Coast Guard

[CGD 95-084]

Review of Icebreaking Program for the East Coast of the United States

AGENCY: Coast Guard, DOT.

ACTION: Request for comments.

SUMMARY: The Coast Guard is reviewing its domestic icebreaking mission along the east coast of the United States from Maine to Virginia. Consistent with the President's effort to reinvest government, this review is necessary to assess the effectiveness of the present program, the impacts resulting from changes in the Coast Guard's icebreaking fleet, and the needs of the future. The Coast Guard is requesting comments and data to assist in this review.

DATES: Comments must be received on or before February 16, 1996.

ADDRESSES: Written comments may be mailed to the Chief, Ice Operations Division, U.S. Coast Guard Headquarters, 2100 Second Street S.W., Washington, DC 20593-0001, or may be delivered to room 1202A at the above address between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m., Monday through Friday, except Federal holidays. FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: LCDR Robert Garrett, Icebreaker Facilities Branch, Ice Operations Division, Office of Navigation Safety and Waterway Services between 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, except Federal holidays. Telephone (202) 267-1460, telefax (202) 267-4425.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Request for Comments

The Coast Guard encourages interested persons to participate in this review by submitting written views and data on icebreaking operations on the east coast of the United States. Persons submitting comments should include their names and addresses, identify this docket (CGD 95-084), identify the aspect of icebreaking operations on which comments are submitted, and state the expected impacts on current icebreaking operations and the reasons for those impacts. Persons wanting acknowledgment of receipt of comments should enclose stamped, self-addressed postcards or envelopes.

Background

Under Executive Order No. 7521 of December 21, 1936, the Coast Guard has assisted as practicable in keeping the channels and harbors along the northeast and mid-Atlantic coast of the United States open to shipping during the winter and in preventing flooding from ice jams. In doing so, the Coast Guard has attempted to meet the reasonable demands of commerce and to support other agencies in their icebreaking efforts.

To accomplish this mission, the Coast Guard maintains a fleet of icebreaking tugs, ice-capable buoy tenders, and ice-reinforced boats. This fleet has undergone substantial changes since the 1960's. Replacement cutters and boats generally have been larger and more capable of meeting the changing requirements of their primary mission areas. However, they are fewer in number and may not have all of the icebreaking capabilities of the vessels they replaced. For example, the physical size of the larger cutters and boats may restrict their ability to operate in the upper reaches of rivers where ice jams typically form.

On occasion, private interests have operated or hired commercial tugs for icebreaking services. [Coast Guard policy prohibits if from competing with commercial icebreaking concerns.] However, commercial concerns apparently have not been able to meet worst-year ice conditions.

The Review

Consistent with the President's effort to reinvent government, the Coast Guard is now reviewing its East Coast icebreaking program to assess its effectiveness, to identify the impacts resulting from changes in the Coast Guard's icebreaking fleet, and to determine the program's needs for the future. The Coast Guard is particularly interested in receiving comments and data on the following subjects:

1. The Coast Guard's present ability to satisfy the reasonable demands of commerce for icebreaking along the East Coast.
2. The continuing need for the Coast Guard to maintain icebreaking capabilities along the East Coast.
3. The impact and alternatives available should the Coast Guard no longer provide icebreaking services along the East Coast.

4. Private industry's ability to provide icebreaking services.

5. The need, if any, to replace the Coast Guard's 65 foot icebreaking tugs and the capabilities required of the replacement vessels to minimize costs while maintaining necessary support.

This list of subjects is not intended to suggest that the Coast Guard's role or level of service should or will change. It is intended to assist the Coast Guard in evaluating the costs and benefits of its present icebreaking program and its needs for the future.

Dated: December 12, 1995.

J. A. Creech,

Captain, U.S. Coast Guard, Acting Chief, Office of Navigation Safety and Waterway Services.
