had to helicopter [Charles McC] Mathias, then an anti-war member of the House of Representatives, to speak to the students. We had all those demonstrations. We didn’t have what I’d call a normal year until ’71.”

That’s when D’Alesandro decided not to run for second term and Marudas went to Washington to work for Sarbanes.

“He brought one outstanding faculty as far as service to me as mayor and I think maybe to Sarbanes as an attorney,” D’Alesandro says.

“He could sense sincerity or baloney,”

“He was almost like my alter ego. I sort of found in him somebody who thought like I thought. And he sort of read me, in the sense he knew the things I was interested in. He encouraged me in some things and cautioned me in other things.

“And never had a hidden agenda. You knew you were getting a real honest critique . . . And if we made a decision against him he went along. He sang the song.”

“I don’t ever remember his trying to take credit for anything. Everything was for me as mayor and Sarbanes as senator . . . I loved the guy.”

And Sarbanes tells roughly the same story.

“When you draw advice and counsel from Peter,” he says, “the bottom line is always do the right thing.”

He laughs.

“If he thinks you’re going in the wrong di- rection he’ll tell you in no uncertain terms. And he’ll keep telling you if you keep mov- ing in that direction.”

PRIZED DISCRETION

Marudas’ discretion is also legendary, highly prized by his bosses, but sometimes irritating to council members at City Hall. He’s the kind of obfuscation.

Former Mayor Kurt L. Schmoke remembers council members complaining that they often did not understand what Marudas had just said.

“That was Peter being creatively enig- matic,” Schmoke says. “That was his trade- mark.”

Marudas picks up his own narrative thread: “I go over to Washington, saying maybe we have all this stuff behind us and in a couple of years we’ve got an impeachment. And Sarbanes is on the Judiciary Committee and he offers the first article of impeach- ment as a junior member.”

Perhaps that he thinks the Nixon impeach- ment was justified and Clinton’s was not.

“You don’t impeach a president for a lack of personal judgment,” says Marudas, who read every single constituent letter on the Clinton impeachment received in Sarbanes’ office. “He has to have violated his constitu- tional oath. Then you have to have really very strong constitutional grounds, not some flimsy excuse.”

He returned to Baltimore again in 1987 for a stint as a seasoned senior member of the administration of Schmoke.

“I always wanted to work for someone younger than me,” Marudas says. “My grandfather always said when you’re old learn from the old. When you’re old learn from the young.”

Schmoke actually had been an intern in Sarbanes’ office in the House of Representa- tives. He’s as effusive in his praise of Marudas as the other politicians.

If I were designing a course at a public policy school, and including a description of the effective staff person,” says Schmoke. “I’d model that person on Peter Marudas.”

Everybody asks if Marudas can actually leave politics behind. Sarbanes expects to be able to call on his advice when he needs it.

But right now Marudas plans to go to a wedding in Detroit with his wife, Irene. He’ll listen to a lot of jazz. And he’ll do a lot of dancing. He and Irene love dancing, espe- cially salsa.

OATS, INC., 30th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, today I rise to recognize Oats, Inc., and con- gratulate them on the celebration of their 30th anniversary.

For 30 years Oats, Inc. has provided specialized transportation for the eld- erly, disabled and rural citizens in Missouri. Rural transportation is a very important piece of our federal transit system, particularly in Mis- souri and I thank Oats, Inc. for the ex- emplary job they have done. Oats, Inc. has continually upheld their strong commitment to their mission of pro- viding reliable transportation for transportation disadvantaged Missour- ians so they can live independently in their own communities.

Oats, Inc., will celebrate their 30th anniversary on September 26, 2001. I would like to extend my appreciation to the volunteers and those attending the celebration for the support they have given to Oats, Inc. I would also like to thank Oats, Inc. for the out- standing services they have provided for the communities in Missouri and it is my sincerest hope that their success extends over the next 30 years.

TRIBUTE TO BRITTANY SANDERS OF KRISTIN’S KIDS CLUB

Mrs. CARNAHAN. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to honor and recognize an outstanding young lady, Brittany Sanders, of Glad- stone, MO, founder of Kristin’s Kids Club. Ms. Sanders is truly extraor- dinary for having the commitment and vision to establish a children’s club in memory of her friend, Kristin Bean, who died of cancer in 1996. This club’s devotion to helping children is an in- spiration to us all.

The Kristin’s Kids Club was founded in 1999 in order to help children in need and to keep Kristin’s spirit alive. Al- though the club was started by one extraor- dinary young girl, it now has more than 60 members. The club holds various fundraisers in order to raise money to give to charities and other organizations.

Not only do the members of this club raise money to help children, but they also help adults who are in need. They recently organized a variety show to benefit the Gladstone VFW Post 19906
