I. Background

FDA is announcing the availability of a draft guidance for industry entitled “Use of a Drug Master File for Shared System REMS Submissions.”

A REMS is a required risk management plan that uses tools beyond the FDA-approved prescribing information to ensure that the benefits of certain drugs outweigh their risks (see section 505–1 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (the FD&C Act) (21 U.S.C. 355–1)). FDA can, under certain circumstances, require that the REMS for a drug include one or more elements to assure safe use (ETASU) (see section 505–1(f) of the FD&C Act). When ETASUs are required for an innovator drug, any abbreviated new drug application (ANDA) referencing that innovator drug must use an shared system REMS with the innovator (unless FDA waives the requirement for using a shared system) (see section 505–1(i) of the FD&C Act). There are also circumstances under which multiple applicants form an SSR to minimize the burden on the health care delivery system, such as for a class of similar products.

Under a shared system REMS, multiple applicants should coordinate the submission of identical documents to their respective applications. To improve the efficiency of the submission and review process for shared system REMS, FDA recommends that applicants who are part of a shared system REMS use a Type V DMF for their REMS submissions. A DMF is a submission to the Agency that may be used to provide confidential detailed information to the Agency. Among other things, a DMF allows the DMF holder to authorize other applicants to reference information in the holder’s DMF. A DMF is submitted solely at the discretion of the DMF holder, and the technical contents of a DMF are customarily reviewed by FDA only in connection with the review of an application.

The use of a DMF is not a requirement for shared system REMS. However, if shared system REMS applicants choose to use the DMF option for their shared system REMS submissions, this guidance (and the technical conformance guide that supplements it, available at https://www.fda.gov/drugs/developmentapprovalprocess/formsubmissionrequirements/electronic submissions/ucm535180.htm) is intended to provide an overview of the approach for doing so. Also, if shared system REMS applicants choose to use the DMF option, as of the date specified by FDA, they must submit the DMF in the Electronic Common Technical Document format, as previously stated in the guidance for industry “Providing Regulatory Submissions in Electronic Format—Certain Human Pharmaceutical Product Applications and Related Submissions Using the eCTD Specifications (Revision 4)” (available at https://www.fda.gov/Drugs/Guidance Documents/default.htm).

This draft guidance is being issued consistent with FDA’s good guidance practices regulation (21 CFR 10.115). The draft guidance, when finalized, will represent the current thinking of FDA on use of a DMF for submission of shared system REMS. It does not establish any rights for any person and is not binding on FDA or the public. You can use an alternative approach if it satisfies the requirements of the applicable statutes and regulations. This guidance is not subject to Executive Order 12866.
II. Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995

This draft guidance refers to previously approved collections of information found in FDA regulations. These collections of information are subject to review by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (44 U.S.C. 3501–3520). The collections of information in 21 CFR 314.50 have been approved under OMB control number 0910–0001; the collections of information in 21 CFR 314.70 have been approved under OMB control number 0910–0001; the collections of information in 21 CFR 201.57 have been approved under OMB control number 0910–0572; the collections of information in 21 CFR 314.420 have been approved under OMB control number 0910–0001; the collections of information in 21 CFR part 601 have been approved under OMB control number 0910–0338.
