

Other territories under U.S. jurisdiction have already remedied this problem through delinquency, their unique covenant agreements with the federal government, or through federal statute. Guam, therefore, is the only state or territory in the United States which is unable to take advantage of this tax benefit.

The bill I am introducing today incorporates changes recommended by the Treasury Department to ensure that a foreign investor who benefits from this new tax benefit cannot simultaneously benefit from tax rebates under Guam territorial law. My legislation is supported by the Governor of Guam, the Guam Legislature, and the Guam business community. During the 106th Congress, I also worked closely with the House Resources Committee, the House Ways and Means Committee, the Senate Finance Committee, the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, the Interior Department, the Treasury Department, and the White House National Economic Council. I am hopeful that all of the progress that was undertaken on this issue last year will continue, and that the Congress and the Bush Administration will move quickly on this legislation this Congress.

ZERO TOLERANCE FOR VIOLENCE AGAINST CHILDREN: "MATTHEW'S LAW"

HON. RANDY "DUKE" CUNNINGHAM

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, January 30, 2001

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce "Matthew's Law."

Aimee Willard, Polly Klaas, Megan Kanka, and Matthew Cecchi, have one thing in common. They were children struck down by killers. Mr. Speaker, I believe that every Member in the House is tired of having to name bills after murdered children. We must work to prevent the killing by severely punishing those who take young lives.

In November 1998, 9-year-old Matthew Cecchi was brutally murdered in Oceanside, CA. Matthew was not a troubled runaway. He was not a child that was allowed to wander far from his parents. He was not abducted or stolen. He simply walked into a public restroom alone. While his aunt waited outside, he was brutally murdered. His killer Brandon Wilson carefully stalked and hunted down this young and helpless child. This crime shocked our community and struck fear in the hearts of parents. Even today, communities in my district are building co-ed bathrooms for parents to use with children to ensure that this does not happen again. Nevertheless, parents should not fear taking their children to the park. They should not fear letting their children go to the bathroom. Our parks and public lands should be free from crime, free from fear and free from terror.

That is why I am reintroducing "Matthew's Law," to ensure that those who seek to harm the helpless are met with severe punishment, and to prevent crime by increasing the certainty of justice.

"Matthew's Law," will increase sentencing requirements for those individuals who commit federal violent crimes against children under 13 years of age. It directs the U.S. Sentencing Commission to increase by five levels the punishment for a crime of violence against a child. In most cases, this will result in a doubling of the punishment, and in the most violent cases increase the chance for life in prison or the death penalty.

I believe that this additional punishment is important to deter violence against our children.

"Matthew's Law" also directs the FBI to make available, when possible, assistance if requested by local law enforcement when a child is killed. In the case of Matthew Cecchi, it was not until his killer made another attack that he was captured. When a killer takes one of our children, we must mobilize our resources to stop that killer before he strikes again.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation tells killers and violent felons that our parks and public lands are for families and children, not for murderers.

This legislation is about national leadership. It shows the States and local communities that the Federal Government will not tolerate violence against our children. And hopefully, they will follow our lead on this issue.

This legislation is supported by the National Office of the Fraternal Order of Police, the Law Enforcement Association of America, and the family of Matthew Cecchi who never wants another family to face the tragedy they have seen.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation and a similar measure both passed with more than 400 votes on the House floor. On June 16, 1999, it passed as an amendment to juvenile justice, and similar bill passed on May 7, 1996. This is sound legislation that will protect our children, and this Congress should pass it right away.

I urge all of my colleagues to join me in supporting "Matthew's Law."

Tuesday, January 30, 2001

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Miriam Costello for receiving the honor of Businesswoman of the Year 2000 by the Mariposa County Chamber of Commerce.

Miriam was born in Salt Lake City, Utah. Her family moved to California and in 1945 she graduated from Oakland High School. She spent her first summer in California working in the Yosemite Lodge Cafeteria during World War II. In the fall of 1945, she enrolled at U.C. Berkeley and married her high school sweetheart, Kevin Costello, soon thereafter. Miriam then decided to dedicate her time, love, and energy to raising the wonderful family she boasts today.

After her children matured, Miriam returned to college and became an interior designer, earning her degree at U.C.L.A. and the New York School of Interior Design. She then joined the San Diego Chapter of the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID).

Miriam's first shop, one of eleven, was in Montrose, CA. After Montrose, shops were established in La Canada, Solana Beach, San Diego, Encinitas, and Mariposa.

When her husband retired from his teaching career in 1991, she opened "Jailhouse Square" and made her permanent home in Mariposa. Three years ago Miriam opened "Miriam & Co." She was joined in this venture by Trish Nady of "Artistic Creations" and Sue Dole of "Frankie Sues Antiques and Stuff." Miriam recently opened the "Patent Leather Tea/Coffee Room," also in Mariposa.

Miriam is now a proud grandmother of eleven.

Mr. Speaker, I want to pay tribute to Miriam Costello for being named Businesswoman of the Year 2000. I urge my colleagues to join me in wishing Miriam Costello many more years of continued success.
