty under this subsection shall be assessed and may be collected, and the manner in which a civil penalty under the Endangered Species Act of 1973 may be assessed and collected under section 11(a) of that Act. This subsection shall be administered as necessary to carry out this section.

SEC. 7. DISCUSSIONS CONCERNING TRADE PRACTICES.

The Secretary and the Secretary of State shall discuss issues involving trade in bear viscera with the appropriate representatives of countries trading with the United States that are determined by the Secretary and the United States Trade Representative to be the business community, or consumers of bear viscera, and attempt to establish coordinated efforts with the countries to protect bears.

SEC. 8. REPORT.

Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary, in cooperation with appropriate State agencies, shall submit to the Committee on Resources of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Environment and Public Works of the Senate a report detailing the progress of efforts to end the illegal trade in bear viscera.

SEC. 9. IMPLEMENTATION.

The Secretary shall implement this Act in accordance with regulations that are necessary to carry out this enactment and which are consistent with the purposes of this Act.

SEC. 10. CONSTRUCTION.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect any law relating to bear poaching and illegal trade in bear products.
Virginia. They were issued on a combination of home and vehicles, and were five vehicles, several freezers, and an assortment of bear parts, firearms, and cash. Federal felony indictments may be forthcoming in the days and months ahead. These arrests made on Monday have nationwide implications with trafficking of bear parts. Additional details will be released as they become available.

The third prong of Operation SOUP has targeted the poachers themselves. These individuals are associated with specific groups that are known as a source of bear parts for commercial trade. On Monday, 22 individuals were arrested and charged with a total of 107 state wildlife violations. Although bear may be legally taken in Virginia by legitimate sportsmen, these individuals are accused of using illegal hunting practices to harvest bears. Undercover investigations in this portion of the operation indicated that some of these individuals may also have engaged in bear poaching within Shenandoah National Park where it is unlawful to hunt. This investigation and its result in federal indictments for illegal hunting within the park is being passed down in the weeks or months ahead.

At the heart of Operation SOUP are concerns about an international problem that has a toehold in Virginia. The bear gall bladder trade is a worldwide industry driven by the demand for its use in traditional Asian medicine. Many people from Asian cultures believe bear parts, particularly the gall bladder, have medicinal value for treating and preventing a variety of ailments. A single gall bladder can be sold at auction overseas for thousands of dollars. Dried, ground and sold by the gram, bear gall bladders have a street value greater than cocaine. In this operation, 300 gall bladders were purchased or seized with an estimated U.S. value of $75,000 and an international value of more than $3 million dollars. Bear paws also have high commercial value. Bear paws are purchased as an ingredient in Bear Paw Soup, considered a delicacy in some ethnic Asian restaurants. A single bowl of this soup can sell for hundreds of dollars overseas. The serious decline in the Asian black bear population has led to a black market for bear parts being targeted for this trade. The government agencies behind Operation SOUP are deeply concerned about these activities and will continue to investigate illegal bear poaching and trafficking of bear parts.

BEAR POACHING ON RISE ON SHENANDOAH REGION
By Maria Golub and Leif Smith

It was early January when the call came in on Jeffrey Pascale's unlisted phone line: The goods were available. Was he interested? A date was set, and Pascale agreed to meet James Presgraves at a roadside dinner in Jefferson County. Presgraves' black bear — which he allegedly removed an assortment of bear gall bladders from the freezer and Pascale, an undercover U.S. Park Ranger, paid him $25 for six bear parts.

The purchase of the bear organs was documented last month in affidavits filed in U.S. District Court in Roanoke, Pascale met six times during 1997 and 1998 with Bonnie Sue and Danny Ray Baldwin at their home in Sperryville, Va., to purchase bear gall bladders and paws.

During the course of his investigation, according to the affidavit filed in support of a search warrant issued by the Baldwin's, Presgraves told Pascale they had been in business for 13 years, selling about 300 gall bladders annually to customers in Maryland, New York and the District of Columbia.

According to court records, the Baldwins said they obtained their bear parts from several sources including hunting clubs, farmers and dealers, as well as from the bears that Danny Baldwin bagged by hunting or trapping.
that legal trade does not provide a conduit for illegal trade in parts and derivatives of Appendix I bears, and to increase public awareness of CITES trade controls;
(b) encouraging bear range and consumer countries that are not party to CITES to adopt the Convention as a matter of urgency;
(c) providing funds for research on the status of endangered bears, especially Asian species;
(d) working with traditional-medicine communities to reduce demand for bear parts and derivatives, including the active promotion of research on and use of alternatives and substitutes that do not endanger other wild species; and
(e) developing programmes in co-operation with traditional-medicine communities and conservation organizations to increase public awareness and industry knowledge about the conservation concerns associated with the trade in bear specimens and the need for stronger domestic trade controls and conservation measures.

Calls upon all governments and intergovernmental organizations, international aid agencies and non-governmental organizations to increase public awareness and provide other assistance to stop the illegal trade in bear parts and derivatives and to ensure the survival of all bear species.

By Mr. LOTT:
S. 1110. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to establish the National Institute of Biomedical Imaging and Engineering Establishment Act.

The bill would create a concentrated focus at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) on biomedical imaging and biomedical engineering.

Imaging has been on the forefront of many of our advances in early diagnosis and treatment of disease. Innovative technologies have greatly reduced the need for invasive surgery and provided a remarkable tool for early detection of disease. Breakthroughs in imaging research have direct application to advances in molecular biology and molecular genetics, accelerating the development of new gene therapies and genetic screening.

Despite the revolutionary influence of imaging on both research and treatment, the NIH traditionally has not concentrated basic research efforts on the imaging sciences. The bill I am introducing today ensures that research is now concentrated in this important field, but that its applications are disseminated across disease fields. The bill also encourages information sharing among federal agencies. Many agencies, such as NASA, do basic imaging research. We should be committed to ensuring that all advances that have applications in our fight against disease are shared with our medical community.

medical imaging and engineering research.

medical imaging and engineering and who are not officers or employees of the United States; and

``(B) 6 members shall be scientists, engineers, physicians, and other health professionals who represent other disciplines and are knowledgeable about the applications of biomedical imaging and engineering in medicine, who are not officers or employees of the United States.

``(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—
``(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2),
the purpose of carrying out this section:

``(A) For fiscal year 2000, there is authorized to be appropriated an amount equal to the appropriation made for such year under subparagraph (A) for fiscal year 2000, except that such amount shall be adjusted for any inflation occurring after October 1, 1999.

``(B) For each of the fiscal years 2001 and 2002, there is authorized to be appropriated an amount equal to the amount appropriated under subparagraph (A) for fiscal year 2000, except that such amount shall be adjusted for the fiscal year involved to offset any in-fiation occurring after October 1, 1999.

``(2) REPETITION.—The authorization of pro-appropriations for a fiscal year under paragraph (1) is hereby reduced by the amount of any appropriation made for such year for the conduct of any project by any other national research institute of any program with respect to biomedical imaging and engineering.

``(b) RESOURCE.—In providing for the establishment of the National Institute of Biomedical Imaging and Engineering pursuant to the amendment made by subsec-section (a) of section 464Z of such Act (as added by subsection (a) of this section), the plan shall include such recommendations as the Director determines to be appropriate;

``(2) may, for quarters for such Institute, utilize such funds as the Director determines to be appropriate; and ``(3) may obtain administrative support for the Institute from the other agencies of the NIH, including the other national research institutes.

``(c) CONSTRUCTION OF FACILITIES.—None of the provisions of this Act or the amendments made by the Act may be construed as authorizing the construction of facilities, or the acquisition of land, for purposes of the establishment or operation of the National Institute of Biomedical Imaging and Engineering.

``(d) DATES CERTAIN FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF ADVISORY COUNCIL.—Not later than 90 days after the effective date of this Act, the Sec-detary of Health and Human Services shall complete the establishment of an advisory council for the National Institute of Biomedical Imaging and Engineering in accordance with section 406 of the Public Health Service Act and in accordance with section 442 of such Act (as added by subsection (a) of this section).

``(1) In general.—Subject to paragraph (2),
the purpose of carrying out this section:

``(A) 6 members shall be scientists, engi-eers, physicians, and other health professionals who represent disciplines in biomedical imaging and engineering and who are not officers or employees of the United States; and

eers, physicians, and other health professionals who represent other disciplines and are knowledgeable about the applications of biomedical imaging and engineering in medicine, who are not officers or employees of the United States.

``(2) of such members:

``(A) 3 members shall be scientists, engi-eers, physicians, and other health professionals who represent disciplines in biomedical imaging and engineering and who are not officers or employees of the United States; and

``(B) 3 members shall be scientists, engi-eers, physicians, and other health professionals who represent other disciplines and are knowledgeable about the applications of biomedical imaging and engineering in medicine, who are not officers or employees of the United States.

``(3) EX OFFICIO MEMBERS.—In addition to the ex officio members specified in section 406(b), the ex officio members of the advisory council shall include the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the Director of the National Science Foundation, and the Director of the National Institute of Standards and Technology (or the designees of such officers).

``(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—
``(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), for the purpose of carrying out this section:

``(A) For fiscal year 2000, there is authorized to be appropriated an amount equal to the level by the small business delegates will need to be thorough and thoughtful to make the National Conference a success.

My goal will be for the small business delegates to think broadly, that is, to think “out of the box.” Their attention should include not but not be restricted to the traditional issues associated with small business concerns, such as access to capital, tax reform and regulatory reform.

In my role as Chairman of the Committee on Small Business, I will urge the delegates to focus on a wide array of issues that impact significantly on small businesses, including the importance of a solid education and the need for skilled, trained workers.

Once the small business delegates are selected, the National Commission on Small Business will serve as a resource to the delegates for issue development and for planning the State Conferences. The National Commission will have a modest staff, including an Executive Director, that will work full time to make the State and National Conferences a major resource to the National Commission and its staff will be the Chief Counsel for Advocacy from SBA. The Chief Counsel and the Office of Advocacy will serve as a major resource to the National Commission, and in turn, to the small business delegates, by providing them with both substantive background information and other administrative materials in support of the State and National Conferences.

Mr. President, small businesses generally do not have the resources to maintain full time representatives to lobby our Federal government. They are too busy running their businesses to devote much attention to educating government officials as to what is going well, what is going poorly, and what needs improvement for the small business community. The National Conference on Small Business will give small businesses an opportunity every four years to make its mark on the Congress and the Executive Branch.

I urge each of my colleagues to review this proposal, and I hope they will agree to join me as cosponsors of the “National Conference on Small Business Act.”

I ask unanimous consent that the full text of the bill and the section-by-section analysis be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “National Conference on Small Business Act”.

SEC. 2. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act—

(1) the term “Administrator” means the Administrator of the Small Business Administration;

(2) the term “Chief Counsel” means the Chief Counsel for Advocacy of the Small Business Administration;

(3) the term “National Commission” means the National Commission on Small Business established under section 4;

(4) the term “National Conference” means the National Conference on Small Business conducted under section 3(a); and

(5) includes the last White House Conference on Small Business occurring before 2002.

The term “small business” has the meaning given the term “small business concern” under section 3 of the Small Business Act;

(6) the term “State” means any of the 50 States of the United States; and

(7) the term “State Conference” means a State Conference on Small Business conducted under section 5(b).

SEC. 3. NATIONAL AND STATE CONFERENCES ON SMALL BUSINESS.

(a) NATIONAL CONFERENCES.—There shall be a National Conference on Small Business conducted once every 4 years, to be held during the second year following each Presidential election, to carry out the purposes specified in section 4.

(b) STATE CONFERENCES.—Each National Conference referred to in subsection (a) shall be preceded by a State Conference on Small Business, with no fewer than 1 such conference held in each State, and with no fewer than 2 such conferences held in any State having a population of more than 10,000,000.

SEC. 4. PURPOSES OF NATIONAL CONFERENCES.

The purposes of each National Conference shall be—

(1) to increase public awareness of the contribution of small business to the Nation’s economy;

(2) to identify the problems of small business;

(3) to examine the status of minorities and women as small business owners;

(4) to assist small business in carrying out its role as the engine of America’s economy; and

(5) to assemble small businesses to develop specific information and comprehensive recommendations for legislative and regulatory actions to support fundamental economic viability of small business and thereby, the Nation;

(6) to review the status of recommendations adopted at the immediately preceding National Conference on Small Business.

SEC. 5. CONFERENCE PARTICIPANTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—To carry out the purposes specified in section 4, the National Commission shall conduct National and State Conferences to bring together individuals concerned with issues relating to small business.

(b) CONFERENCE DELEGATES.—

(1) APPOINTMENTS.—Only individuals who are owners or officers of a small business shall be eligible for appointment as delegates (or alternates) to the National and State Conferences pursuant to this subsection, and such appointments shall consist of—

(A) 1 delegate (and 1 alternate) appointed by each Governor of each State;

(B) 1 delegate (and 1 alternate) appointed by each Member of the House of Representatives from the congressional district of that Member;

(C) 1 delegate (and 1 alternate) appointed by each Member of the Senate from the home State of that Member; and

(D) 50 delegates (and 50 alternates) appointed by the President, 1 from each State.

(2) POWERS AND DUTIES.—Delegates to each National Conference—

(A) shall attend the State conferences in his or her respective State;

(B) shall conduct meetings and other activities at the State level before the date of the National Conference, subject to the approval of the National Commission; and

(C) shall direct such State level conferences, meetings, and activities toward the consideration of the purposes of the National Conference specified in section 4, in order to prepare for the next National Conference.

(3) ALTERNATES.—A delegate shall serve during the absence or unavailability of the delegate.

(4) ROLE OF THE CHIEF COUNSEL.—The Chief Counsel for Advocacy of the Small Business Administration shall, after consultation and in coordination with the National Commission, assist in carrying out the National and State Conferences required by this Act by—

(1) preparing and providing background information and administrative materials for use by participants in the conferences;

(2) assisting in carrying out public relations and administrative communications, electronically where possible through an Internet web site and e-mail, and in printed form if requested; and

(3) maintaining an Internet site and regular e-mail communications after each National Conference to inform delegates and the public of the status of recommendations and related governmental activity.

(d) EXPENSES.—Each delegate (and alternate) to each National and State Conference shall be responsible for his or her expenses related to attending the conferences, and shall not be reimbursed either from funds appropriated pursuant to this section or the Small Business Act.

(e) ADVISORY COMMITTEE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The National Commission shall appoint a Conference Advisory Committee consisting of 10 individuals who were participating at the last preceding National Conference.

(2) PREFERENCES.—Preference for appointment under this subsection shall be given to those who have been active participants in the implementation process following the prior National Conference.

(f) PUBLIC PARTICIPATION.—National and State Conferences shall be open to the public, and no fee or charge may be imposed on such attendee, other than an amount necessary to defray the cost of any meal provided, plus a registration fee to defray the expense of meeting rooms and materials not to exceed $15 per person.

SEC. 6. NATIONAL COMMISSION ON SMALL BUSINESS.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established the National Commission on Small Business.

(b) MEMBERSHIP.—

(1) APPOINTMENT.—The National Commission shall be composed of 9 members, including—

(A) the Chief Counsel for Advocacy of the Small Business Administration;

(B) 2 members appointed by the President;

(C) 2 members appointed by the majority leader of the Senate;

(D) 1 member appointed by the minority leader of the Senate;

(E) 2 members appointed by the majority leader of the House of Representatives; and

(F) 1 member appointed by the minority leader of the House of Representatives.

(2) SELECTION.—Members of the National Commission shall be selected among distinguished individuals noted for their knowledge and experience in fields relevant to the issue of small business and the purposes of this Act.

(3) TIME OF APPOINTMENT.—The appointments required by paragraph (1) shall be made 1 year before the opening date of each National Conference, and shall expire 9 months thereafter. Use data to authorize for each National Conference a majority of the members of the National Commission present and voting shall elect the Chairperson of the National Commission.

(d) ELECTION OF CHAIRPERSON.—At the first meeting of each National Commission, a majority of the members of the National Commission present and voting shall elect the Chairperson of the National Commission.

(e) PLANNING AND ADMINISTRATION OF CONFERENCES.—In carrying out the National and State Conferences required by this Act, amounts as provided in advance in appropriation Acts shall remain available until expended. New spending authority or authority to enter contracts with public agencies, private organizations, academic institutions, and independent, nonpartisan organizations to carry out the State and National Conferences.

(f) PROCEDURES.—Members of the National Commission, including per diem in lieu of subsistence at rates authorized for employees of agencies under subchapter I of chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, may travel from their homes or regular places of business in the performance of services for the National Commission.

(g) FUNDING.—Members of the National Commission, including per diem in lieu of subsistence at rates authorized for employees of agencies under subchapter I of chapter 57 of title 5, United States Code, may travel from their homes or regular places of business in the performance of services for the National Commission.

(h) MEETINGS.—The National Commission shall meet not later than 20 days after the opening date of each National Conference on Small Business, and shall meet at least every 30 days thereafter.

(i) DUTIES.—The National Commission shall perform such functions and duties as are necessary to carry out its functions under this Act.

(j) FUNDING.—The National Commission shall be funded at such amounts as are provided in advance in appropriation Acts, effective only to such extent and in such amounts as are provided in advance in appropriation Acts.

(k) EXPENSES.—The National Commission shall be funded at such amounts as are provided in advance in appropriation Acts.

(m) VACANCIES.—Any vacancy of the National Commission shall be filled by the President, and the President shall designate a temporary replacement to serve until the vacancy is filled.

(n) PREVAILING WAGE.—The National Commission shall be funded at such amounts as are provided in advance in appropriation Acts, effective only to such extent and in such amounts as are provided in advance in appropriation Acts.
from that of adults, and make them more susceptible to the dangers posed by toxic and harmful substances. Children face greater exposure to such substances because they eat more food, drink more water, and breathe more air as a percentage of their body weight than adults. Children are also rapidly growing, and therefore physiologically more vulnerable to such substances than adults.

How is it this understanding that children suffer higher risks from the dangers posed by toxic and harmful substances than adults taken into account in our environmental and public health standards? Do we gather and consider data that specifically evaluates how these substances affect children?

If that data is lacking, do we apply extra caution when we determine the amount of those substances that can be released into the air and water, the level of harmful contaminants that may be present in our drinking water, or the amount of pesticides that may be present in our food?

In most cases, the answer to all of these questions is “no.”

In fact, most of these standards are designed to protect adults rather than children. In most cases, we don’t even have the data that would allow us to measure how those substances specifically affect children. And, finally, in the face of that uncertainty, we generally assume that what we don’t know about the dangers toxic and harmful substances pose to our children won’t hurt them.

We generally don’t apply extra caution to take account of that uncertainty.

CEPA would change the answers to those questions from “no” to “yes.” It would be proof of our environmental laws. CEPA would require EPA to set environmental and public health standards to protect children. It would specifically require EPA to explicitly consider the dangers that toxic and harmful substances pose to children when setting those standards. Finally, if EPA discovers that it does not have specific data that would allow it to measure those dangers, EPA would be required to apply an additional safety factor—an additional measure of caution—to account for that lack of information.

As work would move forward under CEPA to childproof our environmental standards, CEPA would provide parents and teachers with a number of tools to immediately protect their children from toxic and harmful substances.

First, CEPA would require EPA to provide all schools and day care centers that receive federal funding a copy of EPA’s guide to help schools adopt a least toxic pest management policy. CEPA would also prohibit the use of toxic and harmful substances, including known or probable carcinogens, reproductive toxins, acute nerve toxins and endocrine disrupters—in those areas. Under CEPA, parents would also receive advance notification before pesticides are applied on school or day care centers.

Second, CEPA would expand the federal Toxics Release Inventory (TRI) to require the reporting of toxic chemical releases that may pose special risks to children. In particular, CEPA provides that releases of small amounts of lead, mercury, dioxin, cadmium and chromium be reported under TRI. These chemicals are either highly toxic, persist in the environment or can accumulate in the human body over many years—all features which render them particularly dangerous to children.

Lead, for example, will seriously affect a child’s development, but is still released into the environment through lead smelting and waste incineration. CEPA would then require EPA to identify other toxic chemicals that may present special risks to children, and to provide that releases of those chemicals be reported under TRI.

Finally, CEPA would direct EPA to create a list of recommended safer-for-children products that minimize potential risks to children. CEPA would also require EPA to create a family right-to-know information kit that would include practical suggestions to help parents reduce their children’s exposure to toxic and harmful substances in the environment.

My CEPA bill is based on the premise that what we don’t know about the dangers toxic and harmful substances pose to children may very well hurt them. It would require EPA to apply caution in the face of that uncertainty. And, ultimately, it would childproof our environmental laws to ensure that those laws protect the most vulnerable among us—our children.

I am hopeful that my House and Senate colleagues can act quickly to ensure the passage of my legislation. I ask unanimous consent that the full text of my legislation be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 112
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Children’s Environmental Protection Act of 1999”.

SEC. 2. ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION FOR CHILDREN AND OTHER VULNERABLE SUBPOPULATIONS. The Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2601 et. seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"TITLE V—ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION FOR CHILDREN AND OTHER VULNERABLE SUBPOPULATIONS"

"SEC. 501. FINDINGS AND POLICY."

"(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—"

"(1) the protection of public health and safety depends on individuals and government officials being aware of the pollution dangers; that exist in their homes, schools, and communities, and whether those dangers present special threats to the health of children and other vulnerable subpopulations;

"(2) children spend much of their young lives in schools and day care centers, and may face significant exposure to pesticides and other environmental pollutants in those locations;

"(3) the metabolism, physiology, and diet of children, and exposure patterns of children to environmental pollutants differ from those of adults and can make children more susceptible than adults to the harmful effects of environmental pollutants;

"(4) a study conducted by the National Academy of Sciences that particularly considered the effects of pesticides on children concluded that current approaches to assessing pesticide risks typically do not consider risks to children and that current standards and tolerances often fail to adequately protect children;

"(5) there are often insufficient data to enable the Administrator, when establishing a standard for an environmental pollutant for one age group, to determine the appropriate safety factor for that pollutant for children and other vulnerable subpopulations;

"(6) when data are lacking to evaluate the special susceptibility or exposure of children to an environmental pollutant, the Administrator generally does not presume that the environmental pollutant presents a special risk to children and generally does not apply a special or additional margin of safety to protect the health of children in establishing an environmental or public health standard for that pollutant; and

"(7) safeguarding children from environmental pollutants requires the systematic collection of data concerning the special susceptibility and exposure of children to those pollutants, and the additional safety factor of at least 10-fold in the establishment of environmental and public health standards where reliable data are not available.

"(b) POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States that—"

"(1) the public has the right to be informed about the pollution dangers to which children are being exposed in their homes, schools and communities, and how those dangers may present special health threats to children and other vulnerable subpopulations;

"(2) each environmental and public health standard for an environmental pollutant established by the Administrator must, with an appropriate margin of safety, protect children and other vulnerable subpopulations;

"(3) where data sufficient to evaluate the special susceptibility and exposure of children to an environmental pollutant are lacking, the Administrator should presume that the environmental pollutant poses a special risk to children and that the special susceptibility or exposure of children to the environmental pollutant is such that the special susceptibility or exposure of children to the environmental pollutant must be considered and given appropriate weight in the establishment of environmental or public health standards for that environmental pollutant; and"

"(4) since it is difficult to identify all conceivable risks and address all uncertainties associated with pesticide use, the use of dangerous schools and day care centers should be eliminated; and "‘(5) the Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Health and Human Services (including the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences and the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry), the National Institutes of Health, and other Federal agencies shall support research on the short-term and long-term health effects of cumulative and synergistic exposures of children and other vulnerable subpopulations to environmental pollutants.

SEC. 502. DEFINITIONS.

In this title:

‘(1) CHILD.—The term ‘child’ means an individual 18 years of age or younger.

‘(2) DAY CARE CENTER.—The term ‘day care center’ means a center-based child care provider that is licensed, regulated, or registered under applicable State or local law.

‘(3) ENVIRONMENTAL POLLUTANT.—The term ‘environmental pollutant’ includes a hazardous substance subject to regulation under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9601 et seq.), an air pollutant subject to regulation under the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq.), and a water pollutant subject to regulation under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (33 U.S.C. 1251 et seq.), and a pesticide subject to regulation under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (7 U.S.C. 136 et seq.).

‘(4) PESTICIDE.—The term ‘pesticide’ has the meaning given the term in section 2 of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (7 U.S.C. 136).

‘(5) SCHOOL.—The term ‘school’ means an elementary school (as defined in section 14101 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 8801)), a secondary school (as defined in section 1401 of that Act), a kindergarten, or a nursery school that is public or receives Federal funding.

‘(6) VULNERABLE SUBPOPULATION.—The term ‘vulnerable subpopulation’ means children, pregnant women, the elderly, individuals with a history of serious illness, and other subpopulations identified by the Administrator as likely to experience special health risks from environmental pollutants.

SEC. 503. SAFEGUARDING CHILDREN AND OTHER VULNERABLE SUBPOPULATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall—

(1) ensure that each environmental and public health standard or environmental pollutant protects children and other vulnerable subpopulations with an adequate margin of safety; and

(2) explicitly evaluate data concerning the special susceptibility and exposure of children to environmental pollutants for which an environmental or public health standard is established; and

(3) adopt an additional margin of safety of at least 10-fold in the establishment of an environmental or public health standard for an environmental pollutant in the absence of reliable data on toxicity and exposure of the child to an environmental pollutant or if there is a lack of reliable data on the susceptibility of the child to an environmental pollutant for which the environmental and public health standard is being established.

(b) ESTABLISHING, MODIFYING, OR REVISING ENVIRONMENTAL AND PUBLIC HEALTH STANDARDS.

‘(1) IN GENERAL.—In establishing, modifying, or reevaluating any environmental or public health standard for an environmental pollutant, including an environmental pollutant in the absence of an environmental or public health standard for an environmental pollutant in the absence of a Federal agencies should support research on the health effects of cumulative and synergistic exposures of children and other vulnerable subpopulations to environmental pollutants.

SEC. 504. PROHIBITION OF PESTICIDE APPLICATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, or after the date of enactment of this Act and annually thereafter, the Administrator shall—

(1) provide parents with advance notice of any pesticide application on school or day care center property that is being sent to parents at the time the pesticide application is required to be sent.

(2) post at any school or day care center where a pesticide is to be applied a warning sign that is consistent with the pesticide notice is required to be sent.

(3) post at any school or day care center where a pesticide is to be applied a warning sign that is consistent with the intended area of application and the name of each pesticide to be applied.

(4) WARNING SIGN.—An administrator of a school or day care center shall provide a warning sign that is consistent with the special health risks from environmental pollutants.

SEC. 505. PROTECTING CHILDREN FROM EXPOSURE TO PESTICIDES IN SCHOOLS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Each school and day care center that receives Federal funding shall—

(1) take steps to reduce the exposure of children to pesticides on school grounds, both indoors and outdoors; and

(2) provide written notification of any pesticide application on school grounds in accordance with subsection (b).

(b) LEAST TOXIC PEST CONTROL STRATEGIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall distribute to each school and day care center the current manual of the Environmental Protection Agency that describes how to implement the least toxic pest control strategies.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall submit a report to Congress describing the progress made by the Administrator in carrying out this subsection.

SEC. 506. SAFER ENVIRONMENT FOR CHILDREN.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not less than 72 hours before any indoor or outdoor pesticide application on the grounds of the school or day care center.

SEC. 507. REPORT TO CONGRESS.

(a) ENSURING THAT SCHOOLS AND DAY CARE CENTERS HAVE IN PLACE A PROGRAM TO ASSESS THE EFFECTS OF ENVIRONMENTAL POLLUTANTS.

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this title at least 3 environmental and public health standards determined to pose a special risk to children.

(2) NOTICE.—An administrator of a school or day care center that receives Federal funding shall provide written notice to parents not later than 72 hours before any indoor or outdoor pesticide application on the grounds of the school or day care center.

(3) CONTENTS OF NOTICE.—A notice under this subsection may be incorporated into any notice that is being sent to parents at the time the pesticide notice is required to be sent.

(4) WARNING SIGN.—An administrator of a school or day care center shall post at any area in the area of the school or day care center where a pesticide is to be applied a warning sign that is consistent with the label of the pesticide and prominently displays the term ‘warning’, ‘danger’, or ‘poison’.

(b) PERIOD OF DISPLAY.—During the period that begins not less than 24 hours before the application of a pesticide and ends not less than 72 hours after the application, a warning sign shall be displayed in a location where it is visible to all individuals entering the area.

(c) REQUIREMENTS.—The Administrator makes the finding described in paragraph (1) that is being sent to parents at the time the pesticide notice is required to be sent.

(d) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, or after the date of enactment of this Act and annually thereafter, the Administrator shall—

(1) take steps to reduce the exposure of children to pesticides on school grounds, both indoors and outdoors; and

(2) provide written notification of any pesticide application on school grounds in accordance with subsection (b).
"(1) identify environmental pollutants commonly used or found in areas that are reasonably accessible to children;

"(2) create a scientifically peer reviewed list of substances identified under paragraph (1) with known, likely, or suspected health risks to children;

"(3) create a scientifically peer reviewed list of safer-for-children substances and products recommended by the Administrator for use in areas that are reasonably accessible to children that, when applied as recommended by the manufacturer, will minimize potential risks to children from exposure to environmental pollutants;

"(4) establish guidelines to help reduce and eliminate exposure of children to environmental pollutants in areas reasonably accessible to children, including advice on how to establish an integrated pest management program;

"(5) create a family right-to-know information kit that includes a summary of helpful information and guidance to families, such as the information created under paragraph (4); and

"(6) make all information created pursuant to this subsection available to Federal and State agencies, the public, and on the Internet.

"(7) review and update the lists created under paragraphs (2) and (3) at least once each year.

SEC. 3. ADDITIONAL REPORTING OF TOXIC CHEMICAL RELEASES THAT AFFECT CHILDREN.

Section 313(f)(1) of the Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know Act of 1986 (42 U.S.C. 11062(f)(1)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(C) CHILDREN'S HEALTH.—With respect to each of the toxic chemicals described in paragraph (1) that are released from a facility, the amount described in clause (ii) at a level that shall ensure reporting for at least 80 percent of the aggregate of all releases of the chemical from facilities that—"(I) have 10 or more full-time employees; and

"(II) are in Standard Industrial Classification Codes 20 through 39 or in the Standard Industrial Classification Codes under sub-section (b)(1)(B).

"(IV) ADDITIONAL FACILITIES.—If the Administrator determines that a facility other than a facility described in clause (iii) contributes substantially to total releases of toxic chemicals described in clause (i), the Administrator shall require that facility to comply with clause (iii)."

SEC. 4. RESEARCH TO IMPROVE INFORMATION ON THE EFFECTS OF ENVIRONMENTAL POLLUTANTS ON CHILDREN.

The Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2601 et seq.) (as amended by section 2) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"SEC. 506. RESEARCH TO IMPROVE INFORMATION ON THE EFFECTS OF ENVIRONMENTAL POLLUTANTS ON CHILDREN.

"(a) EXPOSURE AND TOXICITY DATA.—The Administrator, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall coordinate and support the development and implementation of basic and applied research initiatives to examine the health effects and toxicity of pesticides (including active and inert ingredients) and other environmental pollutants on children and other vulnerable subpopulations, and the exposure of children and vulnerable subpopulations to environmental pollutants.

"(b) BIENNIAL REPORTS.—The Administrator, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit biennial reports to Congress describing actions taken to carry out this section.

SEC. 5. CHILDREN'S ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH PROTECTION ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

The Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2601 et seq.) (as amended by section 4) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"SEC. 507. CHILDREN'S ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH PROTECTION ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

"(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Administrator shall establish a Children's Environmental Health Protection Advisory Committee to assist the Administrator in carrying out this title.

"(b) COMPOSITION.—The Committee shall be comprised of medical professionals specializing in pediatric health, educators, representatives of community groups, representatives of environmental and public health nonprofit organizations, industry representatives, and State environmental and public health department representatives.

"(c) DUTIES.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this title and annually thereafter, the Committee shall develop a list of standards that merit renewal, rescission, or amendment by the Administrator in order to better protect children's health.

"(d) TERMINATION.—The Committee shall terminate not later than 15 years after the date on which the Committee is established.

"SEC. 508. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary to carry out this title."
(Mr. CAMPBELL) was added as a cosponsor of S. 542, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to expand the deduction for computer donations to schools and allow a tax credit for donated computers.

At the request of Mr. KENNEDY, the name of the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON) was added as a cosponsor of S. 573, a bill to provide individuals with access to health information of which they are a subject, ensure personal privacy with respect to health-care-related information, impose criminal and civil penalties for unauthorized use, and ultimately to achieve economic self-sufficiency, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. KENNEDY, the name of the Senator from Florida (Mr. GRAHAM) was added as a cosponsor of S. 622, a bill to enhance Federal enforcement of hate crimes, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. DEWINE, the name of the Senator from Minnesota (Mr. WELLSTONE) was added as a cosponsor of S. 632, a bill to provide assistance for poison prevention and to stabilize the funding of regional poison control centers.

At the request of Mr. CAMPBELL, the names of the Senator from Georgia (Mr. CLELAND) and the Senator from Florida (Mr. MACK) were added as cosponsors of S. 676, a bill to locate and secure the return of Zachary Baumel, a citizen of the United States, and other efforts to secure the return of Zachary Baumel, a citizen of the United States, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. KENNEDY, the name of the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1022, a bill to authorize the appropriation of an additional $1,700,000,000 for fiscal year 2000 for health care for veterans.

At the request of Mrs. FEINSTEIN, the name of the Senator from California (Mrs. BOXER) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1063, a bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to coordinate the penalty for the failure of a State to operate a State child support disbursement unit with the alternative penalty procedure for failures to meet data processing requirements.

At the request of Ms. COLLINS, the name of the Senator from Maine (Ms. SNOWE) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1070, a bill to require the Secretary of Labor to wait for completion of a National Academy of Sciences study before promulgating a standard, regulation or guideline on ergonomics.

At the request of Mr. SCHUMER, the names of the Senator from North Dakota (Mr. CONRAD) and the Senator from Montana (Mr. BAUCUS) were added as cosponsors of S. 1077, a bill to dedicate the new Amtrak station in New York, New York, to Senator DANIEL PATRICK MONTIHNAN.

At the request of Ms. SNOWE, the name of the Senator from Iowa (Mr. HARKIN) was added as a cosponsor of Senate Concurrent Resolution 9, a concurrent resolution calling for a United States effort to end restrictions on the freedoms and human rights of the enclaved people in the occupied area of Cyprus.

At the request of Ms. SNOWE, the name of the Senator from Maine (Ms. COLLINS) was added as a cosponsor of Senate Resolution 84, a resolution to designate the month of May, 1999, as “National Alpha 1 Awareness Month.”

At the request of Mr. THURMOND, the name of the Senator from California (Mrs. BOXER) was added as a cosponsor of Senate Resolution 95, a resolution designating August 16, 1999, as “National Airborne Day.”

At the request of Mr. REID, the name of the Senator from Illinois (Mr. DURBIN) was added as a cosponsor of Senate Resolution 99.
Resolution 99, a resolution designating November 20, 1999, as "National Survivors for Prevention of Suicide Day."

SENATE RESOLUTION 105—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF THE SENATE RELATING TO CONSIDERATION OF SLOBODAN MILOSEVIC AS A WAR CRIMINAL

Mr. DORGAN (for himself, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and Mr. SPECTER) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. Res. 105

Whereas the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (in this resolution referred to as the "International Criminal Tribunal") has not sought indictment of Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic for war crimes committed by Yugoslav and Serbian military and paramilitary forces in Bosnia;

Whereas Serbian military and paramilitary forces have undertaken a massive ethnic cleansing campaign that has displaced more than one million Kosovar Albanians;

Whereas in 1992, the then-Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger identified Slobodan Milosevic as a war criminal;

Whereas the statute governing the International Criminal Tribunal requires that the office of the prosecutor need only determine that a prima facie case exists in order to seek indictment;

Whereas the House of Representatives and the Senate have previously passed resolutions condemning Serbian police actions in Kosovo and calling for Yugoslav leader Slobodan Milosevic to be indicted for war crimes;

Whereas the Administration has made no public attempt to urge the International Criminal Tribunal to seek an indictment against Slobodan Milosevic, despite the necessity of NATO air strikes to respond to his campaign of genocide: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved,

SECTION 1. SENSE OF SENATE.

It is the sense of the Senate that the President should:

(1) publicly declare, as a matter of United States policy, that the United States considers Slobodan Milosevic to be a war criminal; and

(2) urge the chief prosecutor of the International Criminal Tribunal to seek immediately an indictment of Slobodan Milosevic for war crimes and to prosecute him to the fullest extent of international law.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I am today submitting a resolution that will express the sense of the Senate that Slobodan Milosevic should be tried as a war criminal. My colleague, Senator SPECTER, and others, have also talked about this at some length on the floor of the Senate in recent months.

It is important, given where we are with the airstrikes in Kosovo, to think through this question about Slobodan Milosevic and to understand how he has been involved in an air campaign in that part of the world.

These are gruesome pictures, and I will only put one of those photos on the easel. But all of these people have homes and have lives and have the human suffering that is visited upon them by Slobodan Milosevic. One million to 1.5 million people have been evicted from their homes and communities. Homes have been burned, and innocent civilians have been raped and beaten. Thousands have been massaged, and thousands more have been packed into train cars, reminiscent of the Jews who were hauled to the ovens by the Nazis in the 1940s.

This country and our allies decided we do not want history to record us as saying it doesn't matter. There is a moral imperative for us, where we can, when we can to take steps to stop ethnic cleansing, to stop the genocide, to stop someone like Slobodan Milosevic. So we commenced the airstrikes.

The very purpose of those airstrikes is underlined by the understanding that Mr. Milosevic is committing horrible war crimes against these ethnic Albanians. They have been driven from their homeland and subjected to rape, torture, and genocide at the hands of the troops commanded by Mr. Milosevic.

The question for these children and these innocent victims is: Shall we, as a country, push to have Mr. Milosevic tried in the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia?

The Tribunal exists for a very specific purpose. Should this country not be pressing very aggressively to have this leader indicted, and convicted, of war crimes?

We made a mistake, in my judgment, with respect to Iraq. Saddam Hussein is still in power. This country and our allies decided that, at some point there has to be a negotiated settlement at some point down the line that would leave Slobodan Milosevic in power, would be, in my judgment, a tragic mistake. In or out of power, this leader ought to be branded a war criminal. Whether we can apprehend him or not, he ought to be indicted and tried, in absentia, if necessary, with all of the evidence, including the graphic pictorial evidence and all of the statements that have been made by the folks who are pouring into these refugee camps.

I am not going to describe those statements, but last Wednesday the State Department released a tape verifying many of those statements. It brings tears to your eyes instantly to understand the unspeakable horrors that have been visited upon these people.

SENATE RESOLUTION 106—TO EXPRESS THE SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING ENGLISH PLUS OTHER LANGUAGES

Mr. DOMENICI (for himself, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. MCCAIN, Mr. HATCH, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. CHAFFEE, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. ABRAHAM, Mr. SANTORUM, and Mr. WARNER) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions:
Whereas English is the most widely used language in the areas of finance, trade, technology, diplomacy, and entertainment, and is the living library of the last 100 years of scientific and technological advance;

Whereas more speakers of English as a second language in the world than are native English speakers, and the large number of English language schools in the world demonstrate that English is as close as any language has been to becoming the world's common language;

Whereas Spanish exploration in the New World was led by Ferdinand de Soto, who explored the Florida peninsula, and included the expeditions of Francisco Coronado throughout California to Kansas and across Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, and Oklahoma from 1540 to 1542;

Whereas in 1996 the Nation commemorated the 400th anniversary of the first Spanish settlement of the Southwest (Ohkay Yungas at San Juan Pueblo, New Mexico) with official visits from Spain, parades, festivities, masses, and other celebrations to emphasize the importance of the first encounters with American Indian cultures and the subsequent importance of encounters with other European cultures;

Whereas El Paso, Texas, the first gateway for Spanish explorers in the Southwest, also celebrated its Quadracentennial commemorating the 400th anniversary of the colonization expedition of Don Juan Onate in New Mexico and Texas along the Camino Real;

Whereas Hispanic culture, customs, and the Spanish language are a vital resource of familial and individual strength;

Whereas the Bureau of the Census estimates that 1 in 5 Americans will be of Hispanic descent by the year 2050, and the future cultural, political, and economic strengths of this country are clearly dependent upon our Nation's ability to harness the talents and skills of this large and growing segment of the American population;

Whereas one of the common bonds of Hispanic people is the Spanish language, and promoting Spanish at home and in cultural affairs will benefit not only the growing Hispanic population of the United States but also the economic interests of the entire Nation;

Whereas English is the common language of the United States, is important to American life and individual success, and 94 percent of United States residents speak English according to the 1990 decennial census;

Whereas immigrants to the United States have powerful incentives to learn English in order to fully participate in American society and the Nation's economy, and 90 percent of all immigrant families become fluent in English within the second generation;

Whereas a common language promotes unity among citizens, and fosters greater communication;

Whereas there is a renaissance in cultural assertiveness around the world, noting that the more interdependent nations become economically, the more interested the nations are in preserving and sharing cultural identity;

Whereas the reality of a global economy is an ever-present international development that is fostered by international trade and the creation of regional trading blocs, such as the European Union, Mercosur, the North American Free Trade Agreement and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations;

Whereas knowledge of English, Spanish, French, Italian, Russian, German, Japanese, Chinese, Arabic, Korean, Vietnamese, African languages, and the many other languages of the world, enhances competitiveness and tremendous growth in world trade;

Whereas the United States is well positioned for the global economy and international development with the United States' diverse population and rich heritage of languages from all around the world;

Whereas many American Indian languages are indigenous to the United States, and should be preserved, encouraged, and utilized.

Whereas the United States diplomatic efforts by fostering greater communication and understanding between nations, and can promote greater understanding between different ethnic and racial groups within the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the United States Government should pursue policies that—

(1) support and encourage Americans to master the English language plus other languages of the world, with special emphasis on the growing importance of the Spanish language for our Nation's economic and cultural relationships with Mexico, Central America, and South America;

(2) recognize the value of the Spanish language to millions of Americans of Hispanic descent, who will be the Nation's largest minority by the year 2050, and will constitute one of every four Americans by the year 2050;

(3) recognize the importance of English as the unifying language of the United States, and the importance of English fluency for individuals who want to succeed in American society;

(4) recognize that command of the English language is a critical component of the success and productivity of our Nation's children, and should be encouraged at every age; and

(5) recognize that a skilled labor force is crucial to United States competitiveness in a global economy, and the ability to speak 1 or more languages in addition to English is a significant skill;

(6) support literacy programs, including programs teaching English, as well as those dedicated to helping Americans learn and maintain other languages in addition to English; and

(7) develop our Nation's linguistic resources by encouraging citizens of the United States to learn and maintain Spanish, French, German, Japanese, Chinese, Russian, Arabic, Farsi, sign language, and many of the other languages of the world, in addition to English.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, today I am pleased to be joined by Senators KENNEDY, MCCAIN, HATCH, HUTCHISON, DeWINE, CHAFEE, LUGAR, ABRAHAM, SANTORUM, and WARNER in submitting our Senate Resolution on “English-Plus.” With this resolution, we are affirming the importance of mastering the English language and the many other languages of the world, such as Spanish, Italian, German, Japanese, Chinese, Vietnamese, and many, many more.

English is the most widely used language in the world in the areas of finance, trade, technology, diplomacy, and entertainment. English is also the world's living library of the last 100 years of scientific and technological advances. There is no doubt that English is as close as any language in history to becoming the world's dominant language.

As Americans, we have always valued our “melting pot” ideal. The business of this country is conducted in English, and there is much pride in the ability to speak English as a whole and to write in one's native language. Those who know English and have mastered another language or two have a distinct advantage in a more competitive world.

As the son of an Italian immigrant, I can personally testify to the importance of the concept of English Plus. My father did not read or write in English, yet he insisted that I learn English first and do my best at speaking and writing Italian. My parents both spoke Spanish—a skill which they found very useful in establishing a wholesale grocery business in Albuquerque.

Tens of thousands of New Mexican families still speak Spanish at home. Spanish remains a strong tie to their culture, music, history, and folklore. After decades of being taught to learn English first, many thousands of New Mexico's Hispanic families also speak Spanish fluently.

In New Mexico, 1998 marked the 400th anniversary of the first permanent Spanish settlement near San Juan Pueblo in the Espanola Valley. Many celebrations and educational events marked this important anniversary. Hispanic culture, customs, and language received much attention throughout New Mexico. More than a third of New Mexico's population is Hispanic, and the Spanish language and culture have a special place in our state's distinctive blend of Spanish, Anglo, and Indian cultures.

New Mexico is the only state in the United States that has a constitutional requirement to use both English and Spanish in election materials and ballots.

In New Mexico, 37 percent of the people are Spanish-Americans or Mexican-Americans. The term “Hispanic Americans” is used in our country to describe Americans whose roots are in Spain, Cuba, Central America, and South America. As U.S. News reported in the May 11, 1998, issue, “the label Hispanic obscures the enormous diversity among people who come (or whose forebears came) from two dozen countries and whose ancestry ranges from pure Spanish to mixtures of Spanish blood with Native American, African, German, and Italian, to name a few hybrids.”

U.S. News also reported that “The number of Hispanics is increasing almost four times as fast as the rest of the population, and they are expected to surpass African-Americans as the largest minority group by 2005.” In the October 21, 1996, issue, U.S. News reported that “Nearly 28 million people—
1 American in 8—consider themselves of Hispanic origin.” By 2050, projections are that 1 in every 4 Americans will be Hispanic.

An article in The Economist of April 21, 1996, stresses the value of the Spanish language to America’s fastest growning minority group. “America’s Latinos are rapidly becoming one of its most useful resources.”

In the western hemisphere, Spanish is clearly becoming the dominant language. With established and emerging markets in Mexico, Central America, and South America, the Spanish language is a key to foreign competition in our own hemisphere.

As the world economy moves into the next century, it has become clear the “domestic-only market planning” has been replaced by the era of international trade agreements and the creation of regional trading blocs. In 1996, the total volume of trade with Mexico was estimated at $130 billion. Our trade with the rest of Latin America that same year was $101 billion.

Spanish is clearly a growing cultural and economic force in our hemisphere.
It is also the common language of hundreds of millions of people. Recent economic trends of this decade show Latin America as the most promising future market for American goods and ser-VICES.

With Latin America as the next great market partner of the United States, those Americans who know both English and Spanish will have many new opportunities. Mexico’s recently hired and celebrated its one millionth maquiladora worker in international manufacturing plants along our border. This milestone unquestionably shows the value of knowing two languages as manufacturing in Mexico.

Mr. President, I have long believed that New Mexico and other border states are uniquely poised to create the focal point of North American trade with South America. I agree with The Economist observation that “America’s Latinos are rapidly becoming one of its most useful resources.” I predict that English Plus Spanish will be one of the major marketable skills for the next century.

In conclusion, I would like my colleagues to see the value of “English Plus” Spanish in our own hemisphere.
“English Plus” and other European languages has long been a shared value, and Asian languages have become very important also. In every corner of the world, for-ign languages matter to us for cultural, economic, and security reasons.

Worldwide, we see a renaissance in cultural assertiveness where and Asian languages take greater interest in preserving and sharing their own cultural identities.

As nations grow more interdependent economically, there is a parallel interest in maintaining their own cultural integrity, with language as a key linchpin of cultural identity.

Mr. President, our nation’s potential markets in Mexico, Central America, and South America alone spell a vital future for “English Plus” Spanish. If we want to continue to expand our national’s cultural and economic American influence in the world, then we urge the adoption of “English Plus” as our national policy. We believe this approach will lead to a more prosperous and secure world.

We believe we should not isolate America to English only and to do that would be a big mistake. The Senate resolution I am speaking of supports and encourages Americans to master English first and English plus other languages. We should add to that, but not English only. We see English plus other languages as a more sensible statement of our national policy. Our Nation is rich in resources. We want to encourage American citizens to learn other prominent languages that the world uses and that we must use in the world and that many in our country use as part of their cultural background.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that our resolution regarding English plus other languages be printed in the RECORD.

SENATE RESOLUTION 107—TO ES-TABLISH A SELECT COMMITTEE ON CHINESE ESPIONAGE

Mr. SMITH (of New Hampshire) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Rules and Administration:

Resolved, that a Select Committee be established to consider questions pertaining to Chinese espionage.

(a) IN GENERAL.—There is established a temporary Select Committee on Chinese Espionage herein referred to as the “select committee" which shall consist of 12 members, 6 to be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate upon recommendations of the Minority Leader from among members of the minority party, and 6 to be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate upon recommendations of the Majority Leader from among members of the majority party.

(b) CHAIRMAN.—The Majority Leader shall select the chairman of the select committee.

(c) VICE CHAIRMAN.—The Minority Leader shall select the vice chairman of the select committee.

(d) SERVICE OF A SENATOR.—The service of a Senator as a member or chairman on the select committee shall not count for purposes of paragraph 4 of rule XXV of the Standing Rules of the Senate.

SEC. 3. POWERS OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—For the purposes of this resolution, the select committee is authorized at its discretion—

(1) to make investigations into any matter within its jurisdiction;

(2) to hold hearings;

(3) to sit and act at any time or place during the sessions (subject to paragraph 5 of rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate);

(4) to require, by subpoena or otherwise, the attendance of witnesses and the production of correspondence, books, papers, and documents;

(5) to use on a reimbursable, or nonreimbursable basis the services of personnel of any such department or agency.

(b) OATHS.—The chairman of the select committee or any member thereof may administer oaths to witnesses.

(c) SUBPOENAS.—Subpoenas authorized by a majority of the select committee shall be issued over the signature of the chairman and may be served by any person designated by the chairman.

SEC. 5. TREATMENT OF CLASSIFIED INFORMA-TION.
against United States national security interests, responding to what is increasingly being viewed as the greatest security breach in the history of the United States in our history—the loss to China of one of our most sensitive nuclear warhead data over many years from the Los Alamos National Lab, and from other national security facilities and programs. Through no one's fault, and with the best of intentions, congressional efforts to examine this matter have been disjointed and inconsistent. I respect every Senator on both sides of the aisle who has been working and doing their best to try to get to the bottom of this, especially the chairmen of those committees with some claim to jurisdiction over the Labs and over this whole issue of Chinese espionage.

Unfortunately, that is the problem. There are individuals conducting too many independent investigations, if you will, and too many committees going down the same path. The result has been a duplication of witnesses, many of whom have come back and testified two or three or five times before the Senate. I don't think this makes a lot of sense.

I think my colleagues on these respective committees—and I chair a subcommittee on the Armed Services Committee with direct jurisdiction over this matter, so I say that as one who would be involved in such an investigation—will agree that there is too much duplication. We need to streamline this effort and we need to put the full weight of the Senate behind it. That means an investigation, a true investigation, the power to call witnesses and administer oaths, and a unified focus of our shared bipartisan concern.

I have had the privilege to serve on two such bipartisan committees. One, the Senate Ethics Committee, is a nonpartisan committee, really, of three members from each party. We look at all the matters before us in a truly nonpartisan way. That is exactly what needs to be done here.

I also served on the Senate Select Committee on POWs and MIAs a few years ago, where Senator JOHN KERRY was the chairman and I was vice chairman. It was a bipartisan effort. That is what the Senate, just as the House has been well-served by its committee chaired by Congressman COX of California and Congressman DICKS of Washington. It was a bipartisan effort and it has come to a bipartisan—and unanimous—conclusion.

We need to do this in the Senate. We need to take what was in that report, review it carefully, find out where it leads, and take appropriate action. But I do not think we are going to accomplish anything valuable with all of these witnesses called in, five, six, seven, or eight times before all these different committees, and not have one consistent message. It will waste a lot of money and time. I think it is better to consolidate, which is why I am calling for a select committee.

That was the statement of the President on February 1. With all due respect, and being as nice about it as I can, that was not true then. It is not true today.

One week later, on February 8, Mr. Lee failed a polygraph test. More than a month later, the FBI finally searched his computer. This is not something one can take lightly. When the President says that safeguards were “adequate” and getting better, that simply was not true.

Between the time the Justice Department refused the FBI’s request for a court order to search Lee’s computer and Lee’s firing, there were more than 300 break-ins involving the computer network on which Lee had allegedly transferred nuclear secrets.

When Ho Lee was hired by Los Alamos National Laboratories in 1978, he first came under suspicion in 1982 when he made a telephone call to a scientist from Lawrence Livermore who later had been fired as a result of an investigation into evidence that a spy had passed neutron bomb secrets to China.

In 1989, when Lee’s 5-year security renewal was up for review, Energy Department officials thwarted his security inquiry into Mr. Lee. But a file put together on Mr. Lee that was sent to DOE headquarters for security review was “lost.” And it was not until 1992 that the Department hired an outside contractor to reconstruct the “lost” file.

In 1994, a Los Alamos employee reported to security officials that Lee was “embraced” by a Chinese intelligence officer during a delegation visit, and that Lee had discussed with the Chinese the nuclear weapons code similar to the ones he is now suspected of stealing.

In 1995, the Energy Department and the CIA began to learn the record of China’s alleged espionage.

In early 1995, scientists at the Los Alamos National Lab had told Mr. Notra Trulock, then intelligence director at the Energy Department, of their fears that China had achieved a remarkable breakthrough in its nuclear tests. About that same time those fears were raised in intelligence files showed that a Chinese agent had handed over a secret document to American officials containing evidence that China had stolen design data on American nuclear warheads and missiles.

In 1996, the CIA concluded American secrets had been stolen. Lee emerged in early 1996 as the FBI’s “prime suspect” at the Laboratories.

In 1996, Mr. Trulock tried to raise warnings about espionage at the Laboratories but was thwarted by his superiors at the Energy Department. Trulock said he finally talked to administration officials as early as April of 1996. He said he met with Sandy Berger. He said Mr. Berger had said he met with Sandy Berger a fuller briefing. Berger briefed the President of the United States as early as July 1997. Twice in 1997 the Justice Department rejected a request by FBI counterintelligence officials to seek a search warrant authorizing more aggressive investigative techniques, including a wiretap and clandestine searches of homes, offices, and computers. The request for a wiretap was turned down by a political appointee, Frances Townsend. A request for a wiretap was turned down.

The numbers of wiretaps authorized each year is classified, but we know there are hundreds in any given year. We also know that seldom are two or three in a given year denied. Put yourself in Frances Townsend’s place at the Justice Department. Somebody comes in from the FBI and says, we have a problem. Somebody stole all the nuclear weapon secrets from the United States of America and sent them to China. We have a suspect. We need to wiretap him. And your answer is, no.

Now, I am not going to accept some feeble explanation about why that happened. Somebody is going to answer that question in my presence in this Senate before I leave here; I state that right now.

In August of 1997, FBI Director Louis Freeh recommended Mr. Lee’s access to classified information be cut off immediately. What happens? Lee is still granted access to top secret warhead data despite the recommendation. What is going on? This kind of thing does not happen unless somebody makes it happen and wants it to happen.

When the FBI Director says no, the answer is no. But somebody decided that Mr. Freeh was not going to have the last word here. They decided that Mr. Lee was going to continue to have access to top secret warhead data.
During the 1998 congressional investigation into satellite export controls, Trulock has said, acting Energy Secretary Elizabeth Moler ordered him—"I emphasize the word ‘ordered,’" because I heard him say it in my presence—ordered him not to disclose the Chinese espionage in testimony before the U.S. Congress. A political appointee in the President’s department ordered him—I, Trulock, a subordinate, not to tell the Congress.

Now she denies it. Clearly, we need these two witnesses to come forth in public session before this select committee. Let the public decide who is lying and who isn’t.

Mr. Lee retained access to classified information after he came under suspicion of spying, from October 1997 to October 1998.

On May 28, 1999, the Clinton administration finally admitted that secret nuclear weapons data had been compromised. They finally admitted it when Bill Richardson, the new Secretary of Energy, to his everlasting credit pushed this issue and refused to stand for it anymore.

Wen Ho Lee was fired on March 8. His computer was not searched until the following week. They found he had transferred legacy codes covering many U.S. nuclear weapons from the classified to an unclassified computer system where they could be vulnerable to outsiders. In a computer search, more than 1,000 top secret weapons files had been deleted after being improperly transferred from a highly secure computer system.

Those are the facts as I can outline them without going into classified materials. I point out in the framework of the last 4 or 5 months, this information has been withheld from the public. Certain senators and Congressmen, if they took it upon themselves, could get a briefing on the Cox report, but it was not allowed to be released.

What happened? What did the President know and when did he know it? That sounds familiar.

March 19, 1999, at a press conference, the President assured the public, "There has been no espionage at the Labs since I’ve been President." Let me repeat that: "There has been no espionage at the Labs since I’ve been President."

And, "No one reported to me that they suspect that such a thing has occurred."

The President, in March of this year. March 19, says, "There has been no espionage at the Labs since I’ve been President," and, "No one reported to me that they suspect that such a thing has occurred."

Mr. Berger told the Cox Committee he did not speak with the President about Chinese spying for at least a year, but he did say he did it in early 1998. Berger’s aides now say he remembers informing Clinton in July of 1997.

Mr. President, this is serious business. When atomic secrets in 1953 were passed to the Russians, a man and a woman—weary spies—were executed. We have got to get to the bottom of this. Any Senator worth his or her salt, regardless of political party, ought to be ready to go on this an acute intelligence threat to the weapons labs—an acute intelligence threat to the weapons labs. We now know the President had been briefed in November of 1998 about FBI and CIA suspicions, and in January had even received the secret Cox report detailing those security lapses during the Clinton watch.

What is going on here? All right, so he does not tell us the truth about Monica Lewinsky. But this is national security. Mr. Berger, his own National Security Adviser, President Clinton was told about the problems at the weapons labs in July of 1997 or February of 1998.

On May 9, 1999, Tim Russert, on Meet the Press, extracted from Energy Secretary Bill Richardson the acknowledgment that President Clinton was "fully, fully briefed," an admission for which, news reports says, Richardson was savaged by Clinton aides.

Here is what is going on: Clinton put in "at the labs" and "against the labs" because we technically don’t know if the stolen info came from the labs or somewhere else. Richardson also said, "there have been damaging security leaks. The Chinese have obtained damaging information during past administration and the current administration."

Perhaps this spying started in previous administrations, but this administration knew it was going on and did not respond to it. That just does not cut it. This is not "what is is." This is about the security of the United States of America.

On May 23, 1999, the deputy intelligence director at the Department of Energy suggested the White House was informed about China’s theft of United States nuclear secrets much sooner than it has acknowledged.

The inaction from this administration did not come in a vacuum. It came in the thick of a 1998 reelection effort that could have caused big and frightening contributions from those with ties to the Chinese Government, ties to the military, and ties to the intelligence organization. Mr. Berger first briefed in April of 1996, and not until 2 years later does the White House move to tighten security after receiving more detailed evidence in 1997. NSC sought a narrowly focused CIA report to cast doubt on Energy Department claims.

At the same time the FBI and CIA were investigating the source of the Los Alamos leak, Vice President Al Gore was passing the hat among wealthy Buddhist nuns, the President was serving coffee at the White House to PLA arms dealer Wang Jun, and the administration responded favorably to a request from the man who would be the Democratic Party’s largest single donor in 1996, Loral chairman Bernard Schwartz, to transfer authority over licensing of satellite technology from the State Department to the Commerce Department. Later, Loral would be granted a Presidential waiver to export its technology to China, even though it was under criminal investigation by the Justice Department for previous technology transfers.

Wake up, America. Wake up. What is going on here? Who knows what? Officials from those two companies, I have news for you. You are coming in here, and you are going to answer some questions that we now know included campaign contributions from those with ties to the Chinese Government, ties to the military, and ties to the intelligence organization. P.R.C. had illegally funneled money into their 1996 Clinton-Gore reelection campaign. I do not know where these dots are, if they connect, but there were a lot of dots. Mr. Berger assigned an NSC staffer to look into things and asked the CIA to investigate. The CIA’s report comes back that the Trulock analysis was an unsupported worst case scenario. That is not what he told us in private.

Finally, in February of 1998, President Clinton formally ordered the reforms into effect. But, curiously, Energy Secretary Federico Peña never followed the order and soon after left the Cabinet.

Reforms were not instituted until Bill Richardson did so in October of 1998, 30 months after Trulock’s first warning, 9 months after the President’s directed his attention on every NSC member. Secretary Moler orders Trulock not to tell Congress because it could be used against President Clinton’s China policy.

Do not tell Congress? If this Senate tolerates that kind of action, we deserve all the criticism we get and 10 times more. We have oversight responsibility. This area, the labs and the security of those labs and those weapons, is directly under this Senator’s supervision and oversight responsibility as the chairman of the Strategic Forces Subcommittee. I am going to tell you something; I do not accept that answer. I am not going to accept that answer. Someone is going to talk, and whoever is accountable, in my view, if they did these things, they are going to go to jail, because that is where they belong. We are going to find out where this path leads, if it is the last thing I do.

Political contributions poured in and United States technology flowed out to China day after day, week after week, month after month, year after year—flowed out to China, made possible by the easing of export controls to this strategic partner of the President’s. We are going to hear that this is China bashing. This is not China bashing. This is the national security of the United States. I hope when the American people read the Cox report, they will understand that the Chinese gained with all of our nuclear warhead in our arsenal. They now have the missile to fire it, the warhead to put on it, and the targeting information to direct it at any city in the United States of America—all thanks to the relaxation of export controls, and to the fact we left a spy in our labs.

When are we going to wake up? All through March and April of 1999, the White House fought over the release and declassification of this report. No wonder they do not want it released. The Cox report believes China is still spying. I believe they are too. This has to be investigated.

In conclusion, we need a bipartisan select committee to find out where this trail leads, wherever it leads.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 33—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING THE NEED FOR VIGOROUS PROSECUTION OF WAR CRIMES, GENOCIDE, AND CRIMES AGAINST HUMANITY IN THE FORMER REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA

Ms. LANDRIEU (for herself and Mr. SPECTER) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. CON. RES. 33

Expressing the sense of Congress regarding the need for vigorous prosecution of war crimes, genocide, and crimes against humanity in the former Republic of Yugoslavia.

Whereas the United Nations Security Council created the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (in this concurrent resolution referred to as the ‘ICTY’) by resolution on May 25, 1993, legal warrants, indictments have only resulted in the trial and conviction of 8 criminals;

Whereas the ICTY has jurisdiction to investigate: grave breaches of the 1949 Geneva Conventions (Article 2), violations of the laws or customs of war (Article 3), genocide (Article 4), and crimes against humanity (Article 5);

Whereas the Chief Prosecutor of the ICTY, Justice Louise Arbour, stated on July 7,1998, to the Contact Group for the former Yugoslav in that ‘’(the Prosecutor believes that the nature and scale of the fighting indicate that an ‘armed conflict’, within the meaning of international law, exists in Kosovo. As a consequence, she intends to bring charges for crimes against humanity or war crimes, if evidence of such crimes is established’’;

Whereas reports from Kosovar Albanian refugees provide accounts of systematic efforts to displace the entire Muslim population of Kosovo;

Whereas in furtherance of this plan, Serbian troops, police, and paramilitary forces have engaged in detention and summary execution of men of all ages, wanton destruction of civilian housing, forcible expulsions, mass executions in at least 60 villages and towns, as well as widespread organized rape of women and young girls;

Whereas these reports of atrocities provide prima facie evidence of war crimes, crimes against humanity, as well as genocide;

Whereas any criminal investigation is best served by the depositions and interviews of witnesses as soon after the commission of the crime as possible;

Whereas the indictment, arrest, and trial of war criminals would provide a significant deterrent to further atrocities;

Whereas the ICTY has issued 14 international warrants for war crimes suspects that have yet to be served, despite knowledge of the suspects’ whereabouts;

Whereas vigorous prosecution of war crimes after the conflict in Bosnia may have prevented the ongoing atrocities in Kosovo;

Whereas investigative reporters have identified specific documentary evidence implicating the Serbian leadership in the commission of war crimes; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the United States, in coordination with other United Nations contributors, should provide sufficient resources for an expeditious and thorough investigation of allegations of the atrocities and war crimes committed in Kosovo;

(2) the United States, through its intelligence services, should provide all possible cooperation in the gathering of sufficient specificity and credibility to secure the indictment of those responsible for the commission of war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide in the former Yugoslavia;

(3) where evidence warrants, indictments for war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide should be issued against suspects regardless of their position within the Serbian leadership;

(4) the United States and all nations have an obligation to honor arrest warrants issued by the ICTY, and the United States should use all appropriate means to apprehend war criminals already under indictment; and

(5) NATO should not accept any diplomatic resolution to the conflict in Kosovo that would bar the indictment, apprehension, or prosecution of war criminals for crimes committed during operations in Kosovo.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, this resolution, from the Senator from Pennsylvania and me, attempts to address the serious issue of war crimes. It calls for the Senate to make its voice clear on the issue of war crimes and the prosecution of those guilty of such crimes.

AMENDMENT NO. 380

Amendment No. 380

Mr. WELLSTONE proposed three amendments to the bill, S. 1059, supra; as follows:

On page 387, line 24, strike `;` and insert `:`

SEC. 329. PROVISION OF INFORMATION AND TECHNICAL GUIDANCE TO CERTAIN FOREIGN NATIONS REGARDING ENVIRONMENTAL CONTAMINATION AT UNITED STATES MILITARY INSTALLATIONS CLOSED OR BEING CLOSED IN SUCH NATIONS.

(a) Requirement to Provide Information and Guidance.---The Secretary of Defense shall provide to each foreign nation that is a strategic partner of the United States the following:

(1) Such information meeting the standards and practices of the United States environmental industry as is necessary to assist the foreign nation in determining the nature and extent of environmental contamination at any installation or site referred to in paragraph (1), including:

(A) each United States military installation located in the foreign nation that is being closed; and

(B) each site in the foreign nation of a United States military installation that has been closed.

(2) Such technical guidance and other cooperation as is necessary to permit the foreign nation to utilize the information provided under paragraph (1) for purposes of environmental baseline studies.

(b) Limitation.---The requirement to provide information and technical guidance under subsection (a) may not be construed to establish on the part of the United States any liability or obligation for the costs of environmental restoration or remediation at any installation or site referred to in paragraph (1) of that subsection.

(c) Definition.---In this section, the term "foreign nation that is a strategic partner of the United States" means any nation which cooperates with the United States on military matters, whether by treaty alliance or informal arrangement.

AMENDMENT NO. 382

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. 3. EVALUATION OF THE OUTCOME OF WELFARE REFORM.

Section 411(b) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 611(b)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (3), by striking "and" at the end;

(2) in paragraph (4), by striking the period and inserting `:`; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

"(5) for each State program funded under this part, data regarding the rate of employment, job retention, earnings characteristics, health insurance status, and child care access and cost for former recipients of assistance under the State program during, with respect to each such recipient, the first 21 months occurring after the date that the recipient ceases to receive such assistance.''.

SPECTER AMENDMENT NO. 383

Mr. SPECTER proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1059, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place add the following new section:

Sec. 3. Directing the President, pursuant to the United States Constitution and the War Powers Resolution, to seek approval from Congress prior to the introduction of ground troops from the United States Armed Forces in connection with particular referent operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia or funding for that operation will not be authorized.

None of the funds authorized or otherwise available to the Department of Defense may be obligated or expended for the deployment of ground troops from the United States Armed Forces in Kosovo, except for peacekeeping personnel, unless authorized by a declaration of war or a joint resolution authorizing the use of military force.

LANDRIEU (AND OTHERS)

AMENDMENT NO. 384

Mr. LANDRIEU (for himself, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. DORGAN, and Mrs. FEINSTEIN) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1059, supra; as follows:

At the end of title 10 add the following:

The Senate finds that:

The United Nations Security Council created the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (in this concurrent resolution referred to as the "ICTY") by resolution on May 25, 1993.

Although the ICTY has indicted 84 people since its creation, these indictments have only resulted in the trial and conviction of 8 criminal:

The ICTY has jurisdiction to investigate grave breaches of the 1949 Geneva Conventions (Article 2), violations of the laws and customs of war (Article 3), genocide (Article 4), and crimes against humanity (Article 5);

The ICTY is the subject of Chief Prosecutor Louise Arbour, stated on July 7, 1998, to the Contact Group for the former Yugoslavia that "[the] Prosecutor believes that the nature and scale of the fighting indicate that an 'armed conflict', within the meaning of international law, exists in Kosovo. As a consequence, she intends to bring charges for crimes against humanity or war crimes, if evidence of such crimes is established:"

Reports from Kosovar Albanian refugees provide detailed accounts of systematic efforts to depopulate the entire Muslim population of Kosovo.

In furtherance of this plan, Serbian troops, police, and paramilitary forces have engaged in detention and summary execution of men of all ages, wanton destruction of civilian housing, forcible expulsions, mass executions in at least 60 villages and towns, as well as widespread organized rape of women and young girls.

These reports of atrocities provide prima facie evidence of war crimes, crimes against humanity, as well as genocide.

Any criminal investigation is best served by the depositions and interviews of witnesses as soon after the commission of the crime as possible.

The indictment, arrest, and trial of war criminals would provide a significant deterrent to further atrocities.

The ICTY has issued 14 international warrants for war crimes suspects that have yet to be served, despite knowledge of the suspects' whereabouts.

Vigorous prosecution of war crimes after the conflict in Bosnia may have prevented or at least mitigated further atrocities.

Investigative reporters have identified specific documentary evidence implicating the Serbian leadership in the commission of war crimes.

SEC. 2. It is the sense of Congress that—
(1) the United States, in coordination with other United Nations contributors, should provide sufficient resources for an expedited and thorough investigation of allegations of the atrocities and war crimes committed in Kosovo;
(2) the United States, through its intelligence services, should provide all possible cooperation in the gathering of evidence of sufficient specificity and credibility to secure the indictment of those responsible for the commission of war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide in the former Yugoslavia;
(3) where evidence warrants, indictments for war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide should be issued against suspects regardless of their position within the Serbian leadership;
(4) the United States and all nations have an obligation to issue arrest warrants issued by the ICTY, and the United States should use all appropriate means to apprehend war criminals already under indictment; and
(5) NATO should not accept any diplomatic resolution to the conflict in Kosovo that would bar the indictment, apprehension, or prosecution of war criminals for crimes committed during operations in Kosovo.

THOMAS (AND ENZI) AMENDMENT NO. 385

Mr. THOMAS (for himself and Mr. ENZI) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them to the bill, S. 1095, supra; as follows:

SEC. ... PROHIBITION.—Notwithstanding section 2572 of title 10, United States Code, or any other provision of law, the President may not transfer any memorial object to a foreign country or entity controlled by a foreign government, or otherwise transfer or convey such object to any person or entity for purposes of the immediate transfer or conveyance of such object to a foreign country or entity controlled by a foreign government, unless specifically authorized by law.

 subsection (a) in subsection (a), by striking "subsections (b) through (f)" and inserting "subsections (b) through (e)";

(2) by striking subsection (b) and inserting the following new subsection:

(b) CONSIDERATION.—(1) In the event of the transfer of the property under subsection (a) to the State of Maryland, the transfer shall be with consideration not less than $750,000, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Department of Commerce.

(2) The United States shall be entitled to such property at the time of the transfer of the property under this section for the consideration specified in subsection (a).

SARBANES AMENDMENTS Nos. 386–387

Mr. SARBANES submitted two amendments intended to be proposed by him to the bill, S. 1095, supra; as follows:

SEC. 386. ONE-YEAR DELAY IN DEMOLITION OF RADIO TRANSMITTING FACILITY TOWERS AT NAVAL STATION, ANNAPOLIS, MARYLAND, TO FACILITATE TRANSFER OF TOWERS.

SEC. 387. FUNDING FOR DEMOLITION.

AMENDMENT NO. 386

At the end of subtitle E of title XXVIII, add the following:

(1) ONE-YEAR DELAY.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of the Navy may not obligate or expend any funds for the demolition of the naval radio transmitting facility (NRTF) towers described in subsection (b) during the one-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) COVERED TOWERS.—The naval radio transmitting facility towers described in subsection (b) are the radio transmitting facility towers located at Naval Station, Annapolis, Maryland, that are scheduled for demolition as of the date of the enactment of this Act.

(3) TRANSFER OF TOWERS.—The Secretary shall transfer to the State of Maryland, or to the appropriate state authorities, the radio transmitting facility towers described in subsection (b) if the Secretary determines that the towers are no longer required for the purposes of this Act.

(4) CONSIDERATION.—(1) In the event of the transfer of the property under subsection (a) to the State of Maryland, the transfer shall be with consideration not less than $750,000, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Department of Commerce.

(2) By striking subsection (b) and inserting the following new subsection:

(b) CONSIDERATION.—(1) In the event of the transfer of the property under subsection (a) to the State of Maryland, the transfer shall be with consideration not less than $750,000, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Department of Commerce.

ROTH (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 388

Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. THURMOND, and Mr. KENNEDY) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 1095, supra; as follows:

SEC. 582. POSTHUMOUS ADVANCEMENT OF REAR ADMIRAL THE (RET.) HUBBARD E. KIMMEL AND MAJOR GENERAL (RETIRED) WALTER C. SHORT ON RETIRED LIST.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The late Rear Admiral (retired) Hubbard E. Kimmel, formerly serving in the grade of admiral as the Commander in Chief of the United States Pacific Fleet and the Commander in Chief, United States Pacific Fleet, had an excellent and unassailable record throughout his career in the United States Navy prior to the December 7, 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor.

(2) The late Major General (retired) Walter C. Short, formerly serving in the grade of lieutenant general as the Commander of the United States Army Hawaiian Department, had an excellent and unassailable record throughout his career in the United States Army prior to the December 7, 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor.

(3) Numerous investigations following the attack on Pearl Harbor have documented that then Admiral Kimmel and then Lieutenant General Short were not provided necessary and critical intelligence that was available, that foretold of war with Japan, that warned of imminent attack, and that would have alerted them to prepare for the attack, including such essential communiques as the Japanese Pearl Harbor Bomb Plot message of September 24, 1941, and the message sent from the Imperial Japanese Foreign Ministry to the Japanese Ambassador in the United States from December 6–7, 1941, known as the Fourteen-Part Message.

(4) On December 16, 1941, Admiral Kimmel and Lieutenant General Short were relieved of their commands and returned to their permanent ranks of rear admiral and major general.

(5) Admiral William Harrison Standley, who served as a member of the investigating commission known as the Roberts Commission that accused Admiral Kimmel and Lieutenant General Short of "dereliction of duty" only six weeks after the attack on Pearl Harbor, later disavowed the report maintaining that “these two officers were martyred” and “if they had been brought to trial, both would have been cleared of the charge”.

(6) On October 19, 1944, a Naval Court of Inquiry convened by Admiral T.C. Hart at the direction of Admiral (retired) Kimmel determined that Rear Admiral (retired) Kimmel was unjustly held responsible for the Pearl Harbor disaster and that “it would be equitable and just” to advance him to the rank of lieutenant general on the retired list.

(14) In October 1944, the then Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Carlisle Troost, withdrew his 1940 recommendation for the advancement of Rear Admiral (retired) Kimmel (By then deceased) and recommended that he be promoted to the grade of Rear Admiral (retired) Kimmel be re-opened.

(15) Although the Dorn Report, a report on the result of a Department of Defense study authorized on December 26, 1941, did not provide support for an advancement of the late Rear Admiral (retired) Kimmel or the late Major General (retired) Short in grade, it did set forth as a conclusion of the study that “responsibility for the Pearl Harbor disaster should not fall solely on the shoulders of Admiral Kimmel and Lieutenant General Short, it should be broadly shared.”

(16) The Dorn Report found—

(A) that “Army and Navy officials in Washington were privy to intercepted Japanese communications, which provided crucial confirmation of the imminence of war”;

(B) that “the evidence of the handling of these messages indicates some ineptitude, some unwarranted assumptions and misestimations, limited coordination, ambiguous language, and lack of clarification and follow-up at higher levels”;

(C) that “together, these characteristics resulted in failure . . . to adequately convey to the commanders in Hawaii the sense of focus and urgency that these intercepts should have engendered.”

(17) On July 21, 1997, Vice Admiral David C. Richardson (United States Navy, retired) re-commended his own personal and professional study which confirmed findings of the Naval Court of Inquiry and Army Pearl Harbor Board of Investigation and established, among other facts, that the war effort in 1941 was undermined by a restrictive intelligence distribution policy, and the degree to which the commanders of the United States forces in Hawaii were not alerted about the impending attack on Hawaii was directly attributable to the withholding of intelligence from then Admiral Kimmel and Lieutenant General Short.

(18) Rear Admiral (retired) Kimmel and Major General (retired) Short are the only two officers eligible for advancement under the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 as senior World War II commanders who were excluded from the list of retired officers presented for advancement on the retired lists to their highest wartime ranks under that Act.

(19) This singular exclusion from advancement of Rear Admiral (retired) Kimmel and Major General (retired) Short from the Navy retired list and the Army retired list, respectively, serves only to perpetuate the myth that the senior commanders in Hawaii were derelict in their duty and responsible for the failure of the attack on Pearl Harbor, and is a distinct and unacceptable expression of dishonor toward two of the finest officers who have served in the Armed Forces of the United States.

(20) Major General (retired) Walter Short performed his duties as Commanding General, Hawaiian Department, with competence and professionalism, and, therefore, the losses incurred by the United States in the attacks on the naval base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and other targets on the island of Oahu, Hawaii, on December 7, 1941, were not a result of dereliction in the performance of those duties by the then Admiral Kimmel.

(21) The Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, the American Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Admiral Nimitz Foundation, the Naval Academy Alumni Association, the Retired Officers Association, the Pearl Harbor Commemorative Committee, and other associations and numerous retired military officers have called for the rehabilitation of the reputations and honor of the late Rear Admiral (retired) Kimmel and the late Major General (retired) Short. Their active and persistent advocacy of advancement on the retired lists to their highest wartime grades.

(b) Request for ADVANCEMENT ON RETIRED LISTS.—(1) The President is requested—

(A) to advance the late Rear Admiral (retired) Husband E. Kimmel to the grade of admiral and to the retired list of the Navy;

(B) to advance the late Major General (retired) Walter C. Short to the grade of lieutenant general on the retired list of the Army.

(2) Any advancement in grade on a retired list requested under paragraph (1) shall not increase or otherwise modify the compensation or benefits from the United States to which any person is now or may in the future be entitled based upon the military service of the officer advanced.

(c) Sense of Congress.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the late Rear Admiral (retired) (By then deceased) and recommended that he be promoted to the grade of Rear Admiral (retired) Short through their posthumous advancement on the retired lists to their highest wartime grades.

(2) Major General (retired) Walter C. Short performed his duties as Commanding General, Hawaiian Department, with competence and professionalism, and, therefore, the losses incurred by the United States in the attacks on Hickam Army Air Field and Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, and other targets on the island of Oahu, Hawaii, on December 7, 1941, were not a result of dereliction in the performance of those duties by the then Lieutenant General Short.

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEES TO MEET

COMMITTEE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President. I would like to announce that the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs will meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, May 26, 1999, at 9:30 a.m. to conduct a hearing on American Indian Youth Activities and Initiatives. The hearing will be held in room 805, Russell Senate Building.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON CRIMINAL JUSTICE OVERSIGHT

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate Committee on Criminal Justice Oversight, of the Senate Judiciary Committee, be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Monday, May 24, 1999, at 3 p.m. to hold a hearing in room 226, Senate Dirksen Office Building, on “Bureau of Prisons Oversight: The Importance of Federal Prison Industries.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
REMEMBERING THE NAVAJO CODE TALKERS ON MEMORIAL DAY

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, as our nation gratefully remembers the deceased men and women of our military, I have a special commemoration for this Memorial Day. 1999. This year, as brave American patriots willingly put themselves in “harm’s way” to defend the values and national interests of all Americans in places like the Balkans and the Persian Gulf, I rise to remind my colleagues here in the United States Senate and the American people of one distinguished group of patriots who gave so unselfishly at a time when their rights of citizenship were restricted—the Navajo Code Talkers of World War II. They are unsung heroes who played a vital role in our ultimate success in World War II. The Navajos saw that “pulling together” was a matter of national survival. They gave unselfishly to defend ideals that even today, all we Americans still have not fully realized here in the United States, because the Navajos had faith that America would always continue to promote the communication and fulfillment of those ideals.

Mr. President, we in Delaware salute Mr. Samuel Billison, once one of the select Navajo Code Talkers. Each Navajo Code Talker made an invaluable personal contribution to the success of our nation’s effort in World War II to preserve freedom and democracy. What is most astonishing about this is that they were willing to take on the Axis Powers in the Pacific during World War II. Mr. Billison is traveling from Window Rock, Arizona to be the featured speaker at the May 31st Memorial Day observances being conducted by VFW Post #3238 at the Caesar Rodney High School auditorium.

My state—the First State, the State that started our nation—has a long and proud history of celebrating the culture and accomplishments of Native Americans. It is only fitting, therefore, that Post Commander Mark Newman and Memorial Day Program Director Thomas E. Weyant sought out Mr. Samuel Billison, once one of the select Navajo Code Talkers.

Mr. President, we in Delaware salute the Navajo Code Talkers of World War II. They are unsung heroes who played a vital role in our ultimate success in the Pacific by providing a code which the Japanese never could decipher. While many knew that Native Americans faithfully served in the war, including Navajos, it was not until 1968 that the existence of this top-secret code was finally declassified and made public. Our entire country is indebted to Mr. Billison, to all the Navajo Code Talkers, and to the thousands of Native Americans from various tribes who served so loyally and selflessly in both the Pacific and European theaters of World War II. We must never forget the ultimate sacrifice these Native Americans were willing to make at a time when they and their families were not even allowed to vote or participate in the full fruit of American citizenship in our society.

Mr. Samuel Billison, the Navajo legacy of patriotism, the Navajo contribution of their unique skills, the Navajo heritage of heroism, and the Navajo example of love for America must be carried forward by us all. You have embodied all that we Americans look for in our heroes today and that we revere in the rich tradition of our United States Marine Corps. To you and to all who served, I thank you.
But the onslaught from imports was relentless. From the processors and packers to the feeders, the domestic market crash now reaches all the way to farms and ranches that have stood for generations—an entire industry teeters on the edge of financial ruin.

Last fall, some producers with sheep to sell couldn’t find a single buyer. For the second Easter-Passover season in a row, the market’s traditional high point and the largest holiday marketing period of the year—live lambs were selling in the 60-cent per pound range. Few producers in the country can remain in business at those prices.

Let me add my voice to those urging the President to fashion strong, effective import relief for the U.S. lamb industry. This relief must do two things, curb this unprecedented surge of imports and level the playing field.

RECOGNITION OF EDGAR LEE NEWTON

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to a remarkable person from my home state of Michigan, Mr. Edgar Lee Newton. On May 23, 1999, Mr. Newton will be honored upon his retirement after 18 years as the president of the Bay City branch of the NAACP.

As president of the Bay City NAACP, Edgar Newton has fought many difficult battles for equality and civil rights. Although his tireless efforts on behalf of the NAACP are worthy of recognition in their own right, Mr. Newton has not confined his community service to the NAACP. He has also served with distinction in leadership roles with organizations like the American Red Cross, the United Way, Habitat for Humanity and the Kiwanis Club.

Edgar Newton’s departure from the NAACP will mark a new chapter in his life. I can only hope it is as successful as his civil rights career. Though I am sure he will remain active in the Bay City community, he will enjoy spending more time with his wife Shirley and his two children and grandchildren.

I am pleased to join his colleagues, friends and family in offering my thanks for all he has done.

Mr. President, Edgar Newton can take pride in the many important achievements of his tenure with the NAACP. He has truly exhibited a dedication to justice and equality for all people. I know my colleagues will join me in saluting his commitment to civil rights and in wishing him well in his retirement.

MELISSA YORK, WINNER OF JAMES MADISON MEMORIAL FOUNDATION FELLOWSHIP

Mr. GORTON. Today, I would like to recognize Melissa York, a teacher from Tyee High School in Seatac. She has won Washington State’s 1999 James Madison Memorial Foundation Fellowship which will pay for her graduate school program.

James Madison was perhaps the hardest working and most widely respected man of his day. Commonly hailed as the Father of our Constitution, Madison had more to do with its conception than any other man. He was the driving force in organizing the convention and in establishing the tone and ironing out each obstacle that threatened the success of the Constitution.

Because of Madison’s tremendous contributions to the creation of the Constitution, Congress decided to establish the Memorial Foundation Fellowship to recognize Americans who teach American history and the Constitution to our young people.

Each day teaches eleventh and twelfth graders about the Constitution and how it is used in everyday life and how it is reflected in our society. The future of our country depends on today’s students and on their knowledge and comprehension of our Constitution and government. She not only gives her students greater understanding of our country, but she also inspires her students to achieve more through her example. By continuing her own education, Melissa is showing students that the educational process should never end.

I applaud Melissa for her hard work and dedication to her profession and for her commitment to her students and to learning.

SALUTE TO ALEX XUE

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, on Friday May 14th, MATHCOUNTS held its national competition in Washington, D.C.—the culmination of local and State competitions involving 350,000 students. It gives me great pleasure to inform my colleagues that Alex Xue, a resident of Essex Junction, VT finished second in this competition and received a $6,000 college scholarship.

In a day and age where we are bombarded by reports of failing school systems and apathetic young people, I believe it is extremely important to recognize Alex’s tremendous accomplishments. His success is a tribute not only to his own intelligence and hard work, but also to his family, his teachers and his school community.

In addition to meeting with Alex and his MATHCOUNTS teammates on the Senate steps prior to the competition, by coincidence, I was on Alex’s flight back to Vermont on the Sunday following his competition. I had a chance to talk with Alex and compliment him on his tremendous achievement. He was holding the trophy he had received and when I admired it, although it was clear that he was happy with it, he was especially pleased with the college scholarship. I praised him as any Vermonter would, but I was impressed with his modesty and his pride in his family and school. This is a young man who has done remarkably well in life and we Vermonters should be proud that he is one of us.

I ask that the editorial detailing Alex’s achievement, which appeared in the Burlington Free Press, be printed in the RECORD.

The article follows:

[From the Burlington Free Press, May 19, 1999] WHAT ALEXknows

Imagine a 13-year-old boy who finished second in the nation in an athletic event. Vermont would know exactly how to celebrate: His parents and coaches would be praised, he would be held up as a role model for other kids, his community would be proud.

Alex Xue of Essex Junction deserves the same response, for scoring second in a nationwide math contest for young people.

This remarkable performance is a tribute to his school, though schools are rarely praised these days. This success requires effective instruction year-round. His award is an accolade that also belongs to his parents, who support his studies. Would that more parents lavished as much time on their children’s academics as they do on their sports.

The high finish is also a sign that he is a smart kid, very smart, and that is worth a great deal in the life Alex and his classmates have ahead of them.

Of course, schools cannot fix their attention solely on top students, because they must serve everyone who enters their doors. But they can recognize talent and reward performance, because it motivates other students, and because it serves as a reminder of what school is for: to learn, to strive, to fail at times and gain by the experience, and to achieve.

For his knowledge of math, statistics, geometry and more, Alex receives a $6,000 college scholarship—a fitting prize. Learning offers rewards for every student, though, not just the smartest, and education level is the clearest indicator of a nation’s future. Won’t it be fun to see what becomes of Alex and his abilities? Wouldn’t it be something if society thought of every child’s potential that way?

“FRIENDS OF ROMAN LEE HRUSKA”

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, I ask that the attached comments made by the Honorable Charles Thome at the memorial service for former Senator Roman Lee Hruska, be printed in the RECORD for Monday, April 26, 1999, immediately following my remarks entitled, “Tribute to U.S. Senator Roman L. Hruska.”

The comments follow:

FRIENDS OF ROMAN LEE HRUSKA

Friends all:

First, let me, and all of you here today, recognize two special people, Millie and Carl Curtis. Sen. Curtis served all 22 years with Senator Roman and Senator Hruska always acknowledged that no U.S. Senator ever had a more caring, a better and more cooperative colleague anywhere—anytime. Thank you, Senator Curtis.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE
10675

INTRODUCTIONS

It seems only fitting to also recognize all public officials present. It is from this, that Roman sprung. He epitomized public service at its best. He lived it! He loved it! He honored it!

Senator Durenberger has been pleased to know that, at the outset here, all Judges, current & past, all Federal, State and County officials, current and past, are asked to stand for a brief silent recognition. I also want to especially recognize Governor Mike Johanns; Former Governor Kay Orr and Bill; Former Governor Ben Nelson, Former Governor and U.S. Senator Jim Exon and Pat; former Congressmen Jim McHose and Nan; Nebraska Supreme Court Chief Justice John Hendry; Congressman Doug Bereuter and Louise; and Congressman Lee Terry. Also, a special salute to former chair of the Lancaster County Board and the lifelong Douglas Theatre skilled business partner of Roman, Bill Brehm, of Lincoln and his charming wife Louise Brehm. Also, Attorney General Don Stenberg, a former Husker staff member.

It was the British iconoclast, George B. Shaw who once wisely opined, “No remarks from a former Governor are all that bad”—if they are good stuff, but, in remembering Roman, I’m inclined to want to cover everything, filibuster a bit, if you please, and exhaust both your goodwill and patience, so I’ll do my best! I can! I hope to be very special to me and many of you, too.

His WORK ETHIC

Roman’s work was always his total recreation—Oh, occasionally he would superfluously help them, and in later years, cheer the mighty Cornhuskers on to victory! Early on, I must concede, he would have easily accepted the specious thought that “a quarter-back was a refund on the ticket.”

Many here will remember genial Dean Pohlenz, the Senator’s long time and wonderful AA. He and I once seriously considered conspiring against Roman and another very studious and important top aide to Roman, Bob Kutak. (Kutak and Harold Rock later organized Kutak-Rock, a very successful national law firm, with which Roman proudly associated after leaving the Senate.) Kutak’s interest and knowledge of sports made Roman look like the legendary Grantland Rice. So, Dean, you are in line for a table near you in the Senator’s long time and loved wife is the former MaryAnn Behlen of Columbus. Many grandchildren, nieces and nephews are also here today. Ultimately, family was first for Roman—as it is with all of us.

THE CAMPAIGNER

Roman was never happier nor better showcased than when he was on those early day political campaigns. Ruth and I were visiting the other day about a particular stump speech he once made—with a partially eaten kolache in his left hand—on a Main Street corner at Schuyler during the Nebraska Republican caravan. It was indeed a powerful speech, spliced with Czech phrases and when he finished his remarks, the audience acclaimed him as if he were the “second coming.” The same result happened a couple of weeks later in a Hotel Ballroom in Broken Bow where the usually very reserved Roman enthusiastically delivered, a five minute standing ovation on his inspiring message and brilliant delivery. Oh, he could be a spell-binder deluxe, given the proper occasion.

A NEAR MISS

In the late 50’s, a national search was on for a new leader of the Republican Party. The conservative ringmasters didn’t publicize it, of course, and the short list came down to the two U.S. Senators with safe seats, Roman Hruska and Barry M. Goldwater of Arizona. Goldwater was ultimately designated as the choice, but mostly because they determined that the TV cameras showcased Goldwater better. The rest, as they say, is history.

THE FEDERAL JUDGE

Most importantly, Roman Hruska’s entire life revolved around the law. He lived by this creed once enunciated by Patrick Henry, “Always honor the law because the law has honored you.”

Roman spent his first two law years studying at the University of Chicago Law School. Then he attended the Creighton Law School from which he graduated in 1939, just before the great depression hit with all its fury. He then, in the next 20 or so years, built up a substantial law practice, and from there was appointed to the Douglas County Board. He then became its energetic, successful Chairman, known for his integrity and ability. He was always a prodigious worker. Even his political adversaries conceded that he achieved a lot with his old-fashioned way. He earned it.

Then to Congress for most of one term, then 22 years in the U.S. Senate. In the Senate, he was Minority Leader Mr. Howard M.irkens right hand bowser on the floor of the Senate. Dirksen—“The billion here, and a billion there guy”—called Roman his floor lieutenant, one of the major legislators. Senator Dirksen would tell his senate colleagues if they had amendments, objections, or whatever—“Clear it with Roman.” Roman became a skilled practitioner of the “art of the possible” and he closed many legislative deals for Dirksen.

EXTRAORDINARY SERVICE

It was as the “Minority Leader” of the Senate Judiciary Committee for almost 20 years, that Senator Hruska formally and extraordinarily honored the law.

He worked awfully hard and most effectively, not only to give fairness but structure and design to the law. He would be more effective and easier to use by Federal Judges, the Federal Court System and lawyers.

For the improvement of the rule of law, he co-sponsored the Criminal Code Reform Act of 1975 and the Criminal Justice Codification Revision and Reform Act of 73. For you lawyers here, this was a very substantial overhaul of the entire title 18 of the U.S. Code. His was the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978. He, John Mc Clellan, John Stennis, and John Hatfield, Senate Democrat on the Committee, bonded and his working relationship with the Majority Party was always just something else, and highly unusual. For example, when he left the Senate, he had presided or co-chaired over the confirmation hearings of all nine members of the U.S. Supreme Court—unprecedented in history—and that was an era of “civility” that seems to have escaped modern day confirmation hearings. He was the principal architect of both the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 and the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970. In 1972 and the years following, he served as Chairman of the Federal Commission on Organized Crime and the Court Appellate System of the U.S. and I could go on; suffice it to say that for several years, no Justice Department initiative, no FederalJudgeship, no major legislation moved out of the Senate Judiciary Committee until it had received his careful scrutiny and approval. Throughout, he honored the law, and he honored the Senate as an Institution. Roman’s fingerprints, literally, were all over everything processed by the Judiciary during these years.

ROMAN WAS SPECIAL

Let me say in closing, that we are not here for Roman, we are here for this—he doesn’t! Whatever comes to us after the moment of our earthly death is beyond our understanding.

So, we remain here alive, confused and disconcerted. Above all, let’s remember this about him:

Grace was in his soul, a smile and kind word went out his lips and friendship was in his heart always.

First, last, and always, he was a gentleman.

These words are so true for Roman, and perhaps, just perhaps, they alone might be a fitting eulogy. And, as a very recent World-
Herald editorial writer noted: “The standards for integrity and service that Sen. Hruska set for himself, will long stand as his most fitting memorial.”

A quick postscript paraphrasing beautiful Ecclesiastes, Chapter III, “to everything there is a season and a time for every purpose under heaven . . . A time to plant, and a time to harvest, a time to be born and a time to die.”

Roman, you had a long and superlative life, and we’re all a little better because you cared and touched us.

Dr. Czech—Nas Dar—Good Bye—Dear Roma . . .

RETIREMENT OF MAJOR GENERAL DAVID W. GAY

• Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to bring to the attention of Senators the retirement of Major General David W. Gay, Adjutant General of the Connecticut National Guard, after a military career that has spanned more than 40 years.

The recipient of many military awards and honors, including the Army Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit Award, and the National Guard’s Aeronautics Eagle Award, General Gay has been a valuable friend to me and all the people of Connecticut. His experience and dedication have helped make the Connecticut National Guard the exemplary organization that it is today.

General Gay’s contributions to the state go far beyond his command of both the Army and Air National Guard. His record of community service equals his record of military service and his participation in such activities as the Nutmeg State Games and the Character Counts State Advisory Board demonstrate his love for the community he calls home.

Even in retirement, General Gay will continue to work for the people of Connecticut as the state’s Year 2000 Coordinator. I am happy to extend my thanks to General Gay for his years of distinguished service and offer my best wishes in his retirement.

SUPPORT FOR S. RES. 99

• Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask that the attached letter of support from the American Psychological Association be printed in the RECORD in support of S. Res. 99.

The letter follows:

AMERICAN PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION.

Hon. Harry Reid,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

Dear Senator Reid: On behalf of the 159,000 members and affiliates of the American Psychological Association (APA), I want to express support for your proposed Senate Resolution that would designate November 20, 1999, as “National Survivors for Prevention of Suicide Day.”

The APA is concerned that suicide rates among young adolescents, African American males, American Indians/Alaskan Natives, and the elderly have increased dramatically over recent years. Since the 1960’s, suicide rates among youth have nearly tripled. Between 1980 and 1990, the suicide rate increased by 30 percent in the 10- to 19-year-old age group. Suicide is the second leading cause of death for 15- to 24-year-old American Indians and Alaskan Natives. For Americans ages 65 and older, the suicide rate increased by nine percent between 1980 and 1992. Elderly Americans comprise about 13 percent of the country’s population but account for about 20 percent of all suicides.

Suicide is the 8th leading cause of death in the United States—our country is in dire need of a national effort to prevent suicide. In response to that need, the Surgeon General has been working with mental health advocates to develop a National Strategy for the Prevention of Suicide and is expected to publish a final version of the coordinated strategy later this year.

Your proposed Senate resolution would serve to further the intent of S. Res. 84, which you successfully introduced in the last Congress. It recognizes suicide as a national problem and declares suicide prevention as a national priority. The proposed resolution would acknowledge the trauma of those who have suffered and those who have lived through suicide (suicide survivors) and the support they derive from one another. Their active involvement individually and through organizations has been critical in efforts to reduce suicide through research, education, and treatment programs.

In closing, the APA lends its support to you and other proponents of Congress in securing passage of this resolution. We also look forward to learning more about the administration’s initiatives at the upcoming hearing on the National Strategy for the Prevention of Suicide before the Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor-Health and Human Services and Education.

With best regards,

Raymond D. Fowler, Ph.D.,
Executive Vice President and Chief Executive Officer.

SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION’S PERSON OF THE YEAR: MR. GREGORY SULLIVAN

• Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, it is with great pride that I stand before this body today to congratulate a truly remarkable Missourian, Mr. Gregory Sullivan—the Small Business Administration’s Person of the Year. Mr. Sullivan founded G.A. Sullivan in 1982 with just $300 in start-up capital.

Today, it is one of the fastest growing technology companies in the nation. This custom software company has appeared on Inc. Magazine’s 500 list of fastest growing companies for the past two years. G.A. Sullivan also is leader in the St. Louis community—ranking among the top ten fastest growing technology companies in St. Louis for the past three consecutive years.

In reading Greg’s story, I was intrigued by his biggest challenge. To me it shows the remarkable risks taken by America’s entrepreneurs. Ten years after starting the company—after paying his dues programming computers and building the foundation of the business—he knew that there would be a huge growth in information technology industry. At that point, he had to decide on his business’ future. In December 1995, he decided to gear up with an aggressive business expansion program. He engaged an advertising agency, developed a business plan, designed a logo, hired a marketing consultant to build a sales staff and started aggressively recruiting technical talent. Since that time, sales have grown over 1,400 percent and he now employs nearly 175 people—his clear vision paid off.

While Greg’s custom software development services company provides a leading edge information technology in the business arena—he personally is a leader in the community. He was recently appointed Vice Chairman of Science and Technology for the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association. I understand that he personally conducts workshops on resume writing skills, interviewing and networking to help students be competitive in the after-graduation job market. He also has established the G.A. Sullivan Scholarship for the Small Business Administration’s national Small Business Week celebration. Small Business Week honors contributions of the nation’s small business owners who are the backbone of this great nation. The SBA selects winners on their record of stability, growth, employment and sales, sound financial status, innovation, and the company’s response to adversity and community service.

It honors me to stand before you today to congratulate Mr. Sullivan as the Small Business Administration’s Person of the Year. Mr. Sullivan exemplifies the “American Dream,” and is living proof that with hard work and dedication any one individual can succeed.

SALUTE TO LOIS BODOKY

• Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I salute a longtime Vermont businesswoman, and a fixture on Burlington’s Church Street Marketplace, Mrs. Lois Bodoky.

Lois is affectionately known in Burlington as the “Hot Dog Lady”, for she recently celebrated the 25th anniversary of her business running a hot dog cart in downtown Burlington. Lois went into the hot dog business not long after her hair salon was lost in a fire. And in the future, she was running my first campaign for U.S. Senator. Back then, Church Street was a typical Vermont downtown, and Lois operated her cart on the sidewalk as cars and buses passed on the street. Now, her cart is in a prime spot on Church Street Marketplace, which became a pedestrian mall in the early 1980’s, and is one of Vermont’s prime shopping areas.

Since Lois went into business, downtown Burlington has seen many changes, but the “Hot Dog Lady’s” cart has remained a fixture, even in some of Vermont’s coldest months. She is truly a Burlington institution and is most reliable to members of the downtown crowd who cannot let a lunch hour pass without a lunch from Lois.●

WESTPORT VOLUNTEER EMERGENCY SERVICES

● Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to formally congratulate Westport Volunteer Emergency Services on its 20th Anniversary. The fine men and women who founded, operate, and support this organization have distinguished themselves as one the pil- lars on which the principles of community service rest.

The EMS team has truly been an asset to the town of Westport and has had a profound impact on the individ- uals and families who have benefited from its experience and training. Its quick service and professional response has made it one of the state’s most well-respected EMS corps. We have all been taught that we have an obligation to help our neighbors in need, but this organization has truly taken this credo to heart and has earned commendation for the lives it has saved, the families it has assisted, and the time it has con- tributed to improving the entire community.

I give special congratulations to the 23 original members and staff of WVEMS who have still active. They should be very proud of the positive impact of this organization, and I am certain that they appreciate more than anyone the growth and development of this outstanding EMS corps.

Westport EMS provides immediate, front-line assistance that is so valuable to our neighbors in need and does so on a volunteer basis. Its efforts have made a difference to children and adults alike over these last two decades and done more than its part to im- prove the Town of Westport. I am con- fident that Westport Volunteer Emer- gency Medical Services will continue its sterling record of service far into the future.●

SATELLITE HOME VIEWERS IMPROVEMENT ACT

On May 20, 1999, the Senate amended and passed H.R. 1554, the Satellite Home Viewers Improvement Act, as follows:

Resolved, That the bill from the House of Representatives (H.R. 1554) entitled “An Act to amend the provisions of title 17, United States Code, and the Communications Act of 1934, relating to copyright licensing and carriage of broadcast signals by satellite,” do pass with the following amendment:

TITLE I—SATELLITE HOME VIEWERS IMPROVEMENTS ACT

SEC. 101. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the “Satellite Home Viewers Improvements Act”.

SEC. 102. LIMITATION ON EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS; SECONDARY TRANSMISSIONS BY SATELLITE CARRIERS WITHIN LOCAL MARKETS.

(a) In General.—Chapter 1 of title 17, United States Code, is amended by adding after section 121 the following new section:

“§ 122. Limitations on exclusive rights; sec- ondary transmissions by satellite carriers within local markets.

“(a) SECONDARY TRANSMISSIONS OF TELE- VISION BROADCAST STATIONS BY SATELLITE CAR- RIERS.—A secondary transmission of a primary transmission by a television broadcast station into the station’s local market shall be subject to statutory licensing under this section if—

“(1) the secondary transmission is made by a satellite carrier;

“(2) the secondary transmission is permissible under the rules, regulations, or authorizations of the Federal Communications Commission; and

“(3) the satellite carrier makes a direct or indi- rect charge for the secondary transmission to—

“(A) each subscriber receiving the secondary transmission; or “(B) a distributor that has contracted with the satellite carrier for direct or indirect delivery of the secondary transmission to the public.

“(b) REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.—

“(1) INITIAL LISTS.—A satellite carrier that makes secondary transmissions of a primary transmission made by a network station under subsection (a) shall, within 90 days after commencing such secondary transmissions, submit to the network that owns or is affiliated with the network that maintained identifying (by name and street address, including county and zip code) all subscribers to whom the satellite carrier makes such secondary transmission; or

“(2) SUBSEQUENT LISTS.—After the list is sub- mitted under paragraph (1), the satellite carrier shall, on the 15th of each month, submit to the network a list identifying (by name and street address, including county and zip code) all subscribers to whom the satellite carrier makes such secondary transmission; or

“(3) USE OF SUBSCRIBER INFORMATION.—Sub- scriber information submitted by a satellite car- rier under this subsection may be used only for the purposes of monitoring compliance by the satellite carrier with this section.

“(4) REQUIREMENTS OF STATIONS.—The sub- mission requirements of this subsection shall apply to a satellite carrier only if the network to which the submissions are to be made places on file with the Register of Copyrights a document identifying the name and address of the person to whom such submissions are to be made. The Register shall maintain for public inspection a file of all such documents.

“(5) NO ROYALTY FEE REQUIRED.—A satellite car- rier whose secondary transmissions are sub- ject to statutory licensing under subsection (a) shall have no royalty obligation for such sec- ondary transmissions.

“(6) NOTICE AND SERVICE WITH REPORTING RE- QUIREMENTS.—Notwithstanding subsection (a), the willful or repeated secondary transmission to the public by a satellite carrier into the local market of a television broadcast station of a primary transmission made by that television broadcast station and embodying a perfor- mance or display of a work is actionable as an act of infringement under section 501, and is fully subject to the remedies provided by sections 502 through 506 and 509, if the satellite carrier has not complied with the reporting requirements of subsection (b).

“(c) WILLFUL ALTERATIONS.—Notwith- standing subsection (a), the secondary trans- mission to the public by a satellite carrier into the local market of a television broadcast station of a primary transmission made by that tele- vision broadcast station and embodying a perfor- mance or display of a work is actionable as an act of infringement under section 501, and is fully subject to the remedies provided by sec- tions 502 through 506 and sections 509 and 510, if the content of the particular program in which the performance or display is embodied, or any commercial advertising or in- announcement transmitted by the primary trans- mittor during, or immediately before or after, the transmission of such program, is in any way willfully altered by the satellite carrier through changes, deletions, or additions, or is combined with programming from any other broadcast sig- nal.

“(d) VIOLATION OF TERRITORIAL RE-

“-On STATUTORY LICENSE FOR TELEVISION BROADCAST STATIONS.

“(1) INDIVIDUAL VIOLATIONS.—The willful or repeated secondary transmission to the public by a satellite carrier of a primary transmission made by a television broadcast station and embodying a performance or display of a work to a subscriber who does not reside in that station’s local market, and is not subject to statu- tory licensing under section 119, is actionable as an act of infringement under section 501 and is fully subject to the remedies provided by sec- tions 502 through 506 and 509, except that—

“(A) no damages shall be awarded for such act of infringement if the satellite carrier took corrective action by promptly withdrawing serv- ice from the ineligible subscriber; and

“(B) any statutory damages shall not exceed $5 for such subscriber for each month during which the violation occurred.

“(2) PATTERN OF VIOLATIONS.—If a satellite carrier engages in a willful or repeated pattern or practice of secondarily transmitting to the public a primary transmission made by a tele- vision broadcast station and embodying a perfor- mance or display of a work to subscribers who do not reside in that station’s local market, and are not subject to statutory licensing under section 119, then in addition to the remedies under paragraph (1)—

“(A) if the pattern or practice has been car- ried out on a substantially nationwide basis, the court shall order a permanent injunction barring the secondary transmission by the satellite carrier of the primary transmissions of that tele- vision broadcast station (and if such television broadcast station is a network station, all other television broadcast stations affiliated with such network), and the court may order statutory damages not exceeding $250,000 for each 6- month period during which the pattern or prac- tice was carried out; and

“(B) if the pattern or practice has been car- ried out on a local or regional basis with respect to more than one television broadcast station (and if such television broadcast station is a network station, all other television broadcast stations affiliated with such network), the court shall order a permanent injunction barring the secondary transmission in that locality or region by the satellite carrier of the primary trans- missions of any television broadcast station, and the court may order statutory damages not exceeding $1,000 for each 6-month period during which the pattern or practice was carried out.

"(g) BURDEN OF PROOF.—In any action brought under subsection (d), (e), or (f), the satellite carrier has the burden of proving that its secondary transmission of a primary transmission by a television broadcast station is made only to subscribers located within that station's local market.

"(h) GEOGRAPHIC LIMITATIONS ON SECONDARY TRANSMISSIONS.—The statutory license created by this section shall apply to secondary transmissions to locations in the United States, and any commonwealth, territory, or possession of the United States.

"(i) EXCLUSIVITY WITH RESPECT TO SECONDARY TRANSMISSIONS.—Broadcast stations by satellite to members of the public.—No provision of section 111 or any other law (other than this section and section 119) shall be construed to contain any authorization, exemption, or license through which secondary transmissions by satellite carriers of programming contained in a primary transmission made by a television broadcast station may be made without obtaining the consent of the copyright owner.

SEC. 105. DEFINITIONS.

"(j) Definitions.—In this section—

"(1) The term 'distributor' means an entity which contracts to distribute secondary transmissions from a satellite carrier and, either as a single channel or in a package with other programming, provides the secondary transmission either directly to individual subscribers or indirectly through other program distribution entities.

"(2) The term 'local market' for a television broadcast station has the meaning given that term under rules, regulations, and authorizations of the Federal Communications Commission relating to carriage of television broadcast signals by satellite carriers.

"(3) The terms 'network station', 'satellite carrier' and 'secondary transmission' have the meaning given such terms under section 119(d).

"(4) The term 'subscriber' means an entity that receives a secondary transmission service, by means of a secondary transmission from a satellite and pays a fee for the service, directly or indirectly, to the satellite carrier or to a distributor.

"(5) The term 'television broadcast station' means an over-the-air, commercial or non-commercial television station licensed by the Federal Communications Commission under part 73 of title 47, Code of Federal Regulations.

"(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—The table of sections for chapter 1 of title 17, United States Code, is amended by adding after the item relating to section 121 the following:

"122. Limitations on exclusive rights; secondary transmissions by satellite carriers within local market.

SEC. 106. PUBLIC BROADCASTING SERVICES TELEVISION FEED.

"(a) SECONDARY TRANSMISSION.—Section 119(d)(1) of title 17, United States Code, is amended—

"(1) by striking the paragraph heading and inserting—

"SECONDARY TRANSMISSIONS.—Section 119(d)(1) of title 17, United States Code, is amended—

"(2) by inserting ''or by the Public Broadcasting Service satellite feed'' after ''superstation''

"(3) by adding at the end the following:

"In the case of the Public Broadcasting Service satellite feed, the compulsory license shall be effective until January 1, 2002.

"DEFINITIONS.—Section 119(d) of title 17, United States Code, is amended—

"(1) by amending paragraph (9) to read as follows:

"(9) Superstation.—The term 'superstation'—

"(A) means a television broadcast station, other than a network station, licensed by the Federal Communications Commission that is secondarily transmitted by a satellite carrier; and

"(B) includes the Public Broadcasting Service satellite feed.

"(2) by adding at the end the following:

"PUBLIC BROADCASTING SERVICE SATELLITE FEED.—The term 'Public Broadcasting Service satellite feed' means the national satellite feed distributed by the Public Broadcasting Service consisting of educational and informational programming intended for private home viewing, to which the Public Broadcasting Service holds national terrestrial broadcast rights.

SEC. 107. APPLICATION OF FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION REGULATIONS.

Section 119(a) of title 17, United States Code, is amended—

"(1) in paragraph (1), by inserting "is permissible under the rules, regulations, and authorizations of the Federal Communications Commission," after "satellite carrier to the public for private home viewing," and

"(2) in paragraph (2), by inserting "is permissible under the rules, regulations, and authorizations of the Federal Communications Commission," after "satellite carrier to the public for private home viewing," and

"(3) by adding at the end the following:

"(f) STATUTORY LICENSE CONTINGENT ON COMPLIANCE WITH REMEDIAL STEPS.—The willful or repeated secondary transmission by the public by a satellite carrier of a primary transmission made by a broadcast station authorized by the Federal Communications Commission is actionable as an act of infringement under section 501, and is fully subject to the remedies provided by sections 502 through 508 and 509, if, at the time of such transmission, the satellite carrier is not in compliance with the rules, regulations, and authorizations of the Federal Communications Commission concerning the carriage of television broadcast station signals."

SEC. 108. TELEVISION BROADCAST STATION STANDING.

Section 501 of title 17, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(f) With respect to any secondary transmission that is made by a satellite carrier of a primary transmission embodying the performance or display of a work and is actionable as an act of infringement under section 501, a television broadcast station holding a copyright or other license to transmit or perform the same version of that work shall, for purposes of subsection (b) of this section, be treated as a legal or beneficial owner if such secondary transmission occurs within the local market of that station.

SEC. 109. MORATORIUM ON COPYRIGHT LIABILITY.

Until December 31, 1999, no subscriber, as defined under section 119(d)(8) of title 17, United States Code, located within the predicted Grade B contour of a local network television broadcast station shall have satellite service of a distant network signal affiliated with the same network terminated, if that subscriber received satellite service of such network signal before July 11, 1998, as a result of section 119 of title 17, United States Code.

SEC. 110. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This title and the amendments made by this title shall take effect on January 1, 1999, except the amendments made by section 104 shall take effect on July 1, 1999.

TITLE II—SATELLITE TELEVISION ACT OF 1999

SEC. 201. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Satellite Television Act of 1999.

SEC. 202. FINDINGS.

The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) In the Cable Television Consumer Protection and Competition Act of 1992, Congress stated its policy of promoting competition in cable services and making available to the public a diversity of views and information through cable television and other video media.

(2) In the Telecommunications Act of 1996, Congress stated its policy of securing lower prices and higher quality service for American telecommunications consumers and encouraging the rapid deployment of new telecommunications technologies.

(3) In most places throughout America, cable television system operators still do not face effective competition from other providers of multichannel video service.

(4) Absent effective competition, the market power exercised by cable television operators enables them to raise the price of cable service to consumers, and to control the price and availability of cable programming services to other multichannel video service providers. Current Federal Communications Commission rules have been inadequate in constraining cable price increases.

(5) Direct-to-home satellite service has over 8 million subscribers and constitutes the most significant competitive alternative to cable television service.

(6) Direct-to-home satellite service currently suffers from a number of statutory, regulatory, and technical barriers that keep it from being an effective competitor to cable television in the provision of public interest and video services.

(7) The most prominent of these barriers is the inability to provide subscribers with local television broadcast signals by satellite.

(a) The provision of direct-to-home satellite service to retransmit local television signals to their subscribers would greatly enhance the ability of direct-to-home satellite service providers to compete effectively in the provision of multichannel video services.

(b) Due to capacity limitations and in the interest of providing service in as many markets as possible, direct-to-home satellite service, unlike cable television systems, cannot at this time carry all local television broadcast signals in all the local television markets they seek to serve.

(10) It would be in the public interest for providers of direct-to-home satellite service to fully comply with the mandatory signal carriage rules at the earliest possible date. In the interim, requiring full compliance with the mandatory signal carriage rules would substantially limit the ability of direct-to-home satellite service providers to compete with the provision of multichannel video services and would not serve the public interest.

(11) Maintaining the viability of free, local, over-the-air television service is a matter of preeminent public interest.

(12) All subscribers to multichannel video services should be able to receive the signal of at least one station affiliated with each of the major broadcast television networks.

(13) Millions of subscribers to direct-to-home satellite service currently receive the signals of network-affiliated stations not located in these subscribers' local television markets. Where conventional rooftop antennas cannot provide satisfactory reception of local stations, distant network signals may be these subscribers' only source of network television service.

(14) The widespread carriage of distant network stations in local network affiliates' markets could harm the local stations' ability to serve their local community.

(15) Abrupt termination of satellite carriers' provision of network signals to subscribers could have a negative impact on the ability of direct-to-home satellite service to compete effectively in the provision of multichannel video services.

(16) The cost would be borne by permitting direct-to-home satellite service providers to continue existing carriage of a distant network affiliate's signal where—

(A) a subscriber is unserved by the local station under subsection (a); or

(B) a local network affiliate cannot be adequately received off-air; or

(C) continued carriage would not harm the local network station.

"SEC. 203. PURPOSE."

The purpose of this title is to promote competition in the provision of multichannel video services while protecting the availability of free, local, over-the-air television, particularly for the 22 percent of American television households that do not subscribe to any multichannel video programming service.

"SEC. 204. MANDATORY FOR SATELLITE CARRIERS RETRANSMITTING TELEVISION BROADCAST SIGNALS."

Part 1 of section 611 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 311) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"SEC. 339. CARRIAGE OF DISTANT TELEVISION STATIONS BY SATELLITE CARRIERS.

(a) PROVIDERS RELATING TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (d), direct-to-home satellite service providers shall be permitted to provide the signals of 1 affiliate of each television network to any subscriber located within the predicted Grade B service area of any local television broadcast station that is located in a designated market area in which the subscriber resides.

(2) ELIGIBILITY DETERMINATION.—The determination of a new subscriber's eligibility to receive the signals of one or more distant network stations as a component of the service provided pursuant to paragraph (a) shall be made by ascertaining whether the subscriber resides within the predicted Grade B service area of a local television broadcast station. The Individual Location Longley–Rice methodology described by the Commission in Docket 98-201 shall be used to make this determination. A direct-to-home satellite service provider shall be permitted to provide the signal of a distant network station to any subscriber determined by this method to be served by a local station affiliated with that network.

(3) RULES REQUIRED.—Within 90 days after the date of enactment of the Satellite Television Act of 1999, the Commission shall adopt rules that shall be such that it shall be in the public interest for direct-to-home satellite service providers to establish procedures that shall be such that it shall be in the public interest for any subscriber requesting a waiver to receive one or more distant network stations. The waiver procedures adopted by the Commission shall—

(a) be such that it shall be in the public interest for direct-to-home satellite service providers to establish procedures that shall be such that it shall be in the public interest for any subscriber requesting a waiver to receive one or more distant network stations. The waiver procedures adopted by the Commission shall—

(ii) allocate responsibilities fairly between direct-to-home satellite service providers and local stations;

(iii) provide mandatory time limits within which direct-to-home satellite service providers and local stations shall carry out the obligations imposed on them; and

(iv) provide that all costs of conducting any measurement or testing shall be borne by the direct-to-home satellite service provider, if the local station's signal meets the prescribed minimum standards, or by the local station, if its signal fails to meet the prescribed minimum standards.

(3) PUNITIVE VIOLATION.—Any direct-to-home satellite service provider that knowingly and willfully provides the signals of 1 or more distant television stations to subscribers in violation of this section shall be subject to a fine in the amount of $50,000 per day per violation.

(3) PROVISIONS RELATING TO EXISTING SUBSCRIBERS.—

(A) Within 180 days after the date of enactment of the Satellite Television Act of 1999, the Commission shall report to the Congress on a manner that frustrates the purposes of this Act. The Commission shall implement the requirements of this section without imposing any undue economic burden on any party.

(B) The rules adopted by the Commission under paragraph (3) shall be in the public interest to do so.

(C) Waivers NOT PRECLUDED.—Notwithstanding any other provision in this section, nothing shall preclude any network stations from authorizing the continued provision of distant network signals in unaltered form to any direct-to-home satellite service subscriber currently receiving them.

(D) CERTAIN SIGNALS.—Providers of direct-to-home satellite service may continue to carry the signals of distant television stations to subscribers located between the outside limits of the predicted Grade A and Grade B contours of a local network station and Grade B contours of the local network station who received those distant network signals before July 11, 1998.

(2) CONTINUATION OF DIRECT-TO-HOME CARRIAGE.—Direct-to-home satellite service providers may continue to provide the signals of distant television stations to subscribers located within the predicted Grade B contours of a local network station after December 31, 1999, subject to any limitations adopted by the Commission under paragraph (3).

(3) RULEMAKING REQUIRED.—

(A) Within 180 days after the date of enactment of the Satellite Television Act of 1999, the Commission shall report to the Congress on a manner that frustrates the purposes of this Act. The Commission shall implement the requirements of this section without imposing any undue economic burden on any party.

(B) The rules adopted by the Commission under paragraph (3) shall be in the public interest to do so.

(C) Waivers NOT PRECLUDED.—Notwithstanding any other provision in this section, nothing shall preclude any network stations from authorizing the continued provision of distant network signals in unaltered form to any direct-to-home satellite service subscriber currently receiving them.

(D) CERTAIN SIGNALS.—Providers of direct-to-home satellite service may continue to carry the signals of distant network stations without regard to subsections (a) and (b) in any situation in which it is determined that—

(i) a subscriber is unserved by the local station affiliated with that network;

(ii) a waiver is otherwise granted by the local station under subsection (c); or

(iii) the carrier would otherwise be consistent with rules adopted by the Commission in Docket 98-201.

(E) RULES REQUIRED.—Within 90 days after the date of enactment of the Satellite Television Act of 1999, the Commission shall report... to Congress on methods of facilitating the delivery of local signals in local markets, especially smaller markets.”.

SEC. 205. RETRANSMISSION CONSENT.

(a) AMENDMENT OF SECTION 325(b).—Section 325(b) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 325(b)) is amended by striking the subsection designation and paragraphs (1) and (2) and inserting the following:

“(b)(1) No cable system or other multichannel video programming distributor shall retransmit the signal of a broadcasting station, or any part thereof, except—

“(A) with the express authority of the station; or “(B) pursuant to section 614 or section 615, in the case of a station electing, in accordance with this subsection, to assert the right to carriage under that section.

“(2) The provisions of this subsection shall not apply to—

“(A) retransmission of the signal of a television broadcast station outside the station’s local market by a satellite carrier directly to subscribers if—

“(i) that station was a superstation on May 1, 1991;

“(ii) as of July 1, 1998, such station’s signal was transmitted under the compulsory license of section 119 of title 17, United States Code, by satellite carriers directly to at least 250,000 subscribers; and “(iii) the satellite carrier complies with any program exclusivity rules that may be adopted by the Federal Communications Commission pursuant to section 338.

“(B) retransmission of the distant signal of a broadcasting station that is owned or operated by, or affiliated with, a broadcasting network directly to a home satellite antenna, if the subscriber resides in an unserved household; or

“(C) retransmission by a cable operator or other multichannel video programming distributor (other than by a satellite carrier direct to its subscribers) of the signal of a television broadcast station outside the station’s local market, if that signal was obtained from a satellite carrier and—

“(i) the originating station was a superstation on May 1, 1991; and “(ii) the originating station was a network station on December 31, 1997, and its signal was retransmitted by a satellite carrier directly to subscribers.

“(3) Any term used in this subsection that is defined in section 337(d) of this Act has the meaning given to it by that section.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) take effect on January 1, 1999.

SEC. 206. DESIGNATED MARKET AREAS.

Nothing in this title, or in the amendments made by this title, prevents the Federal Communications Commission from revising the listing of designated market areas or realigning those areas if the revision or realignment is done in the same manner and to the same extent as the Commission’s cable television mandatory carriage rules provide.

SEC. 207. SEVERABILITY.

If any provision of this title or section 325(b) or 337 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 325(b) or 337, respectively), or the application of that provision to any person or circumstance, is held by a court of competent jurisdiction to violate any provision of the Constitution of the United States, then the other provisions of that section, and the application of that provision to other persons and circumstances, shall not be affected.

SEC. 208. DEFINITIONS.

In this title:

(1) TERMS DEFINED IN COMMUNICATIONS ACT OF 1934.—Any term used in this title that is defined in section 337(d) of the Communications Act of 1934, as added by section 204 of this title, has the meaning given to it by that section.

(2) DESIGNATED MARKET AREA.—The term ‘designated market area’ means a designated market area, as determined by Nielsen Media Research and published in the DMA Market and Demographic Report.

ORDERS FOR MAY 25, 1999

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it stand in adjournment until 9:30 on Tuesday, May 25. I further ask consent that on Tuesday, immediately following the prayer, the Journal of the proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved, and the Senate then resume consideration of S. 1059 as under that order.

I further ask unanimous consent that at the hour of 12:30 p.m. the Senate stand in recess until 2:15 p.m. in order for the party caucuses to meet.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that no additional amendments be in order, other than the amendments agreed to in the previous consent, prior to the votes at 2:15 p.m. on Tuesday.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. WARNER. For the information of all Senators, the Senate will resume consideration of the Defense Authorization bill tomorrow. Under the order, the Senate will debate several amendments, with the votes on those amendments occurring in a stacked sequence beginning at 2:15 p.m. Tuesday afternoon. All Senators should, therefore, expect at least three votes occurring at 2:15. It is the intention of the majority leader to complete action on this bill as early as possible this week.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9:30 A.M.

TOMORROW

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order. There being no objection, the Senate, at 7:33 p.m., adjourned until Tuesday, May 25, 1999, at 9:30 a.m.

WITHDRAWAL

Executive message transmitted by the President to the Senate on May 24, 1999, withdrawing from further Senate consideration the following nomination:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

J. BRIAN ATWOOD, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, TO BE AMBASSADOR EXTRAORDINARY AND PLENIPOTENTIARY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA TO BRAZIL, WHICH WAS SENT TO THE SENATE ON JANUARY 6, 1999.
Mr. HINCHHEY. Mr. Speaker, on the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of the Taiwan Relations Act, I wish to take this opportunity to congratulate the Republic of China on Taiwan and its people on the progress they have made since that time. Taiwan has established itself as a stable political presence in Asia, an important economic power, and proof that democracy can work in Asia. At the time of its enactment, there were some who believed that this new foundation for relations between our countries would not work, that our friendship would dissipate, and that Taiwan would be weakened.

But that has not been the case. If anything, I believe our friendship and understanding has strengthened since that time. Taiwan’s determination not just to set its own course, but to develop and mature as a nation has grown. Its economic achievements in that time are especially impressive: no other Asian nation was as successful in withstanding the recent economic crisis on that continent. But I continue to believe that its most impressive achievement has been the development of a multi-party democracy, and its readiness to share power among its democratic parties.

I wish to extend my congratulations to President Lee Teng-hu—who once resided in my congressional district—on his achievements in office, and also to Representative Stephen S. F. Chen on the capable job he has done as Taiwan’s representative here under the Taiwan Relations Act.

TRIBUTE TO THE CHURCH OF SAINT ROSE OF LIMA

HON. ANTHONY D. WEINER
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. WEINER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to invite my colleagues to pay tribute to the Church of Saint Rose of Lima on the occasion of its Eighth Annual Dinner Dance. The members of the Church of Saint Rose of Lima have long been known for their commitment to community service and to enhancing the quality of life for all New York residents.

This year’s Dinner Dance is not only a festive happening, it is a chance for all of us to celebrate and pay tribute to a group of individuals who have dedicated their lives to helping others. This year’s honorees truly represent the best of what our community has to offer. Mario Russo and his wife, Diana, met in the Rockaways and were married at Saint Rose of Lima Church on November 30, 1941, by Rev. James Galvin. A carpenter by trade, Mario has worked on many of the Rockaway projects such as Hammels Houses, Arvene, Norbeck, Dayton and Surfside. Mario Russo has routinely worked on improving the quality of life of his friends and neighbors in the Rockaways.

He has served as the head of the Somerville-Arvene Civic Association, President of the Arvene Civic Council and been a member of Community Board 14 for the last thirty years. In addition, Mario Russo, has been an active member of the American Legion, the Rockaway Civic Association, and his local Chamber of Commerce. For the last thirty-five years, Mario Russo has conducted a yearly campaign for Earth Day and Plant Up for Trees.

Jo Ann Francis Celeste Mullaney Shapiro, has been an active member of the Rockaway community for over fifteen years. Her involvement spans from graffiti removal projects, increasing our police protection, improving our children’s education, to fighting for our senior citizens. Jo Ann Shapiro is the Past President of the Rockaway Kiwanis Club and an active member of the Rockaway Beach Civic Association. She is a founding member of the Far Rockaway High School based Health Clinic and past Chairperson of its advisory board.

She is an active member of the Business and Professional Women Club and the Peninsula Regular Democratic Club. Jo Ann has worked for the New York City Board of Education in Community School District 27 and served as her school’s U.F.T. Chapter Chairperson. She is an active member of the Saint Rose of Lima Parish and serves as Assemblywoman Audrey L. Sheffer’s Chief of Staff where she makes Rockaway’s issues, her issues.

Each of today’s honorees has long been known as innovators and beacons of goodwill to all those with whom they come into contact. Through their dedicated efforts, they have each helped to improve my constituents’ quality of life. In recognition of their many accomplishments on behalf of my constituents, I offer my congratulations on their being honored by the Church of Saint Rose of Lima.

RECOGNITION OF OSSABAW ISLAND FOUNDATION AND IMPORTANCE OF WORKING TO PRESERVE NATURAL HABITATS

HON. JACK KINGSTON OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the Ossabaw Island Foundation and the Georgia Commissioner of Natural Resources for their efforts to preserve Ossabaw Island, Georgia’s first Heritage Preserve.

Georgia’s high rate of population and economic growth have created statewide expansion into previously uninhabited areas. Efforts to preserve and protect endangered natural areas is vital to the well-being of Georgia’s environment.

Ossabaw Island is one of the few remaining barrier islands on the Atlantic Coast to remain in an undeveloped state. The fragile ecosystems of the island should be preserved so that natural areas along the coast will work to protect estuaries, wildlife, marshes, and coastal shorelines. If Ossabaw Island remains in its natural state, it will provide needed protection for the mainland from Atlantic storms, permit the functioning of marshes which provide water and air purification essential to habitation of Georgia’s mainland, and provide conditions not tainted by human intervention for environmental research.

I would like to commend the Ossabaw Island Foundation, a public/private partner with the State of Georgia’s Department of Natural Resources, for diligently serving as a voice for the preservation of the island. The Foundation has worked to incorporate educational and cultural programs in the island’s historical buildings and to provide appropriate access and utilization of the Ossabaw Heritage Preserve.

Through the efforts of the Board of Trustees of the Foundation, Ossabaw Island was included on the National Trust for Historic Preservation’s Eleven Most Endangered Properties List of 1995. The island was also listed on the National Register of Historic Places by the United States Department of the Interior in 1996.

The importance of preserving natural habitats is a common belief among the members of the House of Representatives. We must not allow the natural beauty and resourcefulness of our nation to be sacrificed for lesser purposes. The benefits of protecting and preserving areas of natural habitat range from aesthetic to practical and must not be ignored.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that you and my colleagues join me in recognizing the partnership and hard work of the Georgia Commissioner of Natural Resources and the Board of Trustees of the Ossabaw Island Foundation. Their combined efforts have protected and will continue to protect and ensure a healthy environment on Georgia’s Ossabaw Island for many years to come.

A TRIBUTE TO CALVIN BELLAMY

HON. PETER J. VISCLOSKY
OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Speaker, it is my distinct honor to commend one of Northwest Indiana’s most distinguished citizens, Mr. Calvin Bellamy, of Munster, Indiana. On May 23, 1999, Mr. Bellamy will be honored for his exemplary and dedicated service to Northwest
Indiana. His praiseworthy efforts will be recognized at Purdue University Calumet's Commemoration Exercise as he will be receiving an honorary doctor of humane letters degree.
Calvin Bellamy, a longtime resident of Northwest Indiana, has dedicated his life to public service. In 1964, Mr. Bellamy graduated from Indiana University and continued his education at the University of Michigan where he received his Juris Doctor cum laude and Order of the Coif in 1967. He has continued his scholarly work in law and has been nationally recognized for his writing on constitutional questions. Mr. Bellamy currently serves as the chairman and chief executive office of Bank Calumet, with which he began his affiliation in 1975.

While Calvin Bellamy has dedicated considerable time and energy to his work at the bank, he has always made an extra effort to give to the community. Some of the organizations for which he serves as the director of include: the Lake County Community Development Committee, the Northwest Indiana World Trade Council, the Greater Hammond, Local Initiatives Support Corporation. Additionally, he has served as president and director of the Hammond Public Library, Lake Area
United Way, and the Legal Aid Society of Greater Hammond. He has also been active with the Hammond Historical Society, the Lake County Bar Association, Northern Indiana Arts Association, and the Indiana Bankers Association.

Although his work and community service put extraordinary demands on his time, Calvin Bellamy has never limited the time he gives to his most important interest, his family, especially his lovely wife, Cathy.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that you and my other distinguished colleagues join me in commending Calvin Bellamy for his lifetime of dedication, service, and leadership in Northwest Indiana. His large circle of family and friends can be proud of the significant contributions this prominent individual has made.
Our community has certainly been enriched by the true service and uncompromising dedication displayed by Mr. Calvin Bellamy.

93RD ANNUAL MEETING OF THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

HON. CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I recently had the pleasure of attending a forum on "The Upsurge of Anti-Semitism in Russia" sponsored by the American Jewish Committee at its 93rd annual meeting. This forum was attended by several Members of Congress and provided a useful opportunity for representatives of the AJC and Members of Congress to exchange their thoughts on the rise of anti-Semitism in Russia and its response by Congress.

In this connection, I distributed a statement regarding the March 23 passage of H. Con.
Res. 37, a resolution that condemned the anti-Semitic statements made by certain members of the Russian State Duma, as well as commending fair-minded members of the Duma for their efforts to reject such statements.
This resolution passed the House of Representatives unanimously. As Chairman of the Helsinki Commission, I was proud to have intrduced this resolution in the House, along with every member of the Helsinki Commission. A companion resolution in the Senate, S.
Con. Res. 37, was introduced by Commission Co-chairman Senator BEN NIGHTHOSE CAMPBELL and Ranking Commissioner Senator FRANK LAUTENBERG.

Mr. Speaker, at this time, I submit this statement for the RECORD.

STATEMENT OF THE HONORABLE CHRISTOPHER
H. SMITH

Good morning, ladies and gentlemen. It's a pleasure to meet with you today, at this 93rd annual meeting of the American Jewish Committee and the forum on "Confronting the New Upsurge of Anti-Semitism in Russia.''

With the fall of the Soviet Union, many of the "hidden" ill's of that society that had been "frozen" by a totalitarian regime developed to superficial "order" re-emerged. One of these was open anti-Semitism. Freedom of the press has given rise to countless anti-Semitic publications and leaflets. As you know, two suspicious explosions took place in Moscow recently near the Maria Roschina and Chorale synagogues. These are only the most recent instances of arson or suspected arson against these two synagogues. Other synagogues and Jewish cemeteries in the former Soviet Union and Russia have been hit as well.

In post-Soviet Russia, the residue of official anti-Semitic propaganda of the Soviet era—disguised by Moscow as "anti-Zionism"—was bound to find a certain reception among certain less-discriminating elements.
These attitudes, freed from the constraints of the Iron Curtain and now aided by the western media, have presented a distorted picture of Jews as allies of communists destroying Russia during the Soviet period. In Russia today the communists blame Jews for being allies of capitalists destroying Russia. Finally, the economic malaise experienced in Russia has engendered hatred intolerance against not only Jews, but toward many ethnic minorities, especially the so-called "dark people" from the Caucasus.

It is deplorable when vandals and hate-mongers attach anti-Semitic labels in any society, but we must admit that such unfortunate incidents do not take place only in Russia. And, I have yet to meet any member of the Russian Jewish community who wants to return to the Soviet period. But I— and I know I can speak for other Members of the House of Representatives—have been outraged by the antics and attitudes that have been exhibited by some members of the Russian Duma, especially in the ranks of the Communist Party.

In December of last year, Mr. Viktor Ilyukhin, a Communist Party member and Chairman of the Subcommittee on International Operations and Human Rights of the House International Relations Committee, stated that Yeltsin's "Jewish entourage" is responsible for alleged genocide against the Russian people. Another Communist Party member, retired General Albert Makshov, speaking at public rallies, referred to "the Yids" and other "refomers and democrates" as responsible for Russia's problems and threatened to make up a list of targets and turn them to the other side.

In fairness to the many conscientious Russians inside and outside of the government, these anti-Semitic statements were widely condemned in Russia. In response to the public outcry, both in Russia and abroad, Communist Party chairman Zyuganov explained that the Party had nothing against "Jews," just "Zionism." When fair-minded members of the Duma attempted to pass a resolution condemning Makshov's statement, it was voted down by the communist majority.

The U.S. Congress, though, has reacted differently. On March 23 of this year, the House of Representatives passed unani-mosly, 421–0, House Concurrent Resolution 37, condemning anti-Semitic statements made by members of the Russian Duma and condemning actions taken by fair-minded members of the Duma to curtail the presentors of anti-Semitism within their ranks.
I was proud to have introduced this resolution in the House, along with every member of the Helsinki Commission as original cosponsors. A companion resolution in the Senate, Senate Concurrent Resolution 19, has been introduced by Commission Co-Chairman Senator Ben Nighthorse Campbell and Ranking Commissioner Senator FRANK LAUT-enberg.

In addition, several members of the Helsinki Commission and I have written to Mr.
Zyuganov to express our dismay at his role and the role of his party in tolerating anti-Semitism in a participating State of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe. In that letter, among other things, we wrote to Mr. Zyuganov that it was imperative to dissociate the Communist Party from racist and anti-Semitic positions and to reject individuals who hold those positions.

I would add that our Embassy and the State Department have performed commendably in expressing to Russian officials our deep concern about the rise of anti-Semitism in Russia.

I am informed by the State Department that in recent days at least, there have been no more anti-Semitic statements emanating from Duma members. However, as Elena Bonner remarked earlier this year at Helsinki Commission hearings, the parliamentary elections in December of this year will be an important indicator of Russia's direction for the future. Will Russia return to the democratic path of the early 1990s or will it turn backward in reaction? We hope that the lesson of ethnic intolerance, taken to its extreme conclusion now in the Balkans, should be clear.

In any event, let me assure you that as Chairman of the Helsinki Commission and as Chairman of the Subcommittee on International Operations and Human Rights of the House International Relations Committee, I will use every available opportu-ity to combat anti-Semitism and tolerance in Russia.
Tribute to Edward A. Koziarz
HON. ANTHONY D. WEINER
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. WEINER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to invite my colleagues to pay tribute to Edward A. Koziarz on the occasion of his being honored for his twenty-five years of service to the members of Plumbers Local Union No. 1, U.A.

The members of the Plumbers Local Union No. 1 have long been known for their commitment to community service and to enhancing the quality of life for all New York City residents.

This gathering is not only a festive happening, it is a chance for all of us to celebrate and pay tribute to a man who has dedicated his life to helping others. Edward A. Koziarz, truly represents the best of what our community has to offer.

Edward A. Koziarz was born on November 13, 1936 in Ozone Park, New York. He and his loving wife, Annette, have three wonderful children and have taken great pride and joy in the successes of their four grandchildren.

Edward A. Koziarz was initiated into Plumbers Local #1 and appointed as a United Association Organizer in June of 1974. Since his election on July 1, 1978, Edward A. Koziarz has served as Local #1's Business Agent, a post he holds to this very day. Edward A. Koziarz has also served his brothers in Local #1 by serving as a delegate to United Association Conventions in 1976, 1981, 1986, 1991 and 1996.

Edward A. Koziarz has been among the pre-eminent labor leaders of New York City Civil Service Skilled Tradesman since 1974 and is one of the Founding Fathers of the New York City Comptroller's Prevailing Wage Council.

Edward A. Koziarz has long been known as an innovator and beacon of good will to all those with whom he has come into contact. Through his dedicated efforts, he has helped to improve our constituents' quality of life. In recognition of his many accomplishments on behalf of my constituents, I offer my congratulations on his being honored by Plumbers Local Union No. 1, U.A. in recognition of his twenty-five years of service to the Union as an Organizer and Business Agent.

Montello Students Space Seed Project on Space Shuttle Discovery
HON. THOMAS E. PETRI OF WISCONSIN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. PETRI. Mr. Speaker, this past year, students from Montello, Wisconsin worked on a project that entailed an international experiment which was included on last fall’s historic Discovery space flight.

The experiment involved vials of lettuce seeds from Wisconsin and chicory seeds from Italy being subjected to micro gravity, extreme heat and cold during the NASA flight. While in space, the project was tended by astronaut John Glenn. The seeds are being studied to determine the effects of space flight. Early results indicated that the space seeds did as well as the control seeds despite not being fertilized. This unexpected finding could have far-reaching implications for the environment.

The school-wide project included students of different ages and the central theme allowed all types of classes to be involved, such as English, history, and agriculture. The seed project, “Growing Montello Transglobally” is a joint effort with students from the II Montello region of Italy. The students communicated over the Internet using an Italian translator program.

During a visit to Montello High in January, I had the opportunity to discuss the project with the students and was impressed by their interests and abilities. I toured classes where students had participated in computer portions of the project, from sharing and tracking information with their sister school in Montello, Italy, to downloading and sending digital photographs. I was also impressed by a video documentary of the project and related activities that was made in conjunction with the Experimental Aircraft Association.

The Wisconsin students were able to go to Florida to view the Discovery launch in October. They raised their own money for the trip through a variety of fund-raisers which included selling cookies and T-shirts and hosting a spaghetti dinner.

Seventh and eighth grade students in the Montello School system are co-authoring a children’s picture book. The students developed their own ideas for the characters, plot, settings, and illustrations featuring children from Montello, Italy and Montello, Wisconsin.

The book will feature NASA projects as seen from the children’s perspective. They will be submitting the book to a professional publisher. A literacy quilt was created to highlight the success of the NASA Project. Catherine Ellenbecker, teacher, has been asked to have the students do a multimedia presentation on the seed project at the Naval Academy in Annapolis in September.

The time and effort the students of Montello, Wisconsin and II Montello of Italy put into this project was phenomenal and their achievements and successes should be recognized. I believe these students deserve a full measure of praise for all they have accomplished.

A Tribute to Dr. Michael G. Weiss
HON. JERRY LEWIS
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring to your attention today the fine work and outstanding contributions of Dr. Michael G. Weiss. Congregation Emanu El of San Bernardino, CA, will honor Dr. Weiss on June 5 as this year’s recipient of the Rabbi Norman F. Feldheym Award for distinguished service to the congregation and community. He will be recognized at a dinner dance which will also commemorate the 108th anniversary of the chartering of the congregation.

The Norman F. Feldheym Award was established to pay tribute to those members of Congregation Emanu El who have, in their own lives, reflected Rabbi Feldheym’s qualities of love for and loyalty to the synagogue, service to the community, as well as evidencing personal traits of humility, loving kindness, care, and love.

Dr. Weiss has been a particularly devoted leader of Congregation Emanu El through his 10-year service as a member of the board of directors as well as treasurer, vice president, and, from 1996-98, president of the congregation. Over the years, Dr. Weiss has been a tremendous inspiration to others through his love for Judaism and his commitment and devotion to the synagogue.

Dr. Weiss is also a widely recognized and highly respected member of the faculty of the Department of Psychology at California State University at San Bernardino. He is a psychotherapist in private practice as well as a consultant to numerous mental health facilities throughout the Inland Empire. A prolific author, Dr. Weiss has conducted research and written extensively on parenting, sexual awareness, and foster parenting.

Dr. Weiss has also given generously of his time to numerous civic and community-based organizations including Mothers Against Sexual Abuse, San Bernardino Child Advocacy Program, the Children’s Network of San Bernardino County, and the Center for Counseling and Parenting. In addition, he has been particularly active as an educator before numerous civic, religious, and professional groups at the local and national level.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that you join me and our colleagues in recognizing the tremendous contributions of Dr. Michael Weiss as he is presented with the Rabbi Norman F. Feldheym Award. Dr. Weiss, along with his wife, Ellen, and children, Emily and Zachary, provide an outstanding example of faith and family. It is especially appropriate that this honor is being bestowed at a ceremony also marking the 108th anniversary of the founding of Congregation Emanu El.

Congratulations to W. Ken Massengill
HON. PETER J. VISCOSKY
OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. VISCOSKY. Mr. Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to pay tribute to an outstanding citizen of Indiana’s First Congressional District, W. Ken Massengill. On Saturday, June 5, 1999, Mr. Massengill, along with his friends and family, will celebrate his retirement from United Steelworkers of America (USWA), District 7. The celebration will take place at St. Elijah Serbian-American Hall in Merrillville, Indiana.

Ken Massengill has dedicated a substantial portion of his life to the betterment of union members and the community of Northwest Indiana, as well as the entire state.

Mr. Massengill’s distinguished career in the labor movement has made his community, state, and nation a better place in which to live and work. For more than twenty-five years,
Mr. Massengill has served as an important figure as a member of the United Steel Workers of America. He has held several positions throughout his tenure, but none as important as Assistant Director of District 7, USWA, a position from which he retired in February of 1999.

As a union representative, Ken Massengill has held a variety of offices, ranging from union steward to Sub-District Director. In addition to his service to the union, he has devoted much of his time to community initiatives. Some of the activities Mr. Massengill has been involved with include: board member for both the Porter County and Michigan City United Way, Chairman of the Lake Area United Way Board of Trustees, member of the Indiana University Labor Studies Advisory Board, and President of the Indiana Unemployment Insurance Board. Additionally, he serves as the Indiana Steelworkers PEC Legislative Director, PAG Coordinator, and in 1994 was appointed by Governor Evan Bayh to the Indiana Port Commission where he currently served as the Chairman of the Port Commission.

On this special day, I offer my heartfelt congratulations to Ken Massengill. His large circle of family and friends can be proud of the contributions this prominent individual has made. His work in the labor movement provided union workers in Northwest Indiana opportunities they might not have otherwise had. Mr. Massengill's leadership kept the region's labor force strong and helped keep America working. Those in the movement will surely miss Mr. Massengill's dedication and sincerity. I sincerely wish Ken Massengill a long, happy, and productive retirement.

CONGRATULATIONS TO MICHAEL R. NELSON, CHIEF DEPUTY U.S. MARSHAL, FOR EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

HON. ROBERT T. MATSUI
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I am honored to rise today in tribute to Michael R. Nelson, Chief Deputy U.S. Marshal for the Eastern District of California. As he celebrates his retirement, I ask all of my colleagues to join with me in saluting his outstanding public service career.

Mr. Nelson has been the Chief Deputy U.S. Marshal for the Eastern District of California for the past 10 years. He has overall responsibility for all operations and administrative programs within this major judicial district.

With almost 30 years of experience within the Marshals Service, Mr. Nelson has brought a vast range of knowledge, experience, and management skills to his current position as chief deputy.

His tenure in this position has been highlighted by his proactive approach to negotiating with local law enforcement agencies and jails. He has worked hard to eliminate most federal prisons housing shortfalls within the Eastern District.

Mr. Nelson has always been concerned first and foremost with the safety of his deputy U.S. Marshals. He has initiated several programs within the district to ensure that all personnel are properly trained and given the tools necessary to respond to a hostile confrontation or critical incident.

He has worked hard to implement policies which provide for greater survival, firearms, and simulation training for the deputy U.S. Marshals in his district. Mr. Nelson also created an award winning Special Response Team in the district. This team, with all of its special training, has won numerous competitions against other local, state, and federal agencies.

The district's Critical Response Team is another example of Chief Deputy Nelson's extraordinary management capabilities. This team works closely with the Marshals Human Resources Division and Employee Assistance Program to ensure that the needs of Marshals personnel are met following any critical incident.

In 1989, Mr. Nelson received the Marshals Service Director's Award for Outstanding Manager based on his innovative approach and great management skills. He has always been highly regarded by the local law enforcement community, the federal judiciary, and fellow employees alike.

I especially commend Mr. Nelson for his outstanding handling of the difficult logistics associated with the Unabomber Trial in Sacramento, U.S. Marshal Jerry Enomoto and Chief Deputy Nelson managed complex security arrangements with exceptional professionalism during this period.

While the new Federal Courthouse was being constructed in Sacramento, Mr. Nelson took an active role in making sure that the special requirements of the Marshals Service were included throughout the building. His thorough knowledge of the relevant security needs and on-site weekly inspections proved invaluable to the overall construction process.

Since taking over as Chief Deputy in 1990, Mr. Nelson has proved to be an excellent manager and budget officer. His prudent approach to budgeting limited resources is especially noteworthy.

Mr. Speaker, Chief Deputy U.S. Marshal Michael Nelson has been a great public servant in the Eastern District of California. I ask all of my colleagues to join with me in thanking him for his exceptional service and wishing him every success in all of his future endeavors.

TRIBUTE TO CHACELLA NEWTON

HON. DAVID E. BONIOR OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to congratulate Ms. Chacella Newton upon her retirement from her position as Food Service Director for the Macomb Intermediate School District. Her friends and colleagues will honor her with a retirement party at the Macomb Intermediate School District on May 26, 1999.

Chacella Newton has dedicated her career to health and good nutrition. For nearly 40 years, Chacella has worked in the field of Dietetics. In 1960, she accepted her first position as the Director of Dietetics at Detroit's St. John Hospital. In 1967, Chacella took the position of Director of Dietetics at Alexander Blain Memorial Hospital. She worked there until 1978, when she accepted her current position as Food Services Director for the Macomb ISD.

Through her position with the Macomb Intermediate School District, Chacella has become known for her commitment to children's health. She has led a number of state and national programs to improve services offered in school lunch rooms. Chacella has also provided her valuable advice to others. Personally, I have relied on Chacella many times for her trustworthy opinions. Similarly, the food safety manual, when she wrote, has been sold in 16 states and used by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Chacella Newton is also a person dedicated to her community. She currently serves on the boards of the Macomb Essential Transport Services, the Comprehensive Youth Services and the Mount Clemens Public Library. In addition, Chacella was the first African American woman to take a seat on the Mount Clemens School Board. She has also served as the President of the Michigan School Food Service Association.

It is my honor and my privilege to congratulate Chacella Newton on her retirement from the Macomb Intermediate School District, and wish her the best of luck for the future.

TRIBUTE TO TEMPLE BETH AHAVATH SHOLOM

HON. ANTHONY D. WEINER
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. WEINER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to invite my colleagues to join me in celebrating the occasion of its Annual Journal Luncheon.

The members of Temple Beth Ahavath Sholom have long been known for their commitment to community service and to enhancing the quality of life for all New York City residents.

This year’s luncheon is not only a festive happening, it is a chance for all of us to celebrate and pay tribute to a group of individuals who have dedicated their lives to helping others. This year’s honorees truly represent the best of what our community has to offer.

Fran Arnowitz and her husband Manny have continuously surrounded themselves and their children in the warmth of Judaism through their involvement with Beth Shalom People’s Temple and Temple Beth Ahavath Sholom. Following Beth Shalom People’s Temple’s consolidation with Temple Ahavath Sholom, Fran Arnowitz became the Temple’s Treasurer, a post she still holds. Fran is widely regarded as a hard worker who has dedicated herself to addressing the needs of the Temple and its members.

Myron Klein, a long time member of Temple Ahavath Sholom prior to the consolidation, is a man who has distinguished himself through his service to the Temple that he loves. Myron
May 24, 1999

Klein has long been an active member of Temple Beth Ahavath Sholom's Brotherhood and serves as its Treasurer. In addition, Myron has taken a leading role in the Temple’s fund-raising efforts and serves as the Chairman of the Goods and Services Auction which has raised thousands of dollars for the Temple. Each of today’s honorees has long been known as innovators and beacons of good will to all those with whom they come into contact. Through their dedicated efforts, they have each helped to improve my constituents' quality of life. In recognition of their many accomplishments on behalf of my constituents, I offer my congratulations on their being honored by Temple Beth Ahavath Sholom.

STEPHEN M. BARROUK HONOURED

HON. PAUL E. KANJORSKI OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. KANJORSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a distinguished community leader and my good friend, Mr. Stephen M. Barrouk. In June, Leadership Wilkes-Barre will honor Steve with the group’s 1999 Distinguished Leadership Award. I am pleased and proud to have been asked to participate in this rich-deserving tribute.

A native of Wilkes-Barre, Steve graduated from E.L. Meyers High School. He earned a B.A. degree in Urban Studies/Economics and a Master’s Degree in Public Administration from the University of Pittsburgh. Steve went on to serve in the Department of City Development in Pittsburgh and later as the Deputy Director of the Allegheny County Department of Development. He also served as Executive Director of the Allegheny County Industrial, Hospital and Higher Education Authorities.

Steve returned to Northeastern Pennsylvania to become the President/CEO of the Greater Wilkes-Barre Chamber of Commerce and Industry and its affiliates, the Greater Wilkes-Barre Industrial Fund and the Greater Wilkes-Barre Chamber of Commerce. He is also a member of the Luzerne County Convention Center Authority, the Pennsylvania Economic Development Association, the American Chamber of Commerce Executives, and the Industrial Development Research Council.

Steve serves on the board of the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania, the United Way of Wyoming Valley, the Ethics Institute, Blue Cross of Northeastern Pennsylvania, and the Downtown Task Force of Wilkes-Barre. Steve also serves on the board of the Earth Conservancy, a non-profit, charitable organization that is restoring, preserving, and developing more than 17,000 acres of land throughout Luzerne County previously owned by a bankrupt coal company. He also played an important role in helping to win an American Heritage River designation for the Upper Susquehanna-Lackawanna Waterways.

I have worked closely with Steve on countless projects to improve the quality of life for Northeastern Pennsylvania. Despite the enormity of the challenges he has faced on complex projects such as restoring the former Pomeroy’s building in downtown Wilkes-Barre, creating a new sports area/convention center, and the day-to-day work of attracting new industries to our area, Steve has always shown the utmost devotion to the community. He leads his organization with the highest level of professionalism.

Over the past several years, I have enjoyed working with Steve Barrouk to promote economic development in Northeastern Pennsylvania. Steve’s efforts have literally helped create thousands of jobs in the Wyoming Valley. I am pleased to join Leadership Wilkes-Barre in thanking Steve Barrouk for his efforts. Luzerne County will undoubtedly benefit from his further labors in the years ahead.

HON. ELTON GALLEGTY
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, criminals should not profit from illegal acts. That is why I introduced H.R. 1887 last week that will ban illegal, disgusting acts that are occurring nationwide.

People around the country are making “crush videos.” The videos feature women who are crushing, suffocating and beating small animals with their bare feet. The women often wear spiked heels. The videos are sold nationwide to people who enjoy this type of so-called “fetishism.”

The acts of animals cruelty featured in the video are illegal under state law. However, according to District Attorney Michael Bradbury of Ventura County, California, it is difficult to prosecute these acts under state animal cruelty laws. First, a District Attorney must identify the individual in the video. This is a difficult task given the fact that most of the time, only the actress' legs are shown. Second, it is difficult to prove that the act featured in the video occurred with the statute of limitations. Third, local animal cruelty laws do not prohibit the production, sale, or possession of the video. There are also no federal laws that could be used to prosecute the individuals.

Sick criminals are taking advantage of the loopholes in the local law and the lack of federal law on animal cruelty videos. This is a serious problem. Thousands of these videos are being sold. Thousands of dollars are being made by not closing these loopholes and allowing this sick behavior, we are encouraging people to profit from violating the state animal cruelty laws. This must be stopped!

H.R. 1887 will put a stop to this offensive behavior. This legislation is narrowly tailored to prohibit the creation, sale or possession of a depiction of animal cruelty in interstate commerce for commercial gain. H.R. 1887 does not preempt state laws on animal cruelty. Rather, it incorporates the animal cruelty law of the state where the offense occurs.

I urge all of my colleagues to join me in pursuing this legislation which will put an end to glorifying these disgusting criminal acts. Please contact Wendy Wiseman of my staff at 5-5811 to cosponsor H.R. 1887.
Dan K. Nelson of St. Paul, a neighbor of mine back home, was recently awarded the Boy Scouts of America’s “William T. Hornaday Gold Medal” award. The award is surely a positive recognition, but I know that Dan Nelson’s real joy is the knowledge that this special land along the St. Croix River will be a legacy for future generations.

Thanks Dan and congratulations on your good work. Mr. Speaker, I would like to submit for the RECORD an article from the May 17, 1999 East Side Review outlining Dan Nelson’s life long vocation and profession which has been inspired by experiences and lessons learned as a Boy Scout.

[From the East Side Review, May 17, 1999]

EAST SIDE BOY SCOUT LEADER WINS NATIONAL AWARD
(By Scott Nichols)

The developer in possession of the 1,100 acres adjacent to the camp had legal problems associated with the development of the land. The developer never got his chance. Nelson joined in the neighborhood push to protect the property. Together the group was successful, eventually, in coming up with the developer’s price tag of $1.1 million, through private donations and appeals for funds to the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources.

It’s for continued effort like that that the Boy Scouts of America Indianhead Council announced April 12 that Nelson has been awarded what is perhaps the most prestigious award in all of scouting, the William T. Hornaday Gold Medal.

“Rare is not an appropriate term (for the award). They are very, very extremely rare,” says Ron Phillippo, chief executive of the Indianhead Council. The award is given out to adult Scouters who render a distinctive and unusual service to natural resources conservation over an extended period.

According to Phillippo, less than 100 of these awards have been given out nationally since 1910, the birth of scouting.

“I’ve been in this business for 41 plus years, and I only recall in my entire career three or four ever given out,” says Phillippo, noting that he’s served the Boy Scouts organization in various locations all over the country. “It’s a very prestigious award. It takes a good deal of character in terms of project.”

Nelson’s project saved the 1,100 acres just 31 miles northeast of the Twin Cities from being developed. Much of the reason he was greatly interested in maintaining the land in an undeveloped state was that the property was adjacent to the nonprofit Beaver Valley Camp used largely by scouting groups.

Nelson, 51, attended the camp as a child, and was part of the troop whose previous members had formed the camp years before.

“That’s where they implanted the curiosity.”

The curiosity that Nelson talks about is what helped to drive him both into adult scouting and the legal profession. When he was a political science and international under-graduate at the University of Minnesota, the camp had legal problems associated with the land. Those legal problems were severe enough that Nelson says his camp bought one piece of land three times (and, he says, “under my watch the third and final time.”)

Boundary disputes and bogus deeds were par for the course, for years, according to Nelson, noting the legal disputes over the land helped to push his interests into the legal arena, which led to his attending Hamline Law School for his law degree.

Throughout that time, he never got tired of spending time at Beaver Valley Camp. For the last 23 years, Nelson has spent anywhere from five to 20 hours a week volunteering at the camp, teaching the kids activities such as soil conservation, trout pond repair, and tree planting, the same things that he learned about when he went to the camp as an East Side youth.

Nelson, as he says, was “born, raised, and baptized on the East Side.” He grew up on Stillwater Avenue, and since then has moved only three miles, to his current home close to Lake Phalen, which he shares with his wife Sandy and three of his four children.

“He’s had many people recognized with our top award, the William T. Hornaday Gold Medal. For the kids to progress, for the kids to work through the roughly 800 requirements necessary to get the badge, Nelson’s love of teaching doesn’t stop at conservation practices. He’s a Big Brother, a Sunday school teacher, and a meet director for the local YMCA swim team. He’s also taught trial advocacy and been a Moot Court judge for Hamline and the Minnesota Bar Association.

While Nelson’s past accomplishments include being listed in the Hamline Law School’s Hall of Fame and four different Who’s Who books, and winning roughly a dozen scouting awards since 1990, he’s quite elated at having won the Hornaday Gold Medal.

“The Hornaday Gold Medal is awarded because of the regional or national impact,” says Nelson. “I say, ‘I never thought I would get it, and I’m really delighted and surprised that I did get it.’”

SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE SAFE DEPOSIT BOX ACT OF 1999

HO N. RON PACKARD
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, I strongly support the Social Security and Medicare Safe Deposit Box Act of 1999.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Pesticide Registration Harmonization Act of 1999. I am pleased to have Representative Rick Hill of Montana as original cosponsor of this very important legislation for American farmers and ranchers.

The premise of this legislation is quite simple. As a Member of Congress representing a border-state with Canada, I believe that it is essential for American farmers to be on the same level “playing field” as their international counterparts. I am hopeful that the Pesticide Harmonization Act of 1999 will begin a much needed dialogue between the United States and Canada on chemical harmonization as we head into the 21st Century.

The Pesticide Harmonization Act of 1999 is designed to establish a process under which the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) could be requested to review registration requests for certain pesticide products. The types of pesticides that would be reviewed are registered for use on a specific crop in Canada and are also registered in the United States but not for use on that specific crop. In addition, the chemical must be needed to respond to critical pest control needs of United States growers which are not otherwise being met, and supported for registration by their manufacturers. If the chemical meets these criteria then the EPA review process would be expedited. The EPA would have 180 days against attempts to raid the Social Security surplus for more government spending by toughening budget procedures. This legislation will change the way the budget is presented so Social Security funds cannot be used for other purposes, including how we measure our Federal surplus.

Mr. Speaker, having paid into Social Security myself for over 40 years, I will never support hasty reforms that threaten the financial futures of those who have committed a lifetime of earnings to the system. As a father and a grandfather, I strongly believe it is time we take action to ensure Social Security will be available for generations to come.

I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 1259 and protect Social Security.

INTRODUCTION OF THE PESTICIDE REGISTRATION HARMONIZATION ACT OF 1999

HO N. EARL POMEROY OF NORTH DAKOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Pesticide Registration Harmonization Act of 1999. I am pleased to have Representative Rick Hill of Montana and Representative John Baldacci of Maine as original cosponsors on this very important legislation for American farmers and ranchers.

The premise of this legislation is quite simple. As a Member of Congress representing a border-state with Canada, I believe that it is essential for American farmers to be on the same level “playing field” as their international counterparts. I am hopeful that the Pesticide Harmonization Act of 1999 will begin a much needed dialogue between the United States and Canada on chemical harmonization as we head into the 21st Century.

The Pesticide Harmonization Act of 1999 is designed to establish a process under which the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) could be requested to review registration requests for certain pesticide products. Friday, May 21st, of Holly Caudill, of San Diego, California, a vigorous and tireless advocate for persons with disabilities to have a fighting chance to achieve the American Dream. Ms. Caudill was a young lawyer, a native of the State of Washington, and an Assistant U.S. Attorney in San Diego. And she was a quadriplegic, the result of a motor vehicle accident at age 14. Her experience, and the inspiration of her late father Paul Caudill, taught this determined woman several things—most importantly that there was little that she could not do, given a chance.

I met Ms. Caudill some years ago in a meeting where she gave me the benefit of her experience. Notwithstanding the fact that she was eager and qualified to work, the existing system of medical benefits, disability coverage, and other government programs made productive work almost impossible. A job with greater pay meant a severe reduction in benefits payments, providing a powerful disincentive against paid work for her and for other Americans with severe disabilities.

Her knowledge of the system, and her determination to succeed, together with support from others that she inspired, helped Ms. Caudill to continue to work and to be a tax-paying citizen. When it came to this basic principle—that people who work for pay should not have the government arrayed against them—Holly Caudill was second to none as a vigorous, determined, effective and inspirational advocate.

I recall most vividly that in the 105th Congress, at her request, I helped her to meet with House Speaker Newt Gingrich. He was the sponsor of H.R. 2020, the Medicaid Community Attendant Services Act, which would have made a greater amount of attendant services benefits payable under the Medicaid program. She had a long and wide-ranging discussion with the Speaker and his staff—about her life, about the Speaker’s bill, and, most importantly, about how important it was to stop government programs from being such a barrier to work and dignity for persons with disabilities. The Speaker himself remarked to me on several occasions about Ms. Caudill’s vigor and determination, and what an inspiration she was.

With her advice, I was privileged to add my name as a cosponsor to H.R. 2020, which had 76 cosponsors at the close of the 105th Congress. And in this Congress, I am honored to be one of 163 cosponsors of a similar measure introduced by the gentleman from New York, Mr. LaZio, which is H.R. 1180, the Work Incentives Improvement Act. I hope that we can enact this legislation.

San Diego Union-Tribune columnist Peter Rowe was the preeminent chronicler of Holly Caudill’s life and her advocacy the past couple of years. I would like to quote from his column of March 23, 1999, in describing why Ms. Caudill worked as hard and fought as vigorously as she did.

“Caudill’s situation is distressingly common. “There are thousands of people—there may be tens of thousands of people—just like her,” said Cyndi Jones, director of the Accessible Society Action Project (ASAP), a San Diego-based organization that lobbies on behalf of the disabled. “These people want to go back to work, but they are caught in a Catch-22.

"Here's the catch:

"If you are disabled and Washington—via Social Security or Medicare—pays some of your health bills, you cannot work. Without a job, there's a good chance you'll end up on welfare.

"You want to work? Fine. You lose your benefits. Without benefits, there's an outstanding chance you won't make enough money to afford treatment.

"Today, roughly 9 million disabled Americans receive federal disability benefits. While many cannot work, others retain the ability and the desire.

Mr. Speaker, Holly Caudill had the ability. She had the desire. She found the whole system aligned against her iron will to work. Yet she did work. She helped to make our system of justice work as an Assistant U.S. Attorney, while she so vigorously advocated for justice and dignity in work for persons with disabilities.

Before she reached her goal, of an American where people with disabilities could work and enjoy the fruits of their labors, our Heavenly Father brought her home. There are no wheelchairs there, Mr. Speaker.

Let the permanent RECORD of the Congress of the United States today note that Ms. Holly Caudill, Assistant U.S. Attorney in San Diego, California, was an inspiration to me and to so many others.

Caudill, Assistant U.S. Attorney in San Diego, California, was an inspiration to me and to so many others that she touched. And may we remember well her life's purpose.

INTRODUCTION OF THE E—MAIL USER PROTECTION ACT

HON. GENE GREEN OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the internet is a communications medium that has significantly impacted our day-to-day lives. With the click of a button you can do just about anything. You can write to your family and friends. You can purchase clothes and groceries. You can even listen to music and watch videos. There is no doubt that the internet has become one of our civilizations most important innovations.

Unfortunately with these advancements come problems. One of the largest problems to face the internet is unsolicited bulk e-mail or spam. Today, I am introducing the E-Mail User Protection Act. Spam is a problem. It takes up your time and money to wade through and delete these unsolicited messages. It is a problem which everyone agrees needs to be addressed immediately. This legislation attacks the problem by making the tools used fraudulently by spammers.

First, my legislation makes it illegal to falsify any identifying information such as e-mail addresses or routing information. Second, this bill makes it illegal to create, use, or distribute software that is primarily designed to falsify e-mail identifying information. Fifth, any violations of these provisions incurs a fine of either $50 per violating message or up to $10,000 a day the violation continues.

This is an excellent solution to the spam problem. The E-Mail User Protection Act of 1999 will start to weed out fraudulent spam and eliminate any hassle to internet users. By this, we will help to continue the growth, prosperity, and innovation of the internet.

LEGISLATION ALSO REQUIRES SPAMMERS, UPON THE REQUEST OF AN INDIVIDUAL, TO REMOVE THEM FROM THEIR SPAM. FOURTH, MY BILL MAKES IT ILLEGAL TO CREATE, USE, OR DISTRIBUTE SOFTWARE THAT IS PRIMARILY DESIGNED TO FALSIFY E-MAIL IDENTIFYING INFORMATION. FIFTH, ANY VIOLATIONS OF THESE PROVISIONS INCURS A FINE OF EITHER $50 PER VIOLATING MESSAGE OR UP TO $10,000 A DAY THE VIOLATION CONTINUES.

This is an excellent solution to the spam problem. The E-Mail User Protection Act of 1999 will start to weed out fraudulent spam and eliminate any hassle to internet users. By this, we will help to continue the growth, prosperity, and innovation of the internet.

AN ISSUE OF FUNDAMENTAL FAIRNESS

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 24, 1999

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to report to my colleagues the actions of the House Armed Services Committee. I regret the Committee's failure to follow the recommendations of the Military Personnel Subcommittee to repeal the statutory prohibition on abortions in overseas military hospitals and restore the law to what it was for many years.

If enacted, women stationed overseas would be permitted to use their own funds to obtain abortion services. No federal funds would have been used and health care professionals who are opposed to performing abortions as a matter of conscience or moral principle would not be required to do so.

This is an issue of fundamental fairness. Servicewomen and military dependents stationed abroad do not expect special treatment, only the right to receive the same legally protected medical services that women in the United States receive. We had the opportunity to finally put a stop to the misguided law that has endangered our servicewomen's lives for far too long. It is unfortunate that the full committee did not follow the subcommittee's direction.

The Department of Defense, the American Public Health Association, the American Medical Women's Association, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, and the Planned Parenthood Federation of America have all indicated their support for the subcommittee's decision.

If we are to attract the best and brightest of our nation's young people to our Armed Forces we must act to restore this fundamental right. We cannot expect to attain our readiness and recruitment goals when potential soldiers know they will not have the same right to access to health care when they are stationed overseas.

It is our responsibility to restore the right of freedom of choice to women serving overseas in our nation's Armed Forces. Members of the military and their families already give up many freedoms and risk their lives to defend our country. They should not have to sacrifice their privacy, their health or their basic constitutional rights because of a policy with no valid military purpose.

SENIOR COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the Congressional Record on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Meetings scheduled for Tuesday, May 25, 1999 may be found in the Daily Digest of today's Record.
