To accomplish this objective, metropolitan planning organizations, in cooperation with the State, shall develop transportation plans and programs for urbanized areas of the State. Such plans and programs shall provide for the development of transportation facilities (including pedestrian walkways and bicycle transportation facilities) which will function as an intermodal transportation system for the State, the metropolitan areas, and the Nation. The process for developing such plans and programs shall provide for consideration of all modes of transportation and shall be continuing, cooperative, and comprehensive to the degree appropriate, based on the complexity of the transportation problems.

"(b) DESIGNATION OF METROPOLITAN PLANNING ORGANIZATIONS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—To carry out the transportation planning process required by this section, a metropolitan planning organization shall be designated for each urbanized area of more than 50,000 population by agreement among the Governor and units of general purpose local government which together represent at least 75 percent of the affected population (including the central city or cities as defined by the Bureau of the Census) or in accordance with procedures established by applicable State or local law.

"(2) MEMBERSHIP OF CERTAIN MPO'S.—In a metropolitan area designated as a transportation management area, the metropolitan planning organization designated for such area shall include local elected officials, officials of agencies which administer or operate major modes of transportation in the metropolitan area (including all transportation agencies included in the metropolitan planning organization on June 1, 1991) and appropriate State officials. This paragraph shall only apply to a metropolitan planning organization which is redesignated after the date of the enactment of this section.

SEC. 1038. USE OF RECYCLED PAVING MATERIAL.

(a) ASPHALT PAVEMENT CONTAINING RECYCLED RUBBER DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM.—Notwithstanding any other provision of title 23, United States Code, or regulation or policy of the Department of Transportation, the Secretary (or a State acting as the Department's agent) may not disapprove a highway project under chapter 1 of title 23, United States Code, on the ground that the project includes the use of asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber. Under this subsection, a patented application process for recycled rubber shall be eligible for approval under the same conditions that an unpatented process is eligible for approval.

(b) STUDIES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency shall coordinate and conduct, in cooperation with the States, a study to determine—

- (A) the threat to human health and the environment associated with the production and use of asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber;
- (B) the degree to which asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber can be recycled; and
- (C) the performance of the asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber under various climate and use conditions.

(2) DIVISION OF RESPONSIBILITIES.—The Administrator shall conduct the part of the study relating to paragraph (1)(A) and the Secretary shall conduct the part of the study relating to paragraph (1)(C). The Administrator and the Secretary shall jointly conduct the study relating to paragraph (1)(B).

(3) ADDITIONAL STUDY.—The Secretary and the Administrator, in cooperation with the States, shall jointly conduct a study to determine the economic savings, technical performance qualities, threats to human health and the environment, and environmental benefits of using recycled materials in highway devices and appurtenances and highway projects, including asphalt containing over 80 percent reclaimed asphalt, asphalt containing recycled glass, and asphalt containing recycled plastic.

(4) ADDITIONAL ELEMENTS.—In conducting the study under paragraph (3), the Secretary and the Administrator shall examine utilization of various technologies by States and shall examine the current practices of all States relating to the reuse and disposal of materials used in federally assisted highway projects.

(5) REPORT.—Not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary and the Administrator shall transmit to Congress a report on the results of the studies conducted under this subsection, including a detailed analysis of the economic savings and technical performance qualities of using such recycled materials in federally assisted highway projects and the environmental benefits of using such recycled materials in such highway projects in terms of reducing air emissions, conserving natural resources, and reducing disposal of the materials in landfills.

(c) DOT GUIDANCE.—

(1) INFORMATION GATHERING AND DISTRIBUTION.—The Secretary shall gather information and recommendations concerning the use of asphalt containing recycled rubber in highway projects from those States that have extensively evaluated and experimented with the use of such asphalt and implemented such projects and shall make available such information and recommendations on the use of such asphalt to those States which indicate an interest in the use of such asphalt.

(2) ENCOURAGEMENT OF USE.—The Secretary should encourage the use of recycled materials determined to be appropriate by the studies pursuant to subsection (b) in federally assisted highway projects. Procuring agencies shall comply with all applicable guidelines or regulations issued by the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

(d) USE OF ASPHALT PAVEMENT CONTAINING RECYCLED RUBBER.—

(1) STATE CERTIFICATION.—Beginning on January 1, 1995, and annually thereafter, each State shall certify to the Secretary that such State has satisfied the minimum utilization requirement for asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber established by this section. The minimum utilization requirement for asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber as a percentage of the total tons of asphalt laid in such State and financed in whole or part by any assistance pursuant to title 23, United States Code, shall be—

- (A) 5 percent for the year 1994;
- (B) 10 percent for the year 1995;
- (C) 15 percent for the year 1996; and
- (D) 20 percent for the year 1997 and each year thereafter.

(2) OTHER MATERIALS.—Any recycled material or materials determined to be appropriate by the studies under subsection (b) may be substituted for recycled rubber under the minimum utilization requirement of paragraph (1) up to 5 percent.

(3) INCREASE.—The Secretary may increase the minimum utilization requirement of paragraph (1) for asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber to be used in federally assisted highway projects to the extent it is technologically and economically feasible to do so and if an increase is appropriate to assure markets for the reuse and recycling of scrap tires. The minimum utilization requirement for asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber may not be met by any use or technique found to be unsuitable for use in highway projects by the studies under subsection (b).

(4) PENALTY.—The Secretary shall withhold from any State that fails to make a certification under paragraph (1) for any fiscal year, a percentage of the apportionments under section 104 (other than subsection (b)(5)(A)) of title 23, United States Code, that would otherwise be apportioned to such State for such fiscal year under such section equal to the percentage utilization requirement established by paragraph (1) for such fiscal year.

(5) SECRETARIAL WAIVER.—The Secretary may set aside the provisions of this subsection for any 3-year period on a determination, made in concurrence with the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency with respect to subparagraphs (A) and (B) of this paragraph, that there is reliable evidence indicating—

- (A) that manufacture, application, or use of asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber substantially increases the threat to human health or the environment as compared to the threats associated with conventional pavement;
- (B) that asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber cannot be recycled to substantially the same degree as conventional pavement; or
- (C) that asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber does not perform adequately as a material for the construction or surfacing of highways and roads.

The Secretary shall consider the results of the study under subsection (b)(1) in determining whether a 3-year set-aside is appropriate.

(6) RENEWAL OF WAIVER.—Any determination made to set aside the requirements of this section may be renewed for an additional 3-year period by the Secretary, with the concurrence of the Administrator with respect to the determinations made under paragraphs (5)(A) and (5)(B).

Any determination made with respect to paragraph (5)(C) may be made for specific States or regions considering climate, geography, and other factors that may be unique to the State or region and that would prevent the adequate performance of asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber.

(7) INDIVIDUAL STATE REDUCTION.—The Secretary shall establish a minimum utilization requirement for asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber less than the minimum utilization requirement otherwise required by paragraph (1) in a particular State, upon the request of such State and if the Secretary, with the concurrence of the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, determines that there is not a sufficient quantity of scrap tires available in the State prior to disposal to meet the minimum utilization requirement established under paragraph (1) as the result of recycling and processing uses (in that State or another State), including retreading or energy recovery.

(e) DEFINITIONS.—For purpose of this section—

(1) the term "asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber" means any hot mix or spray applied binder in asphalt paving mixture that contains rubber from whole scrap tires which is used for asphalt pavement base, surface course or interlayer, or other road and highway related uses and—

(A) is a mixture of not less than 20 pounds of recycled rubber per ton of hot mix or 300 pounds of recycled rubber per ton of spray applied binder; or

(B) is any mixture of asphalt pavement and recycled rubber that is certified by a State and is approved by the Secretary, provided that the total amount of recycled rubber from whole scrap tires utilized in any year in such State shall be not less than the amount that would be utilized if all asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber laid in such State met the specifications of subparagraph (A) and subsection (d)(1); and

(2) the term "recycled rubber" is any crumb rubber derived from processing whole scrap tires or shredded tire material taken from automobiles, trucks, or other equipment owned and operated in the United States.

SEC. 2002. HIGHWAY SAFETY PROGRAMS.

(a) UNIFORM GUIDELINES.—Section 402(a) of title 23, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the third sentence the following: "In addition, such uniform guidelines shall include programs (1) to reduce injuries and deaths resulting from motor vehicles being driven in excess of posted speed limits, (2) to encourage the proper use of occupant protection devices (including the use of safety belts and child restraint systems) by occupants of motor vehicles and to increase public awareness of the benefit of motor vehicles equipped with airbags, (3) to reduce deaths and injuries resulting from persons driving motor vehicles while impaired by alcohol or a controlled substance, (4) to reduce deaths and injuries resulting from accidents involving motor vehicles and motorcycles, (5) to reduce injuries and deaths resulting from accidents involving school buses, and (6) to improve law enforcement services in motor vehicle accident prevention, traffic supervision, and post-accident procedures. If the Secretary does not designate as priority programs those programs described in the preceding sentence, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report describing the reasons for not prioritizing such programs. The Secretary shall establish a highway safety program for the collection and reporting of data on traffic-related deaths and injuries by the States. Under such program, the States shall collect and report such data as the Secretary may require. The purposes of the program are to ensure national uniform data on such deaths and injuries and to allow the Secretary to make determinations for use in developing programs to reduce such deaths and injuries and making recommendations to Congress concerning legislation necessary to implement such programs. The program shall include information obtained by the Secretary under section 4007 of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 and provide for annual reports to the Secretary on the efforts being made by the States in reducing deaths and injuries occurring at highway construction sites and the effectiveness and results of such efforts. The Secretary shall establish minimum reporting criteria for the program. Such criteria shall include, but not be limited to, criteria on deaths and injuries resulting from police pursuits, school bus accidents, and speeding, on traffic-related deaths and injuries at highway construction sites and on the configuration of commercial motor vehicles involved in motor vehicle accidents."

"(A) provide that the Governor of the State shall be responsible for the administration of the program through a State highway safety agency which shall have adequate powers and be suitably equipped and organized to carry out, to the satisfaction of the Secretary, such program;

"(B) authorize political subdivisions of the State to carry out local highway safety programs within their jurisdictions as a part of the State highway safety program if such local highway safety programs are approved by the Governor and are in accordance with the minimum standards established by the Secretary under this section;

"(C) except as provided in paragraph (5), provide that at least 40 percent of all Federal funds apportioned under this section to the State for any fiscal year will be expended by the political subdivisions of the State, including Indian tribal governments, in carrying out local highway safety programs authorized in accordance with subparagraph (B); and

"(D) provide adequate and reasonable access for the safe and convenient movement of individuals with disabilities, including those in wheelchairs, across curbs constructed or replaced on or after July 1, 1976, at all pedestrian crosswalks throughout the State.

"(4) WAIVER.—The Secretary may waive the requirement of paragraph (3)(C), in whole or in part, for a fiscal year for any State whenever the Secretary determines that there is an insufficient number of local highway safety programs to justify the expenditure in the State of such percentage of Federal funds during the fiscal year.

"(5) USE OF TECHNOLOGY FOR TRAFFIC ENFORCEMENT.—The Secretary may encourage States to use technologically advanced traffic enforcement devices (including the use of automatic speed detection devices such as photoradar) by law enforcement officers."

"(5) An effective system for preventing operators of motor vehicles under age 21 from obtaining alcoholic beverages. Such system may include the issuance of drivers' licenses to individuals under age 21 that are easily distinguishable in appearance from drivers' licenses issued to individuals age 21 years of age or older.

The extension of such period shall not be considered agency action subject to judicial review.

(ii) ACTION.—A rulemaking under paragraphs (1) through (4) of section 2503 shall be considered completed when the Secretary promulgates a final rule or when the Secretary decides not to promulgate a rule (which decision may include deferral of the action or reinitiation of the action). The Secretary may at any time adjust such priorities to address matters the Secretary deems of greater priority. The initial plan may be the 5-year plan for compliance testing in effect on the date of enactment of this subsection."

SEC. 2506. REAR SEATBELTS.

The Secretary shall expend such portion of the funds authorized to be appropriated under the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act (15 U.S.C. 1901 et seq.), for fiscal year 1993, as the Secretary deems necessary for the purpose of disseminating information to consumers regarding the manner in which passenger cars may be retrofitted with lap and shoulder rear seatbelts.

SEC. 2508. AUTOMATIC CRASH PROTECTION AND SAFETY BELT USE.

(a) AMENDMENT OF STANDARD.—

(1) SPECIFICATIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law or rule, the Secretary shall by September 1, 1993, promulgate, in accordance with the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 (to the extent such Act is not in conflict with the provisions of this section), an amendment to Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard 208 issued under such Act to provide that the automatic occupant crash protection system for the front outboard designated seating positions of each—

(A) new truck, bus, and multipurpose passenger vehicle (other than walk-in van-type trucks and vehicles designed to be exclusively sold to the United States Postal Service) with a gross vehicle weight rating of 8,500 pounds or less and an unloaded vehicle weight of 5,500 pounds or less, and

(B) new passenger car, manufactured on or after the dates specified in the applicable schedule established by subsection (b), shall be an inflatable restraint complying with the occupant protection requirements under section 4.1.2.1 of such Standard. This section supplements and revises, but does not replace, Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard 208, including the amendment to such Standard 208 of March 26, 1991 (56 F.R. 12472), extending the requirements for automatic crash protection, together with incentives for more innovative automatic crash protection, to trucks, buses, and multipurpose passenger vehicles.

(2) REQUIREMENT.—The amendment to such Standard 208 shall also require, to be effective as soon as possible after the promulgation of such amendment, that the owner manuals for passenger cars and trucks, buses, and multipurpose passenger vehicles equipped with an inflatable restraint include a statement in an easily understandable format—

(A) that the vehicle is equipped with an inflatable restraint referred to as an "airbag" and a lap and shoulder belt in either or both the front outboard seating positions;

(B) that the airbag is a supplemental restraint;

(C) that it does not substitute for lap and shoulder belts which must also be correctly used by an occupant in such seating position to provide restraint or protection not only from frontal crashes but from other types of crashes or accidents; and

(D) that all occupants, including the driver, should always wear their lap and shoulder belts, where available, or other safety belts, whether or not there is an inflatable restraint.

(3) FINDING.—The Congress finds that it is in the public interest for all States to adopt and enforce mandatory seat belt use laws and for the Federal Government to adopt and enforce mandatory seat belt use rules.

(b) SCHEDULE.—The amendment promulgated under subsection (a) shall establish the following schedule:

(1) NEW PASSENGER CARS.—The amendment shall take effect for 95 percent of each manufacturer's annual production of passenger cars manufactured on and after September 1, 1996, and before September 1, 1997, and for 100 percent of each manufacturer's production of passenger cars manufactured on and after September 1, 1997. Subject to the provisions of subsection (c), the percentage prescribed for passenger cars manufactured on and after September 1, 1997, shall be met entirely by inflatable restraints (accompanied by lap and shoulder belts) for both front outboard seating positions.

(2) NEW TRUCKS, BUSES, AND MULTIPURPOSE PASSENGER VEHICLES.—The amendment shall take effect for 80 percent of each manufacturer's annual production of trucks, buses, and multipurpose passenger vehicles described in subsection (a)(1)(A) and manufactured on and after September 1, 1997, and before September 1, 1998, and for 100 percent of each manufacturer's production of such trucks, buses, and multipurpose passenger vehicles manufactured on and after September 1, 1998. Subject to the provisions of subsection (c), the percentage prescribed for such trucks, buses, and multipurpose passenger vehicles manufactured on and after September 1, 1998, shall be met entirely by inflatable restraints (accompanied by lap and shoulder belts) for both front outboard seating positions. The incentives or credits available under Standard 208 (as amended by this section) prior to September 1, 1998, shall not be available to the manufacturers to comply with the 100 percent requirement of this paragraph on and after such date.

(c) TEMPORARY EXEMPTION FROM REQUIREMENTS.—Upon application by a manufacturer, in such manner and containing such information as the Secretary shall prescribe in the amendment under this section to such Standard 208, the Secretary may at any time, under such terms and conditions and to such extent as the Secretary deems appropriate, temporarily exempt or renew the exemption of a motor vehicle from the requirements of subsection (a) or (b), or both, if the Secretary finds that there has been a disruption in the supply of any inflatable restraint component, or a disruption in the use and installation by the manufacturer of such component due to unavoidable events not under the control of the manufacturer, that will prevent a manufacturer from meeting its anticipated production volume of vehicles with such restraints. Each application for such exemption must be filed by the manufacturer affected, and must specify the models, lines, and types of vehicles actually affected, although the Secretary may consolidate applications of a similar nature of 1 or more manufacturers. Any exemption or renewal shall be conditioned upon the manufacturer's commitment to recall the exempted vehicles for installation of omitted inflatable restraints within a reasonable time proposed by the manufacturer and approved by the Secretary after such components become available in sufficient quantities to satisfy both anticipated production and recall volume requirements. Notice of each application shall be published in the Federal Register and notice of each decision to grant or deny a temporary exemption, and the reasons for granting or denying it, shall be published in the Federal Register. The Secretary shall require labeling for each exempted motor vehicle which can only be removed after recall and installation of the required inflatable restraint. If a vehicle is delivered without an inflatable restraint, the Secretary shall require that written notification of the exemption be delivered to the dealer and first purchasers for purposes other than resale of such exempted motor vehicle in such a manner, and containing such information, as the Secretary deems appropriate.

(d) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed by the Secretary or any other person, including any court, as altering or affecting any other provision of law administered by the Secretary and applicable to such passenger cars or trucks, buses, or multipurpose passenger vehicles or as establishing any precedent regarding the development and promulgation of any Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard. Nothing in this section or in the amendments made under this section to Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard 208 shall be construed by any person or court as indicating an intention by Congress to affect, change, or modify in any way the liability, if any, of a motor vehicle manufacturer under applicable law relative to vehicles with or without inflatable restraints.

(e) REPORT.—The Secretary shall biennially report, beginning October 1, 1992 and continuing to October 1, 2000, on the actual effectiveness of an occupant restraint system defined as the percentage reduction in fatalities or injuries of restrained occupants as compared to unrestrained occupants for the combination of inflated restraints and lap and shoulder belts, for inflated restraints alone, and for lap and shoulder belts alone. The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Defense, shall also provide data and analysis on lap and shoulder belt use, nationally and in each State, by Federal, State, and local law enforcement officers, by military personnel, by Federal and State employees other than law enforcement officers, and by the public.

(f) AIRBAGS FOR CARS ACQUIRED FOR FEDERAL USE.—The Secretary, in cooperation with the Administrator of General Services and the heads of other appropriate Federal agencies and consistent with applicable provisions of Federal procurement law and available appropriations, shall establish a program requiring that all passenger cars acquired after September 30, 1994, for use by the Federal Government be equipped, to the maximum extent practicable, with driver-side inflatable restraints and that all passenger cars acquired after September 30, 1996, for use by the Federal Government be equipped, to the maximum extent practicable, with inflatable restraints for both the driver and front seat outboard seating positions.

SEC. 2509. HEAD INJURY IMPACT STUDY.

The Secretary, in the case of any head injury protection matters not subject to section 2503(5) for which the Secretary is on the date of enactment of this Act examining the need for rulemaking and is conducting research, shall provide a report to Congress by the end of fiscal year 1993 identifying those matters and their status. The report shall include a statement of any actions planned toward initiating such rulemaking no later than fiscal year 1994 or 1995 through use of either an advance notice of proposed rulemaking or a notice of proposed rulemaking and completing such rulemaking as soon as possible thereafter.

Section 3(i) is amended to read as follows:

"(i) NEW START CRITERIA.—

"(1) DETERMINATIONS.—A grant or loan for construction of a new fixed guideway system or extension of any fixed guideway system may not be made under this section unless the Secretary determines that the proposed project—

"(A) is based on the results of an alternatives analysis and preliminary engineering;

"(B) is justified based on a comprehensive review of its mobility improvements, environmental benefits, cost effectiveness, and operating efficiencies; and

"(C) is supported by an acceptable degree of local financial commitment, including evidence of stable and dependable funding sources to construct, maintain, and operate the system or extension.

"(2) CONSIDERATIONS.—In making determinations under this subsection, the Secretary—

"(A) shall consider the direct and indirect costs of relevant alternatives;

"(B) shall account for costs related to such factors as congestion relief, improved mobility, air pollution, noise pollution, congestion, energy consumption, and all associated ancillary and mitigation costs necessary to implement each alternative analyzed; and

"(i) the proposed project plan provides for the availability of contingency funds that the Secretary determines to be reasonable to cover unanticipated cost overruns;

"(ii) each proposed local source of capital and operating funding is stable, reliable, and available within the proposed project timetable; and

"(iii) local resources are available to operate the overall proposed transit system (including essential feeder bus and other services necessary to achieve the projected ridership levels) without requiring a reduction in existing transit services in order to operate the proposed project.

"(D) STABILITY ASSESSMENT.—In assessing the stability, reliability, and availability of proposed sources of local funding, the Secretary shall consider—

"(i) existing grant commitments;

"(ii) the degree to which funding sources are dedicated to the purposes proposed; and

"(iii) any debt obligations which exist or are proposed by the recipient for the proposed project or other transit purposes.

"(4) PROJECT ADVANCEMENT.—No project shall be advanced from alternatives analysis to preliminary engineering unless the Secretary finds that the proposed project meets the requirements of this section and there is a reasonable chance that the project will continue to meet these requirements at the conclusion of preliminary engineering.

"(5) EXCEPTIONS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—A new fixed guideway system or extension shall not be subject to the requirements of this subsection and the simultaneous evaluation of such projects in more than one corridor in a metropolitan area shall not be limited if (i) the project is located within an extreme or severe nonattainment area and is a transportation control measure, as defined by the Clean Air Act, that is required to carry out an approved State Implementation Plan, or (ii) assistance provided under this section accounts for less than $25,000,000 or less than 1/5 of the total cost of the project or an appropriate program of projects as determined by the Secretary.

"(B) EXPEDITED PROCEDURES.—In the case of a project that is (i) located within a nonattainment area that is not an extreme or severe nonattainment area, (ii) a transportation control measure, as defined in the Clean Air Act, and (iii) required to carry out an approved State Implementation Plan, the simultaneous evaluation of projects in more than one corridor in a metropolitan area shall not be limited and the Secretary shall make determinations under this subsection with expedited procedures that will promote timely implementation of the State Implementation Plan.

"(C) EXCLUSION FOR CERTAIN PROJECTS.—That portion of a project (including any commuter rail service project on an existing right-of-way) financed entirely with highway funds made available under the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1991 shall not be subject to the requirements of this subsection.

"(6) PROJECT IMPLEMENTATION.—A project funded pursuant to this subsection shall be implemented by means of a full funding grant agreement."

SEC. 3011. ASSURED TIMETABLE FOR PROJECT REVIEW.

"(B) PRELIMINARY ENGINEERING STAGE.—Following circulation of the draft environmental impact statement and not later than 30 days after selection by the applicant of a locally preferred alternative, the Secretary shall permit the project to advance to the preliminary engineering phase if the Secretary finds the project is consistent with the criteria set forth in subsection (i).

"(C) FINAL DESIGN STAGE.—The Secretary shall issue a record of decision and permit a project to advance to the final design stage of construction not later than 120 days after the date of completion of the final environmental impact statement for such project.

"SEC. 8. METROPOLITAN PLANNING.

"(a) GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.—It is in the national interest to encourage and promote the development of transportation systems embracing various modes of transportation in a manner which will efficiently maximize mobility of people and goods within and through urbanized areas and minimize transportation-related fuel consumption and air pollution. To accomplish this objective, metropolitan planning organizations, in cooperation with the State, shall develop transportation plans and programs for urbanized areas of the State. Such plans and programs shall provide for the development of transportation facilities (including pedestrian walkways and bicycle transportation facilities) which will function as an intermodal transportation system for the State, the metropolitan areas, and the Nation. The process for developing such plans and programs shall provide for consideration of all modes of transportation and shall be continuing, cooperative, and comprehensive to the degree appropriate, based on the complexity of the transportation problems.

"(b) DESIGNATION OF METROPOLITAN PLANNING ORGANIZATIONS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—To carry out the transportation planning process required by this section, a metropolitan planning organization shall be designated for each urbanized area of more than 50,000 population by agreement among the Governor and units of general purpose local government which together represent at least 75 percent of the affected population (including the central city or cities as defined by the Bureau of the Census) or in accordance with procedures established by applicable State or local law.

"(2) MEMBERSHIP OF CERTAIN MPO'S.—In a metropolitan area designated as a transportation management area, the metropolitan planning organization designated for such area shall include local elected officials, officials of agencies which administer or operate major modes of transportation in the metropolitan area (including all transportation agencies included in the metropolitan planning organization on June 1, 1991) and appropriate State officials. This paragraph shall only apply to a metropolitan planning organization which is redesignated after the date of the enactment of this section.

"(3) LIMITATION ON STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to interfere with the authority, under any State law in effect on the date of the enactment of this section, of a public agency with multimodal transportation responsibilities to—

"(A) develop plans and programs for adoption by a metropolitan planning organization; and

"(B) develop long-range capital plans, coordinate transit services and projects, and carry out other activities pursuant to State law.

"(4) CONTINUING DESIGNATION.—Designations of metropolitan planning organizations, whether made under this section or other provisions of law, shall remain in effect until redesignated under paragraph (5) or revoked by agreement among the Governor and units of general purpose local government which together represent at least 75 percent of the affected population or as otherwise provided under State or local procedures.

"(5) REDESIGNATION.—

"(A) PROCEDURES.—A metropolitan planning organization may be redesignated by agreement among the Governor and units of general purpose local government which together represent at least 75 percent of the affected population (including the central city or cities as defined by the Bureau of the Census) as appropriate to carry out this section.

"(B) CERTAIN REQUESTS TO REDESIGNATE.—A metropolitan planning organization shall be redesignated upon request of a unit or units of general purpose local government representing at least 25 percent of the affected population (including the central city or cities as defined by the Bureau of the Census) in any urbanized area (i) whose population is more than 5,000,000 but less than 10,000,000, or (ii) which is an extreme nonattainment area for ozone or carbon monoxide as defined under the Clean Air Act. Such redesignation shall be accomplished using procedures established by subparagraph (A).

"(6) TREATMENT OF LARGE URBAN AREAS.—More than 1 metropolitan planning organization may be designated within an urbanized area as defined by the Bureau of the Census only if the Governor determines that the size and complexity of the urbanized area make designation of more than 1 metropolitan planning organization for such area appropriate.

"(c) METROPOLITAN AREA BOUNDARIES.—For the purposes of this section, the boundaries of a metropolitan area shall be determined by agreement between the metropolitan planning organization and the Governor. Each metropolitan area shall cover at least the existing urbanized area and the contiguous area expected to become urbanized within the 20-year forecast period and may encompass the entire Metropolitan Statistical Area or Consolidated Metropolitan Statistical Area, as defined by the Bureau of the Census. For areas designated as nonattainment areas for ozone or carbon monoxide under the Clean Air Act, the boundaries of the metropolitan area shall at least include the boundaries of the nonattainment area, except as otherwise provided by agreement between the metropolitan planning organization and the Governor.

"(d) COORDINATION IN MULTI-STATE AREAS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish such requirements as the Secretary considers appropriate to encourage Governors and metropolitan planning organizations with responsibility for a portion of a multi-State metropolitan area to provide coordinated transportation planning for the entire metropolitan area.

"(2) COMPACTS.—The consent of Congress is hereby given to any 2 or more States to enter into agreements or compacts, not in conflict with any law of the United States, for cooperative efforts and mutual assistance in support of activities authorized under this section as such activities pertain to interstate areas and localities within such States and to establish such agencies, joint or otherwise, as such States may deem desirable for making such agreements and compacts effective.

"(f) FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED.—In developing transportation plans and programs pursuant to this section, each metropolitan planning organization shall, at a minimum, consider the following:

"(1) Preservation of existing transportation facilities and, where practical, ways to meet transportation needs by using existing transportation facilities more efficiently.

"(2) The consistency of transportation planning with applicable Federal, State, and local energy conservation programs, goals, and objectives.

"(3) The need to relieve congestion and prevent congestion from occurring where it does not yet occur.

"(4) The likely effect of transportation policy decisions on land use and development and the consistency of transportation plans and programs with the provisions of all applicable short- and long-term land use and development plans.

"(5) The programming of expenditure on transportation enhancement activities as required in section 133.

"(6) The effects of all transportation projects to be undertaken within the metropolitan area, without regard to whether such projects are publicly funded.

"(7) International border crossings and access to ports, airports, intermodal transportation facilities, major freight distribution routes, national parks, recreation areas, monuments and historic sites, and military installations.

"(8) The need for connectivity of roads within the metropolitan area with roads outside the metropolitan area.

"(9) The transportation needs identified through use of the management systems required by section 303 of this title.

"(10) Preservation of rights-of-way for construction of future transportation projects, including identification of unused rights-of-way which may be needed for future transportation corridors and identification of those corridors for which action is most needed to prevent destruction or loss.

"(11) Methods to enhance the efficient movement of freight.

"(12) The use of life-cycle costs in the design and engineering of bridges, tunnels, or pavement.

"(13) The overall social, economic, energy and environmental effects of transportation decisions.

"(14) Methods to expand and enhance transit services and to increase the use of such services.

"(15) Capital investments that would result in increased security in transit systems.

"(g) DEVELOPMENT OF LONG RANGE PLAN.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Each metropolitan planning organization shall prepare, and update periodically, according to a schedule that the Secretary determines to be appropriate, a long range plan for its metropolitan area in accordance with the requirements of this subsection.

"(2) LONG RANGE PLAN.—A long range plan under this section shall be in a form that the Secretary determines to be appropriate and shall, at a minimum:

"(A) Identify transportation facilities (including but not necessarily limited to major roadways, transit, and multimodal and intermodal facilities) that should function as an integrated metropolitan transportation system, giving emphasis to those facilities that serve important national and regional transportation functions. In formulating the long range plan, the metropolitan planning organization shall consider factors described in subsection (f) as such factors relate to a 20-year forecast period.

"(B) Include a financial plan that demonstrates how the long-range plan can be implemented, indicates resources from public and private sources that are reasonably expected to be made available to carry out the plan, and recommends any innovative financing techniques to finance needed projects and programs, including such techniques as value capture, tolls and congestion pricing.

"(C) Assess capital investment and other measures necessary to—

"(i) ensure the preservation of the existing metropolitan transportation system, including requirements for operational improvements, resurfacing, restoration, and rehabilitation of existing and future major roadways, as well as operations, maintenance, modernization, and rehabilitation of existing and future transit facilities; and

"(ii) make the most efficient use of existing transportation facilities to relieve vehicular congestion and maximize the mobility of people and goods.

"(D) Indicate as appropriate proposed transportation enhancement activities.

"(3) COORDINATION WITH CLEAN AIR ACT AGENCIES.—In metropolitan areas which are in nonattainment for ozone or carbon monoxide under the Clean Air Act, the metropolitan planning organization shall coordinate the development of a long range plan with the process for development of the transportation control measures of the State Implementation Plan required by the Clean Air Act.

"(4) PARTICIPATION BY INTERESTED PARTIES.—Before approving a long range plan, each metropolitan planning organization shall provide citizens, affected public agencies, representatives of transportation agency employees, private providers of transportation, and other interested parties with a reasonable opportunity to comment on the long range plan, in a manner that the Secretary deems appropriate.

"(5) PUBLICATION OF LONG RANGE PLAN.—Each long range plan prepared by a metropolitan planning organization shall be—

"(i) published or otherwise made readily available for public review; and

The withheld apportionments shall be restored to the metropolitan area at such time as the metropolitan planning organization is certified by the Secretary. ##### "§11506. Registration of motor carriers by a State

"(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the terms 'standards' and 'amendments to standards' mean the specification of forms and procedures required by regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission to prove the lawfulness of transportation by motor carrier referred to in section 10521(a) (1) and (2) of this title.

"(b) GENERAL RULE.—The requirement of a State that a motor carrier, providing transportation subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission under subchapter II of chapter 105 of this title and providing transportation in that State, register the certificate or permit issued to the carrier under section 10922 or 10923 of this title is not an unreasonable burden on transportation referred to in section 10521(a) (1) and (2) of this title when the registration is completed under standards of the Commission under subsection (c) of this section. When a State registration requirement imposes obligations in excess of the standards, the part in excess is an unreasonable burden.

"(c) SINGLE STATE REGISTRATION SYSTEM.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991, the Commission shall prescribe amendments to the standards existing as of such date of enactment. Such amendments shall implement a system under which—

"(A) a motor carrier is required to register annually with only one State;

"(B) the State of registration shall fully comply with standards prescribed under this section; and

"(C) such single State registration shall be deemed to satisfy the registration requirements of all other States.

"(2) SPECIFIC REQUIREMENTS.—

"(A) EVIDENCE OF CERTIFICATE; PROOF OF INSURANCE; PAYMENT OF FEES.—Under the amended standards implementing the single State registration system described in paragraph (1) of this subsection, only a State acting in its capacity as registration State under such single State system may require a motor carrier holding a certificate or permit issued under this subtitle—

"(i) to file and maintain evidence of such certificate or permit;

"(ii) to file satisfactory proof of required insurance or qualification as a self-insurer;

"(iii) to pay directly to such State fee amounts in accordance with the fee system established under subparagraph (B)(iv) of this paragraph, subject to allocation of fee revenues among all States in which the carrier operates and which participate in the single State registration system; and

"(iv) to file the name of a local agent for service of process.

"(B) RECEIPTS; FEE SYSTEM.—Such amended standards—

"(i) shall require that the registration State issue a receipt, in a form prescribed under the amended standards, reflecting that the carrier has filed proof of insurance as provided under subparagraph (A)(ii) of this paragraph and has paid fee amounts in accordance with the fee system established under clause (iv) of this subparagraph;

"(ii) shall require that copies of the receipt issued under clause (i) of this subparagraph be kept in each of the carrier's commercial motor vehicles;

"(iii) shall not require decals, stamps, cab cards, or any other means of registering or identifying specific vehicles operated by the carrier;

"(iv) shall establish a fee system for the filing of proof of insurance as provided under subparagraph (A)(ii) of this paragraph that (I) will be based on the number of commercial motor vehicles the carrier operates in a State and on the number of States in which the carrier operates, (II) will minimize the costs of complying with the registration system, and (III) will result in a fee for each participating State that is equal to the fee, not to exceed $10 per vehicle, that such State collected or charged as of November 15, 1991; and

"(v) shall not authorize the charging or collection of any fee for filing and maintaining a certificate or permit under subparagraph (A)(i) of this paragraph.

"(C) PROHIBITED FEES.—The charging or collection of any fee under this section that is not in accordance with the fee system established under subparagraph (B)(iv) of this paragraph shall be deemed to be a burden on interstate commerce.

"(D) LIMITATION ON PARTICIPATION BY STATES.—Only a State which, as of January 1, 1991, charged or collected a fee for a vehicle identification stamp or number under part 1023 of title 49, Code of Federal Regulations, shall be eligible to participate as a registration State under this subsection or to receive any fee revenue under this subsection.

Nothing in this subsection shall prevent any State from further restricting in any manner or prohibiting the operation of any commercial motor vehicle combination subject to this subsection, except that such restrictions or prohibitions shall be consistent with the requirements of this section and of section 412 and section 416 (a) and (b) of this Act. Any State further restricting or prohibiting the operations of commercial motor vehicle combinations or making such minor adjustments of a temporary and emergency nature as may be allowed pursuant to regulations issued by the Secretary pursuant to paragraph (8) of this subsection shall advise the Secretary within 30 days after such action and the Secretary shall publish a notice of such action in the Federal Register.

"(E) REVIEW AND CORRECTION PROCEDURE.—The Secretary, on his or her own motion or upon a request by any person (including a State), shall review the list issued by the Secretary pursuant to subparagraph (D). If the Secretary determines there is cause to believe that a mistake was made in the accuracy of the final list, the Secretary shall commence a proceeding to determine whether the list published pursuant to subparagraph (D) should be corrected. SEC. 6009. SURFACE TRANSPORTATION RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT PLANING.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) despite an annual expenditure in excess of $10,000,000,000 on surface transportation and its infrastructure, the Federal Government has not developed a clear vision of—

(A) how the surface transportation systems of the 21st century will differ from the present;

(B) how they will interface with each other and with other forms of transportation;

(C) how such systems will adjust to changing American population patterns and lifestyles; and

(D) the role of federally funded research and development in ensuring that appropriate transportation systems are developed and implemented;

(2) the population of the United States is projected to increase by over 30,000,000 people within the next 20 years, mostly in existing major metropolitan areas, which will result in increased traffic congestion within and between urban areas, more accidents, loss of productive time, and increased cost of transportation unless new technologies are developed to improve public transportation within cities and to move people and goods between cities;

(3) 18,000,000 crashes, 4,000,000 injuries, and 45,000 fatalities each year on the Nation's highways are intolerable and substantial research is required in order to develop safer technologies in their most useful and economic forms;

(4) current research and development funding for surface transportation is insufficient to provide the United States with the technologies essential to providing its own advanced transportation systems in the future and, as a result, the United States is becoming increasingly dependent on foreign surface transportation technologies and equipment to meet its expanding surface transportation needs;

(5) a more active, focused surface transportation research and development program involving cooperation among the Federal Government, United States based industry, and United States universities should be organized on a priority basis;

(6) intelligent vehicle highway systems represent the best near-term technology for improving surface transportation for public benefit by providing equipment which can improve traffic flow and provide for enhanced safety;

(7) research and development programs related to surface transportation are fragmented and dispersed throughout government and need to be strengthened and incorporated in an integrated framework within which a consensus on the goals of a national surface transportation research and development program must be developed;

(8) the inability of government agencies to cooperate effectively, the difficulty of obtaining public support for new systems and rights-of-way, and the high cost of capital financing discourage private firms from investing in the development of new transportation equipment and systems; therefore, the Federal Government should sponsor and coordinate research and development of new technologies to provide safer, more convenient, and affordable transportation systems for use in the future; and

(9) an effective high technology applied research and development program should be implemented quickly by strengthening the Department of Transportation research and development staff and by contracting with private industry for specific development projects.

(b) SURFACE TRANSPORTATION RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT PLAN.—

(1) DEVELOPMENT.—The Secretary shall develop an integrated national surface transportation research and development plan (hereinafter in this subsection referred to as the "plan").

(2) FOCUS.—The plan shall focus on surface transportation systems needed for urban, suburban, and rural areas in the next decade.

(3) CONTENTS.—The plan shall include the following:

(A) Details of the Department's surface transportation research and development programs, including appropriate funding levels and a schedule with milestones, preliminary cost estimates, appropriate work scopes, personnel requirements, and estimated costs and goals for the next 3 years for each area of research and development.

(B) A 10-year projection of long-term programs in surface transportation research and development and recommendations for the appropriate source or mechanism for surface transportation research and development funding, taking into account recommendations of the Research and Development Coordinating Council of the Department of Transportation and the plan of the National Council on Surface Transportation Research.

(C) Recommendations on changes needed to assure that Federal, State, and local contracting procedures encourage the adoption of advanced technologies developed as a consequence of the research programs in this Act.

(4) OBJECTIVES.—The plan shall provide for the following:

(A) The development, within the shortest period of time possible, of a range of technologies needed to produce convenient, safe, and affordable modes of surface transportation to be available for public use beginning in the mid-1990's.

(B) Maintenance of a long-term advanced research and development program to provide for next generation surface transportation systems.

(5) COOPERATION WITH INDUSTRY.—A primary component of the plan shall be cooperation with industry in carrying out this part and strengthening the manufacturing capabilities of United States firms in order to produce products for surface transportation systems.

(6) CONFORMANCE WITH PLAN.—All surface transportation research and development within the Department of Transportation shall be included in the plan and shall be evaluated in accordance with the plan.

(7) COORDINATION.—In developing the plan and carrying out this part, the Secretary shall consult with and, where appropriate, use the expertise of other Federal agencies and their laboratories.

(8) TRANSMITTAL.—On or before January 15, 1993, and annually thereafter, the Secretary shall transmit the plan to Congress, together with the Secretary's comments and recommendations. The Secretary shall review and update the plan before each transmittal under this paragraph.

(9) RECOMMENDATIONS FOR ALTERNATIVES.—In the event a different technology or alternative program can be identified that would accomplish the same or better results than those described in this part, the Secretary may make recommendations for an alternative, and shall promptly report such alternative recommendations to Congress.

SEC. 6010. NATIONAL COUNCIL ON SURFACE TRANSPORTATION RESEARCH.

"(D) EFFECT OF RECOMMENDATION.—

"(i) RESPONSE.—An action with respect to which the Board of Review has made a recommendation in accordance with subparagraph (C) may only take effect if the board of directors adopts such recommendation or if the board of directors has evaluated and responded, in writing, to the Board of Review with respect to such recommendation and transmits such action, evaluation, and response to Congress in accordance with clause (ii) and the 60-calendar day period described in clause (ii) expires.

"(ii) NONADOPTION OF RECOMMENDATION.—If the board of directors does not adopt a recommendation of the Board of Review regarding an action, the board of directors shall transmit to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate a detailed description of the action, the recommendation of the Board of Review regarding the action, and the evaluation and response of the board of directors to such recommendation, and the action

"(i) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the Senate and the House of Representatives, respectively, and as such these provisions are deemed a part of the rule of each House, respectively, but applicable only with respect to the procedure to be followed in that House in the case of resolutions described by this paragraph; and they supersede other rules only to the extent that they are inconsistent therewith; and

"(ii) with full recognition of the constitutional right of either House to change the rule (so far as relating to the procedure of that House) at any time, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of that House.

"(B) RESOLUTION DEFINED.—For the purpose of this paragraph, the term 'resolution' means only a joint resolution, relating to an action of the board of directors transmitted to Congress in accordance with paragraph (4)(D)(ii), the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: 'That the Congress disapproves of the action of the board of directors of the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority described as follows: .', the blank space therein being appropriately filled. "(D) MOTION TO DISCHARGE.—If the committee to which a resolution has been referred has not reported it at the end of 20 calendar days after its introduction, it is in order to move to discharge the committee from further consideration of that joint resolution or any other resolution with respect to the board of directors action which has been referred to the committee.

"(E) RULES WITH RESPECT TO MOTION.—A motion to discharge may be made only by an individual favoring the resolution, is highly privileged (except that it may not be made after the committee has reported a resolution with respect to the same action), and debate thereon shall be limited to not more than 1 hour, to be divided

"(F) EFFECT OF MOTION.—If the motion to discharge is agreed to or disagreed to, the motion may not be renewed, nor may another motion to discharge the committee be made with respect to any other resolution with respect to the same action.

"(G) SENATE PROCEDURE.—

"(i) MOTION TO PROCEED.—When the committee of the Senate has reported, or has been discharged from further consideration of, a resolution, it is at any time thereafter in order (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) to move to proceed to the consideration of the resolution. The motion is highly privileged and is not debatable. An amendment to the motion is not in order, and it is not in order to move to reconsider the vote by which the motion is agreed to or disagreed to.

"(ii) LIMITATION ON DEBATE.—Debate in the Senate on the resolution shall be limited to not more than 10 hours, which shall be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the resolution. A motion further to limit debate is not debatable. An amendment to, or motion to recommit, the resolution is not in order, and it is not in order to move to reconsider the vote by which the resolution is agreed to or disagreed to.

"(iii) NO DEBATE ON CERTAIN MOTIONS.—In the Senate, motions to postpone made with respect to the consideration of a resolution and motions to proceed to the consideration of other business shall be decided without debate.

"(iv) APPEALS.—Appeals from the decisions of the Chair relating to the application of the rules of the Senate to the procedure relating to a resolution shall be decided without debate.

"(H) EFFECT OF ADOPTION OF RESOLUTION BY OTHER HOUSE.—If, before the passage by 1 House of a joint resolution of that House, that House receives from the other House a joint resolution, then the following procedures shall apply:

"(i) The joint resolution of the other House shall not be referred to a committee and may not be considered in the House receiving it, except in the case of final passage as provided in clause (ii)(I).

"(ii) With respect to a joint resolution described in clause (i) of the House receiving the joint resolution—

"(I) the procedure in that House shall be the same as if no joint resolution had been received from the other House; but

"(II) the vote on final passage shall be on the joint resolution of the other House.

Upon disposition of the joint resolution received from the other House, it shall no longer be in order to consider the joint resolution that originated in the receiving House."

(f) CONFLICTS OF INTEREST; REMOVAL FOR CAUSE.—Section 6007(f) of such Act is further amended by adding at the end the following new paragraphs:

The Comptroller General shall submit periodic reports of the conclusions reached as a result of such review to the Committee on Public Works and Transportation of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate."

Actions taken by the Airports Authority and submitted to the Board of Review pursuant to section 6007(f)(4) of such Act prior to June 17, 1991, and not disapproved, shall remain in effect and shall not be set aside solely by reason of a judicial order invalidating certain functions of the Board of Review.

SEC. 8004. COMMUTE-TO-WORK BENEFITS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) current Federal policy places commuter transit benefits at a disadvantage compared to drive-to-work benefits;

(2) this Federal policy is inconsistent with important national policy objectives, including the need to conserve energy, reduce reliance on energy imports, lessen congestion, and clean our Nation's air;

(3) commuter transit benefits should be part of a comprehensive solution to national transportation and air pollution problems;

(4) current Federal law allows employers to provide only up to $21 per month in employee benefits for transit or van pools;

(5) the current "cliff provision", which treats an entire commuter transit benefit as taxable income if it exceeds $21 per month, unduly penalizes the most effective employer efforts to change commuter behavior;

(6) employer-provided commuter transit incentives offer many public benefits, including increased access of low-income persons to good jobs, inexpensive reduction of roadway and parking congestion, and cost-effective incentives for timely arrival at work; and

(7) legislation to provide equitable treatment of employer-provided commuter transit benefits has been introduced with bipartisan support in both the Senate and House of Representatives.

(b) POLICY.—The Congress strongly supports Federal policy that promotes increased use of employer-provided commuter transit benefits. Such a policy "levels the playing field" between transportation modes and is consistent with important national objectives of energy conservation, reduced reliance on energy imports, lessened congestion, and clean air.

SEC. 8005. BUDGET COMPLIANCE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—If obligations provided for programs pursuant to this Act for fiscal year 1992 will cause—

(1) the total outlays in any of the fiscal years 1992 through 1995 which result from this Act, to exceed

(2) the total outlays for such programs in any such fiscal year which result from appropriation Acts for fiscal year 1992 and are attributable to obligations for fiscal year 1992, then the Secretary of Transportation shall reduce proportionately the obligations provided for each program pursuant to this Act for fiscal year 1992 to the extent required to avoid such excess outlays.

(b) COORDINATION WITH OTHER PROVISIONS.—The provisions of this section shall apply, notwithstanding any provision of this Act to the contrary.

And the Senate agree to the same.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

PROGRAM STRUCTURE

House bill

The House bill restructures the four major Federal-aid highway systems plus the two safety construction programs (hazard elimination and railroad highway crossings) into five new programs: the National Highway Program, Urban Mobility Program, Rural Mobility Program, Combined Safety Improvement Program, and State Flexible Program.

The State Flexible Program is available to the state for any highway or transit capital projects in urban or rural areas. The urban and rural mobility programs are available for highway and transit capital projects. A state is able to transfer up to 25 percent of its National Highway Program apportionment to its Urban or Rural Mobility Program without conditions, and up to an additional 10 percent with the Secretary's approval if the state can demonstrate that its Interstate System is being maintained. A state may transfer 100 percent of the funds apportioned under the National Highway Program if over 90 percent of the land area of the state is within nonattainment areas.

The National Highway System consists of the Interstate System, the Strategic Highway Network, and principal arterial routes from the primary system. The Secretary through coordination with state and local governments will propose a National Highway System of 155,000 miles that could be adjusted by 15 percent. The National Highway System designation requires approval by Congress.

The Urban Mobility Program consists of the existing Federal-aid urban system and principal arterial routes in urban areas that are not a part of the National Highway System. Funds made available under the urban mobility program may be used for the construction of highway projects and transit capital projects. The Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO) in the urban area has the authority, along with the state, to determine its transportation priorities.

The Rural Mobility Program consists of the existing Federal-aid secondary system and the arterials not on the National Highway System. Eligibility is provided for transit capital projects. The Federal-aid primary system rural mileage that does not meet the National Highway System criteria is eligible for inclusion in the Rural System. About 125,000-150,000 miles is expected to be added to the existing secondary system to constitute a 525,000-550,000 mile rural Federal-aid system. Roads functionally classified as rural minor collector or rural local are not eligible for inclusion in this rural Federal-aid system; however, funding for off system safety and bridge improvements are eligible under other programs.

The State Flexible Program is an innovative program that for the first time provides each state with funds that can be used for any highway or transit capital purpose eligible under Federal law. The state can use these funds for any purpose that is eligible under the National Highway Program, the Urban Mobility Program, the Rural Mobility Program, or the Combined Safety Improvement Program.

Each state is required to spend a percentage of these funds in clean air nonattainment areas equal to the percentage of its population living in nonattainment areas, up to 50 percent. Thus, if 30 percent of a state's population lives in nonattainment areas, the state would be required to spend at least 30 percent in nonattainment areas. If 70 percent of a state's population lives in nonattainment areas, at least 50 percent is required to be spent in nonattainment areas. These are minimum percentages; each state could choose to spend additional portions of its State Flexibility funds in these areas.

The Hazard Elimination and Rail-Highway Grade Crossings programs are combined into one flexible safety program, at an authorization level which represents 4% of the total funds authorized for the five new programs under the restructured highway program.

Within the combined program, the current funding levels of $160 million for Rail-Highway Crossings and $170 million for Hazard Elimination remain fixed, and any additional amount is available for funding eligible projects under either the Hazard Elimination or the Rail-Crossing programs, at the discretion of the state.

The restructured Federal-aid highway program funds the programs as follows: 49% to the National Highway System, 17% to Urban Mobility, 13% to Rural Mobility, 17% to State Flexible and 4% to the Combined Safety Improvement Program.

Senate amendment

This section establishes a new program that gives the States and local governments greater flexibility in using Federal funds to meet their transportation needs. Funds for the new program may be used for eligible projects on any public roads, except roads functionally, classified as local or rural minor collector, except as approved by the Secretary.

Eligible activities include construction, reconstruction, rehabilitation, resurfacing, restoration and operational improvements of highways including work necessary to accommodate other modes, painting and seismic retrofit of bridges, capital costs for mass transit (including improvements to bus shelters), passenger rail (including high speed rail) and magnetic levitation systems, car-pool and vanpool projects, fringe and corridor parking facilities and programs, and bicycle facilities and programs; surface transportation safety improvements; surface transportation research and development programs; transportation enhancement activities as defined in 23 U.S.C. 101; and other activities. This section also authorizes the use of Surface Transportation Program funds to mitigate wetland loss related to past or future highway construction.

This section designates two types of regions in each state for the purpose of dividing Federal funds. The first type of region consists of areas with a Metropolitan Statistical Area population 250,000 or greater and areas with an urbanized area population of 50,000 or greater that are in nonattainment for ozone or carbon monoxide. The second type of region consists of all other areas. Seventy-five (75) percent of funds apportioned to a State under the Surface Transportation Program must be divided between these two types of areas based on their relative share of the State's total population. The remaining 25 percent may be distributed to any area of the State. At least 8 percent of the funds apportioned to a State must be programmed for transportation enhancement activities. Projects must be consistent with requirements for metropolitan planning in 23 U.S.C. 134 and statewide planning in 23 U.S.C. 135.

The basic federal share for projects under the Surface Transportation Program is 80 percent. If funds apportioned under this program are used to construct new facilities or expand existing facilities to be available primarily to single-occupant vehicles, the Federal share is 75 percent. If the State constructs a facility not available to single occupant vehicles and subsequently makes the facility available to single occupant vehicles, the State must repay with interest the increase in the Federal share of the project the State received by constructing a facility not available to single occupant vehicles.

The State must submit an annual certification that it will meet all requirements of this section. The State must also notify the Secretary of the amount of obligations it plans to incur for Surface Transportation Program projects during the fiscal year. Acceptance of the certification and notice of obligation constitutes a contractual obligation of the Federal Government for this estimated amount of obligations for projects not subject to review by the Secretary. The State may adjust the estimated obligation at a later date if it wants to obligate more or less funds. Payments will be made to the State for the Federal share of costs incurred on the subject.

Projects must be designed, constructed, operated and maintained in accordance with State laws, regulations, directives, safety standards, design standards and construction standards.

A State may inform the Secretary that it does not wish review and approval of design and construction standards for projects except for projects on the Interstate System and other multi-lane limited access control highways.

If the Secretary determines that a State or local government has not complied with a requirement of this section, the State will be notified and have 60 days to take corrective action. If corrective action is not taken within 60 days, future payments will be held until adequate corrective action is taken.

In a departure from the current system whereby funds are apportioned by category according to specific formula factors, funds for the Surface Transportation Program shall be apportioned such that they result in each State receiving a percent share of combined Bridge Program, Interstate Maintenance Program, and Surface Transportation Program funds equal to its percent share of total apportionments and allocations made pursuant to Title 23 U.S.C. for fiscal years 1987, 1988, 1989, 1990 and 1991, subject to certain exclusions and adjustments specified in the bill. The Bridge Program and Interstate Maintenance apportionment formulas thus serve principally to determine the amount of funds a State must devote to each program; the apportionment of Surface Transportation Program funds serves to make each State's percentage of Federal aid equal to its percentage under the five years of the 1987 Act.

Paragraph 133(b)(1)(A), which provides for an energy conservation congestion, mitigation and clean air bonus program, is to provide an incentive for States and metropolitan areas to use the enhanced flexibility in the Surface Transportation Program to reduce traffic congestion, improve air quality and lower fuel consumption. The paragraph alters the apportionment of funds under the Surface Transportation Program by rewarding affected States that control growth in vehicle miles of travel per capita and penalizing affected States that do not.

The provision affects only States with metropolitan areas of 250,000 or more and affects only the Surface Transportation Program funds allocated to metropolitan areas pursuant to section 106(b). Because only large urban areas can make significant cuts in growth of vehicle miles traveled, the provision only affects States with such communities.

By using vehicle miles of travel per capita, rather than absolute growth in VMT, the paragraph does not penalize States facing rapid population growth. Instead, it rewards those States which do a better job of managing growth. Thus, some States with the largest absolute growth in VMT (such as Nevada and Florida), have had slow growth in VMT per capita. The Secretary shall apply the most accurate and timely data available in measuring changes in VMT per capita under this paragraph.

This paragraph affects only the apportionment of Surface Transportation Program funds attributed to metropolitan areas pursuant to section 133(b)(1) of Title 23 U.S.C. The provision does not affect the State's 25 percent share of Surface Transportation Program funds or the funds suballocated to non-metropolitan areas under section 133(b)(1) of title 23 U.S.C. The paragraph provides that bonuses and funds redistributed from the Bonus Fund shall only be used in metropolitan areas and that they be obligated for projects in metropolitan areas within a State in accordance with section 133 of title 23 U.S.C.

The reallocation of funds provided for in the provision will only come into operation after it is determined that one or more of the States subject to this paragraph has VMT per capita in excess of 110 percent of such State's VMT in 1990 (or 110 percent of 1995 levels commencing in fiscal year 1996). If every State maintains its current VMT per capita, the provision will not affect the apportionments.

However, if one or more States subject to this paragraph has VMT per capita in excess of 110 percent of their 1990 levels (or 1995 levels commencing in 1996), the Secretary is required to reduce the metropolitan area funds which would have been allocated to those States by 10 percent. The reduction funds are then placed into a Surface Transportation Bonus Fund which used to reward States that reduce their VMT per capita to less than 90 percent of 1990 levels in the same year. For example, if a State reduced its VMT per capita to 85 percent of its 1990 level, and several other States allowed increases in VMT per capita in excess of 110 percent of 1990 levels, the State with the reduction would be entitled to receive a bonus of up to 10 percent of its base metropolitan area apportionment, to the extent such funds are available.

If funds remain available in the Bonus Fund after bonuses have been awarded, the remaining funds are redistributed to the metropolitan areas of all States subject to the provision, whether they received a bonus, a reduction, or were unaffected by the provision. The amount each State receives is determined by each State's relative share of all metropolitan area funds allocated.

The provision applies beginning in fiscal year 1993 because of the ongoing development of methodologies to improve the measurement of VMT on road systems within a State. Such methodologies are expected to be available by 1993.

Beginning in fiscal year 1996, the paragraph provides for using 1995 as the base year to measure percentage changes in VMT per capita. This provision is intended to provide a continuing incentive for States which receive bonuses to do a better job over time.

Section 106(c) provides that the Federal share of capital projects that add capacity available to single occupant vehicles is 75 percent. The Federal share for all other projects including projects for high occupancy vehicles that permit single occupant vehicle use during the off-peak periods is 80 percent of the cost of construction. The Secretary will issue guidance on how to determine what portion of a project qualifies for an 80 percent Federal share.

23 U.S.C. 133(b)(2) requires the Secretary to find that the programming and expenditure of funds under section 106 of this bill is consistent with the requirements of section 134. Subsection 133(b)(3) requires that the Secretary also to find that the programming and expenditure of funds for projects in non-metropolitan areas is consistent with the statewide planning requirements of section 135 of this title.

23 U.S.C. 133(c) states the procedures the Secretary must follow in the event the Secretary determines through the certification review process that a State or local government does not comply with any provision of section 106 of this bill, including the requirement to program and expend funds in a manner consistent with the long range plan and the TIP required by section 134, and the planning requirements of section 135. These procedures require the Secretary to give notice to the State or local government of its failure to comply, and to give the State or local government 60 days to take corrective action. If corrective measures are not taken after the 60-day period has elapsed, the Secretary will not be able to certify that the provisions of section 133 have been complied with, and would have to take actions pursuant to section 134(e)(3).

23 U.S.C. 133(b)(6) requires that States assure equitable distribution of urban Surface Transportation Program funds among metropolitan and nonattainment areas based on relative population. The subsection, however, creates an exception to this general rule where a State and the relevant metropolitan planning organizations "jointly apply to the Secretary for permission to do so and the Secretary grants the request."

Conference substitute

Adopts the Senate provision with modifications.

PROJECT ELIGIBILITY

House bill

The House bill, for the National Highway System, makes eligible for funding: those activities allowed under current law, including construction, reconstruction, resurfacing, restoration, and rehabilitation; operational improvements; startup costs for traffic management and control; and participation in wetland mitigation banks.

For the Federal-aid mobility systems, the House bill makes eligible for funding: those activities allowed under current law, including construction, reconstruction, resurfacing, restoration, and rehabilitation; highway safety projects; operational improvements; startup costs for traffic management and control; and participation in wetland mitigation banks; and transit.

Senate bill

The Senate bill, for the Surface Transportation Program, makes eligible for funding: those activities allowed under current law, including construction, reconstruction, resurfacing, restoration, and rehabilitation; highway safety projects; off-system bridges; capital costs for mass transit and passenger rail; certain operating costs for Amtrak; bus terminals; magnetic levitation systems; contracted passenger rail costs; transportation enhancement activities; transportation control measures listed in the Clean Air Act; incremental costs of alternative fuels school buses; wetlands mitigation; and any other purpose approved by the Secretary.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute makes eligible for funding: those activities allowed under current law, including construction, reconstruction, resurfacing, restoration, and rehabilitation; highway safety projects; off-system bridges; capital costs for mass transit; bus terminals; certain transportation control measures listed in the Clean Air Act; and wetlands mitigation activities. In certain instances, passenger rail operations provide significant mass transit services. The conferees do not intend to preclude consideration of passenger rail capital costs where those operations provide significant commuter service on a regular basis.

WETLANDS MITIGATION

House bill

Section 108(a) of the House bill amends 23 U.S.C. 103(i) and adds a new subsection (j) to include authority to use highway trust fund money for participation in wetlands mitigation banks and statewide programs to create, conserve, or enhance wetland habitat, including development of statewide mitigation plans and State or regional wetlands conservation and enhancement banks. Contributions may occur in advance of specific project activity to build up credit for future projects which may impact wetlands. Participation in this program does not exempt any highway project from any requirements of Federal law.

Senate amendment

Section 106 of the Senate amendment adds a new section 133 to Title 23 of the U.S. Code, including the authority to use Surface Transportation Program Funds as part of a highway construction project, or as a separate effort, to mitigate wetland loss related to highway construction or to contribute to statewide efforts to conserve and restore wetlands adversely affected by highway construction. Efforts must comply with applicable requirements of and regulations under Federal law. Efforts may include development of statewide wetland conservation plans and other state or regional efforts to conserve and restore wetlands. Contributions may occur in advance of specific highway construction activity only if the state has a planning process which precludes the use of such efforts to influence the environmental assessment of the highway project, decisions related to the need for the project, or the selection of the project design or location.

Conference substitute

The Conference Substitute authorizes the use of Federal transportation funds for wetlands mitigation efforts, including participation in wetlands mitigation banks, consistent with all applicable Federal law and regulations. Mitigation efforts should be undertaken through the application of guidelines promulgated pursuant to Section 404(b)(1) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act and relevant interagency Memoranda of Agreement. The Managers note that the Section 404(b)(1) guidelines prohibit discharges into aquatic ecosystems, including wetlands, if there is a practicable alternative to the discharge. The guidelines also require appropriate and practicable steps be taken to minimize potential adverse impact upon the aquatic ecosystem. The current Memorandum of Agreement between the Corps of Engineers and the Environmental Protection Agency states that mitigation banking may be an acceptable form of compensatory mitigation depending on the specific circumstances.

The reference to "Federal law and regulations" in this paragraph includes, but is not limited to, the Endangered Species Act, the National Environmental Policy Act, the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, and any applicable regulation promulgated under such Acts.

It is the intent of the Managers that the mitigation efforts if consistent with all requirements of Federal law as described above, may include mitigation outside the acquired right of way and that funding may be made available under this section to carry out mitigation measures, prior to initiation of project construction.

It is the intent of the Managers that, to the extent practicable, mitigation of wetlands losses be undertaken through protection, restoration or creation of similar types of wetlands. For example, if a salt marsh is lost or degraded pursuant to a highway project, it is the intent of the Managers that preference would be given to the restoration of a salt marsh, rather than a fresh-water wetland.

DISADVANTAGED BUSINESS PROGRAM

House bill

Subsection (b) of Section 103 provides for the continuation of the Disadvantaged Business Enterprise program with an adjustment of the 3-year annual average gross receipts limit of $15.37 billion.

Subsection (c) authorizes the Office of the Comptroller General of the Federal Highway Administration to study the disadvantaged business program (DBE) graduation rate; the participation level of disadvantaged business enterprises with out-of-state contracts; training programs, the success rate; and performance and financial capabilities of DBE's. The Comptroller General shall transmit the report to Congress within 12 months after the date of enactment.

The Committee understands that there is no formal "graduation" from the federal highway Disadvantaged Business Enterprise (DBE) Program. In fact, the only way that a DBE is no longer eligible for the DBE program is if it exceeds the size standards, i.e.

average gross revenues over three (3) years exceed $14 million. Thus, in using the term "graduation", the Committee is referring to those DBE firms who have essentially "grown out" of and are no longer eligible for the DBE program.

Since "growing out" of the DBE Program may be highly unlikely after just three (3) years, the Committee in B(1)(IV) directs the "Study" to determine just how many years is reasonable for a DBE to either "grow out" of the Program or no longer need it. Such determination should be made in light of an investigation of barriers DBEs presently face in successfully developing within the highway construction industry.

In addition, a determination of how long it takes a non-DBE to successfully compete in the highway construction field should be determined in order to further justify a definition of what is reasonable. The Study should take into account where the non-DBE gains access to bonding, capital, technical/management expertise, skilled labor and subcontracts and whether such contractor enjoys certain advantages in such areas over the average DBE.

B(1)(VI) directs the GAO to determine to what extent prime contractors continue to use DBEs once they have "graduated" from the program. This clause is to address the possibility that prime contractors do not utilize DBE firms unless there is a legislative requirement to do so.

B(1)(VII) seeks to direct the GAO to determine not only the additional costs incurred by the Federal Highway Administration in meeting the requirement of the DBE program but also whether such costs are offset by benefits of the program. Such benefits might include: additional tax revenues paid to the state by DBE firms; unemployment tax reduction; racial and gender diversity in the highway construction field; economic developing in disadvantaged communities as a result of increased capital to DBEs; and an increase in the number of skilled subcontractors in the highway construction field, thus providing for greater competition among such contractors in the future.

To enhance the evaluation of the disadvantaged business program, the Secretary shall include in the annual reports submitted to Congress, data on the level of participation of disadvantaged business enterprises to reflect the number and dollar awards to ethnic DBE's eligible under this program and the number and dollar awards to women DBE's.

Section 119. Disadvantaged Business Enterprises

This section provides for an ongoing Disadvantaged Business Enterprise (DBE) program. The section is a continuation of section 106(c) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987, which maintained the statutory authority originated in section 105(f) of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982.

The definition of a "Small Business Concern" has been modified to include an adjustment for inflation.

PROGRAM AND PROJECT APPROVAL

House bill

The House provision directs the States to submit a program of proposed projects for the Secretary of Transportation's approval.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment repeals section 105 of title 23, United States Code relating to programs.

PRECONSTRUCTION ACTIVITIES

House bill

Section 106(c) of title 23, U.S.C. is amended to provide for items included in estimates for construction engineering for a state for a fiscal year may not exceed 15 percent of the total estimated costs of Federal-aid projects.

The Secretary is required to consult with the states and report to Congress within two years a national list of rights-of-way that may be included in a Transportation Right-of-Way Land Bank in order to preserve vital transportation corridors. The states are permitted to use funds apportioned for the National Highway System, the urban mobility, and rural mobility systems to purchase right-of-way to preserve transportation corridors. Any right-of-way acquired under the provisions of this subsection may not be converted for non-transportation purposes.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment amends 23 U.S.C. 108 to make three changes to current law. First, the period within which construction must be commenced on a right-of-way funded from the right-of-way revolving fund is increased from 10 years to 20 years.

Second, costs incurred by a State to acquire rights-of-ways in advance of Federal approval of authorization and costs incurred to acquire land necessary to preserve environmental and scenic values may be reimbursed with Federal funds if certain conditions are satisfied.

Third, to conform section 108 of title 23 with the other title 23 changes being made by this legislation, this section eliminates the requirement that right-of-way revolving fund advances be for projects "on the Federal-aid system" and authorizes the use of the fund for projects such as passenger rail facilities, magnetic levitation systems, transportation corridor preservation, and long-term transportation planning.

Conference substitute

Adopts House provision.

LETTING OF CONTRACTS

House bill

This section amends section 112(b)(2) of title 23, U.S.C. to require that any audit of a contract or subcontract awarded as a part of a Federal-aid highway project shall be performed and audited in compliance with the cost principles contained in the Federal acquisition regulations of part 31 of title 48 C.F.R. The indirect cost rates established in accordance with Federal acquisition regulations shall apply for the purposes of contract estimation, negotiation, administration, report, and contract payment and shall not be limited by administrative or de facto ceilings.

The intent of these provisions is to establish a single and uniform audit procedure for qualifications based engineering and design services.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute establishes a pilot program for the implementation of single and uniform audit procedures for qualification based engineering and design services. The Secretary of Transportation may permit up to ten states to participate in the pilot program and report to Congress any recommendations for establishing a single and uniform audit procedure for qualifications based engineering and design services within two years.

CONVICT PRODUCED MATERIALS

House bill

The bill clarifies the intent of Congress that materials produced by convict labor after July 1, 1991, may not be used for Federal-aid highway construction projects unless produced at a prison facility producing convict made materials for Federal-aid construction projects prior to July 1, 1987.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

Adopts the House provision.

PERIOD OF AVAILABILITY

House bill

The House amendment provides one-year availability of Interstate Construction funds. After October 1, 1994, these funds would be available until expended. In general, non-Interstate funds will continue to be available for four years.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides one-year availability of Interstate Construction funds. After October 1, 1994, these funds would be available until expended. Interstate Construction funds apportioned or allocated to Massachusetts on or before October 1, 1989, shall remain available until expended. Existing provisions relating to Alaska and Puerto Rico are continued.

Conference substitute

House recedes to the Senate.

FEDERAL SHARE

House bill

The House bill provides for a Federal share of 80 percent on non-Interstate Federal aid highway projects, and up to 100% for certain safety projects.

A Federal share of 90 percent is provided for Interstate construction and maintenance projects.

Senate bill

The Senate bill provides for a Federal share of up to 80 percent for all projects, with the exception of construction of new highway capacity not designed for high-occupancy vehicle use, in which case the Federal share would be up to 75 percent.

A Federal share of 90 percent is provided for Interstate construction.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute provides for a Federal share of up to 80 percent for all projects. A Federal share of 90 percent is provided for Interstate construction.

EMERGENCY RELIEF

House bill

The House extends from 90 days to 180 days the period to receive 100 percent funding for emergency repair work. The annual limitation imposed on the territories for receipt of emergency relief funds is increased from $5 million to $20 million. The Secretary is authorized to advance emergency relief funds to the State of Washington to repair a bridge damaged in November, 1990. Repayment is required if it is determined that the cause of the damage to the bridge was the result of human error. All provisions in this section will apply only to natural disaster and catastrophic failures occurring after enactment of this legislation.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provisions, with the exception of the aspect relating to the advance to the State of Washington which is substantially the same as the House bill.

GROSS VEHICLE WEIGHT RESTRICTION

House bill

Subsection (a), Continuation of Certain Longer Combination Vehicles, amends title 23 U.S.C. by adding a new subsection (d).

New subsection (d)(1) provides that except as provided in this subsection, no state may allow a longer combination vehicle to be operated on the Interstate System within its boundaries, without having its apportionment withheld under subsection (a).

New subsection (d)(2) permits a state to continue to allow to be operated on the Interstate System within its boundaries longer combination vehicles with configuration and weight if (a) the state determined on or before June 1, 1991 that such longer combination vehicles with such configuration and weight could lawfully operate on such system pursuant to a state statute or regulation in effect on June 1, 1991; and if the longer combination vehicles with such configuration and weight were in lawful operation on a regular or periodic basis (including seasonal operation or operation pursuant to a permit issued by the state; or if longer combination vehicles with such configuration and weight were in lawful operation on a regular or periodic basis on such System on or before June 1, 1991 pursuant to section 335 of the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1991

(104 Stat. 2186); and (B) if all operations of longer combination vehicles with such configuration and weight on the Interstate System continue to be subject to, at a minimum, all state statutes, regulations, limitations, and conditions (including routing-specific and configuration specific designations and all other restrictions) in effect on June 1, 1991; except that subject to guidelines established by the Secretary, the state may make minor adjustments to routing-specific designations for safety purposes and for road construction purposes.

New subsection (d)(3) provides that in addition to the vehicles which may continue to operate in the State of Wyoming under (d)(2), such state may allow commercial motor vehicle combinations not in actual use on June 1, 1991 on the relevant system and highways by enactment of a state law on or before November 3, 1992. The state must notify the Secretary of enactment of such state law within 30 days and the Secretary must publish notice of the enactment of such law in the Federal Register.

New subsection (d)(4) provides that states may further restrict or prohibit vehicles covered by this provision, however, any such restriction or prohibition must be consistent with sections 411, 412, and 416 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1992 (40 U.S.C. App. 2311, 2312, and 2316). Any such changes must be submitted to the Secretary. Such change must be published in the Federal Register by the Secretary.

New subsection (d)(5) requires that within 90 days after the effective date of this subsection (October 1, 1991) states must complete and file in writing with the Secretary a complete list of all state statutes, regulations, limitations and conditions governing the operation of these types of vehicles.

If the state fails to file within the specified time, the Secretary is given the authority to complete and file the list for the state.

The state is further required to certify in writing that the state had determined pursuant to a state statute on regulation in effect on June 1, 1991 that such longer combination vehicles could lawfully be operated on such relevant system and highways, and such combinations were in operation on a regular or periodic basis on such system and highways on or before June 1, 1991.

The Secretary is required to publish the list in the Federal Register. After publication the Secretary is required to review the certifications and may commence a proceeding, on the Secretary's own initiative or pursuant to a challenge by any person, to determine whether or not the state's certification is inaccurate. The state has the burden of proof.

If the Secretary determines the certification is inaccurate, the Secretary is required to amend the list published in the Federal Register.

This subsection also provides that no state statute or regulation shall be included on the list published by the Secretary merely on the grounds that it authorized, or could have authorized, by permit or otherwise, the operation of longer combination vehicles not in actual operation on a regular or periodic basis on or before June 1, 1991.

This subsection further provides the lists published in the Federal Register shall become final on the 30th day after publication, with the exception of adjustments made pursuant to paragraphs 2(B) 3 and 4 and subparagraph (D) of paragraph 5.

New subsection (d)(6) requires the Secretary to issue regulations establishing guidelines for states to follow in making minor adjustments for safety or road construction purposes.

New subsection (d)(7) provides that nothing in this subsection should be construed to allow operation on the relevant system or highways of any Commercial Motor Vehicle prohibited under section 411(j) of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1992 (49 U.S.C. App. 2311(j)).

New subsection (d)(8) provides that if a state allows a longer combination vehicle to be operated on the Interstate System within its boundaries in violation of this subsection, the state shall have its apportionment of funds withheld under subsection (a).

New subsection (d)(9) defines longer combination vehicle; it further requires that each state certify that it is complying with the provisions of section 127(d) of this title and section 411(j) of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1992 (49 U.S.C. 2311(j)); and makes a conforming amendment.

Subsection (b) Interstate Route 68—amends section 127, title 23 by adding at the end the following new subsection (e).

New subsection (e) provides that the single axle, tandem axle, and bridge formula limits set forth in subsection (a) shall not apply to the operation on Interstate 68 in Garrett and Allegany Counties, Maryland, of any specialized vehicle equipped with a steering axle and a tridem axle and used for hauling coal and logs if such vehicle is of a type of vehicle as was operating in such counties on U.S. 40 or 48 for such purposes in calendar year 1991.

Subsection (c) makes a conforming amendment.

Subsection (d) requires the Secretary to conduct a study pertaining to transporters of water well drilling rigs on public highways to determine if state and federal requirements place a burden on them. The report is due 2 years after date of enactment.

Subsection (e)(1) provides for a waiver from the axle weight requirements and bridge formula for firefighting equipment. The waiver is for two years, but it may be extended for one additional year. The waiver applies to the Federal requirement.

Subsection (e)(2) provides that during the period in which the waiver is in effect, the Secretary is to conduct a study on this type of equipment and its regulations by the various states, including the issuance of permits by states. The purpose is to determine whether there is a need for a change in Federal and state laws with respect to such vehicles.

Subsection (e)(3) provides that a report on the study, together with the recommendations of the Secretary, shall be submitted to Congress within 18 months of the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

Section 138. Gross vehicle weight restrictions

Summary

This section adds a new subsection (d) to section 127 of title 23, U.S.C., to limit the use of Longer Combination Vehicles (LCV's) on the Interstate System to those places, and under the conditions now imposed, where they are allowed on or before June 1, 1991.

The responsibility for enforcing compliance with the new LCV limitation lies with the Secretary of Transportation, under section 141 of title 23.

The section defines an LCV as a truck tractor with two or more trailers or semi-trailers, with a gross vehicle weight of more than 80,000 pounds.

The provision will prevent any further expansion of the use of LCV's. The operation of LCV's on the Interstate System would be illegal unless: (a) they operate under 80,000 pounds gross vehicle weight; or (b) are found by the Secretary to be in "actual, continuing lawful operation" on or before June 1, 1991.

Included in the freeze on LCV operations are those now occurring in Wyoming, pursuant to a specific authorization in the fiscal year 1991 Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act. This section makes the Wyoming provisions in the Act permanent, subject to existing operating restrictions adopted by the State of Wyoming, and consistent with axle and bridge formula specifications in section 127 of title 23, United States Code.

Conference substitute

This section amends section 127 of title 23 by adding new subsections, (d) and (e), to prohibit the expansion of the use of longer combination vehicles on the Interstate System.

New subsection (d)(1) allows only those LCV configurations that were authorized by State statute or regulation and in lawful "regular or periodic" use on or before June 1, 1991. To be considered "regular or periodic" use, operations must have occurred at recurring intervals over a period of time. Moreover, periodic operations must have occurred on an intermittent but consistent basis. Use of an LCV on only one or two occasions pursuant to a special permit would not provide a basis for satisfactorily certifying grandfather rights or operations under this subsection. Seasonal LCV operations, if occurring on a recurring basis, would be allowed to continue. As specified in both the Senate and House provisions, certain LCV operations in the State of Wyoming, other than those that were in regular, periodic operation on or before June 1, 1991, would be allowed, if so directed by the State's voters not later than November 3, 1992. Additionally, limited exceptions to the restrictions of this subsection are provided for certain operations in the States of Ohio and Alaska. Other than those specifically referenced, no additional LCV operations that would otherwise be prohibited under this subsection may be allowed.

New subsection (d)(2) clarifies that States retain the ability to further restrict the use of LCV's, above and beyond the limitations imposed by this subsection. Any such restrictions must be consistent with applicable provisions of title 49. Under the terms of regulations to be promulgated by the Secretary, States are given the ability to make minor adjustments to LCV use of a temporary and emergency nature. The scope of such adjustments is intended to be temporary and very limited; for example, in the case of a bridge failure that would require the re-routing of traffic, including LCV's, to highways on which LCV operations would otherwise be prohibited.

New subsection (d)(3) establishes procedures for determining what specific operations are to be allowed. States are required to submit to the Secretary a list of all information pertaining to LCV use and limitations, including routing-specific and configuration-specific designations and all other restrictions, not later than 60 days after enactment. That information is to be published by the Secretary, and reviewed by the Secretary for accuracy. This review is not intended to provide for a rollback of lawful operations; it is intended to confirm that operations listed by the States were, on or before June 1, 1991, authorized by State statute or regulation, and that they were in regular or periodic operation on or before June 1, 1991. The list of this information, with necessary revisions, is to be published as final not later than 180 days after the date of enactment. Requirements are also established for review and correction of the final list. The provision makes it clear that, in order to be allowed to continue, LCV operations not only must have been authorized by State statute or regulation, but also in lawful regular or periodic operation on or before June 1, 1991.

New subsection (d)(4) defines longer combination vehicles.

New subsection 127(e) allows for the continued operation of certain vehicles in Garrett and Allegany Counties, Maryland.

Subsection (e) provides for a two-year exemption from axle weight limitations and the bridge formula for fire-fighting vehicles. The Secretary is directed to conduct a study to address, long-term, issues involving such vehicles.

Subsection (f) retains identical provisions from the House and Senate bills pertaining to Montana-Canada trade.

Subsection (g) retains the House provisions requiring a study of water well drilling rigs.

CONTROL OF OUTDOOR ADVERTISING

House bill

Subsection (a) authorizes a state to use any Federal-aid highway funds apportioned to the state for the removal of nonconforming signs and the payment of just compensation in accordance with title 23, section 131.

Subsection (b) requires the owner of an illegal sign to remove it within 90 days from enactment of this Act. If the owner of an illegal sign does not remove it within the 90 day period, the state shall remove the illegal sign and assess the costs for removal to the owner of the illegal sign.

Subsection (c) prohibits the erection of any new sign along any highway on the Interstate and Primary system (as in existence on June 1, 1991) that is designated as a scenic byway under a state scenic byway program. This subsection makes it clear that control of outdoor advertising on scenic byways along the Interstate, Primary System and the National Highway System shall be in accordance with title 23, Section 131. This subsection also redefines the Primary System for purposes of application of the Highway Beautification Act as the Primary System in existence on June 1, 1991.

Subsection (d) is intended to avoid confusion among the States in the implementation of these amendments to the Highway Beautification Act. This section makes it clear that the States, in implementing these new provisions, should ensure that signs displays and devices that have received state certification under the existing structure of federal-state agreements and state laws implementing section 131 of title 23 United States Code are not affected in any manner.

Senate amendment

The Senate Amendment has no comparable provision. But the Senate does make funding under the newly defined "Transportation Enhancement Activities" eligible for the removal of outdoor advertising.

Conference substitute

Subsection (a) authorizes a state to use any Federal-aid highway funds apportioned to the state for the removal of nonconforming signs and the payment of just compensation in conformance with title 23, section 131. This provision also applies to signs located along Interstate and Primary system roads designated as Scenic Byways by the states.

Subsection (b) requires the owner of an illegal sign to remove it within 90 days from enactment of this act. If the owner of an illegal sign does not remove it within the 90 day period, the state shall remove the illegal sign and assess the costs for removal to the owner of the illegal sign.

Subsection (c) intends that under the Conference agreement, no signs shall be erected on scenic byways on the Interstate or primary system as those systems are in effect on the date of enactment of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991.

Subsection (d) is intended to avoid confusion among the States in the implementation of these amendments to the Highway Beautification Act. This section makes it clear that the States, in implementing these new provisions, should ensure that signs displays and devices that have received state certification under the existing structure of federal-state agreements and state laws implementing section 131 of title 23 United States Code are not affected in any manner.

METROPOLITAN PLANNING

House bill

The House Bill revises and strengthens the metropolitan planning process. The general objective of the planning process is to develop transportation facilities that will function as an intermodal transportation system giving emphasis to those facilities which serve important national and regional transportation functions such as moving goods within urbanized areas and to distant markets, enhancing productivity and economic competitiveness, enabling persons to move quickly to and from their homes, jobs, and other destinations, providing access to international border crossings, and connecting roadways within the area with roadways outside the area.

Each urbanized area over 50,000 population is required to designate a metropolitan planning organization to carry out the required planning process. Existing MPOs are treated as continuing and are not required to be redesignated.

The planning process for an area is required to cover the existing urbanized area plus the area expected to be urbanized within the planning forecast period. In addition, the covered area may include the entire metropolitan statistical area or consolidated metropolitan statistical area on an area designated as nonattainment for transportation-related pollutants.

The planning process will include both a long-range plan and a transportation improvement program (TIP). In developing the long range plan and the transportation improvement program, the MPO shall provide affected parties a reasonable opportunity to comment on the proposed plan. The TIP is prepared cooperatively with the state and includes projects proposed for funding under Title 23 and the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 that are consistent with the long-range plan and conform to the applicable clean air state implementation plan in nonattainment areas for transportation related pollutants. A project can only be included in a TIP if it can reasonably be expected to be funded within the time period contemplated for completion of the project. The TIP must be revised at least every two years.

Nothing added by this section of the House bill or the section on statewide planning changes any requirement of the Clean Air Act.

The bill lists a series of factors to be considered in developing plans and programs. In summary these include:

- (1) efficient use of existing transportation facilities;
- (2) energy conservation goals;
- (3) social, economic and environmental effects;

- (4) Clean Air Act requirements;
- (5) methods to reduce and prevent traffic congestion;
- (6) methods to expand and enhance transit use;
- (7) effect on land use and land development;
- (8) transportation needs identified by management systems;
- (9) innovative methods financing;
- (10) preservation of transportation corridors;
- (11) long range needs;
- (12) methods to enhance efficient movement of commercial vehicles;
- (13) life cycle costs in design and engineering of bridges, tunnels, and pavements.

In addition to any other requirements, urbanized areas over 200,000 in population must develop plans and programs in cooperation with the state and affected transit operators. Also these urbanized areas must identify methods to reduce congestion that are appropriate for the size of the area and the complexity of the transportation problems in the area. In nonattainment areas, the methods must be coordinated with the development of the state implementation plan for the Clean Air Act.

Finally, the bill provides for the establishment within DOT of an advisory committee to review the metropolitan planning procedures and their relationship with the state planning process.

Senate amendment

Amends 23 U.S.C. 134, "Transportation Planning in Certain Urban Areas. The term "certain urban areas" (urban areas of more than 50,000 population) is replaced with the term "metropolitan areas" and the title of Section 134 is now "Metropolitan Planning". Metropolitan area boundaries are determined by the metropolitan planning organization and the Governor, and as a minimum must encompass the existing urbanized area and the area expected to be urbanized within the forecast period. The metropolitan area may encompass the entire Metropolitan Statistical Area/Consolidated Metropolitan Statistical Area. For areas designated as non-attainment for ozone or carbon monoxide, the boundaries must be the boundaries for the non-attainment area unless otherwise provided by the metropolitan planning organization.

The requirement that a metropolitan planning organization (MPO) be designated for each urbanized area over 50,000 population by agreement among the local units of general purpose government and the Governor is continued. Designations made prior to enactment remain valid and redesignation is not required.

The current requirement for a continuing, cooperative, and comprehensive urban transportation planning process in all urbanized areas over 50,000 population is continued with modifications to strengthen the planning process, particularly for metropolitan areas with a metropolitan statistical area (MSA) population of more than 250,000 and in areas classified as non-attainment for ozone or carbon monoxide under the Clean Air Act. Increased emphasis is placed on preserving and making more efficient use of existing transportation facilities; consistency with energy conservation programs, goals and objectives; congestion relief; Clean Air Act requirements; effect of transportation policy decisions on land use and development, and the provisions of land use and development plans; use of innovative financing mechanisms including value capture, tolls, and congestion pricing; programming of transportation enhancement activities; development of transportation improvement programs that are consistent with anticipated funding sources; and establishment of project priorities for implementing the transportation plan.

Transportation improvement programs (TIP) are developed by the MPO, in cooperation with the State and relevant transit operators, and must include all projects to be funded under Title 23 and the Urban Mass Transportation Act. The TIP must be consistent with the long range transportation plan and in nonattainment areas for ozone and carbon monoxide conform with the applicable State implementation plan developed pursuant to the Clean Air Act. The TIP must be approved by the MPO and the Governor, and be updated at least every two years. For metropolitan areas of 250,000 population or less, projects to be funded (programmed) with Title 23 funds are selected from the TIP by State in cooperation with the MPO.

In metropolitan areas with a MSA population of more than 250,000, a congestion management system that provides for the effective management of new and existing transportation facilities through travel demand reduction and operational management strategies must be developed through the required technical process. In nonattainment areas for ozone or carbon monoxide where a transportation element of the State Implementation Plan is required by the Clean Air Act, the congestion management system must be coordinated with it. Further in non-attainment areas for ozone or carbon monoxide, Federal funds cannot be used for any highway project that provides a significant increase in carrying capacity for single occupant vehicles unless the project is part of the congestion management system. The conformity review process for transportation plans, programs, and projects funded under Title 23 or the Urban Mass Transportation Act in nonattainment areas must take into account any lack of progress in implementing projects in accordance established priorities and take into consideration the emissions expected from all regionally significant transportation projects regardless of the source of funding. Although emissions from all regionally significant projects will be taken into account, any finding of non-conformity will only delay Federally assisted projects.

In areas over 250,000 population, all projects to be funded under Title 23 (except Bridge and Interstate Maintenance projects) or the Urban Mass Transportation Act must be selected by the MPO and the Governor, and must be consistent with the TIP including the priorities established in the TIP. Bridge and Interstate Maintenance projects are selected by the State in cooperation with the MPO.

In areas over 250,000 population, the Secretary must assure that the requirements of this section are adequately carried out in each metropolitan area and certify the process in each area on annual basis. If at any time after October 1, 1992, the Secretary does not certify the process for an area, the obligation authority for Surface Transportation Program that is attributed to the area automatically lapses and is redistributed to other States.

One percent of the funds authorized for programs under Sections 104 and 144, except for the Interstate Construction and Interstate Substitution programs, is set aside for metropolitan planning. The State must distribute the metropolitan planning funds to MPOs by a formula approved by the Secretary which considers population, status of planning, attainment of air quality standards, metropolitan area transportation needs and other factors necessary to provide an appropriate distribution of funds to carry out applicable statutory requirements. Metropolitan planning funds made available to a MPO and not needed to carry out the provisions of this section may be made available to the State to carry out Statewide transportation planning.

Conference substitute

The Conference Bill incorporates selected provisions from the Highway & Transit Titles of the Senate with the selected provisions of the House Bill to revise and strengthen the metropolitan planning process.

Metropolitan planning organizations are to be designated in each urbanized area over 50,000 population by agreement among the local units of general purpose government and the Governor is modified to require the agreement of local officials representing at least 75 percent of the affected population (including central cities or cities as defined by the Bureau of Census), or as otherwise provided under state or local procedures. All designations whether under this provision or previous provisions of law remain in effect until revoked by agreement between the Governor and local units of general purpose governments representing at least 75 percent of the affected population. If the Governor and local units of government representing 75% of the affected population decide they want to redesignate the metropolitan planning organization, the existing metropolitan planning organization will remain in effect until a new metropolitan planning organization is designated by the Governor and local officials representing 75 percent of the affected population or the existing metropolitan planning organization is revoked by the Governor and local officials representing 75 percent of the population. A special provision is included to allow metropolitan planning organizations to reorganize under certain conditions that pertain to the Chicago and Los Angeles regions.

The managers recognize that the Lake Tahoe Basin was recognized by Congress in P.L. 96-551 as an ecologically fragile area of national significance. The Federal ownership of lands in this California/Nevada Bi-State Basin is approximately 73% and MPO status for purposes of federal transit and transportation funding and assistance is appropriate.

For redesignations or reorganizations of metropolitan planning organizations in transportation management areas subsequent to enactment where the proposed membership varies from the current membership, the metropolitan planning organization must include local elected officials, officials of agencies that administer or operate major modes of transportation in the metropolitan area (including all agencies included as of June 1, 1991), and appropriate State officials. However, the requirement is not intended to interfere with any authority of public agencies with multimodal transportation responsibility under State law to develop plans and programs for adoption by the metropolitan planning organization.

Metropolitan area boundaries are determined by the metropolitan planning organization and the Governor, and as a minimum must encompass the existing urbanized area and the area expected to be urbanized within the forecast period. The metropolitan area may encompass the entire Metropolitan Statistical Area/Consolidated Metropolitan Statistical Area. For areas designated as non-attainment for ozone or carbon monoxide, the boundaries must be the boundaries for the non-attainment area unless otherwise provided by the metropolitan planning organization and the Governor.

The planning process in metropolitan areas must as a minimum consider the following items:

- (1) efficient use of existing transportation facilities;
- (2) energy conservation goals;
- (3) methods to reduce and prevent traffic congestion;
- (4) effect on land use and land development;
- (5) programming of expenditures for transportation enhancement activities;
- (6) effects of all transportation projects regardless of source of funds;
- (7) international border crossings and access to major traffic generators such as ports, airports, intermodal transportation facilities, and major freight distribution routes;
- (8) connectivity of roads within the metropolitan area with roads outside the metropolitan area;
- (9) transportation needs identified by management systems;
- (10) preservation of transportation corridors;
- (11) methods to enhance efficient movement of commercial vehicles;
- (12) life cycle costs in design and engineering of bridges, tunnels, and pavement;
- (13) social, economic and environmental effects.

Each MPO is required to prepare and update a long range transportation plan for its metropolitan area in accordance with a schedule established by the Secretary. The long range plan must identify transportation facilities that should function as an integrated metropolitan transportation system, giving emphasis to those facilities that serve important national and regional transportation functions. In nonattainment areas for transportation related pollutants, the metropolitan planning organization must coordinate the development of the long range plan with the process for development of transportation measures of the State Implementation Plan required by the Clean Air Act. The long range plan must be made available for public review prior to approval.

Transportation improvement programs (TIP) are developed by the MPO, in cooperation with the State and relevant transit operators, and must include all projects to be funded under Title 23 and the Federal Transit Act. The TIP must be approved by the MPO and the Governor, and be updated at least every two years. The TIP must be made available for public review prior to approval. In areas that are not designated as transportation management areas, projects are selected by the State in cooperation with the metropolitan planning organization from the approved TIP.

For urbanized areas not designated as transportation management areas, the Secretary may prescribe abbreviated requirements for the development of transportation plans and programs. However, the Secretary may not prescribe abbreviated requirements for any area designated as nonattainment for ozone or carbon monoxide under the Clean Air Act.

Urbanized areas over 200,000 population must be designated as transportation management areas. In addition to the general requirements for all urbanized areas, transportation management areas must develop a transportation management system that provides for effective management of new and existing transportation facilities through travel demand and operational management strategies. In transportation management areas all projects funded under Title 23 (except for National Highway System, Bridge or Interstate Maintenance projects) and the Urban Mass Transportation Act are selected by the metropolitan planning organization in consultation with the State. National Highway System, Bridge and Interstate Maintenance projects are selected by the State in cooperation with the metropolitan planning organization.

The Secretary must assure that the requirements of this section are adequately carried out in each transportation management area and certify the process in each transportation management area at least every 3 years. If an area is not certified, the Secretary may withhold, in whole or part, the apportionments under the Surface Transportation Program attributed to the metropolitan area.

In areas classified as nonattainment for ozone or carbon monoxide, Federal funds may not be used for any highway project that will significantly increase the carrying capacity for single occupant vehicles unless the project is part of or consistent with the approved congestion management system.

The Secretary shall prescribe an appropriate phase-in schedule for any new requirements under this section.

One percent of the funds authorized for programs under Sections 104 and 144, except for the Interstate Construction and Interstate Substitution programs, is set aside for metropolitan planning. The State must distribute the metropolitan planning funds to MPOs by a formula approved by the Secretary which considers population, status of planning, attainment of air quality standards, metropolitan area transportation needs and other factors necessary to provide an appropriate distribution of funds to carry out applicable statutory requirements. Metropolitan planning funds made available to a MPO and not needed to carry out the provisions of this section may be made available to the State to carry out Statewide transportation planning.

STATEWIDE PLANNING

House bill

In carrying out statewide transportation planning, the state is required to prepare a long-range plan and a transportation improvement program, taking into consideration the factors listed for the metropolitan planning process. Specifically, the state is required to incorporate, coordinate, and reconcile the plans and programs developed under the metropolitan planning process, provide for comprehensive planning in areas of the state which are not urbanized areas, consult with Indian tribal governments, and establish management and traffic monitoring systems.

Senate amendment

This section would establish a requirement for a statewide transportation planning process in Section 135 of Title 23. Under this section the States would be required to have a Bridge Management System, a Pavement Management System, a Safety Management System, and a Congestion Management System developed in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary. A State that certifies to the satisfaction of the Secretary that no congestion exists or is expected to exist will not be required to have a congestion management system. These systems are currently in various stages of development. Full development is expected to occur in stages with final implementation by 1995. If a State does not have approved management systems by 1995, the Secretary may: (1) withhold project approvals under 23 U.S.C. 106 and (2) decline acceptance of the State's certification and notice under the 23 U.S.C. 133(c)(2). Each State must also have a Traffic Monitoring System to provide data determined necessary under Title 23. Guidelines and requirements will be established by the Secretary.

The Statewide transportation planning process must take into account the required management systems; Federal, State or local energy use goals, objectives, programs or requirements; and valid state or local development or land use plans, programs, or requirements. The process must provide for comprehensive surface transportation planning for non-metropolitan areas and the integration of any non-metropolitan area plan with any metropolitan area plans. In non-attainment areas for ozone and carbon monoxide, the process must be coordinated with development of the transportation portion on any state implementation plan (SIP) required under the Clean Air Act (CAA) and must provide for compliance with any relevant requirements of the SIP. Any State containing a non-attainment area for ozone or carbon monoxide must develop a State transportation plan and update it at least every two years. In addition to the general requirements for a State transportation plan, the plans in non-attainment areas must incorporate without change metropolitan area plans and provide for coordination in the development of the plan with the SIP.

The funds set aside under 23 U.S.C. 307(c)(1) are available to carry out the requirements of this section.

Conference substitute

The conference Bill incorporates selected provisions from the Senate Bill with the selected provisions of the House Bill to establish a statewide multimodal transportation planning process for the development of transportation plans and programs for all areas of the state. The planning process must consider all modes of transportation and must be continuing, cooperative, and comprehensive to the degree appropriate based on the complexity of the transportation problems.

In developing the transportation plan, the State must provide an opportunity for public involvement and consult with Indian tribal governments having jurisdiction over lands within the State. In developing the transportation improvement program, the State must provide an opportunity for public involvement and cooperate with the metropolitan planning organizations. The transportation improvement programs must include all projects proposed for funding under title 23 or the Federal Transit Act, and must be reviewed and approved at least biennially.

The States would be required to have a Bridge Management System, a Pavement Management System, a Safety Management System, a Congestion Management System, a Transit Management System, and an Intermodal Management System developed in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary. A State that certifies to the satisfaction of the Secretary that no congestion exists or is expected to exist will not be required to have a congestion management system. These systems are currently in various stages of development. Full development is expected to occur in stages with final implementation by 1995. If a State does not have approved management systems, the Secretary may: (1) withhold project approvals under 23 U.S.C. 106 and (2) decline acceptance of the State's certification and notice under the 23 U.S.C. 133(c)(2). Each State must also have a Traffic Monitoring System to provide data determined necessary under Title 23. Guidelines and requirements will be established by the Secretary.

The Statewide transportation planning process must provide for or take into account:

- (1) transportation needs identified by management systems;
- (2) plans for bicycle transportation and pedestrian walkways in the various areas of the State to the degree appropriate;
- (3) energy conservation goals;
- (4) international border crossings and access to major traffic generators such as ports, airports, intermodal transportation facilities, and major freight distribution routes;
- (5) comprehensive surface transportation planning for nonmetropolitan areas through a process that includes consultation with local elected officials;
- (6) metropolitan plan developed under section 134;
- (7) connectivity between metropolitan areas within the State and with metropolitan areas in other States;
- (8) recreational travel and tourism;
- (9) any State plan developed pursuant to the Federal Water Pollution Control Act;
- (10) Clean Air Act requirements in non-attainment areas for transportation related pollutants;
- (11) transportation system management and investment strategies to make efficient use of existing transportation facilities;
- (12) social, economic and environmental effects;
- (13) methods to reduce and prevent traffic congestion;
- (14) methods to expand and enhance transit use;
- (15) effect on land use and land development;
- (16) transportation needs identified through use of the management systems required by this section;
- (17) innovative methods of financing;
- (18) preservation of transportation corridors;
- (19) long range needs;
- (20) methods to enhance efficient movement of commercial vehicles;
- (21) life cycle costs in design and engineering of bridges, tunnels, and pavements.

The Secretary shall prescribe an appropriate phase-in schedule for the requirements of this section.

The funds set aside under 23 U.S.C. 307(c)(1) are available to carry out the requirements of this section.

INDIAN NONDISCRIMINATION

House bill

Section 140 of Title 23 is amended to make Indian tribal governments eligible for grants to develop, conduct and implement highway construction training and skills programs.

Section 140(d) is amended to authorize states to extend Indian employment preference programs to projects near reservations. Currently, such programs are limited to Indians living on or near reservations and to projects on Indian reservation roads.

Senate amendment

Conference substitute

Adopts the House provision.

PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION

House bill

The House amendment allows for the improved access between intercity and rural bus service.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

BRIDGE REPLACEMENT AND REHABILITATION

House bill

The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Interior is required to conduct an inventory of Indian reservation and park bridges; classify them according to serviceability, safety, and essentiality for public use; assign a priority for replacement or rehabilitation; and determine the cost of replacing or rehabilitating each bridge.

Bridge painting and the application of calcium magnesium acetate is made an eligible cost under the bridge program.

The Federal share is 80 percent.

There is authorized $ million per fiscal year for each of the fiscal years 1992 through 1996 for the bridge discretionary program. Of that amount, $ million per fiscal year is set-aside for timber bridges.

The provisions of the off-system bridge program are extended to permit the cost of bridge painting and the application of calcium magnesium acetate to off system bridges.

No less than 1 percent of the amount apportioned to each state in bridge funds shall be used on Indian reservation bridges. The funds will be deducted in advance of each state's apportionment and allocated to the Secretary of the Interior for expenditure. The Secretary may reduce the set-aside with the concurrence of the Secretary of the Interior after consultation with the state and tribal governments if it is determined that there are inadequate needs to justify such expenditure. The non-Federal share for Indian reservation bridge projects may be paid from amounts made available from the Indian reservation roads program.

Subsection (g) protects any previously apportioned bridge funds.

Funds are authorized and allocated for high cost bridge projects.

Senate amendment

This section amends Section 144 of Title 23, United States Code. The Federal share payable is retained at 80% for bridge projects where rehabilitation or replacement is for structural reasons. It is also retained for replaced or rehabilitated bridges where additional capacity is needed for other than single occupant vehicles. Where expanded capacity is proposed by either replacement or rehabilitation for use by single occupant vehicles, the federal share is 75 percent. For example, an existing two-lane bridge could be rehabilitated or replaced by a new two-lane bridge with a Federal share of 80 percent. However, if an additional third lane primarily available to single occupant vehicles is constructed, the federal share for the third lane would be 75 percent. Pay back provisions are included for those cases where a State uses 80 percent Federal funding for a bridge, but later converts the bridge for use by single occupant vehicles. The Secretary is to develop the criteria for determining the appropriate Federal share of bridge replacement or rehabilitated bridge projects.

Bridge painting and seismic retrofit is made an allowable expense for bridges eligible for bridge program funding. The discretionary bridge program is repealed.

States need to fully consider the environmental effects and long-term economic costs associated with traditional highway and bridge maintenance and safety practices such as the use of road salt in winter. To encourage States to adopt environmentally safer highway maintenance practices, calcium magnesium acetate (CMA) is included as an eligible expense under the Bridge program. This action is a continuation of Section 173 of Public Law 100-17. This provision should encourage States to use CMA on a limited number of bridges in order to extend their useful life, and to protect the surrounding environment.

Level-of-service criteria are to be established for the bridge program by January 1, 1992. The level-of-service criteria are target values against which bridge characteristics are to be compared. The values vary by highway system or functional classification. Using the comparison, bridges can be categorized as needing or not needing rehabilitation or replacement. The bridges thus categorized are those eligible for bridge program funds, and are the bridges used in apportioning these funds to the States. The bill also permits the States to expend up to 35 percent of Federal bridge funds on bridges that are not in the level-of-service inventory.

Conference substitute

The Conference Substitute adopts the House provisions with an amendment that permits seismic retrofit as an eligible expense for bridges.

SPEED LIMIT

House bill

Section 130 of the House bill establishes new compliance requirements to reflect the higher risk associated with higher speeds, road design, and enforcement capabilities. The House bill also modifies the current sanction requirement.

Under the House bill, the Secretary is required to transfer not less than 1 percent and not more than 5 percent of a state's National Highway System funds to its apportionment under section 402 of this title if the percentage of vehicles in such state (A) on 55 mph Interstate highways are traveling at speeds in excess of the posted speed limit plus 5 miles per hour exceed 50%, (B) on 55 mph Interstate highways are traveling at speeds in excess of the speed limit plus 10 miles per hour exceeds 30 percent, (C) on 65 mph Interstate highways are traveling at speeds in excess of the posted speed limit plus 5 miles per hour exceeds 35 percent, (D) on 65 mph Interstate highways are traveling at speeds in excess of the speed limit plus 20 miles per hour exceeds 20 percent, (E) on non-interstate highways are traveling at speeds in excess of the posted speed limit plus 5 miles per hour exceeds 30 percent, or (F) on non-interstate highways are traveling at speeds in excess of the posted speed limit plus 10 miles per hour exceeds 15%.

Fifty percent of any funds transferred to Section 402 must be used for speed enforcement activities and public education and information. At the request of a state, the Secretary may waive this requirement for any fiscal year quarter after a fiscal year quarter the state is found to be in compliance with this section.

The bill also codifies the current provisions that permit states to raise the speed limit up to 65 mph on certain non-Interstate highways built to Interstate standards and located outside of an urbanized area. In addition, it requires the collection of uniform data on 55 mph and 65 mph highways and requires the Secretary to issue regulations that devices and equipment are placed at locations on maximum speed limit highways on a scientifically random basis which takes into account the relative risk of motor vehicle accidents as they relate to speed and class of highways.

The House bill would further transfer the administration of this section and appropriate Federal Highway Administration personnel to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Senate amendment

Section 139(a) repeals 23 U.S.C. 141(a), which requires each state to certify annually that it is enforcing all speed limits on public highways posted at the national maximum speed limit and requires the Secretary to withhold project approval in any state that fails to certify accordingly. The language of 23 U.S.C. 141(a) is incorporated in 23 U.S.C. 154 as rewritten in subsection (b) of this section.

Subsection (b) rewrites 23 U.S.C. 154, the national maximum speed limit law. As rewritten, section 154:

(1) continues the current national maximum speed limit of 55 mph on public highways other than Interstate highways located outside of an urbanized area and 65 mph on Interstate highways located outside of an urbanized area;

(2) codifies the current permission for states to raise the speed limit up to 65 mph on certain non-Interstate highways built to Interstate standards and located outside of an urbanized area.

(3) requires each state to collect and submit to the Secretary annual speed-related data on public highways posted at or above 55 mph (current data collection and compliance requirements apply only to highways posted at 55 mph);

(4) incorporates the language of the current section 141(a) prohibiting the approval of state highway construction projects in a state that fails to certify that it is enforcing all speed limits on public highways; and

(5) repeals, by omission, current provisions of the national maximum speed limit law that: (a) require states to submit to the Secretary compliance data for a 12-month period on the percentage of motor vehicles exceeding 55 mph on their public highways posted at 55, and (b) establish a process under which a state could lose up to 10 percent of its non-Interstate highway construction funds for the following fiscal year if the state's 12-month compliance data show that more than 50 percent of its motorists exceeded the posted 55 mph limit;

Conference substitute

The Conference Substitute modifies Sec. 154(e), Title 23 U.S.C., to provide that speed limit data to be reported annually to the Secretary include, but not be limited to, data on citations, travel speeds and the posted speed limit and the design characteristics of roads from which such travel speed data are gathered. The Substitute also adopts the House language regarding the collection of data and the adoption of regulations by the Secretary on the placement of monitoring devices.

The House provision relating to enforcement is amended by requiring the Secretary, one year after the enactment of this Act, to publish in the Federal Register a proposed rulemaking to establish speed limit enforcement requirements which shall devise a formula for determining compliance with the requirements of the rulemaking (1) which assigns greater weight for violations of such speed limits in proportion to the amount by which the speed of the motor vehicle exceeds the speed limit and (2) which differentiates between the type of road on which speed limit violations occur. In developing the formula, the Secretary is required to consider factors relating to (1) the enforcement of efforts made by the states, data concerning fatalities and serious injuries occurring on roads posted at 55 mph or higher, and (2) any other measure of speed enforcement or speed-related highway safety trends which the Secretary deems appropriate. The Conference Substitute applies the same reprogramming provision and Secretarial discretion with regard to the percentage transferred as in the House bill.

The Secretary must publish the final form of the prescribed regulations in the Federal Register within 60 days after publication of the proposed rulemaking. Such final rule shall take effect no later than 12 months after such publication.

MINIMUM ALLOCATION

House bill

The House bill increases the minimum allocation level from 85 percent to 90 percent, i.e. it assures that each State's share of the Federal-aid program (calculated based on that year's apportionment and prior year's allocations) will not be less than 90 percent of its relative share of contributions to the Highway Trust Fund. The base upon which this calculation takes place includes all Federal-aid programs with the exception of forest highways, Indian reservation roads, parkways and park roads, highway related safety grants, non-construction safety grants, motor carrier safety grants, and projects from either this Act or the 1987 STURAA.

Further, the House bill provides a separate guaranteed minimum for the projects contained in the House bill.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision, thus continuing minimum allocation as in current law.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute retains the minimum allocation concept, increased to a 90 percent level, although the base upon which it is calculated is changed. That base includes apportionments for interstate construction, interstate substitution, interstate maintenance, bridge and surface transportation programs as well as prior years discretionary allocations derived from these programs.

BICYCLE TRANSPORTATION AND PEDESTRIAN WALKWAYS

House bill

Section 132 amends Section 217 of title 23, United States Code to provide that, with the approval of the Secretary, a state may obligate its Rural and Urban Mobility and Flexible funds to construct pedestrian walkways and bicycle transportation facilities on any Federal-aid highway, except on the Interstate system. No bicycle projects may be carried out that are not principally for transportation rather than recreational purposes. Also with the Secretary's approval, a state may obligate its national highway system funds to construct bicycle transportation facilities on land adjacent to any National Highway System highway other than on the Interstate system. Funds authorized for forest highways, forest and public lands development, roads and trails, park roads, parkways, Indian reservation roads and public lands highways shall be available for the construction of pedestrian walkways and bicycle transportation facilities in conjunction with such trails, roads, highways and parkways at the discretion of the department which administers the funds.

States shall use urban and rural mobility and flexible apportionments to fund a bicycle and pedestrian coordination position with the state department of transportation. The coordinator shall promote and facilitate increased use of nonmotorized modes of transportation, development of pedestrian and bicycle facilities, public education, and promotional and safety programs for using the facilities. At least 50 percent of the coordinator's position shall be dedicated to coordinating and developing such programs and facilities.

On Federally assisted bridge deck replacement or rehabilitation projects and on highways which are not fully access controlled, where bicycles are permitted to operate at each end, accommodations for bicycles may be included in the project if the Secretary determines it is safe to do so and it can be provided at a reasonable cost. Pedestrian walkways and bicycle transportation facilities shall be located and designed as part of an overall plan with due consideration for safety and contiguous routes, and no motorized vehicles shall be permitted on pedestrian walkways and trails except for maintenance purposes or when snow conditions and state or local regulation permit, motorized wheelchairs.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment continues existing law with conforming amendments. It also includes facilities for pedestrian and bicycles as an eligible item for funding under transportation enhancement activities.

Conference substitute

The Conference Substitute adopts the House provision.

INDIAN RESERVATION ROADS

House bill

The House bill provides for 2% of IRR funding under the Federal Lands Highway Program to be allocated to tribes applying for transportation planning pursuant to the provisions of the Indian Self Determination and Education Assistance Act. In addition, the bill directs the Secretary to conduct a study related to Indian reservation roads.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill also provides for 2% of IRR funding to tribes applying for transportation planning.

Conference substitute

The managers have agreed to the House language with the exception that the 2% of the funding provided has been amended to provide "up to" 2% is provided.

FEDERAL LANDS

Indian Reservation Roads

House bill

The House amendment directs the Secretary to conduct a study on differences between the use of funds from the Highway Trust Fund on Indian reservation roads and other federal-aid highways to identify inequities. The study results, including legislative and administrative recommendations, shall be sent to Congress within one year.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill contains no comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The Senate recedes to the House.

House bill

The House bill provides that two percent of each year's Indian Reservation Roads funds be allocated to tribal governments applying for transportation planning pursuant to the Indian Self-Determination and Assistance Act.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill provides an identical provision.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute amends the provision for "up to" two percent for such purposes so allocated amount is based on actual applications by tribal governments. Tribes not applying for planning grants under the Self Determination Act will continue to receive such services from the Bureau of Indian Affairs administrative cost account.

Program Structure

House bill

The House bill contains no comparable provisions.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment restructures the federal land category by consolidating the forest roads and nation-wide discretionary account into a new public lands highway program. Sixty-six percent of the public lands highway account shall be allocated to the Forest Service regional offices for use in 41 states based on forest highway criteria. The remaining 34 percent shall be allocated by the Secretary based on national competition for other forest or public land highways.

The Senate amendment qualifies each class of Federal land highways for transportation planning for tourism and recreational travel and makes certain costs such as interpretative signage and rest areas eligible cost items.

The Senate amendment authorizes the Secretary to transfer appropriate funds to the Secretary of Interior to cover road-related administrative costs of the Bureau of Land Management in connection with public lands highways.

The Senate amendment directs the Secretary of Transportation, Interior and Agriculture to develop appropriate transportation planning procedures, and safety, bridge and pavement management systems for funds funded under the Federal Lands Highway Program.

CONFERENCE SUBSTITUTE

The Conference recedes to the Senate provisions.

Funding levels

House bill

The House amendment authorizes $268 million for forest roads, $193 million for public lands highways, $292 for parks and parkways, and $1,028 for Indian Reservation Roads over six years.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment authorizes $1 billion for the new consolidated public land highways program, $600 million for parks and parkways, and $1 billion for Indian reservation roads.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute provides $1 billion for the public lands highways, $486 million for parks and parkways and $1.114 for Indian reservation roads.

MANAGEMENT SYSTEMS

House bill

The House bill requires the Secretary to issue regulations within one year for the development, establishment, and implementation of six (6) management systems: pavement, bridges, safety, congestion, public transportation, and intermodal. Beginning with FY 96, the Secretary may withhold 10 percent of funds apportioned under Title 23 and the UMTA Act of 1964 for failure to implement and certify implementation of each system in the preceding year. Costs to develop and establish these systems are eligible uses of Federal-aid apportionments.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment, as part of the Statewide planning process, requires the States to have systems comparable to those of the House bill with the exception of public transportation and intermodal. The penalty for failure to establish approved systems, at the discretion of the Secretary, withholding project approvals and/or decline acceptance for the certification necessary as part of the Surface Transportation Program.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute adopts the House provision requiring the Secretary to withhold up to 10 percent of the funds apportioned to the states that have adopted and implemented management systems.

LIMITATION ON DISCOVERY OF CERTAIN REPORTS AND SURVEYS

House bill

This section clarifies that no report, survey schedule list, or data compiled for the purpose of complying with Section 130 and 144 of Title 23, United States Code, or for developing any highway safety construction project which may be implemented with Federal-aid highway funds shall be subject to discovery or admitted into evidence in a Federal or state court proceeding.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

Adopts the House Provision.

BUY AMERICA

House bill

This section clarifies the intent of Congress to include products manufactured with iron under the Buy America provisions.

The Secretary of Transportation is required to submit to Congress a report on purchases from foreign entities that include the dollar value of items for which waivers were granted under the Buy America provisions.

This section also contains provisions that establish penalties for certain violations and limitations on the applicability of waivers for products produced in foreign countries that have trade agreements with the United States.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

Adopts the House provision.

RELOCATION ASSISTANCE REGULATIONS RELATING TO THE RURAL ELECTRIFICATION ADMINISTRATION

House bill

This section exempts the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) from certain rules relating to appraisal required by the Department of Transportation to carry out property acquisitions. If the acquisition activities of the REA result in the dislocation of a person, then REA must follow the rules of adequately compensating a displaced person.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment amends section 213(c) of the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act of 1973. It exempts the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) from the uniform regulation relating to the acquisition of real property under title III of that Act. The relocation provisions in title II of the Act would still apply where the activities of REA (or TVA which is already exempted) result in the displacement of persons or businesses.

Adopts the Senate provision.

TEMPORARY MATCHING FUND WAIVER

House bill

The House bill contains a provision comparable to that incorporated into the 1987 STURAA, permitting the states to request a waiver of the non-Federal share for a qualifying project, in this case for fiscal years 1992 and 1993. The state shares waived must be fully repaid by March 30, 1994, with payments deposited in the Highway Trust Fund and repaid amounts credited to the appropriate apportionment account of the state.

Any amounts not repaid are to be deducted from the state's fiscal year 1995 and 1996 apportionments and then apportioned to other states which have not received a higher Federal share under this section and to those states which have made the required repayment.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contained no comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute adopted the House provision.

HIGH PRIORITY CORRIDORS

House bill

This section identifies 16 high priority corridors that are regionally and nationally important. These corridors are required to be put on the National Highway System.

For all of these corridors, both long-range planning and specific feasibility and design studies will be carried out by the Secretary and the states cooperatively. For work on these corridors the Secretary may use certification acceptance under section 117 of title 23 and shall, to the maximum extent feasible, use procedures for acceleration of projects.

Specific high priority segments are identified for specific funding. The overall funding that is available for these projects is $200 million for FY 1992 and $450 million per year for each of FY 1993-1996. In addition, since this special funding will generally not be sufficient to complete work on these segments, the bill requires states to give priority to funding these segments with apportioned funds.

A separate authorization of $10 million per year is provided for feasibility and design studies. In addition, a revolving loan fund of $200 million is established from a $50 million set aside for each of FY 1993-1996. This Fund would be available to advance amounts to a state for construction of projects in the corridors, with priority given to the high priority segments. A state would repay amounts advanced from National Highway System apportionments.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contained no comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute adopted the House provisions with the following changes: (1) various authorization levels for high priority segments were modified, (2) the mandatory "shall" language was made permissive by substituting the word "may," and (3) a new corridor and segment was added in New York. Technical corrections were made to make the advance construction provisions workable for the Cumberland Gap as well as to clarify the intent of establishing contract authority for the feasibility studies funded under this Section.

HIGHWAY TIMBER BRIDGE RESEARCH AND DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM

House bill

The House amendment directs the Secretary to establish a Timber Bridge Construction and Discretionary grant program, allowing States to receive grants for the construction of highway timber bridges.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment directs the Secretary to establish a Timber Bridge Construction Discretionary Grant Program, as well as a Program of Research on Wood Use in Transportation Structures.

Conference substitute

House recedes to Senate amendment with funding level to be split between Senate level and the level contained in House bill.

CONSTRUCTION OF FERRY BOATS AND FERRY TERMINAL FACILITIES

House bill

This section provides that the Secretary shall carry out a program for construction of ferry boats and ferry terminal facilities in accordance with section 129(c) of title 23. The Federal share for construction of ferry boats under this section shall be 80%. There is authorized $36 million for fiscal year 1992 and $43 million per fiscal year for each of the fiscal years 1993 through 1997 out of the Highway Trust Fund and shall be available to the Secretary each fiscal year to obligate at his or her discretion for grants under this section. The funds shall remain available until expended. All the provisions of chapter 1 of title 23 that apply to the National Highway System, except those related to the apportionment formula and Federal share, shall apply to funds made available to carry out this section, unless the Secretary determines they are inconsistent with this section.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

Adopts the House provision with modifications to the funding levels.

ASPHALT PAVEMENT CONTACTING RECYCLED MATERIALS

House bill

Section 143 of H.R. 2950 specifies that, for a period of five years, the Secretary of Transportation may not disapprove any state highway project on the basis that such project utilizes rubber modified asphalt. This section also requires the Secretary to conduct a two-year study on the utilization of recycled materials in paving materials and highway devices and appurtenances.

Senate bill

Section 127 of S. 1204 requires the Secretary of Transportation to withhold grants under title 23, other than for projects or grants relating to safety, from any state which cannot certify to the Secretary that it has met the minimum utilization requirement of the equivalent of 6 pounds of rubber derived from scrap tires for each ton of finished asphalt pavement used in federally-assisted highway projects. The provision allows the Secretary to set aside the requirement for any three-year period upon a determination that 1) the use or application of asphalt rubber pavement creates a risk to human health or the environment; 2) asphalt rubber pavement cannot be recycled to the same degree as conventional pavement; or 3) asphalt rubber pavement does not perform adequately as a paving material.

The Secretary, in cooperation with the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, is required to conduct research on the environmental risks, technical performance and recyclability of asphalt rubber pavement.

Conference substitute

The Conference Substitute combines the major provisions of both the House and Senate bills. It includes the provision which prevents the Secretary from disapproving a highway project because it includes the use of asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber. It also requires the Secretary and the Administrator of EPA, in cooperation with the states, to conduct a study on the health and environmental threats, recyclability, and technical performance of asphalt pavement containing recycled rubber. In addition, the study will determine the economic savings, technical performance qualities, and environmental threats and benefits of using other recycled materials, including recycled glass, plastic and asphalt, in highway projects. The Secretary is instructed to encourage the use of recycled materials determined to be appropriate by this study. In procuring such materials, procuring agencies as defined in section 1004(17) of the Solid Waste Disposal Act shall comply with all applicable guidelines or regulations issued by the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency including those issued pursuant to section 6002 of the Solid Waste Disposal Act.

Beginning January 1, 1995, each state is required to certify to the Secretary that it has satisfied the minimum utilization requirement for asphalt pavement contacting recycled rubber, as follows: five percent in 1994; ten percent in 1995; 15 percent in 1996; and 20 percent in 1997 and each year thereafter. The Secretary shall withhold from any state failing to make such certification a percentage of highway construction, rehabilitation and repair apportionments equivalent to the percentage utilization requirements established in this section.

Other recycled materials, as determined appropriate by the Secretary and the Administrator of EPA, pursuant to the study required by this section, may be substituted for recycled rubber under the minimum utilization requirement up to five percent. The conferees recognize that other recycled materials with the potential for exhibiting technical performance qualities may require substantial time for further development and testing. In such case, it is intended that the Secretary will note this in the report submitted to Congress, and that the authorization to substitute will not go into effect until such time as such other recycled materials have been developed and tested, and as a result of such development and testing, demonstrate, to the satisfaction of the Secretary, that asphalt containing recycled material or materials will perform in a manner equivalent to asphalt contacting recycled rubber.

The conferees recognize that a state may not have a sufficient quantity of scrap tires to meet the minimum utilization requirements established by this section, because it is recycling or processing tires (which includes retreading or energy recovery), or shipping tires to another state for such recycling or processing. In such case the state may request that the Secretary, in concurrence with the Administrator of EPA, reduce the minimum utilization requirement for that state.

The term "recycled rubber", as used in this section, is any crumb rubber derived from processing whole scrap tires or shredded tire material taken from automobiles, trucks or other equipment owned and operated in the United States provided that, such processing does not produce, as a waste, casings or other round tire material that can hold water when stored or disposed above ground.

HIGHWAY USE TAX EVASION PROJECTS

House bill

This section provides in subsection (a) that the Secretary shall use funds made available by subsection (f) to carry out highway use tax evasion projects. At the discretion of the Secretary, the funds may be allocated to the Internal Revenue Service and the states.

Funds may be used only to expand efforts to enhance motor fuel tax enforcement; to fund additional Internal Revenue Service staff solely to carry out the functions described in this subsection; to supplement motor fuel tax examinations and criminal investigations; to develop automated data processing tools to monitor motor fuel production and sales; to evaluate and implement registration and reporting requirements for motor fuel taxpayers; to reimburse state expenses that supplement existing fuel tax compliance efforts; and to analyze and implement programs to reduce tax evasion of other highway use taxes.

The Secretary is authorized to conduct a study to determine the feasibility and the desirability of using dye and markets to aid in motor fuel enforcement activities. The Secretary must transmit a report on the results of the study not later than one year after the effective date of this section.

The Secretary shall establish an advisory committee to prepare a plan to carry out and coordinate highway use tax evasion projects, monitor the results of the projects, provide progress reports, and make recommendations to the Secretary for the distribution of funds under this section, including recommendations for distributing funds among states fairly and equitably. The advisory committee members shall be appointed no later than 180 days after enactment. Members shall include representatives of the Federal Highway Administration, the Internal Revenue Service and the States. The advisory committee shall terminate on September 30, 1996.

The Secretary may not make a grant to a state unless it certifies that the aggregate expenditure of state funds, exclusive of Federal funds, for fuel tax enforcement activities will not fall below the average level expended for the last two years.

On October 1 and April 1 of each year, the Secretary shall transmit to the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works and the House on Public Works and Transportation a report on motor fuel tax enforcement activities and the expenditure of funds made available under this section including the hiring of additional staff by any Federal agency.

There is $7 million authorized for fiscal year 1992 and $8 million per year for fiscal years 1993 through 1997 to be made available to the Secretary for projects under this section. Funds shall be obligated in the same manner and to the same extent as funds apportioned under chapter 1 of Title 23, except that the Federal share for projects shall be 100% and remain available under expended.

For the purposes of this section "state" means the 50 States and the District of Columbia.

Senate amendment

The amendment authorizes $5 million for each of the fiscal years 1992 through 1996 to carry out highway use tax evasion projects. The funds will be allocated to the Internal Revenue Service at the discretion of the Secretary. The funds may be used only to expand efforts to enhance motor fuel tax enforcement, fund additional IRS staff, supplement motor fuel tax examination and criminal investigation and for other related purposes.

The Secretary shall transmit to the Congress a report on motor fuel tax enforcement activities and the expenditure of funds made available under this section, including the hiring of additional staff by any Federal agency, on October 1 and April 1 of each year.

Conference substitute

Adopts the House provision with an amendment that authorizes $25 million in contract authority and $15 million in General Fund appropriations spread out over the 6-year life of the bill.

SUBSTITUTE PROJECT

House bill

The House provision allows the Secretary to approve substitute highway, bus transit, and light rail transit projects, in lieu of construction of I-94.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is similar; however, the source of funding for any transit substitute projects approved shall be the Mass Transit Account of the Highway Trust Fund.

Conference substitute

The Senate recedes to the House.

RENTAL RATES

House bill

The House bill authorizes a study on equipment rental rate for use of reimbursing contractors for extra work on Federal-aid projects.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contained no comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute adopts the House provision.

SCENIC BYWAYS PROGRAM

House bill

Section 147 of the House bill establishes a Scenic Byways Advisory Committee within the Department of Transportation for the purpose of assisting the Secretary in developing a national scenic byways program and in making recommendations to the Secretary regarding minimum criteria for use by state and Federal agencies in designating highways as scenic byways and all-American roads.

Membership must consist of the Administrator or a designate of the Administrator of the Federal Highway Administration; the Chief or designee of the Chief of the Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture; the Director or designee of the Director of the Bureau of Land Management of the Department of the Interior; the Under Secretary or designee of the Under Secretary for Travel and Tourism of the Department of Commerce; the Assistant Secretary or designee of the Assistant Secretary of Indian Affairs of the Department of the Interior; and appointees of the Secretary to represent the interests of conservationists, recreational users of scenic byways, the tourism industry, historic preservationists, highway users, state highway and transportation officials, local highway and transportation officials, an individual qualified to serve on the advisory committee as a planner, one representative each of the motoring public and of groups interested in scenic preservation, and a representative of the outdoor advertising industry.

Recommendations made by the advisory committee shall include consideration of the scenic beauty and historic significance of highways proposed for designation and the areas surrounding the highways; operation and management standards for scenic byways and all-American roads including strategies for maintaining and improving their scenic and historic qualities, for protecting and enhancing landscape and view corridors and for minimizing traffic congestion; standards for scenic byway-related signs, and other matters.

No later than 18 months after enactment, the advisory committee shall submit to the Secretary and Congress a report with all recommendations described in this section. The Secretary shall provide technical assistance and grants to the states for planning, design and development of state scenic byway programs.

An Interim Scenic Byways Program is created for fiscal years 1992, 1993 and 1994, during which the Secretary may make grants to the States for eligible projects on State-designated scenic byways. The Secretary is to give priority to eligibility projects which are included in a corridor management plan for maintaining scenic, historic, recreational, cultural and archeological characteristics of the corridor while providing for accommodation of increased tourism and development of related amenities; to eligible projects for which a strong local commitment is demonstrated for implementing the management plans and protecting the characteristics for which the highway is likely to be designated; to eligible projects included in programs which can serve as models for other States; and to eligible projects in multi-State corridors where the States submit joint applications. Eligible projects include planning, design, and development of State scenic byway programs; making safety improvements to the extent such improvements are necessary to accommodate increased traffic and changes in the types of vehicles using the highway; construction of facilities for the use of pedestrians and bicycles, rest areas, turnouts, highway shoulder improvements, passing lanes, overlooks, and interpretative facilities; improvements to the highway which will enhance access to an area for the purpose of recreation, including water-related recreation; protecting historical and cultural resources in areas adjacent to the highway; and developing and providing tourist information to the public, including interpretive information about the scenic byway.

Senate amendment

Section 129 provides for the creation of a National Scenic and Historic Byways Program and implements the recommendations from the national study completed by the Federal Highway Administration in January 1991. As part of this program, the Federal Highway Administration will establish the capability to provide information and technical assistance to the state agencies responsible for scenic and historic byway programs. In addition, the Federal Highway Administration will provide grants to these state agencies for the planning, design, and development of State scenic byway programs. These grants may be used for initiating or expanding planning and program development efforts and for providing such road user amenities as information services, maps and brochures, and interpretive displays on existing byways. Criteria for allocating these grants will be established by the Federal Highway Administration consistent with the findings from the national study.

The development of the All American Roads Programs should include a broad-based group of federal, state, local, and private sector representatives having knowledge and experience with scenic byway programs. At a minimum, the federal involvement should include representatives from the Department of Transportation, the United States Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, the National Park Service, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and the U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration. It is also the intention of the Committee that time reduction be demonstrated through acquisition of right-of-way prior to the determination of the preferred alternative.

The Committee expects expeditious construction of this long-delayed and badly needed project and, therefore, all Federal regulatory requirements, including but not limited to procurement of professional services, staging of design and Right-of-Way acquisition, and all Federal procedures, practices and interpretations, are delegated to the State and may be waived by the State if considered in the public interest.

Water Authority together with any amendments necessary and appropriate and extend the period for construction for three years after enactment. During the three year period FERC is directed to issue an order at the request of the Authority permitting the authority to transfer a license to a third party for the purpose of protecting the Authority from challenge as specified in this provision. The transferee would be subject to, and must comply with, the Federal Power Act, including provisions of section 10 relating to fish and wildlife.

In addition, the provision includes authority for the FERC to extend the period for construction under section 13 of the Federal Power Act for three identified projects.

Finally, the provision relates to a project in Union City, Michigan and provides that it is not unlawful for the municipality of Union City to operate, maintain, repair, reconstruct, replace or modify the project without a license from FERC.

INTERSTATE MAINTENANCE

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment renames and modifies the existing Interstate 4R program to eliminate eligibility for projects which expand capacity, except in the case of expansion of capacity for projects where the expansion is for other than single occupant vehicles.

The provisions which allow an unconditional transfer of up to 20 percent of the Interstate Maintenance Program funds to other categories are retained. It requires a positive finding by the Secretary that a State transportation department is adequately maintaining the Interstate system before a State may be allowed to transfer to other categories an amount of Interstate Maintenance funds in excess of 20 percent of its Interstate Maintenance apportionment.

The Federal share for any Interstate maintenance project is established at 80 percent. The provisions to allow increases in participation ratios up to 95 percent based on the percentage of Indian or Federal lands within the State has been retained.

The Secretary is required to develop guidance for the State transportation departments for determining what share of a project is attributable to the expansion of capacity of an Interstate highway and for what criteria will be used to determine whether the State is adequately maintaining the Interstate system before the State is allowed to transfer to other categories an amount of Interstate Maintenance funds in excess of 20 percent of its Interstate Maintenance apportionment.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment declares that it is the policy of the United States to establish in the shortest time practicable a United States designed magnetic levitation technology capable of operating along Federal-aid highway rights-of-way as part of a national transportation system of the United States. It establishes a National Magnetic Levitation Design Program to be managed jointly by the Secretary of Transportation and the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works and requires development of a strategic plan for the design and construction of a magnetic levitation surface transportation system to be delivered to Congress within 18 months of enactment of the Act.

It establishes a three-phase competitive contract program to ultimately develop and construct an operational prototype maglev system within six years of enactment of the Act. Projects are to be cost-shared with non-federal organizations to encourage collaborative research. The Senate amendment authorizes $750 million for the program, and periodic reports to Congress are required.

Conference substitute

The conference agreement accepts the Senate amendment with substantial modifications. The title of the section is changed to the National High-Speed Ground Transportation Programs, and a National High-Speed Ground Transportation Technology Demonstration Program and high-speed ground transportation research and development are added to the maglev prototype development program. The strategic plan for development of a national maglev transportation system is replaced with a report to Congress in 1995 on the commercial feasibility of one or more high-speed ground transportation systems in the United States, and the time line to develop the maglev prototype is extended by 18 months. Funding for the maglev prototype program is reduced to $700 million, of which $475 million is to come from the Mass Transit Account of the Highway Trust Fund and the rest from general revenues. Authorization for the Transportation Technology and Demonstration Program is $50 million, of which $25 million is to come from the Mass Transit Account and the remainder from general revenues. The research and development program is authorized at $25 million from general revenues.

The Secretary will be required to establish, no later than June 1, 1996, a National High-Speed Ground Transportation Policy. In addition, current law is amended to permit the Secretary to guarantee obligations for qualified high-speed rail systems pursuant to Section 511 of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976, 45 U.S.C. 831. It is the intent of the conferees that all obligations authorized pursuant to this section, National High-Speed Ground Transportation Programs, will be funded in full.

Section 302 of title 49, United States Code, is amended by declaring it to be the policy of the United States to promote the construction and commercialization of high-speed ground transportation systems by conducting economic and technological research demonstrating advancements in high-speed ground transportation technologies, and establishing a comprehensive policy for the development and integration of various high-speed ground transportation technologies, and minimizing long-term risks to investors.

The conferees recognize that increasing delays related to congestion on highways and airports could be mitigated by high-speed ground transportation technologies such as maglev and high-speed steel wheel, but that the risks of development are too great to be borne without government participation. It is the intent of the conferees to encourage development of such technologies, cooperatively with the non-federal organizations, by sharing in the costs and risks of development. The conferees recognize that government subsidies for high-speed ground transportation systems may be appropriate in cases where economic externalities such as pollution, time lost due to congestion, and condemnation of private property to build new airports and highway lanes, are not adequately reflected in the cost of alternative transportation modes.

This section also declares that it is the policy of the United States to establish in the shortest time practicable a United States-designed and constructed maglev technology capable of operating along Federal-aid highway rights-of-way, as part of a national transportation system of the United States. The conferees recognize that maglev technology was originally developed in the United States in the 1970's, but that since that time lack of funding has resulted in technology development for maglev and high-speed steel wheel technology shifting to Japan and Europe. This section reflects the conferees' desire to shift the balance back toward the United States by encouraging development of next-generation U.S. technologies relating to maglev, superconductors, vehicles, switching, and other technology relating to maglev and/or high-speed steel wheel. Because of the significant cost of right-of-way acquisition in congested corridors, the conferees further intend that high-speed ground transportation technologies be developed to take advantage of existing Federal-aid highway and/or railroad rights of way along substantial portions of their route.

There is established a National Magnetic Levitation Prototype Development Program to be managed by a Program Director appointed jointly by the Secretary of Transportation and the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works. The Director will carry out the program through a National Maglev Joint Project Office. The conferees recognize that if the program is to be successful, it must have a single leader of exceptional capability, who can coordinate the considerable and varied expertise available to the program from the Department of Transportation and the Corps of Engineers, as well as other interested Federal agencies. The conferees intend that the Director should have substantial technical expertise in a maglev-related technology and successful experience in managing large, complex research and development programs. The conferees do not intend for the Maglev Joint Project Office to be larger than the minimum needed to support the activities of the Director.

Development of a maglev prototype shall occur in three phases. Not later than 12 months after enactment of the Act, the Maglev Project Office shall release a request for proposals for research and development of conceptual designs for a maglev prototype system. The conferees extended the time for submission of the request for proposals to allow the technical results from research currently funded under the National Maglev Initiative to be applied to the preparation and review of Phase I proposals.

Not later than 15 months after enactment of the Act, the Secretary and Assistant Secretary shall award up to five Phase I contracts for development of conceptual plans for development of the prototype. Criteria that should be considered in reviewing the proposals include cost-effectiveness, ease of maintenance, safety, limited environmental impact, ability to achieve sustained high speeds, ability to operate along Interstate highway rights-of-way, the potential of a guideway design to be a national standard, the bidder's resources, capabilities, and history of successfully designing and developing systems of similar complexity, and the desirability of geographic diversity among contractors. The conferees intend that these criteria be applied in such a way as to maximize the probability that the conceptual design will successfully meet the criteria for selection of a Phase III contract, and that awards be made according to the technical merits of the proposals as determined by the Director with advice from expert peer reviewers. The conferees do not intend that poor Phase I projects be selected to satisfy the geographic criterion, but do intend that criterion to be applied to technically acceptable proposals. Bidders are to pay ten percent of the Phase I project costs. It is the intention of the conferees that Phase I contracts be funded at $7-10 million each. Phase I project reports are to be completed within 12 months of contract awards.

It is the intention of the conferees that Phase I and all other contracts include opportunities to conduct research and development in support of components of the proposed designs. The conferees recognize the need to conduct research and development in such areas as superconducting magnets, low-weight vehicle technology and aerodynamics, electromagnetic shielding, environmental mitigation, propulsion systems, guideway configuration and manufacturing technology, switching technology, and rider safety and comfort. The conferees believe that such research and development will be more efficient and productive if it is associated with one or more integrated conceptual designs, than if it is conducted in isolation, but believe that it is critical to the success of developing a United States maglev industry.

Within 3 months of receiving the final reports from the Phase I projects, the Secretary and Assistant Secretary shall select not more than three participants to receive 18-month Phase II contracts for development of detailed designs for the prototype. Selection is to be based on technical merit and potential for further development of the design into a prototype. The Director will make recommendations to the Secretary and Assistant Secretary as to technical merit. Phase II contractors must contribute 20 percent of project costs and submit a final report within 18 months of contract awards.

It is the intention of the conferees that Phase II contracts be funded in the range of $40-50 million each and provide substantial requirements for research and development of components of the prototype. The conferees intend that at least two Phase II awards be made in order to allow alternative system designs to be evaluated. The conferees intend that at least one of the Phase II contracts be based on a superconducting suspension system, unless no acceptable design is submitted in Phase I. The conferees are willing to accept some risk and uncertainty in selection of Phase II contracts in return for reasonable prospects of developing an all-American maglev technology, except that the best technical Phase I project should be selected for Phase II, regardless of the technology. The conferees do not intend for a contract to be awarded to any contractor who did not submit a Phase I project report.

Within six months of receiving the detailed designs developed under Phase II, the Secretary and Assistant Secretary shall select one design for development into a full-scale prototype, unless they determine that no design should be selected based on technical feasibility and projected cost. A Maglev Prototype Selection Committee composed of members appointed by the Secretary, the Assistant Secretary, and the Majority and Minority Leaders of both Houses of Congress, is established to make a recommendation to the Secretary and Assistant Secretary on the prototype project to be selected. The conferees intend that the members of the Maglev Prototype Selection Committee be chosen for their technical expertise and experience in transportation systems planning and engineering. The conferees intend that the Director be responsible for providing thorough technical reviews of the Phase II contracts to the Committee, and otherwise assisting the Committee in making its recommendation.

If the Secretary and Assistant Secretary determine not to select a design, they shall report to Congress on the basis for such a determination, together with recommendations for further action, including further research, development or design, or termination of the program, or such other action such as they deem appropriate. The conferees intend that a failure to select a prototype design within the specified period constitutes a decision not to proceed, requiring a report to Congress.

It is the intent of the conferees that no prototype be developed if, in the opinion of the Director and the Selection Committee, none of the Phase II conceptual designs will yield a working prototype at a reasonable cost. The conferees understand that it is difficult accurately to anticipate the risks of implementing a new technology, and are willing to accept a prudent amount of risk in this regard. The conferees also intend that additional research and development will be performed as a component of prototype implementation.

In awarding a prototype contract, the Secretary and Assistant Secretary shall encourage the development of domestic manufacturing capabilities and, in selecting awardees, shall consider existing railroads with excess production capacity, including railroads with experience in advanced technologies, including self-propelled cars. The conferees do not intend to exclude manufacturers of aircraft, automobiles, or other vehicles by this provision.

Selection of a prototype design shall be based on consideration of the following factors, among others:

The project should be capable of utilizing interstate highway rights-of-way along significant portions of its route, and may also use railroad rights of way. The conferees recognize that right-of-way acquisition often represents a significant fraction of guideway cost in congested areas and intend to encourage technologies capable of minimizing such costs by incorporating guideway/vehicle systems capable of operation within the constraints of curve radii, interchanges, overpasses, and other features typical of interstate highway and railroad rights of way.

The project shall have sufficient length, at least 19 miles, to allow significant full-speed operation between stops. The conferees intend that the prototype be capable of evaluating factors that attend sustained high-speed operation which may be relevant to long-distance maglev systems.

No more than 75% of the cost shall be borne by the United States. The conferees intend the substantial non-federal investment to discourage contractors that do not have substantial confidence in completion of a successful operational prototype.

The project shall be constructed and ready for operational testing within 3 years. The conferees intend to attract non-federal cost-sharing by insuring that funding for the prototype will be available within the authorization period covered by this Act, and that the full cost of the prototype be obligated within the authorization period, with funds to be available until expended.

The project shall be located in an area that provides a potential ridership base for future commercial operation. The conferees intend that the maglev prototype be an experimental system capable of fully evaluating the chosen technical design, but the substantial federal investment, including the anticipated non-federal cost sharing, makes it highly desirable that upon completion of adequate testing, the system also be useful for assessing the economics of maglev travel, as well as providing a public service.

The project shall utilize a technology capable of being applied in commercial service in most parts of the contiguous United States. The conferees intend that the site chosen for construction of the project should, to the extent feasible, be so located as to test the technology in the rain and snow, changes in elevation, wind, and heat. To the extent that this is not completely feasible, the conferees intend that these factors be considered as part of the design, even if testing is not possible.

The project shall have at least one switch. The conferees recognize that high-speed switching technology is essential to the commercial application of maglev technology and should be tested in the prototype. The conferees believe that it also would be highly desirable to be able to test the effects of two vehicles passing in opposite directions on a guideway.

The section protects trade secrets and commercial or financial information, and protects any technology developed pursuant to this section under the Stevenson-Wydler Technology Innovation Act of 1980. The section provides contract authority and defines eligible participants as United States private businesses, United States public and private research organizations, Federal Laboratories, and consortia of such businesses, organizations, or laboratories.

The conference agreement amends Subchapter I of Chapter 3 of Title 49, United States Code, to provide for a National High-Speed Ground Transportation Technology Demonstration Program, and a research and development program. It requires the Secretary, in consultation with the Secretaries of Commerce, Energy, and Defense, the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works, and other heads of interested agencies, to lead and coordinate Federal efforts in the research and development of high-speed ground transportation technologies in order to foster the implementation of magnetic levitation and high-speed steel wheel on rail transportation systems as alternatives to existing transportation systems. This subsection also authorizes the Secretary to award grants and contracts for demonstrations of specific technologies in high-speed ground transportation projects or systems under construction or in commercial revenue service to determine the contributions that high-speed ground transportation could make to more efficient, safe, and economical intercity transportation systems.

The conferees intend that under the National High-Speed Ground Transportation Technology Demonstration Program established by this subsection, any eligible applicant may submit to the Secretary a proposal for demonstration of any advancement in a high-speed ground transportation technology or technologies to be incorporated as a component, subsystem or system in any revenue-service high-speed ground transportation project or system under construction or in operation at the time the application is made. The conferees intend that one or more of the specific criteria enumerated under this subsection be considered in awarding grants or contracts to applicants showing demonstrable benefit to the research and development, design, construction, or ultimate commercial operation of any maglev technology or high-speed steel wheel on rail technology. A total of $50 million, of which $25 million shall be derived from the Highway Trust Fund, shall be made available for grants and contracts awarded pursuant to this subsection.

The conferees intend that the Secretary shall have discretion over the amount and distribution of grants and contracts made pursuant to this subsection, except that no grants or contracts shall be awarded to demonstrate a technology to be incorporated in a State that prohibits under State law the expenditure of non-Federal public funds or revenues on the construction or operation of such projects or systems. Applicants eligible to participate under this demonstration program include any United States private business, State government, local government, organization of State or local governments, or any combination thereof. Any business owned in whole or in part by the Federal government is not considered to be eligible for participation. Recipients of grants made pursuant to this paragraph shall agree to submit a report to the Secretary detailing the results and benefits of the technology demonstration, during the demonstration or following the demonstration as required by the Secretary.

In establishing a high-speed ground transportation research and development program pursuant to this subsection, the Conferees intend to make available up to $25 million from general obligations to fund broad research and development into all forms of high-speed ground transportation. Specifically with respect to research and development related to maglev technology, several other Federal agencies in addition to the Department of Transportation have participated in the assessment of the future potential for maglev systems, including the Department of Energy, the Army Corps of Engineers within the Department of Defense, the Department of Commerce, and the Environmental Protection Agency. The national laboratories, including the Brookhaven and Argonne National Laboratories, have also been involved in maglev through the National Maglev Initiative program. The Conferees intend for the Secretary to coordinate and cultivate the relationships already established with these various Federal agencies and entities as the present maglev technology assessment phase moves forward into further research, development, design and eventual construction of a prototype system.

In order further to promote research and development of all high-speed ground transportation technologies, including high-speed steel wheel on rail technologies, this section would give the Secretary authority to enter into cooperative research and development agreements (CRADAs) (as defined under section 12 of the Stevenson-Wylder Technology Innovation Act of 1980), and one or more funding agreements (as defined by section 201 (b) of title 35, United States Code), with U.S. companies. These CRADAs and funding agreements would be entered into in order to conduct research to overcome technical and other barriers to the development and construction of high-speed ground transportation systems and to transfer that research and basic generic technologies to industry. The purpose of these agreements would be to help stimulate a viable commercial high-speed ground transportation industry within the United States.

The conferees envision that the Secretary would determine, with assistance from the director of any Government-operated Federal laboratory, which CRADAs to enter into with other Federal agencies; units of State and local government; industrial organizations (including corporations, partnerships, and limited partnerships, and industrial development organizations); public and private foundations; nonprofit organizations (including universities); or other persons (including licensees of inventions owned by the Federal agency). The Department of Transportation's Systems Center in Cambridge, Massachusetts, is a Federal laboratory with the demonstrated capability of performing research and development activities pursuant to this legislation. It is, however, the intent of the Conferees to provide the Secretary with sufficient flexibility to contract with any Federal laboratory as the Secretary deems appropriate.

In addition to the CRADA mechanism, the Conferees intend for the Secretary to enter into one or more funding agreements which do not require the participation of a Federal laboratory. Under a "funding agreement," the non-Federal recipient of Federal funds automatically gets the right to ownership of any patentable inventions resulting from research conducted under the agreement. Under a CRADA, the disposition of rights is negotiated. The Federal laboratory may agree to give up its ownership rights, or to grant licensing rights in advance.

The Conferees intend to provide the Secretary with clear authority to commit Federal funds to maglev and other high-speed ground transportation research and development both within and outside of the Federal laboratory environment. The conferees believe the use of funding agreements would provide additional incentives for private industry to participate in the research and development process.

In order to monitor the results of technology research, development and transfer conducted pursuant to this subsection, the conferees intend that the Secretary be required to provide reports to Congress at the end of FY 1993 and FY 1996 on activities conducted as a result of this subsection.

The conference agreement also requires the Secretary of Transportation to complete a study of the feasibility of constructing one or more high-speed ground transportation systems in the United States and to submit the results of such study to Congress by June 1, 1995. The study required under this section would consist of the following three parts: (1) an economic and financial analysis; (2) a technical assessment; and (3) recommendations for model legislation for State and local governments to facilitate construction of high-speed ground transportation systems.

The first part of the study is required to include the following components: (1) an examination of the potential market for a nationwide high-speed ground transportation network; (2) an examination of the potential markets for short-haul (e.g., commuter) high-speed ground transportation systems and for intercity and other long-haul high-speed ground transportation systems, including an assessment of the current transportation practices and trends in each market and the extent to which high-speed ground transportation systems would relieve the current or anticipated congestion on other modes of transportation; (3) projections of the costs of designing, constructing, and operating high-speed ground transportation systems, the extent to which such systems can recover their costs (including capital costs), and the alternative methods available for public and private financing; (4) consideration of the utility and availability of rights-of-way to serve each market, including the possibility of acquiring additional rights-of-way without significant adverse effects on adjacent communities; (5) a comparison of the projected costs of the various competing high-speed ground transportation technologies; (6) recommendations for funding mechanisms, tax incentives, liability provisions, and changes in statutes and regulations necessary to facilitate the development of individual high-speed ground systems and the completion of a nationwide high-speed ground transportation network; (7) an examination of the effect of the construction and operation of high-speed ground transportation systems on regional employment and economic growth; (8) recommendations for the roles appropriated for local, regional, and State governments to facilitate construction of high-speed ground transportation systems, including the roles of regional economic development authorities; (9) an assessment of the potential of a high-speed transportation technology export market; (10) recommendations regarding the coordination and centralization of Federal efforts relating to high-speed ground transportation; (11) an examination of the role of the National Railroad Passenger Corporation (Amtrak) in the development and operation of high-speed ground systems; and (12) any other economic or financial analyses the Secretary considers important for carrying out this title.

The economic and financial analysis described in the previous paragraph will require the Secretary to consider and analyze a broad range of issues. The conferees believe this analysis should provide Congress with an understanding of the current and future transportation marketplace and its relation to high-speed ground transportation, reasonable estimates of the cost of various high-speed ground transportation technologies, reasonable estimates of the cost of constructing high-speed ground transportation systems, possible and practical financial incentives for facilitating the development of high-speed ground systems, the relative benefits of high-speed ground transportation systems compared to current transportation systems, the economic benefits of developing high-speed ground transportation technology and systems, and the potential role of Amtrak in high-speed ground transportation systems in the United States.

The technical assessment required under the second part of the study requires the Secretary to examine: (1) the various technologies developed for use in the transportation of passengers by high-speed ground transportation, including a comparison of the safety (including dangers associated with grade crossings), energy efficiency, operational efficiencies, and environmental impacts of each system; (2) the potential role of a United States-designed maglev system, developed as a prototype under the National Magnetic Levitation Prototype Development Program of this Act in relation to the implementation of other high-speed ground transportation technologies and the national transportation system; (3) the work being done to establish safety standards for high-speed ground transportation as a result of the enactment of section 7 of the Rail Safety Improvement Act of 1988; (4) the need to establish appropriate technological, quality, and environmental standards for high-speed ground transportation systems; (5) the significant unresolved technical issues surrounding the design, engineering, construction, and operation of high-speed ground transportation systems, including the potential for the use of existing rights-of-way; (6) the effects on air quality, energy consumption, noise, land use, health, and safety as a result of the decreases in traffic volume on other modes of transportation that are expected to result from the full-scale development of high-speed ground transportation systems; and (7) other technical assessments the Secretary deems important for carrying out the study.

This technical assessment uses the Department's expertise in dealing with a number of technological and inter-disciplinary issues. For example, as the Department responsible for issuing regulations with respect to all aspects of transportation safety (including high-speed railroads, as provided in the Rail Safety Improvement Act of 1988), the Department is in an ideal position to fully analyze and assess the progress of efforts to ensure and enhance high-speed ground safety.

The third prong of the study requires the Secretary to make recommendations for model legislation for State and local governments to facilitate construction of high-speed ground transportation systems. The conferees recognize the critical role of State and local governments in the development of high-speed ground transportation. States and local governments currently are on the cutting edge of exploring innovative and diverse mechanisms to encourage high-speed ground transportation systems. The conferees believe that States and local governments will continue to lead the way toward actual implementation of high-speed ground transportation systems but that model legislation could help to encourage and coordinate such efforts.

Finally, within 12 months after the submission of the study described above, this act requires the Secretary to establish the National High-Speed Ground Transportation Policy. The Policy is to include: (1) provisions to promote the design, construction and operation of high-speed ground transportation systems in the United States; (2) a determination regarding whether the various high-speed ground transportation technologies can be integrated effectively into a national network and, if not, whether one or more technologies should receive Federal government encouragement in order to enable a national network; (3) a strategy for prioritizing markets and corridors for high-speed ground transportation construction; and (4) provisions designed to promote American competitiveness in the market for high-speed ground transportation technologies. The Secretary is required to solicit public comments and may consult with other federal agencies as appropriate in developing the Policy.

The conference agreement also amends section 511 of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976, to provide projects designed to acquire, rehabilitate, improve, develop, or establish high-speed ground transportation facilities or equipment will also be eligible for consideration by the Secretary under section 511. Currently, under section 511, the Secretary is authorized to guarantee the payment of obligations that are used to acquire or to rehabilitate and improve railroad facilities and equipment, or to develop or establish new railroad facilities. The amendment would not alter the terms of the current section 511 program (or applicable regulations issued thereunder; see, 49 CFR Part 260), which includes provisions limiting the rate of interest which may be applicable to an obligation, a requirement that the obligation be adequately secured, a requirement that the terms of the obligation not extend beyond 25 years, a requirement that the financing be justified by the present or probable future demand for rail services, a requirement that the equipment and facilities be economically utilized, a requirement that the prospective earning power of the applicant be sufficient to provide the Federal government with reasonable security and protection, limitations on making discretionary dividend payments, a requirement that the applicant not use funds or assets of the operation for nonrail purposes, authority of the Secretary to assess and collect certain fees from the applicant, and the authority of the Comptroller General to audit operations of the fund established under section 511.

Finally, the bill requires the Comptroller General, within two years after the date of enactment, and annually thereafter, to analyze the effectiveness of application of section 511 of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act to high-speed ground transportation facilities and equipment, and to report the results of such analysis to the conferees of jurisdiction.

Senate amendment

This section amends subsection 142(g) of Title 23, United States Code, to require the Secretary to authorize a State to make Federal-aid highway right-of-way available with or without charge to a publicly or privately-owned authority or company for passenger or commuter rail (including high-speed rail), magnetic levitation systems, and other mass transit facilities.

Section 156 of title 23 is also amended to expand the exclusions to the application of section 156 to include governmental use, use by public or private entities for passenger or commuter rail (including high speed rail), magnetic levitation systems, mass transit facilities, and utility use and occupancy necessary for a transportation improvement allowed under this section, in addition to the current exclusions for utility use and occupancy and use for transportation projects eligible for assistance under title 23 U.S.C.

Section 142 is further amended by the deletion of several related subsections; (a)(2), (c), (e)(2), (i), and (k), which, in effect, become redundant because their subject matter is provided in section 106 of this bill which adds Section 133 to title 23 U.S.C.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment amends sections 102, 109, and 302 of title 23 U.S.C.

23 U.S.C. 102(a) provides that all Surface Transportation Program projects must be designed, constructed, operated, and maintained in compliance with applicable state and federal requirements. The design and construction standards adopted by states for projects on principal arterials shall be AASHTO standards. Any state may request that the Secretary no longer undertake project-by-project review of design and construction standards for any project, except those on an Interstate highway or a multi-lane limited access control highway. After receiving such a request, the Secretary can only undertake project design and construction review as requested by the State.

23 U.S.C. 102(b) allows a state highway department to approve the design of any pavement rehabilitation or highway resurfacing project. Once the state highway department has approved the design of such a project, the secretary's approval of the design is not required.

23 U.S.C. 102(c) provides that a state highway department may establish its own standards for routine maintenance of projects constructed under title 23. Those standards will be subject to annual review and approval by the Secretary. If a state is meeting its own standards for routine maintenance, as approved by the Secretary, the Secretary may not withhold project approval pursuant to section 106.

23 U.S.C. 102(d) provides that a state may establish the occupancy requirements of vehicles travelling in HOV lanes, except that no fewer than two occupants may be required. Motorcycles and bicycles are not single occupant vehicles for purposes of title 23, and nothing in this section alters the requirement that each state allow the operation of motorcycles in HOV lanes unless the state certifies that such operation would create a safety hazard.

23 U.S.C. 102(e) provides that a state must repay all federal funds for preliminary engineering for any project that has not advanced to construction or acquisition of right-of-way within 10 years after receipt of the federal funds. Current law requires a state to repay federal funds received for preliminary engineering if a project has not advanced after a period of time. This subsection establishes a uniform period of time before such repayment is required.

23 U.S.C. 109 is amended to allow Interstate Substitute, Surface Transportation Program, and Bridge Rehabilitation projects which are located in areas of historic and scenic value to be designed to standards appropriate to preserve the historic and scenic value of the road. The standards in section 109 (a) and (b) may be modified to provide alternative standards to preserve these historic and scenic values as long as safety of the facility is maintained.

23 U.S.C. 302 is amended to authorize the Secretary, at the request of the Governor of any state, to permit the highway department of a city of over 1 million population within the state to perform the duties and responsibilities of the state highway department for projects undertaken within the city.

Conference substitute

Same as the Senate with respect to the provisions regarding HOV occupancy requirements and repayment of preliminary engineering funds. The Senate recedes with respect to highway maintenance standards. With respect to project approval and design and construction standards, the conferees agreed to the following: 23 U.S.C. 109 is amended to establish design and construction standards for the National Highway System (NHS) highway projects and non-NHS highway projects. The design and construction standards for NHS projects are those approved by the Secretary in cooperation with the state highway agencies. For non-NHS projects, the design and construction standards are established in accordance with State laws, regulations, or directives, based on state-of-the-art practices.

23 U.S.C. 106 is amended to allow a State highway agency to request that the Secretary no longer review plans, specifications, and estimates for any project other than an NHS project or an NHS project with an estimated construction cost of $1 million or less.

23 U.S.C. 106 is further amended to allow a state highway agency to approve, on a project-by-project basis, the plans, specifications, and estimates for any pavement resurfacing, rehabilitation, or restoration project on the NHS. Further, this subsection allows states to meet or exceed standards for eligible work.

23 U.S.C. 106 is further amended to allow safety considerations to be met by phase construction consistent with the Safety Management System developed under section 303.

Subsection delegating duties and responsibilities of the state highway department to the highway department of a city of over 1 million population is deleted.

New subsection is added to state that nothing in this section shall affect or discharge any responsibility or obligation of the secretary under any federal law, including the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, section 303 of title 49, title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, title VIII of the Act of April 11, 1968, and the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Land Acquisition Policies Act of 1970.

SECTION 204—GRANTS TO STATES WHICH ADOPT NATIONAL SAFETY BELT AND MOTORCYCLE HELMET USE REQUIREMENTS

House bill

Authorizes the Secretary to make grants to a State which has laws which make unlawful both the operation of a motorcycle by an individual who is not wearing a motorcycle helmet and the operation of a passenger vehicle whenever an individual in the front seat (other than a child secured in a child restraint system) is not wearing a seatbelt.

Requires a State to use grants to adopt and implement traffic safety programs in vehicle safety and education, law enforcement training, monitoring of compliance, and enforcement of laws.

Requires a State, as a condition of receiving grants, to maintain their aggregate expenditures for such traffic safety programs at or above their average level in the preceding two fiscal years.

Prohibits any State from receiving a grant in more than 3 fiscal years. Stipulates that federal grants shall be a maximum of 75 percent of a State's cost of implementing such traffic safety programs in the first fiscal year, a maximum of 50 percent in the second year, and a maximum of 25 percent in the third fiscal year.

Limits aggregate amount of grants to a State under this section to 90 percent of such State's apportionment for fiscal year 1990 under section 402 of this title.

Requires as a general condition for receiving grants in any fiscal year that a State enter into an agreement with the Secretary to implement a traffic safety program. Additionally requires for a State to receive a grant in a fiscal year succeeding the first fiscal year it receives a grant that it have a law requiring seatbelt use and achieve a rate of compliance with such law of not less than 70 percent and have a law requiring motorcycle helmet use and achieve a rate of compliance with such law of not less than 65 percent. Additionally requires for a State to receive a grant in a fiscal year succeeding the second fiscal year that it receives a grant that it have a law requiring seatbelt use and achieve a rate of compliance with such law of not less than 80 percent and have a law requiring motorcycle helmet use and achieve a rate of compliance with such law of not less than 80 percent.

Provides that each State shall measure compliance using methods which conform to guidelines issued by the Secretary.

Stipulates that if a State does not have both a law requiring helmet use and a law requiring seatbelt use at all times in fiscal year 1994 the Secretary shall transfer 1½ percent of funds apportioned to the State under each of the subsections (b)(1), (b)(2) and (b)(6) of Section 104 of this title to the apportionment of the State under Section 402 of this title. Stipulates that if at any time after September 30, 1994 a State does not have both a law requiring helmet use and a law requiring seatbelt use at all times during a fiscal year, then in the succeeding fiscal year the Secretary shall transfer 3 percent of the funds apportioned to the states under each of the above subsections to the apportionment of the State under Section 402 of this title.

SECTION 122—USE OF SAFETY BELTS AND MOTORCYCLE HELMETS

Senate amendment

Authorizes the Secretary to make grants to a State which has laws which make unlawful both the operation of a motorcycle if any individual on the motorcycle is not wearing a motorcycle helmet and the operation of a passenger vehicle whenever an individual in the front seat (other than a child secured in a child restraint system) is not wearing a seatbelt.

Requires a State to use grants to adopt and implement traffic safety programs in vehicle safety and education, law enforcement training, monitoring of compliance, and enforcement of laws.

Prohibits any State from receiving a grant in more than 3 fiscal years. Stipulates that federal grants shall be a maximum of 75 percent of a State's cost of implementing such traffic safety programs in the first fiscal year, a maximum of 50 percent in the second year, and a maximum of 25 percent in the third fiscal year.

Limits aggregate amount of grants to a State under this section to 90 percent of such State's apportionment for fiscal year 1990 under Section 402 of this title.

Requires as a general condition for receiving grants in any fiscal year that a State enter into an agreement with the Secretary to implement a traffic safety program. Additionally requires for a State to receive a grant in a fiscal year succeeding the first fiscal year it receives a grant that it have a law requiring seatbelt use and achieve a rate of compliance with such law of not less than 50 percent and have a law requiring motorcycle helmet use and achieve a rate of compliance with such law of not less than 75 percent. Stipulates that if at any time after September 30, 1994 a State does not have both a law requiring helmet use and a law requiring seatbelt use at all times during a fiscal year, then in the succeeding fiscal year such State shall expend for highway safety programs 3 percent of funds apportioned to the State under subsection (b)(1) of Section 104 of this title. Provides that States required to expend funds for highway safety programs spend such funds for purposes eligible under Sections 402, 152 (except repavement) and section 130. Stipulates that the federal share for such projects shall be 100 percent. Stipulates that funds required to be set aside under this subsection shall be available only in the year for which they were apportioned and shall thereafter lapse.

Defines terms.

Authorizes to be appropriated out of the Highway Trust Fund $45,000,000 for fiscal year 1992, $30,000,000 for fiscal year 1993, and $25,000,000 for fiscal year 1994.

Requires the Secretary to report the results of such study within 40 months after the date of enactment of this Act.

Requires the Secretary to issue regulations to carry out this Section within 180 days of the date of enactment of this Act.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the Senate Bill. The agreement adopts the House language on the purposes for which redirected funds may be spent by the States, and adopts the House language on definitions.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

Section 123 allows States to use as a credit toward meeting non-Federal match requirements non-Federal capital expenditures on toll facilities that are an integral part of the interstate commerce network.

In receiving such a credit, a State would have to maintain its aggregate transportation capital spending, excluding Interstate and discretionary funding, at or above the average level of such spending for the preceding three fiscal years, as required by the Secretary.

Under this section, an agency from which the credit is generated would not be subject to any additional Federal oversight or regulation, above and beyond any that otherwise exist.

Conference substitute

Same as Senate bill.

The conferees do not intend that these credits would result in a small reduction in non-Federal transportation spending by a State receiving the credit.

ACQUISITION OF RIGHTS OF WAY

House bill

No comparable provision.

Senate amendmentSummary

This section amends 23 U.S.C. 108 makes three changes to current law. First, the period within which construction must be commenced on a right-of-way funded from the right-of-way revolving fund is increasing from 10 years to 20 years.

Second, costs incurred by a State to acquire rights-of-way in advance of Federal approval or authorization and costs incurred to acquire land necessary to preserve environmental and scenic values may be reimbursed with Federal funds if certain conditions are satisfied.

Third, to conform section 108 of title 23 with the other title 23 changes being made by this legislation, this section eliminates the requirement that right-of-way revolving fund advances be for projects "on the Federal-aid system" and authorizes the use of the fund for projects such as passenger rail facilities, magnetic levitation systems, transportation corridor preservation, and long-term transportation planning.

Discussion

This amendment will allow states that have rigorous planning and environmental impact analysis requirements to purchase rights-of-way prior to obtaining Federal approval or authorization and to use Federal funds to reimburse the costs of early acquisition if certain conditions are satisfied. As a result, States will be better able to identify and preserve corridors with the express intent of protecting environmental sensitive areas.

To take advantage of the authority provided in this section, the state must satisfy a number of conditions, including demonstrating to the Secretary that: (1) the state has considered the environmental impacts of the acquisition and various alternatives; (2) the early acquisition did not influence the environmental assessment of the underlying project, the decision to proceed with this project, or the selection of the project design or location; (3) the state has a mandatory comprehensive and coordinated land use, environment, and transportation planning process under state law; (4) the acquisition is certified by the Governor as being consistent with the state planning process; and (5) prior to approval of the use of Federal funds to reimburse the costs of early acquisition, all applicable Federal environmental laws have been complied with, including but not limited to the National Environmental Policy Act, section 4(f) of the Department of Transportation Act, and section 7 of the Endangered Species Act. The directive that the Secretary identify the applicable environmental laws in regulations does not authorize the Secretary to waive or otherwise modify the requirements of any environmental law and failure of the Secretary to identify a law shall not affect the substantive or procedural requirements of the law.

TRANSPORTATION IN PARKLANDS

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 12 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of the Interior, shall submit to the Congress a study of alternative transportation modes for use in the National Park System. Such study shall consider the economic and technical feasibility, environmental effects, projected costs and benefits as compared to the costs and benefits of existing transportation systems, and the general suitability of transportation modes that would provide efficient and environmentally sound ingress to and egress from National Park lands. The study shall also consider methods to obtain private capital for the construction of such transportation modes and related infrastructure.

(b) Authorization of Appropriations.—From within the sums authorized to be appropriated for subsection 202(d) of title 23, United States Code, $300,000 shall be made available to carry out this section.

Such study shall consider the economic and technical feasibility, environmental effects, projected costs and benefits as compared to the costs and benefits of existing transportation systems, and the general suitability of transportation modes that would provide efficient and environmentally sound ingress to and egress from National Park System lands. Such study shall also consider methods to obtain private capital for the construction of such transportation modes and related infrastructure.

TRAFFIC CONTROL STANDARDS

House bill

No comparable provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment directs the Secretary to revise the Manual of Uniform Traffic Control Devices to include a standard minimum maintenance level of retroreflectivity for pavement markings and signs and to define the roads that must have a center line or edge line or both. The functional classification of roads, traffic volumes, and the number and width of the lanes are to be considered in making this standard.

RIGHT OF WAY REVOLVING FUND

House bill

No comparable provision.

Senate amendmentSummary

Section 128 amends Section 108, title 23 U.S.C. by expanding projects eligible for right-of-way revolving fund advances to passenger rail facilities.

Discussion

The right-of-way revolving fund was established by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1956 to facilitate the acquisition of rights-of-way in anticipation of construction on the federal-aid highway system. This change was made to make this program consistent with the intermodal philosophy of this bill and to encourage corridor preservation and long-term transportation planning.

INDIAN ROAD SEALING

House bill

No comparable provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment amends title 23, United States Code, to establish that the Bureau of Indian Affairs of the Department of the Interior shall be allowed to use Highway Trust Funds for the purpose of the sealing of Indian reservation roads under their jurisdiction.

Conference substitute

The managers have included language authorizing the use of Highway Trust Funds for road sealing projects on Indian reservations but want to make quite clear that these funds are entirely distinguishable from road maintenance funds historically requested in the Bureau of Indian Affairs annual budget. In light of the significant underfunding of Indian reservation roads, the extremely poor conditions of said roads and the need to have an acceptable infrastructure for our Native American communities, it is the Committee's intent that HTF funds are authorized in addition to—and not in lieu of—the BIA's road maintenance program. Pursuant to the provisions of Title 23, Section 116 and 204, and pursuant to the Memorandum of Agreement between BIA and FHWA signed on May 24, 1983, the BIA is clearly responsible for maintaining roads built with Highway Trust Fund dollars. The managers expect the BIA to request funding in FY 1993 that is at least consistent with the level requested and appropriated in FY 1992.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING PROGRAM

House bill

The House bill authorizes the Secretary of Transportation to make grants and enter into contracts for a transportation assistance program to provide access to modern highway technology for urbanized areas with populations of 50,000 to 1,000,000 and rural areas. Technical assistance program centers are established to provide usable technology and information to rural and urban transportation agencies to expand their expertise in road and transportation areas.

The Secretary of Transportation is authorized to conduct and report to Congress on the results of a study to determine the appropriate symbol for highway signs to commemorate the Interstate system as the Dwight D. Eisenhower National System of Interstate and Defense Highways.

Senate bill

The Senate amendment contains a provision authorizing the Secretary to make grants and enter into contracts for a transportation assistance program to provide access to modern highway technology to urbanized areas with populations of 50,000 to 1,000,000 and rural areas. Technical assistance program centers are established to provide usable technology and information to rural and urban transportation agencies to expand their expertise in road and transportation areas.

The Secretary shall establish and administer the Dwight David Eisenhower Transportation Fellowship Program to attract qualified students to the field of transportation engineering and research. No less than $2,000,000 per fiscal year is provided for the fellowship program.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute contains a provision authorizing such sums as may be necessary for the Secretary to make grants and enter into direct contacts for a transportation assistance program to provide access to modern highway technology to urbanized areas with populations of 50,000 to 1,000,000 and rural areas. Technical assistance program centers are established to provide usable technology and information to rural and urban transportation agencies to expand their expertise in road and transportation areas.

The Secretary shall establish and administer the Dwight David Eisenhower Transportation Fellowship Program to attract qualified students to the field of transportation and engineering and research. No less than $2,000,000 per fiscal year is provided for this program. Development of new and efficient combinations of transportation infrastructure requires that the nation's brightest minds be attracted to the transportation and engineering and research professions. The Dwight David Eisenhower Transportation Fellowship Program is designed to accomplish this objective.

The conferees recognize that the fellowship program will be most successful if it serves to attract critical masses of students and professors to evolve into centers of excellence. Therefore, the conferees intend that the program shall be limited to no more than fifty universities, to be selected by the Secretary on the basis of their academic reputation in the transportation engineering and research areas. The conferees intend that the fellowships should be awarded competitively, and be available only to students enrolled in work toward a graduate degree in transportation engineering or research, but exceptions can be made for students in the final year of undergraduate engineering degrees who can demonstrate that they intend to specialize in a transportation-related field following graduation.

The Secretary of Transportation is authorized to conduct and report to Congress on the results of a study to determine the appropriate symbol for highway signs to commemorate the Interstate system as the Dwight D. Eisenhower National System of Interstate and Defense Highways.

NATIONAL HIGHWAY INSTITUTE

To qualify for a 402 grant, each state would be required to establish programs on drunk driving; speeding; occupant protection; emergency medical services; motorcycle safety; uniform data collection and reporting; accident location; highway design; construction and maintenance; traffic engineering services. Programs on bicycle, pedestrian, school bus safety, police traffic services, and traffic record systems, would be left to the discretion of the states.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill contains no comparable provisions.

Conference substitute

The substitute adopts the Senate version which, in effect, maintains existing law, but requires that the programs listed as mandatory programs under the House bill be listed as priority items within the guidelines promulgated by the Secretary. If the Secretary does not prioritize the programs, the Secretary is required to submit a report to the Congress describing why there is no need for the prioritization of the programs.

The agreement also provides that the Secretary is to establish a program to provide for a national uniform data collection and reporting system of traffic-related deaths and injuries. The purposes of this program are to allow the Secretary to determine the causes of such deaths and injuries, to develop programs to reduce such deaths and injuries, and to make recommendations to Congress concerning legislation necessary to implement such programs. The program shall include information obtained by the Secretary under section 404 of the Act and provide for annual reports to the Secretary on the efforts being made by the states in reducing deaths and injuries occurring at highway construction sites and the effectiveness and results of these efforts. In addition, the Secretary is required to establish minimum reporting criteria to obtain certain accident information necessary to improve analysis at the state and federal levels. Such criteria shall include criteria on deaths and injuries resulting from police pursuits, school bus accidents, and speeding, on traffic-related deaths and injuries at highway construction sites, on the configuration of commercial motor vehicles involved in motor vehicle accidents, and any other data elements essential for analysis of highway safety issues the Secretary shall develop through the Critical Automated Data Reporting Elements for Highway Safety Analysis (CADRE).

SECTION 2003—ALCOHOL-IMPAIRED DRIVING COUNTERMEASURES

House bill

The House bill, in Section 203, maintains the existing program under section 410 of title 23, but establishes new grant requirements for the program. The bill establishes basic and supplemental grant programs. To be eligible for a basic grant, a state would have to institute a program involving (1) highway sobriety checkpoints; (2) prompt license suspension of individuals operating vehicles under the influence of alcohol or drugs; (3) a requirement that any person with a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) equal to or greater than 0.10 percent for the first two years of the program, and 0.08 percent thereafter is deemed to be driving under the influence; and (4) mandatory minimum sentences for persons convicted of impaired driving. States that met the basic grant criteria would receive an amount equal to 80% of their allocation under Section 402 of Title 23.

Supplemental grants would be available for each of the following actions: (1) enhanced enforcement of "21 drinking age" laws; (2) the enactment of laws prohibiting the possession of open containers of alcohol in the passenger area of motor vehicles (excepting charter buses) while on the road; and (3) the suspension of car licenses and registrations, and the impoundment of vehicles of repeat offenders of impaired driving laws. States that met the supplemental grant criteria would be eligible for an amount equal to five percent of their 402 grant allocation.

The House bill also authorizes, from funds made available to carry out section 402 of Title 23, the use of $17 million for each of the fiscal years 1993-1997 to carry out this program.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment, in Section 226, amends Chapter 4 of title 23, to establish a new and comprehensive drunk and impaired driving program. The new program would have a structure identical to that of the existing sections 408 and 410 programs, and would replace those programs when the terms of those programs expired. The program would make available to the states basic and supplemental grants for a maximum of five years. States that met certain basic criteria would receive a grant equal to 30 percent of their section 402 grant amount, which would be funded on a declining share basis—75% for the first year, 50% for the second year, and 25% for the third year.

The amendment provides that a state is eligible for a basic grant if it establishes requirements for (1) administrative revocation of drunk drivers' licenses; (2) sobriety checkpoints; (3) a 0.10 BAC standard for persons who are deemed to be driving while under the influence of alcohol, that would have to be reduced to 0.08 BAC after 3 years; (4) videotaping of drunk drivers; (5) mandatory minimum sentences for those convicted of impaired driving; and (6) a requirement that the program be planned to become self-supporting. The bill provides a waiver of any one of the basic grant criteria for any state which achieves a decrease in its alcohol-related fatalities by an average of three percent per calendar year for five consecutive years.

States that met the criteria for a basic grant would be eligible for supplemental grants for each of the following: (1) the adoption of a mandatory blood alcohol testing program for drivers in accidents involving fatalities or serious injuries; (2) providing for enhanced enforcement of "21 drinking age" laws; (3) the establishment of laws preventing drugged driving, including prompt license suspension, presumed driver consent to drug testing, mandatory minimum sentences for those convicted of drugged driving, and a system of detection of drugged drivers; (4) the establishment of a mandatory BAC intoxication level of 0.08 during the first three years of the grant; (5) making it unlawful to possess open containers of alcohol in the passenger area of motor vehicles (excepting charter buses) while on the road; or (6) and requiring the suspension of car license plates and registrations for repeat offenders of impaired driving laws. For each supplemental grant criteria that is met, a state would receive an amount equal to 10 percent of its section 402 allocation.

The Senate amendment also authorizes appropriations out of the Highway Trust Fund (other than the Mass Transit Account) in the following amounts to carry out this program: $25 million in FY 1992; and $50 million for each of the fiscal years 1993-1996.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute, in large part, adopts the Senate provisions regarding the grant program. The agreement, however, deletes the waiver provision for the basic requirements, and provides that a state only has to meet five of the six requirements under the basic grant criteria of be eligible for a basic grant. In addition, videotaping of drunk drivers is now a supplemental grant criteria, and distinguishable license for those under 21 is a basic grant criteria.

SECTION 2004—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

House bill

The House bill, in Section 205(1), for programs under section 402 of Title 23 U.S. Code, provides for an authorization out of the Highway Trust Fund (other than the Mass Transit Account) of $121 million for FY92, $190 million for fiscal years 1993-1995, and $168 million for fiscal years 1996-1997.

The House bill, in section 205(2), authorizes an appropriation of $25 million for FY 1992, and $50 million each for FYs 1993 through 1997, for the program under Section 403 of Title 23, U.S. Code.

The bill also authorizes $14,000,000 for carrying out Section 410 of Title 23 U.S. Code for fiscal year 1992.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment, in section 203(d), authorizes expenditures from the Highway Trust Fund (other than the Mass Transit Account) to carry out section 402 of title 23 of the U.S. Code for FY 1992 through 1996. The amendment provides for an authorization of $126 million for FY 1992; $130,788,000 for FY 1993; $135,757,944 for FY 1994; $140,916,745 for FY 1995; and $146,271,537 for FY 1996.

The Senate amendment, in section 226(-), authorizes expenditures out of the Highway Trust Fund (other than the Mass Transit Account) for carrying out the impaired driving programs set out in that section as follows: $25,000,000 for FY 1991; and $50,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1992-1995.

The Senate amendment, in Sections 226(a) and 226(b), authorizes appropriations for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to carry out its responsibilities under the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 as follows: FY 1992—$68,722,000; FY 1993—$71,333,436; FY 1994—$74,044,106. These amounts reflect the Administration's budget request for 1992 increased by the inflation factor recommended by the Congressional Budget Office for the remaining fiscal years. It also authorizes appropriations for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to carry out the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act as follows: $6,485,000 for fiscal year 1992; $6,731,430 for FY 1993; and $6,987,224 for FY 1994.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute provides new authorization levels for both Sections 402 and 403, and the Impaired Driving Enforcement program. For programs under Section 402, the agreement provides for an authorization of $126 million for FY92; $175 million for FYs 1993-1994; and $171 million for FYs 1995-1997. For programs under Section 403, the agreement provides for expenditures in the amount of $44,000,000 per year for FYs 1992-1997. For the Impaired Driving Enforcement program, the agreement provides for authorization of $25 million per year for FYs 1992-1997.

The Conference substitute adopts the Senate provisions with respect to expenditures for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's administration of the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 and the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act, and includes an authorization for FY 1995 for the latter two purposes.

SECTION 2005—DRUG RECOGNITION EXPERT TRAINING PROGRAM

House bill

The House bill, in section 206, provides for the establishment of a drug recognition expert training program. The purpose of the program is to train law enforcement officers to recognize and identify individuals who are operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, a controlled substance, or other drug. The bill also establishes a citizens' advisory committee to monitor the progress of the implementation of the program. The advisory committee is to include one member from the organization Mothers Against Drunk Driving. The bill provides for an authorization of $5 million for FY92, and $6 million each for FYs 1993-1997, from the highway trust fund (other than the Mass Transit Account) to carry out the program.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute adopts the House provision, but reduces the funding to $4 million each for FYs 1992-1997. The agreement also provides that the citizens' advisory committee shall include a member of the American Bar Association, and a member of the American Medical Association.

SECTION 2006—NATIONAL DRIVER REGISTER ACT AUTHORIZATIONS

House bill

The House bill, in section 207, provides an authorization of $4 million each for FYs 1992-1994 for programs under the NDR Act.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill, in section 203, provides for a three year authorization to carry out programs under the National Driver Register Act. The bill authorizes expenditures in the amount of $6,131,000 for FY '92; $6,363,978 for FY '93; and $6,605,809 for FY '94.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute adopts the House provision.

SECTION 2007—OBLIGATION CEILING FOR FISCAL YEAR 1992

House bill

Section 210 of the House bill established obligation ceilings for a number of highway safety programs.

Senate amendment

Conference substitute

The conference substitute provides for the following obligation ceilings:

(1) Fiscal Year 1992—Sums authorized for sections 2004(1), 2004(3), and 2005(c) of this Act, and Section 211(b) of the National Driver Register Act of 1982 for Fiscal Year 1992, are subject to the obligation limitations of Section 102 of this Act.

(2) Fiscal Years 1993-1997-2003, 2004(1) and 2005 of this Act and Section 211(b) of the National Driver Register Act of 1982 should be reduced proportionally if an obligation ceiling is placed on the sums authorized to be appropriated to carry out Section 402 of Title 23, United States Code.

PART B—AUTHORIZATIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS

SECTION 2500—SHORT TITLE

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill in Section 201, provides the following short title: "National Highway Traffic Safety Administration Authorization Act of 1991".

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute adopts the Senate provision.

SECTION 2501—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment, in Sections 226 (a) and (b), authorizes appropriations for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) to carry out its responsibilities under the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 as follows: $68,722,000 for FY 1992; $71,333,436 for FY 1993; $74,044,106 for FY 1994. These amounts reflect the Administration's budget request for FY 1992, increased by the inflation factor recommended by the Congressional Budget Office for the remaining fiscal years. The Senate amendment also authorizes appropriations for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to carry out the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act as follows: $6,485,000 for FY 1992; $6,731,430 for FY 1993; and $6,987,224 for FY 1994.

Conference substitute

The Conference agreement adopts the Senate provisions, with modifications to include an additional authorization for FY 1995 of $76,857,782 for carrying out the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966; and $7,252,739 for the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act.

SECTION 2502—GENERAL PROVISIONS

House bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment, at Section 202, sets out definitions of terms used in the amendment, including definitions of passenger car and multipurpose passenger vehicles (MPVs). These definitions, according to NHTSA, are identical to those used in current NHTSA regulations.

Conference substitute

The Conference adopts the Senate definitions. The Conference agreement also sets out procedures to be used in carrying out the rulemakings required by the Conference agreements.

SECTION 2503—MATTERS BEFORE THE SECRETARY
House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate requires the Secretary of Transportation to conduct rulemakings on a number of issues:

(1) Side impact standard: Section 205 of the Senate amendment requires the Secretary, within 18 months after enactment, to promulgate a final rule to extend FMVSS 214, to MPVs and other light trucks, such as minivans, sport utility vehicles and small trucks.

The Senate notes that approximately 8,000 Americans die each year in side impact crashes, and approximately 23,000 suffer serious, nonfatal injuries. After many years of work, NHTSA recently issued an upgraded side impact protection standard for passenger cars, to prevent injuries to the chest and pelvis in such crashes. At the same time, NHTSA indicated that it would continue its work to address head injury prevention in such crashes. MPVs and other light trucks are not currently required to meet the passenger car standard for protection of the chest and pelvis. This section of the Senate amendment would require that the passenger car standards be applied to MPVs and other light trucks.

This Section also would require that the Secretary complete a rulemaking, within a time certain, to consider methods of preventing head injury in side impact crashes.

(2) Protection against rollover: Section 210 of the Senate amendment requires rulemaking to prevent unreasonable risk of rollover in passenger cars, MPVs and other light trucks. The Senate notes that NHTSA's own research indicates that a significant percentage of accidents involving certain types of MPVs, other light trucks and passenger cars involve vehicle rollover. To date, no rule has been issued to deal with this problem. This section of the Senate amendment would require completion of the rulemaking within 12 months of enactment.

(3) Improved design for seatbelts: Section 224 of the Senate amendment requires a rulemaking, to be completed within 12 months of enactment, to consider whether to amend the current standard for seatbelt design to take into account the needs of children and shorter adults. The Senate notes that there is some evidence that current seatbelt design does not protect adequately such individuals, and that this situation could be remedied easily by minor design changes. The Senate notes that while NHTSA recently terminated a rulemaking on this issue, that analysis did not consider the affect on children of such an amendment to the standard. The rulemaking required by the Senate amendment would have to consider the safety of children.

(4) Safety child booster seats used in passenger cars and other motor vehicles: Section 213 of the Senate amendment requires a rulemaking proceeding, to be completed within 12 months of enactment, to increase the safety of child booster seats. Booster seats, used by toddlers and older children, are designed to elevate children so that they are in the proper position to use lap and shoulder belts. The Senate notes that a study conducted for NHTSA, "Evaluation of the Performance of Child Restraint Systems," indicates that some of these systems may not restrain adequately a child in a crash, and some may put pressure on the child's abdomen during a crash. The Senate amendment is a response to the concerns expressed in this study.

(5) Methods of reducing head injuries: Section 219 of the Senate amendment would require a completion of a rulemaking, within two years of enactment, to consider methods of reducing head injuries caused by contact with the interior components of passenger automobiles, MPVs and other light trucks.

The Senate notes that each year a large number of Americans suffer head injuries in automobile crashes. Many of these victims are permanently disabled. The Senate notes that an airbag can reduce the number of head injuries resulting from frontal crashes. Even if all cars were equipped with airbags, however, head injuries will still occur from rollover, side impact, and other crashes. NHTSA's own research indicates that many of these head injuries could be prevented if additional padding were placed in the interior portions of the vehicles likely to come into contact with a crash victim's head.

The conference substitute provides in lieu of the above mentioned provisions a process for conducting rulemakings in accordance with the National Traffic and Motor Safety Act of 1966. It also provides that any resulting standards be enforced in accordance with the 1966 statute. The process includes a procedure for initiating a rulemaking either as an Advanced Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (ANPRM) or a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM) at the discretion of the Secretary of Transportation. It also provides for completion of the rulemakings consistent with the 1966 statute and the Administrative Procedure Act. Except as otherwise provided, completion could include promulgation of a final rule (with or without changes from the proposed rule), or deciding not to promulgate a rule through termination of the rulemaking process (which decision may include a deferral of a rule, or a decision to start all over at some future time). The Department cannot, however, terminate the rulemaking because it lacked time to complete the rule. Whatever action is taken it must be published in the Federal Register in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act and the 1966 Act and must include the reasons for that action.

Section 2503 lists five priority matters for which the Secretary must initiate a rulemaking in accordance with these general procedures. They are as follows:

- (1) Unreasonable risk of rollovers in passenger cars, MPVs and light trucks.
- (2) Extension of passenger car side impact protection to MPVs and light trucks.
- (3) Safety of child booster seats in passenger cars and other appropriate vehicles.
- (4) Improved design for safety belts.
- (5) Improved head impact protection.

With the exception of number five, the listing of these matters for initiating rulemaking decisions is not to be construed as a determination by Congress as to whether or not a rule shall be finalized or if it is finalized what it should contain. The objective of the conferees is to require that the Secretary give priority consideration to these matters without affecting other rulemakings or decisions pending at the Department.

For these five matters, the conferees expect the Secretary to initiate either an ANPRM or a NPRM by May 31, 1992. If the Secretary cannot begin any one of these by that date, he must give notice of the decision to initiate them and provide a date certain for the initiation of either an ANPRM or a new NPRM. Such date certain shall not extend beyond January 31, 1993. He must also explain the reasons for this delay. A decision to provide a new date for that decision will not be reviewable.

Once a rulemaking is initiated, the Secretary must complete the rulemaking within 26 months after initiation, in the case of an ANPRM, and within 18 months after initiation, in the case of an NPRM. However, with the exception of the head injury rulemaking, in the case of an ANPRM, the Secretary may decide not to proceed to an NPRM after issuing the ANPRM if, after consideration of the ANPRM and the comments thereon, he so decides and publishes this decision against continuation of the rulemaking process. He must do this in a manner consistent with the APA and the 1966 Act. The Secretary may in the case of an NPRM extend the 18 month period for an additional 6 months. That extension is not reviewable.

In the case of Section 2503(5) which provides for improved head injury protection regarding interior components of passenger cars (i.e., roofs, pillars, and front headers) there is a special rule. Under that special rule the Secretary must complete the rulemaking and issue a final rule within 24 months after the date of initiation of rulemaking by publication of the ANPRM or the NPRM. That publication must occur either by May 31, 1992 or, as indicated above, by January 31, 1993. If the Secretary determines that there is a need for delay and if the public comment period is closed, the Secretary may extend the date of completion by an additional six months and publish a notice thereof in the Federal Register. The conferees emphasize that in the case of this special provision a final rule is to be promulgated within the timeframe specified.

Thus, with exception of the head injury protection issue, the conferees do not predetermine the outcome of these rulemakings. The Secretary is free to conclude the rulemaking in any manner consistent with the APA and the 1966 Act. The conferees expect the Secretary to act on these matters in accordance with the time schedule provided.

The conferees expect NHTSA to move quickly on these matters and give preference to rollover protection, and to extension of passenger car side impact protection to light duty trucks and MPVs. In the case of rollovers, the conferees note that in a November 7, 1991 letter to the Committee on Energy and Commerce, the Administrator of NHTSA said:

The rulemaking process will develop an advanced notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) which will be published late this year. This will be followed by a notice of proposed rulemaking. If the comments and other information in the rulemaking record support the issuance of a final rule, the agency would adopt such a rule.

Since the late 1980s, the agency has conducted research to determine if vehicle attributes exist which are related to vehicle rollover. In a multi-contract effort, the agency has collected engineering data on approximately 60 different vehicles, including MPVs, vans, trucks, and passenger cars. In addition, the agency has collected and analyzed over 100,000 accidents associated with rollover and non-rollover crashes of these vehicles. These two data sets, the physical measurements of the vehicles and the rollover propensity of the vehicles as measured by their actual accident history, were analyzed to determine correlations between vehicle rollover propensity and accident involvement. Correlations were found when controlling for variations in the individual crashes, such as driver demographics, weather conditions, and road conditions. This analysis was completed in the spring of 1991 and will provide the basis for the forthcoming ANPRM.

The conferees would expect NHTSA to issue an ANPRM before May 31, 1992. Indeed, the conferees understand that an ANPRM has recently been submitted to the Office of Management and Budget.

SECTION 2504—RECALL OF CERTAIN MOTOR VEHICLES

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 216 of the Senate amendment provides the Secretary with authority to require manufacturers to send a second notification to owners of defective vehicles to enhance safety defect and non-compliance recall response rates. DOT's review of techniques such as postcard reminders to increase recall response rates shows that a follow-up notice can achieve response rates significantly higher than those achieved by the initial notification.

This section further requires that any owner of leased vehicles who receives a recall notice shall send a copy of such notice to the lessee of the vehicle. Finally, the section requires that any dealer who receives a recall notice with respect to any vehicle or item of equipment may not sell or lease that product unless the defect is remedied or the recall order has been restrained or set aside. This provision, according to the Senate, is intended to close a loophole that exists in the Safety Act.

The conference substitute adopts the Senate provision. The conferees note that according to a letter from NHTSA Administrator Jerry Curry to the Chairman of the House Committee on Energy and Commerce, dated November 7, 1991, 1991, this provision was recommended by the Department of Transportation.

SECTION 2505—STANDARDS OF COMPLIANCE TEST PROGRAM

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 207 requires the Secretary to establish a schedule for investigating compliance with each Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard in effect which is capable of being tested. This provision is a result of a December 1986 GAO report, "Motor Vehicle Safety: Enforcement of Federal Standards Can Be Enhanced," which found that enforcement of these standards could be enhanced by insuring that each standard is subject to testing on a regular, rotating basis.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute requires the Secretary to maintain, on a continuing basis, a five-year plan for testing Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards. The initial plan may be the five-year plan for compliance testing that is in effect on the date of enactment of the substitute. This provision provides the Secretary with considerable leeway in development of the plan and its implementation. The Conferees intend that the Secretary's testing plan will be available to the public, as it is currently.

SECTION 2506—REAR SEATBELTS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 211 of the Senate bill provides that the Secretary expend such funds as are deemed necessary from funds appropriated to carry out the Cost Savings Act for FYs 1992 and 1993 to provide consumers with information about retrofitting their vehicles with rear seat lap-and-shoulder belts. The Senate notes that such belts only recently have been required to be installed as original equipment, and there is ample evidence, compiled in part through NHTSA's rulemaking, to conclude that rear seat shoulder belts enhance vehicle safety.

All rear passenger car seats have been required since 1968 to be equipped with brackets to allow installation of lap-shoulder belts. Consumers and auto dealers should be made fully aware of the availability of retrofit kits.

Conference substitute

The conference adopts the Senate provision, with the modification that the program would be conducted solely during FY 1993.

SECTION 2507—BRAKE PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR PASSENGER CARS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 222 of the Senate amendment requires a rulemaking, to be completed within 12 months of enactment, to consider whether to adopt a standard requiring antilock brake systems for cars and MPVs. The Senate notes that there is evidence that these systems are useful in avoiding accidents, particularly in bad weather, and this section requires that NHTSA give priority consideration to whether they should be required.

Conference substitute

Not later than December 31, 1993, the Secretary, in accordance with the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966, shall publish an Advanced Notice of Proposed Rulemaking to consider the need for any additional brake performance standards for passenger cars, including antilock brake standards. The rulemaking is to be completed not later than 36 months from the date of initiation of the ANPRM, in accordance with clause 2502(b)(2)(B)(i). In order to facilitate and encourage innovation and early application of economical and effective antilock brake systems for all such vehicles, the Secretary shall consider as part of the rulemaking, any brake system adopted by a manufacturer.

SECTION 2508—AUTOMATIC CRASH PROTECTION AND SAFETY BELT USE

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate notes that the current regulations of the Department of Transportation (DOT) require that passenger cars be equipped with "passive restraints," which include either airbags or automatic seatbelts that do not require action by the occupant in order to be engaged. When fully effective, in model year 1994, these regulations will require that all cars have one of these forms of passive restraint on both the driver and passenger side of the front seat (i.e. the front outboard seating position). 49 C.F.R. 571.208.

The Senate notes that in March 1991, DOT issued a similar requirement for passive restraints in the "light truck" fleet, which includes minivans, small pickups, and sport utility vehicles. 56 Fed. Reg. 12472-12487 (March 26, 1991). These vehicles, which originally were used primarily for cargo or work purposes, now make up approximately one-third of the new passenger vehicles sold, and are increasingly used by families. Under the DOT rule, "light trucks" will be required to have "passive restraints" (automatic belts or airbags) on both the driver and passenger sides on the following schedule: 20 percent of the vehicles manufactured after September 1, 1994; 50 percent of those manufactured after September 1, 1995; 90 percent of those manufactured after September 1, 1996; and 100 percent after September 1, 1997. However, those manufacturers that install airbags instead of automatic seatbelts on the driver side are permitted through a credit system to delay installation of any airbags on the passenger side until September 1, 1998.

The Senate amendment addresses the fact that the current rule permits manufacturers to choose between two forms of passive restraints. The Senate notes that DOT has estimated that airbags could save over 9,000 lives and prevent 155,000 moderate to serious injuries each year as compared to the situation if no cars were equipped with airbags. 49 Fed. Reg. 28986 (July 17, 1984).

Section 214 of the Senate amendment sets out two requirements with respect to airbags in passenger vehicles.

First, subsection 214(a) requires that, to the extent practicable, the Secretary, in cooperation with the General Services Administration and heads of other federal agencies, insure that passenger automobiles purchased for the federal fleet be equipped with airbags. Driver side airbags would be required for passenger cars acquired after September 30, 1991, and driver and passenger side airbags would be required for passenger cars acquired after September 30, 1993. If only one source of airbag-equipped vehicles is available, so that competitive bidding cannot occur, such purchase may not be practicable. However, since most manufacturers have announced plans to install airbags in their passenger car fleet in the mid 1990s, this problem is not likely to occur.

Second, subsection 214(b) requires that manufacturers equip all passenger cars and other passenger vehicles as defined in the section to include most multipurpose vehicles, with airbags on a phased-in schedule set out in the bill. Specifically, all passenger cars manufactured on or after September 1, 1995 must be equipped with airbags on both the driver and right front outboard seating positions. In addition, all trucks, buses and multipurpose passenger vehicles with a gross vehicle weight rating of 8,500 pounds or less and an unloaded vehicle weight of 5,500 pounds or less must have a driver side airbag if manufactured after September 1, 1996 and a passenger side airbag if manufactured on or after September 1, 1997.

Paragraph (a)(1) requires the Secretary to issue a rule, by September 1, 1993, amending FMVSS 208 in a number of ways, including requiring the installation of an airbag that meets the requirements of FMVSS 208 on both the driver and front outboard passenger seating positions of passenger cars and MPVs and other light trucks. The issuance of a rule to accomplish mandatory airbags in the manner specified in this section is required notwithstanding any other provision of law or rule, but the rule is to be promulgated in accordance with the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 to the extent such Act is not in conflict with this section. This subsection requires a rule that supplements and revises but does not replace existing FMVSS 208, which was amended on March 26, 1991 to extend the standard's requirements to MPVs and other light trucks.

Paragraph (a)(2) requires that after the promulgation of the amendment in (a)(1), the Secretary shall require that owner's manuals contain specific language informing consumers about the need to wear seatbelts even in vehicles equipped with airbags. It states:

(A) that the vehicle is equipped with an inflatable restraint referred to as an "airbag" and a lap and shoulder belt in either or both the front outboard seating positions;

(B) that the airbag is a supplemental restraint;

(C) that the airbag does not substitute for lap and shoulder belts which must also be correctly used by an occupant in such seating positions to provide restraint or protection not only from frontal crashes but from other types of crashes or accidents; and

(D) that all occupants, including the driver, should always wear their lap and shoulder belts where available or other safety belts, whether or not there is an inflatable restraint.

Paragraph (a)(3) contains a finding that it is in the public interest for all States to adopt and enforce mandatory seat belt laws and for the Federal government to adopt and enforce mandatory seat belt rules. The conferees note that nine states have not yet adopted such a law. Also, the DOD and the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management and National Park Service have adopted such rules.

Subsection (b) sets forth the following schedule for implementation of requirements of subparagraph (a)(1): (1) New Passenger Cars—95% of each manufacturer's production volume of cars manufactured on or after September 1, 1996 and before September 1, 1997, and 100% of all such production manufactured on or after September 1, 1997. (2) New MPVs and other light trucks and buses—80% of each manufacturer's production volume manufactured on or after September 1, 1997 and before September 1, 1998, and 100% of each manufacturer's production volume manufactured on or after September 1, 1998.

Subject to the provisions of subsection (c), the requirements for 100% coverage mean that all of these vehicles actually are equipped with airbags on both sides. This is not to be a mathematical calculation involving credits available under the 208 standard, as amended by this bill, from which the Secretary would derive 100% coverage. Rather, it is actual 100% coverage. The subsection provides that the incentives or credits available to the manufacturers under the amended Standard 208 are no longer available when the requirement for 100% coverage becomes effective.

Subsection (c) provides for a temporary exemption from requirements of this section due to supply and unavoidable disruptions. This exemption authority is permanent and is available even after the 100% requirement.

The Conferees intend that the temporary exemption be granted or renewed where there is a disruption of supply, or a disruption in the use and installation by the manufacturer of such component due to unavoidable events totally beyond the manufacturers' control. The Conferees expect that these exemptions will be rarely necessary. However, history shows that there have been supply problems in the past, as shown by a recent report of the General Accounting Office.

The Conferees expect that the Secretary will require written documentation of the facts that have made the inflatable restraint unavailable. The exemption is not intended to be available in situations in which vehicle production plans are interrupted or altered for reasons unrelated to the inflatable restraint, such as general economic conditions or work stoppages at the vehicle manufacturing plant.

In granting the exemption, the Secretary must require that the manufacturer recall the exempted vehicle and install the inflatable restraint within a reasonable time, which is to be proposed by the manufacturer subject to approval by the Secretary. Thus, each grant of exemption by the Secretary must include a requirement for vehicle recall and installation of the inflatable restraint, and a date by which that recall and installation must be completed.

The substitute directs the Secretary to require labeling for each exempted motor vehicle and to provide that the label can only be removed after recall and installation of the airbag. If the vehicle is delivered to the dealer without an inflatable restraint the Secretary shall require that written notification of exemption be delivered to the dealer and first purchasers of such exempted motor vehicles in such manner and containing such information as the Secretary deems appropriate. The purpose of this notice requirement is to inform the dealer and the consumer once the vehicle has reached the showroom of the dealer. Such notice is not necessary if the exemption is granted for the vehicle, and the vehicle is not sold by the manufacturer to the dealer prior to installation of the airbag. The bill does not specify the contents of the label. However, the intent is to inform the prospective purchaser that the inflatable restraint is absent and will have to be installed within a specified period of time. It is, of course, the intention of the Conferees that, in the case of a label, it be conspicuous and that it not be removed by anyone until the restraint has been installed as required.

With respect to subsection (d), the Conferees, noting NHTSA's letter of November 7, 1991, do not want by this section to change the law on liability as it existed prior to enactment. This section is not intended to be a "sword" or a "shield" in litigation or otherwise.

Subsection (e) provides for the Secretary to report biannually on the actual effectiveness of occupant restraint systems.

Subsection (f) provides for the establishment of a program, consistent with applicable provisions of Federal procurement law and available appropriations, under which light duty vehicles acquired by the Federal Government, to the maximum extent practicable, will have driver and passenger-side airbags.

SECTION 2509—HEAD INJURY IMPACT STUDY

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 205 of the Senate amendment requires the Secretary, within 12 months of enactment, to issue a final rule amending Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard (FMVSS) 214 to establish performance criteria for passenger cars, to provide improved occupant protection from head injury in a side impact crash.

The Senate notes that approximately 8,000 Americans die each year in side impact crashes, and approximately 23,000 suffer serious, nonfatal injuries. Thirty-five percent of the life-threatening automobile injuries occur in side crashes. After many years of work, NHTSA recently issued an upgraded side impact protection standard for passenger cars, to prevent injuries to the chest and pelvis in such crashes. The Senate notes that, at the same time, NHTSA indicated that it would continue its work to address head injury prevention in such crashes.

Conference substitute

The conferees understand that there are other head injury protection matters which are the subject of research at NHTSA and which are not covered by section 2503(5) of this bill. This could include head injury protection matters from various types of crashes, such as side impact.

This section of the bill directs the Secretary to report on the need for rulemaking regarding this research and the extent of that research. The report would be provided by the end of FY 1993 and would identify such research matters and their status. It would also include a statement of any actions planned by the DOT toward initiating rulemaking not later than FY 1994 or 1995. Such a rulemaking would be either an ANPRM or NPRM and would be completed as soon as possible after proposal.

AUTOMOBILE CRASHWORTHINESS DATA

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 206 of the Senate amendment requires the Secretary to enter into agreements with the National Academy of Sciences to conduct a study, within specified time frames, to consider means of establishing a uniform rating system to permit consumers to compare the crashworthiness of different vehicles. Upon completion of the study, it is to be furnished to Congress, and the Secretary is to begin a period of public comment on the recommendations made in the study. The Secretary then shall determine whether such a crashworthiness rating system can be developed, and shall publish that determination. If it is determined that such a system can be developed, the Secretary is to conduct a rulemaking proceeding to develop such a rule within established time limits.

The Senate notes that the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act currently requires DOT to compile crashworthiness information. However, the only such information available is obtained through random sampling in connection with NHTSA's New Car Assessment Program, and is not available at the vehicle's point of sale. The Senate notes that NHTSA studies indicate that prospective new car purchasers favor the idea of a Government safety rating. While a system that could compare all crashworthiness features with just one rating would be preferable and should be explored, the Senate amendment recognizes that a single rating may not be workable, and that a system of several ratings to indicate crashworthiness in various situations may be necessary. This section would permit either a single rating or multiple ratings.

Conference substitute

Senate recedes. The conferees believe that the development of such a system could be beneficial to consumers and encourage NHTSA to continue to work on providing vehicle purchasers usable, accurate, and timely crashworthiness information, taking into consideration all relevant factors in obtaining and disseminating such information.

INVESTIGATION AND PENALTY PROCEDURES

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 208 of the Senate amendment requires the Secretary to establish written guidelines for conducting expeditious and thorough investigations of noncompliance with any requirements issued under the Safety Act, which includes NHTSA safety standards and recall orders. The Secretary also is to develop written guidelines for determining when the results of such investigations shall be the subject of a civil penalty proceeding. This provision was based on recommendations in the 1986 GAO report previously referred to in connection with section 207 of the Senate amendment.

MULTIPURPOSE PASSENGER VEHICLE SAFETY

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 209 of the Senate amendment requires that the Secretary complete, within 12 months of enactment, a rulemaking to review the classification system for safety purposes of vehicles that weigh under 10,000 pounds. The Senate notes that in the 1960s, NHTSA defined a number of vehicle classes, including a category referred to as multipurpose vehicles (MPVs) (less than 10,000 pounds and designed for carrying 10 persons or less, constructed either on a truck chassis or for occasional off-road operation). GAO recommended in 1978 that NHTSA review its system of classification of vehicles under 10,000 pounds. The Senate notes that since the original classification of passenger vehicles, the types of vehicles making up the passenger fleet have changed dramatically. The use patterns of multipurpose vehicles (MPVs) have changed from primarily cargo-carrying to primarily passenger-carrying. The Senate notes that there are differences between Customs Service classifications for duty purposes and NHTSA classification for safety purposes.

The Senate notes that in 1988 NHTSA issued a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking to consider reclassification. NHTSA terminated this rulemaking proceeding in April 1991, finding that although there could be some benefits associated with a new classification scheme, reclassification was less important because many passenger car safety standards had been extended to light trucks. The Senate notes, however, as NHTSA recognizes, the current situation with respect to current safety standards does not resolve the classification issue for the future. The Senate amendment intends that classification review should be completed to insure that the current classifications are logical and accurate, and insure that future safety standards are applied appropriately across the fleet.

In addition, this section requires that any reclassification of vehicles weighing under 10,000 pounds which is undertaken must consider the Customs Service Classification of vehicles and, to the maximum extent practicable, include as a passenger automobile any vehicle classified by the Customs Service as a vehicle principally designed for the transport of persons. The Senate amendment recognizes that there currently is no coordination between NHTSA and Customs, and that vehicles receiving favorable duty treatment as passenger vehicles may not be required to meet passenger car safety standards. While it may not be practicable to conform NHTSA passenger automobile classification completely to the classification made by the Customs Service, it is the intent of this section to insure that NHTSA reviews the Customs classification in the course of its classification process.

IMPACT RESISTANCE CAPABILITY OF BUMPERS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 212 of the Senate amendment establishes two requirements with respect to bumpers. Subsection 212(a) amends the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act to require the Secretary to promulgate a rule regarding disclosure by the manufacturers of the speed at which the bumper meets the applicable Federal damage criteria. Such information must be provided to the Secretary and disseminated by the Secretary to consumers in a form to facilitate comparison among various vehicle types. Subsection 212(b) requires the Secretary to amend, within one year of enactment, the current standard for bumper impact capability, in order to return to the standard in effect on January 1, 1982. The current standard requires bumpers to withstand established levels of damage at impact speeds up to 2.5 miles per hour without damage to the safety features or the exterior sheet metal of the vehicle. The standard to be implemented requires the vehicle to withstand certain levels of damage at impact speeds up to 5 miles per hour.

Conference agreement

STATE MOTOR VEHICLE INSPECTION PROGRAMS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 215 of the Senate amendment requires the Secretary to report regularly to Congress on its efforts to assist states and coordinate with EPA in establishing state motor vehicle inspection programs. The Senate notes that a recent GAO report, "Motor Vehicle Safety: NHTSA Should Resume Its Support of State Periodic Inspection Programs," found that such inspection programs reduce highway accident rates by reducing the number of poorly maintained vehicles. This section will allow Congress to monitor more effectively NHTSA's activities in this area.

Conference substitute

Senate recesses.

DARKENED WINDOWS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 217 of the Senate amendment requires the Secretary to conduct a rulemaking to consider certain safety issues related to the use of dark tinted windows in passenger vehicles and the adequacy to current safety standards in this regard. The Senate notes that NHTSA completed a study of this issue in March 1991, and determined that rulemaking is appropriate. This section would insure that the rulemaking is completed in a timely fashion.

Conference substitute

Senate recesses.

GRANT PROGRAM CONCERNING USE OF SEATBELTS AND CHILD RESTRAINT SYSTEMS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 218 of the Senate amendment establishes a grant program to encourage the states to increase the rate of seat belt usage among their citizens, and to educate their citizens about the proper use of child restraint systems. Grants would be available for a maximum of three fiscal years, to fund a declining percentage of the cost to states of their programs to achieve the required goals. Grants would be available to states that (1) have in effect mandatory seat belt use laws applicable to front seat passengers; (2) achieve either 70 percent seat belt usage by those passengers or a stated, and increasing, improvement over 1989 use rates; and (3) have in effect a program determined by the Secretary to encourage the correct use of child restraint systems.

Conference substitute

Senate recesses. A similar grant program is included in Title I of the conference report.

PEDESTRIAN SAFETY

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 220 of the Senate amendment required that NHTSA complete a rulemaking, within two years of enactment, to minimize pedestrian injury attributable to vehicle design elements such as hoods, hood ornaments, fenders and grills. The Senate notes that, according to NHTSA, almost 7,000 pedestrians are killed annually in the United States. Since 1981, NHTSA had done considerable research on reducing pedestrian injuries, and identifying sources of these injuries. This section would require that a rulemaking be conducted utilizing that research.

Conference substitute

Senate recesses.

DAYTIME RUNNING LIGHTS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 221 of the Senate amendment required a rulemaking, to be completed within 12 months of enactment, to authorize passenger cars and MPVs to be equipped with daytime running lights. The Senate notes that some preliminary research in other countries has indicated that these lights reduce accidents. However, some state laws on headlight configuration have the effect of prohibiting the use of such lights. This section would allow their use. The section also requires that the Secretary report to the appropriate congressional committees, within two years of enactment, on the safety implications of these lights.

Conference substitute

Senate recesses. The conferees note that on August 12, 1991 NHTSA issued a notice or proposed rulemaking on the issue of whether manufacturers should be permitted to produce vehicles with daytime running lights despite state laws concerning headlight configuration.

HEADS-UP-DISPLAYS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Section 223 of the Senate amendment required a rulemaking, to be completed within 12 months of enactment, to consider whether heads-up displays, which permit the driver to obtain information on speed, fuel level, and other instrument readings without looking down, should be required in cars and MPVs. The Senate notes that there is some information that such displays may reduce accidents by allowing the driver to keep his or her eyes on the road while obtaining instrument information. The rulemaking required by this section would not have to result in the issuance of a new or different performance standard or requirements. It is presumed, however, that NHTSA would establish such standard if its investigation showed that they were practicable, would meet the need for motor vehicle safety, and could be stated in objective terms.

Conference substitute

Senate recedes.

TITLE III—TRANSIT

House bill

The House bill provides that unless specifically identified otherwise, all changes to existing law contained in the Act have been made to the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 (49 U.S.C. App. 1601-1621).

Senate amendment

The Senate bill contains a similar provision.

Conference substitute

Senate recedes to House.

AGENCY NAME CHANGE

House bill

The House contains a provision that would rename the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) as the Federal Transit Administration (FTA).

Senate amendment

Senate contained similar provision.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the House provision.

FINDINGS AND PURPOSES

House bill

No similar provision.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would add a new finding that a significant improvement in public transportation is necessary to achieve national goals for improved air quality, energy conservation, international competitiveness and mobility for the elderly, persons with disabilities and the economically disadvantaged in urban and rural areas of the country.

This section would also amend Section 2(b) to state that an objective of the Act will be to provide State and local governments with financial resources to help implement the national goals related to improved air quality, international competitiveness and mobility for the elderly, persons with disabilities and economically disadvantaged persons.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the Senate provision which has been incorporated into Title I.

CAPITAL GRANTS—ELDERLY AND PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES

House bill

No similar provision.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would amend Section 3 of the Act to allow public transit agencies to apply for capital funding under the Section 3 grant program for transportation projects that are specifically designed to meet the needs of elderly persons and persons with disabilities.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the Senate provision.

SECTION 3—PROGRAM ALLOCATIONS

House bill

The House bill contains a provision not included in the Senate bill that would allocate 10 percent of Section 3 funds for a minimum apportionment program which guarantees that each State will receive 1/5 of 1 percent of Mass Transit Account funds distributed annually. These funds may be used, at the discretion of the Governor of the state, for any highway or transit capital project eligible for Federal funding. The Federal share for minimum apportionment projects will be 80 percent, unless a lower Federal share is specified under title 23, United States Code.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would require the Secretary to allocate Section 3 grant funds in the following way: 40 percent for rail modernization; 40 percent for construction of new fixed guideway systems and extensions to fixed guideway systems; and 20 percent for the replacement, rehabilitation and purchase of buses and related equipment and the construction of bus-related facilities.

Conference substitute

House recede to Senate with an amendment to create a rural transit set aside of 5.5 percent of the 20 percent allocated for the replacement, rehabilitation and purchase of buses and bus related equipment and the construction of bus facilities.

ADVANCE CONSTRUCTION—TECHNICAL AMENDMENT RELATED TO INTEREST COST

House bill

No similar provision.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would amend Section 3(1) to make the advance construction mechanism more workable by deleting language that requires grantees to bet on future inflation. The bill substitutes the requirement that operators obtain the most favorable interest terms reasonably available for the project at the time of borrowing.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the Senate provision with an amendment to ensure that operators use due diligence in obtaining the most favorable interest terms.

CAPITAL GRANTS—EARLY SYSTEMS WORK CONTRACTS

House bill

No similar provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would authorize the Secretary to enter into full funding contracts and early systems work agreements with applicants to provide for more efficient project management.

Conference substitute

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with technical amendments.

TRANSIT DEFINITIONS

House bill

The House bill contains a provision not included in the Senate bill that makes the terms transit, public transportation and mass transportation synonymous.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill did not include a similar provision.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the House provision.

CAPITAL GRANT OR LOAN PROGRAM

House bill

No similar provision.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would rename section 3 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 to read "Capital Grant or Loan Program" rather than "Discretionary Grant or Loan Program".

Conference substitute

The conference report does not include the Senate provision.

SECTION 3—LETTER OF INTENT

House bill

The House bill contains a provision not included in the Senate bill that eliminates the letter of intent process currently used by the Secretary to make discretionary grants under the UMTA Section 3 program.

Senate amendment

No similar provision.

Conference substitute

House recede to Senate.

SECTION 3—INNOVATIVE TECHNIQUES

House bill

No similar provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would expand eligible activities under the section 3 discretionary program to include projects that introduce innovative techniques and methods to public transportation. This change merely codifies existing statute by incorporating language from section 4(i) into section 3.

Conference substitute

The conference report does not contain the Senate provision.

SECURITY GRANTS

House bill

The House bill contained a provision not included in the Senate bill that would set aside $10,000,000 annually from the section 3 bus discretionary program for projects which enhance transit security.

Senate bill

No similar provision.

Conference substitution

The conference report contains the House provision with an amendment to provide funding for transit security through the section 9 formula program rather than the section 3, a discretionary program. Section 9 recipients must spend 1 percent of their formula apportionment on transit security projects or certify to the Secretary that transit security needs are adequately met. Transit security would also be added as a factor for consideration in the development of transportation plans and programs.

SECTION 3—GRANDFATHERED JURISDICTIONS

House bill

No similar provision.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would clarify that all existing letters of intent, full funding grant agreements and letter of commitment will remain in effect with passage of this Act.

Conference substitute

The conference agreement included the Senate provision.

MATCHING SHARES

House bill

The House bill contains a provision not included in the Senate bill that would increase the Federal share for projects under Section 3 of the UMT Act from 75 percent to 80 percent.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would establish a higher federal match for those projects funded under sections 3, 9, 16(b), and 18 that involve the acquisition of bus-related equipment (e.g. lift equipment, particulate traps) or the construction of facilities (e.g. alternative fuels facilities) required by the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1990 or the Americans with Disabilities Act. The federal match would be set at 90 percent of the cost of such equipment or facilities. The Secretary would determine the portion or portions of a project eligible for the higher federal match.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the House provision and the Senate provision with an amendment to also make vehicle-related equipment required by the Clean Air Act, as amended, or the Americans with Disabilities Act eligible for a 90 percent federal match.

PLANNING

House bill

Section 305 creates an intermodal transportation planning process by combining the fundamental requirements of highway and transit planning under sections 134 and 135 of title 23, United States Code.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill contains a similar provision.

Conference substitute

The Conference agreement contains elements of both the House and Senate bills.

The conferees intend and expect that MPOs when developing long-range plans will cooperate with States and units of local government in outlying areas that are not yet urbanized but are included in the long-range plan since they are expected to become urbanized in the future.

Private Enterprise and MPO Certification

In accordance with this provision, localities shall be afforded wide flexibility in establishing criteria to be used in determining the "feasibility" of private involvement in local programs. However, nothing in this provision shall diminish the responsibility of the Secretary to encourage grantees of federally funded projects to provide for the maximum feasible participation of private enterprise in accordance with Section 8(e).

SECTION 9 PROGRAM

House bill

The House bill contains a provision not included in the Senate bill that would increase the share of formula grant funds allocated to urbanized areas of less than 200,000 population from 8.64 percent to 10 percent and consequently reduce the share of formula grant funds allocated to urbanized areas of 200,000 or more population from 88.43 percent to 85 percent.

The House bill would specifically extend the safety authority of the FTA to the Section 9 formula grant program.

The bill would redefine "materials and supplies" as associated capital maintenance items.

It provides that the operating assistance limitation imposed on urbanized areas under the section 9 formula grant program will be adjusted for inflation according to the Consumer Price Index of the most recent calendar year on October 1, 1991 and each year thereafter.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would make several amendments to simplify the section 9 grant application process—particularly the existing requirements that recipients self-certify their compliance with various statutory mandates.

The bill would mandate that all certifications required by law be incorporated into a single document to be submitted annually as part of the Section 9 application. The subsection would also require the Secretary to publish an annual list of all required certifications in conjunction with its annual publication—currently required by Section 9(q)—of information outlining the apportionment of Section 9 funds.

The bill would require the Secretary to establish streamlined procedures to govern a recipient's "continuing control" certification with respect to track and signal equipment. Under existing law, a section 9 recipient is required to certify that it has or will have "satisfactory continuing control" over the use of its facilities and equipment. Transit operators have found that UMTA's interpretation of this requirement with respect to track and signal equipment imposes unnecessary administrative burdens on transit recipients.

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would amend section 9 to prevent a transit recipient that undertakes certain energy efficiency initiatives from losing formula funds.

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would apply Section 22 of the Federal Transit Act, which gives the Secretary investigatory powers to ensure safety in mass transit systems, to the section 9 program. The provision is necessary because of the requirement in section 9(e)(1) that only specified sections of the Federal Transit Act apply to section 9.

Conference substitution

The conference report includes the Senate provisions with the following amendments. The share of formula grant funds allocated to urbanized areas of less than 200,000 population is increased from 8.65 percent to 9.32 percent; the share of formula funds for urbanized areas greater than 200,000 population is consequently reduced from 88.43 to 85.10.

The operating assistance limitation in current law would be adjusted for inflation based on the consumer price index, but such increase could not be greater than the increase in the section 9 appropriations from the previous fiscal year.

Energy Efficiency

"The conferees expect that the FTA will adhere to the energy efficiency policy in this legislation. Grantees are deemed in compliance with this policy should they operate shorter trains during certain time periods in order to achieve energy and operating efficiencies."

Security Grants

"The conferees agree that eligible projects include safety communications equipment, as well as, the design and construction of safety and security facilities located on transit system premises."

SECTION 9 PROGRAM—ELIMINATION OF INCENTIVE TIER

House bill

No similar provision.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would eliminate the "incentive tier" provisions of the section 9 bus and rail funding formulas.

Conference substitute

The conference report does not include the Senate provision.

SECTION 9 PROGRAM—PROGRAM OF PROJECTS

House bill

No similar provision.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would require a recipient, in developing its program of projects, to assure that the program provides for the maximum feasible coordination of public transportation services assisted under the section 9 program with transportation services assisted by other federal sources. A similar provision currently is in Section 18 of the Act.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the Senate provision with an amendment to delete the words "maximum feasible."

MODIFIED BUS SERVICE

House bill

The House bill contained a provision not included in the Senate bill that would allow "tripper service" to accommodate the needs of students in New York City.

Senate bill

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the House provision with a modification to define express bus service to include special school bus service intended to alleviate pressure on regularly scheduled local bus service.

USE OF POPULATION ESTIMATES AND CENSUS DATA

House bill

The House bill did not include a similar provision.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would require more frequent updates of the population statistics used to distribute funds under Section 18 and Section 9 for small urbanized areas. Under current law, all UMTA formula programs use population statistics from the most recently available Federal Census. This section would require the Secretary to use interim population estimates provided by the Secretary of Commerce to update the formulas every four years.

The Senate bill also contained a provision not included in the House bill that would require the Secretary to use data from the 1990 census, to the extent practicable, in determining allocation of funds under Sections 9, 16(b)(2) and 18 for fiscal year 1992. The Secretary of Transportation and the Secretary of Commerce would be required to coordinate efforts to expedite the availability of census data in a form that is appropriate for the transit program formulas. The Secretary of Transportation must notify the Congressional authorizing Committees of actions taken under this section within 9 months of enactment of the Federal Transit Act.

Conference substitute

The conference agreement contained the Senate provision with an amendment to drop the use of the 1990 Census to the extent practicable for fiscal year 1992 and limiting the use of interim estimates to the Section 16(b)(2) and 18 programs.

FORMULA GRANT PROGRAM—DISCRETIONARY TRANSFER OF APPORTIONMENT

House bill

The House bill would allow the Governor of a state to transfer 25 percent of the funds allocated to that state for expenditure in urbanized areas of less than 200,000 population under the section 9 program to any other transportation purpose eligible for Federal funding under title 23, United States Code, and an additional 10 percent if transit services are being adequately maintained in those areas.

The House bill would also allow the Governor of a state to transfer 25 percent of the funds allocated to that state for expenditure in rural areas under the section 18 program to any other transportation purpose eligible for Federal funding under title 23, United States Code, and an additional 10 percent if transit services are being adequately maintained in those areas.

Senate bill

The Senate bill would provide that, in a transportation management area, formula grants for construction projects could also be used for highway projects; provided that (i) such use is approved by the metropolitan planning organization in accordance with section 8(c) after appropriate notice and opportunity for comment and appeal is provided to affected transit providers, (ii) adequate provision is first made for any program of investments required to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act and (iii) funds for the State or local government share of the project are eligible to fund either highway or transit projects, or the Secretary finds that State or local law provides a dedicated source of sufficient funding available to fund local transit projects.

Conference substitute

The conference report contains the Senate provision with an amendment to remove the Secretary's authority to certify that sufficient funding is available to fund transit projects.

SPECIAL PROCUREMENT

House bill

The House bill contains a provision that would permit the use of "turnkey" procurement in the award of grants for the construction of new transit systems. A "turnkey system project" is defined as one in which a grant recipient contracts with a consortium of firms, an individual firm(s), or a vendor to build a transit system that meets specific performance criteria and which is operated by the vendor for a period of time. Multi-year rolling stock procurements are also specifically permitted.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill contained a similar provision.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the House provision with an amendment to ensure that the Secretary must allow at least two projects to pursue turnkey system procurements, and to require the Secretary to consider any other projects using turnkey procurement in the development of regulations. The report also includes a provision to allow transit grantees to select other than the lowest bidder if such selection furthers objectives which are consistent with the purposes of this Act, such as improved long term operating efficiency and lower long term costs.

RULEMAKING

House bill

No comparable provision.

Senate bill

The Senate bill would require the Secretary to use the notice-and-comment rule-making process on a range of significant Federal Transit Administration policy issues but would not require the process to be followed in the case of emergency rules, routine matters, or matters of insignificant impact.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the Senate provision. The conferees do not intend that the Secretary publish all of the Federal Transit Administration's instructions or routine requirements as rulemakings. Examples of matters not subject to the rule-making process include the issuance or revision of grant application circulars, such as those for the section 9 or 18 programs, letters of explanation or interpretation of regulations or policies in response to requests from Members of Congress or the public, internal procedures on administrative issues, and other routine managerial and program issues.

TRANSFER OF FACILITIES AND EQUIPMENT

House bill

The House bill contains a provision not included in the Senate bill that would allow the transfer of capital assets acquired with Federal assistance, which are no longer needed for the purpose for which they were acquired, to any public purpose, provided that the Secretary determines that certain conditions regarding the value and use of the assets have been met.

Senate bill

The Senate bill included a similar provision. The Senate bill also included a provision to allow a similar transfer of assets between the section 18 and section 16 programs.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the House provision and the Senate provision for transfer of assets under section 18 and section 16.

ELDERLY AND PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES

House bill

The House bill would permit the use of section 16(b) funds for operating expenses. Also, transit service providers receiving assistance under sections 16 or 18 may coordinate and assist in providing meal delivery service for homebound persons on a regular basis if providing the meal service does not conflict with the provision of transit service or result in a reduction of service to transit passengers.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would clarify existing FTA practice by specifying that funds provided under the Section 16(b)(2) program will be allocated to the States, who in turn will distribute funds to eligible private non-profit organizations. States would submit a program of projects to the Secretary for approval as is current practice. The section also requires an assurance that the State's program of projects provides for the coordination of Section 16(b)(2) transportation services with transportation services assisted from other Federal sources. This provision is designed to encourage more effective coordination and to avoid duplication of service.

In addition, the section would authorize assistance to public bodies that are approved by a State to coordinate transportation services for elderly persons and persons with disabilities. This provision is designed to support the efforts of States attempting to coordinate transportation services.

The Senate bill would allow the Governor of each State to use any funds that remain unobligated from the Section 16(b)(2) program during the final 90 day period prior to the expiration of the grant to be used to supplement funds distributed under either the Section 18 program or the Section 9 program.

The Senate bill would also require the Secretary to issue regulations to allow recipients of 16(b)(2) funds to lease their equipment to public transit entities. The section specifies that the regulations shall be issued within 60 days of enactment of the bill.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the Senate provisions with an amendment to clarify that public bodies are eligible for capital funding under Section 16(b)(2) only if they certify to the Governor that no non-profit corporations are readily available in an area to provide transportation for elderly persons and persons with disabilities. The conference report includes a provision to allow eligible capital expenses to include the acquisition of transportation services under a contract, lease or other arrangement. The report includes the House provision regarding meal delivery service for homebound persons.

ELIGIBILITY STUDY

House bill

The House bill contains a provision not included in the Senate bill that requires the Secretary to conduct a study on the eligibility requirements of individuals with disabilities for off-peak reduced transit fares.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the House provision.

E&H FUNDS FOR PENNSYLVANIA

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference report does not include the House provision.

INTERCITY BUS TRANSPORTATION

House bill

The House bill contains a provision not included in the Senate bill that would provide that, before apportioning section 18 funds, the Secretary shall set aside $20,000,000 for intercity bus transportation.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill did not include a similar provision.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the House provision with an amendment to set aside funds for intercity bus service from each State's apportioned section 18 funds rather than provide a discretionary set-aside from the total program. A State would be required to spend 5% of its section 18 allocation in fiscal year 1992, 10% in fiscal year 1993 and 15% in fiscal year 1994 and all years thereafter, for the development of an intercity bus program unless it certifies to the Secretary that the State's intercity bus needs have been adequately met relative to other rural needs in the State.

GAO STUDY ON PUBLIC TRANSIT NEEDS

House bill

The House bill contains a provision requiring the Secretary, beginning in January 1993 and biennially thereafter, to report to the Congress a comprehensive estimate of the future transit needs of the nation, including an assessment of the impact of the transferability of transit funds to highway projects.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a similar provision that would require the General Accounting Office, on a biennial basis, to submit a report to Congress that evaluates the extent to which the nation's transit needs are being adequately addressed. The report would include (1) an analysis of the unmet needs for transit; (2) a projection of the maintenance and modernization needs that will accrue over the coming five years as existing transit equipment and facilities deteriorate; and (3) a projection of the need to invest in additional transit facilities over the coming five years to meet changing economic, commuter and residential patterns. The report would also estimate (1) the cost of meeting the needs identified above; (2) the public and private resources that will be available to support public transit; and (3) the gap between transit needs and resources.

Conference substitute

The Conference Agreement contains the Senate provision requiring the General Accounting Office to conduct a comprehensive study on total funding needs for public transit systems as well as a study on the effects of shifting transit funds to highway projects.

ENGINEERING AND DESIGN SERVICES

House Bill

The House contains a provision not included in the Senate bill that would allow the use of indirect cost rates established in accordance with Federal acquisitions regulations in the performance of, or auditing of, FTA grants.

Senate bill

No similar provision.

Conference substitute

Recede to Senate.

SAFETY CONDITIONS IN MASS TRANSIT

House bill

The House bill included a provision not in the Senate bill that would require states to establish and implement a safety program for fixed guideway transit systems and require the Secretary to withhold transit funds if the State does not comply with the provisions of the section.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would require the Secretary to submit a report to Congress within 180 days of enactment on the safety of mass transit. The report would include a summary of all passenger-related and employee-related deaths and injuries resulting from unsafe conditions in mass transit facilities. The report would also include a summary of the investigative and remedial actions taken by the Secretary in accordance with the authority provided by Section 22. Finally, the report would make recommendations concerning any legislative or administrative actions that are necessary to ensure that recipients of federal funds will institute the best means available to correct or eliminate safety hazards.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the Senate provision and the House provision with an amendment to limit the ability of the Secretary to withhold transit funds.

AWARD AUDITS

The House bill contains a provision not included in the Senate bill.

House bill

Section 310 clarifies Congressional intent regarding pre-award and post-award audits of rolling stock purchases.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference report does not contain either provision.

M ACCOUNT

House bill

The House bill contains a provision not included in the Senate bill.

Preserves the availability of M account balances available as of August 1, 1991.

Senate amendment

No similar provision.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the House provision.

PROJECT MANAGEMENT OVERSIGHT

House bill

No comparable provision.

Senate bill

The Senate bill contained a provision not included in the House bill that would increase the percentage of funds reserved for FTA's project management oversight program. The current 1/2 percent takedown of all funds available to carry out sections 3, 9, 18, interstate transfer projects, and the National Capital Transportation Act (authorizing legislation for D.C. Metro) would be increased to 3/4 percent. A technical restriction would be removed that currently limits the use of these "takedowns" from each eligible program to projects funded under that same particular section. Instead, FTA could aggregate all of these funds for use on projects in any of the eligible programs.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the Senate provision with an amendment to limit the increase to 3/4 percent set-aside to section 3 projects at the discretion of the Secretary.

PLANNING AND RESEARCH

House bill

Section 317 establishes a combined planning and research program under a new section 26. Of the funds made available annually, one-third is available to the Secretary to make grants under sections 6, 8, 10, 11(a), 18(h), or 20.

The remaining two-thirds is available to the states and metropolitan planning organizations for transit-related planning under sections 134 and 135 of title 23, United States Code.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill included a similar provision with a different funding structure.

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the Senate provision with an amendment to add several research demonstration projects.

The suspended Light Rail System Technology Pilot Project should be administered and implemented by the Federal Transit Administration Office of Technology Assistance and Safety with normal oversight and control by the Office of the Administrator.

The conferees want to make clear their intentions with regard to the transit cooperative research program under Section 317(a) of the House bill and under Section 341 of the Senate bill. It is our intention, as specified under an understanding between UMTA and the transit industry and as outlined in the Floor statement of Public Works and Transportation Chairman Roe, that the Transit Development Corporation be designated as the independent governing board that determines what research and related activities are carried out. In interpreting the statutory language it is the conference committee's expectation that this independent governing board will have the authority to provide its own staffing and that UMTA will pay for such expenses. In addition, while the conferees envision that the Transportation Research Board, under the National Academy of Sciences will conduct the research projects designated by the Transit Development Corporation, they expect that the Transit Development Corporation and the American Public Transit Association will have the opportunity to disseminate the results of such research and that UMTA will support such dissemination costs.

CHARTER SERVICE DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM

House bill

No comparable provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill contained a provision that would require GAO to conduct a study on charter service regulation.

Conference substitute

The GAO charter service regulation study is amended to include a demonstration program. In response to the concerns expressed by local transit operators regarding the existing charter service regulation, the Conferees have mandated the Secretary to implement an alternative set of regulations in not more than four states that would permit transit operators to provide charter services.

These regulations should be designed to enable public transit operators to provide charter services to government, civic, charitable and other community organizations that serve a public purpose and help address unmet transit needs. It is intended that these regulations will grant public transit operators with additional flexibility that is not afforded under the existing charter services regulations, but will to the maximum extent feasible, not create undue competition for privately owned charter services.

It is the desire of the Conferees to ensure that the regulations provide proper balance between the interests of public and private operators. Thus, in developing the regulations, the Secretary will be required to consult with an advisory board which has equal representation of public transit operators and privately owned charter services.

The Conferees intend to thoroughly monitor the demonstration program and to review the results of the study carefully during consideration of the interim surface transportation bill.

The Conferees believe this demonstration program will provide Congress and the Secretary with information to determine: (1) the most effective methods for providing charter services to local communities; and (2) whether the current regulations are in need of modification. The Conferees recommend that the Secretary select the state of Michigan as a participant in the program.

SECTION 3—NEW STARTS

House bill

The House bill included provisions that would require all new start projects to be authorized in statute in order to receive funds. The bill would require FTA to submit to Congress annually a report on new starts.

Senate bill

The Senate bill included provisions not included in the House bill that would revise the new starts criteria and project development process.

Conference substitute

The conference report contains provisions from both the House and Senate bills.

The Conferees want to make clear that, in establishing guidelines for construction of new fixed guideway systems or extensions to such systems, the Act's directive that the "degree of local financial commitment shall be considered acceptable only if—"(ii) each proposed local source of capital and operating funding is stable, reliable, and available within the proposed project timetable;" shall not prevent funding for projects for which there is a reasonable expectation of local funding. The conferees expect that the guidelines would include among the types of financial commitment that constitute an acceptable degree of local financing, state and local tax levies or assessments, annual state or local general fund appropriations, anticipated bond revenues, in kind contributions, and other possible funding sources.

3(C)(iii)—The Conferees want to make clear that, in establishing guidelines for construction of new fixed guideway systems or extensions to such systems, the Act's directive that the "degree of local financial commitment shall be considered acceptable only if—"(i) all resources are available to operate the overall proposed transit system (including essential feeder bus and other services necessary to achieve the projected ridership levels) without requiring a reduction in existing transit services in order to operate the proposed project" shall not prevent funding for projects where such proposed projects would provide a substantially similar level of existing transit service. The conferees do not intend such guidelines to prevent initiation of fixed guideway projects that would provide a level of service similar to that already provided through other means.

NEW JERSEY URBAN CORE PROJECT

Conference substitute

The conference report includes the House provision with amendments.

The conferees expect the Connecticut Department of Transportation to continue to designate the Penquonnock (Peck) River Railroad Bridge project as a high priority project to be completed within available funds. The conferees concurrently direct the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration, in acting on the Connecticut Department of Transportation's funding request for the Peck Bridge project, to take account of the importance the conferees place on the completion of this project for the state of Connecticut and the proper functioning of the entire Northeast rail corridor.

The managers direct that $250,000 of the funds made available under section 3 be used to initiate an analysis of the possible route, options and incremental phases for assistance necessary for a rail connection between North Station and South Station in Boston, Massachusetts.

This study should include an operating analysis, taking into consideration the option of connecting such service with existing or proposed rail services to and from Boston, including the connection's capability of meeting the regional, intrastate and interstate transportation demands.

This study should include an engineering and financial analysis, taking into consideration a regional commuter railroad service, Massachusetts intercity service and Amtrak interstate service. UMTA is responsible for the overall study, but should conduct it in coordination, as deemed necessary, with the Federal Railroad Administration, Amtrak, private freight lines and regional transportation authorities.

The study is intended only as an assessment of feasibility, but shall include recommendations for possible federal assistance. This analysis shall be of rail link separate and distinct from the Boston Central Artery/Third Harbor Tunnel project and the Federal Highway Administration.

Of the funds authorized to be appropriated under this Act, the conferees intend that $750,000 be provided to assist the Research Triangle Regional Public Transportation Authority with a regional transit planning study to identify transportation system deficiencies, possible solutions, and evaluate transit technology alternatives.

TITLE IV—MOTOR CARRIER ACT OF 1991

House bill

SECTION 401, SHORT TITLE

This title may be cited as the "Motor Carrier Act of 1991".

Senate amendment

This part may be cited as the Motor Carrier Safety Assistance Program Reauthorization Act of 1991.

Conference substitute

Retains the House title.

MOTOR CARRIER SAFETY ASSISTANCE PROGRAM AMENDMENTS

House bill

Amends section 402 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982. The principal changes affect the purposes and goals of the program and the plan that must be submitted by the states participating in the program.

Subsection (a) permits new activities to be initiated in this program. It further provides that state plans must ensure that these new activities will not diminish other aspects of the program. In addition, subsection (a) requires the plan to ensure that fines imposed and collected will be reasonable and appropriate, and that the program will be coordinated with the state highway safety plan under section 402 of Title 23 of the United States Code.

Subsection (b) requires that the states initiating these new efforts must maintain current support for their programs for enforcement of size and weight laws, controlled substance laws and traffic law enforcement laws.

Subsection (c) amends the program to allow states to begin certain new activities and to incorporate these activities into their respective programs. States may incorporate motor vehicle size and weight enforcement, controlled substance interdiction activities, and enforcement of state traffic laws. The size and weight enforcement activities under this program must be directed at weighing vehicles at other than fixed-site weighing stations. The activities can include weighing activities at seaports and at locations such as steep grades or mountainous terrains where weight may cause more acute safety problems. These activities can be carried out only in conjunction with principal activity of this program; namely, roadside safety inspections.

Subsection (d) establishes funding levels for the Motor Carrier Safety Assistance Program established under section 404 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982. The levels are $65 million for fiscal year 1992, $80 million for fiscal year 1993, and $100 million per fiscal year for fiscal years 1994, 1995, and 1996.

Subsection (e) provides that grants made under the program will be available to the states for three years, rather than for one year.

Subsection (f) provides that funds made available for this program are now available until expended.

Subsection (g) provides that the Secretary may use one percent rather than one-half of one percent for administrative purposes.

Subsection (h) provides earmarking of funds for training roadside inspectors in the hazardous materials regulations, for making grants to states to adopt uniform accident reporting forms for truck and bus accidents, for research, for essential administrative functions, for public education, and for several specified reports.

Subsection (i) authorizes appropriations for carrying out the motor carrier safety functions of the Federal Highway Administration.

Subsection (j) lists a number of reports which the Secretary is required to make. The reports are to be funded at $150,000.00 per year for fiscal years 1992 and 1993.

Senate amendment

This section amends Chapter 4 of title 23 of the U.S. Code by adding a new section 411. Subsection (a) of this new section authorizes the Secretary to make grants to eligible States for the enforcement of Federal or compatible State commercial motor vehicle safety rules, regulations, standards, and orders, as well as State and local traffic safety laws and regulations.

Subsection (b) of this new section requires the Secretary to formulate procedures for a State to use when submitting its annual Motor Carrier Assistance Program plan. This section requires States to adopt and assume responsibility for enforcing Federal motor carrier safety rules, regulations, standards, and orders, including vehicle size and weight requirements and commercial motor vehicle alcohol and controlled substances awareness and enforcement (including interdiction of illegal shipments), or compatible State rules in these areas. This new section provides the Secretary with discretion to approve State plans which designate a lead State agency responsible for administering the plan, ensure qualified personnel and adequate funds to administer the plan, provide a right of entry and inspection and that the State will grant maximum reciprocity for inspections conducted pursuant to the North American inspection standard, provide for the adoption of uniform reporting requirements and use of uniform recordkeeping and inspection forms, ensure participation in databases on drivers, vehicle inspections, and driver compliance with traffic safety laws and regulations, and ensure that size and weight inspection activities will not diminish other safety initiatives. Additionally, this new section requires that a State plan give satisfactory assurances that the State would conduct effective activities in the area of drug and alcohol enforcement, provide training to Motor Carrier Assistance Program officials and employees in drug recognition techniques, promote Commercial Drivers' License enforcement, ensure adequate enforcement of traffic safety, improve the enforcement of hazardous materials transportation regulations by encouraging more inspections of shipper facilities and vehicle loads, promote drug interdiction activities, and attempt to ensure that fines imposed and collected by the State will be reasonable and that the State will seek to implement the recommended fine schedule published by the Commercial Vehicle Safety Alliance.

In the areas of commercial motor vehicle safety and drug and weight enforcement, this new section specifies that a State maintain an average of the expenditures for the last three years, exclusive of Federal funds or State matching funds, in order to receive Program funds for these purposes. If a State chooses to use Program funds for weight enforcement, a State must couple that enforcement with a safety inspection and conduct enforcement at locations other than fixed-weight facilities, such as at specific geographic locations, or on containers being loaded or unloaded at seaports.

Each fiscal year, this new section allows the Secretary to deduct up to 1.25 percent of the funds available for the administration of the Program, of which 75 percent is to be used for the training of non-Federal employees and development of training material. In order for this plan to be approved, a State must maintain a level of motor carrier safety expenditures which does not fall below an average of the previous 3 fiscal years, exclusive of Federal funds and State matching funds required to receive Federal funds. Funds made available to a State are to remain available for the fiscal year in which they were allocated and one succeeding fiscal year. If not expended by a State during those 2 years, the Secretary is to reallocate these funds. This section provides funding for the Motor Carrier Assistance Program at levels not to exceed $70 million in fiscal year 1993, $75 million in fiscal year 1994, $80 million in fiscal year 1995, and $85 million in fiscal year 1996.

Funding is increased to take into account inflationary costs that will raise the cost of the Program's current inspection and audit work. In addition, the new section's funding level recognizes the need for increased traffic-related enforcement efforts (not less than $7.5 million to be spent for this purpose annually, beginning in fiscal year 1993). The new section requires that each of the States should use Program funds to improve their existing traffic safety enforcement programs affecting operators of commercial motor vehicles, and therefore, each of the States should receive an appropriate portion of the earmarked funds.

Finally, section 2(b) of the bill amends the existing Motor Carrier Assistance Program provisions of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982. Under that amendment, funding of $65,000,000 is allocated for fiscal year 1992 and is not subject to the new State plan requirements. A State may, however, resubmit its fiscal year 1992 State enforcement plans and seek reimbursement for any of the new activities required in fiscal year 1993.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute on the funding levels for the Motor Carrier Safety Assistance Program established under Section 404 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act are $65 million for fiscal year 1992, $76 million for fiscal year 1993, $80 million for fiscal year 1994, $83 million for fiscal year 1995, $85 million for fiscal year 1996, and $90 million for fiscal year 1997.

The substitute retained the general structure of the House bill. The substitute permits new activities to be initiated in this program. It further provides that state plans must ensure that these new activities will not diminish other aspects of the program. In addition, subsection (a) requires the plan to ensure that fines imposed and collected will be reasonable and appropriate, that the program will be coordinated with the state highway safety plan under section 402 of Title 23 of the United States Code, and that the 48 contiguous states participate in SAFETYNET by January 1, 1994.

The substitute allows states to begin certain new discretionary activities and to incorporate these activities into their respective programs. States may incorporate motor vehicle size and weight enforcement, controlled substance interdiction activities, and enforcement of state traffic laws. The size and weight enforcement activities under this program must be directed at weighing vehicles at other than fixed-site weighing stations. The activities can include weighing activities at seaports and at locations such as steep grades or mountainous terrains where weight may cause more acute safety problems. These activities can be carried out only in conjunction with principal activity of this program; namely roadside safety inspections.

The substitute requires that the states initiating these new efforts must maintain current support for their programs for enforcement of size and weight laws, controlled substance laws and traffic law enforcement.

The substitute retains slightly altered House provision on the commercial motor vehicle information system, the truck and bus accident data grant program and the common carriers providing transportation for charitable purposes. It also incorporates amended language on the provisions in the Senate bill dealing with research and development, public education, and the new allocation formula. The Senate provisions on violations of out-of-service orders, intrastate compatibility, and FHWA positions are incorporated into the Conference Substitute.

The conferees expect that local governments receiving motor carrier assistance program funds from the States will continue their existing motor carrier safety and combined motor carrier safety and associated traffic enforcement efforts and use MCSAP funds to supplement their existing efforts.

COMMERCIAL MOTOR VEHICLE INFORMATION SYSTEM

House bill

Section 403 amends Part A of title IV of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 by adding a new section 407.

New subsection 407(a) empowers the Secretary to review state motor vehicle registration systems for license tags in order to determine if such systems could be utilized in establishing a Commercial Motor Vehicle Information System. The system established by the Secretary should be designed to link state registration systems to the Department of Transportation's Safetynet System which contains essential data on the safety fitness of interstate motor carriers. The system is to be maintained by user fees.

The Commercial Motor Vehicle Information System could be operated by the Secretary, by a state or states, or a third party. Uniform data collection and reporting by all states would be required.

New subsection 407(b) provides that as part of the development of this program, the Secretary is empowered to carry out a pilot project with states in order to determine how to provide the needed linkage of the relevant systems and to determine types of sanctions which might be imposed on registrants to ensure safety compliance.

New subsection 407(c) authorizes the Secretary to issue regulations to implement this section.

New subsection 407(d) provides the funding necessary to carry out this section as provided in section 404(g)(2) of this title. The Secretary is provided $2 million per fiscal year for fiscal years 1992-1996 for carrying out the pilot project. The money is from the Motor Carrier Safety Assistance Program.

New subsection 407(e) defines a commercial motor vehicle for the purpose of this section.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The House bill, with one additional provision. The provision is that the Secretary of the Department of Transportation should prepare and submit a report assessing the costs, benefits, and feasibility of such a system. The report should include legislative recommendations on the nationwide implementation of such system, if the Secretary finds that such a nationwide system would be beneficial.

TRUCK AND BUS ACCIDENT DATA GRANT PROGRAM

House bill

Section 404 amends Part A of title IV of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 by adding a new section 408.

New subsection 408(a) authorizes the Secretary to make grants to states to assist them in adopting and implementing uniform reporting of accident data for trucks and buses.

New subsection 408(b) provides that grants may be made for assisting states in designing appropriate forms, in preparing instruction manuals, in training state and local officers, and for such other activities as are determined to be appropriate.

New subsection 408(c) requires the Secretary to coordinate grants made under this section with the highway safety programs under section 402 of title 23 U.S.C.

Under new subsection 408(d), the Secretary is authorized to make grants of up to $3 million per year for fiscal years 1993 through 1996.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The House bill, with several changes. The funding level is changed to $2 million per fiscal year for fiscal years 1993 through 1997. Another change adds training language pertaining to accident investigation techniques. Finally, it permits grant money to be used for analyzing and evaluating safety data.

SINGLE STATE REGISTRATION SYSTEM

House bill

Amends section 11506 of title 49 U.S.C.

Subsection 406(a) provides that effective January 1, 1994 states are prohibited from requiring motor carriers regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission to file certificates or permits with the states in which they operate. It further eliminates the requirements for displaying a decal to indicate the possession of such a permit or certificate or the collection of a fee for such registration or decals.

States may continue the practice of requiring motor carriers to file and maintain proof of insurance.

Subsection 406(b) authorizes the Secretary to make grants to states to offset revenues lost as a result of subsection (a). A state is eligible if it had imposed and collected fees in 1991. The funding is established at $50 million for fiscal year 1994. Reimbursement is for one year only.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

Section 405 repeals, effective January 1, 1994, the "bingo stamp" program authorized by Congress in 1965 through enactment of P.L. 89-170. The bingo stamp program allowed states to require interstate carriers to register their interstate operating authority with the state and charge a fee for doing so. The interstate carrier then received identification or "bingo" stamps from the state. Currently, 39 states require interstate carriers to carry such a stamp in the cab of each commercial motor vehicle operating within its borders.

The bingo stamp program authorized by P.L. 89-170 has been characterized as inefficient and has been an administrative burden on the trucking industry and the states. The trucking industry estimates that the program costs interstate carriers up to $250 million per year. Meanwhile, the 39 participating states collect only about $50 million under the program. The repeal of the bingo stamp program under Section 405 is intended to benefit the interstate carriers by eliminating unnecessary compliance burdens. It is the hope of the Conferees that, ultimately, consumers will also benefit from the cost savings associated with the elimination of the bingo program.

In order to preserve revenues for the states which had participated in the bingo program, Section 405 establishes a new annual fee system enabling such states to continue to collect funds from interstate motor carriers. The fee is based upon the carrier's filing of proof of required liability insurance. Fee revenues under this system must be collected through a streamlined administrative process established by Section 406 known as the "single state" or "base state" registration system. Under the single state registration system, a carrier will pay its annual fees to a single state (its base state) and that state will distribute the collections to other participating states in which the carrier's vehicles operate. This system is to be instituted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, in consultation with the participating states and the trucking industry, in such a manner as to eliminate as much of the paperwork and other compliance burdens as possible. Section 405 specifies that the only evidence of payment or other identification a vehicle must carry under this system is a copy of the receipt given the carrier by the base state.

States which did not collect bingo stamp fees under the former program will not be able to collect the new fees authorized by Section 405. Additionally, states must participate in the base state program in order to collect the fees authorized by Section 405. States are expressly prohibited from charging a fee for the registration of a carrier's interstate operating authority or for any other filings which may be required under Section 405.

The new fee system is to be based upon the number of vehicles which a carrier operates in a state and the number of states in which that carrier operates. States will not be allowed to charge a greater fee under Section 405 than the fee they charged under the former program as of November 15, 1991. The fee cannot exceed $10 per vehicle under any circumstances.

The Conference version of Section 405 does not authorize any funds to be distributed to the states from the Highway Trust Fund.

VEHICLE LENGTH LIMITATION

House bill

Section 407(a) amends the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 by adding a new subsection (j) to section 411.

New subsection (j)(1) prohibits a state from allowing operation of any commercial motor vehicle combination with two or more cargo carrying units (not including the truck tractor) which units as measured from the front of the first cargo carrying unit to the rear of the last carrying unit are a total length greater than were authorized by state statute or regulation and were being lawfully operated on or before June 1, 1991. The prohibition applies to the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways and those classes of qualifying Federal-aid primary system highways as designated by the Secretary subject to subsection 411(e).

New subsection (j)(2) allows the operation of commercial motor vehicle combinations with two or more cargo carrying units (not including the truck tractor) to continue to operate on the relevant highway system if (A) the state determined on or before June 1, 1991 that such commercial motor vehicle combination could lawfully operate on such relevant system or highways pursuant to a state statute or regulation in effect on June 1, 1991; (B) the commercial motor vehicle combination was in lawful operation on a regular or periodic basis (including seasonal operation or operation pursuant to a permit issued by the state) on the relevant system or highways on or before June 1, 1991; and (C) if all operations of such commercial motor vehicle combinations on such relevant system and highways continue to be subject to, at a minimum, all state statutes, regulations, limitations and conditions (including routing-specific and configuration specific designations and all other restrictions) in effect on June 1, 1991; except that, subject to guidelines established by the Secretary, the state may make minor adjustments to route-specific designations and vehicle operation restrictions for safety purposes and for road construction purposes.

New subsection (j)(3) provides that in addition to the vehicles which may continue to operate in the State of Wyoming under (j)(2), such State may allow commercial motor vehicle combinations not in actual use on June 1, 1991 on the relevant system and highways by enactment of a State law on or before November 3, 1992. The State must notify the Secretary of enactment of such State law within 30 days and the Secretary must publish notice of the enactment of such law in the Federal Register.

New subsection (j)(4) provides that states may further restrict or prohibit vehicles covered by this provision, however, any such restriction or prohibition must be consistent with sections 412 and 416 of this Act. Any such changes must be submitted to the Secretary. Such change must be published in the Federal Register by the Secretary.

New subsection (j)(5) requires that within 90 days after the effective date of this subsection (October 1, 1991) states must complete and file in writing with the Secretary a complete list of all state statutes, regulations, limitations and conditions governing the operation of these types of vehicles.

If the state fails to file within the specified time, the Secretary is given the authority to complete and file the list for the state.

The state is further required to certify in writing that the state had determined pursuant to a state statute or regulation in effect on June 1, 1991 that such commercial motor vehicle combinations could lawfully be operated on such relevant system and highways, and such combinations were in operation on a regular or periodic basis on such system and highways on or before June 1, 1991.

The Secretary is required to publish the list in the Federal Register. After publication the Secretary is required to review the certifications and may commence a proceeding, on the Secretary's own initiative or pursuant to a challenge by any person, to determine whether or not the state's certification is inaccurate. The state has the burden of proof.

If the Secretary determines the certification is inaccurate, the Secretary is required to amend the list published in the Federal Register.

This subsection also provides that no state statute or regulation shall be included on the list published by the Secretary merely on the grounds that it is authorized, or could have authorized, by permit or otherwise, the operation of commercial motor vehicle combinations not in actual operation on a regular or periodic basis on or before June 1, 1991.

This subsection further provides the lists published in the Federal Register shall become final on the 30th day after publication, with the exception of adjustments made pursuant to paragraphs 2(C), (3), and (4) and subparagraph (D) of paragraph 5.

New subsection (j)(6) requires the Secretary to issue regulations establishing guidelines for states to follow in making minor adjustments for safety or road construction purposes.

New subsection (j)(7) provides that nothing in this subsection should be construed to allow operation on the relevant system or highways of any commercial motor vehicle prohibited under section 127(d) of title 23, U.S.C., or to affect in any way the operation of commercial motor vehicles having only cargo carrying unit.

New subsection (j)(8) defines cargo carrying unit.

Subsection 407(b) amends section 411(a) to include buses having lengths of 45 feet. States must allow buses of up to 45 feet to utilize the Interstate System and those classes of Federal-aid Primary System highways as designated by the Secretary pursuant to section 411(e). It also includes these vehicles in the access provisions of subsection 412(a).

Senate amendment

The Senate Amendment contains a similar length limitation. A state is prohibited from allowing the operation on the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways and designated Federal-aid Primary highways of any commercial motor vehicle combination with two or more cargo carrying units whose cargo units exceed the maximum state length limitation authorized by state law on or before June 1, 1991, or were not in actual continuing lawful operation in the state on or before June 1, 1991.

A state would not be prevented from further restricting commercial motor vehicle combinations consistent with parameters of current law. If a state further restricted the operations of commercial motor vehicle combinations, it would be required to so advise the Secretary within 30 days and the Secretary would publish a notice of the state's action in the Federal Register.

Combinations of commercial motor vehicles could continue to operate if such vehicles were in actual, continuing operation (including continuing seasonal operation) in that state on or before June 1, 1991, and were authorized pursuant to state law.

The provisions on the preparation of the list of state length limits differs under the Senate Amendment. Specifically, the Secretary would determine and publish within 60 days of enactment the list of applicable state length limitations as of June 1, 1991. The list would become final within 60 days after publication.

The Senate Amendment has no comparable provisions on length of buses as contained in the House bill.

Conference substitute

The Conference Agreement includes the length limitation for commercial motor vehicles as provided by both House and Senate versions. No state can allow by state law or any other means the operation on the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways and designated classes of qualifying Federal-aid primary system highways of any commercial motor vehicle combinations with two or more cargo carrying units whose cargo units exceed the length limitations authorized by state law on or before June 1, 1991, or whose cargo carrying units by specific configuration were not in actual, lawful operation on a regular or periodic basis (including continuing seasonal operation) in the state on or before June 1, 1991. States could further restrict the operation of commercial motor vehicle combinations consistent with the parameters of current law. A state making such further restrictions must advise the Secretary within 30 days and the Secretary is required to publish notice of such action.

Limited narrow transitional rules for determining the applicable date of state law length limitations are included for the States of Wyoming and Alaska. In addition, a limited narrow exception is included for a 1-mile segment on Ohio State Route 7.

The Conference Agreement length limitation contains a narrow exception for nondivisible vehicles and loads which have been issued special permits under state law.

The Secretary is required to define by regulation nondivisible loads for purposes of this exception. The types of nondivisible loads envisioned by this provision are long loads, e.g., missiles or bridge section on two or more connected flat bed trucks. The Secretary should interpret this exception so as to ensure that no state allows any genuine divisible load to operate contrary to the length limit freeze. Permits issued under this provision shall be on a temporary and exceptional basis. This provision is more narrow than the House bill's original exception for special permits under state law. The Senate Amendment did not contain an express provision on special permits under state law.

The Conference Agreement also contains a modified and more narrow version of the House provision which allowed a state to make minor adjustments to routing-specific and vehicle operation restrictions in effect on June 1, 1991, for safety purposes and road construction. The Senate Amendment did not contain a similar provision. Under the Conference Agreement, a state can only make minor adjustments to route designations and vehicle operating restrictions if the minor adjustments are of a temporary and emergency nature. In addition, such adjustments would have to be for specific situations made necessary by safety purposes and road construction. The Secretary is required to issue regulations establishing criteria for states to follow in making such minor adjustments. Any state making such minor adjustments is required to notify the Secretary within 30 days. The Secretary is required to publish notice of such action.

Preparation of the list of state length limitations under the conference agreement proceeds in the following manner: Within 60 days of the date of enactment, each state is required to submit to the Secretary a complete list of its length limits under state law. This initial list is considered an interim list. No state statute or regulation is to be included on the list submitted by a state merely because it authorized, or could have authorized, by permit or otherwise, the operation of commercial motor vehicle combinations not in actual operation on a regular or periodic basis on or before June 1, 1991.

Not later than 90 days after enactment, the Secretary is required to publish the interim list in the Federal Register. The Secretary is required to review the list for accuracy and also solicit public comment on the accuracy of the information in the interim list. Not later than 180 days after enactment, the Secretary is required to publish a final list after making any revisions to correct inaccuracies. After publication of the final list, commercial motor vehicle combinations with two or more cargo carrying units may not operate on the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways and designated Federal-aid primary system highways except as published on the list. A procedure is provided for the Secretary to correct any inadvertent mistakes which may later be discovered on the list.

In addition, the Conference Agreement includes the provisions in the House bill requiring states to allow passenger buses of up to 45 feet to utilize the Interstate System and designated classes of Federal-aid Primary System highways and related House language to include passenger buses within the access provisions of subsection 412(a).

LONGER COMBINATION VEHICLE REGULATIONS, STUDIES AND TESTING

House bill

Provides that the Secretary must begin and complete a rulemaking to establish minimum training requirements for operators of longer combination vehicles. A final rule is required two years after October 1, 1991.

New subsection 408(b) provides for a safety study on longer combination vehicles. The report on the study is due two years after October 1, 1991.

New subsection 408(c) requires the Secretary to study the effects on drivers, including driver fatigue, of driving longer combination vehicles. The report is due two years after October 1, 1991.

New subsection 408(b) directs the Secretary to conduct tests on the operation of longer combination vehicles in order to determine whether any modifications to the Federal safety regulations are needed for longer combination vehicles. The Federal safety regulations to be addressed are those contained in Subchapter B of Chapter III of Title 49 of the Code of Federal Regulations. The report is due 3 years after October 1, 1991.

New subsection 408(e) provides $1,000,000 a year out of the Highway Trust Fund for FY 1992-1996 for the Secretary to carry out this section.

New subsection 408(f) defines longer combination vehicles for purposes of this section.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference agreement includes the House (previously section 402 of the House bill) and Senate (previously section 241 of the Senate bill) requirement of a report by the Secretary of Transportation to Congress on the effectiveness of efforts of the private sector to ensure adequate training of entry-level drivers. The due date of the report has been changed to 12 months, with an additional requirement that a rulemaking by the Secretary on the need to require training of all entry-level drivers of commercial motor vehicles be completed not later than 24 months after the date of the enactment. If the Secretary determines that it is not in the public interest to require a rule that requires training for all entry-level drivers, a report on the reasons for such decision is required not later than 25 months after enactment.

The House bill language on the rulemaking to establish training requirements for operators of longer combination vehicles, the safety study and report on longer combination vehicles and the testing of the operations of these vehicles has been included, with several changes. The rulemaking on longer combination training requirements is due within 24 months of enactment of the Act.

The scope of the safety study is expanded to require an assessment of the adequacy of currently available data bases for the purpose of determining the safety of longer combination vehicles and recommendations for safety improvements. The economic and safety impact of these vehicles on shared highways also is to be a component of the study.

The safety report is due 2 years after the date of enactment. The testing language was expanded to include the study of fatigue with a focus on examination of driver stress, and characteristics of longer combination vehicles, including an assessment of on-board computers, anti-lock brakes, and anti-trailer under-ride systems to determine the potential safety effectiveness of those technologies as applied to such vehicles. This report is due not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act. The funding of $1,000,000 to carry out this section remains unchanged.

The title of the section is changed to "Training of Drivers; Longer Combination Vehicle Regulations, Studies, and Testing".

PARTICIPATION IN INTERNATIONAL REGISTRATION PLAN AND INTERNATIONAL FUEL TAX AGREEMENT

House bill

The House bill provides that after September 30, 1996, no State except those participating in the International Registration Plan, shall establish, maintain, or enforce any commercial motor vehicle registration law, regulation, or agreement which limits the operation of any commercial motor vehicle within its borders which is not registered under the laws of that state if the commercial motor vehicle is registered under the laws of a state that is a participant in the Plan.

The House bill further provides that after September 30, 1998, no State shall establish, maintain, or enforce any law or regulation which has fuel use tax reporting requirements (including tax reporting forms) which are not in conformity with the International Fuel Tax Agreement.

The House bill establishes a working group to establish procedures for resolving disputes among states participating in the Plan and the agreement and for providing technical assistance. It will be comprised of state and local officials, representatives from the National Governor's Association, the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators and the National Conference of State Legislatures, the Federation of Tax Administrators, and the Board of Directors for the International Fuel Tax Administrators. The bill further provides $1 million per fiscal year for activities of the working group and $5 million per fiscal year for grants to states to facilitate participation in the Plan and Agreement.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute retains the House bill, but changes the preemption date for the International Fuel Tax Agreement from September 30, 1998 to September 30, 1996. It also allows for the continuation of the Regional Fuel Tax Agreement currently in effect in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont.

However, nothing in this section should be construed as Congressional authorization for the charging of fees for decals and other markings by RFTA members or as insulating RFTA from court challenge based on the constitutionality of the RFTA system. This statute is silent on those issues and does not disturb the status quo.

Grant funding available for the purpose of facilitating participation in IRP and IFTA may also be extended to those states participating in RFTA for purposes of technical assistance, personnel training, travel reimbursement, and technology and equipment associated with their participation in RFTA. Improvements to the fuel use tax administration in RFTA states benefit the motor carrier industry as well.

Violations of Out-of-Service Orders

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment imposes new penalties and disqualifications for operators of commercial motor vehicles for violating out-of-service orders. Penalties are also imposed upon employers that allow or require an operator to violate such orders.

Conference substitute

Senate Amendment.

BRAKE PERFORMANCE STANDARDS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate provision required the Department of Transportation to conduct a rulemaking on methods for improved braking performance for commercial motor vehicles. The required rulemaking would be comprehensive, addressing basic brake problems, such as the compatibility between tractor brakes and trailer brakes, methods of ensuring effective brake timing, and antilock braking systems. The Senate provision required such rulemaking to be initiated by July 1, 1991 and completed by April 1, 1992. Antilock brakes have been required on heavy trucks and buses in Europe since October 1, 1990 and will be required in Japan before the end of this year.

Conference substitute

Section 412 requires the Department of Transportation to initiate a rulemaking proceeding concerning methods for improving the braking performance of newly manufactured commercial motor vehicles with a gross vehicle weight of 26,001 or more pounds. This rulemaking is required to be initiated by May 31, 1992 and completed within 18 months after initiation unless the Secretary determines that a six month extension is necessary. The rulemaking proceeding must include an examination of antilock systems, means of improving brake compatibility and methods of ensuring effectiveness of brake timing.

The Conferees note that a critical component of rulemaking on truck brake performance is the issue of stopping-distance performance. On October 21, 1991 NHTSA published a notice in the Federal Register, Vol. 56, No. 203 indicating:

Accidents involving heavy trucks have a disproportionate (higher) fatality rate than all other motor vehicles. This [planned] rulemaking proposes to reinstate stopping distance performance requirements in Standard 121 so as to help improve heavy vehicle braking performance and hence reduce the number of accidents involving these vehicles. Although a court decision found that Standard 121, as it then existed was unenforceable, additional accident data and technical review have persuaded NHTSA that the court's requirement can now be met.

NHTSA goes on to indicate that it intends to issue a notice of proposed rulemaking on stopping distance in October, 1991. Thus, the Conferees expect that the rulemaking in question under this section as it relates to stopping distance will be initiated through a NPRM rather than an ANPRM.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, DEMONSTRATIONS AND TRAINING MANUALS*House bill*

Section 405 amends Part A of title IV of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 by adding a new section 409.

New subsection 409(a) authorizes the Secretary to make grants for research and for other specified purposes that will enhance commercial motor vehicle safety. In addition, the Secretary may utilize some of the funds authorized for educating the public on the use of highways with commercial motor vehicles.

New subsection 409(b) provides that grants must be announced publicly and awarded on a competitive basis whenever practicable.

New subsection 409(c) provides that some of the funds may be used to pay for the development, publication, and distribution of training manuals and other training devices for roadside inspectors involved in the Motor Carrier Safety Assistance Program.

New subsection 409(d) earmarks money for educating the public on the use of highways with commercial motor vehicles. Note, funding for this section is contained in 402(h). That section requires the Secretary to spend at least $500,000 annually for this program, but he or she may spend up to $2 million annually for this grant program.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides for the same funding levels; however, it contains separate funding for driver education and includes training and training materials funding in its deductions permitted to be made by the Secretary for administrative purposes. The Senate amendment requires that grants be made on a competitive basis. The funding is at 100 percent.

Conference agreement

The Senate amendment with a cap placed upon research grants at $500,000.00 and driver education at $350,000.00 for each fiscal year. The provision is included in Section 402.

DRUG-FREE TRUCK STOPS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment adds to the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 801 et seq.), after section 408, a new section 409 entitled "Transportation Safety Offenses." This new section provides that any person who violates section 401(a)(1) or section 416 of that Act by distributing or possessing with intent to distribute a controlled substance in or on, or within 1,000 feet of a truck stop or safety rest area is subject to a maximum term of imprisonment, fine, or term of supervised release for a first offense that is twice that authorized by section 401(b). A term of imprisonment under this section does not apply to offenses involving 5 grams or less of marijuana.

Additionally, this new section specifies that after a prior conviction under the new section, a person who again violates section 401(a)(1) or section 416 of the Controlled Substances Act shall be subject to the greater of (1) a term of imprisonment of not less than 3 years and not more than life imprisonment, or (2) three times the maximum punishment authorized by section 401(b) for the first offense.

New section 409 prohibits the suspension or probation of any sentence imposed under section 409. Also, an individual convicted under this section is required to serve a minimum sentence prior to being eligible for parole.

The new section uses the term "safety rest area" as it is defined in part 752 of title 23 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

Also, new section 409 requires the U.S. Sentencing Commission, to promulgate or amend sentencing guidelines for a defendant convicted of violating section 409 of the Controlled Substances Act to provide that a sentence is two levels greater than the level that would have been assigned for the underlying controlled substance offense and not less than level 26. This new section also specifies that if the sentencing guidelines are amended after the effective date of this section, the Sentencing Commission should use the instruction in paragraph (1) to achieve a comparable result. These offenses would be subject to only one enhancement as found under the guidelines.

Conference substitute

The Senate recedes to the House based on an understanding of the Conferees that the House and Senate Conferees on the Crime bill have agreed to include a drug-free truck stop provision in the conference report on that bill.

EXEMPTION OF CUSTOM HARVESTING EQUIPMENT

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides that states may waive the commercial drivers license requirement with respect to drivers of certain types of vehicles. The vehicles are those used to transport farm supplies from retail dealers to or from a farm, vehicles used for custom harvesting, and to vehicles used to transport livestock feed, whether or not such vehicles are controlled and operated by a farmer.

Conference substitute

The substitute removes custom harvesting farm machinery from the Act. Operators of such machinery are not covered by the Commercial Motor Vehicles Safety Act of 1986. A state, however, may still impose a requirement for a commercial drivers license if it so desires. The change does not apply to vehicles used to transport this type of machinery.

TITLE V—INTERMODAL TRANSPORTATION

NATIONAL GOAL TO PROMOTE INTERMODAL TRANSPORTATION

House bill

The House bill establishes as a national goal the encouragement and promotion by the Federal government of an intermodal transportation system to improve energy efficiency, productivity growth, international competitiveness and to obtain the optimum yield from the Nation's transportation resources.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

Same as the House provision.

The fundamental transportation challenge facing the Nation today is the development of an intermodal transportation system that will accelerate, expedite, enhance and improve the movement of people and goods in an energy-efficient manner. Audacious and bold new approaches are needed if the nation is to transform the existing separate, balkanized transportation systems into a single, coordinated unit that will provide the foundation for the nation to confront the realities of the 1990s and the 21st century.

An intermodal transportation system—the use of connections between, and improved access to, different forms of transportation to enhance efficiency—will be the key to meeting the economic, energy and environmental challenges of the coming decades. The nation will not be able to meet all of those demands through continued reliance on separate, isolated modes of transportation.

Development of an intermodal transportation system will result in the increased productivity growth the nation needs to compete in the global economy of the 21st century. We can no longer rely on a transportation system designed for the 1950s to provide the support for American industry to compete in the international marketplace.

Since 1973, real wages and the American standard of living have been declining. Transportation advances using new innovative technology as well as better use of our existing transportation systems are essential to reversing this decline in the quality of life.

An intermodal transportation system will provide the means to confront the nation's energy vulnerability. With fully 63 percent of our oil resources devoted to transportation, two-thirds to automobiles, a transportation policy is an energy policy. Events in the Persian Gulf in 1990 and 1991 have shown that the nation can no longer afford to rely on volatile and insecure nations for our oil supply. If the nation is to reduce its dependence on foreign oil sources, reduced use of oil for transportation is required.

The Clean Air Act Amendments of 1990 made air pollution policy an overriding factor in transportation policy. The centerpiece of the plan to reduce air pollution is transportation control measures, many of which focus on reduced Vehicle Miles Traveled (VMT). States and Metropolitan Planning Organizations must develop Transportation Improvement Programs (TIPs) that comply with State Implementation Plans (SIPs) under the Clean Air Act Amendments.

DUTIES OF SECRETARY; OFFICE OF INTERMODALISM

House bill

The House bill creates as a duty of the Secretary of Transportation the coordination of Federal intermodal transportation policy and the initiation of policies to promote efficient intermodal transportation.

To carry out the intermodal responsibilities of the Secretary, an Office of Intermodalism is established within the Department of Transportation to be headed by a Director who must be appointed within six months of the date of enactment.

The Director is required to develop an intermodal transportation data base in coordination with states and metropolitan planning organizations. The compilation of such data, especially along state and regional lines, is crucial to the development of an efficient transportation system. The data base is to include information on the movement of people and goods by intermodal transportation, patterns of movements by intermodal transportation, and information on public and private investment in intermodal transportation facilities and services.

The Director must coordinate Federal research on intermodal transportation and must provide technical assistance to state and metropolitan planning organizations in urban areas with populations of 1 million or more to facilitate collection of data on intermodal transportation.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute adopts the House provision except that the Office of Intermodalism is created within the Office of the Secretary. The Director is required to collect, maintain and disseminate intermodal transportation data through the new Bureau of Transportation Statistics.

In addition, it creates an Intermodal Transportation Advisory Board consisting of the Secretary as Chairman and the administrators of the Federal Highway Administration, the Federal Aviation Administration, the Maritime Administration, the Federal Railroad Administration and the Federal Transit Administration to provide recommendations for furthering the implementation of intermodalism.

An intermodal transportation system is vitally needed to meet the economic realities of the 1990s. The American economy is no longer a separate entity but part of the larger global economy. New methods of shipment of goods and advanced marketing techniques, such as "just-in-time" deliveries, have replaced the outdated warehouse. Fully one-third of the nation's economic activity involves international commerce which is projected to be one-half of the economy in the next 10 to 15 years.

In 1989, 973 million short tons of cargo, worth $438 billion, moved through our nation's ports—an increase of 30 percent in the last half of the 1980s alone. The virtual explosion of trade with the Pacific Rim nations has produced unprecedented growth at many West Coast ports and the development of the "mini-land bridge" to bring imported Asian products to the Midwest and East Coast. East Coast ports are projecting similar substantive growth as a result of Europe 1992.

Air cargo shipments, now being referred to as "flying warehouses," grew by more than 10 percent annually during much of the 1980s. In less than a decade, air cargo tonnage at Newark International Airport, John F. Kennedy International Airport and LaGuardia Airport increased by 41 percent.

An intermodal transportation system is essential to move our goods expeditiously and efficiently to and from harbors and airport facilities. Without adequate landside access, first-rate airport and port facilities are wasted and the ability of U.S. industry to compete and capture our share of the global economy is seriously limited.

This title firmly establishes national intermodal transportation policy. It is intended to bring the need for intermodalism to the forefront of the nation's transportation and economic debate. It establishes the central focal point for intermodalism in the Department of Transportation where policy is currently set through separate administrators for each mode of transportation with very limited interaction and coordination.

The Office of Intermodalism will promote policies which will enhance intermodal connectivity and foster continued development of intermodal transportation systems.

The Office will create a national data base with information on flows of people and goods to and from major metropolitan areas, to indicate the mode of choice and where two or more modes are used. The Office should also maintain policy balance in the Department between transportation modes and work to ensure interconnectivity of all transportation modes.

MODEL INTERMODAL TRANSPORTATION PLANS
House bill

The House bill requires the Secretary to award grants of no more than $500,000 for the development of model state intermodal transportation plans. The grants must be awarded to a maximum of six states representing a variety of geographic regions and transportation needs, patterns and modes. States must complete the plans within 18 months of the grant award.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute contains the House provision except that the grants for model intermodal plans may be awarded to more than six states.

This title is designed to establish the essential process of developing transportation systems that will include the necessary interconnections and access to seaports, airports, urban centers and rural areas. Some regions have already started the process. In Southern California, the planned $800 million Alameda corridor to move cargo to and from the Ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach through the most efficient intermodal use of trucks and rail is an outstanding example.

SURFACE TRANSPORTATION ADMINISTRATION
House bill

The House bill directs the Secretary to enter into an agreement within 60 days of enactment with the National Academy of Public Administration to continue a study of options for organizing the Department of Transportation to increase the effectiveness of program delivery, reduce costs, and improve intermodal coordination among surface transportation-related agencies.

The Secretary must report to Congress on the findings of the study and recommend appropriate organizational changes no later than January 1, 1993. Organizational changes are prohibited unless approved by law.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute contains the House provision.

NATIONAL COMMISSION ON INTERMODAL TRANSPORTATION

House bill

The House bill contains no provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment authorizes a transportation assistance program to provide highway and transportation agencies in urbanized areas of 50,000 to 1 million population and in rural areas, access to modern highway technology.

Conference substitute

This section establishes a National Commission on Intermodal Transportation, consisting of 11 members selected to represent diversified transportation expertise on intermodalism, to develop a National Intermodal Transportation Plan with a specific agenda for implementation. The Commission is to submit the Plan and implementing agenda to Congress by September 30, 1993.

It is crucial for the development of an efficient intermodal transportation system that the Commission recognize the need for innovation through the maximum integration of transportation systems and the earliest possible application of advanced technology to increase efficiency. New approaches are needed for the economic, energy and environmental challenges of the 1990s and the 21st century to enhance the nation's leadership in the global economy.

The Commission should review the need for unified decision-making on transportation policy and implementation. The structure of existing modal administrations may no longer be the best means of developing transportation efficiency and advances.

In its Plan, the Commission should recognize the accelerated importance of foreign trade and international commerce to the nation's future economic growth and the finding in the 1990 Census that more than 50 percent of the nation's population now lives in metropolitan areas of more than 1 million. Both of these trends have enormous implications for future transportation policy.

It is important that the Commission pay special attention to economic productivity concerns. The intermodal research agenda should be oriented towards increasing our nation's productivity.

The Commission should focus on creating a public-private alliance to target intermodal projects that are essential to close obvious deficiencies and gaps in our transportation system.

International product standardization, both technological and administrative, is also vital to the promotion of intermodalism. The Commission should review issues such as international freight rates and customs procedures, as well as the development of standardized designs for containers and any other innovative technology to expedite and stimulate intermodal transfers of goods and people. The Commission should review innovative equipment and hub terminal designs to provide for maximum efficiency.

Intermodal use of urban terminals is especially important to make the most efficient use of space and congested transportation corridors in crowded environments. The Commission is to examine the status of intermodal transportation, identify problems, and determine the resources needed to implement policies to achieve the national goal of an efficient intermodal transportation system.

The Commission is specifically directed to investigate and study:

1. The benefits of and impediments to international intermodal standardization, in coordination with the National Academy of Science;
2. Capital investment for infrastructure development necessary to accommodate intermodal transportation, especially surface transportation access to airports and ports;
3. Legal impediments to efficient intermodal transportation, specifically regulation of individual modes of transportation;
4. Impediments to efficient financing of intermodal transportation, including the most efficient use of existing sources of funds to connect individual modes of transportation, to accommodate intermodal transfers. The Commission must address the use of innovative methods of financing, current methods of public funding and increased use of private sources of private funding;
5. New technologies and problems with incorporating new technologies in intermodal transportation;
6. Problems in documentation and the need to achieve uniform, efficient, and simplified documentation;
7. Areas for additional research and development with an agenda for carrying out the research and development program; and

8. The relationship of intermodal transportation to rates, costs and economic productivity.

The Commission will be composed of 11 members, three appointed by the President and two each by the Speaker of the House, the House Minority Leader, the Senate Majority Leader, and the Senate Minority Leader. The Commission members should include representatives of Federal, State and local governments, other public transportation authorities or agencies, transportation providers, shippers, labor, the financial community, and consumers.

The Commission is required to submit its final report to Congress by September 30, 1993.

The following projects in this title are considered by the Managers as necessary to meet the existing transportation needs of the area and are not dependent or conditioned on any future development in the area. Moreover, funds authorized to be appropriated for these projects may be interchanged so long as the Federal contribution on any one project does not exceed 80 percent.

Long Beach, California—Interchange at Terminal Island Freeway and Ocean Boulevard.

Wilmington/Los Angeles, California—Widening of Anaheim Street Viaduct.

Wilmington/Los Angeles, California—Grade Separation Project of Pacific Coast Highway near Alameda Street.

Compton City/Los Angeles County, California—Widening of Alameda Street and grade separation between Rt. 91 and Del Amo Boulevard.

Carson/Los Angeles Counties, California—Grade Separation Project at Sepulveda Boulevard and Alameda Street.

TITLE VI

RESEARCH AND TECHNOLOGY PROGRAM

House bill

The House bill amends the general research authority of the Secretary under Section 307(a) to clarify authority to conduct research on motor carrier transportation, highway planning, and highway operations. The Secretary is authorized to engage in cost-shared collaborative research with non-Federal entities, including state and local governments, foreign governments, colleges and universities, corporations, institutes, partnerships, sole proprietorships, and trade associations. The average Federal share may not exceed 50 percent unless it can be demonstrated that there is substantial public interest or benefit. Funds to carry out collaborative research under this section shall be derived from Section 104(a) administrative funds. Not less than 15 percent of the funds are to be used for long-term projects.

The House bill also directs the Secretary to conduct systems research for a short-haul passenger transportation system, an expansion of transportation infrastructure research and development and implementation of Strategic Highway Research Program results. The Secretary also must continue long-term pavement performance testing.

Section (f) of this section requires 1½ percent of state apportionments under Sections 104 and 144 be reserved to state research and planning purposes only, and requires that states use 25 percent of such funds for research, development, and technology transfer purposes.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment directs the Secretary to establish a coordinated long-term program of highway research for the development, use and dissemination of performance indicators to measure the performance of the surface transportation system, including the indicators for productivity, efficiency, energy use, air quality, congestion, safety, maintenance, and other factors that reflect the overall performance of the surface transportation system.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute combines the House and Senate provisions. Two percent of state apportionments are to be made available for state research and planning purposes.

EISENHOWER FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

House bill

No comparable provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides for the establishment of a transportation research fellowship program at a level of $2,000,000 per fiscal year.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute is the provision in the Senate amendment. Development of new and efficient combinations of transportation infrastructure requires that the nation's brightest minds be attracted to the transportation engineering and research professions. The Dwight David Eisenhower Transportation Fellowship Program is designed to accomplish this objective. The conferees recognize that the fellowship program will be most successful if it serves to attract critical masses of students and professors to evolve into centers of excellence. Therefore, the conferees intend that the program shall be limited to no more than fifty universities, to be selected by the Secretary on the basis of their academic reputation in the transportation engineering and research areas. The conferees intend that the fellowships should be awarded competitively, and be available only to students enrolled in work toward a graduate degree in transportation engineering or research, but exceptions can be made for students in the final year of undergraduate engineering degrees who can demonstrate that they intend to specialize in a transportation-related field following graduation.

NATIONAL HIGHWAY INSTITUTE

House bill

The House bill provides for the continuation of the National Highway Institute and removes the current limitation on training to allow for training of U.S. citizens and foreign nationals engaged in highway work of interest to the United States.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill but provides for a 75 percent Federal share.

Conference substitute

The conference adopts the Senate amendment with an 80 percent Federal share.

INTERNATIONAL TRANSPORTATION OUTREACH PROGRAM

House bill

The House bill requires the Secretary of Transportation to conduct an international transportation outreach program to (1) seek, evaluate, and disseminate information about innovations abroad for application in the U.S.; (2) to encourage use of American goods and services abroad; and (3) to assist developing countries to improve their surface transportation technology and institutions. Funds provided by cooperating organizations or persons may be held in a special account and used in furtherance of the outreach program.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides authority for an international outreach program but does not require it.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute is the Senate amendment modified by a House provision requiring coordination with other appropriate Federal agencies.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING

House bill

The House bill continues the Rural Transportation Assistance Program (RTAP) to provide technical assistance to highway and transportation agencies in rural areas and urbanized areas of 50,000 to 1,000,000 in population.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contains two provisions continuing the Rural Transportation Assistance Program. Both continue the program as proposed in the House bill, but one expands RTAP activities to include tourism and recreational travel assistance. The provision also requires that four program centers be designated to provide training on intergovernmental transportation planning and project selection and tourism recreational travel for American Indian tribal governments. In 1992 $5 million is provided to fund tourism and recreational travel assistance, and $8 million is provided annually to fund the RTAP program and new services for American Indian tribal governments at a 100 percent share.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute continues RTAP technical assistance programs and expands RTAP services to include assistance to urban areas between 50,000 and 1,000,000 in population and tourism and recreational travel technical assistance. Two centers must be designated to provide training on intergovernmental transportation planning and project selection and tourism recreational travel to American Indian tribal governments. The RTAP program is authorized at $6 million annually and services to American Indian tribal governments are funded at a 100 percent share. In addition, the Secretary of the Interior may reserve funds from the Indian reservation roads program to finance Indian technical centers.

APPLIED RESEARCH AND TECHNOLOGY PROGRAM; SEISMIC RESEARCH PROGRAM

House bill

The House bill amends Section 307 of Title 23 to require the Secretary to establish and implement an applied research and technology program. The purpose of the program is to accelerate testing, evaluation, and implementation of technologies that may improve the durability, efficiency, environmental impact, productivity, and safety of highway, transit, and intermodal transportation systems. Eighteen months after date of enactment, the Secretary must issue guidelines on selection of technologies, test locations, and collection and evaluation of test data. The Secretary is directed to carry out projects to assess the state of technology for heating bridge decks on a minimum of ten bridges being replaced or rehabilitated, to carry out a project demonstrating the environmental and safety benefits of elastomer modified asphalt, to conduct a program to demonstrate the safety benefits and durability of all weather pavement markings, to assess the state of technology of thin bonded overlay and surface lamination of pavement, and to demonstrate the durability and construction efficiency of high performance blended hydraulic cement. Highway projects carried out under this program must be conducted on the Federal-aid system.

The Secretary is required to transmit to Congress an annual report on the progress and findings of the applied technology program.

Funding for the applied technology program established under this section is derived from administrative and research funds set aside under section 104(a) of title 23 and section 21(h) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 as amended at $35 million in fiscal year 1992, and $41 million per fiscal year for each of fiscal years 1993, 1994, 1995, 1996 and 1997. Not less than $4 million per fiscal year must be expended for projects related to heated bridge technologies, not less than $2 million must be expended for projects related to all weather pavement markings, and not less than $2,500,000 per fiscal year must be expended on thin bonded overlay projects.

A seismic research program must be carried out under this section in cooperation with a national earthquake engineering center to study the vulnerability of Federal-aid system highways, tunnels, and bridges to earthquakes and to develop and implement cost-effective methods of retrofitting highway facilities. Program progress and research findings are to be reported to Congress two years after date of enactment. Up to $2 million per fiscal year may be expended for carrying out seismic research under this section. The research is to be carried out in cooperation with the National Center for Earthquake Engineering at the University of Buffalo.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute is the provision in the House bill with clarification that in implementing the seismic research program the Secretary shall consult and cooperate with other Federal agencies participating in the National Earthquake Hazards Reduction Program and ensure the program is consistent with objectives and planning of the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

BUREAU OF TRANSPORTATION STATISTICS (SEC. 606)

House bill

No comparable provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment amends sec. 303 of title 23 U.S.C. to create a Bureau of Transportation Statistics, to be headed by a Director appointed by the President, to collect information on the performance of the national transportation system, to produce annual estimates of the use, productivity, safety, durability, and environmental effects of transportation systems, and to report these results annually to Congress.

Conference substitute

The conference agreement accepts the Senate language, with several modifications. It changes the reporting interval to once every two years, requires the Bureau to collect data relative to intermodal transportation, and affirms that the existence of the Bureau does not relieve the modal Administrators from responsibility of data collection and dissemination. $90 million is authorized from the Highway Trust Fund to fund the operation of the Bureau.

The Bureau of Transportation Statistics shall be responsible for compiling, analyzing, and publishing a comprehensive set of transportation statistics of sufficient scope, quality, relevance, and reliability that Federal and nonfederal agencies and Congress have adequate and accurate information about the availability, reliability, costs, and benefits of alternative transportation technologies to make informed decisions about how best to allocate Federal funds among transportation projects and programs. Such information should include productivity in various portions of the transportation sector, traffic flows, travel times, vehicle weights, variables affecting the choices people make about travel (including the mode, time, and willingness to pay), the availability and number of passengers served by mass transit for each transit authority, the frequency of vehicle and infrastructure repairs and resulting losses of time and money, frequency of accidents, injuries and fatalities, damage to the environment resulting from transportation, and the condition of transportation infrastructure. All data shall, to the extent practicable, be comparable across transportation modes and intermodal transport systems. The conferees intend that all such statistics must have a sound scientific basis, be as free as possible from bias resulting from data collection or interpretation procedures, and they must be widely accepted by decision-makers as accurate and relevant.

The Director of the Bureau shall, in cooperation with the modal administrators, other federal agencies, the States, and other non-federal entities, pursue a comprehensive program for the collection and analysis of data relating to the performance of the national transportation system.

A necessary step in this process is developing better indicators for productivity, efficiency, energy use, air quality related to vehicle operation, congestion, safety, maintenance, and other factors that reflect the overall performance of the surface transportation system. It is the intention of the conferees that the Director be directly involved in planning and review of the research to develop performance indicators for the national transportation systems. The most often reported indicators of productivity of transportation systems today are weight-miles or person-miles per employee-hour. While the underlying data are easily collected, these indicators are inadequate, because they convey little information about important issues such as the amount of fuel consumed, the cost of maintaining and repairing infrastructure and vehicles, the amount of pollution produced, the number of injuries, the reliability of timely arrival, and other factors that affect the costs and benefits of alternative decisions involved in transportation infrastructure planning. It is the intention of the conferees that the Director insure that such indicators are identified, and that data relative to their measurement are collected, analyzed, and reported.

The Director shall assure that data and other information are collected in such a manner as to maximize the ability to compare data from different regions, and over time, such that trends and regional differences, if they exist, can be detected and analyzed for statistical significance. The Director shall insure that the data are quality-controlled for accuracy, and promulgate guidelines for the collection of such information to insure that the information is accurate, reliable, relevant, and in a form that permits systematic analysis.

The Director shall coordinate the activities of the Bureau with related information gathering activities of other agencies. The conferees intend that data managed by the Bureau shall not be limited to highway transportation, but is extended to include rail, maglev, and intermodal transportation systems involving rail, highways, ships, and air transport. The purpose of this change in section 115 of the previous Act is to ensure that the efficiency and productivity of the transportation systems in the United States is maximized. This cannot be done by developing newer technology for highways alone. Strategic research planning must consider the importance of potential and actual products in the context of competing transport modes or economies of intermodal approaches to transport. The conferees intend that the Bureau integrate environmental effects and economics into transportation statistics, and that the Director coordinate data collection activities with those of the Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Commerce, and other governmental agencies, wherever appropriate.

The Director shall make transportation statistics readily available to federal and non-federal agencies and other organizations. It is the intention of the conferees that data managed by the Bureau be accessible in computerized format, with adequate documentation and user-services.

The Director shall review information needs at least annually with the Advisory Council on Transportation Statistics and make recommendations to appropriate officials responsible for research programs in the Department of Transportation and other agencies involved in indicator research and development. The Director shall appoint an Advisory Council on Transportation Statistics, comprised of no more than six private citizens who have experience in transportation statistics and analysis (at least one of whom should have expertise in economics) to provide advice on the operation of the Bureau. The Council shall be subject to the provisions of the Federal Advisory Committee Act. It is the intention of the conferees that at least one of the Council members be a professional statistician. No later than one year after the start of Bureau operations, the Bureau shall enter into an agreement with the National Academy of Sciences for a study of the adequacy of the data collection resources, needs, and requirements, including data collection procedures and capabilities, data analysis procedures and capabilities, the ability of data bases to integrate with one another, computer hardware and software capabilities, information management systems (and their ability to integrate with one another, personnel, and budgets). The report shall be delivered within 18 months of initiation of the agreement, and should include recommendations for improving data collection systems, procedures, hardware, software, and information management systems. It is the intention of the conferees that this study serve as the first of the annual data reviews required of the Director.

Nothing in paragraph (1) shall authorize the Bureau to require the collection of data by any other monitoring Department, or to establish observation or monitoring programs. It is the intention of the conferees that the Director use Bureau resources to enhance data collection, analysis, and reporting by other organizations to fill identified data gaps, rather than to organize stand-alone monitoring programs, in order to insure the most cost-effective use of transportation monitoring resources.

The Bureau shall be under the direction of a Director of Transportation Statistics, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice of the Senate. The Director shall have substantial technical experience in the compilation and analysis of transportation statistics. The term of the appointment shall be four years, to begin within 180 days of enactment of this Act. It is the intention of the conferees that the term of office of the Director overlap with that of the President. The Director shall report directly to the Secretary and be compensated at Level V of the Executive schedule. The conferees intend that the Director be given substantial latitude to insure that Bureau data and information are not biased in any way by political considerations, and that release of data shall not be subject to policy review.

Data collected by the Bureau shall not be disclosed publicly in a manner that would reveal the personal identity of an individual, consistent with the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a), or to reveal trade secrets and commercial or financial information provided by any person to be identified with such person. The conferees recognize that statistics may become biased if the very fact that a datum is being measured causes the object of measurement to change its characteristics or behavior. This may happen if data collected for the purpose of describing a system also can be used to cause harm to someone by legal or economic means. If this happens people may take great pains to conceal the true characteristics of the object. In order to avoid such bias, the conferees intend that the Director establish such procedures as necessary to ensure that all Bureau data are collected and stored in such a way that they cannot be used to prosecute individuals or reveal business information that could harm persons or corporations. The conferees intend that the Director consult with officials involved in other Federal data collection activities to identify the most appropriate means to meet the criteria.

The Director shall produce annual reports on transportation statistics and submit them to Congress, the states, and other interested parties. These reports shall compare transportation statistics among the states and regions, as well as reporting on trends at the state, regional, and national level. The conferees intend that if the statistics are based on estimates, rather than complete censuses, quantitative estimates of precision and statistical significance of trends and changes also shall be provided. The report shall include such indicators as are enumerated in section 303(b), indicators developed under section 115(a)(3), and other indicators, as appropriate for conducting cost-benefit analyses, prioritizing transportation system problems, and analyzing proposed solutions. In the estimation of costs and benefits, the conferees intend that it is not acceptable to set a cost or benefit at zero only because it cannot be quantified precisely. The conferees also intend that opportunity costs and costs such as decreased property values next to rights-of-way should be included, as well as benefits associated with increased reliability, more enjoyable travel, and other social costs and benefits.

The Director should, wherever feasible, use data already collected by the modal Administrators or other agencies. The Director should identify any additional specifications or quality assurance that must be applied to such data to ensure that it meets the needs of the Bureau.

$90 million is authorized to conduct the work of the Bureau. The conferees intend that the Bureau be funded at a minimum of $4 million during fiscal year 1992, plus $500,000 to begin the National Academy of Sciences study. It is the intent of the conerees that the Bureau be funded at no less than $25 million per year in the last year of this authorization.

DOT DATA NEEDS

House bill

The House bill requires the Secretary to enter into an agreement with the National Academy of Sciences to conduct a study on the adequacy of data collection procedures and capabilities of the Department of Transportation.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment requires a similar data needs study but requires the Secretary to consult with the Director of the Bureau of Transportation Statistics in entering into the agreement with the National Academy of Sciences.

SURFACE TRANSPORTATION RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT PLANNING

House bill

The Secretary is instructed to develop and submit to Congress an annual integrated national surface transportation research and development plan.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute includes the annual surface research and development plan from the House version. The plan's purpose is to more sharply focus research and development activities within the Department. It is to include all ongoing research and development activities throughout the Department, as well as those planned for future years. The plan shall also include a 10-year projection of Department-funded long-term research and development. A plan modeled after the Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Research (EPSCoR) at the National Science Foundation should be included to assure that university research efforts are broadly based geographically. Major contracts must be described. Through the plan, specific objectives are to be followed leading to advanced technologies being commercially developed by U.S.-based companies. The plan is being commercially developed by U.S.-based companies. The plan is to be complete, identifying specific scopes of work, organization of personnel, milestone schedules, estimated costs by phase of activity, current state-of-the-art, and accomplishments. Plans and organization for future activities should also be included. For new systems, broad scope preliminary cost estimates are acceptable the first year if followed a year later with firm cost estimates the Congress can use in making informed budget decisions.

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON SURFACE
TRANSPORTATION RESEARCH

House bill

The House bill establishes a seven-member National Council on Surface Transportation Research, with three members appointed by the President and one each by the Speaker of the House minority leader, the Senate majority leader and the Senate minority leader, to investigate and study current surface transportation research and technology developments in the United States and internationally.

The Council is to identify gaps and duplication in current surface transportation research efforts, determine research and development areas which may increase efficiency, productivity, safety and durability in the nation's surface transportation systems, and develop a national surface transportation research and development plan for immediate implementation.

The Council is to survey current surface transportation research efforts in the United States and internationally, examine factors causing fragmentation of surface transportation research and determine how to achieve increased coordination, compare the role of the Federal Government with the role of foreign governments in promoting surface transportation, identify barriers to innovation in surface transportation research, examine funding arrangements for surface transportation research and the level of resources currently available and identify surface transportation research areas and opportunities, including opportunities for international cooperation, to develop a short-range and long-range national surface transportation research and development plan.

Council members are to be appointed from among individuals involved in surface transportation research, including all levels of government, other public agencies, colleges and universities, public, private and non-profit research organizations, and organizations representing transportation providers, shippers, labor, and the financial community. One member appointed by the President shall serve as an international research advisor for the Council.

Senate amendment

Conference substitute

The conference substitute contains the House bill provision.

RESEARCH ADVISORY COMMITTEE

House bill

The Research Advisory Committee (RAC) is established in the House bill to ensure that the Department takes maximum advantage of available outside advice in planning and evaluating its research program and projects, especially the long-term efforts. The Department's research must both feed and be fed by the research programs of other organizations and the results of the Department's research must serve the interests of the surface transportation community of the United States. Both these objectives will be furthered by the establishment of the RAC which is to be formed after the report by the National Council on Surface Transportation Research is submitted September 30, 1993.

Appointees to the RAC should be selected on the basis of their technical knowledge of the state-of-the-art and the requirements for the research, rather than as representatives of organizations, but inclusion of a representative sample of major Department constituencies is desirable. Members are to include representatives from labor and universities that have experience in developing the surface transportation technologies that are being examined by RAC. RAC members are not to be paid for their service, but in some instances, individuals can be reimbursed for the transportation and other expenses necessary to participate. The application of certain limitations clauses is intended to make appropriate staffing available to the RAC. There will be a need for certain research advice which is too specialized to be effectively considered by the full RAC. Subordinate committees composed of experts with specialized backgrounds may be used to deal with such issues.

STATE LEVEL OF EFFORT

House bill

The House bill directs the Secretary to begin a comprehensive study of the most appropriate and accurate methods of calculating State level of effort in funding surface transportation programs.

The study shall examine data relating to state and local revenues collected and spent on surface transportation programs, including fuel taxes, toll revenue, sales taxes, general fund appropriations, property taxes, bonds, administrative fees, taxes on commercial vehicles, and other state and local revenue sources.

The Secretary is to report to Congress within 12 months of enactment with recommendations.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is similar to the House provision except that it requires the study to be conducted jointly by the Secretary and the Director of the Bureau of Transportation Statistics. The report is to be submitted to Congress within nine months of enactment.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute contains the Senate amendment.

EVALUATION OF STATE PROCUREMENT PRACTICES

House bill

The House bill directs the Secretary to conduct a study of whether current procurement practices used by state departments and agencies are adequate to ensure the highest quality of materials and cost-effectiveness of projects. The Secretary is directed to report to Congress within two years with an assessment of the need for a national policy on quality assurance.

The Senate amendment directs the Secretary to assess the need for transportation infrastructure improvements to facilitate U.S. to Mexico and U.S. to Canada trade. The Senate amendment also directs the Secretary to determine whether U.S. to Canada border crossing are designed for future growth and expansion and whether they will accommodate greater commercial traffic resulting from free trade agreements and increased tourism traffic.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute combines the provisions of the House bill and Senate amendment.

FUNDAMENTAL PROPERTIES OF ASPHALTS AND MODIFIED ASPHALTSHouse bill*

No comparable provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment requires the Federal Highway Administration to enter into a contract with a nonprofit organization for studies of the fundamental chemical properties and physical properties of petroleum asphalts and modified asphalts used in highway construction. Authorizations of $3 million per fiscal year are provided to fund the studies. A test strip must be implemented to demonstrate energy and environmental advantages of shale oil modified asphalts under extreme climatic conditions. Funds for the test strip are to be made available from funds for parks and park highway.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute directs the Administrator of the Federal Highway Administration to undertake fundamental studies of the performance of petroleum asphalts and modified asphalts used in highway construction. The conferees direct the Administrator to contract with the Western Research Institute, located in Laramie, Wyoming, a nonprofit organization, for purposes of complying with this section, as the prime organization responsible for carrying-out the technical and analytical support and related research. Based on previous research and the volume of performance data that must be considered, the conferees direct the Administrator to provide at least $3 million each year. This funding level will ensure that there is alignment between field performance characteristics of petroleum asphalts with diagnostic chemical and physical property tests designed to predict performance of petroleum asphalts. The conferees further direct the Administrator to enter into such contracts on the basis of the Western Research Institute's demonstrated expertise and experience in such related research programs in addition to the organization's past research activities on behalf of the Strategic Highway Research Program.

The Administrator is further directed, in coordination with the Western Research Institute, to implement a test strip of a shale oil-modified asphalt in Yellowstone National Park. The conferees direct this demonstration to be constructed with the expressed purpose of providing findings on whether such shale oil modified asphalt will provide a domestic asphalt feedstock alternative that provides enhanced performance characteristics, economic, and environmental advantages over current technologies. The conferees directed the selection of the demonstration site to ensure that such a test strip is subjected to severe and extreme climate conditions. Because of the importance of this demonstration, the conferees have directed a final report on the findings of this demonstration to be submitted to Congress not later than November 30, 1995.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY OF SECRETARY OF TRANSPORTATIONHouse bill*

Title 49 of the U.S. Code, subtitle I, lists the purposes of the Department of Transportation (DOT). The Department purposes should also include basic research if DOT is to promote and undertake research and development related to transportation. The House bill adds the requirement to "... include basic automotive highway vehicle science." This provides DOT with a mandate to conduct research in long-term, high-risk basic highway vehicle science.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The Conferees adopt the House provision.

PURPOSES OF DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATIONHouse bill*

This House bill amends Title 49, USC subchapter I on the duties of the Secretary of the Department of Transportation to include that the Department will stimulate technological advances in transportation "through research and development." Both basic scientific research and research in long-term, high-risk highway vehicle sciences, are very important. Accordingly, the House bill authorizes research to be included in the fundamental mandates of the Department.

Senate amendment

The Senate version contains no comparable House provision.

Conference substitute

The Conference substitute includes the House provision.

ADVANCED AUTOMOTIVE RESEARCH CONFERENCE AND AWARDHouse bill*

The House bill establishes an Advanced Automotive Research Conference and a National Award for the Advancement of Motor Vehicle Research. It does so through the Stevenson-Wylder Technology Innovation Act of 1980, which established a program to support industry's technology development efforts. The Act also established a National Technology Medal for companies that have made outstanding contributions to the promotion of technology.

In order to examine and analyze the strengths and weaknesses of the U.S. motor vehicle industry, a conference on advanced automotive research and development should be convened. Accordingly, the House bill amends the Stevenson-Wylder Act to mandate that the Department of Commerce convene a conference of automotive experts including representatives of labor and academia to examine ways in which technology transfer of research results from the federal laboratories can improve U.S. motor vehicle industrial competitiveness. The results of the conference would be published and submitted to Congress. The recommendations of the conference should focus on further research necessary to improve U.S. competitiveness in automotive technology. The House bill also amends the Stevenson-Wylder Act to establish a National Award for the Advancement of Motor Vehicle Research. The award consisting of a medal, and potentially a privately supported cash prize, will honor domestic motor vehicle manufacturers, suppliers, or Federal laboratory personnel who have substantially improved the domestic motor vehicle in safety, energy savings, or environmental impact.

The Conference substitute contains the House provision.

UNDERGROUND PIPELINESHouse bill*

The House bill requires the Secretary to study the feasibility, costs, and benefits of constructing and operating pneumatic capsule pipelines for underground movement of commodities.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

Same as House bill.

BUS TESTINGHouse bill*

Subsection (a) amends Section 12(h) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 to clarify that new bus models required to be tested under that Act include buses using alternative fuels.

Subsection (b) amends 317(b)(1) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 to require braking performance and emissions tests be conducted on new bus models. Funding of $1.5 million is provided to the bus testing center to purchase and install new testing equipment in accordance with new testing requirements.

Subsection (c) establishes a revolving loan fund of $2.5 million to fund bus testing facility operations and maintenance. In programming the use of the revolving loan fund, it is intended to allow the operators of the testing facility to borrow from the fund only to cover operating expenses brought on by a lack of vehicles to be tested.

Senate amendment

The Senate has no comparable provision.

Conference substitute

Same as House bill.

NATIONAL TRANSIT INSTITUTEHouse bill*

The House bill directs the Secretary to make grants for the establishment of a national transit institute to develop and administer training programs on a broad range of transit matters, techniques and procedures for Federal, state and local transportation employees engaged or to be engaged in Federal-aid transit work.

The Secretary is to make available $3 million per fiscal year for carrying out national transit institute activities.

States and public transit agencies may use up to one-half percent of section 3 and 9 funds for up to 80 percent of tuition and direct education and training expenses for state and local transportation department employees.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute contains the House bill provision, with a modification to provide that the National Transit Institute will be funded equally from the State and national research programs under section 26 of the Federal Transit Act of 1969.

UNIVERSITY TRANSPORTATION CENTERS

House bill

The House bill amends Section 11(b)(2) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 to include transportation safety as an area of responsibility for University Transportation Centers. Section 11 is also amended to designate three new centers: a national center for transportation management, research, and development at Morgan State University; a center for transportation and industrial productivity at New Jersey Institute of Technology; and a national rural transportation study center at the University of Arkansas. The Secretary also is directed to make a grant of $2.42 million in fiscal year 1992 to Monmouth College for the James and Marlene Howard Transportation Information Center. Provisions of the 1964 Act requiring a National Advisory Council are deleted and replaced by a requirement that the Centers' studies be coordinated and disseminated by the Secretary. Up to one percent of funds provided for the University Transportation Center program are made available to the Secretary for its administration.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment calls for the establishment of three new additional National Centers for Transportation Management, Research, and Development to accelerate involvement and participation on the part of minority individuals and women in transportation-related professions.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute in the House provision with the addition of a provision establishing a grant for a National Center for Advanced Transportation Technology at the University of Idaho.

This center shall be similar to the other national centers established under this section but it shall not be subject to all of the provisions of 49 U.S.C. 1607(b) such as the federal share. It shall be specifically funded for three fiscal years at 80% federal share and the funds shall not be subject to any obligation limitation.

UNIVERSITY RESEARCH INSTITUTES

House bill

Section 11 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 is amended by the House bill to require the Secretary to make grants to establish and operate an institute for national surface transportation policy studies at San Jose State University, an infrastructure technology institute at Northwestern University, an Urban Transit Institute with the University of South Florida, and an Institute for Intelligent Vehicle Highway Concepts at the University of Minnesota. Funding of $250,000 per fiscal year is authorized for the Institute for National Surface Transportation Policy Studies; $3 million per fiscal year is authorized for the Infrastructure Technology Institute; and $1 million per fiscal year is authorized for each of the Urban Transit Institute and the Institute for Intelligent Vehicle Highway concepts.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute adopts the House provision and establishes at the University of North Carolina an Institute for Transportation Research and Education (ITRE). To support minority participation in urban transit research, grants will be made to North Carolina A&T State University in conjunction with the University of South Florida and a consortium of Florida A&M, Florida State University, and Florida International University for Interdisciplinary Study to address the diverse transportation problems of urban areas experiencing significant and rapid growth.

INTELLIGENT VEHICLE HIGHWAY SYSTEMS

House bill

The house bill establishes a program to research, develop, operationally test, and implement intelligent vehicle/highway systems. The bill requires development and implementation of a strategic plan and provides for planning grants to states and local governments, as well as assistance for operational technical projects. The bill establishes a program of financial and technical assistance for implementation of IVHS corridors.

Senate amendment

The Senate provisions are similar to those in the House bill, but establishes a "Congested Corridors" program for implementation of IVHS Technology.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute combines the provisions of the House bill and Senate amendment. Requirements for development of a prototype by 1997 may be satisfied through a test track, and implementation of IVHS technology in corridors and other areas must make a potential contribution to the Secretary's strategic plan.

ADVANCED TRANSPORTATION SYSTEMS

House bill

The House bill authorizes the Department of Transportation to award grants, matched on the state or local level, to set up capital manufacturing consortia dedicated to the development of cleaner transit systems and electric vehicles. The program provides seed money needed by small and medium size suppliers, larger manufacturers, universities and other research and manufacturing groups to collaborate on pushing an idea from laboratory to market. The program will give states maximum freedom in fostering public/private partnerships based on their own unique situations and recognizes the public benefits of solving mobility and energy problems with cleaner vehicles.

Senate amendment

No comparable provision.

Conference substitute

The conference substitute is the provision in the House bill.

TITLE VII—AIRPORT AUTHORITY

Conference substitute

The Conference Substitute enacts the Metropolitan Washington Airports Act Amendments of 1991. The substitute is the same as H.R. 3762, passed by the House on November 18, 1991. The substitute restores the full authority of the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority which operates Washington National and Dulles Airports.

The legislation is necessary because of the Supreme Court's decision in Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority v. Citizens for the Abatement of Aircraft Noise, holding unconstitutional the provisions in the MWA Act of 1986 which established a Board of Review of nine Members of Congress with veto power over specified major decisions of MWAA's Board of Directors. As a result of this decision, MWAA, which runs National and Dulles Airports, is unable to take the actions over which the Board of Review held veto power, including adoption of a budget and authorization of the issuance of bonds for airport development.

The Conference Substitute makes the following changes in the 1986 Act and develops a constitutionally acceptable structure<sup>1</sup> which will ensure that decisions of the Airports Authority will take account of the interests of users of the airports.

(1) Under the 1986 Act, the Board of Review members were selected by the Airports Authority from lists provided by the Speaker of the House and the President pro tempore of the Senate. In its decision that the Board of Review procedure was unconstitutional, the Supreme Court criticized the requirements in the 1986 Act that the Board members must be Representatives and Senators from the authorizing and appropriating committees; the absence of a specific authorization for the Airports Authority to reject a list and request additional nominations; the absence of a requirement that the Board members be users of the airport; and the absence of power in the Airports Authority to remove Members of the Board of Review.

The Conference substitute continues the requirements for a Board of Review by directing the Airports Authority to establish a Board of Review of nine members; four from a list provided from the Speaker of the House, four from a list provided by the President pro tempore of the Senate, and one chosen alternately from a list provided by the Speaker and the President pro tempore. However, in response to the matters raised by the Supreme Court, the Conference substitute makes a number of changes in the requirements for the Board. The substitute gives the Airports Authority the right to reject a list and request additional recommendations. The individuals on the list submitted by the Speaker and the President pro tempore do not have to be Senators or Representatives. They are required to have experience in aviation matters and be frequent users of the Metropolitan Washington Airports. The Airports Authority Board of Directors is given authority to remove members of the Board of Review for cause by a two thirds vote.

(2) The 1986 Act requires the Airports Authority to submit to the Board of Review, at least 30 days before their effective dates (60 days in the case of a budget), the Authority's budget, authorizations for the issuance of bonds, actions on an airport master plan, actions on regulations, and appointment of a chief executive officer. The substitute continues the requirements that these actions be submitted to the Board of Review and requires that the following additional matters be submitted to the Board of Review: amendments to the Airports Authority's annual budget; an annual plan for issuance of bonds and any amendments to such plan; the award of a contract (other than a contract in connection with the issuance or sale of bonds) which has been approved by the Board of Directors of the Airports Authority; any action of the Board of Directors approving terminal design or airport layout or modifications thereof; and an authorization for disposal of land or the grant of an easement.

(3) The 1986 Act is modified to end the Board of Review's authority to disapprove actions submitted by the Airports Authority. Instead, the Board of Review would have authority to recommend changes in an action submitted by the Airports Authority (including recommendations that the Authority not take the proposed action). The time for Board of Review action would be changed from 30 days in existing law, to 30 calendar days or 10 legislative days, whichever period is longer.

If the Board of Review made a recommendation, the Authority could not take the proposed action until the Authority had evaluated and responded in writing to the recommendation of the Board of Review. If the Authority's proposed action followed the recommendations of the Board of Review, the action could be taken. If the Authority did not follow the Board of Review's recommendations, the proposed action could not be taken until the proposal had been submitted to the Congress and sixty legislative days had passed. During this period, Congress would be able to consider a joint resolution (which would have to be signed by the President) disapproving the proposed action.

The substitute establishes special Congressional procedures to ensure that procedural difficulties would not prevent Congress from passing a resolution of disapproval during the sixty day period. The special procedures for resolutions of disapproval are modeled on those in the D.C. Home Rule legislation. Under the procedures in the substitute, a resolution of disapproval of an action of the Airports Authority would be referred to the House Committee on Public Works and Transportation and the Senate Committee on Commerce Science and Technology. If the Committee to which a resolution had been referred had not reported it at the end of twenty calendar days, it would be in order to move to discharge the Committee from further consideration of the joint resolution. A motion to discharge would be highly privileged, and debate would be limited to not more than one hour. An amendment would not be in order, nor would it be in order to move to reconsider. Additional procedures are established for consideration by the Senate of resolutions of disapproval which have been reported or discharged. Debate on a resolution would be limited to not more than ten hours and amendments or motions to commit would not be in order.

(4) The substitute includes a provision ratifying actions of the Airports Authority which were submitted to the Board of Review before the Supreme Court's decision. This provision basically clarifies existing law on the effect of an adverse court order on the Board of Review's powers.

(5) The substitute includes a provision that until the Airports Authority establishes a new Board of Review, and at any time the Airport Authority fails to fill more than four vacancies on the Board of Review, the Airports Authority will have no power to take the actions which must be submitted to the Board of Review. This will protect against the Airports Authority failing to comply with the statutory requirement that it appoint a Board of Review.

(6) A new provision is added to existing law directing the Comptroller General to review the Airports Authority's contracting procedures for consistency with sound government contracting principles and the provisions of existing law requiring the Authority to use competitive bidding procedures. The Comptroller General would be required to file periodic reports with the House and Senate Aviation committees.

(7) To supplement the new authority given the Board of Review to review contracts of the Airports Authority, the substitute adds a new requirement that every contract must include a provision that no member of the Board of Review may benefit from the contract.

(8) The substitute authorizes the Secretary of Transportation to amend the lease of the airports to the Authority to incorporate the new Board of Review procedures.

Several provisions in the Conference Substitute should be clarified; the exception in section 6007(f)(4)(B)(vi) which states that "a contract in connection with the issuance or sale of bonds" is not subject to review by the Board of Review. It should be clear that this exception applies only to those documents necessary for the bond issuance and not to any contract relating to the selection of underwriters or to contracts funded by the bond proceeds.

Section 6007(h) has been amended to clarify its original intent. Any interruption in the Airports Authority's power was meant to be prospective; actions taken before a court order were not to be invalidated by such an order.

In addition, the Conferees believe that an objective in the redesign of the Metropolitan Washington Airports should be to minimize walking distances between terminals and between terminals and parking facilities. At National Airport, the Authority should make every reasonable effort to construct a permanent system for transporting people between the new North Terminal, the principal on-airport public parking facilities and the southern-most passenger terminal facilities, using a continuous loop system or a system of moving sidewalks. The Authority should periodically report to the Board of Review on the progress of its efforts.

The Conferees have been concerned with the difficulties which new entrants and limited incumbents have faced in obtaining slots at National Airport. In recognition of these difficulties, the Federal Aviation Administration, on February 24, 1984, awarded an exemption to Braniff Airlines to conduct four daily operations at National. These operations were being conducted at the time of passage of the Metropolitan Washington Airports Act of 1986. On January 12, 1990, after Braniff had ceased operations, FAA awarded America West an exemption to operate the slots previously held by Braniff. The rationale for the exemption was "the Department's policy of promoting competition in the airline industry."

The original America West exemption was granted for 6 months. Since then, the exemption has been extended for two one-year periods.

The Conferees agree with the FAA's decision to award four slots to America West in the interest of competition. However, we are concerned that the relatively short term of each renewal of the exemption makes it difficult for the carrier to engage in long-term planning, and may limit the willingness of creditors to advance funds to America West. With the decline in competition and the financial difficulties of the airline industry, the survival of major carriers such as America West is of great importance. Accordingly, we urge FAA to consider a long-term exemption to America West to operate the four slots, subject, of course, to the same rights FAA retains for any of the slots at National Airport.

Another matter of concern to the Conferees has been the expiration of provisions in the 1986 Act guaranteeing to airport employees, for five years, continuation of the rates of pay and other employee benefits which were in effect on the date the airports were leased to the regional Airports Authority. Notwithstanding the expiration of these provisions we expect the Authority to continue to afford employees fair treatment with respect to wages and other conditions of employment. We expect to monitor employee relations at the Airport, and to take appropriate corrective action if necessary.

TITLE VIII—REVENUE-RELATED PROVISIONS

A. HIGHWAY-RELATED EXCISE TAX PROVISIONS

1. TAX RATES

Present law

Current highway motor fuels and other highway excise taxes (the "HTF taxes") are scheduled to expire after September 30, 1995. These taxes include: 11.5 cents per gallon on gasoline and special motor fuels (including motorboat and small engine fuels); 17.5 cents per gallon on highway diesel fuel; 12 percent of retail price on heavy trucks and truck trailers; graduated rates on heavy highway vehicle tires; and a graduated annual use tax on heavy highway vehicles. All revenues from these tax rates are deposited in the Highway Trust Fund ("HTF"), except that revenues from taxes on motorboat and small engine gasoline fuels deposited in the HTF are transferred to the Aquatic Resources Trust Fund ("Aquatic Fund").

Gasoline, special motor fuels, and diesel fuel (including diesel fuel used in trains) are taxed at 2.5 cents per gallon through September 30, 1995. Revenues from these taxes are retained in the General Fund. Further, a separate 0.1-cent-per-gallon tax applies to these fuels to finance the Leaking Underground Storage Trust Fund ("LUST fund").

House bill

The House bill extends current HTF taxes (and exemptions from these taxes) for four years, through September 30, 1999. Also, the House bill extends current trust fund taxes on motorboat and small engine fuels for that period.

The current 2.5 cents-per-gallon deficit reduction rate on motor fuels, including the train diesel fuel tax, is not extended beyond the current 1995 expiration. Thus, from October 1, 1995, through September 30, 1999, the motor fuels tax rates (not including the LUST fund rate) will be 11.5 cents per gallon for gasoline and special motor fuels and 17.5 cents per gallon for highway diesel fuel.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

2. DEPOSITS AND TRANSFERS OF REVENUES

Present law

Gross revenues from the HTF taxes are transferred to the HTF through September 30, 1995. Gross revenues from the 11.5 cents-per-gallon taxes on certain motorboat fuels and small-engine gasoline fuel are transferred from the HTF to the Aquatic Fund through September 30, 1995.

House bill

The House bill extends the transfers of gross revenues from the current HTF taxes to the HTF through September 30, 1999. The House bill also extends transfers from the HTF to the Aquatic Fund of the fuels taxes currently transferred to the Aquatic Fund through September 30, 1997 (to conform to the HTF expenditure authority termination date).

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

B. HIGHWAY TRUST FUND PROVISIONS*1. TRUST FUND EXPENDITURE AUTHORITYPresent law*

HTF expenditure authority is scheduled to expire on October 1, 1993.

The Aquatic Fund consists of two accounts: the Sport Fish Restoration Account for which there is no scheduled expiration date of expenditure authority and the Boat Safety Account for which expenditure authority is scheduled to expire after March 31, 1994.

House bill

The House bill extends HTF expenditure authority through September 30, 1997. Expenditure authority for the Aquatic Fund's Boat Safety Account is extended through March 31, 1998.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

2. TRUST FUND EXPENDITURE PURPOSESa. Highway Account GenerallyPresent law*

HTF Highway Account amounts are available, as provided in appropriations acts, to funds obligations incurred under the Highway Revenue Act of 1956, the Surface Transportation Act of 1982, the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Act of 1987 ("1987 Act"), or for amounts for a general purpose authorized under these acts as in effect on the date of enactment of the 1987 Act.

House bill

The House bill adds to the permissible HTF expenditure purposes expenditures for purposes provided under the Intermodal Surface Transportation Infrastructure Act (H.R. 2950).

The House bill further provides that the permissible HTF expenditure purposes include only those specified in each Act cited above, as those Acts are in effect on the date of enactment of H.R. 2950.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

b. Mass Transit AccountPresent law

Amounts in the Mass Transit Account of the HTF are available through September 30, 1993, as provided in appropriation acts, for making capital expenditures under section 21(a)(2) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 ("UMTA"). UMTA section 21(a)(2) authorizes Mass Transit Account expenditures for construction and purchase of facilities and rolling stock, innovative techniques in public transportation services, planning and technical studies, and grants to assist elderly and handicapped needs.

House bill

The House bill provides that Mass Transit Account amounts are to be available for "capital" and "capital-related" purposes under UMTA sections 21 (a)(2), (b), (c), (g)(2), (h), or (j)(1), as in effect on the date of enactment of H.R. 2950.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

c. Highway Tax CompliancePresent law

Internal Revenue Service ("IRS") highway tax compliance expenditures are financed from General Fund appropriations.

House bill

Provisions contained in the non-revenue titles of the House bill authorize HTF amounts for grants to the IRS and/or States for motor fuels and other highway use tax enforcement activities. These provisions also provide for an Advisory Committee to the Secretary of Transportation (from the Federal Highway Administration, IRS, and the States) to prepare and coordinate the highway tax enforcement projects, with semi-annual reports to be made to the House and Senate authorizing committees ("Public Works") on the expenditure of such monies.

The House bill's revenue title provides that Department of Transportation may not impose any conditions on the use of any funds allocated to the IRS, and that the IRS must submit a report to the Ways and Means and Finance Committees at least 60 days before the start of each fiscal year (after FY 1992) on the projected use of any such funds it receives. Further, the revenue title provides that the semi-annual reports by the Advisory Committee also are to be made to these tax-writing committees.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment authorizes HTF amounts for grants to the IRS and/or States, to be used only to expand motor fuel tax enforcement activities and to reduce other highway use tax evasion. Semi-annual reports are to be made to the House and Senate Public Works committees on the expenditure of these monies.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill's restrictions on monies allocated to the IRS.

C. NATIONAL RECREATIONAL TRAILS TRUST FUNDPresent law*

Gasoline used in off-highway business uses is exempt from the HTF and deficit reduction rates of the gasoline excise tax. Off-highway recreational (i.e., nonbusiness) use is not exempt.

Revenues generated at the HTF tax rate that are attributable to nonbusiness off-highway uses are transferred to the HTF. Revenues attributable to the HTF rate on gasoline in a nonbusiness use of small-engine outdoor power equipment are then transferred from the HTF to the Aquatic Fund's Sport Fish Restoration Account.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendmentEstablishment of trust fund and transfer of revenues

The Senate amendment establishes a National Recreational Trails Trust Fund ("Trails Fund") in the Trust Fund Code of the Internal Revenue Code (the "Code"). For the first year of the new Fund's existence, amounts equivalent to 0.3 percent of total HTF receipts and, after the first year, revenues corresponding to those received from "nonhighway recreational fuel taxes," are to be transferred annually from the HTF to the Trails Fund.

Nonhighway recreational fuel taxes are defined as those imposed on gasoline, diesel, and special motor fuels (at the HTF rates) for (1) fuel used in vehicles and equipment on recreational trails or back country terrain (including highway vehicles when used on recreational trails, trail access roads not eligible for Federal highway funding, or back country terrain) and (2) fuel used in camp stoves and other outdoor recreational equipment.

Expenditures from trust fund

The Senate amendment authorizes general expenditure purposes from the Trails Fund by cross-referencing Public Works' provisions of the bill.

The Public Works' provisions in the Senate amendment set specific rules for allocating monies to the States for use on trails and trail-related projects. Among the authorized uses of the funds are (1) acquisition of new trails and access areas, (2) maintenance and restoration of existing trails, (3) State environmental protection education programs, and (4) program administrative costs.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with the following modifications:

(1) The conference agreement provides that the annual revenue transfers to the Trails Fund may not exceed the annual obligation ceilings contained in the bill; the Treasury Department must report annually the amount of revenues it determines to be attributable to nonhighway recreational fuels taxes to the Committees on Ways and Means and Finance;

(2) The conference agreement clarifies that revenues transferred to the Trails Fund do not include revenues currently transferred to the Aquatic Fund; and

(3) The conference agreement sunsets revenue transfers to and expenditure authority from the Trails Fund on October 1, 1997.

(4) The agreement also includes additional technical modifications to conform the Trails Fund to the Code trust funds.

D. NATIONAL HIGHWAY INSTITUTE FUNDING AND FEESPresent law*

There is a National Highway Institute which (among its activities) conducts training programs for Federal, State, and local highway employees.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment expands the Institute's charter to authorize training programs for employees of private agencies. The Institute also is authorized to establish and collect fees from any entity and to place such fees in a special account to fund its operations.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with the modification limiting fees that may be assessed to amounts charged to users of the Institute's training programs, not to exceed the costs of services provided.

E. RURAL TOURISM DEVELOPMENT FOUNDATIONPresent law*

The Code provides tax-exempt status for any corporation which is organized under an Act of Congress and is an instrumentality of the U.S., but only if the corporation is exempt from Federal income tax under (1) provisions contained in the Code (including sec. 501(e)), (2) the corporation's organizing Act

(as in effect before July 18, 1984) or (3) a revenue Act enacted after July 17, 1984.

Contributions and gifts to or for the use of the United States for exclusively public purposes are deductible for Federal income, estate, and gift tax purposes.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Public Works' provisions in the Senate amendment establish a charitable, nonprofit corporation to be known as the Rural Tourism Development Foundation to plan and implement projects and programs to attract foreign visitors to rural America. The provisions specifically provide that the Foundation and any income or property received or owned by it, and all transactions relating to such income or property, are exempt from all Federal, State, and local taxation.

The provisions also provide that contributions, gifts, and other transfers made to or for the use of the Foundation are regarded as contributions, gifts, or transfers to or for the use of the United States.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

F. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS RELATING TO COMMUTE-TO-WORK BENEFITS

Present law

Present law allows employers to provide employee benefits excludible from gross income of up to $21 per month (recently raised from $15 by the IRS) for mass transit use.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment includes a "Sense of Congress" resolution that the current dollar limit on the exclusion for employer-provided transit benefits unduly penalizes employer efforts to encourage mass transit use by employees. The Senate amendment urges that the amount excludible from employee gross income be increased.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

G. BUDGET ACT COMPLIANCE

Present law

The 1990 Budget Enforcement Act provides "spending caps" for certain expenditures and a "pay-as-you-go" requirement for net increases in direct spending and revenues during FY 1991-1995. If net direct spending increases are not offset, a sequester (automatic across-the-board reduction) in non-exempt direct spending programs will occur.

House bill

The House bill provides that notwithstanding any other provision of the House bill, no new direct spending would be created by the bill. The bill requires a proportional reduction in highway and transit obligations for FY 1992 in the event that outlays pursuant to the FY 1992 obligations under the House bill exceed those contained in any transportation appropriations bill for FY 1992.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

Managers on the Part of the Senate.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the rule, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 2950) to develop a national intermodal surface transportation system, to authorize funds for construction of highways, for highway safety programs, and for mass transit programs, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to request, if I may, the balance of the time that is allocated to both sides.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ROE] under his unanimous-consent request has 18 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT] has 17 minutes remaining.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. OBERSTAR].

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I thank the indefatigable chairman of our committee, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. Roe] whose relentless pursuit of this legislation has brought us to the successful conclusion we celebrate this morning.

Mr. Speaker, the key word and the key concept in this bill is intermodal. This is the first time in the history of transportation legislation that one bill brings together, knits and threads together in one conceptual and detailed piece of legislation, the several modes by which we move people and goods in this country.

As this legislation unfolds and is put into place in the many programs authorized under it, a person will be able to take a ride to an airport, unload his bicycle from the trunk, get aboard that airplane, fly to the destination, mount that bicycle on a car, take a drive on a scenic byway, dismount, and ride that bicycle on a bike path or on to an abandoned railroad bed that has been paved over for bicycling, dismount the bike and walk a beautiful vista along that pathway, get back into the car, and drive to his final destination and enjoy the beauty of this country through the several modes of transportation made possible.

Mr. Speaker, we chart a whole new course with this legislation. We will relieve urban congestion, we will improve rural transportation, we will improve the highways of this country, we will develop new concepts through the maglev that is included in this legislation, and we will indeed chart the course for transportation now through the beginning of the next century.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2950, the Intermodal Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991, and urge its passage. I also commend, in the strongest meaning of that word possible, the leadership of the House Committee on Public Works and Transportation, the indefatigable gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ROE], the gentleman from California [Mr. MINETA], the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT], and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. SHUSTER], as well as the staff of the Subcommittee on Surface Transportation, for the truly heroic effort they have put into this bill over the last 6 months and more.

Along with its other landmark provisions, directing our Nation's transportation policy for the remainder of this century and into the next, H.R. 2950 contains two programs which I initiated, and in which I am particularly interested.

SCENIC BYWAYS

Section 147 of H.R. 2950 authorizes a Scenic Byways Program incorporating a substantial portion of my own bill, H.R. 2957, which my colleague, the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. DEFAZIO], the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. ROCKFELLER], and I developed in cooperation with a broad range of groups to meet the need of recreational Americans, particularly the recreational driver, as well as the bicyclist and hiker.

Growing numbers of recreational drivers, particularly, long to escape the fast lanes funded by most of this and past legislation, and to tour slowly the backways and byways of America, savoring at a leisurely pace the richness of America's scenic, recreational, historic, cultural, and archaeological treasures and bringing economic diversity to small towns bypassed by the mainarteries of our highway system.

Many States already have their own Scenic Byways Programs, such as the Blue Ridge Parkway in Virginia, or the 10-State Great River Road, which crisscrosses the mighty Mississippi River along its 2,000-mile course from Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico.

H.R. 2950 authorizes $80 million, over 6 years, from the highway trust fund under contract authority, for scenic byways.

While the provision of our scenic byways bill authorized an Office of Scenic Byways, this provision was not adopted into H.R. 2950. A complete office may not be necessary, but I would insist that the Department of Transportation and the Federal Highway Administration devote adequate staff to administering this $80 million program. This is a substantial amount of public funds, but more important, the program needs the sensitivity, judgment, and time of a staff dedicated solely to it. If it simply becomes a part-time job, imposed on already overworked staff, the program will not be the success it could be.

Section 147 of H.R. 2950 establishes a Scenic Byways Advisory Committee, to develop and present to the Secretary of Transportation recommendations regarding minimum criteria for use by State and Federal agencies in designating highways as scenic byways and as All-American Roads. The section recognizes the need for flexibility in this Federal program, to accommodate State programs, some of which have existed for many years. At the same time, it is important to establish these minimum criteria, so that people's expectations are not disappointed when they make the long trip to travel a road with the scenic byways designation.

The advisory committee has 18 months to develop these minimum criteria and present their recommendations to the Congress and the Department of Transportation. I would expect the Secretary to take these recommendations fully into account in approving funding for projects on State-designated scenic byways. This is especially important because section 147, unlike our bill, makes no provision for the States to nominate, or the Secretary to designate, highways for the scenic byways and All-American Roads systems.

Section 147 does not define All-American Roads, but I would expect the Secretary to adopt the definition contained in H.R. 2957: "those highways designated as scenic byways * * * which are of national significance, are of outstanding natural beauty, are in areas of quintessential scenery, are of high cultural interest, or are of exceptional or unique value."

Section 147 also establishes a 3-year Interim Scenic Byways Program. Under this interim program, the Secretary is required to give priority consideration to certain projects. These priorities are designed to protect the scenic, historical, recreational, cultural, and archaeological characteristics for which the byway is designated, while assuring the appropriate local and private roles in project funding. The section gives priority to projects with corridor management plans designed to protect scenic byway values, and to those with a strong local commitment to implementing the management plans and protecting the scenic and other characteristics.

Priority is also accorded to those eligible projects which are included in programs that can serve as models for other States to follow, and to eligible projects in multi-State corridors where the States submit joint applications.

Eligible projects are clearly spelled out. The conference added a provision permitting 10 percent of the funds to be used for billboard removal.

Mr. Speaker, I want to stress, as strongly as possible, that the purpose of the Scenic Byways Program is to maintain and enhance the values associated with scenic byways. These byways are more than concrete and asphalt; more than paving and pothole fixing. The Scenic Byways Program is to be an adjunct to, rather than a replacement for or duplication of, other programs in H.R. 2950.

Finally, section 147 provides specific protections for byways, by stipulating that the Secretary shall not fund any project that would not protect the scenic, historic, recreational, cultural, natural, and archeological integrity of the highway and adjacent area.

H.R. 2950 provides for a mid-term review of many programs. It is my clear understanding that scenic byways will be one of those programs reviewed, with the purpose of following the interim program with a full-fledged, adequately funded, permanent Scenic Byways Program.

BICYCLE AND PEDESTRIAN FACILITIES

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 2950 also contains important provisions to assure the construction of many more bicycle lanes, paths and trails, and more pedestrian walkways in urban and rural areas. Many of these provisions are patterned on H.R. 2267, my bicycle and pedestrian facilities bill.

Strategically placed throughout the highway provisions of H.R. 2950 are provisions relating to planning and location of bicycle and pedestrian facilities.

Section 132, bicycle transportation and pedestrian walkways, provides further direction to State Departments of Transportation to use funds apportioned under the National Highway System, the urban and rural mobility programs, the flexible program, and the Federal lands highway programs, for these facilities.

Section 132 also creates the position of State Bicycle and Pedestrian Coordinator in each State Department of Transportation. The coordinator would be responsible for promoting and facilitating the increased use of non-motorized modes of transportation, including developing facilities for the use of pedestrians and bicyclists and public education, promotional, and safety programs for using such facilities. It is vitally important to have an advocate for bicyclists and pedestrians within each State DOT, providing the critical focal point for contact between bicycle and pedestrian groups and their agency.

The same section would provide that any bridge deck replacement or rehabilitating project would have to accommodate bicycles if they, the bikes, are permitted to operate at both ends of the bridge, as long as such accommodation can be provided at reasonable cost.

Finally, the use of motorized vehicles would be prohibited on these trails and walkways, unless State or local regulations permit snowmobiles and motorized wheelchairs, and under other circumstances as the Secretary deems appropriate.

The point I wish to stress is that Congress intends that more trails and walkways be built in conjunction with projects funded under this bill, and independent of these projects, to accommodate the legitimate needs of bicyclists and walkers—who are, for the most part, also drivers who contribute their fair share to the highway trust fund.

Section 217 of title XXIII, which this section amends, has for many years permitted the States to use highway funds for bicycle and pedestrian paths and trails, yet few have been built. It is thus highly appropriate, in the Intermodal Transportation Efficiency Act, to add provisions requiring accommodation of these modes which provide energy efficient, environmentally protective, cost-saving and congestion-lessening transportation to this bill.

As the bicycle and pedestrian provisions are implemented, I will observe closely how well State DOT's respond to citizen demands for bike lanes and trails, and pedestrian walkways. They have had a hard time being heard under the existing, voluntary, construction program. I hope the program established under H.R. 2950 will go much farther toward answering their needs, and toward providing the relief the Nation needs from transportation congestion, pollution, and costs to the taxpayer and the individual commuter.

Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER].

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Speaker, first of all, I want to commend the leadership of our committee for the outstanding job that they have done in crafting this legislation which has taken weeks and months and endless hours of work to get to this point. It is absolutely imperative that we pass this bill tonight and get it to the President for signature.

Let me just give you about 34 reasons why we need to pass it tonight. Ten of them are the 10 States that have already run out of money for their highway programs, which means that the jobs involved in those programs are no longer there. The 10 States are Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oregon, Tennessee, Virginia, and Wisconsin. So those States at present are doing no highway construction because their funds have dried up. About 24 other States, if we do not pass this bill and move it to the President tonight, will run out of money within the next 3 weeks, and that means that their Highway programs will shut down. They consist of Delaware, the District of Columbia, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Michigan, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, and Washington.

My colleagues, these States are going to be out of business as of the 1st of January, if we do not pass this bill.

This is, as it has been said before, a jobs bill. It is a safety bill. It is a competition bill. It is a transit bill. It is all of these things. But most importantly, it is the only bill that we have before us and are going to have before us that really offers some measure of economic recovery and economic development, one that can go onstream immediately. It is going to put people to work. It is going to keep people working.

This is our economic growth bill that we can deal with in this session of this Congress right here, right now, and I urge support for this bill.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the distinguished gentleman from Michigan [Mr. DINGELL], the chairman of the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of conference report on this bill, H.R. 2950, and particularly in support of those portions of the legislation on which our committee participated as conferees.

I want to especially commend chairman ROE and ranking Republican member HAMMERSCHMIDT of the full committee, as well as chairman MINETA and ranking Republican member SHUSTER of the subcommittee, for their extraordinary leadership in the House and in the conference on this bill and this agreement today.

I also want to thank them and the other members of the Committee on Public Works and Transportation, as well as the Public Works staff on both sides of the aisle, for their great cooperation in ensuring that matters of concern to the Committee on Energy and Commerce were fully protected and properly addressed by our committee.

In addition, I want to commend our committee members, particularly Mr. SWIFT, Mr. LENT, Mr. SIKORSKI, Mr. ECKART, Mr. RITTER, and Mr. OXLEY for their help in developing this compromise. I also want to thank Senators HOLLINGS, BRYAN, DANFORTH, EXON, and GORTON and their staff.

Mr. Speaker, this is a good bill. It preserves the agreements reached between our two committees and the Senate in the last Congress regarding the Clean Air Act and highways.

The conformity provisions of section 176(c) of the Clean Air Act will continue to apply in the same manner and to the same extent as the House and Senate conferees expected when we adopted the 1990 amendments to the Clean Air Act. I expect the Secretary of Transportation, the Environmental Protection Agency, the States, and metropolitan planning organizations to comply fully with section 176(c). In addition, I expect the congestion management program to be carried out in a way to further the purposes of the Clean Air Act.

Importantly, the Senate receded from two energy provisions that would have been inconsistent with our resolution in the Clean Air Act, last year of the reformulated gasoline and oxygenated fuels issues.

The conference report also gives a tremendous boost to high speed rail and magnetic levitation technologies and will help the United States catch up to—and hopefully surpass—the Germans, French, and Japanese in this field. By combining the best elements of Senator MOYNIHAN's maglev provisions and the provisions of our committee's high speed rail bill, H.R. 1087, authored by Mr. SWIFT and Mr. RITTER, the chairman and ranking Republican member of our Subcommittee on Transportation and Hazardous Materials, the Congress has for the first time demonstrated a genuine financial commitment to high speed ground transportation.

One important provision of this demonstration program prohibits grants and contracts from going to support high speed ground transportation projects or systems located in States that by virtue of their own State laws have prohibited State funds or revenues from contributing to the construction or operation of such projects or systems. It is not necessary that a State actually have a present commitment to funding such projects or systems; however, it would be grossly unfair to use the tax dollars of my constituents in Michigan for this purpose, or of taxpayers in any State for that matter, when the State in which the project is located affirmatively prohibits its own State taxpayer dollars from being used for that project.

In support of these efforts, the legislation also includes a new high speed ground transportation research and development program, based on the excellent work of the House Science Committee in this area. This program is authorized to expend $25 million and, coupled with the economic, financial, and technical assessments required by the bill, will provide a sound basis for future decisionmaking in this area. Putting a package of this magnitude required the cooperation of five congressional committees working within very tight time constraints, and I applaud the chairmen and members of all those committees, as well as their staffs, for working so well together.

Mr. Speaker, the House and Senate bills both contained provisions dealing with asphalt rubber paving. The United States discards approximately 242 million tires each year, which are presenting enormous disposal problems and health hazards for local governments. In addition, 2 billion discarded tires have accumulated in piles or dumps throughout the country. This legislation establishes a minimum utilization requirement on procuring agencies, as they are defined in section 1004(17) of the Solid Waste Disposal Act to use recycled rubber in asphalt pavement. This will help consume millions of old tires which are fouling our landscape and consuming valuable landfill capacity. Much more, however, needs to be done to develop markets for scrap tires. According to an October 1991 EPA report, the total usage of tires for recycling currently is estimated to be less than 7 percent of the annual generation. In the reauthorization of the Solid Waste Disposal Act, the Committee on Energy and Commerce will be pursuing further opportunities to address this troublesome health and environmental problem.

Mr. Speaker, as you know, the Senate added a non-germane amendment to this bill in the form of S. 1012, which the Senate had earlier passed separately and which relates to the activities of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, which is under the jurisdiction of this committee. There was no companion House provision.

The Senate committee report on S. 1012 notes that "no legislation" authorizing NHTSA funding has been enacted since 1982, which is true. It also points out that the Senate passed bills since 1986, authorizing such appropriations. That is also true. But those bills covered more than such authorizations. They made significant changes in the basic statutes administered by NHTSA. Until very recently, no similar House bills were introduced.

The lack of annual authorization has not affected NHTSA's duties and obligations under existing law. Moreover, Congress, through the appropriations process, has annually funded NHTSA.

As the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation report on S. 1012 observes, in 1986 both Houses passed separate versions of NHTSA authorization bills (S. 863 and H.R. 2248). Each also included significant changes in the existing NHTSA statutes. Efforts to reconcile informally the differences between the Senate and House proved unsuccessful before the 99th Congress adjourned sine die.

The bills introduced and passed in the Senate in subsequent Congresses did not include any of the provisions where agreements were reached in 1986. Indeed, they were nearly identical to the Senate version in the 99th Congress, which the House had rejected. They did not reflect any of the House view as expressed in H.R. 2248.

Because oversight is often quicker and more effective than legislation, our Committee, including the Subcommittee on Transportation and Hazardous Materials and the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, worked closely with the Subcommittee on Transportation appropriations to commit NHTSA and the DOT to utilize in a timely fashion existing statutory authority to accomplish many of the safety objectives or requirements of S. 863 and H.R. 2248. Our view then and today was that the existing statutes—the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 and the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act—provided broad authority that needed to be used in a more timely and effective manner to resolve safety concerns expressed by both Houses in the 99th Congress. This could be done through rulemaking and other means, whether or not legislation was considered. We also urged the industry to be supportive of such rulemaking and its early resolution.

As the Senate committee report observes, much has been done since 1986 by NHTSA or is underway within timeframes that have proved realistic and sensible. I also note that more and more vehicle safety features are being heavily advertised by the manufacturers and dealers, which I applaud. Safety has become important from a competitive standpoint. That is good and should continue.

Indeed, I urge that the industry adopt this same approach for fuel economy and emissions. The industry has achieved much since 1975, in improving fuel economy. They are continuing to do so. I believe that fuel economy needs attention in light of the global warming debate. We need to continue to improve fuel economy without further mandates.

I believe that the House and Senate committees and subcommittees just mentioned, as well as NHTSA and the DOT, deserve credit for these achievements under existing law. Nevertheless, while there are successes, there is always more to be done, and I expect DOT and NHTSA to carry out their commitments to our committee. This conference agreement is in furtherance of them.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is appropriate that at this time I briefly addressed some of the activities of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration since 1986.

At the outset, I want to make it very clear that the conference agreement today does not provide any new authority for NHTSA. All of the activities covered by this bill relative to auto safety can be carried out and are being carried out under existing law. We are not ploughing new ground. Indeed, in some respects the foreign and domestic manufacturers are being penalized for volunteering to install safety related devices. I am concerned that we not dampen that voluntary approach which stems from competition and good sense.

The conference agreement today which included the provision of S. 1012 when it passed the Senate authorizes appropriations for NHTSA.

In response to my inquiry about this background, NHTSA in its letter to me of November 7, 1991 said:

It is NHTSA's view that the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 (Vehicle Safety Act) and the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act (Cost Savings Act) give the agency ample regulatory authority to carry out the statutory purposes. Differences of opinion will inevitably arise as to whether a particular regulation should or should not be issued, but the existing statutory framework provides adequate means for interested parties to express their views and to ensure that the agency is acting in accordance with the statutory criteria. The committee oversight process has often helped to focus attention on specific issues and has influenced the general direction of agency rulemaking. We believe that the regulatory process has evolved satisfactorily within the existing statutory framework and that it is proved responsive to matters of Congressional concern.

We believe the responsiveness of the regulatory process is evident in the case of the side impact rulemaking, which was the principal regulatory action debated during consideration of S. 863 and H.R. 2248 in the 99th Congress.

Section 302 of S. 863 would have required the agency to: (1) establish performance criteria for improved occupant protection in side impacts for occupants of passenger cars; and (2) extend the applicability of such a standard to light trucks, vans, and multipurpose passenger vehicles. The agency has completed the following actions under FMVSS No. 214, Side Door Strength:

May 28-29, 1986—Public meeting on upgrading side impact protection for passenger cars.

January 27, 1988—NPRM proposing dynamic side impact test procedure and performance requirements for passenger cars.

January 27, 1988—NPRM proposing side impact test dummy.

August 19, 1988—ANPRM requesting comment on side impact protection for occupants of light trucks and multipurpose passenger vehicles.

December 12, 1989—NPRM to include light trucks and multipurpose passenger vehicles with a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or less in the existing FMVSS No. 214 static test requirements.

October 24, 1990—Final rules: (1) establishing dynamic side impact requirements for passenger cars; (2) reporting and record keeping for phase-in requirements; (3) specifications for side impact test dummy; and (4) specifications for side impact moving deformable barrier.

June 14, 1991—Final rule extending FMVSS No. 214 static test requirements to light trucks and multipurpose passenger vehicles with a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or less.

The agency estimates that once all passenger cars meet the dynamic side impact test requirements of FMVSS No. 214, the benefits will be a reduction of 512 fatalities per year, and a reduction of 2,636 moderate to critical (AIS 2-5) non-fatal injuries each year. The average consumer cost impact of this dynamic test requirement is estimated to be $51 per passenger car. This cost estimate includes lifetime fuel costs and secondary weight impacts.

In extending the static test requirements of FMVSS No. 214 to light trucks and multipurpose passenger vehicles, the agency estimates that once all such vehicles complied with the requirements, the benefits would be a reduction of 58 to 82 fatalities per year and 1,569 to 1,889 hospitalized non-fatal injuries per year. The average consumer cost is estimated to be $47 to $59 per vehicle. These cost estimates include lifetime fuel costs and secondary weight impacts.

Mr. Speaker, I want to now discuss the provisions adopted by your conferees regarding NHTSA, as well as some of the Senate provisions not included in the final agreement before us today.

NHTSA APPROPRIATIONS

The bill adopts for fiscal years 1992 through 1994 the Senate dollar amounts. It adds another year, fiscal year 1995, and provides an increase. I note that in discussing the Senate's funding levels, NHTSA's November 7, 1991 letter to me said:

Funding would not be a significant problem with the implementation of these bills, if they allowed the agency to proceed with the research and rulemaking schedule outlined in its priority plan. The authorization levels would provide adequate funds to carry out the plan. The difficulty arises in the imposition of fixed rulemaking schedules, most of which would distort the agency's current plans and require it to redistribute its research and regulatory resources. The agency would not have the manpower or contract research resources to complete the rulemaking actions dictated by the bills within the timeframes allowed.

For example, the bills do not authorize funds to carry out the National Academy of Sciences study of automobile crash-worthiness mandated by Section 202. The estimated $1 million required to conduct this study, whose value we question, would seriously compromise other projects that we believe to have a greater value for motor vehicle safety. Other research and regulatory actions dictated by the bills would have similar effects.

The conferees agreed not to include these crashworthiness provisions of the Senate bill in part due to this funding issue. As to the fixed rulemaking schedules of the Senate bill, I believe the conference agreement is more realistic and provides NHTSA with greater flexibility and should help to avoid deferral of other matters. I commend the Senators for this approach.

As to other funding concerns by our Committee, the NHTSA letter states:

The article in the August 3, 1991 edition of Status Report discusses NHTSA's research and development budget in relation to a 5-year program plan developed by the agency and published in late 1990. * * *

The article suggests that NHTSA's research and development budget is not sufficient for carrying out the research program described in the plan. This is not the case. The program plan describes the research needed to support the agency's priority safety initiatives. Further, the research budget requests to Congress are based on the funding needed for the research to support these priorities. Neither the safety initiatives nor the research to support them are constrained by any funding limitations. There are no important projects that are lying dormant as the article suggests.

If there were a need to ask for increased funding to support a new safety initiative, the agency would not hesitate to make the request. An example is the request for increased research funding to support the new Intelligent Vehicle/Highway Systems program. We envision that the crash avoidance capability of motor vehicles can be improved substantially through the application of emerging electronics technology. Based on this opportunity, and the recognition of this opportunity by the automotive industry and the safety community, the agency has asked for large increases in its research budget. The agency has also asked for significant increases in other areas where it identifies a need.

The dramatic increase in funding recommended in the Transportation Research Board report on Safety Research for a Changing Highway Environment referred to in the article is based on the research needs perceived by members of the committee rather than on any systematic development of safety initiatives and supporting research needs. The agency's priority safety initiatives and the research to support them were developed from such a systematic approach. While the agency endorses the report's recommendation that increased funding may be needed, the agency disagrees that increases of the magnitude recommended in the report are needed.

Finally, the agency does not envision a drastic change in emphasis from crash protection to crash avoidance. The agency's priority plan and its research plan describe ambitious crash protection, crash avoidance, highway safety, and data collection and analysis activities. The balance between the areas as reflected in budget requests may change from time to time as programs end and new initiatives are needed, but the agency's commitment to all areas remains undiminished.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Before proceeding to discuss the bill further, I take note of the fact that the motor vehicle is principally regulated by two agencies, namely the NHTSA and the Environmental Protection Agency. When I inquired about this legislation, I asked:

As we try to resolve one problem relating to safety or emissions, we should not, at the same time, create by statute or regulation a new program that relates to an equally important regulated activity. How does Congress help to ensure that the Federal Government's regulatory actions under the various laws are not counterproductive in the area of emissions, safety, energy, and fuel economy? What are the priorities?

The NHTSA reply was:

NHTSA is in full agreement with your view that the method used to resolve one problem should not create another. In our view, the appropriate means of resolving potential conflicts between regulatory activities is to include in the statutory authority for each activities a requirement that the regulatory agency must consider the effects of its activity on other problems. The corporate average fuel economy law offers a good example of this, since it requires the Secretary to "consider the effect of other Federal motor vehicle standards on fuel economy." (15 U.S.C. 2002(e)(4)) This requirement obliges the agency to consider safety and environmental issues in its fuel economy rulemaking, and has afforded persons objecting to the agency's action a basis for seeking corrective action in court.

We believe that statutory criteria such as that cited above can be used effectively by Congress in the oversight process. If the Congress has plainly indicated that the agency should consider the effects of its actions in one area on other areas, Congress can act to ensure that the agency does so. In the particular case of fuel economy rulemaking, the agency has consistently taken safety into account in determining the appropriate fuel economy level. It is this experience that underlies our concern about efforts to legislate drastically higher fuel economy levels, since we believe that these levels will not be achieved except through size and weight reductions that will compromise the safety of vehicle occupants.

I fully agree that such a legislative provision could be helpful. But there was none in the Senate bill and of course, there was no House bill.

It is clear, however, that NHTSA, through its memorandum of understanding with the EPA, has the capability now to consider "the effects of its actions in one area on other areas." None of the laws administered by NHTSA preclude that. The Energy and Commerce Committee intends to ensure that NHTSA does this at all times.

The conference substitute provides in lieu of the above mentioned provisions a process for conducting rulemakings in accordance with the National Traffic and Motor Safety Act of 1966. It also provides that any resulting standards be enforced in accordance with the 1966 statute. The process includes procedure for initiating a rulemaking either as an Advanced Notice as Proposed Rulemaking (ANPRM) or a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM) at the discretion of the Secretary of Transportation. It also provides for completion of the rulemakings consistent with the 1966 statute and the Administrative Procedures Act. Completion could include promulgation of a rule with or without changes, abandonment of the rule, a deferral of the rule, or starting all over at some future time. The Department cannot, however, terminate the rule because it lacked time to complete the rule. Whatever action is taken it must be published in the Federal Register in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act and the 1966 Act and must include the reasons for that action.

Section 2503 lists four priority matters for which the Secretary must initiate a rulemaking in accordance with these general procedures. They are as follows:

First, unreasonable risk of rollovers for cars, light duty trucks and multi-purpose passenger vehicles;

Second, extension of passenger car side impact protection to multi-purpose passenger vehicles and light duty trucks;

Third, safety of child booster seats in passenger cars; and Fourth, improve design for safety belts.

The listing of these matters for initiating rulemaking decisions is not to be construed as a determination by Congress as to whether or not a rule shall be finalized or if it is finalized what it should contain. The objective of the conferees is to require that the Secretary give priority consideration to these matters without affecting other rulemakings or decisions pending at the Department.

For these four matters, the conferees expect the Secretary to initiate either an ANPRM or a NPRM by May 31, 1992. If the Secretary cannot begin any one of these by that date, he must give notice of the decision to initiate them and provide a date certain for the initiation of either an ANPRM or a NPRM but which date certain shall not extend beyond January 31, 1993. He must also explain the reasons for this delay. A decision to provide a new date for that decision will not be reviewable.

Once a rulemaking is initiated, the Secretary must complete the rulemaking within 26 months after initiation, in the case of an ANPRM, and within 18 months after initiation, in the case of an NPRM. However, in the case of an ANPRM, the Secretary may decide not to proceed to an NPRM after issuing the ANPRM if based on the ANPRM he decides and publishes this decision against publication of a rule. He must do this in a manner consistent with the APA and the 1966 act. The Secretary may in the case of an NPRM extend the 18-month period for an additional 6 months. That extension is not reviewable.

In the case of section 2503 which provides for improved head injury protection regarding interior components of passenger cars, that is, roofs, pillars, and front headers there is a special rule. Under that special rule the Secretary must complete the rulemaking and issue a final rule within 24 months after the date of publication of the ANPRM or the NPRM. That publication must occur either by May 31, 1992 or, as indicated above, by January 31, 1993. If the Secretary determines that there is a need for delay and if the public comment period is closed, the Secretary may extend the date of completion by an additional 6 months and publish a notice thereof in the Federal Register. The conferees emphasize that in the case of this special provision that a final rule is to be promulgated within the timeframe specified. The bill does not set forth the content of the rule or what is to be covered. DOT must decide that.

Thus, with exception of the head injury protection issue, the conferees do not predetermine the outcome of these rulemakings. The Secretary is free to conclude the rulemaking in any manner consistent with the APA and the 1966 Act. The conferees expect the Secretary to act on these matters in accordance with the time schedule provided.

The conferees also expect NHTSA to move quickly on these matters and give preference to rollover protection, and to extension of passenger car side impact protection to light duty trucks and multipurpose passenger vehicles. In the case of rollovers, the conferees note that in a November 7, 1991 letter to the Committee on Energy and Commerce, the Secretary said:

The rulemaking process will develop an advanced notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) which will be published late this year. This will be followed by a notice of proposed rulemaking. If the comments and other information in the rulemaking record support the issuance of a final rule, the agency would adopt such a rule. * * *

Since the late 1980s, the agency has conducted research to determine if vehicle attributes exist which are related to vehicle rollover. In a multi-contract effort, the agency has collected engineering data on approximately 60 different vehicles, including MPVs, vans, trucks, and passenger cars. In addition, the agency has collected and analyzed over 100,000 accidents associated with rollover and non-rollover crashes of these vehicles. These two data sets, the physical measurements of the vehicles and the rollover propensity of the vehicles as measured by their actual accident history, were analyzed to determine correlations between vehicle rollover propensity and accident involvement. Correlations were found when controlling for variations in the individual crashes, such as driver demographics, weather conditions, and road conditions. This analysis was completed in the spring of 1991 and will provide the basis for the forthcoming ANPRM.

The conferees would expect NHTSA to issue an ANPRM before May 31, 1992. Indeed, the conferees understand that an ANPRM has recently been submitted to the Office of Management and Budget.

In addition to the special provisions regarding head injuries just discussed, the conferees require a study and report to the Congress requiring additional types of protection against head injury which the Secretary is currently researching, including head injury prevention to occupants in various types of crashes, such as side impact. This report must also outline the Secretary's plans for initiating a rulemaking in these areas in fiscal year 1994 and 1995. Again, the conferees do not require a final rule or indicate what the rule, if any, would cover or do.

RECALL OF CERTAIN MOTOR VEHICLES

This provision was recommended by NHTSA. Indeed, in its November letter, NHTSA said:

The Department requested the provision concerning reminder notices in recall campaigns on the basis of experience with campaigns in which such notices had significantly improved the percentage of vehicles returned for repair. We continue to believe that a second notice would be useful in campaigns where the response rate is particularly low. Other measures, such as newspaper publicity, have been attempted without appreciable success.

The forwarding of copies of recall notices by lessors to their lessees will help ensure that leased vehicles are returned for repair. This will be of value not only to the lessees, who might not otherwise learn of a potential safety hazard, but to the subsequent purchasers of the leased vehicles. We do not regard the requirement as burdensome to the lessors, since they would routinely know the whereabouts of their lessees and could readily notify of any recall. From past recalls, NHTSA has noted that leased vehicles have a lower rate of return than other vehicles. This provision would help improve the rate.

The provision relating to the remedy of defects and noncompliances in new vehicles and vehicle equipment before sale or lease also arises from the agency's experience with situations in which vehicles subject to recall were sold to consumers without remedying the condition that led to the recall. While the agency does not believe that this is a frequent occurrence, the potential consequences for a new car buyer could be serious. Section 108(a)(1)(A) of the Vehicle Safety Act currently prohibits the sale of a new vehicle that does not comply with all applicable standards, but there is no corresponding provisions for vehicles that have been determined to contain a safety-related defect. This provision would correct that situation. The provision would apply only to new cars held by dealers before the first sale or lease, and not to used cars, thereby addressing a concern voiced by dealers.

We note that subsection (b) includes an important disclaimer regarding "offers" for sale or lease as opposed to actual sale or lease.

STANDARDS OF COMPLIANCE TEST PROGRAM

This Senate provision was, in the view of our committee and NHTSA, unnecessary, NHTSA said:

At this time, there are 50 Federal motor vehicle safety standards in effect. Of these, 40 are capable of being tested in a laboratory environment. The other 10 are evaluated by visual inspection. The attached table presents the 5-year plan for the 40 "testable" standards (41 standards are included, since FMVSS 131 will go into effect in September 1992).

It is important to emphasize that we believe all testable standards should be selected for testing over a period of time. We construe this section as permitting us to consider a number of factors in determining the priority of standards for testing, and thus do not strongly oppose it. Beginning with fiscal year 1987, NHTSA revised its testing schedule to respond to recommendations in a General Accounting Office (GAO) report on NHTSA's enforcement program. A legislative remedy to impose the same revisions would be moot.

You asked whether this provision is needed and if it is objectionable. We believe the provision is unnecessary, since we already have such a schedule. Based on test results for a given standard, however, our schedule may change in order to address important safety issues. For example, a compliance failure may dictate that we reallocate compliance test funds to address a critically important compliance problem that has a substantial real-world safety impact. A legislated test schedule would preclude this necessary flexibility. Accordingly, a rigid test schedule is objectionable.

The conferees listened to NHTSA. The conference substitute does not require a "rigid test schedule." The flexibility NHTSA wanted is provided.

REAR SEATBELTS

NHTSA's letter states:

NHTSA has undertaken a number of efforts to make the public aware of the benefits of retrofitting vehicles with rear seat lap/shoulder belts. These efforts include requiring information in owners manuals; encouraging manufacturers through direct telephone, letter, and personal contact to make retrofit kits widely available, publishing information directly; providing information to consumer and highway safety groups through NHTSA Regional Offices and State highway offices on the subject; and responding to consumer inquiries through the agency's toll-free Auto Safety Hotline.

However, we must point out that lap-only belts in the rear seat are proven safety devices. Studies of occupant protection from 1968 forward show that the lap-only safety belts installed in rear seating positions are effective in reducing the risk of death and injury, when worn properly. We estimate that there is a much larger potential safety benefit to be gained through working to increase belt usage than would be obtained through working to replace current equipment at today's usage rates. Thus, while lap/shoulder belts offers some increase in safety benefits over lap-only belts, we believe the greatest safety gain will be realized by increasing usage of whatever belt system is available.

In addition, no additional funds are authorized to the agency to cover the cost of an expanded effort in informing the public of the availability of rear seat lap/shoulder belts. In consideration of our current funding level, we believe that the agency is doing an effective job to inform the public of the availability of retrofitting vehicles with rear seat lap/shoulder belts.

Once again, the conferees listened. The program is for fiscal year 1993 only.

BRAKE PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR PASSENGER CARS

This is an area where the auto and truck manufacturers are voluntarily installing safety equipment. It is in the area of antilock braking systems or ABS. This bill recognizes this fact. ABS is already standard equipment, or at least available on all domestically produced light duty trucks. ABS is also being installed on many passenger cars today—including low-priced autos—as standard or optional equipment. The conference substitute recognizes this fact and requires the NHTSA Administrator to initiate an Advanced Notice of Proposed Rulemaking [ANPRM] to investigate the need for any additional brake performance standards for passenger cars, taking into account manufacturer's voluntary early application of economical and effective anti-lock brake systems on new cars.

AUTOMOTIVE CRASH PROTECTION AND SAFETY BELT USE

It is important to again note that the vast majority of the NHTSA authorization bill puts into law what the domestic auto and truck manufacturers are already doing. In a very real sense the old adage about never volunteering proves out to be true. This is even truer in the case of airbags.

This legislation mandates airbags for cars and light duty trucks and multi-purpose passenger vehicles—while the automakers are now voluntarily installing airbags in such vehicles. Consumers already have a wide range of choices in showrooms today of vehicles equipped with airbags.

All of the domestic manufacturers and many of the foreign manufacturers have announced plans for voluntarily installing airbags in their vehicles during this decade. As noted many have already done so and have taken advantage of that effort in their advertising. They have done so, in accordance with their plans which takes into consideration many factors that affect the well-being of their business which in turn effects the well-being of the people who work in this industry. It also reflects the fact that there have been considerable problems with insuring adequate supply of airbags to meet the need. According to a recent Ford paper, Ford suppliers "have gone from producing 70,000 airbags for the 1989 model year to over one million for the 1991 model year." Ford states that the "supply base is still fragile and will be for some time."

The Senate bill attempted to suggest to the manufacturers that Congress knows better and is going to tell the manufacturer exactly how to run their operation. I believe that, particularly in this time of great distress that the auto industry is in because of the economic recession in this country, that such an approach by the Congress is ill-conceived. This industry is faced with enormous problems, including significant regulations under the Clean Air Act and the potential of tighter requirements in the case of fuel economy. In short, this industry is under siege. We need to "let up" and allow the industry and its workers to survive and be productive and profitable.

There were a couple of major concerns with the Senate provisions.

First, there is the problem of a design standard. It is believed to be the first time under the Safety Act, which spans the last quarter of a century, that Congress has told automakers what equipment they must put on their vehicles. Congress has, in the past, told them what we wanted manufacturers to accomplish—we have required performance standards—leaving room in innovative technologies to evolve and be installed to meet performance criteria.

Second, the Senate bill failed to address the issue of seat belts.

Third, the Senate bill did not address supply problems.

While I continue to be concerned about any mandate regarding airbags, I believe that the joint conference substitute we are adopting today is reasonable and doable, although not without difficulties for the foreign and domestic industry.

While the conference agreement provides, in essence, a design standard it is not intended to be precedent setting. It is a unique situation. It should be treated accordingly.

I remain concerned that with the installation of airbags, people will become complacent and fail to consistently use their safety belts. Domestic automakers, NHTSA, and others have spent millions of dollars since the mid 1980's to encourage people to wear their safety belts. It has been a tremendous success as we have seen belt use increase from 12 percent to almost 60 percent. That is still not enough.

I emphasize that Congress has a responsibility to ensure that safety belt use continues to increase. Airbags are not substitute for belt use and the conference substitute makes that clear. I applaud that.

Safety belts are needed to hold the occupants in the proper or correct seating position in order for an airbag to be most effective and to provide restraint in the type of accidents where airbags do not work. For example, airbags may not be effective in side and rear impact and rollover accidents.

I am also pleased that this bill does not undo the light truck passive restraint rulemaking that NHTSA promulgated this past March. The new airbag requirement of this conference report recognizes that the manufacturers' product plants have been developed based on the March 1991 Federal rulemaking. This is why it is important to recognize that manufacturers are already installing airbags—both driver and passenger—in many of their vehicles. But just as the rule provided for some limited flexibility by providing for the carrying forward of credits until all light duty trucks must have passive restraints for both the driver and the outboard front seat passenger, this law will provide that those same credits be extended until 100 percent airbags are required on and after September 1, 1998, for both the driver and outboard front seat passenger.

The conference substitute calls for the amendment of the FVMSS 208. That amendment will provide a schedule for passenger cars and for light duty trucks, buses, and multi-purpose vehicles to meet regarding the installation of airbags on both the driver side and the right front seat passenger side of the vehicle. That schedule is reasonable but certainly difficult. It is reasonable, particularly in the case of light duty trucks and multi-purpose vehicles because in amending FVMSS 208, it provides that the credits or incentives available under the rule today will continue to be available until the companies are required to achieve 100 percent front seat inflatable restraints. That is a significant and important provision because it provides the flexibility for the industry to achieve the goal within reasonable bounds. I commend my colleagues in both bodies for agreeing to this provision.

I am also quite pleased to see that the conference substitute recognizes fully that the airbag is only a supplemental device and that it does not suffice for the properly worn lap and shoulder belt. The manufacturers can provide protection and they try to do so in the development of the vehicle. However, if the occupants, including the driver, fail to avail themselves of the means to achieve such protection, they, in effect, endanger themselves and make it more likely that in an accident death or injury could occur. I believe that is sad and I am pleased to see that the Congress agrees that we cannot afford to not recognize the primary benefits of seatbelts.

I am also pleased to see that the conference substitute contains a finding of a need for States to adopt mandatory seat belt use laws. It is my hope that all the remaining States will, in the very near future, adopt such a law. It is also my hope that they will do so in a manner that ensures that they will be enforced on a primary basis. In this regard, I note from the NHTSA letter of November 7, 1991, that at least one State, namely Connecticut, has a rule that if the vehicle is equipped with an airbag the occupant does not have to wear seatbelts. The letter indicates that Connecticut plans to change that law. I certainly think such a change is urgently needed.

The conference substitute also finds that the Federal Government should universally adopt seatbelt use rules. Again, this is a good provision and is consistent with the efforts of this committee to require such rules by the National Park Service, the Bureau of Land Management and the Defense Department.

Subsection (d) contains two disclaimers. The first, in essence, recognizes that the provisions of this section establish a design standard but in doing so the Congress does not intend to alter or affect the existing statutes the Secretary administers regarding the safety of passenger cars, trucks, buses and multipurpose vehicles. It also is intended that this particular design standard provision does not establish any precedent regarding the development and promulgation of any Federal motor vehicle safety standard.

The second indicates that nothing in this section, or in the amendments made by this section, by FMVSS 208 is intended to be construed by anyone to affect, change, or modify in any way existing or future court decisions or other applicable law in regards to vehicles with or without airbags.

The substitute also provides a program regarding the purchase by the Federal Government of airbag-equipped vehicles.

HEAD INJURY IMPACT STUDY

The conferees understand that there are other head injury protection matters which are the subject of research at NHTSA and which are not covered by section 2503(5) of this bill. This could include head injury protection matters from various types of crashes, such as side impact.

This section of the bill directs the Secretary to report on the need for rulemaking regarding this research and the extent of that research. The report would be provided by the end of fiscal year 1993 and would identify research matters and their status. It would also include a statement of any actions planned by the DOT toward initiating rulemaking not later than fiscal year 1994 or 1995. Such a rulemaking would be either an ANPRM or NPRM and would be completed as soon as possible after proposal.

The conferees agreed not to include several provisions regarding such matters as bumpers, crashworthiness, and pedestrian safety that were in the Senate amendment.

In the case of pedestrian safety, NHTSA said:

About 7,000 fatalities and an additional 21,000 serious injuries occur annually to pedestrians as a result of collisions with motor vehicles. In order of severe injury frequency, the extremities (arms and legs) are injured most frequently (49% of severe injuries), followed by the head/neck/face combined (34%) and the chest/pelvis/abdomen/back combined (17%).

The agency currently is pursuing research activities in the pedestrian protection area. On April 10, 1991, the agency terminated rulemaking on pedestrian leg protection that it had begun in 1981. Based on research results, the agency determined that there were no workable techniques to improve pedestrian leg protection and that the proposal would therefore not lead to improved pedestrian protection.

The agency held a public meeting on August 20, 1991 on the agency's pedestrian head impact protection research. Written comments on the subject of pedestrian head impact protection will be accepted by the agency until November 15, 1991. As noted in our priority plan, we will reach a decision on whether to pursue rulemaking further in this area by the end of this year.

Research on pedestrian thorax protection is continuing and will probably not be completed until sometime in 1993. If the agency decides to pursue rulemaking in this area, a two-year timeframe now for completion is unrealistic.

In activities under the Highway Safety Act, it should be noted that the agency, by notice of October 4, 1991, has expanded the list of most effective program areas under the Section 402 Program to include bicycle and pedestrian safety. The effect of this decision will be to provide simplified funding procedures for these programs.

I believe this is an important issue and observe that the Senate Appropriations Committee said recently:

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration Authorization Act of 1991, as passed by the Senate, requires NHTSA to complete a rulemaking in this area within 2 years of enactment. The Committee requests, therefore, that NHTSA submit a report on data it has collected and research conducted regarding ways of reducing pedestrian deaths and injuries through making vehicles more forgiving by removing sharp edges, softening the hood and cowl area, increasing the space between the hood and engine components, and other approaches, the cost of such designs in new cars, and on the numbers of deaths and injuries currently by type of injury and by vehicle type causing the injuries. The report shall include information on vehicle designs for pedestrian protection in other countries.

Although we have not adopted the Senate provision mentioned by the Senate Committee, I believe such a report could be helpful. I look forward to the NHTSA report. I expect, however, that the report will also identify and explain the relevant issues regarding the development and issuance of any possible future rule applicable to pedestrians. This would include the problems, costs and benefits in applying such a rule to passenger cars and light duty and heavy duty trucks, taking into account the extent to which the front end of such a vehicle would need to be changed or modified and the problems and costs of such change or modification, including effects on all actions taken by vehicle manufacturers to meet various Federal safety, fuel economy and emission requirements. The report should also explain the extent to which the Secretary's research and applicable dummy research adequately represents various children and adults and represents accidents that occur between motor vehicles and pedestrians and the extent to which head injuries are attributable, not to the vehicle, but to impacts (occurring after the pedestrian is struck by the vehicle) against roadways, curbs, sidewalks, fences, or other hard surfaces. I will be expecting such information.

In the case of bumpers, NHTSA said:

Our view on the bumper system labeling disclosure provision of S. 1012 is that it would not be useful to consumers and might be misleading. Relating bumper performance only to impact speed does not account for accident frequency or the cost, including replacement costs, of any added protection attributed to higher speed damage-free bumper systems. In addition, a correlation between low-speed bumper impact tests and real world accident experience is not achievable because data sources for low speed accidents and costs do not exist, and would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to develop. Data on low-speed damageability have failed to indicate that a viable consumer information program on bumpers could be developed, and the type of labeling proposed would not address the consumer costs associated with higher levels of bumper protection.

With regard to the amendment to the impact speed of the bumper standard as proposed in S. 1012 and H.R. 1967, the bumper standard was lowered from 5 mph to 2.5 mph in 1982, based on extensive analysis of the costs and benefits of 5-mph bumpers. While the agency recognized that 2.5 mph bumpers would lead to more vehicle damage in low-speed crashes, it found that this increase would be more than offset by consumer savings in the original and replacement costs of such bumpers and in fuel savings due to lighter weight.

Subsequently, in 1987 the agency conducted an extensive study comparing the benefits and costs to consumers of 5-mph and 2.5-mph bumper requirements. The study compared the collision damage experience and bumper system costs of post-1982 passenger vehicles to bumpers on preamendment vehicles.

Among the conclusions of this agency study were that the net costs to consumers have not increased as a result of the modification of the standard from 5.0 mph impact resistance to 2.5 mph, and that the changed standard has not affected the protection of safety related parts. While a 2.5 mph bumper clearly gives a vehicle less protection than a 5 mph bumper in certain low-speed crashes, not every vehicle is involved in such low-speed crashes during its lifetime. Thus, only some car owners, particularly those in urban areas where low-speed crashes are more frequent, benefit from having 5 mph bumper requirements. A standard more stringent than the existing one would cause many passenger car owners to pay for protection that they would not need.

Accordingly, the agency determined that the modified 2.5 mph bumper standard best satisfies the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act's mandate to "obtain the maximum feasible reduction of costs to the public and consumers," while considering other statutory factors. We are not aware of any data that would lead us to change this conclusion.

Question 16 also requested an explanation as to the safety nature of these provisions. Passenger car bumpers provide for a minimum level of damageability protection in low-speed impacts. (The bumper standard specifies no sheet metal damage or damage to safety systems when the vehicle is impacted at 2.5 mph.) However, this protection does not contribute significantly to reducing occupant injuries. At the higher crash speeds at which injuries are likely to occur, it is the structural performance of the vehicle as well as safety belts and/or other occupant crash protection equipment which provides occupant protection—not the bumper.

Next, question 16 asks to what extent the proposed amendments are related to insurance issues. The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety expends considerable effort to evaluate bumpers and report their findings in their Status Report. However, at the present time, insurance companies do not extend discounts to owners of vehicles with bumper systems that exceed our bumper standards' impact requirements, nor do they charge higher rates for bumper systems that just meet these requirements. This is an issue between the insurance industry and the auto manufacturers; the consumer, on average, is not affected.

Clearly in any consideration of bumpers, all of these matters must be considered.

In the case of crashworthiness, I think both NHTSA and the National Academy of Sciences have indicated that a study of the nature suggested by the Senate would be extremely costly and not provide the kind of information that all believe would be necessary in this area. However, as the conference report indicated this is a matter that should continue to be evaluated taking into consideration the above correspondence.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that the conferees have done a good job in coming up with a reasonable bill that is a vast improvement over the ones proposed in the Senate. I think it is important that we resolve these matters and put them behind us in the name of safety, and the need to provide some certainty and stability for the auto industry and its workers. I reiterate that this is an industry that is in difficulty. Many of its workers have lost their jobs. Today we know that plants are closed, some temporarily, some indefinitely. All of that has an impact not only on the manufacturers themselves but on the suppliers, who I dare say are located in all of your congressional districts.

I am pleased to be a supporter of this proposal. It will provide greater safety and while that will be costly to the consumer I think it is in the public interest.

I expect NHTSA to administer this program fairly and responsibly and I expect to maintain oversight over the agency in this regard.

Mr. Speaker, I urge adoption.

Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland [Mrs. BENTLEY], a distinguished member of the committee.

Mrs. BENTLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the conference report on the transportation reauthorization bill.

I want to commend Messrs. ROSE and HAMMERSCHMIDT, the chairman and ranking minority member of the full Public Work and Transportation Committee, and Messrs. MINETA and SHUSTER, the chairman and ranking minority member of the Subcommittee on Surface Transportation, as well as all of my fellow conferees and the staff for their hard work and diligence during the past several weeks.

I want to assure all of our colleagues in this body, as well as the public, who will benefit from this legislation, that first and foremost, the conferees sought to achieve a compromise between the House and Senate versions of the transportation reauthorization bill that would be fair and equitable to all. I believe we accomplished that goal.

Mr. Speaker, the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act indeed is a piece of Federal legislation for America.

It is, without question, the most significant and important public works bill this Congress has considered in the past two decades.

This transportation conference report provides an invaluable boost to the American economy, having an economic impact of $1.5 trillion; it will enable the return to the economy additional billions of dollars now lost to inefficiencies of our transportation network, and, more importantly, it will create almost 2 million jobs for Americans.

Furthermore, Mr. Speaker, the Buy-American clause—again providing many more jobs for Americans.

Improved safety features also are included—one of which I requested—namely to require installation of reflector lane markers so drivers know where their lane is on dark rainy nights.

Maryland is one of the 34 reasons which Mr. CLINGER cited as the reason why this should be approved.

The conference report, Mr. Speaker, will serve as the blueprint for America's transportation system that, in turn, will greatly aid America's productivity, efficiency, and competitiveness in the global arena.

Without its enactment, American businesses will continue to suffer, productivity will continue to stagnate, and gridlock will continue to cripple the movement of commerce and individual travel.

This Congress has invested billions of dollars in foreign aid at a time when our economy and budget deficit can ill afford it. With the use of Federal gas tax revenue and a spend down of the highway trust fund, now is the time for this Congress to invest in America. That is what this conference report does.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly urge my colleagues to vote for this conference report.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ROSTENKOWSKI].

Mr. ROSTENKOWSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the conference report on H.R. 2950, the Surface Transportation Act, including the financing title.

America needs renewed investment in infrastructure, and H.R. 2950 is a strong and welcome response to that need. It provides for much needed construction and repair of our Nation's roads and bridges, and strengthens America's mass transit network. It allows considerable transferability among the different transportation accounts, thus providing crucial flexibility for State and local officials to decide the best use of funding in their own locales. It funds infrastructure programs adequately over the next 6 years, but exhibits fiscal responsibility by spending only as fast as the funding allows.

The Public Works and Transportation conferees, under the able chairmanship of chairman ROBERT ROE, have labored long and hard over the last several weeks to present to this Congress a responsible, effective, fully-funded highway authorization bill.

It has been a difficult conference. But, in the end I believe they have successfully satisfied the competing goals of completing construction of the Nation's Interstate Highway System and repairing and maintaining our older well-used highways. They have balanced the needs of our wide-open rural areas with our heavily-populated urban areas. They have addressed safety, congestion, and pollution problems associated with surface transportation. They have produced an excellent bill. They deserve our praise and our thanks.

The Ways and Means conferees, along with those of the Senate Finance Committee, are happy to join our Public Works colleagues in completing this bill by adding a financing title that will ensure that the necessary funding is available for the improvements in our transportation system provided by H.R. 2950.

The tax conferees' financing title would extend the expiration date of current highway fuels taxes and allow for continued transfers into, and authority to spend out of, the highway trust fund. The financing title would also provide an anti-sequester safeguard mechanism to reduce 1992 obligations from the bill in the event that the official scoring of H.R. 2950 would otherwise create a pay-as-you-go sequester.

Currently, all highway trust fund taxes, as well as the taxes on motorboat and small engine fuels, are scheduled to expire on September 30, 1995. The financing title would extend these taxes through September 30, 1999, to fully fund this bill's new 6-year authorization. The full amount of gross revenues from these existing trust fund taxes would continue to be deposited into the fund.

The 2½-cent deficit reduction tax on motor fuels, enacted last year, is also scheduled to expire on September 30, 1995. The deficit reduction tax is not extended in the financing title.

Mr. Speaker, I believe this bill is important for our country. I also believe it is important for my city, Chicago. I believe this bill will bring jobs to the people of my district. It will allow completion of the badly needed reconstruction of the Kennedy Expressway, which is only a stone's throw from my home. It will fund many important local projects like the State Street Mall redesign and several bridge repair programs.

Mass transit, important to Chicago, will finally be funded at a reasonable level. For Chicago, this will mean the central city circulator can be built to move people around the loop.

Mr. Speaker, I urge that H.R. 2950, including the financing title, be enacted because it is a good, responsible bill that will provide needed improvements in America's transportation system. My colleagues, I strongly urge your support for H.R. 2950 including its fiscally responsible financing provisions.

Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York [Mr. LENT], the ranking member of the Committee on Energy and Commerce and a conferee.

Mr. LENT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the conference report and congratulate the Chairman, Mr. ROE, the vice-chairman, Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT, and all members of the Committee on Public Works, for coming together on a bill that will most probably be signed into law by President Bush. While my colleagues have concentrated their remarks on the highway and transit portions of this bill, I would like to address my remarks to title II.

Highway safety is of great importance to each of us. Every day, hundreds of Americans die on our Nation's highways. I am pleased to report that our annual fatality rate is declining, but we still have much to do.

Title II reauthorizes the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, which was last reauthorized in 1982. It also calls for the initiation of rulemakings designed to save lives. Under the terms of this legislation, by 1997, all automobiles sold in this country will be equipped with airbags. Head injury protection will be improved, and the National Highway Traffic Administration will undertake a major study for the improvement of braking systems.

While I realize that our domestic automobile industry is currently experiencing financial difficulty, I believe that the provisions of title II have been crafted in such a way as to avoid undue or burdensome regulation.

Mr. Speaker, both majority and minority staff have worked diligently to bring an agreement to us this morn. The balance struck is good for both those who use our highways, and those who make our cars. The legislation is overdue, but is before us tonight. I urge my colleagues to join with me in supporting the bill.

□ 0510

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Washington [Mr. SWIFT].

Mr. SWIFT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, this is a historic day. We are considering critical legislation that will be the single most important blow Congress will strike against the recession this year. If approved, we will invest $150 billion in improving the Nation's productivity, start rebuilding our once mighty transportation facilities, and create at least 2 million jobs.

We will also be looking ahead. In addition to caring for highway and mass transit needs, this bill takes the extraordinary step of contemplating transportation systems of the future. The conferees have agreed on a package of high-speed ground transportation programs that, if carefully developed, should link major metropolitan areas and transportation hubs of all regions together in a coherent, accessible matrix.

We've all known for some time that high-speed trains, both magnetic levitation and steel-wheel, pose solutions to traditional energy-gulping, polluting forms of transportation. The Transportation Research Board, Office of Technology Assessment, National Research Council, and even the Department of Transportation have all concluded that high-speed trains will move people quickly, safely, and competitively while minimizing pollution and energy consumption.

The package we have crafted ensures the balanced pursuit of both maglev and high-speed, steel-wheel technologies. We are creating a three-phase competitive design program culminating in the construction of a third-generation maglev prototype. We are amending an existing program to make high-speed, steel-wheel development projects eligible for Federal loan guarantees up to $1 billion. And we are creating a basic research and technology demonstration program that will draw together all available knowledge to help advance both technologies.

Industry and Wall Street have indicated significant interest in high-speed ground transportation. They have been waiting for Congress to give the word. Well, I'm pleased to say that Congress has put money where its mouth is: The total package is funded by a $1.8 billion combination of direct financial support and loan guarantees. Indeed, we can now say to States and consortia waiting to make high speed rail investment decisions, "the word is given."

I am also pleased that we have been able to include some very important, very necessary automobile safety measures within this reauthorization of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Rarely do we have the opportunity to pass a measure that will have such direct and immediate impact upon the health and welfare of the American public. But that is the case here. This legislation will save lives. Many men, women, and children in the future will survive otherwise serious accidents on the Nation's highways because of requirements in this legislation to mandate airbags, to improve head injury protection, to direct NHTSA to target resources to make child booster seats safer, to lower the risk of vehicle rollover, to protect against side impact collisions, and to improve the design of safety belts.

This legislation was crafted with the care and concern that it deserved by Members from both Houses, from both sides of the aisle. Very early in the process there was a unanimous acknowledgment by all conferees that this was an opportunity to pass important reauthorization legislation that has eluded us for many years. I think all conferees can take a great deal of pride in the work we have accomplished, but I would particularly like to single out Chairman DINGELL of the Energy and Commerce Committee for his commitment to this process, and to Senator GORTON for his consistent support for conference efforts to find practicable answers to difficult problems.

There are issues we deal with around here that are arcane or very narrowly crafted; there are issues where the anticipated results are far in the future or difficult to quantify. This legislation affects everyone, and the results will be seen every time someone walks away from a crash where before they would have suffered serious injury or death. Highway safety—protecting the public from injury and death—is one of the most important issues that can be addressed, and I think Congress should take a great deal of pride that we have addressed it in this legislation in a direct, effective, and responsible way. We will save lives because this legislation is on the books.

Finally, I would like to commend the conferees for including provisions in the conference report that address the specific congestion problems on the Interstate 5 corridor north of Seattle. The Marysville/Tulalip interchange and the Snohomish County HOV lanes will provide necessary—and long overdue—relief for commuters and businesses who have endured endless frustrations in I-5 snarls.

I would like to conclude by recognizing the herculean efforts that have formed the bedrock of this legislation. The chairman of the committee, Mr. ROE, the subcommittee chairman, Mr. MINETA, and the ranking Republican members, Messrs. HAMMERSCHMIDT and SHUSTER, have done a tremendous job pulling together the Nation's transportation policy for the next 6 years. I thank them for their efforts, and for working with me and the members of my committee in assuring that our respective jurisdictional concerns were addressed in a constructive and productive manner.

Mr. Speaker, the staff of the Committee on Public Works and Transportation has been particularly helpful, and for myself and my staff I want to let them know how much we appreciate that.

Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. PACKARD], a very able member of our conference and our committee.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I want to rise in strong support of this piece of legislation and start by congratulating my committee leadership for their magnificent work, the committee members, the conferees, and particularly the staff members. They have done a magnificent job in working this bill for the last several months.

Mr. Speaker, let me touch upon several macropolicy changes that are going to take place in transportation policy in this legislation. No. one, this will be $151 billion into a sagging economy in the next 6 years, over 40 percent more than we have spent in transportation in any other year. This is a magnificent effort in rebuilding this country's infrastructure.

Mr. Speaker, for the last 10 years I and our committee have been looking for the money and the will to start rebuilding the sagging and crumbling infrastructure in this country. This bill starts that process for the first time in the 10 years I have served on the committee. For the last 10 years we have been trying to spend down the highway trust fund and not been successful. This bill will start the process. During the next 6 years we will spend down the highway trust fund down to a safety net level.

This bill for the first time puts flexibility in the spending of our transportation dollars. I served at the local level on one of the local metropolitan planning organizations. We never had the flexibility to make our own decisions and develop our own priorities as to where transportation dollars go. This bill provides that flexibility and sends money directly, not through the States, but directly to the metropolitan and local planning agencies. This is the first time we have ever done that. That will be a magnificent effort.

Mr. Speaker, this bill provides the necessary dollars to fulfill the requirements of the Clean Air Act.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly urge my colleagues to support this bill and vote it into law.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Florida [Mr. BENNETT].

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. Speaker, before us tonight is the most comprehensive highway bill this Congress has considered in 35 years. I remember being in this Chamber in 1956 when we overwhelmingly supported and passed President Eisenhower's plan to build a national Interstate System. Some people say that that was the most effective piece of legislation in the Eisenhower administration; still others say it was one of the most important pieces of domestic legislation ever enacted into law.

In pursuit of President Eisenhower's dream, we established the Federal highway trust fund in which States contributed according to ability and received according to need. Such a system meant that large, growing States would contribute more in order to supplement those less populated States that could not fund their own interstates alone.

Those States that contribute more than their fair share have become known as donor States. Mr. Speaker, my State of Florida is one of those, and I am here to tell you that we are proud of the contribution Florida has made in helping other States to complete the Interstate System.

But as proud as we are of our efforts, we are as adamant about the need to modernize the distribution formulas. You see, in 1956, we faced unique needs and we developed a unique solution, but no longer does that same need exist, and the solution must be changed. Unfortunately, this conference report does not do that. Instead, it attempts to address modern transportation needs through antiquated formulas.

We are stuck with a formula in this legislation that distributes money, in part, based on rural mail carrier route miles and a State's land area. This is not the way to distribute transportation money to States who are trying to maintain and construct eight-lane superhighways and high-capacity bridges.

Even more unfortunate is the fact that this legislation disregards the formulas we included in the House bill. So many of us from donor States fought vigorously for the inclusion of the so-called FAST formula, which distributed Federal highway trust funds on the basis of modern transportation needs. The new formula analyzed vehicle miles traveled per State, lane miles per State, and State-wide diesel fuel use—factors that truly reflect need. Donor States had high hopes going into conference that our formula would be protected, but that is not the case and I must oppose this conference report and urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. Speaker, over the last 48 hours, I have reviewed all available information from the conference and am not pleased by what I've learned. The conference report before us will mean only 82 cents per dollar for my State. That is unacceptable for its unfairness, especially when you consider that we will do worse under the conference report than we did under the Senate and House bills. Many of my colleagues from donor States can make the same claim.

I have been criticized by some Members for distributing inaccurate numbers. They are not. They just tell the whole story. Until 2 o'clock this last afternoon, there was confusion as to what the conference report said. Even now, we have tables produced by the Federal Highway Administration that I am told exceed the level we can spend. Even more disheartening is the fact that few, if any, of us have had the opportunity to read the report language, yet we are expected to vote on the bill. If there is confusion as to what this conference report says or how various States are treated, it's understandable. Because, Mr. Speaker, there has not been enough time to analyze what is before us.

It is my sincere understanding that this conference report is not good for donor States and does not establish a policy which is fair, equitable, or forward thinking. Claims to the contrary are simply an overeager attempt to pass this bill. I am not that eager, Mr. Speaker, to lock my State into a formula for the next 6 years which will force us to contribute so much more to the trust fund than we will receive and which does not address the equity issue which donor States have fought for so earnestly.

I urge the defeat of this bill, not in an effort to be belligerent or to keep our Nation from funding its transportation system. Rather than looking out for the short-term needs of this country, I am looking out for the long-term needs for the greater good. Mr. Speaker, if we are successful in defeating this legislation, I would support a temporary extension of current law so that time would be available to try to work out a bill that is more fair to donor States. The bill will do a lot of good even if enacted in its present form but it is not fair to donor States.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I have to say that the debate has been overwhelming and creates a strong urge to vote for this bill. But my colleague from Florida [Mr. BENNETT] earlier this morning made quite an eloquent statement as to the formulas used in the distribution of these funds.

It is important to me as one who is going to be called upon to vote and one who is concerned about fair treatment for a growth State like the State of Florida to know just exactly what the figures are.

The eloquent statement of the gentleman from Florida [Mr. BENNETT] was very convincing. I am wondering if one of the managers of the bill could respond to the issue of just how is a growth State like Florida treated in this regard?

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BENNETT. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, first, I have before me a document published yesterday by the Federal Highway Administration which reports that Florida, for the past 5 years, in the existing law received 77 cents of return on dollars paid into the highway account for every dollar paid in.

In this conference report Florida will receive return on dollars paid in highway account, 92 cents, according to the Federal Highway Administration. So it is a very substantial increase.

Beyond that, Florida for the past 5 years received $2,471,000,000. Under this legislation Florida will receive $4,637,000,000 or an 87 percent increase in dollars.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, as I expressed before, the 92 percent is really very inaccurate. Actually the return is about 82 cents on the dollar. That is because of where the money is applied. The formula, the percentages are applied not across the board in this bill, and it is actually 82 cents, according to the information coming to me from the Department of Transportation.

Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER].

Mr. ZIMMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this conference report. It is a tremendous investment in America's future. It will enable us to be competitive in the year 2000. It is going to create over 2 million jobs.

Mr. Speaker, we have talked for the last several weeks and today particularly of progrowth. This is progrowth. It will help us get our economy moving again. It will have a strong economic impact.

Mr. Speaker, I urge Members to vote in support of this conference report. It is progrowth, it is projobs, it is pro-America. Let us get moving. Let us pass it.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. RAHALL], a member of our committee.

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Act of 1991. I commend the bionic leadership of our chairman, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ROE], and his partners in intermodalism, the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT], the gentleman from California [Mr. MINETA], and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. SHUSTER]. This is truly an intermodal transportation act of profound ramifications for this country, well into the next century.

It has been said this morning that this bill may well be the most important piece of legislation of this Congress. I think it may be the most important piece of legislation in this decade.

This legislation will certainly cover this country as far as the concerns of the backpackers to the high tech mag lift projects, from the pedestrian walkways to high speed trains. It is indeed intermodal in its ramifications. It will have profound impact upon the workers of this country, providing, as we have already heard, over 2 million jobs over the next 6 years.

Mr. Speaker, I also reminded my colleagues, especially the gentleman from Florida [Mr. BENNETT], who just spoke before me, as well as those from donor States, that it is important to look at all of the ramifications of this legislation. Do not just look at the column in regard to highway legislation, because this is not a highway bill. It is a transportation bill. Look at the transit columns as well. Look at all of the formulas. Look at all of the transportation effects that this bill will have on your State before making any harsh judgments.

The transit funding, as the chairman of the subcommittee [Mr. MINETA] has so well said, is the highest transit spending that this country has ever embarked upon.

Mr. Speaker, I urge passage of the pending legislation.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Ohio [Mr. APPELGATE].

Mr. APPELGATE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to just join in some of the accolades and say that I have never been so proud in 30 elected years of serving with such leadership as the gentleman from New Jersey, BOB ROE; the gentleman from Arkansas, PAUL HAMMERSCHMIDT; the gentleman from California, NORM MINETA; and the gentleman from Pennsylvania, BUD SHUSTER, the staffs who did an outstanding job, tremendous, and the conferees that I had a chance to work with.

Democrats and Republicans are sparring around a little bit like Holyfield and Tyson. They are not getting anywhere either, as far as an economic growth package is concerned.

We are talking about tax cuts from the Democrat side, tax breaks from the Republican side. I tell my colleagues, if one does not have a job, one cannot get a tax break. One cannot get a tax cut. Americans want jobs; they do not want the handouts.

This transportation bill, if my colleagues will listen to me, is the jumpstart that the Nation's economy needs, and they need it now. It is $151 billion, 6 years, 2 million jobs, and I am not talking about these Wendy's jobs. I am talking about meat and potato jobs, jobs that will put something on the table.

It is a bill for all Americans, and it is one that I understand that the President is going to sign.

As America grows a million and a half people each year, by the year 2000 we are going to have a lot of people. And we will need the better roads of transportation. We will need the better infrastructure. We will need the building of our bridges to bring together everything to move into the 21st century.

I say this: That every State, every State is going to benefit by this to a great amount of money, much more than they have over previous years. Forty to fifty percent more money, we will be able to do a lot of things that we have not been able to do in the past.

America's economy needs this. The people want it. I say to my colleagues, do not go home without it.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Ohio [Ms. OAKAR].

Ms. OAKAR. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the chairman. I want to thank him and his fantastic staff for doing such a great job, along with the minority side and others.

I am only sorry that we are debating this wonderful all-American job bill that will repair our infrastructures and provide transportation for the American people. And in Ohio alone, create about 40,000 jobs and sustain jobs for the people in my State and throughout the country.

Mr. Speaker, I want to tell my colleagues what it will do for Ohio because we are a donor State, but I will tell my colleagues with all of the discretionary funds that we anticipate getting, we think we are not going to be a donor State.

Over a 5-year period from 1987-91, we got $2.28 billion. Under this bill, we will have a 47-percent increase to $4.174 billion for the people of Ohio, return of their tax dollars that will generate into a new all-American spirit.

Congratulations, Mr. Chairman. You are terrific.

Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

I would not want this debate on this conference report to go by without acknowledging the great hope that we receive from the Department of Transportation under Secretary Sam Skinner, especially through Dr. Tom Larson, the Federal Highway Administrator and Bryan Clymer, the Administrator of the Federal Transit Administration.

They gave us invaluable help. They did computer run after computer run. I wanted to acknowledge that in this debate.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. SMITH of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support this bill, although I agree with the gentleman from Florida [Mr. BENNETT] and the gentleman from Florida [Mr. YOUNG]. We still are really not fully satisfied.

If we add the trust fund money that will be spent to the money that Florida will add in and get back, we think it reduces it. But there is an overriding concern beyond that alone. The discretionary money which the gentleman from Ohio just talked about that Florida will get, which will create jobs and the rest of that.

People in Florida, like everywhere else in this country, are mobile. People in Florida expect when they drive to other States that there will be a better infrastructure in those States as well. They want the bridges and the roads and the tunnels and the highways to be good in other States, as they drive. They have paid their tax dollars in. They want to see other roads where they are participants, where they are users, to be safe and in satisfactory condition, not only for their residents but for us as well.

This will create jobs. In Florida the unemployment rate is over 8 percent. We need this as well.

We will come back and try to get parity on the formula eventually, but in the mean while America needs this bill. And so does Florida.

I urge my colleagues' support.

Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Kansas [Mr. NICHOLS], a member of the committee.

Mr. NICHOLS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the intermodal transportation bill. This bill is properly regarded as an investment, not an expense, in America.

The multiplier effect of the moneys ranging from 2 to 10 times as the dollars bounce around will move all of our States in a progress direction. It will help gear us all up for the 21st century.

I strongly urge its passage.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Kansas [Mr. SLATTERY].

Mr. SLATTERY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding time to me, and it is a pleasure to rise at this early hour and express my strong support for the work of the chairman and the gentleman from California [Chairman MINETA] and the ranking minority members.

I strongly urge my colleagues to support this legislation, which in my view is one of the great highlights of this session.

There has been a lot of talk about economic growth packages, but my friends, this is the economic growth package that this Congress is going to pass, $151 billion over a 6-year period that will create 2 million jobs, according to the White House 4 million jobs, that is good news for all Americans.

In addition to that, the correction in this legislation as it affects donor States is also good news for many donor States who in the past have contributed a lot more to the highway trust fund than they got back. So that is another very important change in the highway bill as far as I am concerned.

The last point I would make, that I think is very important, is that for the first time we are giving the States the flexibility they need to most efficiently utilize the money that this legislation will provide them.

I urge strong support for this legislation, and I commend all the Members who have worked to move this legislation through the process.

Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HASTERT], a distinguished member of the committee.

Mr. HASTERT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, will gentleman yield?

Mr. HASTERT. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, the merits of this bill will be told for years to come through the improved infrastructure it will provide. More importantly, thousands of people will participate in implementing the provisions of the law, and that is very welcome. This is a real jobs bill for real people addressing real needs in making America more competitive.

Mr. HASTERT. Mr. Speaker, I want to extend my congratulations to the ranking member and the ranking member of the subcommittee and certainly the chairman of both the subcommittee and the committee for the great work that they have done. I think it is important that we say the statements in this bill, too, that will change the competitiveness of this country for decades to come, because it sets up a streamlining for our transportation industry, a one-stop shopping and something that will save consumers and shippers billions of dollars as well as the fine work that has gone in to work the highway system and the infrastructure of the country.

I commend the chairman and the ranking member and urge strong support of this bill.

□ 1530

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, but I want to do something in honor of the staff who have worked, Members just have no idea of the extraordinary job that the staff on both sides of the aisle and also in the Senate have done to contribute to this effort. I am going to do something unusual and I am going to name them, and I hope Members will indulge me and give them a response.

They are:

Bob Bergman, John Doyle, Maureen Dubia, Cindy Elliot, Sante Esposito, Jack Fryer, Eunice Goldring, Kathy Guilfooy, Kathy Hoffman, Ken House, Pam Keller, Sheila Lockwood.

Cheryl McCullough, Jimmy Miller, Toby Mullvain, George Noblin, Pepper Riley, Caryll Rinehard, Jack Schenendorf, Jeff Shoaf, Roger Slagle, Dave Smallen, Suzanne Sullivan, Becky Weber, and Susan Byneder.

Mr. Speaker, I think we should give them a big hand.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, this is an anxious time of year in Washington. As Congress rushes to complete action on unfinished legislation before we adjourn, I remain gravely concerned that the people of Florida and other donor States are being taken for a ride by the Transportation conference report without serious consideration of its consequences. Florida has historically been badly shortchanged by the funding formula, leaving us to export millions of dollars in jobs and transportation project to other States.

The conference report, brought to the floor sight-unseen and in the middle of the night, does nothing to improve Florida's situation and that of other donor States. Legislators were asked to take at face value committee assurances that the new bill would treat our States fairly, but in light of Florida's past treatment, and the fact that Florida transportation will receive no more than 83 cents for every $1 the Florida taxpayer pays into the highway trust fund, I could not support the bill. These decisions are simply too important to be railroaded through with no ability to analyze and verify the information we were asked to approve. Supposedly, the bill is good for America. We've been down that road before with the now infamous budget agreement, and unfortunately we can all now see what good that did the American people.

Make no mistake, there are some encouraging provisions in this legislation, and perhaps given time and some sleep, the negotiations could have produced a truly good bill. However, the long-term well being of Florida's transportation infrastructure cannot be traded for one-shot buyoffs, but requires a stable, fair funding formula that reflects Florida's position as one of the most populous, fastest-growing States in the country. By voting for this bill, I would have contributed to an effort to lock Florida and other donor States into 6 years of exporting close to $1 billion to pay for transportation projects in other States. This money is desperately needed within our own borders. It has been said that this is a jobs bill, but I fail to see much benefit for Florida in sending Florida dollars to pay for jobs in the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii over the next 6 years.

Am I frustrated? You better believe it. Once again rational, fairminded legislation was derailed by middle-of-the-night, backroom deal-making. When I voted against this bill last month, I said Florida seemed to be choosing between getting hit by a Mack truck or a Honda. Well, this morning we got hit by the Mack truck after all, a Mack truck driven by the business-as-usual group in Washington. No wonder the American people are fed up with Congress.

Mr. DE LUGO. I rise to congratulate the distinguished chairman of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee for his efforts in bringing this Transportation conference report on H.R. 2950 to successful passage. As Senator MOYNIHAN said of Chairman ROE during the House-Senate conference proceedings of the last 2 weeks, "This man's energy and dedication are nothing short of a miracle." As a member of the conference I can personally attest to this as well as his extraordinary patience under incredible pressure.

I also want to commend the ranking minority member of the committee, JOHN PAUL HAMMERSCHMIDT, for his extraordinary efforts on this bill, as well as NORM MINETA, the chairman of the Surface Transportation Subcommittee, and its ranking minority member, BUD SHUSTER.

Indeed, this is landmark transportation legislation which will chart a new economic course in this country as it will in my own district, the U.S. Virgin Islands. The entire country owes a tremendous debt of gratitude to these gentlemen for their leadership and vision in enacting this legislation which will benefit the Nation for many years to come.

Finally, the staff of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee deserves special commendation. Their extraordinary skill and talent in working on this most complex bill was truly remarkable. During the final days of the conference on this bill, they performed in an outstanding manner literally around the clock.

Mr. Speaker, it was a privilege to serve as a conferee on this bill and to work with the leadership and staff of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I strongly support the conferees' deletion from the Intermodal Surface Transportation Infrastructure Act of 1991, H.R. 2950, of the Senate's provision that would have permitted the Attorney General to block any Government agency from issuing regulations if the Attorney General were to decide that the agency does not have adequate procedures for assessing whether its regulations may result in the taking of private property within the meaning of the fifth amendment of the Constitution. This proposal would unwisely give the Attorney General radically new veto powers without any attention given to the processes of openness and accountability that are now required by the Administrative Procedure Act [APA].

This proposal is just the latest saga in the effort by the administration to delay and block health and safety and other critical regulations that Congress has mandated and to do this in secret, behind closed doors, and out of public view contrary to the intent of the APA. In 1981 President Reagan established the Presidential Task Force on Regulatory Relief, which was headed by then-Vice President Bush. In June 1990 President Bush created the Council on Competitiveness to carry on the same functions as the task force and designated Vice President QUAYLE as its chairman.

Vice President QUAYLE has played an active role in orchestrating the current campaign to enact a proposal to permit the Attorney General to delay, perhaps indefinitely, any regulation of any agency. Documents supplied this spring to the Committee on Government Operations by the Council indicate that the Council considered this proposal at least twice. At its September 27, 1990 meeting the Council approved administration support for a "private property amendment." The Council explained that the bill is "an extension of Executive Order 12630—governmental actions and interference with constitutionally protected property rights that was developed by the task force on regulatory relief, chaired by then-Vice President Bush, and signed by President Reagan in 1988." At its December 19 meeting the Council reported that it "is working with the Department of Justice and OMB to develop a legislative initiative to protect constitutional property rights. . . . The Council requested that the legislation be expanded to include all agencies and be codified to define the nature of the individual right of action that would be provided."

Senator SYMMS introduced the Private Property Rights Act, S. 50, incorporating the principles articulated by the Council, and on June 12, 1991 he said that the Vice President had called him that morning and asked him to offer his bill as an amendment to the highway bill. The Senate adopted the bill as title IV of the highway bill.

Title IV affects the regulations of every agency. It would permit the Attorney General to delay indefinitely any regulation of an agency until the Attorney General certifies that the agency has established adequate procedures for assessing the potential of its regulations constituting a taking within the meaning of the fifth amendment.

Under this proposal, the Attorney General could, for example, block a regulation of the Department of Housing and Urban Development [HUD] helping low-income families acquire housing if the Attorney General determined that HUD did not have adequate procedures for deciding whether the loss of revenue to builders was a taking. Or the Attorney General could block Environmental Protection Agency [EPA] regulations dealing with the cleanup of Superfund sites to protect public health because the Attorney General had not approved EPA's procedures for assessing whether the disruption of business was a taking.

The Attorney General would exercise this veto power even if Congress has mandated the regulation. Moreover, the Attorney General would exercise this veto power exempt from the procedures for openness and accountability that Congress has carefully crafted in the APA. No Court would be able to determine whether the Attorney General's decision to block an agency's regulations was based on the public record or on a private telephone call.

Concerned about the sweeping implications of this proposal, the Committee on Government Operations asked the Office of Management and Budget [OMB] for information on the extent to which Government regulations have in fact been held by a court to be a taking within the meaning of the fifth amendment. OMB referred the committee's July 18 request to the Department of Justice [DOJ], which responded on October 11.

The DOJ data show that since January 1, 1988 DOJ has closed 106 cases involving an alleged regulatory taking. In only 27 of these 106 cases—or 25 percent—was money paid to the property owner, and the total amount of money awarded over this 3½-year period in these 27 takings cases was only about $28 million, excluding interest, or less than $9 million a year.

Moreover, these 27 cases involved only five Federal agencies: the Department of Agriculture, three cases; the Army, nine cases; the Department of Energy, one case; the General Services Administration, one case; and the Department of the Interior, 13 cases.

The $28 million awarded during the last 3½ years in these 27 regulatory cases is, of course, important to the particular property owners involved in the disputes, and we all want to ensure that regulatory actions pursuant to congressional action minimize encroachments on private property whenever possible.

But the information supplied by the administration makes it clear that there is no basis for believing that there is a significant risk that all regulations of all Federal agencies constitute a taking. It already takes far too long to implement health and safety regulations that Congress has authorized.

Title IV of the Senate highway bill was a radical solution in search of a problem at enormous cost to the protection of the health and safety of Americans, and I strongly support its deletion from the final bill.

Mr. LIGHTFOOT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the conference report.

I am not happy with the circumstances in which we find ourselves tonight. It is frustrating when this body constantly finds itself considering major legislation in the dead of night, with perhaps one copy available to the Members. How can we be surprised that the public is disenchanted with our performance. And I cannot help but think we would not be in this situation if we had not wasted months trying to raise gas taxes another 5 cents a gallon.

In late July and early August I joined the majority of this body in not supporting efforts to raise gas taxes by another 5 cents a gallon. Tonight we have to be prepared to accept the consequences of our decision. States are not going to get as much highway money as they would like. Nor will our projects receive as much funding as they deserve. But I believe sacrificing some highway dollars is better than the potentially devastating effect raising gas prices would have on our economy.

Having said that, let's look at the conference report.

Unlike some bills before this House in the last few weeks, it is not loaded with accounting gimmicks to raise the deficit. We spend what we have and no more.

The State of Iowa will receive approximately $1.456 billion in highway funds over the life of the bill. Iowa receives funding for projects of major importance to southeastern and southwestern Iowa. The completion of Iowa Highway 2 from Sydney, IA, to Interstate 29, will stimulate economic development and increase safety in southwest Iowa. The Valley View Drive project in Council Bluffs, IA, will allow the community to safely expand in the only viable direction.

Finally, the bill recognizes the Avenue of the Saints as a corridor of national significance. Funding provided in the bill will be a great help toward the completion of this major transportation project for eastern Iowa. I appreciate the leadership of the Public Works Committee for recognizing the importance of the Avenue of the Saints. But I would also like to pay tribute to the entire Iowa delegation. We worked as a team to keep the avenue where it belongs, in Iowa. All Iowa Members, from both sides of the aisle, gave this serious challenge their maximum effort. It just goes to show what we can do as a team.

I am disappointed the House did not recede to Senate language granting States the authority to waive commercial drivers license requirements for agribusiness. There is not one bit of evidence to indicate agribusiness drivers are any more of a safety hazard than the custom harvesters who did receive an exemption in the bill. This is an important issue in rural America and I will not give up the effort for agribusinesses to receive this commonsense waiver.

My friends, I had the honor to serve on the Public Works Committee for 7 years. No doubt in a week or two we will find provisions in this bill that need correction. But America cannot wait any longer for this major infrastructure bill. I know BOB ROE, JOHN PAUL HAMMERSCHMIDT, NORM MINETA, and BUD SHUSTER. They have worked hard and in a truly bipartisan fashion. They are trying to do right for America and this House and deserve our support tonight. I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the conference report on the Intermodal Surface Transportation Act.

This conference report is a product of months of hard work by the chairman of the Committee on Public Works, Mr. ROE, his ranking member Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT, the chairman of the Subcommittee on Surface Transportation Mr. MINETA, and his ranking member, Mr. SCHUSTER. I commend them for their leadership and perseverance in bringing his massive and complex piece of legislation to the floor. On the whole I believe the conference report is an important measure which will help repair our Nation's ailing infrastructure, stimulate economic growth and meet our surface transportation needs into the next century. The mass transit provisions and funding of this bill are particularly worthy.

I rise to express my concerns about a provision in this bill which would establish a new National Recreational Trails Trust Fund. I and several other members of the Interior Committee were conferees on this section of the bill since the recreational trail trust fund provision directly deals with matters under the jurisdiction of the Interior Committee. While I strongly support the overall conference report, I was not able to sign the conference report because of the outcome of the conference with regard to this recreational trail provision. This provision was not contained in the House-passed version of the surface transportation bill. The language adopted in the conference report was not even in the Senate-passed bill, and goes beyond the scope of the Senate bill. While well-intentioned, the trails fund as contained in the conference report is not responsive to the majority of trail users in the country, is administratively inefficient, and could have a negative impact on the natural resource values of our Nation's public lands. Alternatives were presented during the conference which would have resulted in greater funding for trails, greater flexibility for States and greater responsiveness to actual trail use and demand than the proposal finally adopted by the conferees.

As chairman of the Subcommittee on National Parks and Public Lands, I have been involved in recreational trail issues for a number of years. The subcommittee has jurisdiction over the National Trails System Act, the National Wilderness Preservation System Act, the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act and a number of other provisions of law dealing with trails and recreation. Our committee has worked for a number of years on expanding all outdoor recreation opportunities, and has taken a particular interest in trails as a form of outdoor recreation. In addition to bring the committee which authorizes all national scenic, historic and recreational trails, our committee has taken a lead role in investigating trail issues and working for increased funding for trail land acquisition, construction and maintenance.

The Subcommittee on National Parks and Public Lands held a joint hearing on recreational trails in America with the Subcommittee on Energy and the Environment on October 31, 1991. This hearing brought in witnesses representing the National Park Service, the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management, State recreation officials, State trails coordinators, trail researchers and a number of motorized and nonmotorized trail user groups. Although all of these witnesses were pleased about the prospect of new trails funding, a number of these witnesses expressed concerns about the specific provisions of the National Recreational Trail Trust Fund in the Senate-passed surface transportation bill. Based on the testimony at this hearing and other communications received regarding this provision, I and Chairman KOSTMAYER of the Energy and Environment Subcommittee began drafting an alternative proposal to address the many concerns that had been raised about this bill. This proposal was the basis for the bipartisan Interior Committee proposal discussed by the conferees on the surface transportation bill. This proposal contained several important advantages over the Senate-passed provision, including:

Requiring funds from the National Recreational Trails Trust Fund to go through the existing Land and Water Conservation Fund, thus providing substantial savings on administrative costs, a 50-50 Federal-State match for all trail projects and a process for prioritizing the recreational trail needs of each State through the State comprehensive outdoor recreation planning [SCORP] process. This approach was strongly favored by the National Park Service.

It allocated funds for recreational trails directly to the Federal land management agencies rather than having them go through States as in the Senate bill. This was appropriate since much motorized and nonmotorized recreational trail use occurs on Federal lands, and since there is a tremendous backlog of trail maintenance needs on Federal lands.

Rather than allocating funds along arbitrary percentages which had little to do with actual trail usage, the Interior proposal provided that funds were to be spent for the use and benefit of safer, more enjoyable and more environmentally sound trail opportunities for motorized and nonmotorized users alike. Trail research demonstrates that the vast majority of trail use is by hikers, bicyclists, horseback riders and other nonmotorized users. Data from the public area recreation visitor study [PARVS] suggest that of the 525 million trail uses on public lands which occur each year, 468 million or 89 percent are nonmotorized and 57 million or 11 percent are motorized. Because the Interior proposal left the allocation of trail funds up to the priorities of each State, it was more respectful of States rights than the Senate-passed provision which imposed a mandatory percentage for spending funds on motorized and nonmotorized trail projects. I would have preferred language which would have allowed each State to decide its own trail priorities.

The Interior proposal also contained more strict language regarding construction and reconstruction of motorized trails through potential wilderness areas than the Senate proposal. This language was needed to prevent this legislation from prejudicing future congressional decisions about wilderness designation.

For these and a host of other reasons, the bipartisan Interior Committee proposal for a Recreational Trails Trust Fund was preferred over the Senate version by a number of trail and conservation organizations including the American Hiking Society, the Sierra Club, the National Wildlife Federation, the Wilderness Society, the National Parks and Conservation Association, the Rails to Trails Conservancy, the National Recreation and Parks Association and the National Association of State Outdoor Recreation Liaison Officers.

I would like to express my appreciation to the conferees on the surface transportation bill for their patience in discussing this matter which dealt with a relatively small level of funding in comparison to other programs in the bill. However, in the rush to complete the conference and the confusion which accompanied the vote on this matter in the conference I believe the conferees missed an opportunity to develop a recreational trails program that would have better served the needs of all recreational trails users.

I am particularly concerned that the conferees went beyond the scope of the bill passed by the Senate by designating the Secretary of Transportation to administer the recreational trails program. The Secretary of Interior is the appropriate Secretary to administer a program dealing with recreational trails. The surface transportation bill passed by the Senate designated the Secretary of Interior as the administrator of this program. The conferees recognized the importance of direct involvement of the Secretary of the Interior in this program by requiring the Secretary of Transportation to consult with the Secretary of the Interior. It is the clear intent of the conferees that the Secretary of Interior be consulted on all matters relating to the National Recreational Trails Trust Fund, including the appointments of the National Recreational Trails Advisory Committee, the establishment of the program for allocating money to the States and the review of the utilization of all funds allocated under this program.

Given the fact that funds can be used to construct and maintain trails on Federal public lands under this jurisdiction of the Interior Committee, I intend to exercise vigorous oversight of the program to ensure that Federal laws governing the management of these lands are fully complied with. Furthermore, I will work to ensure that no funds will be allocated under this Act in a manner that will prejudice the prerogative of Congress to designate as wilderness lands administered by the Forest Service, National Park Service or Bureau of Land management. It is my interpretation of the conference report language that funds made available by this report may not be used in a manner that will in any way impair the suitability of lands which are being reviewed for wilderness designation or which have been reviewed for such designation and have not been released for nonwilderness uses by act of Congress.

The Interior Committee will also be conducting close oversight of this program to ensure that the States shall not implement any shared trails use which may create unsafe conditions for any of the intended trail users. Corridor sharing referred to in the conference report may refer to corridor sharing among various types of nonmotorized trail users, and the States shall attempt to provide corridor sharing on fair and equitable fashion which is not prejudicial to the various user communities. Although the new trail trust fund is denominated "recreational" in nature, the conferees recognize that many bicycle and hiking trails serve important commuting objectives, especially in urban and suburban areas. Further, comparable trails in many parks and recreational areas can serve to reduce air pollution and foster similar environmental goals.

Mr. Speaker, as I previously stated the conferees had several alternatives which could have made this recreational trails proposal more environmentally sound and responsive to the diverse trail user needs which exist in this country. Besides this provision, I support the conference report and urge its prompt passage.

Mrs. BYRON. Mr. Speaker, last year, Americans spent more than $600 billion on health care. If we continue at this rate, we will spend $1.5 trillion on health care by the year 2000. I'm not so sure we can go on like this. As it stands, more than 33 million people have no health insurance, while millions more are underinsured. Those with insurance may be tempted to think that the problem doesn't affect us, well, it does. It is reflected not only in higher insurance premiums each year, but higher Medicaid costs—at the expense of other programs we enjoy. Rising infant mortality rates, and real-life problems with access to health services, are key problems.

I began talking about our health care system more than a year ago. During the summer of 1990, I sponsored four health care forums across my district. Frankly, I was surprised to see so little interest in health care. Beyond the 20 to 30 senior citizens at each stop, very few people seemed to care. Now that it's an election year, health care reform is the issue. I'm pleased to see this. We are fortunate enough to live in a country with one of the best health care systems in the world, but there are recognized shortfalls in access and affordability. We can do a better job here, and I am pleased to be able to participate in bringing it about.

As a member of the rural health care coalition, I have strongly supported efforts to improve preventive health care services. Staying healthy is the key to controlling health care costs. For example, I have cosponsored bills to establish a comprehensive, preventive, health program for Medicare beneficiaries, require States to cover breast and cervical screening for poor women, provide incentives for physicians to locate in rural areas, and encourage medical schools to have departments of family medicine.

I feel very strongly about our Nation's commitment to primary care. Beyond these legislative initiatives, this year I was able to resolve a bureaucratic tangle with the Appalachian Regional Commission to bring about the placement of a pediatrician in Washington County. We are very pleased to have Dr. (Maria) Younes in western Maryland and know that she is doing her part to keep our children healthy.

I also serve on the Leadership's AIDS Task Force and the Task Force on Health. We cannot ignore the impact of AIDS on our health care system. Several years ago, I worked very closely with my colleagues in bringing about the adoption of the Ryan White C.A.R.E. bill on AIDS. Education, prevention, research and development are essential in combatting this fatal disease. My efforts in this area will continue as we confront a rising number of AIDS cases in our cities as well as increases in our rural communities.

The health care discussions that are taking place give us a basis for health care reform to come. Before we simply dismantle what we have, however, we need to understand what shape our health care policy should take. What are we willing to pay for? We need to recognize that a government solution directly involves the taxpayers. We are the payers; and finally, we need to make sure that any reform takes into account the special circumstances of those seeking health care in rural areas. I am committed to finding acceptable changes in our health care system that will best meet the needs and budget of our Nation.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, this bill's creation of a National Scenic Byways Program is an important step toward recognizing and protecting the scenic and historic values of qualified highways across America. Driving is one of our great national passions. At one time or another, we have all felt the pull of the open road, enjoyed driving along a curving byway under the canopy of vibrantly green trees, with clouds hovering overhead and a stream bubbling off the side of the road. Designation and protection of national scenic byways is environmentally sound policy and will provide economic benefits as well through increased tourism potential.

Equally important here is the conferees' decision that the Highway Beautification Act's provisions be modified to require a ban on new billboard construction along designated scenic roads. It is most appropriate that the public investment in designated scenic roads be protected by prohibiting the construction of large intrusive signs which would detract from scenic views. The billboard ban on interstate and primary scenic roads is a minimum response, of course. Nothing in this bill will limit States from enacting stronger controls on billboards on State designated scenic byways which are not on interstate and primary roads.

Finally, I am pleased that this bill will amend the Highway Beautification Act provisions to require illegal billboards to come down within 90 days of enactment. Some 33,000 of these illegal billboards line the Nation's highways, but have never been removed due to lax enforcement of the law. I would urge the Federal Highway Administration to structure its rule-making to ensure that this requirement to remove illegal billboards is closely monitored and strongly enforced.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this highway bill.

If America is to be competitive, we must make sure that our transportation system is up to the task.

Without an efficient transportation system, we will lose the race to countries such as Japan and Germany.

This legislation will begin the process of seeing that America does not fall behind.

Projects in my State are certainly badly needed.

In my State, money in this bill will begin construction planning for a bridge at DeValls Bluff, interchanges on the Highway 63 bypass in Jonesboro and it also identifies Highway 412 as a high priority corridor.

The bridge at DeValls Bluff is dangerous and its replacement will eliminate one of the major traffic bottlenecks in this area.

The Highway 63 bypass program at Jonesboro has saved lives and made travel in that fast growing city much more efficient.

There is currently no four-lane system running east-to-west across the northern part of Arkansas. This inhibits growth in the area.

Improving the highway system in the area will foster economic growth.

Also, Mr. Speaker, in addition to its other benefits, this bill will create jobs—jobs which are badly needed to stimulate economic growth.

Mr. GALLO. Mr. Speaker, I want to voice my support for this 6 year national transportation blueprint.

In particular, I am pleased that the House was successful in protecting its $32 billion funding level for mass transit—$11 billion more than the Senate version of the bill.

We have to take the long-term view and I believe this bill does just that. It paves the way for major improvements in our Nation's mass transit systems and gives States greater flexibility to use these funds for projects of particular importance within each State.

In addition to providing increased mass transit funding, this bill also stimulates our nation economy by creating more than 4 million jobs. At a time when our economy is in need of a jump start, it is reassuring to support a piece of legislation that will help us to revitalize our Nation.

This $151 billion authorization provides about $5.5 billion for New Jersey highway and mass transit projects, including $634 million for the New Jersey urban core project for mass transit.

This bill represents a balanced approach. It identifies future needs and addresses them. But it also recognizes our more immediate priorities and allows for improvements in our current highway system, where they are needed.

I am also very pleased that the final bill contains funding to build new ramps to ease the flow of traffic on I-280 in Parsippany.

Mr. Speaker, today marks an important day for the future of transportation policy in America, and I am pleased to offer my support for the conference committee's bill.

This bill authorizes many programs and initiatives that will provide the flexibility to meet changes that have been occurring within our society. As a nation we have set a number of important priorities in order to clean up the air, to relieve traffic congestion, to promote mass transit, and to develop basic ways of providing for a healthier environment.

Last year, Congress passed the Clean Air Act which put in place new air quality standards that States must begin to meet by 1995. This will not be easy unless the Federal Government provides some type of guidance. It is my belief that H.R. 2950 will do just that.

Specifically, the House surface transportation bill includes $32 billion for mass transit construction and expansion programs—which is $11 billion more than the other body's bill. This increased funding will not only relieve traffic congestion that has become so prevalent in the Northeast corridor it will promote cleaner air by offering alternative modes of transportation.

This bill contains a number of demonstration projects designed to alleviate traffic problems. In my State of New Jersey we must concentrate on mass transit programs, but we must also find ways to relieve traffic bottlenecks. These projects will provide such relief and allow traffic to move easier.

In addition, we must have a bipartisan commitment to improve mass transit in New Jersey. This bill makes a major contribution to that effort.

As the author of H.R. 193, I have been pushing legislation in Congress to provide incentives for commuters to use mass transit, but these incentives must be accompanied by improvements in service, if we are to be successful in getting commuters to leave their cars at home.

A decade ago, New Jersey Transit inherited a fragmented and poorly maintained commuter rail network from Conrail and the goal since that time has been to complete missing links and upgrade current service. The New Jersey urban core project, including the Kearny Connection is the most critical part of those efforts.

Mr. Speaker, I commend Chairman ROE and all of the conferees for their dedication and hard work, and urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the conference report on Intermodal Surface Transportation Infrastructure Act of 1991. I want to congratulate the chairman of the Public Works Committee on his tenacity in processing this difficult piece of legislation which will reinforce our infrastructure and strengthen our economy in the forthcoming years.

I want to thank the chairman of the Public Works Committee for accommodating the Committee on Science, Space, and Technology by incorporating many of the research and development provisions reported by the committee which I believe will become assets to future generations.

I also want to thank the gentleman from North Carolina, chairman of the Subcommittee on Technology and Competitiveness, Mr. TIM VALENTINE, for his work in bringing together a carefully constructed program for near- and long-term R&D in the field of surface transportation.

Mr. Speaker, this bill marks a turning point in transportation technology which will provide future generations with models of travel we never dreamed of.

The bill includes research and development in intelligent vehicle highway systems. The objective of this R&D is to build and test a fully automated prototype of the highway of the future, one that cars would travel on between cities under automated guidance systems that would maintain safe spacing and speed control without driver assistance.

The bill also includes a number of other long-term and short-term research and development objectives, including research and development in the area of high frequency dynamic loadings on bridges. These loadings will result from high-speed rail and magnetically levitated systems. The research will also include the use of new data collection and computation methods. These methods will facilitate the design of structures to accommodate these new modes of transportation.

The bill includes the creation of an advisory board composed of members outside the government to assure that industry and Government can work together in rebuilding U.S. transportation systems.

High-speed rail is one of the most promising technologies to alleviate overcrowding at airports. It is technology that can put the United States back in the business of manufacturing its own rail systems. High-speed rail systems have attained speeds of 300 miles per hour, and a 200-mile-an-hour commercial system is achievable through the R&D program called for in this bill.

The bill also includes magnetically levitated train research and development which we hope will bring this technology to practicality by developing levitation and guidance systems which employ superconducting magnets. These systems will require shielding against electromagnetic forces, and we therefore plan to undertake R&D in this area as well as in aerodynamics to assure the stability of magnetically levitated trains under all wind conditions.

As a potential replacement for diesel buses we have called for a short-haul passenger transportation system to be powered by batteries or fuel cells. It is to be trackless, running on pneumatic tires with the capability of being recharged every few miles.

The R&D is also intended to extend the life of the surface transportation infrastructure. New concepts in radiography are expected to facilitate more thorough examination on bridge and highway structures.

The bill also contains provisions for advancements in research to protect the infrastructure against severe damage from earthquakes, and it calls for transportation research centers where minority students can enter the professions to design and build tomorrow's transportation systems.

Mr. Speaker, the R&D provisions in this act are intended to put U.S. industry back on the road to innovation and quality in transportation.

Mr. BLACKWELL. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2950, the surface transportation bill. This legislation marks a true turning point for the urban centers of America. For the first time in nearly a decade, our Nation's mass transit systems will receive the funding that they so desperately need.

As a Representative from one of America's largest—and oldest—cities, I firmly believe that mass transportation systems are the backbone of our great cities. The problem is our backs are almost broken. Bridges are crumbling. Tracks are rusting. Our choice has never been more clearcut. We can pass this comprehensive bill that will benefit those in both rural and urban areas and secure the future of mass transit for our cities, or we can continue to watch these vital systems rot before our eyes.

I do not need to recite the advantages of mass transportation for you tonight—the environmental benefits, the service it provides for the disabled and for those who cannot afford to own cars, the jobs it provides, and so forth. But I will not remain silent while Congress has this prime opportunity to begin rebuilding our Nation's cities, starting with this most important service. I urge my colleagues to save our cities, and pass H.R. 2950.

Mr. HAMMERSCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HOYER). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the conference report.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the conference report.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 372, nays 47, not voting 15, as follows:

So the conference report was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. PASTOR. Mr. Speaker, During rollcall vote No. 440 conference report to accompany the bill H.R. 2950 I was unavoidably detained, had I been present I would have voted "Yea."

AUTHORIZING CLERK TO MAKE CORRECTIONS IN ENGROSSMENT OF CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 2950

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Clerk have the authority to make the necessary technical, clerical, and clarifying changes in the conference report just adopted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mr. HOYER). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. ROE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks on the conference report just adopted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 3371, OMNIBUS CRIME CONTROL ACT OF 1991

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 301 and, pursuant to House Resolution 294, I ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 301

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the conference report on the bill (H.R. 3371) to control and prevent crime. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are hereby waived. The conference report shall be considered as having been read when called up for consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. DERRICK] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON]. Pending that, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, during debate on House Resolution 301, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 301 is the rule providing for the consideration of the conference report on H.R. 3371, the Omnibus Crime Control Act. The rule waives all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration. The rule also provides that the conference report will be considered as read. Mr. Speaker, this conference agreement is a comprehensive legislative response to the many facets of criminal activity in our society.

The agreement that the House will consider tonight would expand the Federal death penalty to 53 crimes—including murders in connection with terrorism, assassination of Federal officials, genocide, kidnapping resulting in death, and major drug trafficking offenses.

The conference agreement reforms the habeas corpus procedures by requiring prisoners under death sentences to file habeas corpus petitions within 1 year of their direct appeal; adopts the Seante's 5-day waiting period for handgun purchases; and authorizes $3 billion for hiring law enforcement officials on the Federal, State and local levels.

Mr. Speaker, this conference report is not without controversy, there are provisions that Members have concerns about. However, I believe this agreement provides a strong Federal commitment to crime control, and I urge my colleagues to adopt this resolution and allow the House to proceed with this vitally important conference report.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this rule and to the conference report on the crime bill it makes in order.

First, at the rules meeting that produced this rule there had not been adequate time for Members to become familiar with the provisions of the conference report.

At the time of the Rules Committee meeting on this conference report, no copy of the text was even available to Members.

This is a major bill and Members should have at least a reasonable opportunity to be aware of what they are going to have to vote on.

At the time of the Rules Committee meeting, I put into the RECORD a letter from the Attorney General, William Barr, which described this conference report as a significant step backwards.

The conference agreement actually overrules several recent Supreme Court decisions favorable to law enforcement.

According to the Attorney General, this conference report does more for those convicted of crime than it does for those victimized by crime.

Mr. Speaker, the current system allows those guilty of the most serious crimes to avoid punishment by filing frivolous habeas corpus petitions that drag on for years. The conference agreement now provides new loopholes by which convicted criminals evade punishment.

The conference agreement would make the current situation worse by overruling certain reasonable limitations recently established by the Supreme Court on successive habeas corpus provisions.

The conference agreement also is a step in the wrong direction on reasonable reform of the exclusionary rule. By rolling back Court decisions which allow for the admissibility of evidence when police have acted on good faith, the conference agreement will handicap police and increase the number of real criminals who avoid punishment because of legal technicalities. The conference agreement rejects the proposal overwhelmingly adopted by the House 247-165.

Mr. Speaker, the conference agreement authorizes $3 billion for law enforcement programs, but the authorization is meaningless without appropriation.

The Congress failed this year to fully fund the President's request for law enforcement.

Congress cut 64 percent of the increases requested by the President. Making promises which are almost certain not to be fulfilled is not the right way to legislate.

Mr. Speaker, backing up the U.S. Attorney General's position, the National District Attorneys Association has also written to oppose this bill. Let me quote briefly from their letter, signed by prominent Democrats and Republicans: "The Nation's prosecutors strongly oppose the so-called 'crime control' bill approved in Sunday's conference and urge both House and Senate to reject it."

They say, "This bill does far more to advance the interests of convicted criminals than it does to protect victims and law-abiding citizens."

Who else is opposed to this procriminal bill: Federal judges across this country, including those in the Northern District of New York.

□ 0600

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I have been handed a letter from President Bush stating that he will veto this conference report if it is presented in its current form. I would ask unanimous consent that the President's letter be inserted in the RECORD at this point.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mr. HOYER). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

The letter from the President of the United States is as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE,

Washington, DC, November 25, 1991.

Hon. ROBERT H. MICHEL,
Republican Leader, House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR BOB: Since March, I have been calling on the Congress to pass a tough crime bill that will remove the handcuffs from law enforcement and end needless delays in the criminal justice system. For too long, the scales of justice have been tipped in favor of criminals instead of law-abiding Americans. The American people want a crime bill that will make the system tougher on criminals than it is on law enforcement and crime victims.

After months of delay, the Congress is now presented with a conference report drafted in the last hours of this session. Once again, just as they did last year, Democrat conferees from the Senate and House have demonstrated that they are willing to overlook the will of their colleagues and the American people. Clearly, the American people deserve better.

The crime bill produced by the Democrat-controlled conference is unacceptable. The bill rejects many of the primary goals the Administration set forth as necessary for an acceptable crime bill. One essential goal of our proposal is to end frivolous post-appeal challenges brought by convicted criminals, particularly death row inmates, through meaningful habeas corpus reform. By overturning critical Supreme Court decisions that have reduced the abuse of habeas corpus, the conference bill actually weakens current law by expanding a criminal's ability to frustrate the system.

Another goal of the Administration's bill is to ensure that criminals do not go free on legal technicalities when a police officer is acting in good faith. This conference report does just the opposite. Again, it retreats from current law by throwing out court decisions that recognize the legitimacy of such a good faith exception to the exclusionary rule.

Finally, although this bill purports to permit imposition of the death penalty for several new Federal offenses, it adopts procedures that virtually ensure the death penalty will never be imposed.

I will not accept any effort by the Congress to turn the clock back on the progress we have made in the courts on criminal justice reform. If this bill is presented to me, I will veto it and insist that Congress pass a crime bill that will strengthen our criminal justice system.

Sincerely,

GEORGE BUSH.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to cite just the opening paragraph of the President's letter:

"I have been calling on the Congress to pass a tough crime bill that will remove the handcuffs from law enforcement and end needless delays in the criminal justice system. For too long, the scales of justice have been tipped in favor of criminals instead of law-abiding Americans."

Mr. Speaker, that is the first paragraph. This letter goes on to cite all of his objections, but let me just read the last paragraph to my colleagues because this is what really gets to me.

"Finally," the President says, "although this bill purports to permit imposition of the death penalty for several new Federal offenses, it adopts procedures that virtually ensure the death penalty will never be imposed."

"I will not accept any effort by the Congress to turn the clock back on the progress we have made in the courts on criminal justice reform. If this bill is presented to me, I will veto it"***

Mr. Speaker, this bill should never reach the President; it ought to be sent back to the committee, and let us do it right.

For all these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I must oppose this rule and the conference report it makes in order.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER of California. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SOLOMON. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. DREIER of California. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], my friend, for yielding, and I would simply like to underscore a point that my friend made at the opening of his statement, that being the fact that in the Committee on Rules; now keep in mind we are considering the crime bill under martial law at this point in the House; we got to the point where there was not a single paper that was before us when we were considering this rule, and I was told by members of the conference that they were operating under the exact same circumstance as they were trying to report this conference report to us.

So, it seems to me it is absolutely ludicrous to think we can move ahead with something when we did not even have the papers up in the Committee on Rules to consider it.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. CUNNINGHAM].

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the rule, and my colleague paid reference to the National District Attorneys Association. I would like to read the letter, and not only this, but I say to the chairman on the other aisle, "The eyes of Texas are on you." The attorney general from Texas, along with 31 other attorneys general, have signed a letter saying what a bad bill in its present form that this is, and this is, I quote, and I wish these were my words because they are so eloquent, but this is from the National District Attorneys Association:

The American people have been mugged again, this time by the leadership of the leadership of the United States Congress. The Nation's prosecutors strongly oppose this so-called crime control bill approved in Sunday's conference and urge both House and Senate to reject it. This bill does far more to advance the interests of convicted criminals than it does to protect victims and law-abiding citizens. In fact, passage of this bill is tantamount to handing the jail house keys to thousands of convicted State and Federal prisoners. The conference committee has nearly in every incidence chosen the weakest provisions with respect to law enforcement. It rejects the House Limitation on House application of the exclusionary rule. It overturns the Supreme Court Decision Arizona versus Fulminante through the provision that may have far-reaching effects and which was not even the subject of hearings. Finally, the conference chose the weakest provision on death penalty provisions and procedures.

Mr. Speaker, we have tried time and time again to even pass rules on drug testing for this House and Federal employees, and every single attempt has been turned down. Let us pay attention. Let us get tough on criminals. Let us defeat the rule.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BROOKS].

Mr. BROOKS. Mr. Speaker, I say to my colleagues that I fully support the rule, and I appreciate the courtesy and the trouble that the leadership and the Committee on Rules has gone to to get this brought to the floor at this time.

Mr. Speaker, as the Members well know, the rule before us provides for the consideration of the conference report on H.R. 3371, the Crime Control Act. This is a matter that has been before this body for weeks now, and the Members should be familiar with its provisions. Just 6 weeks ago, this body spent long hours considering in detail the provisions of the House bill, the abundant majority of which are reflected in the conference agreement before us this morning. The major issues in contention—habeas corpus, the death penalty, the exclusionary rule—have been debated throughout this process, and the Members have had the opportunity to become fully informed about the points of contention.

Mr. Speaker, if we are going to back up our rhetoric about crime with action, we must move H.R. 3371 through the process expeditiously. Everyone in this body feels that the status quo is inadequate for our citizens—that punishment and deterrence must be increased for abhorrent criminal activity. To take no action at this time is to validate the current state of affairs on the streets and on the books. I reject that, as I reject all the dilatory efforts on the other side of the aisle—from blocking the naming of conferees for weeks in the Senate to attempts to derail the conference.

Let us adopt this rule and pass the conference report on this effective and tough piece of anticrime legislation.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from New Mexico [Mr. SCHIFF].

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, what I have to say is, "Good morning, America. Wait until you see what the Congress of the United States and the House of Representatives has stayed up all night to bring you today, a bill that will make worse the criminal laws, a bill that will make worse the present criminal laws in the United States of America, and this was all done on Sunday in one conference committee meeting which I attended as a conferee, and I want to tell you it was done with another Hail Mary pass, a Hail Mary pass from the Democrats in the House to the Democrats in the Senate."

Mr. Speaker, the bill before my colleagues is what the Democrats agreed between themselves. We brought it to the House floor, and it is walking into a veto. Why? Because it selects provisions which, not only do not improve current law, they send current law back.

Now I want to say that I have heard on the news the outrageous statements that the President of the United States has threatened to veto this bill because it contains some gun control language. Now the President is a skeptic about the effectiveness of gun control. Who can blame him? New York and Washington, DC have the toughest gun control laws in the Nation, and my colleagues have all seen how much that has done for them. Nevertheless, let me debunk that nonsense right now.

Mr. Speaker, let us amend this bill to change the habeas corpus provisions. Let us amend this bill to change the exclusionary rule provision. Let us amend this bill to amend the confession provisions and see then if the President of the United States will veto the bill. I do not think so. These are the key provisions that have been added, that have been selected for the bill. These are the key provisions that weaken it.

Mr. Speaker, I urge defeat of the rule, defeat of the bill.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. GLICKMAN].

Mr. GLICKMAN. Mr. Speaker, I do not want the impression to be given that the people in the front line of fighting crime, the police officers of this country, are against this bill. They are not. They are for it. Almost unanimously.

Mr. Speaker, I want to read from some supportive statements by police organizations and people who are responsible for fighting crime in this country in every State of America.

The Fraternal Order of Police:
"We call on the Congress to adopt, and for the President to sign, this bill. It is the toughest anti-crime legislation to emerge from Congress in recent memory and should become law."

The National Association of Police Organizations:

"NAPO believes the version which has been reported out of conference to be tough anti-crime legislation. We urge you to enact this badly needed anti-crime legislation immediately."

The International Brotherhood of Police Officers:

"America needs a crime bill now—in this session, passed by the Congress and signed by the President. IBPO represents rank and file officers on the front lines in the war on crime and drugs and we urge you to adopt the conference report and pass this important legislation."

The International Union of Police Officers:

"We recognized the real need for enactment of the conference committee version of the crime legislation and support it fully."

The same thing with the National Troopers Coalition, the Police Executive Research Forum, the National Association of Black Law Enforcement Executives.

Mr. Speaker, every police organization that is out there on the front lines in the State and local communities of this country say, "Pass this legislation."

I say to my colleagues, "It's tough on crime. Don't be misled by this red herring of district attorneys appointed by the President or the Justice Department being against this bill. This is one of the most effective anticrime pieces of legislation that has ever passed this Congress. It is time to vote yes on this bill."

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California [Mr. RIGGS] to speak on this farcical piece of legislation. He is a real policeman who just finished serving as a policeman and now is a Member of this House.

□ 0610

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I have listened to the last speaker with some amusement.

Granted, those law enforcement fraternal organizations which are for the most part labor organizations that I am very familiar with are looking for any kind of support from the U.S. Congress whatsoever in fighting the crime problem. My colleague, the gentleman from Kansas, knows full well that those ladies and men in uniform who, indeed, are in the front lines in the fight against crime, have no idea whatsoever of what is in this conference report.

Let me bring to the gentleman's attention a letter my office received yesterday from the California District Attorneys' Association, and unlike the sort of barbed or thinly veiled reference to attorneys appointed by the President, these are district attorneys for the counties in California who are the elected officials and who represent the people of the State of California in bringing prosecutions against law violators in the State of California.

This is a letter written to the Speaker and to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MICHEL]. It says:

CALIFORNIA DISTRICT
ATTORNEYS ASSOCIATION,

Sacramento, CA, November 26, 1991.

Hon. THOMAS S. FOLEY,
Hon. ROBERT H. MICHEL,
U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

GENTLEMEN: The members of our association were appalled to read the latest version of the Omnibus Crime Control Bill approved in Sunday's conference. We urge the House to reject it.

The habeas corpus "reform" package reported out by the conference committee represents a gigantic step backwards. The adoption of this measure, which basically overturns Teague v. Lane, (1989) 489 U.S. 288, would have disastrous consequences to the interests of public safety and the criminal justice system.

We note with great concern the expansion of retroactivity, the expansion of the time period for the filing of writs for those under the sentence of death, and the expansion of the right to file multiple successive writs alleging technical defects having nothing to do with guilt or innocence. We note also the unbelievable qualification standards for appointed counsel in state capital cases.

Clearly, the present bill now serves only to further the interests of convicted criminals and opponents of the death penalty. We urge you to vote no on the present version of the Omnibus Crime Control Bill.

Very truly yours,

EDWARD R. JAGELS,
President.

Believe me, ladies and gentlemen, it is not the rhetoric of the U.S. Congress that the men and women, again, in uniform on the front lines in the fight against crime are going to listen to. It is this kind of very specific guidance and advice from the local prosecutors in California and in other States across the Union that will guide them in their ultimate determination as to whether or not this is good legislation.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes, for purposes of debate only, to the gentleman from California [Mr. EDWARDS].

Mr. EDWARDS of California. Mr. Speaker, I am sure we are going to hear more from the opponents of this bill about the prosecutors being so strongly against the bill. Of course, most prosecutors are against this bill.

In our hearings, we found that in capital cases, 40 percent of the convictions of these prosecutors, the same prosecutors that are against this bill, are overturned in habeas corpus because they are defective. Nobody is released from prison, but their prosecutions are so defective that they have to be remanded or returned to the courts for rehearing, or retrial in some cases.

Of course, do not expect prosecutors to be for this bill, but ask your local bar association, I say to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON]; ask your county bar, and I say to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], ask your State bar association.

Ninety percent of the State bar associations of this country are in favor of this bill. Ask the judicial conference of the United States. They have come out four-square against the President's bill and especially against the President's habeas corpus proposal which would eliminate habeas corpus altogether. That is a little bit like eliminating the Magna Carta, to eliminate it altogether. That is what they want to do.

Let us not hear any more about retroactivity. Section 204 of this conference report specifically prohibits retroactivity. Do not keep saying it does. Do not confuse it with a provision that was turned down in the committee. It happened to be the Berman proposal which did allow a certain amount of retroactivity.

So I really wish the opponents of this bill would look at the bill. As I sat here and listened, and I have read the bill. We wrote the bill.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HYDE], a member of the Committee on the Judiciary, and I would hope that at some time we would be enlightened as to what has happened to the gun provision. We understand that they may have changed since the bill left the Committee on Rules. I hope the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BROOKS] could enlighten us.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I just want to address at this point in the proceedings the policemen's letter.

If you want to know about the law, do not ask the prosecutors. Do not ask lawyers. Ask the policemen.

I do not quite follow that logic. I do know that in the bill there is $3 billion in grants to law enforcement. Now, that is a pot of money, and they want that money, because in this letter from the International Association of Chiefs of Police, that was sent to the distinguished junior Senator from Delaware, they applaud, "Additional funding support for State and local law enforcement." That is an attractive feature. However, they damn the bill by faint praise in the next-to-the-last paragraph. They say, "We recognize it does contain some elements that could be strengthened."

By the way, the Fraternal Order of Police says: "The NFOP certainly would have preferred certain language not presently found in the conference agreement such as the Senate provisions on habeas corpus reform, the police officers' bill of rights, semiautomatic assault weapons as well as the House language on good faith warrantless searches by police." That is some limp endorsement.

The problem is that they think they are going to get $3 billion. They say so.

I would point out that the Attorney General of the United States says: "Finally, in authorizing $3 billion for law enforcement, the bill offers only a mirage. Authorization of this funding when there is no appropriation is essentially meaningless. The irony here is that the Congress failed this year to fully fund the President's budget request for law enforcement, slashing it by $472 million, a 64-percent cut in the increase sought by the President."

So I suggest to the Members that the policemen are misled by the illusory carrot of $3 billion.

It is the lawyers, it is the States' attorneys general, and I might say Mary Sue Terry of the State of Virginia, no raving Republican, has signed the letter that says that this bill is an atrocity.

We will have more of that later. But do not be misled by the policemen's union who think they are going to get $3 billion when they are not.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me just say this before I yield. You know, the policemen have been accused of not knowing what they are writing about and not knowing what the bill is about; let me tell you something: I know that the attorneys general do not either. They came into my office, several of them, and I found out they did not know what they were talking about either. After I talked to them and explained the bill to them, the habeas corpus provisions, they said, well, they thought that was fine, and they had no objections to it, so there are a lot of people who do not know about the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from New York [Mr. SCHUMER].

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Speaker, you know, it seems to be a fashion on the other side tonight, because police organizations do not agree with them, to knock them, to say they do not know what they are doing, et cetera, et cetera.

I think that the gentleman from Illinois correctly quoted the FOP. They said, and I will quote the same thing he did, "The NFOP would certainly have preferred certain language not currently found in the conference agreement." So would we all.

Every one of us, every one of the 435 of us, could look at this large bill that does so many different things and say, "I might change this, and I might change that, and I might change this."

□ 0620

But unlike us, who have the luxury of sitting here safely in this chamber, the police officers of the FOP and NAPO have their lives on the line every day. They do not have the luxury of playing political games. And if they see a bill, admittedly not perfect in anybody's eyes, that will do a heck of a lot of good to make them safer and make our streets safer and make our citizens safer, then they cannot afford to play the political games, and they step up to the plate and they say, "I am voting for this bill."

I would say that their cue is the one we should take in this body. They say it is not perfect. But the perfect is not going to be the enemy of the good, not when bullets are flying, not when people are being mugged, not when we are not doing enough against crime.

So I urge my colleagues, listen to the wisdom of that average cop on the beat, and vote for this rule and this bill.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. COUGHLIN].

Mr. COUGHLIN. Mr. Speaker, here we go again denying the American people laws they want to protect public safety and prevent more victims of crime.

The Democrat-run Congress plays this game year after year. We send a crime bill to conference and the Senate sends a crime bill to conference that at least reflects the will of the bodies. What comes back from conference does not reflect the will of the bodies or of the American people.

The conference is not a negotiation between the House and the Senate. It is a negotiation between the ACLU Democrats in the House and the ACLU Democrats in the Senate to get the most pro-criminal bill possible.

Doesn't someone, someone care about public safety or the victims of crime?

It is not a question of providing a death penalty which will never be enforced for a smorgasbord of crimes. It is a question of providing a death penalty which will be enforced for a few crimes.

It is not a question of putting in prison minor first time offenders. It is a question of putting in prison serious and repeat offenders and keeping them there.

It is not a question of handcuffing our police and freeing our criminals. It is a question of freeing our police and handcuffing our criminals.

It is not a question of providing expensive new courts. It is a question of uncluttering our existing courts.

Victims of crime are crying out, "Help us." Frightened Americans are crying out, "Help us." Let's send this bill back to conference and respond to those cries.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. JACOBS].

Mr. JACOBS. Mr. Speaker, one of our colleagues whom I like very much made a statement a moment ago that there is $3 billion in this bill for police organizations—that is for law enforcement, actually—and, naturally, the police would be for it because of the $3 billion.

Well, it happens that I am a former police officer also, and I think that what the gentleman is saying in essence is ill-considered. I do not think that it honors our police to suggest that they have sold out.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WALKER].

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, a moment ago, I asked you a question over here in the aisle whether or not this bill had been changed at all since it left the conference. You told me no. I certainly believed you at that point, but we have had a number of rumors around the floor that this has been changed. Particularly, we heard it may have been changed with respect to the firearms provision.

The concern we have is this: Out of the conference came a bill that set up a national registration, not of handguns, but of all firearms. That is a major concern, I think, for all of us who have listened to the rhetoric over the last several weeks and several months that we are only touching assault weapons or only touch handguns, that there was certainly not any intention on behalf of anyone to make this a massive sweep to all firearms.

Yet when we read this bill, when you move from the Brady provisions of the 5-day registration period to the instantaneous check provisions, all of a sudden the language changed. It is no longer handgun language. In the instantaneous check provisions in the bill it goes to all firearms, and throughout that provision it says all firearms.

So the fact is that we moved to a national registration system, a computerized registration system, not of handguns, but of all firearms.

If that is the same provision that left conference, it is at this point then a major change in everything that we had heard was the intent here in the Congress, and I think something which is a serious flaw in the bill.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BROOKS].

Mr. BROOKS. Mr. Speaker, I just want to say, in reply to my distinguished friend on that, that the gun provisions have not changed since it came out of the Committee on Rules. Obviously I like guns, too. Absolutely no change on ban on assault weapons is in this bill. That part of it is just like it came out of the House, out. That is where I wanted it. That is where this House wanted it. That is how you all voted for it.

The NRA and Senator BOB DOLE, a very distinguished friend of mine and yours in this other body, wrote the language on the Brady language that we did retain, that you are familiar with. I do not know whether you like it or not. I did not vote for it in the House, but the House did pass it.

We adopted the Senate language. They insisted on their language. They were cleared with the NRA. They looked at the McCollum amendment that had been put in the 1988 drug bill.

So you do not have to worry about that. That language is going to suit them all and suit me.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BROOKS. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I have great respect for the gentleman. You say no changes were made. We really are concerned about this. We are just trying to get it cleared up. There were no changes made after it left the Committee on Rules. Were there any changes, not only on the guns, but anywhere in the bill after it left the conference on its way to the Committee on Rules and on its way to the floor here?

Mr. BROOKS. Mr. SOLOMON, that is a little bit insulting. I did not change a damn thing, and nobody else did.

Mr. SOLOMON. Well, I just wanted to make sure your staff did not, my friend. We just tried to clear it up.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. SYNAR].

Mr. SYNAR. Mr. Speaker, with all due respect to both sides of the aisle, both my colleagues in the Democrat Party and the Republican Party, let me just say two things.

First, I do not think it serves our purpose today to try to accuse either side of being weak or strong on crime. I have never met a colleague on the floor of the House, Republican or Democrat, who does not want to provide for the best protection of every citizen in this country. Though we may disagree on how that is accomplished, all of us believe that one of our major responsibilities is to provide safe streets. Second, I do not think it furthers the debate arguing who is for or against this bill. No one outside this Chamber has really read this bill.

That said, let me direct my attention to what you will have an opportunity to support compared to what the President offered in his own crime bill.

If you vote for this crime bill in the next hour, you will have an opportunity to apply the death penalty to 56 crimes, versus only 46 in the President's bill.

If you vote for this bill, in the violent drug area you will establish 10 regional prisons for Federal and State drug criminals. There were no similar provisions in the President's bill.

If you are from a rural area with rural crime and drugs, you will have an opportunity to add rural law enforcement and drug treatment prevention. There were no similar provisions in the President's bill.

With respect to drug emergency areas, you will have opportunity to authorize aid to cities in the hardest hit drug areas. There were no similar provisions in the President's bill.

With respect to drunk driving, you will have an opportunity to boost penalties for drunk driving when a child is in the vehicle, including common carrier vehicles. There were no provisions in the President's bill to do that.

With respect to child abuse, this bill will establish a system for background checks to prevent child abusers from working with children. Again, the President had no provisions to deal with this.

We will create programs and grants to aid in the fight, including safe schools and anticrime, certain punishments for young offenders, community substance abuse, trauma centers, cops on the beat, midnight basketball, the police corps, law enforcement scholarships, and a variety of other things. Not one of those provisions were available in the President's bill.

□ 0630

If you vote for this bill in the next hour, you will have an opportunity to authorize $1.2 billion to aid State and local law enforcement, where 95 percent of the battle is being fought. There were no moneys in the President's bill. And for those who are very concerned about victims, this bill will boost aid to victims of crime and require victim impact statements. None of these provisions were available in the President's bill.

My colleagues, if you truly are committed to providing for safer streets and giving local law enforcement the tools by which to fight this battle, you will have only one opportunity and that is to support this conference report.

It is not only a good deal, it is a better deal than the one offered by the President of the United States. I urge my colleagues to support this conference report.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. The gentleman who just spoke said there are 56 instances in which the death penalty is imposed by this legislation. The President says, in his letter, and I will repeat it again: "Although this bill purports to permit imposition of the death penalty for several new Federal offenses, it adopts procedures that virtually ensure the death penalty will never be imposed."

I believe the President.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GEKAS].

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, I wish we all had been present at the conference that took place between the Senate members and the House members of the Committee on the Judiciary. It was illuminating. I had my mouth drop open when I saw the fiercest opponents of the death penalty that this Chamber has ever seen sitting with me on the House side, on the Democratic side, and lifelong opponents of the death penalty on the Senate side almost enthusiastically support this death penalty bill, without a murmur, without a contest. They very suspiciously voted for this death penalty bill.

They did so because they knew that it was a meaningless piece of legislation. They were committing legicide. They were killing the bill by voting for a death penalty. And that is an important feature of what this argument is about.

Does this death penalty bill do what the American public really wants to happen to convict someone of murder who has viciously gunned down somebody in the street and then allow this man or woman to file appeal after appeal to avoid the final justice? If we want that kind of scenario, vote for this bill. If we want to try again for a crime bill that works, vote against the rule and the bill.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. KOPETSKI].

Mr. KOPETSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this compromise piece of legislation. In this bill is an increase of $345 million for Federal law enforcement, an increase in authorization of $1 billion for the Safe Streets Act. There is more moneys authorized for the Cop on the Beat Program. We are going to put police officers back in hometown America. There is certainty of punishment for youthful offenders with alternative kinds of sentencing from boot camp to electronic monitoring to vocational and educational programs.

There is more dollars to train better police officers. There is 21st century tools to fight crime or to establish standards for the use of DNA identification.

There is substance abuse rehabilitation programs for people in prison so that when they get out they will not be robbing and burglarizing to support their drug habits.

Yes, there is reform to the habeas corpus laws of the United States, a compromise that was developed by the American Bar Association, developed and debated in the committee of the House and the Senate.

Essentially what it does, it is very simple. It says, if one is a criminal and has been convicted of a crime, they get one good fair shot under their Federal rights as a citizen in this country, you get one appeal and you only get 1 year.

Mr. EDWARDS of California. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KOPETSKI. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. EDWARDS of California. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Oregon is a valued, able member of the subcommittee, and the gentleman in the well heard the previous speaker talking about multiple petitions. As a matter of fact, the opponents of the bill seem hipped on that idea that there are multiple applications for habeas corpus in this bill.

Let me ask the gentleman this: In the subcommittee we were careful to allow how many petitions?

Mr. KOPETSKI. Mr. Speaker, one.

Mr. EDWARDS of California. One, and the petition has a statute of limitations; is that correct?

Mr. KOPETSKI. Mr. Speaker, that is correct.

Mr. EDWARDS of California. One year?

Mr. KOPETSKI. Mr. Speaker, it is 1 year.

Mr. EDWARDS of California. So no petitions after 1 year?

Mr. KOPETSKI. Mr. Speaker, that is absolutely correct.

Mr. EDWARDS of California. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will continue to yield, how many again?

Mr. KOPETSKI. One appeal. There is 1 year to bring this petition. This is a compromise. If we vote against this bill, what we are saying is, "I am willing to continue the rights of unlimited appeals to criminals in this country."

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. ALLEN], a new Member of the House.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I have just become a Member in a few weeks and we have been going all night long into the morning. Here we are at 6:30 in the morning, and I know we are tired. And we have had some tempers flaring and people all across America, or at least in the eastern standard time, are waking up. And I know we are tired, but we need to be awakened to this bill.

This is not a crime bill. This is a criminal bill.

In fact, what this bill ought to be called is the Criminal Relief Act of 1991.

We have heard the evidence. The evidence is that the prosecutors are opposed to it but the defense attorneys are in favor of it. I am not going to repeat all the allegations and so forth about habeas corpus, but there may be a few more cases in this which capital punishment may be imposed. But this conference committee report protects too many criminals and generally works against the law enforcement officials and law-abiding citizens.

I will not repeat all the various cumulative arguments we have heard on habeas corpus, the good faith exclusions, exceptions to the exclusionary rule, and other matters. But the bill does contain the continued gimmickry that would unnecessarily infringe upon the rights of law-abiding citizens to purchase a firearm, to protect themselves or for sport.

Finally, this bill also struck enhanced penalties for repeat rapists and child molesters. If we look at the recidivist rate, the repeat offenders rates are the highest among rapists. And to me that should not have been removed from the bill as it passed the House.

So this bill, Mr. Speaker, does more harm in this Criminal Relief Act of 1991, and certainly the harm outweighs whatever crumbs of good may come from it.

I respectfully request that we reject this rule and reject this bill.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York [Ms. MOLINARI].

Ms. MOLINARI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak in opposition to the conference report. I urge colleagues to vote against the rule.

This bill, as reported by the House and Senate conferees, is no longer deserving of the title that contains the words "crime control" or "crime prevention." In fact, to at least two segments of our society this bill is criminal. The two groups in our society who have no say in this conference on this crime bill: women and children.

Why am I not surprised by this, Mr. Speaker? Why am I not surprised that this came back from a conference essentially driven by the Committee on the Judiciary of the other Chamber? They will just do not get it.

The conferees have stripped key provisions which would have increased the penalties that could be applied to recidivist sex offenders. The House bill contains provisions which would have doubled the maximum penalty that Federal courts can impose for repeat sex offenders.

The conference report also deletes provisions for HIV testing of sex offenders. The conference report deletes provisions that authorized an increase in the compensation paid to victims of crime. These provisions would have expanded eligibility for compensation to different types of victims and would have covered additional types of expenses that were accrued during the criminal proceeding.

Again, the conference report sides with the accused. Also deleted in conference was an amendment I introduced to the Public Safety Officers Benefit Act that would have extended an entitlement to death and disability benefits to retired public safety officers who died or who were permanently and totally disabled while attempting to rescue or responding to a fire or other police emergency. This is a simple extension of an entitlement designed to provide relief for the families of those brave retirees who did not abandon their instincts or their training when a life-threatening situation presented itself and who unselfishly responded to that situation in the interest of public safety.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot go home and look into the eyes of a widow and tell her that her husband's courageous act will not be recognized by the U.S. Congress. I am not prepared to stand face to face with a victim of a sexual attack and tell her that I would not vote to keep her attacker in jail longer, and that I had a civil obligation not to test the attacker for AIDS.

I will not acknowledge the pain of a survivor of violent crime and say that America will not compensate you for your struggle, for your anguish.

Mr. Speaker, if this bill were to pass I do not believe our streets would be any safer or our children any more secure or our women any more liberated from the fear of sexual assault. I urge my colleagues to defeat this rule and defeat this conference report.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, that is the best argument I have heard all night, the best reason to defeat this rule.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. SEN-SENRENNER].

Mr. SENRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I think we ought to analyze just exactly what happened in the conference. In the death penalty the Senate passed the weaker provision and the conference adopted it. In the exclusionary rule the Senate passed the weaker provision and the conference adopted it. In habeas corpus the House passed the weaker provision and the conference adopted it.

Many key provisions that were accepted either in committee or on the floor without objection were stricken in the conference, such as enhanced penalties for recidivist sex offenders stricken by the conference, provisions strengthening the law on public corruption, which the Senate introduced into the bill were stricken in conference, a package of victims' rights provisions which the House put in the bill without debate in the Committee on the Judiciary were stricken in conference, and in each and every instance the conference went to the weaker provision relating to law enforcement and the stronger provision relating to criminals' rights.

It is no surprise that the gentleman from California [Mr. EDWARDS], said, "Talk to your bar associations, your State bars and your county bars and your local bars. They support this bill," and they do. But who comprises the bar association? It is the defense lawyers, whose job it is to keep people out of jail. The prosecutors, the district attorneys, and the attorneys general whose job it is to put the guilty in jail are all against this bill.

The Members should decide who to vote for, Mr. Speaker, the people who want to throw those who have violated the laws, who have mugged our constituents, in jail, or those whose job it is to keep people out of jail. I will cast my vote for the prosecutors, for the attorneys general, for the district attorneys by voting against this rule and by voting against this flawed, fatally flawed conference report.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT].

Mr. BRYANT. Mr. Speaker, I think perhaps we need a crime bill, if for no other reason than to address the crime that is being committed on this floor today, and that is the gross misrepresentation of this bill by the other side, for obvious political purposes.

Let me just read a quick list. I want to be quick about this because I would like us to proceed to a vote. You have misrepresented to this House, many of you, what this bill does with regard to the death penalty. I cannot imagine how you can sleep at night, or in the middle of the morning, after having done that. Let me read to you what some of the death penalty offenses that have been added to this bill are, and there are 56 of them: Killings by drug kingpins, that is not now in the law but it would be if this bill passed; killing law enforcement officials in connection with drug offenses, and that is not in the law now but it would be if this bill passed; murder in Federal jurisdiction, that is not in the law now but it will be if this bill passes; aircraft destruction where a death results; mailing dangerous articles where a death results; bank robbery where a death results. That is not now in the law but it would be if this bill passes.

I can go on and on and on. Murder for hire, murder in aid or racketeering, murder of an American national abroad, genocide, killing a juror or a court officer to obstruct justice, on and on and on, and even some nonhomicide offenses which have never been the subject of the death penalty: Espionage, treason, attempts to kill a President, attempts to kidnap a President, drug kingpins, based on the amount of drugs or money involved.

I submit that those kinds of people ought to face the death penalty. If the Members agree, vote for this bill and stop this demagoguery.

I urge the Members to vote for this rule and vote for this bill, and let us get on with it.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I am surprised at the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT] using the words "political" and "demagoguery." Let me show you a good Democrat from the State of Texas. His name is Dan Morales, attorney general of the State of Texas, and he is opposed to this bill. Here is his signature. Here is your so-called demagoguery.

Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. GINGRICH].

Mr. GINGRICH. Mr. Speaker, as we try to debate this at 6:45 in the morning, I think the most striking thing that hits me, and it has been just driven deeper and deeper every time I watch the evening news, is that this is an incredibly tragic time for America and for Americans. In virtually every major city the evening news increasingly could be called "Death Watch." We tune in, and all of us have done it, and we watch a 16-year-old killed in a drug gunfight; we watch a 3-year-old who dies in a drive-by killing; we see tragedy after tragedy after tragedy. We see violent criminal after violent criminal, people whose brutality and willingness to prey on other human beings is extraordinary.

Then we come with this bill, which I have to confess, until it came out of conference, I would not have thought possible. This bill manages to, if I may quote from the Department of Justice's analysis of it: "With remarkable consistency the conference committee has rejected the better option and has opted instead for provisions that harm law enforcement and reduce the public security against crime."

Now, what are people talking about? Why do district attorneys who prosecute criminals and the State attorney generals who try the cases and who make sure that the death penalty is applied, why do they matter? Why does the average citizen out here care what a prosecuting attorney says?

Let me give an example, a case that is going to become very famous in 1992. In 1987, a parole board prematurely released Arthur Shaw Cross, who was in prison for sexually molesting and killing two children, ages 8 and 10. This release occurred in spite of his parole officer's warnings against premature release. The parole officer wrote that Shaw Cross is a psychosexual maniac for whom prison walls could not be erected thick enough. Previous reports said he was a homicidal schizoid personality of abnormal character with psychosexual difficulties, including pedophilic fetishes.

The State first moved Shaw Cross secretly to Binghamton, where he was run out of town by outraged citizens. Then they deposited him secretly in Rochester, never alerting the local police. Then during 1988 and 1989, Shaw Cross murdered 11 women in Rochester in a killing spree that terrorized the community.

Now, why are citizens upset? They are upset because in this bill the liberals in this Congress on the House and Senate side gathered together to perpetrate a hoax, the death penalty, written deliberately so it will never be used, written in such a way that every opponent of the death penalty can gleefully vote yes, because they have managed to perpetrate upon the citizenry an absolute hoax.

□ 0650

Who says it is a hoax? Well, let me give you a couple examples. The National District Attorneys Association—by the way, one of our earlier speakers said appointed by the President. Nonsense. I do not know what that person knows about how district attorneys are created, but in most places they are elected, elected by the people, Democrat or Republican.

What do they say? Let me read the text:

DEAR GENTLEMEN: The American people have been mugged again—this time by the leadership of the United States Congress. The nation's prosecutors strongly oppose the so-called "crime control" bill approved in Sunday's conference and urge both House and Senate to reject it. This bill does far more to advance the interests of convicted criminals than it does to protect victims and law-abiding citizens.

Let me repeat that sentence so that no one who votes today has any doubt about what the district attorney says:

This bill does far more to advance the interests of convicted criminals than it does to protect victims and law-abiding citizens. In fact, passage of this bill is tantamount to handing the jail house keys to thousands of convicted state and federal prisoners.

The bill advances the rights of convicted criminals by providing golden opportunities for them to use new case law to overturn old convictions. This is accomplished through the repeal of several Supreme Court precedents in the habeas corpus provision approved by the conference. It also provides unworkable counsel standards in death penalty cases that violate the most basic tenets of federalism.

The conference committee in nearly every instance chose the wealthiest provisions with respect to law enforcement. It rejected the House limitations on application of the exclusionary rule. It overturns the Supreme Court decision in Arizona v. Fulminante through a provision that may have far reaching effects and which was not even the subject of hearings. Finally, the conference chose the weaker provisions on death penalty offenses and procedure.

It is a sad day when the will of American people to enact tougher criminal laws is so completely thwarted. We urge you to reject this poor excuse for a crime control bill.

Signed: Thomas J. Charron, District Attorney, President, National District Attorneys Association.

So if you want to vote as seen by the elected district attorneys whose job it is to prosecute the Arthur Shawcrosses of the world, if you want to vote in favor of helping the criminals, of releasing convicted State and Federal prisoners, putting back on the street the kind of people who kill, who rape, who maim, then vote yes; but understand clearly that in the judgment of the district attorneys, Democrat and Republican, you are voting on behalf of the criminals if you vote yes.

Mr. Speaker, I urge you to vote no.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. ENGEL].

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the conference report on H.R. 3371, the Omnibus Crime Control Act of 1991. As a Representative from New York, I can attest that the growing scourge of crime in our Nation's cities cannot be tolerated any longer. Too many innocent people have lost their lives in random acts of violence, too many guns are in the hands of dangerous people, and too many criminals, guilty of repeated offenses, walk the streets freely.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Justice, last year 5 percent of the Nation's households, or about 4.5 million households, had at least one family member who was the victim of a violent crime. Almost 6.9 million households, or about 1 in 14, were affected by a rape, robbery, or an assault by a stranger or burglar during 1990.

We have a responsibility to the American people to pass the conference report on the omnibus crime control bill. This conference report will provide over $3 billion for much needed crime control programs. One of the most important parts of this conference report is the additional funding it provides for hiring more law enforcement officers on the Federal, State, and local levels.

The conference report on H.R. 3371 also takes a step in the right direction by including a 5 day waiting period for the purchase of handguns. This provision will give law enforcement officials the necessary time to run a background check to determine whether or not the prospective buyer holds a criminal record. This provision alone, will go a long way in helping to prevent the senseless murders that occur everyday.

I want to say to my colleagues, that we would be making a terrible mistake if we fail to pass this bill. Admittedly, this bill is not perfect. Many of us feel that there are provisions in the bill with which we are not happy, and others wish the bill contained some provisions which have been excluded in the final version. However, this is a good compromise bill. It moves in the right direction in terms of trying to combat crime, and sends a clear message to our constituents that we are aware of their concerns and are as troubled as they are by the rising crime rate in our country.

Mr. Speaker, in the past 2 years I have personally heard gunshots outside both my residence in my home district and my apartment here in Washington. Both gunshots resulted in murders, one drug-related and the other a street robbery. There's hardly an American who hasn't been affected one way or the other by violent crime. This bill strengthens the statutes in dealing with crime. Let's look at some of the other provisions that this bill offers:

It will provide 10 regional prisons for Federal and State drug criminals.

H.R. 3371 authorizes aid for cities hardest hit by the drug crisis.

It establishes new programs including grants for safe schools and antigang programs, and appropriates funding for prevention programs like additional cops on the beat, trauma centers, and law enforcement scholarships.

The legislation authorizes $1.2 billion in aid to State and local law enforcement agencies.

It boosts aid to victims of crime; requiring victim impact statements.

And finally, H.R. 3371 toughens penalties for gun use during violent crimes.

I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of the conference report on the omnibus crime control bill. The future safety of millions of Americans is riding on its passage.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, let me say before I move the previous question that it was not necessary for me to get a report from the DA's and so forth and so on. I have tried a number of cases in my career as an attorney. I prosecuted and I also defended many cases, capital cases and all other cases.

I have followed this bill very closely. We all know the matter of the death penalty does not really amount to a great deal, because we are talking about a very small part of the criminal case jurisdiction in this country; although it is important, it is not as major as many of our speakers would make it out.

Mr. Speaker, this is a strong crime bill, and if for no other reason, I recommend as a trial attorney this legislation, based on the habeas corpus provisions alone. This is the strongest reform that we have had of habeas corpus in modern times.

What it is going to mean to the American people is these people who run us all up a wall and we wonder why, what is going on in the legal system, when we see people 10 years after a conviction has been rendered in a lower court before the final execution of that conviction is brought about 10 years later.

This is going to be put to an end. There is going to be 1 petition and 1 year.

Mr. Speaker, if for no other reason, this is the reason to vote for this bill.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DERRICK. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HOYER). The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 232, nays 160, answered "present" 1, not voting 41, as follows:

Mr. VALENTINE and Mr. SIKORSKI change their vote from "nay" to "yea."

So the resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall 427, the rule for the supplemental; rollcall 428, the conference report on dire emergency supplemental; and 429, tax extensions, I was unavoidably absent and missed those votes. If I had been present, I would have voted in the affirmative on all three.

"§3591. Sentence of death

"A defendant who has been found guilty of—

"(1) an offense described in section 794 or section 2381 of this title;

"(2) an offense described in section 1751(c) of this title, if the offense, as determined beyond a reasonable doubt at the hearing under section 3593, constitutes an attempt to kill the President of the United States and results in bodily injury to the President or comes dangerously close to causing the death of the President; or

"(3) any other offense for which a sentence of death is provided, if the defendant, as determined beyond a reasonable doubt at the hearing under section 3593—

"(A) intentionally killed the victim;

"(B) intentionally inflicted serious bodily injury that resulted in the death of the victim;

"(C) intentionally participated in an act, contemplating that the life of a person would be taken or intending that lethal force would be used in connection with a person, other than one of the participants in the offense, and the victim died as a direct result of the act; or

"(D) intentionally and specifically engaged in an act, knowing that the act created a grave risk of death to a person, other than one of the participants in the offense, such that participation in the act constituted a reckless disregard for human life and the victim died as a direct result of the act, shall be sentenced to death if, after consideration of the factors set forth in section 3592 in the course of a hearing held pursuant to section 3593, it is determined that imposition of a sentence of death is justified, except that no person may be sentenced to death who was less than 18 years of age at the time of the offense.

"§3592. Mitigating and aggravating factors to be considered in determining whether a sentence of death is justified

"(a) MITIGATING FACTORS.—In determining whether a sentence of death is to be imposed on a defendant, the finder of fact shall consider any mitigating factor, including the following:

"(1) IMPAIRED CAPACITY.—The defendant's capacity to appreciate the wrongfulness of the defendant's conduct or to conform conduct to the requirements of law was significantly impaired, regardless of whether the capacity was so impaired as to constitute a defense to the charge.

"(2) DURESS.—The defendant was under unusual and substantial duress, regardless of whether the duress was of such a degree as to constitute a defense to the charge.

"(3) MINOR PARTICIPATION.—The defendant is punishable as a principal (as defined in section 2 of title 18 of the United States Code) in the offense, which was committed by another, but the defendant's participation was relatively minor, regardless of whether the participation was so minor as to constitute a defense to the charge.

"(4) FORSEEABILITY.—The defendant could not reasonably have foreseen that the defendant's conduct in the course of the commission of murder, or other offense resulting in death for which the defendant was convicted, would cause, or would create a grave risk of causing, death to any person.

"(5) NO PRIOR CRIMINAL RECORD.—The defendant did not have a significant prior history of other criminal conduct.

"(6) DISTURBANCE.—The defendant committed the offense under severe mental or emotional disturbance.

"(7) VICTIM'S CONSENT.—The victim consented to the criminal conduct that resulted in the victim's death.

"(8) OTHER FACTORS.—Other factors in the defendant's background, record, or character or any other circumstance of the offense that mitigate against imposition of the death sentence.

"(b) AGGRAVATING FACTORS FOR ESPIONAGE AND TREASON.—In determining whether a sentence of death is justified for an offense described in section 3591(1), the jury, or if there is no jury, the court, shall consider each of the following aggravating factors for which notice has been given and determine which, if any, exist:

"(1) PRIOR ESPIONAGE OR TREASON OFFENSE.—The defendant has previously been convicted of another offense involving espionage or treason for which a sentence of either life imprisonment or death was authorized by law.

"(2) GRAVE RISK TO NATIONAL SECURITY.—In the commission of the offense the defendant knowingly created a grave risk of substantial danger to the national security.

"(3) GRAVE RISK OF DEATH.—In the commission of the offense the defendant knowingly created a grave risk of death to another person.

The jury, or if there is no jury, the court, may consider whether any other aggravating factor for which notice has been given exists.

"(c) AGGRAVATING FACTORS FOR HOMICIDE AND FOR ATTEMPTED MURDER OF THE PRESI-

DENT.—In determining whether a sentence of death is justified for an offense described in section 3591 (2) or (6), the jury, or if there is no jury, the court, shall consider each of the following aggravating factors for which notice has been given and determine which, if any, exist:

"(1) DEATH DURING COMMISSION OF ANOTHER CRIME.—The death, or injury resulting in death, occurred during the commission or attempted commission of, or during the immediate flight from the commission of, an offense under section 32 (destruction of aircraft or aircraft facilities), section 33 (destruction of motor vehicles or motor vehicle facilities), section 36 (violence at international airports), section 351 (violence against Members of Congress, Cabinet officers, or Supreme Court Justices), an offense under section 751 (prisoners in custody of institution or officer), section 794 (gathering or delivering defense information to aid foreign government), section 844(d) (transportation of explosives in interstate commerce for certain purposes), section 844(f) (destruction of Government property in interstate commerce by explosives), section 1118 (prisoners serving life term), section 1201 (kidnaping), section 844(i) (destruction of property affecting interstate commerce by explosives), section 1116 (killing or attempted killing of diplomats), section 1203 (hostage taking), section 1992 (wrecking trains), section 2280 (maritime violence), section 2281 (maritime platform violence), section 2332 (terrorist acts abroad against United States nationals), section 2339 (use of weapons of mass destruction), or section 2381 (treason) of this title, or section 902 (i) or (n) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (49 U.S.C. 1472 (i) or (n)) (aircraft piracy).

"(2) INVOLVEMENT OF FIREARM OR PREVIOUS CONVICTION OF VIOLENT FELONY INVOLVING FIREARM.—For any offense, other than an offense for which a sentence of death is sought on the basis of section 924(c) of this title, as amended by this Act, the defendant—

(A) during and in relation to the commission of the offense or in escaping or attempting to escape apprehension used or possessed a firearm as defined in section 921 of this title; or

(B) has previously been convicted of a Federal or State offense punishable by a term of imprisonment of more than one year, involving the use of attempted or threatened use of a firearm, as defined in section 921 of this title, against another person.

"(3) PREVIOUS CONVICTION OF OFFENSE FOR WHICH A SENTENCE OF DEATH OR LIFE IMPRISONMENT WAS AUTHORIZED.—The defendant has previously been convicted of another Federal or State offense resulting in the death of a person, for which a sentence of life imprisonment or a sentence of death was authorized by statute.

"(4) PREVIOUS CONVICTION OF OTHER SERIOUS OFFENSES.—The defendant has previously been convicted of two or more Federal or State offenses, punishable by a term of imprisonment of more than one year, committed on different occasions, involving the infliction of, or attempted infliction of, serious bodily injury or death upon another person.

"(5) GRAVE RISK OF DEATH TO ADDITIONAL PERSONS.—The defendant, in the commission of the offense, or in escaping apprehension for the violation of the offense, knowingly created a grave risk of death to one or more persons in addition to the victim of the offense.

"(6) HEINOUS, CRUEL, OR DEPRAVED MANNER OF COMMITTING OFFENSE.—The defendant committed the offense in an especially heinous, cruel, or depraved manner in that it involved torture or serious physical abuse to the victim.

"(7) PROCUREMENT OF OFFENSE BY PAYMENT.—The defendant procured the commission of the offense by payment, or promise of payment, of anything of pecuniary value.

"(8) PECUNIARY GAIN.—The defendant committed the offense as consideration for the receipt, or in the expectation of the receipt, of anything of pecuniary value.

"(9) SUBSTANTIAL PLANNING AND PREMEDITATION.—The defendant committed the offense after substantial planning and premeditation to cause the death of a person or commit an act of terrorism.

"(10) CONVICTION FOR TWO FELONY DRUG OFFENSES.—The defendant has previously been convicted of two or more State or Federal offenses punishable by a term of imprisonment of more than one year, committed on different occasions, involving the distribution of a controlled substance.

"(11) VULNERABILITY OF VICTIM.—The victim was particularly vulnerable due to old age, youth, or infirmity.

"(12) CONVICTION FOR SERIOUS FEDERAL DRUG OFFENSES.—The defendant had previously been convicted of violating title II or title III of the Controlled Substances Act for which a sentence of 5 or more years may be imposed or had previously been convicted of engaging in a continuing criminal enterprise.

"(13) CONTINUING CRIMINAL ENTERPRISE INVOLVING DRUG SALES TO MINORS.—The defendant committed the offense in the course of engaging in a continuing criminal enterprise in violation of section 408(c) of the Controlled Substances Act and that violation involved the distribution of drugs to persons under the age of 21 in violation of section 418 of such Act.

"(14) HIGH PUBLIC OFFICIALS.—The defendant committed the offense against—

(A) the President of the United States, the President-elect, the Vice President, the Vice-President-elect, the Vice-President-designate, or, if there is no Vice President, the officer next in order of succession to the office of the President of the United States, or any person who is acting as President under the Constitution and laws of the United States;

(B) a chief of state, head of government, or the political equivalent, of a foreign nation;

(C) a foreign official listed in section 1116(b)(3)(A) of this title, if the official is in the United States on official business; or

(D) a Federal public servant who is a judge, a law enforcement officer, or an employee of a United States penal or correctional institution—

(i) while he is engaged in the performance of his official duties;

(ii) because of the performance of his official duties; or

(iii) because of his status as a public servant. For purposes of this subparagraph, a 'law enforcement officer' is a public servant authorized by law or by a Government agency or Congress to conduct or engage in the prevention, investigation, or prosecution or adjudication of an offense, and includes those engaged in corrections, parole, or probation functions. The jury, or if there is no jury, the court, may consider whether any other aggravating factor for which notice has been given exists.

"§3593. Special hearing to determine whether a sentence of death is justified

"(a) NOTICE BY THE GOVERNMENT.—If, in a case involving an offense described in section 3591, the attorney for the government believes that the circumstances of the offense are such that a sentence of death is justified under this chapter, the attorney shall, a reasonable time before the trial or before acceptance by the court of a plea of guilty, sign and file with the court, and serve on the defendant, a notice—

(1) stating that the government believes that the circumstances of the offense are such that, if the defendant is convicted, a sentence of death is justified under this chapter and that the government will seek the sentence of death; and

(2) setting forth the aggravating factor or factors that the government, if the defendant is convicted, proposes to prove as justifying a sentence of death.

The factors for which notice is provided under this subsection may include factors concerning the effect of the offense on the victim and the victim's family, and may include oral testimony, a victim impact statement that identifies the victim of the offense and the extent and scope of the injury and loss suffered by the victim and the victim's family, and any other relevant information. The court may permit the attorney for the government to amend the notice upon a showing of good cause.

"(b) HEARING BEFORE A COURT OR JURY.—If the attorney for the government has filed a notice as required under subsection (a) and the defendant is found guilty of or pleads guilty to an offense described in section 3591, the judge who presided at the trial or before whom the guilty plea was entered, or another judge if that judge is unavailable, shall conduct a separate sentencing hearing to determine the punishment to be imposed. The hearing shall be conducted—

(1) before the jury that determined the defendant's guilt;

(2) before a jury impaneled for the purpose of the hearing if—

(A) the defendant was convicted upon a plea of guilty;

(B) the defendant was convicted after a trial before the court sitting without a jury;

(C) the jury that determined the defendant's guilt was discharged for good cause; or

(D) after initial imposition of a sentence under this section, reconsideration of the sentence under this section is necessary; or

(3) before the court alone, upon the motion of the defendant and with the approval of the attorney for the government.

A jury impaneled pursuant to paragraph (2) shall consist of twelve members, unless, at any time before the conclusion of the hearing, the parties stipulate, with the approval of the court, that it shall consist of a lesser number.

"(c) PROOF OF MITIGATING AND AGGRAVATING FACTORS.—Notwithstanding rule 32(c) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, when a defendant is found guilty or pleads guilty to an offense under section 3591, no presentence report shall be prepared. At the sentencing hearing, information may be presented as to any matter relevant to the sentence, including any mitigating or aggravating factor permitted or required to be considered under section 3592. Information presented may include the trial transcript and exhibits if the hearing is held before a jury or judge not present during the trial. The defendant may present any information relevant to a mitigating factor. The government may present any information relevant to an aggravating factor. The government and the defendant shall be permitted to rebut any information received at the hearing, and shall be given fair opportunity to present argument as to the adequacy of the information to establish the existence of any aggravating or mitigating factor, and as to the appropriateness in the case of imposing a sentence of death. The government shall open the argument. The defendant shall be permitted to reply. The government shall then be permitted to reply in rebuttal. The burden of establishing the existence of any aggravating factor is on the government, and is not satisfied unless the existence of such a factor is established beyond a reasonable doubt. The burden of establishing the existence of any mitigating factor is on the defendant, and is not satisfied unless the existence of such a factor is established by a preponderance of the information.

"(d) RETURN OF SPECIAL FINDINGS.—The jury, or if there is no jury, the court, shall consider all the information received during the hearing. It shall return special findings identifying any aggravating factor or factors set forth in section 3592 found to exist and any other aggravating factor for which notice has been provided under subsection (a) found to exist. A finding with respect to a mitigating factor may be made by one or more members of the jury, and any member of the jury who finds the existence of a mitigating factor may consider such factor established for purposes of this section regardless of the number of jurors who concur that the factor has been established. A finding with respect to any aggravating factor must be unanimous. If no aggravating factor set forth in section 3592 is found to exist, the court shall impose a sentence other than death authorized by law.

(e) RETURN OF A FINDING CONCERNING A SENTENCE OF DEATH.—If, in the case of—

"(1) an offense described in section 3591(1), an aggravating factor required to be considered under section 3592(b) is found to exist; or

"(2) an offense described in section 3591 (2) or (3), an aggravating factor required to be considered under section 3592(c) is found to exist, the jury, or if there is no jury, the court, shall consider whether all the aggravating factor or factors found to exist sufficiently outweigh all the mitigating factor or factors found to exist to justify a sentence of death, or, in the absence of a mitigating factor, whether the aggravating factor or factors alone are sufficient to justify a sentence of death. Based upon this consideration, the jury by unanimous vote, or if there is no jury, the court, shall recommend whether a sentence of death shall be imposed rather than a lesser sentence. The jury or the court, if there is no jury, regardless of its findings with respect to aggravating and mitigating factors, is never required to impose a death sentence.

(f) SPECIAL PRECAUTION TO ENSURE AGAINST DISCRIMINATION.—In a hearing held before a jury, the court, prior to the return of a finding under subsection (e), shall instruct the jury that, in considering whether a sentence of death is justified, it shall not consider the race, color, religious beliefs, national origin, or sex of the defendant or of any victim and that the jury is not to recommend a sentence of death unless it has concluded that it would recommend a sentence of death for the crime in question no matter what the race, color, religious beliefs, national origin, or sex of the defendant or of any victim may be. The jury, upon return of a finding under subsection (e), shall also return to the court a certificate, signed by each juror, that consideration of the race, color, religious beliefs, national origin, or sex of the defendant or any victim was not involved in reaching his or her individual decision and that the individual juror would have made the same recommendation regarding a sentence for the crime in question no matter what the race, color, religious beliefs, national origin, or sex of the defendant or any victim may be.

§3594. Imposition of a sentence of death

"Upon a finding under section 3593(e) that a sentence of death is justified, the court shall sentence the defendant to death. Otherwise, the court shall impose any sentence other than death that is authorized by law. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if the maximum term of imprisonment for the offense is life imprisonment, the court may impose a sentence of life imprisonment without parole.

§3595. Review of a sentence of death

(a) APPEAL.—In a case in which a sentence of death is imposed, the sentence shall be subject to review by the court of appeals upon appeal by the defendant. Notice of appeal must be filed within the time specified for the filing of a notice of appeal. An appeal under this section may be consolidated with an appeal of the judgment of conviction and shall have priority over all other cases.

(b) REVIEW.—The court of appeals shall review the entire record in the case, including—

"(1) the evidence submitted during the trial;

"(2) the information submitted during the sentencing hearing;

"(3) the procedures employed in the sentencing hearing; and

"(4) the special findings returned under section 3593(d).

(c) DECISION AND DISPOSITION.—

"(1) The court of appeals shall address all substantive and procedural issues raised on the appeal of a sentence of death, and shall consider whether the sentence of death was imposed under the influence of passion, prejudice, or any other arbitrary factor and whether the evidence supports the special finding of the existence of an aggravating factor required to be considered under section 3592.

"(2) Whenever the court of appeals finds that—

"(A) the sentence of death was imposed under the influence of passion, prejudice, or any other arbitrary factor;

"(B) the admissible evidence and information adduced does not support the special finding of the existence of the required aggravating factor; or

"(C) the proceedings involved any other legal error requiring reversal of the sentence that was properly preserved for appeal under the rules of criminal procedure, the court shall remand the case for reconsideration under section 3593 or imposition of a sentence other than death.

"(3) The court of appeals shall state in writing the reasons for its disposition of an appeal of a sentence of death under this section.

§3596. Implementation of a sentence of death

(a) IN GENERAL.—A person who has been sentenced to death pursuant to the provisions of this chapter shall be committed to the custody of the Attorney General until exhaustion of the procedures for appeal of the judgment of conviction and for review of the sentence. When the sentence is to be implemented, the Attorney General shall release the person sentenced to death to the custody of a United States marshal, who shall supervise implementation of the sentence in the manner prescribed by the law of the State in which the sentence is imposed. If the law of such State does not provide for implementation of a sentence of death, the court shall designate another State, the law of which does provide for the implementation of a sentence of death, and the sentence shall be implemented in the latter State in the manner prescribed by such law.

(b) PREGNANT WOMAN.—A sentence of death shall not be carried out upon a woman while she is pregnant.

(c) MENTAL CAPACITY.—A sentence of death shall not be carried out upon a person who is mentally retarded. A sentence of death shall not be carried out upon a person who, as a result of mental disability, lacks the mental capacity to understand the death penalty and why it was imposed on that person.

§3597. Use of State facilities

(a) IN GENERAL.—A United States marshal charged with supervising the implementation of a sentence of death may use appropriate State or local facilities for the purpose, may use the services of an appropriate State or local official or of a person such an official employs for the purpose, and shall pay the costs thereof in an amount approved by the Attorney General.

(b) EXCUSE OF AN EMPLOYEE ON MORAL OR RELIGIOUS GROUNDS.—No employee of any State department of corrections, the United States Department of Justice, the Federal Bureau of Prisons, or the United States Marshals Service, and no employee providing services to that department, bureau, or service under contract shall be required, as a condition of that employment or contractual obligation, to be in attendance at or to participate in any prosecution or execution under this section if such participation is contrary to the moral or religious convictions of the employee. For purposes of this subsection, the term 'participation in executions' includes personal preparation of the condemned individual and the apparatus used for execution and supervision of the activities of other personnel in carrying out such activities.

Each State plan approved by the Director under section 1236 shall include assurances that following completion of a participant's course of education each participant shall receive appropriate additional training by the State or local authority to which the participant is assigned. (c) DISCIPLINE.—If the police force of which the participant is a member subjects the participant to discipline such as would preclude the participant's completing 4 years of service, and result in denial of educational assistance under section 1232, the Director may, upon a showing of good cause, permit the participant to complete the service obligation in an equivalent alternative law enforcement service and, if such service is satisfactorily completed, section 1232(d)(1)(C) shall not apply.

(d) LAY-OFFS.—If the police force of which the participant is a member lays off the participant such as would preclude the participant's completing 4 years of service, and result in denial of educational assistance under section 1232, the Director may permit the participant to complete the service obligation in an equivalent alternative law enforcement service and, if such service is satisfactorily completed, section 1232(d)(1)(C) shall not apply.

(A) whose size has declined by more than 5 percent since June 21, 1989; or

(8) assure that participants will receive effective training and leadership;

SEC. 1404. DRUG TREATMENT IN FEDERAL PRISONS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the "Drug Treatment in Federal Prisons Act of 1991".

(b) DEFINITIONS.—

As used in this section—

(1) the term "residential substance abuse treatment" means a course of individual and group activities, lasting between 9 and 12 months, in residential treatment facilities set apart from the general prison population—

(A) directed at the substance abuse problems of the prisoner; and

(B) intended to develop the prisoner's cognitive, behavioral, social, vocational, and other skills so as to solve the prisoner's substance abuse and related problems; and

(2) the term "eligible prisoner" means a prisoner who is—

(A) determined by the Bureau of Prisons to have a substance abuse problem; and

(B) willing to participate in a residential substance abuse treatment program.

(c) IMPLEMENTATION OF SUBSTANCE ABUSE TREATMENT REQUIREMENT.—

(1) In order to carry out the requirement of the last sentence of section 3621(b) of title 18, United States Code, that every prisoner with a substance abuse problem have the opportunity to participate in appropriate substance abuse treatment, the Bureau of Prisons shall provide residential substance abuse treatment—

(A) for not less than 50 percent of eligible prisoners by the end of fiscal year 1993;

(B) for not less than 75 percent of eligible prisoners by the end of fiscal year 1994; and

(C) for all eligible prisoners by the end of fiscal year 1995 and thereafter.

(2) Section 3621 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(d) INCENTIVE FOR PRISONERS' SUCCESSFUL COMPLETION OF TREATMENT PROGRAM.—

"(1) GENERALLY.—Any prisoner who, in the judgment of the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, has successfully completed a program of residential substance abuse treatment provided under subsection (b) of this section, shall remain in the custody of the Bureau for such time (as limited by paragraph (2) of this subsection) and under such conditions, as the Bureau deems appropriate. If the conditions of confinement are different from those the prisoner would have experienced absent the successful completion of the treatment, the Bureau shall periodically test the prisoner for drug abuse and discontinue such conditions on determining that drug abuse has recurred.

"(2) PERIOD OF CUSTODY.—The period the prisoner remains in custody after successfully completing a treatment program shall not exceed the prison term the law would otherwise require such prisoner to serve, but may not be less than such term minus one year."

(d) REPORT.—The Bureau of Prisons shall transmit to the Congress on January 1, 1993, and on January 1 of each year thereafter, a report. Such report shall contain—

(1) a detailed quantitative and qualitative description of each substance abuse treatment program, residential or not, operated by the Bureau;

(2) a full explanation of how eligibility for such programs is determined, with complete information on what proportion of prisoners with substance abuse problems are eligible; and

(3) a complete statement of to what extent the Bureau has achieved compliance with the requirements of this title.

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated for fiscal year 1991 and each fiscal year thereafter such sums as may be necessary to carry out this title.

SEC. 1405. PRISON FOR VIOLENT DRUG OFFENDERS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The total population of Federal, State, and local prisons and jails increased by 84 percent between 1980 and 1988 and currently numbers more than 900,000 people.

(2) More than 60 percent of all prisoners have a history of drug abuse or are regularly using drugs while in prison, but only 11 percent of State prison inmates and 7 percent of Federal prisoners are enrolled in drug treatment programs. Hundreds of thousands of prisoners are not receiving needed drug treatment while incarcerated, and the number of such persons is increasing rapidly.

(3) Drug-abusing prisoners are highly likely to return to crime upon release, but the recidivism rate is much lower for those who successfully complete treatment programs. Providing drug treatment to prisoners during incarceration therefore provides an opportunity to break the cycle of recidivism, reducing the crime rate and future prison overcrowding.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1992, the following amounts:

(1) $600,000,000 for the construction of 10 regional prisons; and

(2) $100,000,000 for the operation of such regional prisons for one year.

Such amounts shall be in addition to any other amounts authorized to be appropriated to the Bureau of Prisons.

(c) LOCATION AND POPULATION.—The regional prisons authorized by this section shall be located in places chosen by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, after consulting with the Director of National Drug Control Policy, not less than 6 months after the effective date of this section. Each such facility shall be used to accommodate a population consisting of State and Federal prisoners in proportions of 20 percent Federal and 80 percent State.

(d) ELIGIBILITY OF PRISONERS.—The regional prisons authorized by this section shall be used to incarcerate State and Federal prisoners who have release dates of not more than 2 years from the date of assignment to the prison and who have been found to have substance abuse problems requiring long-term treatment.

(e) STATE RESPONSIBILITIES.—(1) The States shall select prisoners for assignment to the regional prisons who, in addition to satisfying eligibility criteria otherwise specified in this section, have long-term drug abuse problems and serious criminal histories. Selection of such persons is necessary for the regional prison program to have the maximum impact on the crime rate and future prison overcrowding, since such persons are the ones most likely to commit new crimes following release. Prisoners selected for assignment to a regional prison must agree to the assignment.

(2) Any State seeking to refer a State prisoner to a regional prison shall submit to the Director of the Bureau of Prisons (referred to as the "Director") an aftercare plan setting forth the provisions that the State will make for the continued treatment of the prisoner in a therapeutic community following release. The aftercare plan shall also contain provisions for vocational job training where appropriate.

(3) The State referring the prisoner to the regional prison (referred to as the "sending State") shall reimburse the Bureau of Prisons for the full cost of the incarceration and treatment of the prisoner, except that if the prisoner successfully completes the treatment program, the Director shall return to the sending State 25 percent of the amount paid for that prisoner. The total amount returned to each State under this paragraph in each fiscal year shall be used by that State to provide the aftercare treatment required by paragraph (2).

(f) POWERS OF THE DIRECTOR.—(1) The Director shall have the exclusive right to determine whether or not a State or Federal prisoner satisfies the eligibility requirements of this section, and whether the prisoner is to be accepted into the regional prison program. The Director shall have the right to make this determination after the staff of the regional prison has had an opportunity to interview the prisoner in person.

(2) The Director shall have the exclusive right to determine if a prisoner in the regional treatment program is complying with all of the conditions and requirements of the program. The Director shall have the authority to return any prisoner not complying with the conditions and requirements of the program to the sending State at any time. The Director shall notify the sending State whenever such prisoner is returned that the prisoner has not successfully completed the treatment program.

SEC. 1406. BOOT CAMPS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Attorney General shall establish within the Bureau of Prisons 10 military-style boot camp prisons (referred to in this section as "boot camps"). The boot camps will be located on closed military installations on sites to be chosen by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, after consultation with the Director of National Drug Control Policy, and will provide a highly regimented schedule of strict discipline, physical training, work, drill, and ceremony characteristic of military basic training as well as remedial education and treatment for substance abuse.

(b) CAPACITY.—Each boot camp shall be designed to accommodate between 200 and 300 inmates for periods of not less than 90 days and not greater than 120 days. Not more than 20 percent of the inmates shall be Federal prisoners. The remaining inmates shall be State prisoners who are accepted for participation in the boot camp program pursuant to subsection (d).

(c) FEDERAL PRISONERS.—Section 3582 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(e) BOOT CAMP PRISON AS A SENTENCING ALTERNATIVE.—(1) The court, in imposing sentence in the circumstances described in paragraph (2), may designate the defendant as eligible for placement in a boot camp prison. The Bureau of Prisons shall determine whether a defendant so designated will be assigned to a boot camp prison.

"(2) A defendant may be designated as eligible for placement in boot camp prison if—

"(A) the defendant—

"(i) is under 25 years of age;

"(ii) has no prior conviction for which he or she has served more than 10 days incarceration; and

"(iii) has been convicted of an offense involving a controlled substance punishable under the Controlled Substances Act or the Controlled Substances Export and Import Act, or any other offense if the defendant, at the time of arrest or at any time thereafter, tested positive for the presence of a controlled substance in his or her blood or urine; and

"(B) the sentencing court finds that the defendant's total offense level under the Federal sentencing guidelines is level 15 or less.

"(3) If the Director of the Bureau of Prisons finds that an inmate placed in a boot camp prison pursuant to this subsection has willfully refused to comply with the conditions of confinement in the boot camp, the Director may transfer the inmate to any other correctional facility in the Federal prison system.

"(4) Successful completion of assignment to a boot camp shall constitute satisfaction of any period of active incarceration, but shall not affect any aspect of a sentence relating to a fine, restitution, or supervised release."

(d) STATE PRISONERS.—(1) The head of a State corrections department or the head's designee may apply for boot camp placement for any person who has been convicted of a criminal offense in that State, or who anticipates entering a plea of guilty of such offense, but who has not yet been sentenced. Such application shall be made to the Bureau of Prisons and shall be in the form designated by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons and shall contain a statement certified by the head of the State corrections department or the head's designee that at the time of sentencing the applicant is likely to be eligible for assignment to a boot camp pursuant to paragraph (2). The Bureau of Prisons shall respond to such applications within 30 days so that the sentencing court is aware of the result of the application at the time of sentencing. In responding to such applications, the Bureau of Prisons shall determine, on the basis of the availability of space, whether a defendant who becomes eligible for assignment to a boot camp prison at the time of sentencing will be so assigned.

(2) A person convicted of a State criminal offense shall be eligible for assignment to a boot camp if he or she—

(A) is under 25 years of age;

(B) has no prior conviction for which he or she has served more than 10 days incarceration;

(C) has been sentenced to a term of imprisonment that will be satisfied under the law of the sentencing State if the defendant successfully completes a term of not less than 90 days nor more than 120 days in a boot camp;

(D) has been designated by the sentencing court as eligible for assignment to a boot camp; and

(E) has been convicted of an offense involving a controlled substance (as defined in section 102 of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 802)), or any other offense if the defendant is eligible for assignment to a boot camp under State law.

(3) If the Director of the Bureau of Prisons finds that an inmate placed in a boot camp prison pursuant to this subsection has willfully refused to comply with the conditions of confinement in the boot camp, the Director may transfer the inmate back to the jurisdiction of the State sentencing court.

(4) Any State referring a prisoner to a boot camp shall reimburse the Bureau of Prisons for the full cost of the incarceration of the prisoner, except that if the prisoner successfully completes the boot camp program, the Bureau of Prisons shall return to the State 20 percent of the amount paid for that prisoner. The total amount returned to each State under this paragraph in each fiscal year shall be used by that State to provide the aftercare supervision and services required by paragraph (e).

(e) POST-RELEASE SUPERVISION.—(1) Any State seeking to refer a State prisoner to a boot camp prison shall submit to the Director of the Bureau of Prisons an aftercare plan setting forth the provisions that the State will make for the continued supervision of the prisoner following release. The aftercare plan shall also contain provisions for educational and vocational training and drug or other counseling and treatment where appropriate.

(2) The Bureau of Prisons shall develop an aftercare plan setting forth the provisions that will be made for the continued supervision of Federal prisoners following release. The aftercare plan shall also contain provisions for educational and vocational training and drug or other counseling and treatment where appropriate.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated $150,000,000 for fiscal year 1992, available until expended, of which not more than $12,500,000 shall be used to convert each closed military base to a boot camp prison and not more than $2,500,000 shall be used to operate each boot camp for one fiscal year. Such amounts shall be in addition to any other amounts authorized to be appropriated to the Bureau of Prisons.
