S. 994. A bill to amend the Iran and Libya Sanctions Act of 1996 to extend authorities under that Act; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I rise today to announce the introduction of the Iran-Libya Sanctions Extension Act, which extends American sanctions against foreign companies which invest in Iran and Libya's oil sectors for 5 years.

At a time when many people in Washington are seeking to review America's sanctions policies, this bill—with its 74 original cosponsors—says that sanctions against the world's worst rogue states will remain firmly in place. I hope that President Bush will recognize the message sent by the overwhelming support for this legislation, and will put to rest the idea that the Iran-Libya Sanctions Act might expire or be weakened.

ILSA has been one of America's best weapons in our war against terrorism, because it is aimed at cutting off the flow of money that terrorist groups depend on to fund their attacks and operations.

Over the past 5 years, ILSA has effectively deterred foreign investment in Iran's oil fields: of the 55 projects for which Iran sought foreign investment, only 6 have been funded, and none have been completed.

That's what ILSA's all about: it limits the ability of Iran and Libya to reap oil profits that can be spent funding terrorism and for weapons of mass destruction.

Even with ILSA in place, Iran continues to supply upwards of $100 million to Hezbollah, Islamic Jihad and Hamas—which claimed responsibility for the suicide bombing last week in Tel Aviv that killed 20 Israeli children.

Can you imagine how much more Iran would be spending on terrorism and weapons of mass destruction if they had billions more in oil profits rolling in?

The truth is, ILSA is needed now more than ever.

Despite the election of the so-called "moderate" President Mohammad Khatami in 1997, Iran remains the world's most active state sponsor of terrorism, and has been feverishly seeking to develop weapons of mass destruction.

And on the eve of another election in Iran, Khatami continues to vilify the United States, and in his most recent call for the destruction of Israel, referred to Israel as "a parasite in the heart of the Muslim world." These are not the words of a moderate, worthy of American concessions.

As far as Libya is concerned, we all learned recently that the Libyan government was directly involved in the bombing of Pan Am 103—one of the most heinous acts of terrorism in history.

Yet Libya obstinately refuses to abide by U.N. Security Council resolutions requiring it to formally renounce terrorism, accept responsibility for the government officials convicted of masterminding the bombing, and compensate the victims' families.

Some say we should lift sanctions on rogue nations like Iran and Libya first, and decent, moral, internationally-acceptable behavior will follow.

I say that is twisted logic.

If these nations are serious about entering the community of nations, and seeing their economies benefit from global integration, they must change their behavior first.

They must adapt to the world community, the world community does not need to adapt to them.

The bottom line is that these sanctions must remain in place until Iran ends its support of international terrorism, and ends its dangerous quest for catastrophic weapons.

For Libya, it means full acceptance of responsibility for the Pan Am 103 bombing and full compensation for the families of the victims.

If that day arrives, ILSA will no longer be needed and will be terminated. Unfortunately, that day is not yet in sight.

Finally, I would urge the Bush Administration, as it reviews American sanctions policies, to consider that letting ILSA expire would send the wrong message to Iran and Libya.

This is not the time to weaken sanctions and permit investment that can be used to fund terrorist acts like the one we saw in Israel last week.

IRAN-LIBYA SANCTIONS ACT

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I strongly support S. 994, which would extend the Iran-Libya Sanctions Act for 5 years.

Current U.S. law imposes economic sanctions on foreign companies that invest in Libya's oil sector, but those sanctions expire on August 5th. The need for the sanctions is as strong today as when they were enacted in 1996. They deserve to be extended. Easing sanctions on Libya by allowing the law to expire would have a far-reaching negative effect on the battle against international terrorism and the twelve-year pursuit of justice for the 270 victims of the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103.

Current law requires the President to impose at least 2 out of 6 sanctions listed in the statute on foreign companies that invest more than $20 million in 1 year in Iran's energy sector, or $40 million in 1 year in Libya's energy sector. The 6 sanctions are the following:

(1) Denial of Export-Import Bank loans, credits, or credit guarantees for U.S. exports to the firm.
