[For the Office of Government Ethics statement of organization, see the Code of Federal Regulations, Title 5, Part 2600]

The Office of Government Ethics directs executive branch policies related to preventing conflicts of interest on the part of Government employees and resolving those conflicts of interest that do occur.

The Office of Government Ethics (OGE) is an executive branch agency established under the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, as amended (5 U.S.C. app. 401).

The Director of OGE is appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate for a 5-year term.

Activities

The chief responsibilities of OGE are as follows:

—developing appropriate ethics policies for the executive branch through the promulgation of regulations on Standards of Ethical Conduct, public and confidential financial disclosure of executive branch officials, ethics training programs, and the identification and resolution of conflicts of interest;

—reviewing for identification and resolution of actual or potential conflicts of interest, the financial disclosure reports of potential nominees to, the incumbents of, and those leaving executive branch positions requiring Presidential appointment with Senate confirmation;

—making the financial disclosure reports from individuals required to file with OGE available for public inspection;

—providing education and training to 6,000 ethics officials through instructor instructor-led and Web-based training programs;

—assessing the effectiveness of public and confidential financial disclosure systems maintained by over 130 executive branch agencies;

—maintaining an extensive program to provide advice on Standards of Ethical Conduct and conflict of interest laws;

—conducting onsite reviews of agency ethics programs;

—ordering corrective action on the part of agencies and employees, including orders to establish or modify an agency's ethics program;

—evaluating the effectiveness of the Ethics Act, the conflict of interest laws, and other related statutes and recommending appropriate changes; and —providing technical assistance in support of U.S. international anticorruption and good governance initiatives.

Sources of Information

Electronic Access Information regarding OGE's services and programs is available in electronic format on the Internet at www.usoge.gov.

Publications The Office of Government Ethics periodically updates its publication, The Informal Advisory Letters and Memoranda and Formal

Opinions of the United States Office of Government Ethics, available from the Government Printing Office. In addition, OGE has ethics publications and instructional resources available. Upon request, OGE also provides copies of executive branch public financial disclosure reports (SF 278s) in accordance with the Ethics Act and OGE's regulations.
