The House met at 10 a.m.

Mr. McNULTY. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 1, rule I, I demand a vote on agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the ayes and nays were ordered to be printed in the Journal.

Mr. McNULTY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the Chair's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. McNULTY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to clause 8, rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

The point of no quorum is considered withdrawn.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from New York (Mr. McNULTY) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. McNULTY led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. WELDON) is recognized for 1 minute. All other one minutes will be at the end of the day.

INTRODUCING THE REVEREND WILLIE T. LOCKETT

(Mr. WELDON of Florida asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, today I am proud to have one of my constituents, the Reverend Willie Lockett, helping us this morning by offering today's morning prayer.

The Reverend Lockett holds degrees from the University of Illinois, Atlanta University, Morehouse College, and the Interdenominational Theological Center.

In addition to being a learned minister, he is truly a man of all seasons. He has been a teacher, a salesman, a civil servant, and most importantly a pastor.

He is a leader in our community in helping organizations like the United Negro College Fund, the NAACP, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and Dr. King from 1955 through 1975.

His ministry over 36 years is a testament to the power of faith and commitment to one's God and community.

I thank the Reverend for his service to us today and for over three decades of service to our community and to our Nation.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 6, MARRIAGE PENALTY AND FAMILY TAX RELIEF ACT OF 2001

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, by the direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 104 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 104

Resolved. That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order without intervention of any point of order to consider in the House the bill (H.R. 6) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to reduce the marriage penalty by providing for adjustments to the standard deduction, 15-percent rate bracket, and earned income credit and to allow the nonrefundable personal credits against regular and minimum tax liability. The bill shall be considered as read for amendment. The amendment recommended by the Committee on Ways and Means now printed in the bill shall be considered as adopted. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill, as amended, and any further amendment thereto to final passage without intervening motion except: (1) one hour of debate on the bill, as amended, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ways and Means; (2) the further amendment printed in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution, if offered by Representative Randall of New York or his designee, which shall be in order without intervention of any point of order, shall be considered as read, and shall be separately debatable for one hour equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent; and (3) one motion to commit with or without amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BONILLA). The gentleman from Ohio (Ms. PRYCE) is recognized for 1 hour.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. FROST); pending which purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. FROST); pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

MODIFICATION TO AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE OFFERED BY MS. PRYCE OF OHIO

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment recommended by the Committee on Ways and Means, now printed in the bill and proposed to be considered as adopted in the pending resolution, be modified by the amendment that I have placed at the desk.

Mr. Speaker pro tempore. The Clerk will report the modification.

The Clerk read as follows:

Modification to amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Ms. Pryce of Ohio. Page 11, after line 8, insert the following:

'(A) the sum of the regular tax liability (as defined in section 36(b)) plus the tax imposed by section 35, over

□This symbol represents the time of day during the House proceedings, e.g., □1407 is 2:07 p.m.

 Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.
Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, as the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means requested, House Resolution 104 is an appropriate and fair rule providing for the consideration of H.R. 6, the Marriage Tax Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act of 2001.

This rule waives all points of order against consideration of the bill as well as the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

Mr. Speaker, as taxpayers all across America are completing the dreaded annual ritual of filling out tax forms and writing checks to the government, thousands of newlywed couples across the Nation have had a rude awakening. By simply saying those magic words “I do,” newlyweds across our great Nation may be surprised and probably outraged to find that their tax bill has increased by hundreds and maybe thousands of dollars.

Hopefully, these couples have not cashed and spent the wedding checks they received from Grandpa Joe and Aunt Lucy, because they still have to pay Uncle Sam.

We should not really be surprised. After all, there is not much that the government does not tax. But it is hard to find a good reason to tax marriage and penalize the most fundamental institution in our society.

Still, each year, 42 million working Americans pay higher taxes, not because their incomes have gone up, but simply because they are married. This is fundamentally unfair and discriminatory.

Mr. Speaker, most families find that, to make ends meet, both spouses have to work. Under our current Tax Code, working couples are pushed into a higher tax bracket because the income of the second wage earner, often the wife, is taxed at a much higher rate.

Because of the marriage penalty, 21 million families pay an average of $1,400 more in taxes than they would if they were single and living alone or single and living together.

Mr. Speaker, if one is paying taxes today, one is paying too much; and if one is married, one is unfairly singled out to pay even more. It is simply wrong and irresponsible to increase taxes on married couples, especially when marriage is the precursor to added financial responsibility such as owning a home or having children.

The Marriage Tax Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act will bring fairness to the Tax Code by doubling the standard deduction for married couples, expanding the 15 percent bracket so more of a couple’s income is taxed at a lower rate, and increasing the amount that low-income couples can earn and still be eligible for the earned income tax credit.

But H.R. 6 does not just help out newlyweds. It also helps out our Nation’s families as well by doubling the child tax credit from $500 to $1,000. H.R. 6 provides relief to all couples suffering from the marriage penalty tax, which means lower taxes for almost 59,000 couples in my district alone.

Mr. Speaker, since earning the majority, Republicans have kept our promises and reached our goals of balancing the budget, paying down the debt, and protecting Social Security and Medicare; and there is no turning back.

The fact is the government is currently taking in more money than it needs to operate. That is the very definition of a budget surplus. The surplus is big enough that we can give some of it back to the people who earned it because, if one is paying taxes today, one is simply paying too much.

What better place to start than by correcting the inequity in the Tax Code that affects 25 million married couples. Mr. Speaker, either defend the marriage penalty or to eliminate it altogether. There should be no more excuses.

I urge all my colleagues to support this fair and appropriate rule so that we can once again pass the Marriage Tax Penalty Relief Act and send it to the President who this time is waiting to sign it. It is long overdue.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, Democrats support tax relief for American families. Let me say that again so that everyone understands. Democrats want fair and meaningful tax relief for working American families.

But, Mr. Speaker, Democrats want tax relief in the context of a real budget with real numbers. The budget passed by the House yesterday is, quite frankly, bogus. It is bogus because it uses phony numbers and faulty assumptions. It is bogus because it has been written to be rewritten.

The Republican majority has used winks and wishes instead of the real numbers that would give the American public the real picture of what is really going on with the Federal budget.

Mr. Speaker, my Republican colleagues have, for the past few months, waxed ever so eloquently that the surplus now flowing into the Federal Treasury are merely signs that Americans are overtaxed. They say the money which is forecast to come rolling into the Treasury over the next 10 years belongs to taxpayers and should be returned to them.

Mr. Speaker, Democrats do not disagree that American families need tax relief, but we need to put that tax relief into context. The country ran up a $5 trillion debt because of the tax cut we passed in 1981.

The real story is that the national debt belongs to every man, woman, and child in this country. The real story is that those projected surpluses are just that—projections. We can’t even be sure if they will ever materialize. Frankly, it seems more than a little foolhardy to base our economic security and prosperity on wishes and winks.

We passed a bankruptcy reform bill a few weeks ago that says American consumers have to own up to their debts and cannot just erase them so they can go out and spend more money they do not have. Well, it seems to me that we need a little of that reform in this Chamber.

Congress has spent the past 15 years struggling to get deficits under control; and now, finally, we are on the road to paying back those huge debts.

Those are the same debts that have forced the Congress to ignore pressing national needs like infrastructure development and replacing or modernizing sewer systems, roads and highways, and our Nation’s airports.

We have been forced to put off modernizing our military, ensuring that every child has access to a good education, providing a real prescription drug benefit for our seniors, and storing up Social Security and Medicare to prepare for the retirement of the baby boom generation.

But now the Republicans want to ignore our debt and ignore our national needs just so they can give us another tax cut like the one they gave us 20 years ago.

Yesterday, any number of times, Members on the other side of the aisle said their constituents want their money back. But, Mr. Speaker, we as a Chamber cannot have an open checkbook to pay off the debts we incurred because of a tax cut we enacted 20 years ago.

The Reagan tax cuts were supposed to give Americans their money back. But look what those tax cuts got us. They got us high unemployment, high interest rates, and an economy that only began to recover when the Congress drastically cut spending on national priorities and raised taxes.
Mr. Speaker, the tax cuts of 20 years ago were nothing more than a game of three-card monte, and the tax cuts the Republican majority is rolling through the Congress in 2001 are just another version of the same scam.

As I have said before, if it looks to be good to be true, it probably is. And these promises are just that: too good to be true.

The Republican majority is incapable of seeing the truth in the budget numbers. Instead, they come out onto the floor day after day to say that Democrats only want to perpetuate big government, to make it grow, and fritter away the hard-earned money of American taxpayers. Where do they get this? This is not about big government, this is about responsible government. This is not about keeping anyone’s money, this is about paying off the debt and investing in the future.

Mr. Speaker, Democrats want tax relief, and we want tax relief in the context of fairness and in the context of real numbers. We want to provide real relief from the unfair marriage penalty for those couples who pay more taxes just because they are married, but we do not want to provide relief for those who already get a marriage bonus under the code, as the Republicans would do. We want to increase the child tax credit, and make sure that increase is meaningful for those families who need it most.

If the Republican majority is so dedicated to returning money to the taxpayers, why is it most of the marriage penalty relief in their bill does not become available until the year 2006? One bill does not make the child tax credit, the child care tax credit and ensuring that it vesting for the future.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, as chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, I am very pleased to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, as chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, I just want to take this time to thank my colleagues in the minority, the minority leader, the Committee on Rules, and the members on the committee, for acceding to the unanimous consent request for that report in the legislature, because what it does do is draw to everyone’s attention the fact that we have a number of professionals around here who labor long and hard, and they are almost always perfect.

Their work consists of something like this: on page 4, first paragraph B of section 1(f)6 of such code is amended by striking “other than with, and all that follows.” through “shall be applied.” and inserting “other than with respect to section 62(c)4 and 151(d)4(a) shall be applied.”

And, Mr. Speaker, it all has to fit, and it all has to fit for hundreds of pages. They do it every time we bring a bill to the floor, with this exception. And I know they are chagrined, but I do want to thank everyone, because there are a number of professionals that allow us to appear on the floor and argue important issues such as this, that make it fit is done by a number of professionals that we owe an ongoing debt of gratitude. And the fact they made a mistake, which really chagrins them, allows me to thank them for all those thousands of pages of no mistakes.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. SHERMAN).

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman from Texas for yielding me this time. I am flabbergasted I am getting 4 minutes on this. There should be a line of people stretching all the way down the steps asking the gentleman from California to yield me time less so that every one of us can stand up here and say, please, let us not take another step in the direction of plunging off the cliff, in the direction of huge deficits, in the direction of invading Social Security and the Medicare Trust Funds in order to pay for tax cuts that we cannot afford.

I support ending the marriage penalty. Someday I might support even greater efforts than those encompassed in the Democratic alternative. But there are three important points I need to make about this bill. One is that over half of married couples do not pay a marriage penalty, they get a marriage bonus. Those who are insulting or degrading marriage by telling people that they will pay more taxes if they marry “I do.” I think that, in fact, most who say “I do” are paying less.

The second point I would make is that we do not have a budget resolution. We have one passed by the House, but not by the Senate. We ought to be making major tax decisions only after we see what Congress as a whole has adopted and what kind of tax relief we can afford.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, this tax bill that comes before us today is part of an overall plan of excessive tax cuts, tax cuts aimed at those with the greatest needs. Forty-three percent of the benefits go to the top 1 percent with an average income of $500,000. This wave of tax-cutting has been the most significant event leading to the economic downturn or anemia that we have suffered since even before the President came into office and began talking down the economy in order to justify things.

Second, this program provides no economic stimulus in an effort to get us out of this malaise. Seventy-nine percent of the benefits do not arrive until more than 5 years from now. That means that the bond market and the stock market are depressed because we have locked into law economic policies that are going to hurt this country, that are going to drive deficits and inflation; but at the same time, consumers will not have any more money in their pocket.

Finally, I have to oppose this package of tax bills because of the millions of people it leaves out. The President of the United States stood up there and gave us an example of a waitress without a spouse, with two kids, and said that that was the reason to adopt his tax plan, to help that waitress supporting two kids and making $25,000. It appears as if the President’s staff went through all of the restaurants and found one waitress that would benefit, because if that waitress was making $23,000 with two kids, she gets nothing under the President’s plan. If that waitress had three kids, she gets nothing under the President’s plan. And if that waitress is currently exactly as the President describes her, but she has some costs for child care, she gets nothing. Not even a one-cent insult tip is left on the table by the Republican series of tax bills for the very waitresses that the President of the United States managed to get to support.

It is one thing to injure America’s working poor and those who are struggling to get by by having a huge tax plan that will ruin the economy and not give them a penny, but it is another thing to insult them and say that they owe more than they have. How can it be that every waitress is paying FICA taxes and not getting any tax relief. Taxpayers deserve tax relief, and under this plan they get nothing.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT), my friend, the chief deputy whip.

Mr. BLUNT. Mr. Speaker, I am glad to speak on this proposal. I would point out that the gentleman from California (Mr. SHERMAN) suggested that the President was somehow responsible for the flattening out of the economy in the last 6 months of last year. I think 60 days into a Presidency is a little quick to do that.

Mr. PRYCE. Mr. Speaker, I am here to speak in favor of this rule. We have passed marriage penalty relief in the House before, and it has been passed in the Senate before, and it has come out of conference before, and it has gone to the White House before. The difference is this relief will be signed into law if we do our job well here now and in the next few weeks.

Mr. Speaker, we have a budget in the House. We will not vote on the final tax package until the Senate approves its budget next week, and this will be part of it. Government has traditionally taxed what it wanted to discourage, and subsidized what it wanted to encourage. For too long in America we have been subsidizing the wrong things and taxing the wrong things. We have been discouraging things we should have been encouraging, and encouraging things we should have been discouraging.

This change in the Tax Code once again puts a premium on marriage and families as a foundation of our society. I hope there is still a bonus left for marriage in the Tax Code, and believe there will be when we pass this bill, because families and marriage is something that should be honored. If we subsidize families, that is a good thing and not a bad thing. If we help with things like the child tax credit, where we are moving today to double the tax credit on income tax returns, that has a positive impact on American families.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly support the rule. I strongly support the bill. It will pass the House, I predict, handily today, and this time it will be signed into law by the President of the United States.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. KELLER).

Mr. KELLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, as someone who campaigned on the platform of providing tax relief to working families in central Florida, I am especially proud today to be an original cosponsor of this important legislation to fully eliminate the marriage tax penalty. Why do I support this legislation? Because it will make a meaningful difference in the lives of approximately 60,000 working families in central Florida, who will receive an average tax break of $1,400 per year. $1,400 per year will have a positive impact on the lives of working families back home.

For example, a married couple with two children, a $1,400 tax savings translates into $117 worth of groceries in the refrigerator every month that otherwise would not be there. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation today and vote yes on H.R. 6 when it comes to the floor in a little while. This is the type of legislation that we came to Congress for.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Kansas (Mr. RYUN).

Mr. RYUN of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, it has been said that the power to tax is the power to destroy. When one considers this fact, it is a travesty that married couples are taxed at a higher rate than the rest of society. We can all agree that marriage is a sacred institution. What message are we sending to young couples as they get married? Because of an unfair Tax Code, when a bride and groom walk down the aisle they lose money with each step they take.

Nearly 62,000 families in my district are adversely affected by the marriage tax penalty. I have spoken to many of them on this subject and they agree that it is wrong. They are right; it is wrong. Today I want to be able to tell them we are doing something about this. It is time to put common sense back into our Tax Code.

I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to end the marriage tax penalty because saying "I do" should not mean that one is paying an additional $1,400.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT).

Mr. BLUNT. Mr. Speaker, I am glad to have the opportunity to speak on this proposal. I would point out that we have work the Committee on Rules has done to structure the debate. In many ways the Federal Tax Code is illogical, immoral and unfair. This is the case with the marriage penalty, most certainly. Our current Tax Code is structured so a married couple pays higher taxes on their income than an unmarried couple earning the same income and filing separate returns.

Mr. Speaker, under this Tax Code many couples are punished for being married, including many in my congressional district in Indiana. Cameron Gardner and his wife Lindsay are an example of over 38,000 Hoosier families in my district who suffer under the marriage penalty. Cameron works for a local company in Anderson, and Lindsay is a student at Ball State University. They have a 1-year-old daughter. Eliminating the marriage penalty would allow Cameron and Lindsay to keep about $1,400 more a year to help pay bills and take care of their daughter. It does not include the benefits that would accrue from the President’s increased child tax credit.

Mr. Speaker, families should be encouraged today. I stand in strong support of this rule. I stand in strong support of this bill. It is time to end the illogical, immoral and unfair marriage penalty; and I believe in my heart Congress will do so today.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. RILEY).

Mr. RILEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. PRYCE) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, under this Tax Code so a married couple pays higher taxes on their income than an unmarried couple earning the same income and filing separate returns.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. RILEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. PRYCE) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, is that we do not penalize those families who choose to have one spouse stay at home with their families.

H.R. 6 eliminates the homemaker penalty for families in which one spouse stay at home with their families. It does not include the benefits that would accrue from the President’s increased child tax credit.

Mr. Speaker, families and marriage is something that should be honored. If we subsidize families, that is a good thing and not a bad thing. If we help with things like the child tax credit, where we are moving today to double the tax credit on income tax returns, that has a positive impact on American families.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SPEAKER. The time for the gentleman from Missouri is expired.

Mr. RILEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time.

Mr. KELLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.
spouse decides to work part time or not at all. In other words, Mr. Speaker, this legislation benefits all married couples.

In my district, there will be 60,392 married couples who will benefit from this legislation. In the State of Alabama, 424,956 married couples will benefit from this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I support this rule. It is a good rule. It is high time we have done this. We have done it before. It is time to go ahead and get it signed into law.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Indiana (Mr. KERNS).

Mr. KERNS. Mr. Speaker, today the United States Congress will vote on sweeping legislation that will preserve families and fairness in our Tax Code. This legislation will reverse a system that is currently penalizing millions of men and women simply because they have chosen to marry.

This marriage tax penalty affects persons of all races, ages, and incomes. I am fortunate to represent Indiana’s Seventh Congressional District. The seventh district encompasses most of west central Indiana and is the very essence of middle America. Our residents are hard-working men and women who instill in their children the values that their parents instilled in them. These Hoosier values include honoring the family. A recent study found that nearly 60,000 married couples in Indiana’s seventh district pay a marriage tax penalty.

This legislation will reverse a system that is currently penalizing millions of men and women simply because they have chosen to marry.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DONILLA). The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The previous question was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 249, nays 4952.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will reduce to a minimum of 5 minutes the period of time within which electronic votes, if ordered, will be taken on the question of the Speaker’s approval of the Journal.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 249, nays 171, not voting 12, as follows:

[Roll No. 71]

YEAS—249

Aderholt
Armey
Bachus
Baker
Ballenger
Barcia
Barr
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Beauprez
Bellakis
Bishop
Blagoyevich
Boehner
Bolton
Bonog
Brady (TX)
Brown (SC)
Bryant
Burk
Burton
Granger
Greaves
Green (WI)
Greenwood
Griffl
Gutknecht
Hall (OH)
Hansen
Hart
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Helms
Hensley
Hinojosa
Hobson
Hokestra
Holt
Hostettler
Houghton
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Jackson
Jackson
Istook
Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Keifer
Kelly
Kennedy (NJ)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Knoenlgeen
Koke
Laidlaw
Landman
LaHood
LaBianca
Lee
Lemke
Lentz
LoBiondo
Lucas (KY)
Lucas (OK)
Mannino
McCarthy (NY)

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Adami
Adcock
Adler
Akin Arme
Aubuchon
Baker
Ballenger
Barcia
Barr
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Beauprez
Bellakis
Bishop
Blagoyevich
Boehner
Bolton
Bonog
Brady (TX)
Brown (SC)
Bryant
Burk
Burton
Granger
Greaves
Green (WI)
Greenwood
Griffl
Gutknecht
Hall (OH)
Hansen
Hart
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Helms
Hensley
Hinojosa
Hobson
Hokestra
Holt
Hostettler
Houghton
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Jackson
Jackson
Istook
Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Keifer
Kelly
Kennedy (NJ)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Knoenlgeen
Koke
Laidlaw
Landman
LaHood
LaBianca
Lee
Lemke
Lentz
LoBiondo
Lucas (KY)
Lucas (OK)
Mannino
McCarthy (NY)

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Adami
Adcock
Adler
Akin Arme
Aubuchon
Baker
Ballenger
Barcia
Barr
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Beauprez
Bellakis
Bishop
Blagoyevich
Boehner
Bolton
Bonog
Brady (TX)
Brown (SC)
Bryant
Burk
Burton
Granger
Greaves
Green (WI)
Greenwood
Griffl
Gutknecht
Hall (OH)
Hansen
Hart
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Helms
Hensley
Hinojosa
Hobson
Hokestra
Holt
Hostettler
Houghton
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Jackson
Jackson
Istook
Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Keifer
Kelly
Kennedy (NJ)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Knoenlgeen
Koke
Laidlaw
Landman
LaHood
LaBianca
Lee
Lemke
Lentz
LoBiondo
Lucas (KY)
Lucas (OK)
Mannino
McCarthy (NY)

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Adami
Adcock
Adler
Akin Arme
Aubuchon
Baker
Ballenger
Barcia
Barr
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Beauprez
Bellakis
Bishop
Blagoyevich
Boehner
Bolton
Bonog
Brady (TX)
Brown (SC)
Bryant
Burk
Burton
Granger
Greaves
Green (WI)
Greenwood
Griffl
Gutknecht
Hall (OH)
Hansen
Hart
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Helms
Hensley
Hinojosa
Hobson
Hokestra
Holt
Hostettler
Houghton
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Jackson
Jackson
Istook
Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Keifer
Kelly
Kennedy (NJ)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Knoenlgeen
Koke
Laidlaw
Landman
LaHood
LaBianca
Lee
Lemke
Lentz
LoBiondo
Lucas (KY)
Lucas (OK)
Mannino
McCarthy (NY)

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Adami
Adcock
Adler
Akin Arme
Aubuchon
Baker
Ballenger
Barcia
Barr
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Beauprez
Bellakis
Bishop
Blagoyevich
Boehner
Bolton
Bonog
Brady (TX)
Brown (SC)
Bryant
Burk
Burton
Granger
Greaves
Green (WI)
Greenwood
Griffl
Gutknecht
Hall (OH)
Hansen
Hart
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Helms
Hensley
Hinojosa
Hobson
Hokestra
Holt
Hostettler
Houghton
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Jackson
Jackson
Istook
Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Keifer
Kelly
Kennedy (NJ)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Knoenlgeen
Koke
Laidlaw
Landman
LaHood
LaBianca
Lee
Lemke
Lentz
LoBiondo
Lucas (KY)
Lucas (OK)
Mannino
McCarthy (NY)

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Adami
Adcock
Adler
Akin Arme
Aubuchon
Baker
Ballenger
Barcia
Barr
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Beauprez
Bellakis
Bishop
Blagoyevich
Boehner
Bolton
Bonog
Brady (TX)
Brown (SC)
Bryant
Burk
Burton
Granger
Greaves
Green (WI)
Greenwood
Griffl
Gutknecht
Hall (OH)
Hansen
Hart
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Helms
Hensley
Hinojosa
Hobson
Hokestra
Holt
Hostettler
Houghton
Hunter
Hutchinson
Hyde
Jackson
Jackson
Istook
Jenkins
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Keifer
Kelly
Kennedy (NJ)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Knoenlgeen
Koke
Laidlaw
Landman
LaHood
LaBianca
Lee
Lemke
Lentz
LoBiondo
Lucas (KY)
Lucas (OK)
Mannino
McCarthy (NY)

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Adami
Adcock
Adler
Akin Arme
Aubuchon
Baker
Ballenger
Barcia
Barr
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Beauprez
Bellakis
Bishop
Blagoyevich
Boehner
Bolton
Bonog
Brady (TX)
Brown (SC)
Bryant
Burk
Burton
Granger
Greaves
Green (WI)
Greenwood
Griffl
Gutknecht
Hall (OH)
Hansen
Hart
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Helms
Hensley
Hinojosa
Hobson
Hokestra
Holt
Hostettler
Houghton
Hunter
Hutchin...
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

Mr. BLUMENAUER and Mr. LARSEN of Washington changed their vote from "yea" to "nay." Mr. SANDLIN changed his vote from "nay" to "yea."]

So the resolution was approved.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

MARRIAGE PENALTY AND FAMILY TAX RELIEF ACT OF 2001

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 104, I call up the bill (H.R. 6) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to reduce the marriage penalty by providing for adjustments to the standard deduction, 15-percent rate bracket, and earned income credit and to allow the non-refundable personal credits against regular and minimum tax liability, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 104, the bill is considered read for amendment.

The text of H.R. 6 is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Marriage Tax Elimination Act of 2001”.

(b) SECTION 15 NOT TO APPLY.—No amendment made by this Act shall be treated as a change in a rate of tax for purposes of section 15 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

SEC. 2. ELIMINATION OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN STANDARD DEDUCTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (2) of section 65(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to standard deduction) is amended—

(1) by striking "$5,000" in subparagraph (A) and inserting "$200 of the dollar amount in effect under subparagraph (C) for the taxable year";

(2) by adding "or" at the end of subparagraph (B).

(b) TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Subparagraph (B) of section 1(f) of such Code is amended by striking "other than with" and all that follows through "shall be amended by" and inserting "and inserting (other than with respect to sections 63(c)(4) and 151(d)(4)(A) shall be applied)."

(2) Paragraph (4) of section 63(c) of such Code is amended by adding at the end the following flush sentence: "The preceding sentence shall not apply to the amount referred to in paragraph (2)(A)."

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 3. PHASEOUT OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN 15-PERCENT BRACKET.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (f) of section 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to adjustments in tax tables so that inflation will not result in tax increases) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(B) PHASEOUT OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN 15-PERCENT BRACKET.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—With respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000, in prescribing the tables under paragraph (1), the applicable percentage with respect to sections 63(c)(4) and 151(d)(4)(A) shall be increased by the phaseout amount determined under subparagraph (A) shall be increased by (other than with respect to sections 63(c)(4) and 151(d)(4)(A) shall be applied)."

(2) Paragraph (4) of section 63(c) of such Code (relating to adjustments in tax tables so that inflation will not result in tax increases) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(B) PHASEOUT OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN 15-PERCENT BRACKET.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (2) of section 1(f)(6) of such Code is amended by striking paragraph (3) as paragraph (2).

(b) TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Paragraph (A) of section 1(f)(2) of such Code is amended by inserting "except as provided in paragraph (B), before "by increasing".

(2) The heading for subsection (f) of section 1 of such Code is amended by inserting "PHASEOUT OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN 15-PERCENT BRACKET;" before "ADJUSTMENTS".

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 4. MARRIAGE PENALTY RELIEF FOR EARNED INCOME CREDIT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (2) of section 32(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to percentages and amounts) is amended—

(1) by striking paragraph (2)(A); and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph (B):

"(B) JOINT RETURNS.—In the case of a joint return, the phaseout amount determined under subparagraph (A) shall be increased by 20 percent of the dollar amount in effect under subparagraph (C) for the taxable year;"

(b) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT.—Paragraph (1)(B) of section 32(b) of such Code (relating to inflation adjustments) is amended to read as follows:

"(B) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section 1(f)(3) for the calendar year in which the taxable year begins, determined as follows:"

"(i) in the case of amounts in subsections (b)(2)(A) and (1)(i), by substituting 'calendar year 1985' for 'calendar year 1992' in subparagraph (1)(f)(3), and

"(ii) in the case of the $2,000 amount in subsection (b)(2)(B), by substituting 'calendar year 2000' for 'calendar year 1992' in subparagraph (1) of section 1(f)(3)."

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 5. ALLOWANCE OF NONREFUNDABLE PERSONAL CREDITS AGAINST REGULAR AND MINIMUM TAX LIABILITY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (a) of section 32 of such Code (relating to limitation based on tax liability; definition of tax liability) is amended to read as follows:

"(a) LIMITATION BASED ON AMOUNT OF TAX.—The aggregate amount of credits allowed by this part for the taxable year shall not exceed the sum of—

"(1) the taxpayer's regular tax liability for the taxable year reduced by the foreign tax credit allowable under section 27(a), and

"(2) the tax imposed for the taxable year by section 55(a)."

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Subsection (b) of section 24 of such Code is amended by striking paragraph (2) and by redesignating paragraph (3) as paragraph (2).

(2) Section 32 of such Code is amended by striking subsection (h).

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

The amendment printed in the bill is adopted, as modified by the order of the House of today.

The text of H.R. 6, as amended, is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. ET Cetera.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the "Marriage Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act of 2001."

(b) SECTION 15 NOT TO APPLY.—No amendment made by this Act shall be treated as a change in a rate of tax for purposes of section 15 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

SEC. 2. ELIMINATION OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN STANDARD DEDUCTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—(Paraph (2) of section 63(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to standard deduction) is amended—

(1) by striking "$5,000" in subparagraph (A) and inserting "200 percent of the dollar amount in effect under subparagraph (C) for the taxable year;"

(2) by adding "or" at the end of subparagraph (B), and

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 3. PHASEOUT OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN 15-PERCENT BRACKET.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (f) of section 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to inflation adjustments in tax tables so that inflation will not result in tax increases) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(B) PHASEOUT OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN 15-PERCENT BRACKET.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (a) of section 1(f)(6) of such Code (relating to limitation based on tax liability; definition of tax liability) is amended to read as follows:

"(a) LIMITATION BASED ON AMOUNT OF TAX.—The aggregate amount of credits allowed by this part for the taxable year shall not exceed the sum of—

"(1) the taxpayer's regular tax liability for the taxable year reduced by the foreign tax credit allowable under section 27(a), and

"(2) the tax imposed for the taxable year by section 55(a)."

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Subsection (b) of section 24 of such Code is amended by striking paragraph (2) and by redesignating paragraph (3) as paragraph (2).

(2) Section 32 of such Code is amended by striking subsection (h).

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

The amendment printed in the bill is adopted, as modified by the order of the House of today.

The text of H.R. 6, as amended, is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. ET Cetera.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the "Marriage Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act of 2001."

(b) SECTION 15 NOT TO APPLY.—No amendment made by this Act shall be treated as a change in a rate of tax for purposes of section 15 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

SEC. 2. ELIMINATION OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN STANDARD DEDUCTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—(Paraph (2) of section 63(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to standard deduction) is amended—

(1) by striking "$5,000" in subparagraph (A) and inserting "200 percent of the dollar amount in effect under subparagraph (C) for the taxable year;"

(2) by adding "or" at the end of subparagraph (B), and

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 3. PHASEOUT OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN 15-PERCENT BRACKET.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (f) of section 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to inflation adjustments in tax tables so that inflation will not result in tax increases) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(B) PHASEOUT OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN 15-PERCENT BRACKET.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (a) of section 1(f)(6) of such Code (relating to limitation based on tax liability; definition of tax liability) is amended to read as follows:

"(a) LIMITATION BASED ON AMOUNT OF TAX.—The aggregate amount of credits allowed by this part for the taxable year shall not exceed the sum of—

"(1) the taxpayer's regular tax liability for the taxable year reduced by the foreign tax credit allowable under section 27(a), and

"(2) the tax imposed for the taxable year by section 55(a)."

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Subsection (b) of section 24 of such Code is amended by striking paragraph (2) and by redesignating paragraph (3) as paragraph (2).

(2) Section 32 of such Code is amended by striking subsection (h).

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

The amendment printed in the bill is adopted, as modified by the order of the House of today.

The text of H.R. 6, as amended, is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. ET Cetera.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the "Marriage Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act of 2001."

(b) SECTION 15 NOT TO APPLY.—No amendment made by this Act shall be treated as a change in a rate of tax for purposes of section 15 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

SEC. 2. ELIMINATION OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN STANDARD DEDUCTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—(Paraph (2) of section 63(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to standard deduction) is amended—

(1) by striking "$5,000" in subparagraph (A) and inserting "200 percent of the dollar amount in effect under subparagraph (C) for the taxable year;"

(2) by adding "or" at the end of subparagraph (B), and

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 3. PHASEOUT OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN 15-PERCENT BRACKET.
“(i) $46,000 for taxable years beginning in 2005, and
(ii) $40,500 for taxable years beginning in 2006 or 2007.’”

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS—

(A) Paragraph (1) of section 55(d) of such Code is amended by striking “and” at the end of subparagraph (B), by striking subparagraph (C), and by inserting after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:

“(C) 50 percent of the dollar amount applicable under paragraph (1)(A) in the case of a married individual who files a separate return, and
“(D) 50 percent of the dollar amount applicable under paragraph (1)(B).”

(B) Subparagraph (C) of section 55(d)(3) of such Code is amended by striking “paragraph (1)(C)” and inserting “paragraph (C) or (D) of paragraph (1)”.

(C) The last sentence of section 55(d)(3) of such Code amended—

(i) by striking “paragraph (1)(C)(i)” and inserting “paragraph (1)(C)” and

(ii) by striking “$165,000 or (ii) $22,500” and inserting “the minimum amount of such income (as so determined) for which the exemption amount under paragraph (1)(C) is zero, or (ii) such exemption amount (determined without regard to this paragraph)”.

(d) TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS—

(1) Subparagraph (A) of section 1(f)(2) of such Code is amended by inserting “except as provided in (B),” before “by increasing”,

(2) The heading for subsection (f) of section 1 of such Code is amended by inserting “GROUP OUT OF MARRIAGE PENALTY IN 15 PERCENT BRACKET;” before “ADJUSTMENTS”.

(e) EFFECTIVE DATES—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, the amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

(2) SUBSECTION (b).—The amendments made by subsection (b) shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

(3) SUBSECTION (c).—The amendments made by subsection (c) shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2004.

SEC. 4. MARRIAGE PENALTY RELIEF FOR EARNED INCOME CREDIT—EARNED INCOME TO INCLUDE ONLY AMOUNTS INCLUDIBLE IN GROSS INCOME.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (2) of section 32(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to percentages and amounts) is amended—

(1) by striking “AMOUNTS.—The earned” and inserting “AMOUNTS.—The earned”;

(2) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

“(B) JOINT RETURNS.—In the case of a joint return, the earned income amount determined under subparagraph (A) shall be 10 percent of the other spouse’s aggregate income. If any amount determined under the preceding sentence is not a multiple of $10, such amount shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $10.

(b) AMOUNT TO INCLUDE ONLY AMOUNTS INCLUDIBLE IN GROSS INCOME.—

Clause (i) of section 32(c)(2)(A) of such Code (defined earning income) is amended by inserting “, but amounts are includible in gross income for the taxable year after other employee compensation.”

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 5. MODIFICATIONS TO CHILD TAX CREDIT.

(a) INCREASE IN PER CHILD AMOUNT.—Subsection (a) of section 24 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to child tax credit) is amended to read as follows:

“(a) ALLOWANCE OF CREDIT.—

“(1) In general.—There shall be allowed as a credit against the tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year with respect to each qualifying child of the taxpayer an amount equal to the per child amount.

“(2) Per child amount.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the per child amount shall be determined as follows:

“In the case of any taxable year beginning in—

The per child amount is—

2001 and 2002 $600
2003 .............................. 700
2004 .............................. 800
2005 .............................. 900
2006 or thereafter ................................. 1,060.

(b) CREDIT ALLOWED AGAINST ALTERNATIVE MINIMUM TAX.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (b) of section 24 of such Code is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(3) LIMITATION BASED ON AMOUNT OF TAX.—The credit allowed under subsection (a) for any taxable year shall not exceed the excess of—

(A) the sum of the regular tax liability (as defined in section 55(b)) plus the tax imposed by section 55, over

(B) the sum of the credits allowable under this subpart (other than this section) and section 27 for the taxable year.”.

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(A) The heading for section 24(b) of such Code is amended to read as follows: “LIMITATIONS:—

(B) The heading for section 24(b)(1) of such Code is amended to read as follows: “LIMITATION BASED ON ADJUSTED GROSS INCOME:—

(C) Section 24(d) of such Code is amended—

(i) by striking “section 26(a)” each place it appears and inserting “subsection (b)(3)”, and

(ii) in paragraph (1)(B) by striking “aggregate amount of credits allowed by this subpart” and inserting “amount of credit allowed by this section”.

(D) Paragraph (1) of section 26(a) of such Code is amended by inserting “other than section 24” after “this subpart”.

(E) Subsection (c) of section 23 of such Code is amended by striking “and section 1400C” and inserting “and sections 24 and 1400C”.

(F) Subparagraph (C) of section 25(e)(1) of such Code is amended by inserting “24,” after “sections 23”.

(G) Section 90(b) of such Code is amended by inserting “other than section 24” after “chapter”.

(H) Subsection (d) of section 1400C of such Code is amended by inserting “section 24” after “this section”.

(i) ADDITIONAL CREDIT FOR FAMILIES WITH 3 OR MORE CHILDREN AVAILABLE TO ALL FAMILIES.—Subsection (d) of section 24 of such Code is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1) by striking “In the case of a taxpayer with three or more qualifying children for any taxable year, the” and inserting “The”; and

(2) in the subsection heading by striking “WITH 3 OR MORE CHILDREN” and inserting “PAYS SOCIAL SECURITY TAXES”.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

(2) SUBSECTION (b).—The amendments made by subsection (b) shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

SEC. 6. PROTECTION OF SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE.

The amounts transferred to any trust fund under the Social Security Act shall be determined as if this Act had not been enacted.
Unfortunately, at the time that they will become eligible, that is the time they expect to have their surplus. I hope that is true.

One thing they hope to have locked into place will be this enormous tax cut, and I tell the Members, this tax cut just does not fit. So they have come a long way in understanding the needs that we have in providing relief for taxpayers, especially as it relates to the child care bill.

As long as we give it in all of these doses, and at the end of the day we have a $3 trillion tax bill and will not have money to do the other things that we promised and that we want to do, I would suggest that some of the compassion that the President is talking about should be leaking down to the House floor so that we can work together.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CAMP), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. CAMP. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, for yielding the time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 6. American families are working longer and harder than ever, and more and more of their money is going to Washington. In fact, today’s couples spend an average of 40 percent of their income in taxes; and if there is nothing else that we do in this body, we should strengthen families.

I am pleased to stand before you today because this legislation represents an historic and long overdue step for families.

H.R. 6 provides tax relief to families. This legislation provides relief on two fronts, by eliminating the marriage penalty and doubling the child tax credit.

Last year, the House passed with strong bipartisan support the same proposal to eliminate the marriage penalty. This year I am confident we will finally be able to bring tax relief to American families.

H.R. 6 will ensure that these couples are not twice penalized just for being married, and it will make a promise to future couples that they will not be punished for making the decision to get married.

H.R. 6 doubles the current child tax credit. The legislation also extends present law refundability of the tax credit. This is a huge win for families. It will allow parents to keep more of the money that they earned to invest in their future and to provide an education for their children and to spend less and less time working to send their money to Washington.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support of this bill.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. MATSU), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. MATSU. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), the ranking member of the Committee on Ways and Means for yielding the time to me.

The whole basis upon which this tax cut, which is about $400 billion over the next 10 years, the whole basis of this tax cut is based upon the $5.6 trillion that the Congressional Budget Office says will be available over the next 10 years. The Congressional Budget Office, however, said one other thing, too. They also said in the same document, when they made this prediction about the $5.6 trillion, that there is only a 50 percent accuracy or probability that the 5-year projections of the $5.6 trillion will become true, and they cannot even make a prediction on the 10-year numbers.

In other words, they are basically saying we are using the number of $5.6 trillion, but really do not rely upon the accuracy of it because we cannot really say it is going to happen. We do not know if it is going to happen. It may not happen.

So the whole basis of this tax cut is based upon conjecture, and I have to say that after this tax cut passes, and then after we pass the estate tax repeal next week, we will be at about $1.7 trillion or $1.8 trillion, and that does not even include the loss of interests on that money. So we are probably talking about $2 trillion, $2.5 trillion of the $5.7 trillion that may not exist.

What is interesting is that we have had a lot of statistical studies on this. The top 1 percent of the taxpayers in America, those people that make $370,000 a year and above, actually the average is about $1.1 million income per family, the top 1 percent, they are going to get about 40 percent of this total tax cut, this so-called phantom tax cut.

This is a bad bill. The Democrats have a tax cut bill that is modest. It is actually very large. It is about $700 billion, but it fits within a budgetary framework. It takes into consideration in the event these numbers do not come into effect and are not accurate, and it pays down the debt.

Mr. Speaker, I believe very, very strongly that if this bill passes, the estate tax bill passes next week, you are going to see a reduction in Social Security benefits over the next 3 years or 4 years.

We will not be able to do prescription drugs. All this talk the President has about education; that will not come to pass. And certainly Medicare is going to go in deep trouble.

This is a bad bill. We should vote for the Democratic substitute, which is more modest. It does deal with the marriage penalty. We do want a tax cut, but we want to make sure it is modest, and that, obviously, it fits within fiscal discipline, which has given us the enormous growth we had over the last 10 years under Bill Clinton.

Ms. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, the Federal tax burden today on American families is an intolerable 34 percent of personal income, so it is especially unfortunate that we are debating a bill that would be getting rid of a tax that penalizes two pillars of our American family, and those are marriage and children.

By alleviating the impact of the marriage penalty and doubling the per child tax credit, this bill will provide nearly $100 billion in family-friendly tax relief over the next 10 years. In my district in South Carolina, State alone, 73,000 couples will be helped by this bill and 122,000 children by the bill that we will be passing today. The marriage penalty is especially strong attack on working women. Currently, the Tax Code creates a disincentive for women to go to work at all, or, if they do, to earn much above the very low threshold.

Women who make a salary on a par with their husbands are taxed at an extraordinary rate, a marginal rate that is higher when you combine incomes. It pushes that rate up.

This is not a problem for couples with a single breadwinner so much, but in today’s society, where both the husband and wife work in most households, it is a huge problem. Conservative estimates put this problem at about 25 million American couples who are paying an average of $1,400 in additional taxes just because they are married. This is wrong, Mr. Speaker.

This bill represents real relief for couples in our society. As new wedded start out on their new life, they should not face a punishing tax bill.
The incentives are wrong. The tax is unfair. Mr. Speaker, we should honor marriage, not tax it.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to help couples and young families by supporting H.R. 6.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. BROWN), and the winner is and the winner is. On November, the American people voted for investment in education for our children, health care for families, and prescription drugs for our seniors, but the Republicans keep coming with their tax cut for their rich friends. They have lost touch with the people and have no idea what their priorities are.

As we debate the marriage penalty act today, vital programs that serve millions of Americans are being ignored.

Tonight thousands of American war heroes will go to bed on the streets. Millions of American children will go to bed hungry, and millions of Americans will go to bed wondering how much longer their bodies can fight against AIDS, cancer, diabetes, Lupus, and hundreds of other incurable diseases.

Unfortunately for the American people, today on the House floor we are once again debating a tax bill that helps only a few and ignoring the real problem that we face as a Nation.

Support fair marriage tax relief. Vote yes on the substitute and let us get back to the work that the people sent us here to do.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds to identify some of the rich friends that are going to be helped in this particular bill.

Mr. Speaker, more than 1 million taxpayers at the lower end of the income tax brackets will find their tax liability reduced to zero in 2002. Tax relief in this bill is not just for young families. At least 6 million families, the taxpayers who are 65 or older will benefit from this bill. It is a bill that benefits all married couples with children.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. ENGLISH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, for yielding the time to me.

Today's vote, Mr. Speaker, is one of the key votes on tax equity that this Congress will make. Whether or not an individual Member may support our efforts to provide a proportional tax cut for every taxpayer, they have to concede that this bill makes our Tax Code fairer for dual-income couples and families with children. That is why I rise to urge my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to join us in support of this legislation.

On a fundamental level, increasing the child tax credit makes our tax system more fair. It especially helps middle-income and low-income families who can use the money to meet the priorities of their family budget.

Since the 1980s, the ugly fact is we have shifted more and more of the tax burden of the Federal Government onto the backs of Americans working families.

This legislation takes an important step forward in improving tax fairness and progressivity in our Tax Code.

Here are the facts: This legislation provides benefits to 25 million families through doubling the child tax credit. This legislation provides relief to 5 million families within the earned income tax credit.

The tax relief debate that we have should not be a partisan debate, but rather a debate about how fairly to redistribute income and wealth.

This legislation provides tax fairness, and everyone who professes to support tax fairness on the other side of the aisle should have an obligation to support it.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Michigan (Ms. KILPATRICK).

Ms. KILPATRICK. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. Ranking member on the Committee on Ways and Means, for yielding me the time to me.

You do the math, America. We think we will have a $5.6 trillion surplus over the next 10 years. We also think we can tell what the weather will be next week or tomorrow. That is about what it is when we talk about projections. We do not have the money.

We, Democrats, do support a tax cut. Yes, we have a surplus, but Americans also want election reform so that every vote will count, education reform, prescription drugs, health care access, and, yes, to save our Social Security and Medicare plan.

With this tax cut today that is before us and the trillion dollars we have already passed, we will not be able to address those needs that American people want.

We want to do something about the marriage penalty, and the Democrats have a plan. But do you not think, America, that we ought to take care of the needs of Americans and see what the real numbers are and then offer a tax plan that will work?

Support a realistic alternative. The other will lead us into deficit.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. HERGER), a valued member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, when a couple stands up and says "I do," they are not agreeing to higher taxes. Yet, 25 million American couples currently pay higher taxes simply because they are married.

Let us be clear, it is just plain wrong for the Republicans keep coming with their tax cut for their rich friends. They have lost touch with the people and have no idea what their priorities are.

As we debate the marriage penalty act today, vital programs that serve millions of Americans are being ignored.

Tonight thousands of American war heroes will go to bed on the streets. Millions of American children will go to bed hungry, and millions of Americans will go to bed wondering how much longer their bodies can fight against AIDS, cancer, diabetes, Lupus, and hundreds of other incurable diseases.

Unfortunately for the American people, today on the House floor we are once again debating a tax bill that helps only a few and ignoring the real problem that we face as a Nation.

Support fair marriage tax relief. Vote yes on the substitute and let us get back to the work that the people sent us here to do.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 6 today. But I support marriage penalty relief because it does not make sense for married people to pay more taxes just because they are married.

That being said, we in Congress have a lot of tough choices we have to make. The Republican budget we passed yesterday and the tax cut we are working on today make it clear that their priorities are cutting taxes for the few instead of supporting programs that benefit the many.

In fact, opposing this today, my wife and I tell what the weather will be next week or tomorrow. That is about what it is when we talk about projections. We do not have the money.

We, Democrats, do support a tax cut. Yes, we have a surplus, but Americans also want election reform so that every vote will count, education reform, prescription drugs, health care access, and, yes, to save our Social Security and Medicare plan.

With this tax cut today that is before us and the trillion dollars we have already passed, we will not be able to address those needs that American people want.

We want to do something about the marriage penalty, and the Democrats have a plan. But do you not think, America, that we ought to take care of the needs of Americans and see what the real numbers are and then offer a tax plan that will work?

Support a realistic alternative. The other will lead us into deficit.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. ENGLISH), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means, for yielding the time to me.
enjoying. Instead of heeding the economic warning signs, we are charging forward with a huge tax cut that, even Alan Greenspan has argued, do very little to spur the economy. Like a gambler who bets the farm on one hand, this Congress is risking it all—with no guarantee that they’ll cash in.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York (Mr. MEEKS).

Mr. MEEKS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I thank the ranking member on the Committee on Ways and Means for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, life has its lessons. One of the lessons I learned early on was I went to a used car salesman, and he showed me a car. That body of that car looked like it was in excellent condition. He turned on the radio, and the music of the radio, the stereo just revverberated around me; and I fell in love with the car.

But there was one thing that I forgot to do was open up the hood to the car to see the engine and drive the car to make sure that it functioned and did what it was supposed to do.

I say to the American people, you have got to and we have got to look under the hood, inside the engine of what is being proposed here in these tax cuts.

We are being told that everything can happen. We can save Social Security, Medicare; that we can make these the surpluses based upon 10 years out. No, I say to my colleagues, we have to make choices. Those choices have to be based upon a discipline and well-thought-out process.

We cannot do this without a budget because we do have other priorities. Those priorities include Medicare, Medicaid. They include education. They include a prescription drug plan. We must have the means to those things if we are going to have a true car.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, there is broad bipartisan support in this House for correcting the marriage tax penalty. Indeed, this is a measure that could have been approved the week after President Bush’s inauguration. In fact, there is such broad bipartisan support, it could have been approved last year. Or it could have been approved back in 1995 when the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McDERMOTT) offered it in the Committee on Ways and Means to implement the Republican contract on America by correcting the marriage tax penalty.

But our Republican colleagues at that time had higher priorities: they preferred tax breaks for corporations rather than couples; and they rejected his proposal. Last year they had a higher priority than relief for married couples, which was to try and win an election by preserving this—a campaign issue instead of coming together to agree on genuine marriage tax penalty relief.

Married couples in this country should and could have had this penalty corrected years ago. Yet, today, we find ourselves together, not in bipartisan agreement, but in disappointment, because once again our Republican colleagues offer a proposal that offers more relief to those who have no marriage tax penalty than those that do.

Any Member of this body, who believes that President Bush got it right in his campaign last year with his proposal for marriage tax penalty correction, needs to vote against the Republican proposal. They brought, as their principal witness to our Committee on Ways and Means, a gentleman who testified that President Bush’s proposal on marriage penalty relief was worse than doing nothing at all. Yes, that is correct, as difficult as it is to believe. The Republican witness said and said President Bush’s plan last year in the campaign and that we ought to reject his proposal.

I actually happen to think that the President came a lot closer to getting it right on this issue than the House Republicans with their old proposal that they have revised here, which is designed to shower benefits on those who have no penalty instead of focusing relief on those who have a legitimate complaint.

Let us be sure we understand what this bill does in that regard. Anyone in this House who believes we should not discriminate against single people ought to vote against this proposal, because it does by focusing more relief on those who incur no marriage penalty than those who do.

In fact, under this proposal, if someone has the misfortune to become a widow or a widower, on their income after this bill passes, that individual may well face a tax increase. I guess you might call it a “death tax” or the “single’s discrimination tax”. On the same amount of earnings that say a retired couple might have, a surviving spouse will face a higher rate filing individually—a single’s tax discrimination. The same applies to the abused spouse who separates from her husband. The same applies to any single individual out there, who is penalized under this bill.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, last some be confused by the last speaker, I will place into the RECORD a Statement of Administration Policy. It says, “The Administration supports the House’s action on H.R. 6 as another positive step on the way to passage of the President’s tax relief plan. H.R. 6 is consistent with the objective of the President’s tax relief plan, which lowers the tax burden on families and restores fairness by, among other things, reducing tax rates, expanding the child credit, and significantly reducing the marriage penalty.

The Administration looks forward to working with Congress as the legislative process continues to achieve a result that best embodies the objectives of the President’s plan.”

PAY-AS-YOU-GO SCORING

Any law that would reduce receipts is subject to the pay-as-you-go requirements of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act. Accordingly, H.R. 6—Marriage Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act of 2001 (Rep. Weller (R) Illinois and 225 cosponsors)—The Administration supports the House’s action on H.R. 6 as another positive step on the way to passage of the President’s tax relief plan. H.R. 6 is consistent with the objective of the President’s tax relief plan, which lowers the tax burden on families and restores fairness by, among other things, reducing tax rates, expanding the child credit, and significantly reducing the marriage penalty.

The Administration looks forward to working with Congress as the legislative process continues to achieve a result that best embodies the objectives of the President’s plan.
marriage tax penalty. I want to thank him for his effort in working to build bipartisan support for efforts to eliminate the marriage tax penalty.

What is the bottom line? Is it right, is it fair that, under our Tax Code, 25 million married working couples on average pay $1,400 more in higher taxes just because they are married? Is that right? Is that fair? Of course not.

While twice we have sent legislation to eliminate the marriage tax penalty, I believe the third time will be the charm because we have a President that says he will sign this legislation into law this time.

Let me introduce a couple that many in this House have gotten to know as I have discussed the marriage tax penalty over the last several years. Shad and Michelle Hallihan, two public schoolteachers from Will County, the Joliet area in Will County. Their combined income is about $65,000. Their marriage tax penalty is a little less than $2,000. It is a little bit less than average. But they suffer the marriage tax penalty because they chose to get married. They have two incomes. They file jointly. It pushes them into a higher tax bracket, creating the marriage tax penalty.

Our legislation will eliminate the marriage tax penalty for Shad and Michelle Hallihan. Only the bipartisan bill, H.R. 6, will eliminate the marriage tax penalty for Shad and Michelle Hallihan because they are homeowners. They itemize their taxes. The alternative will not.

So clearly, if we want to help couples, middle-class couples like Shad and Michelle Hallihan, we should eliminate the marriage tax penalties.

Since we have been working on this legislation to eliminate the marriage tax penalty, Shad and Michelle have had a baby. They got married at the time when the bill was introduced. They now have a child, little Ben. So they qualify for the child tax credit. It is $500 today.

Under our legislation, not only do we eliminate the marriage tax penalty for Shad and Michelle Hallihan, but they get the benefit from the child tax credit increase. This year it is $500. With the passage of this legislation into law, this year it will be a $600 increase in the child tax credit, which means Shad and Michelle will see as a result of this legislation somewhere between $1,500 and $2,000 in tax relief by eliminating the marriage tax penalty by providing for a bigger child tax credit.

Let us vote from a bipartisan way. I invite you to join with us. Let us eliminate the marriage tax penalty. Let us help families with children.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER), and I ask for his consent that he be permitted to control that time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I just pause because I was so moved by the last presentation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) while I regain my composure.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to give the distinguished ranking member an opportunity to gain his composure.

Mr. Speaker, I certainly respect the motivation behind the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER) for introducing this legislation, but I strongly disagree with the solution that he proposes.

Today’s problem was yesterday’s solution. The reason we are doing this was because, back in 1969, so many single income people were getting unfairly treated by the Tax Code, and so we tried to fix it. In fact, we did fix it pretty much.

I have a Congressional Budget Office study that shows that only 37 percent of married couples actually get married, and their penalty is $24 billion. Sixty percent of married couples actually get a bonus for having gotten married, and that bonus totals $72 billion. So there is actually about a $50 billion net bonus going to people for having gotten married.

What we are doing to try to fix a problem is to make it worse. The cost of fixing it falls on the children of these very nice people who are getting married.

I cannot imagine somebody not getting married because of some tax penalty. What happened to love and romance, for crying out loud.

The fact is this is wrong. I do not even pretend to understand the substitute. We ought to do the right thing and simplify the Tax Code and not do this kind of stuff.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES).

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), the ranking member, for all the work he has done in this particular area.

I want to continue to respond. The prior speaker’s colleague said he wanted to help the American family. Which American family? I am talking about working families.

Do Shad and Michelle Hallihan know that they are getting no help for affordable housing? Do they know they are getting no help for child care? Do they know they are getting no help for health care? Do they know their parents will not be able to get a prescription drug benefit? Do they know how many schools we can fix with $24 billion? Do they know how many lives we can change with $24 billion if they only wait on a tax cut on the marriage tax penalty?

What else are Shad and Michelle Hallihan getting? They are teachers. They work for a school system. They get health care. What about all those other families out there who do not get health care, who do not have an opportunity to have a vacation and take their children somewhere?

This benefit may deal with a marriage tax penalty, but it deals with none of the other things like housing, child care, health care, prescription drug benefit, or Social Security. Wake up America. We do not want this.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I note to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES), the previous speaker, that if she votes against this bipartisan effort to eliminate the marriage tax penalty, that 250,000 taxpayers in the 11th District of Ohio will continue to suffer the marriage tax penalty, and over 71,000 children will not be eligible for the increase in the doubling tax credit.

Let us be fair. Let us eliminate the marriage tax penalty and increase the child tax credit.
Mr. Speaker, let us say that John Taxpayer earns $30,000 a year with his teaching job at Madison Elementary School. His wife, Wendy, works part-time as a home health care assistant. Together they pay a $732 marriage penalty, paying more in taxes just because they are married. That is wrong.

This bill ends that marriage tax penalty so that John and Wendy can keep that $732 of their money each year to help pay for all the clothes, food, and other items that we all know goes into raising a family. And that $732 over time is going to add up to big savings.

But then here comes the real help. This year we will also increase the child credit by $100 to the Taxpayer family. That means that John and Wendy will have an additional $500 to help pay for all the clothes, food, and other items that we all know goes into raising a family. That means that John and Wendy can keep that $732 of their money each year to help pay for all the clothes, food, and other items that we all know goes into raising a family.

My colleagues, that is what this debate is about, not budgets and not rich versus poor, not anything else. This is about families. This is real tax relief for American families who need it now more than ever. Stand up for families; stand up for reduction of the marriage tax penalty.

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Washington State (Mr. McDERMOTT), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, we are here on day three of George the Second's runaway railway train. Last week we are here and yesterday we passed a budget out of here in a big hurry, and now here is day three.

There are some attractive pieces to this bill. As somebody mentioned, I proposed it five years ago, and the Republicans in the Ways and Means have turned it down because they had other things that were more important. But what is amazing about what is going on here is that last week we passed out of here $1.35 trillion tax cut packages. Therefore, out of the $1.6 trillion, we only had $300 billion left, and we have the estate tax, we have the charitable deduction, and we have the AMT fix. This train is running backwards because they are loading up the gift things in the front and not telling people what is coming in the back.

I sit on the Committee on the Budget as well as the Committee on Ways and Means, and there is no reasonable budget out there. This is a reckless train that we are on.

Now, I have been to several hearings, and the Governor from Wisconsin, who is now the head of HHS, came to testify at both those committees. He did not have one single answer to what he was going to do about Medicare. He says they are $654 billion in the hole over the next 10 years, but did not offer a single plan to deal with that. The last thing we ought to be doing is running a big tax train out of here.

Then we had deja vu. In comes the Secretary of the Treasury. We asked him about Medicare solvency, and he did not have any single answer. But then we had a guy from the Treasury who really made sense. His name was Weinberger. He came in last week and he told us with a straight face that families know they will get $100 in April of 2002. That will have a positive psychological effect in terms of spending and, therefore, a positive impact on the economy.

Now, if we think about that, what he is saying is that it is acceptable to encourage people to spend what they do not have. I mean, we are saying, it is coming, they will be getting their $100, so please run out and spend it right now to gin up this economy and increase their personal debt. That at least is consistent with this administration's philosophy on this railroad; let us run it out of here and never look at what we are going to have to pay down the road.

This is based on estimates. We have talked about this and talked about this. If anyone would get CBO to reestimate where we are going to be in 10 years on the basis of what has gone on in the last 6 months, we would have a totally different figure that we would be dealing with today. But, boy, the engineer is in the cab, and he is pulling back on the throttle, and here we go, choo-choo-choo right down the road, no matter what is on the road.

I say vote for the Democratic alternative.

Mr. Speaker, I support marriage penalty relief and child credits targeted to help the working poor. I cosponsored marriage penalty relief legislation in the 105th Congress when the Republican majority unanimously voted it down. I introduced it again in the 106th Congress, and now again in the current session.

While there are some attractive components to this bill, I have serious concerns with the size of President Bush's tax cut. Our Republican colleagues are trying to rush all the components of President Bush's plan through the House, and I will not support each individual component as we watch its price tag soar.

The cost of this bill and the one passed earlier in the 106th Congress is already up to $1.35 trillion tax cut packages. Therefore, out of the $1.6 trillion, we only have $300 billion left, and we have the estate tax, we have the charitable deduction, and we have the AMT fix. This train is running backwards because they are loading up the gift things in the front and not telling people what is coming in the back.

I sit on the Committee on the Budget as well as the Committee on Ways and Means, and there is no reasonable budget out there. This is a reckless train that we are on.

Now, I have been to several hearings, and the Governor from Wisconsin, who is now the head of HHS, came to testify at both those committees. He did not have one single answer to what he was saying is this—it is acceptable to encourage people to spend what they do not have. I mean, we are saying, it is coming, they will be getting their $100, so please run out and spend it right now to gin up this economy and increase their personal debt. That at least is consistent with this administration's philosophy on this railroad; let us run it out of here and never look at what we are going to have to pay down the road.

This is based on estimates. We have talked about this and talked about this. If anyone would get CBO to reestimate where we are going to be in 10 years on the basis of what has gone on in the last 6 months, we would have a totally different figure that we would be dealing with today. But, boy, the engineer is in the cab, and he is pulling back on the throttle, and here we go, choo-choo-choo right down the road, no matter what is on the road.

I say vote for the Democratic alternative.

Mr. Speaker, I support marriage penalty relief and child credits targeted to help the working poor. I cosponsored marriage penalty relief legislation in the 105th Congress when the Republican majority unanimously voted it down. I introduced it again in the 106th Congress, and now again in the current session.

While there are some attractive components to this bill, I have serious concerns with the size of President Bush's tax cut. Our Republican colleagues are trying to rush all the components of President Bush's plan through the House, and I will not support each individual component as we watch its price tag soar.

The cost of this bill and the one passed earlier in the 106th Congress is already up to $1.35 trillion tax cut packages. Therefore, out of the $1.6 trillion, we only have $300 billion left, and we have the estate tax, we have the charitable deduction, and we have the AMT fix. This train is running backwards because they are loading up the gift things in the front and not telling people what is coming in the back.

I sit on the Committee on the Budget as well as the Committee on Ways and Means, and there is no reasonable budget out there. This is a reckless train that we are on.

Now, I have been to several hearings, and the Governor from Wisconsin, who is now the head of HHS, came to testify at both those committees. He did not have one single answer to what he was saying is this—it is acceptable to encourage people to spend what they do not have. I mean, we are saying, it is coming, they will be getting their $100, so please run out and spend it right now to gin up this economy and increase their personal debt. That at least is consistent with this administration's philosophy on this railroad; let us run it out of here and never look at what we are going to have to pay down the road.

This is based on estimates. We have talked about this and talked about this. If anyone would get CBO to reestimate where we are going to be in 10 years on the basis of what has gone on in the last 6 months, we would have a totally different figure that we would be dealing with today. But, boy, the engineer is in the cab, and he is pulling back on the throttle, and here we go, choo-choo-choo right down the road, no matter what is on the road.

I say vote for the Democratic alternative.

Mr. Speaker, I support marriage penalty relief and child credits targeted to help the working poor. I cosponsored marriage penalty relief legislation in the 105th Congress when the Republican majority unanimously voted it down. I introduced it again in the 106th Congress, and now again in the current session.

While there are some attractive components to this bill, I have serious concerns with the size of President Bush's tax cut. Our Republican colleagues are trying to rush all the components of President Bush's plan through the House, and I will not support each individual component as we watch its price tag soar.

The cost of this bill and the one passed earlier in the 106th Congress is already up to $1.35 trillion tax cut packages. Therefore, out of the $1.6 trillion, we only have $300 billion left, and we have the estate tax, we have the charitable deduction, and we have the AMT fix. This train is running backwards because they are loading up the gift things in the front and not telling people what is coming in the back.

I sit on the Committee on the Budget as well as the Committee on Ways and Means, and there is no reasonable budget out there. This is a reckless train that we are on.

Now, I have been to several hearings, and the Governor from Wisconsin, who is now the head of HHS, came to testify at both those committees. He did not have one single answer to what he was saying is this—it is acceptable to encourage people to spend what they do not have. I mean, we are saying, it is coming, they will be getting their $100, so please run out and spend it right now to gin up this economy and increase their personal debt. That at least is consistent with the administration's apparent philosophy that paying down our national debt is not a priority—not if they are trying to pass a huge tax cut without the context of a responsible framework.

If we do not forget, these tax cuts are based on projections, not guarantees. Current projections are exactly that—projections. If the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) were to recalculate their estimates in today's economy, they would slash their projections of budget surpluses.

Based on their own track record, CBO concludes that estimated surpluses could be off in one direction or the other, on average by $412 billion in 2006. Any responsible fiscal plan must anticipate inevitable errors in these projections. But the Bush proposal simply ignores these concerns.

The budget must maintain a reserve for inevitable errors in these projections. It must pay down the debt, shore up resources for Medicare and Social Security, and allow for other initiatives, such as education, prescription drugs and the uninsured.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to note for my colleague from Washington State that the two provisions of the President's tax plan that this House has already passed will provide this year for the average family of four $600 in tax relief, almost $400 from the rate reduction and, for two children, $200 in additional family tax credits.
Mr. Speaker, this bipartisan bill represents the best way to achieve that goal, and I know that all of my colleagues know that one day the marriage penalty is taken out of our Federal Tax Code. It has truly been an honor to work with Mr. Weller, my good friend and colleague, who has 12 1⁄2 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Lewis) has truly been an honor to work with him.

I want to recognize his leadership and thank him for giving me the opportunity to do my part to ensure that one day the marriage penalty is taken out of our Federal Tax Code. It has truly been an honor to work with him.

Mr. Speaker, let me begin by saying fundamentally the marriage penalty is an issue of tax fairness. Married couples on average pay $1,400 more in taxes simply because they are married. This is an unfair burden on our Nation’s married couples. Marriage is a sacred institution, and our Tax Code should not discourage it by making married couples pay more. We need to change the Tax Code so it no longer discriminates against those who are married.

As most of my colleagues know, the marriage penalty occurs when a couple filing a joint return experiences a greater tax liability than would occur if each of the two people filed as single individuals. The Congressional Budget Office estimates that more than 25 million couples suffer under this unfair burden. The legislation that is before us will fix the grave injustice of our current Tax Code that results in married couples paying higher taxes than they would if they remained single. It also doubles the child tax credit to $1,000 over 6 years.

This bill strikes to the heart of middle-income tax relief. These are the people who are the backbone of our communities. These are the people who need tax relief the most. With a record budget surplus, the time is long overdue for Congress to remove the marriage penalty from the Tax Code.

Mr. Speaker, this bipartisan bill achieved an agreement that all of us present here today who support the measure will not stop working until this legislation is signed into law. My constituents have spoken to me very overwhelmingly on this issue, and the time has arrived to act decisively to eliminate the marriage penalty.

Mr. Rangel, Mr. Speaker. I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Lewis), a distinguished member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Lewis of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, like my colleagues, I strongly support marriage penalty relief and tax benefit for families. That is why I support the Democratic substitute. It provides married couples and families significant tax relief, but it does it in a way that is good for all Americans and allows us to prepare for our future. H.R. 6 may seem small today, but we cannot ignore the fact that it is only part of a $3 trillion Republican tax plan. That is a lot of money, especially when it is based on an unreliable surplus projection. There are no assurances, no guarantees. What if we are wrong?

Mr. Speaker, the Republican $3 trillion plan puts at risk our ability to prepare for our future. What we should be doing today is paying down the national debt, saving Social Security and Medicare, and taking care of all of the basic needs of all of our citizens. The Republican tax plan is not right for America. It tends to move us in the wrong direction. And I say, Mr. Speaker, this plan is not fair, and it is not just.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to vote against it and vote for the Democratic substitute.

Mr. Weller, Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I note to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Lewis), who spoke on behalf of the Democratic substitute, that the proposal he speaks in favor of would deny half of America’s 60,000 children in his district in Georgia.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Sam Johnson).

Mr. Sam Johnson of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I know that there are a lot of married people in Georgia. As my colleagues know, I am from Texas, and I want to divorce the 1.7 million married Texans from the government-imposed, IRS-enforced marriage penalty tax. It is just plain wrong for the Federal Government to penalize people who choose to get married. When two people stand before God and exchange their vows, it should be a celebration for them, not the IRS.

Mr. Speaker, it has been said that America is the land of the free and the home of the brave, and this is true fact. Young couples have to be brave to get married because the Federal Government is going to tax them from their hard-earned money when they say “I do.”

I do not think any Member would disagree that we should encourage, not discourage, the greatest institution on earth, marriage. Let us vote today to give married couples a well-deserved break from the elimination of the marriage tax penalty.

Mr. Rangel, Mr. Speaker, may I inquire how much time remains?

The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Hastings of Washington). The gentleman from New York (Mr. Rangel) has 12 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Weller) has 11 minutes remaining.

Mr. Rangel, Mr. Speaker. I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Neal), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Neal of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, this is a very good example of where we could have found common ground with the Republicans to get marriage penalty relief for the American people. But once again, the proposal that they offer is excessive. I would highlight to my colleagues that their proposal is more generous than the one that President Bush proposed. It is excessive in that it goes way beyond his proposal, which perhaps we even on this side of the aisle could have lived with. But when it comes to taxes these days, the Republican Party is like parents with twins who have just entered their teenage years. They know college is coming in a few years, and they should be saving to pay college expenses, but they refuse to.

Mr. Speaker, by providing excessive relief, the Republican Party is denying the looming problems that result from the retirement of the baby boomers in just a few years. This bill represents missed opportunities once again. It could have contained more tax simplification than it does, which we should be doing, and it could have offered far more relief on the alternative minimum tax. But AMT relief and simplification are not part of the current political agenda in this institution.

Mr. Speaker, there are some good points to this legislation: The child credit, the earned income tax credit, and they do touch upon some relief with AMT.

The problem with this legislation is, once again, it is excessive. What we do here is we cut taxes and then we do a budget, rather than the other way around.

Let me speak specifically, if I can, for just a moment about alternative minimum tax, and I hope people are paying attention to what is about to happen.

This bill makes the alternative minimum tax worse by, listen to this, $292 billion. That is not much of a fix. There are currently 1.5 million taxpayers who are categorized according to AMT. Under the current law, that number increases to 20.7 million in 2011. With some people having incomes of only $50,000, we know that there are about to pay alternative minimum tax. Because of this entire tax proposal, 15 million more Americans are going to be forced into alternative minimum tax. If this bill goes through and is signed by the President, there is going to be no revenue left to fix alternative minimum tax.

The Democratic alternative is a sound piece of legislation. It is certainly much more fiscally responsible than the bill that we are going to vote on in a few moments. Our legislation is superior in that it addresses the looming problem of AMT. Get past sloganeering. Get down to policy. Fix alternative minimum tax.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to respond to my good friend, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. NEAL), who discussed the consequences of alternative minimum tax. Of course, the alternative minimum tax was increased with the 1993 tax increase that President Clinton and the Democratic majority enacted back in 1993. I would note that their proposal provides actually less AMT relief than our proposal that we are offering today. I would note that in the marriage penalty relief that is in H.R. 6 that taxpayers are held harmless. They do not see the consequences of AMT, the alternative minimum tax, under our proposal. So that is a good thing and a step forward. Of course, I would note that in my friend’s district that almost 100,000 children would be denied relief and help under the proposal which he supports.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. CRANE), the dean of the Illinois Delegation and a senior member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I thank my distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER), for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to support the bill brought forth today reducing the marriage tax penalty and reducing taxes on families with children. This bill will stop the installment on a tax relief plan put forward by President Bush to let overtaxed Americans keep their money. We are running enormous surpluses that are more likely to grow than shrink in the coming years if we do not act.

President Bush has a responsible program of tax relief refunding these surpluses to the people who pay the bills. The marriage tax penalty should never have been allowed to creep into the Tax Code. This proposal puts in place a policy that violates sound tax policy and runs counter to bedrock American traditions. It has a tremendous negative impact on the people of my district. More than 70,000 couples pay an average marriage tax penalty of $1,400 per year in the eighth district of Illinois. That is nearly $100 million in penalties to Illinois families.

In the first 5 years, under the Republican bill, only 28 percent of the relief is provided. The rest is in the outyears. The Democratic substitute allows us to fix a long period of time in order to provide all of their promises that cannot possibly be lived up to, they back-load the cost of the bill. In fact, when this bill is put in with the rest of the bills that are being offered, you have a little chart here, it shows how impossible it is for everything to fit together.

We have already passed the first bill here and now we are doing the second one, and there is hardly any money left over for the estate tax relief and the health care and the debt service.

Remember yesterday we had a $1.6 trillion budget for tax relief. Well, when all of this is added up, if debt service is counted, it is going to be $3 trillion. That is why those of us, particularly on this side of the aisle, are concerned that all of this cannot be done and still protect our seniority and still protect Medicare and be able to expand Medicare to include prescription medicines and pay down our national debt, which should be our first priority, and to invest in education, which both Democrats and Republicans have been talking about.

The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. NEAL) is correct. We missed an opportunity today to have a bipartisan bill that could have enjoyed, I think, very broad support, to fix the marriage penalty problem, because there is a legitimate need to fix the marriage penalty problem. For those who are worried about that, as I am, and want to do something about it to the number of people that the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER) will mention in my district, I urge support for the substitute that will be offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Rangel) very shortly.

Once again, that will provide more relief, more relief to those people who have a marriage penalty until the year 2004, because the Republican bill, the underlying bill, because they are trying to put, as my chairman likes to say, 15 pounds of sugar into a 10-pound bag, they had to cut back on how they implement the bill.

So let us be fiscally responsible. Let us be able to pay down the national debt. Let us be able to deal with Social Security and Medicare and the other priorities. Support the Democratic substitute. Oppose the Republican bill.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would note to my good friend, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARLTON), that his argument in favor of the Democrat substitute indicates that he will vote to deny over 100,000 children in his district the help that is provided in the bipartisan bill that is before us.
Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. TRAFICANT), who is the key bipartisant supporter of H.R. 6 before us today.

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to look at this from a different perspective. Our labor is taxed. Our savings are taxed. Our investments are taxed. Our profits are taxed in America. Our sweat, our thrift, our future, all taxed in America and being addressed, quite frankly, pretty well by the Republicans. If we think about it, even business taxes, a tax on business, is passed on to us to pay.

Now, if that is not enough to tax your lower intestinal tract at the very lowest of levels, Mr. Speaker, even our sex is taxed in America. That being marital sex. Think about it. Marital sex in America is taxed. Responsible, legally married, 2+1 United States is taxed while casual promiscuous sex in America goes literally untaxed and is incentivized and rewarded. A family friendly Congress does not penalize married couples right to the point.

I want to commend the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), commend the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER), and I want to commend the Republican Party that if we are to be family friendly we should start right at the base of it all and get down to the floor and defend the current tax structure of $600 billion of tax relief and, lo and behold, this year the Democratic substitute is well over $900 billion. So at least we are heading in the right direction.

How anybody could stand on this floor and defend the current tax structure that is punitive to families is beyond me.

Now I am single, and I certainly do not want to spread the tax burden on to single people after we pass this bill and I want to make certain we do not do that, but I would suggest that 51,000 families in my district are suffering a penalty under the marriage tax as it is structured. Twenty-five million couples in America pay an average of $67,000 between them, and they file as married couples. This bill provides relief and it provides important relief.

Now, a lot of people are babbling around this place about the fact that the wealthiest 2% of the people have passed are not front-loaded that they do not provide immediate relief. Well, I beg to differ. This bill provides immediate relief. This bill provides substantial relief and this bill finally clarifies what is an erroneous provision in the Tax Code.

It is bipartisan. It was mentioned earlier today that 51 Democrats voted for our approach last year, and I believe it will even grow this year. It is pretty hard to go home to communities, to districts around America, to the 435 districts around this country, and suggest on a Sunday at church or a temple or synagogue that one believes in keeping this kind of onerous burden.

I want to encourage those who feel so compelled that they can go to their communities this weekend and inform them of the fact that they chose not to relieve the burden on families.

I am delighted that the Democrats offer a substitute because at least they recognize there is a problem, I do not support the approach. I support ours, but I am delighted that they are advancing a number of proposals. I heard once again on this floor that we are to be criticized because we did tax bills before budgets.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. FOLEY), a respected member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER) for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I do not think I can be quite as erudite as our last speaker but I will attempt to at least engage in a fair debate on why this is an important bill.

I am delighted actually that the other side of the aisle is actually talking tax relief. I remember being accused last year of being reckless with the budget, but the facts are that we had proposed somewhere in the nature of $600 billion of tax relief and, lo and behold, this year the Democratic substitute is well over $900 billion. So at least we are heading in the right direction.

How anybody could stand on this floor and defend the current tax structure that is punitive to families is beyond me.

Now I am single, and I certainly do not want to spread the tax burden on to single people after we pass this bill and I want to make certain we do not do that, but I would suggest that 51,000 families in my district are suffering a penalty under the marriage tax as it is structured. Twenty-five million couples in America pay an average of $67,000 between them, and they file as married couples. This bill provides relief and it provides important relief.

Now, a lot of people are babbling around this place about the fact that the wealthiest 2% of the people have passed are not front-loaded that they do not provide immediate relief. Well, I beg to differ. This bill provides immediate relief. This bill provides substantial relief and this bill finally clarifies what is an erroneous provision in the Tax Code.

It is bipartisan. It was mentioned earlier today that 51 Democrats voted for our approach last year, and I believe it will even grow this year. It is pretty hard to go home to communities, to districts around America, to the 435 districts around this country, and suggest on a Sunday at church or a temple or synagogue that one believes in keeping this kind of onerous burden.

I want to encourage those who feel so compelled that they can go to their communities this weekend and inform them of the fact that they chose not to relieve the burden on families.

I am delighted that the Democrats offer a substitute because at least they recognize there is a problem, I do not support the approach. I support ours, but I am delighted that they are advancing a number of proposals.

I heard once again on this floor that we are to be criticized because we did tax bills before budgets.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I have been sitting on this floor kind of listening to the debate today, and I first of all would like to bring to the attention of this body a couple of things that I think are interesting, going on around the country, and particularly in my home State of Florida. This year they are facing deficits. They have some real critical issues going on there. It has been interesting, as I have read some of the comments over the last couple of weeks, that there are now those in the majority, in the Florida legislature, being Republicans, who are now concerned about a vote that they took last year, which was to do a tax cut.

Now they are in about a $1 billion deficit and cannot meet their own expectations. That is something we should be thinking about and heeding, which is I think what the Democrats are saying. We do not have to rush so quickly to do everything at the 1.6 or the $3 trillion that is looking like we are going to spend on tax cuts, but we could take it in a little bit smaller direction.

We can do what we have been asked to do in a bipartisan fashion, which is what was offered last year and continues to be offered, but has never been acted upon.

I also have heard on this floor from the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER), who I know has worked very long and hard on this piece of legislation, about the families in each one of our districts that will not be helped if we do not support this. Well, there are also the numbers that are not talked about, and that is of the people that will not be helped.

Mr. Speaker, in Florida, in Florida, there are 1 million children that will not receive this tax relief. That is a lot of them, I am sure. Many of those children are from families that might get tax relief, but I know how many children will Florida are not going to see any of these dollars. And I can say in Georgia, it is probably about 700,000 children that will not receive this tax relief, and in Maryland.

So let us be honest about this. Let us be fiscally responsible. Let us keep this country in the right direction.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from South Dakota (Mr. THUNE), who has been a real leader in the effort to eliminate the marriage tax penalty and help families by expanding tax credits.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER) in leading the effort in allowing the American families to keep more of what they earn.

The marriage penalty is not about politics. This is not a political issue. It is not about rich versus poor. The marriage penalty is about fairness to American families. There are 75,000 couples in South Dakota who pay higher taxes because they chose to get married. That is wrong.

I am going to give my colleagues a specific example in my State of how this works. I have people come into my office all the time and they bring in their tax forms. There was a young couple that came in in 1999, a two-earner couple, they have two children, they made $67,000 between them and they paid $1,953 more in Federal income taxes because they chose to get married. That is wrong.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is very important that we realize the impact this has, not just in the general term, and we hear the numbers thrown out, but in very specific terms, how it affects families across America. I talked to another lady in South Dakota who was talking about a young couple, they were not married, they had four kids... between them. She said, well, why do you guys not get married? She said, well, because today, when we get our taxes back, we get $4,000 back in our tax return. If we got married, we would only get $1,500 back.

Mr. Speaker, it is wrong for the Tax Code to affect people’s decisions; it is wrong to penalize married couples for choosing to get married. We need to do what is right for the American family; we need to do what is right for America. We need to make the Tax Code fair again to American married couples. We need to eliminate the marriage penalty.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this legislation today.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Missouri (Ms. McCARTHY).

Ms. McCARTHY of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my strong support for marriage penalty tax reform. Americans should not have to pay additional taxes simply because they have made the decision to get married. Unfortunately, the marriage penalty tax reform as proposed by the President provides little relief to families with incomes under $30,000; and much of the benefit that is designed for middle-income families does not even start to take effect until after 2004.

The Democratic alternative offers relief to all married couples with an income tax liability starting next year. The Democratic plan also protects transfers that are supposed to be made to the Social Security and Medicare trust funds.

Mr. Speaker, at the beginning of the week I was with the President in my district in Kansas City as he outlined the details of his tax proposal; and as I listened, I found myself thinking that most of the reasons in the small business facility where we gathered would benefit more from the provisions of the Democratic alternative tax plan, lowering payroll taxes and providing relief within the next year, rather than waiting for the complicated credit system in the President’s plan.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, a very important issue has been brought to the House floor this morning, and one that certainly has to be addressed by both Republicans and Democrats.

We do have an alternative, and we soon will be able to debate that, that not only provides a better way to take care of this very serious problem, but fits into an actual budget that no matter what the surplus actually turns out to be, we can have some assurances that this relief will be there.

What the majority is doing is not bringing up the full tax bill that they are talking about, because they know that the various parts of this tax bill just does not fit into the $1.6 trillion tax cut that the President wants. It is almost like trying to get a big size 12 foot into a size 6 shoe. It just does not fit.

If we take a look at the illustration that has been shown before on the House floor and think that this pie represents $1.6 trillion, $358 billion in rate reduction has already been spent. Today we are talking about $359 billion that is going to be in the marriage penalty and child credit bill. If we really think they are sincere about $1.6 trillion, then that just leaves $243 billion to be left for the rest of the tax cut. So we are not saying that we are closing out today, that this is it, that they have done what the compassionate, conservative President wants, because we know that we soon will be discussing how we can give estate tax relief.

Now, this is going to be really a giant-sized foot getting into a size 6 shoe when this comes to the floor next week. Because even though they may estimate that it will be $2 billion or $3 billion to take care of this problem, those that are looking for estate tax relief should really take a hard look and find out when is that relief expected. I suspect it will not be for a long, long time.

The Joint Committee on Taxation was asked to give an estimate as to how the long run would work that it would cost. They say $663 billion over 10 years. Now, the Republicans have a tendency that when joint committees agree with them, they wave it around; but when joint committees disagree with them, they attempt to ignore it. In any event, it is going to be really educational to see how they attempt to swallow the cost of estate tax repeal as opposed to what we have attempted to do in our bill, H.R. 1264, and that is to make certain that those that are wealthy, except for the 0.6 people who are extremely wealthy that should be paying some taxes on those estates.

But even if we assume that they can wedge in some kind of way relief for estate tax, we have so many other things that cannot fit into this. They talk about fixing the alternative minimum tax. Some of us that come from high-income States have been able to deduct this from our Federal taxes, and this will no longer be able to be done, and that costs us $292 billion if we tried to bring some equity to those people from high-income States.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker. I yield myself such time as I may consume to say, in recognition that we have a bipartisan proposal before us today, supported by Democrats and Republicans, that it is a great opportunity to work to eliminate the marriage tax penalty for 25 million couples and help millions of children throughout America by increasing and doubling the child tax credit.

Mr. Speaker. I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN), the most junior member of the Committee on Ways and Means, who, by the way, is a newlywed himself, as I am.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. First of all, I would like to congratulate the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER), my friend and colleague, for taking the lead on this issue, not only through this Congress, but through the past Congresses. The American people and all married people in this country owe him a debt of gratitude once this becomes law. So our thanks to the gentleman for his efforts.

Mr. Speaker, we are hearing all of these excuses on the floor of Congress today as to why we should not do this. What is the excuse? Well, I am hearing this excuse that it would be fiscally irresponsible for us to pass this legislation. Well, we cannot afford to spend this money on tax cuts. That is essentially the opposition that we are hearing from the other side.

Well, it really comes down to a philosophy, a difference of opinion. It is not the Federal Government’s money in the first place to afford to spend this money on tax cuts. This is a surplus which came to Washington because taxpayers overpaid their taxes. That is what a tax surplus is.

On top of it, it has fit very well within our budget, which pays down the debt, which stops the raid on Medicare and Social Security; and on top of that, as taxpayers continue to overpay their taxes, we are taking a look at the problem in the Tax Code, and we are looking at this great problem. Is it right for the American economy, for the Federal Government to tax people to maintain their married? No, it is not right. We should not be doing this. It is a horrible disincentive built into our Tax Code that penalizes the greatest institution of our culture: marriage.

That is why it is important that we vote for this bill. That is why it is important that since we tried to pass this before and it was vetoed by the past President, we have an amazing opportunity, on a bipartisan basis, with Democrats and Republicans joining together, as have the authors of this bill, to pass this bill, and to tell the American people, you are no longer going to be penalized for getting married.

I urge a yes vote.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I support changing the tax laws so that people will not pay higher income taxes just because they are married. And I also support increasing the child credit, to assist families who are struggling to make better lives for their children.

So, reluctantly, I am voting to pass this bill. I do so without illusions. I recognize that the bill is very far from perfect. I wish it were better. And it would have been better if a majority of our colleagues had joined me in voting for
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me today in voting to eliminate the so-called "marriage penalty" that makes many couples pay more in taxes than they would if they were not married. I have been fighting for marriage tax relief since I was elected 2 years ago. In the last Congress, I was proud to be one of the Democrats to cross party lines and vote for this measure when it passed the House of Representatives. Unfortunately, the bill was vetoed by President Clinton and did not become law.

Today we have another chance to correct this inequity in our Tax Code. Since President Bush is likely to sign this bill, we can now solve this problem. All of us know the problem. Under present tax law, a couple may pay more taxes than they would as two single people because the rate brackets and standard deductions for joint filers are not twice as large as those for single filers. According to a study by the Treasury Department, about 48 percent of married couples pay a marriage penalty.

When a couple chooses to get married, its almost as if the tax collector is joining them at the altar as they take their vows. Couples I hear from in my central New Jersey congressional district tell me all the time: The marriage penalty is unfair, and it should be corrected. This bill gets the job done. H.R. 6 provides true tax relief to New Jersey families. It increases the child tax credit and fixes the "marriage penalty" by: increasing the standard deduction, expanding the 15 percent tax bracket for low-income families and adjusting the alternative minimum tax (AMT).

It's a good proposal that all of us should support. Before voting for H.R. 6, I will first vote for the substitute amendment by Representative RANGEL, the ranking Democrat on the Ways and Means Committee. The Rangel substitute not only eliminates the marriage penalty, it makes bigger and quicker tax cuts than H.R. 6. It cuts everybody's taxes by lowering the tax rate on the first $20,000 of income (for a couple) from 15 percent to 12 percent. It expands the income eligible for the earned income tax credit (EITC) by $800, increases by $2,500 the income level at which the credit begins to phase out for a married couple with children, and simplifies the calculations to determine the earned income credit. It makes all of the tax cuts being considered by the House available to the people—especially in states with high income tax rates, like New Jersey—by adjusting the alternative minimum tax so it does not take away with one hand what these tax cuts purport to give with the other hand. The Rangel substitute makes more of these tax cuts take effect this year, to help people hurt by the slowing economy and to rebuild consumer and investor confidence. All in all, the Rangel substitute cuts taxes by $585 billion over 10 years, compared to H.R. 6's $399 billion.

Our tax code should not penalize marriage. We must come together in a bipartisan way to address this problem. I will continue to work in a bipartisan way to see that marriage tax relief becomes law.

Mrs. CAPITO. Mr. Speaker, most of the talk on the House floor has focused on how cutting taxes would stimulate the economy. . . . and that it would. But let's not lose focus of the other important issue here, the issue of tax fairness. The marriage tax, is most simply stated, unfair. A couple's wedding day should never be excuse for the government to siphon off more money from taxpayers. Our tax laws should never discourage couples from marrying by making it financially undesirable.

H.R. 6 is a step in the right direction on the road to tax fairness. The bill corrects the glaring inequity in our tax code that discriminates against married couples. In my home State of West Virginia, over 137,000 married couples will no longer be burdened by the marriage tax. Now, 137,000 couples may not sound like a lot of people to my colleague from California or Texas or Florida; but in a state where the total population is 1.8 million, that's a lot of people who will now see meaningful tax relief.

Married life and raising children are never easy tasks. They require constant work, stewardship, compromise, loyalty and responsibility. Today, Congress has an opportunity to make a little bit easier on married couples and parents. Today, we have the opportunity to remove needless financial burdens, allowing Americans to focus more on where our country's future lies: in our homes, with our children. Let's do the fair thing. Let's do the right thing and end this inequity and repeal the marriage tax penalty.

Ms. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, unfortunately I must oppose H.R. 6, the Marriage Tax Elimination Act of 2001. The marriage penalty is an unfair burden on many working families and I strongly support legislation to eliminate it. However, the Republican bill that is on the House floor today costs far too much and does far too little for Wisconsin families.

Half of the relief from the legislation would benefit tax filers that currently pay no marriage penalty. Also concerning is that families that need relief the most . . . families making less than $27,000 . . . would not benefit from the changes to the refundable child tax credit. The relief promised by the bill will not arrive for many Wisconsin families until 2006. Fully 70 percent of the bill would not take effect until after 2006. Finally, this bill will cost $400 billion over the next 10 years. Combined with the tax cut passed in the House earlier this month, the total cost for these tax cuts is already at $1.8 trillion, including interest. The overall size of these tax cuts jeopardizes the economic recovery and may result in the fiscal irresponsibility that I believe this substitute targets immediate tax relief to average working families and individuals in Wisconsin and the fiscal health of this nation.

I was absent from the House today due to a death in my family. However, had I been in Washington, I would have supported the Democratic substitute. I believe this substitute targets immediate tax relief to average working families and individuals in Wisconsin and the fiscal health of this nation.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today on behalf of the hard-working families in my Congressional district to support H.R. 6, the Marriage Penalty and Tax Relief Act. I am here today to ask for fairness and common sense to protect families and secure our children's future.

The Marriage Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act of 2001 (H.R. 6) will provide roughly $400 billion over 10 years in tax relief to families by increasing the child-care tax credit and fixing the marriage penalty tax. In addition, this legislation also increases the standard deduction, expands the 15 percent tax bracket, doubles the earned income tax credit for low-income families and adjusts the alternative minimum tax.

Twenty-five million couples pay the marriage tax penalty each year to the tune of $1,400, including over 60,000 couples in my congressional district alone. It is unfair that married couples should shoulder this burden, simply because they chose to marry. This legislation is critical to simplifying the tax code more simple, and making it more fair.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H.R. 6 and finally ending the marriage tax penalty. I am also pleased that the House will continue its work on reviewing President Bush's tax plans when we consider the repeal of the estate tax in the coming week.

Mr. CRENSHAW. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this important legislation to repeal the marriage penalty and provide greater relief through the child tax credit. And, I want to thank my friend from Illinois, JERRY WELLER, for holding steadfast to this legislation, and Speaker HASTERT for standing firmly on the side of the American family by bringing this bill to the floor today.

As I travel around Florida's fourth district, I speak to a lot of couples who are concerned about how much they pay in taxes, in particular for the unfair marriage penalty. In fact, nearly 57,000 couples in my district pay an average of $1,400 more per year than if they were single, simply because they chose to marry.

A lot of attention is paid to the young couples—just married and trying to start a family—and the hardship they suffer as a result of the marriage penalty. But, I met a wonderful couple in my district last year, a widow and widower, both in their sixties, that had made a conscious decision not to marry because they were very aware of the effect it would have on their limited retirement incomes. It's just common sense to let these people marry without concern about how their wallets would be impacted.

These couples were so pleased when Congress passed relief for married couples. And, they were outraged when President Clinton vetoed this fair legislation. That's why I am proud to be an original cosponsor of H.R. 6, which will finally give these married couples the relief they deserve. This bill not only puts married couples back on equal footing with single taxpayers by expanding the 15 percent tax bracket and doubling the standard deduction, but also doubles the child tax credit. The bill helps all families keep a little bit more of their hard-earned money in their households.

With the tax cuts in other programs that are letting the average family of four keep $1,600 to pay their own bills and debts, save for a rainy day, or send their kids to the little league, ballet lessons, and tutors that they want to be able to afford. It seems the least we can do is let these families keep the dollars they earn. They've done with a little less when dollars were short in their households, due in part to the fact that they overpaid in taxes to the government. It's time we put America's families first and pay back some of the money these families have overpaid to the government.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to dispel any notion that the tax bill before us is here to help families. The total sum of the tax package is so large—$2.5 trillion and counting—that it cuts into vital spending programs that benefit families across the Nation.

Today's bill is one more tax bill to make the American public believe that this Congress is going to right the wrongs of the Tax Code and spur the economy out of a recession, while simultaneously maintaining fiscal discipline and addressing the vital spending needs of our Nation. This tax bill is nothing more than an excuse for why Congress will be forced to privatize Social Security and Medicare when the baby boomers begin to retire, why we can't give a worthwhile Medicare prescription drug benefit to our seniors today; and why we need to cut vital child care programs.

The tax cut before us today clearly demonstrates a lack of commitment to our children when it forces cuts in other programs that directly help children. Republicans reduce funds for the Child Care Development Block Grant (CCDBG) by $200 million in 2002 and freeze funds after 2002 in order to pay for their tax package. The child care provided through the CCDBG is a critical component to assist poor families’ move from welfare to work. At the moment, the block grant only has enough money to serve 12 percent of the eligible children. We need more funding in this program, not less. As Secretary of HHS Tommy Thompson said, "welfare reform does not come cheap.''

The Republicans let Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Supplemental Grants expire in 2001. Even worse, the Republican budget encourages States to divert the remaining Federal funds to pay for State income tax credits for charitable contributions. These are not income safety nets but are welfare-to-work services. The Democrats' tax package is moderate in cost, allowing an increase to at least $2 billion in 2002 in title XX Social Services Block Grant Funding.

Families who earn less than $27,000 will not see any of the benefit from the promised increase in the child tax credit. Furthermore, many families who earn more than $27,000 may not see a benefit in the child tax credit. In fact, 31.2 million taxpayers (24 percent of taxpayers) will get no income tax cut from the GOP tax plan. The bill promises a $1,000 family credit but nobody is honest enough to tell the American people that many families won't see the child credit doubled because the child will be over 16 years old when the credit takes effect in 2006. Families with children over the age of 16 adjusting and simplifying an additional $500 but won't actually see it unless they have additional children.

Let's be honest about the bill before us—it will not affect the economy anytime soon. Most of the provisions in this bill don’t take effect until 2006 and won’t make full effect until 2009. The U.S. economy is facing a recession today. That being the case, why are we offering tax breaks 5, and even 8 years from now? It’s quite obvious. The GOP tax plan is too expensive to fit it in today's budget. My Republican colleagues have been tasked with fitting a size 12 foot into a size 6 shoe.

This legislation is one of several that will be combined to create excessive tax cuts that will provide a disproportionate amount of benefits to the wealthiest in our society. Later today, the Ways and Means Committee will mark up a bill to repeal the estate tax that is clearly designed to help the most affluent few in the United States.

The Rangel substitute bill on the floor today is the responsible choice for family tax relief. The bill is honest, fair, fiscally responsible, and encourages economic prosperity. The Rangel substitute spends a fraction of the comprehensive Bush tax proposal, leaving room to pay down the debt and for other critical spending needs such as education and a Medicare prescription drug benefit. A lower national debt means lower interest costs leaving us in better fiscal shape to meet the demands of a retiring baby boom generation. The Rangel substitute benefits all families by giving all families a rate reduction; doubling the standard deduction for married couples to twice that of single individuals; and eliminating the earnings test for earned income credit so lower-income families will see tax relief. Finally, the substitute fixes the alternative minimum tax (AMT) so when it appears that a family will receive tax relief, they won't be denied the relief due to the AMT.

I urge my colleagues to vote for the equitable and responsible Rangel substitute and oppose the "voodoo" economics tax plan before us. It didn't work in the 80's and it won't work in the new millennium.

Mr. RAMSTAD. Mr. Speaker, I'd like to start by thanking Chairman Thompson for moving the next installment of President Bush's tax relief plan so quickly.

Today, we are helping to fulfill a promise made to the American people and delivering $400 billion in relief to families suffering the marriage penalty and families struggling to raise children.

We need to provide urgent relief to families suffering from the unfair marriage tax penalty. About 25 million married couples currently pay an average of $1,400 more in taxes than they would as single taxpayers. In my own congressional district alone, 80,000 married couples pay higher taxes simply because they are married. That is wrong.

Consider what $1,400 a year would mean to a family struggling to make car or mortgage payments, to buy groceries and clothes for their kids, or to save for their child's college education. If opponents of this measure don't believe marriage penalty tax relief will make a real difference in the lives of real families, then frankly—they are severely out of touch.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support real relief for real families, right now. Support this important measure today and put money back in the pockets of American families.

Mr. OTTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 6, the "Marriage Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act of 2001." With this important legislation today we are fulfilling our pledge to finally begin easing the tax burden on every American family. H.R. 6 will eliminate the marriage penalty and raise the child tax credit. This bill is an essential part of restoring fairness to our tax system and helping Idaho families.

Many married couples today have to pay a tax penalty of more than $1,400 per year. For young people on limited incomes, this is often an insurmountable barrier to marriage. The Marriage Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act will increase the deduction for a jointly filed return to twice the level of a single deduction. Millions of people who are considering marriage will no longer have to worry about paying the taxman on their wedding day.

This bill also reaffirms our commitment to families with children. We will double the child tax credit from $500 to $1,000. America's children deserve to have their parent's income counted in determining their welfare, not stolen by the government and grudgingly returned. This bill will give the families of more than 79,000 children in Idaho's first district the money they need to meet the rising costs of raising a family in this community.

The Marriage Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act is an important and needed first step. It will lift children out of poverty, encourage family formation, and stimulate our economy. I urge this house to send the surplus home to America's families, and pass H.R. 6.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in support of H.R. 6, the Marriage Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act of 2001. H.R. 6 will provide $399 billion in tax relief over the next 10 years for almost 50 million American families. H.R. 6 ensures the child tax credit from $500 to $600 this year and will increase it to $1,000 over the next 5 years.

The Marriage Penalty Tax is inherently unfair. The Federal Government should not force
Mr. Speaker, I want the 72,000 married couples in my District alone to know that they will no longer be forced to pay more taxes. I can think of no more unfair and ridiculous part of the current Tax Code than the marriage tax penalty.

As I drive through pockets of our district where both partners work by driving them into a higher tax bracket. The marriage penalty taxes the income of the second wage earner at a much higher rate. It would double the tax burden of a family who has two children and increase the current $500 per child tax credit to $1,000 per child. There- fore, a family who has two children and income down to $27,000 would get no tax relief from the child credit at all.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to do what is right for the American people and support marriage tax penalty relief offered by Representative Rangel. This substitute provides genuine relief for citizens who are truly penalized by the current tax structure. I know this kind of tax relief is supported by many of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, and I was sincerely looking forward to have the opportunity to vote today on a bipartisan tax relief bill. But given the backwarding of tax relief in H.R. 6, I urge my colleagues to do what is right for the American people and support marriage tax penalty relief offered by Representative Rangel.
earn. It is expensive raising children today. Unfortunately, the child deduction in the tax code has not kept pace with inflation. Today, this deduction amounts to less than half of what it would be if it had kept pace with inflation since the 1950s. We begin to further address this erosion, by doubling the per child tax credit from $500 to $1,000. This will provide tax relief to the parents of 84,000 children in my Congressional District. That represents over 66,000 couples. It is troublesome glitches such as this that confuse taxpayers— that make them question whether the federal government is really there to help them, or whether it merely exists to exert its power in deterministic and arbitrary ways. Mr. Speaker, I ask you, if I cannot afford to fix problems such as this when we are enjoying surpluses, when can we do it? When can we take the necessary steps to make our tax code fairer, to do away with the unintended consequences of past actions? I say that we can do it now.

H.R. 6 is a clear reflection of what our priorities should be. We should encourage couples however we can. We should send the message that staying at home to raise your children has real value. We should say that we realize staying married is not an easy task. There are pressures and difficulties which too frequently rend asunder what God has joined—and most often these pressures are financial. We should wisely use the power entrusted to us by the American people to reduce those pressures that cause many families to break apart. We should use that power to give them more of their own money to help raise their children. Mr. Speaker, how do we have any hope of stemming the flow of divorce, broken homes, and childhood violence if we do not support marriage and strong families at every turn?

This bill will fix the marriage penalty. It will help more couples keep one spouse at home to help raise the children if they choose to do so. It will help with the expenses of raising a family by doubling the child tax credit to $1,000 per child. In the 11th District alone, that will help the parents of over 120,000 children buy clothes for school, buy the gasoline to get there, pay the heating bill to keep them warm, and buy the food to make them strong. It will send a message to couples, young, and old, that we support them. Mr. Speaker, it is time to divorce ourselves from this unfair tax. I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak in support of H.R. 6 and against an unfair tax. The tax code is meant to encourage marriage and provide a decent tax burden on couples of equal income simply because one of those couples chose to get married and begin a life together.

Is it fair enough that we tax their wages, their automobile, their gasoline and nearly everything else they will purchase or acquire? Must we also ask couples to write a check simply because they say, “I do” to each other? This tax is bad public policy and I am proud to be an original cosponsor of the bill that will once and for all eliminate the marriage penalty tax. This bill not only benefits married couples; it benefits families with children as well. H.R. 6 doubles the child tax credit from $500 to $1,000 and expands the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC), allowing families in Connecticut’s Second District to keep more of their hard-earned income. That’s more money for a mortgage payment, a new home computer, an electric bill or shoes and clothing. When I came to Congress, I pledged to work toward the elimination of the marriage penalty tax. I made a promise. And I am proud to join my colleagues in keeping this promise and providing a long overdue element of fairness to the way that our nation taxes married families.

The institution of marriage represents important values to our culture. We need to support our values, not tax them. It’s time to end this tax and support America’s families.

Mr. COYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in reluctant opposition to this legislation. I have consistently supported efforts to fix the marriage penalty, and I support increasing the size of the child tax credit as well. In the past, I have cosponsored legislation to fix the marriage penalty, and I voted in favor of the 1997 legislation which created the child tax credit. But I cannot support this legislation today.

The concerns that I have about this legislation are threefold.

First, I am disturbed that a bill that will cost an estimated $30,000 per year for every little or nothing— especially in the short term—to help many low- and moderate-income couples. While the bill would provide partial refundability for the child tax credit—promising aid to lower-income families—the provision’s interaction with the earned income tax credit would provide no benefit to families with, for example, two children until their income exceeds $27,000. And while the bill would provide marriage penalty relief to families that don’t itemize their deductions—predominantly low- and moderate-income families—provision does not fully phase in until 2004 and is not fully phased in until 2009.

Second, I am concerned that this bill is only one part of a series of tax cuts that, when taken as a whole, will seriously reduce the federal government’s ability to carry out its existing obligations and address the pressing problems that confront our country—obligations like keeping Social Security and Medicare solvent and problems like improving education, providing affordable health insurance for the uninsured, and ensuring that prescription drug prices are affordable for all Americans. I consider the piecemeal consideration of this series of tax cuts to be a disingenuous attempt to conceal the true size of the total package—and to hide the important trade-offs implicit in enacting the President’s package of tax cuts and addressing other federal priorities like improving education, ensuring all Americans a voice in the political process, and caring for our senior citizens. Moreover, the fact that so many of these tax cuts are phased in over the next 10 years tends to conceal their true cost—which will only be evident ten years from now. At that point, the government is projected—even under the most optimistic estimates—to begin running deficits again. And lest anyone paint those deficits as the result of an irresponsible, freespending Congress, I should note that those deficits will be produced almost exclusively by a doubling in Social Security and Medicare caseloads. I believe we should use most of any anticipated surpluses to prepare for that imminent challenge.

Finally, I am puzzled by the President’s characterization of his $1.6 trillion package of tax cuts as essential for jump-starting the slowing national economy. Most of the $1.35 trillion in tax relief considered so far would not be phased in until after 2006. The tax relief provided by this bill in 2001 is miniscule. I don’t consider that timely intervention in terms of getting the economy back on track this year.

Consequently, I must oppose this legislation, and I will support a smaller, more responsible package of tax cuts that provide more of their tax relief to low- and moderate-income families. I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Ms. HOOLEY. Mr. Speaker, ever since coming here to Congress, enacting common-sense tax relief for the people I represent back in Oregon has been one of my biggest priorities. So, it should hardly be surprising that I am going to vote for H.R. 6 today—just as I voted for it last year—and just as I’ll continue to vote for any bill that effectively ends the marriage penalty.

The sole purpose of this bill is to ease the federal income tax burden on married couples and their home families. To end the marriage penalty, easing this burden, we’re making sure that families will have more money to save up for a mortgage down payment or additional income to set aside for college expenses.

I do want to talk about a troubling aspect of our tax code that is going to have to be addressed sooner rather than later, and that’s reforming the alternative minimum tax, or AMT. Originally adopted in 1969 to ensure the wealthy pay their fair share of taxes, the AMT hasn’t been indexed for inflation since the early 1990s. And as incomes and deductions have risen in recent years, more and more families are more often than not receiving a love letter from the IRS after they’ve filed their returns notifying them that they owe the AMT.

Now H.R. 6 does include some AMT relief—specifically, it wouldn’t cancel out the gains of the bill for married couples. But the problem is that the minimum tax requires a different set of calculations and disallows many deductions—including deductions for state and local taxes paid. For Oregonians, who pay some of the highest income taxes in the nation, that means much more money. If the next decade are going to receive a notice from the IRS saying that they own money—and not receive much of the relief we’re promising to give them right now.
March 29, 2001

That’s a big problem for me, and it’s going to be a big problem for tens of millions of middle class Americans. For example, as of 2006, a family of four in Texas with a combined income of $72,747 will be liable for the AMT—while the same size family in Texas, which has no income tax, will only be liable if their income exceeds $146,307.

So while I am in favor of reforming the marriage penalty here today, I strongly urge my colleagues to keep the AMT in mind when or if we conference this legislation with the Senate. I understand the Senate Finance Committee chairman has indicated that he intends to include comprehensive AMT adjustments in the tax reform legislation his Committee will write. We can work together to ensure our tax code is a fair one.

Mr. BERREuter, Mr. Speaker, this Member rises today to express his support for H.R. 6, the Marriage Tax Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act, of which I am an original cosponsor. This bill will have a positive effect, in particular, on middle- and lower-income married couples as H.R. 6 not only provides tax relief to married couples, but also expands the per-child tax credit.

This tax bill is, to the degree that both the main sponsor of the marriage tax penalty relief portions of H.R. 6, the distinguished gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER) and the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) for their instrumental role in bringing H.R. 6 to the House Floor. This Member appreciates the efforts of these distinguished colleagues as this Member has been an enthusiastic and active proponent of reducing and eliminating the marriage tax penalty as soon as possible.

While there are many reasons to support the marriage tax penalty relief provisions of H.R. 6, this Member will specifically address the following two reasons.

First, H.R. 6 takes a significant step toward eliminating the marriage tax penalty in the Internal Revenue Code, as H.R. 6 would double the standard deduction, expand the 15 percent bracket so that it is equal to twice that of singles and at the same time this bill would hold down costs by phasing in that change between 2004 and 2009, and provide relief from the alternative minimum tax so that a married couple who gets the tax cut would not be hit subsequently with a tax increase.

Second, H.R. 6 takes a step toward reaching the overall goal that the Federal income tax code should be marriage neutral. Currently, married couples pay more for each dollar of federal income tax than they would as two unmarried singles. Generally, the more evenly divided the earned income of the two spouses, the more likely they are to have a structural marriage tax penalty. Hence, married couples where each spouse earns approximately 50% of the total earned income have the largest marriage tax penalties. However, the Internal Revenue Code should not be a consideration when individuals discuss their future marital status. The goal for marriage penalty tax relief is that the individual income tax code should not influence the choice of individuals with regard to their marital status—that is a guiding principle for this Member in voting for marriage tax penalty relief.

Additionally, and quite importantly, H.R. 6 provides additional family tax relief by expanding the per-child tax credit. Specifically, H.R. 6 would double the child tax credit to $1,000 per child under age 17 by 2006. The tax credit would be raised from $500 to $600 effective this year, which would give families a quick tax break in the current 2001 tax year (i.e., retroactive increase to January 1, 2001). Also, H.R. 6 would retain the current income eligibility limits for the child tax credit. This Member supports the expansion of the child tax credit to give more relief to lower-income couples and to those couples with a stay-at-home spouse. Finally, as in current law, the measure would continue to allow the child tax credit to be refundable to families with three or more children that receive the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC).

Therefore, for these reasons, and many others, this Member urges his colleagues to support the Marriage Tax Penalty and Family Tax Relief Act.

Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, every year more than 58,000 couples in Michigan’s eighth district pay the federal government’s penalty for saying “I do.” Until we rescind the marriage penalty, families across the state, and the nation and the country will continue to pay more in taxes than they should. The elimination of the marriage penalty will allow hard-working families to keep more of their own money for their needs.

The average penalty paid by Michigan families is $1,400 every year. This is real money that can make a real difference in the lives of working, two-income families. Let me share with you a few examples of what $1,400 means to families in Michigan.

Seventeen hours of college credit at Lansing Community College, nearly 10 months of electrical utility bills; 100 packages of size 2 Huggies Diapers; 3 months of child care; a well-deserved family summer vacation.

Today’s vote reduces the burden on two-income families that discourages marriage and the family found in the federal tax code. I strongly support the efforts to remove this penalty and urge adoption of the Marriage Penalty and Tax Relief Act.

Mr. BLUMENAUER, Mr. Speaker, today, Congress debated further tax cuts under the guise of fixing the so-called “marriage penalty.” Ultimately, like yesterday’s discussions about the budget, today’s debate is about priorities: more tax benefits for those who need help the least, versus tax relief for all working Americans and fixing serious flaws in our tax system.

Only a small portion of the legislation proposed today would go to taxpayers that actually pay the “marriage penalty.” It does not address the growing problem posed by the alternative minimum tax (AMT). The AMT was passed to ensure the wealthy did not avoid paying their fair share of taxes. According to the Wall Street Journal, if the Bush proposal is fully implemented, an Oregon family of four with an income of $72,747 will be forced to pay $1,000 in taxes unless you assume that such a family is not wealthy. If we are to ensure that all Americans are able to enjoy tax relief, no matter what bill we pass, Congress must address the alternative minimum tax.

The Republican proposal puts the financial health of our country at-risk. Passing tax cuts based on dubious surplus estimates, threatening families’ fiscal health by sending us back into the era of big deficits.

The Democratic alternative fixes the “marriage penalty” and provides immediate rate reductions in order to stimulate our economy. It also addresses the AMT. The cost of the Democratic proposal is consistent with our goals of protecting the nation’s fiscal health. Additionally, the Democratic alternative provides relief to low income families whose tax penalty is the payroll tax. I support this alternative.

I remain convinced that Congress can work together to pass reasonable tax reform without putting our fiscal health at risk. Hopefully the American public will be heard during the next phase of the legislative process.

Mr. SANDLIN, Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the first vote I made as a Member of this body—it is also one of my proudest. By doubling the child credit, Congress is building on the sound economic policy of the previous administration. Along with the earned income tax credit (EITC), the child tax credit is one of the best tools working families have to lower their tax burden. Designed for working and middle class families, the child credit is the centerpiece in our efforts to eliminate the marriage penalty.

I do have only one disagreement with today’s effort to double the child tax credit—it is not phased-in fast enough. Although the credit will double, the phase-in is over too long a period—5 years. I believe the phase-in should be faster, particularly given indications that our
The economy is slowing. Enacting this provision over the next 2 years, rather than the proposed 3 years, would provide a quicker stimulus and greater infusion of tax dollars back in the pockets of taxpayers. Therefore, I also support legislation that would instruct Congress to provide more of the proposed tax benefits during this fiscal year. I support long-term tax relief, but it is a mistake to let Congress pass on only long-term tax measures when the need for economic stimulus is urgent. Congress will have the opportunity to address this concern throughout the tax-writing process, and I sincerely hope, that as with today's debate, a bipartisan agreement can be reached to provide substantial tax relief this year.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). All time for general debate has expired.

AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE OFFERED BY MR. RANGEL

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will designate the amendment in the nature of a substitute as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. RANGEL:

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

SEC. 101. INDIVIDUAL INCOME TAX RATE REDUCTIONS

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(1) ½ the amount otherwise applicable under subparagraph (A) in the case of taxable years beginning during 2001, and

"(2) the amount otherwise applicable under subparagraph (A) in the case of taxable years beginning during 2002.

"(3) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of any taxable year beginning in a calendar year after 2003, the amount under paragraph (2) shall be increased by an amount equal to—

"(i) such dollar amount, multiplied by

"(ii) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under subsection (f)(3) for the calendar year in which the taxable year begins, determined by substituting 'calendar year 2002' for 'calendar year 1992' in subparagraph (B) thereof.

"(B) ROUNDING RULES.—If any amount after adjustment under subparagraph (A) is not a multiple of $50, such amount shall be rounded to the next lowest multiple of $50.

"(4) ADJUSTMENT OF TABLES.—The Secretary shall adjust the tables prescribed under subsection (f) carry out this subsection.

(b) ADJUSTMENT IN COMPUTATION OF ALTERNATIVE MINIMUM TAX.—Paragraph (2) of section 50A is amended to read as follows:

"(2) the sum of—

"(A) the regular tax for the taxable year, plus

"(B) in the case of an individual, 3 percent of so much of the individual's taxable income for the taxable year as is taxed at 12 percent.

(c) REPEAL OF REDUCIBLE REFUNDABLE TAX CREDITS.—

(1) Subsection (d) of section 24 is amended by striking paragraph (2) and redesignating paragraph (3) as paragraph (2).

(2) Section 32 is amended by striking subsection (h).

(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Subclause (II) of section 1(g)(7)(B)(ii) is amended by striking "15 percent" and inserting "12 percent".

(e) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

(f) PROTECTION OF SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICAID.—The amount of any tax refundable credit allowed under section 32, 32A, or 32B shall be determined as if this Act had not been enacted.

SEC. 102. MODIFICATIONS TO EARNED INCOME TAX CREDIT.

(a) INCREASES IN PERCENTAGES AND AMOUNTS USED TO DETERMINE CREDIT.—:

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (b) of section 32 is amended to read as follows:

"(b) PERCENTAGES AND AMOUNTS.—

"(1) PERCENTAGE.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the initial phaseout percentage, and the final phaseout percentage shall be determined as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Income Brackets</th>
<th>Initial Phaseout Percentage</th>
<th>Final Phaseout Percentage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>0-7,000</td>
<td>10%</td>
<td>15%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7,001-16,000</td>
<td>15%</td>
<td>20%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>16,001-23,000</td>
<td>20%</td>
<td>25%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>23,001-31,000</td>
<td>25%</td>
<td>30%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>31,001-38,000</td>
<td>30%</td>
<td>35%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>38,001-41,000</td>
<td>35%</td>
<td>40%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Over 41,000</td>
<td>40%</td>
<td>41%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(b) AMOUNTS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The earned income credit shall be increased by the amount of the increase in the initial phaseout amount, plus

"(B) PHASEOUT.—In the case of an individual with:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Number of Qualifying Children</th>
<th>Earned Income</th>
<th>Initial Phaseout Amount</th>
<th>Final Phaseout Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>0</td>
<td>$6,550</td>
<td>$4,050</td>
<td>$6,650</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>$13,100</td>
<td>$10,600</td>
<td>$13,700</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2</td>
<td>$19,650</td>
<td>$17,150</td>
<td>$19,750</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>$26,200</td>
<td>$23,600</td>
<td>$26,800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>$32,750</td>
<td>$29,150</td>
<td>$32,950</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In the case of a joint return where there is at least 1 qualifying child, the initial phaseout amount shall be $2,500 greater than the amount otherwise applicable under the preceding sentence.

(c) PHASEOUT AMOUNT.—The final phaseout amount is $26,000 ($28,500 in the case of a joint return).

(d) MODIFICATION OF COMPUTATION OF PROTECTION.—Paragraph (2) of section 32(a) is amended to read as follows:

"(2) PHASEOUT OF CREDIT.—The amount of the credit allowable to a taxpayer under paragraph (2) shall be reduced (but not below zero) by the sum of—

"(A) the initial phaseout percentage of so much of the total income (or, if greater, the earned income) of the taxpayer for the taxable year as exceeds the initial phaseout amount but does not exceed the final phaseout amount, plus

"(B) the final phaseout percentage of so much of the total income (or, if greater, the earned income) of the taxpayer for the taxable year as exceeds the final phaseout amount.

(e) TOTAL INCOME.—Paragraph (5) of section 32(c) is amended to read as follows:

"(5) TOTAL INCOME.—The term 'total income' means adjusted gross income determined without regard to—

"(A) the deductions referred to in paragraphs (6), (7), (9), (10), (15), (16), and (17) of section 62(a),

"(B) the deduction allowed by section 162(d),

"(C) the deduction allowed by section 164(f),

"(D) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Subsection (j) of section 32 is amended to read as follows:

"(j) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case of any taxable year beginning after 2002, each of the dollar amounts in subsection (b)(2) shall be increased by an amount equal to—

"(A) such dollar amount multiplied by

"(B) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section 1(f)(3), for the calendar year in which the taxable year begins, determined by substituting 'calendar year 2001' for 'calendar year 1992' in subparagraph (B) thereof.

"(2) ROUNDING.—If any dollar amount, after being increased under paragraph (1), is not a multiple of $10, such dollar amount shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $10.

(f) Subparagraph (C) of section 32(c)(1) is amended by striking "modified adjusted gross income" and inserting "total income".

(g) Paragraph (2) of section 32(f) is amended to read as follows:

"(2) REQUIREMENTS FOR TABLES.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The provisions of subsection (a)(1) and the provisions of subsection (a)(2) shall be reflected in separate tables prescribed under paragraph (1).

"(B) SUBSECTION (a)(1) TABLE.—The tables prescribed under paragraph (1) to reflect the provisions of subsection (a)(1) shall have income brackets of not greater than $50 each for earned income between $0 and the earned income amount.

"(C) SUBSECTION (a)(2) TABLE.—The tables prescribed under paragraph (1) to reflect the provisions of subsection (a)(2) shall have income brackets of not greater than $50 each for total income (or the cost-of-living adjustment, if greater) of the earned income above the initial phaseout threshold."
(b) REPEAL OF DENIAL OF CREDIT WHERE INVESTMENT INTEREST.—Section 32 is amended by striking subparagraphs (A)(i) and (B).

(c) EARNED INCOME TO INCLUDE ONLY AMOUNTS INCLUDIBLE IN GROSS INCOME.—

(1) DETERMINATION OF AMOUNT.—Subparagraph (A)(i) (defining earned income) is amended by inserting “but only if such amounts are includible in gross income for the taxable year” after “who qualifies”.

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 32(c)(2)(B) is amended by striking “and” at the close of the clause (iv), by striking the period at the end of such clause and inserting “and”, and by adding at the end the following new clause:

“(vi) the requirement under subparagraph (A)(i) that an amount be includible in gross income shall not apply if such amount is exempt from tax under section 7873 or is derived directly from restricted and allotted land under the Act of February 8, 1887 (commonly known as the Indian General Allotment Act) (25 U.S.C. 331 et seq.) or from land held under Acts or treaties containing an exception or provision similar to the Indian General Allotment Act.”

(d) MODIFICATION OF JOINT RETURN REQUIREMENT.—Subsection (d) of section 32 is amended by striking “and” and inserting “; or”.

(2) INCREASE ALLOWED AS DEDUCTION IN DEATH.—Subparagraph (A) of section 63(c)(4) is amended by adding at the end of such subparagraph the following new clause:

“and by inserting after subparagraph (A) and inserting ‘and’, but only if such amounts are includible in gross income for the taxable year’.”

(e) EXPANSION OF MATHEMATICAL ERRORS AUTHORIZED.—Subparagraph (2) of section 63(c)(4) is amended by striking “and” at the end of subparagraph (K), by striking the period at the end of such subparagraph (L) and inserting “; and”, and by inserting after subparagraph (L) the following new subparagraph:

“(M) the entry on the return claiming the credit under section 32 with respect to a child if, according to the Federal Case Registry (8) of section 56(b)(1) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: ‘The preceding sentence shall not apply to the amount which would be such deduction but for the amendment made by section 21(a)(1) of Act of 2001.

(3) TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.—

(A) Paragraph (B) of section 1(f)(6) is amended by striking “(other than with)” and all that follows through “shall be applied” and inserting “(other than with respect to sections 63(c)(4) and 151(d)(4)(A) shall be applied”.

(B) Paragraph (4) of section 63(c) is amended by adding at the end the following flush sentence: ‘The preceding sentence shall not apply to the amount referred to in paragraph (2)(A).’.”

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

SECOND REPORT ON HOUSE RESOLUTION 104, THE JUDICIAL PAYMENT BILL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California (Mr. Rangel) has the floor.

Mr. Rangel. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this is a very serious time in our Nation’s economic history, because for the first time in many, many years, we expect to have a surplus; but we do not know the exact amount that surplus is going to be. Unfortunately, the Republicans have decided that they are going to have tax reductions in the budget based on the fact they expect $3.6 trillion. We all know from the Congressional Budget Office that the figures that we are relying on, 50 percent of the time they are wrong, and the question is, what happens if they are wrong this time? We hope that they will not be.

It seems as though, if this tax cut is locked into place and the surplus is not there, then the funds will not be there for Social Security, for Medicare, for prescription drugs relief, for education where the President wants to leave no child behind; and we were hoping that if we could find some kind of a trigger mechanism or some way to have a tax cut that we know that we can afford this year, or maybe for the next 5 years and then after that, take a look and see where we are in terms of our economy, where are we in terms of the programs, then not just Democrats, but even this compassionate Republican President would want to see supported.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Hastings of Washington). Does the gentleman from California (Mr. Thomas) seek the time in opposition?

Mr. Thomas. I do, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California (Mr. Thomas) is recognized for 30 minutes.

Mr. Thomas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

about our men and women in the military, improving the quality of their lives, the question has to be: Where will the money come from?

Of course, if we find out that we do not have the funds, there are only two things that we can do: ask for another substantial tax increase, or cut the programs, the funding for the programs.

We do know that there are many people on the other side of the aisle that believe the Social Security System never should have been created, that Medicare is not working, that the best that we should do for education is to give them a voucher.

We know that health care to some people, they believe that there should not be a Patients’ Bill of Rights. But by the same token, most Americans disagree with that theory, and we should not use reduction of taxes and an increase in spending for defense as an excuse to wipe out domestic spending.

So, Mr. Speaker, it might be that the best thing that we should be thinking about doing is instructing the Congress or the conference to recommit this bill, and to have them come back to see whether we can do something right now to spur the economy; whether we can get $60 billion out there in the taxpayers’ hands; whether we can really stimulate the economy now, instead of just letting the rich get richer 5 years from now.

We know that this tax cut has nothing to do with the stimulation of the economy, because the President thought about it in the good years. Mr. Clinton and Mr. Gore had a good economy going. Now that we are said and done, the economy now, now that it is sputtering, now that it is looking like it needs a shot in the arm, maybe what we ought to do, not as Republicans and Democrats, but as Members of the House of Representatives, is to set aside this bill and tell the conference, let us get something out to the taxpayers this year. Let us get it to the hard-working low-income people, the moderate-income people, and make certain that there is a vehicle out there that we can use.

I am certain that staff will have prepared at the end of this debate a vehicle that we can join together and use to get that money out there, stimulate the economy now, and then we can take a deep breath and take a look and see what an equitable tax cut might be.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California (Mr. Hastings of Washington). Does the gentleman from California (Mr. Thomas) seek the time in opposition?
Mr. Speaker, I guess I am just a little confused. My understanding is that the substitute that has been offered to this particular bill, H.R. 6, is identical to the substitute that was offered to the bill on marginal rate reductions, H.R. 3, just a short time ago.

But in listening carefully to my friend and colleague, the gentleman from New York, Mr. Rangel, and his arguments, it sounded to me as if he really wanted a tax package; not the one offered as a substitute, but one that was, in fact, a stimulus for the economy.

It seems to me that if he would turn into paper the words that he offered, he would not have presented exactly the same substitute that had been presented 1½ weeks and 2 weeks ago; that, in fact, if he does want something that he really wanted a tax package; not the one offered as a substitute, but one that is, in fact, a stimulus for the economy.

At some point we begin to wonder whether that argument is rhetoric, just as the Lexus muffler is no longer in front of us. It seems as though it is an argument that he had on his desk. But in listening carefully to my friend, the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. Roemer, I am not sure whether that argument is rhetoric, just as the Lexus muffler is no longer in front of us. It seems as though it is an argument that he had on his desk. But I think if it is the argument of the day, they would offer a substitute to the motion in front of us that at least conformed to the argument of the day.

But, in fact, we have in front of us that same old substitute, that same old substitute that is less generous.

The Democrats have talked about the various pieces that we have been passing. In fact, if we add them up, it is pretty obvious that the tax package that is contained in the budget that was passed yesterday is clearly more generous than what the Democrats are offering. In fact, in this substitute there really is not even any child credit, which is a major portion of the bill we are discussing and supports the President’s proposal of doubling it from $500 to $1,000. And we make retroactive in this bill the first $100 increase, from $500 to $600, to occur in this year, the 2001 tax year.

Some of our friends on the other side are continuing to argue that we do not have a budget in place. We, in fact, passed a budget. All the pieces fit. That argument is no longer relevant, unless, of course, they want to argue that it is not a budget yet until the House and Senate sit down and agree. Then Members may want to move to the argument that the ink on the paper of the agreement is not yet dry. Then they may want to offer another argument.

The fact of the matter is they will offer argument after argument. That budget that was passed yesterday addresses the President’s concerns about Social Security, talks about modernizing Medicare, provides dollars for modernizing Medicare with prescription drugs. And please, President Bush has already established himself as the education President. His bold and far-reaching proposals of placing more dollars in the hands of teachers and parents to make sure that no child will be left behind clearly indicates that education is on the front burner of this President.

So I guess if we are going to argue against what is offered here today, a final adjustment on the marriage penalty contained in the Tax Code and a doubling of the credit available to hard-working taxpayers with children, that at the very least, if we are going to make arguments against the bill and offer substitutes, what we ought to do is have the arguments and the substitutes match.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Rangel. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan, Mr. Levin, a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Levin. Mr. Speaker, there is the distinguished chairman has talked quite a bit about details and very little about how this all would fit together. The main reason is this: The $1.6 trillion Bush administration tax package was a package placed in the budget that including debt service was going to use up 75 percent, 75 percent of the non-Social Security and Medicare surplus.

Now, with the dip in the stock market, that proposal becomes even more risky. So the decision seemed clever at first to break it up into pieces, but the public can add. When we add it all together, it is a very, very risky proposition. It is not fiscally responsible.

Now we have a second piece in front of us today, the marriage penalty provision, plus. It is much larger than Mr. Bush proposed before he became President. Half of the so-called marriage penalty provision goes to people who do not have a marriage penalty provision in their income tax returns.

Why are we doing this? I do not know. Maybe we have kind of a Pied Piper syndrome here. I am not sure who always is calling the tune, but I think if it succeeds, it would lead those following it over the cliff. The trouble is it would lead this Nation’s economy over the cliff.

There has been some talk about bipartisanship. Whatever the vote is on this or any other piece, when we put it together, it is not bipartisan support. The bipartisan support is almost zero. Indeed, it is a partisan effort.

There has been some reference to stimulus. We are going to have a stimulus provision on the motion to recommit. What is the impact of this major proposal here this year? It is an asterisk, which means close to zero. Talk about a stimulus, there is not any real stimulus. If there is any tax proposal that can stimulate the Nation’s economy, this is not it, nor is it the entire package.

So in a word, I suggest this: Add it all together, I say to the citizens of this country, and when we do, we will come to the conclusion that this proposal is one that puts the Nation’s economy at risk.

We fought hard for a decade for fiscal discipline. It led to lower interest rates. Let us not put that in jeopardy. Vote yes on the substitute and no on the basic bill.

Mr. Thomas. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Illinois, Mr. Weller, and I ask unanimous consent that he control the balance of my time.

The Speaker pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. Weller. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, of course I would note that Chairman Rangel, with the rate reduction that we already passed out of this House of Representatives, put almost $600 in the pockets of the average family of four this year, if we include the child tax credit, which is a very, very positive, plus feature of the present.

This is a bipartisan bill. My good friend, the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. Roemer, has been a partner in this effort to eliminate the tax penalty.

Mr. Roemer. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. Roemer. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from Illinois, for yielding time to me, and I rise in support of the bipartisan bill, the underlining bill reported out by the committee.

First of all, Mr. Speaker, I believe very strongly that an increased tax should not be Uncle Sam’s wedding present to a newly married couple. We need to value the institution of marriage. We need to value the children. We need to recognize that doubling the tax credit for children in this country really also is sensitive to the fact of how difficult it is today in America to raise our children and to get them to schools and in braces, to make sure that we afford to raise them the proper way.

This is a value that I voted for when the Democratic President vetoed it, and I will vote for it again today. I will vote for it as the father of four children. I will vote for it because, from my farmers’ market to my supermarkets, this is one of the most important tax breaks that my constituents in Indiana talk to me about all the time, the marriage penalty and helping with the tax credit to raise their children.

This bill is not perfect. It needs reform. It needs refinement. It needs modification. It needs all of this because it is higher than even what President Bush has proposed. I have said that reducing the national debt is important. I do not think we can dig a big hole and get back into the fiscally irresponsible days that we had 5 and 6 years ago there. Exceptional, but we should also marry this bill up to estate tax reform; not straight-out repeal, but reform of the estate taxes. We should also hold with an AMT fix, with the marriage penalty and child tax credits, which all together would not threaten our economy, which would help us pull down the debt. That would fit in about a $1 trillion tax cut.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Pelosi).

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me, and for his leadership in putting forth a very responsible Democratic alternative this morning.

Mr. Speaker, certainly Democrats strongly support marriage penalty relief and tax benefits for families with children, but that relief should be provided within the context of an overall tax plan that is fiscally responsible and is fair. The Democratic alternative increases the standard deduction for married couples to twice the amount for single people. It also substantially increases the earned income tax credit for married couples, and lowers the 15 percent tax bracket to 12 percent for a married couple’s first $20,000 of taxable income. This helps everyone, everyone. It is fair, and it is balanced.

The Republican plan, however, uses the need for marriage penalty tax relief as an excuse, as an excuse to expand the 15 percent bracket and cut taxes for married couples in the 28 percent bracket. As a result, 80 percent of the marriage penalty relief in this bill goes to one-third of the wealthiest married couples.

If we want to change the tax rates, then we should face that issue head on and have an honest debate about that. If we were to address the concerns raised by the distinguished gentleman from Indiana about the need for eliminating the marriage penalty, then we should do that, and the Democratic alternative does just precisely that.

How much is enough? When will President Bush and the Republican leadership stop asking American families who are most in need to sacrifice in order to provide a tax cut at the highest end?

Mr. Speaker, here we go again. We are debating yet another tax bill proposed by the Republicans that is seriously flawed.

The Republican proposal provides the most benefits to those who need them least. It gives short shrift to those who need relief the most. And as predicted, the Republican leadership is attempting to go well beyond the already huge tax cut proposed by President Bush with more tax cuts on the way.

Again, Democrats strongly support marriage tax penalty relief and tax benefits for families with children.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support the Democratic alternative.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would note to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Rangel), my good friend, who spoke on behalf of the partisan Democratic alternative, that by voting for the partisan Democratic alternative against the bipartisan H.R. 6 that she would vote to deny 54,000 kids in the eighth district in California increased child tax credit relief.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Fletcher), a leader on behalf of families.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. What this bill does very clearly, first, is double the child tax credit from $500 to $1,000, increases standard deductions for married folks, joint filers, twice that of single filers; expands the 15 percent tax bracket for married joint filers to twice that of single filers; and increases the earned income tax credit; protects child tax credit from the alternative minimum tax.

What is this bill really about? I say it is truly about family values. I know that expression has been abused over the years, but it is about the value of the institution of marriage; something that transcends faith and transcends culture.

We are saying let us not tax that institution because there are enough pressures on that institution already. Let us make it fair. Let us give them the opportunity.

One of the leading causes of a breakdown of the family is financial pressure, and we want to relieve that. That is what this bill does.

We had from the far left a welfare system that did not recognize the value of the family and said, Dad, you are not welcome here.

We truly need to recognize the value of the institution of marriage. Because why? It is about children. It is about their future, making sure that we can do everything to recognize the importance of its institution and its impact on children. That is the reason I recommend that you oppose this partisan bill and support the bipartisan bill H.R. 6.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. Jackson-Lee).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. Rangel) for his leadership. I thank the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Speaker, I am sorry that the debate is so limited that we are not able to express our concerns for the American people in longer debate. Today I will announce that I am going to vote for a bipartisan marriage penalty relief bill.

Frankly, the kind of relief that if Americans were given the information that the media holds back from you, you would understand that we are trying to work in a manner that responds to the needs of working families.

In fact, I am also supportive of a $60 billion tax cut right now, this year, that keeps us in line with the fact that we cannot guarantee that we will have a $5 trillion surplus over the next 10 years.

I want you to have tax relief now, and so what we are supporting is to ensure that in my State of Texas, if you will, that we will not have 769,000 numbers of families with children who will get no tax cut.

Unlike the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Weller), my good friend, he is voting for a tax cut where 362,000 of his constituents in Illinois will not get a tax cut.

We want a marriage penalty that responds to the needs of the American people. One that creates a 12 percent rate bracket for the first $20,000 of taxable income, equivalent to 41,000 of total income for a couple with two children.

We want to simplify the earned income tax credit and increase it for working families. We want the dollars to go in your pocket, unlike the $128 billion tax cut that I am told we received in the State of Texas 2 years ago.

When I go throughout any district and I ask my constituents, did they receive a tax cut, did they get a refund, no one can document receiving any fungible dollars that they could utilize to support their family. Some people say that they thought they got a tax credit on their property taxes, which really does not show up.

So what the Democrats are saying with the alternative is it could actually get reported in the newspaper today. SHEILA JACKSON-LEE will vote for a marriage penalty tax relief bill. I believe in this bill because it is fiscally responsible, and it answers the concerns of the American people and working families.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, just in quick response to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. Jackson-Lee), my good friend, I would say that not only will the bipartisan bill which she spoke against provide 5 million low-income working Americans receiving the earned income tax credit, significantly more than the current bill, $400 a year, but that the proposal which the gentlewoman is in support of, the partisan Democratic substitute, that proposal would actually deny tax relief to millions of children throughout America, including her own district.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Millender-McDonald).
Ms. MILLER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), and many of my Democratic colleagues of mine who have stated so forcefully today, the Democratic alternative is the only bill on the floor that provides true relief. Americans need a tax cut, and I am in favor of that. But we must have a tax cut that is responsible, a targeted tax cut that really will provide true tax relief during these difficult economic times.

As with the bills that my Republican colleagues brought before the 105th and 106th Congress and now in the 107th Congress, H.R. 6 is poorly targeted, too broad and too expensive.

This bill will result in spending of the Social Security and Medicare trust funds and a cut in domestic spending. This plan reverses the course that we have been on for several years and does not leave adequate money to continue paying down the national debt.

H.R. 6 is a bill tilted towards the wealthy people of this country and threatens all the priorities important to hard-working families.

It raids Medicare trust funds, and it is too back-loaded that it does nothing to help our economy today.

This bill will crowd out the priorities vital to millions of seniors, military families, women and children. It cuts services like COPS on the beat and after-school programs that are so vital to hard-working families for the public schools and for safety of our children.

This bill provides, Mr. Speaker, no benefits to American families who need help with child care and housing. I support the Democratic alternative, and I urge my colleagues to support this bill that gives true marriage penalty relief.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Speaker, I would note that we have a bipartisan bill before us today that is being offered as an amendment, a partisan Democratic substitute for the bipartisan bill. I would note that the bipartisan bill will benefit 25 million married working couples who pay higher taxes just because they are married.

In fact, the bipartisan bill which received the support of every House Republican last year and 51 Democrats who broke with their leadership to support real marriage tax relief will help eliminate almost the entire marriage tax penalty for almost everyone that suffers it. That is pretty fair.

I would also note that the partisan Democratic substitute fails to help children. In fact, they fail to address that too ought to be based on equity and be it. And we work with the President and his proposal to double the child tax credit, doubling it to $1,000. It is currently $500. It will provide immediate relief this year, an additional $100, so it will be an additional $600 tax credit this year.

I would point out in combination with the rate reduction, as well as the child tax credit this will put an additional $600 in the average family's pockets this year.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) for yielding the time.

Mr. Speaker, I want to reiterate that if there are any Members who believe that previous administrations had this marriage penalty tax solution correct last year during his campaign, they need to vote against this proposal, because this bill rejects the Bush solution to this marriage penalty problem.

Indeed, the only witness that the Republicans brought forward on this issue said President Bush's approach was worse than doing nothing. Now after I said that earlier in the debate, a piece of paper was advanced that the Administration has endorsed today's proposal. I have not seen that yet, but certainly this would not be the first campaign promise that the President has chosen to reverse himself on this year.

One of the issues that has not gotten much attention in this debate as I think it needs is the question of what stimulus, if any, comes out of this tax package.

One of the issues that has not gotten as much attention in this debate as I think it needs is the question of what stimulus, if any, comes out of this tax package.

Members will recall that the Bush tax proposal was not developed during hard times, at least not economic hard times, they were developed during campaign hard times, when he feared Steve Forbes' challenge in the Republican primary.

The economy was doing well. His campaign was faltering a little bit. So he tried to come up with an approach that would stimulate the financial statements of the wealthiest people in our society and to out-Steve Forbes, Steve Forbes. I think that is what his overall tax proposal was designed to do last year.

Now we face more challenging economic times, and it would seem to me that we ought to focus tax relief in ways that might help with our economic slowdown.

We do not know how long or how deep this Bush economic slowdown will be, since he began talking down the economy, but we can be certain that there is no economic stimulus to turn the economy around found in today's piece of legislation.

Like their estate tax proposal, this tax package has a better chance of resurrecting the dead than of resurrecting the economy.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, one might think the only thing before us today is the marriage penalty and the child credit. I think to legislators we can take a look and clearly we would see that the Democratic substitute that is before us today is more equitable. It is fairer, and it takes care of the problems that we have been talking about.

Let no one believe that by voting for the substitute that they are not voting for not only equitable relief, but they are voting for a child credit that is going to reach the kids that come from families that make less than $30,000, which is not true of the majority's program.

But even more importantly than that is that different pieces of this tax bill that is currently before the floor, not as a comprehensive tax program within a budget that we know what to expect, but each week that we come here, we are asked to vote on different pieces. It is this that we do not know how much can we digest since already before the next week is out they would have completed the $1.6 trillion and start moving towards the $2 trillion tax package that they really have.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPPARDT), the distinguished minority leader, who is the final speaker on our side.

Mr. GEPPARDT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to ask Members to vote against the Republican tax bill and for the bill sponsored by the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) and our ranking member on the Committee on Ways and Means.

I take this position for several reasons. First, I ask Members to consider the real differences between these two tax cut proposals. The Republican bill increases the child credit, but only for some families. Their child credit does not fully phase in until the year 2006, which means that some families will not see any relief because their children will turn 16 before then, and they will be too old to be eligible for the tax cut.

Millions of families of all income levels will be disappointed because Republicans give people nothing in the marriage penalty relief until the year 2004, and they will not get the full tax cut that the Republicans promise until 2006.

What does all of this delay and all of these gimmicks really say to the American people? That despite all of the rhetoric about cutting taxes to help with the immediate economic downturn that they have said they will do, my friends on the other side are serious. They are not serious about providing relief this year when it is most needed. Their tax bill does not help people for another 3 to 5 years; in some instances, 8 years. The delay of the direct results of a larger tax plan that spends the entire available surplus that is not even there yet that may never materialize.

Well, this is not right and it is not fair. I ask Members to consider our bill, which is responsible, balanced and fair. Our bill doubles the standard deduction for married couples so they get relief this year. Our bill recognizes that we are in a period of economic uncertainty, so we give people immediate tax relief which we think will help them get through the uncertainty of the time we are in.

But the most important reason to vote against the Republican bill is that it is part of a much larger tax plan that leaves no room for the other important priorities of the American people.

After today, this House will have already passed $1.8 trillion in tax cuts when we include the interest. If Republicans continue with their plans and put forward, as they are apparently planning, the estate tax and their other tax bills, then the additional tax breaks that they have said they will pass as part of the President’s plan, which is a floor, will cost about $3 trillion once the smoke clears.

The Republican tax cut package raids the Medicare trust fund as early as 2009. It does nothing to help the economy because it is so back-loaded. It crowds out other priorities vital to millions of seniors, military families, and women and children. It results in a budget that cuts existing services like Cops on the Beat and after-school programs to make our public schools safe for our children.

Most damaging, the Republican tax plan could bring back the high deficits, high interest rates, and slow growth that we left at the end of the last Bush administration.

We have to keep in our mind that the goal is to keep the economy moving, to keep unemployment down, to keep growth going up. One of the best ways to do that is to keep interest rates down.

So I argue to the Members, think about the effect on the economy and what the Republican tax cut does not do, what it crowds out our ability to do for the ordinary families in this country who pay interest costs on house payments and car payments and furniture payments every month.

Married families and children would be better off with our plan. We provide temporary tax relief for all taxpayers. We focus relief on those in the middle and those trying to get in the middle who need our help the most.

Plus, we give people a country free of debt by 2008; a Medicare prescription drug program for all seniors who want it; a Social Security and a Medicare trust fund extended to 2050 in the one case and 2040 respectively, at least 11 to 12 years added solvency of the Medicare and Social Security trust funds; more quality teachers; more Cops on the Beat; and school buildings in repair and enlarged and rehabilitated.

We give people lower interest rates. For an average family of four, I percent off interest rates means $1,500 a year in savings on a car payment and on house payments. If one adds a reasonable tax cut, about $700 a year, one is going to wind up putting more money in the pockets of a typical family than the larger tax cut that would likely keep interest rates a point higher.

So I urge Members to consider this argument when they cast their vote on these two bills. Consider the actual real-life consequences of the decision we are making on the floor today. Consider what happens if these surpluses do not materialize. Consider what happens if the projections turn out to be wrong.

What if we find ourselves in debt again, as we did in the 1980s, as far as the eye can see? We have been there. We have run this experiment. We ran it for 15 years, from 1981 to 1995. It did not work.

We should be more humble about our thoughts about economics. We should be more reticent to take this risky river boat gamble to go out into the deficits when we could keep the surpluses.

It is time to keep interest rates down, unemployment down, inflation down. This is a 20-year decision of this body. It is easy to make this decision. It is hard to correct it. It took us 15 years to get over the last mistake. Why would we want to do that again?

I urge Members to examine their conscience, examine the facts. Vote against this Republican bill. Vote for the more common sense Democratic alternative.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I note that the bipartisan plan before us, H.R. 6, combined with the rate reduction we passed earlier this year, will put $600 in the pockets of the average family of four this year. I also note in the minority leader’s district that his partisan Democratic alternative would deny relief to 102,000 children in his own district, the Third District of Missouri.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS), the distinguished House Republican Conference Chairman.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Illinois, my friend, for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, let me set something straight at the outset. I think it is important to note, Mr. Speaker, that what we are talking about today is not the government’s money, but the American people’s money. One of these days, it is going to register to the 535 Members of Congress on these issues that it is not Washington’s money, it is the people’s money.

I think it is time to put partisanship aside and enact a plan that will protect families, strengthen the economy, and secure our children’s future. H.R. 6 is a common sense plan to strengthen families and secure our children’s future. It stops the unfair tax that simply penalizes two people for saying ‘I do.’ I think it is wrong. I think it is unfair.

The problem that we have is, and I would make the point, families are working longer and harder than ever; yet Washington continues to take more and more. The marriage penalty requires more time at work, and that means less time at home with the family and with the kids.

Should two people pay higher taxes just because they are married? Should families spend 20 percent of their income in Federal, State and local taxes? Should families pay more in taxes than for food, clothing, and shelter combined? Should not parents be allowed to spend their own money to meet the needs of their own children?

On behalf of hard-working families, what we are doing today is asking for fairness and common sense to protect families and to secure our children’s future.

The average family of four will save $560 this year through our tax plan. H.R. 6, and the rate reduction plan that we have already passed. All Americans will benefit because giving people money back, that creates job security and a strong economy.

Nearly 25 million couples will save money from repeal of the marriage penalty. In the Fourth District of Oklahoma, the district that I represent. More than 81 million children will qualify for the $1,000 per-child tax credit; 81,000 kids in the Fourth District of Oklahoma will qualify for that.

At least 4 million African American married couples will benefit immediately from repeal of the marriage tax penalty. This means more money for college, for groceries, for house payments, for car payments, for car insurance, money to buy a new washer and dryer, new appliance.

It is time that we enact common sense legislation today to strengthen families and secure our children’s future and stop taxing people for simply saying “I do.” That is unfair. It is wrong.

I urge a yes vote on H.R. 6.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, this whole idea that Democrats do not understand that what surplus we are talking about is not the government’s money, but it is the people’s money, we understand that. We understand even further that whatever surplus we are talking about is now handing people in order to pay the Social Security tax and the payroll tax that give us what is the so-called surplus.

There is no surplus there. The fact that under the Clinton-Gore administration we have been able to get a better cash flow does not mean that there is a surplus. We owe $3.4 trillion. We pay debt service on that money.

It is safe to say that, when we work together and try to reduce our national debt, that is the true way to say that we are giving back their money by reducing the national debt.

In addition to that, it is abundantly clear that many on the other side do not believe we should have a Social Security system. I cannot argue with you if that is what you believe. You do not believe in Medicare. You do not believe in providing for affordable prescription drugs.

What we are saying is that, yes, those are the people’s programs. We are, here as Democrats; and hopefully we can convince some Republicans to work together and not just say it is the people’s money. It is the people’s country. It is the people’s debt. It is the people’s Social Security program. It is the people’s Medicare program. It is the people’s children that need education to make them productive. All of these things belong to the people.

We should not take a river boat gamble on what is going to happen 6, 7 years from now when we are thinking heavily for their kids and those people today that will soon become eligible for Social Security and Medicare benefits.

We have to agree that you are coming our way as it relates to child credits and things like that, but you are giving us a little piece at a time. Already we are up to a trillion dollars, and we have to stop you before you hurt somebody. Because we know that piece by piece you will never be able to get this off the ground.

Even the President is against the things that you are going to come up with. Well, how do I know? Well, first of all, it is because I go over and I talk with the President from time to time. He is a very likable chap. He likes Democrats. He likes Republicans.

He told us, which I assume he shared with you, that he does not want the tax cut lower than $1.6 trillion, like Democrats want it, nor does he want it higher than $1.6 trillion like some Republicans want it. He wants it just like this. He thinks that this just fits. I am telling the President, get your troops in order and try to get some of that compassion or conservatism on the other side of the aisle. Because Mr. President, this just does not fit.

Already we have got $950 billion that has already passed the House, $399 billion we are trying to defeat today, $237 billion they say is going to come up next week on education related, education related. We have got research and development, which is going to cost us $50 billion. We have the alternative minimum tax fix, $292 billion.

When we get finished with all of this and add debt service to it, $556 billion, Mr. President, the Republicans will be giving you a $3 trillion tax burden which you say is too big.

□ 1315

Mr. Speaker, let the Democrats join in and say we are going to stop this majority in the House. We have a substitute that is more in line with what you are thinking about. Mr. President, and the people will have an opportunity, including Republicans, to work in a bipartisan way to vote for the substitute and to stop the majority’s bill.

Mr. Speaker, then what can we do? Then we can really come together, sit down as Republicans and Democrats, and see whether we can agree to a bill that does not pass on the partisan vote, but a total bill taking in consideration all of the tax cuts.

Mr. President, in order to make it easier, we Democrats have come up with a bill that we really believe Republicans should consider. It is H.R. 1264, and it would allow for us to look at the entire budget that we have and to divide it into one-third for the tax cut, one-third in order to reduce the debt, and one-third for the programs that the American people and even the President of the United States support.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, we have one remaining speaker on behalf of our legislation. Has the minority concluded?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). The gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) has no time remaining. The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER) has 16½ minutes remaining.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we have a bipartisan bill, H.R. 6, before us that eliminates the marriage tax penalty, as well as doubles the child tax credit.

Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARMEY), the House majority leader.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the Committee on Ways and Means and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER) in particular for his fine work on this legislation. I also want to personally thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) for speaking one more time on this bill, because his having done so punctuates a fact that we oftentimes try to disguise in this body, and the gentleman from New York has made that fact profoundly clear to all of us.

Mr. Speaker, this is a partisan debate. Mr. Speaker, that is as it should be, because, indeed, this body is almost wholly divided between two very distinct and two very separate political parties, parties that do, in fact, congregate around different visions of America, and to a large extent what you see in this debate today is a conflict of visions.

My colleagues who congregate on my side of the aisle have a vision of America that is based on our profound belief that America is made great and America is built, its economy is built, by reducing taxes and letting people keep their money and spending their own money on behalf of their own interests and on behalf of their families.

Mr. Speaker, the Democratic Party on the other side of the aisle tend to believe that America is built great by big government. This is not a new debate. We have it every time we put a tax bill on the floor; and the foundation issue is do we give people part of their money back and hold taxes down so that the greatness of America can continue to be built at home by people who actually earn the money themselves, or are we going to keep it here in town so that people in Washington can spend it on their behalf and build programs.

Mr. Speaker, the fact of the matter is we have seen demonstrated time and again that whenever Washington has the good grace to leave people more of their own money in what we call take-home pay, America does well with that.

I was a young economics student in 1961 and 1962, and this lesson was brought home to me by President Kennedy, and the Democrats do not like us to mention this fact, but he taught us this lesson in economics in the early 1960s. When President Kennedy faced an economic recession, he said, cut taxes and let America grow the economy back with their own money. And bless our hearts, we did; and he was right.

Mr. Speaker, the animosity towards growing America at home through
There are many things we can do for Clues toys. I think every baby ought to be able to have a Clues toy. There are many things we can do for our babies, and I have a little more take-home pay, so we increase the child tax credit so those families can enjoy those things. That should be applauded in this Chamber, especially by those of us that are at the age of myself, your daughter from New York (Mr. RANGEL), who have the great joy of grandchildren in our lives. Far better for them than it was for our kids. And we should applaud this.

Mr. Speaker, this is an important move. This is an important change in the Tax Code. Not only does it have the ability to encourage the American family to work harder, do more, but it allows them to take a larger share of their own paycheck home and do the most important thing they will ever do in their life, raise their children.

Now, my colleagues on the other side of the aisle have been throughout this entire discussion, from the inception going back to the campaign, on shifting first it was no tax reductions. We cannot afford that. I always laugh when I hear the government cannot afford that. How much will it cost the government to give tax reductions?

Then it was you had the wrong kind of tax reductions. But they continued to move on this matter. Then it was it is not your tax cuts we want, it is our tax cuts that we want. And then finally, you have got to do this on a bipartisan fashion. You cannot do it on a bipartisan fashion if one party wants no tax cut and the other party wants a tax cut.

Mr. Speaker, but even then we try to accommodate. Which can be more bipartisan than a bill that was passed just a year ago with more than 50 votes from the other side of the aisle? That looks like a generous bipartisan effort.

This is an important thing that we do and we are working hard for it. We can talk about the growth of the American economy through the efforts of the American family. We can talk about the prosperity and happiness of the American family by having more of their own pay as take-home pay, and we can talk about resolving fundamental inequities and inanities in the Tax Code.

Mr. Speaker, I must say we should be embarrassed to have a Tax Code on our books that says to our sons and daughters, if you should fall in love, and if you should wed, we will punish you. Again, let me applaud the gentleman from Illinois and the Committee on Ways and Means. It is time to put an end to that, and we will do that with this vote.

Mr. WELLER, Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 104, the previous question is ordered on the bill, as amended, and on the amendment by the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL).

The question was asked; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 196, nays 231, not voting 5, as follows:

Yeas—196

Abercrombie  Hall (OH)  Nadler
Ackerman  Hall (TX)  Napolitano
Allen  Harman  Neal
Andrews  Hastings (FL)  Oberstar
Bacal  Hildreth  Obey
Baird  Hilliard  Olver
Baldacci  Hincher  Ortiz
Barrett  Hinote  Osbsen
Becerra  Hoechel  Palone
Benten  Holden  Pallone
Berkley  Holt  Pastor
Berman  Honda  Payne
Bradley  Hoyer  Pelosi
Braley  Jackson (IL)  Peterson (MN)
Braun  Jackson-Lee  Petit
Boyle  Jefferson (NY)  Roe
Bradley (PA)  Johnson, E. B.  Rohrabacher
Brown (OH)  Jones (OH)  Roemer
Capps  Kaptur  Rosa
Cardin  Kennedy (RI)  Rohrab-Allard
Carson (IN)  Kildee  Rush
Carson (OK)  Kilpatrick  Sabo
Clay  Kind (WI)  Sanchez
Clayton  Kieckha  Sanders
Clement  Kucinich  Sandlin
Cyphers  LaFalce  Sawyer
Condit  Langev  Schakowsky
Conyers  Lantom  Schiff
Costello  Larsen  Seda
Coyne  Larson (CT)  Serrano
Crowley  Less  Sherman
Cummings  Lewis (CA)  Shays
Davis (CA)  Loggins  Smith (VA)
Davis (FL)  Lowey  Somalia
DeFazio  Maloney (CT)  Souder
DeGette  Maloney (NY)  Spratt
Delahunt  Markey  Stark
Delauro  Mascara  Stenholm
Deutch  Matsui  Strickland
Dicks  McCarthy (MD)  Stupak
Dingell  McCarthy (NY)  Tanner
Dooley  McCollum  Tauscher
Doyle  McDermott  Thompson (CA)
Edwards  McGovern  Thompson (MS)
Engel  McIntyre  Thurman
Ehzo  McKinney  Tieney
Ellersidge  McNulty  Towns
 Evans  Meehan  Turner
Farr  Meek (FL)  Udall (CO)
Pattah  Meeks (NY)  Udall (NM)
Pilcher  Menendez  Velazquez
Ford  Millender  Waters
Frank  McDonald  Watt (NC)
Frost  Miller, George  Waxman
Gephardt  Mink  Westmoreland
Gonzalez  Moakley  Wester
Gordon  Mohlohan  Woolsey
Green (TX)  Moore  Young
Gutierrez  Moran (VA)  Wynn

NAYS—231

Aderholt  Ballenger  Bass
Akin  Barcia  Bereuter
Armey  Berry  Berger
Bachus  Bartlett  Biggert
Baker  Barton  Bilirakis
Mr. BOUCHER. Mr. Speaker, I have the sad duty of reporting to the House the passing this morning of our friend and colleague, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. NORMAN).

For 18 years, NORMAN represented Virginia's 4th Congressional District with distinction in a manner that was highly effective for the interests of his constituents, for our State of Virginia, and for the Nation. His wisdom and his charm and his gracious manner endeared him to the Members of the House and to the Virginians who have been well served by his representations, first as a member of the Virginia House of Delegates and more recently as a Member of this body. His many legislative contributions on matters ranging from national security policy to economic advancements to educational improvements have made his State and our Nation a better place.

I have personally known NORMAN for many years and have been glad to name him among my personal friends. We began our public service together in the Virginia General Assembly and were elected for the first time to this House in the same year.

I wish to express my deepest sympathy to his family and to his many friends. In the passing of NORMAN, our Nation has lost a valuable public servant. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF).

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I would like to offer sympathy to NORMAN's family. Everyone was NORMAN's friend on both sides of the aisle. There will be a resolution that we will offer from both sides of the aisle after the last vote for an hour, and anyone who would like to speak at that time will have the opportunity immediately after the last vote.

Mr. Speaker, NORMAN's family, his staff, and his friends.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion of the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) is agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

```
LIEU OF PAYMENTS IN CERTAIN CASES.—

(a) In General.—Except as otherwise provided in this section, each individual shall be treated as having made a payment against the tax imposed by chapter 1 for such taxable year of such individual's first taxable year beginning in 2000 in an amount equal to 100 percent of the amount of such individual's net Federal tax liability for such taxable year.

(b) Maximum Payment.—The amount treated as paid by reason of this section shall not exceed $300 ($600 in the case of a married couple filing a joint return) if the taxpayer has paid the tax liability for such taxable year.

(c) Net Federal Tax Liability.—For purposes of this section—

(1) In General.—The term 'net Federal tax liability'means the amount equal to the excess (if any) of—

(A) the sum of the regular tax liability (as defined in section 6404(b)) plus the tax imposed by section 55, over

(B) the sum of the credits allowable under part IV of subchapter A (other than the credits allowable under subpart C thereof, relating to refundable credits).

(2) Families with Children.—In the case of a taxpayer with 1 or more qualifying children (as defined in section 32) for the taxpayer's first taxable year beginning in 2000, such taxpayer's net Federal tax liability for such year shall be the amount determined under paragraph (1) increased by 7.65 percent of the taxpayer's taxable earned income for such year. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term 'taxable earned income' means earned income as defined in section 32 but only to the extent includible in gross income.

(d) Date Payment Deemed Made.—The payment provided by subsection (a) shall be deemed made on the later of—

(1) the date prescribed by law (determined without extensions) for filing the return of tax imposed by chapter 1 for the taxable year, or

(2) the date on which the taxpayer files his return of tax imposed by chapter 1 for the taxable year.

(e) Certain Persons Not Eligible.—This section shall not apply to—

(1) any estate or trust, and

(2) any nonresident alien individual.

(f) Withholding Credit Certificates in Lieu of Payments in Certain Cases.—

(1) In General.—To the extent that the amount treated as paid under this section would (but for this subsection) exceed the taxpayer's net income tax liability for the taxable year—

(A) the amount of such excess shall not be treated as paid under this section, and

(B) the Secretary shall issue to the taxpayer a withholding credit certificate in the amount of such excess.

(2) Utilization of Withholding Credit Certificate.—A withholding credit certificate issued under paragraph (1) may be furnished by the individual to such individual's employer, the amount of the certificate shall operate as a reduction in

NOT VOTING—5

Messrs. CALVERT, BERRY, COOKSBY and KANJORSKI changed their vote from "nay" to "yea." So the amendment in the nature of a substitute was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Mr. BOUCHER asked and was given permission to speak out of order for 1 minute.

Mr. BOUCHER. Mr. Speaker, I have the sad duty of reporting to the House the passing this morning of our friend and colleague, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. NORMAN).

For 18 years, NORMAN represented Virginia's 4th Congressional District with distinction in a manner that was highly effective for the interests of his constituents, for our State of Virginia, and for the Nation. His wisdom and his charm and his gracious manner endeared him to the Members of the House and to the Virginians who have been well served by his representations, first as a member of the Virginia House of Delegates and more recently as a Member of this body. His many legislative contributions on matters ranging from national security policy to economic advancements to educational improvements have made his State and our Nation a better place.

I have personally known NORMAN for many years and have been glad to name him among my personal friends. We began our public service together in the Virginia General Assembly and were elected for the first time to this House in the same year.

I wish to express my deepest sympathy to his family and to his many friends. In the passing of NORMAN, our Nation has lost a valuable public servant. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF).

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I would like to offer sympathy to NORMAN's family. Everyone was NORMAN's friend on both sides of the aisle. There will be a resolution that we will offer from both sides of the aisle after the last vote for an hour, and anyone who would like to speak at that time will have the opportunity immediately after the last vote.

Mr. Speaker, NORMAN's family, his staff, and his friends.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion of the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) is agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

```
LIEU OF PAYMENTS IN CERTAIN CASES.—

(a) In General.—Except as otherwise provided in this section, each individual shall be treated as having made a payment against the tax imposed by chapter 1 for such taxable year of such individual's first taxable year beginning in 2000 in an amount equal to 100 percent of the amount of such individual's net Federal tax liability for such taxable year.

(b) Maximum Payment.—The amount treated as paid by reason of this section shall not exceed $300 ($600 in the case of a married couple filing a joint return) if the taxpayer has paid the tax liability for such taxable year.

(c) Net Federal Tax Liability.—For purposes of this section—

(1) In General.—The term 'net Federal tax liability' means the amount equal to the excess (if any) of—

(A) the sum of the regular tax liability (as defined in section 6404(b)) plus the tax imposed by section 55, over

(B) the sum of the credits allowable under part IV of subchapter A (other than the credits allowable under subpart C thereof, relating to refundable credits).

(2) Families with Children.—In the case of a taxpayer with 1 or more qualifying children (as defined in section 32) for the taxpayer's first taxable year beginning in 2000, such taxpayer's net Federal tax liability for such year shall be the amount determined under paragraph (1) increased by 7.65 percent of the taxpayer's taxable earned income for such year. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term 'taxable earned income' means earned income as defined in section 32 but only to the extent includible in gross income.

(d) Date Payment Deemed Made.—The payment provided by subsection (a) shall be deemed made on the later of—

(1) the date prescribed by law (determined without extensions) for filing the return of tax imposed by chapter 1 for the taxable year, or

(2) the date on which the taxpayer files his return of tax imposed by chapter 1 for the taxable year.

(e) Certain Persons Not Eligible.—This section shall not apply to—

(1) any estate or trust, and

(2) any nonresident alien individual.

(f) Withholding Credit Certificates in Lieu of Payments in Certain Cases.—

(1) In General.—To the extent that the amount treated as paid under this section would (but for this subsection) exceed the taxpayer's net income tax liability for the taxable year—

(A) the amount of such excess shall not be treated as paid under this section, and

(B) the Secretary shall issue to the taxpayer a withholding credit certificate in the amount of such excess.

(2) Utilization of Withholding Credit Certificate.—A withholding credit certificate issued under paragraph (1) may be furnished by the individual to such individual's employer, the amount of the certificate shall operate as a reduction in the liability for employment taxes that would otherwise be withheld from the individual's wages.

“(d) NET INCOME TAX LIABILITY.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'net income tax liability' means net Federal tax liability determined without regard to subsection (c)(2).”

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for subchapter B of chapter 65 of such Code is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

“Sec. 6428. Refund of 2000 individual income taxes.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000.

(d) PROTECTION OF SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE.—The amounts transferred to any trust fund under the Social Security Act shall be determined as if this Act had not been enacted.

(e) CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET RULES.—The aggregate amount of refunds and withholding credit certificates provided by this Act before October 1, 2001, shall not exceed $15,000,000,000.

The Speaker pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Mr. HOEFFEL. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, we need to put money in people's pockets today. We should not start next year or 5 years from now or 10 years from now. We need to pass a tax rebate that would give people now $300 per person, $600 per family. This would give the American economy an immediate $47 billion stimulus this year.

We have spent the last few weeks debating and passing tax bills that give more relief than is prudent and most of which will not affect the average taxpayer for 7 to 10 years. In fact, the bill before us today provides only $50 million in stimulus this year, $50 million to rebate that we want to propose would establish almost $50 billion in economic stimulus. That is almost 1,000 more economic stimulus, 1,000 times the economic power, the spending and saving power this year.

We must support a tax package that includes sensible rate reductions for everyone that will not threaten our fiscal footing and allows us to pay down all of our national debt, a tax package that will include targeted marriage penalty relief, and a tax package that does not threaten Social Security and Medicare. Pass this motion to recommit. Do it today.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH).

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, the early warning signs are all around us. Manufacturing has lost 230,000 jobs in the last 3 months alone. The stock market has lost about $5 trillion in value in the last year. We must act to stimulate the economy now.

The Progressive Caucus proposed a $300 dividend for every American this year. We must act now. According to economists, the $300 dividend is about enough to rekindle the effect of a stock market decline. This motion would pay that dividend now and stimulate the economy. The majority's bill gives people only pennies this year. It does not stimulate the economy, because it will not give more than 80 percent of the tax cut until 2005.

The choice is clear. Americans get pennies under the majority's bill or $300 under the motion to recommit.

They get economic slowdown under the majority's tax bill, or a stimulus and restore prosperity under the motion to recommit.

Vote yes on the motion to recommit.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). The gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) is recognized for 3 minutes.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, the benefits of the tax cut, but take a deep breath, go back to the committee, and see whether or not we can get $60 billion in the economy now, this year, in the pockets of the people to spend.

Then let us try to come together once again as Republicans and Democrats and try to work something out that is not as extreme as the $1.6 billion; that does not totally repeal the estate tax for the rich, but really gets out there for the working poor, the moderate-income people, and give a fair tax break to everybody.

We have not given up on Republicans on this side, and we have not given up on our President. The motion to recommit really means let us go back and let us see whether we work out something now to stimulate this economy, and to make certain that the American people have confidence not only in the economy, but have confidence in this Congress.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I want to apologize to my friends on the other side of the aisle, because I have the unfortunate habit of actually reading their motions to recommit.

So, first of all, I would call the attention of my colleagues to the fact that the motion to recommit says, “Strike all after the enacting clause.’” That means, number one, no marriage penalty relief and no child tax credit. But what they are offering instead is the idea that we can have an immediate stimulus.

Okay, let us talk about that trade-off. Keep reading, Mr. Speaker. By the time we get to page 5, after we go to page 4 of the motion to recommit, on which there is a kind of a homemade emergency, make this motion in order, with handwriting in the margin and the rest, but when we get through with that, we actually get to the heart of the proposal.
The gentleman from New York said we get an immediate stimulus of $50 billion. Now, remember, with the 'strike out all after the enacting clause' we have given up the marriage penalty and the child credit.

But if we read what the motion to recommit actually does, it says, "In fiscal year 2001, no more than $15 billion." No matter how impassioned they say now, $35 billion comes out of next year, 2002. Fair enough. In 2001 and in 2002, we get the $50 billion stimulus.

Hang on. This House has already passed H.R. 3, and we are going to pass H.R. 6. Let us take a look at what those two provisions do in fiscal year 2001 and 2002.

Quite ironically, when we combine H.R. 3 and H.R. 6 and look at the effect in fiscal years 2001 and 2002, we get a $54.6 billion permanent tax reduction.

Here is the choice. You vote for the motion to recommit, and we do not get marriage penalty relief, we do not get the child credit doubling, we do not get permanent marginal relief, but we do get $30 billion of one-time money. If we vote against the motion to recommit, we get marriage penalty relief, we double the child tax credit, we get permanent marginal relief, and we get $54.6 billion worth of relief.

I think this motion to recommit is easy. If Members vote for them, they get $50 billion. Vote for us and Members get $54.6 billion worth of relief, we double the child tax credit, we do not get $54.6 billion permanent tax reduction.

Quite ironically, when we combine those two provisions do in fiscal year 2002. Fair enough. In 2001 and in 2002, 2002. Quite ironically, when we combine H.R. 3 and H.R. 6 and look at the effect in fiscal years 2001 and 2002, we get a $54.6 billion permanent tax reduction.

Here is the choice. You vote for the motion to recommit, and we do not get marriage penalty relief, we do not get the child credit doubling, we do not get permanent marginal relief, but we do get $30 billion of one-time money. If we vote against the motion to recommit, we get marriage penalty relief, we double the child tax credit, we get permanent marginal relief, and we get $54.6 billion worth of relief.

I think this motion to recommit is easy. If Members vote for them, they get $50 billion. Vote for us and Members get $54.6 billion plus marriage penalty relief, child credit, and permanent rate reduction.

This one is easy. Vote no on the motion to recommit.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the motion to recommit. The previous question was ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit. The question was taken; and the ayes have it.

Mr. DELAY changed his vote from "aye" to "no." Mr. MILPATRICK and Messrs. MORAN of Virginia, GEORGE MILLER of California, and McNULTY changed their vote from "no" to "aye."

So the motion to recommit rejected. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, today I had an urgent matter to attend to. As a result I missed the vote and I would like to inform the House I would have voted "yes" on the motion to recommit.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, today I had an urgent matter to attend to. As a result I missed the roll call vote No. 74. Please excuse my absence from this vote. If I were present, I would have voted "no."

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The question is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes have it.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, today I had an urgent matter to attend to. As a result I missed the rollcall vote No. 74. Please excuse my absence from this vote. If I were present, I would have voted "no."

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The question is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes have it.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, today I had an urgent matter to attend to. As a result I missed the rollcall vote No. 74. Please excuse my absence from this vote. If I were present, I would have voted "no."

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The question is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes have it.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, today I had an urgent matter to attend to. As a result I missed the rollcall vote No. 74. Please excuse my absence from this vote. If I were present, I would have voted "no."

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The question is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes have it.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.
Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, earlier today, I offered an amendment on H.R. 6, the bill just passed. The amendment was to revise and extend their reach. As the title of the bill was amended so to read: “A motion to reconsider was laid on the table." The result of the vote was announced to be agreed to by the yeas of 214, the nays of 43. Accordingly, I was unable to vote on rollcall No. 75. If I had been present I would have voted "yea." So the bill was passed. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded. The title of the amendment was passed as so read: “A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to reduce the marriage penalty by providing for adjustments to the standard deduction, the 15-percent rate bracket, and the earned income credit, to increase the child credit, and for other purposes.”. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include any extraneous material on H.R. 6, the bill just passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio? There was no objection.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of inquiring of the schedule for the day and the remainder of the week and next week.

Before I yield to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN), let me say to the gentleman from Michigan State (Mr. STUFAK), from the upper peninsula, I just wish that the Arizona Wildcats go and make it to the final game on Saturday. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN), the great home of Oscar Robertson.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Michigan. I thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN), the great home of Oscar Robertson.

The House will meet next for legislative business on Tuesday, April 3, at 12:30 p.m., for a morning hour and 2 o’clock for legislative business. The House will consider a number of measures under suspension of the rules, a list of which will be distributed to Members’ offices tomorrow. On Tuesday, we expect no recorded votes before 6 o’clock p.m.

Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Ways and Means will meet this afternoon shortly to consider H.R. 8, the Death Tax Elimination Act. It is my expectation that the bill will be ready for consideration in the House on Wednesday, April 4. That being the case, the vote on the Death Tax Elimination Act in the House next Wednesday would be our last vote for the week heading into the Spring District Work Period. I thank the gentleman from Michigan for yielding to me.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, if I could just inquire, does the gentleman from Ohio expect any other legislation to be offered on the floor other than that which he has mentioned in his statement?

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, there may be additional measures other than H.R. 8. It is my understanding that nothing else is scheduled at this point, but there may be other business before the House.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, the statement of the gentleman from Ohio read said that the Death Tax Elimination Act in the House next Wednesday will be our last vote for the week. So I assume that when we have finished that, we will not meet on Thursday or Friday; is that correct?

Mr. PORTMAN. That is correct, Mr. Speaker. We do not expect votes on Thursday or Friday of next week.
Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate that.
Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) for an inquiry.
Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Michigan for yielding me this time.
Mr. Speaker, I was not to my feet quickly enough to enter directly in the discussion about Michigan State and Arizona and some team from North Carolina that is playing.
But one ought to fear the turtle. I want everybody to understand that the Terrapins are coming to play, Gary Williams and his 10 starters.
This is on scheduling for Saturday night, Mr. Speaker, so I presume it is, therefore, relevant that everybody be aware that at 8:20 p.m. on Saturday evening, but I might also say to the gentleman from Maryland that they blew a 10-point lead with a minute left against Duke as well.
Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Michigan would not bet against Duke as well.
Mr. Speaker, in case they do emerge victorious against Duke, I have wagered with the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. PASTOR), a friendly wager I might say, Mr. Speaker; Michigan apples from my district in Lansing versus his tamales from Arizona if, in fact, either of us win this game.
I would say, when the Spartans go on to win, I would venture a friendly bet with the gentleman from Maryland, a bushel full of crabs versus a bushel full of Rome apples. What does the gentleman from Maryland think?
Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, the value of a bushel of crabs is so much greater than a bushel of apples that it is really not a fair bet. Mr. Maryland’s talent puts me at no risk, so I will be glad to accept that wager.

ADJOURNMENT TO TUESDAY.
APRIL 3, 2001
Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns on Friday, March 30, 2001, it adjourn to meet at 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 3, for morning hour debates.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?
There was no objection.

DISPENSING WITH CALENDAR
WEDNESDAY BUSINESS ON WEDNESDAY NEXT
Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the business in order under the Calendar Wednesday rule be dispensed with on Wednesday next.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?
There was no objection.

EXPRESSING SORROW OF THE HOUSE AT THE DEATH OF THE HONORABLE NORMAN SISISKY, MEMBER OF CONGRESS FROM THE COMMONWEAL TH OF VIRGINIA
Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged resolution (H. Res. 107) and ask for its immediate consideration.
The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of the Honorable Norman Sisisky, a Representative from the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Resolved, That a committee of such Members of the House as the Speaker may designate, together with such Members of the Senate as may be joined, be appointed to attend the funeral.

Resolved, That the Sergeant at Arms of the House be authorized and directed to take such steps as may be necessary for carrying out the provisions of these resolutions and that the necessary expenses in connection therewith be paid out of applicable accounts of the House.

Resolved, That the Clerk communicate these resolutions to the Senate and transmit a copy thereof to the family of the deceased.

Resolved, That when the House adjourns today, it adjourn as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) is recognized for 1 hour.
Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the time be equally divided and controlled between the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) and myself.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?
There was no objection.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.
Mr. Speaker, it is with profound sorrow that I join my fellow members of the Virginia congressional delegation and other Members of the House today in remembering Norman Sisisky, a true gentleman and a real patriot.
We had learned the news earlier this week that NORMAN’s recent surgery had gone well, and he had returned home to recuperate before his expected return to Washington after the upcoming recess. And today we heard the shocking news that he had passed away.

Mr. Speaker, his untimely passing reminds us all of our own mortality and how important it is to work with honor and integrity, as NORMAN did, and to make the most of every opportunity to serve our fellow man, as NORMAN did. NORMAN was hard-working, friendly, honest, ethical, decent and moral. He was a Member who worked in a bipartisan way. He reached across the aisle to work for the best interests of America, and it was a privilege to serve with him for the 18 years that he was in Congress and to work with him on the congressional delegations on issues of importance to our State and Union.

NORMAN was born June 9, 1927, and graduated from John Marshall High School in Richmond, Virginia. He joined the Navy after high school and served through World War II until 1946. He graduated from Virginia Commonwealth University in 1949 with a degree in business administration. He transformed a small Pepsi bottling company in Petersburg, Virginia, into a highly successful distributor of soft drinks throughout Southside Virginia.
Mr. Speaker, he began his public service career when he was elected as a delegate to the Virginia House of Delegates in 1973 representing Petersburg. He served five terms in the Virginia General Assembly before being elected to Congress in 1982. NORMAN, like another of our late colleagues, Herb Bateman, was a senior member of the House Committee on Armed Services, and from that vantage point was the protector of our national security, and probably no man or woman in this body did more to work with regard to national security and working in a bipartisan way.
NORMAN was the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Military Procurement and also served on the Subcommittee on Readiness, and the Subcommittee on Morale, Welfare and Recreation. He had recently been appointed to the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. NORMAN was also a Member of the Blue Dog Coalition in the 104th through the 107th Congress, and led bipartisan efforts that worked. In 1993, he was one of six Democrats for a strong defense and worked to mobilize against military cuts.

NORMAN was instrumental in working to get funding to build the newest aircraft carrier, the USS Ronald Reagan, which was recently christened. He worked tirelessly as an advocate for production of shipbuilding and strengthening our national defense. He represented with pride Virginia’s Fourth Congressional District in the southeastern corner of the Commonwealth and the home of the first permanent English settlement in North America, and today the home of one of the largest concentrations of military power in the world.
This Congress, the Commonwealth of Virginia and this Nation have lost a faithful servant and a wonderful man, but our lives will forever be enriched for having had Norman Sisisky as a friend and colleague.

Mr. Speaker, our deepest sympathies are extended to Congressman Sisisky’s family, his wife of over 50 years, Rhoda, and his four sons, Mark, Terry, Richard and Stuart, and his seven grandchildren; and also to his congressional family, his staff here on Capitol Hill and in his district offices, and all of the close friends that he had among the Members of Congress and staff. We share in that loss.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as may consume.

Mr. Speaker, Norman Sisisky was a good man. He was a hard-working colleague, and he was a dedicated public servant to the citizens of his southeast Virginia district. I think we were all struck by his unflagging consideration of his colleagues. He loved this institution. He did not need the salary that it paid, he was independently wealthy, but he lived and talked and acted without pretense.

He leaves a great legacy to the people of Virginia and to our whole Nation. He will always be remembered for standing behind our military families and our veterans.

Norman was one of the most effective advocates in the Congress for a strong Navy and its shipbuilding program. He knew that this Nation must always remain militarily strong, and through his public service helped in a substantial way to make our military second to none.

We will all miss Norman’s friendship and his great leadership within the Congress.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis). Mr. Tom Davis of Virginia, Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to my friend and colleague from Virginia, Norman Sisisky, who served this body since 1983.

Mr. Speaker, Norman Sisisky was one of the most effective Congressmen I have had the privilege of knowing. He had a great leadership within the House, the Committee on Armed Services. He was the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Military Procurement and also a member of the Subcommittee on Military Readiness, where he worked diligently to ensure our Nation’s military was second to none.

He took pride in that responsibility and never let anyone forget it.

He had a unique leadership style; one without fanfare, behind the scenes, and it was effective. Newport News Shipbuilding has remained a world leader in nuclear shipbuilding because of his efforts. We have been able to continue nuclear aircraft carrier and submarine construction because of Norman Sisisky.

When Virginia’s military facilities came under threat of being closed during the base closings of the 1990s, Congressman Sisisky successfully protected Fort Lee and other bases in Virginia that have been critical to the readiness of the Armed Forces. Norman Sisisky was also well-respected for his understanding of fiscal responsibility.

He will be remembered as a committed husband, a good father, and a proud Virginia gentleman. He will be sorely missed by the Virginia delegation, his other House colleagues on both sides of the aisle, and others who have had the privilege of knowing and working with him.

Our condolences go out to his wife Rhoda, his four sons and other family members, his staff, especially Jan Faircloth, who has served him and the Fourth District for almost 20 years.

Mr. Speaker, Virginia has lost an effective servant who will sorely be missed.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Good). Mr. Good. Mr. Speaker, today Virginia and the Nation has lost an outstanding representative.

Norman Sisisky has helped many citizens throughout the Fourth District of Virginia. He fought for fiscal constraint and worked tirelessly for the defense of our Nation. Through his leadership, the seas and the skies are safer for America and her Armed Forces. Our Armed Forces would not be what they are today without the steadfast support that he gave to our national defense.

Norman was one of the finest businessmen in Virginia, and he shared his success not only with his family, but with many charitable endeavors throughout the Fourth District, the Commonwealth of Virginia, and the Nation. His contributions to institutions of higher education in south central Virginia have helped many students gain a college degree.

It was an honor to serve in this body with Norman Sisisky, and also in the Virginia General Assembly, where he was a member of the house appropriations committee. He helped tremendously the Petersburg area of the Commonwealth and also all of Southside.

Norman was a personal friend, and I shall always remember the guidance he provided when I was first elected to serve in the House of Representatives. I, like many others, am thankful for the opportunity to have known and worked with Norman Sisisky.

My deepest sympathies go to his family and his staff.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman...
Mr. SISISKY was so proud to serve.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, words are difficult at a moment like this, when we are all saddened and shocked at the loss of our friend NORMAN SISISKY, the true gentleman from Virginia. We will miss him so.

I sat next to him on the Committee on Armed Services now for some 19 years and shared friendship, comments, wit, knowledge, and advice from him. And all of this will be a lingering memory not just for me, but for those of us who worked with him.

The word “great” is used so often, particularly in this body, but NORMAN SISISKY was a great friend. He was a great legislator; Member of this body. He thought greatly. He had a vision for our national security, and yet he had great fondness for the young men and women in all uniforms.

As has been spoken, he was such a champion of shipbuilding. But it was more than that. He was a champion for a strong and safe and secure America.

We will long remember NORMAN SISISKY as a great person. Longfellow once penned in his poem “Psalm of Life” the words, “Lives of great men all remind us we can make our lives sublime, and, departing, leave behind us footprints on the sands of time.” Well, NORMAN SISISKY left some wonderful footprints along Virginia, here in Washington, D.C., in this Chamber, and in our country.

Our sympathy goes to Rhoda, his four sons, and the rest of his family.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Virginia (Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS).

Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a patriot and true Virginia gentleman, our friend and colleague NORM SISISKY.

The Commonwealth of Virginia lost a great American today with the passing of NORM SISISKY. I had the pleasure of getting to know him when I arrived here in Congress and soon established a friendship and a strong admiration for one of Virginia’s most honorable public servants.

NORM served Virginia with great integrity and honor and consistently put the interest of Virginia ahead of politics. With NORM, it was not a Republican or a Democrat issue. It was a Virginia issue. NORM SISISKY’s leadership within the Virginia delegation will be sorely missed. His unyielding support of our Armed Forces served as an inspiration for all lawmakers who embraced the dedication and sacrifices of our men and women in uniform.

Congressman NORM SISISKY will always be remembered for his service to Virginia and his devotion to the ideals that he held so dear. His family, staff and other loved ones will be in my prayers.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia, Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), the chairman of our Policy and Steering Committee on which Mr. SISISKY served.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN), for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, this body has been diminished by the loss of two very similar Americans, one early in this year, Julian Dixon. Julian was an African American. He was an American. We have now, this morning, lost NORM SISISKY, a Jewish American. He was an American.

Both were similar in their approach. They were not partisan nor small. They were focused on the best interests of their communities, of their State, of their Nation. They were focused on their constituents and the people who served this great land. They were examples of what was made the country great.

I was here when NORM SISISKY came to the Congress of the United States, and because Maryland and Virginia are in the same region we did a lot of work together. NORM SISISKY became my dear and close friend.

NORM SISISKY was an extraordinary individual, with a sometimes perverse sense of humor. He would berate us one time and say, oh, you cannot do that, that is the worst thing in the world, and you knew if you just waited a little bit he was going to say, but I am with you.

He loved to do that. You could go to him individually and counseled and know that you would get the wisdom of a man who had seen life, who had seen both advantage and adversity, and who accommodated both.

NORM SISISKY, Mr. Speaker, as all of us know, had a bout with cancer a few years ago. He faced that challenge with the same kind of courage that he faced life. We believed and he believed that he had overcome that challenge, and he returned to this body to, as the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF), the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN), and his Virginia colleagues have so aptly stated, to contribute mightily to the security of this Nation and to international security.

NORM SISISKY was one of the experts in this House on national security. He was one, as I said before and others have said, who was respected on both sides of the aisle for working in a nonpartisan, nonpolitical way to ensure the strength of our armed services.

In addition to the Maryland-Virginia connection, I have two major Naval facilities in my district, Patuxent Naval Air Station and the Indian Head Naval Ordnance Station.

We as a country have lost a giant, a great patriot and true Virginia gentleman, NORM SISISKY, who worked with him.

We are here today to pay tribute to the Virginia representative from Ocean View, Mr. SCHROCK.

Mr. SCHROCK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a true Virginian and a great American, Congressman NORM SISISKY. Congressman SISISKY has served the Commonwealth of Virginia and our country with great distinction. He defended our Nation during World War II as a sailor in the United States Navy. The people of Petersburg elected NORM to represent them as a member of the Virginia House of Delegates for 10 years. Then in 1969, he went to the U.S. House of Representatives to represent Virginia’s Fourth Congressional District, the district that abuts mine. He became a senior member of the House Committee on Armed Services, where he became one of our military and veterans’ issues.

In the House, he has worked to break bipartisan logjams on issues such as deficit reduction and campaign finance reform. Congressman Sisisky has been recognized as a hard worker and a skilled negotiator.

During his tenure, Congressman SISISKY took a lead in protecting Virginia’s
Naval and military facilities while also working to ensure that military spending decisions strike the proper balance between strategic necessity and fiscal prudence.

Congressman Sisisky has been recognized for his leadership on many issues, such as national security, veterans' affairs, Social Security and Medicare, small business, protecting the environment, eliminating government waste and reducing the deficit. His record of distinguished service to our country and to the people of Virginia demonstrates to all of us his commitment to the values and principles of freedom and public service.

Mr. Speaker, Congressman Sisisky will be missed. I certainly will miss him. To Norm's wife Rhoda, his children, and his staff, I offer heartfelt condolences. Every one of them is in our prayers.

Mr. Moran of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Ortiz), who serves on the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. Ortiz. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Moran), for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, someone once said that if you want to see the future or to see what is ahead of you, you need to get on the shoulders of a giant. Norm Sisisky was a giant of a man. I came to know him very, very well. We were elected both in 1982, sworn into Congress, and his light-hearted personality endeared him to his colleagues on both sides of the aisle.

Norm Sisisky was particularly effective at building coalitions in support of key programs and reaching across the aisle on matters of importance to all Virginians. From ensuring adequate funding for aircraft carriers and submarines to modernizing our weapons systems, he was an ardent voice on the Committee on Armed Services and an ally of every person who wears the uniform of the United States Navy.

Back home, his reputation as an outstanding politician was unparalleled in the Commonwealth. His legacy of constituent service, consensus building and selfless service is a model for all Members of Congress. The people of the fourth district, the Commonwealth of Virginia, and the United States of America have truly benefited from his dedicated service; and he will be sorely missed. Norman was successful in every endeavor, public or private; and we rightly celebrate his memory today. At this time I send my sincerest condolences to Rhoda and the entire Sisisky family.

Mr. Moran of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Reyes), chairman of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus and valued member of the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. Reyes. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Moran), my friend and colleague, for yielding me this time this afternoon.

As we stand here this afternoon and pay tribute to a great American, I want us to reflect on what a great and distinguished individual Norm Sisisky was to all of us. I cannot help but think that when we talk about America's greatest generation, we talk about people like Norm Sisisky.

We talk about people that were not afraid to stand up for this country, were not afraid to stand up for the things that were important to all of us as Americans. I also think about Norm's wit and his humor, which could either cut one down or brighten one's day, depending on what his mood was and what was being discussed.

I can remember one of the first things that I talked to Norm about, or he talked to me about, was early on in my first term when the gentleman from California (Mr. Hunter), another good friend and colleague who is present today, came in and got me to commit to the B-2 bomber. Little did I know that it was a choice between the B-2 bomber and another aircraft carrier. It was not too hard to determine what side Norm Sisisky was on, and he came to me and asked for support. I said, well, I am sorry, but I already committed to the gentleman from California (Mr. Hunter). So he reminded me that there are things that we have to look at in balance, there are things that we have to do as Members of Congress that are important, and there are things and consequences if we do not support the United States Navy or certainly, if we support the Air Force at the expense of the United States Navy.

That is the kind of colleague and friend that he was. He did not hold anything against you. He always was gentle in the way that only he could be in dealing with you along as a new Member of Congress.

I always enjoyed and felt reassured when I went into the hearing room and looked up on the top row and there was Norm Sisisky. There was an individual that one could go to for advice, one could go to for counsel, and the great institutional memory that he had about the things that are important as we sit as members of the Committee on Armed Services.

We talk about people that were not afraid to stand up for this country, were not afraid to stand up for the things that were important to all of us. I cannot help but think that when we talk about America's greatest generation, we talk about people like Norm Sisisky. He was about...
Mr. Speaker, I used to reflect on the fact that NORM was probably the best dresser in Congress, and it always delighted me. He was always the astute and astounded group, wherever I was, that his tie cost more money than my pick-up truck, and it did. In fact, NORM was very kind when he remarked on the fact that I had recently put a new tire on my truck. He was very perceptive, and he saw I had a new tire on that a couple of months ago and he commented on that, and he made me feel very good about it.

NORM was a guy who was so valuable to this country, because he had the purest of American motives, and that was the national interest, at heart and we knew that. So whether one was talking to the Secretary of the Navy or the President of the United States, and he was a guy that would always break the ice. I never did care if it was a high-level meeting, sometimes his irreverent attitude would break the ice, cut through, and we would be much better and the meeting would be much more productive because of that.

So I am going to miss NORM because of that, because he was fun to be around. I enjoyed his company. He was a precious, dear person, and he would always, when he first met you, you could think he was the gruff, tough, rough guy, and all of us in the House understood that we let him think that he thought that he was the rough, tough, gruff guy; but we knew inside he was a class gentleman. He was a precious, dear person that cared and had compassion for all people. I will miss that. I will miss him dearly. Every time that I go back to that seventh row, first seat back there, I will always think of NORM SISISKY. We could find him there frequently.

So I want to take this opportunity to give my condolences to his family and just let them know, I am sure they already know this, but some of us they do not know, but he spoke of his family ready know this, but some of us they do not know, but he spoke of his family to all of us frequently. We know about his children; we know about his wife and his grandchildren. He loved them dearly. I am just honored that I had the opportunity to serve with NORM and consider him one of my friends.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER). Mr. Speaker, I think one thing that I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) for making it possible for us to speak.

I was stunned and saddened earlier this afternoon when I learned about NORM’s passing. He was a good friend. We do not have assigned seats here in the House, but I think everybody in the House knew that NORM SISISKY sat in the second seat from the back on the aisle. Every time we had a series of votes, we would come here and find NORM right there. He was a true and true Democrat, but he never hesitated to reach right across that aisle and work with Republicans on not only national defense issues, but issues of all kinds. He was a man of conscience, and I enjoyed working with him on many things and, above all, he was a straight shooter. You could always trust where you stood with NORM SISISKY right from the start. He would tell you, and if he said he was with you, he was going to stick with you and if he was not with you, he would tell you that right at the outset.

NORM was very proud of his family, his children and his grandchildren; and he talked of them very often. He loved life. He enjoyed every day and had a wonderful sense of humor, as the gentleman from California just indicated, and was somebody who enjoyed stopping by the second seat from the rear back there and talking to NORM on many, many days.

I am going to miss him deeply. I give my deepest sympathy to his family, to his constituents. We have lost truly a great American and someone who will be very hard to replace.

Mr. MORAñ OF Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), a member of the leadership team and a member of the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, this is one of those moments in life where I find myself full of feelings and emotions, and yet at a lack of words to explain how I and we all feel about the loss of NORM SISISKY, our dear friend. Just yesterday I sent NORM a note in which I said, I hope and pray you will be back soon, because I miss not being with you, he would tell you that right at the outset.

As has been said by so many here, NORM SISISKY was a person who took the serious business of this Congress seriously, but yet always did so in good humor, without taking himself too seriously.

In a body where sometimes we do too many times take ourselves and our own actions seriously, it was so refreshing to have someone such as NORM SISISKY, who did have so much power and influence and respect in this body, yet handle his business within the proper perspective.

I will miss NORM SISISKY, my friend. I think America will miss the public servant NORM SISISKY. While he will not be with us here physically in this body, I can say that having served with him for 6 years on the Committee on Armed Services, my children and America's children live in a safer world today because of his contributions, and our grandchildren will live in a safer and better world tomorrow because of NORM SISISKY's contributions.

It has been said that when we leave this world, we leave all behind that we have, but we carry with us all we have given. By that standard NORM SISISKY had much to carry with him in his death, because he gave so much to each of us who were blessed to know him, and to so many Americans who would never have known him by name, but who will surely, as we are here today, benefit from his public service.

To the Sisisky family I extend my prayers, thoughts, and deep gratitude for the sacrifices of not only NORM, but his entire family in the many years of public service.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. LAHOOD).

Mr. LAHOOD. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for the past 2½ years I have had the privilege of serving on the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

Someone mentioned that NORM sat in the back row on the Committee on Armed Services. He sat in the back row next to the gentleman from California (Mr. Conyers) on the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, and he was an extraordinarily knowledgeable individual, contributed so much to the Intelligence Community, and was so well respected by all of the people in the Intelligence Community, whether it was the CIA Director or the folks from the Intelligence Community at the Department of Defense. He was, if not the most respected, one of the most respected people on that committee.

It is kind of ironic that we stand here today to honor NORM, and a few months ago we honored another member of that committee, our friend Julian Dixon from California, both outstanding individuals.

We do not really get to know somebody like NORM until one serves on a committee with him and really understands his depth of knowledge, his intelligence, and his humor.

When I think of NORM, I think of two things: probably the most dapperly-dressed Member of this House. NORM was a dapper fellow; and someone who really cared about the institution, cared about the committees that he served on, particularly the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence; and somebody who was a decent fellow, and probably, more than anything else, a true Southern gentleman in the truest sense of the word, with respect for everyone on both sides, respect for the job, a high degree of integrity.

He will be missed greatly on both sides of the aisle for so much he has contributed to the people of his district, to the State, to the country, and to so many other things he was involved in.

So to the gentlemen from Virginia, Mr. WOLF and Mr. MORAN, I thank them for devoting this time to a wonderful Member of this institution.

Mr. MORAñ OF Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHART), the minority leader of the House.

Mr. GEPHART. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Virginia for yielding to me, and I rise today on behalf of all Members to give our prayers and sympathy and love to NORM SISISKY's family; to say to his constituents and all of his friends that we grieve together in his passing.

It was a shock today to learn of his death. It was unexpected. It came as a shock to many of the blare. It hurts all of us. We are all diminished by his loss. He was a wonderful Member of this House, a wonderful representative of his people in Virginia.

I think the thing that I most remember about him is that he gave so well, that he was able, through this door that he always sat by, he was always happy. He was always upbeat. He was always funny. He always had a wonderful way of putting things that made fun of or light of, in a way, what was going on the floor here in the right way.

He used to kid himself in front of others about the fact that he came from some wealth, but that he voted against his own interests, and that his family would be mad at him because he did that.

He had a love of life and a love of public service that I will never forget. He was a real patriot. He loved this country and he wanted to do better. He wanted us to prosper. He wanted our people to be secure.

He cared a lot about national defense. He cared a lot about our ability to have a strong defense and to have a strong intelligence effort. He asked me to be on the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, and I worked to get him there. He enjoyed his days there. He did a wonderful job there. He added a lot to that effort.

He was always bipartisan. I never heard him say a harsh word of anyone on either side of the aisle. He loved the House. He loved the fact that we decide things here on behalf of 250 million-plus people, and he was humble. He never saw himself as being better than anybody else anywhere in the country, anywhere in the world.

He was a son of Virginia, and he was a son of God. He believed in helping the people that he was sent a here to help. Even though he was elected to the Congress, and he had greater personal wealth than probably most people in the country, he always remembered the people that had it tough and were poor and had a hard way to go.

We are going to miss NORM SISISKY. We grieve with his family, and we pray for their comfort and understanding at this time of great sorrow. We include every Member of this body in grieving the passing of a great American patriot.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS).

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, like all my colleagues, I am just saddened and shocked by the news of the death of my good friend NORM SISISKY who was one of the folks who was kind of like the glue that helped hold this place together.

The minority leader is exactly right, there was not a partisan bone in NORM
SISISKY’s body. I had the pleasure of serving on the Committee on Armed Services with him, and for a short time on the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. Nobody cared about the men and women in every branch of the service as much as NORM SISISKY.

We were just in a hearing on the MWR panel down there, which NORM and I served on for 6½ years together. One of the Air Force generals was telling a story about NORM that is just so typical of him, in which he gave up some of his time during a break where he should have been devoting himself to his family, and he devoted himself to helping some young men and women in the United States Air Force. It just was so typical of NORM because he loved every branch of the service, and just stood for what is right about America.

NORM SISISKY stood out in this body as a man whose integrity and honesty was unparalleled. He was just a great gentleman in every respect, and I see my good friend, the gentleman from California (Mr. CONDIT), sitting over there from California. It is really going to be strange, I say to the gentleman from California, when I come in and I do not see NORM sitting back there with you and the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR) and the other folks, and I do not hear that craggy old voice giving me the devil about something, like he did every time I walked in.

But we are just thankful for the time we were able to serve with NORM, and to his family we certainly extend our heartfelt sympathy. Our prayers and thoughts will continue to be with them.

He was a great American, he was a great friend, a great Member of this body. He will truly be missed.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield such time as I may consume to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), the ranking member of the Committee on the Budget, a man for whom Mr. SISISKY had great respect, not only for the breadth and depth of knowledge on national security affairs, but his own personal integrity.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, NORM and I came here together in 1983, and we sat beside each other for 18 years on the Committee on Armed Services and on several of its subcommittees. He was tough-minded, tough-talking. When he asked questions, there were no punches pulled. Any witness who came before our committee with NORM on the top row had better be on his toes.

But at the same time, he was, as everyone who has spoken here today has said, gracious, generous, thoughtful, a gentleman to his very core. He was always the first to see the humor in everything, always ready with a quip, his ready wit.

He came here rather late in life for a freshman Member of Congress. He stayed. I do not think he ever thought he would be here for 18 years when I first met him in 1983, but he stayed because he loved it.

Not only that NORM knew just what we have testified to here today, he knew he made a difference. He made a difference in this institution, he made a difference in the Armed Forces of the United States, he made a difference in this country.

He took great satisfaction in serving his country. He had great wealth, but I do not think it gave him nearly the pleasure that he got from serving here in the House of Representatives for 18 long years. He was well into his seventies. He was a cancer patient, despite his advancing age, he was in the saddle riding herd literally every day, tireless. He never quitted. He virtually died with his boots on, which I am sure is the way NORM would have wanted it to go.

Sitting beside him all these years, I was privy to his commentaries. When witnesses were testifying, we would get a subtext from NORM SISISKY. He would provide a commentary: where the witness was coming from, where the question was coming from. I used to listen to the witness with one ear and to NORM with the other ear, and marvel at what he knew.

He understood the big picture. He understood the institutional aspects. He understood the Pentagon, with the four military departments, but he also understood the nitty-gritty, because he was out in the field, both in his district, down in Norfolk, and Hampton Roads and Fort Monroe, out in the countryside, learning all the time, and learning as he traveled.

This was not a pleasure trip for him. What he acquired from all of that was just enormous. We have lost a treasure-load of institutional memory with the passage of NORM SISISKY.

The House will go on without NORM, but it will not be quite the same without him. Certainly the top row on the Committee on Armed Services will not be quite the same. The questions will not be as pointed, the inquiry will not be quite as searching, and the glue that holds us together, builds coalitions across the aisles on different issues, will not be quite as binding without NORM there putting the deals together.

It was my pleasure for all these years to know him as a friend. It was my privilege to serve with him as a colleague. My only regret is that I did not have a chance to say goodbye.

But may every young man and young woman in his family, whom he talked about, whom he loved dearly and spoke of often. If it is any consolation to them, I hope they will know that a little of NORM lives in all of us who served with him, who adored and loved him, who emulated him, and will still continue to emulate him. I consider him a model Member of Congress.

They should know and the whole country should know that he served here and made this great institution of the Republic the kind of institution the framers intended for it to be. He was a great American, a great patriot, and we will all miss him deeply.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT).

Mr. BLUNT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) for yielding the time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to speak but for a few minutes here, because I did not know NORM SISISKY nearly as long as so many Members that the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) just talked about that, that long relationship from day 1 with NORM SISISKY. But it was so much of the NORM SISISKY that I have gotten to know in the last 4 years, seeing him sit back there with the gentleman from California (Mr. CONDIT) and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON), my good friend. I just had an opportunity less than a month ago to be on half a dozen military bases with NORM SISISKY over several days and several days where his health never came up. He was out there with the young men and young women who put their lives on the line, who gave of themselves, to our country, as everybody probably in this Chamber has seen him do it one time or another responded in a beaming sort of way when those young sailors, those young airmen and women, young service people of all kinds would come to him at breakfast or a dinner, he knew already many of the concerns they would have, because he was working on trying to solve those problems.

He was a person who saw humor in life, and humor is one of the things that keeps this place going. In fact, whenever we fail to be able to see the human folly of some of the things that we all are a part of, we fail to enjoy life like NORM enjoyed life.

I know on sitting with him on the airplane and the gentlema...
March 29, 2001

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE 4989

And so for the rest of that trip after he told me the story, I would say daddy, it is time to go. Daddy it is time to do what ever it is you think that I was not doing, I was not doing it. But he had that love for people, and there is a big bearish reaching out to others.

He loved the service in this body. He clearly was up for every moment of it. Again, just literally less than 4 weeks ago was in a period of about 4 days and 6 far-flung military installations checking to be sure that the people who are defending our country were getting what they needed and if they were not, get what they needed, trying to figure out how he could help get it for them.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored to have served with him. I am honored to get to be here on the floor today as all of my good friends recognize the service of a great American, of a great patriot, of somebody who really was in so many ways the epitome of what can happen in this country.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ), a member of the Committee on Armed Services, another friend of Mr. SISIKEY's.

Mr. RODRIGUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) for yielding the time to me allowing me this opportunity to speak.

Mr. Speaker, I also want to take this opportunity to express my condolences to the family and to the children. I want to share with you that I had the opportunity for the last 4 years on the Committee on Armed Services to have met NORM SISIKEY.

When I first came, one of the first difficulties that I had, I had lost a base in San Antonio, and I knew that he was very strong, very supportive of depot, and I had the opportunity to make some comments about that. Then going to have some problems with him, because I knew that he felt very strongly on the other side. But I quickly found that he was a gentleman, very respectful, despite the fact that we disagreed on that one issue.

He recognized my situation and understood where I was coming from. I wanted to come today to say thanks to the family having allowed him to serve not only the State of Virginia and his constituency, but the Nation. He is an example of what a Member as NORM was.

When I first came, one of the first things that came from the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. This is the second Member we have lost, as well as a staffer in the past year. Obviously, I am devastated again to lose such a valuable Member as NORM.

To say, as others have said before me, I was watching the monitors as I was coming from another meeting, members of my committee, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. LAHODI) I heard say that NORM was the one who asked the tough questions. It is true.

NORM did ask the tough questions, but he asked them in such a pleasant way, and no matter how well I knew the subject, he would ask NORM. He was Select Committee on Intelligence, he would inevitably surprise me with some question that had not been scripted, that nobody had thought of, right out of the wild blue yonder. He was a great advocate and everybody off guard and that was just his hallmark and his style.

You always had to laugh. I always looked forward when it was time to yield to NORM for his questions. I am going to miss that.

It is true that NORM was an inveterate traveler, did so much business looking after our troops, our equipment, our state of readiness, what was going on around the world. He really cared about the men and women. I do not know how old NORM was, I suspect a little older than I am, and I know that I find that the early mornings seemed pretty early and the late evenings seemed pretty late, but he was always there to come down in the morning for that breakfast with the open breakout group, whoever was there that we were meeting; he was always there ahead of me. It seems like he was always getting more mileage out of the evening than I was too towards the end of the day.

I asked NORM to take a number of side trips with me on committee business, and he was always game. I got him in some mighty small planes in some mighty uncomfortable places in the course of some of those trips. I never heard him complain. He was always game for the next one when we went out, and he sure did his job extremely well.

To Rhoda and the family, Mariel and I will send our deepest condolences and our sympathy. We know you are going to miss him terribly as will all his friends here. The next time I get on that plane and look in NORM's seat, I know that I am going to have the same feelings I have now. It is not fair somehow, but it is what we have to deal with.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM), another friend of Mr. SISIKEY's, specifically a leader of the Blue Dog Coalition and generally a leader of the House as well.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Virginia for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I join with all of my colleagues in expressing our sincere regret at the passing of NORM. I never had an opportunity to serve with him on a committee, but I enjoyed the replay of many of the committee sessions on the Committee on National Security and hearing what had gone on and the tremendous role that NORM played. One thing I never heard was anything that came from the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. He respected that committee a great deal and respected the precedents of that committee. I never sat with him on a committee hearing, but he was a leader of the House as well.

There is no greater criticism that can come, and then come from the heart of NORM SISIKEY, and you take it that way. I always appreciated his concern of the Virginia peanut farmers. He always was asking me as a member of the Committee on Agriculture, was we taking care of my peanut farmers. He had a deep-seated interest in his constituency. He was truly a Member's Member.

There are few of us that can reach the standard that NORM did in bringing a true love for this institution and a true love for the armed services of this country. I know that words cannot truly express our feelings about NORM today.

We will miss him. This body will miss him, but this Member, too. As so many others have said, our hearts and prayers go out to the family of NORM and say we appreciate you sharing him with us. The 16 years that I have had the privilege of knowing and working with him, he has made my life richer for it, and he has made this body richer for it. And we truly, NORM, will miss you.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We know there will be a great many Members at services for NORM, and his spirit will live on in this Chamber as well as all the great accomplishments he achieved for his constituents, for the Commonwealth of Virginia and for the Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the remainder of the time.

Mr. Speaker, in closing I want to thank all the Members for coming, and every word that was said today was accurate. I listened to every word, every
I extend my deepest sympathy to his wife, Rhoda, his four sons, and their families.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I join with my colleagues in expressing our deep sense of loss on the passing of our beloved colleague, the gentleman from Virginia, Mr. SISISKY.

NORM has served in this body for nearly 20 years, and beyond any doubt is one of those Members whose presence made a true difference. NORM was a "gentleman's gentleman", who earned the respect of all of us on both sides of the aisle.

NORM, prior to his Congressional career, was a soft drink and beer distributor. From that experience, he was able to share with all of us what it means to be a small business entrepreneur during the latter part of the 20th century. He shared with us the trials and tribulations of the American small business owner, his sincere belief that the bureaucracy was stifling free enterprise and initiative, and his contention that it was our responsibility to cut through red tape and other burdens upon the average taxpayer. NORM was a natural fit on the Committee on Small Business, and served with great distinction on that body for many years.

NORM SISISKY, as a Navy veteran, was also proud of his service on the Armed Services Committee, and was a font of knowledge and experience on that Committee. He was devoted to assuring our Nation's strong defense.

We extend our deepest condolences to his devoted wife, Rhoda, their four sons, Mark, Terry, Richard and Stuart, and most especially to the people of Virginia's 4th Congressional District, whose loss of a superb representative is shared by all of us as a loss to our nation.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H. Res. 107.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. OTTER). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia? There was no objection.

COMMUNICATION FROM HON. RICHARD A. GEPHARDT, DEMOCRATIC LEADER

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from Richard A. Gephardt, Democratic Leader:

Hon. J. Dennis Hastert,
Speaker of the House, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR Mr. SPEAKER: Pursuant to section 228(d)(1) of the Wendell H. Ford Aviation Investment and Reform Act for the 21st Century (P.L. 106-181), I hereby appoint the following individual to the National Commission to Ensure Consumer Information and Choice in the Airline Industry:

Mr. Thomas P. Dunne, Sr. of Maryland Heights, MO.

Yours Very Truly,

RICHARD A. GEPHARDT.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will now entertain 1-minute speeches.

HONORING REVEREND DR. THURMOND COLEMAN, SR.

(Mrs. NORTHUP asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. NORTHUP. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to recognize someone who has devoted his time and energy to his church and his beliefs. Reverend Dr. Thurmond Coleman, Sr., pastored the First Baptist Church in Jeffersontown, Kentucky for 45 years. Upon his retirement, he was named Pastor Emeritus. Dr. Coleman has served as the Moderator of the Central District Association for the past 6 years, and his tenure will end in July 2001. He is a community leader serving on the Louisville League, the NAACP, and the Kentucky Human Rights Commission. Dr. Coleman is also a civil rights leader bringing about reconciliation between black and white Baptists and among all races and religion.

On Saturday, March 31, 2001, Dr. Coleman will be honored for his hard work and dedication as Moderator of the Central District Baptist Association, which has a membership of 147 churches.

Some individuals such as Dr. Coleman play a vital role in reconciling the divisions in our community and in building the hope of a better future for each person. I am proud to bring your attention to Reverend Dr. Thurmond Coleman, Sr., and all of his achievements.

MENTORING FOR SUCCESS

(Mr. OSBORNE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. OSBORNE. Mr. Speaker, if we could create a program that would reduce the number of students dropping out of school by 53 percent, drug and alcohol abuse by nearly 50 percent, teenage pregnancy by 30 percent, and substantially reduce teenage pregnancy, gang involvement and dropout rates, would this be a desirable program? Obviously, the answer to this question is yes.

Next week, I will introduce the Mentoring For Success Act, establishing a national mentoring program through
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

ACHIEVEMENTS OF CESAR CHAVEZ

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the subject of this Special Order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California? There was no objection.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I introduced a resolution, H. Res. 105, recognizing the achievements of Cesar Chavez, the founder and president of the United Farm Workers of America. It is introduced and supported by the United Farm Workers and supported by all Members of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, and many of my fellow Members of the House of Representatives.

This resolution encourages a Federal holiday for March 31 in honor of Cesar’s birthday. It encourages States to make March 31 a holiday. It encourages schools to incorporate lessons on Cesar Chavez’s life and work into their curriculum and to learn about their curriculum.

Cesar Chavez is a true American hero. He carried the torch for justice and freedom for thousands of impoverished people. He was a beacon of light for many Latinos in the community, a giant of a man. His legacy will live on in our hearts, in our hopes, in our dreams.

Chavez was born near Yuba, Arizona, and grew up in a migrant labor camp. In 1938, the Chavez family had joined some 300,000 migrant workers who followed the crops in California. Migrant workers had no permanent homes. They lived in overcrowded quarters, without bathrooms, electricity, or running water. Can one imagine individuals living without bathrooms, electricity, or running water? Cesar Chavez lived there as a poor individual.

Going to school was not easy for a child of a migrant worker since they are always away and on the move. Can one imagine the impact it has on many of the children who want to get a good quality of education but are moving from one camp to another?

He noticed that the labor contract and landowners exploited the workers. He tried reasoning with farm owners about higher pay and better working conditions. But most of the fellow workers would not support him for fear of losing their jobs.

Yes, people want to obtain jobs and sometimes are not willing to speak up; and sometimes we do need a leader. So we had a leader in Cesar Chavez. As a solitary voice, Chavez had no power, but was willing to stand up and speak out.

In 1944, he joined the United States Navy and served his country, a man who had fought for the same principles that many of us had fought for or served this country. For the freedom that we enjoy, the equality, he went in to preserve that and served in 1944.

Upon returning, he would no longer stand to see the workers being taken advantage of, watching as they worked long hours for low pay, and I state for low pay.

At the age of 35, he left his well-paid job to devote his time to organizing the farm workers into a union, a union that would help improve the quality of life for many individuals.

In the early 1960s, Chavez became co-founder and president of the United States Farm Workers. In 1968, Chavez gained attention as the leader of a nationwide boycott of California table grapes in a drive to achieve labor contracts. In fact, some of us still do not eat grapes even now today, even though that boycott is over.

He led his organization to increase protection for workers, for health and safety, to ban child labor from the fields, to win fair-wage guarantees, and to fight against discrimination in employment and the sexual harassment of female workers.

Chavez also used nonviolent tactics to bring attention to the plight of farm workers. His efforts are a shining example to young people and can provide an invaluable lesson for what he or she believes in if they work hard, perseverance, and people banding together, solidarity and in unity, that changes can come about.

He organized the farm workers to stand together and in one loud voice say, “From this day, we demand to be treated like men. We are to be respected as human beings. We are not slaves, and we are not animals, and we will not work for low wages.

“You live in big farm homes, but we live in boxes. You have plenty to eat while our children must work in our fields for food. You wear good clothing, but we are dressed in rags.”

When one looked at Cesar Chavez and the family and many of the campesinos, farm workers, they did not have what many had. All they wanted was decent wages and good jobs.

“Your wives are free to make good homes, while our wives work in the field along pesticides. Fighting for social justice meant great sacrifices. It was a great sacrifice for many all over the world, all over the United States. He often held hunger strikes to protest the farm workers’ condition. These hunger strikes are believed to have held contribute to his sudden death in 1993.

I attended the funeral where over 50,000 people attended. On September 2, 1994, California enacted a Cesar Chavez Holiday Bill designating March 31 as a State holiday, a measure that I voted for while I was in the State of California in the legislature. This measure is about respect, respect. That is why I have introduced a similar measure here in Congress, respect for a great man who has changed the world by using nonviolence. This is about justice. This is about equality. This is about human dignity and only wanting to live for a better quality of life, not only for himself, but for many others.

The slogan that we often use and have heard is: Si se puede, which means, yes, you can; viva la huelga (long live the struggle); and viva la causa (long live the cause).

Let me tell my colleagues that is why, when we look at this resolution, we say that it is going to happen, and si se puede (it can happen), and one day we will have when we recognize Cesar Chavez.

This is the beginning of the awareness of a great man who has honored our Nation, who has served our country and sacrificed himself for the betterment of others.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ).

Mr. RODRIGUEZ. Mr. Speaker, let me take this opportunity, first of all, to congratulate the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) on his efforts on this resolution. I take pride in being here with him and taking this opportunity as I rise to honor an insured and beloved man, Cesar Estrada Chavez.

Today we honor him in anticipation of his birthday and ask the Members of the House to pay tribute and pay respect to a man who brought dignity to every man and woman and child in this country as we struggled from the fields.

Chavez was bestowed one of the greatest honors when he was introduced into the U.S. Department of Labor's Labor Hall of Fame. This honor is solely reserved for Americans whose contributions to the field of labor have enhanced the quality of lives for millions. Not only did he enhance the lives of millions, but he touched deeply those individuals with compassion and commitment and, as we used to refer, to la causa (the cause).

Many of my colleagues may remember one particular time when he had 25 days of fast that was conducted by Chavez, which reaffirmed the United Farm Workers' commitment to non-violence.

For those of us who lived through that period of time, we heard of the great odds that Chavez faced as he led the successful 5-year strike and boycott. Through these boycotts, Chavez was able to forge a national support of coalitions of unions, church groups, students, minorities, and consumers.

By the end of the boycotts, everyone knew the chant that unified all groups, si se puede, yes we can. It was a chant of encouragement, pride, and dignity.

Although we knew him for his advocacy on behalf of farm workers, he was influential in other areas. He helped communities mobilize by assisting them with voter registration drives and insisting that the minority communities had just as much right to have equitable access to quality education.

The migrant schools that we find today is a tribute to his work and his hard efforts in assuring that those youngsters, those children of those workers should have access to a good quality education. He helped to mobilize by continuing to move forward in these areas.

Many of us today look to Chavez for the inspiration even here in the House of Congress. Those of us who continue his fight to make sure that the voice of those voiceless is heard and that the dignity that is deserved by all laborers, no matter what their work, should continue.

America has seen few leaders like Chavez. To honor his work and deeds, I ask each Member to be supportive of these efforts and this resolution.

I want to just briefly also just talk about the fact that here was a man who organized individuals, very nonviolent, very unassuming. Yet he was a giant of a man.

I know ArtRodriguez who has followed after him. I had the pleasure of being at St. Mary's University with him as a student. To me, Cesar Chavez meant a great deal. Because as I started to get my degree in pharmacy, I changed and got involved in the movement during that time, even changed my degree to political science and in other fields and got involved in politics.

My life was also involved in the boycotts, in lettuce as well as the grapes. That is how I met my wife, Carolina.

Mr. Speaker, there is a great deal that he brought to us, and that was the fight and dignity that every worker should have, that every individual should be treated in an equitable manner. In terms of the struggle we see today, Mr. Speaker, I am saying, if you want to bring in a bracero program or a guest worker program, you make sure that you treat those people in the same way as you treat the 300,000 that we just brought over with high-tech technology and degrees, to make sure that they get treated in the same manner.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA), and the gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER), who have brought forward year after year resolutions and efforts in creating a holiday for Cesar Chavez.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER).

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) for this special order and for his resolution, H. Res. 105, that will bring us toward a great national recognition of Chavez's first fast. We call today in the strongest possible terms for Cesar Chavez's birthday on March 31 to be recognized as a Federal holiday. This national hero should be recognized with a national holiday. This Nation, this world, lost a great civil rights leader nearly 8 years ago, when Cesar Chavez died after a tireless struggle for social change.

March 31 is a State holiday in my State of California, and countless schools, roads, libraries and other public institutions have been named after Cesar Chavez. It is now time that the entire Nation honor his enduring legacy with a Federal holiday.

We will hear tonight the poignant story of Cesar Chavez's life. I want to talk about the impact of his life on my life, and on the life of my constituents, and on the life and soul of this Nation.

He brought dignity and respect to farm workers who organized themselves and became an inspiration to all people engaged in human rights struggles throughout the world. It is time we pay him the respect that he deserves.

His work was holistic, helping to empower farm workers on their basic rights. Influenced by the writings of Gandhi and other proponents of non-violence, he began to register his fellow farm workers to vote and then to organize contracts for farm workers, rights to a safe workplace and a just wage.

Through the use of a grape boycott, Cesar Chavez, Delores Huerta, and others in the fledgling United Farm Workers were able to secure the first union contracts for farm workers in the United States. These contracts provided farm workers with the basic services that most workers take for granted today, services such as clean drinking water and sanitary facilities.

Because of Cesar Chavez's fight to enforce child labor laws, farm workers could also be certain that their children would not be working side by side with them and would instead attend the schools that he helped to establish.

His work was an example of how to mobilize communities of California and Arizona.

He worked in urban areas, organized voter registration drives, brought complaints against mistreatment by government agencies. He taught community members how to deal with governmental, school and financial institutions and empowered many to seek further education and politics.

During a time of great social upheaval, he was sought out by people from all walks of life to help bring calm with his nonviolent practices. Our country's leaders joined Cesar Chavez literally, and often figuratively, in prayers and acts of solidarity in his many fasts for justice.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., sent Cesar Chavez a message on the occasion of Chavez's first fast. Dr. King told him, "Our separate struggles are really one. A struggle for freedom, for dignity and for humanity."

There are countless stories of judges, engineers, lawyers, teachers, church leaders, organizers and other hard-working professionals who credit Cesar Chavez as the inspiring force in their lives. I count Cesar Chavez and his message as something that I value, and among his most strong early influences.

Cesar Chavez will be remembered for his tireless commitment to improving the plight of farm workers, children and the poor throughout the United States, and for the inspiration his heroic efforts gave to so many Americans.

Mr. Speaker, I have introduced legislation in every Congress since 1995 to create a Federal holiday to honor Cesar Chavez, and, along with the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA), to teach all of America about Cesar Chavez. Surely we can do this and pass such a resolution.
Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to cosponsor H. Con. Res. 105 or H. Con. Res. 3. We must make sure that we honor him from this time forward by declaring March 31 as a Federal Holiday to commemorate his birth. We should in Congress join all of those who have paid reverence to Cesar Chavez and to make sure that we honor him today. We will find ways to continue to honor and celebrate his memory.

Mr. Speaker, thank you to the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) for his efforts tonight.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Moran).

Mr. Moran of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, Cesar Chavez was one of the greatest labor leaders of our time. His courage was unbelievable. Before he stood up to some of the most selfish and apparently uncaring farmers, he recognized that there were thousands, hundreds of thousands of people who were absolutely powerless, had no recourse, no redress for their grievances, were being exploited in our economy, particularly the agriculture economy.

Mr. Speaker, Cesar Chavez united them. We as a Nation, many of us, boy-cotted grapes and lettuce and felt that we were part of a movement greater than ourselves, and, in fact, in retrospect it was.

Many good farm workers were even worse treated. They were indentured servants. They would travel up the migrant stream, their children would have to follow with them. The children would get no education. The few children of farm workers who got an education, it would not be from bilingual teachers, it would be in hovels off the road where no one would see them. They were huts, really, that were no more than chicken coops, many of them. They would have to borrow money for their rent and food and necessities. The harder they worked, many farmers would reduce the piece rates so they would always be in debt. They would have to come back the next year to pay off their debt. This became a tradition, an institution of exploitation.

Cesar Chavez gave these families hope. He was in the American tradition. I know there are still many families who hate him today for the fact that he turned around a system that was greatly to their benefit, but this was a man that was American in all of the finest traditions. We look to him for inspiration, and I would hope that we will find ways to continue to honor him.

Many of the children and grandchildren of the families that he organized now have a good education, have broken into the middle class, and have control over their lives, and they will soon forget why it is that they have a piece of the American pie now. They have some control over their lives. But in many instances, it is because of the courage, the character, the leadership of Cesar Chavez.

So I thank the distinguished gentleman from California for being here, and his colleagues from Texas and California, and I know there are many other colleagues, if the House was still in session, who would be here, but who had to leave. This House bears a real debt of gratitude to Cesar Chavez, as does the Nation.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Moran). As the gentleman noted, there are many individuals that would have been here to speak, as many individuals have signed on as cosponsor of this particular legislation. I think it is important for all of us to recognize the importance of why we are doing this. We are doing it for an individual who has given so much of his life for this country, for this area; his leadership, his vision, his struggle to hold up many of the poor and disadvantaged, his inspiration, and what it means to all of us.

For some of us, unless we worked out in the fields, we really do not understand what it is like. I happened to have picked peaches and tomatoes out in the field, and let me tell my colleagues, it is not the best job. And when you see a lot of the people out there that are suffering, and you see the working conditions of individuals, and you see the children, you can see the emotion and the feeling of many of the children that are out there that are being affected.

What Cesar Chavez wanted to do was to make sure that the children also had a chance of education. He said the children need a better education. He went through 36, 38 different schools, and so he said, I want the children to enjoy the same life that other children have. I want to make sure they have the opportunity.

When he looked in their eyes, when he looked at their clothes, and realized their opportunities, he could see the feeling of what was expressed in the dignity and the respect that he wanted for all children, for all individuals.

When he dealt with the conditions and the working conditions, he wanted to make sure that they had a better opportunity not only for themselves, but for their families. He wanted to make sure they could put food on the table and they could take care of their clothes and their housing, having better conditions, so they would not have to worry about not having their health, not having to get up with pain to go back to work the next day because there was the service.

He wanted a better life, and he gave a lot of himself. He gave of himself for many individuals. Our Nation should be grateful for a great hero and a great American, a veteran, a leader, a visionary, an inspiration, a man that we all look to.

It is hard to be a leader, Mr. Speaker. It is hard to really be involved. It is easy to sit on the sidelines and say it is nice if someone does lead, but he was willing to pick up the banner. And now Arturo Rodriguez has carried that struggle and banner, carried it forth to make sure equality is there.

Another person along with him was Delores Huerta, who led in the struggle and the fight. She is ill today. Who knows why she is ill today and in the hospital. It could be because of all of the involvement she had, the struggles and the sacrifices she made; and many other individuals.

Mr. Speaker, we need to support this resolution encouraging a Federal holiday for March 31 in honor of Cesar Chavez’s birthday, to encourage States to make March 31 a holiday, to encourage schools to incorporate a lesson on Cesar Chavez, because if they do not know his contributions, what he has done, then we are lost, because it is by learning each others’ customs and traditions and our heritage that we know the struggle of individuals and we accept history. We need to work that into our curriculum.

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to add my voice in honor of Cesar Chavez.

The son of a migrant farm worker, Cesar Chavez was not born into greatness. However, he became a great leader in our nation’s continuing fight for labor and civil rights.

Cesar Chavez is best remembered as the founder and president of the United Farmworkers of America. The contributions of Cesar Chavez, however, were not limited to the fields. His voice resonated across America, particularly in the East Los Angeles neighborhoods where I was born and raised and now am proud to represent in Congress.

Cesar Chavez was part of the Latino empowerment movement of the 40’s. Even today his memory inspires Latinos to be activists at the community, state and national levels.

Cesar Chavez understood that participation was the greatest tool to implement changes in our society. He once said, It is possible to become discouraged about the injustice we see everywhere. But God did not promise us that the world would be humane and just. He gives us the gift of life and allows us to choose the way we will use our limited time on earth. It is an awesome opportunity.

The world is a better place because of the work of Cesar Chavez. The best tribute we can pay is to find opportunities for our own lives to continue the work in the fight for civil rights, and to encourage others to join us.

Ms. SOLIS. Mr. Speaker, Cesar Chavez is one of the most well-known and respected Proves this House Resolution 105 to create a Congressional Record—House adjournment

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

Ms. BALDWIN (at the request of Mr. GEPhardt) for today on account of a death in the family.

Leave of Absence

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Ms. BALDWIN (at the request of Mr. GEPhardt) for today on account of a death in the family.

Special Orders Granted

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

The following Members (at the request of Mr. RODRIGUEZ) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:

Mr. PALLONE, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. LANGEVIN, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. SKELTON, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, for 5 minutes, today.

The following Members (at the request of Mr. OSBORNE) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:

Mr. GOSs, for 5 minutes, today.
EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, the DTC.

Under clause 8 of rule XII, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

1397. A letter from the Secretary, Department of Defense, transmitting a letter on the approved retirement of Lieutenant General William Haupert; and his advancement to the grade of lieutenant general on the retired list; to the Committee on Armed Services.

1398. A letter from the Secretary, Department of Defense, transmitting a letter on the approved retirement of Lieutenant Jack W. Klimp, United States Marine Corps, and his advancement to the grade of lieutenant general on the retired list; to the Committee on Armed Services.

1399. A letter from the Acting Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting notification of a proposed issuance of an export license to Canada [Transmittal No. DTC 029–01], pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(c); to the Committee on Armed Services.

1400. A letter from the Acting Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting notification of a proposed issuance of an export license to Belgium [Transmittal No. DTC 031–01], pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(c); to the Committee on International Relations.

1401. A letter from the Acting Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting notification of a proposed issuance of an export license to Japan [Transmittal No. DTC 030–01], pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(c); to the Committee on International Relations.

1402. A letter from the Acting Assistant Secretary for Legislative Affairs, Department of State, transmitting notification of a proposed issuance of an export license to Norway [Transmittal No. DTC 070–01], pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(c); to the Committee on International Relations.

1404. A letter from the Chief Financial Officer, Export-Import Bank, transmitting the fiscal year 2001 audited financial statements to the Inspector General; to the Committee on International Relations.

1405. A letter from the Special Assistant to the President for Legal Affairs, General Counsel and Corporate Secretary, Legal Services Corporation, transmitting a copy of the annual report in compliance with the Government Corporation Act during the calendar year 2000, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(1); to the Committee on Government Reform.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XII, public bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred, as follows:

H.R. 7. A bill to provide incentives for charitable contributions by individuals and businesses, to improve the effectiveness and efficiency of government program delivery to individuals and families in need, and to enhance the ability of low-income Americans to gain financial security by building assets; to the Committee on Ways and Means, and in addition to the Committee on the Judiciary.

H.R. 9. A bill to permit the United States Secret Service to make such title 22 U.S.C. 2776(c) provisions fully applicable to the judicial branch of the Government; to the Judiciary.

H.R. 1287. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act with respect to the Vaccines Injury Compensation Program; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

H.R. 1289. A bill to amend title 49, United States Code, relating to the airport noise and access review program; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

H.R. 1290. A bill to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to prohibit forced overtime hours for certain licensed health care employees; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

H.R. 1291. A bill to amend title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to make such title fully applicable to the judicial branch of the Federal Government; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

H.R. 1292. A bill to amend the Government Corporation Act during the calendar year 2000, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(1); to the Committee on Government Reform.
H.R. 1291. A bill to amend the title 38, United States Code, to increase the amount of educational benefits for veterans under the Montgomery GI Bill; to the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs; and in addition to the Committee on Armed Services, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

H.R. 1292. A bill to require the President to develop and implement a strategy for homeland security; to the Committee on Armed Services, and in addition to the Committees on Transportation and Infrastructure, the Judiciary, and Intelligence (Permanent Select), for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. NEY (for himself, Mrs. LOUV, Mr. BACA, Mr. DAVIS of Indiana, Mr. BROWN of Florida, Mr. OWENS, Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi, Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, Mr. JACKSON of Illinois, Mr. WYNN, Mr. FORD, Mr. RUSH, Mr. PATTAN, and Ms. MILLIEN-DONALD):

H.R. 1293. A bill to amend the Federal Deposit Insurance Act to ensure the continued stability of the Federal deposit insurance system with respect to banks and savings associations, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Mr. NEY (for himself, Ms. MCKINNEY, Mr. SMITH of New Jersey, Mr. CRAMER, Mr. SHERMAN, Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD, Mr. WEXLER, Mr. TAYLOR of New York, Mr. MANZANIELLO, Mr. RANGEL, and Mr. REYER):

H.R. 1294. A bill to amend titles 10 and 14, United States Code, to provide for the use of gold in the metal content of the Medal of Honor; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. BACA (for himself, Mr. GONZALEZ, Mr. KELDER, Ms. CARSON of Indiana, and Mr. GCUCCHI):

H.R. 1295. A bill to authorize the Secretary of Health and Human Services to make matching grants available to the States in order to encourage the establishment of State license plate programs to provide funds for the treatment of breast cancer, for research on such cancer, and for educational activities regarding such cancer; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mrs. BONO (for herself, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. DELAHUNT, Mr. SENSENBRENNER, Mr. BRADY of Texas, Mr. TERRY, Mr. SHADEG, Mr. BUYER, Mr. ABERCHOMICHE, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Mr. BALDACCHI, Mr. HASTINGS of Florida, Mr. SHIMKUS, Mr. PRYCE of Ohio, Mr. DOOLITTLE, Mr. UDALL of New Mexico, Mr. ISAKSON, Mr. GREEN of Wisconsin, Mr. GONZALEZ of California, Mr. FOREST, Mr. MILLER of California, Ms. NORTON, Mr. SIMPSON, Mr. SHERWOOD, Mr. MICA, and Ms. DELAURO):

H.R. 1296. A bill to amend chapter 1 of title 9, United States Code, to provide for greater fairness in the arbitration process relating to motor vehicle franchise contracts; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BRADY of Texas:

H.R. 1297. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to provide for the expansion, intensification, and coordination of the activities of the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute with respect to research on pulmonary hypertension; to the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

By Mr. BRADY of Texas (for himself and Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut):

H.R. 1298. A bill to provide for the expansion of human clinical trials qualifying for the orphan drug credit; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CAPUANO (for himself, Mr. SMITH of Georgia, Mr. HASTINGS of Florida, Mr. MILLIEN, Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas, Mr. WATT of North Carolina, Mrs. DAVIES of Illinois, Mr. MEERS of New York, Mr. CLYURN, Mr. TOWNS, Ms. CLAY, Ms. MCKINNEY, Mr. BISHOP, Ms. BROWN of Florida, Mr. OWENS, Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi, Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, Mr. JACKSON of Illinois, Mr. WYNN, Mr. FORD, Mr. RUSH, Mr. PATTAN, and Ms. MILLIEN-DONALD):

H.R. 1300. A bill to amend part D of title XV of the Social Security Act to provide grants to States to encourage campaigns to promote responsible fatherhood skills, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CULBERNE:

H.R. 1301. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to apply the capital gains tax rates to capital gains earned by designated settlement funds; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DUNCAN:

H.R. 1302. A bill to prohibit certain foreign assistance to countries that consistently oppose the United States position in the United Nations General Assembly; to the Committee on International Relations.

By Mr. DUNN:

H.R. 1303. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to clarify the rules relating to lease construction allowances and to contributions to the capital of retailers; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ENGLISH (for himself, Mr. TANNER, Mr. McCOUG, Mr. THURMAN, Mr. McTAVISH, Mr. FORD, Mr. RUSH, Mr. DAVIS of Florida, Mr. VAN HOEVEN, Mr. INGLIS, Mr. ROBINSON, Mr. BONILLA, Mr. BONOR, Mrs. BONO, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. COOKSEY, Mr. COX, Mr. CUNNINGHAM, Ms. DUNN, Mr. EHRlich, Mr. POLIO, Mr. MILLER of California, Ms. NORTON, Mr. SIMPSON, Mr. SHOSHAN, Mr. WHALEY, Mr. HINOJOSA, Mr. HOLDEN, Mr. ISAKSON, Mr. JEFFERSON, Mr. JOHNSTON of Texas, Mrs. KELLY, Mr. KING, Mr. BURGESS, Mr. McCARTHY, Mr. MCCLINNIS, Mr. GARY G. MILLER of California, Mr. NORTON, Mr. NEY, Mr. OTTIE, Mr. POMO, Ms. PYCE of Ohio, Mr. RAHALL, Mr. REYNOLDS, Mr. ROHRABACHER, Mr. SANDLIN, Mr. SEXTON, Mr. SCHAEFFER, Mr. SESSIONS, Ms. SHOWS, Mr. SCHROCK, Mr. SIMPSON, Mr. SMITH of New Jersey, Mr. TANCKEIDO, Mr. TERRY, Mr. TURNBERRY, Mr. TOOMEY, Mr. WALSH, and Mr. QUINN):

H.R. 1305. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to reduce the tax on beer to its pre-1991 level; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GUPTERREZ (for himself, Mr. LEWIS, Mr. LEE, Mr. ROUKE, Mr. BURDEN, Mr. BROWN of California, Mr. SMITH of Ohio, Mr. BERRY, Mr. MILLER of California, Mr. CANTOR, Mr. CULBERNE, Mr. DAVIS of Florida, Mr. OWENS, Mr. REYES, Mr. MILLER of California, Mr. FROST, Ms. SOLIS, Mrs. MALONEY of New York, Mr. BICERRE, Mr. REYES, Mr. CUMMINGS, Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas, Mr. HONDA, Mr. ACEVEDO-VILA, Mr. DEUTSCH, Mr. SERRANO, Ms. SCHAKOWSKY, Ms. WYNN, Mr. CAPUANO, and Ms. LOPERFONE):

H.R. 1306. A bill to amend the Electronic Fund Transfer Act to require additional disclosures relating to transfers involving international transactions; to the Committee on Financial Services.

By Mr. HOYER (for himself and Mr. WYNN):

H.R. 1307. A bill to amend chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code, to increase the Government contribution for Federal employee health insurance; to the Committee on Government Reform.

By Mr. HULSHOF (for himself and Mr. BISHOP):

H.R. 1308. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow tax-free expenditures from education individual retirement accounts for elementary and secondary school expenses, to increase the maximum annual amount of contributions to such accounts, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. JOHNSON of Connecticut (for herself, Mr. BLUMENAUER, Mrs. WILSON, Mr. McGOVERN, Mr. SIMMONS, Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California, Ms. MCCINNIS, Mr. CHESWORTH, Mr. HINOJOSA, and Mr. MALONEY of Connecticut):

H.R. 1309. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to encourage contributions by individuals of capital gain real property for conservation purposes, to encourage
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

March 29, 2001

4997

Mr. ROYBAL-ALLARD (for himself, Mr. ORTIZ, Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN, Mr. PASCRELL, Mr. VELAZQUEZ, and Mr. ROGERS): H.J. Res. 22. A joint resolution memorializing fallen firefighters by lowering the American flag to half-staff in honor of the National Fallen Firefighters Memorial Service in Emmitsburg, Maryland; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SERRANO (for himself, Mr. REYES, Ms. ROYVAL-ALLARD, Mr. ORTIZ, Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN, Mr. PASTOR, Mr. BECKER, Mr. BONILLA, Mr. DIAZ-BALART, Mr. GONZALEZ, Ms. SANCHEZ, Mr. HERNANDEZ, Mr. VELAZQUEZ, Mr. HINOJOSA, Mr. ROGERS, Ms. SANCHEZ, Mr. BACA, Mr. GONZALEZ, Mrs. NAPOLITANO, Ms. SOLES, Mr. ACUÑA-VILA, and Mr. HOYER): H. Res. 22. A resolution enacting the revised version of the House resolution entitled "Hispanic Americans in Congress"; to the Committee on House Administration.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE
March 29, 2001
H. Res. 107. A resolution expressing the condolences of the House of Representatives and members of the Armed Forces for the death of the Honorable Norman Sisisky, a Representative from the Commonwealth of Virginia; considered and agreed to.

By Mr. WOLF:
H. Res. 108. A resolution expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that Mary Ann Winchell, a Representative of the United States during the Civil War; to for her service as a nurse and scout in the United States Army during the Civil War; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. TOWNS:
H. Res. 109. A resolution recognizing the zookeepers, handlers, and animal care providers at the Brookfield Zoo in Chicago, Illinois, for their commitment to animal care, their commitment to the zoo, their commitment to the community, and their commitment to the environment.

By Mr. SMITH of New Jersey (for him-
Mr. Matsui, Mr. Raibert, Ms. Lee, Mr. Lucas of Oklahoma, and Mrs. McCarthy of New York.

H.R. 868: Mr. Andrews, Mr. Baldacci, Mr. Edwards, Mr. Sensenbrenner, Mr. Carson of Oklahoma, Mr. Fehlinghuyser, Mr. Thompson of Mississippi, Mr. Udall of Colorado, Mr. Ramstad, Mr. Manzullo, Mr. Blumenauer, Mr. Wats of Oklahoma, Mr. Gibson, Mr. Costello, Mrs. Roukema, and Mr. Ballenger.

H.R. 976: Mr. Tierney.

H.R. 888: Ms. Schakowsky.

H.R. 913: Mr. Garcia.

H.R. 918: Mr. Wexler, Mr. Farr of California, Mr. Wu, Mr. Boucher, Ms. Schakowsky, Mr. Kucinich, Mrs. Nortut, Mr. Holt, Mr. Udall of New Mexico, Mr. Sandlin, Ms. Lofgren, Ms. Eshoo, Mr. Tierney, and Mr. Davis of Illinois.

H.R. 928: Mr. Baldwin.

H.R. 950: Mr. Boucher.

H.R. 984: Mr. Udall of New Mexico and Mr. Smith of Washington.

H.R. 986: Mr. Allen, Mr. Holden, Mr. Blagojevich, Mr. Capuano, and Mrs. Mink of Hawaii.

H.R. 959: Mr. Walden of Oregon and Ms. Hooley of Oregon.

H.R. 970: Ms. Schakowsky, Ms. McCollum, and Mr. Blagojevich.

H.R. 984: Mr. Weller, Mr. Bachus, Mr. Grucci, Mr. Hayworth, Mr. Crane, Mr. Cardin, and Mr. Young of Alaska.

H.R. 985: Mr. Pickering.

H.R. 990: Mr. Hulshof, Mr. Doyle, Ms. McKinney, and Mr. Boyd.

H.R. 993: Mr. Deal of Georgia.

H.R. 1001: Mr. DeFazio.

H.R. 1011: Mr. Brady of Pennsylvania, Mr. Walsh, Mr. Inslee, Mr. Oberstar, Mrs. Emerson, Mr. Boucher, Mr. Lipinski, and Ms. Woolsey.

H.R. 1017: Mr. Wolf.

H.R. 1020: Mr. Mica, Mr. Sweeney, Mr. Peterson of Pennsylvania, Mr. Neal of Massachusetts, Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Mascara, and Mr. Allen.

H.R. 1026: Mr. Schrock and Mrs. Jones of Ohio.

H.R. 1035: Mr. Abercrombie, Mr. Gonzalez, Mr. Evans, Mr. Wynns, and Mr. Langvin.

H.R. 1043: Mr. Pallone, Mr. Frank, Ms. Woolsey, and Mr. Capuano.

H.R. 1044: Mr. Pallone, Mr. Frank, and Ms. Woolsey.

H.R. 1084: Mr. Green of Wisconsin.

H.R. 1198: Mr. Fehlinghuyser and Mr. Matsui.

H.R. 1090: Mr. Horn, Mr. Borski, Mr. Lantos, and Mr. Clement.

H.R. 1192: Mr. Simpson, Mr. Graves, Mr. Kaptur, Mr. Schaffer, Mr. Baldacci, Mr. Moran of Kansas, Mr. Blagojevich, Mr. Thompson of Mississippi, Mr. Nethercutt, and Mr. Riley.

H.R. 1094: Mr. Simpson, Mr. Graves, Mr. Kaptur, Mr. Schaffer, Mr. Sessions, Mr. Baldacci, Mr. Moran of Kansas, Mr. Blagojevich, Mr. Thompson of Mississippi, Mr. Nethercutt, and Mr. Riley.

H.R. 1197: Mr. weldon of Florida, Mr. Gillchrest, Ms. DeLauro, and Mr. Capuano.

H.R. 1100: Mr. Ryun of Kansas.

H.R. 1109: Mr. Graham, Mr. Watkins, Mr. Souder, Mr. Hall of Texas, and Mr. Schrock.

H.R. 1110: Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Payne.

H.R. 1111: Mr. Pallone.

H.R. 1112: Mr. DeFazio.

H.R. 1120: Mr. Frost and Mr. Kucinich.

H.R. 1130: Mr. Frost.

H.R. 1135: Mr. Kucinich and Mr. McGovern.

H.R. 1136: Mr. Taylor of Mississippi, Mr. Frost, Mr. Bar of Georgia, Mr. Holden, Ms. Woolsey, and Mr. Ganske.

H.R. 1140: Mr. Osborne, Mr. Clay, Mr. Krens, Mr. Etheridge, Mrs. Morella, Mr. Pallone, Mr. Lewis of Kentucky, Mr. Boucher, Mr. Wicker, and Mr. Lucas of Oklahoma.

H.R. 1170: Mrs. Morella, Mr. Hinchey, and Mr. Frank.

H.R. 1179: Mr. Kennedy of Minnesota.

H.R. 1192: Mr. Borski and Mr. McGovern.

H.R. 1193: Mr. Hastings of Florida and Mr. DoLitttle.

H.R. 1196: Mr. Isakson, Mrs. Bono, Mr. Chabot, Mr. Paul, Mr. Filner, Mr. Menkus of New York, Mr. Bilirakis, Mr. Chambless, Mr. Hastings of Florida, Mr. Engel, Mr. Udall of New Mexico, Mr. Schrock, Mr. Pombo, Mr. Heslep, and Mr. Bachus.

H.R. 1201: Mr. Davis of Illinois, Ms. Kilpatrick, and Ms. Carson of Indiana.

H.R. 1212: Mr. Johnson of Illinois.

H.R. 1215: Mr. Deal of Georgia.

H.R. 1242: Mr. Range.

H.R. 1254: Mr. McNulty, Mr. Oberstar, Mr. Baldacci, and Mr. McHugh.

H.R. 1273: Mr. Guteneicht.

H.J. Res. 13: Mr. Honda.

H.J. Res. 27: Mr. Gooze.

H.J. Res. 36: Mr. McIntyre, Mr. Sherwood, and Mr. Ryan of Wisconsin.

H. Con. Res. 20: Mr. Rothman, Mrs. Roukema, Mr. Goodlatte, and Mr. Langevin.

H. Con. Res. 23: Mr. Akin.

H. Con. Res. 45: Ms. Woolsey, Mr. Engel, Mr. Tancredo, and Mr. Moore.

H. Con. Res. 52: Mr. Rothman, Mr. Visclosky, Mr. McGovern, and Mrs. Maloney of New York.

H. Con. Res. 72: Mr. Rohrabacher, Mr. Ryan of Wisconsin, Mr. Show, and Mr. Paleologos.

H. Con. Res. 73: Mr. Blumenauer, Mr. Bar of Georgia, Mr. Platt, Mrs. Northup, Mr. Gilman, and Mr. Lipinski.

H. Con. Res. 81: Ms. McKinney, Ms. Baldwin, Mr. George Miller of California, Mr. Holden, and Mr. McGovern.

H. Res. 17: Mr. Stark, Mr. McDermott, Mr. George Miller of California, and Ms. Baldwin.

H. Res. 18: Mr. George Miller of California, Ms. Solis, Mr. Kind, Mr. Markey, Ms. Brown of Florida, Mr. Hinchey, and Mr. Owens.

H. Res. 56: Mr. Gilman.

H. Res. 87: Mrs. Christensen, Mr. Moore, Mr. Acevedo-Vila, and Ms. Sanchez.

H. Res. 97: Mrs. CAPPS, Mr. Serrano, Mr. Wynns, Mr. Lewis of Georgia, Mr. Ross, Mr. Payne, Mr. Crowley, Ms. Rivers, Mr. Frost, Mr. Ackerman, Mr. Hinchey, Mr. Owens, Mr. Peterson of Minnesota, Mr. McNulty, Mrs. Christensen, Mr. Langevin, and Ms. Woolsey.
The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable JEFF SESSIONS, a Senator from the State of Alabama.

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Sovereign God, help us to know what we mean when we call You our Sovereign. May this name for You, used so frequently by our Founding Fathers and Mothers, become an experienced assurance in our lives. Abigail Adams' own words written to her husband John on June 20, 1776, become our motto: "God will not forsake a people engaged in so right a cause, if we remember His loving kindness." O Divine Master, help us to be engaged in causes that You have assigned and never forget Your faithfulness.

Believe in Your sovereignty gives us a sense of dependence that leads to true independence. All that we have and are is Your gift. When we are totally dependent on You for guidance and strength, we become completely free of fear and anxiety. What You guide, You provide. Trust in Your sovereignty provides supernatural power to accomplish what You give us to do for Your glory. And acceptance of Your sovereignty gives us courage. This is Your Chamber. It is holy ground; keep this Senate house with a member of the Democratic party as Acting President pro tempore. The acting majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, today the Senate will resume consideration of the DeWine amendment regarding issue advocacy ads. There will be up to 15 minutes of debate prior to a vote at 9:45. Following the vote, Senator HARKIN will be recognized to offer an amendment regarding volunteer spending limits. By previous consent, there will be up to 2 hours of debate on the amendment. Some should be aware that the vote on the Harkin amendment is expected to occur prior to noon today.

Further amendments will be offered throughout the day. There will be numerous votes, with the goal of completing action on the bill by this evening.

I yield the floor.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I have been in contact with the two managers of the bill, and I have indicated that Senator DODD and I have worked to cut down the list. We have several amendments. I think there has been a civil debate in this 2-week period of time. There have been very few quorum calls in effect. We are going to do what we can.

I alert everyone, to finish this bill today is going to be extremely difficult. We had 21 amendments yesterday on this side. We are down now to about 11. We picked up two during the night. I am sure most of them will work with time limits on the amendments. But that having been said, it is going to be very difficult to finish today. I think the leadership should consider we will have to have something else either going into tomorrow or Saturday or finishing next week.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I must say while the amendments seem to be multiplying on the other side, they are vanishing on this side. There are a couple of amendments, but there is really only one, I think, that has any serious drama attached to it, and that is the nonseverability amendment which we hope to vote on later today, to be offered by Senator Frist, in coordination with a member of the Democratic Party from the other side of the aisle. I say to my friend, the Democratic whip, we don’t have many amendments left to go over here, so we may at some point just be dealing with Democratic amendments.

Mr. REID. We will do our best to cooperate with the manager of the bill.

Mr. MCCAIN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. MCCONNELL. I am happy to yield.

Mr. MCCAIN. Over the last 2 weeks, literally every day I have been standing on the floor with the Senator from Kentucky and the Senator from Nevada saying we are going out early, we have a lot of amendments to go, and we need to get this done, and everybody wants to get it done by the end of this week, particularly by this evening. Apparently that is going to be very difficult to do.

My suggestion to the Senator from Kentucky and the leadership on both sides is stay in tonight until we get it done or—that is my first choice. My second choice would be tomorrow and then on Saturday. I think we are all aware that the leadership wants to move to the budget debate. I think that is appropriate. We all agreed at the beginning that 2 weeks was sufficient time to address this issue.

One thing I suggest to the Senator from Kentucky and the Senator from Nevada is tabling motions, but clearly first-degree amendments have at least an hour and a half, even if all time is yielded back on the other side.

I hope most Members recognize that there are a couple or three issues, the main one being severability, but the rest of them either have been addressed in some fashion or are not of compelling impact, even though the authors of the amendments may believe that is the case.

I urge my colleagues to be prepared to stay in very late tonight because we need to finish this legislation.

I yield to the Senator from Arizona.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I say to my friend from Arizona, he will notice I have not filed a cloture motion. I have said that there is only one major amendment left, the nonseverability amendment, which will be offered on a bipartisan basis, and that there are few to no amendments left on this side.

From my point of view, as someone who is certainly unenthusiastic about this bill and will vigorously oppose it, nevertheless I realize it is time to get to final passage sometime today. I say to the Senator from Arizona we will not have a problem getting to final passage because of this side. We cleared things out on our side and are ready to go to final passage. I am happy to finish it up sometime today.

Mr. MCCAIN. I thank the Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I don’t want to belabor this. I briefly say to the Senator from Arizona, the votes for this reform have been supplied by this side of the aisle. We appreciate its bipartisan approach doing its best, and we have people who believe in campaign finance reform who have amendments. They believe they strengthen the bill, and we will work with them to try to cut down their time. Some of them have waited, they haven’t been off the Hill doing something else, they have been waiting to offer these amendments. We will do everything we can to protect them so they can offer these amendments for what they believe will strengthen this bill.

Mr. MCCAIN. Hopefully, we can collate the number of the amendments, perhaps work out some time agreements on each one, so we can have an idea as to when we can finish.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, one final item: I want to notify the Senate that about 4 o’clock I am planning to address the Senate on the implications of this bill on our two parties. I know we frequently don’t show up to listen to each other’s speeches, but I recommend that Senators who are interested in the impact of this bill on the future of the two-party system and on their own re-elections might want to pay attention to what I have to say. My current plan is to deliver that speech around 4 o’clock, and I want to notify people on both sides of the aisle and the staffs who may be listening to the proceedings on the Senate floor. I think this is one speech that maybe Senators on both sides of the aisle ought to listen to. So maybe just to give notice, I ask unanimous consent I be allowed to address the Senate for up to 30 minutes, beginning at 4 o’clock.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I yield myself 4 minutes.

Mr. REID. Will the Senator yield for a minute?

Mr. DEWINE. I yield.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I yield, on behalf of the opponents of this measure, 7½ minutes to the Senator from Maine.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 152

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I yield myself 4 minutes.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, in a few moments the Senate will have an opportunity to vote on an amendment I have offered along with Senator HATCH, Senator Hutchinson from Arkansas, Senator Brownback, and Senator Roberts. This amendment is a very simple amendment. It strikes title II from this bill.

This will be the last opportunity that Members of this Senate will have to strike what is blatantly and obviously a unconstitutional provision of this bill. We all take an oath to support and defend the Constitution. I think it is one thing to say we are not sure how a court is going to rule. That is certainly true. We are never totally sure. It is one thing to say a provision of a bill may be held unconstitutional. But I do not know how anyone can look at the amended bill, which is no longer Snowe-Jeffords—it is now Snowe-Jeffords-Wellsstone; it is fundamentally different—I don’t know how anyone can look at this bill and not know it is blatantly unconstitutional. I think everyone knows when it leaves here it will be held unconstitutional and that is why we will have, later today, a debate about this whole issue of severability. We would not have to have that debate if people did not believe this provision is unconstitutional.

What does it do? What does Snowe-Jeffords-Wellsstone do? What will the bill say unless we amend it by striking this provision? It will draw an arbitrary, capricious, and I submit an unconstitutional line in the sand 60 days before an election, and it will say that within 60 days of an election free speech goes out the window. No longer can a corporation, no longer can a labor union, and most important and clearly the most unconstitutional part, no longer will citizen groups that come together to use TV and radio be able to do that if they mention the candidate’s name. That is an unbelievable restriction on free speech at a time when it is the most important, when it has the most impact—60 days before the election—and in the most effective way, on TV and radio.

This Congress will be saying in this bill, if we pass it and if we keep this provision in, that we are going to censure that speech, we are going to come the free political speech police corps and we are going to swoop in and say you cannot do that.

Groups that want to run an ad criticizing Mike DeWine or criticizing any other candidate will then go into a locked TV studio, run an ad talking about an issue and mentioning the name or putting up our picture on the screen and will no longer be able to do that. The station manager will have to say: I am sorry, you cannot run that ad. People will say: Why not?

The Congress passed a ban on your ability to do that.

That is clearly unconstitutional.

What is the criterion? What have the courts held necessary, before Congress can abridge freedom of speech? There are certain areas where clearly we can do it and the courts have held we can do it. What is the test?

There must be a compelling State interest to do it. If it is done, it must be done in the least restrictive way. Least restrictive? What could be more restrictive than to say you can’t go on TV, you can’t communicate to people? If this remains in the bill, we will end up with a situation in this country where only people who run in the last 60 days, to the electorate, will be the Tom Brokaw’s of the world, the TV commentators, the radio commentators, and the candidates. This is not a closed system. It is not an exclusive club. It is something in which everyone should be able to participate. That is the essence of free speech.

The courts have held all kinds of things to be part of free speech. But the most pure form of free speech, the thing that absolutely must be protected, the thing that obviously the Framers of the Constitution had in mind when they wrote the first amendment, is political speech in the context of a campaign when we talk about issues and when we talk about candidates.

I do not like a lot of these ads. My colleagues who come to the floor—and by the way, every colleague who came to the floor to oppose the DeWine amendment, everyone except Mr. Wellsstone—voted against the Wellsstone amendment. Every single one of them did. I don’t know why they did. I know why Mr. Edwards did. He said it was unconstitutional, and I think everybody in this Chamber knows it is unconstitutional. But that is what the restriction will be. It is blatantly unconstitutional. It does not pass the Supreme Court’s test of a compelling State interest.

What is the compelling State interest to smash free speech within 60 days before an election? I will stop at this point and reserve the remainder of my time.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Maine controls the time in opposition.

The Senator from Maine.

Ms. SNOWE. I yield 2 minutes to the Senator from Wisconsin.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Wisconsin is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the DeWine amendment. I believe the Senator from Ohio raises serious and legitimate issues about the Snowe-Jeffords amendment. The fact is, to put it in plain terms for the people around the country, they are being subjected to what everybody knows are really campaign ads. They are what many people call phony issue ads. They know very well they are not what many people call phony issue ads. They know very well they are not the soft money loophole. They know very well they are not the time in opposition.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I am disturbed at the DeWine attempt to solve a problem that is not there. I was one of those back in my last election—not the last but the one before—that was exposed to this kind of advertising, who has had to face seeing ads on television which totally distort the facts and say terrible things. You watch a 20-percent lead going down and you do not know who is putting them on. You know what they are saying is totally inaccurate, but you have no way to refute it, other than to try to get people convinced that nobody knows who put it there, who is behind it.

The constitutionality of our provisions is common sense. How can you say that something which merely asks the person who put out the ad to let everybody know who they are is unconstitutional? How in the world can you say that it is unconstitutional to require somebody to disclose who they are and what they are? That is all we are doing in Snowe-Jeffords. The Wellstone amendment makes things a little more confusing in that regard.

Let’s remember what we are doing if we vote on this bill without leaving in the electoral provisions of Snowe-Jeffords, which say that anyone who does ads and does so in a way to attack a candidate, they have to let people know who they are. What is wrong with that? I think everybody believes that is a positive addition.

The Snowe-Jeffords provisions also make sure that when the time comes down to the very end, that unions and corporations are not precluded from ads by any means. But they are required to disclose from where the money came and use individually donated hard money.

It can’t be unconstitutional in the sense of the corporations or unions using individually donated funds instead of their own funds to run these ads. I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, let me briefly respond to my colleague from Vermont.

Look to one likes these ads. No one likes to be attacked. My friend said he is disturbed by these ads; they say terrible things, and they are inaccurate. I understand that. All of us have had that experience. All of us have been in tough campaigns. All of us have been attacked by what we consider to be untrue attacks where people have said things that we just shudder about and just can’t believe that it is running on television. Our families do not like it. Our mothers do not like it. Our kids do not like it. But do you know something? That is part of the system. That is part of democracy. This is not some other country where we restrict campaigns and what can be said at the time campaigns take place.

It might be easier. It might be cleaner. It might be easier to look at. No one ever said democracy was easy and wasn’t sometimes messy. But that is the first amendment. That is not a justification to put a clamp on freedom of speech.

My friends talk about disclosure. That is not the biggest problem with this bill. It is not a disclosure problem so much as it is a restriction on free speech within 60 days of an election.

Let me repeat what it does. Within 60 days of an election, you can’t run an ad that mentions a candidate’s name or that has the candidate’s image unless you are the candidate for that particular office.

That is what it says. It is wrong to make it unconstitutional.

I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, it is my pleasure to speak in support of the provision originally crafted by the distinguished Senators from Maine and Vermont, Senators SNOWE and JEFFORDS, and in opposition to the DeWine amendment. When the debate on campaign finance reform reached a stalemate in the fall of 1997, Senator SNOWE and Senator JEFFORDS first came together to draft this language, and it has been a vital contribution to reform effort. I thank them both for their continued dedication to closing the ad loophole which, next to soft money, is surely the most serious violation of the spirit of our campaign finance laws.

Snowe-Jeffords gets at the heart of the issue ad loophole. Right now wealthy interests are abusing this loophole at a record pace. They are flouting the spirit of the law, there is no question about it. They advocate for the election or defeat of a candidate, even though they don’t say those “magic words,” such as “vote for,” “vote against,” “elect” or “defeat.”

These ads might side-step the law, but you know something, that experience. All of us have had David Magleby at Brigham Young University. Nearly 90 percent of respondents in the study thought that phony money ads paid for by the parties were urging them to vote for or against a candidate.

People didn’t need to hear the so-called magic words to know what these ads were really all about. That was just as true for issue ads paid for by outside groups.

Party soft money ads were just as clearly crafted to influence the voters. When respondents reviewed party soft money ads, 83 percent ranked those ads as “clearly intended to influence their vote.” And this is perhaps even more interesting, more respondents thought the parties’ ads were intended to influence their vote than the ads paid for by the candidates themselves.

Again, on this chart, you can see how party spending on ads has overtaken candidate spending on ads in the presidential race. You can see on this chart how this shift has taken place between the 1996 and 2000 elections. The parties are now spending phenomenal amounts of soft money on sham issue ads.

Mr. President, I believe that these disclosure provisions will pass constitutional muster. The Buckley case, it should be remembered, rejected limits on independent expenditures but upheld the requirement that the expenditures be disclosed. Rules that merely require disclosure are less vulnerable to constitutional attack than outright prohibitions of certain speech.

But it requires disclosure of the spending of the group on these “electioneering communications.” And this disclosure can help prevent the appearance of corruption that can come from a group secretly spending large amounts of money in support of a candidate.

Some have argued—the Senator from Kentucky among them—that even these reasonable disclosure requirements violate the Constitution. They cite the case of NAACP v. Alabama as a large membership of small contributors wishes to engage in this kind of advocacy, it need not disclose any of its contributors because it can pay for the ads from small donor money that has been raised for the special bank account for individual donors.

Mr. President, I believe that these disclosure provisions will pass constitutional muster. The Buckley case, it should be remembered, rejected limits on independent expenditures but upheld the requirement that the expenditures be disclosed. Rules that merely require disclosure are less vulnerable to constitutional attack than outright prohibitions of certain speech.

Mr. President, I believe that these disclosure provisions will pass constitutional muster. The Buckley case, it should be remembered, rejected limits on independent expenditures but upheld the requirement that the expenditures be disclosed. Rules that merely require disclosure are less vulnerable to constitutional attack than outright prohibitions of certain speech.
pointed out many instances where revealing the identities of its members exposed them to economic reprisals, loss of employment, and even threats of physical coercion. The Court held that the state had not demonstrated a sufficient interest in obtaining the lists that would justify the deterrent effect on the members of the NAACP exercising their rights of association.

Snowe-Jeffords is totally different from what the State of Alabama tried to do in the NAACP case. Snowe-Jeffords doesn’t ask for membership lists; it asks for the very limited disclosure of large contributors to a specific bank account used to pay for electioneering communications. Most membership groups won’t have to disclose anything if they receive sufficient small donations to cover their expenditures.

And finally, the disclosure requirement can be avoided altogether by crafting an ad that does not specifically refer to a candidate during the short window of time right before an election.

The Supreme Court has shown much more willingness to uphold disclosure requirements in connection with election spending than opponents of Snowe-Jeffords have been willing to recognize. In the Citizens Against Rent Control v. City of Berkeley, a 1981 case, for example, the Court struck down a limitation on contributions to committees formed to support or oppose ballot measures. But the Court noted specifically, and I quote, “the integrity of the political system will be adequately protected if contributors are identified in a public filing revealing the amounts contributed; if it is thought wise, legislation can outlaw anonymous contributions.” It is worth noting that the opinion in that case was by Chief Justice Warren Burger and the vote was 8-1. The dissent, Justice White, thought the limit on contributions should be upheld.

In U.S. v. Harris, the Court upheld disclosure requirements in connection with election spending than opponents of Snowe-Jeffords have been willing to recognize. In the Citizens Against Rent Control v. City of Berkeley, a 1981 case, for example, the Court struck down a limitation on contributions to committees formed to support or oppose ballot measures. But the Court noted specifically, and I quote, “the integrity of the political system will be adequately protected if contributors are identified in a public filing revealing the amounts contributed; if it is thought wise, legislation can outlaw anonymous contributions.” It is worth noting that the opinion in that case was by Chief Justice Warren Burger and the vote was 8-1. The dissent, Justice White, thought the limit on contributions should be upheld.

Now it is of course true that the Court will have to analyze the disclosure requirements in Snowe-Jeffords and the type of communications that trigger it and determine if they pass constitutional muster. I will not pro-claim that there is no argument to be made that the provision is unconstitu-tional. But to say that there is no argument to be triggered it and determine if they pass constitutional muster. I will not pro-claim that there is no argument to be made that the provision is unconstitu-tional. But to say that there is no argument to be made that the provision is unconstitu-tional. But to say that there is no argument to be made that the provision is unconstitutional is just not right. There is ample constitutional justification and precedent for this provision.

That conclusion is supported by a letter we have received from 70 law professors who support the constitutional validity of the bill, including the Snowe-Jeffords provision. This is what they write with respect to Snowe-Jeffords:

[T]he incorporation of the Snowe-Jeffords amendment into the McCain-Feingold Bill is a well-accepted constitutional limitation on electioneering in a more realistic manner while re-maining faithful to First Amendment vague-ness and overbreadth concerns. ... While no one can predict exactly how the courts will finally rule if any of these provisions are challenged in court, we be-lieve that the McCain-Feingold Bill, as cur-rent drafted, is consistent with First Amend-ment jurisprudence.

As the Brennan Center for Justice wrote in an analysis of Snowe-Jeffords:

Disclosure rules do not restrict speech sig-nificantly. Disclosure rules do not limit the information that is conveyed to the electorat e. To the contrary, they increase the flow of information. For that reason, the Su-preme Court has held that rules re-quiring disclosure are subject to less exact-ing constitutional strictures than direct pro-hibitions on spending. ... There is no con-stitutional bar to expanding the disclosure rules to provide accurate information to vot-ers about the sponsors of ads indisputedly designed to influence their votes.

The opponents of our bill speak with great disdain of the Snowe-Jeffords provi-sion and act as if it is certainly and indisputably unconstitutional. Now I will not pretend that there are not difficult constitutional issues raised, but I simply do not think it is accu-rate to say, as our opponents do, that there is no hope for this provision before the Supreme Court. And the Su-preme Court is going to decide this issue, that we know for sure. All the lower court decisions in the world on state statutes that don’t have a bright line approach as Snowe-Jeffords does, are not difficult constitutional issues.

It is important to note that Snowe-Jeffords contains provisions designed to prevent the laundering of corporate and union money through non-profits. Groups that wish to engage in this par-ticular kind of advocacy must ensure that only the contributions of individual donors are used for the expendi-tures.

Anyone who opposes this provision must defend the rights of unions and cor-popations using their treasury money, not just citizen groups like the National Right to Life Committee or the Christian Coalition, or the Sierra Club, to run what are essentially cam-paign advertisements that dodge the federal election laws by not using the magic words “Vote For” or “Vote Against.” The disclosure provisions would finance those ads through other groups.

Second, they must argue that the provision is unconstitutional. But to say that the provision is unconstitutional is just not right. There is ample constitutional justification and precedent for this provision.

I urge my colleagues to vote against the motion to strike that has been offered by my good friend from Ohio, Senator DeWINE. Make no mistake about it. A vote to strike the Snowe-Jeffords provision would be a vote against disclosure. It is interesting to hear my colleague describe the amendments and the provisions that are contained with the McCain-Feingold legislation; that it is a restriction on the First Amendment right, the right to free speech. That is not only a mischaracterization, but it is false.

The Supreme Court never said you can’t make distinctions in political campaigns about what is express advocacy and issue advocacy. That is what we have attempted to do with the support of more than 70 constitutional experts—to design legislation that is carefully crafted that says if these organizations want to run ads, do it as the rest of us. Use the hard money that we have to do it. In order to finance those ads 60 days before an election that mention a Federal candidate.

We are seeing the stealth advocacy ad phenomenon multiplying in America today—three times the amount of money spent on so-called sham ads in the election of 2000, and three times the amount in 1996. Why? Because of what they have done to skirt the disclosure laws because they do not use the magic words vote for or against. They mention a candidate. Is it no coincidence that they are mentioning the candidate’s name 60 days before an election? What for? It is to impact the outcome of that election.

What we are saying is disclose who you are. Let’s unveil the masquerade. Let’s unveil this cloak of anonymity. Tell us you who are. Tell us who is financing these ads to the tune of $500 million in this last election. The public has the right to know. We have the right to know.

That is what this amendment is all about. It is not an infringement on free speech. It is political speech. Even my colleague from Ohio said it is political speech, political speech you have to disclose.

That is what we are talking about in this amendment.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a study entitled "The Facts about Television Advertising and the McCain-Feingold Bill."

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE FACTS ABOUT TELEVISION ADVERTISING AND THE MCCAIN-FEINGOLD BILL

(By Jonathan Krasno and Kenneth Blankenhorn)

The McCain-Feingold bill and its House counterpart sponsored by Representatives Shays and Meehan are universally regarded as the most significant campaign finance legislation under serious consideration by Congress in a generation, perhaps since the 1974 amendments to the Federal Election Campaign Act (FECA). This legislation would not expand on the 1974 reforms but in fact restore them by regulating the two mechanisms that have developed in the intervening decades to circumvent FECA, so-called "soft money" and "issue advocacy.

Together and separately soft money and issue advocacy have become an enormous part of many federal campaigns, in some cases even eclipsing the efforts of candidates operating under FECA’s rules.

That popularity, naturally, has created a powerful group of donors and recipients who have exploited these loopholes and now oppose any attempt to close them, even as some contributors have begun to complain of the relentless pressure to give money. These political relationships have the putative relationship between soft money, issue advocacy and several core constitutional values, have made McCain-Feingold among the most controversial Congress has seen.

This paper uses a unique source of data about television commercials to examine some of the most important issues raised in connection to this proposal. It is appropriate to consider that a campaign finance reform since it is the largest—and most discussed—single category of expenditures by candidates, parties and interest groups in federal elections. McCain-Feingold would surely be seen on the nation’s airwaves, on the hundreds of thousands of issue ads paid for with soft money, interrelated categories for and against McCain-Feingold are rooted in different interpretations of those very ads.

For its critics, the huge outlay on issue ads is a dangerous and democratic threat to democracy’s vitality and any attempt to limit issue ads or soft money is inherently ham-handed and dangerous. Fortunately, many of these claims are empirical questions; given the proper data they can be carefully dissected and weighed. That is precisely what we do here by using the most extensive data set on television advertising ever developed to explore some of the core assumptions invoked by proponents and opponents of McCain-Feingold.

TABLE ONE.—TELEVISION ADVERTISING IN TOP 75 MARKETS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>1998</th>
<th>2000</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Candidates: Total</td>
<td>$1,256,672,508</td>
<td>$1,911,232,750</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Parties: Issues</td>
<td>20,256,143</td>
<td>163,586,235</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hard $ ads</td>
<td>5,796,626</td>
<td>66,683</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Interest Groups:</td>
<td>6,431,191</td>
<td>95,803,857</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>$1,256,672,508</td>
<td>$1,911,232,750</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

*The vast majority of commercials sponsored by interest groups were issue ads. We are confident that the numbers we report here have been adapted to any new regulations, searching for new loopholes to exploit. Which direction their search will eventually take them is at best an educated guess. What is more than guesswork, however, is the matter of how much has been spent on issue ads by the parties and their allies over the last two cycles.

The first question the professional politicians in Congress are asking about McCain-Feingold is who will it affect. Such questions are always perilous since advertisers will undoubtedly try to adapt to any new regulations, searching for new loopholes to exploit. Whose ox is it? Figure One (not reproducible in the RECORD) breaks down the issue ads in Table One by party, showing the total number run by various Democratic and Republican party committees and their allies. While Republicans had a noticeable advantage in issue ads in 1998, Democrats claimed a small lead in 2000. This modest reversal illustrates the unpredictability of soft money. Since contributions (to either parties or interest groups) for issue ads are unlimited, the generosity of a relatively small number of well-heeled donors may shift the tide. But equally striking is the near equality between the parties. Total soft money spending for the Democrats and Republicans is separated by no more than $5,000,000 in either year, a relatively small amount among the hundreds of millions spent on political advertising in both years. That is not to say, of course, that no candidates would have been particularly helped or hurt by McCain-Feingold, but that the Democrats and Republicans’ gains and losses come fairly close to balancing out across the country.

REGULATING ISSUE ADVOCACY

The working definition of issue advocacy comes from a footnote in the Supreme Court’s seminal decision in Buckley v. Valeo
TABLE TWO.—COMPARING THE ISSUES IN CANDIDATE ADS AND “ISSUE ADS”—Continued

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Percent</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

NOTE—Ads may mention multiple themes so percentages do not sum to 100.

There is also the matter of timing. If issue ads were intended only to promote or impugn a particular candidate by using words like “elect,” “defeat,” or “support,” the purpose behind the footnote was to protect speech about “issues”—lobbying on bills before Congress, pronouncements or debate over public policy—from the financial regulations affecting partisan electioneering. The need to distinguish the two is obvious, but whether use of specific words of express advocacy (now widely known as “magic words”) is an effective way to do so is less clear.

We sought to evaluate this standard by looking at ads purchased by candidates’ campaigns. Candidates run a perfect test of whether the purpose of their advertising is so obviously electioneering that the magic words test does not apply to them. Thus, candidates must live with FECA whether or not they use magic words. That might lead one to assume that candidate ads unabashedly urge voters to vote for one person or defeat another, but it turns out that such direct advocacy is exceedingly rare. In 2000 just under 10 percent of the nearly 325,000 ads paid for by federal candidates directly urged viewers to support or oppose a particular candidate or used a slogan like “Jones for Congress,” the full list of magic words in Buckley. Earlier we found just 4 percent of 255,000 candidate ads in 1998 used any of the verbs of express advocacy; 96 percent did not ask voters to vote for or against any candidate. Any device that fails to detect what it was designed to find 9 times out of 10 is clearly a flop. The magic words test simply does not work.

The failure of the magic words test does not mean, of course, that all issue ads are necessarily electioneering. But several things suggest that a great majority of them are. To begin with, the issues raised in commercial ads by candidates and in issue ads are virtually identical. Table Two lists the top five themes appearing in both types of ads in 1998 and 2000. While occasional variations occur, the overwhelming impression is that issue ads mimic the commercials that candidates run. This may be mere coincidence, but it is unlikely. As Table Two shows, almost 96 percent of ads over the two years featured one of the common themes. This is more than coincidence; it is statistically significant.

The most obvious place to start assessing the value of parties’ advertising is with a simple objective question: does the ad mention an issue? It is perfectly reasonable to imagine how a commercial might strengthen a party if it neglects to praise its sponsors or at least malign the opposition. The truth, however, is that most of the ads we have examined either fail completely or mention nothing about “Democrats” or “Republicans.” Just 15 percent of party ads in 1998 and 7 percent in 2000 mentioned either party by name in the current election. Of the 44 percent of these ads in 1998 and 99 percent in 2000 did name a particular candidate. It seems fairly clear that these ads do far more to strengthen the fortunes of candidates than the fortunes of their sponsors.

A piece of supporting evidence for this conclusion comes from the perceived negativity of party ads. Coders found ads by parties to be much more likely to be pure attack ads (60 percent in 1998, 42 percent in 2000) than ads by candidates. While we remain agnostic about whether attack ads somehow do better or worse than other forms, we do note that there is little hope that this flood of commercials magically strengthens either party.

Finally, some defenders of party soft money also argue, in conflict to the claims about building parties, that these commercials help provide vital information to voters in various places and about various candidates which they would not otherwise receive. This is a complicated and somewhat unravel. It is obviously debatable whether any particular ad conveys much information to viewers. If we assume—quite charitably—that all political ads by parties in truth is that campaigns are generally run by the parties, and a dozen House contests, even though the in a particular contest and media markets, the number of districts in which party ads appeared in just three Senate races and a dozen House contests, even though the CMAG system tracks advertising in scores of state and districts, it is clear that the educational value of party ads is inevitably limited, as is any effect they might have on the competitiveness of elections.

Our examination of television commercials in 1998 and 2000 shows that the current campaign finance system is unmistakably flawed. The magic words test supposed to distinguish issue advocacy from electioneering is a complete failure. The rules allowing parties to collect unlimited amounts of soft money to build stronger parties have in itself been a veritable masure automaticlly into support for McCain-Feingold and Shay-Meehan is a different matter. These decisions inevitably involve a number of factors, starting with the judgment that the public would be worse off without any limits on the manifest weaknesses of our campaign finance laws. We cannot be sure that it is, but
This is the last time on this vote that Members of the Senate are going to have the opportunity to strike out what obviously the courts will later strike out. That is not Snowe-Jeffords, but it is now Snowe-Jeffords-Wellstone. It is unconstitutional.

A vote for the DeWine amendment is a vote for freedom of speech, for the first amendment, and for the Constitution.

I ask my friends when they come to the floor in just a minute to remember the oath that all of us took to support the Constitution.

It is one thing for us to vote on things that are close. This one is not close. This one is unconstitutitional. It needs to come out of the bill.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem, the Senator’s time has expired. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have 40 seconds to respond to my colleague, if he would be so gracious.

Mr. DEWINE. I have no objection.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem. Is there objection?

Mr. DEWINE. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem. The Senator asked for 40 seconds.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Ready, go.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem. Mr. President, I ask the Chair if I don’t use the 40 seconds to give me 5 more.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I ask the Chair if I don’t use the 40 seconds to give me 5 more.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem. The Senator asked for 40 seconds. The yeas and nays were ordered.

The amendment (No. 152) was rejected.

The amendment (No. 152) was rejected.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. I could not hear the request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. May we have order in the Senate, please.

Mr. SPECTER. My request was to proceed for up to 10 minutes as in morning business for the introduction of a bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Minnesota, Mr. WELLSTONE.

Mr. SPECTER. I thank the Chair.

I ask unanimous consent that the full text of an extensive statement be printed in the Record and that the Record reflect—sometimes the Record does not reflect the actual language; there is a cutoff. The statement is printed, and there is repetition and redundancy. But I ask that the Record show that there is a unanimous consent request made that the text be printed in the Record, even though there is redundancy with what has been summarized orally.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The remarks of Mr. SPECTER pertaining to the introduction of S. 645 are located in today’s Record under “Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.”)

Mr. SPECTER. I thank the Chair, and I thank my distinguished colleague from Iowa for yielding to me.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized to offer an amendment on which, as I stated earlier, there shall be 2 hours of debate.

The Senator from Iowa.

AMENDMENT NO. 155

(Purpose: To amend the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 to provide for a voluntary system of spending limits with respect to Senate election campaigns)

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I have an amendment at the desk, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Iowa (Mr. HARKIN), for himself and Mr. WELLSTONE, proposes an amendment numbered 155.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today’s Record under “Amendments Submitted.”)

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I am proud to have as my cosponsor the Senator from Minnesota, Mr. WELLSTONE.

I want to recap where we are in this week-long debate on campaign finance reform. We have come a long way in the last week and a half on this campaign finance reform bill.

We have debated a wide range of amendments, accepted some, rejected others. The good news we have adopted are: To stop the price gouging on TV ads, the Torricelli amendment; to require up-to-date inspection of all reports on the Internet, the Cochrane-Landrieu-Snowe amendments; stronger disclosure rules by the Senator from Nebraska, Mr. HAGEL; bringing all organizations under the issue ad ban; the Wellstone amendment.

And we rejected some amendments. Attempts to preserve soft money were rejected; an attempt to dramatically increase hard money was rejected; provisions to silence the workers of America, the campaign protection, were rejected. I am a little disappointed that yesterday we did, unfortunately, increase the hard money we can raise for campaigns. I do not believe increasing the amount of money one can raise from hard dollars is reform, but that was adopted by the Senate.

But, there is something missing in this debate. There is something that has been missing for a week and a half from this debate. It is like the crazy uncle in the basement who no one talks about. What kind of reform can we have when all we are talking about is how we raise the money and how much one can raise when we don’t talk about how much we spend and what can be spent? What I am talking about is the kind of reform that includes some limits on how much we can spend.

With the increase in the amount of hard money we can raise—and we have banned soft money, which is good; I voted to ban soft money—that just means all of us now will be running our fool heads off raising more hard money.

We do have the Torricelli amendment that says TV stations have to sell us their ads at the lowest unit rate based upon last year, and that is fine; I am all for that. The other thing we can buy more ads. We will raise more money, and we will buy more ads.

It has gotten so that now we hire ad agencies. They write the ads and sell us like soap. We are just a bunch of bars of soap to the American people; that is all we are. They see these ads, one ad after another come election time, and it is just like selling soap. Can we be surprised when the American people treat us like soap, that we are no more important in their lives, for example; that we are irrelevant except when we annoy them by ban barding them with ads in the weeks before the election. What I hear from the American people time and time again: When are you going to talk about the issues in your campaigns rather than having all these ads out there?

We are really missing a serious part of campaign finance reform by not talking about it and doing something about it.

I do not know about any other Senator, but one of the things I hear a lot in Iowa and other places around the country when people talk to me about campaign finance reform is: When are you going to get a handle on how much money you spend?

In the last election cycle, just in Federal elections, we spent over $1 billion; I think about $1.2 billion. The American people are upset about this. Are they upset about raising soft money and corporations and special influence? Yes, they are. They are equally upset about the tremendous amount of money we are spending in these campaigns, buying these ads and flooding the airwaves.

We have to think about how we can limit how much we spend on campaigns so all of us aren’t running around, weekend after weekend, week after week, month after month, to see how much more money we can raise—or to hire that ad agency to buy those ads.

That is what this amendment Senator WELLSTONE and I have offered does. It is very simple and straightforward. It puts a voluntary limit on how much we can spend in our Senate campaigns.

The formula is very simple. It is $1 million plus 50 cents times the number of voting-age residents in the State.

Every Senator has on his or her desk the chart that shows how much you would be limited in your own State. With that limitation, there is a low of $1.2 million in Wisconsin to $12 million in California. My own State of Iowa would be limited to $2.1 million for a Senate campaign. I say to the occupant of the Chair, in Virginia the limit would be $3.6 million.

I don’t know how much the Senator spent this last campaign, but I know for myself in Iowa, $2.1 million runs a good grassroots campaign as long as your opponent does not spend any more. That is all we are. They are equally upset about raising soft money and corporations and special influence? Yes, they are. They are equally upset about the tremendous amount of money we are spending in these campaigns, buying these ads and flooding the airwaves.

He way to think about how we can limit how much we spend on campaigns so all of us aren’t running around, weekend after weekend, week after week, month after month, to see how much more money we can raise—or to hire that ad agency to buy those ads.

That is what this amendment Senator WELLSTONE and I have offered does. It is very simple and straightforward. It puts a voluntary limit on how much we can spend in our Senate campaigns.

The formula is very simple. It is $1 million plus 50 cents times the number of voting-age residents in the State. Every Senator has on his or her desk the chart that shows how much you would be limited in your own State. With that limitation, there is a low of $1.2 million in Wisconsin to $12 million in California. My own State of Iowa would be limited to $2.1 million for a Senate campaign. I say to the occupant of the Chair, in Virginia the limit would be $3.6 million.

The amendment also says if you have a primary, you can spend 67 percent of your general election limits. If you have a runoff, you can spend 20 percent of the general election limit.

I’d like to stress that this is a voluntary limit. Why would anyone abide by the limit? You abide by the limit because the amendment says if you can’t abide by the voluntary limits by $10,000, then the other person who abided by the limits will begin to get a public financing of 2-1. For every $1 someone would go over the limit, you get $2. For example, in Virginia, if the limit is $3.6 million and the Senator from Virginia voluntarily agrees to abide by that limit, if the person running against the Senator from Virginia went over $3.6 million—say they spent $4 million, we would pay $400,000 more—the Senator from Virginia would get $800,000. Two for one. Now, that is a great disincentive for anyone to go beyond the voluntary limits because the other person gets twice as much money as the person who went over the limits. I point out the difference between my amendment and one offered earlier by Senator BIDEN and Senator KERRY. Their amendment included public financing from the beginning. This amendment does not. This amendment says, raise money however we decide to let you raise money. That is the way you raise it. PACs, personal contributions, whatever limits we decide on around here, you raise that money. There are no public benefits. The only time public benefits kick in is if someone went over the voluntary limits.

My friend from Kentucky said the other day on the floor that all of the polls show the American people don’t like public financing. They don’t want their tax dollars going to finance Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard Nixon.

First of all, the money we use here to counter what someone might spend over the limits is not raised from tax dollars; it is a voluntary checkoff and from FEC fines.

Second, if the Senator from Kentucky is right, and I think he may well be—I don’t know—that the American people don’t want public financing of campaigns, then that is a second hammer on discouraging someone from going over the voluntary limits. If someone goes over the voluntary limits, that person is responsible for kicking in public financing. That person is responsible for kicking in public financing, not from a tax but from a voluntary checkoff and from FEC fines.

There are two prohibitions here to keep someone from going over the voluntary limits. One, your opponent gets twice as much money as whatever you spent over those limits; second, there would be a built in public reaction against those wealthy candidates. It would cause it would cause public financing to kick in.

Another issue was raised regarding this limit. Someone said: You have the voluntary spending limits, but what about all the independent groups out there? They are buying all the ads running against you; you are limited but they are not.

With the Snowe-Jeffords provision and the Wellstone amendment we adopted and just reaffirmed this morning, that is not the case. Those independent groups cannot raise that kind of money from the corporations and they cannot run those ads with your name in them.

Someone said: That is all well and good, but what if the Supreme Court throws out the Wellstone amendment, throws out Snowe-Jeffords, and says that is unconstitutional? Then we are left with your limits and these independent groups can go ahead and raise all this money and run those ads.

The amendment says if the Supreme Court finds the Wellstone amendment or the Snowe-Jeffords provisions unconstitutional, my amendment falls. It will not be enacted. It will not be part of the campaign finance reform.

If the Supreme Court finds the Wellstone amendment is unconstitutional and these groups go ahead and raise that money and run those ads against you, then the limits in my amendment do not pertain. All bets are off. But as long as Wellstone is constitutional, as long as Snowe-Jeffords is constitutional, then the voluntary limits would be there and the provisions of a 2-to-1 match, if you went off, would also pertain.

Bob Rusbuldt, executive vice president of the Independent Insurance Agents of America, said recently, "campaign finance reform is like a water balloon; You push down on one side, it comes up on the other." I think that is what will happen. We ban the soft money, we increase hard money. Push down one side, it goes up the other side. Where do we stop? We are going to continue to raise hundreds of millions, billions of dollars for these campaigns. My amendment will burst that water balloon and make the existence of loopholes irrelevant, by creating voluntary spending limits and providing a strong incentive for candidates to comply with them. That is what this amendment is about.

Again, I am going to be very frank. The voluntary limit in the State of Iowa would be about $2.1 million. In 1996, when I ran for re-election, I spent $5.2 million. Can I abide by $2.1 million? You bet I can. As long as my opponent has to—fine. We can run our campaigns the old fashioned way—at the grassroots. Then we will not have to be buying ad after ad after ad, countering back and forth and all that stuff. Then maybe we will get down to real debates and real issues and things people care about, without just hiring ad agencies to buy all these ads.

On each desk is a copy of basically what the amendment does, and a list by State of what the limits would be.

I conclude this portion of my remarks by saying, again, this is the crazy uncle in the basement no one wants to talk about. Everybody wants to talk about stopping how we raise money, getting rid of soft money, but no one wants to talk about cutting down on how much we spend. Let’s start talking about it. Now is the time to do something about it. This voluntary limit is constitutional and it will answer the other side of the campaign finance reform debate that here-tofore we have not addressed.

I yield whatever time the Senator from Minnesota requires. How much time do I have all over again?

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa has 44 minutes remaining.

Mr. HARKIN. I yield 15 minutes to the Senator.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I may not need 15 minutes. The Senator from North Dakota is here, as are others.

First, I say to my colleague from Iowa and other Senators, I do want to talk about the truth of how we spend. I am very honored to be a co-sponsor of this amendment with the Senator from Iowa. I think this is a great amendment. This amendment could very well pass in the Senate because it is not only a lot of sense. It is just common sense.

My colleague from Iowa has described what this amendment is about. I do not know that I need to do that again. We are talking about voluntary limits. Then what we are saying is, if you agree to that voluntary limit but the opponent doesn’t, then you get a 2-to-1 match for however many dollars your opponent goes over this limit. This amendment makes the McCain-Feingold, which deals with the soft money part, quite a strong reform measure.

I say to my colleague from Iowa, I believe so strongly in this amendment for a couple of different reasons. First of all, here is something else we have not talked about, and we need to, as incumbents. In all too many ways the system is wired for incumbents. This amendment probably comes as close as you can come to creating a more level playing field. It really does. Many more people would have an opportunity to run with this amendment part of the law. They really would.

I think there is quite a bit of pressure on people. It seems to me, if this is the law of the land and candidates step forward and say, absolutely we will agree to this limit because we do not want to be involved in this obscene money chase, we will agree with this limit because we want them to be more debate and fewer of these poison ads and all the rest, we will agree because we know people in Iowa and Connecticut and North Dakota and Minnesota do not like to see this money spent. I think it is going to be much more difficult for another candidate to say, no, I won’t agree with this limit; I want to buy this election. Then you have the additional disincentive of the 2-to-1 match.

This is a perfect marriage. In one stroke, it dramatically reduces the amount of money spent, dramatically reduces the power of special interest groups, dramatically reduces the cynicism and disillusionment people have about politics in the country, and dramatically increases the chances of a lot of citizens thinking they can run for the Senate, that they might be able to do this, they might be able to raise this amount of money and not lose because someone could just carpet bomb them with all sorts of ads and all sorts of resources. This is a great reform amendment.

I also make another point. I just finished saying the system is wired for incumbents but that I think all of us are going to want to support this amendment. The truth is, in one way it is...
The American people want a government that is affordable. What they want is a government that they can afford. The American people want a government that is accountable. What they want is a government that is accountable, a government that is responsive to the people. The American people want a government that is represented. What they want is a government that is represented, a government that is responsive to the people.

Mr. President, there are some who continue to insist that, gosh, there is not too much money in politics. In fact, they say there is too little money in politics. What we really ought to do is make sure that everything is reported and let anyone contribute any amount at any time they want to contribute. I think that is a fairly bankrupt argument.

I ask the American people if they think, in September or October of an election year as they turn on their television sets, that there is too little politics or too little money in politics. They understand there is far too much money in this political system. We ought to change it.

The Supreme Court, in a rather bizarre twist, which happens from time to time across the street, said Congress can limit contributions. That is constitutional.

If we could limit this, if we could limit all of it, this would bring us closer to the people. It would bring us closer to the people, to the people who are the beneficiaries of these amendments.

I'm going to finish by making two points.

First, the American people want a government that is accountable. What they want is a government that is accountable, a government that is responsive to the people. The American people want a government that is represented. What they want is a government that is represented, a government that is responsive to the people. The American people want a government that is affordable. What they want is a government that they can afford. The American people want a government that is represented. What they want is a government that is represented, a government that is responsive to the people.
It addresses the bull’s eye of the target by saying we can construct a set of voluntary spending limits with mechanisms that will persuade people to stay within those limits. Because if someone waltzes in and says they are worth a couple billion dollars, that they intend to spend $100 million on the Senate seat, if they do not like it, tough luck. We have a series of mechanisms now described by my colleague in this amendment that says that is going to cost them. They have every right to spend that money, but, by the way, their opponent is going to have the odds evened up because their opponent is going to get twice as much as they are spending over the voluntary limit through fees that are through check-offs of income tax, from a fund that provides some balance in our political system.

The funding of politics has almost become a political e-Bay. It is kind of an auction system. If you have enough money, get involved, and the bid is yours. We bid on a Senate seat. Here is how much money we have. We have big friends and bank accounts. So this Senate seat is ours.

That is not the way democracy ought to work. That is not the way we ought to have representative government work.

Some while ago, I was in the cradle of democracy where 2,400 years ago in Athens, the Athenian state created this system of ours called democracy. This is the modern version of it. What a remarkable and wonderful thing.

But democracy works through representative government when you have the opportunity for people to seek public office and the opportunity to win in an election in which the rules are reasonably fair.

There are circumstances where that still exists.

I come from a family without substantial wealth. I come from a family without a political legacy. I come from a town of 300 people. I come from a high school class of nine students. I come from a rural ranching area in southwestern North Dakota, and I pinch myself every day thinking: What a remarkable privilege it has been for the many years that I have had the opportunity to serve in the Congress. It still happens.

But I must say that in modern elections, in cycle after cycle, it is less and less likely that someone without massive quantities of money is going to be able to be successful against other candidates who have access to barrels of money that they can pour into the television commercials, along with their partners and the independent organizations that can pour massive amounts of unlimited money into the same election and affect the result.

My colleague says we can change that. I like the mechanism that he establishes to do that. I don’t think it does violence to the McCain-Feingold bill at all. In fact, this bill is reform. If you come to this floor and say you support McCain-Feingold because you stand for reform of campaign finance, then you must, it seems to me, come to this floor and say you stand for this amendment because this amendment is real reform added to this bill.

I will not diminish the McCain-Feingold bill. I have great respect for Senators McCain and Feingold. And I have long supported this legislation and have been wowed by the support. I commend them for what they have done and for establishing leadership on this issue. Were it not for them, we would not be on this floor at this time discussing this subject.

Make no mistake. While this may not lead in the polls, this subject is important to the preservation and strength of this democracy of ours.

But, I say again, I don’t want people to tell me that we must oppose this amendment because we must keep this fundamental bill pure. This bill will be better, this bill will be strengthened, and this bill will move further in the direction of reform with the amendment offered by Senator HARKIN.

In the last debate some 6 or 8 years ago in the Senate on this subject, I offered an amendment that was reasonably similar to this. It said that you establish voluntary spending limits, and if someone goes over the spending limit, they pay a fee equal to 50 percent of that which they are over the spending limit, and the FEC collects the fee and transmits that fee to the opponent, which I thought was a delinquent friend in a wonderful way to penalize those who want to spend millions and millions and millions of dollars in an attempt to buy a seat in the U.S. Congress.

We ought not have advantages for incumbents. We ought to have elections that are contests of ideas between good men and women who want to offer themselves for public service. The outcome should not always be determined by who has the most money.

The amendment offered by my colleague from Iowa is a very significant step in the right direction. It is voluntary spending limits, but spending limits that are attached to a construction of a pool of money that would be available through check-offs available to help challengers and others in circumstances where one candidate says they are going to open the bank account and spend millions and millions in pursuit of purchasing a seat in the U.S. Congress.

I am happy to come today to support this amendment. I say to my colleagues, if you have been on the floor talking about reform in the last 2 weeks, do not miss this opportunity to vote the way you talk. This is reform. This adds to and strengthens McCain-Feingold, make no mistake about it.

So I am very pleased to support this amendment. I hope my colleagues will support this amendment. I hope we can address this amendment because this is a significant step.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. DODD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. How much time does the Senator from Iowa have remaining on this side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Twenty-five minutes.

Mr. DODD. I inquire of my friend and colleague from Kentucky, I presume if we need some additional time, as Members come over, we can let it flow. Two and a half hours, is that what we have agreed on this side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Two hours evenly divided.

Mr. DODD. Two hours.

If we need a little time for some reason—obviously. Members may want to be heard—I presume we will follow some rule of comity.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Yes. I say to my friend from Connecticut, there should not be a problem. I do not think we will be swamped with speakers on this side. We will be glad to try to work to accommodate this and have the vote before lunch.

Mr. DODD. I thank the Senator. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. DODD. I ask for 10 minutes.

Mr. HARKIN. I am happy to yield it.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I commend my colleague from Iowa and my colleagues, as well, who have spoken today—Senator DORGAN and Senator WELLSTONE—for their support of this amendment. I, too, support this amendment.

Senator DORGAN has said it well. Senator WELLSTONE has said it well. This is true reform. If we are really interested in doing something about the money chase, both in terms of contributions and the rush to spend even more in the pursuit of political office in this country, then the Harkin amendment offers a real opportunity for those who would like to do something about this problem by casting their vote in favor of his amendment.

Senator HARKIN has explained this amendment very well. It is a voluntary provision. It does level the playing field. I, too, over and over again over the past week and a half have expressed my concerns and worry about the direction we are going. I made the point the other day that we are shrinking the pool of potential candidates for public office in this country.

At the founding of our Nation, back more than 200 years ago, the only people who could seek public office and could vote were white males who owned property. Pretty much those were the parameters. Of course, we abandoned those laws years ago. Nonetheless, those restrictions on the number of individuals, obviously, who could seek a seat in the Congress—the Senate or the House—or a gubernatorial seat.

Unfortunately, what has happened over the years, particularly in the last 25 years or so, is we have created new barriers to seeking public office. The largest of those barriers is the cost of running for public office, the cost of raising the dollars, and the cost of getting your voice heard. One of the reasons that has occurred, and one of the difficulties we have had, is because of the Supreme Court decision back in 1974 that said money is speech.

Justice Stevens, to his great credit, in a minority opinion in that decision, said it, but I would suggest, in the absence of those provisions—and it is a voluntary system—President Bush, the present occupant of the White House, did not take public moneys during the primary season, but when it came to the general election, he did. There will be reasons you will hear of why he did, but the fact is, by doing so, he accepted limitations on how much would be spent in those races.

Ronald Reagan, to his great credit, was one of the greatest exponents of the conservative movement, accepted public moneys in both the primary and the general election, as has every other candidate. But what Senator HARKIN has offered, and those of us who are supporting him—while not applying that same set of rules—is the same philosophical idea.

Mr. HARKIN. No public financing.

Mr. DODD. No public financing, but the notion that we have public control, in a sense, limitations on how expenditures are made. If you are faced with challengers who are going to spend unlimited amounts of their own personal resources in order to be heard.

I happen to believe, as I said a moment ago, that money is not speech anymore than I think this microphone that is attached to my lapel is speech or anymore than the speaker system in this Chamber is speech. Those are vehicles by which my voice is heard; it is amplified. You can hear me better than you would if I took this microphone of and the speakers were turned off. If I spoke loud enough, you might hear me, but in the absence of those technological aids, my voice would be that of any without the ability to have it amplified.

Money allows your voice to be ampli-died. It is not speech. It just gives you a greater opportunity to be heard. So

I fundamentally disagree with the Court’s decision on the issue of money being speech.

In fact, the notion of free speech in American politics today, as one editorial writer in my home State of Connecticut said, “It is not a matter of money and the speakers were turned off. If I spoke loud enough, you might hear me,
but in the absence of those technological aids, my voice would be that of any without the ability to have it amplified.

Money allows your voice to be ampli-

died. It is not speech. It just gives you a greater opportunity to be heard. So
I fundamentally disagree with the Court’s decision on the issue of money
being speech.

In fact, the notion of free speech in American politics today, as one editorial writer in my home State of Connecticut said, “It is not a matter of natural_text

time at a discount, and by voting themselves a right to take larger contributions, for $6,000, rather than at least $1,000 when running against a rich, self-financing opponent. The Supreme Court says the only permissible reason for limiting political speech by limiting money is to prevent corruption or its appearance thereof. The Senate did not explain why it is corrupting to take $6,000 when running against an opponent with a net worth of X but not corrupting when running against an opponent with net worth of 10 times X.

The Senate refused to ban, as nine states do, lobbyists from contributing to legislators when the legislature is in session. John McCain, at last noticing the Constitution, and this inhibition on political giving is constitutionally problematic, presumably because it restricts the rights to political expression and to petition for redress of grievances.

Constitutional scrupulousness is a sometime thing for McCain, who once voted to amend the First Amendment to empower government to prevent political speech. This bill now adds—ration political communications. For example, his bill would restrict broadcast ads by unions and corporations and groups they support that refer to candidates before election or 30 days before a primary if the ads mention a candidate.

In a cri de coeur revealing the main motive for most contemporary politicians—a love having nothing to do with corruption or the appearance of it—Sen. Pat Roberts (R-Kan.) said: ’I’m suffering an independent expenditure missile attack, and I don’t have my shield.’’ Campaign finance reform is primarily an attempt by politicians to shield themselves from free speech—from that, the campaign has held its own because John erson wrote to protect the people from politicians: ’Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech.’’

Last Saturday McCain’s partner, Wis-consin Sen. Russell Feingold, delivered the Democrats’ response to President Bush’s weekly radio address. With the reformer’s characteristic hyperbole, Feingold ad-vised: ’’Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech.’’

The New York Times accurately and ap-provingly expresses McCainism: ’’Congress is unable to deal objectively with any issue, from a patient’s bill of rights to taxes to energy policy, if its members are receiving vast open-ended donations from the industries and people affected.’’ Oh. If only people af-fected by government would stop trying to affect the government—if they would just shut up and let McCain act ’objectively.’’

If you doubt that reformers advocate re-form because that action is ’objectively’ means coming to conclusions shared by the New York Times, read ’Who’s Buying Campaign Finance Reform?’ written by attorney and publisher William Novak. It reveals that since 1996, liberal foun-dations and soft money donors have contrib-uted $73 million to the campaign for George Soros, founder of drug legalization efforts and other liberal causes, has contributed $4.7 million, including more than $600,000 to Arizonans for Clean Elections—more than 71 percent of the funding of ACE.

Soros and seven other wealthy people founded and funded the Campaign for a Pro-gressive Future. One of those people, Steven Kirsch, contributed $500,000 to campaign ’’re-form’’ groups in 2000—and $1.8 million against George W. Bush. Another reformer, Jerome Kohlberg, gave $100,000 to a group that ran ads saying Let’s get the $100,000 checks out of politics.’’

Let’s be clear. These people have and ex-pressive liberty to do so that many would give up trying without mincing words. The only reason they don’t fear of overly aggressive interpre-tation of existing federal law by the Fed-eral Election Commission.

Indeed, this state of affairs gives rise to two distinct anomalies. First, people watching TV are annoyed by issue ads that don’t come right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Sens. John McCain and Russ Fein-gold, voted to impose restrictions on freedom of speech in the United States. This argument operates from the implausible as-sumption that political parties are ex-pressional associations and that refer to candidates before elections—or even right out and express a preference, when the associations running the ads would dearly love to mince words. Second, people, like Senincumbent who doesn’t need to spend as much to get his message home, is up against an unknown challenger, and that unknown challenger knows what the needs to spend more to have a chance to win. As soon as that unknown challenger encroaches above the Government’s specified spending limit, the Treasury of the United States provides $2 out of each dollar the noncomplying candidate gets to spend. In other words, a hammer comes down on a noncomplying candidate just as soon as they encroach above the Government-specified speech limit—hardly voluntary.

That is sort of like a robber putting a gun to your head and saying: I would like to have your wallet, but you, of course, really don’t have to give it to me.

If you choose to exercise your right to speak beyond the Government-prescribed limit, bad things happen to you. The Federal Treasury of the United States gives you $2 for every $1 your opponent is spending to bludgeon you in a libelous fashion.

The second part of the Harkin amendment is interesting in that it relies on volunteered tax money to provide the funding. This is different from the Presidential system where, as we know, we are able, if we choose, to check off $3 of tax money we already owe and to divert it away from things such as children’s nutrition and food stamps and other worthwhile activities into a fund to pay for the Presidential elections. As I understand the Harkin checkoff, the taxpayer is actually asked to volunteer an additional sum of money from his return.

I predict to my friend from Iowa, there is going to be darn little participation. I know what the checkoff rate has been among taxpayers when it doesn’t even add to their tax bill. The high water mark was in 1980, when it was slightly under 30 percent of taxpayers. There has been a steady trend downward to the point last year there were 11.8 percent of taxpayers volunteering money they already owed—it didn’t add to their tax bill; it was money they already owed—to go to pay for buttons and balloons and campaign commercials and national conventions.

My colleagues get the drift. There is not a whole lot of interest on the part of the American taxpayer to pay for our political campaigns. In fact, we have a huge poll on that every April 15. The most massive poll ever taken on any subject is taken on the subject of using tax dollars for political campaigns. That poll is taken every April 15 on our tax return. Even when it doesn’t add to our tax bill, about 10 percent of Americans choose to participate; 90 percent choose not to.

I say to my friend from Iowa, I don’t think this will be a very reliable source of funds if the taxpayer actually has to ante up and provide money for a candidate he doesn’t know. The chances of an American taxpayer choosing to donate to a candidate he doesn’t know, essentially any candidate is virtually nil, I suggest.

A slightly differently nuanced version of taxpayer funding than we had before us earlier, the Kerry amendment, got 30 votes. I hope this amendment will get no more than 30 votes.

We have come a long way on this subject. Earlier in the Senate careers of the Senator from Connecticut and the Senator from Iowa and myself, we were actually debating taxpayer funding of elections and spending limits for campaigns on the floor of the Senate. That kind of bill actually passed the Senate in 1993. We have come a long way.

It is noteworthy that the underlying McCain-Feingold bill does not have any part of the checkoff to give any tax money in it. It doesn’t have any spending limits on candidates in it. We have come a long way.

Now all we are debating is whether or not we are going to destroy the great American tradition, a tradition that is so important, and thinks is a terrible idea. We will get back to that issue later.

The Senator from Iowa sort of resurrects one of the golden oldies, one of the ideas from the past that sort of moved right on out of the public debate, by offering once again an opportunity for the taxpayers to subsidize candidates. There is a serious constitutional problem in the Treasury of the United States bludgeoning a noncomplying candidate who chooses to speak as much as he wants to with a 2-for-1 match out of the Treasury. If $2 out of the Treasury for every $1 the poor challenger is trying to raise to get his name out, it seems to me that has serious constitutional problems.

There is one provision in the amendment of the Senator from Iowa. I do find intriguing, and I commend him for it. That is the importance of the principle of nonseverability in this kind of debate. As I think our colleagues may remember—if they don’t, let me remind them—the last three campaign finance reform bills that cleared the Senate, that actually got out of this body, had nonseverability clauses in them. In fact, on this subject of campaign finance nonseverability clauses, I commend him for that.

There are virtually nil, I suggest.

Mr. M. CONNELL. Will the Senator from Tennessee, Mr. FRIST, will be offering early today does not link the whole bill. But it is essential that the nonseverability clauses in these kinds of bills. I commend the Senator from Iowa for recognizing that principle. Even though I don’t like the substance of his amendment, I do think the recognition of the importance to add nonseverability clauses in these kinds of bills. I commend the Senator from Iowa for recognizing that principle.

Mr. President, beyond that, I find not much to like about the amendment of the Senator from Iowa. I hope it will not be approved. I don’t know if we will have other speakers on this side. For the moment, I reserve the remainder of my time, which is how much?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 5 minutes.

Mr. DOOD. A noon vote. To let people know, why don’t we do a unanimous consent request.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that at noon a vote occur on the Harkin amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I want to respond and maybe get in a little colloquy with my friend from Kentucky. I appreciate the struggle he has had with the logic of his argument. But, quite frankly, I think the logic is somewhat unsound. My friend from Kentucky talks about a challenger out there, someone who wants to run for the Senate who has a message, such as Senator DODD talked about, someone who has an idea, some convictions and issues they want to bring out. They want to run for the Senate.

The Senator from Kentucky says, rightfully, that they need some money to get that message out and, by putting this limit on it, they would not be able to spend any more to get their message out than say, an incumbent. Of course, of course, we have access to the airwaves and the newspapers and all that kind of stuff. So a challenger might want to have more money.

Well, again, to attack the logic of that is to look at the facts. In the 2000 election, the average incumbent raised $45 million—the incumbent—us—to get our message out. The average challenger raised $2.7 million. So under the present system, the challenger can’t get their message out. He is swamped by what we can raise.

Mr. McCONNELL. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. HARKIN. Yes, I will, in a second.
Now in the amendment I am offering, they would be equal in terms of how much they could raise to spend. In fact, this amendment would help any of those challengers out there to get the message out.

Mr. McCONNELL. I say to my friend from Iowa, the problem is that spending is not important to the incumbent. As the Senator pointed out, the incumbent is already well known at the beginning of the campaign. If you liken this to a football field, the incumbent is down on the opponent’s 40—maybe 35- or 30-yard line at the beginning of the race, the typical challenger is back on his own 5. If they both have the same amount of money to spend, the incumbent wins. Spending beyond the Government-prescribed amount is way more important to the challenger than it is to the incumbent.

So simply adding up the figures doesn’t tell you much. I mean, it is true that incumbents spend more than challengers; but it is almost irrelevant to the problem of the challenger, which is to have enough to get his message across. Having enough clearly is in the eye of the beholder. We incumbents, of course, will always set the limits low enough to make it very difficult for anybody to get at us.

For example, I believe the spending limit in Kentucky is $2.5 million under the Senator’s proposal. That is about $300,000 or $400,000 more than I spent 17 years ago in a race in which I was outspent by the incumbent and won. That is about what two competitive House candidates spent last year, each, in one of our six congressional districts.

The proposal of the Senator from Iowa would be a big advantage to me, unless I happen to have been running against Jerome Kohlberg, about whom I have heard nothing every day. I will get back to that later today in another context. That billionaire put this full-page ad in the Post a couple days ago. These kinds of people are going to be all the time. You know that as well as I do. You know that as well as I do. We have done that in the past.

Mr. McCONNELL. It may be an advantage to be out there all the time, but if you don’t have the money to be on TV, and the Government tells you how much you can advertise, it is not an advantage unless you are the incumbent who is getting all this free coverage—the advantage that any incumbent will have no matter how you structure the deal.

Mr. HARKIN. You are getting that anyway.

Mr. McCONNELL. It is a great asset. Mr. HARKIN. Not only are you getting all of this free press and stuff from being a Senator, you are getting the money, too. Mr. McCONNELL. Right.

Mr. HARKIN. There is nothing I can do about you getting publicity. That comes with the territory of being a Senator. I am saying you should not have it both ways; you should not have the money and all the advantages that incumbents have. You can’t do anything about all the stuff—the stuff a Senator gets. We can set voluntary limits.

I say to my friend from Kentucky I know how strongly he feels about public financing. Perhaps my friend was right the other day when he said polls show that people don’t want their tax dollars used for public spending for people such as Lyndon LaRouche. My friend is probably right there. That is why I think there is another hammer—and you are right, this is a hammer—because there is no public financing in my amendment unless and until some-one exceeds the limit. That person who triggers, then, the financing that comes from a voluntary checkoff.

Now, my friend says, well, there probably won’t be enough money there because the people are not checking off as much as they used to. Is that right? I think the Senator said that is what is happening. Well, the fact is, I have talked to a lot of people about the checkoff. Do you know why they don’t want to give money to the checkoff? We just spend it.

We buy more TV ads, we hire more ad agencies, and the price keeps going up and up. They say: Why should I check off money to give to a candidate and all I do is see more of these soap ads, selling them like soap to me?

Under my amendment, a person checking off the money is putting money into a reserve fund to prevent that from happening. There is another hammer there: the person who exceeds the limits is the one who triggers the public financing.

If my friend is right, that people do not like public financing, that is another reason why someone would not exceed the limits. That is another reason why I think people would be more prone to check off the money because the money would basically be used to prevent this unregulated, unlimited spending on ads.

I say to my friend from Kentucky, I do not know if he listened to my argument on that, but this will get people to check off more money because then it would be used not to just add to the money in the checkoff TV ads, but it would be put into a reserve fund as a hammer to keep us from spending more and more money.

Mr. McCONNELL. I say to my friend from Iowa, he is counting on people who do not contribute to candidates they do not know, to contribute their money to a nameless candidate and cause with which they might not agree.
The Senator from Iowa is correct; under his amendment there would be no taxpayer funding provided you complied with the Government speech limit. The problem is, if you do not, your complying opponent gets tax dollars from the Government to counter your excessive speech. That is the constitutional problem with the proposal of the Senator from Iowa.

I do not think that makes the spending limit voluntary if, when you encroach above the Government-prescribed speech limit, the Government subsidizes your opponent. That is more than a hammer, that is a sledgehammer.

Also, it is worthy to note that all of the challengers who won last year, as far as I can tell—the Senator from Iowa can correct me if I am wrong—I believe all the challengers who won last year spent more than the spending limits in his amendment, further proving my point that a challenger needs the freedom to reach the audience. To that extent we are drawing the rules, crafting this in such a way that we make it very difficult for the challenger to compete, we are going to win even more of the time. Of course, incumbents do win most of the time, but we would win more of the time if we had a very low ceiling.

In any event, my view is this is clearly unconstitutional. It is taxpayer funding of elections, more unpopular than a congressional pay raise, widely voted against every April 15 by the taxpayers of this country.

We have had this vote in a slightly different way on two earlier occasions. The Wellstone amendment got 36 votes; the Kerry amendment got 30. I hope the amendment of the Senator from Iowa will be roundly defeated.

I do applaud him, however, for recognizing the importance of nonseverability clauses in campaign finance debates.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEES TO MEET

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I have 10 unanimous consent requests for committees to meet during today's session of the Senate. They have all been approved by the majority and minority leaders. I ask that these requests be agreed to en bloc and printed in the RECORD.

Mr. DODD. Reserving the right to object, I ask my friend and colleague if he will withhold that request for a few minutes. I will share with him a message I am getting. I will let him know about it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. DODD. At this juncture, at this particular moment.

BIPARTISAN CAMPAIGN REFORM ACT OF 2001—Continued

AMENDMENT NO. 135

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I saw my colleague from Kentucky but I guess he is not now on the floor. We have a couple minutes. My colleague from Kentucky and I talked about this the other day. He makes a very good point about the declining participation in the checkoff. If the dollar amounts have been raised. If my friend from Kentucky is correct, originally it was $1 for the checkoff. You are not paying more in taxes. It is the money you send in. The checkoff of $1 of your tax returns would be used for the public financing of Presidential races. That number then went up to $3 because there were fewer and fewer people who were actually doing the voluntary checkoff.

His numbers, I believe, are correct. We have seen a decline in the number of people who are voluntarily checking off that $3 of their Federal taxes they are sending in or that are being withheld to be used for these Presidential races.

I am worried about that because I think there is an underlying cause for this. The debate we are having about campaign finance reform, while we are not going to adopt public financing for congressional races despite the fact there is a lot of merit going that route in terms of dealing with the constitutional problems that exist in the absence of having some public financing, there is an underlying reason that I think contributes to that declining statistic, and that is the people are disgusted with the whole process.

I do not think it is people's lack of patriotism or their lack of understanding how the current system is to contribute to strengthening our democracy. People are getting fed up. Witness that last year despite the overwhelming amount of attention and advertising on a national Presidential race, a race that included Ralph Nader and the Green Party, there was Pat Buchanan and the Reform Party, the Democratic candidate, Al Gore, and his running mate from my home State, Joe Lieberman; President Bush and Richard Cheney. Out of 200 million eligible voters in this country, only 100 million participated. One out of every two eligible voters in this country decided they were not going to make a choice for President of the United States and Vice President, not to mention the congressional races, the Senate races, and gubernatorial races that occurred.

On the Federal election for the leader of the oldest continuous democracy in the world, one out of every two adults in this country decided they were not going to participate. I know some may have had legitimate excuses, but I suspect a significant majority of those who did not participate knew it was election day, did not have some overriding family matter that caused them to miss voting. I think they made a conscious decision, I think they decided they were not going to show up, and I cannot express in our native language adequately the deep, deep concern I have over that fact and what appears to be a growing number of people.

I hear it particularly among younger people. I visit a lot of high schools in my home State of Connecticut. I get a sense that too many of our younger people are embracing the notions held by one out of every two adult Americans in the last election, that they are not going to participate by showing up to choose the leader of our country. I suspect that a good part of the reason is that people are just disgusted by what they see and the election is run when they see this mindless advertising, these 30-second spots, the attack ads that go after each other as if this was somehow an athletic contest rather than a debate of ideas where we are talking about the future of our country and what the priorities of a nation ought to be.

I, too, am very concerned with the declining statistics that my friend from Kentucky has identified, but I think it is more a poll not about public financing. I think it is a poll we owe to pay attention to, what the American people are saying, at least in the majority of cases, I believe: We think the system is not working very well. We think the system is out of control. We think there is too much money in politics; that our voices do not get heard; that we cannot afford to participate in these contests where contributions of $1,000, now $2,000 per individual, that people can write a check now for $37,500 if this McCain-Feingold bill is adopted.

Last year—I said this over and over in the past week and a half—there were only 1.200 people in this country who wrote the maximum check of $25,000; 1.200 people out of 280 million Americans. We now have raised that because this hasn't been enough. We are told you can't finance these campaigns with maximum contributions of $25,000 in Federal elections. We are raising it to $37,500. That is per individual, per year. Double that for a primary election. That gets you to $75,000. Of course, if it is a husband and wife, it is $150,000. We had to debate that. I commend my colleague from California who negotiated that number down.

Those who wanted that number higher wanted $100,000 per individual, $200,000 for a husband and wife. We are told the system is financially bankrupt. We don't have enough money in politics, we are told.

I don't have to do with these declining numbers of people voluntarily checking off for some of their tax dollars to be used to publicly finance the Presidential races in America. I am hopeful the adoption of the McCain-Feingold bill, if it is adopted, will at least turn people’s opinion in a direction that has been long overdue. We really need to do something about these elections.

For those reasons, I commend, again, the principal authors of this bill and those who are supporting it. But I do think it is enough. People are still turned off, put to mildly, on how the races are run and on how politics is conducted. There will always be some; I am not suggesting we will get 100-per-cent participation. I oppose any laws that require people to vote as some countries do. We better do a lot better job in convincing more than just one out of two adult Americans they ought to participate in choosing the leaders of our Nation than we presently are.

For those reasons, I commend, again, the principal authors of this bill and those who are supporting it. But I do think it is enough. People are still turned off, put to mildly, on how the races are run and on how politics is conducted. There will always be some; I am not suggesting we will get 100-per-cent participation. I oppose any laws that require people to vote as some countries do. We better do a lot better job in convincing more than just one out of two adult Americans they ought to participate in choosing the leaders of our Nation than we presently are.

If those numbers continue to decline that, more than anything else, is what ought to preoccupy the attention of each and every one of us, regardless of our views on the particular aspects of amendments. Every single one of us privileged to serve in this Chamber, who have a voice and vote on how we might conduct the political debate in this Nation, needs to take notice of what the American public is saying when they go to the polls or don’t go to the polls on election day and exercise their right that people have spilled blood for, for over two centuries, not only in our first great revolution but in a civil war that threatened to divide and destroy this country, through two world wars, wars in Korea and Vietnam and other wars in which Americans, in countless numbers, lost their lives to protect and defend.

We are not asked to put our lives on the line. We voluntarily seek these positions. If we are fortunate enough to be chosen by our constituents to be here, we bear a very high degree of responsibility during the brief amount of time the Good Lord gives us to represent the constituencies that have chosen us to do this, not only for our own time but that future generations will inherit, as we have inherited, from the sacrifices of those who came before us, the privilege of being here to see to it that this wonderful ideal and vision of democracy is perpetuated throughout this country for, hopefully, centuries to come.

For those reasons, I hope while this amendment may be rejected, we could find more common ground between Democratic and Republican colleagues and restore the public’s confidence in the electoral process in this country. That is at the heart of what McCain-Feingold is all about, despite all the debates about various minutiae in the bill or ideas to be added to it. Our solemn responsibility, in addition to dealing with the issues of the day, is to see to it the process by which we choose people to make those decisions enjoys the broad-based support of the American public. It is in jeopardy today. We better take it more seriously than we are now.

I yield the floor, suggest the absence of a quorum, and ask that the time be charged against the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BUNNING). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the amendment being offered by my friend and colleague from Iowa, Senator HARKIN. I am assured this week, Senator KERRY and I offered a similar amendment that called for voluntary spending limits and partial public financing. Senator HARKIN’s amendment differs in some respects to the proposal that we offered, but it still seeks to alleviate the same problem: How can we reduce the obscene amount of special interest money that is being spent in Senate campaigns today? And while I know that Senator HARKIN’s amendment will not pass, I nevertheless believe that it is truly needed to reform our campaign finance system.

Since 1976, while the general cost of living has tripled, total spending on congressional campaigns has grown up eightfold. For the winning candidates, the average House race went from $87,000 to $381,000 in 2000. And here on the Senate side, winners spent an average of $609,000 in 1976, but last year that average shot up to $7 million.

The FEC estimates that last year more than $1.8 billion in federally regulated money was spent on federal campaigns alone, and that doesn’t even count the huge amount of soft money that went into attempts to influence federal elections. That has been roughly estimated to reach as high as nearly another $700 million.

I have been calling for public financing of congressional campaigns for a very long time: since 1973, my first year in this body. And, as my colleagues who have been here for a while know, I have taken to this floor again and again over the years to urge us to solve the public’s crisis in confidence and do the right thing.

To be clear, I would prefer full public financing of congressional campaigns that would reduce spending and completely eliminate the link between special interest money and candidates. I have long held that such a system is the only true, comprehensive reform that would restore the American people’s faith in our democracy and allow candidates to compete on an equal footing where the merits of their ideas outweigh the size of their pocketbook.

But as the problems in our system have escalated in recent years, so too has my despair over our failure to see real reform enacted, not just debated. That is why I am here again to see that we take at least a step toward achieving these much-needed reforms. Senator HARKIN’s amendment is one such step, and urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. MCCONNELL, Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The question is on agreeing to amendment No. 155. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. LOTT. I move to lay that motion on the table.

Mr. REID. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 32, nays 67, as follows:

[Roll Call Vote No. 58 Leg.]

YEAS—32

Allard

Allen

Baucus

Bennett

Bingaman

Boxer

Byrd

Cantwell

Carper

Conrad

Daschle

Bayh

Biden

Bingaman

Boxer

Byrd

Cantwell

Carper

Conrad

Daschle

Dayton

Dodd

Dorgan

Durbin

Feingold

Graham

Harkin

Clinton

Collins

Inouye

Kennedy

Levin

Lieberman

Murray

Reed

Reid

Sanburns

Stabenow

Torricelli

Wellstone

NAYS—67

Akaka

Allard

Allen

Baucus

Bennett

Bingaman

Boxer

Byrd

Cantwell

Carper

Conrad

Cleland

Cochran

Craig

Craige

DeWine

Domenici

Dorgan

Ensign

Enzi

Fitschgerald

Frist

Grassley

Gregg

Hagel

Hatch

Hutchinson

Inhofe

Jeffords

Johnson

Kohl

Kyl

Landrieu

Lott

Lugar

Lincoln

Lott

Logan

McCain

McConnell

Mikulski

Miller

Murkowski

Nickles

Roberts

Rockefeller

Santorum

Schaumer

Sessions

Shelby

Smith (NH)

Smith (OR)

Specter

Stevens

Thompson

Thomas

Thompson

Voinovich

Warner

Wyden

NOT VOTING—1

Akaka

The amendment was rejected.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LOTT. I move to lay that motion on the table.
The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Delaware be added as a cosponsor of the Harkin amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, we have been prepared for 2 months now to have this full debate and votes on amendments, and to actually get to a conclusion. Senator McCAIN and I have talked, and Senator McCONNELL and I have talked, and the agreement all along was that we would have amendments, full debate for 2 weeks, and then we would go to a conclusion.

I assure the Senate that we are going to do that. We can do it tonight at a reasonable hour, we can do it at midnight, or Friday, Saturday, or Sunday. But I think we have a responsibility to complete action on this bill.

I hope the concern I have now that maybe amendments are going to start multiplying when, in fact, there are no more than one or two amendments that really are still critical that are out there to be offered and debated and voted on—maybe there are more. And I don’t want to demean any Senator’s amendment, but we have been on this now for the agreed-to almost 2 weeks. Anybody who thinks that by just beginning to drag this out and coming up with more amendments, we will carry it over until next week, that is not going to be the case.

Everybody has labored—sometimes with difficulty—to be fair with each other and give this thing a full airing and get some results, and you can debate about whether they are good or bad as long as you want to. At some point, we have to vote and move on.

We have had serious problems in this country. We need to address them. We have to pass a budget resolution. We have to take into consideration the needs of the country in terms of funding for programs, whether it is education, agriculture, defense, health care. We need to take whatever actions we can to provide confidence and a boost in job security and the economy. We have an energy crisis that will not go away. We need to get on to those issues.

Again, not to demean this issue at all—it is very important—but we will have done what we promised to do, and now it is time we begin to look for the conclusion and be prepared to move on to other issues next week. I just wanted to remind Senators on both sides of our discussion and my commitment to follow up with the agreement.

Mr. McCAIN. Will the majority leader yield?

Mr. LOTT. Yes.

Mr. McCAIN. I thank the majority leader, and I thank Senator McCONNELL and Senator DODD, who have managed this bill, I think, with efficiency and, I believe, in a total environment of cooperation.

But as I said all during last week, a couple times when we only had two or three amendments, we intended to be done by tonight or the end of this week. We have disposed of some. We will have an amendment that I think is very important that is about to be addressed soon. After that, there are not any major issues. We should finalize this bill so that we can move forward and none of us has to stay here over the weekend.

I want to say the majority leader is correct. We all agreed that we could get this thing done in 2 weeks if we allowed the 2 weeks. So there is no reason whatsoever that we should not enter into time agreements on specific amendments and a time for a final vote on this legislation.

Mr. LOTT. I thank Senator McCAIN. That discussion was not just between Senator McCAIN and me, but also with the Democratic leader, Senator FEINGOLD—we were all in the loop. We all had an understanding of how we would bring this to an eventual conclusion.

Mr. McCONNELL. Will the leader yield?

Mr. LOTT. I am glad to yield to Senator McCONNELL.

Mr. McCONNELL. I say to the distinguished majority leader, nobody more passionately opposes this bill than I do, but I am prepared to move to final passage today. There is one important amendment left on nonseverability, which is about to be the pending business before the Senate.

I say to my friend from Arizona, we may have a few sort of cats-and-dogs amendments, as Senator Dole used to call them, but we are basically through on this side.

Mr. LOTT. Can I inquire of Senator DODD, does he have any idea what might be outstanding and when we can move to a conclusion on this legislation?

Mr. DODD. I will be happy to, Mr. President. First of all, the past week and a half has been a rather remarkable week and a half in the Senate. We have had very few quorum calls. I do not know the total number of amendments we have considered, but they have been extensive, back and forth. I find it somewhat amusing that someone else’s amendment is a cat or a dog, but if it is your amendment, it is a profoundly significant proposal.

We dealt yesterday with the opposition’s efforts to raise the hard number limits, and now a severability amendment from the opposition. Those are fundamentally important amendments but amendments that may try to enhance and strengthen the bill from those who support the legislation are a cat or a dog.

Our list has not expanded, I say to the majority leader. The list of amendments is about the same as it has been. There are about 12 or 13 amendments. There is a list of 21, which has been the consistent number for the past week. These do not require much time. We are prepared to move forward, I say to the majority leader, and if it takes going into tonight, going into tomorrow to finish it up, Saturday, or Sunday, whatever it takes, because I know we want to finish the bill, we fully respect that. I support that.

I have an obligation—if I can complete this thought. There are those on this side who support McCain-Feingold, and have for years, who have ideas dealt with 24 amendments a day, and strength this legislation. While this is an important amendment we are about to consider, there are other amendments that should be heard.

I hope my colleagues will respect the right of Members to offer amendments and be heard on them. There certainly is no effort over here to delay this at all. We will stay here however long, I am told by the leadership. Unfortunately, the Democratic leader cannot be here at this moment, but I am told he takes the position that if it takes being here all weekend, we will be here all weekend to complete it.

Mr. LOTT. I want everybody to understand that I am prepared to do that, too. Instead of that being a threat, it is a promise, No. 1, but No. 2, it is to urge Senators to work with the managers to identify the amendments we are going to have to consider, and if it can be done by voice vote, let us get time agreements on them. We should be prepared to move to table, if that is what is required, too.

We have an opportunity to make progress and complete this bill. We are going to do that. I want to make sure everybody understands it, so everybody needs to start making plans, if we are going to have to stay here Friday and Saturday, and take actions to allow that to happen.

Mr. DODD. A point, if I can, Mr. President. I am informed that we have dealt with 24 amendments about equally divided; 24 left, I am sorry, both Democratic and Republican amendments.

I know, for instance, Senator LIEBERMAN and Senator THOMPSON have an amendment, one of the outstanding amendments. Maybe it can be worked out. Senator BINGMAN has one that has been worked out. It is important to note there is a good-faith effort obviously to complete this work, but I must want to see usage of theprocedure now, having considered a lot of these amendments, that we are going to start telling people who have had amendments pending—Senator DURBIN; has been on me and talking to me for the past 10 days about when can he bring his amendment up; also Senator Harkin, Senator Levin. I have been trying to orchestrate this the best I can, but I do not want them put in the position of all of a sudden because we completed the amendments the opponents of the legislation care the most about, that we are going to deny or curtail in some way the rights of other Senators who care just as deeply about their proposals and not provide adequate time for them to be heard.

We are prepared to go forward. I know the next amendment is from Senator Frist on severability. I have a number of requests, I say to the majority leader, from people who want to be heard on this amendment. I know the proponents of the amendment do as well.

Mr. REID. Before the majority leader leaves the floor——

Mr. LOTT. I will be glad to yield to Senator Reid.

Mr. REID. I said this morning, I have been working trying to help Senator Dodd. One of my assignments has been to work with individual Senators. We have had people, as Senator Dodd indicated, who have been waiting the entire 9 days we have been on this floor to offer amendments. They come to me and Senator Dodd a couple times a day.

Looking at simple mathematics, I say to the majority leader. It is going to be really hard to do this. If we cut down the time by two-thirds, it is still going to get us into sometime tomorrow. If that is the case, that is the case.

Senator Bingaman, Senator Durbin—these people want to offer their amendments.

Mr. LOTT. I say to Senator Reid, he always does good work, not just with Senator Dodd but with this side, too. He is an ombudsman for us all. We do not want to cut off anybody, but all I am saying is we are going to complete this bill this week and everybody needs to know that. If we go into Friday, Saturday, or Sunday, I only have one commitment, and I really did not want to do it anyway, so I will be delighted to stay here.

With that, I yield the floor.

Mr. DODD. Is there some particular constituency in Mississippi the Senator wants to inform?

Mr. LOTT. Actually, it is in a State other than my home State.

Mr. DODD. I thought the majority leader might want to make that clarification. I think we are prepared now to go to the Frist amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 156

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask for immediate consideration of my amendment, which I believe is at the desk. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Tennessee [Mr. Frist], for himself and Mr. Breaux, proposes an amendment numbered 156.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with. So the PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To make certain provisions non-severable, and to provide for expedited judicial review of any provision of, or amendment made by, this Act)

On page 37, strike lines 18 through 24 and insert the following:

(a) In General.—Except as provided in subsection (b), if any provision of this Act or amendment made by this Act, or the application of a provision or amendment to any person or circumstance, is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this Act and amendments made by this Act, and the application of the provisions and amendment to any person or circumstance, shall not be affected by the holding.

(b) Nonseverability of Certain Provisions.—

(1) General.—If one of the provisions of, or amendments made by, this Act that is described in paragraph (2), or if the application of any such provision or amendment to any person or circumstance, is held to be unconstitutional, then all the provisions and amendments described in paragraph (2) shall be invalid.

(2) Nonseverable Provisions.—A provision or amendment described in this paragraph is a provision or amendment contained in any of the following sections:

(A) Section 101, except for section 323(d) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as added by such section.

(B) Section 102.

(C) Section 103(b).

(D) Section 201.

(E) Section 203.

(c) Judicial Review.—

(1) Expedited Review.—Any Member of Congress, candidate, national committee of a political party, or any person adversely affected by any provision or amendment described in paragraph (2) shall be entitled to seek judicial review of the constitutionality of any such provision or amendment to any person or circumstance, by action in the District Court for the District of Columbia, and shall be entitled to a trial by jury.

(2) Appeal to Supreme Court.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any order of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia granting or denying an injunction, regarding, or finally disposing of, any such action brought under paragraph (1) shall be reviewable by appeal directly to the Supreme Court of the United States. Any such appeal shall be taken by a notice of appeal filed within 30 calendar days after such order is entered.

(3) Expedited Consideration.—It shall be the duty of the District Court for the District of Columbia and the Supreme Court of the United States to advance on the docket and to expedite to the greatest possible extent the disposition of any matter brought under paragraph (1).

(4) Applicability.—This subsection shall apply only with respect to any action filed under paragraph (1) not later than 30 days after the effective date of this Act.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, can I have a copy of the amendment? We have not seen the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is on its way. The Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I rise to speak on the amendment that has been offered by myself and Senator Breaux that I believe gives us the opportunity—and I encourage my colleagues to pay attention to the debate over the next 2 or 3 hours because it gives us the opportunity to assess where we are today in the bill, as amended, and to understand the implications for each of us, for people who are interested in participating in the political process both today and also for years to come.

I try positive. I referred back, again, to set the big picture and then update my colleagues, to a diagram that I believe is important. It is simple, but sometimes when we look at all these lines, it is confusing, and that is the nature of the whole campaign finance apparatus. This chart summarizes that when you pull or push in one area, it has effects throughout the system. It is very important because the issue we are addressing is what is called the nonseverability and the severability clause in the underlying McCain-Feingold bill.

Money flows into the system from the top of my chart down to the bottom. This is the political process. At the top of the chart is where money comes from, and it is all these blue lines. My colleagues do not need to focus on what these blue lines are right now, but I do want them to focus on the funnels, where this money is collected and where it goes.

I said before, there are seven funnels, when one looks at all the political money that comes in and where it goes to affect free speech, political voice

We have the individual candidate who can receive money from individuals, and we will talk about what we did yesterday in increasing what I call the contribution limits in terms of the hard dollars, the Federal dollars.

There have been changes to the underlyng McCain-Feingold bill that are very positive. What angers people the most is that the individual candidate is losing his or her voice today. It might be a challenger; it might be an incumbent. Over time, because of the erosion from inflation on the one hand, without any adjustments in the Federal dollars of the hard dollars, but also the increasing influence, this is what angers the American people, the influence issue groups, special interest groups have on the system, all of which, if it grows too much, will overshadow and overwhelm the voice of the individual candidate.

They might be talking education. Medicare reform, military defense of the country, but the issue group, the unions, the corporations right now that have no disclosure at all, very little, because very little is being heard. This arena has become increasingly powerful at the expense of the individual candidate who is out there doing his or her best, traveling across Tennessee or across any State in this country with a voice that no longer is being heard.

I say that because it is this relative balance that has gotten out of kilter. Members on both sides of the aisle have been doing their best to address this over the last 2 weeks.

Political action committees, we talked a little bit about that, as long as we understand that corporations, unions, issue groups can all channel money, political action groups, to the individual candidates.

The Republican party and the Republican Party are in this box on this chart, and we traditionally have been able to collect both Federal hard dollars and soft or non-Federal dollars. Again, it has all been disclosed. Everything in the green on the chart is fully disclosed. You can hold people accountable to that.

That is where the party system has worked. Our party system has traditionally worked to accentuate or amplify the voice of the individual candidate. You can see that the party hard money goes to the individual candidate, the soft money subsequently will be used to reinforce that voice of the individual candidate.

It is very important to understand this role of the party has real value in a system today which has changed radically, which, unfortunately, has pulled the power away from the individual candidate over to the corporations, unions, the special interest groups, groups specifically around an issue used to overpower the voice of the individual candidate.

Again, this part of the chart—the party hard and party soft money, PACs, and individual candidates—has very little disclosure by corporations, unions, issue groups—very little in terms of accountability or regulation.

What have we done? This is where we are today having not passed the underlying bill as of yet. What have we done over the last 10 days of the discussion?

We have had good amendments today that have been debated in a very thoughtful way. We saw the earlier chart with the funnels still on the chart.

With the underlying McCain-Feingold and the amendments that have passed, we have the following:

Yesterday, we increased the contribution limits. We already had contributions defined historically but we increased the hard dollar limits for the individual candidates. We argued yesterday. Some people were for, some were against, and a compromise was reached. We have to point out the fact that the value of the individual contributions, even in what we approved yesterday, is not the same value we would pass. You would need a correction for inflation. That was increased yesterday. That helps a little bit. Again, it is not up to 1974 standards, but it helps to give more voice to the individual candidate. That is why that is important. That is why you had the people who feel strongest about reform coming forward saying, absolutely, on both sides of the aisle, we have to increase these limits that individual candidates can receive.

Second, the underlying McCain-Feingold bill does something very important. I am spending time with this because we have to see that the compromise achieved in McCain-Feingold has resulted in a balance. We have to understand political discourse, or we have to use the Senate. We have spoken on it through an amendment earlier this morning, but we have the careful balance disrupted by the courts, resulting in a detrimental impact on the overall system, which does the opposite of what we are elected officials want or the American people want—making the system worse.

No. 2, McCain-Feingold, as amended today, increased contribution limits but takes out party soft money from individuals, through corporations, unions, issue groups through sponsorships. All the soft money that comes to the parties is gone. That just about wipes out 50 percent of what the Republican Party, say, of the Senate, has, along with the impact it can have. So it diminishes our voice perhaps 20 percent, perhaps 50 percent, perhaps 60 percent. Whatever our voice is now, which, again, is fully disclosed, highly regulated, where we can be held accountable to the American people, the individual candidate, it, today, if McCain-Feingold passed, now is gone. Why? Because we have eliminated the soft party money.

The third key point applying to our amendment, you can see we are wiping out the party soft money which gives voice to the individual candidate. The balancing act achieved in the underlying McCain-Feingold bill is that, since we restricted speech, or we regulated, or we have put restrictions on the use of resources that affect speech, you sure better do it out here as well. If you don’t, I guarantee the money will keep coming to the system, and the money instead of coming here will all flow to the area of least resistance. That is, the special interest groups, the unions, the corporations.

It is not any more complicated than that, but I am building up to be able to show you why you have the nonseverability.

Now I have dollar signs indicated on this chart and I will come back to that. They don’t mean anything in terms of overall quantity. Qualitatively, you can see the individual candidate spends money, the party spends money, the issue group spends money under McCain-Feingold. The restrictions put in for constitutional reasons are the Snowe-Jeffords amendment; we voted on it earlier today.

Put restrictions on speech party soft money here, and you counterbalance that with restricting speech or rationing speech or basically saying 60 days before an election you can’t engage fully in political speech under the Jeffords-Snowe provision.

It attempts to limit the role and influence of special interest versus candidates and parties through the electioneering provision. It doesn’t take care of direct mail, phone calls, or get out the vote. That money can come through this process and electioneering, the broadcast provisions are of Snowe-Jeffords. I will come back to that.

The careful balance, achieved by a compromise, no question. As we have gone through this process as McCa McCain-Feingold has attempted to achieve balance by eliminating party soft money and having the Snowe-Jeffords provision. That balance has been achieved as crafted by the authors in the original bill and not altered by amendments. That is very important because people will say what about the Wellstone amendment. That is not part of this. It is the underlying provisions. McCain-Feingold is built on that basic understanding I have just outlined.

I argue that the last thing we want to do is upset that balance for the reasons I said. We have the potential for opening the floodgates if we allow party money to be eliminated and all of a sudden we remove, for constitutional reasons or a court decides later, the Snowe-Jeffords amendment.

The next chart will show what would happen if all of a sudden we took the restrictions off here and said Snowe-Jeffords is unconstitutional, that is what the courts decided would happen. This is what, potentially, might happen if our amendment does not happen.

Again, this side of the chart is basically the same as McCain-Feingold. We have eliminated the party. As I have said, if you move this restriction on speech, the Snowe-Jeffords restriction on speech, off, the money is going to still come into the system and it can’t go this way. It can’t go to individual candidates because we have limits there, the hard money limits. It has nowhere to go out to flow to the area of least resistance, and the area of least resistance is corporations, unions, issue groups that all of a sudden have unregulated, no-limits, no-cap—for good constitutional reasons, I argue—see the folksy signs. Ultimately, we do exactly what we don’t want to do. We increase the interest and the role and the power of the special interests versus the individual candidates and the parties.

That is the impact. That is the big picture. I think that linkage is critically important. As to the specifics of the amendment, first of all, it addresses this balance. Second, it is narrow, it is targeted, and it is focused. The media has been saying this is a poison pill because if you strike down one part of McCain-Feingold the whole bill falls. That is wrong. That is false. This is narrow and targeted. It applies to the whole bill. It links just the two provisions, the Snowe-Jeffords provision with the ban on soft money—nothing else. The linkage is for a good reason. It is because the impact on one has an impact on the other. They are complementary; they are intertwined. That is why that nonseverability is absolutely critical to prevent the possibility of this happening.

The nonseverability clause ties together just those two provisions and nothing else. When I say it is narrowly tailored, a narrowly tailored nonseverability clause, it is basically because everything else will stand. If the Snowe-Jeffords provision is ruled to be unconstitutional and therefore the cap is released, the party soft money elimination will be invalid; again, coming back to the original balance. Other provisions in the bill stand. It is just those two provisions, which will not be affected by this nonseverability clause, are provisions such as the increased disclosure for party committees, the provision clarifying that the ban on foreign contributions includes soft money, the clarification of the ban on raising political money on Federal Government property. All of that stands. We are talking about just those two provisions which I have spoken.

The provisions on independent versus coordinated expenditures by political parties are unaffected by this amendment. The coordination provisions of the bill, the portions of the bill such as tightening the definition of independent expenditures, the provisions providing increased reporting of independent expenditures—again, all of these provisions of the McCain-Feingold bill are not excluded as a part of our amendment today. It has to be one of the two provisions to which I have spoken.

Another point I want to mention, and it will probably be talked about over the next couple of hours, is the fact that this narrowly targeted nonseverability clause also provides a process for expedited judicial review of any court challenges to these two provisions. The purpose of that clearly is that challenges—we don’t want to be held up in court with a lot of indecision over the years.

All this does, as part of this nonseverability clause, its purpose, is to provide that if the provisions of this legislation that restrict the ever-louder voice of the issue ads—which, again, are poorly disclosed, are not regulated—are declared unconstitutional, just the Snowe-Jeffords provisions, then the provision that weakens the voice of the individual candidate and of the party would not be enforceable.

Similarly, just striking it down: The person running for public office will not be left out here defenseless, without any voice, if our effort in McCain-Feingold as the Snowe-Jeffords provision falls, if the courts say no, we are not going to do anything here—which clearly, just looking at the dollar signs, would put the individual candidates again at a point where they are almost helpless as they are trying to make their point.

The history of severability legislation I am sure we will go to. I will not address that. Let me answer one question because we were talking as if this were a poison pill because people bring in editorial saying this is a poison pill. It is clear, a poison pill, to me, is if you give somebody a pill and they drop dead and they are gone. We are not adding a new entity or provision to the bill. All we are doing is linking the provisions that are already in the bill. They are in the underlying McCaon-Feingold bill. They are not amendments that have been added that are trying to poison the bill.

The only thing we are doing is working with two underlying provisions that are already in the bill, saying they are inextricably linked and have an impact on one the other.

Proponents of the bill—we heard it a lot this morning—told us time and time again that this is constitutional. Snowe-Jeffords is constitutional, the ban on party soft money is constitutional. If people really believe that, I think we need to add something to the bill have nothing to fear by this linkage in our nonseverability proposal.

As we look at what I have presented, we should take this opportunity to look seriously at what is happening in campaigns and campaign finance reform: The sources of money, how it is being spent, whether or not it is disclosed, and where the money is going. In all this we need to make absolutely sure we do not muffle the voices and diminish that role of the individual candidates out there while increasing the role of the special interests or the unions or the corporations.

I hope all my colleagues will study this particular amendment, will carefully consider this balanced and narrowly tailored amendment that addresses what I believe is a critical, critical issue. Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I yield 15 minutes to the senior Senator from Tennessee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee is recognized for 15 minutes.

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, I thank my colleague from Tennessee, Senator FRIST, who has done his usual excellent job in laying out his case. I think the concern that is being expressed is a valid concern, in that we need to keep in mind the totality of the system as we are addressing this issue. That is one of the things that make this feel good parties that happened yesterday, because I think that is exactly what we were doing.

If we, for example, had lost Snowe-Jeffords somewhere along the way and just had a soft money ban without any increase in the hard limit, I think the potential problem that my colleague expressed would really have been a significant one. I do not think that practical problem exists nearly as much as we feared, because even under a worst case scenario, if the disclosure and other provisions of the Snowe-Jeffords even were to fall and we lost soft money in the system—which I think would be a good happening—we have increases in the hard money limit. We have new doubled, under the original bill—we have doubled the amount of money the candidate can have for his own campaign, $1,000 to $2,000; $4,000 in a primary, $4,000 in a general election. We have also increased the amount of money that can go to parties. We did not increase it as much as I would like, but we increased it. We also increased the aggregate amount. We also increased and doubled the amount that parties can give to the candidates. We indexed all of it.

It is not that we are not in the same position. We were when McCain-Feingold started. We have taken some significant steps in order to get some legitimate, controlled, limited, hard money into the hands of candidates and into the feeling of parties that they didn’t have when this debate began.

The problem that is being addressed today is one of the very kinds of things we were trying to address yesterday. I think this body effectively and overwhelmingly addressed it in the compromise amendment that we have. The proponents of the current amendment for nonseverability, however, make the case that we shouldn’t risk the situation where the soft money limitations or abolitions and the Snowe-Jeffords requirements with regard to unions, corporations, and others would be struck down; that there would be an imbalance. My first point is that we corrected and I think significantly corrected that imbalance yesterday.

March 29, 2001

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE 5021

My very next point would be that it is not exactly as if Snowe-Jeffords were some kind of a major happening in terms of the overall picture of any given campaign. In the first place, none of it kicks in 60 days before an election. So anything goes up until 60 days. Part of Snowe-Jeffords is simply a disclosure requirement. It doesn’t have anything to do with money. A part of Snowe-Jeffords has to do with corporations and unions within the last 60 days and their expenditures, and that is a money situation.

Let’s say that was knocked out, hypothetically. We are all talking hypothetically because obviously none of us knows what a court will do. We have argued the constitutionality of Snowe-Jeffords in the past. For the moment, let’s hypothetically say that a 60-day restriction with regard to what corporations and unions could do, and nobody else—no individuals, as Senator Wallis has pointed out, for example—is a part of this. I compliment my friend for narrowly tailoring this legislation so we didn’t have to deal with all of that. But that is knocked out.

Then we are knocking out some corporate and union money in the last 60 days of the campaign. That is not insignificant. But I am not sure, in the total context of things, that it is all that important. It certainly doesn’t justify doing what we may be doing here in terms of nonseverability.

The first thing we need to understand about nonseverability and Congress passing a bill with a nonseverability provision in this is that it is extremely rare. We have asked the Congressional Research Service about it. Their information is that there have been 10 bills introduced or considered in the last 12 years that have had a nonseverability provision in them. They further say that there has been one bill in the last 12 years where we have passed legislation that contained a nonseverability clause. It is extremely rare in the thousands of bills that passed during that period of time of 12 years. I said: How many public laws were there? They said 12,962. Out of 12,962 pieces of legislation, only 1 of them contained a nonseverability clause. That is some indication of the rarity and the significance of what we are doing here today, or what is being suggested that we do.

There was a principle established a long time ago in this country that is nonseverability and is recognized by the judiciary—that in a piece of legislation, which more likely than not will contain several provisions, you can have some parts of it that are constitutional and maybe one part that is not. Striking that unconstitutional part, says the Court, and leave the rest intact.

That is the normal way we have handled things in this country. It is based upon a concept that I think all of us honor and adhere and we talk a lot about, which is judicial restraint. We have recognized in this country for a long time—and our courts have recognized for a long time—that they should exercise judicial restraint and make constitutional meaning by necessary limits. The courts have adopted their own rulings that militate in that direction and cause them not to go off and even consider constitutional issues unless they really have to. It is for the reasons that I explained: Because of the concept of restraint and the benefit we get as a country and that the judiciary gets for adopting judicial restraint, not reaching out to take on more than it should and look for opportunities to strike down things that are not even really directly presented to them, and so forth.

I think the Court said it very well in the case of Regan v. Time, Inc., with the Supreme Court plurality decision as I think. The Court said: Things like this are important because it gets to the heart of what I am saying.

The Court said:

In exercising its power to review the constitutionality of a legislative act, a Federal court should act cautiously. A ruling of unconstitutionality frustrates the intent of the elected representatives of people. Therefore, a court should refrain from invalidating more of the statute than is necessary. As this court has observed, whenever an act of Congress contains unobjectionable provisions separable from those found to be unconstitutional, it is the duty of this court to so declare and maintain the act insofar as it is valid. Thus, this court has upheld the constitutionality of a particular provision of a statute even though other provisions of a statute were unconstitutional. For the same reasons, we have often refused to resolve the unconstitutionality of a particular provision of a statute when the constitutionality of a separate controlling provision has been upheld.

I think that states it very well. In exercising its power to review the constitutionality of a legislative act, a Federal court should act cautiously. A ruling of unconstitutionality frustrates the intent of the elected representatives of people. Therefore, a court should refrain from invalidating more of the statute than is necessary. As this court has observed, whenever an act of Congress contains unobjectionable provisions separable from those found to be unconstitutional, it is the duty of this court to so declare and maintain the act insofar as it is valid. Thus, this court has upheld the constitutionality of a particular provision of a statute even though other provisions of a statute were unconstitutional. For the same reasons, we have often refused to resolve the unconstitutionality of a particular provision of a statute when the constitutionality of a separate controlling provision has been upheld.

I think that states it very well. In exercising its power to review the constitutionality of a legislative act, a Federal court should act cautiously. A ruling of unconstitutionality frustrates the intent of the elected representatives of people. Therefore, a court should refrain from invalidating more of the statute than is necessary. As this court has observed, whenever an act of Congress contains unobjectionable provisions separable from those found to be unconstitutional, it is the duty of this court to so declare and maintain the act insofar as it is valid. Thus, this court has upheld the constitutionality of a particular provision of a statute even though other provisions of a statute were unconstitutional. For the same reasons, we have often refused to resolve the unconstitutionality of a particular provision of a statute when the constitutionality of a separate controlling provision has been upheld.

I think that states it very well. In exercising its power to review the constitutionality of a legislative act, a Federal court should act cautiously. A ruling of unconstitutionality frustrates the intent of the elected representatives of people. Therefore, a court should refrain from invalidating more of the statute than is necessary. As this court has observed, whenever an act of Congress contains unobjectionable provisions separable from those found to be unconstitutional, it is the duty of this court to so declare and maintain the act insofar as it is valid. Thus, this court has upheld the constitutionality of a particular provision of a statute even though other provisions of a statute were unconstitutional. For the same reasons, we have often refused to resolve the unconstitutionality of a particular provision of a statute when the constitutionality of a separate controlling provision has been upheld.

That means you have to be injured directly by the provision you are dealing with or have been convicted of. If the statute is in force, you will be in judicial review. If you sustain an injury or you face imminent injury, something like that, not just a general public kind of a potential injury. There was a case back in 1974 where some concerned citizens got together and sued the CIA because they were not disclosing their budget. The courts held that your interests are not any different from any other citizen. You have no standing in this lawsuit.

That little background has relevance because someone challenging these two provisions will refer to them as the soft money provision and the Snowe-Jeffords provision of the McCain-Feingold bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator’s time has expired.

Mr. THOMPSON. I request an additional 10 minutes.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I yield an additional 10 minutes to the Senator from Tennessee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized for an additional 10 minutes.

Mr. THOMPSON. It has to do with how the cases would come up. If someone, let’s say, was convicted under the soft money provision—in other words, spent a soft dollar to somebody they weren’t supposed to after this law was passed, and they got caught doing that and they got charged with and got convicted of it, if you had severability, then that person would clearly have standing with regard to the soft money provision they were convicted of. That is all that would be at issue.

Presumably, if you had nonseverability the way that the proponents of this amendment want, there is no reason that person who is affected by the soft money provision that he is convicted of, presumably he could also challenge the Snowe-Jeffords part of the bill that...
March 29, 2001

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

5023

has no relevance to him. If so, are we telling the Court, by means of this amendment, to give standing to persons complaining that Snowe-Jeffords when they are not affected by Snowe-Jeffords? If so, we are running afoul of article III because the Congress cannot give people substantive jurisdiction or grant constitutional standing for anyone such as that. If we were trying to do that, we certainly would not be exercising judicial restraint.

During the course of this debate, I hope we can agree on what we are trying to do by means of this amendment. Do we want to be able to allow someone who is affected by one provision to be able to challenge the other provision? That is the question. If the answer to that is, yes, then we can talk about the constitutional implications of that. The answer to that is, no, that they can only challenge the provision they are affected by, then what about a fellow who is convicted under the soft money provisions, which is held to be constitutional? He goes to jail. Another person comes along, he is convicted under the Snowe-Jeffords provision. That is held to be unconstitutional, which wipes out the entire legislation, under this amendment.

So you have the first individual sitting in jail for a period of time under an act that has been declared unconstitutional. Is that what we desire to do? It is not as easy as it seems. That is one of the reasons Congress has never passed such a law as is being suggested that would allow this particular result. There has never been a Federal case on this subject. There have been a few lower court Federal cases deciding State law. Surprisingly, in some of those cases, in interpreting nonseverability provisions, they have ignored them.

I say to my friends, even if this nonseverability provision passes, which I hope it does not, there is a good chance the Court would ignore it. And, if not a good chance, depending on how it is interpreted as to what Congress’ intent is, that it will be declared unconstitutional.

For reasons set forth in Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, a 1992 Supreme Court case, the Court made this statement: "Whether the courts were to act on their own or at the invitation of Congress in ignoring the concrete injury requirement described in our cases, they would be disregarding a principal fundamental to the separate and distinct constitutional role of the third branch. One of the essential elements that identifies those cases in controversy is that they are the business of the courts rather than the political branches.

In other words, Congress, you can’t tell us what is a case in controversy. You can’t tell us that there is a case in controversy out there or that a person has standing in a case when he really doesn’t. That is for us to decide. If you are attempting to intrude, you are violating the doctrine of separation of powers.

In my colleagues will not view this amendment favorably. It would be not only a reflection on us, but it wouldn’t do the judiciary any good. We are in danger, if we pass this amendment, in one fell swoop, of doing something that would be hurtful to two branches of our Government: the legislative branch and the judicial branch—the legislative branch, us, because after all these years, after 25 years we finally get around to addressing this issue, after going through and agreeing or disagreeing, but let’s say agreeing on some fundamental principles that we believe ought to be passed, at the same time, in some cases supporting amendments which, in my estimation, pretty clearly have constitutional problems. It is not in our best interest to do that. That reflects well on us in what we ought to be doing and how we ought to be doing it. It doesn’t reflect well on us when we threaten judicial independence or judicial restraint.

There are some broader principles involved. Those principles are involved here. So while I appreciate the concern that has been expressed in terms of balance, in terms of the need for balance—and we saw part of that yesterday—the portion of Snowe-Jeffords that deals with money is a fairly limited segment: Never done this before; treading in uncharted waters; trying to accomplish things we probably cannot, in the end, do.

For all those reasons, I will respectfully urge defeat of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee is recognized.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I will turn to my colleague from Utah in a minute. First, I want to respond on our time to at least two of the comments made. It will take just a second.

I appreciate the comments that have been made. The first statement made was about the relative importance of the Snowe-Jeffords amendment. I think it is important because my whole argument is based on this balance of the linkage, the tie between the two. How important is Snowe-Jeffords—the significance of not being able to go on the ballot in a election. We should not underestimate that because, really, it is the balance between giving the candidate voice and the special interest voice.

Our whole argument is if you are going to take voice away from one, you ought to take voice away from the other. If you are going to give one voice, give the other voice. I point out that Snowe-Jeffords is very important, and that is why we are targeting it in this narrowly targeted amendment. If you just look at special interests, which is in red on this chart, versus party ads, the issue ads, I think, disturb a lot of people. I can’t say that all of these ads were in the last 60 days, but anybody who has watched campaign advertising knows it really in the last 2 weeks of most of these campaigns. Not 3 weeks, 4 weeks, 6 weeks, 8 weeks. The Snowe-Jeffords provision is 60 days. This is just to show that Snowe-Jeffords is critically important, and if we disrupt Snowe-Jeffords, get rid of that limitation on free speech, there will be an infusion of money even greater than today. The special interest ads—again, the ads that Snowe-Jeffords is directed at—amounted to about $347 million in the campaigns we just finished.

The party ad money, which is predominantly soft money, non-Federal money, was only $162 million. What we are basically saying is that if you are going to take off the restriction of Snowe-Jeffords and you are making it possible to allow this money to come flowing into the system, the least we can do for the candidate out there is to allow the party to participate without unilaterally being challenged and overrun by special interests. So Snowe-Jeffords is critical.

No. 2—and other people will comment on this—nonseverability may be rare, I guess, in the big scheme of things, but it has been done a lot—in fact, three times on campaign finance reform, where you do bring people together and you have this rich interaction. Three times we voted for nonseverability clauses on this floor.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Will the Senator yield for an observation?

Mr. MCCONNELL. Not only is the Senator correct that the last three campaign finance reform bills that cleared the Senate had nonseverability clauses in them, the amendment we voted on a few moments ago—the Harkin amendment, which was supported by 31 colleagues on the other side of the Chamber had a nonseverability clause in it. In fact, the Senator from Tennessee is entirely correct.

When the subject turns to the first amendment and to the constitutional rights of Americans in these kinds of bills, it is the exception not to have a nonseverability clause in it. I am sure the other Senator from Tennessee was not suggesting that nobody would have standing to bring a case affecting so many different people’s constitutional rights. I am confident, I say to my friend, the junior Senator from Tennessee, there will be some Americans who will have a standing to bring a suit against this case. I will be leading them. I thank the Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. FRIST. I thank the distinguished Senator from Kentucky for his comments.

I yield 15 minutes to the Senator from Utah.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah is recognized.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I was interested to hear Senator THOMPSON say we are in uncharted waters, facing unknown results that we don’t fully appreciate. That is the theme of my comments.

I go back to another philosopher, Mark Twain. I can’t quote him exactly, but he has been quoted as saying something to the effect that “prophecy is a very iffy profession, particularly with respect to the future.” That is where we are. We are all trying to divine what is going to happen in the future if McCain-Feingold passes, as I expect it will, and if it should be signed and upheld by the Supreme Court. What would we face?

Well, I read in the popular press that on the Democratic side, one of their leading campaign attorneys is telling them if McCain-Feingold passes, the Democrats can kiss goodbye any chance of getting control in 2002 and we may see them as we did see them in the 2002 election. That should cause everybody on this side of the aisle to stampede and vote for it. However, there is an equally qualified observer who has spoken to our Members and has said if McCain-Feingold passes, the Republican Party will go into the minority and stay there for 25 years.

Now, obviously, one or the other of these has to be wrong in terms of what is going to happen at the election. But neither one of these observers is an unqualified observer. The reason they have come to these two differing conclusions is that each one is looking at this issue through the prism of his own self-interest. If the Democratic campaign lawyer sees the destruction of the Democratic Party and the Republican campaign consultant sees the destruction of the Republican Party, I submit to you, as murky as our crystal ball may be, the chances are that they are both right—that we are going to see, as the passage of this bill, not the destruction of the party—I won’t go to that extent, but certainly a dramatic diminution of party influence in politics in this country.

One very practical example that we can expect is the scaling down, if not the elimination, of party conventions because party conventions now are financed entirely with soft money which, under this bill, would become illegal. So we may see party conventions disappear or become very truncated affairs, which the media may decide is not worth covering. This would be good news for an incumbent President. This would be bad news for a challenger trying to prevent a President from seeking a second term. He would be denied the opportunity of exposure that comes from a party convention.

One of the things we will not see as a result of the passage of McCain-Feingold is competition for control of convention politics. Corruption comes from the heart of the receiver, not the wallet of the giver. If an individual is corrupt, he is going to stay corrupt, whether or not the “speech police” are watching him. He is going to find some way to remain corrupt and to game the system to his advantage. The notion of integrity is going to remain a person of integrity, regardless of how many people come waving bills at him to try to get him to change his position solely on the basis of money.

Integrity and corruption does not come as a result of participation in the political process. Integrity and corruption come from the way you were raised, from the way you make your decisions, from the hard commitments you make along the way in life.

So we may see party conventions disappear or become seriously truncated as a result of the passage of this bill, and if I were a special interest group with an unlimited wallet, I would anticipate holding a major convention of my own and invite certain favored speakers. I would gear it in such a way as to get maximum media attention, and those speakers could then get media attention that would come out of attending that convention.

I do believe that we are going to see an increase in political spending of soft dollars on the part of special interest groups in different and inventive ways that we at the moment cannot anticipate. Once again, in the newspaper there is a story of a fundraiser. He signed it himself. He said: Those of us on K Street are already figuring out ways to get around McCain-Feingold and use our soft dollars in a fashion to influence the political situation.

We are going to see, I am sure, an increase in Harry and Louise kind of advertising. Those of us who were on the floor through the debate on President Clinton’s health care plan know how well that was done. We know how many those soft dollars were, and we know how totally outside the ambit of McCain-Feingold those soft dollars were. If McCain-Feingold says you cannot give those soft dollars to a party to pay its light bill, well, OK, we will give the soft dollars to Madison Avenue to influence politics in other ways.

One of the other ways the parties are going to be seriously disadvantaged by the passage of this legislation, Senator Frist is the chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee. When he goes out and tries to convince a reluctant candidate to challenge a Democratic incumbent, one of the first things that candidate says is: If I do this, will you be there for me? Senator Frist can assure you that we will commit X amount of activity in your behalf. Please, come do this. Do this for the party. Do this for your country. Come do it, and we will be behind you.

Mr. McConnell has already laid out the financial implications of McCain-Feingold in terms of the amount of money that would be available to the senatorial committee if we had nothing but hard dollars based on actual experience. As Senator Frist goes out to recruit candidates, or as Senator Murray goes out to recruit candidates on the other side, she is going to find her ability to attract candidates into this situation will be severely limited.

The ultimate answer is: We want you to run, but when it comes to financial support, you are on your own; you are not going to get any significant help from the national party in any way because we simply cannot do it. We have to use our hard dollars for things for which we used to use soft money. We simply are not going to have the resources that we would like to have to help you. We will see many outstanding candidates decide they do not want to run under those circumstances.

Make no mistake about it, those in the press gallery who have been talking about the present system being an incumbent protection act, wait until we pass McCain-Feingold and I guarantee you an incumbent will really have to fowl his nest in order to lose. This virtually guarantees that no challenger of any consequence will be able to raise the money and produce the organization to take on an entrenched incumbent because the restrictions are so severe that they will not be able to do that.

What does this have to do with the amendment? Simply this: At least as a result of the Wellstone amendment for which I voted, there is a degree of equal damage to the special interest groups. With the Wellstone amendment in the bill, the bill does not unilaterally damage parties and leave special interest groups totally free. Oh, it does leave special interest groups huge loopholes, but it at least, on the advertising phase, says the special interest groups have the same kinds of problems as the parties.

It people said to me: Why in the world did you vote for the Wellstone amendment when it is clearly unconstitutional? I voted for it with my eyes wide open. I believe it is unconstitutional. I believe the other parts of the bill that it does not damage parties is constitutional. But I thought if the time should come, through some dark miracle, that McCain-Feingold survives the White House, the Supreme Court,
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE
March 29, 2001
5025

The possibility exists that might happen if this amendment is adopted. If this amendment is adopted, then the Supreme Court will have to make the fundamental decision: Are they going to amend the first amendment by upholding McCain-Feingold, or are they not?

If they decide they are not, then they are not across the board. They cannot do it selectively. To me, that is the kind of outcome with which Hamilton, Madison, and John Jay would all agree. I make no apologies for calling them to this argument because I think this argument fundamentally is about the preservation of their handiwork which all of us in this Chamber have taken an oath to uphold and defend.

I do not take that oath lightly. I know my fellow Senators do not take that oath lightly. We should talk about it in those terms. I plead with my colleagues to think in those terms and, therefore, to support this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I yield 15 minutes to the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois is recognized.

Mr. DURBIN. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, the American people have had an incredible civics lesson these past few months. No novelist, no playwright, no movie director—not even the creator of the X-Files—could have dreamed up a more intricate, a more convoluted, or more fantastic plot than the one played out in our national political arena in last year's Presidential election.

For weeks on end, it seemed there was only one topic of conversation: Who won the election? And why? The entire conversation focused on some of the most arcane aspects of constitutional law.

What if Florida cannot send a slate of electors to the electoral college? What if they send two slates? Are contested elections a State or a national issue? For that matter, a county by county issue? Who ultimately decides the results of a disputed election? Congress? The Florida Supreme Court? Federal district court? The Supreme Court? What about the vote of the people?

Woven through every one of these questions is a crucial feature of our American style of democracy—the separation of powers. This is perhaps our Nation's most critical feature, our backbone, if you will.

For without a clear cut separation of powers—a separation between the Federal branches of Government, and between the Federal Government and the States—our system of Government would fail.

Prior to the creation of the Federal courts, Alexander Hamilton envisioned in Federalist No. 78 that "the judiciary is beyond comparison the weakest of the three departments of power." Given the recent role the Supreme Court played in last November's Presidential election, Alexander Hamilton's vision was wrong.

Our delicate balance of power has tipped in favor of nine justices that have the power to legislate from the bench and have now elevated the Court as the most powerful of the three "departments of power."

Commenting on the Supreme Court's role in picking the President, Laurence Tribe noted that the Justices were "driven by something other than what was visible on the face of the opinions."

We will continue to ponder whether the Court's decision was derived from established legal and constitutional principles. Or whether the Court was "results oriented" and searched for a rationale to substantiate a decision more political than legal.

In our Government this question of the separation of powers never goes away. It is here before us today, in this bill, with this amendment, with the issue of campaign finance reform. Specifically, it confronts us with the issues of severability and nonseverability.

When the Congress of the United States creates a new law of the land, how difficult should it be for another branch of Government to strike it down?

For the executive branch of Government, the answer has always been clear. The President can veto any law we pass. Congress can override a Presidential veto with a two-thirds majority in each House. The balance of power between Congress and the executive branch is part of our national strength.

But what of the balance of power between Congress and the Judiciary? Federal courts have the power to decide on the constitutional legitimacy of the laws passed by Congress, and to dispose of any provisions of the law they find unconstitutional. It is an ultimate authority dating back to Marbury v. Madison. If the Supreme Court declares a provision of law to be unconstitutional, it is conclusive.

Short of changing the Constitution itself, a step we have taken only 17 times since the passage of the Bill of Rights, there are no options. A finding of unconstitutionality by the Supreme Court effectively voids congressional and Presidential action. This, too, is a vital part of the balance of powers. And I respect it.

The nonseverability amendment would alter, even if only slightly, the balance of power between the legislature and the judiciary. Is this a wise change to make?

I have been grappling with this question these past few days. And grappling, as well, with some of the profound and, I must say, unsettling changes that have occurred at the Supreme Court in recent years.
My perception and I confess this is my own, of where the Court is today, and the direction in which it is heading, with the direction that I and in my ultimate decision about the nonseverability issue.

A law professor at New York University wrote an interesting article on this very topic a few weeks back in the New York Times. The author’s name is Larry Kramer, and his article, which could hardly be more to the point, was titled “The Supreme Court v. Balance of Powers.”

His main point, which I think he makes quite convincingly, is that the current Supreme Court has a definite political agenda—one devoted chiefly to reallocating governmental power in ways that suit the views of its conservative majority. . . .

For nearly a decade, the Court’s five conservative justices have steadily usurped the power to govern by striking down or weakening federal and state laws regulating issues as varied as gun sales, the environment and patents—as well as laws protecting women and . . . the disabled.

Many of the Supreme Court’s recent decisions have indeed been made by the conservative majority. Decisions are often carried on the basis of a single vote. Age discrimination—five to four. Gay rights—five to four. Warrantless police searches—five to four. The Federal role in death penalty cases—five to four. And of course, the selection of the 43rd President of the United States—five to four.

Justice John Paul Stevens, in his dissenting opinion to this last decision, said:

Although we may never know with complete certainty the identity of the winner of this year’s Presidential election, the identity of the loser is perfectly clear. It is the nation’s confidence in the impartiality of the Supreme Court to that of that large tree in the middle of a ball field. The game can still be played, he says, but it has to be played around the tree.

Despite my serious misgivings about this Supreme Court, the opportunity to convict the role of constitutional arbiter, to actually craft their vision of campaign finance reform, I will vote against the Frist amendment for three reasons.

First, for the good of our Nation, the strength of our Government, and the future of the Court, I must still retain confidence that the future Supreme Court will rise above any political consideration to judge this law on its constitutional merits.

Second, taking my misgivings about the distribution of the Court to their logical conclusion, Congress would have to raise this matter on every legislative issue we face. That would invite confrontation and chaos that would not serve our Nation.

Third and finally, I have supported campaign finance reform from the start. I prepared to set aside my heartfelt concerns over the issue of severability rather than jeopardizing this good-faith effort to clean up the tawdry campaign climate in America.

I support the severability provision in this bill and oppose the Frist amendment.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, before the Senate from Illinois leaves the floor, I express my personal appreciation for his speech. I say that, recognizing that he and I have been in Congress the same length of time. We came together to the House of Representatives. During that period of time, I have had the opportunity to know him well and I recognize his history as being a real legislator, a parliamentarian as he was in the State of Illinois.

This debate has been a very good debate. During the past couple of weeks, we have had some very fine presentations made. But when we look back on the presentations made, there will not be any better than the one just made by the Senator from Illinois. Not only did he deliver it well, as he always does, the Senator from Illinois has no peer, in my estimation, as someone able to present facts. But here, not only did he do a great job in his delivery, the substance of what he said is nonseverable.

For someone such as me who struggled with this issue of severability, he certainly laid the foundation, in effect pored the cement. I have no question the Senator from Illinois is right on this issue. I am personally very grateful for having been present to listen to this brilliant presentation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. REID. I yield to the Senator from Wisconsin for 15 minutes.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, let me join in the comments the Senator from Nevada made about the presentation of the Senator from Illinois. I know he thought long and hard about this. I am personally very grateful for having been present to listen to this brilliant presentation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, let me join in the comments the Senator from Nevada made about the presentation of the Senator from Illinois. I know he thought long and hard about this. I am grateful, not only for his decision on this but also for the rationale and presentation he made. I thank him for it.

I appreciate very much the way the Senator from Tennessee, Senator Cooper, kicked off on our side. He made some very powerful points about how this issue of severability and nonseverability relates to the separation of powers and issues of judicial restraint. What I would like to do is use my time to talk about what this means for our effort to do something about the campaign financing system in our country.

Mr. President, the Senate is being asked to agree to an amendment that would make two provisions of this bill “nonseverable” from one another. What does “nonseverable” mean? What does it mean for this bill? And what does this vote mean for the cause of reform?

My friend JOHN MCCAIN has said that nonseverability is French for “kill campaign finance reform.” That is a pretty good short definition. But in simple legal and practical terms, the addition of this kind of nonseverability clause means that the soft money and Snowe-Jeffords provision, title I and title II of the bill, would become a single integrated unit for purposes of constitutional scrutiny, that its many separate sections would all stand or fall
MARCH 29, 2001

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

5027

...
rare. At the time the House considered the Shays-Meehan bills in 1995, only three bills had passed in the last decade that had nonseverability clauses. Indeed, Congress has often inserted severability clauses in legislation to ensure that constitutional provisions remain in effect. For example, the Telecommunications Act of 1996 contained a severability clause. If Congress had instead inserted a nonseverability clause in the Act, the entire Act would have been invalidated when the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously struck down its so-called “Communications Decency Act.”

The proponents of Snowe-Jeffords have 53 minutes in the courts.

It is so common that the Harkin amendment we just voted on and was supported by 31 Members of the Senate on that side of the aisle had a nonseverability clause in it. It is the same. The Brady Bill was also protected by a severability clause.

Finally, non-severability is an unjustified threat to the laudable effort to clean up our campaign finance system. We believe that soft money contributions to the national political parties should be banned and that campaign ads masquerading as issue discussions should be subject to the same laws governing uncloaked campaign ads. Moreover, we believe that both of these elements of the McCain-Feingold bill pass constitutional muster. We believe, however, that tying the fate of one to a court’s view of the other—or tying either’s fate to a court’s view of other provisions of McCain-Feingold—is justified. Money contributions at a minimum give rise to an appearance of corruption. That will be the case whether or not other provisions of McCain-Feingold ultimate under assault. It will be chilling to learn what will happen to our parties under this underlying bill.

Let me sum up because I see the co-author of the amendment is on the floor.

Don’t think this is in any way inappropriate. In fact, it is common. If the proponents of Snowe-Jeffords are constitutional, it will be upheld, I don’t know what they are afraid of. We will need the political parties to defend our candidacy if Snowe-Jeffords is struck down.

I yield the floor. I see the Senator from Louisiana is here.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana is recognized.

Who yields time to the Senator?

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I yield 15 minutes to the Senator from Louisiana.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I thank the author of the bill, the Senator from Tennessee, for yielding time to me.

We have just heard a good explanation of the situation from the Senator from Kentucky about the concern of nonseverability, severability, and everything else? When we talk about severability, back in Louisiana they think someone lost an arm or a finger. They get very confused when we start talking about severability in legislation as an integral part of a bill.

We have learned the mistake we make when we craft carefully constructed compromise that people are allowed to vote for because it is carefully balanced with amendments through the legislative process and then have that legislation go to a court which says that one part of this bill we will take out and we are going to leave everything else, or the court will say they will take out half of it and leave everything else. We tried that in 1971 when we wrote the landmark Federal elections law. I was running for Congress then and was watching it very carefully, not knowing what in the world the results would be. But I looked at it at that time, as the people helped write it, as a carefully crafted...
March 29, 2001  CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE  5029

compromise. It did not have a nonseverability clause in that legislation. When it left this body and went to the House, a lot of people said: This is a good balance; I got this in it; I got that in it; I got limits on contributions but we got limits on how they can spend it; therefore, I think this is a good package; it is a compromise.

Because it didn’t have a nonseverability clause in it, which we are trying to add in this legislation, when it got to the Supreme Court, in its wisdom, said: Well, this can stand and this can’t stand; we are going to eliminate this and we are going to keep that.

In essence, what they did was replace the role of the Congress in writing the legislation as they thought in their final words what was legitimate and what was constitutional.

Guess what. We ended up for all of these years with a bill that was totally different from what the Congress had carefully crafted. In essence, what we ended up with is a bill that would allow contributions but had no limits on expenditures. What we thought we were doing was saying, all right, we are going to reduce the money in campaigns, we are going to eliminate expenditures, and limit contributions. What we ended up with was only one-half of the equation. This body, the other body, this Congress and past Congresses learned from that monumental mistake.

As the Senator from Kentucky pointed out, when we considered campaign finance legislation in subsequent Congresses, we didn’t make that mistake. We considered it in the 101st Congress, the 102d Congress, and the 103d Congress. And every one of those Congresses we did not make the same mistake that we made in 1971.

We took the position in those acts of the Congress that the carefully crafted compromise, the ban on soft money to parties plus the restrictions on outside groups running sham ads 60 days before an election, are intricately tied together. They are part of the compromise. If you knock out one, you break the deal. Without this amendment, we will have no real enforcement of any of these provisions; only half of the deal being enacted into law and the other half disappearing because of a Court decision.

That is not what the role of legislators should be. We should be putting together comprehensive packages with intricate amendments and compromises woven together to create a package.

There are people who would not be for this legislation. I dare say, if they thought the Snowe-Jeffords legislation was being spent on sham ads right before the election were not restricted in this bill. What do we say to those people who voted for it because of Snowe-Jeffords being part of it: That somehow it may not be there in the end? They would not have voted for the legislation.

It is so significant that we have this nonseverability clause. It is very restrictive, and I want to expand it. I will ask unanimous consent to offer an amendment to the Frist-Breaux amendment which will include the soft money ban plus the Snowe-Jeffords amendment plus the Thompson amendment which increased the hard dollar contributions, that if any one of those three would be left with a hard dollar increase. It makes no sense to say that, well, we could ban or declare unconstitutional the Snowe-Jeffords prohibition but yet still have the hard dollar increase. All three are integral parts of this compromise. I think the Frist-Breaux amendment should be amended to say that if either of those three essential ingredients is knocked down as unconstitutional, therefore, all three of them would fall. That would be the right thing to do.

That doesn’t mean the whole bill falls. Everything else is still there: The millionaire’s amendment, the lowest unit rate for television would still be there, the ban on foreign contributions, the ban on solicitations. Those are all still improvements in the current system.

When I try to explain nonseverability to people, it gets very confusing. I am probably as confused as anyone trying to explain it to our colleagues and to the press, and to the general public, who have to cover all of this. I try to use the analogy of ANWR which I think makes sense. The question of whether we drill for oil in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge is a very controversial and divisive issue. Suppose we came to the floor of the Senate and someone said: All right, I am willing to allow for drilling in ANWR if you double the environmental requirements that would apply to that part of the United States. That amendment is adopted. People say: Well, with that amendment, I can support drilling for oil in ANWR because we have an amendment that doubles the environmental protections in that part of the world only.

But then that bill goes to the Supreme Court and the Supreme Court says: Oops, sorry, you are all wrong, you can’t do doubling of the environmental protections in only one part of the country. That part of the bill is unconstitutional. But the drilling for oil in ANWR is OK.

How would that treat all the Members of Congress who said: Well, I can vote for the carefully crafted compromise because at the same time we have doubled the environmental protections and therefore it is a comprehensive package and therefore it makes sense? To have the Court strike down the environmental protections while leaving the right to drill would be a sham on the Members of Congress who voted for the carefully crafted compromise.

The same is true with regard to this controversial, complicated, emotional issue of how we handle campaigns in this country. All of the ingredients are essential to the compromise. To allow the Court to knock out one or two and leave the rest is to put into effect through law something that was never intended by the people who voted on it to ever occur. When you vote for all of the parts of the bill, you have the right to expect that all of the parts will survive.

Someone said: Maybe we should do that for every piece of legislation. I say: Well, it may not be a bad idea, but certainly not a bad idea for things that are complicated and carefully crafted and subjected to numerous compromises that are part of the package.

I am extremely concerned that we have a situation where we are going to ban soft money to the two political parties and somehow leave all of these groups and organizations that are running ads, special interest groups, basically single-interest groups, who will be able to continue to use all of the soft money they want to attack candidates for 2 years prior to our elections. None of these groups represents, I argue, the more moderate parts of both parties; they tend to be more extreme. Not all of them, of some them are moderate, but most are single-issue, one-issue groups that generally run only negative advertising against candidates.

Addressing this with the Snowe-Jeffords amendment, saying that corporate and union contributions cannot fund any of these groups within 60 days of an election, is an important step. If we don’t have the nonseverability and Snowe-Jeffords is knocked out, all of these groups could use corporate money to continue to blast candidates without us having the same ability to help our parties respond to those attacks.

I am talking about groups such as those that ran the Flo ads on Medicare. None of the people on my side liked those at all. I am talking about groups that ran the Harry and Louise ads which used corporate contributions to run negative ads all the way up to 60 days before the election, if this amendment goes down. I am talking about the National Rifle Association. To people principally on my side of the aisle, how many times do we have to see Charlton Heston talking about why Democrats should not be elected and having corporate contributions pay for those ads?

Those principally on my side who are saying we want to vote for this because it is a carefully crafted compromise ought to recognize that without the Frist-Breaux amendment, that carefully crafted compromise could cease to exist. What we have done is to abdicate our responsibility to legislate in a way that is practical as anybody else. I understand the way the system works. All of us have lived with it. But the baseline for this debate, and what I hope all of my colleagues will use as their touchstone, is not what is good for us, not what is good for Republicans, not what is good for Democrats, but what is good for the American people.

I have great respect for all of my Senate colleagues, including the Senators who have authored this amendment, who I know are well intentioned, and I don’t doubt that. I just think we have a fundamental difference.

Mr. BREAUX. Will my colleague yield for a question?

Mr. EDWARDS. I will yield for a question now.

Mr. BREAUX. I take it the Senator from North Carolina, who supports Snowe-Jeffords, which would prohibit all these groups on this chart from using corporate dollars to attack candidates in the electoral process, those single-issue special interest groups—is that not an important amendment, that if it were to be declared unconstitutional, the rest of the bill would go into effect? Does this not bother the Senator that without the Snowe-Jeffords amendment, all of these groups would be able to continue to use corporate dollars to attack candidates with no ability for the parties to defend them?

Mr. EDWARDS. My answer to that question is: first, what we do, even without Snowe-Jeffords, is we prohibit candidates for political office from raising large soft dollar contributions for these very groups to which the Senator from Louisiana is referring.

If our focus is on restoring integrity to the process and the public’s perception of ourselves, then getting us out of the process of raising soft money dollars, getting soft money, period, out of the system is a positive thing. And my view is that it helps restore integrity.

Mr. BREAUX. Does the Senator think that the Health Insurance Association of America, or the National Rifle Association really needs any help from Members of Congress in raising corporate money to run those types of ads? My point is that those groups don’t need Members of Congress to help them raise money to do the Flo ads, and the Harry and Louise ads. Those are corporate dollars. The pharmacy industry doesn’t need Members of Congress to raise money to pay for ads attacking everybody in Congress.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. President, reclaiming my time, my answer is the very answer I just gave the Senator from Louisiana. We can’t stop those entities from running ads. What we can do, is stop Members of Congress from raising huge amounts of money and creating a public perception that we are involved in what is wrong with the system. You are absolutely right. As a matter of pure strategic balance, that there is not a strategic imbalance there is what the strategic imbalance, I would not argue for a minute about that. But that is not what campaign finance reform is about.

What campaign finance reform is about is restoring integrity to the system and creating the American people to believe, once again, that the system has integrity, that it works, and this democracy belongs to them, and that it is their Government. That is the fundamental difference. Anything we do, I strongly suspect, with or without Snowe-Jeffords, or any of these other provisions, as we have learned from experience, may turn out a year, 5 years, 10 years from now to create some result that we don’t expect. I think that is just realistic.

But the one thing we know for certain is that the public believes this system is awash in money. These huge, unregulated contributions that are being made to political campaigns are wrong, and we need to make a clear and unequivocal statement that we will not allow that to happen.

This debate is not about us. It is about the American people. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I will take a couple of minutes, if I may. I think the Senator from North Carolina has eloquently framed what the present amendment would do. I urge my colleagues to keep this in mind, that if, in fact, they have a hard time accepting the modification, let me try to frame this so people may have a clear understanding, at least as I understand it.

If Snowe-Jeffords—the union and corporate disclosure provisions; I will call that Snowe-Jeffords although they are often in different places—if that fails because it is ruled to be unconstitutional, then the ban on soft money also fails.

If the Breaux amendment modifies the Frist amendment, then so would, as I understand it, the Thompson-Feinstein amendment, which allowed for the increases in hard money.

With all due respect to my friend from Tennessee, who is also opposing this amendment—not the author of the amendment but the opponent of the amendment—and my friend from California, Senator FEINSTEIN, Thompson-Feinstein, the assumption is that the Thompson-Feinstein was the price we paid to have the votes together on the banning of soft money.

There is no illusion about this. That was not a reform. I know they want to call it that. I voted for it. Having spoken against the increases in hard money. My friend from Wisconsin and my friend from Arizona also took similar positions that they did not endorse or support those increases except that it was necessary to keep the votes together for the two reforms in this bill: Snowe-Jeffords, disclosure elements, and the ban on soft money. Those are the only two reforms in this bill.

Thompson-Feinstein is the price we paid for those two reforms politically. I will stand corrected if someone wants to tell me I am wrong.

Basically that is the deal. We have this increase in hard money, which I have a hard time accepting an exchange for that we get the two reforms of getting rid of unregulated money and the Snowe-Jeffords provisions. I believe, based on those who know far more about this than I do, Snowe-Jeffords should not fall for constitutional reasons, although my friend and colleague from North Carolina properly points out that we have been surprised lately by Supreme Court decisions where experts have told us they would rule one way and they ruled another.

Lastly, I say to my friend from Kentucky, there are differences of opinion on how we voted on two previous campaign finance reform bills. There was tied severability in those two other bills. It was nonseverability. We linked two provisions. We said if one fell, then the other would fall as well. It was, if you will, a partial severability in those two bills for which 23 of us, who are still here, voted. We did not vote for nonseverability. That is a semantical game in a sense. We voted for tied severability, partial severability. That is a side question.

The basic issue is my colleagues ought to, with all due respect, reject the Frist-Breaux amendment if they believe, as I think a majority of us do, that the ban on soft money and Snowe-Jeffords are truly reforms. We fought too long and too hard not to succeed with those and to link severability is a mistake.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, listening carefully to the Senator from Connecticut trying to explain the prior nonseverability clauses that passed in 1992 and 1993, those nonseverability clauses included the whole bill, so that if any little portion of that bill that cleared the Senate in 1990, cleared the Senate in 1992, cleared the Senate in 1993, if any little portion of that bill was unconstitutional, the whole bill fell.

As I understand the amendment of the Senator from Tennessee and the Senator from Louisiana, the whole bill does not fall. It carefully tied the two relevant parts of the amendment, the Snowe-Jeffords language and the party soft money ban. The Senator from Louisiana has pointed out why those two are relevant and important. He has his white list of people who are going to be attacking our candidates, and our parties are going to have no funds—none, none—to protect them from attack from outside groups.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. BREAUX. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.
Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I ask the Presiding Officer whether it would be appropriate for me now—I have two requests. First, would it be appropriate for me to now ask unanimous consent for a modification to the Frist-Breaux amendment? The PRESIDING OFFICER. That would be appropriate.

Mr. BREAUX. Further parliamentary inquiry: If there is an objection to the unanimous consent request to modify the Frist-Breaux amendment, would it not be in order at a later date to reoffer a Frist-Breaux amendment with that modification? The PRESIDING OFFICER. That would be in order under this agreement.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the modification to the Frist-Breaux amendment that is pending at the desk be offered. Mr. THOMPSON. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. THOMPSON. Reserving the right to object, and I do intend to object, I know my friend can bring this after—if this amendment survives a motion to obviate, the quorum call be rescinded, or I suppose he can bring it back separately. My understanding is this amendment would cause the following result; that is, if either Snowe-Jeffords or the soft money portion of the bill were struck down, then the Thompson-Feinstein amendment language would fall also at that time. For that reason, I object.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Will the Senator withhold his objection? Mr. THOMPSON. Yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana still has the floor. Mr. FEINGOLD addressed the Chair. Mr. BREAUX. I yield.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, was the objection finalized or did the Senator withdraw?

Mr. THOMPSON. I will withhold momentarily.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time be charged equally.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Who yields time?

Mr. DODD. I yield to my colleague from Tennessee 1 minute.

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, I withdraw my objection.

AMENDMENT NO. 156, AS MODIFIED

Mr. McCONNELL. I renew the consent request of the Senator from Louisiana that his amendment and the amendment of Senator FRIST be modified.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment, as modified, is as follows:

On page 37, strike lines 18 through 24 and insert the following:

(a) In GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), if any provision of this Act or amendment made by this Act, or the application of a provision or amendment to any person or circumstance, shall be unconstitutional, the remainder of this Act and amendments made by this Act, and the application of the provisions and amendment to any person or circumstance, shall not be affected by the holding.

(b) NONSEVERABILITY OF CERTAIN PROVISIONS.

(1) IN GENERAL.—If one of the provisions of, or amendments made by, this Act that is described in paragraph (2), or if the application of any such provision or amendment to any person or circumstance, is held to be unconstitutional, then all the provisions and amendments described in paragraph (2) shall be invalid.

(2) NONSEVERABLE PROVISIONS.—A provision or amendment described in this paragraph is a provision or amendment contained in any of the following sections:

(A) Section 101, except for section 323(d) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as added by such section.

(B) Section 103(b).

(C) Section 205.

(D) Section 209.

(E) Section 308.

(c) JUDICIAL REVIEW.—

(1) EXPEDITED REVIEW.—Any Member of Congress, candidate, national committee of a political party, or any person adversely affected by any provision of, or amendment made by, this Act, or the application of such a provision or amendment to any person or circumstance, may bring an action, in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, for declaratory judgment and injunctive relief on the ground that such provision or amendment violates the Constitution.

(2) APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any order of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia granting or denying an injunction regarding, or finally disposing of, an action brought under paragraph (1) shall be reviewable by appeal directly to the Supreme Court of the United States. Any such appeal shall be taken by a notice of appeal filed within 10 calendar days after such order is entered; and the jurisdictional statement shall be filed within 30 calendar days after such order is entered.

(3) EXPEDITED CONSIDERATION.—It shall be the duty of the District Court for the District of Columbia and the Supreme Court of the United States to advance on the docket and to expedite the greatest possible extent the disposition of any matter brought under paragraph (1).

Who yields time?

Mr. McCONNELL. This subsection shall apply only with respect to any action filed under paragraph (1) not later than 30 days after the effective date of this Act.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum and ask that the time be divided equally.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I yield 15 minutes to the Senator from New Jersey.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Tennessee for yielding.

For nearly 2 weeks, the Senate has been engaged in an exhaustive but illuminating debate on reforming the campaign finance system of the Nation, the foundation of the rules by which a free people choose their government. The consequences could not be more enormous.

I believe the Senate has met the best expectations of the American people in this debate. It has been thoughtful, civil, and far reaching. Indeed, rather than simply engaging in a narrow changing of the rules, what has emerged from the Senate is genuinely comprehensive campaign finance reform. It may not have been our intention, I don’t believe it was planned, but in the best traditions of the Senate, Members from both political parties, with good ideas, took some basic reform legislation and made it into a workable, comprehensive system.

That is what brings this question before the Senate. If these were simply individual changes in the campaign finance system, where some were enacted and some failed, it would be interesting but not of overriding consequence. That is not what the Senate has done. This is a series of reforms inextricably dependent on each other. If one or more is removed, the Nation will have a radically different campaign finance system and our system of choosing candidates, and even the people whom we elect, will be altered.

I understand in the rush to judgment there are some who are prone to reform for reform’s sake. It is a question of pass anything, get something done, and we will live with the consequences. But the truth is, the campaign finance system of this country is changed only once in a generation. These rules will last, not simply for us but for those who follow us, not just in this decade but in decades to come.

The fact that we have seized this opportunity in these 2 weeks to write
March 29, 2001

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

5033

compressive changes, far-reaching in nature, is not only to the credit of the Senate but it is a genuine contribution to the campaign system.

This is the last great debate of the campaign finance consideration. But in some ways it is the most profound question because ultimately the question is whether we have simply decided on a series of ideas that will be thrown out to the American people to challenge in the courts where others will make the decision or whether we have really designed a new campaign finance system in the Senate, where it is our responsibility.

It is important to look at how each of these provisions is linked because, as one Member of the Senate, I am only voting for McCain-Feingold because of the different provisions and how they are related to each other.

We will allow unlimited soft money for the political parties. We also eliminate it from outside interest groups. But we do not want to deny the American people political debate, so we raise the hard money limits. We want to end the monopoly on candidates’ time and the growing expense of campaigns, so we lower the cost of television advertising. Those are all related and they are all important.

My colleagues, what is to happen if the Supreme Court of the United States decides the Senate has decided upon six interrelated provisions but we do not like one—or two? Then the Senate is no longer writing campaign finance reform; we simply made a few suggestions, enacting them into law, and we will let someone else write them.

This would not be so perplexing to this Member of the Senate, that we might be appealing in our responsibilities or controls. Of all the thousands of provisions or controls, not for the fact that the Senate has been at this moment before. This is exactly what happened in 1974. If you do not like the campaign system now in the United States of America, if you object to what has happened in public confidence, the rising expense, the dominance of powerful interests, the rise of soft money expenditures, then you have a responsibility to ensure these provisions are inseparable, or the Supreme Court will write this law just as they did in 1974.

Here is the most remarkable thing about the campaign finance system in the United States: No one ever proposed it, no one ever wrote it, and no one ever voted for it. Because the Supreme Court of the United States created it, and that is exactly where we are going again.

In 1974—a year in which I did not serve in government, but I remember the debate, and some of my colleagues were there and the Senate has presented with the following proposition: We will limit contributions to $1,000 but we will allow unlimited soft money to political parties and we will allow outside groups to spend their money and we will allow wealthy candidates to spend unlimited amounts of money, or any amount, on the floor of the Senate with that bill, it would have received no votes. There is not a member of the Democratic or Republican Party who would have voted to limit themselves to $1,000 contributions while wealthy individuals could spend unlimited money and outside groups had no restrictions at all, with no control on expenditures. No one would vote for such a system. But that is the law of the United States of America. It has governed our country for 25 years. If we fall today, it will continue to govern our country.

That has created all this outrage, and that is the product of not having a nonseverability clause. That was an attempt at reform. But when the Court ruled provisions unconstitutional, rather than meeting our responsibilities, returning to the floor of the Senate to rewrite the legislation consistent with constitutional limitations, we simply said it was non-comprehensive and met our national objectives, the Senate failed to meet its responsibilities and this problem was created.

By what logic do we solve this problem now by returning to the same rules, the same yielding of responsibility, to ask the same Court to write campaign reform legislation once again? I ask my colleagues to think of the system that may not evolve from McCain-Feingold as we have voted upon it but which might evolve from a reasonable action by the U.S. Supreme Court.

I believe every provision we have agreed to in this Senate, absent possibly the Wellstone amendment, is constitutional. Senator Fingold from Tennessee does not put the Wellstone amendment in his nonseverability amendment that he offers the Senate at this moment. I believe the remainder is constitutional.

But if I am wrong and the U.S. Supreme Court decides that Snowe-Jefords amendment controlling expenditures by independent groups by the use of unlimited soft money is unconstitutional, mark my words, the system we are creating in the United States of America is a radical change in how we govern this country and, for all practical purposes, it is the end of the two-party system financing national elections as we have known them in our lifetime. That is because under a McCain-Feingold bill that no one in this Senate voted for—and I suspect no one really supports—the system enacted in the United States will be the Democratic and Republican Parties will be limited to hard money expenditures and independent groups will spend unlimited money with no restrictions or controls. Of all the thousands of organizations in America, civic and corporate and labor, of all the thousands of organizations, we will have chosen two for these restrictions: The Democratic Party and the Republican Party.

In the practical world in which we live, let’s consider what this will look like. I, as a candidate, may choose to run for office on a progressive platform, wanting to describe my own views. And good allies that I believe in, such as organized labor or environmental groups or women’s rights groups or civil rights groups, may decide to support me. But they will run my ads. They will decide what I am for, describe my positions, and run my advertising.

My Republican opponent will be in a similar position. The Chamber of Commerce or a business group, a gun advocacy group, will run advertising with constitutional, saying what I am against.

American politics will be fought over the heads of the candidates—servile warfare with the Democratic and Republican Parties in the trenches simply firing on each other. The real battle will be fought by surrogates, and political candidates in the Democratic and Republican Parties will be nothing but spectators in American politics.

This is not the system anyone here wants. Were I to offer it now, no one would vote for it. It sounds like 1974, doesn’t it? It is. And we can have exactly the same result.

My colleagues, the Senator from Tennessee has offered an important, in some respects the most important, amendment in campaign finance reform.

It is the difference between a few ad hoc ideas to reform the campaign finance system and ensuring that this is comprehensive and fundamentally constitutional. Each becomes dependent on the other.

I asked the Senator from Tennessee to change his amendment in one more respect. I do not want my intentions questioned on the Senate floor. I have voted for campaign finance reform as often as any Member of this Congress in the last 20 years—as many times as Senator McCain, as many times as Senator FEINGOLD. I will keep voting for reform.

My intention to ensure that this is constitutional and comprehensive is not because I oppose reform but because I want it to be genuine and complete. It is because of that that I asked the Senator from Tennessee to adjust his amendment. He complied. Under his amendment, not only are these provisions nonseverable, but there would be immediate Federal court review.

Upon action of the district court finding any provision of this legislation unconstitutional, there would be immediate legislative appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court to ensure that this Senate had guidance immediately so we could return to session and correct any constitutional defects.
This, my colleagues, is exactly what this Senate has done in dealing with other legislation that was of questionable constitutional compliance. It was what the Senate and House of Representatives did in dealing only a few years ago with the Religious Land Use Institutionalized Persons Act. We ensured that the provisions would have to stand together, and that there would be an immediate court review if they did not return to the Senate.

So I ask the Senate to do what it did to correct what it did wrong in 1974 and did correctly on three previous occasions to ensure constitutionality and that the responsibility for writing this legislation remains here.

I do not understand, my colleagues, in fact, if we vote differently. The lessons of 1974 were learned in a very hard way. We have seen people lose confidence in this Government, and the campaign finance system evolved which took Members of the Congress away from their responsibilities and dispirited us and our constituents. It is not a system worthy of a good and great country—but it is the law—because we did not write it. We allowed others to write it. It evolved. It was not thought through or properly conceived.

I thought we learned that lesson in 1974 because on the last three occasions that we reviewed campaign finance legislation in this Congress, we ensured that there was a nonseverability clause.

What Senator Frist does today, on three previous occasions this Congress assured was in campaign finance legislation. What he does is not the exception. It has been the rule, specifically because of what we learned in 1974. Now Senator Frist brings it to the Senate again.

I urge my colleagues to act with caution. This vote has meaning, and it will last. It will change the complexity of this entire Congress as the years pass because the access to financing and how we govern this campaign finance system governs who rules, who wins, and who loses, and what issues come before their institution. It could not be more profound.

I urge my colleagues, no matter how they have viewed this question of severability in the past, to think carefully—not reform for reform sake, not a slogan, not a campaign statement, but a careful review of how this law will evolve and what it means to this Senate and to this country.

I compliment the Senator from Tennessee for offering it. I urge my colleagues to adopt it. I yield the floor.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, before the Senator from New Jersey leaves, I listened carefully to his remarks, and I also say to the Senator from New Jersey that not only were nonseverability clauses a part of the three campaign finance reform bills that left the Senate in 1990, 1992, and 1993, it is a part of the Harkin amendment that we just voted on a couple of hours ago which had the support of 32 Members of the Senate on his side of the aisle.

So the notion that somehow nonseverability is unusual or inappropriate is absurd. It is more often the case that these are part of campaign finance reform bills that we deal with in the Senate.

Mr. TORRICELLI. I am glad the Senator noted that.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, how much time remains for the opponents?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The opponents have 21 minutes.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Tennessee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, it continues to be such an excellent debate. I am proud to be a part of it. I commend my colleagues on both sides of the issue.

I believe it is fair to say that putting nonseverability clauses into bills is not at all unusual. Congress passing a bill with a nonseverability clause in it is very usual.

Let's make sure we are not comparing apples with oranges. Are campaign finance laws so different from anything else that it should be looked upon differently? Because in everything else, severability is the norm. Nonseverability is very unusual. So we say we continually do it in these bills that we don't ever make into law. But we continue to put them into bills because they are campaign finance bills, and they are intricately woven.

I suggest if anybody who ever sponsored a bill—especially a large bill on our side of this aisle, that they will do that. The Republicans will find a way to support some of these organizations otherwise. In fact, they will find a way to do that.

There is plenty of robust debate out there. It makes us mad sometimes. These people have a first amendment right to do that.

According to an independent study, the House of Representatives the last time had more independent money spent on them than the Democrats did with independent ads.

They also said that Senate Democrats had more independent ad money spent on them than the Republicans did. Of course, in the Presidential race, the Republicans won. And that is one race. If you look at the soft money donors, of the top 10 of them, 6 or 7 are Democrats. They will find a way to support some of these organizations otherwise. In fact, that is a concern on our side of this aisle, that they will do that. The Democrats will have more support than the Republicans will have.

Democrats say: Well, the hard money limits will hurt us more than it will the Republicans.

We will never be able to figure out exactly who is marginally helped or hurt with all of these. We have never been able to do that before.

Mr. President, I ask for 1 more minute from my friend.

Mr. DODD. I yield an additional minute.

Mr. THOMPSON. We are in as much equilibrium now probably as we will ever be. Behavior changes. The reason we are so soft money oriented now is because we have neglected the hard money, the small dollars, for some time. I think both parties have. If we raise the hard money limits, the rest have, and do away with soft money, you will see the concentration back toward the old-time way of raising money—in smaller amounts, legitimate, limited amounts—that we had since 1974.

Don’t treat the legislation that was passed that year as a total abomination. The fact is, until the mid-1990s, the 1974 law worked pretty well. We didn’t have any Presidential scandals. The money spent on each side was about the same. Sometimes the challenger won. Sometimes an incumbent won. We don’t like it now because some people in the 1990s showed us some ways to get some whole new money into this process.

That is what we are reacting to now. It is not that law. It is what has been done, not just by the courts but the FEC and the Justice Department and a few others.

It is a complicated issue, but it all boils down to this: Are we prepared to get rid of the multimillionaire soft dollars that are coming from corporations and unions and wealthy individuals in this country into our political process? That is what this vote is all about.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I commend my colleague from Tennessee. He made a very good point at the outset on the severability issue and precedence. We went back the other day and looked at legislation over the last 10 or 15 years. We are told that of the hundreds, thousands of bills that passed the Congress, there are about 10 or 11 examples where limited severability was involved, the point the Senator was making.

With that, let me turn to my colleague from Wisconsin, Senator WELLSTONE, who has been around all afternoon.

I yield Senator SCHUMER 7 minutes.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I ask unanimous consent that I follow Senator SCHUMER.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I rise in adamantine opposition to the nonseverability amendment. At the outset, let us be very clear about the unmistakable goal of this amendment. It has been signed, sealed, and delivered primarily by opponents of the bill for one and only one purpose: as a poison pill.

Of all the prescriptions for all of the poison pills that our friends on the other side of this issue have diligently mixed over the last 2 weeks, this one is the most lethal.

Why do I say that? Because it is aimed straight at the soft money ban, which is the heart and soul of this bill and has been at the core of cleaning up our campaigns since at least 1988. Ban ning soft money finally ends the practice, unhealthy in any democracy, whereby the wealthiest few pour millions and millions into our campaigns with no restriction at all and sometimes no disclosure, as long as the money is in smaller amounts.

The debate over how much advocacy groups can do is simply a sideshow. Only those who don’t believe that banning soft money is key let it override the dominant purpose of this bill, to ban soft money once and for all. Ban ning soft money is the forest of this effort. It is far more important to the viability of our campaigns to ban soft money than regulate sham issue ads. There is no compelling reason to force the former to live or die based on the latter.

In medicine, it would be like killing the patient when all he has is a headache. In warfare, we would destroy the village in order to save it. In legislation, it is just plain bad policy.

The better policy, obviously, is to see what the Court does. And if we are left with an uneven system we don’t like, fix it then. That is what we always do. That is why we never enact nonseverability statutes.

The past 12 years has a nonseverability provision become law, though nearly 3,000 bills were passed during that time. Passing one now will just be a transparent way of saying we never wanted to ban soft money in the first place, and we found a clever way to pass the buck.

It would be particularly ironic to do this in the name of preventing the Court from writing our campaign finance laws instead of Congress. It is precisely this amendment that gives the Supreme Court too much power, not ordinary severability of the kind we always have and that is in McCain-Feingold.

If we approve this amendment, we will be asking the Court to dictate our campaign finance laws to a far greater extent than in McCain-Feingold because the soft money ban, which is constitutional, which we and the House have debated for years and which we are poised to enact right now, will disappear even if it is not considered by the Court, much less struck down.

Why would we concede that much power to the Court? Most of the time the Senators supporting this amendment talk about the danger of judicial activism. But it will be rubberstamping a peculiar and virtually unprecedented form of judicial activism with this amendment.

As the great Justice Robert Jackson once wrote of the Supreme Court’s role as the final arbiter of our law:

We are not final because we are infallible— we are infallible because we are final.

In the area of campaign finance, the Supreme Court has not been infallible, although it certainly is final. We should not tie this entire bill to the Court’s final decision on any one of dozens of minor provisions.

I will close by reemphasizing what the Senators from Arizona and Wisconsin have so often and eloquently said in the course of this debate. I plead with my colleagues, we cannot let the perfect be the enemy of the good. On this side of the aisle, I say to my colleagues, even if you are unhappy with the delicate balance of 501(c)(4) organizations, even if you realize they may not be limited once the courts get hold of this, don’t throw out the baby with the bath water. The good in this bill is more than just good, it is great. It is a landmark achievement, the first serious reform in a generation. And we should strive to preserve it, not kick the can across the street to the Supreme Court.

Mr. President, I yield back to the Senator from Connecticut my remaining time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous agreement, the Senator from Minnesota is to be recognized.

Mr. DODD. That is right. We are down to a very limited amount of time. I have two or three people who want to be heard. I am going to ask the indulgence of my colleagues unless the other side would like to give us a little time for people who want to be heard. How much time do the proponents have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Ten minutes.

Mr. DODD. May we have 5?

Mr. FRIST. I will yield 4 minutes.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I will do it in 3 minutes.

Mr. DODD. The Senator yields 3 minutes to the Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Although I don’t like doing it in 3 minutes.

Mr. President, I think that some of what other Senators have said about the whole being greater than the sum of its parts is, in part, true. But I think the soft money ban, which is at the heart of the McCain-Feingold bill, is important enough that we want to protect it.

Second of all, I frankly don’t know what the supreme political Court will do. You can argue different ways, but I would hate to see the supreme political Court render a decision taking on one part of the legislation and having the whole bill fall.

Third, I would like to point out to my colleagues that the amendment I introduced that was passed as a part of this legislation now was based upon the idea of severability. That was an amendment to improve this bill, not to jeopardize this legislation. And so, consistent with my commitment to severability, I will vote against nonseverability.

And then, finally, may I say this? How ironic it is that the amendment I introduced the other night is not even covered by this amendment that my colleagues introduced on the other side; that the amendment I introduced the other night that deals with these sham issue ads and the potential of all the soft money shifting here is still severable. It is so ironic. But I say, no self-righteousness intended, consistent with the principle of improving this bill, not in any way, shape, or form trying to jeopardize this bill, I don’t even know how I am going to vote on final passage. But I certainly am opposed to this nonseverability.

You see why I wanted to have more time than 3 minutes? I have a lot to say.

Mr. DODD. The distinguished Senator is always eloquent.

I yield to my colleague from Massachusetts 3 minutes.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, it seems to me it is obvious to almost every Senator that we are sort of reaching a critical moment where we decide whether we are for campaign reform or we are not. At the bottom line, that is really what the severability issue is about, even though the severability has been limited now to a major component of the bill: Issue ads, i.e., Snowe-Jeffords, versus soft money. The soft money falls, the prohibition on it, only if the Court finds that Snowe-Jeffords is inappropriate, unconstitutional.

I suggest to my colleagues that the whole purpose of this reform is to get rid of the largest component of money that most taints the political process, which is soft money. One of the reasons people have doubts about their ability to be able to get rid of issue ads, if indeed that prohibition were to fall, is that they haven’t been raising hard money, because when you can go to somebody and ask for $50,000, $100,000, $500,000, why bother going after the smaller sum of money?

So it seems to me what is ignored in this argument is, if indeed you don’t have soft money, and if indeed the prohibition on issue ads, if Snowe-Jeffords were to fall, you are not defenseless at all, you still have the capacity to spend unlimited amounts of hard money in defense.

One of the reasons Senator WOLLSTONE, Senator BIDEN, I, and others are so concerned about the McCain-Feingold bill in the end, though we support it, is that it ultimately only reduces a portion of the money that is in American politics. It still leaves us in a race, ever-escalating, of raising extraordinary amounts of hard money, and we are not defenseless in this race, and it forces us to spend all of those dollars, and it is a question of whether they are really about an issue or trying to seek defeat or election of a candidate. Anybody can run these ads and tell the difference as to whether they are purely about an issue or trying to seek defeat or election of a candidate. I am confident we have drawn a line that will pass constitutional muster.

I ask my colleagues to take the risk in favor of reform and eliminate the soft money from American politics. That is what this vote is about.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, am I out of time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 4 minutes 43 seconds.

Mr. DODD. I yield 2 minutes to my colleague from Arizona.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, we are now facing one of the major hurdles, and perhaps the last major hurdle, between us and successful resolution of this issue. We had to fight back a poison pill in the form of a so-called pay-check protection. We had to speak clearly that we will not accept soft money in American politics. Then we voted in favor of a very hard-fought and carefully crafted compromise in the form of the Thompson-Feingold amendment. Now we face this issue. Have no doubt about what this vote is really about. If you vote for this amendment, you are voting for soft money. That is really what this vote is all about.

Since this may be the last major obstacle we face, I take the opportunity to thank all of my colleagues for the level of this debate. The tenor of this debate. I also thank the thousands and thousands of Americans who have been active in this debate and participated with us through e-mail, phone calls, and through all communications. Without their support, we would not be where we are today.

I urge a vote in favor of the tabling motion that will be proposed by Senator THOMPSON of Tennessee.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, let me also commend our colleague. This has been a good debate, one we can be proud of in this body. I ask for recognition of the Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. I thank the Senator. I join with my colleague in thanking each and every Member of this body for the way this debate has been conducted. It has been a great example of the way this institution can work.

The Senator from Arizona is also right about the ultimate point. This is not an issue that needs to be addressed in any technical terms—severability or nonseverability. But it truly is the whole issue. I said it time and again, but it is the most important thing to point out to people, and that is that we have never allowed unlimited campaign contributions from corporate treasuries to political parties since 1907. We have never allowed unions to do the same thing from their treasury since 1947, the Taft-Hartley Act. But now, in the 1990s, the early part of this century, Members of Congress are engaged in asking for $100,000, $500,000, and $1 million contributions.

I say to you, Mr. President, if you told me even 10 years ago that such a practice could ever occur in this democracy, I would have been stunned. But it is standard procedure today. This vote on this amendment will decide whether this terribly unfortunate and corrupting system continues or not. This is the soft money vote. This is where the Senate takes its stand.

This is the test.

Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. DODD. I presume all time has expired.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 1 minute 22 seconds.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, my colleague from Tennessee, the author, has been very gracious in giving us some time. I am going to return the favor and extend a minute and a half to him.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I, too, applaud my colleagues and everybody who have participated over the last 3 hours and really over the last 10 days. But over the last 3 hours, I have been quite pleased with the nature of the discussion, the debate, the issues.

It is very clear to our colleagues what this vote is about. Although some will say it is about soft money, it is about voice and it is about the freedom in our process, freedom of political speech.

Very briefly, I want to make three points in closing. No. 1, people are calling this as a poison pill. Very clearly, we are not adding anything. We are linking principally two underlying factors that are part of the underlying McCain-Feingold bill and added to the hard money the Thompson amendment. These are linked in a comprehensive, complementary, integral way. We are addressing just these three. If one falls, the other two come down; if one is unconstitutional, the others come down. Why? Because of balance.

All other provisions in this bill, whether it is increased disclosure, the provision clarifying the ban on foreign contributions, including soft money, the ban on raising money on Federal property, the millionaire amendment—all of those stand, all of those continue regardless of what happens with the Frist-Breaux amendment and constitutional amendments.

The second point is, the issue has been made that most bills coming out of this body do not have nonseverability clauses, but the point was made that some do. It is in times exactly such as these where we bring people together and knit together in a comprehensive way that taints that is so critical to maintain what we all cherish, and that is freedom of speech.

It is in unusual times such as these that a nonseverability clause is called for. It is this balance. If Snowe-Jeffords falls and the ban on soft money stays, then we increase, not decrease, the role of influence of the special interest groups we talked so much about over the last 3 hours. That is not the type of reform that Americans want.

Third, history. Clearly, there have been precedents, in fact, on campaign finance reform bills that have passed out of this body that have had nonseverability clauses.

In closing, I urge support of the Frist-Breaux amendment, as modified, during the course of the debate. It deals directly with the most cherished freedoms that any of us have today, and that is the freedom of speech.

If there is one thing that has been pointed out over the last several days, it is that we must be careful whenever we pass a bill that is going to ration free speech, and that is what we are doing. We must maintain that balance, and the only way to maintain that balance is to support the nonseverability clause amendment proposed by myself and Senator JOHN BREAUX.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I move to table the Frist-Breaux amendment No. 156, as modified, and ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The question is on agreeing to the motion. The clerk will call the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The previous order was to recognize the Senator from Kentucky for up to 30 minutes.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I assure my colleagues that I am not likely to take 30 minutes. But I thought it was an appropriate time to say that I think we have dealt with the last very significant amendment to this bill.

I think it is time for Members of the Senate on both sides of the aisle to take a good hard look at what we have done to the political parties—both yours and ours. I asked the pages to hand out this little chart.

I have reached a point in this debate where I think it might be a good idea to take a look at what life in a hard money world is going to look like for our two great political parties. We have taken pretty good care of ourselves in this debate. We have raised the hard money limit for us. I am for that. I think that is a very important step in the right direction.

My colleagues, we have reached a point in this debate where I think it might be a good idea to take a look at what life in a hard money world is going to look like for our two great political parties. We have taken pretty good care of ourselves in this debate. We have raised the hard money limit for us. I am for that. I think that is a very important step in the right direction.

We lowered the broadcast discount so we can buy time cheaper. I voted for that.

We tried to protect ourselves against being criticized by outside groups through the adoption of the Wellstone amendment and the Snowe-Jeffords language.

We even adopted the Schumer amendment which would make it difficult for parties to use coordinated expenditures over and above the current limit if the Supreme Court in fact strikes down the coordinated expenditure limit as unconstitutional, which is the case currently before the Supreme Court.

We have also defeated the non-severability clause, so that now if the Court strikes down our efforts to limit the ability of outside groups to criticize us in proximity to an election, and we are unable through the charting of new turf and ours, I ask the co-plaintiffs in this case in my office other people who are likely to be the co-plaintiffs in this case in my office, and Senator JOHN BREAUX. These are my colleagues. These are our pages. These are the people who are likely to be the co-plaintiffs in this case in my office, next week.

But we are left now with the possibility of being saved by the House or being saved by the President, who says he is going to sign this bill.

If none of those things happens, you are looking at the co-plaintiff. I have no idea what the chances are of getting a Federal district court, or the U.S. Supreme Court, for that matter, on appeal, to tell us whether parties have a right of free association and a right of speech somewhat similar to individuals. That is really uncharted turf. We do know this. What we can calculate is what happens to the parties in a 100-percent hard money world.

I hope by now some of you have gotten—I don’t see that any of you have gotten—where are our pages with additional copies? I guess they thought you all wouldn’t be interested in this. I don’t know why. Could the pages please deliver those over to the Democratic side? This won’t take long.

I took a look at the 2000 cycle, the cycle just completed. You will see in the chart before you that the chart depicts the net Federal dollars available to the three national party committees.

Under current law, on the left—if I could call your attention to the column on the left, and for those in the gallery, this column is called “Actuals.” This was the last cycle, net hard dollars.

The Republican National Committee had net hard dollars to spend on candidates of 75 million; the Democratic National Committee, 48 million; net hard dollars to spend on candidates, 6 million.

The Republican Congressional Committee, $22 million; the Democratic Congressional Committee, minus 7 million in the whole cycle, net party dollars.

Now let’s take a look at what the 2000 cycle would have looked like under McCain-Feingold in a 100-percent hard money world. That is the column over here on the right. You see the Republican National Committee would have gone from 75 million net hard dollars down to 37 million net hard dollars; the Democratic National Committee, from 48 million to 29 million; the Republican Senatorial Committee, from 14 million to 11 million; the Democratic Senatorial Committee, from 14 million to 4 million. That wouldn’t even cover the co-ordinated in New York. The Democratic Senatorial Committee, 6 million net hard dollars down to 800,000.
Welcome to the 100-percent hard money world. You are going to like it. There has been a lot of discussion about who wins and who loses. We both lose. This is mutually assured destruction of the political parties.

I don’t think any of you believe seri-ously that Jeffords, or Wellstone, or Snowe-Jeffords are going to be upheld in court. This is an area of the law I know a little bit about. So the chances are pretty good that all of those groups know a little bit about. So the chances in court. This is an area of the law I

Snowe-Jeffords are going to be upheld ously that Jeffords, or Wellstone, or money world. You are going to like it.

5038

aisle, hoping somebody, somewhere,

I am not going to embarrass anybody, anybody out there to save us from this.

do, my colleagues. Don’t think there is people.

This is a stunningly stupid thing to America? I know you all like them be-right and the left pounding away.

are going to be out there on both the impossible in order to satisfy who? The made the political parties impotent; course in this country while we have of billionaires over the political dis-ties to the press, to academia, to Holly-ter world and that the American pub-

world.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, may I in-request made to respond to the unanifrom Kentucky.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct. There are an additional 30 minutes under the control of the Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. The distinguished Senator from Wisconsin or the Senator from Arizona, Mr. MCCAIN, I had thought, wanted to be heard on this issue.

Mr. President, let me reserve the time for them. I will take 2 minutes and say to my friend and colleague from Kentucky, this is a new world. I accept that description. I wouldn’t call it necessarily a perfect world, but I think for those of us who support

McCain-Feingold we think this is a far better world than the one we have been engaged in over the past number of years, as we have watched the explosion of unregulated soft money flow into the political process in this country.

Senator BENNETT of Utah a little while ago said no one can say for certain where this is going to go. That is true. I think we do appreciate, those of us who have supported this legislation, that a system that is devoid of unregulated soft money, and those of us who believe that the Snowe-Jeffords provisions and the price we paid by increasing modestly the hard money contributions as a percentage than the one we presently are operating under. So, yes, it is a new world.

I happen to believe it is a vastly better world and that the American pubclic, who have something to say about this and who have been declining, as my colleague and friend from Kentucky has pointed out, declining in their checking off on the 1040 forms of moneys to go into the public coffers to support Presidential elections is a good poll about how the public feels—he says about public financing. I think about politics—I am not certain this is going to change entirely the public mood. I think we are taking a giant step forward with the adoption of

McCain-Feingold in improving the climate and improving the public’s confidence and their respect for the political process in this country.

Yes, it is a new world. I think it is a better world.

I yield 5 minutes to my colleague from Massachusetts and then reserve the remainder for Senator FEINGOLD or

Senator MCCAIN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KERRY, Mr. President, I listened carefully to the comments of the Senator from Kentucky. I respect the very direct, open way in which he has stated his opposition, and he has done so on the basis of a belief system. I respect that, I think we all do.

Let me say to my colleagues, there is an analogy that is not completely inappropriate in the sense that when you have found a way to do things and it wasn’t that easy, not that easy, but it wasn’t that easy to resist. We are faced with an addiction in a sense. There has been an easy addiction to this flow of money.

When you look at the amounts of money, from $100 million up to $244 billion in a span of 2 years, dozens of times in excess of the rate of inflation, you have to ask: What is going on here?

I say to my colleagues, for those who fear this new world that has been defined, there are alternatives. There are other ways to do this. I am proud that I can stand as a Senator in the Senate today, having gotten elected a different way.

In 1996, the Governor of our State and

I mutually agreed to limit the amount of money we would spend—he, a fervent

Republican; me, an ardent Democrat.

We both agreed to spend the same amount of money that each of our parties would spend. This means that each of us would subtract from our total the amount of money that any independent expenditure ran in favor of the other person or that our parties spent on our behalf. We ran a race that was absolutely free from soft money, from party money. We had nine 1-hour televised debates, and the public knew us both, probably better than they wanted to, and made a decision.

We can all run that way. There is adequate capacity in this new world to raise countless amounts of hard dollars.

Under McCain-Feingold, we have raised the total amounts of money up to about $75,000 over 2 years to party and the individual.

Nothing stops one Senator from going out and raising as much hard money as they can access in a 6-year term, in amounts that have now been raised to $2,000 a person, which means you can visit one couple, a husband and wife, and you can walk out with $8,000.

All of us know that one-half of 1 percent of the people in America even contribute $1,000 contributions.

So this is not a dire new world, a brave new world. This is a world the American people are asking us to live by, and the American business people across this country are sick and tired of us coming to them and saying I need $150,000 or I need $500,000 for my party. They look at the committee you serve on and they feel pressured, whether they say it or not. Whether you say it or not, it is an appearance.

So I say to colleagues, this is a world we can survive in just fine. With 6 years of incumbency, with all of the power of the incumbent, with all of the times you can return home as a Senator and meet with constituents, there isn't one of us who doesn't start with the natural advantage, even under McCain-Feingold.

So I suggest respectfully that this is the right world, the world in which we ought to be living. We should not fear the outcome of this particular change. I thank the Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Kentucky for ensuring that the Senate has a moment to reflect on the implications of this bill. I think it is very important that we pause to evaluate this legislation, and what it will mean for our parties, and for the voters.

As my colleagues might imagine, I take a drastically different view on effects of this legislation than the Senator from Kentucky. I realize that change can be difficult, and even a little scary, but I think it is a mistake to try to scare Members out of voting for this bill. This reform is about increasing the public's faith in our work. This bill doesn't destroy the political parties; it strengthens them by ending their reliance on a handful of wealthy donors.

Parties need money to operate, and under this reform, the national parties will be able to raise hard money, just as they have for many years. What they won't be able to do is raise the unlimited amounts of soft money. Just like the parties didn't have much, if any, soft money for much of the 1970s and 1980s.

Soft money isn't some magic bullet that the parties need to increase voter turnout or voter participation in the democratic process. Throughout much of the 1970s and 1980s, soft money was mostly absent from party fundraising. The parties raised hard money, and ran their parties on hard money. It is easy to forget that when we look at fundraising today, I know, but it is important to remember as we consider this bill. We didn't need soft money then, and we don't need it now; that is an insight that has been perpetuated, frankly, on both sides of the aisle, and it is a time to put that myth to rest once and for all.

Neither party can thrive when they are beholden to the wealthy few. Soft money doesn't strengthen the parties, it undermines the spirit that keeps our parties strong. We all know that people, not soft money, are the heart and soul of our political parties.

With the soft money system, the parties have been operating outside the spirit of the law, and outside the public trust, for many years. With this bill, we can return the parties to the people who built them in the first place. Our democracy demands vibrant political parties. No one believes that more than I do. But soft money has, ironically, changed our parties. I feel that is true in my own party, and I am deeply saddened to have to say that.

Last spring the Democratic Party held a fundraiser where soft money donors in the arena sat down to dinner at lavishly decorated tables, while those who could only afford a cheaper ticket actually sat in the bleachers and watched them enjoy their meal. Is that party-building? I think we all know that to say that kind of event strengthens the parties is just absurd.

The parties aren't strengthened when people across the country, Republicans and Democrats, pick up the newspaper and read that their party is giving access and favors to the wealthy, while they struggle to pay for health care coverage, or they worry about how safe their drinking water is. They pick up the paper and see the parties take unlimited money from HMOs and big polluters, and they wonder how in the world could their party really stand up for them when they depend so completely on a wealthy few? The assumption that we can be bought, or that our parties can be bought, has completely perverted our culture. I'd guess that there are few if any Members of this body who haven't faced gone home to face the deep skepticism of their constituents on a given issue, when people felt like they or their party have been "bought off." I'd bet pretty strongly against that.

Soft money, like perhaps no other abuse of our system in history, creates an appearance of corruption. To demonstrate that, I want to put in the record two items of interest. The first are the results of a poll conducted just last week by ABC News and the Washington Post. This poll found that 74 percent of the public now support stricter laws controlling the way political campaigns raise and spend money. That is an 8 percent increase from just a year ago. The poll had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent.

More important, however, the same poll found that 80 percent of the public think that special favors for people and groups who give them campaign contributions. And 67 percent consider this a big problem. Seventy-four percent of those who believe that politicians do special favors for donors say they think these favors are unethical.

This is the appearance of corruption. The assumption that politicians are on the take, and that money purchases favors. The "Coin-Operated Congress," as Pat Schroeder used to say.

I have felt so over the past few years that money is setting the agenda that began to speak on the Senate floor during debates on substantive legislation about the money flowing from companies and groups interested in that legislation. I have called this the "Calling of the Bankroll," and since I started this practice in June of 1999, I have called the bankroll 30 times. I think it is important for us to acknowledge that millions of dollars are given in an attempt to influence what we do. The appearance of corruption is rampant in our system.

I have called the bankroll on mining on public lands, the gun show loophole, the defense industry's support of the 1996 Brady Bill. I have called the bankroll on the Y2 K Liability Act, the Passengers' Bill of Rights, the Africa trade bill, and the tobacco industry. I have talked about agriculture interests lobbying on an agriculture appropriations bill, telecommunications lobbying on a tower-siting bill, and railroad interests lobbying on a transportation appropriations bill. I've talked about contributions surrounding the Financial Services Modernization Act, nuclear waste policy, the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, and the ergonomics issue. I have also called the bankroll on the Patients' Bill of Rights, the 1999 interior Appropriations bill, twice, and I have called the Bankroll on three tax bills, and four separate times on bankruptcy reform legislation.

I think it is safe to say that the public doesn't think much of the current system, and that soft money is a big part in the public's lack of faith in us and the work we do.

One of the most important ways I think this bill can change the fundraising culture is not just by stopping soft money fundraising, but by stopping soft money fundraising by Members of Congress. Soft money fundraising is something that many Members of this body find deeply troubling. How many Members of the Senate do not feel comfortable exerting pressure on wealthy interests to come through with big contributions to fuel the fundraising contest between the parties? I have said before that I have had Members tell me they felt like taking a shower after asking for a huge contribution. And I recently quoted Senator MILLER's Washington Post op-ed, in which he said that after raising soft money, he felt like "a cheap prostitute who'd had a busy day." Haven't we had enough? I think we have. When this body voted 60 to 40 against the Hagel
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE
March 29, 2001

The CALLING of the BAN KiRL

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Date</th>
<th>Legislation/Issue</th>
<th>Bankroll of PAC and Soft Money Contributions</th>
<th>Forum</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5/20/99</td>
<td>Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Conf. Rpt/Nining rider.</td>
<td>PACs associated with the members of the National Mining Association and other mining-related PACs contributed more than $29 million to congressional campaigns from January 1995 to December 1996. Mining soft money contributions totaled $15.6 million during the same 6-year period.</td>
<td>Senate floor statement given, CR S5652.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5/27/99</td>
<td>Defense Dept. Authorization/Super Hornet amendment.</td>
<td>The defense industry gave more than $100 million in PAC money and soft money to parties and candidates in the last election cycle alone. In the last ten years, the defense industry gave almost $40 million to candidates and the two national political parties. Boeing, the Super Hornet’s primary contractor, gave more than $3 million in PAC money and more than $1.5 million in soft money during that same 10-year period.</td>
<td>Senate floor statement given, CR S5618.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6/10/99</td>
<td>Y2K Liability Act.</td>
<td>The computer and electronics industry gave close to six million dollars in soft money and PAC money during the last election cycle—$5.722,156 million dollars to be exact. The Association of Trial Lawyers of America gave more than $22,367,931 in PAC contributions to parties and candidates in 1997 and 1998.</td>
<td>Statement for the Record, printed in CR S5702.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6/23/99</td>
<td>Patients’ Bill of Rights.</td>
<td>The health industry, managed care companies, and their affiliated organizations spent more than $2.4 million dollars in soft money, PAC, and individual contributions—roughly double what they spent during the last mid-term election cycle.</td>
<td>Senate floor statement given, CR S5848.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7/14/99</td>
<td>Patients’ Bill of Rights.</td>
<td>The pharmaceutical and medical supplies industry gave more than $4 million dollars in PAC money contributions and more than $6.5 million dollars in soft money contributions in 1997 and 1998. The AMA made more than $7.4 million dollars in contributions in the last cycle ($2.3 million in soft money, approximately $777,000 in soft money). The AMA received nearly $1 million dollars in PAC contributions.</td>
<td>Senate floor statement given, CR S5845.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7/20/99</td>
<td>China MFA.</td>
<td>Members of the Senate, a majority coalition lobbying for MFA status for China were big contributors in the last election cycle. Examples include: Defense contractor TRW Inc. gave more than $195,000 in soft money and $236,000 in PAC money. Financial services giant BankAmerica gave more than $347 million in soft money and more than $430 million in PAC money. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce gave nearly $50 million in soft money and $105 million in PAC money. Lexin, one of the nation’s largest oil companies, gave $331 million in soft money and nearly half a million dollars in PAC money. The nation’s tobacco companies gave $49 million in soft money and more than $2 million dollars in PAC money. The nation’s tobacco companies were some of the most generous political donors around today, including Philip Morris, which gave $2.9 million.</td>
<td>Statement for the Record, printed in CR S5689.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7/29/99</td>
<td>Commerce-Justice-State Appropriations Bill</td>
<td>The Department of Commerce and the Department of Justice gave more than $2.9 million in soft money to Congress.</td>
<td>Senate floor statement given, CR S5695.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8/4/99</td>
<td>Agriculture Appropriations bill</td>
<td>The utility industry got a provision affecting utility mergers in the House measure, which, if it survives, is worth more than $1 billion to the utility industry. The provision would require the payment of taxes on the fund that utilities set up to cover the costs of shutting down nuclear power plants. Entergy Corporation gave $289,000 in soft money and nearly $50 million in PAC money; Commonwealth Edison gave $110 million in soft money and more than $100,000 in PAC money.</td>
<td>Statement for the Record, printed in CR S5680.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8/5/99</td>
<td>Introduction of Tower Siting Bill. S. 1538</td>
<td>Just a few examples of these wealthy interests: Farmers with PACs, gave nearly $3 million in soft money and $15.6 million in PAC money. Agriculture interests have donated nearly $3 million in soft money and $15.6 million in PAC money. Examples of soft money “double givers” in the agriculture industry include the Archer Daniels Midland Company, which donated $163,000 to the Democrats and $255,000 to the Republicans; United States Sugar Corp, which donated $131,500 to the Democrats and $35,000 to the Republicans; United Soybean Board, gave $355,000 to the Democrats and $355,000 to the Republicans. Not everyone is a double giver. The top agribusiness soft money giver was the National Farmers Union, which gave $157,500 to the Democrats and almost $250,000 to the Republicans; Ocean Spray Cranberries Incorporated, which donated $263,000 to the Democrats and $255,000 to the Republicans; United States Sugar Corp, which donated nearly $300,000 in soft money and more than $182,000 in PAC money.</td>
<td>Statement for the Record, printed in CR S5690.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8/9/99</td>
<td>Interior Appropriations bill/Oil replies Amendment</td>
<td>The defense industry gave more than $100 million in PAC money and soft money to parties and candidates in the last election cycle alone. In the last ten years, the defense industry gave nearly $40 million to candidates and the two national political parties. Boeing, the Super Hornet’s primary contractor, gave $3 million in PAC money and more than $1.5 million in soft money during that same 10-year period.</td>
<td>Statement for the Record, printed in CR S5711.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
The railroad companies are backing up their point of view with almost $4 million dollars in PAC and soft money contributions in the last election cycle alone. During 1997 and 1998, the four Class I railroads gave the following to political parties and candidates: Amtrak, its executives and subsidiaries gave more than $110,000 in soft money to the political parties in the 1998 election cycle. Two major U.S. retailers and coalition members, Gap Inc. and The Limited Inc., have a particularly strong interest in passing AGOA, since they can benefit from importing cheap textiles. During the 1997–1998 election cycle, Limited Inc. gave the political parties more than $160,000, and the Gap gave more than $135,000 in soft money donations, and in just the first six months of 1999, Limited Inc. gave the political parties more than $185,000 in soft money. The Gap also played a significant role in this election cycle, with more than $635,000 in PAC money during 1997 and 1998, and gave more than $40,000 in soft money in the current election cycle. Fruit of the Loom, which is one of the primary beneficiaries of the Caribbean Basin Initiative (CBI) legislation that was added to AGOA gave nearly $440,000 in soft money during the last election cycle. On June 14 of this year, just over a month before CBI NAFTA legislation was introduced in the Senate on July 16, Fruit of the Loom gave $30,000 to the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, which supervised the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee's $50,000.

The lobbying effort for so-called financial services modernization combined the clout of three industries that own all of the aggressive trade unions in the country. In 1998, MBNA Corporation gave a $200,000 soft money contribution to the National Republican Senatorial Committee. PAC contributions from National Consumer Bankruptcy Coalition members totaled $227,000 in March of this year alone. That's a full 20 months before the Senate floor consideration of the bill. Members of the coalition gave nearly $1.2 million in PAC and soft money contributions in the first 6 months of 1999. During that time period, MBNA Corp. gave $50,000 in soft money to the Republican Senatorial Committee. The Washington Post reported that the company's chairman, along with several other corporate heads, made calls to White House officials the very night the conference hammered out an agreement on this bill. Citizens from the banking industry also saw them, and so was the presence of more than $70,000 in following and exchanges and subsidiaries and soft money in support of the political parties in the 1998 election cycle. And in the current election cycle Citigroup is off to a running start with $250,000 in soft money from Citigroup, its executives and subsidiaries. That's more than $1 million from Citigroup, and another $250,000 in soft money from BankAmerica, its executives and subsidiaries also weighed in with more than $347,000 in soft money in the 1998 election cycle, and more than $40,000 in the current election cycle. The insurance industry was also well-represented. For instance there's the Chubb Corp and its subsidiaries, which gave nearly $220,000 in soft money contributions in 1997 and 1998, and has given more than $60,000 already in 1999. And there's industry lobby group the American Council of Life Insurance, which also gave heavily to the parties with more than $135,000 in soft money contributions in 1997 and 1998, and more than $63,000 for this year. These groups also exercise their clout through the loophole of phony issue ads. The Sierra Club spent an estimated $1.5 million in issue ads in the '98 election cycle, and the Nuclear Energy Institute reportedly spent $600,000 on issue ads just in two Senate races during the last cycle.
These figures include contributions through the first 15 months of the election cycle, and in some cases include contributions given more recently in the cycle. MBNA and its affiliates and executives gave a total of $710,000 in soft money contributions over the years. MBNA Chairman & CEO, Alfred J. Lerner, and his wife, Norma, each made contributions of a quarter of a million dollars to the Republican National Committee in the last cycle. Most of the $1.2 million in soft money that MBNA gave to the parties in the last cycle was given in the second half of 2000, when the rules were in effect. The Center for Responsive Politics’ May 24th report put the collective contributions of Business Roundtable members at $58 million in soft money contributions, including soft money contributions so far in the election cycle. Telecommunications giant Motorola and its executives have given more than $70,000 in soft money and more than $177,000 in PAC money during the period. The software company Oracle and its executives have given more than $53,000 in soft money during the period, and its PAC has given $15,000 to federal candidates. Executives of Cisco Systems have given more than $722,000 in soft money since the beginning of this election cycle. And Microsoft gave very generously during the period, with more than $1.7 million in soft money and more than a half a million in PAC money.

Many unions are lobbying against the H-1B bill, including the Communication Workers of America, which gave $1.9 million in soft money during the period, including two donations of a quarter of a million dollars last year. And GM’s PAC gave more than $96,000 to candidates during the period. The lobbying group Federation for American Immigration Reform, or FAIR, has lobbed fiercely against this bill with a high-powered radio and television campaign, which has cost somewhere between $500,000 and $1 million, according to an estimate in Roll Call. The American Benefits Council, which is strongly supporting this bill, sent around a list of supporters of provisions of the legislation. That list includes still more big donors. The American Council of Life Insurers and its executives have given more than $120,000 to the parties’ soft money war chests during the period. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce and affiliated chambers of commerce have given more than $110,000 in soft money during the period. The list also included many of the nation’s labor unions, which are also pushing for some of the provisions of this bill, including the American Federation of Teachers, which has given at least $80,000 so far during this election cycle, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, which has given more than $363,000 in soft money during the period. Many members of the Business Roundtable, an organization which has urged the passage of this legislation, are some of the biggest political donors. I’d like to review the contributions of some of these companies. These figures are for contributions through at least the first 15 months of the election cycle, and in some cases include contributions given more recently in the cycle. Lockheed Martin, its executives and subsidiaries have given more than $861,000 in soft money, and more than $881,000 in PAC money so far during this election cycle. United Technologies and its subsidiaries have given more than $293,000 in soft money and more than $240,000 in PAC money during the period. During that period, Caterpillar has given more than $251,000 in soft money to the parties and more than $979,000 in PAC money to Federal candidates. Textron has contributed more than $173,000 in soft money and more than $205,000 in PAC money. And last but not least, Boeing has given more than $583,000 in soft money since the election cycle began, and more than $593,000 in PAC contributions.

The following figures are from the Center for Responsive Politics, through the first 15 months of the election cycle, and in some cases include contributions given earlier in the election cycle. MBNA and its affiliates and executives gave a total of $170,000 in soft money to the parties. Visa and its executives gave more than $526,000 in soft money to the parties during the period. MasterCard gave nearly $46,000.

Along with its affiliates and executives, the American Trucking Association gave more than $404,000 in soft money in the 2000 cycle. They have weighed in against the ergonomics rule, and they do so with the weight of their soft money contributions behind them. The same is true for a host of other associations fighting to see the rule overturned in the last cycle, the National Soft Drink Association and its executives gave more than $141,000 in soft money, the National Retail Federation dished out more than $101,000 in soft money, and the National Restaurant Association ponied up more than $55,000 in soft money to parties back in March. And the Chamber of Commerce and its affiliates, which gave more than $141,000 during the same period.

Among the other side of the soft money coin, the unions that have lobbied to keep the rule in place. They include the AFL-CIO and its affiliates, which gave more than $872,000 in soft money in the last election cycle, and the Teamsters Union and its affiliates, which gave more than $462,000 during the same period. The most of the $3.1 million in soft money that MBNA gave to the parties in the last cycle was given in the second half of 2000, when a “shadow conference” determined what the final bankruptcy bill would look like, and the bill was brought back to the House and the Senate in an extraordinary procedural maneuver. In particular, MBNA gave $1,000,000 in soft money to the National Republican Senatorial Committee on October 12, 2000, the very same day that the House gave final approval to the bill. MBNA Chairman & CEO, Alfred J. Lerner, and his wife, Norma, each made contributions of a quarter of a million dollars to the Republican National Committee in the last cycle. According to an article in the Wall Street Journal from March 6th, MBNA President Charles M. Cowley is also an active political donor and fundraiser who gave $100,000 to the Bush-Cheney Inaugural Committee.

According to the Center for Responsive Politics, the nine members of the National Consumer Bankruptcy Coalition contributed more than $3 million in soft money and individual contributions during the 2000 election cycle. The Coalition’s members include Visa USA, Mastercard International and several financial industry trade groups, including the American Bankers Association and the American Financial Services Association.
Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I will reserve the remainder of that time. Let me turn to a collegiate from New Mexico, Senator BINGAMAN, for the purpose of offering an amendment.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, before that, I believe Senator SPECTER’s amendment is pending. He expects to have the next Republican amendment. I ask unanimous consent that the Specter amendment be temporarily laid aside so we can go to Senator BINGAMAN. Senator SPECTER will come after that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BINGAMAN. I thank my colleagues very much. I have two amendments, the first of which I believe is acceptable to the managers of the bill. Mr. DODD. That is correct.

AMENDMENT NO. 157

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read the following:

The Senator from New Mexico [Mr. BINGAMAN] proposes an amendment numbered 157.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment reads as follows:

(Purpose: To require the Presidential Inaugural Committee to disclose donations and prohibit foreign nationals from making donations to such Committee)

On page 37, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

SEC. 3. DONATIONS TO PRESIDENTIAL INAUGURAL COMMITTEE.

(a) In general.—Section 304 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 434), as amended by section 310 of title 36, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(g) Reports from Inaugural Committees.—The Federal Election Committee shall make any report filed by an Inaugural Committee under section 310 of title 36, United States Code, accessible to the public at the offices of the Commission and on the Internet not later than 48 hours after the report is received by the Commission.”

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, this is a noncontroversial amendment that would simply require that contributions made to a Presidential inaugural committee be publicly disclosed, and also it would require that the same rules that govern foreign contributions to our political campaigns be applied as well to inaugural events.

As I understand it, this is an acceptable amendment. At this time, I believe we are prepared to go ahead and vote on this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is all in order?

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, this amendment is acceptable to us. I yield back the time on this side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 157) was agreed to.

Mr. McCONNELL. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. BINGAMAN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, the Senator from Virginia has asked that he be given permission to speak for 4 or 5 minutes before I offer this amendment. I am certainly pleased to do that. I will yield the floor to him at this point.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia, Mr. WARNER, is recognized.

The remarks of Mr. WARNER, Mr. ALLEN, and Mrs. BOXER, are located in today’s Record under “Morning Business.”

AMENDMENT NO. 158

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise to offer another amendment. I send the amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Specter amendment is set aside. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from New Mexico [Mr. BINGAMAN] proposes an amendment numbered 158.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide candidates for election to Federal office with the opportunity to respond to negative political advertisements sponsored by noncandidates)

On page 37, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

SEC. 3. OPPORTUNITY OF CANDIDATES TO RESPOND TO NEGATIVE POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENTS SPONSORED BY NONCANDIDATES.

Section 315 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 315), as amended by this Act, is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsections (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) as subsections (c), (d), (e), (f), and (g), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after subsection (a) the following:

“(b) Political Advertisements of Noncandidates.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If any licensee permits a person, other than a legally qualified candidate for Federal office (or an authorized committee of that candidate), to use a broadcast station during the period described in paragraph (2) to attack or oppose (as defined in paragraph (3)) a clearly identified candidate, such licensee may not permit a candidate for Federal office (or an authorized committee of such candidate) to use the broadcast station during the period described in paragraph (3) to attack or oppose (as defined in paragraph (3)) the same candidate, except that this subsection does not apply to a political party that has authority to nominate a candidate for such Federal office, the 30-day period preceding such election, convention, or caucus.

(2) PERIOD DESCRIBED.—The period described in this paragraph is—

“(A) with respect to a general, special, or runoff election for such Federal office, the 60-day period preceding such election; or

“(B) with respect to a primary or preference election, or a convention or caucus of a political party that has authority to nominate a candidate for such Federal office, the 30-day period preceding such election, convention, or caucus.

(3) ATTACK OR OPPOSE DEFINED.—The term ‘attack or oppose’ means, with respect to a clearly identified candidate—

“(A) any expression of unmistakable and unambiguous opposition to the candidate; or

“(B) any expression of opposition that connotes a phrase such as ‘vote against’, ‘defeat’, or ‘reject’, or a campaign slogan or words that, when taken as a whole, and with limited reference to external events (such as proximity to an election) can have no reasonable meaning other than to advocate the defeat of one or more clearly identified candidates, regardless of whether or not the communications expressly advocates a vote against the candidate.”

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I am here for two reasons: First, to express my strong support for the bill we have been considering this week and last, this bipartisan campaign finance reform bill which we have come to refer to as the McCain-Feingold bill; second, I am here to offer this amendment which I believe will further improve the bill.

Our colleagues from Kentucky said, as he gave his short statement a few minutes ago, now that all the important amendments have already been offered and dealt with, he wanted to go ahead with his comments. I beg to differ with him on that conclusion, that all the important amendments have been offered. This amendment I am offering... today I believe is very important, and I believe it will substantially improve this legislation. It will help to address the integrity of our political system.

The debate we are engaged in is long overdue. Congress has not, as it should, revisited the campaign finance laws in any meaningful way since I came to the Congress in 1983. The last significant reform of campaign finance laws was in 1974. Nearly everything about campaigns has changed radically since 1974, from the tremendous amount of money that has been spent on campaigns to the technologies and methods used to communicate with voters.

I congratulate Senator McCaskill, my colleague from Wisconsin, on their determination in finally bringing this bill to the Senate floor. I think of no two individuals in recent memory who have worked harder on a bipartisan basis in pursuit of basic reform than these two Senators.

They have traveled the country, one of them, of course, during the time he was running for President. They have taken the campaign finance reform message to every corner of this country. We all in this Senate, in my view, owe them a debt of gratitude. I hope our effort is worthy of their significant effort. It has been a true labor of genuine reform in the interest of better and cleaner democracy, and I am very pleased to cosponsor this legislation.

Mr. President, turning to the amendment I have offered, it is a relatively simple amendment. It proposes to accomplish a central goal, and that is to provide a level playing field for Federal candidates who are confronted with sham negative issue ads. The candidates do not want to be associated with negative advertising. The candidates do not want to be associated with negative advertising.

The amendment states that if a broadcast station, whether it is a television station or radio station, permits any person or group to broadcast material opposing or attacking a legally qualified candidate for Federal office, that station, within a reasonable period of time, must provide, at no charge to the candidate, an equal opportunity to respond to those attacks.

This requirement would apply in this same period that is discussed in the legislation pending before us in the so-called Snowe-Jeffords language: that is, 60 days prior to a general election, 30 days prior to a primary election. It is in those two periods of time that the requirements apply.

All of us who have run for Federal office know that we have been in the situation about which I am concerned. As a candidate, you are out on the hustings; you are conducting a campaign that you hope is addressing the issues voters care about; you are trying to give the people in your State, or the people in your congressional district, the information about where this country should go, what should be done in the State; and you turn on the television in your hotel room and see an ad attacking you for some issue on some basis that you probably did not anticipate. You ask yourself the questions. Who is paying for the ad? Who is this group? Who do they represent? Where did they get the information that they are using in this attack?

The process leaves the candidate, more often than not, unfairly accused of a position. It leaves voters increasingly cynical about the growing negative nature of our campaigns.

Unfortunately, this is the new world of campaigns in which we live. This is a world that we’ve been called Snowe-Jeffords language; that is, whether you are Democrat, whatever your party affiliation, regardless if you are a challenger or incumbent.

Through the loopholes in our current campaign finance laws, outside interest is not subject to the same rules that are found in the thousands of dollars worth of political ads in many of our States. Most of those are very negative and have minimal issue content. Most of those ads flood our airwaves right before the election when they will have the biggest impact on the minds of the voters.

As noted, congressional authority Norm Ornstein said these ads often dominate and drown our candidate communications, particularly in the last weeks of the campaign. While the ads are often effective in a raw and practical sense, they are incredibly corrosive; they are frequently unfair; they are sometimes very personal in the attacks they make; and they breed voter cynicism and voter apathy toward the electoral process.

We know all too well the gross aspects of the advertising, but now, thanks to a number of dedicated reform-minded groups and academicians, we have some real data to back up what we have all known as a matter of common sense for some time. The Brennan Center for Justice at NYU, New York University, and the University of Wisconsin at Madison have documented the frequency, the content, and the costs of television ads in the 2000 election cycle. They monitored political advertising in the Nation’s top 75 media markets, and researchers, through that monitoring, have documented the frequency, the content, and the costs of television ads in the 2000 election, which duplicates a similar study they conducted in 1998.

The findings are stunning. Let me give a brief summary of what they found. First, the independent groups alone spent, conservatively estimated, about $98 million on media buys for political TV commercials in the year 2000. That is roughly a sixfold increase from what they spent 2 years before. This is not an inflationary increase; this is a sixfold increase in spending by the independent groups.

Second, in the 2000 Presidential election, voters received the largest share of political advertising messages from independent groups and party committees, not from the candidates themselves or from the candidate’s committees.

Third, while all of the unregulated issue ads produced by the parties and independent groups are supposed to theoretically cover issue positions, since they do not contain these so-called magic words that there has been a lot of discussion about on the Senate floor in the last 2 weeks, the words ‘noted by the Supreme Court in the Buckley decision,’” the public does not discuss substantive issues. The ads sponsored by party committees are viewed as electioneering ads. Within 60 days of the election, 86 percent of the ads produced by independent groups are viewed by voters as electioneering.

The ads are not seen as issue ads.

Fourth, the chart from the Brennan Center dramatically makes the point I am trying to make; the sham issue ads that are run by these groups become increasingly negative in tone as election day approaches. Issue ads by independent groups are far more likely than issue ads or even party ads to attack candidates. Fully 72 percent of the issue group ads aired in Federal races last year directly attacked one of the candidates in the race in which they were run.

This chart is entitled “Growth of Negative Tone of Electioneering Issue Ads as Election Day Nears.” There are these lines on this chart. One is the red line which represents the sham issue ads. This is according to the Brennan Center study. The green line is the contrast ads. The blue line is the ads to promote a particular candidate, positive advertising, “vote for me, I’m your best candidate,” on Social Security, Medicare, or whatever issue.

Finally, the Brennan Center notes that issue ads that are targeted at candidates are decisively negative in tone and pursue the tactic of attacking a candidate’s character. These ads do not focus on substantive issues. That is, they do not focus on personal histories of the candidate.

The dramatic thing about the chart, which covers the period from January to the beginning of November of the year 2000, the negative ads are virtually nonexistent, very low level negative ads, until June; and then in the last couple of months of the campaign, the negative ads overwhelm the rest of the advertising. These are the negative ads that are running almost exclusively by the independent groups—not by the candidate. The candidates do not want to be associated with negative ads, so they stay out of this and let the independent groups run the very negative ads.

I believe this body I have referred to provides the hard data to back up what we have all known for some time. That is, that shaming ads are increasingsevenfold each election. They are casting a negative and personal tone to campaigns and are particularly effective and dominant in the last few weeks before election day. There is not a voter in any one of our States who would not validate these findings from their personal experience of watching television or listening to the radio. I heard this refrain from people in my State of New Mexico constantly during the last campaign cycle. They thought the airwaves were clogged with ads and that the majority of them were too negative. The complaint is constant by the public. It is attacked.

That brings me back to the amendment I am offering. Again, the amendment is straightforward. Let me make it very clear to people what the amendment does not do. First of all, the amendment does not in any way restrict the ability of any candidate to run any ad they want. It does not put on broadcasters, radio or television broadcasters any obligation with regard to those ads, except to run the ads, obviously. That obligation is already there. The amendment does not affect ads sponsored by the candidate or the candidate’s committee.

Second, the amendment does nothing to restrict either the candidate or a party or an independent group from running any and all ads they want that are positive or that are contrast ads. On the chart, the green lines are contrast ads and the blue line is for ads that promote the candidate. We are in no way talking about those in this amendment. There is no requirement on broadcasters to take any action with regard to those. They can take those ads sponsored by anybody they want without incurring any obligation.

In the case of an independent group or a party or an independent group from running any and all ads they want that are positive or that are contrast ads, the amendment does nothing to restrict the ability of any candidate to run any ad they want. It does not put on broadcasters, radio or television broadcasters any obligation with regard to those ads, except to run the ads, obviously. That obligation is already there. The amendment does not affect ads sponsored by the candidate or the candidate’s committee.

What the Senator from New Mexico makes a very valid point in his amendment. It does nothing, in my view, to contribute to the education, the awareness of the American people. We have seen an explosion of them over the past few years. I suspect this has probably been in the last 6 or 7 years, with the explosion of soft money that the McCain-Feingold legislation goes to the very finest. There is so much money that the McCain-Feingold legislation goes to the very finest. There is so much money that the McCain-Feingold legislation goes to the very finest. There is so much money that the McCain-Feingold legislation goes to the very finest. There is so much money that the McCain-Feingold legislation goes to the very is something we are getting further and further away from, by the way. The airwaves in this country belong to the American public. We have the privilege to utilize those air waves for the benefit of the American public. It is not a right; it is a privilege. It is a limited privilege, based on your sense of responsibility. That privilege or that license can be removed if you abuse it.

There are numerous examples, almost on a daily basis, where that happens. What the Senator from New Mexico, as I understand it, is suggesting is that if, in your discretion as a radio station or television station, you decide to tolerate this kind of political advertising, knowing full well how damaging it can be, then we have the right to say to that station you must extend to that candidate an opportunity to respond to that kind of garbage.

I think this has value. It will have the net effect of ending these issue-based ads that destroy people's reputations and destroy any sense of understanding that particular campaign may be about. To that extent, everyone is benefitted—not the candidate so much, in my view, but the voting public who may learn more about what people stand for, rather than what some issue group dislikes about a candidate.

I am attracted to this amendment. I think it contributes to McCain-Feingold. Obviously, there are questions that will be raised about constitutionality. My friend and colleague is a brilliant lawyer. He understands it well. He has crafted it about as tightly as you can to achieve the desired result. I think it is worthy of our support.

I look forward at the time this comes up for a vote to support it. I urge my colleagues to do so as well. We are all sick and tired of this.

I go back to the point I made earlier. We are seeing a declining level of participation too often in the political life of our country. How sad I think all of us are when we see that. There are a myriad of reasons for it, but one of the major reasons is this growing disgust people have over the low level of debate, the way campaigns are conducted. It is all done now on television and radio; most of it in negative ads, as this graph so graphically points out.

We wonder why only one out of every two eligible adult Americans participated in the national elections of this past fall. Fifty percent of adult eligible Americans stayed home. I know some may have done so for legitimate personal reasons. I suspect a significant majority of those who stayed home did so because they are fed up. They are fed up with the tone. They think it is out of control, and one of the strongest pieces of evidence of that is this: a deluge of negative ads that have swamped the airwaves of this country and have the net effect of depressing turnout of the vote and disgracing the American public.

I think the Senator from New Mexico has offered a very constructive suggestion with this amendment, and I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisles to be supportive of it.

I see my friend from Arizona is still speaking. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, in behalf of the Senator from Kentucky, I yield myself 10 minutes.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the amendment. I appreciate very much what the Senator from New Mexico is attempting to do. He has identified very eloquently an enormous problem that we have with these negative ads. Suppose we don't know who paid for and which are clearly not identified. With passage of McCain-Feingold, I think we will make some progress in that area.

I say that also as a person who supports the principle of free television time for candidates. I agree with the Senator from New Mexico that when a broadcast station obtains a license, they sign a piece of paper that says they will act in the public interest. I think that Americans believe free television time for candidates can be very helpful.

But this amendment raises many troublesome issues that I, frankly, can't quite fathom.

First of all, who would determine if an ad was indeed a negative ad? Is there going to be a censorship board? Is there going to be a group of Americans who say, OK, watch all of these ads and see which one is negative and which one is not? Is an ad that says: Call your Senator—ever seen so many times—and ask him or her to save Social Security a negative ad or a positive ad?

I don't know who makes this determination as to what is indeed a negative ad. Is it the argument of every candidate I have ever known that says wasn't a negative ad; I was trying to inform the people of my district or State about the fact that my challenger is a baby killer?

It is very difficult to define what a negative ad is. Suppose we have some organization that could determine that this is a negative ad. What if a broadcaster had already sold all their television time? Is it the last week of the campaign. It is certainly not unusual that a broadcaster has sold all of their television time in the last 2 or 3 weeks. Do they have to pull ads off the air and replace them with the ads that are mandated by this legislation? I am not sure how you do that either, especially in a Presidential election year. That is time already sold.

So the night before the election or 3 days before the election, I say: Wait a minute. My opponent is running attack ads. Now you have to run three times that many on my behalf or against them. However, they say: I am sorry. We have sold all of our time. What is your option then? Suppose they had some television time. What is fair ad placement? Runs of “Gilligan's Island” at 2 a.m. or is it the evening news? I don't know exactly. One station may have a higher rating than the other station. You are going to give me the local channel 365 versus the CBS, ABC, NBC, or FOX Network.

This is very difficult to work out. I am a little surprised that the Senator from Connecticut didn't look at some of these problems.

I want to repeat. I am for free television time for candidates. I detest the negative advertising. I think it is one of the worst things that has ever happened to our system. We have these unnamed, unknown groups calling themselves by some attractive name and buy millions of dollars of advertising, and they basically viciously attack their opponents.

What decides that?

Many years ago, I reminded the Senator from Connecticut they had a board in Hollywood that used to make decisions as to what was acceptable and not acceptable. They had problems. I don't know who is going to be doing that.

I want to work with the Senator from New Mexico. I think we have to do something about these negative ads. I tell you the best way is to dry up their money, and what you don’t dry up fully disclose.

I want to work with the Senator from New Mexico. I would like to sit down and see how we could work this out. But in its present form, I am just not sure how this amendment can possibly be workable.

Finally, I want to say that we just had a major vote, as we all know. We have amendments that are still outstanding.

I know Senator McConnell, the Senator from Kentucky, will be back fairly soon. I understand they have a minimal number of amendments. I still think we can get done in a relatively short period of time.

I hope all Senators who have amendments have decided what they will decide. We can start putting these amendments in order and so we can get time agreements, and perhaps not just time agreements but agree to amendments that are satisfactory to both sides so we can wind up all of this.

It is not that I am getting fatigued, but it is that we are sort of at a point now where we should bring this to a closure, and I hope we can do that.

Reluctantly, at the appropriate time I may be moving to table the Bingaman amendment. I yield the remainder of my time.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Wisconsin.
Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, on behalf of the Senator from Kentucky, I yield such time as the Senator from Wisconsin may consume.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Wisconsin is recognized.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Thank you, Mr. President.

Not only is this amendment well-intentioned, but it is offered by somebody who anyone in the Senate knows is not only one of the most decent but one of the best Members of this body.

Since I have been here, no one has been easier to work with and kinder to me than the Senator from New Mexico. I really appreciate the time which he had for me and Senator McCain. He has been a totally stalwart supporter of reform every year, and has been there on every floor vote in this debate. I thank him also for the amendment which we adopted that requires disclosure of Presidential inaugural funds. That is exactly the kind of thing we are trying to accomplish in this effort so the public can be fully informed of what is going on with all of these venues where large amounts of money can have a negative impact on some of our most sacred public traditions.

That was an important addition to the bill and will result in more information being available to the public of who is giving large sums of money to the inaugural events.

Reluctantly, I will oppose this amendment.

The bill addresses a number of problems with our system which the Senator from Connecticut correctly pointed out must be addressed. It is a problem that deserves more study. I don't think this particular approach is one that I would really want to accept. I am willing to look at it some more.

So I will be taking the same position as the Senator from Arizona, but with a willingness and desire to continue to work on this issue and this idea in the future.

Again, I thank the Senator from New Mexico for all of his support.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I was going to respond to some of the things the Senator said.

Let me also in response to my good friend from Arizona say that there are a number of amendments that Members have that have been coming over with great regularity over the last 2 weeks. I have been sitting here for 2 straight weeks. We have had very few quorum calls. I have been asking the indulgence of my colleagues to postpone their offering of amendments over the past 2 weeks while we considered some of these other amendments, such as the ones that we most recently rejected dealing with neutrality. But these are serious amendments.

Like any other issue, I suppose, depending upon whether it is your amendment or someone else's amendment, it becomes more serious or less serious.

But I know my colleagues from Michigan, from Florida, and Illinois, also my colleague from Minnesota, among others, have some amendments, some of which will probably be agreed to. My hope is that certainly will be the case. But others may require a little debate. I apologize to them because I don't want them to think this is going to be a rush deal. If they want to be heard, they are going to be heard. I bear some responsibility for having told them to wait while we considered some of these other amendments.

I promise you, I am not going to then ask you to somehow be on a fast track here when you want your amendment considered and debated adequately. My hope is you will be able to do it in less amounts of time than we have allocated for every amendment. You get 3 hours if you want it, unless you yield back time or the opponents do. We ought to try to move along if we can. I want you to know, I think your amendments are serious and they deserve to be heard, debated, and voted upon, if you so desire.

I apologize for having asked you to wait for a week and a half and want you to know that you will have adequate consideration for your time.

I turn to my colleague from New Mexico to respond to any of the unfair accusations that have been made about his stunning amendment.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I greatly appreciate the courtesy of all Members, particularly the Senator from Connecticut and his statement in support of this amendment.

There were several questions raised. Let me be clear so there is no confusion. This amendment would require any group or party committee or anybody else who is at least 15 days away from the election to run a television advertisement that is attacking them by a candidate or his campaign or words that when taken as a whole and with limited reference to external events, such as proximity to the election, can have no reasonable meaning other than to advocate the defeat of one or more clearly identified candidates, regardless of whether or not the communication expressly advocates a vote against the candidate in question.

It is not that candidates, no matter who they are, cannot regulate their own campaigns. It is not that we have not criminalized any number of activities that could be a form of campaign finance. It is that we have given a tight definition that it becomes more serious or less serious.

If they want to run ads that contrast my opponent's position with my position, that would be these ads that are reflected by the green line on the chart, it is entirely appropriate, no obligation on the part of broadcasters. This amendment only deals with advertisements which attack or oppose a legally qualified candidate.

The question has been raised by the Senator from Arizona, who will decide whether this is a negative ad, whether this is an ad that attacks or opposes a candidate for public office. My initial reaction is to refer to Justice Stewart's great comment when he was told that he could not define "pornography." He said: I may not be able to define it, but I know it when I see it. Government can regulate pornography because of that. The American people know a negative ad when they see it or hear it. The answer to who will decide initially, the person who will decide is the candidate who is being attacked or the candidate's campaign who is being attacked. They would discontinue an advertisement that is attacking them by a group as being run by a broadcasting station and they would probably go to that broadcasting station and say, this is an advertisement that falls within the definition of this statute and we would like our time to respond. That is how it would work.

We have been very specific about what kinds of ads they would be entitled to respond to, what kinds of ads they would need to respond to. The term "attacked" or "opposed" means, with respect to a clearly identified candidate, first, A, any expression of unmistakable and unambiguous opposition to the candidate. So that is pretty easy to determine. You can listen to an advertisement on radio. You can see an advertisement on television and determine whether it is, in fact, an unmistakable and unambiguous statement in opposition to the candidate. Or B, if it does not fall within that description, it would be any communication that contains a phrase such as "vote against," "defeat" or "reject" or campaign slogan or words that when taken as a whole and with limited reference to external events, such as proximity to the election, can have no reasonable meaning other than to advocate the defeat of one or more clearly identified candidates, regardless of whether or not the communication expressly advocates a vote against the candidate.

This would not be an advertisement that contains a phrase such as "vote against," "defeat" or "reject" or campaign slogan or words that when taken as a whole and with limited reference to external events, such as proximity to the election, can have no reasonable meaning other than to advocate the defeat of one or more clearly identified candidates, regardless of whether or not the communication expressly advocates a vote against the candidate.

I thank the Senator from New Mexico to respond to any of the unfair accusations that have been made about his stunning amendment. to make room for the candidate to respond during the time period between then and the election on a basis that would be viewed equal. Is that what is fair in ad placement? And we have used general language here that the candidate would be entitled to respond for the same amount of time during the same period of the day and week as was used by the person who is doing the attacking.

I am sure there are details of this that will be debated and discussed, if this becomes law, as there always is in every piece of legislation we pass. It is pretty clear what we are talking about. We are talking about a limited time period, 30 days before a primary, 60 days before a general election. We are talking about ads that involve attacking or opposing a candidate for Federal office on the air. We are providing a very precise definition of what “attack” or “oppose” means for purposes of this statute applying.

I believe this would be an enforceable provision. It would be an understandable direction. I think it would add greatly to the quality of the campaigns that we run in this country. It would be fair to the candidates in the sense that they would have the opportunity to respond. That is all we are saying.

In this country, we have had a fairness doctrine. I know that has become something of a dead letter, but there used to be an obligation on the part of broadcasters to provide equal time for people to respond when there were particularly controversial positions taken and attacks. This is not a fairness doctrine, but this is the same basic concept.

When a candidate has been qualified to run for Federal office, clearly that candidate is fair game for any attack or that the candidate’s opponent or opponents want to make. There is no obligation on any broadcaster who wants to take those ads by opponents of that candidate. But if the candidate is attacked or opposed by people who are not in the race, by organizations that are not part of the campaign, then that is where the candidate should, once again, be given a chance to respond.

I believe it is a good amendment. I hope very much we can get a favorable vote on it. I know my colleague from Nevada, Senator Reid, had indicated he might want to make some comments in reference to this amendment. I don’t know if he is prepared to do that at this point or if I should yield back my time. I will withhold at this point and yield the floor so my colleague from Nevada can speak on the issue.

Mr. REID. I say to the Senator from New Mexico, everything that I could have said I have said. Anything that I wanted to say, he has said, and has done it much better than I could have.

Based upon that, I think we should vote.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, on behalf of the Senator from Kentucky, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. President, I want to say to the Senator from New Mexico, I am in total sympathy of what the Senator’s intent is. Let’s go back into the language of his amendment:

(A) any expression of unmistakable and unambiguous opposition to the candidate.

Does that mean if I took out an ad and I say I am a better candidate than Mr. Smith and I am opposed to him, is that an attack ad? That is the first definition.

Any expression of unmistakable and unambiguous opposition to the candidate.

If I am running and I am a better candidate, we are not going to be able to run an ad that says I oppose Senator Smith or Senator Bingaman.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. MCCAIN. Yes.

Mr. BINGAMAN. I just point out to the Senator that this legislation would not apply at all to any candidate who wanted to run an ad such as the Senator has proposed.

Mr. MCCAIN. Suppose it is the Sierra Club that says we oppose Senator McCain. That is an attack ad? They can’t say that?

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, again, if the Senator will yield, they would certainly be able to run that ad. But if they say we oppose Senator McCain, then Senator McCain should have an opportunity to come on and say, “I believe people should still vote for me” in spite of the fact that the Sierra Club opposes them.

Mr. MCCAIN. So any organization in America that opposes me, no matter if it is in the mildest terms, and supports my opponent, therefore, I have the right to go get free television time. I don’t quite understand that, frankly, I think what you are doing, probably—the effect would be, one, that the broadcast stations probably would not sell time because of the requirement to respond, which is, by the way, what happened in the fairness doctrine. That is what happened in the fairness doctrine, which was a good idea, was that broadcast stations decided not to air any controversial opinion because somebody was going to say, “I have another opinion and I have to have free time.” That led to the demise of the fairness doctrine.

If someone runs an ad and says, “I oppose Senator McCain,” I don’t think that should necessarily trigger free television commercial time for me.

Let me just continue, if I might. The Senator said this is not unlike the ability of the State to control pornography. The reason the Court decided that we had a right, as far as child pornography was concerned, is that it was a compelling State interest. I don’t think you can make the same argument in respect to television time or attack ads.

Part B says:

Any communication that contains a phrase such as “vote against,” “defeat,” or “reject”...

Boy, we better get out the dictionary because there is a great deal of ambiguity of words. I have “concerns” about the candidacy of Senator Smith. Well, is that in opposition to? Words “such as,” I think, are hard. Again, I get back to my fundamental point. It says in the amendment:

(Such as proximity to an election) can have no reasonable meaning other than to advocate the defeat of one or more clearly identified candidates.

Who decides that? The Senator says you go to the station and get free time and, if not, you go to a judge. Now you are asking a judge to look at every commercial, or you are asking the broadcast station to look at every commercial and make some decision as to whether it is an attack ad or not. I will tell you if I were on the station, I would say never mind; why should I take a risk when I am not sure this ad is an attack ad or not.

This is the problem we had when we have gone over and over and over this issue. How do you stop these attack ads without infringing on freedom of speech and not being so vague that it is very difficult to stand constitutional muster? The difference between Snowe-Jeffords and this amendment is that Snowe-Jeffords draws a very bright line and it says:

Show the likeness or mention the name of a candidate.

That is a very bright line. This is a campaign slogan or words that, when taken as a whole and with limited reference to external events, such as “proximity to an election”—these words—I admit to the Senator from New Mexico, I am not a lawyer, but I have been involved so long and so engaged in these issues that words do have meaning, and this amendment is very vague.

I am sure we can make a judgment on a lot of ads we have seen and the same ads the Senator and I find disgusting and distasteful and should be rejected. But at the same time, I don’t know how we can say, OK, if this station doesn’t run my ads, I am going to go to a judge and have the judge make them run my ads. It just is something that would be very difficult.

I would love to work with the Senator from New Mexico. He has been a steadfast stalwart for campaign finance reform. I would love to work with him to try to achieve this goal. Frankly, after going around and around on this issue, identifying who paid for the ad, full disclosure and, frankly, not allowing corporations and unions to contribute to paying for these things in the last 60, 90 days, which is part of our legislation, is about how we weigh what we thought we could address the issue.

I thank the Senator from New Mexico. He is addressing an issue that has demeaned and degraded all of us because people don’t think very much of you when they see the kinds of attack ads that are broadcast on a routine basis.

As the Senator pointed out, they are dramatically on the increase. I will tell you what. You cut off the soft money, you are going to see a lot less of that. Prohibit unions and corporations, and you will see a lot less of that. If you demand full disclosure for those who pay for those ads, you are going to see a lot less of that because people who can remain anonymous are obviously much more likely to be a lot looser with the facts than those whose names and identity have to be fully disclosed to the people once a certain level of investment begins.

I thank the Senator and I regret having to oppose his amendment. I yield the floor.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Arizona for his comments. I understand the concerns he has raised. Let me make one thing very clear. Snowe-Jeffords is a prohibition against certain acts by certain groups. Now, that is a very different kettle of fish than what I am proposing.

My amendment does not in any way prohibit anyone from running ads. All my amendment says is that if an independent group wants to run an ad that attacks or opposes a candidate, then the candidate is entitled to an opportunity to respond. That is a very different thing than saying, during certain periods of time, groups cannot run ads. So I think the constitutional problem that people have raised with regard to Snowe-Jeffords is much less of a concern than the kind of amendment that I have proposed.

This amendment is designed to deal with a particular type of advertisement run by groups other than the candidate and the candidate’s committee during certain periods of time. I think we have clearly defined what we are talking about. There are many advertisements that would not fall within the definition of attacking or opposing a candidate. Certainly, there is nothing here that would in any way obligate broadcasters, when they take those kinds of ads. But when they are running ads that do attack or oppose a candidate, then they would be under an obligation to provide an opportunity to respond. I think that is eminently fair, constitutional, and consistent with the general obligation that I believe broadcast stations ought to have to present both sides of an issue during a campaign when a candidate has become qualified for a Federal office. For that reason, I urge my colleagues to support the amendment.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, unless the Senator from Arizona has more time, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, may I be recognized?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, again I thank the Senator from New Mexico. He has identified a very serious issue. I want to work with him on this issue. It is important because his graph dramatically illustrates the magnitude of the problem.

The Senator from New Mexico is trying to address one of the most serious issues that affects American politics today and makes us much diminished in the eyes of our constituents and the people around the country.

I really do applaud the Senator from New Mexico on this issue. At the appropriate time, I will move to table the amendment.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order of business be suspended for a Federal election.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, if I may, I wish to make a statement and engage in a colloquy with my colleague, Senator McCAIN.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I wish to make a statement and engage in a colloquy with my colleague, Senator McCAIN.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion to table the amendment of the Senator from New Mexico. Mr. BINGAMAN. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 72, nays 28, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 60 Leg.]

YEAS—72

Allard—Enzi—McConnell
Allen—Feinstein—Mukasey
Baucus—Feinstein—Murkowski
Bayh—Fitzgerald—Murray
Benett—Frist—Nelson (NE)
Bond—Graham—Nickles
Breaux—Gramm—Roberts
Brownback—Grassley—Rockefeller
Bunning—Gregg—Santorum
Burns—Hagel—Schumer
Campbell—Hatch—Sessions
Cantwell—Heims—Shelby
Carper—Hutchinson—Smith (RI)
Chafee—Hutchinson—Smith (OK)
Cleland—Inhofe—Snowe
Dodd—Jeffords—Specter
Collins—Kerry—Stevan
Craig—Kohl—Stevan
Crapo—Ky—Thomas
DeWine—Landrieu—Thompson
Domenici—Lincoln—Thurmond
Dorgan—Lott—Voinovich
Edwards—Lugar—Warner
Ensign—McCain—Wyden

NAYS—28

Akaka—Dayton—Lieberman
Biden—DeWine—McKaskle
Bingaman—Durbin—Nelson (FL)
Boxer—Harkin—Reid
Byrd—Inouye—Sarlo
Carper—Johnson—Sarbanes
Clinton—Kennedy—Sarbanes
Conrad—Kennedy—Torricelli
Corzine—Leahy—Wellsion
Daschle—Levin

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. DODD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, a number of Senators are inquiring about how we will proceed for the balance of the evening and when we can expect to complete this bill, how long we will go tonight and also, of course, will it be necessary for us to go over until tomorrow and beyond.

All along, the commitment and the understanding have been, I believe by all parties, that we would spend 2 legislative weeks on this issue and we would have a full debate and votes on amendments, and that we would bring it to a conclusion at about this time so we could be prepared to move on to other very critical national issues. I am not sure exactly how many amendments are still remaining.

I know Senator RINDE has been working to try to identify exactly what amendments remain and to move those by consent agreement or voice vote, where it was possible. I know Senator MCCONNELL has been doing the same thing. In our side, working with Senator Dodd.

I think we are ready to complete action on this legislation. We have no more than four amendments on our side, and I think we could be prepared to work through those very quickly. I am not sure exactly what remains on the Democratic side, but I believe that the opponents and proponents are ready to vote. We have been through this. We have not moved toward a filibuster or cloture on either side. Although, in talking to Senator MCCAIN a moment ago, he was saying that, if it were necessary, he hopes that I would file cloture on this bill. Can you believe those words came from his mouth? If I had to, of course, the cloture would ripen on Saturday. I don't think we should end this process that way.

We do need to keep going. I know some Senators have commitments tonight they would like to go to. Some Senators have commitments they would like not to have to go to. I have heard—more of the latter, yes.

So I would like to propose a unanimous consent request. I haven't precleared this with Senator DASCHLE. He looked over it. We talked about it. I am not exactly sure what his thinking is. I would be willing to consider other ideas if somebody has a good idea about how we can complete it. This is the fairest way.

I ask unanimous consent that all remaining amendments in order to S. 27 be limited to 30 minutes equally divided and all other provisions of the consent agreement of February 6, 2001, remain in order.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I inquire of the managers, how do we wish to proceed? I yield to Senator DASCHLE.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I have not had a chance yet to consult with our colleagues. We have 10 remaining amendments on this side. I know Senator SPECKER has been waiting patiently to offer his amendment.

Throughout the week, we have promised our colleagues that if they played by the rules and waited patiently for their opportunity to offer their amendments, we would accord them the same opportunity other Senators have had throughout the duration of this debate, as the majority leader indicated.

This has been a very good debate. No one has talked about the need to file cloture. I hope we will not have any reason to do that in the future. I believe that Senators ought to have an opportunity to have their amendments considered and have a vote. So until I have had the opportunity to consult more carefully with those colleagues who still have outstanding amendments, I have to object.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, then, let me say to colleagues, we will continue on into the night. We will be having votes. If necessary, to have those votes in a reasonable period of time, we will move to table them. But we will continue as long as it takes to get this bill done.

When we know more about what we could agree to, we will let you know. You should expect a vote within the next couple of hours.

Mr. GRAHAM. If the majority leader will yield.

Mr. LOTT. I yield.

Mr. GRAHAM. For those who do want to make commitments, would it be possible to have a window of a couple of hours with assurance that we will not vote on that window?

Mr. LOTT. I think the majority of those who had talked to me were hoping we would not have a window. I think we need to keep our nose to the grindstone and try to complete this legislation. I am not saying it won't happen. I don't think we should make a commitment of a window. My wife will be waiting for me to come home and have supper. When we complete our work, I will go home and have supper with her. She may be hungry, but she waits.

Mr. GRAHAM. That commitment is important above all.

Mr. LEAHY. If the leader will yield, will it be safe to say that in the next hour or so those who show up on the floor with a tuxedo or evening dress are those who want to fulfill their commitments, and those who are not would like to keep voting?

Mr. LOTT. Those who show up with a tuxedo, that will count as having fulfilled your commitment to the dinner because it would show intent to be there, but a higher calling prevented your presence. You might want to don your evening attire and come to the floor and wait for an opportunity to vote.

Mr. LEAHY. I will change within the hour.

Mr. LOTT. I yield the floor.

Amendment No. 140, as Modified

Mr. SPECTER. I send an amendment to the file.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the modification? Without objection, the amendment is so modified.

The amendment, as modified, is as follows:

On page 7, line 24, strike “and”, and insert the following:

“or

“(iv) alternatively, if (iii) is held to be constitutionally insufficient by itself to support the amendment, the following:

On page 8, line 1, by striking “(iv)” and replacing with “(v)”.

March 29, 2001
March 29, 2001

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

5051

On page 15, line 19, strike “election, convention or caucus." and insert the following: “election, convention, or caucus; or alternatively, if subclauses (i) through (iii) of subsection (3)(A) are held to be constitutionally insufficient to support the regulation provided herein, which also (iv) promotes or supports a candidate for that office, or attacks or opposes a candidate for that office (regardless of whether the committee, convention, or caucus advocates for or against a candidate) and which also is suggestive of no plausible meaning other than an exhortation to vote for or against a specific candidate.”

(1) The addition or deletion was coordinated between the candidate committees and the relevant national party committees.

(2) The absence of the magic words from the Buckley decision has allowed advertisements and issue advertisements, despite their clear advocacy for or against the election of a specific candidate for Federal office.

(3) By avoiding the use of such terms as “vote for” and “vote against,” special interest groups promote their views and issue positions in reference to particular elected officials without triggering the disclosure and source restrictions of the Federal Election Campaign Act.

(4) In 1996, an estimated $35 million was spent on such issue advertisements; the estimate for 1998 ranged from $275–$340 million; and, for the 2000 election, the estimate for spending on such advertisements exceeded $340 million.

(5) If left unchecked, the explosive growth in the number and frequency of advertisements paid for with soft money is a serious, and suggestive of no plausible meaning other than an exhortation to vote for or against a candidate. The reason I am able to abbreviate the argument this evening, or the contentions this evening, is that the Senate had about 2 hours of debate last Thursday.

The critical language in the bill is the reference to a clearly identified candidate for Federal office. Now this may or may not be a sufficiently bright line to satisfy the requirements of Buckley v. Valeo, or in fact it may not because it does not deal with the kind of specific urging of a candidate to “vote for” or “support,” which Buckley has talked about.

The findings which have been set forth in the modified amendment seek to provide a bright-line test for the determination of intent. The test seeks to set forth findings to provide a factual basis to uphold the constitutionality of the Act, and the second objective is to insert a definition so that the bill will survive constitutional challenge under the Buckley v. Valeo decision, which has language that required specifically saying “vote for,” “vote against,” with ads being deemed to be issue advertisements where the obvious intent is to extol the virtues of one candidate and to comment extensively on the deficiencies of another candidate; and notwithstanding the clear purpose of those ads in the 1996 Presidential election and the Presidential election of 2000, those ads were deemed to be issue ads and, therefore, could be paid for with soft money.

The bill as presently written endeavors to provide a bright-line test in conjunction with the provision of identifying a specific candidate. The reason I am able to abbreviate the argument this evening, or the contentions this evening, is that the Senate had about 2 hours of debate last Thursday.

In Buckley, in a very lengthy opinion, the Supreme Court of the United States said that in order to avoid the constitutional challenge for vagueness, those specific words of support—“vote for” or “vote against”—had to be used in order to avoid the vagueness standard of the due process clause of the fifth amendment.

What this amendment seeks to do is to provide an alternative test, which is derived from the decision of the court of appeals for the Ninth Circuit in the Furgatch case, and this definition is really Furgatch streamlined. The original amendment that was offered provided that the context of the advertisement was “unmistakable, unambiguous, and suggestive of no plausible meaning other than an exhortation to vote for or against a specific candidate.”

In our debate last Thursday, there were arguments made that the language of “unmistakable” and “unambiguous” left latitude for a challenge.

In the amendment which has been modified, it is deemed to be sufficient to have the language be “suggestive of no plausible meaning other than an exhortation to vote for or against a specific candidate.”

This really sharpens up Furgatch, really streamlines Furgatch in order to provide a constitutional result.

The findings which have been set forth in the modified amendment seek to characterize events which have occurred in the intervening 25 years since the decision of Buckley v. Valeo, reciting how much money has been paid, the very heavy impact of funding, the ads really, in effect, urging the election of one candidate and the defeat of another so that, by any logical definition, they would be deemed advocacy ads and not issue ads, but they do not meet the magic words test of Buckley v. Valeo.

The expanded test of having “no plausible meaning other than an exhortation to vote for or against a specific candidate” would make it plain that the kinds of ads which have been viewed as being issue ads are really advocacy ads.

We had an extended debate last Thursday about the impact of this language on the balance of what is in the bill at the present time on a clearly identifiable candidate. This modified amendment has been very carefully crafted to meet the concerns that if the Supreme Court of the United States determines that the language in the underlying bill is sufficient, and the language added in this modified amendment is insufficient, that one or the other will be stricken so that there is a severability clause within this amendment as modified.

We have already legislated, we have already adopted an amendment to provide for severability. So it may be this is surplusage or it may be that it is necessary, but it does not do any harm to have this language.

I believe that most, if not all, of the objections which were raised last Thursday have been satisfied in this modified amendment. I urge my colleagues to adopt it.

I am not yet asking for the yeas and nays to see if the arguments which may be presented here are suggestive of some other modification which would require consent after asking for the yeas and nays, but it is my intention, as I have notified the managers, to seek a rollcall vote. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I wonder if I can be yielded 5 minutes, 2½ minutes from either side, because I am not sure if I am for or against it because I don’t have a copy of the final product. May I ask the Senator to yield me 2½ minutes from his side?

Mr. SPECTER. I do.

Mr. LEVIN. I yield myself 2½ minutes from our side. We are trying to determine which version of the amendment is pending. I ask the Senator from Pennsylvania, are the references in the findings to—we now have a modified amendment. Are there any references to the specific candidates in the 1996 Presidential campaign left in here?

Mr. President, I wonder if I can have the attention perhaps of all of my colleagues on this question. It may be a question in which we are all interested.

It relates to the findings. For instance, one of the findings here says that both the Clinton and Dole campaigns would have been subject to the limits, implying that, in fact, they had somehow or other violated the limits of the campaign despite the 6-0 vote of the Federal Election Commission which rejected the recommendation that either of the campaigns repay the money. I happen to agree with the Senator from Pennsylvania on the thrust of his amendment, by the way, because I have always liked the Furgatch test myself. I cannot speak for the floor manager on this side. I do not know where he is. But I do think these findings should be reviewed because I do not think we want to reach any conclusion that any of the expenditures of the Presidential campaigns violated that law in 1996.

The problem was the law was so full of loopholes and we need to close those loopholes.

Mr. McCAIN. Will the Senator from Michigan have a call for a quorum? No call for 5 minutes to see if we cannot sort this out. I thought we had an agreement, but perhaps we do not.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The remarks of Mrs. LINCOLN are located in today’s RECORD under “Morning Business.”

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ALLEN). The clerk will please call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded and that I be allowed to speak briefly as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The remarks of Mr. SMITH of Oregon are located in today’s RECORD under “Morning Business.”

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I thank the Clerk and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. I thank the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. SPECTER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan?

Amendment No. 140, as further modified.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I send to the desk a further modification of amendment No. 140.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the modification? Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment as further modified, is as follows:

On page 7, line 24, strike “and”, and insert the following:

“or” (iv) alternatively, if subclauses (i) through (iii) are held to be constitutionally insufficient by final judicial decision to support the regulation provided herein, which is also in the aggregate found to be suggestive of no plausible meaning other than an exhortation to vote for or against a specific candidate; and.

On page 8, line 1, by striking “(iv)” and renumbering clauses (v), (vi), (vii), (viii), and (ix) as (iv), (v), (vi), (vii), and (viii) respectively.

The additional sentence has been added: “Further, nothing in this subsection shall be construed to affect the interpretation or application of 11 CFR 100.22(b),” which is the current FEC regulation on an electioneering communication which follows Furgatch.
Then the further modified amendment strikes the findings, and they will be supplemented at a later time because all the modifications are also necessary. I do believe all the parties as to the findings would take longer than we can accomplish it simply by full striking, which this further modification does.

I believe at this juncture that we have satisfied all the concerns of the varieties of cooks who have been added to the stew.

I yield the floor.

Mr. GRAMM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time to the Senator from Texas?

Mr. GRAMM. I ask the Senator from Kentucky to yield me 20 minutes.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I yield 20 minutes to the Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, we are in the process of rapidly completing this bill. I would not have come over to speak, except that it was clear to me that, for the moment, nothing was happening. I have not yet spoken on it. And while I think it is clear what the outcome will be, I at least want to go on record on this issue.

Free speech in America is a very funny thing. If a person goes out and burns the American flag and they say they are exercising free speech or they dance naked in a nightclub and say that was personal expression, a league of defenders springs up in America to defend the first amendment of the Constitution. Yet when someone proposes that we preserve free speech about the election of our Government and the election of the men and women who serve the greatest country in the history of the world, when such a motion is made, it dies from a lack of a second.

It is astounding to me that free speech has come to protect flag burning and nude dancing but yet the greatest deliberative body in the history of the world feels perfectly comfortable in denying the ability of free men and women to put up their time and their talent and their money to support the candidates of their choice.

I can’t help but say a little something about the protagonists in this debate. I would like to begin by saying of my dear friend Senator MCCAIN, with whom I profoundly differ on this issue, I have the highest respect for him. In fact, he has reminded me in this debate of an ancient god, Antaeus, whose mother was the earth, and every time he was thrown to the ground, he became stronger than he had been when he was cast down.

Having said that, having admired his diligence and his determination, I would say that seldom has a more noble effort been made on behalf of a poorer cause in the history of the U.S. Senate.

I would like to say of my colleague from Kentucky that he has again won our admiration and his respect. He has been vilified in every media outlet in the Nation. Yet his sin is to stand up and say that this bill does take it away from me.

You ask yourself: Why do people want to influence the Government? Why do people want to influence the Government of the United States of America? It seems to me there are really two reasons: One, they have strong feelings about something. They love their country. They have strong passions and they want to express them. And who would want to prevent them from expressing themselves? I say nobody should.

The second reason they want to influence the Government is that the Government spends $2 trillion a year, most of it on a noncompetitive basis. The Government sets the price of milk. The Government sets the price of automobiles. The Government has all the decision-making power. If we were serious about campaign reform, we would try to change the things that lead people to want to influence the Government for their advantage, and we would want to leave in place the things people could express their love and their passions. Yet there is no proposal here to end the Government setting the price of milk. There is no proposal here that would have competitive bidding on contracts. Instead, we single out one source of influence, and that source of influence is money. Our problem is not bad money corrupting good men, our problem is bad men corrupting good money.

When I listen to my colleagues talk about this corrupting influence, let me say they apparently have lived a different political life than I have lived. I have never in my 22 years in public office and in the 2 years prior to that, when I ran unsuccessfully for the Senate and lost, had anyone come up to me and said that I was not going to get you to vote, I will contribute to your campaign. I am proud that 84,000 people contribute to my campaign, and I believe they contribute to me because they believe in the things I believe in. I am proud to have their support. I don’t apologize for it.

Remember this, and this is what is lost in this whole debate: This is an Alice in Wonderland debate where black is white and wrong is right. It is a debasement of the fundamental nature of the American political system. Government has power and people want to influence it. If we limit the power of people to spend their money, we strengthen the power of people who exert influence in other ways. We don’t reduce power. We don’t reduce what ever corruptive influence may exist among the people who want to influence government. We simply take power away from some people and, by the very nature of the system, we give it to someone else.

Why should the New York Times have more to say in my election than the New York Stock Exchange? Is the New York Times not a for-profit company? Why should they have the right to run editorials and write front-page articles that affect the outcome of my election? Is it not their mission to effect your election, and they are a for-profit corporation, publicly traded, and yet we say in this bill, they, but not others, have freedom of speech? They can say whatever they want to say. But yet the New York Stock Exchange is denied the same freedom. How can that be rational? How can that be just?

Who says that freedom of speech should belong only to people who own radio stations and television stations and newspapers? I reject it.

What makes this debate an Alice in Wonderland debate is that the people who support this bill are the very people who will benefit from taking the money out of the system by limiting the ability of people to put up their time and their talent and their money.

The very groups, the so-called public interest groups, the media, the very people who preach endlessly about this issue and about this bill being in the public interest, they are the very people who win an enhancement of their political power from this bill. What we are hearing identified as public interest is greedy, selfish, special interest. The amazing thing is that the voice of freedom and the right of people to be heard is not represented to any substantial degree on the floor of the Senate.

If I should believe, as a free person, that the Senator from Virginia is the new Thomas Jefferson and I believe the future of my children will be affected by his political success, don’t I have the right to sell my house, to sell my future and in the 2 years prior to that, have never in my 22 years in public office and in the 2 years prior to that, have anyone come up to me and said that I was not going to get you to vote, I will contribute to your campaign. I am proud that 84,000 people contribute to my campaign, and I believe they contribute to me because they believe in the things I believe in. I am proud to have their support. I don’t apologize for it.

Remember this, and this is what is lost in this whole debate: This is an Alice in Wonderland debate where black is white and wrong is right. It is a debasement of the fundamental nature of the American political system. Government has power and people want to influence it. If we limit the power of people to spend their money, we strengthen the power of people who exert influence in other ways. We don’t reduce power. We don’t reduce what ever corruptive influence may exist among the people who want to influence government. We simply take power away from some people and, by the very nature of the system, we give it to someone else.

Why should the New York Times have more to say in my election than the New York Stock Exchange? Is the New York Times not a for-profit company? Why should they have the right to run editorials and write front-page articles that affect the outcome of my election?
some people have freedom and not others? That is the profound issue that is being debated here.

I suspect this bill is going to pass, but this is not a bright hour in American history, in my opinion. The amazing thing—I never cease to be amazed by our system—is there is no constituency for this bill.

This is a total fabrication. The constituency for this bill is a group of special interests who cloak themselves as public interest advocates and it is they who will have their power enhanced by limiting the ability of people to put up their time, talent, and money in support of candidates. The so-called public interest promotion of the bill in editorials across America is coming from the very people who will become more powerful if this bill is adopted.

So what have is an incredible example, cloaked in great self-righteousness, of special interest triumphing over public interest through the power of the same groups that will have their power enhanced if this bill is adopted.

If that is America, if Common Cause, and all these similar groups, can induce the Congress to limit freedom of speech to enhance their power, what strength will those who oppose their views have when freedom of speech has been, in fact, limited? I think that is something that should give us all pause, though I have no doubt there will be no pause tonight.

It is as if we look at the Constitution and we say that what is at stake is either protection of the first amendment of the Constitution, or whether we are going to get a good editorial in tomorrow morning’s newspaper, and the judgement is made that tomorrow morning’s newspaper is much more important than the first amendment of the Constitution.

Let me conclude by quoting, because I never think it hurts to read from the greatest document in history, other than the Bible—the Constitution. Let me read amendment No. 1 of the Constitution, and I will read the relevant points:

Congress shall make no law abridging the freedom of speech.

If I believe the Senator from Virginia is the next Thomas Jefferson and I want to sell my house to support his candidacy, who has the right under the Constitution to deny me that right? No one has that right. Yet we are about to vote on the floor of the Senate to keep me from doing that.

The Constitution says that:

The right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances shall not be abridged.

If I am not permitted to spend my money to present my grievances to my Government, how am I going to be heard? In modern society, the ability to communicate depends on the ability to have funds to amplify your voice so it can be heard in a nation of 285 million people.

If I don’t have the right to use my time and my talent and my money to enhance my voice, how can I be heard? Well, what the advocates of this bill are really saying is we don’t want you to be heard because we might not like what you have to say.

We have a bill before us that says you can’t run ads. If I wanted to run ads supporting you, or give you money to spend, I can’t do it. We are all unhappy that these special interest groups run ads. It hurts my feelings. When people tell my mama that I am this terrible, bad person, that I have sold out to the special interests, my mama asks me, “Why can they say that?” How can they say it? You know why they can say it? Because they have the right. It is given by the very thing that I am going to strike down by this bill. It is not true, but it doesn’t have to be true.

It amazes me—and I will conclude on this remark—I hear colleagues talk about corruption, corruption, corruption. I tell you, I am looking at the people who cloak themselves as the Constitution to deny me that right? No one has that right. Yet we are about to come from this ancient document, our Constitution, because I believe this bill is going to be struck down by the courts, and that is ultimately going to be our salvation.

I want to say to my dear colleague from Kentucky that I admire him, and I want to thank him for the great sacrifice he has made to stand up on behalf of freedom, when very few people are offering compliments, and very few pundits are applauding. I am one person who is applauding, and I will never, ever forget what you have done. It may not be in an editorial, but it will be enshrined in my heart.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky is recognized.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I want to say to the Senator from Texas how much I appreciate what he had to say. There is no question that he gets it. It is all about the first amendment. It is all about the first amendment and the rights of Americans to have their say.

This bill, as the Senator from Texas pointed out, is simply trying to pick winners and losers. It takes the parties and it crushes them. And the irony of it all is there will be way more money spent in the next election than there was in the last one. It just won’t be spent by the parties.

So we have taken resources away from the parties, which will be spent otherwise because of all of these other efforts, as the Senator from Texas pointed out. And I assure him I will be in court. I will be the plaintiff, and we will win if we have to go to court. Efforts to restrict the voices of outside groups will be struck down.

So we hope will be able to save the ability of parties to engage in speech that isn’t federally regulated, which is what soft money is. It is everything that isn’t hard money. I thank the Senator from Texas for always being there for the kind things he said tonight about this struggle. It isn’t a lot of fun being the national pinata. But there are some rewards.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE 5055

March 29, 2001

I say to my friend from Texas my reward is that I really could not think of a group of enemies I would rather hate than the ones I have made in this debate. I can’t think of a single set of friends I would rather be associated with than people such as the Senator from Florida, who understand what freedom is all about and understand what this debate is all about. I say to my colleagues we will ultimately win this no matter how long it takes; we will win it. I thank him so much for being there when it counts.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator NELSON from Florida be allowed to proceed to offer his amendment, 5 minutes equally divided, and then there be a voice vote on that amendment, and that we lay aside the Specter amendment in order to permit that to happen; then we immediately vote on the Specter amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Florida is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 159

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is as follows:

The Senator from Florida [Mr. NELSON] proposes an amendment numbered 159.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To prohibit fraudulent solicitation of funds)

On page 37, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

SEC. 3. PROHIBITION ON FRAUDULENT SOLICITATION OF FUNDS.

Section 322 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 441h) is amended—

(1) by inserting “(a) In General.—” before “No person”;

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“(b) FRAUDULENT SOLICITATION OF FUNDS.—No person shall—

“(1) fraudulently misrepresent the person as speaking, writing, or otherwise acting for or on behalf of any candidate or political party or employee or agent thereof for the purpose of soliciting contributions or donations; or

“(2) willfully and knowingly participate in or conspire to participate in any plan, scheme, or design to violate paragraph (1).”).

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, the Federal Election Commission reports receiving a number of complaints that people have fraudulently raised donations by posing as political committees or candidates and that the current law does not allow the Commission to pursue such cases.

For example, one newspaper reported that after last November’s Presidential election, both Democrats and Republicans were targets of a scam in which phony fundraising letters began popping up in mailboxes in Washington, Connecticut, Michigan, and elsewhere. Those letters urged $1,000 contributions to seemingly prestigious Pennsylvania Avenue addresses on behalf of lawyers purportedly for both George W. Bush and Al Gore. About the same time, thousands of similar letters offering coffee mugs for contributions of between $1,000 and $5,000 were sent to Democratic donors from New York to San Francisco.

Clearly, one can see the potential for harm to citizens who are targeted in such fraudulent schemes. Unfortunately, the Federal Election Campaign Act does not grant specific authority to the Federal Election Commission to investigate this type of activity, nor does it specifically prohibit persons from fraudulently soliciting contributions.

The FEC has asked Congress to remedy this, and the amendment I offer today is in response to this request. This amendment makes it illegal to fraudulently misrepresent any candidate or political party or employee in soliciting contributions or donations.

I thank my Senate colleagues for their consideration of this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, this is a very important amendment. It is going to protect our citizens from fraudulent solicitation of their funds. It will give the Federal Election Commission the tools it needs to address these fraudulent acts which take advantage of our citizens. It implements an important recommendation of the Federal Election Commission. I hope our colleagues will all support this amendment.

I also congratulate the Senator from Florida. I believe this may be his first amendment. It is a very important amendment. He has made an important contribution to this Senate in many ways already. It is important for all of us to recognize the first amendment of the Senator from Florida that is being accepted, hopefully, tonight, and I congratulate him.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to amendment No. 159.

The amendment (No. 159) was agreed to.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I move to reconsider the vote and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

STATEMENT OF INTENT

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I concur with the statement of supporters of the Bipartisan Campaign Reform Act of 2001, with respect to the discussion of the intent of the Specter amendment.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I know Senators are interested in how we proceed for the remainder of tonight and tomorrow. I believe we have come up with the best possible arrangement of how we can complete action on this bill and be prepared to move on to other legislation.

Senator DASCHLE and I have talked about it and have talked to the managers and the proponents of the legislation. I think everybody is satisfied that this is a fair way to bring this to a conclusion.

I ask unanimous consent that all remaining amendments in order to S. 27 be limited to 30 minutes equally divided and that all provisions of the consent agreement of February 6, 2001, remain in order, except for this change:

I further ask unanimous consent that all remaining amendments must be offered either tonight or between 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. tomorrow and that any votes ordered with respect to those amendments occur in a stacked sequence beginning at 11 a.m. on Friday, with 2 minutes prior to each vote for explanation.

I further ask unanimous consent that following the stacked votes the bill be immediately read for the third time and passage occur at 5:30 p.m. on Monday, with intervening action or debate, and that paragraph 4 of rule XII be waived.

Also, it has been suggested that we include in this consent, if necessary, a technical amendment that is agreed to by both managers may be in order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I just covered this with the manager. I want to make sure Senator DASCHLE is aware. A technical amendment may not be necessary. But we want to make sure, if there is a need for a technical amendment, that there be a way to deal with that but that a technical amendment would have to be identified and agreed to tomorrow along with other amendments before we complete action.

The problem is, if we wait until Monday, there is a lot of opportunity for mischief to develop.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, it is suggested that perhaps having a weekend for the staff to go through whatever screening or final review may be helpful. Obviously, I think both managers would have to agree to any technical amendment. So there is that assurance. But this would give the weekend to the staff to assure that if there is any inadvertent mistake, it be caught prior to the time we vote on final passage on Monday.

I also note that it was suggested we may want to include in this unanimous consent agreement any second-degree amendments. I don’t think that will be necessary because I don’t anticipate second-degree amendments.

Mr. LOTT. Wouldn’t that be in order under the earlier agreement? I think that would be covered by the underlying unanimous consent agreement because other than what is specified here—

Mr. DASCHLE. As long as we make it clear it includes amendments in the second degree.

Mr. DODD. The Democratic leader said it well. Any technical amendments would have to be amendments agreed to by both managers. So that the idea of something coming up late—I make it plural because the staff will not encounter more than one. Any technical amendments would have to have the concurrence of both managers.

Mr. LOTT. I can understand how the managers might want to obviously have that opportunity. But also we want to have a chance to review it. I also see how maybe the Senator from Arizona would want to be included in reviewing that.

But, again, there is no intent on anybody’s part to try to snicker anybody. I think the way I worded it, where both managers have to agree to it, takes care of the problem. I can understand how the managers would prefer not being dragged around by our very capable staff for part 3 hours on Monday, arguing over a technical amendment. However, I think this does give us a way to correct legitimate problems.

I say to Senator MCCONNELL, do you want to comment on this?

Mr. MCCONNELL. Is the leader then confirming no technical amendments could be offered after tomorrow without the consent of both managers?

Mr. LOTT. Absolutely.

Mr. NICKLES. Will the leader yield further?

Mr. NICKLES. One of the remaining issues is—some people would call it technical, but I think it is major, and that deals with coordination. A lot of us recognize that the underlying bill needs some improvement on coordination or else we are going to have a lot of people who are going to be crooks who want to participate in the political process. And they should have the opportunity to participate. I have been trying to get language, and I have not seen it. But that is not insignificant and not technical; that is a major concern.

Mr. LOTT. I believe that would have to be one of the regular amendments, not a technical amendment.

Mr. DODD. Yes. That will be up tonight.

Mr. NICKLES. Will it be possible for us to see language tonight?

Mr. DODD. Probably not. No, we will get you some.

Mr. LOTT. Senator McCain.

Mr. McCAIN. I think both leaders for their cooperation on this. I am confident after tomorrow, if there are technical amendments, they will only be allowed if we are in agreement.

On the issue of coordination, we are ready to consider amendments and votes on that issue.

Mr. LOTT. I say to Senator WELLSTONE, did you get wet?

Mr. WELLSTONE. I mean that literally now, not figuratively. I saw you drenched.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Because of you, I tried to run all the way up to Connecticut Avenue, and I got wet on the way.

I want to ask the majority leader—I am sorry; Mike Epstein, who used to work with me, is no longer here or I would have asked him this—but on technical amendments, is the definition of that that there would not be an up-or-down vote automatically?

Mr. LOTT. After the vote tomorrow on the sequence of amendments, there would not be a vote on the technical amendment. It would have to be agreed to. So it would be handled in that way.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I think I would object to a technical amendment unless there is an understanding to this effect: If this affected the work of any one Senator, that we would be consulted before an agreement.

Mr. DODD. Yes, we would provide that.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Is that implicit?

Mr. LOTT. That is implicit. Also, it would certainly be the proper way to proceed.

Are we ready to get this consent?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. I thank all Senators. I urge those of you who have amendments, stay and do them tonight, because the 2 hours tomorrow will go very fast. And if you are ready, I hope you will be prepared to offer your amendment tonight.

I yield the floor.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, we have an amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 160

Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator KERRY, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Connecticut [Mr. DODD], for Mr. KERRY, proposes an amendment numbered 160.

Mr. DODD. I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

Purpose: To provide a study of the effects of State laws that provide public financing of elections.

On page 37, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

(a) CLEAN MONEY CLEAN ELECTIONS DEFINED.—In this section, the term "clean money clean elections" means funds received under State laws that provide in whole or in part for the public financing of election campaigns.

(b) STUDY.—
The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To amend the definition of Federal election activity to include State, district, or local committees of political parties)

Beginning on page 3, strike line 12 and all that follows through page 4, line 4, and insert the following:

"(b) STATE, DISTRICT, AND LOCAL COMMITTEES.—"(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), an amount that is expended or disbursed for Federal election activity by a State, district, or local committee of a political party (including an entity that is directly or indirectly established, financed, maintained, or controlled by a State, district, or local committee of a political party) that is not an agent, or by an entity directly or indirectly established, financed, maintained, or controlled by or acting on behalf of such committee or entity, or by an entity identified candidate for election to Federal office.

"(2) APPLICABILITY.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding clause (i) or (ii) of section 301(20)(A), and subject to subparagraph (B), paragraph (1) shall not apply to any amount expended or disbursed by a State, district, or local committee of a political party for an activity described in either such clause to the extent the costs of such activity are allocated under regulations prescribed by the Commission as costs that may be paid from funds not subject to the limitations, prohibitions, and reporting requirements of this Act.

"(B) CONDITIONS.—Subparagraph (A) shall only apply if—

"(i) the activity does not refer to a clearly identified candidate for Federal office; and

"(ii) the costs described in subparagraph (A) (other than amounts donated in accordance with State law) are paid directly or indirectly from amounts donated in accordance with State law, except that no person (and any person authorized to act on behalf of such person) may donate more than $10,000 to a State, district, or local committee of a political party for an activity described in either such clause to the extent the costs of such activity are allocated under regulations prescribed by the Commission as costs that may be paid from funds not subject to the limitations, prohibitions, and reporting requirements of this Act.

"(C) LIMITATIONS.—Subparagraph (B) shall not apply to the contributions of a Federal candidate, where there is a limit as to how much of those contributions they can use, and where the contributions are allowed by State law—that we want to allow, the proper Federal match, determined by the Federal Election Commission. State parties to use these non-Federal dollars in some of the most core activities in which State parties are involved.

"(D) TRANSMISSION.—The amendments made by this section shall be in addition to and not in substitution for any other Federal matching funds otherwise available to the political party for an activity described in either such clause to the extent the costs of such activity are allocated under regulations prescribed by the Commission as costs that may be paid from funds not subject to the limitations, prohibitions, and reporting requirements of this Act.

"(E) PROHIBITION.—No person shall make any contribution to a clearly identified candidate for election to Federal office.

"(F) REIMBURSEMENT.—Any person that makes any contribution to a clearly identified candidate for election to Federal office shall not receive any reimbursement for such contribution.

"(G) NO FEDERAL FUNDS.—Nothing in this Act shall restrict the use of non-Federal dollars by State parties for voter registration and get out the vote.

I think it is perfectly appropriate that the bill set limits. The bill has also put some restrictions which are excessive and on the non-Federal dollars by State parties for voter registration and get out the vote.

I think in our efforts over the last couple weeks we have really done the right thing in establishing the limits that we have. We have focused on trying to restore something which was always intended, which is contribution limits, but we have also, in our review, done some fine tuning. We have done some adjustments.

This amendment provides some fine tuning in an area where State parties are using non-Federal dollars, dollars allowed by State law, for some of the most core activities that State parties are involved in; that is, voter registration and get out the vote.

Now the bill does not restrict State parties when it comes to using non-Federal dollars for things such as salaries and rent and utilities, nor should it. But it does prohibit altogether—unless this amendment is adopted—a use by State parties of non-Federal dollars. These are dollars not raised through any effort on the part of Federal officeholders, Federal candidates, or national parties. These are non-Federal dollars allowed by State law.

The bill, as it is currently written, would prohibit the use of any of those dollars for those core activities of State parties that we all know and calls by get out the vote, registration activities, and voter identification.

In this regard, I believe and our co-sponsors believe that the bill has gone too far, that we ought to allow State parties using non-Federal dollars, under very clear limits, where there is a clearly identifiable candidate, where there is a limit as to how much of those contributions they can use, and where the contributions are allowed by State law—that we want to allow, with the proper Federal match, determined by the Federal Election Commission. State parties to use these non-Federal dollars in some of the most core activities in which State parties are involved.

There is nothing much more basic to State parties than identifying voters who agree with their causes and to try to get those voters to the polls.

That is about as core an effort as you can get. Yet unless we make this modification in the bill, we would tell State parties they can’t use the non-Federal dollars in any year where there is a Federal election, which is every other year, for those core activities.

This amendment, I believe, now has the support of the managers of the bill. They will speak for themselves, of course. But we have worked very hard to make sure there are still some limits. We are not eliminating the limits on this spending, nor should we, because if it is unlimited, we then have a hugel hole again where State parties would become the funnel for the Federal campaign money to be poured into. So we keep reasonable restrictions, but what we do is, we pull back from the total elimination of the use of these non-Federal dollars by State parties for their fundamental basic activity.

Mr. DORGAN. Will the Senator from Michigan yield for a question?

Mr. LEVIN. I am happy to yield.

Mr. DORGAN. I am pleased to support this with Senator LEVIN, Senator CLINTON, and others. I ask the Senator from Michigan, isn’t it the case that, as currently written, a Governor and a mayor could not use non-Federal money to conduct their own activities for get out the vote, for example, in an election in which he could have contributed, perhaps candidate, and would that not be the case?

Mr. LEVIN. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DORGAN. Secondly, there are roughly 100 democracies in the world. I wonder if the Senator knows—I didn’t know until a few minutes ago—where we rank in the democracies around the world in voter participation. Before asking whether he knows the right answer, I will say we rank 138th among the democracies in the world in voter participation. It seems to me we ought to encourage in every conceivable way activities that get out the vote, that encourage voter participation. Is it not the case, that is exactly what this amendment does?

Mr. LEVIN. This amendment is aimed at restoring the appropriate use by parties of non-Federal funds which are obtained by those parties in compliance with their own State laws in those very activities which the Senator has identified. These are the fundamental activities in a democracy. We want State parties to be involved in those activities, as the Senator pointed out. We don’t want that to become the loophole, however, for unlimited Federal dollars. That is why this amendment is crafted the way it is.

Mr. DORGAN. Finally, if the Senator from Michigan will yield one additional time, let me say the proposal of the Senator from Michigan is a modest one. We should have done more. This represents a compromise, a modest compromise, however. It does the right thing. We don’t want to pass campaign finance reform and then produce impediments to those very activities that would encourage voter participation. That would be a step in the wrong direction.

I, again, say how pleased I am at the effort tonight and the sponsorship by Senator LEVIN. I am very proud to be a cosponsor. I am pleased this is going to be accepted.

Mr. LEVIN. I thank Senator DORGAN for his cosponsorship, all of our cosponsors. I acknowledge the principal co-sponsorship of the Senator from Nevada. I wasn’t going to yield the floor to him, but I was going to acknowledge his strong support. I am happy to yield to the Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Let me say to Senator LEVIN and Senator ENSIGN and others, I want to be considered a cosponsor as well. Mr. President, I appreciate the efforts of Senator LEVIN and Senator ENSIGN to work this out. This is an important provision that is going to make a difference. It is done in a very thoughtful way, a very responsible way. I think it adds again to the value of this piece of legislation. I thank our colleagues for their efforts.

Mr. LEVIN. Before I yield the floor, I want to add as a cosponsor Senator HARRY REID and to thank him for the work. What this bill does, as is so often true with Senator REID, making things happen in the Senate which otherwise simply would not happen, but doing it in a very self-effacing way, a very critically important way. I thank him as well as the unanimous consent that he be added as a cosponsor, and Senator CORZINE as well.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. ENSIGN. Mr. President, I first thank the Senator from Michigan for the work we have done together. He started this work and I joined him in it some time ago. We had a few differences on the amendment, but we were able to work those out. I thank the managers of the bill for also working with us to make sure we would be able to include this amendment in the bill. It is a very important amendment. It is, of course, the role of the parties out there in America are increasingly turned off from elections because of negative ads. A lot of those negative ads have been funded by some of the independent expenditures as well as some of the soft money that has been run through the parties.

What I don’t think, intended to do, however, was to limit the activities of actually getting people to the polls, of first signing people up to register to vote and then encouraging them to go to the polls.

When I was running against Senator HARRY REID back in 1998, the labor unions put about 300 people on the ground to get out the vote for Senator REID. It was perfectly within their right to do that. This bill would have limited, though, State parties from doing similar activities. We want to encourage more people to go to the polls, not discourage people from going to the polls. Let’s face it, if more people are not interested in our government, if they are not participating in this form of government we call a Representative Democracy, we will be doomed. We have to encourage people to go to the polls, and part of that is through the State parties.

This amendment is going to allow State parties to be funded to the point where they will have the resources to be able to get people to the polls on election day because they will be allowed to spend money for voter ID, for voter registration, and then for what is called get-out-the-vote efforts, things that are very important for increasing the number of people who get to the polls.

I thank the Senator from Michigan for working together on this amendment. It is a very important amendment. I thank Senator McConnell for allowing us to bring this amendment up.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I think it is a good amendment. We should move to final passage, unless there are others who want to speak on it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mrs. CLINTON. Mr. President, I add my words of support and thank Senator LEVIN and the other cosponsors who have worked hard on this matter.

I wish to reiterate the point that, while we are working so hard to reform our campaign finance system, we cannot undermine our ability to reform the way elections are conducted. For all of the reasons Senator LEVIN and Senator ENSIGN and others have pointed out, registering voters, getting voters to the polls is a critical role of parties. From my perspective, we need to be doing even more to try to promote what parties used to do, which was that kind of grassroots outreach activity.

In reforming the way campaigns are financed, we must not hurt out ability to reform the way elections are conducted. This amendment would ensure that State, district or local committees of a political party would be able to continue to provide vital services to our citizens during Federal elections, from voter registration activities to assisting individuals in getting out to vote on Election Day.

The 2000 election taught us many things. One of the most important was the significance of having an informed electorate. Too many citizens in the last election were provided with too little information about where and how to vote. Too many citizens experienced unwarranted obstacles to registration and voting. As a result, fewer votes were counted, and in the next election fewer people may turn out to vote.

The solution to these problems cannot be in the province of Government alone. America’s political parties must play an important role in helping people register to vote, helping them learn more about the voting process, and helping them turn out at the polls on election day. It is vital to the health of our democratic process. Leading up to an election, both parties provide voters with information on how and where to register to vote. On Election Day, both parties use their resources to drive elderly voters to the polls, provide answers to questions about where and how to vote, and give voters information about where the candidates stand on issues.

In the State of New York over the past 2 years, the State Democratic Party has conducted an intensive voter education drive in predominantly African-American and Latino communities, often our most disenfranchised citizens. This education drive resulted in a surge in voter registration and voter activity in both of these communities throughout the state. Republican parties around the country are also active in voter registration and get out the vote efforts. This type of activity should continue to be supported by our State parties for all elections so that all of our citizens fully participate in our democracy.

Some will claim that this amendment will bring soft money back into federal campaigns. Let me be very clear, this amendment does not bring soft money back into campaigns. Rather, it allows State and local parties to use money that is regulated by States and is capped at $10,000 for single contributions in order to support vital election services. That represents an improvement over the status quo, because under current law there is no national cap on such contributions at the local and State level.

I ask my colleagues to rise in support of an amendment that will ensure that our political parties can continue to use State regulated funds to provide voter education, registration and get out the vote services that we know work. Because helping voters register to vote, helping them to learn how and where to vote, and helping them get out to vote are American values we should encourage, not inhibit.

It is an amendment relating to dis-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Do the Senators yield back their time?

Mr. DODD. We will yield.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to amendment No. 161.

The amendment (No. 161) was agreed to.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. DODD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

AMENDMENT NO. 162

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of myself and Senator COCHRAN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Illinois [Mr. DURBIN], for himself and Mr. COCHRAN, proposes an amendment numbered 162.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment he dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To establish clarity standards for identification of sponsors in certain election-related advertising)

On page 37, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

SEC. 4. CLARITY STANDARDS FOR IDENTIFICATION OF SPONSORS OF ELECTION-RELATED ADVERTISING.

Section 318 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 414d) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) in the matter preceding paragraph (1)—

(i) by striking ‘Whenever’ and inserting ‘Whenever a political committee makes a disbursement for the purpose of financing any communication through any broadcast station, newspaper, magazine, outdoor advertising facility, mailing, or any other type of general public political advertising, or whenever’;

(ii) by striking ‘an expenditure’ and inserting ‘a disbursement’; and

(iii) by striking ‘direct’ and inserting ‘makes a disbursement for an electioneering communication (as defined in section 304(a)(3))’ after ‘public political advertising’;

(B) in paragraph (3), by inserting ‘and permanent street address, telephone number, or World Wide Web address’ after ‘name’; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

(c) Specification.—Any printed communication described in subsection (a) shall—

‘(1) be of sufficient type size to be clearly readable by the recipient of the communication;

‘(2) be contained in a printed box set apart from the other contents of the communication; and

‘(3) be printed with a reasonable degree of color contrast between the background and the printed statement.

‘(d) ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS.—

(A) CANDIDATE.—Any communication described in paragraphs (1) or (2) of subsection (a) which is transmitted through radio or television shall include, in addition to the requirements of that paragraph, an audio statement by the candidate that identifies the candidate and states that the candidate has approved the communication.

‘(B) OTHER PERSONS.—Any communication described in paragraph (3) of subsection (a) which is transmitted through radio or television shall include, in addition to the requirements of that paragraph, in a clearly spoken manner, the following statement: XXXXXXX is responsible for the content of this communication.

‘(C) WEB ADDRESS.—Whenever a political committee makes a disbursement for an electioneering communication described in paragraph (1)(A) is transmitted through radio or television under subsection (c), the statement shall include, in addition to the audio statement under paragraph (1), a written statement that—

‘(1) appears at the end of the communication in a clearly readable manner with a reasonable degree of color contrast between the background and the printed statement, for a period of at least 4 seconds.

‘(2) TELEVISION.—If a communication described in paragraph (1)(A) is transmitted through television, the communication shall—

‘(A) appear on a video image of the candidate; and

‘(B) is accompanied by a clearly identifiable photographic or similar image of the candidate.’

SEC. 5. SEVERABILITY.

If this amendment or the application of this amendment to any person or circumstance, is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this Act and amendments made by this Act, and the application of the provisions and amendments to any person or circumstance, shall not be affected by the holding.

Mr. DURBIN. I have given a copy of the amendment to Senator MCCONNELL and I will make copies available to any other Members who would like to read it. The amendment is very straightforward. If I can have just a moment or two, I will describe it for those who are interested.

It is an amendment relating to dis-

I can give a very inspired speech as to why this is necessary. But I think the concept is very basic. It is that we do not want to restrict freedom of expression, nor in fact do we restrict freedom of deception. If somebody wants to put an ad on that is categorically wrong, whether it is a candidate, a party, or any other group, I guess there is an American right to that. But we do, I hope, insist on accountability. At least identify who you are. If you are going to be part of our political process, tell us who you are. That is exactly all this does in terms of disclaimer. Whether it is a candidate, whether an ad authorized by a candidate, or so-called electioneering communication, that is what will happen. It applies to printed communications as well.

For those keeping track, this was part of McCain-Feingold in both the 105th and 106th Congress—a large portion of it was. It is something that many of us believe, and it was adopted by the House, would complement the work we have done thus far in the debate.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I commend our colleagues from Illinois. This is a very worthwhile amendment. We can all relate to this. We have seen these ads come on and you have to freeze frame it and get a magnifying glass to even read the source, where they are coming from. Usually, it is a name that has no identification other than something that sounds very good and hardly revealing as to who is responsible for it, let alone any address or telephone number that would allow the kind of disclosure that ought to be associated with this kind of advertising.

This is a very commonsensical. I think everybody ought to appreciate the effort. I commend my colleague for offering it. I am happy to be a cosponsor of it and urge its adoption.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, the amendment of the Senator from Illinois is a clear violation of the Supreme Court decision of McIntyre v. Ohio Elections Commission, handed down in 1995, in which the Supreme Court made it abundantly clear that you cannot require disclaimers on issue ads.

Having said that, I think everybody knows that the Senator from Kentucky would like to hang as many barnacles as possible on the hull of this bill, and I look forward to having one more argument to make before the courts. Therefore, I have no objection to this being adopted on a voice vote.

Mr. DODD. Who said politics makes strange bedfellows?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Do all Senators agree?

Mr. DODD. I yield back my time.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I yield back my time.

Mr. DODD. I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 162) was agreed to.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. DODD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.
Governmental Affairs Committee identified at least $2,825,000 in illegal contributions, donations or expenditures to the DNC. Yet, regardless of the offense level, if the law is broken, all the violations under FECA were still misdemeanors. Our amendment would remedy this problem for the future by authorizing felony prosecutions of FECA violations, but only if (1) the offender had need to the disguising federal offense “knowingly and willfully” and (2) the offense involved more than $25,000.

Second, criminal violations of FECA are the only federal crimes outside of the Internal Revenue Code that have a statute of limitations shorter than 5 years. Our amendment conforms FECA’s statute of limitations to those of virtually all other federal crimes. Third, the Federal Sentencing Guidelines, which govern which should enhance the punishment for FECA violations such as the size of a contribution or its origin. Our amendment would require the Sentencing Commission to promulgate a guideline specifically directed at campaign finance violations. As a result, judges must use guidelines for other offenses, preventing them from considering the severity of the offense. Our amendment would also allow the defendants to argue that they should not be punished.

The guidelines assign what’s called a “base offense level” for each crime, and then they give a number of factors that, if present, tell the judge either to increase or decrease the offense level. The higher the offense level, the higher the sentence.

Because the Guidelines don’t have a provision on campaign finance violations, judges have to use the next closest offense, and they often end up using the fraud guideline. But that’s because when it comes to sentencing, judges have to turn to the Federal Sentencing Guidelines, which still often bring light sentences because there is no guideline on campaign finance violations.

The guidelines assign what’s called a “base offense level” for each crime, and then they give a number of factors that, if present, tell the judge either to increase or decrease the offense level. The higher the offense level, the higher the sentence.

Because the Guidelines don’t have a provision on campaign finance violations, judges have to use the next closest offense, and they often end up using the fraud guideline. But that guideline doesn’t take into account the factors that make campaign finance violations so harmful, and the factors that are there often aren’t particularly relevant to campaign finance violations. For example, there is nothing in the guideline that makes judges distinguish between a campaign finance violation involving $2,000 and one involving $2,000,000. So, when judges calculate the offense level of a defendant who funneled millions of foreign dollars into a US campaign, they don’t end up with a high offense level, meaning that the defendant doesn’t get a lengthy sentence. The prosecutors know this and the defendants know this, and that must be one of the reasons why prosecutors accepted plea bargains from John Huang and Charlie Trie—because they knew they wouldn’t do much better even if they won convictions at trial.

Our amendment would solve these problems, by putting a felony provision into FECA and by directing the Senate to promulgate a campaign finance guideline. If those two things happen, we will have greater confidence that those who violate the law will be appropriately punished. Unfortunately, Mr. President, many of them were prosecuted, but I have grave doubts about whether they were appropriately punished. I know that there are many who blame the Justice Department for this, but when I first looked into it a couple of years ago, I was frankly surprised by what I learned—and that is that prosecutors just don’t have the tools they need to effectively investigate, prosecute and punish people who egregiously violate our campaign finance laws. I think Charles LaBella, the former head of the Justice Department’s Campaign Finance Task Force, put it best in a memo to the Sentencing Commission’s campaign finance investigation. According to press reports, LaBella wrote that “The fact is that the so-called enforcement system is nothing more than a bad joke.” Unfortunately, it’s a bad joke that has real consequences for the integrity of our campaigns and our democracy.

Let me give you one example. Many people are understandably upset that Charlie Trie and John Huang didn’t go to jail for what they did in ’96. But the Federal Election Campaign Act, or FECA, doesn’t authorize felony prosecutions. No matter how egregiously someone violates FECA, all they can be charged with is a misdemeanor. And people rarely go to jail for misdemeanors. To get around FECA’s limits, prosecutors often charge campaign finance abusers with other federal crimes that are felonies, which is what they did with Trie and Huang. But that still doesn’t punish Trie and Huang sufficiently. The reason is that when it comes time for sentencing, judges have to turn to the Federal Sentencing Guidelines, which still often bring light sentences because there is no guideline on campaign finance violations.

Our amendment contains one other provision—one extending FECA’s statute of limitations. As of now, FECA has the only statute of limitations outside the Internal Revenue Code of less than five years. We need to change that so that prosecutors are denied the time they need to investigate and prosecute violations.

Mr. President, this amendment is about something that we all should be able to agree upon, which is that actions that are already criminal and that we all agree are wrong should be punished. Now that our amendment’s provisions should be controversial, and I hope that we can see them enacted into law, so that we can go into the next election cycle with confidence that prosecutors have the tools necessary to see that violations are punished. I thank my colleagues, and I yield the floor.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I understand this amendment has been cleared with the Office of Legal Counsel and this amendment enhances the criminal enforcement provisions of the FECA legislation by authorizing felony prosecutions of willful and knowing violations of that law.
over $25,000, directs the Sentencing Commission to promulgate guidelines on campaign finance violations, and extends the FECA statute of limitations for criminal violations from 3 to 5 years.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I am sure this must be a wonderful idea if it was offered by Senator Lieberman and Senator Thompson. Therefore, I am happy for the amendment to be adopted.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 163) was agreed to.

Mr. DODD. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. McCONNELL. I move to lay that on the table.

The motion to table was agreed to.

Mr. DODD. While we are waiting for Senator Hatch, Senator Reed from Rhode Island has an amendment he would like to have considered.

AMENDMENT NO. 164

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk reads as follows:

The Senator from Rhode Island (Mr. Reed) proposes an amendment numbered 164.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment reads as follows:

(Purpose: To make amendments regarding the enforcement authority and procedures of the Federal Election Commission)

On page 37, between line 14 and 15, insert the following:

SEC. ___ AUDITS.

(a) Election Audits.—Section 311(b) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 438(b)) is amended—

(1) by inserting “(1)” before “The Commission”;

and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“(2) RANDOM AUDITS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—If, at any time in a proceeding described in paragraph (1), (2), (3), or (4), the Commission believes that—

“(i) there is substantial likelihood that a violation of this Act is occurring or is about to occur;

“(ii) if the Commission determines that the violation is occurring or is about to occur;

“(iii) the public interest would be best served by the issuance of an injunction; the Commission may initiate a civil action for a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction pending the outcome of the proceeding described in paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4).

“(B) VENUE.—An action under subparagraph (A) shall be brought in the United States district court for the district in which the defendant resides, transacts business, or may be found, or in which the violation is occurring, has occurred, or is about to occur;

“(C) APPLICABILITY.—This paragraph does not apply to an advocate or an organization organized or maintained pursuant to section 527 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986; or

“(D) INCREASE IN PENALTY FOR KNOWING AND WILLFUL VIOLATIONS.

Section 309(a)(5)(B) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437g(a)(5)(B)) is amended by striking “the greater of $10,000 or an amount equal to 200 percent” and inserting “the greater of $15,000 or an amount equal to 300 percent”.

SEC. ___ USE OF CANDIDATES’ NAMES.

Section 314 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437k) is amended by striking “6 months” and inserting “12 months”.

SEC. ___ EXPEDITED PROCEDURES.

Section 309(a) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437g(a)) is amended by striking “(a)” and inserting “(a)(1)”. The following is added—

“(b) EXPEDITED PROCEEDINGS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—If, at any time in a proceeding described in paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) as necessary to ensure that the matter is resolved in sufficient time before the election to avoid harm or prejudice to the interests of the parties; or

“(ii) if the Commission determines that there is insufficient time to conduct proceedings before the election to avoid harm or prejudice to the interests of the parties; or

“(iii) the public interest would be best served by the issuance of an injunction; the Commission may initiate a civil action for a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction pending the outcome of the proceeding described in paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4).

“(B) VENUE.—An action under subparagraph (A) shall be brought in the United States district court for the district in which the defendant resides, transacts business, or may be found, or in which the violation is occurring, has occurred, or is about to occur;

“(C) APPLICABILITY.—This paragraph does not apply to an advocate or an organization organized or maintained pursuant to section 527 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986; or

“(D) INCREASE IN PENALTY FOR KNOWING AND WILLFUL VIOLATIONS.

Section 309(a)(5)(B) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437g(a)(5)(B)) is amended by striking “the greater of $10,000 or an amount equal to 200 percent” and inserting “the greater of $15,000 or an amount equal to 300 percent”.

SEC. ___ USE OF CANDIDATES’ NAMES.

Section 314 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437k) is amended by striking “6 months” and inserting “12 months”.

SEC. ___ EXPEDITED PROCEDURES.

Section 309(a) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437g(a)) is amended by striking “(a)” and inserting “(a)(1)”. The following is added—

“(b) EXPEDITED PROCEEDINGS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—(i) order expedited proceedings, shortening the time periods for proceedings under paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) as necessary to ensure that the matter is resolved in sufficient time before the election to avoid harm or prejudice to the interests of the parties; or

“(ii) if the Commission determines that the violation is occurring or is about to occur;

“(iii) the public interest would be best served by the issuance of an injunction; the Commission may initiate a civil action for a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction pending the outcome of the proceeding described in paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4).

“(B) VENUE.—An action under subparagraph (A) shall be brought in the United States district court for the district in which the defendant resides, transacts business, or may be found, or in which the violation is occurring, has occurred, or is about to occur;

“(C) APPLICABILITY.—This paragraph does not apply to an advocate or an organization organized or maintained pursuant to section 527 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986; or

“(D) INCREASE IN PENALTY FOR KNOWING AND WILLFUL VIOLATIONS.

Section 309(a)(5)(B) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437g(a)(5)(B)) is amended by striking “the greater of $10,000 or an amount equal to 200 percent” and inserting “the greater of $15,000 or an amount equal to 300 percent”.

SEC. ___ USE OF CANDIDATES’ NAMES.

Section 314 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437k) is amended by striking “6 months” and inserting “12 months”. The following is added—

“(b) EXPEDITED PROCEEDINGS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—If, at any time in a proceeding described in paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) as necessary to ensure that the matter is resolved in sufficient time before the election to avoid harm or prejudice to the interests of the parties; or “(ii) if the Commission determines that there is insufficient time to conduct proceedings before the election, summarily dismiss the complaint.

SEC. ___ AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION.

Section 314 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437c) is amended—

(1) by inserting “(a)” before “There”;

and

(2) in the second sentence—

“(A) by striking “and” after “1978”; and

“(B) by striking the period at the end and inserting the following:

“and $80,000,000 (as adjusted under subsection (b) for each fiscal year beginning after September 30, 2001);”;

and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

“(b) The $80,000,000 under subsection (a) shall be increased with respect to each fiscal year based on the increase in the price index described in section 311(b) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1992 (2 U.S.C. 437c(e)) for the calendar year in which such fiscal year begins, except that the base period shall be calendar year 2000.”

SEC. ___ EXPEDITED REFERRALS TO ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Section 309(a)(5) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437g(a)(5)) is amended by striking subparagraph (C) and inserting the following:

“(C) The Commission may initiate a civil action for a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction pending the outcome of the proceeding described in paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) as necessary to ensure that the matter is resolved in sufficient time before the election to avoid harm or prejudice to the interests of the parties; or

“(ii) if the Commission determines that there is insufficient time to conduct proceedings before the election, summarily dismiss the complaint.”

My amendment would specifically strengthen the Federal Election Commission, which is the organization that is charged with enforcing all the laws related to the system of campaign finance reform that will be truly reflected in the elections in the United States elections about ideas and not just about money flowing in from everywhere.

Their efforts will be for naught if we don’t have the adequate enforcement of the law that we are adopting today and on succeeding days.

My amendment would specifically strengthen the Federal Election Commission, which is the organization that is charged with enforcing all the laws we have been discussing for the last 2 weeks. Observers have called the FEC “beleaguered,” a “toothless watchdog,” a “dithering nanny,” and a “lapdog,” indicating that the state of the FEC is rather moribund because they don’t have the resources necessary to do the job of effectively enforcing our campaign finance laws.

All of this effort over these several weeks and several years will amount to very little if we don’t give the FEC the resources and tools to effectively enforce our campaign finance laws. If we are serious about reform, we need to be serious about giving the FEC these resources. My amendment is based upon recommendations made by the FEC Commissioners over many years with respect to improving the performance of the FEC. As we all know, the FEC is composed of six Commissioners—three Republicans and three Democrats. These recommendations represent a bipartisan work. In 1980, the FEC had 270 full-time equivalent staff. In 1998, the FEC had 303, a very small increase, and at the same time there has been an explosion of donations, an explosion of reports, and increased inactivity.

It is obvious with all of these activities, with all of these transactions that were reported that the FEC needs to do more and needs more resources to do the job it has been commissioned to do. The FEC is unable to review the financial reports. They are expected to enforce the laws, and unless we give them the resources to do that, we are going to be in a very sorry state and, indeed, we are in a very sorry state today. Because of the onslaught of cases before the FEC, it has to prioritize its enforcement work.

It turns out they give certain cases priority status. That means when there is an available attorney, they will put that attorney on the case, but there are so many cases that they eventually become stale. In fact, the FEC had to dismiss about half of its enforcement caseload in fiscal year 1998 and in fiscal year 1999 due to lack of resources. Due to the limited resources they have, they simply cannot keep up with the work. Once again, if we are serious about reform, we should be serious about giving the FEC the resources to do it.

Let me move forward and suggest other aspects of the legislation which I believe would also increase the authorized appropriations for this Commission. Over the past 2 weeks, we have talked about doubling and tripling money going to candidates. Again, if we are serious about campaign finance reform, we should also talk about increasing the budget of the FEC. Senator THOMPSON mentioned yesterday that the average amount spent by a winning Senate campaign went from approximately $1.2 million in 1980, to $7.2 million in the year 2000. According to the FEC, total campaign spending has increased 1,000 percent since 1976. Total campaign finance disbursement activity was $300 million in 1976 and exploded to $3.5 billion in the year 2000 election cycle. But the agency for which we work, the FEC, has not had a majority vote, 4 out of 6, and since there are three Republicans and three Democrats, this process of a referral, when it necessarily have to include votes from both Republicans and Democrats. I think it is a bipartisan work. Once again, such a referral would require a majority vote of the Commissioners, so it would be inherently bipartisan and could not be abused by a partisan faction of the Federal Election Commission.

We have for the last several weeks been working diligently, creatively to fashion stronger Federal election campaign laws. But without my amendment, all of our work might for nothing because unless we strengthen the Federal Election Commission, we will not have the enforcement capability to take this legislative design which we have worked over so many days, and make it effective to regulate the campaigns for Federal office in the United States.

I urge adoption of this amendment. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ENZIO). The Senator from Kentucky, Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, Senator REED seeks to reverse a decision taken in 1979. Back in 1979, under pressure from House Democrats, the Democratic-controlled House and Senate passed the amendment, signed into law by a Democratic President, which eliminated random audits.

The catalyst was a large number of audits that were commenced consuming enormous amounts of time and money and done in a manner which was viewed as unfair.

This provision may present the same problem. I say to my friend from Rhode Island, we are going to need to look at it overnight. My inclination is to oppose it, in which case we will need a rollover vote. At least we can look at it overnight.

It is unclear who authorizes the audits, the six appointed members of the FEC or the members of that committee appointed by those members? The period commencing these random audits is extended from 6 months to 12 months. Campaigns will have to wait 1 year before they even know if an audit will begin and if they need to raise additional funds to cover it.

There is no time limit for commencing audits of PACs or party committees. The 1979 amendment allowed a candidate's name. It would require that a candidate's committee include the name of the candidate, but it also would prohibit the inclusion of that candidate's name by an unauthorized committee or any other committee except the party committee.

This would, I hope, correct a situation in which committees or organizations unrelated to the candidate use the name of the candidate and misuse the name of the candidate.

Also, the amendment would expedite procedures used by the FEC to enforce violations or investigate violations of the Federal Election Campaign Act.

It would also allow an expedited referral to the Attorney General in the case of a perceived criminal violation of the Federal Election Campaign Act. Once again, such a referral would require a majority vote of the Commissioners, so it would be inherently bipartisan and could not be abused by a partisan faction of the Federal Election Commission.

We have for the last several weeks been working diligently, creatively to fashion stronger Federal election campaign laws. But without my amendment, all of our work might be for nothing because unless we strengthen the Federal Election Commission, we will not have the enforcement capability to take this legislative design which we have worked over so many days, and make it effective to regulate the campaigns for Federal office in the United States.
the Commission to continue audits for cause where the FEC reviews the reports by determining if they meet the threshold for substantial compliance.

After the review, it takes an affirmative vote of four Commissioners to conduct an audit. The only other agency I know that conducts random audits is the IRS, and even they are scaling back.

Practically speaking, an audit by the FEC takes years, costs tens, even hundreds of thousands of dollars in lawyers and accountants. For instance, the audit of the 1996 Republican Convention concluded just months before the 2000 convention.

To carry out this provision, the FEC will have to double or even triple its audit staff. This is wrong for the FEC to review the record before commission staff can work on it, the majority no longer be the case under the Reed amendment.

We will have more to say about it tomorrow. Suffice it to say, I say to my friend from Rhode Island, he gets the drift. I think this is a step in the wrong direction, and I think Members of the Senate need to be apprised of the fact that they may be subjected to these lengthy and costly audits under the Senator’s amendment.

Maybe we will wake up and see the light and conclude the amendment of the Senator from Rhode Island is a good idea. In any event, we will have to carry it over until tomorrow.

Mr. DODD. I thank my colleague from Rhode Island for bringing this up. These were provisions we proposed as well over the last number of years.

There are very good concepts here. The mandated audit races issues can be very expensive. If there is no cause for doing it randomly, there is a legitimate concern this can be abused by those who would like to become a policing action, without any rationale for doing it, other than for the sake of doing it.

I would like to sleep on this and take a look at it and see if we can maybe get some agreement to accept it tomorrow, maybe make some modification; rather than dealing with it this evening, see if we can get agreement from the majority and the minority, to see if we can come up with a proposal to be accepted before we can bring it up for consideration between 9 o’clock and 11 o’clock in the morning. If the Senator would agree, that would help.

Mr. REED. I have no opposition to working in a purposeful manner.

I reassure the Senator of concerns expressed. First, the random audit would have to be approved by the majority of commissioners. This is not something that would be inherently abusive, since it requires four commissioners, at least one of whom has to be from the opposing party.

In addition, the audits would be subject to strict confidentiality rules and not the FEC would they be published, and not try to insinuate an audit into the newspapers for political campaign purposes.

I do believe this is a good way to reach compliance, and it is something that has been successfully done by those people who look closely at the Federal Election Commission.

With respect to the lengthening of the time period for audit, the length has increased from 6 months to 12 months for these audits for cause. I think that is a reasonable amendment to the current practice. I hope it is accepted.

As the Senator from Connecticut and the Senator from Kentucky suggest, I have no opposition to thinking on this overnight and coming back.

Mr. DODD. I thank my colleague. I have an amendment I may offer tomorrow, but we will have the staff look at it and get their thoughts on it. We have done a lot of work. There are outstanding ambiguities in the amendment of Senator REED of Rhode Island, an amendment of Senator HATCH and Senator SPECTER, and one I want to offer tomorrow morning, if necessary, with half an hour equally divided. That will be between 9 o’clock and 11 o’clock and we should be able to wrap this up.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I would like to read into the RECORD excerpts from the cogent analysis of S. 27 that was prepared by James Bopp, Jr., General Counsel of the James Madison Center for Free Speech, entitled “Analysis of S. 27, ‘McCain-Feingold 2001.’”

In this analysis, Mr. Bopp thoroughly demonstrates why this bill violates the First Amendment's guarantee of the free exercise of the right of individuals, political parties, labor unions, corporations, and “issue advocacy” groups.

Mr. Bopp begins his analysis by noting [S. 27] will hurt—the “little guy,” those whom it will help, chiefly the wealthy and the new corporations:

McCain-Feingold 2001 is a broad-based and pernicious attack on the rights of average citizens to participate in the democratic process, thereby enhancing the power of already powerful wealthy individuals, millionaire candidates, and large new corporations—the archetypal story of big guys enhancing their power to dominate the little guy.

McCain-Feingold 2001 is a major assault on the average citizen’s ability to participate in the political process because it targets and imposes severe restrictions on two key citizen groups, which serve as the only effective vehicles through which average citizens may pool their money to express themselves effectively: issue advocacy groups and political parties. However, McCain-Feingold 2001 strips away the rights of individuals and candidates and powerful new corporations unscathed, thereby enhancing their relative power in the marketplace of ideas.

Both issue advocacy groups and political parties are private organizations that provide a vehicle for average citizens to effectively participate in the political process by providing their resources to individual voices. These organizations participate broadly in our democratic process by advocating issues of public concern, lobbying for legislation, and directly promoting the election of candidates.

Issue advocacy groups and political parties enhance individual efforts by association. One individual of average means can accomplish little alone in the public arena, but thousands of average citizens who pool their resources with like-minded individuals can accomplish great things together. The right to associate, therefore, is so fundamental to our democratic Republic and to the First Amendment guarantee of a free press that it is protected. The United States Supreme Court has recognized it as a fundamental right with powerful constitutional protection.

Furthermore, political parties are not just about electing candidates, particularly federal ones. Political parties constitute a vital way for like-minded individuals to put issues and values expressed in the planks of their party platforms—at all levels of government. Parties advocate issues in the public forum in advance of legislation and engaging in efforts to elect candidates. Parties are just as focused on the promotion of issues as are ideological corporations, such as those, for example, that lobby for the National Rifle Association Committee or the Christian Coalition of America, and labor unions, such as the United Mine Workers and American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, although with a broader spectrum of issues. McCain-Feingold 2001 ignores this reality and treats political parties as simply federal candidate election machines.

McCain-Feingold 2001 attacks the abilities of ordinary citizens to participate in the political process in two ways: (1) by focusing restrictive efforts on issue advocacy corporations, labor unions, and political parties—three organizations vital to the ability of average citizens to pool their resources to make their opinions heard, and (2) by imposing sweeping restrictions that reach broadly beyond direct participation in elections to ban issue advocacy associations in the discussion of issues of public concern, the views of candidates on issues, and grassroots lobbying for favored legislation.

If McCain-Feingold 2001 succeeds, the influence of the average citizen would be drastically reduced because association with like-minded individuals is essential to effective participation in the public policy arena. With the little guys locked in the dungeon of nonparticipation, the rich and powerful will run politics, much as they did before the first and foremost campaign reform adopted by our Nation, the First Amendment, which protects the right of association and democracy by allowing like-minded individuals to make their voices heard—especially speech about those in power and on the critical issues of the day.

Campaign finance “reform” proposals, notably McCain-Feingold 2001, do not, and could not, eliminate the power of the giant news media corporations, which are protected by the First Amendment, or the manipulation of editorial content and news coverage. Neither may the wealthy be prohibited from spending their own money—either to express their views on public issues and candidates or to advocate their own election. But the wealthy don’t need to pool their resources to be effective, they have all the money they need to pay for commercials about the issues they care about. Furthermore, millionaires remain unaffected by proposed campaign ‘reforms’ because they need not depend on contributions from others—they can spend their own money to campaign—and officeholders of all stripes have the incredible power of incumbency to support their candidacy. Thus, campaign finance reforms are intended to make it more difficult for corporations, labor unions, and political parties to amplify their voices. The winners are the wealthy, major news corporations, and incumbent politicians. It is small wonder then that the wealthiest foundations and individuals are the prime supporters of so-called campaign finance ‘reform,’ that the mainstream media is the primary cheerleader for it, and that incumbent politicians are so attracted to it.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE
March 29, 2001

5064

But in our Republic, founded by the People for the People, the right of the People to speak out on the most critical issues of the day is not to be infringed. Freedom of speech and association are at the heart of the First Amendment. The United States Supreme Court and other federal courts have been stalwart in defense of the citizens’ rights of free speech and association. As asserted in these constitutional measures pass, we stand ready to promptly challenge them in the courts with a high probability of success.

Mr. Bopp then goes on to layout the general principles that the Supreme Court has set forth for analyzing government restrictions on political speech and political association. He states that:

‘Many of the so-called reforms floating around Washington are in fact nothing more than incumbent protection acts. Many politicians feel threatened by negative advertisements and want to control what is said during the election. As a result, candidates want to reduce spending on campaigns.

Chief among these proposals is McCain-Feingold 2001, the self-styled ’Bipartisan Campaign Reform Act of 2001’ (S. 27), sponsored principally by Senators John McCain and Russell Feingold. Though announced with the promise of reducing the corrupting influence of big money, McCain-Feingold 2001 is instead a bad attack on citizen participation in our democratic Republic. This bill shakes a fist at the First Amendment; if passed, it is destined for a court-ordered funeral. The most egregious provisions and their infirmities are discussed below.

As noted in the introduction, average citizens must pool their resources to have an effect in the political sphere of issue advocacy, lobbying, and electoral activity. The wealthy and powerful have no such need. So ordinary people band together in ideological corporations, labor unions, and political parties to amplify their voices. This right to associate is a bedrock principle of our democratic Republic, and guaranteed by the Constitution. McCain-Feingold 2001, however, would suppress this ability, along with the foundational constitutional right to free speech.

It should be noted at the outset of this analysis that political speech and association are at the heart of the First Amendment guarantees. The United States Supreme Court has declared, ‘the constitutional guarantee [of the First Amendment] has its fullest and most urgent application precisely when the nominal holder of power is a political official.’ Free expression in connection with elections is no second-class citizen, rather political expression is ‘at the core of our entire scheme of First Amendment freedoms.’ Thus, ‘there is practically universal agreement that a major purpose of [the First] Amendment was to protect the free discussion of governmental affairs... of course including discussions of candidates.’

Furthermore, fundamental right of association was well articulated by the United States Supreme Court in the case of NAACP v. Alabama, when the Court reviewed a suit against the National Association for the Advancement of color to seek disclosure by the State of Alabama seeking disclosure of all its members.

The unanimous U.S. Supreme Court on the freedom of association:

‘Effective advocacy of both public and private points of view, particularly controversies in the area of social reform, is necessarily a group association, as this Court has more than once recognized by remarking upon the close nexus between the freedoms of speech and association, and it, therefore, protected the identity of members of the NAACP form disclosure.

In Buckley v. Valeo, the Supreme Court reaffirmed the constitutional protection for association. ‘Expression as both public and private points of view, particularly controversial ones, is undeniably enhanced by group association.’ Consequently, the First and Fourteenth Amendment guarantee freedom to associate with others for the advancement of political beliefs and ideas. The Court then found that ‘action which may have the effect of curtailing the freedom to associate is subject to the closest scrutiny.’

Thus, the Court held that ‘(j)nvio[lation] of the right to the common advancement of political beliefs and ideas is an inseparable aspect of the “liberty” assured by the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, which embraces freedom of speech. Of course, it is immaterial whether the beliefs sought to be advanced by association pertain to political, economic, religious or cultural matters, and it, therefore, protected the identity of members of the NAACP form disclosure.

In Buckley v. Valeo, the Supreme Court reaffirmed the constitutional protection for association. ‘Expression as both public and private points of view, particularly controversial ones, is undeniably enhanced by group association.’ Consequently, the First and Fourteenth Amendment guarantee freedom to associate with others for the common advancement of political beliefs and ideas.’ The Court then noted that ‘action which may have the effect of curtailing the freedom to associate is subject to the closest scrutiny.’ This highest level of constitutional protection, of course, flows from the essential function of associations in allowing effective participation in our democratic Republic. Organizations, from political action committees (‘PACs’) to ideological corporations, from labor unions to political parties, all exist to permit ‘amplified individual speech.’

Mr. President, Mr. Bopp next explains how S. 27 unconstitutionally prohibits and restricts the abilities of outside groups to exercise their rights of political participation by exercising the right to associate. He first discusses how the bill’s ‘electioneering communication’ standard sweeps in issue speech and then shows how that standard violates Supreme Court precedent.

McCain-Feingold 2001 prohibits political participation of average means by broadly defining ‘electioneering communication’ so that issue advocacy expenditures currently permitted become forbidden expenditures under federal law for corporations and labor unions.

McCain-Feingold 2001 restricts the issue advocacy of ideological, nonprofit corporations, labor unions, and ‘candidates’ for elections by defining ‘electioneering communication’ to include issue advocacy, i.e., ‘any broadcast, cable, or satellite communication to members of the electorate that refers to clearly identified [federal] candidate’ within 60 days before a general... election (30 days before primary) and then added list of prohibited activities by corporations and labor unions.

The broad definition of ‘electioneering communication’ plainly sweeps in and prohibits a wide variety of issue advocacy communications traditionally engaged in by such organizations. First, Congress is often in session within 60 days before a general election and 30 days before a primary. As a result, grass-roots lobbying regarding a bill to be voted on during this 60 period will be prohibited if the broadcast communication named a candidate by referring to the bill in question (‘the McCain-Feingold bill’) or by asking a constituent to lobby their Congressman or Senator.

With corporations and labor unions prohibited from speaking on election issues, the McCain-Feingold 2001 then requires that those that may still do so, individuals and PACs, that spend over $10,000 per year, to file reports with the FEC. Among other things, the Federal Election Commission reports must list every disbursement over $200 and to whom it was made, the candidate(s) to be identified, and the identity of all contributors aggregating $1,000 or more during the year. The $10,000 triggering expenditure occurs when a contract is made to disburse the funds, which might be months in advance in an all-out campaign. One incumbent politician, who object to the general public being informed of their voting record or positions on issues, to attempt to discourage the broadcast medium, or to intimidate the person or PAC paying for the ad, from actually running the ad.

In sum, the issue advocacy communications of nonprofit corporations and labor unions, are treated like express advocacy communications and organizations doing such advocacy, including PACs. However, as seen next, there is no constitutional warrant for Congress to regulate issue advocacy or the organizations that primarily engage in it. Period.

To protect First Amendment freedom, the Supreme Court has created a bright line between permitted and proscribed regulation of political speech. Government may only regulate a communication that ‘expressly advocates the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate’ (‘express advocacy’), by ‘explicit words’ or ‘in express terms,’ such as ‘vote for,’ ‘support,’ or ‘defeat.’ Election-related speech that discusses candidates’ views on issues is known by the legal term of art ‘issue advocacy.’ Although issue advocacy undoubtedly influences elections, it is absolutely protected from regulation—even if done by corporations, labor unions, or political parties.

Although the First Amendment says that ‘Congress shall make no law... abridging freedom of speech,’ the ‘reformers,’ and the incumbent politicians that their efforts would protect, have refused to take ‘no’ as an answer. But the will of the people consistently enforced the First Amendment against all attempts to regulate issue advocacy.

The Supreme Court has recognized that the freedom of speech is both an inherent liberty and a necessary instrument for limited representative government. The Court observed that '[t]he republic is not a democracy, not their legislators[,] are sovereign, the ability of the citizenry to make informed choices among candidates for office is essential, for they must be able to make choices which will inevitably shape the course that we follow as a nation.' As a result, 'it can hardly be doubted that the constitutional guarantee [of the First Amendment] has its fullest and most urgent application precisely to the conduct of campaigns for political office.'

The seminal case is the 1976 decision of Buckley v. Valeo, in which the Supreme Court was confronted with constitutional questions regarding the post-Watergate amendments to the Federal Election Campaign Act ('FECA')—which was by far the most comprehensive attempt to regulate election-related communications and spending to date. One of the more nettlesome problems with which the Court struggled was the question of what speech could be constitutionally subject to government regulation. The post-Watergate FECA provided for regulating more than explicit words of advocacy in order to protect the free discussion of governmental candidates. Two traditional adversaries, especially incumbents, are intimately tied to public issues involving legislative proposals and governmental actions. Not only do candidates campaign on the basis of their positions on various public issues, but campaigns themselves generate issues of public interest.

Thus, the Court was faced with a dilemma whether to allow regulation of issue advocacy because it is vital to the conduct of our representative democracy, even though it would influence elections.

The Court resolved this dilemma decisively in favor of protection of issue advocacy. First, the Court recognized that 'a major purpose of the Amendment is to protect the free discussion of governmental affairs . . . of course including discussions of candidates.' Thus, the Court concluded that issue advocacy was constitutionally sacrosanct:

"Discussion of public issues and debate on the qualifications of candidates are integral to the operation of the system of government established by our Constitution. The First Amendment affords the broadest protection to speech which comes in order to assure [the] unfettered interchange of ideas for the bringing about of political and social changes desired by the people.

Second, in order to provide this broad protection to issue advocacy, the Court adopted the bright-line 'express advocacy' test which limited government regulation to only those communications expressive of advocacy for or against a candidate. Mr. Bopp notes that 'the corporation, to which contributions can only be made by individuals and with respect to which all receipts and disbursements must be reported,' because they are made by a quasi-PAC established by the corporation, to which contributions can only be made by individuals and with respect to which all receipts and disbursements must be reported.

The first thing to be noted about this exception is that it only applies to 501(c)(4) and 527 organizations. That means all other nonprofits are excluded from engaging in issue advocacy for a couple of months before an election, including 501(c)(3)s, veterans groups, trade associations, and labor unions.

Furthermore, this quasi-PAC is required to report all of its contributors of $1,000 or more. This is a very substantial burden because it exposes contributors to harassment and intimidation by ideological foes. The United States Supreme Court in Buckley held that such burdens could not be applied to issue-oriented groups, as McCain-Feingold 2001 does, because disclosure of private associations is an unconstitutional burden."

Next, Mr. President, Mr. Bopp explains how the "coordination" provisions of McCain-Feingold effectively prohibits persons from exercising their First Amendment right to petition the government for redress of grievances, as well as their free speech and associational rights. Mr. Bopp notes that:

McCain-Feingold 2001 also prohibits corporations and labor unions for funding any "coordinated activity." "Coordinated activity" is so broadly defined and uses such vague terms as: "a coordinated effort, a coordinated campaign, a coordinated time period, and a coordinated message." The following is a sample of coordinated activity from the McCain-Feingold 2001 statutory language: "The definition covers virtually every conceivable act by a candidate or organizations to promote or defeat the candidacy . . . (regardless of whether the value being provided is in the form of a communication that expressly advocates a vote for or against a candidate) . . . "

"Coordinated activity" is "anything of value provided by a person (including corporations and labor unions) in connection with a Federal candidate's election who is or previously has been within the same election cycle co-sponsoring or coordinating with the candidate . . . (regardless of whether the value being provided is in the form of a communication that expressly advocates a vote for or against a candidate)."

Mr. President, Mr. Bopp then notes that while S. 27 has an exception for not-for-profit corporations that they could not be banned from engaging in core political speech, issue advocacy, the price that the bill extorts from these groups from doing so—the disclosure of confidential donor information—is unconstitutional. I will quote Mr. Bopp in analyzing this point of S. 27, Mr. President, but I should note that because this body has adopted Senator WELSTONE's amendment to this bill, not-for-profit corporations now cannot engage in issue advocacy at all within 60 days of an election, even if they divulge to the federal government their confidential donor information. Mr. Bopp observes that:

McCain-Feingold 2001 makes a very minor exception for nonprofits that (1) permits expenditures for "electioneering communications," (2) applies only to those organizations tax exempt under §§501(c)(4) or 527 of the Internal Revenue Code, and (3) applies only if it is made by a group controlled by the corporation, to which contributions can only be made by individuals and with respect to which all receipts and disbursements must be reported.
broad, and he then explains why a ‘coordinated activity’ is also extremely sweeping.

A ‘coordinated activity’ includes ‘anything of value provided by a person in connection with a Federal candidates’ election.’ “Anything of value” is breathtakingly broad and vague and any such thing is subject to being coordinated. It provides no limit or notice to organizations subject to civil and criminal sanctions for coordinating it with a candidate.

Furthermore, with respect to communications, it is not limited to express advocacy and thus clearly encompasses issue advocacy by an organization the candidate currently divided on whether a coordinated communication must contain express advocacy to be subject to regulation or prohibition, no court has suggested that any and all communications are so subject.

Under current law, coordination between a candidate and a citizen group exists only when there is actually prior communication about a specific expenditure for a specific project that effectively puts the expenditure under the control of the candidate. Coordination is based on information provided by the candidate about the candidate’s needs or plans. However, McCain-Feingold 2001 expands “coordination” to include any discussion of a candidate’s “message” any time during “the same election cycle,” i.e., a two-year period or, perhaps, a four-year period, if it relates to a President, or a six-year period if it relates to a Senator.

For example, if an incorporated ideological organization praised Sen. McCain for his work on “reform” early in a session of Congress and worked with him on promoting such “reform” legislation, then “coordination” would be established and anything of value to Sen. McCain’s candidacy would be deemed coordinated, would be a contribution to his campaign, and would be illegal because corporations cannot make contributions to candidates.

However, the very notion that American citizens should be punished for communicating with their elected officials on a wide range of public issues important to the official and his constituency by having any subsequent efforts to praise the candidate’s issue position or to support the candidate in his or her campaign considered a coordinated activity is repugnant to our constitutional scheme of participatory government in a democratic Republic run by and answerable to the People. In a conceptually related context, in Clifton v. FEC, the First Circuit struck down the FEC’s voter guide regulations which prohibited any oral communications with candidates in preparation of voter guides. The court held that this rule is “patently offensive to the First Amendment,” and that it is “beyond reasonable belief that, to prevent corruption or illicit coordination, the government could prohibit voluntary discussions between citizens and their legislators and candidates on public issues.”

And coordination would also be presumed, under McCain-Feingold 2001, if the ideological coordination were not of the same vendor of “professional services,” including “polling, media advice, fundraising, campaign research, political advice, or direct mail services (except those for merchandise services)” if the vendor had worked for a candidate and if the vendor is retained to do work related to that candidate’s election. Under this scheme, a vendor’s work for a candidate could unilaterally lock an ideological corporation out of otherwise permitted issue ad vocacy at election time. And even if the corporation labeled its PAC as independent, it would be prohibited from making an independent expenditure of more than $5,000, since that expenditure would also be deemed to be a coordinated expenditure.

This presumption is also fatally informal as coordination must be proven. In Colorado Republican Federal Campaign Comm. v. FEC, the FEC alleged that expenditures were presumed to be coordinated with their candidates as a matter of law. The Supreme Court rejected this view: “An agency’s substantiation of an independent expenditure a ‘coordinated expenditure’ cannot (for constitutional purposes) make it one . . . . [T]he government cannot foreclose the exercise of constitutional rights by mere labels.” The Court held that there must be “actual coordination as a matter of fact.” Congress, therefore, cannot merely recite some factual scenarios wherein it might be possible, or even probable, that coordination with candidates takes place and then presume as a matter of law that it has occurred in such situations. Now the government can drastically curtail independent expenditures by mere labels, which cannot be constitutionally limited.

Finally, McCain’s Bill’s “coordination” if there is any “general understanding” with the candidate about the expenditure. This general catchall goes way beyond the narrow understanding that the courts have on what “coordination” is. Consistent with other federal courts, the District Court in FEC v. Christian Coalition held that a communication “becomes ‘coordinated’ where the candidate or her agents can exercise control over, or where there is a substantive discussion or negotiation between the campaign and the spender over a communication’s: (1) Contents; (2) timing; (3) location, mode, or intended audience (e.g., choice between newspaper or radio advertisement); or (4) ‘volume’ (e.g., number of copies of printed materials or frequency of media spots). ‘Substantive discussion’ is such that the candidate and spender emerge as partners or joint venturers in the expressive expenditure, but the candidate and spender apparently do not engage in actual coordination.” This is a far cry from a ‘general understanding.”

The President, at this point in Mr. Bopp’s analysis, he explains that the citizenry needs a bright line not only to protect them from prosecution, but to protect them from a punitive investigation simply because they exercised their First Amendment rights.

While it may be theoretically possible to do issue advocacy without running afoul of it being a prohibited, “electronic or other communications or ‘coordinated activity,’ only the reckless, foolish, or wealthy and powerful are likely to try. Particularly in Washing- ton where the public is used to giving in processes. Any organization that does something that could be deemed of value to a candidate can expect to be the subject of an FEC complaint out whether the activity was ‘coordinated.’ Thus, publicity praising an officeholder for his vote on a bill invites investigation by the FEC. Dar- ing to tell constituents to get an incumbent to change his position on an upcoming vote could provoke an FEC investigation. This is the world of ubiquitous FEC investigations that all adv ory groups can expect.

And these ‘mere’ investigations themselves violate the First Amendment. As the U.S. Supreme Court explained when Congress was busy investigating Communist influence in the 1940’s and 50’s, “[t]he mere summoning of a witness and compelling him to testify, against his will, about his beliefs, expressions, or associations is a measure of government interference with First Amendment freedoms.”

Mr. President, Mr. Bopp then notes another major impediment to individuals and citizens’ groups exercising their First Amendment rights, and that is how the bill’s coordination provisions interplay with contribution limits. He notes that “[f]or any individual, and for any organization that can actually do a ‘coordinate activity,’ which seems to be only a federal PAC, the ‘coordinated activity’ would be limited by contribution limits. So a substantial amount of traditional ‘independent expenditures’ by PACs are now swept under the control of McCain-Feingold 2001 because a multi-candidate PAC can only make a contribution of $5,000 per election to a candidate.”

Of course, Mr. President, this is only part of the story. As Mr. Bopp explains, S. 27 also violates the free speech and associational rights of our political parties in its effort to regulate non-federal money. Specifically, he states that “[i]n its effort to regulate ‘soft money,’ McCain-Feingold 2001 will have two dramatic adverse effects on political party activity: (1) it imposes federal election law limits on the state and local activities of national political parties, and (2) it dramatically limits the issue advocacy, legislative and organizational activities of political parties. But first it is important to recall the U.S. Supreme Court’s comment that ‘[w]e are not aware of any special dangers of corruption associated with political parties.’

Political parties are merely the People’s way of associating who share their values to advance issues, legislation, and candidates that further those values. When they do these things, they are just doing their historic job as good citizens. The notion that they are somehow corrupt for doing so is both strange and constitutionally infirm.”

Mr. President, Mr. Bopp next notes that this bill federalizes state and local parties and totally federalizes national parties, which engage in a multitude of activities besides federal elections. He observes that “[a]lthough national parties care about local, state, and federal elections, they are treated by McCain-Feingold 2001 as if they only care about federal elections. As to state and local political parties, if there is a federal candidate on the ballot, they too are treated as if only the federal candidate matters. In short, McCain-Feingold 2001 federalizes the state and local election activities of national, state, and local political parties.”

Mr. Bopp then explains how this federalization occurs: “As to national political parties, this happens as a result of the total ban on national political parties receiving 'soft money.' This happens to state and local political parties as a result of the definition of 'federal election activity,' which governs political party expenditures if any federal candidate is on the general election ballot, and which includes 'voter registration' during the 120 days before an election, 'voter identification, get-out-the-vote activity, or [any activity promoting a political party].' Therefore, if state and local political parties do 'federal election activity,' they are ‘amputated these other important, historical activities of political parties.'

Mr. President, the constitutional problems with such restrictions on parties are explained in detail by Mr. Bopp as follows:

The Supreme Court has already held that interest insufficient for restricting issue advocacy in Buckley. If individuals and narrow interest groups enjoy the basic First Amendment freedom to discuss issues in response to political messages, how can political parties, which have wide bases of interests that are necessarily tempered and diffused, be deprived of the right to engage in such issue advocacy?

However, proponents of abolishing 'soft money' argue that this is simply a ‘contribution limit.’ The real reason, of course, is that the Supreme Court has justified contribution limits only on the ground that they prevent the appearance of quid pro quo corruption, which, as discussed above, cannot justify a limit on issue advocacy.

Furthermore, the proposed ban on soft money contributions cannot be justified on the theory that political parties corrupt federal candidates, which the Supreme Court has already rejected. In Colorado Republican Federal Campaign Committee v. Federal Election Commission, the FEC took the position that independent, uncoordinated expenditures by political parties constituted as contributions to the benefitted candidate. Such treatment would have resulted in allowing individuals, candidates, and political action committees to spend unlimited amounts of money on independent expenditures to advocate the election of a candidate, while limiting the amount a political party could spend for the same purpose.

The Supreme Court disagreed with the FEC, noting that 'we are not aware of any special dangers of corruption associated with contributions on express advocacy actually coordinated with political parties as a result of the definition of federal election activity.' The Court concluded that the 'opportunity for corruption posed by these greater opportunities for contributions is, at best, attenuated.' The fallacy of that argument, of course, is that the Supreme Court has justifiably considered the ban on independent expenditures to enhance what was seen as an important and legitimate role for political parties in American elections. We therefore believe that this Court's prior case law controls the outcome here. We do not see how a Constitution that grants to individuals, candidates, and ordinary political committees the right to make unlimited independent expenditures could deny the same right to political parties.

The concurring justices also found little, if any, opportunity for party corruption of candidates because of their very nature and structure. The Supreme Court echoed the same theme with respect to the independent expenditures of political action committees:

The fact that candidates and elected officials may alter or reaffirm their own positions on issues in response to political messages designed for or paid for by PACs can hardly be called corruption, for one of the essential features of democracy is the presentation to the electorate of varying points of view.

If this is true of PACs, then a fortiori there can be no justification for the threat of corruption resulting from issue advocacy by political parties.

In addition, the Supreme Court in MCFL further guarantees the threat of corruption is posed by an organization such as a political party. The Court considered the ban on independent expenditures by political action committees unconstitutional. The Court evaluated whether there was any risk of corruption with regard to an MCFL-type organization that would justify the limitation on its political purpose. While MCFL considered whether an ideological corporation was sufficiently like a business corporation to justify the ban on using corporate resources for independent expenditures, there are several transferable concepts to evaluating the threat of corruption posed by a political party.

The concern raised by the FEC in MCFL was that §411b served to prevent corruption by 'prevent[ing] an organization from using an individual's money for purposes that the individual may not support.' Thus, the Court found that '[t]his rationale for regulation is not compelling with respect to MCFL-type organizations because... Individuals who contribute to an [MCFL-type organization] are fully aware of its political purpose, and in fact, precisely because they support those purposes.' Individuals contribute to a political organization in part because they regard such a contribution as a more effective means of avoiding than spending the money under their own personal direction. Finally, a contributor dissatisfied with how funds are used can simply stop contributing.

Thus, the Court held that the prohibitions on corporate contributions and expenditures in §411b could not be constitutionally applied to non-profit ideological corporations which do not serve as a conduit for business contributions.

Political parties similarly pose no risk of corruption because people give money to parties precisely because they support what the political party stands for. A contribution to a political party is not a way of enhancing advocacy of the issues the party represents. Any individual unhappy with the use of the money may simply quit contributing and leave the political party. In sum, the threat of corruption cannot justify a limit on issue advocacy and, even if it could, political parties pose no threat of corruption to their candidates.

Finally, the Supreme Court also found that, just as independent expenditures of interest groups pose no danger of corrupting candidates, neither do those of political parties. And while no one disputes that expenditures on express advocacy actually coordinated with candidates are properly contributions to the candidate because of the possibility of quid pro quo corruption, the Court held that coordination must be proven as a matter of fact. It cannot be presumed. Reforms may not presume coordination where it does not actually exist.

Thus, there is no justification, in either policy or law, for the severe limits on national, state, and local political parties that McCain-Feingold 2001 imposes.

Thus, Mr. President, Mr. Bopp has thoroughly shown how the constitutional problems from which this bill suffers, and I am confident that the Supreme Court will ultimately validate his analysis.
Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD, the letter authored by Laura Murphy, Director of the Washington, D.C. Office of the American Civil Liberties Union and Professor Joel Gora of the Brooklyn Law School. In this letter, Ms. Murphy and Professor Gora analyze S. 27, “The Bipartisan Campaign Reform Act of 2001” and discuss its many constitutional infirmities.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

American Civil Liberties Union,
Washington National Office,

Dear Senator: The McCain-Feingold bill, also missnamed as “The Bipartisan Campaign Finance Reform Act of 2001” (S. 27) is a detestable distraction from the serious business of meaningful campaign finance reform. Meaningful campaign finance reform would develop comprehensive programs for providing public resources, benefits and support for all qualified federal political candidates. Since 2001, our experience have shown that limits on public funding simply won’t work, constitutionally or practicably, it is time to seek a more First Amendment-friendly way to expand political opportunity. Public financing for all qualified candidates is an option that provides the necessary support for candidates without the imposition of burdensome and unconstitutional limits and restraints. The ACLU has long argued for this, but instead we must use our time today to condemn the ill-conceived iterations of McCain-Feingold that remedies to our national campaign finance woes and are wholly at odds with the essence of the First Amendment.

Simply put, the McCain-Feingold bill is a recipe for political repression because it egregiously violates longstanding free speech rights in several ways: It stifles issue advocacy in violation of the First Amendment; it criminalizes any constitutionally-protected contact that groups and individuals may have with candidates (through bans on so-called “coordinated” communications) that stymies political parties in an unconstitutional fashion.

I. S. 27 ERODES ROBUST CITIZEN SPEECH PRIOR TO ELECTIONS

As Virginia Woolf stated, “If we don’t believe in freedom of expression for people we despise, we don’t believe in it at all.” Clearly, the authors and supporters of McCain-Feingold despire any form of issue advocacy that has the audacity to mention candidates for federal office by name. The bill virtually silences issue advocacy (defined as “electioneering communications”) of any public issue that has the audacity to mention candidates for federal office by name. The bill virtually silences issue advocacy (even though it mentions and discusses campaigns they may have with candidates). The ACLU has long argued for this, but instead we must use our time today to condemn the ill-conceived iterations of McCain-Feingold that remedies to our national campaign finance woes and are wholly at odds with the essence of the First Amendment.

Section 201 requires accelerated and expanded disclosure of the funding of issue advocacy.

Section 202 effectively criminalizes issue advocacy as a prohibited contribution if it is “coordinated” in the loosest sense of that term with a federal candidate.

Section 203 bans issue advocacy completely if it is sponsored by a labor union, a corporation (including such non-profit corporations organized to advance a particular cause like the ACLU’s National Right to Life Committee or Planned Parenthood, unless they are willing to obey the government’s stringent new rules) or other similar organized entity. Issue advocacy—indeed any political activity—without financial support—from prohibited contributors such as corporations, unions or wealthy individuals—is also barred from engaging in “electioneering communications.”

The bill would impose these limitations on communications about issues regardless of whether the communication “expressly advocates the election or defeat of a particular candidate. Nor is there any requirement of even showing a partisan purpose or intent. Instead, during 60 days before a primary or 30 days before a general election, any such communication is subject to the new controls simply by identifying any person who is a federal candidate, which will usually be an incumbent politician.

These restraints and punishments are triggered by the making of any “broadcast, cable, or satellite communication” which criticizes or approves the election or defeat of a particular candidate. Nor is there any requirement of even showing a partisan purpose or intent. Instead, during 60 days before a primary or 30 days before a general election, any such communication is subject to the new controls simply by identifying any person who is a federal candidate, which will usually be an incumbent politician.

These restraints and punishments are triggered by the making of any “broadcast, cable, or satellite communication” which criticizes or approves the election or defeat of a particular candidate. Nor is there any requirement of even showing a partisan purpose or intent. Instead, during 60 days before a primary or 30 days before a general election, any such communication is subject to the new controls simply by identifying any person who is a federal candidate, which will usually be an incumbent politician.

The bill would impose these limitations on communications about issues regardless of whether the communication “expressly advocates the election or defeat of a particular candidate. Nor is there any requirement of even showing a partisan purpose or intent. Instead, during 60 days before a primary or 30 days before a general election, any such communication is subject to the new controls simply by identifying any person who is a federal candidate, which will usually be an incumbent politician.

Section 203 bans issue advocacy completely if it is “coordinated” (in the loosest sense of that term) with a federal candidate or convention, “made to an audience that includes members of the electorate” for such election or convention. This distinction between broadcast, cable and satellite from those communications through other media and other forms of public expression, for a justification for campaign finance limitations or prohibitions, namely, the concern with corruption. Suppressing speech in one medium while permitting it in another is not a lesser form of censorship, just a different form.

A. THESE ISSUE ADVOCACY RESTRICTIONS WOULD HAVE ADVERSE, REAL-LIFE CONSEQUENCES

Had these provisions been law during the 2000 elections, for example, they would have effectively silenced messages from issue organizations across political spectrums. The NAACP ads—financed by a sole anonymous donor—vigorously highlighting Governor Bush’s failure to endorse hate crimes legislation—a classic example of robust and uninhibited public debate about the qualifications and actions of political officials. By the same token, last Spring, when New York Mayor Rudy Giuliani was a candidate for the United States Senate, any broadcast criticism of his record on police brutality as many believe was done by the New York Civil Liberties Union, would have been subjected to that risk of severe legal sanctions and punishment under the provision of the Supreme Court in cases from the York Times Co. v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254 (1964) through Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1 (1976) to California Democratic Party v. Jones, 120 S.Ct. 2402 (2000) have repeatedly protected full and vigorous debate during an election season. The provisions of the pending bills would silence that debate.

Second, the ban on “electioneering communications” would stifle legislative advocacy on pending bills. The blackout periods coincide with crucial legislative periods, including the months of September and October as well as months during the Spring. During Presidential years, the blackout periods would include the entire Presidential primary season, conceivably right up through the August national nominating conventions. For example had this provision been in place during the 1996 election, Gray would have been illegal for the ACLU or the National Right to Life Committee to criticize the “McCain-Feingold” bill as an example of campaign finance legislation or to urge elected officials to oppose that bill. The only time the blackout ban would be lifted would be in August, when many primary races were held.

During the 104th Congress, for example, the ACLU identified at least 10 major, controversial bills that it worked on that were debated in either chamber prior to August 60 days prior to the November 1996 general election. This legislation includes several anti-abortion bills including so-called “partial birth abortion” legislation, creation of a federal database of sex offenders, new federal penalties for methamphetamine use, provisions to reinforce the marriage prohibition, anti-immigration legislation, and school vouchers, among others. This pattern of legislating even before a general election has only been repeated in subsequent Congresses.

B. WHY THESE LIMITATIONS RUN AFOUL OF THE FIRST AMENDMENT

Under the reasoning of Buckley v. Valeo and all the cases which have followed suit, the funding of any public speech that falls short of such “express advocacy” is wholly immune from campaign finance laws. Speech which comments on, criticizes or praises, applauds or condemns the public records and actions of federal candidates even though it mentions and discusses candidates, and even though it occurs during an election year or even an election season—is protected by the First Amendment.

The Court made clear in Buckley when it fashioned the express advocacy doctrine. That doctrine holds that the FECA cannot be used to distinguish or control the funding of all discussion of policy and issues that even mentioned a public official or political candidate, would improperly deter and penalize vital criticism of government because speakers would fear running afoul of the FECA’s prohibitions. The distinction between discussion of issues and communications that expressly advocate the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate, and include “explicit words of advocacy of election or defeat” 424 U.S. at 44, 45.

The Court developed that doctrine because it was greatly concerned that giving a broad scope to FECA, and allowing the funding of all discussion of policy and issues that even mentioned a public official or political candidate, would improperly deter and penalize vital criticism of government because speakers would fear running afoul of the FECA’s prohibitions. The distinction between discussion of issues and communications that expressly advocate the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate, and include “explicit words of advocacy of election or defeat” 424 U.S. at 44, 45.

The Court developed that doctrine because it was greatly concerned that giving a broad scope to FECA, and allowing the funding of all discussion of policy and issues that even mentioned a public official or political candidate, would improperly deter and penalize vital criticism of government because speakers would fear running afoul of the FECA’s prohibitions. The distinction between discussion of issues and communications that expressly advocate the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate, and include “explicit words of advocacy of election or defeat” 424 U.S. at 44, 45.

The Court developed that doctrine because it was greatly concerned that giving a broad scope to FECA, and allowing the funding of all discussion of policy and issues that even mentioned a public official or political candidate, would improperly deter and penalize vital criticism of government because speakers would fear running afoul of the FECA’s prohibitions. The distinction between discussion of issues and communications that expressly advocate the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate, and include “explicit words of advocacy of election or defeat” 424 U.S. at 44, 45.
where the candidate is the driving force behind the groups that are working to conform reporting and disclosure by issue organizations that publicized any voting record or other information—"referring to a candidate''). The rationale for these principles is not just that these various groups should have a right to speak, but also that the public has a right to know and a need to hear what they have to say. To control or condition that right of access to a candidate, in the First Amendment is designed to encourage and foster such face-to-face discussions of government and politics, see Buckley v. American Constitutional Law Foundation, 525 U.S. 162 (1999). It basically is the State, in the face of restrictions on soft money would make parties less able to support grassroots activity, candidate recruitment and get-out-the-vote efforts.

III. S. 27 ALLOWS THE UNCONSTITUTIONAL VIRTUAL DESTRUCTION OF POLITICAL PARTIES

In addition to its disruptive and unconstitutional effect on issue groups issuing the advocacy, S. 27 also would have a disruptive if not destructive effect on political parties in America by totally shutting off the sources of funding that support so much of what American political parties do. It would cast a pall over the vital democratic work that any contact whatsoever with the funding of any "federal election activity" by any organization unless that activity is funded strictly with hard money. The scope of "political activity" is broadened and encompasses the following activities if they have any connection to any federal election or candidate: (1) voter registration activity within 4 months of a federal election, (2) voter identification, get-out-the-vote activity or "generic campaign activity," (3) any significant "public communication" by a candidate or any group member that refers to a clearly identified federal candidate and "promotes," "supports," "attacks," or "opposes" a candidate for office (regardless of whether the communication contains "express advocacy"). Under this rule, a candidate would attend an NAACP Voters Rights benefit dinner at her or his peril, if funds were being raised for any "federal election activity" such as getting people to the polls on election day. The same might be true for one who attended an ACLU Bill of Rights Day fund raiser, when the ACLU produces a box score on civil liberties voting records during an election season.

(2) Section 101 of the bill also bars any federal candidate or officeholder from having any contact whatsoever with the funding of any "federal election activity" by any organization unless that activity is funded strictly with hard money. The scope of "political activity" is broadened and encompasses the following activities if they have any connection to any federal election or candidate: (1) voter registration activity within 4 months of a federal election, (2) voter identification, get-out-the-vote activity or "generic campaign activity," (3) any significant "public communication" by a candidate or any group member that refers to a clearly identified federal candidate and "promotes," "supports," "attacks," or "opposes" a candidate for office (regardless of whether the communication contains "express advocacy"). Under this rule, a candidate would attend an NAACP Voters Rights benefit dinner at her or his peril, if funds were being raised for any "federal election activity" such as getting people to the polls on election day. The same might be true for one who attended an ACLU Bill of Rights Day fund raiser, when the ACLU produces a box score on civil liberties voting records during an election season.

(2) Section 101 of the bill also bars any federal candidate or officeholder from having any contact whatsoever with the funding of any "federal election activity" by any organization unless that activity is funded strictly with hard money. The scope of "political activity" is broadened and encompasses the following activities if they have any connection to any federal election or candidate: (1) voter registration activity within 4 months of a federal election, (2) voter identification, get-out-the-vote activity or "generic campaign activity," (3) any significant "public communication" by a candidate or any group member that refers to a clearly identified federal candidate and "promotes," "supports," "attacks," or "opposes" a candidate for office (regardless of whether the communication contains "express advocacy"). Under this rule, a candidate would attend an NAACP Voters Rights benefit dinner at her or his peril, if funds were being raised for any "federal election activity" such as getting people to the polls on election day. The same might be true for one who attended an ACLU Bill of Rights Day fund raiser, when the ACLU produces a box score on civil liberties voting records during an election season.

(3) The bill also reaches and regulates all State and local political parties and bans them from raising or spending soft money for any "federal election activity" also or any activity which has any bearing on a federal election. It basically is the State, in the face of restrictions on soft money would make parties less able to support grassroots activity, candidate recruitment and get-out-the-vote efforts.

B. POLITICAL PARTY ACTIVITY IS PROTECTED BY THE FIRST AMENDMENT

Political funding by political parties is strongly protected by the First Amendment no less than political funding by candidates and committees. The only political funding
March 29, 2001

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

that can be subject to control is either contributions given directly to candidates or their campaigns (or partisan expenditures explicitly coordinated with campaigns) or communications that constitute express advocacy. These can subject to source limitations (of corporations or unions and other nationals or other, effectively corporate or foundation enterprises) or amount restraints ($1,000, or $5,000 in the case of PACs). All other fundraising of political activity and communication is beyond presumptive constitutional control. That would include soft money activities by political parties.

Participates for their candidates’ electoral success and issue organizations that influence the public debate. Get-out-the-vote drives, voter registration drives, issue advocacy, policy discussion, grass-roots development and the like are all activities fundamentally protected by the First Amendment and engaged in by a wide variety of individuals and organizations. An issue ad by the ACLU criticizes an incumbent Mayor on police brutality is an example of soft money activity, in the broadest sense of the term, that is the same subject in The New York Times. We need more of all such activity during an election season, not less, from political parties and others as well.

The right of individuals and organizations, corporate, union or otherwise, to support such issue advocacy traces back to the holding in Buckley v. Valeo of only those communications that “expressly advocate” the election or defeat of identified candidates can be subject to control. The Supreme Court in the 1996 Colorado Republican Federal Campaign Committee v. FEC, 518 U.S. 604 (1996) case noted the varying uses of soft money by political parties. In the recent case, Nixon v. Shrink Missouri Governmental PAC, 530 U.S. 567 (2000) which upheld hard money contribution limits, the Court’s opinion was silent on whether soft money could be regulated on whether soft money could be regulated.

Finally, the law unfairly bans parties, but no other organizations, from raising or spending soft money. That would mean that anyone else—corporations, foundations, media organizations, labor unions, bar associations, wealthy individuals—could use any resources without limit to attack a party and its programs, yet the party would be defenseless to respond except by using limited hard money dollars. The NRA could use unlimited funds to fund attacks on the Democratic Party’s stand on gun control, and the Party would be effectively silenced and unable to respond. Conversely, NARAL could mercilessly attack the Republican Party’s stand on abortion, using corporate and foundation funds galore, and that Party would likewise be stifled from responding in kind. A system which lets one side of a debate speak, while silencing the other, violates both the First Amendment and equality principles embodied in the Constitution.

The Bipartisan Campaign Finance Reform Act of 2001 is not reform at all, but is a fatally flawed assault on First Amendment rights.

Sincerely,

LAURA W. MURPHY
Director
JOEL GORA
Professor of Law, Brooklyn Law School and Counsel to the ACLU

CHANGE OF VOTE

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent to change my vote on rollcall vote No. 41 from yeas to nay. This change will not affect the outcome of the vote. The amendment at issue was adopted by a vote of 70-30 and if enacted will require broadcasters to charge political candidates the lowest rates offered by the station or cable station throughout the year.

While I believe the goal of this amendment is laudable I am concerned that it could unsettle the balance of enforcement issues in the market. Further, I believe it could provide political candidates with an unfair economic edge in the purchasing of air time.

On the first point, it should be clear to all that the McCain-Feingold legislation was carefully crafted to ensure meaningful campaign finance reform while recognizing the rights of all Americans to continue their participation in our electoral process. This is a delicate balance and I would regret to see this bill lose the support of such important participants in the political process as our nation’s broadcasters.

I believe that political candidates should not be gouged in their purchase of air time but I remain unconvinced that such is the normal and usual practice today. Other groups, be they charitable or civic oriented, should not be disadvantaged because of efforts to lower the rates for political candidates. For the reasons stated above I believe this issue should not be considered on this important legislation.

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, in 1997, the Governmental Affairs Committee spent a year investigating some of the worst campaign finance abuses in our Nation’s history. Despite a number of obstacles, witnesses fleeing the country, people pleading the fifth amendment, entities failing to comply with subpoenas, our Committee uncovered numerous activities that were not only improper but illegal. To date, 26 individuals and two corporations have been prosecuted or indicted for campaign finance violations arising from the 1996 Federal elections.

Specifically, what we uncovered was a pattern of abuse in which access to people in power was bought with large campaign contributions. What made that possible was unregulated, unlimited soft money. Time after time we heard about contributions in the millions and hundreds of thousands of dollars in exchange for which access was granted.

In fact, one of the key reasons I have fought for the McCain-Feingold bill is to eliminate this opportunity for abuse.

There is no question in my mind that the enormous soft money contributions we examined led to corruption and the appearance of corruption to the American public. The committee’s findings are comprehensive six volume, 10,000 page report, S. Rpt. No. 105-167, the committee’s depositions, S. Prt. No. 105-30, and the committee’s hearings, S. Hrg. No. 105-300). The facts and findings contained in these documents clearly provide the basis for a determination that unlimited soft money contributions lead to corruption and the appearance thereof.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, the Senator from Tennessee appropriately puts in context the importance of the numbers on the bill before us. The record in the Senate is replete with the compelling need for this legislation. In particular, we learned during the 1997 hearings that some of the most egregious conduct we uncovered, wasn’t what was illegal, but what was legal. That was the real problem.

5071

The 1997 Senate investigation collected ample evidence of campaign abuses, the most significant of which revolved around the soft money loophole. Soft money contributions of hundreds of thousands, even millions, of dollars, were shown to have undermined the contribution limits in Federal law and created the appearance of corruption in the public’s eye. The Republican and Democratic national political parties that solicit and spend this money use explicit offers of access to the most powerful, elected officials.

Roger Tamraz, a large contributor to both parties and an unpresumptive witness at our hearings, became the bipartisan symbol for what is wrong with the current system. Roger Tamraz served as a Republican Eagle in the 1980s during Republican administrations and a Democratic Trustee in the 1990s during Democratic administrations. Tamraz’s political contributions were not guided by his views on public policy or his personal support for or against the person in office; Tamraz gave to help himself. He was unabashed in admitting his political contributions were made for the purpose of getting access to people in power. Tamraz showed us in stark terms to all-too-common product of the current campaign finance system, using unlimited soft money contributions to buy access. And despite the condemnation by the committee and the press of Tamraz’s activities, when asked at the hearing to reflect on his $300,000 contribution to the Democrats in 1996, Tamraz said, “I think next time, I’ll give $600,000.”

As I said, most of the appearances of impropriety revealed during the 1997 investigations involved legal activities. Virtually every foreign contribution of concern to the Committee involved soft money. Virtually every offer of access to a White House or to the Capitol or to the President or to the Speaker of the House involved contributions of soft money. Virtually every instance of questionable conduct in the Committee’s investigation involved the solicitation or use of soft money.

The McCain-Feingold bill recognizes that the bulk of troubling campaign activity is not what is illegal, but what is legal. It takes direct aim at closing the loopholes that have swallowed the election laws. In particular, it takes aim at closing the soft money and issue advocacy loopholes, while strengthening other aspects of the Federal election laws that are too weak to do the job as they are not intended.

The soft money loophole exists because we in Congress allow it. The issue advocacy loophole exists because we in Congress allow it. Congress alone writes the laws. Congress alone can shut down the loopholes and reinvoke the Federal election laws.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, in recent days there has been much speculation regarding my position on retaining the severability of the campaign finance reform bill being considered by the Senate.

First let me start by reiterating my strong and unavailing commitment to meaningful campaign finance reform. Since I arrived in the Senate, I, along with many of my colleagues, have championed an overhaul of our campaign finance system. Our system demands more disclosure and accountability, we should reduce the amount of money in the system, we should ensure that the voice of every American can be heard, and we must require fairness.

I admire Senator MCCAIN and others for their courage and persistence in pursuing this goal. Senator McCaine has shown leadership as a real leader, and I enjoy working with him in the Senate.

I believe the McCain/Feingold bill is a carefully crafted, balanced bill. There have been a number of amendments to this bill, some of which I have supported; some I’ve opposed. Campaign finance reform, in addition to reforming the excesses of the current system, must be fair and not favor any one party or group over another. If the court, at some later date, finds that some part or parts of our reform effort do not pass constitutional muster, that ruling should not be allowed to tip the scales to the benefit or detriment of one class of actors with regard to their ability to engage in political debate.

As strongly as I believe in reforming our campaign finance laws, I also believe we should do a better job of supporting our public schools, providing more and better access to quality healthcare, protecting our environment, and creating family wage jobs. If my, or the people who share my position, ability to communicate those positions is altered to a greater or lesser extent than those with other opinions, then what we have left will be fundamentally unfair. The balance of this bill could change depending on the court’s interpretation. The severability issue goes directly to this point.

Which leads me to believe this year’s effort is different from previous efforts in one very significant and fundamental way. Today, we know more about the Supreme Court than we did just a few months ago. We know that the court is not beyond interpretations that would appear to favor one party over another. And that has given me pause, and, I would think, it may give my colleagues pause, when we consider the application of this law; how it will be tested in court, and what we may end up with as a result.

If the Supreme Court decided to uphold limits on the amount of soft money flowing to our parties, while allowing special interest groups to spend unlimited sums to attack or defend the candidates, then we ought in the electoral process over to those same special interests who we seek to limit.

In this debate, too often, people who have differed with the sponsors have been characterized as wanting to ‘kill’ the bill. Contrary to those assertions, this bill, with or without non-severability, is about to pass the Senate.

After careful consideration, I have decided to vote against the non-severability amendment. I have made this judgement with strong reservations about how the Court could interpret the law we pass.

I am not willing to participate in enacting a precedent for severability that could impact a wide range of bills to come before the Senate. Rather than adding a non-severability clause to this bill, I believe the Congress should act quickly to meet the challenges that may be presented by any future court action, and fashion a set of campaign finance laws that will serve to strike a balance and ensure fairness.

Mr. MCCONNELL, Mr. President, reformers frequently assert that there is a great desire throughout the land for their campaign finance scheme. The truth is there is not, nor has there ever been, a groundswell of public demand for even the concept of “reform,” let alone an unconstitutional assault by the Federal Government on the constitutional freedom of citizens, groups and parties to participate in America’s democracy.

On that note, I would ask that a March 22, 2001 article in the Washington Times entitled “Nation Yawns at Campaign Finances,” be printed in the Record at this point.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

[From the Washington Times, Mar. 22, 2001]

NATION YAWNS AT CAMPAIGN FINANCES

(By Donald Lambro)

Campaign finance reform may be the No. 1 issue in the Senate right now, but outside of Washington it does not even make the top-40 list of most important problems facing the country.

Sen. John McCain, Arizona Republican, with the help of favorable national news media coverage, has managed to drive the issue to the top of the Senate agenda this week—ahead of education, health care, Medicare, Social Security, tax cuts and other issues that score much higher in poll after poll.

Polls show that Americans strongly support the overall concept of campaign reform, but it does not appear on most lists of what concerns them the most, or if it does, comes in dead last.

“We’ve asked people what is the most important problem facing the country and watched campaign finance reform languish at the bottom of every list of 20 priorities,” said Whit Ayres, a Republican pollster based in Atlanta.
There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From USA Today, Mar. 23, 2001]

"REFORM" HURTS FREEDOMS
OPPOSING VIEW: BILL UNFAIRLY RESTRICTS PARTIES’ ABILITY TO CHALLENGE INCUMBENTS
(By Mitch McConnell)

Next week, in its debate over changing campaign-finance laws, the Senate will consider a constitutional amendment overriding the First Amendment and thereby allowing the government to regulate even issue communications “by, in support of, or in opposition to” candidates for public office.

So empowered, Congress could ban “soft money” and even make it illegal for corporate-owned newspapers to endorse or mention political candidates within 60 days of an election. Currently, the media is specifically exempted from federal campaign-finance law, even though these corporate conglomerates exert tremendous influence on the political system. You could call this an "exemption to a law’s own laws." The McCain-Feingold bill less forthrightly but just as effectively restricts the constitutional freedom of the press. Candidates and parties to speak out on issues, and elections, McCain-Feingold makes it illegal for groups to criticize members of Congress in TV or radio ads. It also includes provisions that conflict with the federal government and conform to a literal interpretation of the spirit of restrictions on political speech, to be sure, but also unconstitutional, as have 22 similar efforts previously struck down in federal court.

McCain-Feingold also attack national parties, making them easier to sue or bring issue advocacy, voter turnout and such mundane overhead expenses as utilities, accountants, computers and lawyers (necessary to comply with the campaign-finance laws) with funds outside the current strict "hard money" limits. Hard money returns to funds that can be given directly to candidates and is subject to severe contribution limits (limits not adjusted for inflation since they were created in 1974). McCain-Feingold also disrupts the parties. Few are moved by the parties’ plight until they consider that candidates running against incumbent congressmen have only two reliable sources of campaign funds: Without party soft money, liberal news media and “special interest” groups would move closer to total domination of the American political environment. If banned, party soft money (which already is publically disclosed and therefore accountable) will give way to the shadowy world of special-interest soft money, where there is no public disclosure and no accountability. That does not meet anyone’s definition of “reform.”

Mr. McCONNELL. Senator Sessions would like to speak on the bill at the conclusion of the session. Perhaps he could wrap it up for us tonight. We will see everyone at 9 o’clock in the morning. At the conclusion of his remarks, unless floor staff has an objection, he will put us in recess.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, as we consider this legislation, I am not sure it is possible for any of us, certainly I have not, figured out who might be the winner and loser in this legislation. Politicians would miss the most benefits, which party, which candidates, those things are interesting and, in fact, significant. I am just not terribly worried myself.

I think about my campaigns and if they limit all contributions to just $100 per person and nobody else could contribute, nobody else could run a negative ad or positive ad about me, I would feel comfortable about that. I believe I can raise more $100’s than any likely opponent I am facing. I could get my message out and it will be a good competitive race and that will be fine. I wish it could be that simple sometimes. I faced two opponents who spent more than $1 million against me in the Republican primary. I know what it feels like to be frustrated by ads coming in against you.

I think this legislation transends all the complexities and all the debate we have had tonight and over the last 2 weeks about soft money, hard money, issue ads, independent groups, independent expenditures and how they interact.

It is a very complicated matter. I think that has caused us at some point to lose our contact with the fundamental questions with which we are dealing.

In my view, I have concluded, unfortunately, that our institutional and what is good public policy, this legislation does not justify our support and should not be passed by this body.

America has always been a country of raucous debate, uncontrolled, exaggeration, negativity, at times emotional. That is the way we are. Sometimes I wish it were not so. Others complained on the floor of the Senate about negative ads against them. I had those run against me also. In my election, I raised a lot more hard money than my opponent, but he had equal time on television and it was mostly soft money. They came in from the Democratic Party or the Sierra Club and ran ads against me. I knew it wasn’t a little environment raising this money. It was money given to them so they could use it in certain campaigns in favor of Democratic candidates. That is the way life is. It is frustrating at times to see ads such as that pound on you.

Soft money didn’t help me in this past campaign. I say that to say I reject and resent the assertion that those of us who are concerned about the serious public policy and constitutional questions are advocates that because we have a self-interest in it, some personal agenda that will help them beat their opponent and get reelected. There may be a tendency for some, but it is not for me.

The problem is whether or not we are furthering or constraining political debate in America. Some believe, for example, that depictions of violent sex acts of all kinds, depictions of child pornography, are protected by the first amendment. Some believe that the act of burning a flag of the United States is free speech. Some of these same people, however, see things differently on this bill.
On the question of pornography and child pornography, and those questions, people can go either way. The Supreme Court has sort of America about different ways. These forms of speech and press are quasi-speech. Depictions or acts of burning a flag were never what our Founding Fathers were fundamentally concerned about. They were concerned in early America about political speech, the right to speak out on public policy issues and say what you wanted to say.

James Madison, the father of our Constitution, whose birth we celebrated earlier in the month, the 250th anniversary of his birth, in talking about our goal in America as to free elections and people you chose could be elected, said: The value and efficacy of this right to elect and vote for people for office depends on the knowledge of candidates and democracy of the candidates for public trust, and on the equal freedom, consequently, of examining and discussing these merits and demerits of the candidate's respectively.

That suggests this is what America was founded about, to have a full debate about candidates and their position on issues. When do you do that? You do that during the election time. Not 2 years before an election.

I believe the contributing of money to promote and broadcast or amplify speech is covered by the first amendment. I do not think that is a matter of serious debate. Some have suggested otherwise. They said money is just an inanimate object. But if you want to be able to speak out and you cannot get on television, or you cannot afford to publish newspapers or pamphlets, then you are constrained in your ability to speak out.

The Supreme Court dealt with this issue quite plainly in Buckley v. Valeo in 1976. A string of cases since that time have continued that view.

In Buckley they said the following:

The first amendment denies government that is, us the power to determine that spending to promote one's political views is wasteful, excessive, or unwise.

They go on to say:

In a free society, ordained by our Constitution, it is not the government, not the government individually as citizens and collectively as associations and political committees who must retain control over the quantity and range of debate on public issues in a public campaign.

What is that Court saying? That Court is saying the right to decide who says what in a political environment is the right of the people and associations of people. They have that right. The Government does not have the right to restructure that and to limit their debate, even if it is aimed at us in the form of a negative ad and it hurts our feelings and we wish it had not happened. We do not have the right to tell people they cannot produce honest ads, hard-hitting ads against us. If we get that point, I submit, our country will be less free, you will have less ability to deal with incumbent politicians who may not be the kind that are best for America.

In the Buckley case the Court held that political contributions constitute protected speech under the first amendment.

I remain at this point almost stunned that earlier in this debate 40 Members of this Senate voted to amend the first amendment of the Constitution of the United States. Fortunately, no voted no. We had 38 vote yea in 1997 or 1998, and last year it dropped down to 33. But this year 40 voted for this amendment. It would have empowered Congress and States, government, to put limits on contributions and expenditures by candidates and groups in support of and in opposition to candidates for office. Just as they outlined in Buckley.

That is a thunderous power we were saying here, that we were going to empower State legislatures and the U.S. Congress to put limits on how much a person and group could expend in support of or in opposition to a candidate. Think about that. Where are our civil libertarian groups?

I have to give the ACLU credit, they have been consistent on this issue. They have said this is bad, and they have said so. But too many of our other groups—I don't know whether they are worried about the politics of it or what, but they have not grasped the danger to free speech and full debate we are having here.

It seems to me we are almost losing perspective and respect for the first amendment that protects us all. In this debate we have focused on what the courts have held with regard to the first amendment and campaign finance. I remain confident that significant portions of the legislation as it is now pending before us will be struck down by Federal courts.

We ought not to vote for something that is unconstitutional. We swore to uphold the Constitution. If we believe a bill is unconstitutional, we should not be passing it on the expectation that someday a court may strike it down, even if we like the goal. If it violates the Constitution, each of us has a duty, I believe, to vote no. The idea that we can pass a law that would say that within 60 days of an election a group of union people, a group of citizens, a group of people, cannot get together and run an ad to say that Jeff Sessions is a no-good skunk and ought not be elected to office, offends me. Why doesn't that go to the heart of freedom in America? Where is our free speech, crowd of citizens, cannot get together and run an ad to say that Jeff Sessions is a no-good skunk and ought not to be elected to office, offends me. Why doesn't that go to the heart of freedom in America?

Mr. President, I will proceed to see if I can close us out for the night.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent there now be a period for the transaction of routine morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE CONGRESSMAN NORMAN SISISKY

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I am joined by my colleague, Senator ALLEN. We would like to address the Senate for a period not to exceed 10 minutes.

Mr. President, today, just hours ago, Senator ALLEN and I were informed of the loss of one of our Members of Congress from the State of Virginia, Norman Sisisky. It has been my privilege to have served with him in Congress throughout his career. Our particular responsibilities related to the men and women of the Armed Forces—I serving on the Senate Committee on Armed Forces, and the House National Security Committee.

Our Nation has lost a great patriot in this wonderful man who started his public service career in 1945 as a young sailor in the U.S. Navy. In total, he served some 30 years, including his Naval service, service in the Virginia General Assembly, and in the service of the Congress of the United States.

The men and women of the Armed Forces owe this patriot a great deal, for he carried forth his earliest training in the Navy until the last breath he drew this morning. They were always, next to his family, foremost in his mind.

Throughout his legislative career in the Congress, many pieces of legislation bore his imprint and his wisdom on behalf of the men and women in the Armed Forces.

Mr. President, it is a great loss to the Commonwealth of Virginia, this distinguished public servant. It is a great loss to his devoted friends, a dedicated friend. My heart and my prayers go to his widow—a marriage of some 50 years—and to his family.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I just thank my two colleagues for bringing this information to the Senate. I came into the House of Representatives with NORM SIISIKY. What a terrific person he was to work with. He had a wonderful sense of humor, was very dedicated, as my friend pointed out, to his country. He was very patriotic, and he was a real fighter for his district.

I want to associate myself with the eloquent words of Senator WARNER and Senator ALLEN.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I echo the words of the senior Senator from Virginia, JOHN WARNER. NORM SIISIKY was a man who was loved all across Virginia. As the Senator said, he started his career in the Depression and served in the armed services. He also was a very successful businessman in the private sector. While he was a strong advocate for the armed services and the strength of our Nation, he also brought forth commonsense business principles of logistics and efficiency, whether it was in the days he was in the general assembly or in his many years of service in the U.S. House of Representatives.

He clearly was one of the leaders to whom people on both sides of the aisle would look. When there was a need for getting good, bipartisan support, obviously, folks would go to Senator WARNER. On the Democrat side, they looked to NORM SIISIKY. NORM SIISIKY cared a great deal, as Senator WARNER said, about the men and women who wear the uniform. He wanted to make sure they had the most advanced equipment, the most technologically advanced armaments for their safety when protecting our interests and freedoms abroad.

He was a true hero to many Virginians, not just in his district but all across the Commonwealth of Virginia, always bridging the partisan divides, trying to figure out what is the best thing for the people of America and also freedom-loving people around the world.

I will always remember NORM SIISIKY as a person. I will always remember that smiling face, and he had that deep voice and that deep laugh, hardy laugh.

He was one who was always exuberant, always passionate, no matter what the effort, what the cause. You could be standing on the corner waiting for the light to change, and NORM would be carrying on with great passion and vigor about whatever the issue was. He loved to have a good time. Here is the way we will maneuver through the bureaucracy to get this idea done.

He truly was a wonderful individual. Everyone here speaks of him as a fellow Member of the House of Representatives.

When I was Governor, this man went beyond the call of duty. We were trying to get the department of military affairs to move from Richmond to Fort Pickett to transform that base which had been closed.

NORM SIISIKY spent weeks talking with members on the other side of the aisle in the Virginia General Assembly, beyond the call of duty, to make sure we could move the headquarters to Fort Pickett and that the environmental aspects were cleaned up at no expense to the taxpayers, keep the facility open, and transform it to commercial use to benefit the entire Blackstone community.

The people in Southside Virginia will be forever grateful for what NORM SIISIKY did in making sure Fort Pickett is there as a military facility for guard units in the Army, as well as private enterprise efforts and helping protect the jobs and people of that community.

Mr. REID. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. ALLEN. I yield shortly.

Congressman NORM SIISIKY was a great Virginian. He was a great American. I know our thoughts and prayers are there for his wife Rhoda. I know at least two of his sons very well, Mark and Terry, as well as Richard and Stuart.

Our prayers and thoughts go out to them. We tell them: Please realize NORM still lives on in you, in your blood, and also his spirit.

We also share our grief with his very dedicated and loyal staff who shared his passion for the people of Virginia and the people of America.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, if I may add that a distinguished colleague said, we shall work together to see whether or not an appropriate portion of Fort Pickett—he just loved that base—can appropriately bear his name.

It would mean a great deal to the men and women of the armed forces. We will honor that.

Mr. ALLEN. That is a great idea.

Mr. REID. Will the Senator from Virginia yield?

Mr. ALLEN. Yes.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, as with Senator BOXER, I came to the House of Representatives in 1982. One of the freshman House Members was NORM SIISIKY. Like Senator ALLEN, I can see that smile. He had an infectious smile. He was a friend. I enjoyed my service with that class of 1982. Part of my memories will always be Norm Siisisky. I join in the comments made by my friends from Virginia and the Senator from California in recognizing a great public servant in Norm Siisisky.

Mr. WARNER. We thank our colleague for his remarks.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Will the Senator from Virginia yield?

Mr. WARNER. Yes.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I say to the Senators, oh, the gos-amer thread of life is not so quick-ly for such a great servant of the State of Virginia and of the United States of America with whom I had the privilege of serving in the House. He never met a man he did not like, and he was passionate about Government service. I thank my colleagues for calling this sad news to our attention and for the opportunity to respond.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, we thank our colleague.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, briefly, I do not claim a close relationship with Norm Siisisky, but I have had the great privilege of serving on the Armed Services Committee with Senator WARNER for the last 18 years, and I can remember every year when we would go into conference with the House of Representatives, Norm would be there. He would be championing the positions he felt strongly about and that were important to the people of Virginia. I also mourn his loss and recognize the important loss it is to Virginia and to this Congress.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, we thank our colleague.

TRIBUTE TO PUNCH GREEN

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, the great Oliver Wendell Holmes once said, “To live fully is to be engaged in the passions of one’s time.” Few Oregonians—and few Americans—have lived a life as full as Alan “Punch” Green’s. Alan Green was known to us who loved him as “Punch.” I say that few have lived a life as full as Punch’s because we have such a positive difference in the passions of our time.

Punch passed away last Friday at the age of 75. And as his many friends—myself included—struggle to get used to the fact that we can no longer call Punch for his straightforward advice, I would like to pay tribute here on the Senate floor to this remarkable Oregonian.

Punch was a member of what has been termed “The Greatest Generation.” Like so many others of that generation, Punch willingly risked his life for our country, as he served with distinction in the Pacific theater during World War II. And when he returned to Oregon following the war, Punch dedicated much of his life to making Oregon and America a better place in which to live, work, and raise a family.

He founded and ran a number of businesses, where he earned a reputation as a caring and fair manager. He became active in the Republican Party, serving as chair of campaigns for Presidents Ford, Reagan, and, until his death, President Bush. As Punch would be the first to say, he was always willing to lend a hand to those in need.

Punch loved his home city, the city of Portland, OR, and he understood the importance of ensuring that Portland remained true to its name. As a commissioner and as President of the Port of Portland, Punch skillfully guided the port through an era of major growth and expansion. Punch’s leadership on these issues came to the attention of President Reagan, who chose Punch to serve as chair of the Federal Maritime Commission, a post he filled with great skill for 4 years.

Punch was nearing what many consider “retirement age” in the 1980s, and he certainly had earned the right to take it easy and spend time with his family. But Punch was always willing to answer the call of his country, and former President Bush was calling. In 1989, Punch packed his bags and accepted President Bush’s request to serve as U.S. Ambassador to Romania. Punch arrived at the embassy in Bucharest just 2 weeks before the fall of the Ceausescu dictatorship. As tensions mounted in that country and explosions could be heard in the distance, Punch evacuated women and children from the embassy, and slept on his office couch for 10 days. Punch would later tell me that one of the highlights of his life was waving an American flag from the embassy window to the thunderous applause and cheers of thousands of Romanian citizens who were celebrating the end of Ceausescu’s bloody reign. Punch’s leadership in Romania at this critical time was recognized in 1992, when he received the State Department’s Distinguished Honor Award.

When his assignment in Romania came to its conclusion, Punch returned to Portland, where he continued to provide his inimitable leadership to a variety of worthy causes. One which was especially close to his heart was that of the Oregon Humane Society, which Punch helped to found and to which he was a vital force in Portland, thanks, in no small part, to Punch’s vision and generosity.

My thoughts today are with Punch’s wife, Joan, his three daughters, and eight grandchildren. The Greek poet Sophocles once wrote that “One must not wait until the evening to see how splendid the day has been.” Although Punch left us much too early, it is my prayer that those who loved him will take solace in the fact that as he neared the evening of his time here on Earth, Punch could look back at a life rich with family, rich with friends, and rich with making a difference in the passions of our time, and he could say that the day has indeed been splendid.

NATIONAL WOMEN’s HISTORY MONTH—RECOGNIZING PROMINENT WOMEN OF ARKANSAS

Mr. LINCOLN. Mr. President, as we celebrate the remaining days of National Women’s History Month, I want to call attention to several extraordinary women from my home state of Arkansas who have devoted their lives to improving our communities and lending a hand to those in need.

But before I talk about them individually, I first want to say a few words about a woman who is special not only to many generations of Arkansans but to the members of this body. That woman is Hattie Caraway.

In 1932, Hattie Caraway of Arkansas became the first woman ever elected to the United States Senate after winning a special election to fill the remaining months of her husband’s term. Arkansans elected her to the Senate two more times, and she served in the U.S. Senate until January, 1945.

Senator Caraway became the first woman to chair a Senate Committee and the first woman to take up the gavel on the Senate floor as the Senate’s presiding officer. And when she finished her term, her Senate colleagues honored her for her service with a standing ovation on the Senate floor. Quite a feat for a woman back in 1945 especially since women had just finished their term, her Senate colleagues honored her for her service with a standing ovation on the Senate floor. Quite a feat for a woman back in 1945 especially since women had just been granted the right to vote only 25 years earlier!

There is no doubt that Hattie Caraway’s service in the Senate paved the way for women seeking elective office. Thirty-one women have followed Hattie Caraway to the Senate, and today, a record high of 13 women are serving in the Senate at the same time. Combined with the 59 women in the U.S. House of Representatives, a record total of 72 women serve in the U.S. Congress today.

Another woman who is paving the way for women in politics in Arkansas is County Judge LaVerne Grayson. Judge Grayson last November became the first female county judge to serve Boone County, Arkansas.

Before attaining her leadership, Judge Grayson, a lawyer and Public Health Investigator Supervisor at the Arkansas Department of Health who helped establish one of the first AIDS programs in northwest Arkansas. She was also an active community leader, serving with the American Red Cross, the LPN Advisory Board, the Salvation Army, and the North Arkansas College Board of Trustees. Judge Grayson is revered for her talents and her ability to balance her time effectively between a busy career and family, something which all working mothers aspire to do.

Other female leaders in Arkansas government have taken their talents to universities. Dr. Jane Gates of University of Arkansas at Little Rock, has effectively promoted the contributions of African-Americans and has spearheaded a successful capital campaign drive to increase the college’s endowment. Under Dr. Reed’s leadership, the historically-black college has grown to be one of the best educational institutions in Central Arkansas. Over the past year, the college has received over $18 million dollars from various foundations and donors. With the money, the college will build a new library and a new science building.

Other women I want to mention today have made great contributions to their communities. Spurred by the tremendous love and joy she has experienced from adopting two children from Korea and Thailand, Connie Fails of Little Rock has reached out to many families throughout Arkansas and across the nation to help them adopt a child internationally.

In addition to running a successful clothing boutique in Little Rock, Connie works in her spare time as an international adoption escort, traveling to foreign countries and escorting adoptive children to new homes all across the United States. She has also served as the private sector representative to the White House for the Hague Convention. Connie has helped many children, particularly disabled children from disadvantaged countries, find safe, permanent, and loving homes.

In the past two years, Donna has been the Chairman of Interfaith Help Services, which is a... seven-member church collaborative effort that provides financial assistance to underprivileged residents in the form of medical assistance, dental assistance, monthly expense assistance, and a food pantry.

I recently nominated Donna for the Mitsubishi Motors Unsung Heroine Award, which honors women who have gone beyond the call of duty to serve those in need. Mitsubishi has donated $5,000 to Interfaith Help Services, and PBS will produce a documentary about Donna this spring. I am so proud and grateful for Donna’s incredible efforts. Under her leadership, Interfaith Help Services has helped over 6,900 single parents, children, and families since 1991.

As we recognize the great accomplishments women have made over the centuries, it is with great respect and admiration that I pay personal tribute to the women of Arkansas today. Their achievements in the areas of government, education, and community service have made them outstanding local role models for young women and girls who aspire to positive differences in their communities.

As the youngest woman to ever serve in the U.S. Senate, I share their desire to make our nation a better place for our children. I am humbled by and thankful for their work and am glad to have the opportunity to recognize them today.

BILL RADIGAN OF VERMILLION, SOUTH DAKOTA

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I was deeply saddened today to learn of the passing of a dedicated public servant and a dear friend to South Dakota and to me, Bill Radigan spent his entire life serving those around him, and he will certainly be missed.

As a young man, Bill joined the Army Air Corps, so that he could serve his country during World War II. After the war, he returned to his hometown of Vermillion, SD to continue what would become a lifelong commitment to public service. He served Clay County with the U.S. Postal Service for 35 years and coordinated Vermillion’s school bus system. Thousands across the State benefited from Bill’s work with the American Legion and the VFW, where he served as secretary of the South Dakota Teener Baseball program for more than 30 years, and as State Quartermaster/Adjunct for nearly 50 years. For 55 years he was a member of the Vermillion Volunteer Fire Department, where he served as secretary-treasurer. Bill was a dedicated husband to his wife Susie, the loving father of 11, and a grandfather to many.

In 1988, Bill ran for, and was elected to, the Vermillion City Council. Six years later he was elected mayor. Vermillion has been well served by its mayor, and, under his leadership, the city has embarked on a number of exciting projects that will sustain the community’s prosperity well into the future.

Bill Radigan’s list of accomplishments is certainly impressive. But those activities only began to scratch the surface of who Bill was and why he will be missed. Bill didn’t engage in public service because he wanted to add to a list of accomplishments. He simply saw something that needed to be done, and he stepped forward to answer the call. From serving in the military, to agreeing to help drive busloads of children to school, no job was too daunting, or too insignificant, for Bill Radigan.

As a mayor, Bill was universally recognized as someone who was fair, who truly valued citizen involvement in the governing process, and who cared deeply about his community. From the business community to college students, Bill Radigan truly valued every Vermillion citizen’s thoughts on the issues confronting the city. I have never heard of anyone who thought they were treated unfairly by Bill Radigan, and even those with whom he disagreed found him sincere and honest. Bill Radigan was effective because he based every decision he made as mayor on what he thought was best for the community. We could all learn a lot from Bill Radigan’s commitment to his community and his approach to government.

I wish to express my sincere condolences to Bill Radigan’s family and to the people of Vermillion. Mayor Radigan was a dedicated father, a model public servant, and a wonderful person. We will miss him.

BUDGET SCOREKEEPING REPORT

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I hereby submit to the Senate the budget scorekeeping report prepared by the Congressional Budget Office under section 308(b) and in aid of section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended. This report meets the requirements for Senate scorekeeping of section 5 of S. Con. Res. 32, the First Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for 1986.

This report shows the effects of congressional action on the 2001 budget through March 26, 2001. The estimates of budget authority, outlays, and revenues are consistent with the technical and economic assumptions of H. Con. Res. 290, the Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for Fiscal Year 2001.

Since my last report, dated January 25, 2001, the Congress has taken no action that has changed budget authority, outlays, or revenues.

Sincerely,

STEVEN LIEBERMAN
(For Dan L. Crippen, Director).

Enclosures.

TABLE 1.—FISCAL YEAR 2001 SENATE CURRENT LEVEL REPORT, AS OF MARCH 23, 2001

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Budget authority</th>
<th>Current level</th>
<th>Current level over/ under resolution</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Revenue Outlays:</td>
<td>1,534.5</td>
<td>1,568.4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Outlays</td>
<td>1,495.9</td>
<td>1,517.7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Debt Over $21.8 b</td>
<td>1,543.4</td>
<td>1,568.4</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1 Less than $50 million.

TABLE 2.—SUPPORTING DETAIL FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 2001 SENATE CURRENT LEVEL REPORT FOR ON-BUDGET SPENDING AND REVENUES, AS OF MARCH 26, 2001

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Budget authority</th>
<th>Outlays</th>
<th>Revenues</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>ENACTED PREVIOUS SESSIONS</td>
<td>n.a.</td>
<td>n.a.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total, enacted in previous sessions</td>
<td>1,585,189</td>
<td>1,517,218</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1 Less than $50 million.
Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, earlier this week a Today Show reporter interviewed Mr. Bob Stuber, a former police officer from California, who maintains a website called Escapeschool.com. Mr. Stuber's website gives advice to students who may one day find themselves caught in the crossfire of a shooting at school. The former police officer offers practical information in this day and age, such as what gunfire sounds like, what to do when a student hears gunfire, and what a student should look for in a hiding place. It is simply heart breaking that this type of advice is even necessary. Yet, students in school are increasingly worried for their safety. Escapeschool.com is a valuable resource because in addition to giving advice to students, it also gives advice to schools and communities to try to prevent such shootings, and information for parents who want to communicate with their children about these events. I encourage students and parents to look at this website and talk to each other about some of the dangers associated with guns. I also encourage my colleagues to look at the website with the hope that we in Congress can re-start a dialogue about how to limit youth access to guns and reduce such shootings in American schools.

I ask consent to print in the Record excerpts from the transcript of the interview with Mr. Bob Stuber.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

SURVIVING SCHOOL VIOLENCE

Mr. STUBER. One of the very first things a student needs to know is that it's very hard for a student to turn a corner because bullets don't turn corners. If you're going to hide and you pick a car, you want to hide at the front of the car because there's no front of the car that can stop a bullet. The middle of the car, the back of the car can't. Those little tips, and they're not frightening, those little tips are the things that make a difference.

O'BRIEN. Do you think a student should hide in— in a shooting?

Mr. STUBER. Yeah, absolutely. What we think students should do first of all is— is, know the difference between cover and concealment. What they want is find is cover. For instance, a big tree with a giant trunk, that's cover. That will hide you and protect you. A hedge is concealment. It will hide you, but it won't protect you. Students have to find a place to hide where they can be safe. So, you have to get out of there. So then you have to find them, what to look for in a hiding spot.

O'BRIEN. If students are inside the classroom, is the best advice to stay inside the classroom? Or is the best advice to leave that classroom as soon as possible?

Mr. STUBER. It really—it really depends. Here's the absolute no-brainer. If you're sitting in the classroom, the teacher can lock the door. You can line up against the— the opposite wall, and—and you're going to be safe, that's fine. But if the shooter is coming down the hall, and it's coming to your classroom, you have to get out of there. So then you have to know, how should I get out? Should I go down the hall or should I go to the window, try to escape through the window? You know, we work with kids all the time. We— we set scenarios up. In one case I remember, we had kids go to the window and they made an exit. You have to tell them that.

O'BRIEN. In one recent school shooting, there was an armed officer inside the school which managed to bring the shooting to a close pretty quickly.

Mr. STUBER. Right.

O'BRIEN. Do you think then that that's an indication that there are more officers in schools? Schools should have armed officers in the hallways?

Mr. STUBER. Well, you know, in the last two shootings, it kind of helped out, but they have strong evidence that says it's a preventative tool. It was good that they were there. I'm not so sure schools have to go in that direction. There's so little data right now that to recommend that is very speculative observation. So right now what we're trying to center on is the techniques that the students themselves can practice while all the data is being collected to make definitive prevention programs.

O'BRIEN. They didn't believe them. How do you make the threats actually get to the notice of the teachers?

Mr. STUBER. That is a big deal. You know, in almost every one of the shootings there has been threats, rumors or jokes. And some students haven't reported them. One of the reasons some students give is that there was no system for reporting anonymously. Schools have to provide a system where the student can report anonymously. It— because if the person finds out that you're the one that reported him, you—you may end up getting in more trouble. So students are reluctant to report. They're also thinking, well, I'm going to get my friend in trouble. 'Let's keep this like being at the airport. No jokes allowed in this area. Parents and schools have to tell them, report. Even a joke, you have to report.

O'BRIEN. Some good advice.

RADIATION EXPOSURE COMPENSATION ACT

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to imagine the following nightmare:

You have spent years in the uranium mines helping to build America's nuclear programs. As a result, you have contracted a debilitating and too often deadly radiation-related disease that has caused severe emotional and physical suffering. Most of life's joys have long since ended.

Your only solace is that the government is going to pay you compensation for your suffering. Certainly, the money will never be enough to compensate you for what you've lost, but at least your medical bills will be paid. At least, if you lose this fight your family will be left with money.

However, when you open the Justice Department letter that you have long awaited, it reads:

I am pleased to inform you that your claim for compensation under the Radiation Exposure Compensation Act has been approved. Regrettably, because the money available to pay claims has been exhausted, we are unable to send a compensation payment to you at this time. When Congress provides additional funds, we will contact you to commence the payment process. Thank you for your understanding.

Unfortunately, my fellow Senators, this is not a bad dream, but rather the terrible reality for hundreds of uranium miners, federal workers, and downwinders who have contracted these deadly radiation-related diseases. One such individual is Bob Key.

Bob Key helped build our nation's nuclear arsenal and endured the Cold War through his difficult work as a uranium miner. Little did he know that at the time the uranium was slowly ravaging his body. As a result, Mr. Key

---

TABLE 2.—SUPPORTING DETAIL FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 2001 SENATE CURRENT LEVEL REPORT FOR ON-BUDGET SPENDING AND REVENUES, AS OF MARCH 26, 2001—Continued

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Budget Authority</th>
<th>Outlays</th>
<th>Revenues</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Total Current Level</td>
<td>1,568,446</td>
<td>1,517,737</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Current Level (Unbudgeted) Resolution</td>
<td>1,534,546</td>
<td>1,495,024</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Current Level (Unbudgeted) Resolution</td>
<td>33,900</td>
<td>21,813</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note: n.a. = not applicable.

Source: Congressional Budget Office.
has spent many years enduring the grueling pain associated with pulmonary fibrosis, which requires him to be hoisted into an oxygen tank for hours on end. Recently, Mr. Key, 61, needed a tracheotomy simply to help him breathe.

Yet, despite his enormous suffering, Mr. Key has not received the $100,000 compensation from the government for which he is entitled under the Radiation Exposure Compensation Act of 1990. Instead, he received a five-line IOU from the Justice Department stating that there was not enough money to indemnify him for his suffering. This is a disgrace.

Unfortunately, Mr. Key’s horror story is a familiar one for many uranium miners, federal workers, and downwinders from New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona, and Utah. In some cases, the miners have died and their loved ones are left holding nothing but a Justice Department IOU. In 1990, when we passed the Domenici-authored Radiation Exposure Compensation Act, we never envisioned that these miners would receive IOUs. However, the fund is now bankrupt because of expansions in the program and Congress’ failure to appropriate enough money.

This injustice must be rectified. I rise today to urge my colleagues to remedy this lack of funding. Those who gave so much for our nation’s security through their work on our nuclear programs must be compensated for the enormous price they paid. Anything less is unacceptable.

Senator Harkin and I have introduced two bills that will provide full funding for the Radiation Exposure Compensation Trust Fund. We proposed legislation seeking $84 million in emergency supplemental appropriations to pay those claims that have already been approved as well as the projected number of approved claims for fiscal year 2001. This legislation would also make all future payments for approved claims mandatory.

With this legislation, we will ensure that those who gave so much for our nation will at least receive their deserved benefits. We must never again let their sacrifice go unanwered. I again ask my Senate colleagues to help us right this wrong and give these veterans the just compensation they deserve.

I ask unanimous consent that the March 27 New York Times article be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE.

[From the New York Times, March 27, 2001]

ILL URANIUM MINERS LEFT WAITING AS PAYMENTS FOR EXPOSURE LAPSE

(As printed in the RECORD)

By Michael Janosky

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., March 20.—For all the reminders of Bob Key’s cold war effort, mining has been his worst compensation. I ask unanimous consent that the March 27 New York Times article be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE.

[From the New York Times, March 27, 2001]

ILL URANIUM MINERS LEFT WAITING AS PAYMENTS FOR EXPOSURE LAPSE

(As printed in the RECORD)

By Michael Janosky

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., March 20.—For all the reminders of Bob Key’s cold war effort, mining has been his worst compensation.

I ask unanimous consent that the March 27 New York Times article be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE.
The 25th Anniversary of the Washington Metro

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, tomorrow, March 29, 2001, the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority will celebrate the 25th Anniversary of passenger service on the Metro-rail system. I want to take this opportunity to congratulate WMATA on this important occasion and to recognize the extraordinary contribution Metro has made to this region and to our Nation.

For the past quarter century, the Washington Metro system has served as a shining example of a public investment in the Washington Metropolitan area’s future. It provides a unified and coordinated transportation system for the region, enhances mobility for the millions of residents, visitors and the federal workforce in the region, promotes orderly growth and development of the region, enhances our environment, and preserves the beauty and dignity of our Nation’s Capital. It is also an example of an unparalleled partnership that spans every level of government from city to state to federal.

Since passenger service first began in 1976, Metrorail has grown from a 4.6 mile, five station, 22,000 passenger service to a comprehensive 103-mile, 83 station, and 600,000 passenger system serving the entire metropolitan region, and with even more service and stations on a fast track toward completion. Today, the Metro system is the second busiest rapid transit operation in the country, carrying nearly one-fifth of the region’s daily commuters traveling to the metropolitan core and taking more than 270,000 vehicles off the roads every day. It is also one of the finest, cleanest, safest and most reliable transportation systems in the Nation.

Reaching this important milestone has not been an easy task, by any measure. It took extraordinary vision and perseverance to build the 103 mile subway system over the past twenty-five years and, as the Washington Post has recently underscored in two articles about the Metro system, it will require an equal or even greater commitment to address the challenges that lie ahead. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the first of these articles be printed in the Record.

The text of the first of these articles be printed in the Record. I ask unanimous consent that the following be printed in the Record:

The great communities throughout the world are the ones that have worked to preserve and enhance their historic and natural resources; provide good transportation systems for citizens to move to their places of employment and to public facilities freely; and invest in neighborhoods and local business districts. These are among the things that are unique to the lifestyle of our communities and enrich the lives of our citizens. I submit that the Metro system and the regional cooperation which it has helped foster has helped make this region a community in which we can all be proud.

This week is a tribute to everyone involved in the continuing intergovernmental effort to provide mass transit to the people of the Washington Metropolitan area—those local, State and federal officials who had the vision to begin this project 25 years ago and who have worked so steadfastly over the years to support the system. This foresight has been well rewarded and I join in celebrating this special occasion.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

[From the Washington Post, Mar. 25, 2001]

REGION’S SUBWAY SYSTEM BEGINS TO SHOW ITS AGE

(By Lyndsey Layton)

As Washington’s Metro trains hummed to life 25 years ago, few people didn’t know what to expect. It was, after all, among the first U.S. subway systems built from scratch, rather than cobbled together from several existing railroads, as in New York and Boston.

But from its opening on March 27, 1976, Metro was a new American monument. Embadged partners from city and from suburb, old and young, able and disabled,” said Zachary Schrag, a graduate student at Columbia University who is writing his dissertation about the Metro. “And they actually treat each other pretty civilly most of the time.”

MOVING PEOPLE

Alan Sussman studies Torah on the Red Line. Frank Lloyd takes his twin girls for all-day rides as a cheap diversion. Oren Hirsch, 14, always tries to claim the seat directly behind the operator so he can peer through the smoked-glass window and watch the controls and the track bed rushing under the train.

Metro is carrying about 600,000 passengers a day on its trains and 500,000 on buses, making it the nation’s second-busiest transit system behind New York’s.

It’s a ranking that none of the original planners dreamed of when they were designing the system in the late 1960s.

“I’m a believer, and it has even outstripped my expectations,” said Cleatus Barnett, 73, who was appointed to the Metro board of directors in 1971 and is the longest continually serving member.

The subway takes more than 270,000 cars off the road each day, Metro officials say. Those cars would have used more than 12 million gallons of gasoline and seeded 30 additional highway lanes and 1,800 acres of parking.

Mary Margaret Whipple, a state senator from Arlington and a past member of the Metro board, puts it this way, “One hundred thousand people a day go underneath Arlington on the Metro system instead of through Arlington in their cars.”

As highway traffic gets worse, subway ridership has soared. Ridership records are shattered, particularly as part of a robust economy, strong tourism, a new transit subsidy extended to federal workers and raises that haven’t increased since 1995.

AN EARLY VISION

Before it opened, Metro had trouble recruiting workers, who were wary about toil in the dark underground. “All people knew about subways was New York,” said Christopher Scipp, a Cleveland Park Station manager, who was a Metrobus driver when he became one of the first subway employees.

The architect, Harry M. Weese, had been sent on a tour of European subways with instructions to combine the world’s best designs into a new American monorail. Weese dreamed big, and a legion of engineers followed his concept to launch a transit system that would eventually cost $9.4 billion and stretch 103 miles across two rivers, two states and the District.

With their coffered concrete arches and flying buttresses, the mezzanines are lit by skylights. This week’s celebration is a tribute to the Metro system that would eventually cost $9.4 billion and stretch 103 miles across two rivers, two states and the District. With their coffered concrete arches and flying buttresses, the mezzanines are lit by skylights. This week’s celebration is a tribute to the Metro system that would eventually cost $9.4 billion and stretch 103 miles across two rivers, two states and the District.
They plotted a hub-and-spoke pattern of five lines running north-south from the suburbs to the center of the District to ferry federal workers from homes to offices. But development patterns have since changed, creating suburban communities and office centers far from the subway lines in upper Montgomery, Howard, Southern Maryland, western Fairfax, Loudoun and Prince William counties, since the proposed intercounty connector linking I-270 and I-66 has been sidelined.

Metro planners are also looking at ways to connect Prince George’s County with Alexandria running rail over the new Woodrow Wilson Bridge.

Metro has started several new suburb-to-suburban bus routes, though it acknowledges buses are a rapid rail service.

CHANGING COMMUNITIES

The original 103-mile Metro system was finished in January, when the final five stations opened on the Green Line in the District and Prince George’s. While Metro is primarily a people mover, it also can change the look and feel of a community, for better or worse. Even in neighborhoods that waited many years for Metro service, people have mixed feelings about living on the subway line.

“The moveable transportation is, the more likely developers are going to come into your neighborhood and price you out,” said Brenda Richardson, a consultant who runs her firm, Women Like Us, from her rented home five blocks from the new Congress Heights Station. “People here are worried about being displaced. We feel like we stayed here when things were bad, and now that the community is a prime place for development, we’re going to be bootied out.” Gentrification to a lot of black folks means the white folks are coming.

Communities like Arlington and Bethesda either require affordable housing near Metro stations or offer incentives to developers who set aside a portion of a project to affordable housing.

Richardson wants a similar protection in the District. “I don’t like the idea that Metro can destabilize communities,” she said. “There needs to be some sort of policy that is set so that when Metro comes into neighborhoods, developers are not at liberty to push out longtime residents, seniors and renters.”

Exactly how Metro changes a community has plenty to do with the decisions made by the community’s own planners and leaders.

Metro is the reason some places, like Bethesda or the stretch between Rosslyn and Ballston in Arlington, have seen thriving mixed-use developments while other spots, such as Rhode Island Avenue in the District or Addison Road in Prince George’s where stations have been so are relatively isolated and undeveloped.

ARLINGTON’S MODEL

Arlington County is widely seen as the gold standard for molding growth around Metro. Along the five-station corridor from Rosslyn to Ballston, which opened in 1979, Arlington leveraged the subway stations to attract jobs, housing and commercial development.

“There is no better success story,” said Stewart Casey, of the Coalition for Smarter Growth.

The story starts with Arlington leaders, who recognized early on that Metro could be more than a commuter transit system; its proximity to the important commercial corridor between Rosslyn and Ballston.

They fought to change the route of the Orange Line when it opened along the median of I-66, and convinced Arlington tax-payers it would be worthwhile to pay extra to burrow the subway underground and pull it south to run between Wilson and Clarendon boulevards.

They worked with residents to establish a vision for the development they wanted and wrote zoning laws to make it happen. The plan was high-density, high-rise office, retail and residential space next to the stations, with a gradual tapering in height so that single-family homes remained untouched just two or three blocks away.

The streets around the stations welcome pedestrians, not cars. There is no Metro parking.

“We were willing to go through a major community transformation in order to maximize the value of this transit system,” Whipple said. “The feeling was that people could live and work near transit, and it should have a beneficial effect. And it has. We simply don’t have the kinds of traffic problems that exist elsewhere.”

With offices, shops and housing near Metro, the station becomes as much a destination as origin. Trains are full coming and going.

That’s not the case for most suburban Metro stations. “Most of the trains leave most of the stations most of the time essentially empty,” said Ed Risser, a Vienna-based consultant who has closely studied the link between urban development and public transit. “The problem is that it’s crowded and uncomfortable. But going in at midday and out in the morning, there are huge amounts of unused capacity. Looking ahead to the 21st century, we need to much more efficiently use that capacity.”

OTHER APPROACHES

Fairfax County, meanwhile, largely squashed attempts to develop commercial and retail property around its Orange Line Metro stations. Risser worked on five different projects to develop land around the Vienna Metro station—they all failed to win approval.

County supervisors said they recognize that some development may be healthy at some stations and have approved a new zoning category that allows higher-density projects near Metro.

But Risser said the county is far from ready to embrace “transit villages.”

“If you understand the transit-related development at Vienna or any of those stations, it’s a long, arduous process,” he said. “There are vocal people who want to drive to the station, and the large property owners want others to drive to the station so they can keep driving. And the third group lives near the station and doesn’t want anything built there.”

By contrast, Prince George’s County has struggled to lure developers to its Metro stations. Most of its larger employers near its stations are government agencies. Many of its stations are hard to reach by foot and are surrounded by large parking lots or garages.

“Prince George’s took a $10 billion investment and put it on the shelf,” Schwartz said. “The contractor Joe was, ‘Okay, I’m going to build the spur stations for the spur lines to Prince George’s—not any other jurisdiction—and little development.’”

Prince George’s planners forecast little additional development 25 years from now. Using projections made by local counties, Virginia’s Regional Transportation Planning Board. Transit advocates have been lobbying for several years for a Purple Line to connect Bethesda in Montgomery County with New Carrollton in Prince George’s County. Advocates say the Purple Line is the best bet for a fast connection between the counties, since the proposed intercounty connector linking I-270 and I-66 has been sidelined.

Metro has started several new suburb-to-suburb bus routes, though it acknowledges buses are a rapid rail service.

ROADS AND RAILS

Critics, such as the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, say Metro could be more aggressive in developing projects around its stations and use so much land and highway capacity for parking.

Metro was one of the first transit agencies in the country to sell or lease land it owns near stations. To date, Metro has approved about 40 such projects, of which 27 have been built and generate about $6 million in annual revenue for the agency. Metro has identified about 400 additional acres it wants to develop.

ARLINGTON’S MODEL

Arlington County is widely seen as the gold standard for molding growth around Metro. Along the five-station corridor from Rosslyn to Ballston, which opened in 1979, Arlington leveraged the subway stations to attract jobs, housing and commercial development.

“If you understand the transit-related development at Vienna or any of those stations, it’s a long, arduous process,” he said. “There are vocal people who want to drive to the station, and the large property owners want others to drive to the station so they can keep driving. And the third group lives near the station and doesn’t want anything built there.”

By contrast, Prince George’s County has struggled to lure developers to its Metro stations. Most of its larger employers near its stations are government agencies. Many of its stations are hard to reach by foot and are surrounded by large parking lots or garages.

“Prince George’s took a $10 billion investment and put it on the shelf,” Schwartz said. “The contractor Joe was, ‘Okay, I’m going to build the spur stations for the spur lines to Prince George’s—not any other jurisdiction—and little development.’”

Prince George’s planners forecast little additional development 25 years from now. Using projections made by local counties, Virginia’s Regional Transportation Planning Board. Transit advocates have been lobbying for several years for a Purple Line to connect Bethesda in Montgomery County with New Carrollton in Prince George’s County. Advocates say the Purple Line is the best bet for a fast connection between the counties, since the proposed intercounty connector linking I-270 and I-66 has been sidelined.

Metro has started several new suburb-to-suburb bus routes, though it acknowledges buses are a rapid rail service.

CHANGING COMMUNITIES

The original 103-mile Metro system was finished in January, when the final five stations opened on the Green Line in the District and Prince George’s. While Metro is primarily a people mover, it also can change the look and feel of a community, for better or worse. Even in neighborhoods that waited many years for Metro service, people have mixed feelings about living on the subway line.

“The moveable transportation is, the more likely developers are going to come into your neighborhood and price you out.” said Brenda Richardson, a consultant who runs her firm, Women Like Us, from her rented home five blocks from the new Congress Heights Station. “People here are worried about being displaced. We feel like we stayed here when things were bad, and now that the community is a prime place for development, we’re going to be bootied out.” Gentrification to a lot of black folks means the white folks are coming.

Communities like Arlington and Bethesda either require affordable housing near Metro stations or offer incentives to developers who set aside a portion of a project to affordable housing.

Richardson wants a similar protection in the District. “I don’t like the idea that Metro can destabilize communities,” she said. “There needs to be some sort of policy that is set so that when Metro comes into neighborhoods, developers are not at liberty to push out longtime residents, seniors and renters.”

Exactly how Metro changes a community has plenty to do with the decisions made by the community’s own planners and leaders.

Metro is the reason some places, like Bethesda or the stretch between Rosslyn and Ballston in Arlington, have seen thriving mixed-use developments while other spots, such as Rhode Island Avenue in the District or Addison Road in Prince George’s where stations have been so are relatively isolated and undeveloped.

Arlington’s Model

Arlington County is widely seen as the gold standard for molding growth around Metro. Along the five-station corridor from most of the stations along the highway, Risse said. They want stations of the new millennium to be built on platforms over the highway that would also support stores, offices and housing—all of it rising into the sky.

"While there is record ridership and we are doing a good job, it's like having a Class C basketball team beating all its opponents and saying that's good enough," Risse said.

"But there's Class B and Class A and Class AA. There's no reason this transit system can't be Class AA."

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF RED TAPE REDUCTION ACT

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, five years ago today the Congress, without dissent in the Senate, took a historic step in reigniting in the federal government's regulatory machine and protecting the interest of small businesses. My Red Tape Reduction Act, what others call the SBREFA panel process has had a very positive experience with this panel process for making these changes accomplished effectively on their own.

This act provides a number of provisions that have proven to make the regulatory process more attentive to the impact on small businesses, and consequently less fair, more efficient and more effective. Perhaps the best known of these provisions is the requirement that OSHA and EPA convene panels to receive comments from small businesses before their regulations are proposed. This gives these agencies the unique opportunity to learn up front what the problems with their regulation may be, and to correct these problems when it will cause the least difficulty. This has resulted in significant changes being made, and in one case even removing a regulation because they recognized that the industry could deal with the issue more effectively on their own.

Experience with this panel process had proven to be an unequivocal success. The former chief counsel for advocacy of the Small Business Administration stated that, "Unquestionably, the SBREFA panel process has had a very salutary impact on the regulatory deliberations of OSHA and EPA, resulting in major changes to draft regulations. What is important to note is that these changes were accomplished without sacrificing the agencies public policy objectives."

Another provision of the Red Tape Reduction Act that was just exercised, was the Congressional Review Act, which gave Congress the ability to invalidate those regulations determined to be truly egregious and beyond repair. Thankfully, we had this measure available when needed to fix the Clinton OSHA ergonomics regulation, which was a monument to regulatory excess and failure to appreciate the impact on small businesses.

Finally, one other provision of the Red Tape Reduction Act is just now being exercised. The Red Tape Reduction Act corrected the Regulatory Flexibility Act's lack of enforcement by giving interested parties the opportunity to bring a legal challenge when they believed that an agency is in non-compliance. Litigation is now moving through the courts that takes advantage of this provision and will hold agencies accountable for their actions.

While the Red Tape Reduction Act has been a resounding success, it is clear that more needs to be done. Too many agencies are still trying to evade the requirements to conduct regulatory flexibility analyses that will identify the small business impacts of their regulations. We now realize that agencies should be required to conduct small business review panels so that their regulations will impose the least amount of burden while still achieving the mission of the agency. These and shall be addressed in future legislation that I will introduce. For now, let us all appreciate and celebrate the benefits that the Red Tape Reduction Act brought to both the agencies and small businesses.

WORK OPPORTUNITY IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2001

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, it is with great pride and pleasure that I join my colleague and friend, Senator JEFFORDS, to introduce S. 626, the Work Opportunity Improvement Act of 2001. This legislation would permanently extend the Work Opportunity Tax Credit, WOTC, and the Welfare-to-Work, W-T-W, tax credit. The measure would also modify WOTC's eligibility criteria to help those receiving food stamps qualify for the credit.

Over the past 5 years these tax credits have played an integral part in helping a million and a half of America's working poor transition into the workforce. WOTC was enacted in September of 1996, and W-T-W a year later, in order to provide employers with the financial resources they would need to recruit, hire, and retain individuals who have significant barriers to work. Traditionally, employers have been resistant to hiring those coming off the welfare rolls not only because they tended to be less educated and have little work place experience, but also because welfare dependency fosters self esteem problems which need to be surmounted. But these hiring tax incentives have proven effective because employers can be enticed to overcome their natural resistance to hiring less skilled, economically dependent individuals provided they are supplied adequate financial incentives. No other hiring tax incentive or training program has been nearly as successful as WOTC and W-T-W in encouraging employers to change their hiring practices.

A vibrant public-private partnership has developed over the past 5 years where-by government has provided the incentives and program administration support required to induce employers to participate. Employers have responded by changing their hiring practices. Many employers have established outreach and recruitment programs to target eligible individuals. States have made these programs more employer-friendly by continually improving the way they are administered. But time and again, we hear from both employers and the State job services, which administer the programs, that the continued uncertainty surrounding short-term extensions impedes expanded participation and improvements in program administration. A permanent extension would introduce many of the employers now participating to expand their recruitment efforts and encourage the States to commit more time and effort to perfecting their administration of the program. This in turn would mean that even more individuals would be helped to transition from welfare dependency to work. Precisely because these programs have proven to be such successes over the past 5 years that we believe they should be made permanent.

In addition to making the WOTC and W-T-W programs permanent, our legislation would improve the WOTC program by increasing the age ceiling in the food stamp category from age 21 to age 51. This would greatly improve the job prospects for many absentee fathers and other vulnerable males who are less likely to qualify under other categories. Making absentee fathers eligible for the WOTC credits would provide employers with the incentive to hire them and in so doing provide them support required to induce employers, responsibility and community involvement that are essential first steps to their assuming their responsibility as parents.

We urge our colleagues to join us in cosponsoring this important legislation to permanently extend the Work Opportunity Tax Credit and Welfare-to-Work tax credit programs.

THE VERY BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, at the close of business yesterday, Wednesday, March 28, 2001, the Federal debt stood at $5,734,570,704,808.99. Five trillion, seven hundred thirty-four billion, five hundred seventy million, seven hundred thousand, eighty dollars and ninety-nine cents.

One year ago, March 28, 2000, the Federal debt stood at $5,733,742,000,000. Five trillion, seven hundred thirty-three billion, seven hundred seventy million.

Five years ago, March 28, 1996, the Federal debt stood at $5,071,792,000,000. Five trillion, seventy-one billion, seven hundred ninety-two million.
Ten years ago, March 28, 1991, the Federal debt stood at $3,460,371,000,000. Three trillion, four hundred sixty billion, three hundred seventy-one million.

Fifteen years ago, March 28, 1986, the Federal debt stood at $1,981,783,000,000. One trillion, nine hundred eighty-one billion, seven hundred eighty-three million, eight hundred eighty-seven million, seven hundred eighty-three million.

$3,752,787,704,080.99, Three trillion, seven hundred fifty-two billion, seven hundred eighty-seven million, four hundred eighty-seven thousand, ninety-nine.

On Monday morning, Dec. 17, 1982, I returned from my honeymoon and found multiple phone messages from Rowly Evans on my desk in the Wall Street Journal's Washington bureau. Evans, a reporter for the New York Herald-Tribune, asked me at a subsequent lunch to collaborate with him in a daily newspaper column.

The goal was a product short on ideology, long on reporting and personal analysis. Our first column appeared on May 15, 1983, and ran in this space under our double byline until Evans retired from the column 30 years later. Over the years, we became partners in personal and professional life, but we promised ourselves that every column would contain some information, major or minor, and that we would never report without precedent.

We kept that promise, thanks to Evans' energies. Several obituaries noting the death of Rowland Evans from cancer on March 23 described him as a conservative. More appropriately, he should be remembered as a reporter and a patriot.

His model was the column written by the Alsop brothers—Joseph and Stewart—who combined dogged reporting with a passion for the security of the United States. Like Joe Alsop, Evans belonged to the Washington black-tie dinner parties, still flourishing when our column began.

Rowly snagged stories on the Georgetown party circuit, including an exclusive on U.S. plans for an electronic wall to protect south Vietnam from Viet Cong infiltration, the next day's front page. He pioneered in-depth, heavily footnoted reporting, featuring relentless interrogation of sources. Senators, Cabinet members and anonymous sources were grilled at lunch or broadcast on the Metropolitan Club radio—Evans himself facing a questioner who insisted on answers. He traveled everywhere for stories, covering the Vietnam, Six-Day and Gulf wars, often at great physical risk.

Readers who thought they could spot the principal author of our columns would be surprised to learn that I was not responsible for "Reassessing Goldwater," published on April 9, 1964. Since at that time I had close contact with Sen. Barry Goldwater, it was assumed that I had written the column disputing the conventional wisdom that Mr. Conservative was dead for the Republican presidential nomination. After much shoeleather reporting, Evans came to the conclusion that Goldwater quite likely would be the nominee.

He flourished when reporting on national security, using all sources both prominent and shadowy. He was ahead of everybody in forecasting the breakdown of Soviet satellite rule in Poland and Czechoslovakia. In 1979, after another exposed Soviet cheating on arms control agreements that U.S. officials tried to ignore, Evans considered that work the high point of his lifelong career.

Nothing he did ever caused more trouble than his tough reporting on Israeli intrusions.

IN MEMORY OF ROWLAND EVANS
• Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, the best example of the free press was Rowland Evans and the best brief on this outstanding morning was from his partner, Robert D. Novak, in the Washington Post, Thursday, March 29. I ask consent that the brief be included in the RECORD for his friends that knew him and for the millions more that were informed by his writing.

The brief follows: [From the Washington Post, Mar. 29, 2001]

ROWLAND EVANS, REPORTER
(By Robert D. Novak)

On Monday morning, Dec. 17, 1982, I returned from my honeymoon and found multiple phone messages from Rowly Evans on my desk in the Wall Street Journal's Washington bureau. Evans, a reporter for the New York Herald-Tribune, asked me at a subsequent lunch to collaborate with him in a daily newspaper column.

The goal was a product short on ideology, long on reporting and personal analysis. Our first column appeared on May 15, 1983, and ran in this space under our double byline until Evans retired from the column 30 years later. Over the years, we became partners in personal and professional life, but we promised ourselves that every column would contain some information, major or minor, and that we would never report without precedent.

We kept that promise, thanks to Evans' energies. Several obituaries noting the death of Rowland Evans from cancer on March 23 described him as a conservative. More appropriately, he should be remembered as a reporter and a patriot.

His model was the column written by the Alsop brothers—Joseph and Stewart—who combined dogged reporting with a passion for the security of the United States. Like Joe Alsop, Evans belonged to the Washington black-tie dinner parties, still flourishing when our column began.

Rowly snagged stories on the Georgetown party circuit, including an exclusive on U.S. plans for an electronic wall to protect south Vietnam from Viet Cong infiltration, the next day's front page. He pioneered in-depth, heavily footnoted reporting, featuring relentless interrogation of sources. Senators, Cabinet members and anonymous sources were grilled at lunch or broadcast on the Metropolitan Club radio—Evans himself facing a questioner who insisted on answers. He traveled everywhere for stories, covering the Vietnam, Six-Day and Gulf wars, often at great physical risk.

Readers who thought they could spot the principal author of our columns would be surprised to learn that I was not responsible for "Reassessing Goldwater," published on April 9, 1964. Since at that time I had close contact with Sen. Barry Goldwater, it was assumed that I had written the column disputing the conventional wisdom that Mr. Conservative was dead for the Republican presidential nomination. After much shoeleather reporting, Evans came to the conclusion that Goldwater quite likely would be the nominee.

He flourished when reporting on national security, using all sources both prominent and shadowy. He was ahead of everybody in forecasting the breakdown of Soviet satellite rule in Poland and Czechoslovakia. In 1979, after another exposed Soviet cheating on arms control agreements that U.S. officials tried to ignore, Evans considered that work the high point of his lifelong career.

Nothing he did ever caused more trouble than his tough reporting on Israeli intrusions. Evans was not anti-Israel and certainly not antisemitic. Yet he wrote in 1982 to cover an Israeli invasion of Lebanon that he deployed. But he found Palestinian atrocities in Sidon, Lebanon, that were described by the PLO as being committed by thugs and adventurers.

Although the late Yitzhak Rabin was his friend, he did not feel that the United States should be tied to the decisions of the Israeli government.

Our column encountered the most criticism when we investigated, years after the event, the Israeli attack that sank the U.S. Navy communications intelligence ship Liberty during the Six-Day War. It was not anti-Israeli bias that caused Evans to probe an incident that both governments wanted to hide. Rather, it was outrage—born of patriotic fervor—over the needless death of 34 U.S. Naval personnel that he laid at the feet of Israeli defense forces.

That same outrage had led Evans as a Yale freshman on Dec. 8, 1941, to protest the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor by enlisting in the Marine Corps, taking him to combat on Guadalcanal.

American security was his guiding star. It led him to support U.S. efforts to save Vietnam from communist oppression, though that was an event that eventually turned against him and his friend Robert F. Kennedy. It led him away from his family's ties with Democrats and toward the Reagan Revolution.

Rowly was the life of every party he attended. But behind the charm of a Philadelphia society boy was a tough Marine who loved his country and never wavered in seeking the truth.

BRYANNA HOCKING WINS MITCHELL SCHOLARSHIP
• Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I am delighted to congratulate an Oregon citizen and former intern in my office, Bryanna Hocking, of Eugene, OR, on her selection as a recipient of a George J. Mitchell Scholarship to study in Ireland beginning in the fall.

The competitive, national scholarship enables American university graduates to pursue a year of study at institutions of higher learning in Ireland and Northern Ireland. These scholarships are awarded to individuals between the ages of 18 and 30 who have shown academic distinction, commitment to service, and potential for leadership.

Bryanna will be an excellent student ambassador to Ireland. In May 2000, she received a Bachelor of Science in Foreign Service from Georgetown University's Walsh School of Foreign Service. An active member of her community, she was founder and co-chair of the Georgetown Women's Guild, which organized forums and discussions at the University on women's issues and served on the executive board of the Georgetown College Republicans.

Bryanna is an aspiring journalist, an ambition sparked by her concerns about how the media dealt with the Balkans, Rwanda, and other areas where ethnic strife led to genocide. Bryanna hopes that she can combine her passion for journalism and international affairs in a career in which

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

PURDUE UNIVERSITY AND UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME WOMEN'S BASKETBALL TEAMS

• Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, two years ago I rose to commend Purdue University's women's basketball team for winning the 1999 National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball championship. Today I again rise to honor the Lady Boilermakers for again making a trip to the NCAA Final Four. And this year, I also want to honor the women's basketball team of the University of Notre Dame as Indiana is exceptionally proud to have not one, but two women's basketball teams reaching the 2001 NCAA Final Four.

Notre Dame last represented Indiana in the women's NCAA Final Four in 1997. This year the Notre Dame women have achieved an exceptional sixth consecutive tournament appearance and eighth overall tournament appearance under Head Coach Muffet McGraw, Coach McGraw and All-American, Big East Player of the Year Ruth Riley have led the team to an outstanding 32–2 record, a school high for victories in one season.

Purdue's women have persevered through adversity to achieve success as they suffered the loss of team member Tiffany Young in a 1999 traffic accident. Team members experienced other personal losses and serious injuries, yet with skill and determination they have achieved an exceptional sixth consecutive tournament appearance and eighth overall tournament appearance under Head Coach Muffet McGraw, Coach McGraw and All-American, Big East Player of the Year Ruth Riley have led the team to an outstanding 32–2 record, a school high for victories in one season.

We celebrate the dedication of these women, their victories, and the tradition of sportsmanship and excellence present throughout Indiana. We send these two teams our best wishes as they proceed to their respective semifinal games.
she contributes to increased harmony among the world’s peoples. I congratulate her and wish her luck in her peace and development endeavors at the University of Limerick.

DR. GEORGE W. ALBEE, DISTINGUISHED VERMONTER

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, on Friday April 5, a distinguished retired Vermonter, Dr. George W. Albee will receive the American Psychological Association’s Presidential Citation for the work he has done in the field of psychology over the last 50 years.

Dr. Albee and his family moved to Vermont in the early 1970’s, after a long and prolific career at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland. He taught and wrote at the University of Vermont for the next 25 years, and was an active and influential member of Vermont’s academic community.

Dr. Albee’s career began in a small office at APA’s national headquarters in Washington in the early 1950’s. In the fall of 1953, he went to Finland after landing a Fulbright Professorship at Helsinki University. He returned to accept a job in the Department of Psychology at Western Reserve University, and was named George Trumbull Ladd Distinguished Professor of Psychology in 1958.

Under President Eisenhower, Albee was the Director of the Task Force on Manpower of the Joint Commission on Mental Illness and Health. The book that he wrote, coupled with recommendations of the commission, helped lead to the establishment and development of community mental health centers.

He also served as a consultant to the U.S. Surgeon General, the Peace Corps, and headed President Carter’s Commission on Mental Health in 1977.

Prior to moving to Vermont, Albee was elected President of the American Psychological Association where he served with distinction during a turbulent time of change in the psychological and psychiatric communities.

He was always known in Vermont as a leader also willing to wade into controversy and fight for the causes he believed in. In 1977, he began an annual conference at UVM on the Primary Prevention of Psychopathology, which over the years have brought scholars and policy makers from around the country and around the world to discuss ways to shape local state and national policies on a range of important public policy areas.

In addition to his prolific writings, Dr. Albee taught thousands of undergraduate and graduate students at UVM. His contribution to Vermont and our nation has been profound. I am honored to consider him and his wife Margaret friends—and am proud that he has raised four children, all of whom are contributing in their own ways to making this world a better place.

A previous award Dr. Albee received articulated better than I his contribution to the field of psychology. Its says:

Dr. Albee has had an active role in plotting the direction and independence of professional psychology. He saw and articulated early the need for an independent profession of psychology, freed from the domination of older professions and older models. His “Declaration of Independence for Psychology” has been reprinted endlessly. His argument and clinical psychology students should be trained in a service center operated by psychology was widely accepted. His study of the nation’s manpower needs and resources in mental health was one of the major influences in developing the community mental health center movement. He has been a frequent critic of the mental health establishment, but he has been as sharply critical of his own field when it seemed tempted to yield principle for power and status. At times of greatest crisis, however, George W. Albee has heard and felt ways of compromise which have held psychology together.

I congratulate Dr. Albee for this award.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Williams, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.)

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

At 5:03 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Ms. Niland, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bill, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 6. An act to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to reduce the marriage penalty by providing for adjustments to the standard deduction, 15-percent rate bracket, and the earned income credit, to increase the child credit, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of the Honorable Norman Sinsky, a Representative from the Commonwealth of Virginia. That a committee of such Members of the House as the Speaker may designate, together with such Members of the Senate as may be joined, be appointed to attend the funeral. That the Sergeant at Arms of the House be authorized and directed to take such steps as may be necessary for carrying out the provisions of these resolutions and that the necessary expenses in connection therewith be paid out of applicable accounts of the House. That the Clerk communicate these resolutions to the Senate and transmit a copy thereof to the family of the deceased. That when the House adjourns today, it adjourn as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased.

The message further announced that pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 276f, the Speaker appoints the following Member of the House of Representatives to the Mexico-United States Interparliamentary Group: Mr. KOLBE of Arizona, Chairman.

The message also announced that pursuant to section 228(d)(1) of the Wendell H. Ford Aviation Investment and Reform Act for the 21st Century (Public Law 106–181), the Minority Leader appoints the following individual to the National Commission to Ensure Consumer Information and Choice in the Airline Industry: Mr. Thomas P. Dunne, Sr. of Maryland Heights, Missouri.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. GRASSLEY, from the Committee on Finance:

Special Report entitled “Report on the Activities of the Committee on Finance of the United States Senate During the 106th Congress” (Rept. No. 107–8).

By Mr. HELMS, from the Committee on Foreign Relations:

EXECUTIVE REPORTS OF COMMITTEE

The following executive reports of committee were submitted:

By Mr. WARNER for the Committee on Armed Services.

The following named officers for appointment in the Reserve of the Air Force to the grade indicated under title 10, U.S.C., section 12203:

To be major general

Brig. Gen. James D. Bankers, 0000
Brig. Gen. Marvin J. Barry, 0000
Brig. Gen. John D. Dorris, 0000
Brig. Gen. Patrick J. Gallagher, 0000
Brig. Gen. Ronald M. Sega, 0000

To be brigadier general

Col. Thomas A. Dyche, 0000
Col. John H. Gruesser, 0000
Col. Bruce E. Hawley, 0000
Col. Christopher M. Joniec, 0000
Col. William P. Kane, 0000
Col. Michael K. Lynch, 0000
Col. Carlos E. Martinez, 0000
Col. Charles W. Neeley, 0000
Col. Mark A. Pillar, 0000
Col. William M. Rajczak, 0000
Col. Thomas M. Stogsdill, 0000
Col. Dale Timothy White, 0000
Col. Floyd C. Williams, 0000

The following Air National Guard of the United States officer for appointment in the Reserve of the Air Force to grade indicated under title 10, U.S.C., section 12203:

March 29, 2001
March 29, 2001

To be brigadier general

Brig. Gen. Martha T. Rainville, 0000
Brig. Gen. Dennis A. Higdon, 0000
Brig. Gen. Mark W. Clark, 0000
Brig. Gen. Michael H. Tice, 0000

Col. Bobby L. Brittain, 0000
Col. Charles E. Chimmock Jr., 0000
Col. John W. Clark, 0000
Col. Roger E. Combs, 0000
Col. John R. Croft, 0000
Col. John D. Dorman, 0000
Col. Howard M. Edwards, 0000
Col. Mary A. Epps, 0000
Col. Harry W. Feucht Jr., 0000
Col. Wayne A. Groves, 0000
Col. Gerald E. Harmes, 0000
Col. Clarence J. Hindman, 0000
Col. Herbert H. Hurst Jr., 0000
Col. Jeffrey P. Lykins, 0000
Col. James R. Marshall, 0000
Col. Edward A. McIlhenny, 0000
Col. Edith P. Mitchell, 0000
Col. Mark H. Nessel, 0000
Col. Richard D. Radtke, 0000
Col. Albert P. Richards Jr., 0000
Col. Charles E. Savage, 0000
Col. Steven C. Speer, 0000
Col. Richard L. Testa, 0000
Col. Frank D. Tutor, 0000
Col. Joseph B. Veillon, 0000

To be brigadier general

Col. Robert M. Carrothers, 0000

To be major general

Brig. Gen. Robert M. Diamond, 0000
Brig. Gen. Eugene P. Klynoot, 0000

To be major general

Brig. Gen. Martha T. Rainville, 0000

To be lieutenant general

Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Cosumano Jr., 0000

To be lieutenant general

Brig. Gen. Perry V. Dalby, 0000
Brig. Gen. Carlos D. Pair, 0000

To be brigadier general

Col. Jeffery L. Arnold, 0000
Col. Steven P. Best, 0000

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE 5085

Col. Harry J. Phillips Jr., 0000
Col. Coral W. Pietrih, 0000
Col. Lewis S. Roach, 0000
Col. Robert J. Williamson, 0000
Col. David T. Zabecki, 0000

The following named officer for appointment in the Reserve of the Army to the grade indicated under title 10, U.S.C., section 12203:

To be brigadier general

Col. Robert G. F. Lee, 0000

The following named officers for appointment in the Reserve of the Army to the grade indicated under title 10, U.S.C., section 12203:

To be rear admiral

Rear Adm. (ih) Kenneth C. Belisle, 0000
Rear Adm. (ih) Mark R. Feichtinger, 0000
Rear Adm. (ih) John A. Jackson, 0000
Rear Adm. (ih) John P. McLaughlin, 0000
Rear Adm. (ih) James B. Pfehal, 0000
Rear Adm. (ih) Joseph O. Thompson, 0000

The following officer for appointment in the United States Navy to the grade indicated while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, U.S.C., section 12203:

To be vice admiral

Rear Adm. James C. Dawson Jr., 0000

(The above nominations were reported with the recommendation that they be confirmed.)

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, for the Committee on Armed Services, I report favorably nomination lists which were printed in the RECORDS of the dates indicated, and ask unanimous consent, to save the expense of reprinting on the Executive Calendar that these nominations lie at the Secretary's desk for the information of Senators.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Air Force nominations beginning LAUREN N. JOHNSON-NAUMANN and ending ERVIN LOCKLEAR, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air Force nominations beginning EDWARD D. PALENSKI and ending TYRONE R. STEPHENS, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air Force nominations beginning WILLIAM D. CARPENTER, which was received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air Force nominations beginning ANTOIN M. ALEXANDER and ending TOBY W. WOODARD, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air Force nominations beginning PHILIP M. ABBHERE and ending ROBERT P. WRIGHT, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air Force nominations beginning WILLIAM R. ACKER and ending CHRISTINA M K ZIENIOWSKI, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air Force nominations beginning ROBERT C. ALLEN and ending RYAN J. ZUCKER, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air Force nominations beginning FREDERICK H ABBOTT and ending MICHAEL F. ZUPAN, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air Force nominations beginning KENT W. ABERNATHY and ending ROBERT E. YOUNG, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning MARK DICKER and ending WILHELM KLEIN, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning WILLIAM N.C. CULBERTSON and ending ROBERT S. WILSON, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning JOSEPH N.* DANIEL and ending PHILLIP HOLMES, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning JOE R. BEHUNIN and ending RANDALL E. SMITH, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning ROBERT G. CARMICHAEL JR. and ending LARRY R. JONES, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning JAMES P. CONTRERAS and ending ROBERT D. WILLIAMS, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginningCandidates HANSON R BONEY and ending WILLIAM D WILLET, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning JEFFREY A* ARNOLD and ending CHARLES L YOUNG, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning JOHN H. CREIGHTON and ending RANDY L. RAMSAY, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning KEVIN L. DUNN and ending ANDREW J. REED, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning FREDERICK H ABBOTT and ending LARRY R. JONES, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning JAMES P. CONTRERAS and ending ROBERT D. WILLIAMS, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning JOE R. BEHUNIN and ending RANDALL E. SMITH, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning ROBERT G. CARMICHAEL JR. and ending LARRY R. JONES, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

Air nominations beginning JAMES P. CONTRERAS and ending ROBERT D. WILLIAMS, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE
March 29, 2001

Marine Corps nominations beginning JOSEPH D. APODACA and ending CHARLES A. JOHNSON JR., which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001. Marine Corps nominations beginning WILLIAM S AITKEN and ending DOUGLAS P TUROVICH, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on February 27, 2001.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second times by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mr. FEINGOLD:
S. 644. A bill to authorize the establishment of a suboffice of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Fort Smith, Arkansas.
By Mr. SPECTER (for himself, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. HATCH, Mr. KOHL, Mr. BIDEN, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. GRASSLEY, and Mrs. CLINTON):
S. 645. A bill to require individuals who lobby the President on pardon issues to register under the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 and to require the President to report any gifts, pledges, or commitments of a gift to a trust fund established for purposes of establishing a Presidential library for that President.
By Mr. FEINGOLD:
S. 646. A bill to reform the Army Corps of Engineers; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.
By Mr. FEINGOLD (for himself and Mr. CHAFEE):
S. 647. A bill to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to enable Congress to better monitor and evaluate the success of the international military education and training program in instilling democratic values and respect for internationally recognized human rights in foreign military and civilian personnel; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.
By Mr. SCHUMER:
S. 648. A bill to provide signing and mason honories and mentoring programs for math and science teachers; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.
By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself and Mr. DORGAN):
S. 649. A bill to modify provisions relating to the Gun Control Act; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.
By Mrs. BOXER (for herself and Mr. VIVIANO):
S. 650. A bill to amend the Mineral Leasing Act to prohibit the exportation of Alaska North Slope crude oil; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.
By Mr. REED (for himself, Mr. JEFFORDS, Ms. MIKULSKI, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. WELLSTONE, and Mrs. CLINTON):
S. 651. A bill to provide for the establishment of an assistance program for health insurance consumers; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.
By Mr. EDWARDS (for himself, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. LEAHY, and Mr. WELLSTONE):
S. 652. A bill to promote the development of affordable, quality rental housing in rural areas for low-income households; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.
By Mr. BAYH (for himself, Mr. DOMENICI, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. VOINOVICH, Mr. CARPER, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. MILLER, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. Breaux, and Mr. KOHL):
S. 653. A bill to amend part D of title IV of the Social Security Act to provide grants to States to conduct small arms media campaigns to promote responsible fatherhood skills, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.
By Mr. TORRICELLI:
S. 654. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to restore, increase, and make permanent the exclusion from gross income for amounts received under qualified group legal services plans; to the Committee on Finance.
By Mr. McCAIN (for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, and Mr. INOUYE):
S. 655. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to exempt from income taxation amounts derived from natural resource-related activity by a member of an Indian tribe directly or through a qualified Indian entity; to the Committee on Finance.
By Mr. REED (for himself, Mr. BROWNBACK, and Mr. WELLSTONE):
S. 656. A bill to provide for the adjustment of status of certain nationals of Liberia to that of lawful permanent resident; to the Committee on the Judiciary.
By Mr. LUGAR (for himself and Mr. HARKIN):
S. 657. A bill to authorize funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.
By Mr. LEAHY (for himself and Mr. JEFFORDS):
S. 658. A bill to amend title 32, United States Code, to authorize units of the National Guard to conduct small arms competitions and athletic competitions, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Armed Services.
By Mr. CRAPO (for himself, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. HAGREY, Mr. COCHRAN, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. HELMS, Mr. DAYTON, and Mr. CORZINE) (for himself, Mr. HARKIN):
S. 659. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to adjust the labor costs of taxable entities to reflect the true economic value of tax-exempt bonds issued by Indian tribal governments; to the Committee on Finance.
By Mr. CRAPO (for himself, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. HAGREY, Mr. COCHRAN, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. HELMS, Mr. DAYTON, and Mr. CORZINE) (for himself, Mr. HARKIN):
S. 660. A bill to modify provisions relating to the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide for the issuance of tax-exempt bonds by Indian tribal governments, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.
By Mr. THOMPSON (for himself, Mr. Breaux, Mr. MUKOWSKI, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. GRAMM, Mr. Nickles, and Mrs. LINCOLN):
S. 661. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the 4.3-cent motor fuel exercise taxes on railroads and inland waterway transportation which remain in the general fund of the Treasury; to the Committee on Finance.
By Mr. DODD (for himself, Mr. BYRD, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. FISCHER, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. KOHL, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. DORGAN, and Mr. VOINOVICH):
S. 662. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to authorize the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to furnish headstones or markers for marked graves of, or to other wise commemorate, certain individuals; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.
By Mr. WELLSTONE (for himself and Mr. DAYTON):
S. 663. A bill to authorize the President to present a gold medal on behalf of Congress to Eugene McCarthy in recognition of his service to the Nation; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.
By Mr. GREGG (for himself and Mr. KOHL):
S. 664. A bill to provide jurisdictional standards for the disposition of State and local tax obligations on interstate commerce, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

SUBMISSION OF CONCURRENT AND SENATE RESOLUTIONS

The following concurrent resolutions and Senate resolutions were read, and referred (or acted upon), as indicated:

By Mr. KERRY:
S. Res. 65. A resolution honoring Neil L. Rudenstine, President of Harvard University; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

ADDITIONAL COSPONSORS

S. 77. At the request of Mr. DASCHLE, the name of the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. CORZINE) was added as a cosponsor of S. 77, a bill to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to provide more effective remedies to victims of discrimination in the payment of wages on the basis of sex, and for other purposes.

S. 121. At the request of Mrs. FEINSTEIN, the name of the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY) was added as a cosponsor of S. 121, a bill to establish an Office of Children's Services within the Department of Justice to coordinate and implement Government actions involving unaccompanied alien children, and for other purposes.

S. 128. At the request of Mr. JOHNSON, the name of the Senator from Alaska (Mr. MUKOWSKI) was added as a cosponsor of S. 128, a bill to amend the Federal Deposit Insurance Act to require periodic cost of living adjustments to the maximum amount of deposit insurance available under that Act, and for other purposes.

S. 131. At the request of Mr. JOHNSON, the name of the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY) was added as a cosponsor of S. 131, a bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to modify the annual determination of the rate of the basic benefit of active duty educational assistance under the Montgomery GI Bill, and for other purposes.

S. 145. At the request of Mr. THURMOND, the name of the Senator from Maine (Ms.
At the request of Mr. Grassley, the name of the Senator from Maine (Ms. Collins) was added as a cosponsor of S. 252, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to eliminate the 60-month limit and increase the income limitation on the student loan interest deduction.

At the request of Mr. Reid, the names of the Senator from Florida (Mr. Graham), the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. Menendez), the Senator from California (Ms. Feinstein) were added as cosponsors of S. 170, a bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to permit retired members of the Armed Forces who have a service-connected disability to receive both military retired pay by reason of their years of military service and disability compensation from the Department of Veterans Affairs for their disability.

At the request of Mr. Akaka, the name of the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. Nelson) was added as a cosponsor of S. 177, a bill to amend the provisions of title 39, United States Code, relating to the manner in which pay policies and schedules and fringe benefit programs for postmasters are established.

At the request of Ms. Collins, the name of the Senator from Mississippi (Mr. Cochran) was added as a cosponsor of S. 203, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide an above-the-line deduction for qualified professional development expenses of elementary and secondary school teachers and to allow a credit against income tax to elementary and secondary school teachers who provide classroom materials.

At the request of Mr. Hatch, the name of the Senator from Idaho (Mr. Craig) was added as a cosponsor of S. 203, a bill to amend the National Trails System Act to update the feasibility and suitability studies of 4 national historic trails and provide for possible additions to such trails.

At the request of Mr. Grassley, the names of the Senator from Wyoming (Mr. Thomas) and the Senator from Arkansas (Mr. Hutchinson) were added as cosponsors of S. 234, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the excise tax on telephone and other communications services.

At the request of Mr. Biden, the name of the Senator from Minnesota (Mr. Dayton) was added as a cosponsor of S. 250, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow a credit for participating reserve components, and to allow a comparable credit for participating reserve self-employed individuals, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Sessions, the name of the Senator from Colorado (Mr. Allard) was added as a cosponsor of S. 289, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide additional tax incentives for education.

At the request of Mr. Grassley, the names of the Senator from Pennsylvania (Mr. Santorum) and the Senator from Arkansas (Mr. Hutchinson) were added as cosponsors of S. 313, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide for Farm, Fishing, and Ranch Risk Management Accounts, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Ensign, the name of the Senator from Idaho (Mr. Crafo) was added as a cosponsor of S. 338, a bill to protect amateur athletics and combat illegal sports gambling.

At the request of Mr. Hutchinson, the name of the Senator from Maine (Ms. Snowe) was added as a cosponsor of S. 349, a bill to provide funds to the National Center for Rural Law Enforcement, and for other purposes.

At the request of Ms. Collins, the name of the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. Daschle) was added as a cosponsor of S. 403, a bill to improve the National Writing Project.

At the request of Mr. Crafo, the name of the Senator from Minnesota (Mr. Wellstone) was added as a cosponsor of S. 410, a bill to amend the Violence Against Women Act of 2000 by expanding legal assistance for victims of violence grant program to include assistance for victims of dating violence.

At the request of Mr. Cochran, the name of the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. Daschle) was added as a cosponsor of S. 413, a bill to amend part F of title X of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to improve and refocus civic education, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Cleland, the name of the Senator from Maryland (Ms. Mikulski) was added as a cosponsor of S. 414, a bill to amend the National Telecommunications and Information Administration Act to establish a digital network technology program, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Grassley, the name of the Senator from Idaho (Mr. Crafo) was added as a cosponsor of S. 530, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide a 5-year extension of the credit for producing electricity from wind.

At the request of Mr. DeWine, the names of the Senator from Montana (Mr. Burns), the Senator from Idaho (Mr. Craig), the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. Hagel) and the Senator from Maine (Ms. Snowe) were added as cosponsors of S. 540, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow as a deduction in determining adjusted gross income the deduction for expenses in connection with services as a member of a reserve component of the Armed Forces of the United States, to allow employers a credit against income tax with respect to employees who participate in the military reserve components, and to allow a comparable credit for participating reserve self-employed individuals, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Sessions, the name of the Senator from Mississippi (Mr. Cochran) was added as a cosponsor of S. 567, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide capital gain treatment under section 631(b) of such Code for outright sales of timber by landowners.

At the request of Mr. Roberts, the name of the Senator from Alaska (Mr. Murkowski) was added as a cosponsor of S. 599, a bill to amend the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988 to establish permanent trade negotiating and trade agreement implementing authority.

At the request of Ms. Snowe, the names of the Senator from Wyoming (Mr. Enzi), the Senator from South Carolina (Mr. Hollings), the Senator from Alabama (Mr. Shelby), the Senator from Washington (Ms. Cantwell), and the Senator from Washington (Ms. Murray) were added as cosponsors of S. Con. Res. 8, a concurrent resolution expressing the sense of Congress regarding subsidized Canadian lumber exports.

At the request of Ms. Feinstein, the name of the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. Corzine) was added as a cosponsor of S. Con. Res. 11, a concurrent resolution expressing the sense of Congress to fully use the powers of the Federal...
Government to enhance the science base required to more fully develop the field of health promotion and disease prevention, and to explore how strategies can be developed to integrate lifestyle improvement programs into national policy, our health care system, schools, workplaces, families and communities.

S. RES. 41

At the request of Mr. Shelby, the names of the Senator from Pennsylvania (Mr. Specter) and the Senator from Montana (Mr. Burns) were added as cosponsors of S. Res. 41, a resolution designating April 4, 2001, as "National Murder Awareness Day.

S. RES. 44

At the request of Mr. Cochran, the names of the Senator from Delaware (Mr. Biden), the Senator from Hawaii (Mr. Akaka), the Senator from Washington (Mrs. Murray), and the Senator from Connecticut (Mr. Dodd) were added as cosponsors of S. Res. 44, a resolution designating each of March 2001, and March 2002, as "Arts Education Month."

S. RES. 63

At the request of Mr. Campbell, the names of the Senator from Maine (Ms. Snowe), the Senator from New York (Mr. Schumer), and the Senator from California (Mrs. Feinstein) were added as cosponsors of S. Res. 63, a resolution commemorating and acknowledging the dedication and sacrifice made by the men and women who have lost their lives while serving as law enforcement officers.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. Hutchison:

A bill to authorize the establishment of a suboffice of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Fort Smith, Arkansas; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. Hutchison. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the "Fort Smith INS Suboffice Act" be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 644

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Fort Smith INS Suboffice Act."

SECTION 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:
(1) The Immigration and Naturalization Service office in Fort Smith, Arkansas, is an office within the jurisdiction of the district office in New Orleans, Louisiana.
(2) During the past 10 years, the foreign national population has grown substantially in the jurisdictional area of the Fort Smith office.
(3) According to the 2000 census, Arkansas' Hispanic population grew by 337 percent over the Hispanic population in the 1990 census. This rate of growth is believed to be the fastest in the United States.
(4) Hispanics now comprise 3.2 percent of Arkansas' population and 5.7 percent of the Third Congressional District of Arkansas' population.
(5) This dramatic increase in immigration will continue as the growing industries and excellent quality of life of Northwest Arkansas are strong attractions.
(6) Interstate 40 and 40 intersect Fort Smith and air transportation is readily available there.
(7) In the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2001, Congress directed the Immigration and Naturalization Service to review the staffing needs of the Fort Smith office.
(8) A preliminary review shows that the Fort Smith office is indeed understaffed. The office currently needs an additional adjudication officer, an additional information officer, a part-time "jack-of-all-trades" employee, 2 full-time clerks, and 1 additional enforcement officer.
(9) A suboffice designation would enable the Fort Smith Office, Arkansas, to obtain additional staff in an information officer, a charge who would have the authority to sign documents and take actions related to cases which now must be forwarded to the New Orleans District Office.
(10) The additional staff, authority, and autonomy that the suboffice designation would provide the Fort Smith office would result in a reduction in backlogs and waiting periods, a significant improvement in customer service, and a significant improvement in the enforcement of the immigration laws of the United States.
(11) The designation of the Fort Smith office as a suboffice would show that the Immigration and Naturalization Service is committed to facilitating the legal immigration process for those persons acting in good faith; and
(12) Likewise committed to enforcing the immigration laws of the United States.

SEC. 3. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for each fiscal year to establish and operate an Immigration and Naturalization Service suboffice in Fort Smith, Arkansas.

By Mr. Specter (for himself, Mr. Leahy, Mr. Hatch, Mr. Kohl, Mr. Biden, Mrs. Feinstein, Mr. Sessions, Mr. Grassley, and Mrs. Clinton):

S. 645. A bill to require individuals who lobby the President on pardon issues to register under the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 and to require the President to report any gifts, pledges, or commitments of a gift to a trust fund established for purposes of establishing a Presidential library for that President after his or her term has expired; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

Mr. Specter. Mr. President, this legislation follows consideration by the Judiciary Committee of the pardons issued by President Clinton on January 20, the last day of his administration, and seeks to reform and correct a couple of major gaps which are present in existing procedures in two respects; stated succinctly, to require that lobbyists, such as Jack Quinn, be required to register and that contributions to Presidential libraries be subject to public disclosure.

I offer this legislation on behalf of myself, Senators Leahy, Hatch, Kohl, Biden, Feinstein, Sessions, Grassley, and Clinton.

The public record is filled with the details as to what happened with the notorious pardon of Marc Rich, who was a fugitive for some 17 years, where a pardon was granted at the very last minute without the pardon attorney at the Department of Justice being informed of the situation until 1 a.m. on January 20.

When the pardon attorney called the White House to try to get some information about Marc Rich and Pincus Stein, we were told that they were "traveling abroad."

When the pardon attorney testified at the Judiciary Committee hearing under my questioning, and testified that they were "traveling abroad," he abruptly broke up the hearing room for that characterization to be made of someone who had been a fugitive for 17 years.

In granting the pardon, former President Clinton notified Ms. Beth Dozoretz, who was very active in lobbying for the pardon, at 11 o'clock on January 19, some 2 hours in advance of telling the pardon attorney, and there had been extensive lobbying by Ms. Denise Rich, the former wife of Marc Rich.

The legislation we are introducing will require that someone such as Jack Quinn be registered as a lobbyist.

Without going into the details—and they are set forth in the Judiciary Committee hearing record—major efforts made to keep this activity under the so-called radar screen so that nobody would know about it.

This legislation would require someone in Jack Quinn's position to register and be known publicly, and with the kind of public pressure which would be brought, I think it highly likely that a pardon such as that granted to Marc Rich would never have been granted.

The second provision deals with contributions or promises to raise money for Presidential libraries. This legislation provides that there should be public disclosure of those contributions, pledges, or commitments to raise money, where those pledges or commitments are made during the term of office.

A pledge to contribute money to a Presidential library has a great many of the same characteristics as a campaign contribution. The question is raised about whether or not there is favoritism or influence sought from that kind of a monetary contribution. By having the public disclosure, then it would be within public view.
That is the essence of the legislation. Mr. President, the Senate Judiciary Committee and Democrats have introduced legislation to address the pardons and commutations issued by former President Clinton on January 20, 2001, has disclosed major gaps which can be addressed through legislation. Today I am introducing a bill to address two of these gaps.

My bill requires individuals who urge officials in the White House to grant clemency to register as lobbyists. There is currently no requirement for them to do so. This bill will also require the disclosure of donations or pledges of $5,000 or more, or commitments to raise $5,000 or more for presidential libraries while the President is still in office. Such donations, pledges or commitments are not currently subject to public disclosure, creating a situation where individuals could make large contributions to the President’s library foundation in the hope of influencing favorable action by the President.

The legislation of the pardons matter has been forward-looking from the beginning. The objective of the inquiry was to get the facts out in the open. Once the facts were known, the question was whether legislative remediation was appropriate.

This legislation does not deal with the President's power to grant executive clemency since any changes in that power would require a constitutional amendment. Former President Jimmy Carter called the pardon of fugitive commodities trader Marc Rich “disgraceful.” Democratic Representative Henry Waxman said that “the failures in the pardon process should embarrass every Democrat and every American.”

The outrage over former President Clinton’s last minute pardons is bipartisan, and I expect there will be bipartisan support for this legislation to fix the problems disclosed by the Senate Judiciary Committee inquiry.

The pardons of Marc Rich and Pincus Green have sparked the most public outrage, and rightly so. The actions of Hugh Rodham, who took more than $400,000 for his limited work on the clemency requests for Almon Glenn Braswell and Carlos Vignali, Jr., and Roger Clinton, who is reportedly under investigation for trying to peddle influence, are similarly outrageous. There are undoubtedly others who made money from the pardons process, or at least tried to do so. But let us at least identify them as what they are—lobbyists. When you get paid money, you are a lobbyist. Let’s not call this lobbying. Shining sunlight on the activities of these pardon lobbyists will further the cause of good government.

In a February 18, 2001 op-ed in the New York Times, former President Clinton said that he had decided to grant Rich and Green clemency for a number of legal and foreign policy reasons. He also stated that it was in the best interests of the case to add up to a pardon. Rich fled to Switzerland in 1983, shortly before he was indicted on 65 counts of racketeering, tax evasion, mail fraud, wire fraud, violation of Department of Energy regulations, and fradulently dealing with the enemy. Then he tried to renounce his citizenship. Although he could afford the best lawyers in the business, Rich refused to return to the United States to plead his case in court. At the time of his pardon, he was still listed on the Justice Department’s list of top international fugitives. Over the course of seventeen years and three administrations, Rich repeatedly tried to get the Justice Department to offer him a deal on favorable terms. When that failed, he had a plan last year to get a grant of executive clemency to wipe out the charges against him so he would never even have to stand trial. In the end, Mr. Rich got his pardon, but the way he got it shows the need for requiring pardon lobbyists to register.

In late 2000, after failing to get the Southern District of New York to make a deal that didn’t involve any jail time for Rich and Green, the Rich legal team began seriously pursuing a pardon strategy. There is some disagreement on the timing of the decision to seek a pardon, but the important point is that, once the decision was made to take the case to the White House, the Rich legal team wanted to keep their activities out of public view so the Southern District of New York, or someone else who would oppose the pardon, wouldn’t weigh in and scotch the deal.

There is some evidence that the Rich legal team was considering seeking a pardon as early as March, 1999. A log from the law firm of Arnold and Porter cites a March 12, 1999, memorandum from Carol Fischer to Robert Fink, one of Mr. Rich’s lawyers. The document is titled “Legal Research re: Pardon Power.” Clearly there was some consideration of seeking a pardon, or there wouldn’t have been a need to do research on the pardon power.

On February 18, 2000, Robert Fink wrote an e-mail to Avner Azulay, who works for Mr. Rich in Israel. Fink told Azulay that the latest efforts to make a deal with the Southern District of New York had failed because the Department of Justice would not negotiate unless Mr. Rich returned to the United States to face the charges. Azulay replied the same day, saying that “The present impasse leaves us with only one other option: the unconventional approach which has not yet been proposed to which I have been proposing all along.”

There is also a March 20, 2000 e-mail from Azulay to Fink. In this e-mail, Azulay tells Fink that “We are reverting to the idea discussed with Abe which is, to send Dr. [undoubtedly President Clinton] with a well prepared script.”

Mr. Quinn has testified that the idea of a pardon did not receive serious consideration until late in the year, but these e-mails raise questions about that assertion. Under ordinary circumstances, it would be of no interest when the Rich team made a decision to seek a pardon, but it is important in this case because the White House officials were required to register, they couldn’t have a done deal? Of course not. Jack Quinn has had since January. Does anyone seriously believe that former President Clinton would have granted this pardon if the story had broken, with all the details out in the open, in early January instead of after the pardon was already a done deal? Of course not. Jack Quinn counted on being under the radar, and it worked.

This legislation will make it harder for the Jack Quinns of the future to stay under the radar. When pardon lobbyists are required to register, they won’t be able to hide their actions from the public. If Jack Quinn had been required to register as a lobbyist when he started urging officials at the White House to grant clemency to Rich and Green, the chances are good that this story would have had a different ending.

This legislation would also cover the activities of Hugh Rodham, who made more than $400,000 working to get clemency for Almon Glenn Braswell and Carlos Vignali, Jr. Braswell is the subject of an ongoing investigation related to allegations of tax evasion, and clearly should not have been granted a pardon. Mr. Vignali was one of the top members of a drug smuggling organization that shipped more than 800 pounds of cocaine from the Los Angeles area to Minnesota. He was not a likely candidate to have his sentence commuted, and the Pardon Attorney reportedly recommended that the request be denied. Several of the members of the drug distribution ring who had smaller roles that Vignali did are still sitting in jail.

But Carlos Vignali got a pardon. Hugh Rodham’s role should have been subject to public disclosure since he had close family ties to the White House—reportedly lived at the White House for the last several weeks of the Clinton Administration and had documents shipped to himself there.

Roger Clinton was also reportedly involved in several attempts to get paid for getting pardons for his friends. This matter, like several others, is reportedly being investigated by the U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of New York. It remains to be seen what she will find, but we don’t have to wait for the end of her investigation to know that if an individual trades on his access to the White House to make money, that’s lobbying, and he or she should be required to register as a lobbyist.

The second part of this bill requires the public disclosure of donations or pledges of $5,000 or more, or commitments to raise $5,000 or more for presidential libraries while the president is still in office. There are presently no requirements like such donations to be made public, and the Clinton library foundation has resisted efforts to review its donor list.

Presidential libraries are a relatively new phenomenon, with only ten of them in existence. Under current law, presidential libraries are built with private funds, then turned over to the National Archivist for operation. Amendments to the Presidential Libraries Act have mandated the establishment of an endowment to cover some of the costs of operating the library. These goals are usually met through the establishment of a charitable organization, a 501(c)(3) corporation.

Former Presidents Carter and Bush did not raise any money for their libraries while they were in office because they were concentrating on getting re-elected. Both Carter and Bush lost their re-election bids, they never faced a situation of having to raise money for a library while they were still in office.

Former Presidents Reagan and Clinton, as two-term Presidents, began raising money for their libraries during their second terms. Officials from the Reagan library have said that the library fund received several large contributions from corporate donors while former President Reagan was still in office, but the big corporate donations tailed off rapidly when the President left office.

It is not necessary to suggest that there was any wrongdoing on the part of former President Reagan or of former President Clinton to realize that a donor could make a large donation to a presidential library in the hope of receiving a favorable action from the President in exchange for the donation. The fact that these donations can be made without public disclosure makes them a matter of even greater concern.

The Rich case highlights the need for public disclosure of donations while the President is still in office. Denise Rich, Marc Rich’s wife, has been implicated in trying to get a pardon for Rich. She also gave at least $450,000 to former President Clinton’s library foundation. Beth Dozoretz, former finance chair of the Democratic National Committee who pledged to raise $1 million for the Clinton library, also worked on the Rich pardon.

Ms. Dozoretz’s involvement in the Rich case is remarkable in that the former President spent far more time talking to her about it than he did talking to the prosecutors in the Southern District of New York. Ms. Dozoretz had at least three conversations with former President Clinton about the Rich pardon, including one on the night of January 19, at about 11 p.m. to thank him for granting the pardon for Marc Rich. If Ms. Dozoretz knew of the Rich pardon in time to call the President at 11 p.m. on the evening of January 19, she found out about the decision at least two hours before Pardon Attorney Roger Adams, the official who was charged with actually writing up the pardon warrant. Mr. Adams testified that he had not heard that Rich and Green were being considered for clemency until almost 1 a.m. on the morning of January 20. Mr. Adams was told by the White House counsel’s office that there probably wouldn’t be much information available on Rich and Green because they had been “living abroad for several years. That was a strange way of saying they were fugitives, but Mr. Adams was later able to figure that out himself. He had his staff research the Internet to see what he could learn about these two men, and he learned that they were on the Justice Department’s list of most wanted international fugitives. When he relayed his concerns to the White House, he was told to prepare the pardon documents anyway.

Ms. Dozoretz has refused to say from whom she learned that the President had decided to grant Rich’s clemency request, but she apparently knew before the official who was charged with overseeing the pardon process. Ms. Dozoretz has asserted her privilege against self-incrimination under the Fifth Amendment, so we have no way of knowing exactly how she learned that the decision had already been made on January 19.

But we do have other relevant information. First, Beth Dozoretz pledged to raise $1 million for the Clinton library. Former President Clinton spoke to Ms. Dozoretz on January 10, 2001, when she was with Ms. Rich in Aspen. According to a January 10, 2001, e-mail from Robert Pink to Jack Quinn, Ms. Dozoretz received a phone call from POTUS, the President, on January 10. Mr. Pink went on to quote former President Clinton as saying “that he wants to do it and is doing all possible to turn around the WH [White House] counsel, but he has not offered any explanation for what happened. It has been asserted that the message was garbled, but that explanation is inconsistent with the facts. All of former President Clinton’s top advisers in the White House—including his Chief of Staff, John Podesta; his White House Counsel, Beth Nolan; and Bruce Lindsey, one of his closest political advisers who held the title of Assistant to the President—looked at the facts and recommended against a pardon. That is consistent with the former President having to turn around his WH counsel, but in the end it didn’t matter. He issued the pardons anyway, and created a firestorm.”

When a President ignores the advice of his closest advisors, there isn’t much we can do since the power of executive clemency is in the hands of the President alone. But the Congress can and should ensure that bad judgment on the part of a President does not undermine the public’s confidence in government. The two provisions in this legislation will help to restore public confidence in the pardon process.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 645

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DISCLOSURE OF LOBBYING ACTIVITIES WITH RESPECT TO PRESIDENTIAL PARDONS.

Section 3(b) of the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 (2 U.S.C. 1002(b)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (A)—

(A) in clause (ii), by striking “or” after the semicolon.

(b) in clause (iv), by striking the period and inserting “;”;

and

(c) by adding at the end the following:

“(v) the issuance of a grant of executive clemency in the form of a pardon, reprieve, or remission of fine.”;

and

(2) in subparagraph (B)(xiv), by striking “and inserting “except as provided in subparagraph (A)(v), made to”.

SEC. 2. AMENDMENT TO THE ETHICS IN GOVERNMENT ACT OF 1978.

Section 102(a)(1) of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(8) If the reporting individual is the President and is currently serving as the President, the identity of the source, a brief description, and the value of all gifts, pledges,
Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I rise today with the Senator from Pennsylvania to introduce legislation aimed at making our government more open and accountable to the American people. We are pleased to be joined by six other members of the Judiciary Committee, Senators HATCH, KONZ, RUDIEN, FEINSTEIN, SESSIONS, GRASSLEY, and by the new junior Senator from New York, Senator CLINTON.

Our bill closes two loopholes in the laws governing what government officials and those who lobby them must disclose. It discloses the East Wing of Government Act of 1978 to require the President to report any gifts or pledges of $5,000 or more to a presidential library during the President’s term in office. Second, it adds to the list of individuals who must register under the Lobbying Disclosures Act of 1995 those who lobby on behalf of a client for a grant of executive clemency.

This legislation builds on a hearing held by the Judiciary Committee on February 14, 2001, relating to the pardons granted by President Clinton in his last days in office. I said then that we needed to view these pardons as a whole and in their historical and constitutional context, not focus exclusively on one or two controversial cases. In this way, we could learn valuable lessons for the future.

The legislation that we introduce today is a pragmatic and forward-looking response to customs and practices that long predate the last Administration. As I have noted before, the controversies surrounding President Clinton’s pardons are not unique.

Other presidents raised substantial funds for their libraries while still in office. The Ronald Reagan Presidential Foundation opened its doors and began fundraising in February 1985, relating to the pardons granted by President Clinton in his last days in office. I said then that we needed to view these pardons as a whole and in their historical and constitutional context, not focus exclusively on one or two controversial cases. In this way, we could learn valuable lessons for the future.

The legislation that we introduce today is a pragmatic and forward-looking response to customs and practices that long predate the last Administration. As I have noted before, the controversies surrounding President Clinton’s pardons are not unique.

Other presidents raised substantial funds for their libraries while still in office. The Ronald Reagan Presidential Foundation opened its doors and began fundraising in February 1985, nearly four years before President Reagan left office. By November 1991, the Foundation had raised between $45 and $65 million. The largest of the large sums came from large corporations, a source of funding that reportedly dried up when President Reagan returned to private life.

Fund raising for the Bush library also began while the president was still in the White House. The Arkansas Democrat-Gazette, in an article dated May 25, 1997, quoted former Bush aide Jim Cicconi as saying that fund raising for the library remained “low key” and “very much the president last office in 1993. Established in 1991, while the president was campaigning for re-election, the George Bush Presidential Library Foundation initially consisted of three people, including Mr. Cicconi and the president’s son, George W. Bush. I should add that the donor lists for the Reagan and Bush libraries were not and have never been disclosed to the public, a failure of transparency for which President Clinton, but not his predecessors, has been roundly criticized.

President Clinton was also not the first Chief Executive to grant clemency to friends or family members of major contributors. The very first pardon granted by the elder President Bush went to Armand Hammer, the late chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corporation, who pleaded guilty in 1975 to making illegal contributions to Richard Nixon’s reelection campaign. Not long before he received his pardon, Hammer had given $100,000 to the Republican party and another $100,000 to the Bush-Quayle Inaugural Committee. The team of lawyers that won Hammer his pardon included former Reagan Justice Department official, Theodore Olson. While Mr. Olson is now well-known now, he was recently nominated to be Solicitor General, it was more important at the time that he was a close friend of C. Boyden Gray, the White House Counsel, referencing Mr. Olson’s influential status. Mr. Olson was named as the lead counsel in the Watergate case. Let me note one more example from the end of the first Bush Administration: In January 1993, two days before leaving the White House, President Bush pardoned Edwin Cox, Jr., the son of a wealthy Texas oilman. The Cox pardon was lobbied for by Bill Clements, the former governor of Texas, who contacted James Baker, then White House Chief of Staff. Not surprisingly, Mr. Baker mentioned the Cox family largesse in a note to the President. Edwin Cox Sr. as a “longtime supporter of the president.” The Cox family had in fact contributed nearly $200,000 to the Bush family’s political campaigns and to other Republican campaign committees. Shortly after the president pardoned his son, Cox Sr. made a generous contribution to the Bush Presidential Library. His name is now etched in gold on the exterior of the Library alongside the names of other “Benefactors I,” those contributing between $100,000 and $250,000.

I mention these Bush-era pardons because they demonstrate that pardons which have become controversial and appear improper given the confluence of insider lobbying and financial contributions are not unique to the end of President Clinton’s term in office. The bill we introduce today will bring a greater degree of transparency into the clemency process and so reduce the appearance of impropriety that may otherwise attach to presidential pardons.

I thank Senator SPEICHER for the thoughtful and even-handed manner in which he conducted the Committee’s hearing last month, and commend him for seeking constructive and bipartisan solutions.

By Mr. FEINGOLD.

S. 646. A bill to reform the Army Corps of Engineers; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Corps of Engineers Reform Act of 2001. I am joined today in this effort by my colleague in the other body, Congressman Ron Kind.

As I introduce this bill, I realize that it is a work in progress. Reforming the Corps of Engineers will be a difficult task for Congress. It involves restoring credibility and accountability to a federal agency rocked by recent scandals, and yet an agency that we in Wisconsin, and many states across the country, have come to rely upon. From the Great Lakes to the mighty Mississippi, the Corps is involved in providing aids to navigation, environmental remediation, water control and a variety of other services to my state.

My office has strong working relationships with the Detroit, Rock Island, and St. Paul District Offices that serve Wisconsin, and I want the cloud over the Corps to dissipate so that the Corps can continue to contribute to our environment and our economy.

This legislation evolved from my experience in seeking to offer an amendment last year to the Water Resources Development Act of 2000 to create independent review of Army Corps of Engineers’ projects. My interest in an independent review amendment was shared by the Minority Leader, Mr. DASCHLE, and the Senator from California, Mrs. BOXER, and a number of taxpayer and environmental organizations: the League of Conservation Voters, Americans Rivers, Coast Alliance, Earthjustice Legal Defense Fund, Izaak Walton League of America, Natural Resources Defense Council, Sierra Club and Taxpayers for Common Sense.

In response to my initiative, the bill’s managers, Senator SMITH and Senator BAUCUS, adopted an amendment as part of their Manager’s Package which should help get the Authorizing Committee, the Environment and Public Works Committee, the additional information it needs to develop and refine legislation on this issue through a one year study by the National Academy of Sciences, NAS, on peer review. As part of the discussions with the Senator from New Hampshire, Mr. SMITH, and the Senator from Montana, Mr. BAUCUS, over the amendment I intended to offer, they have agreed that as the NAS conducts its review, they will hold hearings on the issue of Corps reform and on this bill. It is my hope that through hearings the NAS study and my bill can dovetail nicely so that we have a fully vetted bill which can then be fine-tuned by the
The bill I introduce today addresses more than the issue of independent review of Corps Projects. The bill is a comprehensive revision of the project review and authorization procedures at the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The aim is to increase transparency and accountability, to ensure fiscal responsibility, to balance economic and environmental interests, and to allow greater stakeholder involvement.

The National Research Council recently completed a study of the Corps analysis of a proposed extension of several locks on the Upper Mississippi River, Illinois Waterway after approximately $50 million was spent examining the feasibility of the proposed project. The National Research Council made several recommendations to revise the inland waterway and water resources system planning. And, as I mentioned, a second National Research Council study, required by the Water Resources Development Act of 2000, is now examining whether the Corps should establish a program of independent review of projects.

This bill builds on the key recommendations of the National Research Council study:

- The Corps should have project review by an interdisciplinary group of experts outside the Corps of Engineers.
- The Corps should include a broader range of stakeholders in the planning process.
- The Corps should revise the water resources project planning framework in their internal planning documents (known as the Principles and Guidelines) so that ecological concerns are not considered secondary to economic benefits.

The bill achieves this by creating both Stakeholder Advisory Committees and Independent Review Panels. Currently, the Corps goes through a multi-step process leading to project approval and construction. In the existing process, the public has limited involvement and environmental costs can be underestimated.

Stakeholder Advisory Committees—comprised of a balance of local government, other federal agencies, interest groups reflecting social, economic, and environmental interests, and interested private citizens—are authorized to provide input in the planning process. The Corps is required to form a Committee under the bill upon receipt of a written request to the Corps by any person to do so. The Committee is comprised of volunteers, and is allowed to provide input to the Corps beginning in the early project stages, such as the drafting of a feasibility study for a project, and conclude at the release of a draft environmental impact statement when the broader public is brought into the project. Corps is also restricted so that they can spend no more than on the staffing or operations of $250,000 a Committee. In addition, the Corps must meet the requirements of the Federal Advisory Committee Act, FACA. Any Committee expenses are to be considered as part of the total costs of the project.

The bill also provides a comprehensive review of water resources projects by a panel with expertise in biology, engineering, and economics. The projects that will become subject to review include any projects, or significant modifications to existing projects:

- with an estimated cost of over $25 million (approximately 40 percent of the projects funded through the Water Resources Development Act), or
- by the Governor of an affected State requests independent review,
- that are determined to have significant adverse impacts on fish and wildlife after implementation of proposed mitigation plans by the US Fish and Wildlife Service,
- for which the head of another Federal Agency charges the Corps with complying with the project determines that the project has a significant adverse impact on environmental, cultural, or other resources under their jurisdiction,
- or
- determined by the Corps to be “controversial” in its scope, impact, or cost-benefit analysis.

To address concerns that the Independent Review Panel needs to be truly independent, the Office of Independent Review is established within the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Civil Works. This office, located in the Pentagon, provides the greatest amount of independence for the review process since the Office of the Assistant Secretary is separate from and above the Chief of Engineers who runs the Corps. Independent reviews are required to be completed in 180 days after they start. They are able to run concurrently with the National Environmental Statement Process under NEPA, and, ideally, will conform to that time frame.

As with the Stakeholder Committees, the costs of these Panels are capped at no more than $500,000. Any panel expenses are to be considered as part of the total costs of the project and a Panel’s product is required to be released to the public and to be submitted to Congress.

It is my hope that this legislation will increase transparency of the Corps’ decision-making process through greater accessibility by the public and interested stakeholder groups. While there are heartening signs of reform in the Corps Civil Works program, Congress should be working to create an independent process to help affirm when the Corps gets it right and help to provide a means for identifying problems before taxpayer funded construction investments are made. Today we begin that work in earnest.

I feel that this bill is a practical first step down the road to a reformed Corps of Engineers. Independent review would catch mistakes by Corps planners, deter any potential bad behavior by Corps officials to justify questionable projects, and provide taxpayers desperately needed support against the never ending pressure of project boosters. Those boosters, Mr. President, include Congressional interests, which is why I believe that this body needs to commence reform to end the perception that Corps projects are all pork and no substance.

I wish it were the case, that I could argue that additional oversight were not needed, but unfortunately, I see that there is need for additional scrutiny. In the Upper Mississippi there is troubling evidence of abuse. There is troubling evidence from whistleblowers that senior Corps officials, under pressure from barge interests, ordered their subordinates to exaggerate demand for barges in order to justify new Mississippi River locks. This is a matter which is still under investigation, and I hope that how this type of wrongdoing will ultimately be found. Adequate assessment of the environmental impacts of barges is also very important. I am also concerned that the Corps’ assessment of the environmental impacts of additional barges does not adequately assess the impacts of barge movements on fish, backwaters and aquatic plants. We should not gamble with the environmental health of the river. If we allow more barges on the Mississippi, we must be sure the environmental impacts of those barges are fully mitigated.

I am raising this issue principally because I believe that Congress should act to restore trust in the Corps if we are effectively going to address navigation and environmental needs. The first step in that trust is restoring the credibility of the Corps’ decision-making process.

Unfortunately, Congress now finds itself having to reset the scales to make economic benefits and environmental restoration co-equal goals of project planning. Our rivers serve many masters, barge owners as well as bass fishermen, and the Corps’ planning process should reflect the diverse demands we place on them. I want to make sure that future Corps projects no longer fail to produce predicted benefits, stop costing more than the Corps estimated, and do not have unanticipated environmental impacts. This bill will help us monitor the result of projects so that we can learn from our mistakes and, when possible, correct them. As a first step, I have committed myself to making Corps reform a priority in this Congress with this bill. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:
TITLE I—PROJECT PLANNING REFORM

Sec. 1. Short title; table of contents.

Sec. 2. Findings and purposes.

Sec. 3. Definition of Secretary.

Sec. 101. Principles and guidelines.

Sec. 102. Stakeholder advisory committees.

Sec. 103. Independent review.

Sec. 104. Public access to information.

Sec. 105. Benefit-cost analysis.

Sec. 106. Project criteria.

TITLED II—MITIGATION

Sec. 201. Full mitigation.

Sec. 203. Mitigation tracking system.

Sec. 204. Findings and purposes.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds that—

(1) the Corps of Engineers is the primary Federal agency responsible for developing and managing the harbors, waterways, shorelines, and water resources of the United States;

(2) the scarcity of Federal resources requires more efficient use of Corps of Engineers funding and greater oversight of Corps of Engineers analyses;

(3) demand for recreation, clean water, and healthy wildlife habitat must be reflected in the Corps of Engineers project planning process.

(b) Purposes.—The purposes of this Act are—

(1) to ensure that the water resources investments of the United States are economically justified and enhance the environment;

(2) to provide independent review of Corps of Engineers feasibility studies, general reevaluation studies, and environmental impact statements;

(3) to ensure that mitigation for Corps of Engineers projects is successful and cost-effective;

(4) to enhance the involvement of affected interests in Corps of Engineers feasibility studies, general reevaluation studies, and environmental impact statements;

(5) to revise Corps of Engineers planning principles to meet the economic and environmental needs of riverside and coastal communities;

(6) to ensure that environmental analyses are considered to be co-equal to economic analyses in the assessment of Corps of Engineers projects recognizing the need for sound science in the evaluation of the impacts on the health of aquatic ecosystems; and

(7) to ensure that the Corps of Engineers is making appropriate, up-to-date calculations in conducting cost-benefit analyses of Corps of Engineers projects.

SEC. 3. DEFINITION OF SECRETARY.

In this Act, the term "Secretary" means the Secretary of the Army.

"SEC. 209. CONGRESSIONAL STATEMENT OF OBJECTIONS.

"(a) In General.—It is the intent of Congress that economic development and environmental protection and restoration be co-equal goals of water resources planning and development.

"(b) Revision of Principles and Guidelines.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of the Corps of Engineers Reorganization Act of 2001, the Secretary shall review the principles and guidelines of the Corps of Engineers for water resources projects—

"(1) to provide the consideration of ecological restoration costs under Corps of Engineers economic models;

"(2) to incorporate new techniques in risk and uncertainty analysis;

"(3) to eliminate biases and disincentives for nonstructural flood damage reduction projects;

"(4) to incorporate new analytical techniques;

"(5) to encourage, to the maximum extent practicable, the restoration of aquatic ecosystems;

"(6) to ensure that water resources projects are justified by benefits that accrue to the public at large and not only to a limited number of interests.

"(c) Update of Guidance.—The Secretary shall update the Guidance for Conducting Civil Works Planning Studies (ER 1105-2-100) to comply with this section.

SEC. 102. STAKEHOLDER ADVISORY COMMITTEES.

(a) In General.—Upon receipt of a written request by any person or governmental entity, the Secretary shall establish, for each water resources project that is authorized or reconsidered after enactment of the Corps of Engineers Reorganization Act of 2001, a stakeholder advisory committee to assist the Secretary in the development of feasibility studies, general reevaluation studies, and environmental impact statements for the project.

(b) Duration of Reviews.—A stakeholder advisory committee established for a project under this section shall be composed of—

(A) representatives of—

(i) State and local agencies;

(ii) tribal organizations;

(iii) public interest groups;

(iv) industry, scientific, and academic organizations; and

(v) Federal agencies; and

(B) other interested citizens.

(2) Balance.—The membership shall represent a balance of the social, economic, and environmental interests in the project.

(d) Role.—A stakeholder advisory committee established for a project under this section shall advise the Secretary but shall not be required to make a formal recommendation.

(e) Costs.—The costs of a stakeholder advisory committee established for a project under this section—

(1) shall be a Federal expense;

(2) shall not exceed $250,000; and

(3) shall be considered to be part of the total cost of the project.

(f) Application of Federal Advisory Committee Act.—The Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) shall apply to a stakeholder advisory committee established under this section.

SEC. 162. INDEPENDENT REVIEW.

(a) Projects Subject to Independent Review.

(1) In General.—The Secretary shall ensure that feasibility studies, general reevaluation studies, and environmental impact statements for each water resources project described in paragraph (2) are subject to review by an independent panel of experts established under this section.

(2) Projects Subject to Review.—A project shall be subject to review under paragraph (1) if—

(A) the project has an estimated total cost of more than $25,000,000, including mitigation costs; or

(B) the Governor of an affected State described in paragraph (4) requests the establishment of an independent panel of experts for the project;

(C) the Director of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service determines that the project is likely to have a significant adverse impact on fish or wildlife after implementation of proposed mitigation plans;

(D) the head of a Federal agency charged with reviewing the project determines that the project is likely to have a significant adverse impact on an environmental cultural, or other resources under the jurisdiction of the agency after implementation of proposed mitigation plans; or

(E) the Secretary determines that the project is controversial under paragraph (3).

(3) Controversial Projects.—

(A) Determination by the Secretary.—Upon receipt of a written request by an interested party or on the initiative of the Secretary, the Secretary shall determine whether the project is controversial for the purposes of paragraph (2)(B).

(B) Criteria.—The Secretary shall determine that a project is controversial if the Secretary finds that—

(1) there is a significant public dispute as to the size, nature, or effects of the project; or

(2) there is a significant public dispute as to the economic or environmental costs or benefits of the project.

(4) Affected State.—An affected State referred to in paragraph (2)(B) means a State that—

(A) is located at least partially within the drainage basin in which the project is located; and

(B) would be economically or environmentally affected as a consequence of the project.

(b) Office of Independent Review.

(1) Establishment.—There is established in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works an Office of Independent Review (referred to in this section as the “Office”).

(2) Director.—

(A) Appointment.—The head of the Office shall be the Director of the Office of Independent Review (referred to in this section as the “Director”), who shall be appointed by the Secretary for a term of 3 years.

(B) Qualifications.—The Secretary shall select the Director from among individuals who are distinguished scholars.

(C) Compensation or Recommendations.—In making the selection, the Secretary shall consider any recommendations made by the Inspector General of the Army.

(D) Selection of Members.—The Secretary shall not appoint an individual to serve as the Director if the individual has a financial or close professional association with any organization or group with a strong financial or organizational interest in an on-going water resources project.

(1) Review each feasibility study, general reevaluation study, and environmental impact statement prepared for the project;

(2) Assess the adequacy of the economic models and analyses used by the Secretary in reviewing the project to ensure that—
   (A) multiple methods of economic analysis have been used; and
   (B) any effects on navigation systems have been examined;

(3) Assess the adequacy of the environmental models and analyses used by the Secretary in reviewing the project;

(4) Receive from the public, and review, written and oral comments of a technical nature concerning the project; and

(5) Submit to the Secretary a report containing the panel's economic, engineering, and environmental analysis of the project, including the panel's conclusions on the feasibility studies, general reevaluation studies, and environmental impact statements for the project, with particular emphasis on matters of public controversy.

(b) DURATION OF PROJECT REVIEWS AND PANEL.—A panel of experts shall—

(1) Consider any recommendations contained in the report; and

(2) Prepare a written explanation for any recommendations that are not accepted.

(3) Public review—Submission to Congress.—After receiving a report on a project from a panel of experts under this section, the Secretary shall—

(A) make a copy of the report and any written explanation of the Secretary on recommendations contained in the report available for public review in accordance with section 104; and

(B) Submit a copy of the report and any such written explanation.

(c) Costs.—

(1) In general.—Subject to paragraph (2), the costs of a panel of experts established for a project under this section—

(A) shall be a Federal expense; and

(B) shall not exceed $500,000; and

(C) shall be considered to be part of the total cost of the project.

(2) Waiver.—The Secretary may waive the limitation in paragraph (1)(B) in any case in which the Secretary determines a waiver to be appropriate.

(d) Applicability of Federal Advisory Committee Act.—The Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) shall apply to a panel of experts established under this section.

SEC. 104. PUBLIC ACCESS TO INFORMATION.

(a) In general.—Except as provided in subsection (c), the Secretary shall ensure that information on the analysis of a water resources project by the Corps of Engineers, including all supporting data, analytical documents, and information that the Corps of Engineers determines in the analysis, is made available to any individual upon request and to the public on the Internet.

(b) Types of information.—Information concerning a project that shall be made available under subsection (a) include—

(1) any information that has been made available to the non-Federal interests with respect to the specific plan to monitor mitigation implemented by the Secretary; and

(2) all data used by the Corps of Engineers in the justification and analysis of the project.

(c) Exception for trade secrets.—

(1) In general.—The Secretary shall not make information available under subsection (a) that the Secretary determines to be a trade secret of the person that provided the information to the Corps of Engineers.

(2) Criteria for trade secrets.—The Secretary shall consider information to be a trade secret only if—

(A) the person that provided the information to the Corps of Engineers—

(i) has not disclosed the information to any person other than—

(I) an officer or employee of the United States or a State or local government;

(II) an employee of the person that provided the information to the Corps of Engineers;

(III) a person that is bound by a confidentiality agreement; and

(ii) has taken reasonable measures to protect the confidentiality of the information and intends to continue to take such measures;

(B) the information is not required to be disclosed, or otherwise made available, to the public under any other Federal or State law; and

(C) disclosure of the information is likely to cause substantial harm to the competitive position of the person that provided the information to the Corps of Engineers.

(d) Waiver.—The Secretary may waive the limitation in paragraph (1) in any case in which the Secretary determines a waiver to be appropriate.

(e) Consultation.—The Secretary shall—

(1) consult with the National Academy of Sciences in developing lists of individuals to serve on a panel of experts under this section; and

(2) consult with the National Research Council and the American Chemical Society before selecting a preferred alternative for a project subject to review under subsection (a) and shall establish a panel of experts to review the project.

(f) Selection of panelists.—The Director shall—

(1) select panelists with particular emphasis on the panel's conclusions on the feasibility of establishment of the panel; and

(2) terminate upon submission of a report by the panel, with particular emphasis on the panel's conclusions on the feasibility of establishment of the panel; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

(II) an employee of the person that provided the information to the Corps of Engineers;

(i) has not disclosed the information to any person other than—

(I) an officer or employee of the United States or a State or local government;

(ii) has taken reasonable measures to protect the confidentiality of the information and intends to continue to take such measures;

(B) the information is not required to be disclosed, or otherwise made available, to the public under any other Federal or State law; and

(C) disclosure of the information is likely to cause substantial harm to the competitive position of the person that provided the information to the Corps of Engineers.

SEC. 105. BENEFIT-COST ANALYSIS.

(a) In general.—Section 906(a)(1) of the Water Resources Development Act of 1990 (33 U.S.C. 2283(a)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1)(B), by striking “"and" shall be a Federal expense;"; and

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking the period at the end and inserting ‘‘; and’’;

(3) by adding at the end the following:

(A) make a copy of the report and any written explanation of the Secretary on recommendations contained in the report available for public review in accordance with section 104; and

(B) submit to Congress a copy of the report and any such written explanation.

(b) Costs.—The costs of a panel of experts established for a project under this section—

(1) shall be a Federal expense; and

(2) shall not exceed $500,000; and

(c) Waiver.—The Secretary may waive the limitation in paragraph (1) in any case in which the Secretary determines a waiver to be appropriate.

(d) Applicability of Federal Advisory Committee Act.—The Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) shall apply to a panel of experts established under this section.

SEC. 106. PROJECT CRITERIA.

After the date of enactment of this Act, any proposal to authorize or substantially modify a water resources project unless the proposal contains a certification by the Secretary that the proposal minimizes to the maximum extent practicable adverse impacts on

(1) the natural hydrologic patterns of aquatic ecosystems; and

(2) the value or native diversity of aquatic ecosystems.

TITLE II—MITIGATION

SEC. 201. FULL MITIGATION.

Section 906(d) of the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 (33 U.S.C. 2283(d)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1)(A), by inserting ‘‘fully’’ before ‘‘mitigate’’; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

(3) STANDARDS FOR MITIGATION.—

(A) In general.—To mitigate losses to fish and wildlife resulting from any water resources project, the Secretary, at a minimum, shall acquire and restore 1 acre of habitat to replace each acre of habitat negatively affected by the project.

(B) Monitoring plan.—The mitigation plan for a water resources project under paragraph (1) shall include a detailed and specific plan to monitor mitigation implementation and success.

(C) Design of mitigation projects.—The Secretary shall—

(1) design each mitigation project to reflect contemporary understanding of the importance of spatial distribution of habitat and the natural hydrology of aquatic ecosystems; and

(2) fully mitigate the adverse hydrologic impacts of water resources projects.

(D) Recommendation of projects.—The Secretary shall not recommend a water resources project alternative or choose a project alternative in any final record of decision, environmental impact statement, or environmental assessment completed after the date of enactment of this paragraph unless the Secretary determines that the mitigation plan for the alternative has the greatest probability of cost-effectively and successfully mitigating the adverse impacts of the project on aquatic resources and fish and wildlife.

(E) Completion of mitigation before construction of new projects.—The Secretary shall complete all planned mitigation in a particular watershed before constructing any new water resources project in that watershed.

SEC. 202. CONCURRENT MITIGATION.

Section 906(a)(1) of the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 (33 U.S.C. 2283(a)(1)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

‘‘To ensure concurrent mitigation, the Secretary shall complete 50 percent of required mitigation before beginning project construction and shall complete the remainder of required mitigation as expeditiously as practicable, but not later than the last day of project construction.

SEC. 203. MITIGATION TRACKING SYSTEM.
(a) In general.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall establish a recordkeeping system for mitigation projects required under section 404 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (33 U.S.C. 1344) and required mitigation for such projects.
(b) Required Information and Organization.—The recordkeeping system shall—
(1) include information on impacts and mitigation designed to prevent or reduce the expected effects of the project or activity, and
(2) be organized by watershed, project, permit application, and zip code.
(c) Availability of Information.—The Secretary shall make information contained in the recordkeeping system available to the public on the Internet.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself and Mr. DORGAN):
S. 649. A bill to modify provisions relating to the Gun-Free Schools Act; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, today Senator DORGAN and I are introducing a bill to make four important changes to the current Gun-Free Schools Act, GFSA.

I am a proud sponsor of the Gun-Free Schools Act, which was enacted as part of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act in 1994. The law requires states receiving federal elementary-secondary education funds to have a state law requiring local school districts to expel from school for a period of not less than one year students who bring weapons to school.

A March report (ED-OIG/S05-A0018) prepared by the Inspector General, IG, of the U.S. Department of Education, highlights several improvements needed to clarify the law. This bill makes those important clarifications.

The IG’s report, called a “perspective erpillar,” resulted from an audit that Senator DORGAN and I requested to examine the enforcement of the GFSA in seven states.

We live in a society today that is much different than when I grew up.
Our nation is awash in guns and our children live in a culture of violence, bombarded by horrific images in movies, television, and video games. Combine these factors with a lack of parental supervision and this combustible mix has exploded again and again on too many school campuses.

In just the last few weeks alone, we’ve seen this mix erupt within just a few miles of each other in the San Diego area.

On March 5, a troubled young man named Charles “Andy” Williams brought a .22-caliber revolver to school, fired at random, killing two students and wounding a third and sentinel.
Weber High School, in Santee, California.
And on March 22, an eighteen-year-old shot five students at Granite Hill High School in El Cajon, California. Fortunately, in this case, no one was killed.
The Los Angeles Times summed up this epidemic aptly on March 6 and called on public officials to act, saying “Nothing of course, assures that tragedies can be prevented, but leaders from the classroom to the White House can clearly take more steps to promote school safety.”

Now I know that gun laws are not the only answer to solving this problem, but they do represent part of the answer. They are the most simple, rational, and targeted measures to deter guns from falling into the hands of our young people have been cast aside.

The fact is that there are some simple steps we can take to limit the number of guns from reaching our children.
We can close the loophole on the importation of high capacity ammunition clips. We can include trigger locks on every gun purchased.

And we need to continue with measures that are working. The Gun Free Schools Act is a targeted fix that is working. And the bill we are introducing today refines this law slightly to make it work even better.

This legislation will close several loopholes in current law under which allows some students to escape punishment who bring guns to school.

Because the law effectively imposes a one-year expulsion for students who have “brought” a weapon to school, students who “have” or “possess” a weapon in school can go “scot-free.”

Under current law, for example, a student could use a firearm that was technically “brought” to school by another student. The student could then possess it in his or her backpack or locker and thus potentially make it available to others and go unpunished because he or she did not technically “bring” it to school.

Another loophole that the bill addresses is the definition of school. The current prohibition on guns in schools applies to “a school.” This could be interpreted to mean literally the school building.

Our bill clarifies that school means “any setting that is under the control and supervision of the local education agency,” i.e., the school district. Without this change, a student could wield a firearm on the football field, on the school bus or in the parking lot and possibly evade punishment under this law.

Here are the four changes made by this bill: Under the current law, states are required to have a law requiring a one-year expulsion of students who have “brought a weapon to school” in order to receive federal education funds.

The change our bill proposes is to add to current law, “or to have possessed a firearm.” We are proposing this change because punishing only people who “bring” a weapon to school leaves a glaring loophole in the law.

Without this change, students who ask friends to bring a weapon to school or who obtain a weapon from someone who has “brought” it to school, but carry it around or use the weapon, would not be covered since current law uses the term “brought.” Current law could be interpreted to mean that students can have a gun at school as long as they do not actually “bring” it into the school. I believe this change is an important clarification.

The IG’s report says that without this change, states and school districts may “incorrectly implement the Act, resulting in non-compliance or the submission of erroneous information on disciplinary actions under the Act.”

This is because current law does not “specify expulsion as the consequence for students found in possession of a firearm.”

Under current law, school districts and states are required to report expulsions. They are, however, required to report incidents. An example of this would be when students bring a weapon to or possess weapons in schools, for which no disciplinary action is taken.

Without reporting all incidents in which students have or possess weap-os in schools, it is impossible to determine if school officials are in fact en-fourcing the law, if they are actually ex-PELLING students.

The IG’s audit cites an example at one Maryland school in which a student who brought a firearm to school was not expelled. Instead, the school’s administrators allowed the student to withdraw from school and the school did not inform the school district of the incident. Police arrested the student. So action was taken, but the incident itself did not appear in the annual report because technically the student was not expelled.

Similarly, the IG found that in one California district, school officials did not expel a student “involved in a firearm incident” because the student was arrested and did not return to school.

In these cases, the students did face legal consequences for their action, but the weapons incidents were not reflected in the school’s report because they did not report only expulsions, not incidents.

The bill would add several new reporting requirements. School districts and states would have to report, 1. all

March 29, 2001
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE
5095
firearms incidents; 2. each modification of an expulsion, e.g., when an administrator shortens an expulsion, which is allowed under current law; and 3. the level of education in which the incident occurs, elementary, middle, high school.

Only by thorough reporting can public officials clarify, and educate, and the Congress know how well the law is working and how effectively it is being enforced.

These proposed changes should remedy that deficiency.

There are two additional changes we are proposing based on the IG’s work. The Department of Education has incorporated these two changes in their guidance to states and school districts, but I believe these changes should be codified in the law so they cannot be changed administratively.

The prohibition on weapons in “school” applies “to a school, which implies that this means the building only. For many years, the U.S. Department of Education interpreted this to mean the school buildings only.

Under that approach, therefore, a student could bring a weapon to school and leave it in an unlocked car, where it would still be readily available to students throughout the school day.

Interpreted strictly to mean “school buildings,” that policy also allowed guns on athletic fields, in equipment sheds, and in school yards. As one Virginia legislator put it, “you could legally come to a PTA meeting packing a weapon.”

Fortunately, the Department has corrected its guidance to school districts to clarify that the prohibition on bringing guns to schools applies to the entire school campus. The guidance states, “The one-year expulsion requirement applies to students who bring weapons to any setting that is under the control and supervision of the local education agency.”

Under our bill, weapons would be allowed to be kept in cars and trucks on school property only if the weapons are “lawfully stored inside a locked vehicle on school property.” This provision is an effort to recognize that in some communities students may go hunting directly after school.

Under current law, the chief school administrator in a school district can modify an expulsion on a case-by-case basis.

Our bill would require that all modifications be put in writing. The IG found inconsistent reporting of modifications. This change should establish one consistent and clear policy and should provide a record of expulsions that are modified.

Guns have no place in schools. Congress made this clear in 1994 when we adopted the Gun-Free Schools Act.

This is a good law that should remain in place. The bill we introduce today makes some important clarifications in that law and strengthens it.

The latest Annual Report on School Safety reports that 3,930 students were expelled for bringing a firearm to school. One student is too many, in my view.

The latest incidents in California are but another disturbing reminder of the “culture of violence” that so pervades our society. All of us must ask why students resort to guns to deal with their grievances or vent their frustrations. Clearly, we must take strong steps to address the underlying societal issues and to get guns out of the hands of youngsters.

This bill is one small, yet important, step to ensure that no more schoolchildren die from weapons violence. I urge my colleagues to enact this bill promptly.

I ask unanimous consent that a summary of the bill be printed in the RECORD:

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

The GUN-FREE SCHOOLS REFINEMENT ACT—

Summary:

Amendments to the current Gun-Free Schools Act of 1994. These changes are based on the March 2001 report of the U.S. Department of Education’s Inspector General (ED-OIG-00-100).

1. “BROUGHT A WEAPON”

Current Law: Requires states to have a law requiring a one-year expulsion of students who have “brought a weapon to a school.”

Proposed Change: Adds “or possessed a weapon.”

2. ENTER SCHOOL CAMPUS

Current Law: The prohibition on bringing a weapon to school applies “to a school.”

Proposed Change: Clarifies that the prohibition on bringing guns to schools applies to entire school, specifically “any setting that is under the control and supervision of the local education agency,” unless a gun is lawfully locked in a vehicle.

3. REPORT INCIDENTS, MODIFICATIONS

Current Law: Requires only reporting of expulsions.

Proposed Changes: Requires the reporting of—

1. All weapons incidents;
2. Each modification of an expulsion (e.g., when an administrator shortens an expulsion); and
3. The level of education in which the incident occurs (elementary, middle, high school).

4. MODIFICATIONS IN WRITING

Current Law: Allows states’ laws to allow the chief administering officer of a school district to modify one-year expulsions on a case-by-case basis.

Proposed Change: Requires that all modifications of expulsions be put in writing.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senator FEINSTEIN in introducing the Gun-Free Schools Refinement Act. As my colleagues may remember, Senator FEINSTEIN and I were the original authors of the Gun-Free Schools Act of 1994, and as a result of this law, more than 13,000 students have been expelled from school between 1996 and 1999 for bringing a gun to school. That is more than 13,000 potential tragedies that have been avoided because we as a nation adopted “zero tolerance” policy toward bringing a weapon into our school classrooms and hallways.

Despite the Gun-Free Schools Act, however, school shootings still occasionally occur, and the Congress know how well the law is working and how effectively it is being enforced.

The Inspector General completed this review and issued her final report in February, 2001. Fortunately, the IG found no evidence that states or school districts were intentionally ignoring instances where students brought weapons to schools. However, while we were glad to learn that schools were generally trying to comply with the spirit of the law, the IG did find some instances where schools and states have not complied with the letter of the law. This may result in uneven enforcement of the Gun-Free Schools Act. Therefore, the IG recommended in March that Congress consider making a number of technical changes to the Gun-Free Schools Act to clarify areas of the statute where schools were confused about what was required in the enforcement of their “zero tolerance” policies.

The Gun-Free Schools Refinement Act would make four changes to the 1994 law: First, this legislation clarifies that the law applies to students who “possess” a gun in school, not just those who “brought” a weapon to school, as the law currently reads. A common-sense interpretation of the law would compel schools to expel students who possess firearms in school, even if they were not the ones who physically brought the guns there. This change merely codifies a common-sense reading of the law so that it applies to students who either bring or possess a weapon at school.

Second, this bill clarifies that the Gun-Free Schools Act applies not just to the school buildings but to the grounds and any other setting under the jurisdiction of the school. What is meant by a “school” is not currently defined by the statute, but the Department of Education has already determined in its implementation guidance that a “school” means any area under the supervision of the school, such as buses or off-campus athletic events or field trips. This change codifies the Department’s reasonable definition. I do want to mention, however, that this change would still allow schools the flexibility to permit rifle clubs, hunter safety education, or other sanctioned school activities, as long as these limited purposes provide reasonable safeguards to ensure student safety and are otherwise consistent with the intent of the Gun-Free Schools Act.

This bill recognizes that schools report all incidents of students bringing a gun to school, even if a student’s expulsion is ultimately shortened using the case-by-case exception provided for in the Gun-Free Schools Act. Technically the law requires schools to report only expulsions, and the IG found that this has led to considerable confusion among schools about whether they also need to report shortened expulsions. The Department of Education has already taken a step in the right direction toward addressing this issue by revising the reporting form that schools use when reporting firearm incidents. This will further clarify for states and schools the data they need to report.

Finally, this legislation requires that modifications to one-year expulsions, which are made on a case-by-case basis by the chief school officer, be made in writing. This will simply ensure that school officials, parents or other appropriate individuals will have access to a written record explaining why the expulsion was shortened.

In summary, I think these are simple, straightforward, and sensible changes to the Gun-Free Schools Act. I urge my colleagues to join me and Senator Feingold in making these technical changes when the Senate debates upcoming legislation reauthorizing the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

By Mrs. BOXER (for herself and Mr. WYDEN):

S. 650. A bill to amend the Mineral Leasing Act to prohibit the exportation of Alaska North Slope crude oil; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

S. 651. A bill to provide for the establishment of an assistance program for health care consumers; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

By Mr. REED (for himself, Mr. JEFFORDS, Ms. MIKULSKI, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. WELLSTONE, and Mrs. CLINTON):

Unfortunately, at the behest of oil producers, the ban was lifted in 1995. The General Accounting Office has stated that lifting the export ban resulted in an increase in the price of crude oil by about $1 per barrel. In fact, some oil companies used their ability to export this oil to artificially increase the price of gasoline on the West Coast.

With the spotlight on energy policy, President Bush and others have called for drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR). It makes no sense to destroy a beautiful, pristine sanctuary, one of the most remarkable wildlife habitats in the world, for oil that will only last six months. And this call to destroy ANWR comes even in the face of the possible export of American oil that is being drilled in areas already open to drilling.

For a little under a year now, no North Slope oil has been exported. But this has been done voluntarily—and in one case mainly to ensure that a proposed merger was approved by the FTC. Although there are no exports now, the heavy and on-going current situation, this ban is necessary to preclude any chance of exporting this oil.

This is oil that is on public lands, and that is transported along a federal right-of-way. Taxpayers own this product. We need to ensure that American consumers and industry will remain first. I encourage my colleagues to support the Oil Supply Improvement Act.

Early in the 1990s, the Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation and Consumer Reports magazine released the results of a survey on consumer satisfaction with health plans. This survey is part of a larger project examining ways to improve how consumers resolve problems with their health insurance plans. The survey found that while most people who experienced a problem with their plan were able to resolve them, the majority of those surveyed were confused about where to go for information and help.

Over the past few years, a growing number of states have taken steps to give patients new rights in dealing with their health insurance plans. For example, more than half have an external review process for residents to appeal adverse decisions by their health plans. While the majority of those surveyed thought the ability to appeal a decision to an independent medical expert would be helpful, only one percent had actually used the process available in many states. In fact, most consumers were unaware this option even existed, much less how to use it.

The legislation we introduce today seeks to remedy this information gap by providing grants to states that wish to establish health care consumer assistance programs. These programs are designed to help make health care consumers more educated and effective as they seek to understand and exercise their health care choices, rights, and responsibilities.

I believe that the Health Care Consumer Assistance Act would complement a Patient’s Bill of Rights that includes a strong appeals process and access to legal remedies. It may, in fact, actually serve to ease the ongoing debate about litigation. By empowering health care consumers with information and effective strategies for making sure they get the care they have paid for, the chances that a health-related dispute will end up in court are drastically minimized. When a person is sick and in need of medical care, the last thing they want is to have a protracted legal battle, they simply want the care that will make them better.

Under this bill, the Secretary of Health and Human Services will provide funds to eligible states to create, or contract with an independent, nonprofit agency, to provide a variety of information and support services for health care consumers, including the following: educational materials about... strategies for health care consumers to resolve problems and grievances; operate a 1-800 telephone hotline to coordinate and make referrals to other private and public health care entities when appropriate; and conduct education and outreach in the community.

The concept of a health care consumer assistance program has gained considerable support over the past several years as states have contemplated the patient protection issue and several states have taken steps to create these programs. Governors and state legislatures in many states including Florida, Georgia, Massachusetts, Maryland, Nebraska, Nevada, Rhode Island, Texas, Vermont, Virginia and Wisconsin have introduced or enacted health care ombudsman legislation. However, a Families USA survey of existing programs has found that while some states have successfully launched their programs, other state initiatives have faltered due to a lack of sufficient funding.

I believe that Americans deserve access to the information and assistance they need to be empowered and informed health care consumers. As the health insurance system becomes more confusing and complex, it becomes critically important that consumers have a place where they can go for counseling and assistance. As health plan options become more complicated, people need a reliable, accessible source of information. State health care consumer assistance programs have proven their ability to meet this challenge. I look forward to working with my colleagues in advancing this important and timely legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 651

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Health Care Consumers Assistance Fund Act".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) All consumers need information and assistance to understand their health insurance choices and to facilitate effective and efficient access to needed health services. Many do not understand their health care coverage despite the current efforts of both the public and private sectors.

(2) Federally initiated health care consumer assistance and information programs targeted to consumers of long-term care and to Medicare beneficiaries under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.) are effective, as are a number of State and local consumer assistance initiatives.

(3) The principles, policies, and practices of health plans for providing safe, effective, and accessible health care can be enriched by State-based collaborative, independent education, problem resolution, and feedback programs. Health care consumer assistance programs have proven their ability to meet this challenge.

(4) Many states have created health care consumer assistance. The Federal Government can assist the States in developing and maintaining effective health care consumer assistance programs.

SEC. 3. GRANTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services (referred to in this Act as the "Secretary") shall establish a fund, to be known as the "Consumer Assistance Fund", to be used to award grants to establish State initiatives to enable such States to carry out consumer assistance activities (including programs established by States prior to the enactment of this Act) designed to provide information, assistance, and referral to consumers of health insurance products.

(b) STATE ELIGIBILITY.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this section a State shall submit an application at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require, including a State plan that describes—

(1) the manner in which the State will ensure that the health care consumer assistance office (established in subsection (d)) will assist health care consumers in accessing needed care by educating and assisting health insurance enrollees to be responsible and informed consumers;

(2) the manner in which the State will coordinate and distinguish the services provided by the health care consumer assistance office and the services provided by the long-term care ombudsman authorized by the Older Americans Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3001 et seq.), the State health insurance information program authorized under section 1305 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 1395d–4), the protection and advocacy program authorized under the Protection and Advocacy for Mentally Ill Individuals Act of 1986 (42 U.S.C. 10801 et seq.), and any other programs that provide information and assistance to consumers;

(3) the manner in which the State will coordinate and distinguish the health care consumer assistance office and its services from services provided under the Medicare and Medicaid health care fraud and abuse activities including those authorized by Federal law under title II of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1301 et seq.), and State health insurance departments and health plan programs that perform similar functions;

(4) the manner in which the State will provide services to rural and minority populations and populations residing in rural areas;

(5) the manner in which the State will establish and implement procedures and protocols, consistent with applicable Federal and State confidentiality laws, to ensure the confidentiality of all information shared by health care consumers, enrollees, health plans, or insurers with the office established under subsection (d)(1) and to ensure that no such information is used, retransmitted, disseminated, or sold for any purpose other than the express prior permission of the consumer in accordance with section 4(b), except to the extent that the office collects or uses aggregate information;

(6) the manner in which the State will oversee the health care consumer assistance office, its activities and product materials, and the program.

(b) AMOUNT OF GRANT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—From amounts appropriated under section 4 for a fiscal year, the Secretary shall award a grant to a State in an amount that bears the same ratio to such amounts as the number of individuals within the State covered under a health insurance plan (as determined by the Secretary) bears to the total number of individuals covered under a health insurance plan in all States (as determined by the Secretary).

(2) MINIMUM AMOUNT.—In no case shall the amount provided to a State under this section for a fiscal year be less than an amount equal to 25 percent of the amount appropriated for such fiscal year under section 5.

(c) PROVISION OF FUNDS FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF OFFICE.

(1) IN GENERAL.—From amounts provided under a grant awarded under this Act to carry out consumer assistance activities directly or by contract with an independent, nonprofit organization, the Secretary shall provide such funds to establish and operate a State health care consumer assistance office.

(2) ELIGIBILITY OF ENTITY.—To be eligible to enter into a contract under paragraph (1), an entity shall demonstrate that the entity has the technical, organizational, and professional capacity to deliver the services described in section 4 throughout the State to all public and private health insurance consumers.

SEC. 4. USE OF FUNDS.

(a) BY STATE.—A State shall use amounts provided under a grant awarded under this Act to carry out consumer assistance activities directly or by contract with an independent, nonprofit organization. The State shall ensure the adequate training of personnel carrying out such activities. Such activities shall include—

(1) the operation of a toll-free telephone hotline to respond to consumer requests for assistance;

(2) the dissemination of appropriate educational materials on how best to access health care and the rights and responsibilities of health care consumers;

(3) the provision of education to health care consumers on effective methods to promptly and efficiently resolve their questions, complaints, and grievances;

(4) referrals to appropriate private and public entities to resolve questions, problems and grievances;

(5) the coordination of educational and outreach efforts with consumers, health plans, health care providers, and governmental agencies; and

(6) the provision of information and assistance to consumers regarding internal, external, or administrative grievances or appeals.
procedures in nonlitigative settings to appeal the denial, termination, or reduction of health care services, or the refusal to pay for such services, under a health insurance plan.

(b) CONFIDENTIALITY AND ACCESS TO INFORMATION—The consumer assistance office of a State shall establish and implement procedures and protocols, consistent with applicable Federal and State confidentiality laws, that protect the confidentiality of all information shared by consumers and their health care providers, health plans, or insurers with the office and to ensure that no such information is used, released, or referred to State agencies or outside entities without the expressed prior permission of the consumer, except to the extent that the office collects or uses aggregate information that is not individually identifiable. Such procedures and protocols shall ensure that the health care consumer is provided with a description of the policies and procedures of the office with respect to the manner in which health information may be used to carry out consumer assistance activities.

SEC. 5. FUNDING.

There are authorized to be appropriated $100,000,000 to carry out this Act.

SEC. 6. REPORT OF THE SECRETARY.

Not later than 180 days after the Secretary first awards grants under this Act, and annually thereafter, the Secretary shall prepare and submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report concerning the activities funded under section 4 and the effectiveness of such activities in resolving health care-related problems and grievances.

By Mr. EDWARDS (for himself, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. LEAHY, and Mr. WELLSTONE):

S. 652. A bill to promote the development of affordable, quality rental housing in rural, low-income households; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. President, I rise to reintroduce legislation I offered last year to promote the development of affordable, quality rental housing for low-income households in rural areas.

I am pleased, along with Senator JEFFORDS, Senator LEAHY, and Senator WELLSTONE, to introduce the “Rural Rental Housing Act of 2001.”

I am concerned with the need for quality rental housing for rural families and senior citizens. As a group, residents of rural communities are the worst housed of all our citizens. Rural areas contain approximately 20 percent of the nation’s population as compared to suburbs with 50 percent. Yet, twice as many rural American families live in bad housing than in the suburbs. An estimated 2,600,000 rural households live in substandard housing with substandard housing with without indoor plumbing, heat, or electricity.

Substandard housing is a particularly grave problem in the rural areas of my home state of North Carolina. Ten percent or more of the population in five of North Carolina’s rural counties live in substandard housing. Rural housing units, in fact, comprise 60 percent of all substandard units in the state.

As millions of rural Americans live in wretched rental housing, millions more are paying an extraordinarily high price for their housing. One out of every three renters in rural America pays more than 30 percent of their income for housing.

Most disturbing is when people living in housing that does not have heat or indoor plumbing pay an extraordinary amount of their income in rent. More than 90 percent of people living in housing in the worst conditions pay more than 50 percent of their income for housing costs.

Unfortunately, our rural communities are not in a position to address these problems alone. They are disproportionately poor and have fewer resources to bring to bear on the issue.

Poverty is a crushing, persistent problem in rural America. One-third of the non-metropolitan families in North Carolina have 20 percent or more of their population living below the poverty line. In contrast, not a single metropolitan county in North Carolina has 20 percent or more of its population living below the poverty line. Not surprisingly, the economies of rural areas are generally less diverse, less dynamic, and have less access to capital, to banks, and other investors, looking for larger projects with lower risk, seek metropolitan areas for loans and investment.

Given the magnitude of this problem, it is startling to find that the federal government is turning its back on the situation. In the face of this challenge, the federal government’s investment in rural rental housing is at its lowest level in more than 25 years. Federal spending for rural rental housing has been cut by 73 percent since 1994. Rural rental housing unit production financed by the federal government has been reduced by 73 percent since 1990.

Moreover, poor rural renters do not fare as well as poor urban renters in accessing existing programs. Only 17 percent of very-low-income rural renters receive housing subsidies, compared with 20 percent of urban poor. Rural counties fared worse with Federal Housing Authority assistance on a per capita basis, as well, getting only $25 per capita versus $254 in metro areas.

Our veterans in rural areas are no better off. Veterans Affairs housing dollars are spent disproportionately in metropolitan areas.

To address the scarcity of rural rental housing, I believe that the federal government must come up with new solutions. We cannot simply throw money at the problem, and expect the situation to improve. Instead, we must work in partnership with State and local governments, private financial institutions, private philanthropic institutions, and the private and non-profit sectors to make headway. We must leverage our resources wisely to increase the supply and quality of rural rental housing for low-income households and the elderly.

Senator JEFFORDS, Senator LEAHY, Senator WELLSTONE, and I are proposing a new solution. Today, I introduce the Rural Rental Housing Act of 2001 to create a flexible source of financing to allow project sponsors to build, acquire or rehabilitate rental housing based on local needs. We demand that the federal dollars to be stretched by requiring State matching funds and by requiring the sponsor to find additional sources of funding for the project. We are pleased that more than 70 housing groups from 26 states have already indicated their support for this legislation.

Let me briefly describe what the measure would do. We propose a $250 million fund to be administered by the United States Department of Agriculture, USDAs. The funds will be allotted to states on the basis of the number of rural substandard units and of the rural population living in poverty, with smaller states guaranteed a minimum of $2 million. We will leverage federal funding by requiring states or other nonprofit intermediaries to provide a dollar-for-dollar match of project funds. The funds will be used for the acquisition, rehabilitation, and construction of low-income rural rental housing.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE  March 29, 2001

5100

The USDA will make rental housing available for low-income populations in rural communities. The population served must earn less than 80 percent of their area median income. Housing must be in rural areas with populations not exceeding 50 percent of their area median income and in communities with a severe lack of affordable housing. The legislation specifies that housing financed under the legislation must have a low-income use restriction of not less than 30 years.

The Act promotes public-private partnerships to foster flexible, local solutions. The USDA will make assistance available to public bodies, Native American tribes, for-profit corporations, and private nonprofit corporations with a record of accomplishment in housing or community development. Again, it stretches federal assistance by limiting most projects from financing more than 50 percent of a project cost with this funding. The assistance may be made available in the form of capital grants, interest subsidies, loan guarantees, and other forms of financing for rental housing and related facilities.

Finally, the Act will be administered at the state level by organizations familiar with the unique needs of each state rather than creating a new federal bureaucracy. The USDA will be encouraged to identify intermediary organizations based in the state to administer the funding provided that it complies with the provisions of the Act. These intermediary organizations can be states or state agencies, private nonprofit community development corporations, nonprofit housing corporations, community development loan funds or community development credit unions.

This Act is not meant to replace, but to supplement the Section 515 Rural Rental Housing program, which has been the primary source of federal funding for rental housing in rural America from its inception in 1963. Section 515, which is administered by the USDA’s Rural Housing Service, makes direct loans to non-profit and for-profit developers to build rural rental housing for very low income tenants. Our support for 515 has decreased in recent years and there has been a 73 percent reduction since 1994—which has had two effects. It is practically impossible to build new rental housing, and our ability to preserve and maintain the current stock of Section 515 units is hobbed. Fully three-quarters of the Section 515 portfolio is more than 20 years old.

The time has come for us to take a new look at the critical problem facing rural America. How can best we work to promote the development of quality rental housing for low-income people in rural America? My colleagues and I believe that to answer this question, we must comply with certain basic principles. We do not want to create yet another program with a large federal bureaucracy. We want a program that is flexible, that fosters public-private partnerships, that leverages federal funding, and locally controlled. We believe that the Rural Rental Housing Act of 2001 satisfies these principles and will help move us in the direction of ensuring that everyone in America, including those in rural areas, have access to affordable, quality housing options.

I request that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 652

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representitives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Rural Rental Housing Act of 2001”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) There is a pressing and increasing need for rental housing for rural families and senior citizens, as evidenced by the fact that—

(A) one-third of all renters pay more than 30 percent of their income for housing; and

(B) approximately 1,000,000 rural renters—

(i) have access to affordable rental housing units; and

(ii) more than 500,000 rural renters—

(B) more than 900,000 rural rental households (10.4 percent) live in either severely or moderately inadequate housing; and

(C) substandard housing is a problem for approximately 165,000 rural rental units overcrowded.

(2) Many rural United States households live with serious housing problems, including a lack of basic water and wastewater services, structural insufficiencies, and overcrowding, as shown by the fact that—

(A) 28 percent, or 18,440,000, rural households in the United States live with some kind of serious housing problem;

(B) approximately 1,000,000 rural renters live with multiple serious housing problems; and

(C) an estimated 2,600,000 rural households live in substandard housing with severe structural damage or without indoor plumbing, heat, or electricity.

(3) In rural America—

(A) one-third of all renters pay more than 30 percent of their income for housing;

(B) 20 percent of rural renters pay more than 50 percent of their income for housing; and

(C) 92 percent of all rural renters with significant housing problems pay more than 50 percent of their income for housing, and

(4) Rural economies are often less diverse, and therefore, jobs and economic opportunity are limited because—

(A) factors that exist in rural environments, such as remoteness and low population density, lead to limited access to many forces driving the economy, such as technology, lending, and investment; and

(B) rural expertise is often limited in rural areas where the economies are focused on farming or natural resource-based industries.

(5) Rural areas have less access to credit than metropolitan areas since—

(A) banks and other investors that look for larger projects with lower risk seek metropolitan areas for loans and investment; and

(B) credit that is available is often insufficient, leading to the need for interim or bridge financing; and

(C) credit in rural areas is often more expensive and available at less favorable terms than in metropolitan areas.

(6) The Federal Government investment in rural rental housing has dropped during the last decade, as evidenced by the fact that—

(A) Federal spending for rural rental housing has been cut by 73 percent since 1994; and

(B) rural rental housing unit production financed by the Federal Government has been reduced by 88 percent since 1990.

(7) To address the scarcity of rural rental housing, the Federal Government must work in partnership with State and local governments, private financial institutions, private philanthropic institutions, and the private sector, including nonprofit organizations.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(1) ELIGIBLE PROJECT.—The term “eligible project” means a project for the acquisition, rehabilitation, or construction of rental housing and related facilities in an eligible rural area for occupancy by low-income families.

(2) ELIGIBLE RURAL AREA.—The term “eligible rural area” means a rural area with a population of not more than 25,000, as determined by the most recent decennial census of the United States, and that is located outside an urbanized area.

(3) ELIGIBLE SPONSOR.—The term “eligible sponsor” means a public agency, an Indian tribe, a for-profit corporation, or a private nonprofit corporation—

(A) a purpose of which is planning, developing, or managing housing or community development projects in rural areas; and

(B) that has a record of accomplishment in housing or community development and meets other criteria established by the Secretary by regulation.

(4) LOW-INCOME FAMILIES.—The term “low-income families” has the meaning given in section 3(b) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437a(b)).

(5) QUALIFIED INTERMEDIARY.—The term “qualified intermediary” means a State, a State agency designated by the Governor of the State, a public instrumentality of the State, a private nonprofit community development corporation, a nonprofit housing corporation, a financial cooperative, a bank, a credit union, or a community development credit union that—

(A) has a record of providing technical and financial assistance for housing and community development activities in rural areas; and
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE
5101

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, today I offer my support for the Rural Rental Housing Act of 2001. Communities in every state in this country are suffering from a critical lack of affordable housing. Many rural areas have been particularly hard hit. This bill takes an important step toward re-establishing the production and preservation of affordable housing as a National priority. It assures that the needs of rural communities are not forgotton. I am pleased to be a co-sponsor of this bill, and urge all of my colleagues similarly to support this legislation.

The time has come for the federal government to get back in the business of providing assistance to low-income families. Until we do, we will not get at the issue underlying the current affordable housing crisis: the rapid erosion of affordable housing stock. Every year, in fact, every day, we see the demolition of old public housing units without a plan for the creation of an equivalent number of new affordable housing units. And while there can be no question that some of our existing affordable housing units should be demolished, we have yet to meet our responsibility to replace the old units that are lost with new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many new, better, affordable units.

The time has come for the federal government to get back in the business of providing assistance to low-income families. Until we do, we will not get at the issue underlying the current affordable housing crisis: the rapid erosion of affordable housing stock. Every year, in fact, every day, we see the demolition of old public housing units without a plan for the creation of an equivalent number of new affordable housing units. And while there can be no question that some of our existing affordable housing units should be demolished, we have yet to meet our responsibility to replace the old units that are lost with new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many displaced families, families who are forced to sometimes double-up or even become homeless in worst-case scenarios, overburdening otherwise already fragile communities.

The time has come for the federal government to get back in the business of providing assistance to low-income families. Until we do, we will not get at the issue underlying the current affordable housing crisis: the rapid erosion of affordable housing stock. Every year, in fact, every day, we see the demolition of old public housing units without a plan for the creation of an equivalent number of new affordable housing units. And while there can be no question that some of our existing affordable housing units should be demolished, we have yet to meet our responsibility to replace the old units that are lost with new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many displaced families, families who are forced to sometimes double-up or even become homeless in worst-case scenarios, overburdening otherwise already fragile communities.

The time has come for the federal government to get back in the business of providing assistance to low-income families. Until we do, we will not get at the issue underlying the current affordable housing crisis: the rapid erosion of affordable housing stock. Every year, in fact, every day, we see the demolition of old public housing units without a plan for the creation of an equivalent number of new affordable housing units. And while there can be no question that some of our existing affordable housing units should be demolished, we have yet to meet our responsibility to replace the old units that are lost with new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many displaced families, families who are forced to sometimes double-up or even become homeless in worst-case scenarios, overburdening otherwise already fragile communities.

The time has come for the federal government to get back in the business of providing assistance to low-income families. Until we do, we will not get at the issue underlying the current affordable housing crisis: the rapid erosion of affordable housing stock. Every year, in fact, every day, we see the demolition of old public housing units without a plan for the creation of an equivalent number of new affordable housing units. And while there can be no question that some of our existing affordable housing units should be demolished, we have yet to meet our responsibility to replace the old units that are lost with new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many displaced families, families who are forced to sometimes double-up or even become homeless in worst-case scenarios, overburdening otherwise already fragile communities.

The time has come for the federal government to get back in the business of providing assistance to low-income families. Until we do, we will not get at the issue underlying the current affordable housing crisis: the rapid erosion of affordable housing stock. Every year, in fact, every day, we see the demolition of old public housing units without a plan for the creation of an equivalent number of new affordable housing units. And while there can be no question that some of our existing affordable housing units should be demolished, we have yet to meet our responsibility to replace the old units that are lost with new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many displaced families, families who are forced to sometimes double-up or even become homeless in worst-case scenarios, overburdening otherwise already fragile communities.

The time has come for the federal government to get back in the business of providing assistance to low-income families. Until we do, we will not get at the issue underlying the current affordable housing crisis: the rapid erosion of affordable housing stock. Every year, in fact, every day, we see the demolition of old public housing units without a plan for the creation of an equivalent number of new affordable housing units. And while there can be no question that some of our existing affordable housing units should be demolished, we have yet to meet our responsibility to replace the old units that are lost with new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many displaced families, families who are forced to sometimes double-up or even become homeless in worst-case scenarios, overburdening otherwise already fragile communities.

The time has come for the federal government to get back in the business of providing assistance to low-income families. Until we do, we will not get at the issue underlying the current affordable housing crisis: the rapid erosion of affordable housing stock. Every year, in fact, every day, we see the demolition of old public housing units without a plan for the creation of an equivalent number of new affordable housing units. And while there can be no question that some of our existing affordable housing units should be demolished, we have yet to meet our responsibility to replace the old units that are lost with new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many displaced families, families who are forced to sometimes double-up or even become homeless in worst-case scenarios, overburdening otherwise already fragile communities.

The time has come for the federal government to get back in the business of providing assistance to low-income families. Until we do, we will not get at the issue underlying the current affordable housing crisis: the rapid erosion of affordable housing stock. Every year, in fact, every day, we see the demolition of old public housing units without a plan for the creation of an equivalent number of new affordable housing units. And while there can be no question that some of our existing affordable housing units should be demolished, we have yet to meet our responsibility to replace the old units that are lost with new, better, affordable units. Our current policy simply results in too many displaced families, families who are forced to sometimes double-up or even become homeless in worst-case scenarios, overburdening otherwise already fragile communities.
Rural households pay more of their income for housing than do urban households. They are less likely to benefit from government-subsidized mortgages; they tend to be poorer than urban households. They have limited access to mortgage credit, and they are often targeted by predatory lenders. Rural communities have a disproportionate share of the nation’s substandard housing. They often have an inadequate supply of affordable housing. Development costs are higher in rural communities than in urban areas, and rural communities have a limited secondary mortgage market. Many low-income rural families have only limited experience with credit and lending institutions, and they often lack an understanding of what it takes to get a home loan. Compounding this problem is a lack of pre- and post-purchase counseling for rural homeowners.

Despite the critical housing needs of rural communities, direct lending for new or improved rural rental housing is currently at its lowest funding level in more than 25 years. The Department of Agriculture, USDA, has oversight of most of the federal rural housing assistance programs. The primary resources of funding for rural housing assistance, the Section 515 Rural Rental Housing Loan Program, which makes direct loans to developers and cooperatives to build rural rental housing and the Section 521 Rural Rental Housing Assistance Program (which provides rent subsidies to low-income rural renters), have seen their funding levels steadily eroded since the mid-eighties. As a consequence, right now the rate of housing assistance to non-metro areas is only about half that to metro areas.

Unfortunately, while funding levels for rural housing assistance programs have been decreasing, the need for affordable rural housing has been increasing. According to an analysis of 1995 American Housing Survey, AHS, data, 10.4 million rural households, 28 percent, have housing problems. When considering only rural renters, the problem becomes even more pronounced. Thirty-three percent of all rural renters are “cost burdened,” paying more than 30 percent of their income for housing costs. Almost one million rural renter households suffer from multiple housing problems. Of these households, 90 percent are severely cost burdened, paying more than 50 percent of their income for rent. Sixty percent pay more than 70 percent of their income for housing. Nearly 60 percent of Section 521 housing assistance are elderly, disabled or handicapped. The average tenant income is less than $8,000 a year, and the average income of tenants who receive Section 521 housing assistance is $7,300 per year. Ninety-eight percent of them are either low-income, 88 percent, or very low-income, 10 percent, and 75 percent are single female or female-headed households.

The “Rural Rental Housing Act of 2001” is intended to promote the development of affordable, quality rental housing in rural income households. The bill would authorize the Secretary of Agriculture, directly or through specified intermediaries, to provide rural rental housing assistance in the form of loans, grants, interest subsidies, annuities, and other forms of assistance to finance eligible projects. It would require that no state receives less than $2 million. It would limit the amount of assistance to 50 percent of the total cost of eligible projects, unless the project is smaller than 20 units and is targeted to very-low income tenants, then assistance can total up to 75 percent of the total cost. It would require that properties acquired, rehabilitated, or constructed with these funds remain affordable for low-income families for 30 years, and it would give priority to low-income families, low-income communities, or communities lacking affordable rental housing. Finally, it would authorize $250,000,000 in appropriations for each fiscal year 2001 through 2006.

I am pleased to be a co-sponsor of this important legislation, and look forward to working with Senators Edwards, Jeffords, and Leahy to ensure its passage.

By Mr. BAYH (for himself, Mr. DOMENICI, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. Voinovich, Mr. CARPER, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. MILLER, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. Breaux, and Mr. Kohl):

S. 633. A bill to amend part D of title IV of the Social Security Act to provide grants to States to encourage and implement merit-based, total responsibility fatherhood programs, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BAYH. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce The Responsible Fatherhood Act of 2001 with Senator PETE DOMENICI. Our bill aims to encourage fathers to take both emotional and financial responsibility for their children.

Many of America’s mothers, including single moms, are heroic in their efforts to make ends meet while raising good, responsible children. Many dads are too. But an increasing number of men are not doing their part, or are absent entirely. The decline in the involvement of fathers in the lives of their children over the last forty years is a troubling trend that affects us all. Fathers can help teach their children about respect, honor, duty and so many of the values that make our communities strong.

The number of children living in households without fathers has tripled over the last forty years, from just over 5 million in 1960 to more than 17 million today. Today, the United States leads the world in fatherless families, and too many children spend their lives without any contact with their fathers. The consequence are severe. A study by the Journal of Research in Crime and Delinquency found that the best predictor of violent crime and burglary in a community is not the rate of poverty, but the rate of fatherless homes.

When fathers are absent from their lives, children are: 5 times more likely to live in poverty; twice as likely to commit crimes; more likely to bring weapons and drugs into the classroom; twice as likely to drop out of school; twice as likely to be abused; more likely to commit suicide; over twice as likely to abuse alcohol or drugs; and more likely to become pregnant as teenagers.

I have had the opportunity to work with and visit local fatherhood programs in Indiana. I have talked to fathers who work to re-engage with their children, learn to be better parents, and gradually build the trust that allows them to be involved emotionally, as well as financially, with their children. I visited the Father Resource Program, run by Dr. Wallace McLaughlin in Indianapolis. This program is a wonderful example of a local, private/public partnership that delivers results. It has served more than 500 fathers, primarily young men between the ages of 15 and 35, using father peer support meetings, pre-marital counseling, family development forums and family support services, as well as co-parenting, employment, job training, education, and life skills classes.

The fathers there were eager to tell me about the profound impact these programs have made in their lives, and the lives of their children. One said to me, “After the six week fatherhood training program it wasn’t stop . . . I was wild before. The program taught me self-discipline, parenting skills, and responsibility.” Another said, “As fathers, we would like to interact with our kids. When they grow into something, we want to feel proud and say that we were a part of that.” And yet another, “The program showed me how to have a better relationship with my child’s mother, and a better relationship with my child. Before the program, I wasn’t providing for my child. The program taught me how to provide for my child financially.” While the program’s emotional benefits to families are difficult to measure, we do know it is helping fathers enter the workforce. Over eighty percent of the men who have graduated from the program are currently employed.

This type of investment is a fiscally responsible one, it helps get to the root cause of many of the social problems that cost our society and our government a great deal of money: The cost to society of drug and alcohol abuse is more than $110 billion per year. The social and economic costs of teenage pregnancy, abortion and STDs has been estimated at over $21 billion per year. The federal government spends $8 billion a year in about prevention programs. Last year, the federal government spent more than $105 billion on poverty relief programs for families and children.

All this adds up to a staggering price. My legislation, The Responsible Fatherhood Act of 2001, does three primary things to help combat fatherlessness in America. First, it creates a grant program for state media campaigns to encourage fathers to act responsibly. Second, it funds community efforts that provide fathers with the tools necessary to be responsible fathers. Finally, the bill creates a National Clearinghouse to assist states with their own campaigns and with the dissemination of materials to promote responsible fatherhood.

The federal government spends $8 billion a year in about prevention programs. Last year, the federal government spent more than $105 billion on poverty relief programs for families and children.

The legislation I am introducing today recognizes the important role of 4-H in youth development. I am pleased to join Senator Harkin in working on this legislation to fund programs that teach young people about the consequences of father absence and remove barriers to responsible fatherhood.

I urge my colleagues to support this important initiative.

By Mr. LUGAR (for himself and Mr. HARKIN):

S. 657. A bill to authorize funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation authorizing funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative.

In 2002 we will celebrate the centennial of the founding of the 4-H program. This important youth development program operates in each of the 50 states and more than 3,000 counties. The program is carried out through the cooperative efforts of: youth; volunteer leaders; land grant universities; federal, state and local governments; and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Last year over 6.8 million youth ages 5 to 19 participated in the 4-H program. Over 600,000 volunteer leaders work directly or indirectly with youth through the 4-H program.

The legislation I am introducing today recognizes the important role of 4-H in youth development. I am pleased to join Senator Harkin in working on this legislation to fund programs that teach young people about the consequences of father absence and remove barriers to responsible fatherhood.

I urge my colleagues to support this important initiative.

S. 657. A bill to authorize funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation authorizing funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative.

In 2002 we will celebrate the centennial of the founding of the 4-H program. This important youth development program operates in each of the 50 states and more than 3,000 counties. The program is carried out through the cooperative efforts of: youth; volunteer leaders; land grant universities; federal, state and local governments; and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Last year over 6.8 million youth ages 5 to 19 participated in the 4-H program. Over 600,000 volunteer leaders work directly or indirectly with youth through the 4-H program.

The legislation I am introducing today recognizes the important role of 4-H in youth development. I am pleased to join Senator Harkin in working on this legislation to fund programs that teach young people about the consequences of father absence and remove barriers to responsible fatherhood.

I urge my colleagues to support this important initiative.

By Mr. LUGAR (for himself and Mr. HARKIN):

S. 657. A bill to authorize funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation authorizing funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative.

In 2002 we will celebrate the centennial of the founding of the 4-H program. This important youth development program operates in each of the 50 states and more than 3,000 counties. The program is carried out through the cooperative efforts of: youth; volunteer leaders; land grant universities; federal, state and local governments; and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Last year over 6.8 million youth ages 5 to 19 participated in the 4-H program. Over 600,000 volunteer leaders work directly or indirectly with youth through the 4-H program.

The legislation I am introducing today recognizes the important role of 4-H in youth development. I am pleased to join Senator Harkin in working on this legislation to fund programs that teach young people about the consequences of father absence and remove barriers to responsible fatherhood.

I urge my colleagues to support this important initiative.

By Mr. LUGAR (for himself and Mr. HARKIN):

S. 657. A bill to authorize funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation authorizing funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative.

In 2002 we will celebrate the centennial of the founding of the 4-H program. This important youth development program operates in each of the 50 states and more than 3,000 counties. The program is carried out through the cooperative efforts of: youth; volunteer leaders; land grant universities; federal, state and local governments; and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Last year over 6.8 million youth ages 5 to 19 participated in the 4-H program. Over 600,000 volunteer leaders work directly or indirectly with youth through the 4-H program.

The legislation I am introducing today recognizes the important role of 4-H in youth development. I am pleased to join Senator Harkin in working on this legislation to fund programs that teach young people about the consequences of father absence and remove barriers to responsible fatherhood.

I urge my colleagues to support this important initiative.

By Mr. LUGAR (for himself and Mr. HARKIN):

S. 657. A bill to authorize funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation authorizing funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative.

In 2002 we will celebrate the centennial of the founding of the 4-H program. This important youth development program operates in each of the 50 states and more than 3,000 counties. The program is carried out through the cooperative efforts of: youth; volunteer leaders; land grant universities; federal, state and local governments; and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Last year over 6.8 million youth ages 5 to 19 participated in the 4-H program. Over 600,000 volunteer leaders work directly or indirectly with youth through the 4-H program.

The legislation I am introducing today recognizes the important role of 4-H in youth development. I am pleased to join Senator Harkin in working on this legislation to fund programs that teach young people about the consequences of father absence and remove barriers to responsible fatherhood.

I urge my colleagues to support this important initiative.

By Mr. LUGAR (for himself and Mr. HARKIN):

S. 657. A bill to authorize funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation authorizing funding for the National 4-H Program Centennial Initiative.

In 2002 we will celebrate the centennial of the founding of the 4-H program. This important youth development program operates in each of the 50 states and more than 3,000 counties. The program is carried out through the cooperative efforts of: youth; volunteer leaders; land grant universities; federal, state and local governments; and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Last year over 6.8 million youth ages 5 to 19 participated in the 4-H program. Over 600,000 volunteer leaders work directly or indirectly with youth through the 4-H program.

The legislation I am introducing today recognizes the important role of 4-H in youth development. I am pleased to join Senator Harkin in working on this legislation to fund programs that teach young people about the consequences of father absence and remove barriers to responsible fatherhood.

I urge my colleagues to support this important initiative.
the local communities where its contributions really make a difference.

In short, 4-H can expand its fine record of service and accomplish even more in the second century by developing new strategies for youth development. That is exactly what this legislation is designed to help achieve. I urge my colleagues to support it.

By Mr. LEAHY (for himself and Mr. Jeffords):

S. 658. A bill to amend title 32, United States Code, to authorize units of the National Guard to conduct small arms competitions and athletic competitions, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I am pleased to rise today with Senator Jeffords to introduce legislation that will allow the National Guard to participate fully in international sports competitions. Currently, members of the National Guard are involved in a myriad of athletic and small arms competitions, but their authority for such activities is unclear. This legislation will make it easier for the Guard to support the competitions and allow them to use their funds and facilities for such events. This is basic but necessary legislation.

The National Guard is already participating in these events. The Vermont National Guard hosted the 2001 Conseil International du Sport Militaire, CISM, World Military Ski Championships at the Stowe ski area this month. This military ski event united military personnel from more than 35 international athletes competed in such events as the biathlon, giant slalom, cross country, and military patrol race. They tested their skills and mettle in the beautiful Green Mountains, where the recent nor’easter added to the already bountiful snow cover there.

But it takes a lot more than a 3-foot base of powder to carry off these competitions. It takes clear authorities, regulations, and resources. This legislation will allow these important events to continue with full participation of the National Guard. I urge the Senate to join Senator Jeffords and me in sponsoring this legislation and moving it quickly through the legislative process.

I ask unanimous consent that additional material be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 658

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. CONDUCT OF SMALL ARMS COMPETITIONS AND ATHLETIC COMPETITIONS BY THE NATIONAL GUARD.

(a) PREPARATION AND PARTICIPATION GENERALLY.—Section 504 of title 32, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) by striking “or” at the end of paragraph (2),

(B) by striking paragraph (3) and inserting:

“(3) prepare for and participate in small arms competition; or’’; and

(C) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(4) prepare for and participate in qualifying athletic competitions.’’;

and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subsections:

“(c)(1) Units of the National Guard may conduct a small arms competition or qualifying athletic competition in conjunction with training required under this chapter if such activity (treating the activity as if it was a provision of services) meets the requirements set forth in paragraphs (1), (3), and (4) of section 508(a) of this title.

“(2) Facilities and equipment of the National Guard, including military property and equipment described in section 508(c) of this title, may be used in connection with activities carried out under paragraph (1).

“(3) Except as otherwise provided in an applicable provision of an appropriations Act, amounts appropriated for the National Guard may be used to pay the costs of activities carried out under this subsection and expenses incurred by members of the National Guard in engaging in activities under paragraph (3) or (4) of subsection (a), including participation fees, costs of attendance, costs of travel, per diem, costs of clothing, costs of equipment, and related expenses.

“(d) In this section, the term ‘qualifying athletic competition’ means a competition in an athletic event that necessarily involves demonstrations by the competitors of—

“(1) skills relevant to the performance of military duties; or

“(2) physical fitness consistent with the standards that are applicable to members of the National Guard in evaluations of the physical readiness for military duty in the members’ armed force.’’.

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENTS.—(1) the heading of such section is amended to read as follows:

“§ 504. National Guard schools; small arms competitions; athletic competitions.”;

(2) the item relating to such section in the table of sections at the beginning of chapter 5 of title 32, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

“§ 504. National Guard schools; small arms competitions; athletic competitions.”;

SECTIONAL ANALYSIS

Section XXX amends 32 U.S.C. § 504 to allow the National Guard to use appropriated funds to support certain costs of members of the National Guard involved with small arms and other athletic training and competitions to promote morale and military readiness. Although the Department of Defense (DOD), Air Force (USAF), and Army (DA) regulations allow use of appropriated funds to support sports programs, there are some things under general fiscal law principles for which appropriated funds cannot be used, unless specifically authorized by law. The Active Components cover costs associated with these costs with non-appropriated funds. Unlike the Air Force and the Army, the National Guard receives no non-appropriated funds for Morale, Welfare, Recreation (MWR) sports activities and, therefore, can not cover costs associated with sports programs with such funds. Section XXX addresses this inconsistency and provides authority for NGB to spend appropriated funds on items the Active Components generally cover with non-appropriated funds.

Departmental, national, and international sports competition programs are run by the Army and the Air Force. AR 215–1 and AFI 34–107 outline the requirements for soldier/airmen athletes to apply to compete at this higher level as individuals or as part of departmental teams. 10 U.S.C. §717 provides specific statutory authority to use appropriated funds to purchase personal furnishings for soldier/airmen competitors at this level. This authority, however, can not be used to support the NG sports program because implementing regulations require control and approval at the departmental level. DODD 1330.4, AR 215–1, chap. 8, AFI 34–107. The NG competitive sports program, as with the DOD level and before programs within the Active Components, maintains intramural level sports programs to support athletes who will train to compete for positions on the departmental teams authorized by 10 U.S.C. §717. Section XXX authorizes the NG to use appropriated funds to support a MACOM level sports program on par with Active Component MACOMs.

Section XXX places two limits on NGB sports activities to ensure any training, participation, or holding of sports events enhances military readiness. First, the amendment allows preparation for and participation in sports events only if: (1) such event “does not adversely affect the quality of training or otherwise interfere with the ability of a member or unit of the National Guard to perform the military functions of the member or unit;” (2) “National Guard personnel will enhance their military skills as a result of participation in the sports event;” and (3) the event “will not result in a significant increase in the cost of the training.” 32 U.S.C. §508(a)(1), (3), (4). These limitations safeguard one of the purposes of competitive sporting events within DOD, namely to enhance military readiness.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, It is with great pleasure that Senator Leahy and I today to introduce the National Guard Competitive Sports Equity Act.

Passage of this bill will allow the National Guard to utilize appropriated funds to support National Guard Sports Programs, National Guard Bureau sanctioned competitive events and associated training programs.

The National Guard Competitive Events and Sports program adds value to the National Guard by enhancing the National Guard’s competitive training programs through participation in military, national and international sports competitions. The National Guard Competitive Sports Program trains, coordinates and participates in events such as the Pan Am Games, World Championships and Olympic Games, Competition International Sports Militaire, CISM, and manages the World Class Athlete Program.

March 29, 2001

The National Guard Sports Office manages four core programs that include marksmanship, biathlon, parachute competition and marathon programs.

This legislation is important because it will allow these programs to continue to flourish and provide the National Guard training resource equity on par with similar programs available to active duty soldiers.

Under current law, active component services are able to utilize Morale, Welfare and Recreation, MWR funds for training, but entry level personal clothing and specialized equipment in support of training and competitive events. The Guard does not receive or have access to similar funding sources. The Guard is forced to use training funds potentially earmarked for other events or not participate.

This important legislation will allow this program to continue and provide the National Guard with the funding flexibility it requires to maintain this highly successful program.

By Mr. CRAPO (for himself, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. COCHRAN, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. HELMS, Mr. DAYTON, and Mr. HUTCHINSON):

S. 659. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to adjust the labor costs relating to items and services furnished in a geographically reclassified hospital for which reimbursement under the medicare program is provided on a prospective basis; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Medicare Geographic Adjustment Fairness Act of 2001. I am pleased to have the support of several of my colleagues including Senators CRAIG, HAGEL, COCHRAN, LINCOLN, ROBERTS, HELMS, DAYTON, and HUTCHINSON. These members recognize the need for adequate reimbursements for rural health facilities. I am also grateful to Representative BART STUPAK who will be introducing this legislation in the House.

The Medicare Geographic Adjustment Fairness Act will amend the Social Security Act to redirect additional Medicare reimbursements to rural hospitals. Currently, hospitals throughout the country are losing Medicare reimbursements, which results in severe implications for surrounding communities.

As you know, in an attempt to keep Medicare from consuming its limited reserves, Congress enacted the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, BBA, which made sweeping changes in the manner that health care providers are reimbursed for services rendered to Medicare beneficiaries. These were the most significant modifications in the history of the program.

All of the problems with the BBA, whether hospital, nursing facilities, home health agencies, or skilled nursing facilities, are especially acute in rural states, where Medicare payments are a bigger percentage of hospital revenues and profit margins are generally much lower. These facilities were already managed at a highly efficient level and had “cut the fat out of the system.” Therefore, the cuts implemented in the BBA hit the rural communities in Idaho and throughout the United States in a very significant and serious way.

In the 106th Congress, the Senate did a tremendous job of bringing forth legislation that adjusted Medicare payments to health care providers hurt by cuts ordered in the BBA. While this was a meaningful step, the Senate must continue to address the inequities in the system.

My bill would expand wage-index reclassification by requiring the Secretary of Health and Human Services to deem a hospital that has been reclassified for purposes of its inpatient wage-index to also reclassify for purposes of other services which are provider-based and for which payments are adjusted using a wage-index. In other words, this legislation would require the Secretary to use a hospital’s reclassification wage-index to adjust payments for hospital outpatient, skilled nursing facility, home health, and other services, providing those entities with provider-based status. This change should have been made in BBA when Congress required that prospective payment systems be established for these and other services. As such, this change would address an issue that has been left unaddressed for several years.

It makes sense that, if a hospital has been granted reclassification by the Medicare Geographic Classification Review Board for certain inpatient services, it also be granted wage-index reclassification for outpatient and other services. It is estimated that this provision would help approximately 400 hospitals, 90 percent which are rural. Furthermore, this provision would be budget neutral.

I know my colleagues in the Senate share my commitment of promoting access to health care services in rural areas. Expanding wage-index geographic reclassification will allow hospitals to recoup lost funds and use these funds where they are needed, in an appropriate, effective, and meaningful way. I encourage my colleagues to cosponsor the Medicare Geographic Adjustment Fairness Act.
as part of the Taxpayer Refund and Relief Act of 1999. Unfortunately, the bill was vetoed by President Clinton.

I am pleased to carry on the work of our former colleague by introducing this bill to repeal the 4.3-cent tax on railroad and barge fuel effective this year. I believe the time has come to repeal the 4.3-cent tax, since it provides no benefit to the railroad and barge systems, and it only imposes a burden on these two industries that are important to my home state of Tennessee. I look forward to working with my colleagues to repeal this outdated tax.

By Mr. DODD (for himself, Mr. BYRD, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. KOHL, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. DORGAN, and Mr. VOINOVICH):

S. 662. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to authorize the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to furnish headstones or markers for marked graves of, or to otherwise commemorate, certain individuals to the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs.

Mr. DODD, Mr. President, according to the Department of Veterans Affairs, today some 1,500 American World War II-era veterans, members of the so-called Greatest Generation, will pass away. Tomorrow about the same number will pass away. That daily number will gradually rise in the weeks, months, and years to come. Most of them were not career soldiers, but they answered the call to serve our country. Many bravely confronted our enemies in distant lands, in battles that we regard as history, but that they remember as their personal stories. Midway Island, Omaha Beach, and Iwo Jima are just a few of the places hailed by their deeds. Through their strength and dedication these veterans have earned the respect and gratitude of all Americans to follow.

As these veterans pass away, their families are rightfully seeking to preserve the record of their loved one’s service to our nation. One way in which they are seeking to record that service is to secure official burial recognition. But, because of a provision of current law, the Department of Veterans Affairs is prohibited from providing an official headstone or grave marker to as many as 20,000 of these families each year.

The law I am referring to dates back to the Civil War era, when our nation wanted to ensure that our fallen soldiers were not buried in unmarked graves. Thus, the law instructs the VA to provide a grave marker for veterans who would otherwise lie in unmarked graves. Of course, in this day and age, a grave rarely goes unmarked. Today, virtually every deceased veteran is buried in a marked grave, or in some other way duly memorialized by surviving family members. Until 1990, the surviving family members of a deceased veteran could receive from the VA, the burial component of a partial reimbursement for the cost of a private headstone, a VA headstone, or a VA marker. The choice was solely up to the vet’s surviving family members. However, budgetary belt tightening measures enacted in 1990 eliminated the reimbursement component and precluded the VA from providing a headstone or a marker where the family had already done so privately. That measure has left the VA without any recourse when dealing with veterans families who have made private burial arrangements, other than denying their request for official headstones or grave markers.

The inequity created by the current law is difficult to understand. A family descendant of a deceased veteran in the law can simply request the official headstone, or in most cases grave marker, prior to making private arrangements for a headstone or marker. The VA will examine the request, find that the veterans grave has not been marked, and provide the marker, bestowing the appropriate recognition for service to the Nation. The family is then able to incorporate the VA marker into its private arrangements as the family deems fit.

However, many, if not most, families do not know about the peculiarities of the law in this area. Most families are unaware of the current law and act as if any family would in a time of loss and grief: they make private and appropriate arrangements to commemorate the deceased. For most, the idea of checking with the VA at this most difficult time is the farthest thing from their minds, but the effect of not doing so is absolute and final. When families bury their loved one in a private plot, presumably every family does these days, they unknowingly forfeit the opportunity to receive a government headstone or marker.

The Guzzo family of West Hartford, CT is one of the countless families who have found out about this law the hard way. Thomas Guzzo first brought this matter to my attention several years ago. His late father, Agostino Guzzo, served in the Philippines and was honorably discharged from the Army in 1947. Today, Agostino Guzzo is interred in a mausoleum at the Cedar Hill Cemetery in Hartford, CT, but the mausoleum bears no reference to his service because of the current law. Like so many families, the Guzzo family provided its own marker and subsequently found that it was not eligible for an official VA marker.

When I was first contacted by the Guzzo family, I attempted to straighten out this bureaucratic mixup. I was surprised to realize that Thomas Guzzo’s difficulties resulted not from some glitch in the system, but rather from the law itself. In the end, I wrote to the former Secretary of Veterans Affairs regarding Agostino Guzzo, that marker could not be placed on a cemetery bench or tree dedicated in his name. The law prevented the Department from providing a marker for placement anywhere but the grave site and thus prevents families from recognizing their veteran’s service as they wish.

I rise today to introduce a bill that will appropriately address these issues and ensure our deceased veterans are treated equitably. The bill will allow the families of deceased veterans to receive an official headstone or grave marker in recognition of their veteran’s contribution to our nation, regardless of whether their grave is privately marked.

What I propose today is a modest means of solving a massive problem. The VA has described this issue as one of its greatest public affairs challenges, but the cost of fixing it is relatively small. Last Congress, the idea was scored by the Congressional Budget Office at less than $3 million dollars per year, over the first 5 years. This bill will put at ease countless families who are disillusioned by the current system. Moreover, it gives those families the appropriate flexibility, with respect to common cemetery restrictions, to commemorate deceased veterans by dedicating a tree or bench or other suitable site in the veteran’s honor.

America is different today than it was when we changed the burial benefits in 1990. Our fiscal house is in order; disciplined spending has produced budget surpluses for the first time in many years. We know the VA is forced to reject as many as 20,000 headstones and grave marker requests each year under the current law. These are meritorious requests by deserving applicants whose families unknowingly forfeit their right to this modest memorial in a time of stress and loss. The cost of fixing this inequity is minor. It is appropriate, I feel, to make sure that all our veterans receive the recognition they have earned.

The policy is simple. We should provide these markers or headstones to the families when they request them, and we should allow these families to recognize their deceased veterans in a manner deemed fitting by the family.

Time is of the essence. One thousand five hundred veterans pass away each day, and each day there are 1,500 new families who may be denied a modest recognition of the service their loved one gave to our Nation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.
There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 662

BE IT ENACTED BY THE SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA IN CONGRESS ASSEMBLED,

SECTION 1. AUTHORITY TO PROVIDE HEADSTONES OR MARKERS FOR MARKED GRAVES OR OTHERWISE COMMEMORATE CERTAIN INDIVIDUALS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 2306 of title 38, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subsections (a) and (e)(1), by striking "the unmarked graves of"; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

"(f) A headstone or marker furnished under subsection (a) shall be furnished, upon request, for the marked grave or unmarked grave of the individual or at another area appropriate for the purpose of commemorating the individual.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—The amendment to subsection (a) of section 2306 of title 38, United States Code, made by subsection (a) of this section, shall apply to burials occurring on or after November 1, 1990.

By Mr. WELLSTONE (for himself and Mr. DAYTON):

S. 663. A bill to authorize the President to present a gold medal on behalf of Congress to Eugene McCarthy in recognition of his service to the Nation; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, in recognition of his distinguished record of service to the United States, I am introducing a bill today to award a Congressional Gold Medal to Eugene McCarthy.

The Congressional Gold Medal is considered to be the most distinguished recognition that Congress bestows. I believe, and I hope my colleagues will agree, that the Congressional Gold Medal is a fitting tribute to the dedicated service Eugene McCarthy has given to our Nation.

Eugene McCarthy graduated from St. John's University in Minnesota in 1935, and from the University of Minnesota in 1939. He taught economics and sociology at public and Catholic high schools and colleges in Minnesota and North Dakota, including at St. Thomas College in St. Paul, and at his own alma mater, St. John's University. McCarthy served in the military intelligence division of the U.S. War Department in 1944. In 1948, he was elected to Congress to represent the State of Minnesota. For Eugene McCarthy, this was merely a first step, revealing that his long-term interest in politics would be even more a calling than it would be a career. He has pursued his political vocation and mission for more than 40 years. This span covers Eugene McCarthy's service in the House of Representatives and in the Senate during the years 1948 to 1971, his anti-war presidential campaign of 1968, his independent candidacy of 1976, and the Eugene McCarthy exemplified the highest standards of public service and dedication to Constitutional principles as a member of the House of Representatives for five terms, from 1948 to 1958; and as a Member of this body, the Senate, for two terms, from 1959 to 1971. Through his shaping of legislation on civil rights, tax policy, Social Security and Medicare, the minimum wage, unemployment compensation, government reform, foreign policy and Congressional oversight of the Central Intelligence Agency, McCarthy upheld the finest principles of politics and policy. As Chairman of the Senate Special Committee on Unemployment Problems in 1959–60, McCarthy held hearings which led to the Committee's outlining of many of the economic development and social welfare programs later enacted during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. Through his Ways and Means and Finance Committees of the House and Senate, respectively, McCarthy pushed for additional benefits and minimum wage coverage for migrant workers. In the early 1960s, he fought for Medicare coverage to the mentally ill. He was a leader throughout the 1960s in efforts to extend unemployment compensation. Beginning in 1964, and subsequently for more than 15 years in both the House and the Senate, McCarthy called for Congressional oversight of the CIA.

Eugene McCarthy's principled campaign for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1968 and his courageous stand regarding withdrawal from the Vietnam War inspired countless young people to believe they could make a difference in public life. He always emphasized the role of Congress in foreign policy, and his actions helped hasten the end of the most controversial war in American history. Eugene McCarthy deplored cynicism which is an especially dangerous attitude when it prevails among young people . . . Not only does it destroy confidence and hope, some of the most precious assets of youth, but it also eats away the will to attack difficult political problems, as it does problems in other fields.

As a distinguished author, poet and lecturer, Eugene McCarthy has elevated the language of public dialogue in a way that enlivens the deepest and most cherished values of American political life. “What the country needs,” McCarthy said in 1968, “is a freeing of our moral energy, a freeing of our resolution, a freeing of our spirit, so that everywhere in the free country the potential for leadership must exist in every man and ever woman.” McCarthy has authored numerous books on American politics and institutions, including “A Liberal Answer to the Conservative Challenge,” 1965; “America: Obligated 150 Years After Tocqueville,” 1976; “the Ultimate Tyranny: The Majority over the Major- ity,” 1980; and “Up Till Now: A Memoir,” 1988.

Eugene McCarthy is dedicated to free people of our Nation. His leadership and service have extended far beyond his tenure in the United States Congress. It is an honor for me to ask that we award the Congressional Gold Medal to this deserving scholar and gentleman. This bill offers us here in the Senate finally to recognize Eugene McCarthy's extraordinary contributions to the United States and to say: Eugene McCarthy, we thank you.

By Mr. GREGG (for himself and Mr. KOHL):

S. 664. A bill to provide jurisdictional standards for the imposition of State taxation on interstate commerce, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, today I introduce with Senator KOHL the New Economy Tax Fairness Act, or NET FAIR. As we all know, the Internet and electronic commerce have reshaped our society over the last decade. Much of the success that our Nation's economy has enjoyed has been a result of innovative companies making use of Internet technology to conduct commerce online. E-commerce has created new jobs, increased productivity, lowered business costs, generated a higher level of convenience for consumers, and sparked overall growth in the U.S. economy.

With this in mind, there remain those that would like to tax interstate commerce over the Internet even while this budding technology has yet to meet its full potential. The NET FAIR Act addresses the issue of taxing remote sellers that conduct interstate commerce electronically.

In 1992, the Supreme Court ruled in Quill Corp. v. North Dakota that States cannot force out-of-State retail firms to collect sales taxes. The Court held that Congress alone has the authority to impose such requirements under the interstate commerce clause of the Constitution. NET FAIR builds upon the Quill decision by extending the same approach that currently governs catalogue sales to the Internet. This legislation would allow States to require a company to collect sales and use tax, or to pay business activity tax, if they sell or offer to sell products to individuals living in states where the company has a substantial physical presence, or “nexus.”

Today, there are over 7,600 taxing jurisdictions nationwide. NET FAIR provides clear rules of the road for all parties involved, establishing sound nexus standards for the 21st Century. This legislation allows the Internet to continue as an engine of economic growth while respecting the sovereign right of States to determine their own tax policy for commerce conducted within their borders. A failure to address this issue will subject small and large businesses alike to thousands of different tax standards and rules, making it difficult to ensure compliance. In fact, it will be the small and medium sized businesses—using the Internet to remain competitive in the new economy—that will be hit the hardest, as they lack the resources to comply with the thousands of jurisdictional tax standards that exist across the country.

At my urging, the bipartisan Advisory Commission on Electronic Commerce was established in 1998. The Commission was established to examine all aspects of the Internet taxation issue. In April 2000, the Commission issued its report to Congress. With majorities in both congressional committees of matters pertaining thereto, on September 14, 1999 (15 U.S.C. 381 et seq.), is amended to read as follows:

"TITLE I—JURISDICTIONAL STANDARDS"

"SEC. 101. IMPOSITION OF STATE AND LOCAL BUSINESS ACTIVITY, SALES, AND USE TAX OBLIGATIONS ON INTERSTATE COMMERCE."

"(a) In General.—States shall have power to impose, for any taxable year ending after the date of enactment of this title, a business activity tax or a duty to collect and remit a sales or use tax on the income derived within such State by any person from interstate commerce, unless such person has a substantial physical presence in such State. A substantial physical presence is not established if the only business activities within such State by or on behalf of such person during such taxable year are any or all of the following:

"(1) The solicitation of orders or contracts by such person or such person’s representative in such State for sales of tangible or intangible personal property or services, which orders or contracts are approved or rejected outside the State, and, if approved, are fulfilled by shipment or delivery of such property or services from a point outside the State or the performance of such services outside the State.

"(2) The solicitation of orders or contracts by such person or such person’s representative in such State in the name of or for the benefit of a prospective customer of such person, if orders or contracts by such customer are approved or rejected outside the State, and such customer fills orders or contracts resulting from such solicitation are orders or contracts described in paragraph (1).

"(3) The presence or use of tangible personal property in such State, including patents, copyrights, trademarks, logos, securities, contracts, money, deposits, loans, electronic or digital signals, and web pages, whether or not subject to licenses, franchises, or other agreements.

"(4) The use of the Internet to create or maintain a World Wide Web site accessible by persons in such State.

"(5) The use of an Internet service provider, on-line service provider, Internetwork communication service provider, or other Internet access service provider, or World Wide Web hosting services to maintain or take and process orders via a web page or site on a computer terminal that is physically located in such State.

"(6) The use of any service provider for transmission of communications, whether by wire, wireless, satellite, telecommunications, or other similar system.

"(7) The affiliation with a person located in the State, unless that person has a place located in the State that is the person’s agent under the terms and conditions of subsection (d) and

"(b) the activity of the agent in the State constitutes substantial physical presence under this subsection."

"(8) The use of an unaffiliated representative or independent contractor in such State for the purpose of performing warranty or repair services with respect to tangible or intangible personal property sold by a person located outside the State.

"(b) DOMESTIC CORPORATIONS; PERSONS DOING BUSINESS OR OPERATING IN A STATE.—The provisions of subsection (a) shall not apply to the imposition of a business activity tax or a duty to collect and remit a sales or use tax by any State with respect to—

"(1) any corporation which is incorporated under the laws of such State; or

"(2) any individual who, under the laws of such State, is domiciled in, or a resident of, such State.

"(c) SALES OR SOLICITATION OF ORDERS OR CONTRACTS FOR SALES BY INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS.—For purposes of subsection (a), a person shall not be considered to have engaged in business activities within a State during any taxable year merely by reason of sales of tangible or intangible personal property or services for more than one principal and who solicits orders or contracts for such sales in such State. The phrase 'solicitation of orders or contracts' for such sales in such State, on behalf of such person by one or more independent contractors, or by reason of the maintenance of an office in such State by one or more independent contractors whose activities on behalf of such person in such State consist solely of making such sales, or soliciting orders or contracts for such sales.

"(d) ATTRIBUTION OF ACTIVITIES AND PRESENCE.—For purposes of this section, the substantial physical presence of such person shall not be attributed to any other person absent the establishment of an agency relationship between such persons that—

"(1) results from the consent by both persons that one person act on behalf and subject to the control of the other; and

"(2) relates to the activities of the person within the State.

"(e) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this title—

"(1) BUSINESS ACTIVITY TAX.—The term ‘business activity tax’ means a tax imposed on a nonresident, as defined in subsection (b), for the sale of, tangible or intangible personal property or services for more than one principal and who holds himself out or otherwise acts in the regular course of his or her business activities.

"(2) INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR.—The term ‘independent contractor’ means a commission agent, broker, or other independent contractor who is engaged in selling, or soliciting orders or contracts for such sales, or tangible or intangible personal property or services for more than one principal and who holds himself out or otherwise acts in the regular course of his or her business activities.

"(3) INTERNET.—The term ‘Internet’ means collectively the myriad of computer and telecommunications facilities, including equipment and operating software, which comprise the interconnected world-wide network of networks that employ the Transmission Control Protocol/Internet Protocol, or any predecessor or successor protocols to such Protocol.

"(4) INTERNET ACCESS.—The term ‘Internet access’ means a service that enables users to access content, information, electronic mail, or other services offered over the Internet, which may also include directory service content, information, and other services as a part of a package of services offered to users.
March 29, 2001

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

5109

“(5) REPRESENTATIVE.—The term ‘representative’ does not include an independent contractor.”

“(6) SALES TAX.—The term ‘sales tax’ means a tax that is—

“(A) imposed on an incident to the sale of tangible or intangible personal property or services as may be defined or specified under the laws imposing such tax; and

“(B) measured by the amount of the sales price, cost, charge, or other value of or for such property or services.

“(7) SOLICITATION OF ORDERS OR CONTRACTS.—The term ‘solicitation of orders or contracts’ includes activities normally ancillary to such solicitation.

“(8) STATE.—The term ‘State’ means any of the several States, the District of Columbia, or any territory or possession of the United States, or any political subdivision thereof.

“(9) USE TAX.—The term ‘use tax’ means a tax that is—

“(A) imposed on the purchase, storage, consumption, distribution, or other use of tangible or intangible personal property or services as may be defined or specified under the laws imposing such tax; and

“(B) measured by the purchase price, cost, charge, or other value of such property or services.

“(10) WORLD WIDE WEB.—The term ‘World Wide Web’ means a computer server-based file archive accessible, over the Internet, using a hypertext transfer protocol, file transfer protocol, or similar protocol.

“(1) APPLICATION OF SECTION.—This section shall not be construed to limit, in any way, constitutional restrictions otherwise existing on State taxing authority.

“SEC. 102. ASSESSMENT OF BUSINESS ACTIVITY TAXES.

“(a) LIMITATIONS.—No State shall have power or authority under this title or the application of such provision to any person or circumstance to which such provision is held invalid, the remainder of this title or the application of such provision to persons or circumstances other than those to which it is held invalid, shall not be affected thereby.’’

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, today I introduce with my good friend from New Hampshire NET FAIR, the New Economy Fairness Act. This bill is identical to a bill we introduced last Congress. It would clarify the tax situation of companies that expanded out of the state in which they are located. NET FAIR codifies current legal decisions defining when a business can be subject to state and local business taxes and be required to collect state and local sales taxes. Currently, a business falls into a state or local taxing jurisdiction when it has a ‘substantial physical presence’ or ‘nexus’ there.

And that makes sense. If a business is located in a State—uses the roads there, impacts the environment there, employs local workers there it should pay taxes and business fees there, and it should collect sales taxes on products sold there.

But if a business is located out of State, and simply ships products to consumers there, it is not part of the local economy. It does not use local services or infrastructure. And it should not be subject to the taxes and tax collection burdens that support a community not located in its borders.

That seems simple. But as with anything that happens in tax law, it is not.

Cases have been brought in courts across the country trying to clarify exactly what is a ‘substantial physical presence.’ Is it maintaining a Web site? Sending employees to training conferences? Taking orders over the Internet? Our bill codifies the decisions already established by the courts and restates the principle on which they are all based: State and local taxing authorities do not have jurisdiction over businesses that are not physically located in their borders.

Because this area of the law is as arcane as it is important, it is important to describe what our bill does not do.

It does not exempt e-businesses or any other mail order businesses from taxation. The businesses our bill covers pay plenty of taxes—Federal taxes and State and local taxes and fees in every state in which they maintain a physical presence.

Our bill does not offer special breaks for e-businesses. Though the struggling economy will certainly benefit from having its tax situation clarified, nothing we state in this bill goes beyond current established case law.

Our bill does not take away any revenue States and localities are currently collecting. Only Congress has the right to regulate the flow of commerce between the States. State and local taxing authorities have never been able to reach into other States and collect revenues from businesses outside their borders.

Our bill does not threaten ‘main street businesses.’ In fact, it is just the opposite. Main Street are threatened by malls and mega-stores—not by the Internet or catalogue companies. In fact, many Main Street specialty stores are staying alive by offering their products over the Internet.

In Wisconsin, for example, we have specialty cheese makers who have run small family businesses for years. A quick search on the World Wide Web yields 20 Wisconsin cheese makers selling over the Internet. They are from Wisconsin towns like Plain, Durand, Spooner, Tomah, and Prairie Ridge. Could these small towns support specialty cheese makers with walk-in traffic only? Would these small businesses continue to sell over the Internet if they had to figure and remit sales taxes and business fees to the over 7000 taxing jurisdictions into which they might ship? Of course not.

What our bill does do is protect businesses, big and small, and consumers from facing a plethora of new taxes and tax collection burdens. What it does do is keep the line of Internet sales tax revenue available for countless small businesses and entrepreneurs. What it does do is clarify the tax law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation—that governs the developing world of e-commerce.

What it does do is clarify the law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation that governs the developing world of e-commerce. What it does do is keep the line of Internet sales tax revenue available for countless small businesses and entrepreneurs. What it does do is protect businesses, big and small, and consumers from facing a plethora of new taxes and tax collection burdens. What it does do is clarify the tax law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation—that governs the developing world of e-commerce.

What it does do is keep the line of Internet sales tax revenue available for countless small businesses and entrepreneurs. What it does do is clarify the tax law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation—that governs the developing world of e-commerce.

What it does do is keep the line of Internet sales tax revenue available for countless small businesses and entrepreneurs. What it does do is clarify the tax law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation—that governs the developing world of e-commerce.

What it does do is keep the line of Internet sales tax revenue available for countless small businesses and entrepreneurs. What it does do is clarify the tax law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation—that governs the developing world of e-commerce.

What it does do is keep the line of Internet sales tax revenue available for countless small businesses and entrepreneurs. What it does do is clarify the tax law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation—that governs the developing world of e-commerce.

What it does do is keep the line of Internet sales tax revenue available for countless small businesses and entrepreneurs. What it does do is clarify the tax law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation—that governs the developing world of e-commerce.

What it does do is keep the line of Internet sales tax revenue available for countless small businesses and entrepreneurs. What it does do is clarify the tax law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation—that governs the developing world of e-commerce.

What it does do is keep the line of Internet sales tax revenue available for countless small businesses and entrepreneurs. What it does do is clarify the tax law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation—that governs the developing world of e-commerce.

What it does do is keep the line of Internet sales tax revenue available for countless small businesses and entrepreneurs. What it does do is clarify the tax law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation—that governs the developing world of e-commerce.

What it does do is keep the line of Internet sales tax revenue available for countless small businesses and entrepreneurs. What it does do is clarify the tax law and eliminate the need for State-by-State litigation—that governs the developing world of e-commerce.
$3,300,000 to help students graduate with less debt; and

Whereas Neil L. Rudenstine has made Harvard University a good neighbor in the community of Cambridge and greater Boston by launching a $21,000,000 affordable housing program and by creating more than 700 jobs; and

Whereas Neil Rudenstine built an academic campus of great distinction, including 2 bachelor’s degrees, 1 from Princeton University and the other from Oxford University, a Rhodes Scholarship, a Harvard Ph.D. in English, recognition as a scholar and authority on Renaissance literature, and prominent positions in higher education; Now, therefore, be it Resolved.

SECTION 1. HONORING NEIL L. RUDENSTINE.

The Senate—

(1) expresses deep appreciation to President Neil L. Rudenstine of Harvard University for his contributions to higher education, for the spirit of public service that characterized his decade as Harvard University’s President, for his many years of academic leadership at other universities, and for the grace and elegance that he brought to academic leadership at other universities, and

(2) wishes him well in every future endeavor, anticipating the continuing benefit of his thoughtful expertise to American higher education.

SEC. 2. TRANSMITTAL.

The Secretary of the Senate shall transmit a copy of this resolution to Neil L. Rudenstine.

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED AND PROPOSED

SA 155. Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mr. WELLSTONE, and Mr. BIDEN) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, to amend the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 to provide bipartisan campaign reform.

SA 156. Mr. FRIST (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, supra.

SA 157. Mr. BINGAMAN proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, supra.

SA 158. Mr. BINGAMAN proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, supra.

SA 159. Mr. NELSON, of Florida proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, supra.

SA 160. Mr. KERRY proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, supra.

SA 161. Mr. LEVIN (for himself, Mr. ENNSON, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. NELSON, of Nebraska, and Mr. REID) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, supra.

SA 162. Mr. DURBIN (for himself and Mr. COCHRAN) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, supra.

SA 163. Mr. THOMPSON (for himself, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. JEFFFORDS, and Mr. DOID) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, supra.

SA 164. Mr. REED proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, supra.

TEXT OF AMENDMENTS

SA 155. Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mr. WELLSTONE, and Mr. BIDEN) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, to amend the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 to provide bipartisan campaign reform; as follows:

On page 38, after line 3, add the following:

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

March 29, 2001

5110

TITLE V—VOLUNTARY SENATE CANDIDATE SPENDING LIMITS AND BENEFITS

SEC. 501. VOLUNTARY SENATE SPENDING LIMITS AND PUBLIC BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 is amended by adding at the end the following:

"TITLE V—VOLUNTARY SPENDING LIMITS AND PUBLIC BENEFITS FOR SENATE CAMPAIGNS"

SEC. 501. CANDIDATES ELIGIBLE TO RECEIVE BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this title, a candidate is an eligible candidate if the candidate—

"(1) meets the primary and general election filing requirements of subsections (b) and (c); and

"(2) meets the primary and runoff election expenditure limits of subsection (d).

(b) PRIMARY FILING REQUIREMENTS.—(1) The requirements of this subsection are met if the candidate files with the Secretary of the Senate a declaration as to whether—

"(A) the candidate and the candidate’s authorized committees—

"(i) will meet the primary and runoff election expenditure limits of subsection (d); and

"(ii) will only accept contributions for the primary and runoff elections which do not exceed such limits; and

"(B) the candidate and the candidate’s authorized committees will meet the general election expenditure limit under section 502(a).

"(2) The declaration under paragraph (1) shall be filed on the date the candidate files as a candidate for the primary election.

"(c) GENERAL ELECTION FILING REQUIREMENT.—(1) The requirements of this subsection are met if the candidate files a certification with the Secretary of the Senate under penalty of perjury that—

"(A) the candidate and the candidate’s authorized committees—

"(i) met the primary and runoff election expenditure limits under subsection (d); and

"(ii) did not accept contributions for the primary or runoff election in excess of the primary or runoff expenditure limit under subsection (d), whichever is applicable;

"(B) at least one other candidate has qualified for the general election ballot under the law of the State involved;

"(C) such candidate and the authorized committees of such candidate—

"(i) except as otherwise provided by this title, will not make expenditures which exceed the general election expenditure limit under section 502(a);

"(ii) will not accept any contributions in violation of section 315; and

"(iii) except as otherwise provided by this title, will not accept any contribution for the general election, involved to the extent that such contribution would cause the aggregate amount of such contributions to exceed the amount of the general election expenditure limit under section 502(a); and

"(iv) will deposit all payments received under this title in an account insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation from which funds are disbursed for similar means of payment to third parties; and

"(v) will furnish campaign records, evidence of contributions, and other appropriate information to the Commission; and

"(D) the candidate intends to make use of the benefits provided under section 503.

"(2) The candidate’s requirement under paragraph (1) shall be filed not later than 7 days after the earlier of—

"(A) the date the candidate qualifies for the general election ballot under State law; or

"(B) if, under State law, a primary or runoff election to qualify for the general election ballot occurs after September 1, the date the candidate wins the primary or runoff election.

"(d) PRIMARY AND RUNOFF EXPENDITURE LIMITS.—The requirements of this subsection are met if—

"(A) the candidate or the candidate’s authorized committees did not make expenditures for the primary election in excess of an amount equal to 67 percent of the general election expenditure limit under section 502(a);

"(B) the candidate and the candidate’s authorized committees did not make expenditures for any runoff election in excess of 20 percent of the general election expenditure limit under section 502(a);

"(2)(A) If the contributions received by the candidate or the candidate’s authorized committees for the primary election or runoff election exceed the expenditures for either such election, such excess contributions shall be treated as contributions for the general election and equal amounts of the general election may be made from such excess contributions.

"(B) Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to the extent that such treatment of excess contributions—

"(i) would result in the violation of any limitation under section 315; or

"(ii) would cause the aggregate contributions received for the general election by an eligible candidate and the candidate’s authorized committees shall not exceed the sum of—

"(1) $1,000,000; and

"(2) $60 cents multiplied by the voting age population of the candidate’s State.

"(B) PAYMENT OF TAXES.—The limitation under subsection (a) shall not apply to any expenditures made by the candidate or the candidate’s authorized committees for Federal, State, or local taxes on earnings allocable to contributions received by such candidates or committees.

"SEC. 503. BENEFITS ELIGIBLE CANDIDATES ENTITLED TO RECEIVE.

(a) PAYMENTS.—An eligible candidate shall be entitled to payments from the Senate Election Campaign Fund with respect to an election in an amount equal to 2 times the excess expenditure amount determined under subsection (b) with respect to the election, beginning on the date on which an opponent in the same election as the eligible candidate makes an aggregate amount of expenditures, or accepts an aggregate amount of contributions, in excess of an amount equal to the sum of—

"(1) the excess expenditure amount; and

"(2) $10,000.

"(b) EXCESS EXPENDITURE AMOUNT.—For purposes of subsection (a), except as provided in section 506(c), the excess expenditure amount determined under this subsection with respect to an election is the greatest aggregate amount of expenditures made (or obligations to be made) and contributions received, by any opponent of the eligible candidate with respect to such election in excess of the primary or runoff expenditure limits under section 501(d) or general election expenditure limit under section 502(a) of the eligible candidate (as applicable).
"(c) Waiver of Expenditure and Contribution Limitations.—If a candidate receives contributions from a person who pays the pro rata reduction to another candidate, the pro rata reduction in the other candidate's contributions subjects the first candidate to the requirements of this title, and the pro rata reduction in the other candidate's contributions becomes an aggregate amount which the first candidate is permitted to receive in the succeeding calendar year.

SEC. 505. PAYMENTS RELATING TO ELIGIBLE CANDIDATES.

"(a) Establishment of Campaign Fund.—(1) There is hereby established in the Treasury of the United States a special fund to be known as the 'Senate Election Campaign Fund'.

"(2)(A) There are appropriated to the Fund for each fiscal year, out of amounts in the general fund of the Treasury, an amount not in excess of the estimated pro rata share of such candidate's full entitlement to which such candidate was entitled, the Commission shall so notify such candidate, and such candidate shall pay to the Secretary an amount equal to 500 percent of the amount of any benefit made available to the candidate under this title.

"(2)(B) If the Secretary determines that there are insufficient monies in the Fund to pay all, or a portion thereof, to all eligible candidates from whom amounts have been withheld, except that if only a portion is to be paid, it shall be paid in such manner that each eligible candidate receives an equal pro rata share of such portion.

"(3)(A) Not later than December 31 of any calendar year preceding a calendar year in which there is a regularly scheduled general election, the Secretary, after consultation with the Commission, shall make an estimate of—

"(i) the amount of monies in the Fund which will be available to make payments required by this title in the succeeding calendar year; and

"(ii) the amount of payments which will be required under this title in such calendar year.

"(B) If the Secretary determines that there will be insufficient monies in the Fund to make the payments required by this title for any candidate, the Secretary shall so notify each candidate on January 1 of such calendar year (or, if later, the date on which an individual becomes a candidate) of the amount of such candidate's contribution limit under section 504(a)(1)(C)(iii) shall be increased by the amount of the estimated pro rata reduction.

"(C) The amount of the eligible candidate's contribution limit under section 504(a)(1)(C)(iii) shall be increased by the amount of any payment of any beneficiary or the Secretary shall pay to the Secretary an amount equal to the excess.

"(D) Deposits.—The Secretary shall deposit all payments received under this section into the Senate Election Campaign Fund.

"(f) Appropriations.—Any fees collected or fines imposed by the Commission under this title are hereby appropriated for deposit in the Fund for use in carrying out the purposes of this title.

"(g) Definitions.—In this title—

"(1) except as otherwise provided in this title, the definitions under section 301 shall apply for purposes of this title insofar as such definitions relate to elections to the office of Senator; and

"(2) the term 'general election' means an election which will directly result in the election of a person to the office of Senator, but does not include an open primary election;

"(3) the term 'general election period' means, with respect to any candidate, the period beginning on the day after the date of the primary or runoff election for the specific office the candidate is seeking, which is later, and ending on the earlier of—

"(A) the date of such general election; or

"(B) the date on which the candidate withdraws from the campaign or otherwise ceases actively to seek election;

"(4) the term 'immediate family' means—

"(A) a child, stepchild, parent, grandparent, brother, half-brother, sister or half-sister of the candidate or the candidate's spouse; and

"(B) the spouse of any person described in subparagraph (A).

"(5) the term 'major party' has the meaning given to such term in section 9902(6) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, except that if a candidate qualified under State law for the ballot in a general election in an open primary election in which the candidate participating and which resulted in the candidate and at least one other candidate qualifying for the ballot in the general election, such candidate shall be treated as a candidate of a majority party for purposes of this title;

‘‘(8) the term ‘primary election’ means an election which may result in the selection of a candidate for the ballot in a general election for the office of Senator;

‘‘(9) the term ‘primary election period’ means the period beginning on the day following the date of the last general election for the specific office the candidate is seeking and ending on the earlier of—

‘‘(A) the date of the first primary election for that office following the last general election for that office; or

‘‘(B) the date on which the candidate withdraws from the election or otherwise ceases actively to seek election;

‘‘(10) the term ‘runoff election’ means an election that is prescribed by applicable State law as the means for deciding which candidate will be on the ballot in the general election for the office of Senator;

‘‘(11) the term ‘runoff election period’ means, with respect to any candidate, the period beginning on the day following the date of the last primary election for the specific office such candidate is seeking and ending on the date of the runoff election for such office;

‘‘(12) the term ‘voting age population’ means the resident population, 18 years of age or older, as certified pursuant to section 315(e); and

‘‘(13) the term ‘expenditure’ has the meaning given such term by section 301(9), except that in determining any expenditures made by, or on behalf of, a candidate or candidate’s authorized committees, section 301(9)(B) shall be applied without regard to clause (ii) or (vi) thereof.”.

(b) Effective Dates.—(1) Except as provided in subsection (a), if any provision of this Act is declared unconstitutional, the provisions of, and amendments made by, this title, and the application of such provisions and amendments to any person or circumstance, shall be invalid.

(b) Provisions.—A provision or amendment described in this subsection is a provision or amendment contained in any of the following sections:

(1) Section 292.

(2) Section 293.

(3) Section 294.

SA 156. Mr. Frist (for himself and Mr. Breaux) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, to amend the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 to provide bipartisan campaign reform; as follows:

On page 37, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

SEC. 502. NOTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS.

The Federal Election Commission shall promulgate such regulations as necessary to allow the Federal Election Commission to notify eligible candidates (as defined in section 203) of the provisions and contributions of an opposing candidate in the same election in a timely manner for purposes of determining the pay-ment amount under section 303 of such Act, as so added.

SEC. 503. NONSEVERABILITY.

(a) In General.—If any provision of, or amendment made by, this Act is declared unconstitutional, the provisions of, and amendments made by, this title, and the application of such provisions and amendments to any person or circumstance, shall be invalid.

(b) Provisions.—A provision or amendment described in this paragraph is a provision or amendment contained in any of the following sections:

(1) Section 101, except for section 323(d) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as added by such section.

(A) Section 103(b).

(B) Section 201.

(C) Section 203.

(D) Section 204.

SEC. 507. DISCLOSURE OF PROVISIONS AND AMENDMENTS TO INTRA-Party COMMITTEE.

The Federal Election Commission shall provide a report to the House of Representatives and the Senate, as required by section 103(b) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, with respect to any provision or amendment described in paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 103(b) of such Act.

(SA 157. Mr. Bingaman proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, to amend the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 to provide bipartisan campaign reform; as follows:

On page 37, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

SA 158. Mr. Bingaman proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, to amend the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 to provide bipartisan campaign reform; as follows:

On page 37, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:
SA 159. Mr. NELSON of Florida proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, to amend the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 to provide bipartisan campaign reform; as follows:

On page 37, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

SEC. 2. PROHIBITION ON FRAUDULENT SOLICITATION OF FUNDS.

Section 322 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 441d) is amended—

(1) by inserting 'as a pattern or practice for commercial purposes';

(2) by striking 'in any political committee, political party or organization that is primarily engaged in political' and all that follows through 'receives contributions or is engaged in promoting' and inserting the following:

'by the activities of one or more individuals or organizations that is maintained or controlled by or acting on behalf of a political committee or organization that is primarily engaged in political activities.'

SA 160. Mr. KERRY proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, to amend the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 to provide bipartisan campaign reform; as follows:

On page 37, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

SEC. 305. STUDY AND REPORT ON CLEAN MONEY CLEAN ELECTIONS LAWS.

SEC. 315 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 315), as amended by this Act, is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsections (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) as subsections (c), (d), (e), (f), and (g), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after subsection (a) the following:

'Political Advertisements of Non-Candidates—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If any licensee permits a person, other than a legally qualified candidate for Federal office (or an authorized committee of that candidate), to use a broadcasting station during the period described in paragraph (2) to attack or oppose (as defined in paragraph (3)) a clearly identified candidate (as defined in section 301 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971) for Federal office, the broadcasting station shall, within a reasonable period of time, make available to such candidate the opportunity to use the broadcasting station, without charge, for the same amount of time during the same period of the day and week as was used by the other candidate.

(2) PERIOD DESCRIBED.—The period described in this paragraph is—

(A) with respect to a general, special, or runoff election for such Federal office, the 60-day period preceding such election; or

(B) with respect to a primary or preference election, or a convention or caucus of a political party that has authority to nominate a candidate for such Federal office, the 30-day period preceding such election, convention or caucus.

(3) ATTACK OR OPPOSE DEFINED.—The term 'attack or oppose' means, with respect to a clearly identified candidate—

(A) any expression of unmistakable and unambiguous opposition to the candidate; or

(B) any communication that contains a phrase such as 'vote against', 'defeat', or 'reject', or a cause, slogan or words that, when taken as a whole, and with limited reference to external events (such as proximity to an election) can have no reasonable meaning other than to advocate the defeat or clearly identified candidates; regardless of whether or not the communication expressly advocates a vote against the candidate.'
statement by the candidate that identifies the candidate and states that the candidate has approved the communication.

(2) Television.—If a communication described in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) which is transmitted through radio or television shall include, in addition to the requirements of that paragraph, in a clearly readable manner with a reasonable degree of color contrast between the background and the printed statement, for a period of at least 4 seconds—

(A) appears at the end of the communication in a clearly readable manner with a reasonable degree of color contrast between the background and the printed statement, for a period of at least 4 seconds; and

(B) is accompanied by a clearly identifiable photographic or similar image of the candidate.

SEC. 3. SEVERABILITY.

If any provision of this Act or the application of this Act to any person or circumstance is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this Act and amendments made by this Act, and the provisions of this Act and amendments to any provision of this Act, shall not be affected by the holding.

SA 163. Mr. THOMPSON (for himself, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. JEFFORDS, and Mr. DODD) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 27, to amend the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 to provide bipartisan campaign reform; as follows:

On page 37, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

SEC. 3A. INCREASE IN PENALTIES.

(a) In general.—Subparagraph (A) of section 309(d)(1) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437g(d)(1)(A)) is amended to read as follows:

(1) Any person who knowingly and willfully commits a violation of any provision of this Act which involves the making, receiving, or reporting of any contribution, donation, or expenditure—

(i) aggregating $25,000 or more during a calendar year shall be fined under title 18 United States Code, or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both; or

(ii) aggregating $2,000 or more (but less than $25,000) during a calendar year shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, or imprisoned for not more than 1 year, or both.

(b) Effective date.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to violations occurring on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 4. STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

(a) In general.—Section 304(a)(1)(A) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437t(a)(1)(A)) is amended by striking “3” and inserting “5”.

(b) Effective date.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to violations occurring on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 5. SENTENCING GUIDELINES.

(a) In general.—The United States Sentencing Commission shall—

(1) promulgate a guideline, or amend an existing guideline under section 994 of title 28, United States Code, in accordance with paragraph (2), for penalties for violations of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 and related election laws; and

(2) submit to Congress an explanation of any guidelines promulgated under paragraph (1) and any legislative or administrative recommendations regarding enforcement of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 and related election laws.

(b) Considerations.—The Commission shall provide guidelines under subsection (a) taking into account the following considerations:

(1) Ensure that the sentencing guidelines and policy statements reflect the serious nature of such violations and the need for aggressive and appropriate law enforcement actions to prevent such violations.

(2) Provide a sentencing enhancement for any person convicted of such violation if such violation involves—

(A) a contribution, donation, or expenditures for a foreign candidate or organization;

(B) a large aggregate amount of illegal transactions;

(C) a large aggregate amount of illegal contributions, donations, or expenditures;

(D) the receipt or disbursement of governmental funds; and

(E) an intent to achieve a benefit from the Government.

(3) Provide a sentencing enhancement for any violation by a person who is a candidate or a high-ranking campaign official for such candidate.

(4) Account for aggravating or mitigating circumstances that might justify exceptions, including circumstances for which the sentencing guidelines currently provide sentencing enhancements,

(5) Establish reasonable consistency with other relevant directives and guidelines of the Commission.

(6) Protect the public interest by ensuring that the guidelines adequately meet the purposes of sentencing under section 3553(a)(2) of title 18, United States Code.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE; EMERGENCY AUTHORITY TO PROMULGATE GUIDELINES.

(1) Effective date.—Notwithstanding section 9012 of title 28, United States Code, or an emergency authority to promulgate guidelines under this section not later than the later of—

(A) 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act; or

(B) 90 days after the date on which at least 200 political committees are founded or in which the violation is occurring, or is about to occur.

(ii) the failure to act expeditiously will result in irreparable harm to a party affected by the potential violation.

(iii) expeditious action will not cause undue harm or prejudice to the interests of others.

(iv) the public interest would be best served by the issuance of an injunction; the Commission may initiate a civil action for a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction pending the outcome of the proceedings described in paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4).

(ii) in paragraph (7), by striking “(5) or (6)” and inserting “(5), (6), or (13)”; and

(iii) in paragraph (11), by striking “(6)” and inserting “(6) or (13)”.

(a) Amendment.—Section 309(a)(8)(B) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437g(a)(8)(B)) is amended by striking “the greater of $10,000 or an amount equal to 20 percent” and inserting “the greater of $15,000 or an amount equal to 300 percent”.

(b) USE OF CANDIDATES’ NAMES.

Section 302(e) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437c(e)) is amended by striking paragraph (4) and inserting the following:

(4) The name of any authorized committee shall include the name of the candidate who authorized the committee under paragraph (1).

(2) A political committee that is not an authorized committee shall not—

(i) include the name of any candidate in its name, or

(ii) except in the case of a national, State, or local committee of a political party, use the name of any candidate in any activity on behalf of such committee in such a context as to suggest that the committee is an authorized committee of the candidate or that
SEC. 7. EXPEDITED PROCEDURES.

Section 306(a) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437g(a), as amended by this Act, is amended by adding at the end the following:

‘‘(14) EXPEDITED PROCEDURE.—
‘‘(A) 60 DAYS PRECEDING AN ELECTION.—If the complaint in a proceeding is filed within 60 days immediately preceding a general election, the Commission may take action described in this paragraph.

‘‘(B) RESOLUTION BEFORE ELECTION.—If the Commission determines, on the basis of facts alleged in the complaint and other facts available to the Commission, that there is clear and convincing evidence that a violation of this Act has occurred, is occurring, or is about to occur and it appears that the requirements for relief stated in clauses (ii), (iii), and (iv) of paragraph (13)(A) are met, the Commission may—

(i) order expedited proceedings, shortening the time periods for proceedings under paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) as necessary to allow the matter to be resolved in sufficient time before the election to avoid harm or prejudice to the interests of the parties; or

(ii) if the Commission determines that there is insufficient time to conduct proceedings under paragraph (13)(A).

(C) COMPLAINT WITHOUT MERRIT.—If the Commission determines, on the basis of facts alleged in the complaint and other facts available to the Commission, that the complaint is clearly without merit, the Commission may—

(i) order expedited proceedings, shortening the time periods for proceedings under paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) as necessary to allow the matter to be resolved in sufficient time before the election to avoid harm or prejudice to the interests of the parties; or

(ii) if the Commission determines that there is insufficient time to conduct proceedings before the election, summarily dismiss the complaint.’’.

SEC. 8. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION.

Section 314 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 439c) is amended—

(1) by inserting ‘‘(a)’’ before ‘‘There’’;

and

(2) in the second sentence—

(A) by striking ‘‘and’’ after ‘‘1978’’; and

(B) by striking the period at the end and inserting the following: ‘‘, and $80,000,000 (as adjusted under subsection (b)) for each fiscal year beginning after September 30, 2001.’’; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

‘‘(b) The $80,000,000 under subsection (a) shall be increased with respect to each fiscal year based on the increase in the price index determined under section 315(c) for the calendar year in which such fiscal year begins, except that the base period shall be calendar year 2000.’’.

SEC. 9. EXPEDITED REFERRALS TO ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Section 309(a)(5) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 437g(a)(5)) is amended by striking subparagraph (C) and inserting the following:

‘‘(C) The Commission may at any time, by an affirmative vote of at least 4 of its members, refer a possible violation of this Act or chapter 68 or 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to the Attorney General of the United States, without regard to any limitation set forth in this section.’’.

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEES TO MEET

COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE, NUTRITION, AND FORESTRY

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Thursday, March 29, 2001. The purpose of this hearing will be to review environmental trading opportunities for agriculture.

The PRESIDING OFFIER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON FINANCE

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Finance be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Thursday, March 29, 2001 to hear testimony on Debt Reduction.

The PRESIDING OFFIER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN RELATIONS

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Foreign Relations be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Thursday, March 29, 2001 to consider the nominations of Kenneth W. Dam of Illinois to be Deputy Secretary of the Treasury; David D. Aufhauser to be General Counsel of the Department of the Treasury; Michele A. Davis, of Virginia to be an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; and, Faryar Shirzad to be an Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

The PRESIDING OFFIER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON JOINT RESOLUTION

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Special Committee on Aging be authorized to meet on Thursday, March 29, 2001 at 10:30 a.m. to hold a hearing.

The PRESIDING OFFIER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON AGING

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Special Committee on Aging be authorized to meet on Thursday, March 29, 2001 from 9:30 a.m.–12:00 p.m in Dirksen 562 for the purpose of conducting a hearing.

The PRESIDING OFFIER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON FORESTS AND PUBLIC LANDS

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Forests and Public Lands of the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Thursday, March 29, at 2:30 p.m. to conduct an oversight hearing. The subcommittee will receive testimony on the Administration’s National Fire Plan.

The PRESIDING OFFIER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON NATIONAL PARKS, HISTORIC PRESERVATION AND RECREATION

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on National Parks, Historic Preservation and Recreation of the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Thursday, March 29 at 10:00 a.m. to conduct an oversight hearing. The subcommittee will review the National Park Service’s implementation of management policies and procedures to comply with the provisions of Title I, II, III, V, VI, VII, and VIII of the National Parks Omnibus Management Act of 1988.

The PRESIDING OFFIER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON OVERSIGHT OF GOVERNMENT MANAGEMENT, RESTRUCTURING AND THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management, Restructuring and the District of Columbia be authorized to meet on Thursday, March 29, at 10:00 a.m. for a hearing entitled, “The National Security Implications of the Human Capital Crisis.”

The PRESIDING OFFIER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON SECURITIES AND INVESTMENT

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Securities and Investment of the Committee on Government Affairs Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management, Restructuring and the District of Columbia be authorized to meet on Thursday, March 29, at 10:00 a.m. for a hearing entitled, “S. 206, The Public Utility Holding Company Act of 2001.”

The PRESIDING OFFIER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that William Lyons, a legislative assistant in my office, be afforded privileges of the floor during the proceedings.

The PRESIDING OFFIER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

APPOINTMENTS

The PRESIDING OFFIER. The Chair, on behalf of the Vice President, pursuant to Title 46, Section 1295(b), of the U.S. Code, as amended by Public Law 101–595, and upon the recommendation of the Chairman of the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, appoints the following Senators to the Board of Visitors of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy: The Senator from Arizona (Mr. MCCAIN), ex officio, as Chairman of the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation; and the Senator from Maine (Ms. SNOWE), Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

The Chair, on behalf of the Vice President, pursuant to 14 U.S.C. 194(a), as amended by Public Law 101–595, and upon the recommendation of the Chairman of the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, appoints the following Senators to the Board of Visitors of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy: The Senator from Arizona (Mr. MCCAIN), ex officio, as Chairman of the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation; and the Senator from Illinois (Mr. FITZGERALD), Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

ORDERS FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 30, 2001

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 9 a.m. on Friday, March 30. I further ask consent that on Friday, immediately following the prayer, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate then resume consideration of S. 27, the campaign finance reform bill, as under the previous order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. SESSIONS. For the information of all Senators, the Senate will resume consideration of the campaign finance reform bill at 9 a.m. Amendments will be offered throughout the morning, with stacked votes to begin at 11 a.m. All amendments to the bill will be disposed of during tomorrow’s session, with a vote on final passage to occur at 5:30 p.m. on Monday.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL TOMORROW AT 9 A.M.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 9:30 p.m., adjourned until Friday, March 30, 2001, at 9 a.m.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate March 29, 2001:

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

CHARLES S. ABELL, OF VIRGINIA, TO BE AN ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE, VICE ALPHONSO MALDON, JR.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

GRANT D. ALDONAS, OF VIRGINIA, TO BE UNDER SECRETARY OF COMMERCE FOR INTERNATIONAL TRADE, VICE ROBERT S. LARUS.A.

BRENDA L. BECKER, OF VIRGINIA, TO BE AN ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF COMMERCE, VICE DEBORAH K. KILMER, RESIGNED.

IN THE NAVY

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY TO THE GRADE INDICATED WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 601:

To Be Vice Admiral

REAR ADM. KEITH W. LIPPERT, 0000
EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

A TRIBUTE TO MARY MACK BLOUNT

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Mary Mack Blount of Brooklyn, New York, for her hard work, dedication and commitment to caring for others.

Ms. Mack Blount was born in Macon, Georgia, the third of seven children born to Robert and Myrdis Mack. Mary’s family moved to Shelby, North Carolina where she graduated from high school. Shortly after graduation she moved to Brooklyn where she earned her Bachelors of Science degree in Accounting from Tuoro College. After graduation she married Harry Blount. Mary and Harry have four children.

Mary has always been a committed civic activist. She was an active member of the Crown Heights Community Council as well as the Stuyvesant Action Council. Mary is also a member of the Christ Fellowship Baptist Church where she teaches Sunday School and is a member of the church-based group, Women of Words. In addition, Mary’s civic work she continues to work fulltime for the New York City Board of Education as an Education Analyst.

Mr. Speaker, Ms. Mary Mack Blount is a hard working dedicated parent and civic activist with a deep commitment to her church and her community. As such, she is more than worthy of receiving our recognition today, and I hope that all of my colleagues will join me in honoring this truly remarkable woman.

HON. MICHAEL E. CAPUANO
OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Speaker, today, in honor of the thousands of men and women who proudly serve in our nation’s armed forces, I take great pride in rising to formally introduce the Military Tax Credit Act of 2001.

Without question, our most valuable national security assets are the men and women who have voluntarily stepped forward to protect and defend our freedoms. Time and again, these individuals have risen to the challenge of protecting our national interests, and they have done so with a sense of honor and duty.

Truly, the nation owes each and every person who proudly serve in our nation’s armed forces, I take great pride in rising to formally introduce the Military Tax Credit Act of 2001.

INTRODUCTION OF THE MILITARY TAX CREDIT ACT OF 2001

HON. FREDERICK NELSON
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. NELSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a dear friend of mine, Mr. Fred Nelson, who passed away unexpectedly on February 5, 2001. Fred was an integral part of the community of Carmel, California, and will be missed by us all.

Fred and I went to school together in Carmel, and he graduated from Carmel High School in 1958. He was a great athlete. Every football team he played on lost not a single game and won all the league’s championships. After graduation, he joined the U.S. Army, and served his country in uniform until 1961. After serving in the Army, he worked as a banker in the San Francisco Bay Area until finally returning to Carmel seven years ago.

For those of my colleagues who know the community of Carmel, you are first struck by the beauty of the town and the area around it. But you are equally drawn to the notion that Carmel is a town of neighbors, not occupants, and we are a tight-knit community. Many people knew and loved Fred, and I am thankful to be one of them. Fred’s passing has affected many people, and he will be sorely missed by his wife, Lynne; his son, Rodrick of Los Altos, California; his mother, Winifred Haag of Carmel; his sister, Lynn Rivera of Aptos, California; and his two grandsons.

This “bullet” symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.
INTRODUCTION OF THE PULMONARY HYPERTENSION ACT OF 2001

HON. KEVIN BRADY
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing the Pulmonary Hypertension Act of 2001. In short, this legislation will ensure greater federal resources are devoted to Pulmonary Hypertension research at the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute (NHLBI) and complement the private efforts of the PH Community.

Pulmonary Hypertension (PH) is a rare lung disorder in which the pressure in the pulmonary artery rises above normal levels and may become life threatening. When pulmonary hypertension occurs in the absence of a known cause, it is referred to as primary pulmonary hypertension (PPH). PPH is extremely rare, occurring in about two persons per million population. As of 1998, approximately 5-10 thousand individuals suffered from this disease—the greatest number reported in women between the ages of 21 and 40. Nonetheless we now know that men and women in all age ranges, from very young children to elderly people, can develop PPH. It also affects people of all racial and ethnic origins equally.

I first became aware of this illness a couple of years ago when one of my constituents and close friend came to speak to me about a disease his now eight year-old daughter, Emily, had just recently been diagnosed with. At that time, the family was informed that there was no cure for PPH, and that Emily could not be expected to live beyond 3-5 years. I began to think that in order to get Emily and other PH sufferers a chance to really experience life, the federal investment in Pulmonary Hypertension must be expanded to take full advantage of the tremendous potential for finding a cure or effective treatments.

Why does the federal government have a role in our fight against Pulmonary Hypertension? Pulmonary hypertension is frequently misdiagnosed and has often progressed to late stage by the time it is accurately diagnosed. More importantly, PH has been historically chronic and incurable. This unpredictable survival rate has not been encouraging to patients, their families or physicians. Furthermore, in 1996-97 almost six million, Americans took anorexic drugs which can cause PPH in some people. Thousands now have a PPH and are in terminal stages or have already succumbed to the disease. It is anticipated that many more cases of PPH from diet drugs will be diagnosed within the coming years.

I also believe that federal resources will complement the dollars and efforts the Pulmonary Hypertension community is doing on their own. This public-private partnership will also help ensure that everyone is working together so that we get the most “bang for the buck.”

However, thanks to efforts Congress has taken in the past, the efforts of the pulmonary hypertension community, and the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute (NHLBI), that is beginning to change. New treatments are available that now allow some patients to manage the disorder for 15 to 20 years or longer, although most Pulmonary Hypertension sufferers are not that fortunate.

I am pleased that in 1981, NHLBI established the first PPH-patient registry in the world. The registry followed 194 people with PPH over a period of at least 1 year and, in some cases, for as long as 7.5 years. Much of what we know about the illness today stems from this study. But, we still do not understand the cause or have a cure for PPH.

Mr. Speaker, we are at a fork in the road. We can either take the road that becomes a dead-end, or with the Committee’s help, we can take the road that provides a future for the individuals and families of Pulmonary Hypertension.

TRIBUTE TO BERYL HAMPTON KILGORE

HON. ZOE LOFGREN
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to congratulate Beryl Hampton Kilgore, a 75-year resident of San Jose. Beryl Kilgore will be celebrating her 100th birthday on March 31, 2001.

Beryl Hampton was born on March 31, 1901 in Forbestowt in northern California. She married Charles Kilgore in 1920 and they had two daughters, Martha Miller and Norma Mencacci. The Kilgore family moved to San Jose in 1926 and Mrs. Kilgore has resided there since that time.

Beryl Hampton Kilgore has been a treasured resident of the Chai House since 1996 and is beloved by all who know her. I join my voice to the many others offering congratulations to this wonderful woman on her 100th birthday. I wish her nothing but happiness on this joyous occasion and the best to her and her family in the coming year.

HONORING SUNRISE HOUSE

HON. MARGE ROUKEMA
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, I rise to commend and honor the important work being done by the Sunrise House Foundation and to congratulate the dedicated community leaders being honored on the occasion of the 10th anniversary of Sunrise House’s Halfway Home.

The anniversary of the halfway Home will be celebrated at a gala “Year of the Child” dinner this week. Honorees at the dinner include my good friends state Senator Robert E. Littell and his wife, former New Jersey GOP State Chairwoman Virginia Newman Littell. Senator Littell has been a major supporter of Sunrise House’s Teen and Clean Program for addicted adolescents while Mrs. Littell has been a leading advocate of a safe haven for abused children and active in the Year of the Child celebration.

Also being honored is Lorraine Hale, daughter of the legendary Clara “Mother” Hale, with whom she founded the Hale House center for children of drug-abusing women in New York. Hale House has served as a model for the Sunrise House Halfway Home. In addition, Sussex County Prosecutor Dolores Blackburn will receive the John P. Diskin Memorial Award for her work addressing the need for addiction treatment services.

Sunrise House is a non-profit drug and alcohol treatment center in Lafayette, New Jersey. The 90-bed residential treatment facility includes intensive inpatient rehabilitation programs, an adolescent unit and outpatient programs for both adolescents and adults. Treatment includes both group and individual therapy performed by psychiatrists, psychologists, physicians, and certified counselors.

The Sunrise Halfway Home is an extended treatment program for pregnant women and new mothers at risk of relapse into drug or alcohol addiction, particularly homeless women. Participants typically enter the program during their pregnancy and receive prenatal treatment at Morristown Memorial Hospital. Following delivery, the women and their infants share a room at the Halfway Home and undergo education in parenting skills. In addition to substance abuse therapy, the women are encouraged to complete their high school diplomas if they have not already done so, and can be placed in vocational training or job placement through Sussex County Community College and the Private Industry Council.

The Halfway Home opened its doors in 1990 in Franklin, with a capacity of four women and their infants. The facility moved to Lafayette in 1997 and now has a capacity of 12 women and infants. Since its inception, the home has treated 119 women and 125 children.

Mr. Speaker, we must rehabilitate those who have made the unfortunate choice of ruining their lives and those of their children by abusing drugs or alcohol. We cannot allow innocent children to be forced to bear the burden of disastrous choices made by their parents. Programs such as the Halfway Home are vital to ensuring that the children of addicted mothers get another chance at a “normal” life. The fact that it is a public-private partnership—it receives state funding in addition to private funds from generous donors—makes it all the much better an example that should be copied across our nation.

I ask my colleagues in the United States House of Representatives to join me in congratulating Sunrise House, its staff, volunteers and dedicated community leaders being honored on this celebrated 10th anniversary. May God bless all those who have been so dedicated.

A TRIBUTE TO MR. DOUGLAS X. ALEXANDER

HON. EDOPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of Douglas X. Alexander for his many contributions to his East New York community.
Douglas was born and raised in Brooklyn. He attended New York City Community College and received a degree in marketing from Baruch College. He has been a business leader for many years, recently completing a successful career as a Vice President at Chase Manhattan Bank. Douglas’s professional career, while challenging, did not fulfill his need to serve his community. As a result, he continues to be a dedicated community leader, serving as chairman of the Brooklyn Advisory Board of the New York Urban League, a board member of the Bedford Stuyvesant Restoration Revolving Loan Fund, on the board of the St. Francis De Sales School for the Deaf and the New York Chapter of Habitat for Humanity. Douglas has also served as a Zone Chairman, a Region Chairman, Cabinet Secretary Treasurer, a Vice District Governor and a District Governor of the Lions Club. There is no doubt that while Douglas will be retired from his professional job, he will continue to work very hard on behalf of his community.

His work has not gone without recognition. He has received the Black Achievers in Industry Award for the Harlem YMCA, the Man of the Year Award from the Brooklyn Branch of the NAACP, and a Melvin Jones Fellowship from the Lions Club.

Mr. Speaker, Douglas X. Alexander has been a role model for youth, a community leader and a business leader who firmly believes that if he can help someone along life’s way then his living shall not be in vain. As such, he is more than worthy of receiving our recognition today, and I hope that all of my colleagues will join me in honoring this truly outstanding man.

RETIREE OF NEIL L. RUDENSTINE, PRESIDENT OF HARVARD UNIVERSITY

HON. MICHAEL E. CAPUANO
OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Speaker, I join with my Massachusetts colleagues—JOHN JOSEPH MOAKLEY, EDWARD J. MARKEY, RICHARD NEAL, BARNEY FRANK, JOHN OLIVER, JAMES P. MCGOVERN, MARTY MEEHAN, JOHN F. TIERNEY, and WILLIAM DELAHUNT—in honoring Neil L. Rudenstine on his retirement as the twentieth President of Harvard University in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Harvard, founded in 1636, is the oldest university in the United States and one of the premier academic institutions in the world. Many of Harvard’s distinguished graduates have become leading public servants throughout our nation’s history, including seven Presidents, as well as many members of the United States House and Senate.

Neil Rudenstine began his service as President of Harvard in 1991. He brought to the post the benefit of a distinguished career both in and out of academia. Prior to becoming Harvard’s President, Mr. Rudenstine served three years as Executive Vice President of the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. Before that, he was a Professor of English at Princeton University, his undergraduate alma mater, a member of the Class of 1956. While at Princeton, Mr. Rudenstine held a series of administrative positions, including Dean of Students (1968–72), Dean of the College (1972–77), and Provost (1977–88).

He is a renowned scholar of Renaissance literature, having published works on the poetic development of Sir Philip Sidney and he is the co-author of English Poetic Satire: Wyatt to Byron. His academic achievements are quite notable. He was a Rhodes Scholar, receiving a second bachelor’s degree and a master’s degree while studying at New College at Oxford University. In 1964, Mr. Rudenstine earned his Ph.D in English from Harvard. While there, he served as an instructor and then an assistant professor in the Department of English and American Literature and Language before leaving for Princeton in 1968. Mr. Rudenstine is an honorary fellow of New College, Oxford, and Emmanuel College, Cambridge University, as well as Provost Emeritus of Princeton University. He is also a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, the American Philosophical Society, and the Committee for Economic Development.

Mr. Speaker, as Harvard’s last president of the 20th century, Neil Rudenstine has many accomplishments that will sustain Harvard’s academic leadership as the university moves into the new millennium. He oversaw the establishment of the Center for Public Leadership at the Kennedy School of Government and the creation of the Barker Center for the Humanities. Under his guidance, the university began a new doctoral program aimed at the intersection of business management and information technology. The medical facility has made great strides in cancer research and a new Harvard Biomedical Community has facilitated collaboration with industry on important research in that field.

Neil Rudenstine also understood that a university will not achieve greatness if its doors are only open to the few. Just as our country gains its great strength from the contributions of our hard working and diverse people, a university’s greatness depends upon giving educational opportunities to a wide variety of people. He expanded opportunities for Harvard undergraduates by increasing the financial aid budget by $8.3 million. This initiative has meant that students on financial aid can finish school with less debt so that they can concentrate on their educations instead of worrying about how they will pay for it. He also expanded Harvard Law School’s Low Income Protection Plan so that law students can pursue the law-related career of their choice regardless of salary.

Under his leadership, not only has Harvard maintained its standing as one of the premier universities of the world, but Mr. Rudenstine saw to it that Harvard was also a good neighbor to the community around it. Through his leadership, Harvard launched a $21 million affordable housing program in the Cambridge area. The University created more than 700 new jobs in Greater Boston and achieved the largest operating surplus in Harvard’s history—$120 million—during President Rudenstine’s tenure. In addition, he led Harvard’s most successful endowment campaign, raising an unprecedented $2.6 billion.

Mr. Speaker, President Rudenstine will visit Washington on April 22, 2001 for his last official journey from Cambridge to appear before the Massachusetts alumni and friends prior to his retirement on June 30, 2001. The members of the Massachusetts delegation in the House of Representatives wish to express our deep appreciation for the contributions of Neil Rudenstine to higher education, for the spirit of public service which characterized his decade as Harvard’s president, his many years of academic leadership in other universities, and for the grace and elegance that he brought to all he has done. We wish him well in every future endeavor, anticipating the continuing benefit of his thoughtful expertise to American higher education.

THE HONORABLE REV. CALVIN C. TURPIN
HON. SAM FARR
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Speaker, not long ago a most impressive man gave the invocation to the House. On March 14, The Reverend Calvin Turpin opened our session with a prayer of humility and spiritualism. Dr. Turpin comes from my district from the city of Hollister.

On that morning I had the pleasure of introducing to you and our other colleagues Dr. Turpin and I inserted into the RECORD some of his personal backgroup. But I wanted to expand on that information so you could all be aware of the contributions of Dr. Turpin, not only to this body, but to persons across the United States.

Mr. Speaker, I submit Dr. Turpin’s biography to be reprinted for the House.

BIOGRAPHY

Name: Calvin C. Turpin
Address: 198 Elm Drive, Hollister, CA 95023
Phone: (831) 637–6362
Birth: November 8, 1924 (Granite City, Illinois)
Married: Eudell Coody
Children: Susan Turpin Jones, 1956; John Thomas Turpin, 1958
Hobbies: Camping, Reading, Authentic Cowboy Cooking

EDUCATION
B.A.—Baylor University, 1949
B.D.—Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 1955
M.A.—Baylor University, 1962
M.R.E.—Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 1958
M.A.(L.S.)—Vanderbilt University (Peabody College), 1962
M.Div.—Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 1975
S.T.D.—Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, 1967 (Doctor of Science in Theology)

Other Education
University of Arkansas, 1945–47 (Law, Business)
Texas Tech University, 1950 (Graduate Study in History)
Vanderbilt University Divinity School, 1955–56 (Ph.D Study)
EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

Rent Control Commission, Hollister, California

PUBLICATIONS

Beyond My Dreams: Memories . . . Interpretations, Romance Publishers

50 Years of Ministry: Challenges and Changes, C.T.C. Publishing Co.

Selected Writings and a Few Limited Bibliography of Calvin C. Turpin, Romance Pub.

Rupert N. Richardson: The Man and His Works, Hardin-Simmons University

History of the First Baptist Church, Gilroy, CA, Romance Publishers

“The Rock Church”: A Brief History of the Macedonia Missionary Baptist Church Gravel Hill (White County), Arkansas, C.T.C. Publishing Co.

Contributions To A Romanian History Symposium, Hardin-Simmons University

Writings and Research of the Faculty at Hardin-Simmons University

Encyclopedia of Southern Baptists (Historical articles)

Over 100 articles in various publications

MILITARY SERVICE

U.S. Army, 1943–45 (Field Artillery, Coast Artillery, Military Police—worked with Prisoners of War)

U.S. Air Force Auxiliary—Civil Air Patrol

Rank: Lieutenant Colonel (Retired)

Chaplains:

Deputy Chief of Chaplains (National)—Retired

Pacific Region Chaplains: Alaska, California, Hawaii, Nevada, Oregon, Washington—ranked No. 1 in Nation

Pacific Region Deputy Chaplain California Wing Chaplain—Ranked No. 1 in Nation

Group 18, CA. Wing

Group 10, CA. Wing

Founder and Director: Pacific Region Chaplains’ Staff College

Texas Assistant Wing Chaplain

Abilene Composite Squadron, Texas Aerospace Instructor

Observer Rated

Awards:

Exceptional Service Award

National Commander’s Commendation

Commander’s Commendation (4) Unit Citation

Gil Robb Wilson—No. 384

Paul E. Garber (with star)

Grover Loening

Gil Robb Wilson—No. 384

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to introduce the “Orphan Drug Tax Credit Act of 2001”. The purpose of this legislation is to remedy a problem that has arisen with regard to the Orphan Drug Tax Credit.

This credit, which Congress made permanent in 1996, was enacted in order to encourage biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies to develop therapies for rare diseases and conditions. The credit applies to 50% of qualified clinical trial expenses incurred with respect to drugs that are designated as “orphan” by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

The designation process requires a finding by the FDA that the drug under development meets the statutory definition of an “orphan”, that it is intended for treatment of a patient population of less than 200,000. Unfortunately, this process can take from two months to longer than a year. The end result, is that in some cases, companies find themselves in the difficult position of either having to: (1) postpone the start of their clinical trials until the designation is received, thereby delaying important research and patient access; (2) or beginning the research before designation, thereby increasing the cost of the product’s development. Neither choice is in the interest of the patient.

The “Orphan Drug Tax Credit Act of 2001” would solve this dilemma by providing that the credit will cover the costs of qualified clinical trial expenses of a designated orphan drug, regardless of whether such expenses were incurred before or after the designation was granted, provided the designation was actually received. This legislation would go into effect upon the date of enactment.

This bill passed both the House and Senate twice in the last Congress. It was included in H.R. 2488, the “Financial Freedom Act of 1999” which was vetoed by President Clinton for unrelated reasons. The provision was also included in H.R. 2990, which passed the House on October 6, 1999, and in H.R. 4577, the “Department of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations, 2001,” which passed the Senate on July 10, 2000. The time has arrived for us to move this legislation in final form and I am hopeful that it can be included in a tax package this year.

VACCINE INJURED CHILDREN’S COMPENSATION ACT OF 2001 (VICCA)

HON. DAVE WELDON

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, today, I am pleased to join Representative JERROLD NADLER and several other Members of Congress in introducing Vaccine Injured Children’s Compensation Act of 2001 (VICCA). Over the past year, they have met with parents, doctors, and attorneys who have been involved in the current program seeking compensation for injuries that resulted from vaccines.

Serious vaccine injuries are, thankfully, very rare. However, some children suffer serious adverse reactions to vaccines. In a small number of cases these are very debilitating reactions. We must work aggressively to understand why some children suffer adverse reactions so that we may develop precautionary measures to reduce adverse reactions. I am a strong proponent of vaccination. I believe it is important that children be vaccinated against these devastating diseases. Widespread vaccination has and will continue to spare our nation from the scourge of epidemics. We all benefit from widespread vaccination. Those of us who are healthy are the beneficiaries of national vaccination efforts. As such, I believe very strongly that we as a nation have an obligation to meet the needs of those children who suffer adverse reactions.

I also believe that our federal public health officials should do more to ensure that we are doing all that we can to reduce the number of children who have adverse reactions. We must work aggressively to understand why some children suffer adverse reactions so that we may develop precautionary measures to reduce adverse reactions. I will continue to pursue this effort with the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and the National Institutes of Health (NIH).

I was pleased when a Democrat controlled Congress and Republican President Reagan worked together in bipartisan fashion in 1986 to establish the VICP, VICP was established to ensure that our nation continues to have a strong vaccination program while compensating those families when a child suffers a serious adverse reaction to a vaccine. Back in the mid-1980s there was a real concern that due to lawsuits brought against vaccine manufacturers, some manufacturers would stop making their vaccines available leaving the American public without important vaccines.

The Vaccine Injured Children’s Compensation Act of 2001 (VICCA) would make a number of substantive and administrative changes to the VICP, in an attempt to restore the program so that it fulfills the promises that were intended. A broad coalition of Members of Congress from across the political spectrum has joined together to address these concerns.

The bill clarifies that this program is to be a remedial, compensation program, which is consistent with the original intent expressed by Congress in the House Report accompanying the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986. Today, the program is too litigious and adversarial. VICCA makes changes regarding burden of proof. Currently, the burden of proof is such that some children may not be receiving compensation that is due them. I believe we should bend over backwards to ensure that every child who was injured receives compensation.

The intent of the program was to provide compensation for all claimants whose injuries may very well have been caused by the vaccine. The program needs to fully recognize that strict scientific proof is not always available. In other words, the truth of what vaccines are rare and as such, it is often difficult to prove causal relationships with the certainty that science and medicine often expect. Indeed, there may be multiple factors that lead to an adverse reaction in some children and the program should recognize this. VICCA ensures that this is taken into account and it ensures that when the weight of the evidence is balanced, we err on the side of the injured child.

Our bill will also make it easier to ensure that the costs associated with setting up a trust for the compensation award are a permitted use of the funds. This is important in ensuring that these funds are available to provide a lifetime of care for the injured child. The bill also stops the practice of discounting to ensure that the value of an award for pain and suffering is fully met.

We also recognize the important need for counseling in helping parents and siblings of a profoundly injured child cope with these new challenges. The impact of these injuries go well beyond the child who is injured. This bill will ensure coverage of counseling services.

The bill also ensures the payment of interim fees and costs to claimants attorneys. The current program, families and attorneys are often forced to bear these expenses for years while a claim is heard. Attorneys for the claimants are going to be paid for their fees and costs at the end of a claim, regardless of whether or not they prevail. Thus there is no logical reason why they should not be allowed to petition for interim fees and costs. This provision simply ensures a more fair process for the claimants, by ensuring that the injured child can have good representation while pursuing his or her claim. It ensures that they are able to put their best case forward. The current practice hinders the ability of many claimants to put their best case forward. This should not be the case in a program that was established to ensure provisions for children who have been injured.

Finally, the bill makes a number of changes to statutes of limitation. The program should serve the purpose of compensating those who were harmed. Thus, it is important to ensure that it is as inclusive as possible to ensure that injured children are compensated and fully cared for.

THE COMMUNITY SOLUTIONS ACT
HON. J.C. WATTS, JR., OF OKLAHOMA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to introduce, along with my good friend and colleague, TONY HALL, the Community Solutions Act of 2001, legislation that will strengthen our ability to serve the poor and the homeless, the addicted, the hungry, the unemployed, victims of violence, and all those that we are called on to reach out to, both as public servants and as individual citizens.

The Community Solutions Act is a comprehensive approach that will enhance the power of communities and individuals to solve the difficult problems that confront poverty and destitution in our wealthy nation.

Our Nation is blessed with tens of thousands of devoted people who work with the poor on a daily basis, in the neighborhoods, on the street corners, in the shelters and the soup kitchens, shirtsleeves rolled up, literally extending a helping hand to those who have lost hope. These are the people who touch the poor.

They operate thousands of centers throughout the country that provide services to the underprivileged. In many neighborhoods these centers are centers of hope and often the only source of hope in an otherwise desolate landscape.

Through our legislation we invite these courageous and selfless men and women to help us as a society to find those in need and deliver to them needed services. Those services include hunger relief, drug counseling, protection from violence, housing and other assistance to help them become fully invested in their rights as Americans.

For too long we have excluded these individuals from helping us help others. In the effort to wipe out poverty and hopelessness, we need all the soldiers we can muster.

In addition to increasing our outreach to the poor by increasing the number of hands that are reaching out, the Community Solutions Act provides a number of tax incentives to encourage Americans in their generous giving to these causes.

A charitable deduction for taxpayers who do not itemize seems not only good public policy but also a matter of simple fairness for more moderate income Americans who use the standard deduction but contribute to charities and receive no tax relief for doing so. This initiative will give them equal standing with wealthier contributors. We also allow tax free contributions to charity from IRAs, and we expand the charitable deduction for food products.

Finally, we provide the opportunity for personal empowerment for the poor through the establishment of Individual Development Accounts or DIAs. One of the great challenges in the escape from poverty is how to build assets and capital to start a business, to buy a home or to pay tuition, and how to manage money.

The IDAs we set up will provide to eligible individuals a government match of up to $500 a year tax-free and will serve as a repository for other tax-free private giving. Recipients will be trained in the skills of money management and will learn how to invest for the future for themselves and for their families.

Last year we passed the Community Re- newal and New Markets Initiative to reach out to impoverished communities in this land of plenty. The Community Solutions Act goes one more step, reaches out a little farther, to get government services to every one who needs them. With the help of these thousands of dedicated individuals, we can accomplish that goal.
Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Harriet Tubman and her hard work and dedication to social justice. Harriet Tubman is credited with freeing many African-Americans from slavery. She is remembered for her work with the Underground Railroad, her life and commitment to helping others gain their freedom.

Mrs. Tubman was born a slave, in Bucktown, Maryland. The date of her birth is unsure, but it is believed to be March 10, 1820. She was born Araminta, but decided later to take on her mother's first name instead. Starting life on a plantation, she grew up doing hard labor in the fields and suffered repeated beatings. At the age of 13, she was struck in the head by an overseer with a club and property was taken from her.

After her owner died in 1849, Mrs. Tubman was able to escape to Philadelphia on the Underground Railroad. In 1850, the Fugitive Slave Law was passed. The law criminalized providing assistance to runaway slaves. This new law did not stop Mrs. Tubman, however, from repeatedly making trips back into the southern states where she eventually freed about 3,000 slaves, including her elderly parents using the Underground Railroad. Since she freed so many people from slavery, Harriet Tubman became known as the “Moses of her people.”

Despite these achievements, Harriet Tubman’s role as a member of the Union Army’s forces, during the Civil War, is not widely recognized. She later reported to General David Hunter at Hilton Head, South Carolina in 1863 where she worked as a nurse, scout, spy, and cook for the Union Army. During the War, Harriet led a bold raid in South Carolina that freed over 800 slaves.

In 1884, after the Civil War, Harriet Tubman married John Tubman a freed slave. Four years later, her husband died leaving her to live the latter portion of her life in poverty. Nevertheless, Mrs. Tubman campaigned to raise funds for black schools. She also created the Harriet Tubman Home for Indignant Aged Negroes in her own home.

As we end our celebration of Women’s History Month, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring Mrs. Harriet Tubman for her hard work, extraordinarily contributions toward social justice and her service with the Union forces by supporting my legislation to posthumously award her veteran status.

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the “Fallen Firefighters Act of 2001.” This legislation serves as a remembrance to the heroic men and women who have died in the line of duty by requiring the American flag on all federal buildings be lowered to half-staff one day each year on the observance of the National Fallen Firefighters Memorial Service.

Nearly 1.2 million men and women serve our country as fire and emergency services personnel. Approximately one-third suffer debilitating injuries each year making it one of the most dangerous jobs in America. Furthermore, approximately 100 men and women die in the line of duty every year—many are volunteers. Since 1981 every state in America, as well as the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, have lost firefighters serving in the line of duty.

In 1990, Congress designated the national monument in Emmitsburg, Maryland to serve as the official memorial to all fallen firefighters. Since 1981, the names of 2,077 fallen fire heroes have been added to the Roll of Honor. This year, the name of Arnold Blakenship, Jr., of Greenwood Delaware, will be placed on the 2000 memorial plaque along with 85 other firefighters. Sadly Mr. Blakenship is not the first firefighter in Delaware to be memorialized.

Lowering the flag on federal buildings one day a year will remind all Americans of the patriotic service and dedicated efforts of our fire and emergency services personnel. These men and women work tirelessly to protect and preserve the lives and property of their fellow citizens. Through this legislation, we can show our support and respect for America’s fire heroes and those who carry on the noble tradition of service.

Mr. Speaker, I ask you to join me in celebrating the 30th Anniversary of Hard Rock Café International. As a musician and music enthusiast, I thank them for their outstanding support of the musical art form and the many artists across the world. As a father and a public official, I commend their service to communities throughout the United States and the world.
Mr. LOBIONDO. Mr. Speaker, it is with great sadness and profound regret that I rise today. I rise to address the House about two heroes who died on Saturday morning.

While patrolling the waters of Lake Ontario on Friday night, four Coast Guardsmen from Station Niagara were hit by a wave that capsized their boat. All the men were thrown into the frigid water of the Great Lakes, where, even in their survival suits, they could not last longer than a few hours. Their fellow Coast Guardsmen, joined by members of the Lewiston Fire Department, Erie County Sheriffs office, and Canadian Coast Guard, searched for these men during the night and all four were eventually recovered. However, despite hours of intensive medical care, Boatswain’s Mate Second Class Scott Chism of Lakeside, California and Seaman Chris Ferreby of Morris-town New Jersey, both passed away on Saturday morning. The remaining two crewmen are recovering from their ordeal.

Petty Officer Chism is survived by his wife Attalissa, his five-year-old daughter Kelsey and his one-year-old son Caleb. Seaman Ferreby is survived by his wife Amy and their seven-month-old son Tyler.

As the chairman of the Subcommittee on Coast Guard and Maritime Transportation, I want to extend our sympathies to these men’s families, their “shipmates” at Station Niagara who sought them so valiantly through the dark night and to the entire Coast Guard community who shares our grief at their loss. Our thoughts and our prayers are with them at this difficult time.

This tragedy underscores the hazardous nature of even routine operations of the Coast Guard and should serve as a stark reminder to all of us here in Congress that the watch our brave Coast Guard men and women stand to all of us here in Congress that the watch

Mr. Speaker, two heroes died Saturday morning but their lives exemplified the Coast Guard’s core values of Honor, Respect and Devotion to Duty and their example lives on in the works of their fellow Guardsmen who risk their lives each day to protect each of us.

A TRIBUTE TO BETTY COLEMAN-LONG
HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Betty Coleman-Long of Brooklyn, New York for her commitment to her community and her joy of life.

Mrs. Coleman-Long is one of four siblings, two brothers, Michael and Charles Coleman and one sister, Mozelle Wickham. She is married and the proud mother of two, Paige L. Long, MD, and Courtney Long, a published author.

Mrs. Coleman-Long owns and operates Gospel Den in Bedford Stuyvesant and is an active member and worshiper of Brown Memorial Baptist Church. She is also the former president of the Floral Club.

Betty takes advantage of the many opportunities to celebrate the culture of New York as she is an avid theater and moviegoer, jazz aficionado, and she enjoys dining out. There is no greater joy in Betty’s life than her religious beliefs.

Mr. Speaker, Betty Coleman-Long is a part of a business owner, and a strong believer in living life to its fullest, yet she never loses sight of her deep religious convictions and the importance of her community. As such, she is more than worthy of receiving our recognition today, and I hope that all of my colleagues will join me in honoring this truly remarkable woman.

HONORING VIRGINIA “GINNY” EBANKS
HON. HEATHER WILSON OF NEW MEXICO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mrs. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, in honor of Women’s History Month, I asked New Mexicans to send me nominations of women in New Mexico who have given special service to our community, but may have never received recognition for their good deeds.

I received twenty-eight worthy nominations describing sacrifices and contributions these women have made for our community. I was particularly moved by the more than 100 nominations received for Mrs. Virginia “Ginny” Ebanks, Principal of Eisenhower Middle School in Albuquerque, New Mexico. The nominations came from current students, former students, teachers, and parents all describing Mrs. Ebanks’ caring, professional, and enthusiastic style of leadership.

I would like to share with you quotes from the people who appreciate the job she has done at Eisenhower Middle School and love her for the contributions she has made to the thousands of lives she has touched.

Teachers and parents say:

I am thoroughly impressed with the dedication, professionalism and enthusiasm of Mrs. Ebanks. She consistently commends the students, stating that they impressed and inspired her daily.

I believe she is the driving force at Eisenhower which has resulted in the school being rated exemplary status—one of only two middle schools in New Mexico to receive this ranking. She has high standards and has assembled an excellent team.

Mrs. Ebanks is a good example of what it takes to live an honest and productive life. She has proven to be of great benefit for the children. Her door was always open to everyone.

She is the reason I continue to teach. She created an environment that had high expectations for students and staff, while at the same time allowing all to experience the joy of learning and the safety of belonging.

In their nominations, students told me:

I think Mrs. Ebanks is really cool. She is nice and doesn’t get me in trouble. She supports kids, she is very involved in her school and does not sit around when something happens, she acts on it.

Mrs. Ebanks will always try things that will stand out. Like if we sold a lot of magazine orders she would do something crazy like have a pie thrown at her or she would offer to be in the dunk tank. Just an all around great person.

She is very helpful in time of need. She would talk it through and find away to make it better. If a student came to her with an idea she would help make it work. She’s always been there for the students.

Mrs. Ebanks is always there for people. She is open-minded and never turned anyone away from their goals. I find that my middle school experience has well prepared me for high school, and Mrs. Ebanks as the head principal of the school set the tone for that good experience.

She always has something positive to say to the students and has inspired me to do my best. Mrs. Ebanks has led us to have better test scores. She turned the school into a better place.

Mrs. Ebanks is very sweet and considerate. I remember once in 6th grade that she let me put my purse in her office. It was at a dance and I couldn’t fit it in my locker. So I was just carrying it around when she said “Would you like me to put your purse in my office.” She is so nice.

Mrs. Ebanks has changed my life for the best. She has taught me how to let people feel good about the best of their abilities. She taught us how to care for each other.

This school is nice and at times fun. She gives a zest to the school. She helps keep the school in line and keeps it at the top of its rank. She keeps us motivated.

Ginny Ebanks has made a positive impact on the people she has taught—young and old alike. She is a role model for education and leadership. Mrs. Ebanks is on a leave of absence due to illness and as one student said, “she always there for us when we are in need, so it’s now our turn to help her.” Virginia Ebanks is a woman of courage and vision, an exemplar of what an educator should be. She knows it takes the best education to give children the tools they need to build wings for their dreams. She inspires students, by her own example, to care for one another and be supportive, values that would benefit every classroom in America.

Please join me in thanking a distinguished educator, Virginia Ebanks, for her faithful service to our children and the nation.

HONORING THE UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO—125 YEARS OF EDUCATING HON. MARK UDALL OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of an institution that has improved the lives of thousands of people, the University of Colorado. The university is celebrating 125 years of providing a superior education to the people of Colorado, the Nation, and individuals from around the world.
The university, which was established in 1876, opened its doors on September 5, 1877, with just one building, 2 instructors, and 44 students. Since its founding, the University of Colorado has grown from one building in Boulder to four different campuses throughout the state. The Boulder campus alone has nearly 200 buildings and includes 10 colleges and schools. Over the course of the university’s proud history, more than 200,000 degrees have been earned. It is this continued commitment to education and improving people’s lives that we celebrate today.

America has been built on the ideas and intellect of an educated society. CU has played an important role as a catalyst—helping minds grow and providing students with opportunities to learn about subjects as diverse as space and environmental and space sciences. The university’s flight dynamics and African-American history. The inspiration and knowledge that CU’s students gain today will change the way we all will live tomorrow.

CU has helped countless students find their paths in life. Many of them went on to make important contributions to our country. As though it’s not possible to name them all, I’d like to acknowledge a few of CU’s most outstanding alumni:

Byron White—Not only was he CU’s first all-American football player, but after an outstanding career at the Justice Department, he was appointed as a Supreme Court Justice.

Scott Carpenter—As one of just thirteen CU graduates to travel to outer space, Scott was one of the original seven Mercury astronauts and flew the second American manned orbital flight.

Cynthia Lawrence Calkins—the world-renowned opera star.

Three-term Colorado Governor Roy Romer and former U.S. Senator Hank Brown.

CU played a significant role in helping these alumni become leaders in their fields.

In addition to training young minds, the University of Colorado is also a leading research institution. At least one of the nation’s leading universities invited to join the prestigious Association of American Universities, CU has more than 900 separate research investigations in progress—in such areas as biotechnology, superconductivity, information technology telecommunications, and environmental and space sciences. The University of Colorado also ranks eleventh among public universities in the country in Federal research support.

CU’s research programs are at the cutting edge of scientific inquiry, producing award-winning science that is transforming the way we live. The discoveries of CU biochemistry professor Thomas Cech, for instance, have helped us understand the catalytic properties of RNA. Prof. Cech was awarded the 1989 Nobel Prize in Chemistry for his efforts.

I am very proud of CU and its accomplishments, and expect to hear about amazing new contributions that future CU graduates will make to our economy, to our knowledge base, to our society, and to our world. The continued excellence of CU’s teachers, faculty, and students guarantees another successful 125 years for the University of Colorado.

PAYDAY BORROWER PROTECTION ACT OF 2001

HON. BOBBY L. RUSH OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

THURSDAY, MARCH 29, 2001

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Payday Borrower Protection Act of 2001.

With a slowing economy, payday loan companies are springing up in storefronts all across America. Payday lenders provide short-term loans with minimum credit checks to consumers who are in need of ready cash, but these predatory businesses exist to exploit the financial situation many low- and middle-income families face. To the financially strapped consumer, these loans may seem like the answer to a prayer. However, with exorbitant interest rates ranging from 261% to 913% annually, these transactions are a recipe for disaster.

Payday lenders often utilize “loansharking” tactics, such as threatening civil or criminal action against the borrower to pressure them into more expensive rollover loans. Fearing reprisal, borrowers sink further into debt. Similar to the Greek mythological character, Sisyphus, who was condemned to an eternity of rolling a boulder uphill, payday borrowers become trapped in a perpetual cycle of fees and payments which serve only to line the pockets of the payday lender. A 1999 Indiana Department of Financial Institutions audit revealed that, on average over a twelve-month period, consumers renewed their loans ten times; one consumer renewed sixty-six times.

Mr. Speaker, my bill would bring fairness to the payday loan industry. Specifically, it would:

- Require payday lenders to be licensed under state law;
- Place a ceiling of 36 percent on the annual interest rate a payday lender can charge;
- Limit the period of maturity of any loan to two weeks for each $50 of loan principal; and
- Limit the principal amount of a payday loan to less than $300;
- Prohibit threatening criminal or civil action in order to force a borrower into rolling over a payday loan;
- Prohibit rolling over any deferred deposit loan unless 30 days has elapsed from the termination of any prior payday loan; and
- Provide a private cause of action, criminal and civil penalties for violation of this act.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in ensuring that consumers are protected from the predatory practices of payday lenders by supporting the Payday Borrower Protection Act of 2001.

TRIBUTE TO GUS McIVER SANDERS

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

THURSDAY, MARCH 29, 2001

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, today it gives me great pleasure to rise in honor of Gus McIver Sanders on the occasion of his retirement from the New York City Police Department.

Mr. Sanders was born on January 19, 1942 in Darlington, South Carolina. He graduated with honors from high school and received a two-year basketball scholarship from the Friendship Junior College in Rockhill, South Carolina. He decided early on that he needed bigger challenges than his small town in South Carolina had to offer so he moved to New York City where he worked for Fairchild Publications. He worked at Fairchild for a few years before he joined the Army. He was stationed in Germany and worked in communications. When his tour of duty ended, he returned to the United States and used his military experience to get a job with the phone company. After several years with the phone company, Gus decided to shift his focus to his true love, helping people. He applied for a job as a police officer with the New York City Police Department. He was sworn in to protect the citizens of New York City on October 29, 1973. He went to the police academy and from there was assigned to the 83rd Precinct in Bushwick, NY where he would stay until his retirement this year.

Gus was an active police officer. He has made numerous arrests and made a point of helping as many people as he could in the Bushwick community. He had a variety of assignments during his tenure on the force including foot patrol, mobile patrol, warrants, plain clothes anti-crime and community affairs. Over the past ten years he has been assigned to the community affairs division of the 83rd Precinct. As a Community Affairs Officer, P.O. Sanders has placed the people of Bushwick first. He has helped organize a variety of special events for children and the community including an annual children’s Halloween party, a Christmas party, a community picnic, and the Precinct’s National Night Out Against Crime. He also volunteers for Meals on Wheels, delivering meals to the homebound elderly. In addition, he has helped the homeless and victims of fires find housing in their hour of need.

Mr. Speaker, Gus McIver Sanders is a dedicated community and public servant who has served the people of Bushwick and the New York City Police Department with honor and dignity. As such, he is more than worthy of receiving our recognition today, and I hope that all of my colleagues will join me in honoring this truly remarkable man.

TRIBUTE TO BRYAN PAUL RICHMOND AND BRENDAN JAMES ALLAN

HON. JOHN T. DOOLITTLE
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

THURSDAY, MARCH 29, 2001

Mr. DOOLITTLE. Mr. Speaker, today I wish to remember two of my young constituents, Bryan Paul Richmond and Brendan James Allan, whose lives were recently cut short in a tragic accident. On February 21, 2001, both Allan and former U.S. Senator Hank Brown.

Allan, whose lives were recently cut short in a tragic accident. On February 21, 2001, Allan and Brendan were killed in a small plane crash. The crash occurred near Alpine Meadows. Although my words cannot fill the void that their passing has left in the lives of many people, I hope that I can bring...
TRIBUTE TO RETIRING PROFESSOR DOCTOR E. EDWARD SEE OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, it has come to my attention that a long and exceptionally distinguished career in the field of education is coming to an end. Dr. E. Edward See, of Warrensburg, Missouri, will retire from Central Missouri State University on June 30, 2001.

Dr. See has been a popular and highly respected educator in the state of Missouri for nearly four decades. A graduate of Central Missouri State University and Missouri University, Dr. See has specialized in theater and speech. Throughout his career he taught junior and senior high school in the Raytown, Missouri, school district, as a graduate assistant at Central Missouri State University and Missouri University, and as a professor and chair of the theater department at Central Missouri State University.

In addition to his commitment in the classroom, Dr. See has directed approximately 45 plays at Central Missouri State University and served as president and on the board of directors for the Speech and Theatre Association of Missouri. He has been honored for endeavors in teaching and drama. He was nominated for the Outstanding Teacher Award by the Speech and Theatre Association of Missouri, directed a play which received commendation from the Kennedy Center/ American College Theatre Festival, and saw the establishment of seven different scholarships.

Mr. Speaker, Dr. See deserves the thanks and praises of the many students that he has served for so long. I know the Members of the House were in paying tribute to this exceptional teacher.

LETS MAKE SOCIAL SECURITY SOLVENT FOR 75 YEARS AND BEYOND

HON. MARTIN OLAV SABO
OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, we all want to ensure Social Security’s long-term solvency. So, the only remaining question is how we get it done.

Congress could reduce benefits or increase the retirement age like the Social Security reform measures enacted in 1977 and 1983. During these past efforts, Congress phased in an increase in the normal retirement age from 65 to 67 and reduced benefit levels. I haven’t heard a lot of support lately for further increasing the retirement age or cutting benefits for future retirees.

Some believe we should create individual accounts to invest funds in the private market. This proposal would accelerate the Social Security solvency problem by taking funds out of the system that have already been counted when estimating long-term solvency.

Further, concerns have been raised that using individual accounts would jeopardize the progressive nature of the system, which helps ensure low-income workers a basic benefit level. Social Security was established as a guaranteed minimum retirement package. Individuals already have the option of supplementing this plan with private savings and investments.

Others suggest investing Social Security funds in equity markets, while also retaining guaranteed benefits. This approach might increase the earnings of the trust funds, but would also involve greater risk.

I recommend another option—increase the interest rate we pay to Social Security. Over the past 10 years, the Social Security trust funds have received interest of about 4.5 percent over inflation. I propose that we raise that rate—or “refinance”—at 6 percent over inflation, making Social Security solvent indefinitely.

Under my approach, funds to ensure Social Security solvency must come from the General Treasury. This plan keeps our commitment to extend Social Security for future retirees, and provides for a straightforward accounting of the cost of these obligations within the budget framework that we use to fund our national priorities. It is not an instant solution, but an honest path to address the Social Security solvency problem for the coming wave of Baby Boom retirees.

IN MEMORY OF JUSTICE EARL STOVER

HON. JIM TURNER
OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in memory of Justice Earl Stover, a pillar in the community of Silsbee, Texas, whose passing last month shook so many of us who have been touched by his passion for life and his compassion for his fellow Texans.

As a college football player, Earl Stover became known as “Smokey” Stover—and the name stuck. Smokey’s life touched every corner of his community in Silsbee.

If you ask former Silsbee School District Superintendent Herbert Muckleroy what he thought of Smokey, he’ll tell you about Justice Stover’s work ethic. “He believed in loyalty. He set goals and accomplished them.”

And Chief Justice Ronald Walker, who served with Smokey Stover on the Ninth Court of Appeals, will tell you about Smokey’s sharp legal mind: “Many of his opinions are now recorded for the posterity and benefit of this state’s jurisprudence.”

Justice Stover served his community as president of the Silsbee Chamber of Commerce, president of the Silsbee Kiwanis Club, as a trustee of the Silsbee School District, as a strong supporter of the Silsbee Doctors Hospital, and as an active member of his church.

His contributions to the Texas legal community were equally memorable. Justice Stover served as the Hardin County Attorney, as presiding judge of the 88th Judicial District Court for nine years, and as a Justice on the Ninth Court of Appeals for seven years.

Along with his other friends, my life was enriched by knowing Smokey. He always brought a smile to your face and he always offered an encouraging word. He understood the important role government could play in the lives of ordinary people. Justice Stover was firmly committed to the proposition that in the courtroom before the bar of justice, the powerful and the powerless stood as equals. He knew that in the halls of Congress and the Supreme Court, the democratic process can guarantee every citizen an equal opportunity to share in the American dream.

Smokey always reminded me to “watch out for your Social Security.” I knew he didn’t just mean for him, but for every American who deserves to live their latter years with independence and dignity.

On December 9, 2000, Smokey Stover’s battle with cancer took his life, leaving a void in our community that cannot be replaced. The words of his Silsbee neighbor Mitch Hickman best expressed the admiration we all held for Justice Stover.

“You could go home and dust off your Bible, read it cover to cover, and not find enough good words to say about Smokey Stover.”
HON. JAMES A. TRAFICANT, JR.
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001
Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, today I want to congratulate the Canfield High School Girls Basketball Team and Coach Patrick Paviansky on their incredible season. The Lady Cardinals finished with a 21–7 record en route to a second place finish in the Division 11 State Championship.

I would like to extend my congratulations to the members of the Canfield Girls Basketball Team: Nicole Vlajkovich, Harmony Ramunno, Tee Lisotto, Kelly Williams, Jenny Miller, Erin Fening, Jessica Gifford, Erin Martin, Jill Vertanen, Julie Playforth, Kera Yelkin, Coach Corey Hoffman, Kera Yelkin, Coach Patrick Paviansky, Principal Abby Baron, and the students of Canfield High School as they celebrate this memorable season.

HONORING GEORGE E. CODY
OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001
Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor George E. Cody for his commitment to the Franklin Fire Department in Massachusetts.

George E. Cody began his career with the Franklin Fire Department on November 1, 1966. On November 4, 1983, he was added to the Franklin Fire Department on November 1, 1966. On November 4, 1983, he was added to the Franklin Fire Department

The Honorable JAMES E. CLYBURN
OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001
Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Mr. Jerry Cleveland Whitmire who passed away on December 19, 2000. Mr. Whitmire was a loyal servant of his community and of his country as an infantry officer in Korea and Vietnam.

By Reverend Charles M. Blackmon gives the most appropriate praise to this wonderful South Carolinian. Mr. Speaker, I ask you to join me today in honoring Mr. Whitmire.

EULOGY FOR JERRY CLEVELAND WHITMIRE
DECEMBER 19, 2000
We are gathered, this afternoon, for a soldier’s funeral. On his last journey in this world, Jerry Cleveland Whitmire—‘‘Trig- ger’’—will be draped in the flag of the United States of America, the flag for which he fought. And he will be escorted at each step by an Honor Guard, fellow soldiers of the United States Army.

Ladies and gentlemen, I have presided at more military funerals than I can possibly count. I am always impressed by the dignity and precision of the Honor Guard. I am also impressed by something else: These superbly trained soldiers are here for a specific purpose. They are here to remind us that it is not only family and friends who have come here to say farewell to Jerry. A grateful nation has also come here to say farewell.

We are gathered here today to honor a fellow South Carolinian. We are gathered here today to honor Jerry Whitmire. We are gathered here today to honor Mr. Whitmire.

It’s ironic. Jerry was a soldier who knew war intimately. But if the world did a better job of practicing those virtues that Jerry lived by, there would be no need for soldiers because there would be no war.

His brothers, James and Charles, will always remember him as an alter boy at Christ Episcopal in Greenville. Countless times they watched their baby brother, carrying the tall silver cross down the center aisle. Jerry was—to the core—a Christian man. If he had one role model from the Gospel, it surely must have been the Good Samaritan. When it came to helping people and animals in need, Jerry knew no boundaries.

In conclusion, I wish to emphasize that Jerry Cleveland Whitmire was a soldier—he volunteered for a second combat tour in Vietnam.

Mr. Speaker, I ask you to join me today in honoring Mr. Whitmire.
many occasions, Jerry followed that command almost without fail. He was constantly giving his time and money to other people. He was quick to forgive debts.

This same generosity applied to the dogs, cats, and chickens. It was the good fortune to have him as their master. For several decades, now, Jerry has spent more money on hay and upkeep for his cows than he ever made by selling them at market. Truth is, Jerry never owned the cows—the cows owned him. And that was just fine with him.

The result of this lifetime of generosity and giving is that Jerry did not die a rich man. Money was not what drove him. Jerry understood that we make a living by what we make, but we make a life by what we give. He was forever giving: himself, his labor, his money. As a result he takes to the grave the only wealth that really matters: the wealth of a life well lived... the wealth of our respect and admiration and love.

Of course, for Jerry, his greatest wealth was his family, especially Tweetie, his beloved wife and partner of nearly a half century. Yes, he reserved the sweetest love for his daughters Laura and Marguerite. And yes, he loved his grandchildren. But truth be told, in his last years, he had a very, very special place in his heart for the youngest: his great-grandson Daniel.

And as Danny grows up to be a teenager and then a man, he will have the enormous privilege to learn more about Trigger, the great-grandfather he loves so much. Daniel will do well to live by his great-grandfather’s example.

There is an old expression: Sometimes life is not as simple as it seems—it is even simpler. To capture the essence of Jerry’s life, I once again go back to his great-grandfather, Jeremiah. Jeremiah is buried at Ebenezer Baptist church not far from the Greenville farm. And on the gravestone, his epitaph is exactly eight words long. It says: “Confederate Soldier, Christian Citizen, Faithful to Every Trust.”

With this necessary amendment, those same words can now sum up Jerry Cleveland Whitmire’s life: American soldier, Christian citizen, faithful to every trust.

We will remember him with love. May he rest in peace.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS ANNUAL HONOREES

HON. ROBERT MENENDEZ
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Police Officer Edward Ryan, Firefighter Brian O’Sullivan, and EMT Lt. Raymond Branagan, all of whom will be honored by the Knights of Columbus on March 31, 2001.

For the past eight years, The Fourth Degree Assembly 675 Knights of Columbus of Bayonne, New Jersey has honored officers from the city’s three branches of service. The award honors both individuals who go above and beyond the call of duty and the departments that employ these brave men and women.

Police Officer Edward Ryan is being honored for evacuating the occupants of two burning buildings. On January 22, 2000, Officer Ryan was dispatched to a call regarding a fire at 86 W. 16th Street. Upon arrival, Officer Ryan found the building engulfed in flames with the fire spreading to the adjoining residence. Despite a rapidly spreading fire and severe smoke conditions, Officer Ryan heroically evacuated all residents from both buildings, allowing the fire department to immediately concentrate on fighting the fire rather than on performing a search for trapped residents.

Firefighter Brian O’Sullivan is being honored for recently saving a life. He is a member of Bayonne’s Engine Company 6. In December 2000, Engine Company 6 was dispatched to Marist High School in response to a call about an unconscious female. Upon arrival, Firefighter O’Sullivan recognized that she was not breathing, so he used an automatic external defibrillator and a bag valve mask to save her life. Brian O’Sullivan is being honored for his firefighting efforts in 1999, and was a member of the first class trained as both a firefighter and an EMT.

Lieutenant Raymond Branagan is an EMT, and is being honored for his administrative and instructional work with McCabe Ambulance. He is currently the lead instructor and administrative assistant to the Director of the McCabe Institute of Emergency Preparedness. Lt. Branagan is in charge of arranging courses on CPR for the American Heart Association, on First Aid for the National Safety Council, and on OSHA/PEOSHA blood and airborne pathogens for the New Jersey Department of Labor, its Fire and Police Departments, the Bayonne Board of Education, and Bayonne Head Start.

Today, I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing Officer Ryan, Firefighter O’Sullivan, and Lt. Branagan for their courageous contributions to their community.

In 1986, Dr. George Hudock Jr. was appointed coroner following the death of the previous coroner, and his first act was to appoint Joe as his chief deputy. At that point, Joe had already served as a deputy coroner for six years and had been assisting Dr. Hudock with autopsies for three years. In Joe’s 32 years as chief deputy coroner, he has assisted in more than 2,800 autopsies.

While Joe’s memberships and affiliations are too numerous to list them in full, a few examples will serve to show his long history of community involvement. He is a member of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Kingston and has served on its council for several years, in addition to having served in the choir. He is a member and past president of the Rotary Club of Wyoming and a Paul Harris Fellow, a member and past president of the Wyoming Business Club, a life member of Wyoming Hose Company No. 1, and a member of VFW Post 396 in Wyoming, Irem Temple in Wilkes-Barre and Mountain Grange 567 in Carverton.

Joe and his wife, the former Janice Ludwig, were married in 1962. They have two children and three grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to call to the attention of the House of Representatives the long history of Joe Shaver’s service to the community, and I wish him and his wife the best in his retirement.

2001 WOMEN’S HISTORY MONTH

HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON
OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, during the month of March 2001 we celebrate Women’s National History Month. This year’s theme is “Celebrating Women of Courage and Vision.” All across this country, Americans are promoting community, school and workplace celebrations honoring women’s accomplishments, contributions, courage and vision.

In the Nation’s Capital, the District of Columbia Commission for Women will participate in the national observance of Women’s History Month to recognize the courage and vision exhibited by women of the District of Columbia.

Mr. Speaker, women of every race, creed, color and economic background have contributed to the growth and strength of our community. For more than three decades, programs of the District of Columbia Commission for Women have provided all our citizens with opportunities to bring attention to the creative, civic and professional accomplishments of women.

This year as part of its Women’s History Month observance, the District of Columbia Commission for Women will establish a scholarsip at the University of the District of Columbia to support women in pursuit of their academic and career endeavors.

Mr. Speaker, I urge you and all our colleagues to join me in commending the District of Columbia Commission for Women and its members for their dedication, courage and vision.
IN RECOGNITION OF ERNEST PEPPELS AND HIS SERVICE TO THE U.S. TOBACCO INDUSTRY

HON. SAXBY CHAMBLISS OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take a moment to recognize an individual, Ernest Pepples, for his significant efforts on behalf of a valuable yet ever more challenged industry. Ernie has had a distinguished and honorable career within the global and U.S. tobacco industry and deserves the recognition of Congress at the time of his retirement.

Mr. Ernest Pepples joined Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation in 1972 and was appointed vice president and general counsel and became a member of the company’s board of directors in 1975. He was named senior vice president in 1980. At the time of his retirement, he was responsible for the company’s legislative representation and government affairs efforts including its relations with Congress.

Prior to joining Brown & Williamson, he was partner in the Louisville, Kentucky, law firm of Wyatt, Tarrant & Combs. A native of Louisville, Mr. Pepples is a graduate of Yale University and the University of Virginia Law School. He also is a member of the American, Kentucky, and Louisville Bar Associations.

Throughout his career, Ernie has served in leadership positions for a variety of boards and councils including the board of directors of the Tobacco Merchants Association of Prince ton, New Jersey, and the Kentucky Tobacco Research Board of Lexington, Kentucky.

Now, in recognition of his retirement from Brown & Williamson and the tobacco industry after 30 years of service, I believe he should be duly recognized by this body for his integrity and personal efforts to find common ground on many difficult issues. Indeed, Ernie developed a reputation as a leading expert on regulatory and business issues involving not only tobacco manufacturers but also tobacco growers, suppliers, consumers, wholesalers and retailers. My district in Georgia has been a direct beneficiary of Ernie’s talent.

It is with this background that I say thank you Ernie for his dedication and service over the years and congratulate him on an outstanding career. He has worked hard for his home state of Kentucky, Georgia and the entire tobacco community within our country. Those of us who have been privileged to work with Ernie will miss his hard work, honesty, and dedication. We will also miss his great smile.

Congratulations Ernie on an outstanding career and best wishes to you and your family upon retirement.

HON. OSCAR FELDENKREIS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. QUINN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to thank the greatest goateender of all time, Dominik Hasek, for his most generous gift to the city of Buffalo, NY. Yesterday, the Dominator provided $1 million—the largest single donation ever by a Buffalo athlete—to establish his own charitable foundation, called Hasek’s Heroes. The money will be used to create a hockey and skating program for underprivileged Buffalo youth.

The program, to go into effect in September, will be overseen by a board of directors and operated by the Community Foundation Office for Greater Buffalo. The program will include a hockey and skating program for underprivileged Buffalo youth.

The plan is to expand the program to those 18 and younger and establish teams that will play a competitive schedule throughout the region.

In closing, I want to once again thank the Dominator for becoming a Donator, and as a loyal Sabres fan I look forward to watching him shutdown the rest of the Eastern Conference in the upcoming NHL playoffs.

A TRIBUTE TO PHILIP COYLE,
PENTAGON TESTING CHIEF

HON. JERRY LEWIS
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I would like today to pay tribute to Mr. Philip E. Coyle III, who recently left government service after six years as Director of Operational Test and Evaluation in the Department of Defense. Since he was confirmed in 1994, Mr. Coyle provided the leadership that sought to ensure that our men and women in uniform can feel confident in their safety while using the increasingly complex and deadly weapons systems being developed for the 21st Century.

Before leaving the Pentagon in 1994, Mr. Coyle spent 33 years in service at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory in California, where he was involved in the nuclear weapons testing program. From 1981 to 1984, he was named Associate Director for Test, and from 1987–93 he served as Laboratory Associate Director and Deputy to the Laboratory Director. He was also Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary for Defense Programs in the Department of Energy under President Carter.

Since taking over the chief tester job, Mr. Coyle made a reputation for being pragmatic, balanced, knowledgeable, and candid. He has been called upon to effectively test jet fighters that can turn tighter, fly faster and be more stealthy than anything produced by this nation in the past. He has worked with the designers of our National Missile Defense program to devise tests that can gauge the success rate of a system that is often referred to as “hitting a bullet with a bullet.” And he has helped ensure that a myriad of other planes, ships and land vehicles operate as effectively and safely as possible, both during training and in actual engagements.

The American military is the most advanced, strongest and best trained in history. Our soldiers, sailors, Marines and pilots are always ready to put their lives on the line to defend our nation and to protect freedom around the world. Their dedication and professionalism is respected and emulated by friend and foe alike. To a very great degree, their confidence in taking up the cause of freedom is based on their faith in the equipment we have provided them. And that faith is based on the knowledge that Mr. Coyle and his testers have done everything in their power to ensure that this equipment will respond when it is most needed.

Mr. Speaker, Philip Coyle has been named the recipient of the “Beyond the Headlines” award by the Project on Government Oversight public interest group, honoring his years of public service behind the scenes. His dedication to the safety and success of those who defend our nation surely makes him deserving of such an award. I ask my colleagues to join me in similarly recognizing him as a valuable public servant, and wish him well in his future endeavors.

BUCKEYES
HON. DEBORAH PRYCE
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Ohio State University Women’s Basketball program, which on Wednesday night concluded in dramatic fashion its 2001 season by winning the Women’s National Invitation Tournament.
The Buckeyes have displayed extraordinary mettle and determination throughout the course of their season, overcoming incredible odds just to reach the post-season. A string of injuries, including the loss of last season's Big Ten Freshman of the Year LaToya Turner, would cause most teams to fold their tents. With a depleted roster, the Buckeyes were forced mid-season to recruit a soccer goalie and a volleyball player just to field enough players to practice.

However, last night in Albuquerque, in front of the largest—and perhaps most hostile—crowd in WNIC history, the Buckeyes indomitable spirit prevailed. Ohio State came back from a twelve-point deficit to capture the WNIT crown, as well as the hearts and imaginations of Buckeye fans nationwide.

While it is important to recognize the achievement of Coach Beth Burns, and the performances of Tournament MVP Jamie Lewis and All-Tournament Selection Courtney Coleman, the Buckeye’s victory is best viewed as a celebration of teamwork and camaraderie, and reminds us all of the purity inherent in college athletic competition.

Again, congratulations to the Ohio State Women’s Basketball team, and thank you for your inspiring and extraordinary season.

TRIBUTE TO OFFICER TERRY FOSTER
HON. KAREN McCARTHY OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Ms. McCARTHY of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to mourn the loss of a dedicated police officer, loving husband, father and hero to our community. Only three weeks away from retirement with the Independence, Missouri Police Department, Police Officer Terry Foster gave his life on March 18 while in the line of duty.

Officer Foster was a life long resident of the Greater Kansas City Area and a 32 year veteran of the Independence Police Department. Officer Foster began his service to the Department in 1968, and worked his way up through the ranks to become a detective. Ten years ago he decided he would return to patrol duty, where he felt the community needed him the most. Terry Foster is best remembered by his peers as a person people who always took time to listen. His fellow officers describe him as a genuinely nice guy whose strong work ethic and friendly smile made him a mentor to many of the department’s younger officers.

“He was a man that did his job well,” said Independence Detective Carl Perry, “He’s going to be sorely missed.”

Terry Foster is the fifth Independence police officer and the first since 1966 to lose his life in the line of duty. This past Thursday, March 22, family, friends, and police officers from across the nation and my community came together to recognize the valor and courage of Officer Terry Foster, and lay his body to rest.

“The hundreds of officers who attended the funeral did so out of respect for a man who hon- ored their profession,” said Sidney Whitfield of the Jackson County Sheriff’s Department. For the first time in 25 years, the Independence Police Department posthumously awarded Officer Terry Foster the department’s medal of valor, which is the highest honor the department can bestow upon an officer.

In the days following this tragic event, our community and the national law enforcement community joined together to mourn the loss of this outstanding man. Officer Terry Foster sacrificed his life for the greater good. Independence Mayor Ron Stewart, a former Independence police officer, described Terry Foster as an officer on the front lines of public service. “As police officers we are charged with providing that first line of defense. He laid his life on the line for his fellow man,” said Mayor Stewart. The commitment of Officer Foster leaves a lasting legacy that will further our genuine appreciation and deep gratitude to those who have dedicated their lives to protect and serve. Terry Foster’s service to our community has made a difference in our lives. May we learn from his tragic death that every day police officers and firefighters risk their lives, and their families may sacrifice a loved one for the safety of all of us. Mr. Speaker, I ask the House to join me in saluting this heroic man and extending our condolences and gratitude to his wife Debbie, son, Christopher, daughter, Lori, step-son, Bryan, father, Albert, his beloved dog, Cassie Earlene, and the Independence Police Department.

TRIBUTE TO ROY F. NARD
HON. JAMES A. TRAFICANT, JR.
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, today, I am deeply saddened to share the news of the passing of Roy F. Nard.

Roy F. Nard was born on May 28, 1923 to James A. and Mary E. Parrish Nard. Besides his wife, formerly Virginia A. Smith, whom he married in 1948, he is survived by two sons, Roy F. Jr. and Kenneth S.; a daughter, Bar- bara Sepesy; and five grandchildren. Mr. Nard’s two brothers, Michael and James, are deceased.

Roy worked for 35 years as a roll turner for Youngstown Sheet & Tube and LTV Steel prior to his retirement in 1979. Not only was he a contributing member of the Youngstown community, but also a loyal servant to his country. A veteran of World War II, he served in the elite Ranger Division and fought for our nation’s freedom.

He had a tremendous love for America’s pastime, baseball. He devoted much of his time to coaching and managing teams in the Kiwanis Little League and Youngstown Pony League. A man with vision, Roy co-founded the Youngstown Babe Ruth Baseball League. In addition to this accomplishment, he was a member of Ohio Football High School Officials Association for 22 years.

His passion for sports drove him to volun- teer as an assistant baseball coach and equipment manager for the football team at Card- inal Mooney for 16 years. His remarkable contributions to the school’s athletic programs were rewarded in 1996 with his induction into the Cardinal Mooney Hall of Fame.

The lives of many were enriched by Mr. Nard’s life. He always took the time to make people feel extra special with a kind word or a warm smile. He was a wonderful friend and all who knew him looked up to him. Roy F. Nard will be sorely missed by the Youngstown community. I extend my deepest sympathy to his family.

HONORING KENNETH CARPENTER
HON. PETER DEUTSCH
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. DEUTSCH. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor the lifetime achievements of one of Florida’s most active nature enthusiasts. Kenneth Car- penter, a retired Air Force lieutenant colonel and businessman, died Monday, February 5, 2001 at his home in Oakland Park at the age of 88. Mr. Carpenter was a lifelong outdoors- man and devoted countless hours to devel- oping a 65 mile section of the Florida National Scenic Trail. He will be dearly missed by his community.

Mr. Carpenter was born on September 14, 1912 in Synder, Illinois and married Thelma Danner on September 11, 1935. He graduated from the University of Illinois in 1936 with a degree in education and then obtained his master’s of arts degree from Ohio State Uni- versity in 1937. He was a dedicated teacher whose career was interrupted twice so he could serve his country in World War II and the Korean War.

After retiring from the armed forces in 1961, Mr. Carpenter moved to Ft. Lauderdale and opened an auto supply store and later became a residential realtor. However, he gave up all of his business affairs to devote the rest of his life to canoeing and hiking the Florida and Appalachian Trails, a feat he accomplished at 78. Mr. Carpenter was a trail coordinator for the Broward County chapter of the Florida Trail Association and even during his struggle with cancer continued to make plans and attend meetings concerning the Florida Trail. Further treks have lead him to Peru, Colorado, Min- nesota, Utah, and the Yukon. Mr. Speaker, Broward County will be forever grateful for the trails blazed by Mr. Carpenter, and will dearly miss his community leadership.

INTRODUCTION OF H.R. 1289: THE REGISTERED NURSES AND PATIENTS PROTECTION ACT
HON. TOM LANTOS
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, today with my distinguished colleagues, JAMES MCGOVERN of Massachusetts and HILDA SOLIS of California, I introduced H.R. 1289—legislation that would restrict the ability of hospitals, including hos- pitals operated by the Veterans’ Administra- tion, to require registered nurses to work mand- atory overtime hours as a normal course of business. Increasingly, hospitals and other employers in the health care field are requiring their employees to work overtime. Our legislation—the Registered Nurses and Patients Protection Act—would stop that unsafe and exploitative practice.

The Fair Labor Standards Act grants nurses the right to receive overtime compensation even though they are licensed professionals, but it does not limit the amount of overtime that nurses can work, nor does it permit them to refuse mandatory overtime. Our legislation would change that inequity. Under our bill, mandatory overtime for licensed health care employees (excluding physicians) would be prohibited. The bill amends the Fair Labor Standards Act to prohibit mandatory overtime beyond 8 hours in a single work day or 80 hours in any 14 day work period. The legislation provides an exception in cases of a natural disaster or a declaration of emergency by federal, state, or local government officials. Voluntary overtime is also exempted.

Mr. Speaker, no employer should be allowed to force an employee to work overtime or face termination, unless there is a situation that requires immediate emergency action. In other cases, employees should have the right to refuse overtime. If workers are physically and psychologically able to work additional hours, that should be their choice; it should not be the decision of a supervisor or hospital administrator.

In the health care field, the issue is not just employees’ rights. More importantly, it is an issue of patient safety. When nurses are forced to put in long overtime hours on a regular basis against their own better judgment, it puts patients at risk. A nurse should not be on the job after the 15th or 16th consecutive hour, especially after he or she has told a supervisor “I can’t do this, I’ve been on the job too many hours today.”

Mr. Speaker, nursing is a physically and mentally demanding occupation. By the end of a regular shift, nurses are exhausted. Health care experts and common sense tell us that long hours take a toll on mental alertness, and mandatory overtime under such conditions can result in inadvertent and unintentional medical mistakes—medication errors, transcription errors, and judgment errors. When a nurse is tired, it is much more difficult to deliver quality, professional care to patients. Increasingly, however, nurses are being forced to work 16, 18, or even 20 consecutive hours in hospitals all across our nation.

Studies have shown that when a worker (especially a health care worker) exceeds 12 hours of work, and is fatigued, the likelihood that he or she will make an error increases. A report of the Institute of Medicine on medication errors substantiates these common sense assumptions. The report states that safe staffing and limits on mandatory overtime are essential components to prevent medication errors.

An investigative report by The Chicago Tribune found that patient safety was sacrificed when reductions in hospital staff resulted in registered nurses working long overtime hours because they were more likely to make serious medical errors. The report found that nursing services were deliberately cut in order to preserve historic profit levels.

Mr. Speaker, I am delighted to report that this legislation has broad support from the individuals most involved in this matter and the associations and organizations that represent them. These include the American Nurses Association (ANA), the California Nurses Association (CNA), Service Employees International Union (SEIU), American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), the Black Nurses Association and others. It is also supported by the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE), which represents nurses and health care workers at our nation’s veterans’ hospitals.

Mr. Speaker, we need to give nurses more power to decide when overtime hours hurt their job performance. A nurse knows better than anyone—better than his or her supervisor and certainly better than a profit-driven hospital administrator—when he or she is so exhausted that continued work could jeopardize the safety of patients. You don’t have to be a brain surgeon to know that forcing nurses to work 12 or 16 hours at a time is a prescription for bad health care.

Mr. Speaker, we cannot continue to allow hospitals to force nurses to work so many hours that the health and safety of patients are put at risk. I urge my colleagues to join me as a cosponsor and support the Registered Nurses’ and Patient’s Protection Act.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE BRUCE F. VENTO

HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM
OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, March 29, 2001

Ms. McCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I submit to the RECORD my tribute to a wonderful man; an outstanding Member of this body for 24 years; my Congressman, my teacher, my mentor, and my dear friend—the late Bruce F. Vento.

Because of the good work that he did, the working families of Minnesota—of America—are stronger. Our land and our lakes, our rivers and our streams are cleaner; our air is better. He gave us, our children, and future generations the Boundary Waters Canoe Area, and the Minnesota National Wildlife Refuge—thousands and thousands of acres of pristine environment that will fill our lives with weekends where the only sounds we hear will be the sounds of the canoe paddle dipping, the winds wafting, and the birds singing.

Bruce Vento gave a break to those without one; a shelter for those without a home, at a time when it was not the popular thing to do so—homeless people, after all, rarely vote. But because of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act, families down on their luck, are given a second chance.

Bruce welcomed and worked tenaciously to bring our newest neighbors fully into our community—the Lao-Hmong. Because he did so, St. Paul and our State is a richer, more tolerant, and more prosperous community.

Bruce Vento has the very embodiment of public service: a civic lesson personified. Each day he rose without fanfare, “to make people’s lives better, to provide opportunity—to give them hope.”
guiding me with his compassion, his wisdom and his strength. Forever teaching. Thank you, Bruce.

I submit to you, Mr. Speaker, four items that capture the essence of Congressman Bruce F. Vento: a man who represented all of us from the Eastside of life who believe that hard work, family values, educational opportunity, and a commitment to a greater community are the keys to a happy and successful life.

From the Saint Paul Pioneer Press, June 30, 2000

BRUCE VENTO: JUST ANOTHER GUY FROM THE EAST SIDE WHO WENT ON TO DO GREAT THINGS

(By Garrison Kello)

There was a dinner in Washington, D.C. Tuesday night to honor a guy from St. Paul's East Side.

The president dropped by and dozens of U.S. representatives, Republicans and Democrats. And at the end, when the guy from the East Side stood up to say his piece, he got a long, long standing ovation. You could have gone around the room and stolen everyone's dessert, they were so busy applauding him.

U.S. Rep. Bruce Vento, a modest man and a hard worker, is stepping down after 24 years representing the 4th Congressional District, and I must admit I voted for him all these years because I'm a yellow-dog Democrat and he's a Democrat. So now I'm a little taken back to see what a good man he is who I unwittingly supported all these years.

This isn't how our civics teachers taught us to evaluate the franchise, the 4th person doesn't have oceans of time to study up on candidates. I sure don't. I heard Mr. Vento speak once years ago, speak very movingly about the problem of homelessness and about the importance of wilderness, and that was good enough for me. But if he had stood on his hind legs and barked, I still would have voted for him.

Wilderness preservation and the plight of the homeless are not issues that pay a big political dividend. Working to vindicate and to advocate you're going to be hung in effigy and yelled at by large men in plaid shirts. Homeless people tend not to turn out in droves, and yelling and wilderness and dealing with the homeless.

I sat in the back at Mr. Vento's dinner and thought what a shock it is when you realize that the two of them in the hands of people your own age. You go along for years thinking it's being run by jowly old guys in baggy suits and then you see that the jowly old guys are actually you.

Mr. Vento is about my age, and I feel for him. He's fighting lung cancer and it has taken its toll on him. He looks haggard but game. His three boys were at the dinner in Washington, and their wives, and the event felt like a real valedictory. If Mr. Vento had wanted to make us all cry into our pudding, it wouldn't have taken much.

But he was upbeat and talking about the future and about national parks and the decoding of the human genome and saying, "All we need to do is take this new knowledge and apply it to public policy," and thanking everybody and grinning, and you had to admire him for his command of the art of lawmaking in such arcane specialties as banking reform, he remained deeply committed to the kind of public service that is the special sauce that gives us our democracy.

A man who is desperately ill and on his way out of public life stages a dinner that raises money for a scholarship fund for college students who intend to be lawyers. Vento served hoped to express respect and gratitude. That respect will live on through the scholarships and the memory of a Substantial Man. He was given to dark business whimsy that accompanied Vento the Congressman. He was given to dark business enthusiasm for bicycling.

He accepted the affection with grace and dignity, while never losing the trace of the whiteness that accompanied Vento the Substantial Man. He was given to dark business suits lightened by ties that said not all of life is serious. During the height of the summer, for instance, the congressman appeared at the Minneapolis AFL-CIO Convention wearing a Snooky tie.

Vento's public career began as a teacher, extended into service in the Minnesota Legislature and then nearly 24 years in Congress.

Although Vento was a technical master of the art of lawmaking in such arcane specialties as banking reform, he remained deeply committed to the kind of public service that is the special sauce that gives us our democracy. He was given to dark business headlines about the natural world. Vento's last major legislative accomplishment was the special congressional designation of acres of public land—ranging from the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness to the Minnesota National Wildlife Refuge—and the enactment of more than 300 laws pre- serving the environment.

He served as chair of the House Task Force on the savings and loan crisis of the 1980s. Vento was a champion for programs to shelter the homeless, for human stewardship in the natural world, Vento's last major legislative accomplishment was the special congressional designation of acres of public land—ranging from the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness to the Minnesota National Wildlife Refuge—and the enactment of more than 300 laws pre- serving the environment.

When Vento announced in February that he was ill with mesothelioma, the bread he had cast on the waters started coming back.

The cards and prayers, the honors and affection, Vento said, were at first surprising and overwhelming. From personal cards, much like his simple Christmas greetings, to the renaming of East Consolidated as Bruce F. Vento Elementary School, the community Vento served hoped to express respect and gratitude. That respect will live on through the scholarships and the memory of a Substantial Man. He was given to dark business suits lightened by ties that said not all of life is serious. During the height of the summer, for instance, the congressman appeared at the Minneapolis AFL-CIO Convention wearing a Snooky tie.

Vento's public career began as a teacher, extended into service in the Minnesota Legislature and then nearly 24 years in Congress.

Although Vento was a technical master of the art of lawmaking in such arcane specialties as banking reform, he remained deeply committed to the kind of public service that is the special sauce that gives us our democracy. He was given to dark business headlines about the natural world. Vento's last major legislative accomplishment was the special congressional designation of acres of public land—ranging from the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness to the Minnesota National Wildlife Refuge—and the enactment of more than 300 laws pre- serving the environment.

He served as chair of the House Task Force on the savings and loan crisis of the 1980s. Vento was a champion for programs to shelter the homeless, for human stewardship in the natural world, Vento's last major legislative accomplishment was the special congressional designation of acres of public land—ranging from the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness to the Minnesota National Wildlife Refuge—and the enactment of more than 300 laws pre- serving the environment.
EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

THOUGH IT MAY WELL SURVIVE THE LATEST CORRUPTION SCANDAL, THE AUTHORITY OF THE LEADING PARTY IN THE GOVERNMENT IS BADLY DENTED

Fatalism is ever present in India, and the government in Delhi seems to be hoping that a popular belief in the inevitability of corruption will help it survive the biggest scandal of recent times. That hope seems well founded. But whether the government will regain the authority it needs to pursue its two main initiatives—economic reform and peace in Kashmir—is much more doubtful.

The uproar over the release of videotapes last week showing top politicians and officials being paid bribes from two internet news reporters posting as arms dealers has reached a noisy impasse. The defence minister, George Fernandes, has resigned, though he remains “covener” of the 18-party ruling National Democratic Alliance. The NDA has lost one member, the Trinamul Congress Minister, has been forced to resign after they were caught taking bribes from two internet news reporters posing as arms dealers in regard to a fake defense contract. The opposition is calling for the government to resign.

The resignation of Mr. Fernandes is no loss for friends of democracy. Mr. Fernandes is the man who led a meeting in 1999 with the ambassadors from China, Cuba, Russia, Libya, Serbia, and Iraq aimed at putting together a security alliance “to stop the U.S.” This meeting was reported in the May 18, 1999 issue of the Indian Express.

Those of us who have been following Indian and South Asian issues are not surprised. The Indian Government has demonstrated many times before how deeply it is infected with corruption. In India, people have come up with a new word for bribery. They call it “fee for service.” It has become necessary to pay a fee to get government workers of any kind to deliver the services that they are mandated to provide. In November 1994, the newspaper "Hindustan" reported that the Indian government paid Surendra Nath, the late governor of Punjab, Khalistan, and Nagalim. Let us take this step to free the people of the subcontinent from corruption and brutality.

Mr. Speaker, I insert into the RECORD an article from the current issue of The Economist about the latest Indian Government bribery scandal. I commend it to all my congressional colleagues who care about spending our foreign aid dollars wisely.

[From The Economist, Mar. 24, 2001]

INDIA’S CORRUPTION BLUES

Mr. Burton of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, the world has been shocked by the recent news stories about a corruption scandal that has engulfed the Indian government. Already, the president of the ruling BJP and the Defense Minister have been forced to resign after they were caught taking bribes from two internet news reporters posing as arms dealers in regard to a fake defense contract. The opposition is calling for the government to resign.

The resignation of Mr. Fernandes is no loss for friends of democracy. Mr. Fernandes is the man who led a meeting in 1999 with the ambassadors from China, Cuba, Russia, Libya, Serbia, and Iraq aimed at putting together a security alliance “to stop the U.S.” This meeting was reported in the May 18, 1999 issue of the Indian Express.

Those of us who have been following Indian and South Asian issues are not surprised. The Indian Government has demonstrated many times before how deeply it is infected with corruption. In India, people have come up with a new word for bribery. They call it “fee for service.” It has become necessary to pay a fee to get government workers of any kind to deliver the services that they are mandated to provide. In November 1994, the newspaper “Hindustan” reported that the Indian government paid Surendra Nath, the late governor of Punjab, Khalistan, and Nagalim. Let us take this step to free the people of the subcontinent from corruption and brutality.

Mr. Speaker, I insert into the RECORD an article from the current issue of The Economist about the latest Indian Government bribery scandal. I commend it to all my congressional colleagues who care about spending our foreign aid dollars wisely.

[From The Economist, Mar. 24, 2001]
with the reforms announced along with the budg-

The real import of the tapes is the evi-

ded: "The Arkansas Country Doctor Museum

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate March 30, Doctor's

On this day when we remember the impor-

Additional "Lessons for the New Millen-

The problem becomes, says N. Vittal, the May 14, 1999, a memorable mil-

On Friday, May 14, 1999, a memorable mil-

Dr. Anthony DePalma's article "Y2K: A Legacy

COMMEMORATING DOCTOR'S DAY AND THE IMPORTANCE OF COUNTRY DOCTORS

HON. ASA HUTCHINSON OF ARKANSAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 29, 2001

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate March 30, Doctor's Day, and the essential role that the medical profession plays in our country. Although we Vajpayee's immediate concern is the

The departure of Mr. Mishra and Mr. Singh

VerDate Aug 04 2004 10:53 Feb 16, 2005 Jkt 089102 PO 00000 Frm 00017 Fmt 0689 Sfmt 0634 E:\BR01\E29MR1.000 E29MR1
EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET, FISCAL YEAR 2002

March 29, 2001

SPEECH OF

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 29, 2001

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 83) establishing the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2002, revising the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2001, and setting forth appropriate budgetary levels for each of fiscal years 2003 through 2006.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of H. Con. Res. 83, the budget resolution for fiscal year 2002. I urge my colleagues to join in its adoption.

Our Nation now stands at a historic crossroads. After two decades of growing deficits and rising debt, the Congressional Budget Office has now projected steady growing surpluses for at least the next decade. The fiscal discipline enforced by the Republican Congresses since 1995 has now borne fruit.

The primary challenge now facing Congress is preventing a return to the days of deficit spending and rising debt. The FY 02 budget resolution accomplishes this and sets high but reachable goals in the areas of debt repayment and tax reduction.

In terms of debt reduction, this resolution provides for the unprecedented amount of $2.3 trillion over the next ten years, representing the maximum amount that can be retired without incurring penalties. The retirement of this substantial amount of debt will result in lower interest payment each year over the coming decade. The interest savings can then be redirected towards pressing needs or used to reduce the national debt. The retirement of public debt will also lead to lower interest rates as it becomes “cheaper” for the Government to borrow money.

The resolution also provides for some much needed tax relief for American families. It allows taxpayers to keep roughly one-fourth of projected budget surpluses over the next ten years (28.9 percent of $5.61 trillion) through lower tax bills for all taxpayers.

Overall, taxpayers will keep at least $1.62 trillion of their earnings over the next ten years. This will be achieved primarily through four separate pieces of legislation each accomplishing the following: retroactive marginal rate reductions, doubling the child tax credit, providing relief from the marriage penalty, and eliminating the death tax.

In terms of funding requirements, the resolution provides for many Government programs that have critical underfunded needs. Education, Medicare, Social Security, defense, and veterans. For example, it provides a 4 percent (over $5.7 billion) increase in defense spending to increase military pay, improve troop housing, and extend additional health benefits to military retirees.

The budget provides a historic 12 percent increase in veterans spending for FY 2002 to address the underfunded needs, especially in.... the field of veterans health care, of those who served our Nation. This is a refreshing change from the veterans budgets of years past, which were often flat-lined or contained only minimal increases.

The budget contains new spending authority of $153 billion for Medicare modernization, including the addition of a prescription drug benefit, and provides a reserve fund if additional Medicare modernization funds are needed. The Medicare program is in need of a major overhaul, both to reign in overall costs, and bring its benefits package more in line with 21st century health care. This budget resolution starts that process.

I am encouraged to see that this budget includes significant increases for the Department of Education, specifically, an increase for program spending of 11.5 percent for FY 2002. The budget calls for a number of increases to programs including an increase of $1 billion for Pell grants, a “reading first” initiative to strengthen early reading education, annual math and reading testing for grades 3 through 8 and a tax deduction to help teachers defray the costs associated with out of pocket classroom expenses. Although I support the majority of the budget’s proposals, I am concerned with the school choice option, that will funnel Federal funds from public schools to private and religious schools and the streamlining and consolidation of a number of Federal education programs that may be lost in the shuffle.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, the budget is consistent with the provisions of H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lock-Box Act of 2001, which passed the House earlier this year. This act creates a point of order against legislation that reduces the total unified surplus below the combined total of the Social Security Trust Fund surplus and the Medicare Hospital Insurance (HI) Trust Fund surplus. Consequently, the measure creates a procedural “lock-box” protecting the Social Security and Medicare surpluses from being used for any purpose other than debt reduction until the enactment of Social Security and Medicare reform legislation.

This is a responsible budget resolution. It preserves the integrity of the Social Security and Medicare systems, makes necessary investments in Medicare, education, national security and veterans health care, provides for appropriate tax relief, pays down an unprecedented level of public debt, and sets aside a prudent reserve fund for unforeseen emergencies. For these reasons, I intend to support it, and urge my colleagues to do the same.