SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

Restoring an endangered or threatened animal or plant to the point where it is again a secure, self-sustaining member of its ecosystem is a primary goal of the Fish and Wildlife Service's (Service) endangered species program. To help guide the recovery effort, the Service is working to prepare recovery plans for most of the listed species native to the United States. Recovery plans describe actions considered necessary for conservation of the species, establish criteria for recovery levels for downlisting or delisting them, and estimate time and cost for implementing the recovery measures needed.

Under the provisions of the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (Act) as amended (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.), the Service approved the revised Grizzly Bear Recovery Plan on September 10, 1993. The Plan approved in 1993 did not contain a complete chapter on the Bitterroot or North Cascade ecosystems because the specific information necessary to develop these chapters was not available. The Service approved the Bitterroot Ecosystem Grizzly Bear Recovery Plan Chapter and the North Cascades Ecosystem Recovery Plan Chapter on September 11, 1996, and June 23, 1997, respectively.

In May 1994 The Fund For Animals, Inc., and 22 other organizations and individuals filed suit in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia over the adequacy of the Plan approved in 1993. Later in May 1994 the National Audubon Society and 19 other organizations and individuals also filed suit in the same court. The two cases were eventually consolidated. In September 1995 the court issued an opinion. The motions for summary judgment of both the plaintiffs and the defendants were granted in part and denied in part. The court ordered the Service to reconsider certain portions of the Plan, and to provide supplemental information. The information presented in the document being made available for review includes supplemental information that the Service was to provide and the results of its reconsideration.

The Service is also in the process of developing habitat based recovery criteria to be added to the Plan. Those criteria are not included in the information being made available now. The habitat based recovery criteria will be made available for public review at a later date.

Section 4(f) of the Act, as amended in 1988, requires that public notice and an
