

Russia, the United States, and the European Union, recently convened its first-ever special session marking the liberation of Auschwitz and other concentration camps. Several countries around the globe are taking part in remembrance ceremonies and honoring the victims of Auschwitz and the Holocaust. We must never forget the tragic events that led up to the Holocaust and we must urge all countries and all peoples to strengthen their efforts to fight against racism, anti-Semitism and intolerance around the globe. If we do not remain committed to teaching the lessons of the Holocaust for future generations, then history will be doomed to repeat itself.

Mr. HONDA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize a tragic anniversary, one which we can never afford to forget. Last week, my colleagues and I voted unanimously in support of a resolution commending countries and organizations for marking the 60th anniversary of the liberation of Auschwitz-Birkenau and urging a strengthening of the fight against racism, intolerance, bigotry, prejudice, discrimination, and anti-Semitism.

January 27, 2005—marked the day 60 years ago that Soviet troops opened the gates of the Auschwitz-Birkenau concentration camp in Poland and liberated the Jewish prisoners who had managed to survive the atrocities committed within those walls.

I join with many others in remembering those who perished, in honoring their memory, and in promising survivors: "never again."

Countries around the world will commemorate this event as a reminder to us all of what can befall humanity when we turn away from injustice and fail to speak out when those in power single out innocents for persecution.

Together, we have made progress in battling anti-Semitism around the world. As part of its effort to say "never again", the United Nations General Assembly last week, commemorated the six million Jews who perished in the Holocaust, a signal that the UN will assert leadership in the ongoing struggle against anti-Semitism.

This year's memorial ceremonies are particularly important because concentration camp survivors are aging at a rapid rate and may not be able to participate in such future events.

Despite ongoing efforts, Jews throughout the world continue to suffer vandalism, verbal assaults, and even physical attacks. On this day of commemoration, we should all resolve to work towards a world where the Holocaust can never happen again.
