High Mobility Multipurpose Wheeled Vehicle (HMMWV)

The budget request included $96.8 million to procure 1,126 HMMWVs.

The House bill would support the budget request.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $41.0 million to support the production base, for a total of 2,350 vehicles, and an additional $25.0 million to procure an additional 233 up-armored HMMWVs (UAHMMWVs), for a total procurement of 360 in fiscal year 1997.

The House recedes.

The number of vehicles supported in the budget request reflects a significant reduction from previous years, despite the fact that there remains a valid requirement for these vehicles. The conferees understand that the minimum sustaining rate to maintain a viable supply of required vehicles is not achieved by the current budget request.

Additionally, the conferees are concerned about the number of UAHMMWVs being produced. In light of lessons learned in Bosnia and recognizing the importance of force protection, the conferees agree that more UAHMMWVs should be procured in order to meet the needs of the military services and maintain industrial production capacity at a minimum level.

The conferees agree to authorize $162.8 million for HMMWV vehicles.

Family of Heavy Tactical Vehicles (FHTV)

The budget request included $163.3 million to procure vehicles necessary to support modern and highly mobile combat units.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $33.0 million for the FHTV program.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $123.0 million for the FHTV program.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $83.0 million to the budget request to procure the heavy tactical vehicles, as indicated below:

	Dollars (M) Increase	Dollars (M) Authorized
Heavy Expanded Mobility Tactical Transporter (HEMTT)	33.0	33.0
Palletized Loading System (PLS)	50.0	127.4

Enhanced Position Location Reporting System (EPLRS)

The budget request included $48.0 million to procure this critical battlefield system. The EPLRS provides real-time data distribution and serves to enhance situational awareness.

The House bill would authorize $25.0 million to procure additional EPLRS units with installation kits.

The Senate amendment would authorize $20.0 million to procure 485 additional EPLRS units with installation kits.

The conferees agree to authorize $68.0 million for a total procurement in fiscal year 1997 of 1285 systems.

SINGARS family

The budget request included $297.5 million to procure 25,616 ground radios, 593 airborne radios, and 13,405 data transfer devices.

The House bill would support the budget request.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $43.3 million for SINGARS radios and installation kits.

The conferees understand that some prior year funding has been withdrawn by the Department of Defense due to internal budget decisions. These reductions have had an adverse impact on the fielding schedule. The conferees believe the original schedule should be maintained and are encouraged to note that an investment of an additional $30.0 million would procure approximately 4,500 radios and save $10.0 million.

The conferees agree to a total of $327.5 million for SINGARS in fiscal year 1997.

Army communications

The budget request included $4.1 million to support echelon above corps (EAC) communications activities.

The House bill would support the budget request.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $40.0 million.

The House recedes.

The Army continues to modernize the Area Common User System and to transition to the Warfighter Information Network to capitalize on advances made in information technology. The conferees understand that a shortfall exists to continue this work in fiscal year 1997 and therefore agree to authorize $44.1 million for this purpose.

Forward Area Air Defense (FAAD) Ground-Based Sensor

The budget request included $51.2 million to procure 16 key radar-based sensors for forward deployed Army units.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $17.6 million for FAAD Ground-Based Sensors.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $29.2 million.

The House recedes.

The FAAD sensor serves to acquire targets and alert forces of the proximity of fixed wing aircraft, rotary wing aircraft, unmanned aerial vehicles and cruise missiles. The conferees are aware that the current production rate is uneconomical and prevents this key force protection device from reaching the field as soon as required.

The conferees agree to authorize $68.8 million for FAAD sensors.

Night vision devices

The budget request included $111.9 million to continue fielding critical night vision devices that will allow the Army to "own the night."

The House bill would support the budget request.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $134.1 million for night vision devices.

The conferees agree to authorize the following increases: $24.5 million to fill the requirement for approximately 1,000 thermal weapon sights (TWS) for Special Operations Forces (SOF); $24.5 million to procure approximately 7,500 night vision goggles (NVG) for critical combat units in the SOF and other light units; $9.1 million for aiming lights, including $4.1 million to procure 19,260 AN/PAQ-4B&4C aiming lights to fill the modified infantry basis of issue plan and upgrade existing lights and $5.0 million to procure 5,100 AN/PEQ-2 illuminator/aiming lights for the Army and 2,500 devices for the Marine Corps; and $8.9 million for initial spares and facilitization of total package fielding for these devices.

The conferees agree to authorize $178.9 million for the procurement of night vision equipment.

Standardized Integrated Command Post System (SICPS)

The budget request included $26.3 million to procure tents, shelters and kits for SICPS.

The House bill would support the budget request.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $12.7 million for the SICPS.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $10.3 million to buy the shelters required through fiscal year 1997 and to ensure that this fielding occurs on schedule.

The conferees agree to authorize $36.6 million for new shelters.

Total Distribution System (TDS)

The budget request included $4.4 million for Army logistics requirements to distribute, track, and account for supplies and equipment in peacetime and in war.

The House bill would support the budget request.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $6.0 million.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $3.0 million.

The conferees support the timely fielding of logistics support equipment and note the corresponding increase in efficiency and cost savings in managing inventory. The TDS will enhance logistics operations and should be fielded throughout the Army as soon as practicable.

The conferees agree to authorize 47.4 million to support logistical enhancements.

STAMIS Tactical Computers (STACOMP)

The budget request included $27.2 million for computer equipment.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $42.0 million.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $30.5 million.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $25.0 million for computer hardware and software enhancements necessary to meet Army efforts to keep pace with rapidly changing technology.

Force Provider

The budget request included $11.7 million for the Force Provider program.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $12.8 million for the program.

The Senate amendment would support the budget request.

The conferees agree to authorize $18.1 million for Force Provider.

Generators and associated equipment

The budget request included $13.2 million for generators and associated equipment.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $58.0 million to procure generators.

The Senate amendment would support the budget request.

The House recedes.

Training devices, non-system

The budget request included $82.7 million for training devices.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $1.5 million to procure electronically scored targeting systems for the U.S. Army marksmanship training unit.

The Senate amendment would support the budget request.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees agree to authorize $84.2 million for training devices.

overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 contained an authorization of $5,882.0 million for Aircraft Procurement, Navy in the Department of Defense. The House bill would authorize $6,669.0 million. The Senate amendment would authorize $6,911.4 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $7,034.9 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

AV-8B remanufacture

The budget request included $282.0 million to procure 10 remanufactured AV-8B aircraft and $22.9 million for advance procurement of 12 aircraft in fiscal year 1998. The planned procurement of 12 remanufactured Harrier aircraft in fiscal year 1997, which was reflected in last year's budget request, was reduced to 10 because of resource constraints. The Harrier II Plus configuration provides day/night/adverse weather improvements to the AV-8B aircraft.

The House bill would authorize an additional $112.0 million to procure four more AV-8B remanufactured aircraft in order to accelerate the fielding of this much-needed and safety-related improvement.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $68.0 million to procure an additional two aircraft and the necessary integrated logistics support for the AV-8B program that the future years defense program currently would defer until fiscal years 1999 and 2000.

The House recedes.

Flight simulators

The budget request included no funding for flight simulators for various Marine Corps aircraft.

The Senate amendment would support the use of flight simulators for Marine Corps training by authorizing an increase of $60.0 million to procure or upgrade simulators for the V-22, AV-8B, and CH-53D.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

F-14 aircraft modifications

The budget request included $232.0 million for F-14 modifications, of which $13.9 million was for continued operation and maintenance of the F-14 tactical air reconnaissance pod system (TARPS).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $2.6 million to fund continued TARPS reliability/supportability upgrades.

The Senate amendment would authorize the request.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees are aware of the continued reliance on TARPS by the Navy and accordingly agree to authorize the addition of $2.6 million for TARPS upgrades.

E-2C airborne early warning aircraft

The budget request included $169.2 million for procurement of two E-2C early warning aircraft.

The House bill would increase the requested amount by $74.0 million to purchase one additional aircraft.

The Senate amendment would increase the requested amount by $139.0 million for two additional aircraft.

The Navy resumed production in fiscal year 1995 of the E-2C, with the intent of purchasing four aircraft per year for a total of 36 aircraft. That planned acquisition rate has been reduced from four aircraft to two in the budget request for fiscal year 1997. The conferees understand that procuring two more E-2C aircraft would lead to a savings of $13.2 million per aircraft. Accordingly, the conferees recommend an increase of $139.0 million to acquire a total of four E-2C aircraft in fiscal year 1997.

Helicopter crash attenuating seats

The budget request included no funding for the procurement of crash attenuating seats for the H-53 helicopter.

Section 136 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 directed the initiation of a program to provide crash attenuating troop seats for H-53 helicopters, using commercially developed, energy absorbing seats. As a result of this provision, the Department of Defense initiated efforts to define the requirements for a competition for procuring such seats as non-developmental items (NDI). The necessary program definition has been completed and the program is nearing release of the standards needed to begin a full and open competition to procure such seats.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $10.0 million for the competitive procurement of NDI crash attenuating seats for the H-53 helicopter.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $14.0 million for the competitive procurement of NDI crash attenuating seats for the H-53 helicopter.

The House recedes.

EP-3 modifications

The budget request included $35.4 million for EP-3 modifications.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $10.0 million to reinstate a level-of-effort upgrade program for those aspects of overall system capabilities not uniquely addressed by centrally-directed, joint development programs. The House bill would also include a new procurement funding line for procurement of the lightweight environmentally sealed parachute assembly (LESPA) and authorize an increase of $3.8 million for LESPA. A portion of this increase would be for support of the EP-3 aircraft.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to an increase of $1.0 million for procurement of LESPA.

P-3 intelligence support

The budget request included $17.6 million within the P-3 aircraft modifications line to procure non-developmental, commercial off-the-shelf (COTS), roll-on/roll-off signals intelligence (SIGINT) sensors for use aboard P-3C aircraft.

The House bill and Senate amendment would not authorize the $17.6 million included in the budget request for the procurement of COTS SIGINT sensors in fiscal year 1997.

The conferees are concerned that the Navy has not developed a sound operational concept for employing the SIGINT capability that it proposes to add to the P-3C aircraft. Nor is it clear that the Navy's proposal relates well to the capability already provided by its existing fleet of EP-3 aircraft. Important questions that should be answered to address the conferees' concerns include:

(1) To what degree would P-3C aircraft equipped with such a COTS SIGINT package be interoperable with other SIGINT platforms? and

(2) Are sufficient specially trained personnel available to support both existing SIGINT systems and this one as well?

P-3C modifications

The budget request included $34.7 million for the P-3C anti-surface warfare improvement program (AIP). This amount would procure one P-3C AIP kit and additional training equipment, support equipment, and logistics support for the P-3C AIP program.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $87.0 million for the procurement of 11 additional P-3C AIP kits and associated equipment and support in order to maintain the acquisition schedule requested by the operational commanders in chief (CINCs) and to procure the kits at a more cost effective rate.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount for P-3 modifications but would include a new procurement funding line for procurement of the lightweight environmentally sealed parachute assembly (LESPA) and authorize an increase of $3.8 million for LESPA. A portion of this increase would be for support of the P-3C aircraft.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $61.0 million for the procurement of seven additional P-3C AIP kits and associated equipment and support. Reporting requirements for the P-3C AIP program associated with submission of the fiscal year 1998 budget request are contained in the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267). The conferees also agree to authorize an increase of $2.8 million for LESPA procurement.

Lightweight environmentally sealed parachute assembly

The budget request included no funding for procurement of (LESPA) units.

The House bill would establish a new funding line for LESPA and authorize an increase of $3.8 million for procurement of LESPA units.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $3.8 million for LESPA but distribute this increase to existing programs as discussed elsewhere in this statement of managers.

Airborne self protection jammer (ASPJ)

The Budget request did not include funds for acquisition of the ASPJ.

The House bill would add $50.0 million to Aircraft Procurement Navy (APN) line 45, electronics counter-measures (ECM) equipment.

The Senate amendment would add $50 million for 36 sets of ASPJ to APN 5 line 24, F-18 series modifications.

The conferees agree to provide an additional 36 sets of ASPJ as a one-time acquisition for contingency deployments, realizing that the ASPJ system is available now and that the integrated defensive electronic countermeasures (IDECM) system is under development and will not be available until fiscal year 2002. The conferees recommend an increase of $47.9 million in line 45 to buy 36 ASPJ systems, including aircraft interface units (racks), spares and additional integrated logistic support for three deployed F/A-18C/D squadrons.

The conferees recognize that the Navy is developing IDECM to serve as the long-term ECM system for the F/A-18E/F, and expect the navy to upgrade the 36 sets into an IDECM configuration as soon as technically feasible. The conferees encourage the Navy to explore long-term solutions for the F/A-18C/D.

The conferees continue to support the IDECM program. The procurement of 36 ASPJ systems is intended to provide a contingency response capability, and does not reflect the conferees commitment to additional procurement of ASPJ systems or to restarting series production for U.S. government customers at this time.

Overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 contained an authorization of $1,400.4 million for Weapons Procurement, Navy in the Department of Defense. The House bill would authorize $1,305.2 million. The Senate amendment would authorize $1,513.3 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $1,345.4 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

Tomahawk land attack missile

The budget request included $88.5 million for the procurement of 120 Tomahawk missiles and no funding for the remanufacture of Block IIC Tomahawk missiles to the Block IIIC configuration. The budget request also contained $15.8 million for recertification of the Tomahawk Block IIC missiles with maintenance due dates in fiscal years 1996 and 1997.

The Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267) noted that tactical use of the Tomahawk missile has increased at a time when budget reductions have reduced procurement below previously planned levels and resulted in inadequate funding for a required five-year recertification of existing Block IIC missiles. As a consequence, the Navy has been forced to rely on the practice of transferring missiles from redeploying ships to those that are preparing to deploy. Funding at the budget request level would be inadequate to permit the Navy to satisfy its deployment loadout requirements after fiscal year 1996. The Senate report also noted that funding for development of the Tomahawk Block IV missile has been reduced substantially from the planned level reported in the fiscal year 1996 budget request, thereby delaying this important program.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $32.0 million above the budget request for the procurement of new Block IIIC missiles, $14.4 million for remanufacture of Block IIC missiles to the Block IIIC configuration, $40.6 million for the recertification of existing Block IIC missiles, and $29.0 million in PE 24229N for continued development of the Tomahawk Block IV missile.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $14.4 million for remanufacture of Block IIC missiles to the Block IIIC configuration and $40.6 million for the recertification of existing Block IIC missiles.

Standard missile procurement

The budget request included $197.5 million for the procurement of Standard missiles for the Navy.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $40.0 million above the budget request for the procurement of additional SM2 Block IV missiles to help stabilize the production base for the Block IV variant and to support ballistic missile defense development options.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

Overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 contained an authorization of $4,911.9 million for Shipbuilding and Conversion Procurement, Navy in the Department of Defense. The House bill would authorize $5,479.9 million. The Senate amendment would authorize $6,567.3 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $6,193.3 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

Oceanographic survey ship

The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 authorized $15.6 million of advance procurement for an oceanographic survey ship, TAGS-64. The budget request did not contain the additional increment needed to fully fund this ship. The future years defense program would not procure this ship until fiscal year 1999. Procurement of this ship through an existing contract option, to satisfy a well documented requirement, would result in substantial cost savings.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $54.0 million to the budget request to complete procurement of TAGS-64.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $54.4 million to the budget request to complete procurement of TAGS-64.

The House recedes.

SWATH oceanographic research ship

The budget request included no funding for the procurement of oceanographic research ships.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase to the budget request of $45.0 million to provide the additional funding needed to build a small water plane area, twin-hulled (SWATH) oceanographic research vessel based on the TAGOS-23 class of surveillance ships. In order to resolve a documented backlog of additional oceanographic survey work the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267) would direct the Navy to negotiate a time sharing agreement with the university or institute that will operate the new SWATH oceanographic vessel, whereby a certain portion of the ship's annual operating time would be dedicated to meeting the Navy's oceanographic survey needs.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

Fast patrol craft

The budget request included no funds for a fast patrol craft.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $20.0 million to acquire an advanced fast patrol craft for operations in littoral waters. The report accompanying the House bill (H. Rept. 104-563) noted the need for such craft to avoid the current Navy practice of placing cruisers and destroyers in areas where they are vulnerable to shore-based cruise missiles, mines, and quiet diesel submarines. Such a fast patrol craft could provide a highly capable, multi-mission adjunct to the Navy's current fleet.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

Outfitting

The budget request included $92.0 million for outfitting of new construction Navy ships and conversions.

The House bill and Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to a decrease of $44.0 million from the budget request for outfitting of new construction Navy ships and conversions.

Post delivery

The budget request included $141.9 million for post delivery of new construction ships and conversions.

The House bill would reduce the budget request amount by $10.0 million.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

Overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 contained an authorization of $0 million for Ammunition Procurement, Navy and Marine Corps in the Department of Defense. The House bill would authorize $599.2 million. The Senate amendment would authorize $0 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $293.2 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

Reactor power units

The budget request included $223.4 million for the procurement of reactors and associated equipment for nuclear powered Navy ships.

The House bill would reduce the budget request amount by $10.0 million.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to reduce the budget request amount by $30.0 million. Additional funds authorized for advance procurement of components for nuclear powered submarines will compensate for this reduction.

Reactor components

The budget request included $185.6 million for reactor components.

The House bill would reduce the budget request by $2.5 million.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

AN/BPS-16 submarine navigation radar

The budget request included no funding for the procurement of AN/BPS-16 submarine radar navigation sets or mast assemblies.

The Navy has been procuring a commercial off-the-shelf (COTS) variant of the AN/BPS-16 radar navigation set and its associated mast assembly for installation on new construction submarines and for backfit on SSN-688 class submarines that will remain in service in the fleet. Procurement of the COTS variant has resulted in a 40 percent savings over a comparable system built to military specifications. For SSN-688 class submarines, the AN/BPS-16 replaces an existing radar system that has proven unreliable in service and is labor intensive to maintain. Installation of the AN/BPS-16 will improve the operational safety of the SSN-688 fleet by providing a state-of-the-art, all-weather radar for navigating into and out of ports and for performing tactical operations at sea in adverse weather conditions. Procurement of additional AN/BPS-16 radar sets in fiscal year 1997 will also avoid a production break and associated start-up costs for the procurement of additional radar sets currently included in the future years defense program.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $16.0 million for the procurement of additional AN/BPS-16 radar sets to complete the backfit of the AN/BPS-16 commercial off-the-shelf radar into the SSN-688 class submarine fleet.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $16.9 million for the procurement of additional AN/BPS-16 radar sets to complete the backfit of the AN/BPS-16 commercial off-the-shelf radar into the SSN-688 class submarine fleet.

The House recedes.

Mine warfare

The budget request included $22.9 million for the minesweeping replacement program.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $64.0 million to accelerate several of the Navy's highest priority mine countermeasures (MCM) programs and sustain the improvements that have occurred since Desert Storm. A discussion of the rationale for this increase is contained in the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267).

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $25.8 million to accelerate the following MCM programs:

Item:

	Funding ($ millions)
SQ-32/SLQ-48/SSQ-94/SYQ-13
Spares	6.3

	Funding ($ millions)
Integrated Combat Weapons System (ICWS)	17.8
MCM Battle Space Profiler (BSP)	1.7

Inertial navigation, information, and ship control system

The House bill would authorize an increase of $32.0 million for procurement and installation of four identical integrated navigation, information, and ship control systems on CG-47 class cruisers.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to an increase of $32.0 million for procurement and installation of integrated navigation, condition assessment, and damage control systems on CG-47 class cruisers. Procurement of standard monitoring and control systems is also authorized, subject to a successful operational evaluation as part of the Navy's Smart Ship initiative, which is discussed elsewhere in this statement of managers.

The conferees are aware that the Navy has an urgent requirement to modernize, automate, and fully integrate bridge and machinery monitoring and control systems on its cruisers and other surface ships, employing commercial off-the-shelf, military qualified systems. Procurement and installation of systems such as an integrated bridge system, an integrated condition assessment system, and a damage control system for surface ships could provide major improvements in performance, lead to reductions in crew size, and reduce the cost of operations. Additional crew reduction may also be achieved through the acquisition of an improved machinery monitoring and control system.

Joint tactical terminal

The budget request included $2.4 million for procurement of the joint tactical terminal (JTT).

The House bill would authorize an additional $11.0 million for the immediate procurement of JTT terminals for AEGIS, amphibious, and flagship surface vessels. The report to accompany the House bill to authorize intelligence programs for fiscal year 1977 (H. Rept. 104-578, Part 1) expressed the view that there is an urgent need to expeditiously procure the functional intelligence support capability provided by the JTT for these ships as soon as possible in order to ensure interoperability between various intelligence producers and users.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Shipboard integrated communications system

The budget request included no funding for procurement of an integrated communications system for installation aboard aircraft carriers.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $4.5 million above the budget request specifically for the competitive procurement of an existing integrated communications system that can be installed aboard aircraft carriers and other fleet units without delay.

The Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267) expressed concern at the Navy's lack of progress, despite congressional prodding for over two years, on procurement of a commercial off-the-shelf non-developmental integrated communications system to replace obsolete systems now installed on Navy ships. While the Navy has made great strides in increasing the capability and flexibility of communications systems that deliver information to fleet units, a similar emphasis on the internal management of that information aboard ship has been lacking. In a report submitted to Congress on February 12, 1996, the Navy acknowledged that, while current aircraft carrier interior integrated communications systems are outdated and there is little integration communications systems are outdated and there is little integration between systems within the ship, the Navy is still in the process of defining a baseline system architecture that can meet current demands.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

Challenge Athena

The budget request included no funding for the Chief of Naval Operation's special project Challenge Athena. This budget decision was made despite a series of favorable reports by the Navy's operational commanders on the significant contributions that Challenge Athena has made to the success of their operational deployments.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $41.7 million above the budget request for Challenge Athena, $14.7 million for procurement and $27.0 million for operation of the system.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to authorize a total increase of $28.7 million above the budget request for Challenge Athens, $14.7 million for procurement of Challenge Athena equipment, and $14.0 million for system operation.

Global broadcast service

The budget request included $113.2 million for launch services for UHF follow-on (UFO) satellites 8, 9, and 10. These satellites will support UHF, EHF, and global broadcast service (GBS) communications. However, the budget request did not contain funding for the ground and sea-based equipment needed to implement the GBS capability.

To ensure that the diverse requirements of the Navy's GBS are met in a complementary manner, the Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $50.0 million above the budget request as follows:

- (1) $39.0 million for the procurement and installation of shipboard GBS satellite terminals;
- (2) $7.0 million for the procurement and installation of shore GBS satellite terminals; and
- (3) $4.5 million to provide for launch services for UFO satellites 8, 9, and 10.

The House bill would authorize the requests amount.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $10.3 million for the procurement and installation of shipboard GBS satellite terminals.

Sonobuoys

The budget request included $22.7 million for the procurement of AN/SSQ-62 sonobuoys and no funding for the procurement of AN/SSQ-53E sonobuoys. It also contained $5.2 million in PE 63254N for development and demonstration of advanced anti-submarine warfare sensors and processors, including $2.5 million for the advanced deployable low frequency projector (ADLFP). The ADLFP is a candidate for the active project source of the advanced explosive echo ranging sonobuoy.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $17.0 million for the procurement of additional AN/SSQ-62 sonobuoys. It would also authorize an increase of $2.5 million in PE 63254N for the development and demonstration of risk reduction technologies for the ADLFP to insure that shallow water performance requirements are met and system cost is minimized.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $12.2 million for the procurement of additional AN/SSQ-62 sonobuoys and $31.8 million for the procurement of AN/SSQ-53E sonobuoys. It would also authorize $2.5 million in PE 63254N and $2.5 million in PE 64261N for development of the ADLFP and advanced multi-static processing (AMSP).

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $12.2 million for procurement of AN/SSQ-62 sonobuoys, $18.0 million for procurement of AN/SSQ-53E sonobuoys, and $2.5 million in PE 63254N for development of the ADLFP.

Airborne laser mine detection systems

The budget request included no funding for the procurement of airborne laser mine detection systems.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $25.0 million for the procurement of three Magic Lantern systems and associated spares.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $25.0 million for the procurement of the winner of a competition between two airborne laser mine detection systems, ATD-111 and Magic Lantern.

The conferees agree to authorize the requested amount.

Rolling air frame missile launcher for LSF-52

In fiscal year 1996, Congress authorized and appropriated $20.0 million to install the ship self-defense system (SSDS) MK 1 and the rolling airframe missile (RAM) system in LSD-52, an amphibious ship that is now under construction. This amount was insufficient to fully cover both the hardware procurement and ship installation costs. Consequently, the Navy was unable to purchase one of the two RAM launchers needed for a complete equipment suite. The budget request did not contain funding for this launcher.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $5.0 million above the budget request for the procurement of one RAM launcher for LSD-52.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

AEGIS support equipment

The budget request included $30.4 million for AEGIS support equipment.

The House bill would authorize an additional $3.0 million to procure flexible wearable computers for deployment on AEGIS ships as well as other ships that have interactive electronic technical manuals (IETM) available.

The report to accompany the House bill (H. Rept. 104-563) noted that the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives is aware that the Navy is investigating the possibility of hosting the IETMs on flexible wearable computers. Such a system would allow repair technicians to perform their tasks with hands-free access to the IETM maintenance information, while affording them maximum mobility to operate in confined spaces. The additional funds proposed by the House would permit the Navy to gain at-sea experience with the combined IETM/flexible wearable computer system.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Afloat planning system

The budget request included $1.1 million for the Tomahawk afloat planning system (APS). This amount would be for the installation of systems purchased in prior years.

The APS successfully underwent extensive operational test and evaluation in 1994, and production system installations have been completed on the USS Carl Vinson (CVN-70) and the USS George Washington (CVN-73). The system is being procured for installation in the Navy's aircraft carriers and for rapid deployment, when required, to meet the strike planning needs of a joint task force commander. It compliments the planning of Tomahawk land attack missile (TLAM) missions by shore-based cruise missile support activities by giving an afloat or deployed commander the ability to modify existing, pre-planned missions or plan new ones. It also provides the centerpiece of the joint service imagery processing system-Navy (JSIPS-N), a system that provides deployed planners real-time capability to receive, process, analyze and exploit tactical sensor imagery. A diversion of funds from this program in fiscal year 1996 and limiting funding in fiscal year 1997 threaten to severely disrupt the production line, thereby increasing unit costs dramatically and delaying the introduction of a capability that the Navy states will significantly improve its warfighting capability.

Noting that the APS program's development and production efforts have remained on schedule and within cost, and have met or exceeded all specifications, the House bill would authorize an additional $10.0 million to support continued fielding of the APS.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $23.0 million above the budget request for the procurement and installation of additional APS suites in order that the Navy could satisfy its full requirement for them in a cost effective manner.

The Senate recedes.

NULKA decoy development

The budget request included $4.4 million for continued development of the NULKA active countermeasures decoy. It also contained $12.0 million to procure NULKA decoys, launch subsystems, and training systems.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $9.0 million for procurement of additional NULKA rounds and launch subsystems and for production improvements. The Senate amendment would also authorize an increase of $4.0 million in PE 64755N to improve the performance of the NULKA decoy in the presence of friendly emitters and to counter modern threat missiles.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

Elevated causeway (modular)

The budget request included no funding for expanding an existing elevated causeway (modular) (ELCAS(M)) prototype from a length of 2,000 feet to the 3,000 feet needed to satisfy logistics-over-the-shore (LOTS) operational requirements.

Expeditionary logistics support of the Marine Corps or of a joint force could require assault follow-on echelon or other LOTS off-load in a variety of unimproved, adverse beach environments or degraded ports. The ELCAS(M), which the Navy could rapidly install, provides an elevated pier that overcomes high surf conditions, shallow beach gradients, and other hydrographic conditions that inhibit direct shoreline cargo discharge. The Navy has included funding for completion of two ELCAS(M) systems in the future years defense program. However, the Navy would not complete the current ELCAS(M) system until fiscal year 1999 because of budget constraints.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $6.7 million above the budget request to expand the existing prototype system to a full 3,000 foot operational length, and also to acquire the ancillary support and installation equipment, such as lighting, piling, and safety lines, necessary to make it fully operational.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

The Navy budget request also included funding for a program to develop and field a system to meet the amphibious cargo beaching lighter requirement. Procurement for the system would not begin until fiscal year 2001. The Navy has an operational requirement for an amphibious cargo beaching lighter (or barge) that can operate in sea state 3 (SS3). To meet this requirement, the Navy must be able to assemble floating pontoons into larger sections in sea states reaching and exceeding SS3. The Navy designed the ELCAS(M) system to be able to operate sections of the system as a lighter in sea states up to SS3. However, the current design for the ELCAS(M) connector system does not allow the Navy to join the sections into larger units in sea states this high.

The conferees have been informed that the contractor building the ELCAS(M) system has also developed a connector system that could be operated under SS3 conditions. The conferees direct the Navy to prepare a report, and submit it to the congressional defense committees with its fiscal year 1998 budget request, that provides the Navy's analysis of the potential of using this new connector system in conjunction with the current ELCAS(M) sections to meet the amphibious cargo beaching lighter requirement.

Oceanographic equipment

The budget request included no procurement funding for perishable equipment such as fathometers, global positioning satellite receivers, recording equipment, and sidescan sonars to conduct ocean surveys.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $6.0 million above the budget request to provide additional funding for procurement of oceanographic survey equipment.

The Senate recedes.

Overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 contained an authorization of $555.5 million for Marine Corps Procurement, Navy in the Department of Defense. The House bill would authorize $546.7 million. The Senate amendment would authorize $816.1 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $560.1 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

Intelligence upgrades

The budget request included $26.4 million for procurement of intelligence support equipment for the Marine Corps.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $5.8 million for the procurement of additional intelligence support equipment.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $14.6 million for the procurement of additional intelligence support equipment. The Senate recedes.

Joint task force deployable communications support

The budget request included no funding to provide a deployable satellite communications system for use by a deployed Marine Corps joint task force headquarters.

Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $1.7 million to procure such a system for the Marine Corps.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Tactical electronic reconnaissance processing and evaluation system

The budget request included $1.0 million for procurement of support for the Marine Corps tactical electronic reconnaissance processing and evaluation system (TERPES), a system that is currently supporting joint operations in Bosnia.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $1.1 million to improve the interoperability of TERPES with the global command and control system (GCCS) and tactical air mission planning system (TAMPS).

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Marine Corps combat operations centers

The budget request did not include funding to upgrade the capability of the Marine Corps' seven deployable combat operations centers (COC) and six fixed command centers (CC) to improve their data capacity and make them fully interoperable with the other services.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $7.4 million above the budget request to upgrade the capability of these Marine Corps' COCs and CCs.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Telecommunications infrastructure

The budget request included no funding to upgrade the communications network at the Marine Corps base at Camp Pendleton.

The Marine Corps has been involved in an ongoing effort to upgrade existing telecommunications infrastructure at Marine Corps installations. While the budget request contained funding to support such infrastructure upgrades, it fell short of providing the resources necessary to upgrade Camp Pendleton. Establishing a high speed fiber optic backbone and switching system at Camp Pendleton would meet existing base requirements and facilities future expansion to meet new requirements.

The House bill and Senate amendment would authorize $18.8 million to upgrade the telecommunications infrastructure at Camp Pendleton.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $18.8 million to provide a more efficient, state-of-the-art telecommunications infrastructure at Camp Pendleton.

Marine Corps common end user computer equipment

The budget request included no funding for Marine Corps common end user computer equipment (CEUCE).

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $9.8 million above the budget for the procurement of additional Marine Corps CEUCE.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Marine Corps mobility enhancements

The budget request included $1.3 million to procure 20 M870A2 lowbed trailers and an additional $1.5 million to procure 261 International Standard Organization (ISO) beds for transporting fuel and water for the Marine Corps.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $28.3 million for procurement of additional M870A2 lowbed trailers and ISO beds for the Marine Corps.

The Senate recedes.

Marine Corps multiple integrated laser engagement system

The budget request included no funding for procurement of the multiple integrated laser engagement system (MILES) for the Marine Corps.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $10.6 million to accelerate fielding of the first two battalion sets.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $49.0 million to complete the Marine Corps procurement of MILES.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $24.0 million of MILES procurement.

Combat vehicle appended trainer (CVAT)

The budget request included no funding for the development of new, state-of-the-art, full crew mission simulators for Marine Corps armored vehicle systems.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $9.2 million to take advantage of the increased utility and reduced training costs offered by such simulators.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 contained an authorization of $5,779.2 million for Aircraft Procurement, Air Force in the Department of Defense. The House bill would authorize $7,271.9 million. The Senate amendment would authorize $7,023.5 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $6,764.4 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

Title I - Procurement (Dollars in Thousands)

C-130J

The budget request included $62.9 million for one C-130J replacement aircraft for the Air Force.

The House bill would authorize $429.0 million for eight Air Force C-130Js, an increase of four WC-130Js and three airborne battlefield command and control center aircraft, in addition to the one C-130J requested. Additional recommended increases to the administration request included $209.2 million for four KC-130J tanker aircraft for the Marine Corps and $105.0 million for two Air National Guard C-130Js.

The Senate amendment would authorize a total of $267.4 million for four Air Force WC-130Js and $284.4 million for six C-130Js for the Air National Guard.

The conferees acknowledge the continued need to modernize tactical airlift and express concern over the Department's meager request of only one C-130 replacement aircraft. Consequently, the conferees authorize a total of $660.3 million for 13 C-130J aircraft as follows:

- (1) $52.3 million for the one requested Air Force C-130J;
- (2) $209.2 million for four WC-130J's;
- (3) $209.2 million for four KC-130J's for the Marine Corps; and
- (4) $189.6 million for four C-130Js for the Air National Guard.

Joint Surveillance Target Attack Radar System (JSTARS)

The budget request included $417.8 million for two E-8C aircraft, $111.1 million for advanced procurement for two E-8Cs in fiscal year 1998, and $30.2 million for initial spares. Trainers and support equipment were included in the procurement. Funding in the amount of $207.3 million for follow on development and testing was also requested in PE 64770F.

The House bill would increase the requested amount by $225.0 million for one additional aircraft.

The Senate amendment would increase the requested amount by $210.0 million for procurement and an additional $30.0 million for initial spares.

The conferees agree to increase the requested amount by $210.0 million for the acquisition of one additional JSTARS aircraft.

The conferees note that the JSTARS platform and associated ground stations are currently contained in the Air Force and Army tactical intelligence and related activities (TIARA) budget aggregations. While the conferees realize there are direct intelligence applications of the JSTARS associated Ground Support Modules (GSM) and the follow on Common Ground Stations (CGS), they note that the JSTARS aircraft is a direct battle management and targeting system, not an intelligence system. The JSTARS moving target indicator (MTI) radar system provides critical data to the operational and intelligence communities, and so could be considered within the TIARA budget aggregation. Accordingly, the conferees agree the associated ground stations are direct multi-source intelligence support applications and may be appropriately considered part of the entire intelligence support architecture and continue to be funded within TIARA aggregation.

B-1B Conventional mission upgrade program

The budget request for B-1B modifications was $84.4 million, and $220.9 million for research and development in PE64226F.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $15.0 million to the budget request for B-1B bomber modifications to accelerate competitive procurement of precision guided munitions (PGM) for the B-1B fleet, and $57.0 million to procure conventional bomb modules. The House bill would also increase the budget request by $8.3 million for research and development for defensive system upgrades.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $56.5 million in procurement for conventional bomb modules and an increase of $48.0 million in research and development as follows:

- (1) $25.0 million for the bomber virtual umbilical device (BVUD);
- (2) $10.0 million for defensive systems upgrades; and
- (3) $13.0 million for data links.

The conferees are discouraged by the slow pace of conventional PGM integration for the B-1B. Although additional funding was provided in fiscal year 1996 to accelerate arming of the B-1B bomber force with Joint Direct Attack Munitions and other PGM capability, the conferees are not aware of any significant progress toward this objective. Consequently, the conferees authorize an increase of $82.0 million to the procurement request for B-1B modifications as follows:

- (1) $25.0 million to accelerate competitive procurement of PGM; and
- (2) $57.0 million to procure conventional bomb modules.

The conferees also agree to an increase to the budget request of $8.3 million for defensive systems upgrade program in PE64226F.

E-3 Airborne Warning and Control Systems (AWACS)

The budget request did not include funds for the re-engining of E-3 AWACS.

The House bill would authorize an additional $64.2 million in PE 27417F for reliability, maintainability and re-engining initiatives approved by the Secretary of Defense that could begin in fiscal year 1997.

The Senate amendment would increase the request by $109.0 million in Aircraft Procurement, Air Force to begin the re-engining of the AWACS aircraft.

The conferees agree to authorize an additional $34.9 million in research and development funding, for a total of $92.5 million, to initiate re-engining of AWACS.

Satellite communications terminals

The budget request contained $14.8 million for modification of in service aircraft.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The Senate amendment would increase the requested amount by $21.2 million for procurement of demand assigned multiple access (DAMA) ultra-high frequency (UHF) satellite communications airborne terminals.

The conferees agree to authorize an additional $20.3 million in aircraft procurement funding to begin procuring UHF airborne DAMA terminals. The conferees understand that additional funds will be required in the out years to complete this effort and expect the Air Force to program sufficient funding in future budget requests.

Defense Airborne Reconnaissance Program Procurement

Procurement for the Defense Airborne Reconnaissance Program (DARP) is contained in a number of procurement lines, distributed among the individual services and the defense-wide procurement account.

- The budget request included:
- (1) $66.2 million in Aircraft Procurement, Air Force (APAF) line 59;
 - (2) $150.7 million in APAF, line 70; and
 - (3) $168.9 million in Procurement, Defense-wide (PDW), line 7.

The House bill would provide an additional $210.3 million in APAF line 59, a reduction of $50.0 million in APAF line 70, and an addition of $80.0 million in PDW line 7.

The Senate amendment would provide an addition of $182.2 million to APAF line 59, authorize the budget request for APAF line 70, and provide an additional $8.0 million for PDW line 7.

The budget request, details of the adjustments in the House bill and the Senate amendment, and the final conference agreement, are summarized in the table below:

The conferees view with concern the lack of clarity in the display of DARP spending and have included provisions elsewhere in this bill requiring the Defense Airborne Reconnaissance Office (DARO) to provide improved budget presentations in future years.

AIRCRAFT PROCUREMENT, AIR FORCE, LINE 59

The conferees agree to an increase of $219.3 million above the budget request for the following purposes:

- (1) $39.3 million for an additional Rivet Joint (RJ) aircraft;
- (2) $20.0 million for RJ modifications;
- (3) $6.0 million for Combat Sent modifications;
- (4) $145.0 million re-engining RC-135 aircraft; and
- (5) $9.0 million for SR-71 modifications.

Rivet Joint fleet modifications

The conferees acknowledge the need for consistent level-of-effort funding to improve these intelligence support aircraft in response to the rapid, and often unpredictable, improvements in threat technologies. Accordingly, the conferees expect the Department to provide funds for level-of-effort upgrades in future budget requests. While the conferees support upgrades based on platform-specific missions, they are skeptical of multi-functional type developmental upgrades and will closely monitor the Department's effort to coordinate service efforts and ensure compliance of such upgrades with the overall architecture.

Rivet Joint technology transfer

The conferees encourage the Air Force to move forward with a near-term, cost effective program to transfer the mature, medium wave infrared sensor technology from the Cobra Ball aircraft to the Rivet Joint fleet. Such a program would offer the option of early deployment in support of theater missile defense improvements. This transfer could provide significant improvement to the Department's capabilities for long range surveillance, warning, rapid cueing for attack operations and predicting impact points.

AIRCRAFT PROCUREMENT, AIR FORCE, LINE 70

The conferees agree to a general reduction of $50.0 million to the budget request.

PROCUREMENT, DEFENSE-WIDE, LINE 7

Pioneer unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV)

The budget request included $10.6 million attrition spares and unit support kits for the Pioneer UAV.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $30.0 million over the request to purchase attrition air vehicles and to replace aging and vanishing vendor items.

The Senate amendment would authorize the request.

The Department's decision to terminate the procurement of the Hunter UAV system has resulted in the Pioneer becoming the only UAV currently capable of meeting Navy and Marine Corps short range requirements. Consequently, the conferees agree to provide an increase of $30.0 million to fund initiatives necessary to ensure the continued effectiveness of the Pioneer UAV system.

Predator unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV)

The budget request included $57.8 for Predator hardware and production support.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $50.0 million to procure an additional two Predator systems.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request, and would separately provide a provision restricting the obligation of fiscal year 1997 funds.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees agree to recommend an additional $50.0 million for the Predator UAV system. The conferees recognize the Predator UAV's importance as well as the need to field capable effective UAV systems in the near-term.

Common automatic recovery system (CARS)

The conferees expect that this low cost system will help reduce mishaps and improve UAV operational effectiveness. Accordingly, the conferees agree to provide an additional $8.0 million for integrating CARS into the tactical UAV (TUAV) and the Predator UAV systems as soon as practicable.

KC-135 simulators

The budget request included $176.4 million for common aerospace ground equipment (AGE), which included funds for a three phase program to upgrade C-5, KC-10, and KC-135 simulators.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $63.0 million to acquire the last nine simulator systems in fiscal year 1997.

Since the House bill and the Senate amendment were passed, the conferees have learned of possible reductions in the AGE line because of postponed acquisition of self-generating nitrogen systems. Accordingly, the conferees agree to reduce the budget request by $16.2 million.

F-16 post production support

The budget request included $81.6 million for post production support of F-16 aircraft.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

Since the House bill and the Senate amendment were passed, the conferees have learned of possible reductions in F-16 post production support requirements, because of double budgeting of sustainment costs, and unneeded production termination funds. Accordingly, the conferees agree to reduce the budget request by $10.7 million.

Miscellaneous production charges

The budget request included $210.7 million for miscellaneous production charges.

The House bill would authorize a reduction of $28.0 million.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The conferees have learned of possible reductions in requirements for miscellaneous production charges, because funds in the program are excess to firm program requirements. Accordingly, the conferees agree to reduce the budget request by $24.7 million.

Overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 contained an authorization of $2,733.9 million for Missile Procurement, Air Force in the Department of Defense. The House bill would authorize $4,341.2 million. The Senate amendment would authorize $2,847.2 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $2,525.9 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

Peacekeeper sustainment

The budget request included $8.3 million for procurement of missile replacement equipment, $72.8 million for procurement of Minuteman III modifications, and $44.6 million for procurement of spares and repair parts.

The House bill recommended a net increase of $32.0 million for Peacekeeper sustainment activities. This included an additional $3.4 million for missile replacement equipment, $5.3 million for Minuteman modifications, and $300,000 for replacement spares and repairs. In addition, the House bill recommends that, of the amounts authorized to be appropriated pursuant to Title III for Air Force operation and maintenance, $23.0 million be used for sustained Peacekeeper operations.

The Senate amendment approved the budget request for Peacekeeper.

The conferees agree to authorize the following for peacekeeper sustainment: (1) an additional $3.4 million for missile replacement equipment, a net increase of $500,000 in this program element; (2) an additional $5.3 million in Procurement Air Force (Minuteman modifications); (3) an addition $300,000 in Air Force Procurement for replacement spares and repairs; and (4) of the amounts authorized to be appropriated pursuant to Title III for Air Force operation and maintenance, $23.0 million for Peacekeeper operations.

60K Loader

The budget request contained $40.3 million for 37 60K loaders.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The Senate amendment would increase the authorization by $23.1 million to accelerate the acquisition of 60K loaders by adding 20 additional loaders in fiscal year 1997.

The House recedes.

The conferees understand that accelerated acquisition of 60K loaders through an additional 20 loaders in fiscal year 1997 could reduce Future Years Defense Program (FYDP) costs of these loaders by $27.4 million.

Accordingly, the conferees recommend an increase of $23.1 million to acquire a total of 57 of the new 60K loaders, with the understanding that the Department of Defense has programmed sufficient funds in the out years to complete the planned acquisition of 60K loaders.

Theater battle management command and control system procurement (TBMCS)

The budget request included $48.0 million for procurement of the theater battle management command and control system.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The Senate amendment would add $2.2 million to the program as part of a data link initiative to incorporate data links in various Air Force aircraft. The additional $2.2 million would complete installation of data link related equipment in modular air operation centers.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees agree to authorize $48.0 million for the system.

Base information infrastructure

The budget request included $125.7 million Air Force base information infrastructure.

The House bill would reduce the authorization by $10.0 million.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The Senate recedes.

Overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 contained an authorization of $1,841.2 million for Defense-wide Procurement in the Department of Defense. The House bill would authorize $1,890.2 million. The Senate amendment would authorize $1,908.0 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $2,008.3 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

C-130 aircraft modifications

The budget request included $86.7 million for modifications to U.S. Special Operations Command (USSOCOM) C-130 aircraft.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $23.8 million for survivability and sustainment improvements to USSOCOM's fleet of AC-130U gunships and the MC-130H Combat Talon II aircraft.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $17.9 million for modifications to USSOCOM C-130 aircraft.

Advanced SEAL delivery system

The budget request included no procurement funding for the advanced SEAL delivery system (ASDS) for the U.S. Special Operations Command.

A changed interpretation of administrative procedures between preparation of the fiscal year 1996 and fiscal year 1997 budget requests caused $4.4 million of advance procurement funding for the ASDS to be deleted from the fiscal year 1997 budget request. The consequence of this reduction in funding would be a one year delay in fielding the ASDS system.

To restore the ASDS program to its original schedule, the Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $4.4 million over the budget request for the procurement of long-lead steel and integrated control and display consoles needed for fabrication of the first production ASDS.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

SCAMPI communications system

The budget request contained no funding for procurement of the SCAMPI communications system for the U.S. Special Operations Command (USSOCOM).

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $3.7 million to complete hub relocation for USSOCOM's SCAMPI communications system.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Special mission radio system

The budget request contained $26.6 million for procurement of communications and electronic equipment for the U.S. Special Operations Command.

The Senate amendment would authorize an additional $9.4 million for procurement of the special mission radio system (SMRS) to satisfy long-range communications requirements of the special forces.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

Briefcase multi-mission advanced tactical terminal

The budget request included $19.8 million for intelligence systems for the U.S. Special Operations Command (USSOCOM).

The Senate amendment authorized an addition of $4.5 million to accelerate the procurement of the briefcase multi-mission advanced tactical terminal (BMATT).

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 contained no authorization for National Guard and Reserve Procurement in the Department of Defense. The House bill would authorize $805.0 million. The Senate amendment would authorize $759.0 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $780.0 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

ITEMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Air Force precision guided munitions

Last year, the statement of managers accompanying the conference report on S. 1124 (H. Rept. 104-450) noted the need for DOD to develop a long-term cohesive, joint PGM program. Section 261 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 directed DOD to develop such a plan. The Department has informed the congressional defense committees that the analysis necessary to develop this plan will not be complete until later this year. The conferees believe that DOD should not wait for another whole year to begin providing additional PGM capability beyond that supported in the budget request.

Accordingly, while awaiting this analysis and the Department's recommendations based on this analysis, the conferees recommend an increase of $118.2 million in missile procurement Air Force as detailed below:

Automated document conversion system (ADCS)

The conferees are aware that the Department has made some progress in following its direction to begin the purchase of the software necessary to convert the Department's more complex engineering documents from raster files to an intelligent format. In addition, the conferees are encouraged by the initial results of ADCS testing. The conferees are aware that significant cost savings can be achieved through the use of an ADCS; thus, the conferees are disappointed that no funds were requested for this purpose.

Accordingly, the conferees recommend $38.8 million for the competitive procurement of an ACDS capability.

Prototype instrumentation range facility

There has been significant progress in advancing the state-of-the-art in training and simulation devices. With the advent of improved technologies, such as instrumented ranges, the Army can now train units in the complexities of modern combat more efficiently. However, this technology has not been transferred to the Army National Guard, where it could have significant impact on unit training and readiness. The conferees understand that the Army National Guard is prepared to allocate up to $7.0 million from the miscellaneous equipment section of the National Guard and Reserve Equipment Account to set up a prototype instrumented range facility to begin training Army National Guard units using advanced training and simulation devices.

The conferees strongly support such an initiative and urge the Director of the Army National Guard to proceed with an initiative to establish such a facility. The conferees direct the Director of the Army National Guard to provide a report to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives not later than 12 months after enactment of this Act on the progress toward establishing the instrumented range.

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS

SUBTITLE A—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Defense Inspector General (sec. 106)

The House bill contained a provision that would authorize $2.0 million for the Defense Inspector General. The Senate amendment contained an identical provision. The conference agreement includes this provision.

Chemical agents and munitions destruction program (secs. 107 and 142)

The budget request included $799.8 million for the defense chemical agents and munitions destruction program, including $477.9 million for operation and maintenance, $273.6 million for procurement, and $48.3 million for research and development. Additionally, the budget request included $131.6 million for military construction.

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 107) that would authorize $804.8 million for the chemical agents and munitions destruction program, including $21.0 million for the alternative technology and approaches project, an increase of $5.0 million to the budget request.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 107) that would authorize $802.8 million for the chemical agents and munitions destruction program, including an increase of $3.0 million for research and development to expedite and accelerate the development and fielding of critical advanced sensors that are part of the Army's mobile munitions assessment system. A second provision (sec. 113) would require the Secretary of Defense to conduct a study on the cost of the baseline incineration of the chemical munitions stockpile versus the disposal of neutralized chemical munitions at a centrally located incinerator. A third provision (sec. 117) would provide $60.0 million for a pilot program to identify and demonstrate feasible alternatives to incineration for the demilitarization of assembled chemical munitions, establish an executive agent for the pilot program separate from the existing chemical weapon stockpile demilitarization program, require the Secretary of Defense to evaluate and report the results of the completed pilot program by December 31, 2000, and place limits on long lead contracting for the construction of chemical agent baseline program incinerators at any site in Kentucky or Colorado.

The conferees agree to a provision (sec. 107) that would authorize $759.8 million for the defense chemical agents and munitions destruction program, to include: $233.6 million for procurement; $477.9 million for operation and maintenance; and $48.3 million for research and development. Of the amount authorized $21.1 million shall be available for the alternative technologies and approaches project and $3.0 million shall be available to expedite and accelerate the development and fielding of critical advanced sensors that are part of the Army's mobile munitions assessment system.

Further, the conferees agree to a provision (sec. 142) that would direct the Secretary of Defense to assess the current baseline incineration program for destruction of assembled chemical munitions and of alternative demilitarization technologies and processes other than incineration that could be used for the destruction of lethal chemical agents and munitions. Should the Secretary decide to conduct a pilot program for development and demonstration of an alternative technology or process other than incineration for the destruction of the lethal chemical agents that are associated with assembled munitions, the provision would authorize $25.0 million from funds authorized in fiscal year 1997 for use by the Secretary for this purpose, and would require the Secretary to notify the Congress 30 days in advance, of his intention to use funds to initiate a pilot program. The provision would also require that the pilot program be conducted at the selected chemical agent and munitions stockpile storage site for which the alternative technology or process is recommended.

Progress in the chemical agents and munitions destruction program

The conferees reiterate the concerns expressed in the statement of managers accompanying the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106), that continued delays in the chemical agents and munitions destruction program would lead to increases in overall program cost and in risk to the public and the environment. The conferees believe that the program should proceed expeditiously, using those technologies that minimize risk to the public and the environment. The conferees support the recommendations of the National Research Council (NRC), that the Army continue its current baseline incineration program until such time as the evaluation of alternative technologies for demilitarization and destruction of the stockpile is concluded. The conferees note the progress that has been made in the program. More than 50 percent (2 million pounds of chemical agents) of the chemical agent and munitions stockpile on Johnston Atoll has been destroyed and full-scale demilitarization operations continue at that site. On June 26, 1996, the State of Utah granted approval for the Army to begin chemical munitions destruction operations using the baseline incineration process at the Tooele Chemical Agent Disposal Facility in Tooele, Utah.

The conferees have reviewed the "Department of Defense's Interim Status Assessment for the Chemical Demilitarization Program," dated April 15, 1996, that was submitted to the Congress in response to section 152(c) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106). Measures for potential reductions in the total cost of the chemical stockpile destruction program are under review within the Department of Defense. Although there is no evidence of immediate danger from stockpile, risk assessments from the programmatic environmental impact statement and the ongoing site-specific risk analysis updates continue to indicate that storage risk is much greater than the risks associated with executing the current chemical stockpile disposal program and that delay in the disposal effort will result in increased public risk. The Secretary of Defense is directed to submit to the Congress, with the Defense budget request for fiscal year 1998, a final report on the assessment and recommendations for revision to the current baseline incineration program, including the use of alternative technologies, which could reduce program costs and increase public safety.

Alternative technologies

The assessment discusses progress in the alternative technologies research and development program. Under this program, the Army, in coordination with the NRC, is evaluating five technologies for potential use at the bulk-only stockpile sites (Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland, and Newport Army Ammunition Depot, Indiana). The Army's evaluation and the NRC's recommendations will provide the basis for an October 1996 decision by the Department of Defense on the continued development of an alternative chemical agent destruction process for the bulk-only storage sites. Should the Secretary of Defense for demilitarization of the chemical agents at the bulk-only chemical stockpile storage sites, the conferees agree that the Secretary should utilize current authority to reprogram funds to initiate a pilot program for this purpose.

The conferees notes that the Army's alternative technologies research and development program has been limited to consideration of alternative technologies for potential use at the bulk-only storage sites. The conferees believe that consideration should be given also given to variants of the baseline program in which alternative technologies and processes are used for destruction of the chemical agent associated with assembled chemical munitions. The conferees have included a provision that would direct the Secretary of Defense, in coordination with the NRC, to conduct an assessment of such alternative technologies and processes and to report the results of the assessment to the Congress not later than December 31, 1997, together with any recommendations for revisions to the baseline program for destruction of assembled chemical munitions. Should the Secretary of Defense recommend the continued development of an alternative technology or process for destruction of the chemical agents associated with assembled chemical munitions, as mentioned earlier in this report, the conferees have included a provision which would make $25.0 million available from funds authorized in this Act to initiate a pilot program for this purpose. In order to minimize environmental permitting delays for a full-scale program which might use the alternative technology or process, the provision provides that the pilot program for development of the technology or process shall be conducted at the specific chemical agent and munitions stockpile storage for which the alternative technology or process is recommended.

Management of Chemical Agents and Munitions Destruction Program

The conferees agree that the Department of Defense must provide for unified and integrated overall management of the chemical agents and munitions destruction program and the non-stockpile agents and munitions destruction program. The conferees are concerned that a divided program under separate managers, would result in duplication of effort, increased costs, and reduced safety. Accordingly, the conferees continue to support the current management structure within the Department of Defense, with the Army as executive agent for the chemical agents and munitions destruction program, which includes the baseline incineration program, alternative technologies for the bulk-only stockpile sites, alternative technologies for the destruction of assembled chemical munitions, and the non-stockpile chemical agents and weapons destruction program. Additionally, the conferees appreciate the support and efforts of the National Research Council in conducting oversight of the chemical agents and munitions destruction program, and believe that it should continue to perform this function for the Department.

Subtitle B—Army Programs

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Repeal of limitation on procurement of Armed Kiowa Warrior helicopters (sec. 111)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 111) that would repeal the limitation on procurement of certain aircraft as it pertained to the OH-58D Armed Kiowa Warrior helicopter.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Multiyear procurement authority for Army programs (sec. 112)

The House bill included a provision (sec. 112) that would authorize the Secretary of the Army to extend the multiyear contract in effect for the Avenger missile system during fiscal year 1996 through fiscal year 1997. Additionally, the provision would authorize the Secretary of the Army to enter into a multiyear procurement contract, beginning with fiscal year 1997, for the procurement of the Army Tactical Missile System.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 111) that would authorize the Secretary of the Army to enter into a multiyear procurement contract, beginning with fiscal year 1997, for the procurement of the Javelin missile system.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would authorize a multiyear procurement contract for the Javelin missile system.

Bradley TOW 2 test program sets (sec. 113)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 116) that would authorize the Secretary of the Army to make available $6.0 million from funds authorized to be appropriated under section 101(3) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (110 Stat. 204), for Bradley TOW 2 test program sets.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Subtitle C—Navy Programs

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Nuclear attack submarine programs (sec. 121)

The budget request included $296.2 million of advance construction and procurement funding for a fiscal year 1998 nuclear attack submarine and $699.1 million for procurement of the third Seawolf class submarine, SSN-23. Research and development funding in the budget request for the fiscal year 1998 submarine was initially reported as $489.4 million but was subsequently corrected to $487.6 million. The budget request included no advance construction and procurement funding for the procurement of a second nuclear attack submarine in fiscal year 1999, as called for in the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 and the Navy's six-year shipbuilding plan that was submitted in conjunction with the budget request.

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 121) that would authorize $699.1 million for procurement of SSN-23, $296.2 million of advance construction and procurement funding for a fiscal year 1998 nuclear attack submarine that would be built at Electric Boat, and $504.0 million for advance construction and procurement for a fiscal year 1999 nuclear attack submarine that would be built at Newport News Shipbuilding.

Section 121 of the House bill would also authorize an increase of $188.0 million to pursue core, Category I, and Category II advance submarine technology initiatives that were identified in Report on Nuclear Attack Submarine Procurement and Submarine Technology, submitted to Congress by the Secretary of Defense on March 26, 1996, in compliance with the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996. The added funds would also be used for design initiatives intended to ensure that new technology is incorporated into the design of four developmental submarines that would begin construction at the rate of one per year during the period fiscal year 1998 to fiscal year 2001 and on serial production submarines that would not be authorized until fiscal year 2003. Section 121 would also revise the basis of the competition for serial production so that it would be based on best value vice price.

The House provision would also place limitations on the expenditure of fiscal year 1997 procurement and development funds until the Secretary of Defense, the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology, and the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) take certain steps to comply with sections 131 and 132 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996. Additionally, the House provision would direct the Department of Defense to implement specified acquisition simplification strategies in order to expedite the fielding of more capable, less expensive nuclear attack submarines.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 123) that would authorize $804.1 million for procurement of SSN-23, $296.2 million of advance construction and procurement funding for a fiscal year 1998 nuclear attack submarine that would be built at Electric Boat, and $701.0 million for advance construction and procurement for a fiscal year 1999 nuclear attack submarine that would be built at Newport News Shipbuilding. This authorization would satisfy all procurement funding requirements for SSN-23 and all advance construction and procurement funding requirements for the fiscal year 1998 and fiscal year 1999 submarines.

Although it would authorize the amount in a different provision discussed elsewhere in this statement of managers, the Senate amendment would increase funding for advance submarine technology by $100.0 million to pursue core, Category I, and Category II advance submarine technology initiatives that were identified in the Secretary of Defense's Report on Nuclear Attack Submarine procurement and Submarine Technology. The Senate amendment would also place limitations, similar in intent if not in detail, on the expenditure of fiscal year 1997 procurement funds until the Secretary of Defense and the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology take certain steps to comply with section 131 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996.

The Senate recedes with an amendment. The conferees agree to authorize $699.1 million for procurement of SSN-23, $296.2 million of advance construction and procurement of SSN-23, $296.2 million of advance construction and procurement funding for a fiscal year 1998 nuclear attack submarine that will be built at Electric Boat, and $701.0 million for advance construction and procurement for a fiscal year 1999 nuclear attack submarine that will be built at Newport News Shipbuilding.

For research and development the conference agreement:

(1) authorizes $60.0 million to mature and transition the core technologies identified in the Secretary of Defense's Report on Nuclear Attack Submarine Procurement and Submarine Technology with emphasis on hydrodynamics, alternative sail designs, advanced arrays, electric drive, external weapons, and active controls and mounts;

(2) directs that of this $60.0 million, $20.0 million is to be equally divided between Electric Boat and Newport News to ensure the two shipbuilders are principal participants in the process of including new technologies in the design of future attack submarines. The conferees intend that the shipbuilders be allowed access to naval intelligence data and that there be continuing interaction among the shipyards, the Navy laboratories, and the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency;

(3) authorizes $38.0 million to fund development and testing of Category I and II technologies, as described in the Secretary of Defense's report;

(4) directs that the Navy will implement acquisition reform initiatives similar in form and intent to the Air Force's "Lightning Bolt" initiatives begun in May 1995;

(5) places limitations on the expenditure of fiscal year 1997 procurement and development funds until the Secretary of Defense, the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology, and the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) take certain steps to comply with section 131 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 and other limitations included in the amended provision;

(6) repeals section 132 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 and directs that the funds covered by that provision shall be available to the Secretary of the Navy only for advanced submarine technology involving the construction of large scale vehicles for purposes of hydrodynamic and hydroacoustic research; and

(7) affirms that the serial production of future nuclear attack submarines to follow the four developmental submarines will occur not earlier than fiscal year 2002 and only after a competition based on price.

Arleigh Burke Class destroyer (sec. 122)

The budget request included $3.4 billion for the procurement of four Arleigh Burke class destroyers and advance procurement of future destroyers of this class.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 124) that would authorize:

(1) the requested amount for Arleigh Burke class destroyers;

(2) $750.0 million above the budget request for advance procurement for Arleigh Burke class destroyers; and

(3) the Secretary of the Navy to enter into multiyear contracts for the procurement of a total of 12 Arleigh Burke class destroyers at a procurement rate of three destroyers per year during the four-year period from fiscal year 1998 to fiscal year 2001;

The Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267) noted that testimony by Navy witnesses indicated that the stable procurement program that would result from such authorization would permit the Navy to acquire these 12 ships at a substantial cost savings.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to adopt a provision that authorizes an increase of $525.0 million above the budget request and provides a multiyear contracting authority for the procurement of a total of 12 Arleigh Burke class destroyers at a procurement rate of three destroyers per year during the four-year period from fiscal year 1998 to fiscal year 2001.

PROCUREMENT

Attack aviation continues to require a robust electronic warfare capability. The decision to retire the Air Force's EF-111s and rely on the EA-6B for the Department's tactical jamming mission makes it imperative that the EA-6B fleet be structurally sound and modernized to meet current requirements.

The conferees note that the current jamming transmitters on the EA-6B have not changed substantially since originally designed in the 1960s, although there have been several generations of improved surface-to-air and air-to-air missiles since then, and many of these new systems operate in the high radio frequency range. Also, the great majority of current anti-ship missiles employ seekers in the band 9/10 frequency range. Consequently, the conferees agree to authorize an increase of $40.0 million to the budget request to procure 60 shipsets of these transmitters.

The conferees agree to authorize an addition of $11.0 million to the budget request to acquire an additional 24 units of the USQ-113 communications jammer.

The EA-6B's aluminum wing center sections have been found to be subject to embrittlement, which has led to stress cracks and resulted in the removal of a number of aircraft from active service. Consequently, the conferees agree to increase the budget request by $50.0 million to purchase ten of the twenty new wing center sections in order to avoid a production break in the manufacture of this component.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

Although funds were authorized and appropriated for fiscal year 1996 to initiate a reactive jammer program for the EA-6B, the Department of Defense chose not to initiate such a program, and elected instead to program funds for such an effort from fiscal year 1999 to fiscal year 2001.

The conferees find these actions of ignoring congressional direction and refusing to start a modest reactive jamming program unacceptable. The EA-6B is currently using obsolete receivers with technology from the 1960s. The EA-6B is scheduled to be the only airborne standoff jamming capability within DOD. The conferees expect the Department to begin at once a program to develop and field a reactive jamming capability in the EA-6B, and have authorized an additional $32.0 million for this purpose.

LEGISLATIVE PROVISION

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 121) that would require the Secretary of Defense to:

(1) certify obligation of funds for a reactive jamming program; and

(2) submit a plan for a complete program to the congressional defense committees before obligation of any funds for other recommended increases the EA-6B program.

The provision would also provide that all EA-6B modification funding be transferred to the Air Force for upgrading and operating EF-111 aircraft, if such certification is not may by June 1, 1997.

The House bill did not contain a similar provision.

The House recedes.

The conferees note with concern the Navy's slow response to Congressional direction and the need for modern, robust electronic warfare capabilities now.

T-39N trainer aircraft for the Navy (sec. 124)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 125) that would direct the Secretary of the Navy to enter into a contract for T-39N aircraft not later than 15 days from the date of enactment of the Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1997.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would allow the Navy to acquire 17 T-39N aircraft once the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology makes certain certifications contained in the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996, section 137.

Penguin missile program (sec. 125)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 122) that would permit the Navy to enter into a contract for multi-year procurement of not more than 106 Penguin missiles in accordance with section 2306b of title 10, United States Code. The total amount that could be expended would be limited to $84.8 million.

The house bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Subtitle D—Air Force Programs

Repeal on limitation on procurement of F-15E aircraft (sec. 131)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 141) that would repeal the limitation contained in the National Defense Act for Fiscal years 1990 and 1991 (Public Law 101-189).

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Modification to multiyear procurement authority for the C-17 aircraft program (sec. 132)

The budget request included $2,142.8 million for procurement of eight C-17 aircraft and their associated support in fiscal year 1997 and for advance procurement of additional C-17 aircraft in fiscal year 1998.

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 142) that would authorize the Secretary of the Air Force to enter into a multiyear contract for a period of six program years for the procurement of a total of not more than 80 C-17 aircraft, beginning with fiscal year 1997. The House bill would also authorize an increase of $380.0 million for the procurement of two additional C-17 aircraft in fiscal year 1997 and for advance procurement of additional C-17 aircraft.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 131) that would:

(1) authorize the Secretary of the Air Force to enter into one or more multiyear contracts for a period that may exceed five years, but may not exceed seven years for the procurement of not more than 80 C-17 aircraft; and

(2) direct that any such multiyear contracts shall include a termination clause that provides the Secretary of the Air Force with the option to convert to annual procurement.

The Senate amendment would also authorize an increase of $194.0 million for one additional C-17 aircraft in fiscal year 1997, $49.0 million for advance procurement for an additional two C-17 aircraft in fiscal 1998, and $6.0 million for initial spares.

The conferees agree to authorize an additional $234.0 million for accelerating the multiyear program. The conferees support an accelerated multiyear procurement (MYP) for the remaining 80 C-17 aircraft, and note that the Air Force entered a seven-year MYP contract on May 31, 1996. The conferees are concerned that although the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition testified before congressional defense committees of the House and Senate that over $300 million additional savings could be realized over those currently projected by converting the current seven-year contract to a six-year MYP, the Air Force has no plans to do so. The conferees include a legislative provision that directs the Secretary of the Air Force to negotiate an option to convert the current seven-year contract to a six-year MYP contract, and authorizes the Air Force to exercise this option in order to accelerate procurement of C-17's and take advantage of significant additional savings to the government.

Subtitle E—Other Matters

Assessment of modernization priorities of reserve components (sec. 141)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 141) that would require the chiefs of each of the reserve components to conduct an assessment of modernization priorities and report to the congressional defense committees by December 1, 1996.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Extension of authority to carry out Armament Retooling and Manufacturing Support Initiative (sec. 143)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 114) that would extend the authority of the Department of Defense to carry out the Armament Retooling and Manufacturing Support Initiative through fiscal year 1998.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS NOT ADOPTED

Seawolf submarine cost cap

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 122) that would split the procurement cost cap established by section 133 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 for the Seawolf class submarines SSN-21, SSN-22, and SSN-23 into two separate caps, one for SSN-21 and SSN-22 and a second cap associated solely with SSN-23. The House bill would also repeal section 133.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 126) that would stipulate that there is a total of $745.7 million that was appropriated in fiscal years 1990, 1991 and 1992 for procurement of now-canceled #Seawolf submarines that is not included in the existing procurement cost cap for SSN-21, SSN-22 and SSN-23.

The conferees agree that neither of these provisions will be included in the conference agreement.

Pulse Doppler radar modification

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 123) that, subject to funds being made available in a subsequent appropriations act, would direct the Secretary of the Navy to spend $29.0 million from unobligated prior-year balances for development and procurement of a pulse Doppler upgrade modification to the AN/SPS-48E radar system.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 127) that would prohibit the use of funds appropriated for fiscal years prior to fiscal year 1997 for development of a pulse Doppler upgrade to the AN/SPS-48E radar system.

The conferees agree to not include either of these provisions in the conference report.

Maritime prepositioning ship program enhancement

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 124) that would repeal the statutory authority that allows the Marine Corps to purchase and convert two additional foreign-built hulls for use by its maritime prepositioning force.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 125) that would reaffirm the authorization, initially provided by the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1995, that section 2218(f) of title 10, United States Code, shall not apply to the purchase of three ships for the purpose of enhancing Marine Corps prepositioning ship squadrons.

The conferees agree that neither of these provisions will be included in the conference report.

Type classification of electro optic augmentation (EOA) system

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 115) that would require the Secretary of the Army to type classify the EOA system.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

TITLE II—RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION

The Senate amendment would authorize $38,315.7 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $37,296.6 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

Countermine technology development and demonstration program

The budget request included: $4.7 million in PE 62712A for exploratory development of countermine technology; $15.2 million in PE 63606A for advanced development of countermine technologies; $16.4 million in PE 63619A for development, prototyping, and demonstration of advanced countermine systems; and $7.7 million in PE 63120D for the development and demonstration of technologies for use in humanitarian demining. The fiscal year 1997 budget request separated funding for the humanitarian demining program from the Army's countermine advanced technology development program where countermine developments for military operations other than war were previously managed.

The House bill would authorize increases of $10.0 million in PE 62712A, $15.0 million in PE 63606A, and $25.0 million in PE 63619A for the development, demonstration, and validation of near-term and far-term improvements in the countermine capabilities of U.S. forces for tactical countermine and demining operations. The House report (H. Rept. 104-563) would direct the reassignment of humanitarian demining development into a consolidated demining program. The report would direct the Department of Defense to put increased emphasis on developing technologies applicable to both military wide-area clearance requirements and demining needs and to ensure that technologies are developed and shared that meet the countermine, wide-area clearance, and demining needs of the combatant commanders-in-chief and the interagency working group for humanitarian demining. Finally, the House report would direct the Secretary of Defense to develop plans for a countermine program that addresses these issues and to report the plan to the Congressional defense committees by March 1, 1997.

The Senate amendment would add $12.1 million in PE 63696A to accelerate the demonstration and deployment of a prototype vehicular mounted mine detection system (VMMD) and an additional $4.0 million to continue development of navigation aids and improvements to permit detection systems to operate at convoy speeds and display data in real time.

The conferees agree to an increase of $3.0 million in PE 62712A for exploratory development of countermine technology, an increase of $11.0 million in PE 63606A for advanced development of prototype VMMD, an additional $5.1 million for advanced development of ground penetrating radar technology, and an increase of $10.3 million in PE 63120D for the development and demonstration of technologies for use in humanitarian demining.

The conferees note the summary of the January 1996 Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives hearing on the landmine threat facing U.S. forces deploying to Bosnia and the capability of U.S. forces to meet the threat that was contained in the House report (H. Rept. 104-563). The conferees believe increased emphasis needs to be placed on the Department's countermine program. The program must address the development of feasible near-term improvements in countermine capabilities and the longer term advanced technologies which would promise more comprehensive solutions to the countermine problem. Specific emphasis needs to be placed on: the development of countermine technologies that can be applied to both military wide-area mine clearance requirements and humanitarian demining needs and will require the best efforts of the military services; the Department's countermine, unexploded ordnance clearance and explosive ordnance disposal research and development activities; industry; and academia. The conferees encourage the department to use the resources of the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences in attacking this difficult problem.

The conferees reiterate the view expressed in the statement of managers (H. Rept. 103-701) which accompanied the conference report on S. 1124 (Public Law 103-337) that the Department of Defense should develop a coordinated program for countermine warfare. The conferees believe that the actions taken by the Department with regard to integration and coordination of the chemical-biological defense program may provide an example of how the countermine efforts of the Department could be better coordinated.

The conferees note that, as reflected in the statement of managers relating to funds for research, development, test, and evaluation of humanitarian demining technologies, the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Special Operations and Low Intensity Conflict shall continue to administer that program. The conferees direct the maximum degree of coordination among all demining programs.

The conferees direct the Secretary of Defense to develop an integrated plan for a countermine program which addresses the issues raised above and to report the plan to Congress by March 1, 1997.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $20.0 million to the budget request.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $55.0 million in PE 23801A. Of this amount, $40.0 million would be to complete analysis on cruise missile enhancements to the Patriot PAC-1 missile and an additional $15.0 million for evaluation of the Starstreak missile.

The conferees agree to authorize $71.0 million in PE 23801A to complete the Patriot cruise missile seeker assessment. The Starstreak missile program is addressed elsewhere in this report.

High modulus polyacrylonitrile carbon fiber

The budget request included $27.9 million for Industrial Preparedness Activities (PE 78045A).

The conferees agree to an increase of $8.0 million in PE 78045A to complete the multi-year program to develop at least two domestic sources for high modulus polyacrylonitrile (PAN) carbon fiber as discussed in the House report (H. Rept. 104-563) and the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267). The conferees direct that all applicable competitive procedures be used in the award of any contracts or other agreements under this program, and that cost sharing requirements for non-federal participants be utilized where appropriate.

Instrumented factory for gears (INFAC)

The budget request included $16.8 million for Industrial Preparedness (PE 78045A).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $3.0 in PE 78045A for INFAC.

The Senate amendment authorized the budget request.

The Senate recedes.

Force XXI initiatives

The budget request did not include any funding for this program.

The House bill contained $100.0 million for a new program element, to be established by the Army, to support the Force XXI Initiatives process that will allow the Army to conduct a timely evaluation of new equipment and technology.

The Senate amendment would add $100.0 million for this purpose.

The conferees agree to authorize $75.0 million for Force XXI development activities. The Army is expected to subject programs with promising preliminary results to normal reviews and evaluations required by law, prior to transitioning into production any program tested with these funds. The conferees expect the Army to budget for necessary resources in future year activities.

Overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 contained an authorization of $7,334.7 million for Navy, Research and Development in the Department of Defense. The House bill would authorize $8,190.0 million. The Senate amendment would authorize $8,891.5 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $8,068.3 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

Continuous wave superconducting radio frequency free electron laser

The budget request included $26.3 million for surface/aerospace surveillance and weapons technology (PE 62111N).

The House bill and Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $9.0 million in PE 62111N for the continuous wave superconducting radio frequency free electron laser (FEL) program.

The conferees agree to an increase of $9.0 million in PE 62111N for the continuation of the FEL program as discussed in the House report (H. Rept. 104-563) and the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267). The conferees understand that there will be significant cost sharing between the Commonwealth of Virginia and the private sector in this effort. The conferees encourage the Department of Energy to build on this Navy project to meet the needs of materials scientists in universities and industry.

Advanced gun systems technology program

The budget request included $4.8 million in PE 62111N for applied research in advanced gun and projectile technologies in support of the naval surface fire support (NSFS) program.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $2.8 million to accelerate development of advanced miniaturized, gun-hardened global positioning system/inertial navigation (GPS/INS) guidance and control technology and development of advanced technologies for next-generation gun systems.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The Senate recesses.

Rocket propulsion programs

The House bill authorized an increase of $19.0 million for rocket propulsion technology programs in PE 62111N, PE 63217N, PE 62601F, and PE 63302F.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The conferees agree to provide an increase of $19.0 million as specified in the House report (H. Rept. 104-563).

Power electronic building blocks

The budget request included $35.6 million for surface ship technology programs (PE 62121N).

The House bill and the Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $6.0 million in PE 62121N for power electronic building blocks (PEBB) systems.

The conferees agree to an increase of $6.0 million in PE 62121N for the continued development of PEBB technology for the rapid switching and control of high power electrical systems as discussed in the House report (H. Rept. 104-563) and the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267). The conferees urge that the increase be used for the development of virtual prototyping tools that can be used to visualize and evaluate the performance of new reconfigurable ship electronic power systems that can survive battle damage and component failures.

Communications technology

The budget request included $56.2 million in PE 62232N to continue development of key communications technologies for air, ship and submarine platforms.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $2.0 million to the budget request for support of wireless and satellite communications research in the areas of integrated antenna systems, communications hardware design, communications algorithm development and high-frequency device modeling and measurements.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The Senate recesses.

Materials, electronics and computer technology

The budget request included $75.9 million in PE 62234N for materials, electronics and computer technology.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $1.0 million in PE 62234N for composite engineered materials to address the future needs of naval shore facility maintenance and repair.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $5.0 million in PE 62234N to address new materials processes such as resin transfer molding and the establishment of second sources for carbon fibers and prepreg systems.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $6.0 million for new materials processes as discussed in the House report (H. Rept. 104-563) and the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267).

Undersea weapons

The budget request included $33.9 for undersea warfare weapon technology (PE 62633N).

The House bill and the Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $6.0 million in PE 62633N for development of undersea weapons.

The conferees agree to an increase of $6.0 million in PE 62633N for the Navy's Undersea Weapons Technology program to accelerate the development and demonstration of technologies applicable to a quick reaction anti-submarine/anti-torpedo weapon for close-range engagements and for the protection of surface ships and submarines from torpedo attack as discussed in the House report (H. Rept. 104-563) and the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267).

Maritime avionics subsystems and technology program

The budget request included $29.3 million for advanced development of air systems and weapons advanced technology (PE 63217N).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $10.0 million in PE 63217N for the maritime avionics subsystems and technology (MAST) program.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The Senate recesses.

In the statement of managers accompanying the conference report on S. 1124 (H. Rept. 104-450), the conferees authorized $10.0 million to continue the MAST program in fiscal year 1996 and recommended that the Secretary of the Navy consider requirements for continuation of the program in future budget requests. The conferees believe that the Navy science and technology program must continue to place emphasis on the development of advanced avionics architectures and systems. Because of the congressional interest in this program and the importance of advanced avionics architectures to future aircraft systems, the conferees expect the Secretary of the Navy to include funding for the MAST program in the fiscal year 1998 budget request.

Mobile off-shore base

The budget request included $9.2 million in PE 63238N to continue concept development of the mobile off-shore base (MOBS).

The House bill would authorize reduction of $9.2 million in the budget request.

The Senate amendment would approve the budget request.

The House recesses.

The conferees note that the Secretary of Defense has not reported to the congress-sional defense committees the plan and schedule for incorporating MOBS in the Defense Acquisition Board process and accomplishing a Milestone 0 review, as directed in the statement of managers accompanying the conference report on S. 1124 (H. Rept. 104-450).

Project M

The budget request included no funding for Project M, a technology program for the active control of machinery platforms.

In fiscal year 1996, Congress authorized and appropriated $7.0 million in PE 63569E to continue the transfer of Project M technology from the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) to the Navy. The program has been focused on the demonstration of active control of machinery raft structural dynamics and magnetic levitation using rafts that represent future submarine engine room structures. The research has been significant because it has demonstrated that large scale implementation of active control for complex structures is possible. Additional funding in fiscal year 1997 would permit realistic testing of high fidelity quarter scale physical models that will provide quantitative performance data and other critical information that can be used to define the scope of applications for this technology in future submarine or surface ship designs. There is also potential for the expanded use of this technology in a broad spectrum of other military, space, and commercial applications where quieting of systems and subsystems is important.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $8.0 million in PE 63508N to complete transition of Project M from DARPA to the Navy.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $8.0 million above the budget request in PE 63508N for the continued development of Project M.

The conferees agree to an increase of $8.0 million above the budget request in PE 63508N for the continued development of Project M and to complete its transition from DARPA to the Navy. The conferees also direct that the Secretary of the Navy submit a report, no later than March 1, 1997, that provides a detailed assessment of:

- (1) the current status of the Project M program;
- (2) the Secretary's plans for continued development of the project M technology;
- (3) future milestones for the maturing of the technology;
- (4) the Navy's plan for incorporating Project M technology into the design of its next generation of nuclear attack submarine; and
- (5) funding included in the future years defense program to satisfy this plan.

Commandant's warfighting laboratory

The budget request included $24.4 million in PE 63640M, including $3.5 million for the Commandant of the Marine Corps warfighting laboratory, "Sea Dragon".

The House bill would authorize an increase of $5.0 million for this initiative.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $40.0 million in PE 65873M, Marine Corps Program-wide Support, for technology supporting experiments in "Hunter Warrior", the first advanced warfighting experiment being conducted by the Commandant's warfighting laboratory, and to support technology enhancements for follow-on limited objective experiments in fiscal year 1997.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $40.0 million in PE 63640M for support of the Commandant's warfighting laboratory. The conferees agree that the Marine Corps should budget for continuation of this initiative in future budget requests. The conferees also agree with the view expressed in the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267) that continued support for the Marine Corps "Sea Dragon" process will be based on the demonstrated ability of the Marine Corps to budget adequately for the rapid fielding of new technologies supported by the results of the Sea Dragon experiments.

Tactical fiber optic communications

The House bill would authorize an increase of $1.75 million in PE 63640M for the Navy and the Marine Corps to exploit commercial advances in lightweight fiber optics for communications purposes and to demonstrate the use of lightweight tactical fiber optics for communications in a littoral scenario.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

Medical mobile monitor

The budget request included $37.3 million for medical development programs (PE 63706N).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $4.0 million in PE 63706N for the development of a medical mobile monitor to assist physicians and other medical personnel in the diagnosis and treatment of injuries and illness, and has the capability to interface with portable personal computers.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The Senate recedes.

Smart base

The budget request included $20.0 million for the Navy's Environmental Quality and Logistics program (PE 63712N).

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $25.0 million in PE 63712N for the Smart Base technology demonstration.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The House recedes. The conferees agree to an increase of $25.0 million in PE 63712N for the Smart Base technology demonstration. In executing the program, the conferees instruct the Department of the Navy to minimize costs by seeking cost sharing partnerships with other Federal agencies, and state and local governments, as well as commercial activities.

Littoral warfare advanced technology demonstration

The budget request included $43.6 million in PE 63747N for undersea warfare advanced technology development.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $10.0 million to the budget request for at-sea demonstration and evaluation of broad band, low low frequency active (LLFA) acoustic technology for the detection of quiet, slow moving submarines in the widely variable environment of the world's littoral regions.

The Senate bill would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes. The conferees direct the Secretary of the Navy to report to the Congress on the Navy's intentions with regard to further development and exploitation of LLFA acoustic technology with the submission of the Navy's fiscal year 1998 budget request.

Undersea weapons advanced technology demonstration

The budget request included $2.8 million for project R2267 in PE 63747N. This project develops and demonstrates advanced undersea weapons component prototypes for insertion into current undersea weapons to upgrade their capabilities.

The House bill and the Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $5.0 million in PE 63747N for development and demonstration of advanced technology prototype improvements to current undersea weapons systems, including environmental emissions compliant alternative torpedo fuels and advanced broadband homing system technologies and software algorithms to improve the countermeasure resistance of U.S. undersea weapons.

The conferees agree to an increase of $5.0 million in PE 63747N.

Shallow water mine countermeasures

The budget request included $42.8 million in PE 63782N for development and demonstration of mine countermeasures advanced technology, including $6.4 million for continued development of the advanced lightweight influence sweep system (ALISS).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $5.0 million in PE 63782N to complete development, fabrication and testing of the full-scale superconducting magnet that is one of the two major subsystems of the ALISS.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $3.0 million in PE 63782N for completion of the science and technology demonstration program for the beach zone array subsystem of the explosive neutralization program.

The conferees agree to authorize the requested amount.

The conferees recommend that the Navy include funding in future budget requests to complete advanced technology development and demonstration of the ALISS, as recommended in the House report (H. Rept. 104-563), and to complete the science and technology demonstration program for the beach zone array subsystem of the explosive neutralization program, as recommended in the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267).

Advanced technology transition

The budget request included $104.4 million in PE 63792N for the Navy's Advanced Technology Transition program to demonstrate high-risk/high payoff technologies that could significantly improve the warfighting capabilities of the fleet and joint forces.

The House bill would authorize a decrease of $20.0 million from the budget request in PE 63792N. The House report (H. Rept. 104-563) commended the leadership of the Navy's science and technology community for the advanced technology transition initiative and the potential that it presents for accelerating the application of technology base solutions to fleet and joint warfighting requirements. However, the House report also included reservations about the growth in funding for the program and the increase in the number of projects encompassed by it that have occurred since fiscal year 1995. The House report expressed the view that the program needs to be highly selective and sharply focused on a relatively limited number of projects that are aimed at solutions to some of the Navy's most critical problems.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Research for advanced submarine technology

The budget request included $19.1 million in PE 63504N for advanced submarine combat systems development and $26.4 million in PE 63561N for advanced submarine system development, but no funding in PE 63508N for advanced submarine technology.

Both the House bill and the Senate amendment were influenced by a report, Report on Nuclear Attack Submarine Procurement and Submarine Technology, submitted to Congress by the Secretary of Defense on March 26, 1996 in compliance with section 131 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996. This report reflected recommendations of a submarine technology assessment panel, also known as the Baciocco Panel, that was commissioned by the Secretary of the Navy to provide an independent evaluation of available and future submarine technologies and an assessment of their feasibility, cost, and potential benefits or drawbacks with respect to their incorporation into a new submarine platform.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $208.0 million for advanced submarine technologies. The House report (H. Rept. 104-563) provides detailed direction on how this authorization would be distributed.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $18.0 million in PE 63508N for applied research and exploratory development in advanced submarine concepts, including Baciocco Panel recommendations, and for transition of advanced ship and submarine technologies developed under the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA). Of the additional amount provided in PE 63508N, $8.0 million would be to complete the transfer to the Navy of the technology for actively controlled machinery platforms demonstrated in DARPA Project "M".

The House bill would authorize an increase of $60.0 million to the budget request for demonstration and validation of core technologies identified in the Secretary of Defense's report, including improved acoustic sensors and processing, hydrodynamics, structural acoustics (including active controls and mounts), and propulsors (including integrated stern and electric drive), which would be distributed as follows:

	In millions
PE 63504N, Advanced Submarine Combat Systems Development:
Advanced Acoustic Sensors	$10.0
Advanced Acoustic Signal Processing	10.0
PE 63561N, Advanced Submarine Systems Development:
Hydrodynamics	5.0
Propulsors	20.0

The House bill would direct that, of the $60.0 million increase, a total of $20.0 million would be equally divided between the two submarine shipbuilders, Electric Boat Division and Newport News Shipbuilding, for the purpose of ensuring that these shipbuilders are principal participants in the process of including new technologies into the design and construction of the submarines built at their respective shipyards. The House report (H. Rept. 104-563) would direct the Secretary of the Navy to ensure that those shipbuilders have access for such purposes to the Navy laboratories and the Office of Naval Intelligence.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $38.0 million to the budget request for demonstration and validation of the Category I and Category II technologies described in the Secretary's report as follows:

(1) PE 63504N: $19.0 million for demonstration and validation of passive ranging/target motion analysis, large aperture processing, matched environmental processing, total ship monitoring system improvements, near-term multi-line towed array, high gain multi-line towed array, lightweight wide aperture array fiber optics, and high gain hull array; and

(2) PE 63561N: $19.0 million for demonstration and validation of electro-mechanical/electro-hydraulic actuators, advanced welding processes, power electronic building blocks, advanced propulsor fabrication, advanced hybrid propulsors, advanced coatings, rim driven motors, and elastomeric ejection system.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $50.0 million in PE 63563N to initiate the design of new, next-generation nuclear attack submarines. The $50.0 million would be equally divided between the two shipbuilders for this purpose. The design effort would proceed in parallel with the construction of four developmental submarines so that these two original designs would be ready to compete for serial production in fiscal year 2003.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $40.0 million in PE 64558N to produce design improvements for four developmental submarines that would be built at Electric Boat Division and Newport News Shipbuilding as a consequence of section 131 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996. The $40.0 million would be equally divided between the two shipbuilders. Each shipbuilder would be allowed to propose to the Secretary of the Navy any design improvement that the shipbuilder considers appropriate for the submarines being built by that shipbuilder.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $2.0 million in PE 14224N for further development and evaluation of wake trial sensors.

The Senate amendment would authorize a total increase of $100.0 million for advanced submarine technology initiatives identified in the Secretary of Defense's report. This increase would be distributed as follows:

(1) $60.0 million for development of core technologies, including $20.0 million in PE 63504N and $40.0 million in PE 63561N; and

(2) $40.0 million for development of the Category I and Category II technologies identified in the Secretary of Defense's report, including $20.0 million in PE 63504N and $20.0 million in PE 63561N.

The Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267) would direct the Navy to use these funds to carry out the high priority development efforts identified in the Secretary of Defense's report to Congress, emphasizing advanced hydrodynamic and hydroacoustic research, using advanced modeling that is validated, when appropriate, by the use of large scale models before insertion into the final design. The Senate report would also emphasize that the authorized increase would be for developing new technologies, not for the purpose of resolving funding shortfalls in existing programs or for improving combat systems or sensors on older submarines.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $8.0 million in PE 63508N for Project "M". This authorization is discussed in more detail elsewhere in this statement of managers.

The conferees also agree to an increase of $60.0 million for demonstration and validation of core technologies identified in the Secretary of Defense's report, including improved acoustic sensors and processing, hydrodynamics, structural acoustics (including active controls and mount), and propulsors (including integrated stern and electric drive). This increase will be distributed as follows:

	[In millions of dollars]
PE 63504N, Advanced Submarine Combat Systems Development:
Advanced Acoustic Sensors	10.0
Advanced Acoustic Signal Processing	10.0
PE 63561N, Advanced Submarine Systems Development:
Hydrodynamics	5.0

Propulsors	20.0

The conferees direct that, of the $60.0 million increase, a total of $20.0 million will be equally divided between the two submarine shipbuilders, Electric Boat Division and Newport News Shipbuilding, for the purpose of ensuring that these shipbuilders are principal participants in the process of including new technologies into the design and construction of the submarines built at their respective shipyards. The conferees further direct the Secretary of the Navy to ensure that those shipbuilders have access for such purpose to the Navy laboratories and the Office of Naval Intelligence.

The conferees also authorize a further increase of $38.0 million to the budget request for demonstration and validation of the Category I and Category II technologies described in the Secretary's report. The recommended increase will be distributed as follows:

(1) PE 63504N: $19.0 million for demonstration and validation of passive ranging/target motion analysis, large aperture processing, matched environmental processing, total ship monitoring system improvements, near-term multi-line towed array, high gain multi-line towed array, lightweight wide aperture array fiber optics, and high gain hull array; and

(2) PE 63561N: $19.0 million for demonstration and validation of electro-mechanical/electro-hydraulic actuators, advanced welding processes, power electronic building blocks, advanced propulsor fabrication, advanced hybrid propulsors, advanced coatings, rim driven motors, and elastomeric ejection system.

Submarine towed array processing software

The budget request included $19.1 million in PE 63504N for advanced submarine combat systems development.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $8.0 million in PE 63504N to improve the overall performance of both sonar and combat control systems by the improvement of their ASW acoustic processing.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Aircraft carrier research and development

The budget request included $12.7 million in PE 63512N for carrier systems development, including $8.3 million for development and demonstration of technologies that may be used in the future aircraft carrier (CVX-78) now planned to begin construction contract award in fiscal year 2006.

To accelerate development and demonstration of technologies for the CVX-78 and to establish a more reasonable ramp to ship design, component development, and the production decision for the CVX-78, the House bill would authorize an increase of $23.0 million to the budget request in PE 63512N. The House report (H. Rept. 104-563) indicated these funds would be used for development of technologies for advanced aircraft launch systems, advanced armor concepts, integrated topside design, initial computing plant systems architecture analysis, and development of advanced modeling and simulation.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $52.0 million above the budget request in PE 63512N for aircraft carrier research and development.

The Senate recedes.

Navy surface combatant

The budget request included $12.9 million in PE 63564N for ship preliminary design and feasibility studies.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $25.0 million in PE 63564N to increase funding for development of the Navy's next generation of surface combatant, the SC-21, to provide a level of funding that could lead to an orderly development and transition to procurement after the turn of the century.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Advanced surface machinery program—inter-cooled recuperated engine

The budget request included $59.8 million in PE 63573N for the advanced surface machinery program, including $34.1 million to continue advanced development of the inter-cooled recuperated (ICR) gas turbine engine. The ICR will be the propulsion engine for the SC-21 next generation surface combatant. Current plans call for introduction of the ICR into the fleet as the propulsion system for future DDG-51 class ships. The ICR promises 30 percent propulsion fuel savings compared to the current Navy gas turbine, increased range, and environmental emissions compliance. The engine is also being considered as the propulsion system for the multinational European "Horizon" frigate. The "Horizon" program is a collaborative effort among U.S., British, and French navies.

The ICR has been in advanced development since December 1991, and is now undergoing development full scale system testing at Pyestock, England. Tests to date confirm engine design predictions and the 30 percent fuel savings benefits of recuperation. During the engine tests in early 1995, the recuperator developed air leaks which required its removal and return to the manufacturer. Intensive investigation revealed both design flaws and manufacturing process problems. A recuperator recovery plan was instituted by the management team and full scale engine tests resumed in January 1996, using a redesigned recuperator. A second test site is to be established at the Navy's Ship Systems Land Based Engineering Site (LBES) to support ICR engine endurance and qualification testing, integration of the ICR engine into the DDG-51, and integrated power system development for the SC-21.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $12.5 million to the budget request to complete preparations for supporting ICR engine endurance and qualification tests at the LBES. The House report (H. Rept. 104-563) expressed concern that the Navy's decision to proceed with the 500 hour endurance test and the final 1000 hour qualification test at the LBES is not supported by adequate funding, and directed the Secretary of the Navy to ensure that these funds are included in the fiscal year 1998 budget request. The House report would also direct the Navy to obligate no more than 25 percent of the fiscal year 1997 funds until the Secretary of the Navy reviews the results of the developmental testing and progress in resolving the recuperator problem and reports the results of this review, not later than December 31, 1996, to the congressional defense committees.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $19.0 million to the budget request in PE 63573N for the ICR engine. Of this amount:

(1) $12.5 million would be to establish an ICR test facility at the Navy's existing land-based test site; and

(2) $6.5 million would be for at-sea testing of the ICR engine.

The Senate recedes.

In sensitive munitions

The budget request included $7.3 million in PE 63609N for insensitive munitions advanced development.

The House bill would authorize an additional $3.0 million to ensure adequate funding is available for the program.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The conferees agree to increase the budget request by $3.0 million for insensitive munitions advanced development.

Lightweight 155MM howitzer program

The budget request included $44.9 million in PE 63635M for Marine Corps ground combat and support systems.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $4.0 million in PE 63635M to incorporate new technologies into the Marine Corps lightweight 155mm howitzer and its associated training devices.

The Senate recedes.

Cooperative engagement capability

The budget request included $164.5 million in PE 63755N and $9.9 million in PE 24152N for continued development of the Navy's cooperative engagement capability (CEC). Funding provided by the budget request would focus on the development of shipboard and airborne cooperative engagement systems (CES), initial operational test and evaluation of shipboard CES, and development of organic integrated logistic support for the CES.

CEC is designed to enhance the warfighting capabilities of ships and aircraft by combining the data derived from various sensors into a single common representation that is available with the same positional accuracy to all participating ships. The Navy reports that a challenging cruise missile defense exercise, Mountain Top, which relied heavily on CEC position information, was held earlier this year in Hawaii. The exercise involved over-the-horizon detection, tracking, and engagement of a variety of difficult targets. The Navy currently projects that initial operational capability of the system will be achieved by September 1996. During testimony at this year's defense posture hearing, the Secretary of Defense singled out CEC as a program of high priority that he chose to accelerate because of its great potential for linking units from more than one service together and greatly increasing their warfighting ability.

Despite relatively robust funding for CEC in this year's budget request, it contains no funding to pursue joint service integration efforts that were begun last year. Successful consummation of these efforts, in consonance with the Navy's baseline program, could greatly leverage the capability of the services to conduct joint operations and provide ballistic missile defense. Another area not addressed by the budget request, an issue raised in committee hearings this year, is reported interference between CEC and other data links currently in use in the fleet.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $17.0 million in PE 63755N for the CEC program and urge the continued acceleration and expansion of joint service integration efforts, including application to the Airborne Warning and Control Systems (AWACS) aircraft, Patriot and Theater High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) missile systems, Marine Corps TPS-59 radar and the HAWK missile system.

quest for CEC in PE 63755N to permit continued pursuit of a number of promising efforts, including CEC integration with AWACS and national sensors, to accelerate development of an airborne capability for the system, and to address the issue of CEC interference with other fleet data links, particularly the link installed on the SH-60B.

The conferees agree to an increase of $35.0 million in PE 63755N for the CEC program and urge the continued acceleration and expansion of joint service integration efforts, including application to AWACS aircraft, Patriot and THAAD missile systems, Marine Corps TPS-59 radar and the HAWK missile system. The conferees also direct the Secretary of the Navy to prepare a detailed report, for submission no later than March 15, 1997, on:

(1) progress made in resolving the issue of spectrum interference as a result of the reallocation under title VI of the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1993 of the spectrum in which CEC operates; and

(2) steps that the Secretary has taken to address and resolve harmful interference between CEC and other fleet weapons systems and data links.

Strike missile evaluation

The budget request did not include funding for evaluation of a variant of the Navy's Standard missile for use by Navy ships to conduct long-range strike.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $24.0 million above the budget request in PE 63795N to evaluate the potential of the Standard missile to satisfy long-range strike and supersonic sea-skimming target requirements.

The House bill would not authorize an increase for this purpose in PE 63795N.

The Senate recedes.

Naval surface fire support program

The budget request included $42.2 million in PE 63795N for gun weapons system technology. Of this amount, $20.2 million is for the continued development of a 5-inch extended range guided munition (ERGM) round. The Navy is developing this round to address a gap in its ability to provide accurate naval surface fire support (NSFS) during an amphibious assault at the ranges dictated by current requirements. Of the $20.2 million, no funds have been budgeted for risk mitigation in the development of a GPS/INS guidance unit for the projectile, the component judged to have the greatest technical risk.

The House bill would not authorize an increase of $5.0 million to the budget request to build on the Navy's guidance risk reduction program; accelerate development and qualification of micro-electro-mechanical systems (MEMS)-based, low cost global positioning system/inertial navigation system (GPS/INS) guidance and control technology; and ensure the availability of that technology for the Navy's 5-inch ERGM production program and for other guided munitions, rocket, and missile programs.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $3.0 million to the budget request in PE 63795N for risk mitigation in development of the 5-inch ERGM.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees agree to an increase of $5.0 million in PE 63795N for risk mitigation in development of the Navy's 5-inch ERGM and acceleration of the development of MEMS-based GPS/INS guidance and control technology for the ERGM projectile. Consistent with direction provided in the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996, the conferees also agree to authorize an increase of $0.4 million above the budget request to support the retention of two Iowa class battleships on the naval register in an inactive status until the Navy is able to replace their potential NSFS capability.

Light airborne multi-purpose system helicopter program

The budget request included $40.1 million in PE 64212N for helicopter development.

Among the programs funded by PE 64212N is the Navy program to convert its existing fleet of light airborne multi-purpose system (LAMPS) helicopters from the SH-60B configuration to the SH-60R configuration. It is planned that other Navy H-60 series helicopters, such as the HH-60, a search and rescue variant, and the SH-60F, an ASW variant with a dipping sonar, will also eventually be converted to the SH-60R configuration. However, the Navy's helicopter master plan, under which these conversions are included, has been in a constant state of flux for at least the past two years and, in the conferees' opinion, has lacked the focus needed to properly compete for resources as the defense budget, particularly the acquisition portion, has declined in recent years.

The conferees are aware that the LAMPS SH-60B to SH-60R development program is short of resources. Since fiscal year 1995, it has gone through requirements restructuring, contractual rebaselining, efforts at cost reduction through acquisition reform initiatives, contractor investment, and an increasing contractor inventory of accrued cost that has not been paid. While the Navy and contractor teams have maintained technical progress towards the planned fiscal year 2001 initial operational capability (IOC) date, the funding level contained in the fiscal year 1997 budget request would be insufficient to sustain this effort. Because the program was originally structured to permit conversion to the SH-60R configuration to occur during scheduled depot maintenance or service life extension overhauls, the delay in program development that would result from the fiscal year 1997 budget request would likely also cause a substantial increase in conversion costs and might render the program unaffordable.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $6.8 million in PE 64212N to restore funds that were removed from the SH-60R development program during preparation of the fiscal year 1997 budget request. This additional funding would permit a critical design review to occur in fiscal year 1997 and maintain the program's progress toward a fiscal year 2001 IOC. The Senate amendment would also authorize an increase of $10.0 million for the procurement of additional SH-60B upgrade kits to replace funds that were removed from the program during fiscal year 1996 to pay for F-14 digital flight control improvements.

The House bill would authorize the request amount.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $6.8 million in PE 64212N for the SH-60R development program. An increase of $10.0 million for the procurement of additional SH-60B upgrade kits is not authorized.

Vertical replenishment helicopter replacement program

The budget request included no funding to initiate procurement of a helicopter to replace the Navy's increasingly costly and aging CH-46 vertical replenishment (VERTREP) helicopter.

To address this problem, the Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $10.0 million above the budget request to take advantage of excess components available from the Army and initiate a VERTREP helicopter replacement program in fiscal year 1997.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree that development of a replacement VERTREP helicopter would be better pursued as a research and development program and authorize an increase of $10.0 million in PE 64212N for this purpose.

Helicopter ground proximity warning systems

The budget request included $24.7 million in PE 64215N for engineering and manufacturing systems development of joint service and Navy standard avionics components and subsystems.

Recognizing that the Navy and the Marine Corps have a requirement for a ground proximity warning system, the House bill would authorize an increase of $2.4 million in PE 64215N to continue development of the helicopter ground proximity warning system (GPWS) in anticipation of its fielding on Navy and Marine heavy and medium lift helicopters.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Joint Maritime Combat Information System (JMCIS)

The budget request included $11.3 million in PE 64231N for the Navy tactical command system afloat (NTCS-A) component of the joint maritime command information system (JMCIS).

The House bill would authorize an increase to the budget request of $14.5 million as follows:

- (1) an additional $1.0 million in PE 64231N to explore and initiate efforts to improve interoperability between JMCIS and the other service intelligence support terminals;
- (2) an additional $2.0 million in PE 64231N for proliferating the RADIANT MERCURY automated multi-level security sanitizer;
- (3) an increase of $1.5 million in PE 64231N for development of an integrated two-way Link 16 processing capability for the JMCIS software; and
- (4) an additional $10.0 million in a new program element, PE 64770N, for integrating a capability for the U.S. Navy to receive, process, and utilize the joint surveillance target attack radar system (JSTARS) moving target indicator (MTI) synthetic aperture radar (SAR) system data.

The Senate amendment would authorize an additional $23.0 million above the budget request to:

- (1) develop an integrated two-way Link 16 processing capability in JMCIS software;
- (2) incorporate the Air Force's contingency theater automated planning system (CTAPS) into JMCIS;
- (3) develop an upgrade to permit data exchange between JSTARS and the Navy's afloat planning system (APS);
- (4) field the RADIANT MERCURY automated multi-level security sanitizer; and
- (5) develop the tools and architecture that will allow users to selectively request, filter, and process supporting databases.

Of the $23.0 million, $19.5 million would be for research and development in PE 64231N and $3.5 million would be for procurement.

The conferees agree to authorize an additional $13.0 million above the budget request in PE 64231N as follows:

- (1) $1.0 million for coordinating JMCIS functional capabilities with the other service intelligence terminals;

(2) $2.0 million for fielding RADIANT MERCURY;

(3) $1.5 million for two-way Link 16; and

(4) $8.5 million for receiving and exploiting the JSTARS MTI capabilities.

The conferees also agree to authorize an increase of $3.5 million of procurement funding to accomplish these objectives.

CV-22 special operations tiltrotor aircraft

The budget request included $576.8 million in PE 64262N for development of the V-22 tiltrotor aircraft to meet the medium lift amphibious/vertical lift needs of the Marine Corps (MV-22) and the special operations needs (CV-22) of the Special Operations Command (SOCOM). The Navy and the SOCOM acquisition executives reached agreement on a program that will develop an aircraft capable of meeting the SOCOM's needs for the CV-22. This program provides for remanufacture of a MV-22 test aircraft to CV-22 standards for test and evaluation, rather than providing a new aircraft off the production line.

The House bill would authorize an additional $37.0 million to procure a new aircraft to support testing and evaluation of the CV-22, notwithstanding the agreement between the Department of the Navy and SOCOM acquisition executives. The House report (H. Rept. 104-563) expressed the opinion that the remanufacturing alternative would represent a significant challenge for the program office to complete the CV-22 program with the desired capabilities by the date of the required special operations initial operational capability (IOC). The report expressed the opinion that the agreed plan would pose an unacceptable risk to CV-22 program. The report indicated that the House expected the Secretary of the Navy to include the total of $47.0 million required to complete the CV-22 test and evaluation aircraft in the Navy's budget requests for fiscal years 1998 and 1999.

The Senate amendment would authorize an additional $20.0 million for funding for risk mitigation during the first year of low rate initial production. The Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267) noted that the program agreed upon by the Navy and SOCOM acquisition executives would be predicated on remanufacture of an MV-22 aircraft for CV-22 test and evaluation, and would represent compliance with all key performance parameters and most of the threshold requirements defined in the joint operational requirements document (JORD). The report noted that using a remanufactured MV-22 flight test article would represent an innovative, cost-effective solution to the problem of living within the program's resources. The report also noted that the remanufacturing approach represents a challenge for the program office to complete the CV-22 program with the agreed-on capabilities on or before the required IOC in 2005. The report also noted that the Senate expected the joint program office to release aircraft number nine back to the contractor for remanufacture by August 1, 1999. Should additional testing for the MV-22 program be necessary, the program manager would be required to develop and implement the necessary options to complete MV-22 testing without the use of aircraft number nine after August 1, 1999.

The conferees understand that, notwithstanding the agreement that the SOCOM acquisition executive signed, the SOCOM would prefer to have a new, rather than a remanufactured aircraft to conduct CV-22 testing. The SOCOM has expressed concern that meeting the established IOC of having 15 aircraft available in fiscal year 2005 is at risk. The conferees also understand that the SOCOM has reservations about accepting an aircraft for the remanufacture program that could have upwards of 200 hours of flight time, based on previous experience with the MH-47 program.

The conferees observe that there are some similarities and some differences between the schedules for the buying and remanufacturing approaches;

(1) The schedule laid out by the Department indicates that the program preferred by the SOCOM would involve building an MV-22 aircraft that would later be converted to CV-22 configuration. Building a CV-22 aircraft, when the CV-22 is itself in development, now would involve too much concurrency.

(2) This MV-22 aircraft would be inducted into a CV-22 conversion program at the same time that an existing test aircraft would enter a remanufacturing program to turn it into a CV-22 test aircraft. According to the current schedule, both programs would deliver a CV-22 aircraft for testing in May, 2000.

(2) Buying a new dedicated test aircraft would reduce schedule risk. Should something happen to one of the test aircraft during MV-22 testing, the whole testing program and making one of the test aircraft available for remanufacturing could be delayed.

The conferees note that such schedule risk could be mitigated by the fact that this bill would add two production MV-22 aircraft that could be made available in lieu of providing a test aircraft for remanufacture. However, having an extra test aircraft available over the life of the MV/CV-22 program would ease the problems of testing schedules.

The conferees agree to provide an additional $37.0 million, with $27.0 million for the new MV-22 aircraft that would be converted to CV-22 configuration later, and $10.0 million provided only for mitigating technical risk in the overall V-22 program.

The conferees have agreed to support the extra dedicated test aircraft because of SOCOM's view that this aircraft is the Command's number one unfunded priority. The conferees are willing to defer to the SOCOM in this case, with the understanding that the SOCOM will budget for the additional funds, beyond those now included in the program plan for remanufacture of an MV-22 to the CV-22 configuration, for: (1) the rest of the costs of the new aircraft; and (2) any CV-22-unique risk mitigation effort that SOCOM views as important. The conferees expect that these funds would be transferred from SOCOM to the Navy acquisition executive during the years of execution.

Precision targeting and location system

The budget request included $78.7 million in PE 64270N for electronic warfare engineering and manufacturing development.

The House bill would authorize an additional $3.5 million for development and demonstration in a flyable prototype of currently available technology capable of rapid, precision location of sources of global positioning system collateral interference and intentional jamming in order to assess the technical feasibility and utility of such a targeting system on operational aircraft and unmanned aerial vehicles.

The Senate amendment did not include a specific authorization for such a precision targeting and location system development and demonstration program.

The Senate recedes.

Smart Ship initiative

The budget request included no funding for the Navy's Smart Ship initiative. This initiative, developed too late for inclusion in the budget request, will be managed at fleet level and is designed to demonstrate that crew workload for a surface combatant ship can be reduced via technology and changes to existing policies and procedures. The lessons derived from it are expected to have a direct, cost saving impact on the designs for future ships, such as the arsenal ship and the Navy's next generation of surface combatant, the SC-21. It may also produce modification proposals that could be cost effectively incorporated into existing fleet units to lower operating and support costs.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $31.3 million above the budget request to accelerate the Smart Ship initiative. Of this amount, $21.9 million would be for PE 64307N. The balance of $9.4 million would be added to the Navy's operating account.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to authorize $23.4 million above the budget request to accelerate the Smart Ship initiative. Of this amount, $14.0 million would be for PE 64307N. The balance of $9.4 million would be added to the Navy's operating account.

Arsenal ship

The budget request included $25.0 million in PE 64310N for Department of the Navy engineering and manufacturing development to initiate a "new start" development for the arsenal ship. The budget request for the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) also included $16.4 million in PE 63226E for development of technologies for application to future surface warfare and fast sealift ships, including the arsenal ship.

The House bill would authorize the budget request, but would provide funding for the Navy for the arsenal ship program in PE 63563N, Ship Concept Advanced Design, an advanced development program element, rather than in PE 64310N. The House report (H. Rept. 104-563) would direct the Secretary of the Navy to submit the initial results of a review of DOD Directive 5000.1 and DOD Regulation 5000.2 with respect to core acquisition management issues relative to the arsenal ship with the fiscal year 1998 budget request.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $147.0 million in PE 64310N to accelerate development of the arsenal ship weapons system and to accelerate the process of finding answers to questions that would allow the Navy to develop the arsenal ship as a system, not just a ship. The Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267) noted that the Senate expects the Navy to be prepared to address this matter and its various developmental and resource implications before the submission of the fiscal year 1998 budget request.

The conferees agree to authorize $25.0 million for the arsenal ship program in a new advanced development program element, PE 63310N, and $16.4 million in 63226E as included in the budget request.

The conferees commend the Navy's leadership and the Navy development community and participating Defense agencies for the innovative way in which the concept for the arsenal ship has been developed. The conferees agree that the program is in an early conceptual stage and that a number of questions regarding the program, as expressed in the House and Senate reports, need to be answered as the program proceeds. The conferees also agree that the projected cost of the program indicates that the arsenal ship will be a major defense acquisition program.

The conferees support the concept of the Department of Defense advanced concept technology demonstration and the desirability of early user involvement in the development and evaluation of emerging technologies. The conferees also support the need to break out of bureaucratic practices, and make maximum use of best commercial practices, streamlined acquisition procedures, and modern design and analytical tools to develop new defense acquisition paradigms. The conferees see no conflict between these goals and the requirement for the Department of Defense to answer necessary questions at the beginning and at subsequent milestones in any development and acquisition program. The challenge for the Department, as expressed in the House report, is to create better analytical tools that will provide answers to the continuing questions in any development program, such as: (1) what is the operational requirement?; and (2) what is the most cost and operationally effective way of meeting that operational requirement?

Standard missile "Terrier" target

The budget request included $1.6 million in PE 64366N for development of improvements to the Standard missile.

The House bill would authorize an additional $8.0 million for a proof of concept demonstration and evaluation of the potential effectiveness of the Terrier missile as a supersonic sea-skimming target (SSST).

The Senate amendment would authorize this initiative in PE 63795N.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees note that the Navy's inventory of SSSTs is insufficient to meet both test and evaluation and fleet training needs and believe that the Navy must seriously address the development and procurement of a follow-on SSST to ensure that production units are available when needed.

Airborne mine detection systems

The budget request included $14.5 million in PE 64373N for airborne mine countermeasures systems.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $10.0 million in PE 64373N to produce a competitive evaluation of two airborne laser mine detection systems (ALMDS), ATD-111 and Magic Lantern. Both systems are based on light detection and ranging (LIDAR) technology. The funding increase would be used to prepare the two systems for the competition, to conduct the competitive assessment, and to prepare the required report as follows:

- (1) $3.0 million would be available to prepare ATD-111 for the competition;
- (2) $5.0 million would be available to prepare Magic Lantern for the competition; and
- (3) $2.0 million would be available to organize and conduct the competition, analyze data, and prepare the required report.

The Senate amendment would also require the Secretary of the Navy, upon completion of the competitive assessment, to develop a plan to procure a sufficient number of the winning systems to provide the active Navy forces with a satisfactory contingency ALMDS capability. To begin this procurement, the Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $25.0 million above the budget request.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $25.0 million above the budget request for the procurement of three additional Magic Lantern systems.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $10.0 million in PE 64373N to conduct the competitive assessment described in the report accompanying the Senate amendment (S. Rept. 104-267).

The Senate report noted that, in testimony on its mine warfare programs this year, the Navy, emphasized its long term objective of providing an organic mine countermeasures (MCM) capability to the active fleet that will permit fleet units to respond immediately to mine threats while waiting for specialized MCM units to arrive on the scene. However, progress in fielding an organic capability for the Navy's aircraft carrier battle groups (CVBGs) and amphibious ready groups (ARGs) to conduct minehunting by use of an ALMDS has been marginal.

The conferees are aware that there are two LIDAR systems in development, Magic Lantern and ATD-111, that could be candidates for a solution to the ALMDS requirement. They have been in development for a number of years at very modest levels of funding. However, it would appear that, while their technology is sufficiently mature to proceed to the engineering and manufacturing development stage, sufficient resources are not available to transition both systems.

Accordingly, the conferees direct the Navy to conduct a competitive evaluation field test, during fiscal year 1997, of the two candidate technologies represented by Magic Lantern and ATD-111, for the purpose of identifying a single system that can be procured and integrated into active Navy fleet aircraft to provide them with an organic MCM capability. This assessment should include a quantitative determination of each system's performance with respect to detection and classification of moored and floating mines, area coverage, false alarm rates, potential for multi-mission capability, system availability, and capability for integration and carriage aboard the SH-60 series active fleet helicopters. The conferees further direct that this competitive evaluation be conducted as soon as practicable, but no later than July 1, 1997. The Secretary of the Navy shall report result to the congressional defense committees no later than August 1, 1997.

Upon completion of this assessment, the Navy shall develop a plan that will lead to procurement of a sufficient number of the winning systems to provide active Navy forces with a satisfactory contingency ALMDS capability. The conferees direct the Secretary of the Navy to submit this plan to the congressional defense committees in conjunction with the fiscal year 1999 budget request to continue execution of the plan.

Multi-purpose processor

The budget request included $61.4 million in PE 64503N, including $33.6 million for development of submarine sonar improvements. Included in this program element is a program for the development and introduction of multipurpose processor (MPP) technology into the U.S. submarine fleet.

The MPP was developed under the Small Business Innovative Research Program. Using commercial off-the-shelf (COTS) hardware and an open software architecture, the MPP has capitalized on the exponential improvement in commercial hardware and software to facilitate rapid improvements in submarine acoustic data processing. Fundamental to the MPP is the concept of protecting the Navy's investment in processor software through software transportability, i.e., the ability to transport new, advanced software to existing hardware utilizing an open operating system. The MPP has been incorporated into the design of the command, control, communications, and intelligence system of the New Attack Submarine Program. The Navy's Submarine Combat Systems Program has also selected the MPP as a cornerstone for sonar upgrades for the existing SSN-688, 688I, and SSBN-726 class submarines.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $11.0 million in PE 64503N for advanced development and rapid introduction of MPP technology into the U.S. submarine fleet.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $15.2 million in PE 64558N to mature MPP transportable software technology for use in research and development programs, and to improve the performance of Navy towed and hull mounted arrays.

The conferees agree to an increase of $15.2 million in PE 64503N to support advanced development of MPP transportable software technology and rapid introduction of MPP technology into the U.S. submarine fleet.

Seawolf shock test

The budget request included $91.9 million in PE 64561N for Seawolf class research and development.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $26.0 million in PE 64561N to provide for shock testing of Seawolf components not covered by the budget request.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Tactical fiber optic communications

The budget request included $4.6 million in PE 32019K for the joint/defense information systems engineering and integration program.

The House bill would authorize an increase to the budget request of $3.0 million to investigate military applications of the planned world wide commercial fiber optic grid and support a Defense Information Systems Agency proof of concept demonstration of the ability to establish Department of Defense "splices" into the grid before it is fully deployed.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The House recedes.

Doppler sonar velocity log

The budget request included $22.9 million in PE 64562N for engineering and manufacturing systems development of submarine tactical warfare systems.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $1.0 million to the budget request in PE 64562N for the evaluation of a commercially available, non-developmental Doppler sonar velocity log as a potential replacement for standard Navy electromagnetic logs.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

Explosive ordnance disposal

The budget request included $7.3 million in PE 64654N for the joint service explosives ordnance disposal (EOD) development program.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $1.1 million in PE 64654N to accelerate development of EOD procedures for countering high threat unexploded ordnance found in the field.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The House recedes.

Battle group passive horizon extension system—surface terminal

The budget request included $1.9 million in PE 64721N for continued research and development of the battle group passive horizon extension system—surface terminal (BGPHE-S-T) capabilities.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $1.0 million in PE 64721N for procurement by the Navy of existing Air Force processing capabilities and algorithms for exploitation of the class of threats known as "PROFORMA" and integration of EPR-157 and EPR-208 capabilities in existing BGPHE-S-T hardware.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The Senate recedes.

Quick reaction combat capability

The budget request included $29.5 million for continued development of the quick reaction combat capability (QRCC) for ship self-defense.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $17.0 million above the budget request in PE 64755N to:

- (1) accelerate engineering of the LHD amphibious assault ship self-defense system;
- (2) integrate the advanced combat direction system (ACDS) with the cooperative engagement capability (CEC); and
- (3) improve tracking equipment at the Navy's Wallops Island engineering test site and aboard its self-defense test ship.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

SPS-48E radar pulse Doppler upgrade

The conferees are aware of a recently completed Navy study "Land Clutter Effects of Shipboard Radars", dated April 11, 1996. The study demonstrates that radar signal return clutter over land can seriously degrade the ability of shipboard air surveillance radars to detect low altitude targets. Even close-in aircraft or cruise missiles may not be detected, and sensitive, highly automated systems can become overloaded with large numbers of clutter detections and false tracks. As a case in point, the AN/SPS-48E radar, the principal aerial surveillance and height-finding radar for aircraft carriers and large deck amphibious ships, demonstrates degraded near-shore and limited low altitude over-land detection performance against small signature targets, such as cruise missiles.

The conferees authorize an increase of $12.0 million in PE 64755N to develop and demonstrate a pulse Doppler upgrade to the AN/SPS-48E radar. Incorporating a pulse Doppler capability into this radar would provide improved near-shore and low altitude over-land clutter rejection and improved radar performance.

Infrared search and track

The budget request included $3.9 million in PE 64755N for the continued development of the infrared search and track (IRST) weapons system.

To eliminate a substantial portion of the delays in the IRST program that the budget request would produce, the Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $8.0 million above the budget request in PE 64755N.

House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Evolved Sea Sparrow missile

The budget request included $39.5 million in PE 64755N for continued development of the evolved Sea Sparrow missile (ESSM).

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $8.0 million above the budget request in PE 64755N to:

- (1) modify the safe and arming device of the RIM-7P to ensure safe separation from the firing ship;
- (2) additional simulation capability that will better reflect the improved missile design and the environmental conditions that the missile will encounter within its flight envelop; and

(3) an S-band link to support the missile's employment by AEGIS ships.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Fixed distributed system-1

The budget request included no funding for improving the capabilities of the Navy's fixed distributed system-1 (FDS-1), a modern surveillance system that can detect even the most modern threat submarines. The committee has learned that additional enhancements in this system could improve significantly its surveillance coverage.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $35.0 million to the budget request in PE 64784N for a fixed distributed system commercial-off-the-shelf/non-development initiative fiber optics upgrade.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $52.0 million above the budget request in PE 64784N to complete enhancements to FDS-1.

The Senate recedes.

Safety and survivability

The House bill would authorize an increase of $2.0 million in PE 65864N to support ongoing non-developmental item (NDI) operational assessments of commercial safety and survivability technology and systems for potential use in Navy operational units. In addition, the House bill would authorize an increase of $4.0 million in PE 63226E for the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) to examine high leverage technologies for firefighting and personnel protection.

The Senate amendment did not contain similar provisions.

The conferees agree to authorize only the increase of $2.0 million in PE 65864N, because no appropriation was provided for the DARPA portion of the recommended program.

SSBN security and survivability program

The budget request included $21.3 million in PE 11224N for the SSBN security and survivability program.

The House bill would authorize an additional $2.0 million for further development and evaluation of wake trail sensors and an additional $6.0 million to sustain the funding level required to maintain a credible SSBN security and survivability program.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $5.5 million to explore several promising technologies, such as forward scatter barrier, low frequency active sonar, radar detection, and light detection and ranging (LIDAR) buoy detection.

The House recedes.

The conferees agree with the views expressed in the House report (H. Rept. 104-563) concerning the need to maintain a credible and robust SSBN security program in view of the critical role of strategic deterrence in U.S. national military strategy that is provided by the U.S. SSBN force.

Joint target support system testbed

The budget request includes $136.4 million in PE 24229N, including $130.5 million for operational systems development of the Tomahawk Baseline Improvement Program (TBIP) and $5.9 million for the Tomahawk theater mission planning center.

The House bill would authorize an additional $8.0 million in PE 24229N to continue development and demonstration of the joint targeting support system testbed (JTSST).

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase to the budget request of $29.0 million in PE 24229N for continued development of the Tomahawk Block IV missile.

The Senate recesses.

In the statement of managers accompanying the conference report on S. 1124 (H. Rept. 104-450), the conferees agreed to initiate development of a JTSST for demonstration of potential joint targeting operations with the expectation that the results of the initial JTSST study and follow-on demonstrations would contribute to the definition of long-term objectives, guidelines, and schedule milestones for convergence of the Navy/Marine Corps tactical aircraft mission planning systems and the Air Force mission support system, and lead to the development of a joint mission planning system architecture for the military services.

The conferees voice their displeasure that the Secretary of Defense has failed to comply with the previous guidance provided by the Congress with regard to the JTSST demonstration. The Secretary is directed to report to the congressional defense committees, no later than December 31, 1996, the Department's plans for:

- (1) development of a joint mission planning system architecture for the military services;
- (2) the convergence of Navy/Marine Corps and Air Force tactical mission planning and mission support systems; and
- (3) the role a JTSST demonstration will play in furthering these plans.

Integrated surveillance system improvements

The budget request included $14.0 million in PE 24311N for research and development support of the Integrated Undersea Surveillance System (IUSS) including $3.3 million for research and development support of the Surveillance Towed Array Sensor System (SURTASS) and $10.7 million for the IUSS detection/classification system.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $22.1 million in PE 24311N to the budget request in PE 24311N to:

- (1) continue development and integration of SURTASS twin line arrays, reduce the size of transmit arrays, continue fiber optic array development, expand frequency processing capabilities, and conduct at-sea testing of resulting developments;
- (2) sustain the low frequency array program and development of more reliable low frequency active transmitters; and
- (3) adapt SURTASS software algorithms for submarine sonar systems.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $8.0 million in PE 63504N for adaptation of SURTASS software algorithms for use in submarine sonar systems.

The Senate recesses.

Consolidated training systems development

The budget request included $34.9 million in PE 24571N for consolidated training systems development, including $3.4 million for continued development of the Navy's surface tactical team trainer (STTT), $17.9 million for the joint tactical combat training system (JTCTS), and $6.0 million for training and training devices systems (TTDS).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $3.0 million in PE 24571N to continue integration and evaluation of the cryptologic systems trainer in the battle force tactical training (BFTT) system component of the STTT.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $5.0 million in PE 64735F and $9.0 million in PE 24571N for the JTCTS to correct an imbalance between the program's planned development timeline and the schedule allowed by the funding included in the budget request.

The Senate recesses.

Advanced anti-radiation guided missile

The budget request included no funds to continue development of the advanced anti-radiation guided missile (AARGM) technology.

The House bill would authorize an additional $50.0 million for AARGM in PE 25601N. The House report (H. Rept. 104-563) would direct the Secretary of the Navy to proceed with the development program and use the additional funds to continue seeker development, analyses, demonstrations, and test support. The House report would direct that the use of these funds be limited to design reviews and support for test and evaluation. The report further would encourage the Secretaries of the Navy and the Air Force to fund the fiscal year 1998 requirements for the program.

The Senate amendment would approve the budget request.

The Senate recesses.

High speed anti-radiation missile

The House bill would authorize an additional $5.0 million in PE 25601N and an additional $3.5 million in PE 27162F for the High Speed Anti-Radiation Missile (HARM).

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to authorize an additional $2.5 million in PE 25601N to accomplish risk reduction efforts for the block IV program and block V software for HARM.

Tactical data links

The budget request included $37.3 million in PE 25604N for development of improvements in tactical data links in operational Navy systems.

The House bill would authorize an increase to the budget request of $11.6 million for further development of Link 16 and related tactical data link programs for surface ship applications; $13.6 million in Other Procurement, Navy; and $2.2 million in Operations and Maintenance, Navy (OMN 0205604N 4B7N) to accelerate the installation of Link 16 tactical data links in AEGIS surface combatants.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The House recesses.

Towed array receive system

The budget request included $4.9 million in PE 25620N for surface anti-submarine warfare combat systems integration.

The House bill would authorize an increase to the budget request of $4.0 million in PE 25620N for integration of the Navy's towed array receive system (TARS) upgrade in the AN/SQQ-89 surface ship sonar suite in order to address shortcomings in the Navy's capability for detecting slow-moving diesel-electric submarines in shallow water.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The Senate recesses.

Commander in Chiefs' technology initiative

The budget request included $5.0 million in the Navy Science Assistance program (PE 25658N).

The Senate amendment would authorize and increase of $10.0 million in PE 25658N to support efforts by the services and defense agencies to transition rapidly selected technologies from the defense research and development establishment to the services for use in military operations through the Commander in Chiefs' technology initiative established by Congress last year.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The House recesses. The conferees expect that funding in future years for this initiative will be included in the Navy budget request.

Tactical electronic reconnaissance processing and evaluation system

The budget request included $2.5 million in PE 26313M for upgrade to, and communications integration testing within, the tactical electronic reconnaissance processing and evaluation system (TERPES).

The House bill would authorize an additional $855,000 to provide communication software upgrades to improve TERPES interoperability with the global command and control system (GCCS) and the tactical air mission planning system (TAMPS).

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The Senate recesses.

Medium tactical vehicle remanufacturing

The budget request included $5.2 million in PE 26624M for Marine Corps combat services support.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate amendment would authorize an additional $3.0 million in PE 26624M to retain a third contractor during the engineering and manufacturing development phase of the medium tactical vehicle remanufacturing program.

The Senate recesses.

GEOSAT Follow-On

The Senate amendment contained $20.0 million to begin development of a second GEOSAT Follow-On (GFO-2) altimetry satellite.

The House bill did not include funding for GFO-2.

Given the cost growth that has taken place in the GFO-1 program, the conferees agree to authorize $15.0 million in PE 35160N to commence work on GFO-2, subject to the following restrictions: (1) Of the $15.0 million authorized for GFO-2, the conferees agree to authorize the use of up to $10.0 million to compensate for cost growth in the GFO-1 program and to ready the satellite for launch; and (2) the conferees direct the Secretary of the Navy not to obligate or expend any of the funds on a GFO-2 program until the Secretary certifies to Congress that technical and cost issues associated with GFO-1 have been satisfactorily resolved and the Secretary recommends proceeding with GFO-2.

Manufacturing technology (MANTECH)

The budget request included $16.8 million for the Army MANTECH program (PE 78045A), $35.5 million for the Navy MANTECH program (PE 78011N) and $49.9 million for the Air Force MANTECH program (PE 78011F).

The Senate amendment would fund the Army program at the requested amount and authorize a general increase in the services' manufacturing technology programs with an increase of $30.0 million in PE 78011N and an increase of $20.0 million in PE 78011F, as part of a broader thrust to address current and future affordability concerns.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $11.0 million in the Army MANTECH program and authorize the requested amount for the Navy and Air Force MANTECH programs.

The conferees agree to authorize the following amounts for the MANTECH program:

PE 78045A—$27.9 million.

PE 78011N—$65.5 million.

PE 78011F—$69.9 million.

The conferees are aware of issues involved with the delay of funding for MANTECH programs and direct the Department of Defense to take the necessary actions to ensure expeditious and timely obligation of fiscal year 1996 and 1997 funding for these programs. The committee encourages the continuation of programs currently funded in the MANTECH account designed to demonstrate the effectiveness of comprehensive career analysis and retraining models for military and civilian personnel who have been or will be terminated as a consequence of base closure decisions.

A provision (sec. 276) in the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106) amended section 2525 of title 10, United States Code to require the Secretary of Defense to seek the participation of manufacturers of manufacturing equipment for the projects under the programs. The conferees agree that this language is not hortatory but intend it to provide specified direction and focus to the program. The focus of the MANTECH program is the development of manufacturing process technology, and the manufacturing equipment segment of the industry should be actively involved in the projects under these programs.

Acquisition center of excellence

The Senate amendment would authorize $8.0 million in a new budget line for the establishment of an acquisition center of excellence in the Navy.

The House bill did not contain a similar provision.

The House recedes. The conferees expect that the Navy will provide follow-on funding for this effort in fiscal year 1998 and beyond as part of the budget requested for each fiscal year. The conferees direct the Secretary of the Navy to submit to the congressional defense committees, no later than June 15, 1997, a report on progress made toward establishing the center as well as toward the development of performance measures for judging the effectiveness of the center in acting as an agent of reform for the acquisition process in the Navy and elsewhere in the Department of Defense.

Overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 contained an authorization of $14,417.5 million for Air Force, Research and Development in the Department of Defense. The House bill would authorize $13,271.1 million. The Senate amendment would authorize $14,786.4 million. The conferees recommended an authorization of $14,756.4 million. Unless noted explicitly in the statement of managers, all changes are made without prejudice.

Carbon/carbon nosetips

The Senate amendment recommended that $1.5 million of the funds provided in PE 62102F be utilized for the development of carbon/carbon thermal protection material for reentry vehicles as well as for aircraft, spacecraft and missile applications.

The House bill had no similar provision.
The House recedes.

Thermally stable jet fuels

The budget request included $74.9 million for aerospace propulsion technology (PE 62203F).

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $3.0 million in PE 62203F for thermally stable jet fuels.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The conferees agree to an authorization of $74.9 million for PE 62203F of which $3.0 million is authorized for the continuation of the thermally stable jet fuel program.

High frequency active auroral research program

The budget request included $121.1 million for Phillips Laboratory exploratory development (PE 62601F) and $54.1 million for counterproliferation support (PE 63160D).

The Senate amendment authorized an increase of $15.0 million for the high frequency active auroral research program, with $7.5 million in PE 62601F and $7.5 million in PE 63160D.

The House bill authorized the budget request.

The House recedes.

Metal fatigue monitoring

The budget request included $23.8 million for advanced materials for weapon systems technology (PE 63112F).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $2.5 million in PE 63112F for the metal fatigue monitoring program.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Aircraft ejection seats

The budget request included $18.0 million in PE 63231F for crew systems and personnel protection technology, $11.1 million in PE 64264N for aircrew systems development, and $4.4 million for life support systems in PE 64706F.

The House bill and the Senate amendment would authorize an additional $5.0 million in PE 63231F and PE 64264N each to accelerate program phases for ejection seat upgrades. The House bill would also provide an additional $3.5 million in PE 64706F to evaluate the ACES II ejection seat with stabilization, limb restraints, and expanded crew member accommodation and to examine new technology for the integration of tactical aircrew personal equipment.

The conferees agree to authorize an additional $11.5 million, $5.0 million to PE 63231F and $5.0 million to PE 64264N, for ejection seat development, and $1.5 million in PE 64706F to evaluate the ACES II ejection seat with stabilization, limb restraints, and expanded crew member accommodation.

Space Architect

The budget request included $15.0 million in PE 63855F for the Department of Defense Space Architect.

The House bill recommended a reduction of $4.0 million from the request, to include any "pass-through" funding intended for the Office of the Secretary of Defense for which there was no request.

The Senate amendment approved the budget request.

The conferees agree to authorize $13.0 million in a new operational systems development program element, a reduction of $2.0 million. The conferees are following with interest the DOD Space Architect's on-going reviews of the appropriate military satellite communications architecture and the architecture for space control. The conferees expect to be kept apprised of progress during the conduct of these important reviews. The conferees also strongly urge the Architect to consult closely with the Commander-in-Chief, U.S. Space Command during these reviews. Finally, the conferees direct that, in the submission of the fiscal year 1998 budget request, funding for the Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Space not be included along with funds for the Space Architect.

B-2 Conventional capability enhancements

The House bill would authorize an increase of $290.0 million in PE 64240F to accelerate precision guided munition (PGM) integration and conventional weapons capability into the B-2 bomber fleet.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The conferees note that the Department plans to equip the B-2 fleet with enhanced conventional capability, but are concerned with the low levels of funding and slow pace of these efforts. Consequently, the conferees authorize an increase of $212.0 million to accelerate integration of PGMs and to provide enhanced communications, information data link capability, and improved conventional weapons accuracy for the existing fleet of 21 B-2 bombers.

Nuclear weapons support

The budget request included $4.8 million in PE 64222F for nuclear weapons support.

The conferees are concerned about the backlog of requirements for nuclear weapons support for various systems and the impact this backlog can have upon U.S. confidence in the reliability of the nuclear weapons stockpile. Accordingly, the conferees recommend an increase of $1.0 million for activities of the Air Force's Nuclear Weapons Integration Office. The conferees direct the Secretary of the Air Force to include sufficient funds in the fiscal year 1998 budget request to eliminate this backlog.

Global positioning system

The Senate amendment recommended an increase of $7.1 million in PE 64480F to sustain the development and support a production rate of three Block IIF Global Positioning System (GPS) satellites per year, which will be required to maintain a full 24-satellite constellation. The Senate amendment also recommended an increase of $5.0 million in PE 35164F to accelerate activities necessary to ensure effective use of high-precision GPS signals by United States forces, and the means to deny access to those signals by hostile forces.

The House bill recommended approval of the budget request for GPS.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $7.1 million in Missile Procurement, Air Force, to sustain the development and support a production rate of three Block IIF GPS satellites per year. The conferees also agree to authorize an increase of $5.0 million in PE 35164F to accelerate activities necessary to ensure effective use of high-precision GPS signals by United States forces, and the means to deny access to those signals by hostile forces.

Joint tactical information distribution system (JTIDS)

The budget request included $11.1 million for JTIDS.

The House bill would add $55.7 million to the budget request.

The Senate amendment would add $19.8 million.

The conferees agree to authorize an additional $15.0 million to complete ALQ-135 development.

Trusted Rubix

The budget request included $6.9 million in PE 33140F for information systems security. The conferees agree that of the amount authorized to be appropriated in PE 33140F, up to $1.5 million may be used for the Trusted Rubix multi-level security program.

Precision landing system

The House bill would authorize an additional $5.0 million in PE 35114F to complete development of the precision landing systems receiver.

The Senate amendment had no similar authorization.

Defense research sciences

The budget request included $74.9 million for Defense Research Sciences (PE 61101E).

The Senate amendment would authorize that, within the funds provided in PE 61101E, $20.0 million be utilized for optoelectronics development.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The House recedes with an amendment. The conferees agree to an authorization of $89.9 million or PE 61101E. This amount includes an increase of $20.0 million for optoelectronics, $10.0 million for computer-assisted education programs, a reduction of $2.7 million for gallium nitride programs, and a reduction of $2.3 million for ultraphotonics programs.

University Research Initiative

The budget request included $209.2 million in PE 61103D for the University Research Initiative (URI).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $20.0 million in PE 61103D for the continuation of the Defense Experimental Program to Stimulate Research (DEPSCoR) program.

The Senate amendment would authorize a decrease of $10.0 million for the URI and an authorization of $20.0 million from available funds for the DEPSCoR program. The Senate amendment also included an authorization of $3.0 million from available funds for the pilot program for the transfer of defense technology information to private industry described elsewhere in this report.

The conferees agree to an authorization of $219.2 million in PE 61103D. This amount includes a general reduction of $10.0 million, an increase of $20.0 million for the DEPSCoR program and $3.0 million for the pilot program for the transfer of defense technology.

Tactical Technology

The budget request included $117.9 million in PE 62702E for tactical technology programs.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $12.0 million for the DP-2 program.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $3.0 million for the expansion of the small low-cost interceptor device (SLID) program.

The conferees agree to authorize $114.5 million in PE 62702E, including a $3.0 million increase for SLID in accordance with the S. Rept. (104-267), a decrease of $3.9 million for the collaborative crises and mitigation program, and a decrease of $2.5 million for the fast computational algorithms program. The conferees agree that $12.0 million of the available funding is for the continuation of testing and demonstration of the DP-2 program.

Flat panel technology

The budget request included $45.0 million for flat panel displays (FPDs) in PE 62708E.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $20.0 million in PE 62708E to accelerate the ability to produce high quality, low cost flat panel displays for military equipment and missions.

The Senate amendment would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to an increase of $20.0 million in PE 62708E for flat panel displays and infrastructure development. The conferees support continued research and development efforts and endorse the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency's (DARPA) industry team efforts and encourage DARPA's continued investment in the program as outlined in the FPD Initiative.

Materials and electronics technology

The budget request included $218.5 million for materials and electronics technology programs (PE 62712E).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $8.0 million in PE 62712E for Chemical Vapor Composite (CVC) and Chemical Vapor Deposition (CVD) synthetic diamond materials.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $11.0 million in PE 62712E: $3.0 million for pulsed laser deposition to create hard carbon based coatings and $8.0 million to support continuation of high temperature superconductivity. The Senate amendment would also authorize, of the funds available for materials and electronics technology, $7.0 million to be used for the seamless high off-chip connectivity (SHOCC) program in PE 62712E.

The conferees agree to a total authorization of $222.3 million in PE 62712E. The conferees agree to an increase of $4.0 million for CVD and CVC synthetic diamond materials; an increase of $8.0 million for high temperature superconductivity as discussed in the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267); and an increase of $3.0 million for carbon based coatings. The SHOCC program is authorized for $7.0 million within the program element. The conferees further agree to reduce the authorization by $7.5 million for healthcare information infrastructure and $3.7 million for the nonvolatile memory program.

Joint Department of Defense-Department of Energy munitions technology development program

The budget request included $16.2 million for the joint Department of Defense and Department of Energy munitions technology development program.

The House bill would reduce the budget request by $1.6 million.

The Senate amendment would increase the budget request by $5.0 million for projects approved by the joint technology advisory committee.

The conferees agree to authorize the budget request.

Fuel cells

The House bill would authorize an increase of $2.4 million in PE 63226E to complete the fixed base power plant development and an increase of $4.0 million in PE 63573N for competing conceptual ship service power plant design studies.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $8.0 million in PE 63851D to complete the development of the climate change fuel cell program and an increase of $4.3 million in PE 63226E for the completion of the development of the 2 MW carbonate-based fuel cell technology.

The conferees agree to an increase of $8.0 million in PE 63851D for the climate change fuel cell program, an increase of $2.1 million in PE 63226E for the completion of development of the 2 MW carbonate-based fuel cell program, and an increase of $1.9 million in PE 63513N for competing conceptual ship service power plant design studies.

Experimental evaluation of major innovative technologies (EEMIT)

The budget request included $635.6 million for experimental evaluation of major innovative technologies (EEMIT) (PE 63226E).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $38.4 million in PE 63226E: $2.4 million for fuel cells; $5.0 million for telemedicine (PE 63002A); $10.0 million for cruise missile defense; $4.0 million for safety and survivability; $5.0 million for digital battlefield medical x-ray technology; and $12.0 million for the passive millimeter wave camera.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $77.3 million in PE 63226E: $50.0 million for cruise missile defense; $3.0 million for the large millimeter wave telescope; $10.0 million for Crown Royal; $4.3 million for carbonate based fuel cells; and $10.0 million for thermophotovoltaics.

The conferees agree to a total authorization for EEMIT of $648.7 million in PE 63226E. The conferees agree to authorize $2.1 million for fuel cells; $8.0 million for the telemedicine project for disaster relief and emergency medical services (DREAMS); $10.0 million for thermophotovoltaics; $3.0 million for the large millimeter wave telescope; and of the funds available in the EEMIT line, $5.0 million may be used for the passive millimeter wave camera.

The conferees agree to reduce the authorization by $5.0 million for dynamic multiuse information fusion, and by $5.0 million for the joint forward air combat control project.

Electronic commerce resource centers

The budget request included $332.1 million for Advanced Electronics Technologies (PE 63739E).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $15.0 million in PE 63739E for the creation of five new electronic commerce resource centers (ECRC).

The Senate authorized the budget request.

The Senate recedes. The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $15.0 million in PE 63739 to expand the ECRC program.

High performance computing modernization

The budget request included $99.9 million for the high performance computing modernization program (PE 63755D).

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $25.0 million in PE 63755D to sustain the operations of supercomputing centers.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The House recedes.

Mobile detection assessment response system

The budget request included $23.7 million for the Joint Robotics Program (PE 63709D).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $8.0 million in PE 63709D for the continued development of the mobile detection assessment response system (MDARS).

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The Senate recedes.

Non-acoustic antisubmarine warfare

The budget request included $24.0 million in PE 63714D for the advanced sensor applications program (ASAP), the independent non-acoustic antisubmarine warfare (NAASW) research program managed by the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $6.0 million above the budget request in PE 63714D for the ASAP program. The report accompanying the House bill (H. Rept. 104-563) observed that the funding level requested in the budget request for the ASAP program is approximately 20 percent less than the level appropriated for fiscal year 1996, and approximately 10 percent of the level originally programmed in the fiscal year 1996 future years defense program for fiscal year 1997. The House report also discussed the increased capabilities of advanced nuclear submarines, the proliferation of modern, quiet diesel submarines and advanced non-nuclear submarine technology, and significant strides in submarine operational proficiency being made by several Third World navies. Reflecting the conclusion that the reductions in funding for the ASAP program in the budget request were imprudent and that increased emphasis needs to be placed on improving the anti-submarine warfare capabilities of U.S. forces in general, and on the NAASW program in particular, the House bill would authorize an increase of $6.0 million above the budget request for the ASAP program and identify $1.0 million of this increase to conduct additional investigations of foreign technology and systems relevant to the missions of the ASAP program.

The report accompanying the Senate amendment (S. Rept. 104-267) expressed similar reservations about reductions in funding for the Department of Defense (DOD) ASAP program. It also commented on the Department's unsatisfactory response to direction given in the statement of managers accompanying the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 for DOD to conduct a comparative evaluation of a light detection and ranging (LIDAR) system, ATD-111, against other comparable approaches. This response stated that DOD intends to test the ATD-111 system in fiscal year 1996 but would delay testing for another LIDAR system, April Showers, until fiscal year 1998. Thus DOD would spend two more years developing April Showers and then compare those two sets of test results.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $10.0 million in PE 63714D for the ASAP program to:

(1) continue the work on scattering theory, microwave radiometry, and the joint U.S.-UK radar ocean imaging investigations; and
(2) conduct a competitive evaluation in fiscal year 1997 between ATD-111 and the April Showers LIDAR system.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $4.0 million in PE 63714D for the following purposes:

(1) the comparative evaluation of ATD-111 and the April Showers LIDAR system; and
(2) continuation of work on ocean remote sensing, scattering theory, microwave radiometry, and the joint U.S.-U.K. radar ocean imaging investigations.

The conferees acknowledge the concerns expressed in the Senate report and agree that the Department's plan for comparative assessment of ATD-111 and April Showers must provide equitable treatment for both systems. The conferees direct the Secretary of Defense to develop a new plan and provide it to the congressional defense and intelligence committees no later than January 15, 1997.

The conferees direct the program office to reassess the value of some of the lower priority projects it is pursuing with the aim of freeing up resources for higher priority projects. The conferees reiterate that the ASAP program is a congressional interest item.

Integrated weapons system database

The budget request included $1.9 million for the Continuous Acquisition and Life-cycle Support Activities (PE 63736E).

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $4.0 million in PE 63736E for the Integrated System Database for continuation of the Integrated Data Environment (IDE) program.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The House recedes.

Rapid acquisition of manufactured parts

The budget request did not include research and development funds for the rapid acquisition of manufactured parts (RAMP) program.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $12.0 million in PE 63736D for RAMP.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $10.0 million in PE 63736D for RAMP.

The House recedes.

NATO research and development

The budget request included $22.7 million for NATO research and development (PE 63790D).

The House bill would reduce the budget request by $2.2 million.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The Senate recedes.

Data review and analysis monitoring aid (DRAMA)

The budget request included $13.8 million for the Defense Support Activities (PE 65798S).

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $3.0 million in PE 65798S for the continuation of the DRAMA program to reduce duplication in the defense supply system.

The House bill would authorize the budget request.

The House recedes.

Joint command, control, communications, and computers/intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance

The budget request included $2.9 million in PE 33149K for C4I for the Warrior, a new initiative that promotes the development and demonstration of joint and coalition command, control, communications, and computers/intelligence interoperability.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $15.0 million for development of improved capabilities for concept development, analysis, and evaluation of advanced technology and concepts for joint command, control, communications, and computers/intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance, including $10.0 million for establishment of a battle laboratory and $5.0 million for development of advanced modeling and simulation.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The House recedes.

Defense Airborne Reconnaissance Office (DARO) research and development

The budget request included $438.6 million for research and development for the Defense Airborne Reconnaissance Program.

The House bill would add a total of $90.5 million to the request. The Senate amendment would increase the request by $23.4 million. Details of the adjustments in the House bill and the Senate amendment, as well as the final conference agreement, are displayed in the table below:

TACTICAL UNMANNED AERIAL VEHICLES
(PROJECT 141)

The budget request for tactical unmanned aerial vehicles (project 141) included $64.6 million for fiscal year 1997.

The House bill would reduce the budget request by $18.0 million.

The Senate amendment would reduce the budget request by $12.8 million.

The conferees agree to recommend $46.6 million for the joint tactical unmanned aerial vehicle (JTUAV) program, a reduction of $18.0 million. The restructuring of the program and the creation of an advanced concept technology demonstration (ACTD) has resulted in excess unexpended funds from fiscal years 1995 and 1996. Accordingly, the conferees recommend a reduction of $18.0 million.

The conferees note the rapidity with which the DARO has initiated the JTUAV program as an ACTD. The conferees are skeptical of the Department's stated intention to transition the JTUAV ACTD into an acquisition program before having any experience with even a limited demonstration of the program. It appears that the Department is using the ACTD program to circumvent acquisition requirements, rather than to demonstrate new technologies on a limited basis. Considering the Department's unimpressive record of UAV acquisitions, and continuing difficulties in fielding proposed sophisticated UAVs, the conferees urge caution. Not only has the Department had difficulties in fielding systems, but it continues to endure significant losses of existing UAVs to mechanical malfunction. The conferees intend to follow closely the JTUAV development to ensure DARO adheres to accepted acquisition principles and regulations, and its commitment to timely results.

Finally, noting the continued difficulties experienced by the DARO in developing a suitable heavy fuel engine for its UAVs, the conferees encourage competition to the maximum extent possible in developing this capability.

AIRBORNE RECONNAISSANCE PROGRAM
(PROJECT 525)

Joint airborne signals intelligence (SIGINT) architecture (JASA)

The budget request included $51.8 million within the $66.3 million contained in the advanced sensors line to continue the joint airborne SIGINT system (JASS) development, including continuing work on the JASS high band prototype (HBP).

The House bill would authorize the request. The House report (H. Rept. 104-563) would prohibit the Department from obligating any funds for the HBP follow-on system, the JASS high band subsystem (HBSS), until the completion of flight testing and when the HBP had proven its utility.

The Senate amendment would authorize the request without similar restrictions.

The conferees agree to authorize the requested amount for HBP to continue airborne SIGINT functional developments, including the technical infrastructure upgrades necessary for aircraft to incorporate future developments. However, because the Department is scheduled to award the HBSS contract before the HBP flight testing has begun, the conferees direct that no funds be obligated to integrate and develop the HBSS until the Secretary of Defense certifies to the Congress that such concurrency provides an acceptable level of technical and schedule risks. The conferees also direct the Secretary to provide a complete cost and capability analysis of those elements of the HBP that will be used in the HBSS.

The conferees remain concerned about the health and long-term well-being of airborne SIGINT reconnaissance, because of the pressures to field sensor and system improvements to keep abreast of constantly evolving threats. The conferees believe the DARO should be managing the airborne SIGINT program in a manner that provides for needed upgrades while moving toward the objective JASA architecture.

Electro-optic camera framing technology

The budget request contained $114.0 million for the airborne reconnaissance program (project 525), including $66.4 million for advanced sensor development.

The House report (H. Rept. 104-563) noted that several technologies show promise for providing precision point targeting and location data. The House bill would authorize an additional $15.0 million for the continued development and evolution of the electro-optic (EO) framing sensors with on-chip forward motion compensation (FMC) technology, including:

- (1) $3.0 million for the operational insertion and testing of a medium altitude wide area coverage "step frame" sensor;
- (2) $2.2 million to develop enhanced data compression algorithms;
- (3) $5.8 million to conduct a study of, and begin development for, an EO framing infrared (IR) charge-coupled device with on-chip FMC; and
- (4) $4.0 million to support multi-spectral EO framing technologies with on-chip FMC.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The conferees agree to authorize $10.0 million for continued research and development of this capability, including:

- (1) $3.0 million for the medium altitude wide area coverage step frame sensor;
- (2) $4.0 million for enhanced data compression algorithms; and
- (3) $3.0 million for multi-spectral EO framing technology development with on-chip FMC.

The conferees are aware that the area of EO/IR framing technologies is dynamic, with several vendors offering approaches to solving reconnaissance mission needs. Therefore, the conferees encourage the DARO to avail itself of the benefits of this competitive marketplace in addressing the conferees' concerns.

Multi-function self-aligned gate technology

The budget request included $114.0 million for the airborne reconnaissance program (project 525), including $17.5 million for the reconnaissance advanced technology project.

The House bill would provide an additional $8.0 million for the reconnaissance advanced technology project for multi-function self-aligned gate (MSAG) technology.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The conferees agree to provide an additional $8.0 million for MSAG as described in the House report (H. Rept. 104-563).

ENDURANCE UNMANNED AERIAL VEHICLES
(PROJECT 530)

Global Hawk

The budget request included $81.2 million project 530 for the Global Hawk UAV ACTD, including $10.0 million for development of a signals intelligence payload.

The House bill would prohibit the obligation of funds for the signals intelligence payload until the Global Hawk has been proven in flight demonstrations.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The conferees agree to recommend a reduction of $10.0 million to the budget request for the Global Hawk.

Dark Star

The budget request included $17.4 million within project 530 for the Dark Star UAV.

The House bill would increase the budget request by $17.5 million to upgrade electro-optical cameras, provide a redesigned synthetic aperture radar antenna, and provide a more robust aerial vehicle design.

The first Dark Star vehicle crashed on its second test flight. Subsequent to this event and the passage of H.R. 3230, the Intelligence Authorization Bill recommended adding $22.0 million to recover from the air vehicle crash.

The Senate amendment would support the authorization in the budget request, but include a provision (sec. 216) on Dark Star described elsewhere in the statement of managers. The Senate recedes on the bill provision.

The conferees agree on the importance of returning the Dark Star program to flight testing as soon as the program manager has extracted the necessary lessons from the recent crash. Realizing the potential of the Dark Star UAV to provide unique support to operational users, the conferees agree to authorize an additional $28.5 million for the Dark Star UAV, for the following purposes:

- (1) $22.0 million to complete the necessary engineering and design efforts to recover from the crash of the first air vehicle;
- (2) $3.5 million for integrating EO framing technology with on-chip forward motion compensation into the aircraft and associated ground processing equipment; and
- (3) $3.0 million for long lead procurement for the fifth air vehicle, which will replace the destroyed aircraft.

MANNED RECONNAISSANCE PROGRAM (PROJECT 530)

The budget request for the manned reconnaissance program (project 530) was $28.3 million.

The House bill would increase the budget request by $57.0 million for projects as follows:

- (1) $10.0 million to improve and downsize the Senior Year electro-optical system (SYERS) sensor to:

- (a) enable the Air Force to fly the two systems simultaneously on the U-2; and
- (b) to improve SYERS geolocational accuracies;

- (2) $7.0 million to support the ASARS improvement program (AIP) to ensure this upgrade can be fielded by fiscal year 1998;

(3) $40.0 million, the remainder of recommended additional funding, to upgrade Senior Ruby, Senior Spear, and Senior Glass to a common configuration. Specifically, the House report would direct the Air Force to:

(a) upgrade the Senior Spear and Senior Ruby sensors to the Senior Glass configuration; and

(b) upgrade the existing Senior Glass systems to an open architecture configuration consistent with an architectural approach approved by the Defense Cryptologic Program manager.

The House bill would also direct the Department to determine, and to program for, necessary future years level-of-effort funding to continue evolutionary U-2 sensor upgrades.

The Senate amendment would authorize an additional $32.7 million to procure and integrate two additional Senior Glass payloads for the U-2 fleet. The Senate amendment would also provide an additional $10.0 million to repackage the SYERS sensor for simultaneous $10.0 million to repackage the SYERS sensor for simultaneous operation with other sensors, and to begin the effort to add geolocation, broad area coverage, and multi-spectral imaging capabilities.

The conferees agree to recommend $70.9 million, or an increase of $42.7 million, to be applied as follows:

(1) $32.7 million to procure and integrate additional Senior Glass payloads;

(2) $10.0 million to repackage the SYERS sensor for simultaneous operation with other sensors, and to begin the effort to improve capabilities for geolocation, broad area coverage, and multi-spectral imaging.

The conferees recognize that:

(1) the DARO needs to develop and field systems compliant with the joint airborne SIGINT architecture (JASA);

(2) the JASA effort is an important initiative for providing future intelligence gathering capability; and

(3) the Department needs to continue making incremental upgrades to U-2 SIGINT capabilities to maintain near-term capability, while the Department completes JASA development.

DISTRIBUTED COMMON GROUND SYSTEM (PROJECT 531)

The budget request included $55.3 million in project 531, including $47.8 million for the common imagery ground/surface system (CIGSS).

The House bill would authorize an additional $11.0 million to modify core CIGSS components to ensure the program can achieve a common, interoperable baseline by fiscal year 1998. The House report complimented the Department's technical solutions and management approach to migrating the various imagery ground stations to the CIGSS configuration and standards as outlined in the published handbook.

The Senate amendment would support the budget request.

The conferees agree to support the budget request of $55.3 million for project 531.

AC-130 aircraft enhancements, Special Operations Command

The budget request included $83.9 million for tactical systems development for the U.S. Special Operations Command (SOCOM).

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $5.8 million in PE 1160404BB for enhancements to the SOCOM AC-130 aircraft.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The Senate recedes.

Advanced SEAL delivery system

The budget request included $83.9 million in PE 1160404BB for special operations tactical development.

In order to provide a significant improvement in the acoustic characteristics of the advanced SEAL delivery system (ASDS) before its procurement begins, the Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $2.8 million above the budget request in PE 1160404BB to provide quieter pumps and motors for the base design of the ASDS.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

Rigid hull inflatable boat

The budget request included $5.0 million for procurement of special warfare equipment, including $4.5 million for procurement of the Naval Special Warfare 10 meter Rigid Hull Inflatable Boat (RHIB).

The House bill would authorize an increase of $2.75 million in PE 1160404BB to complete development and operational testing of competing prototype RHIBs, a downselect decision to a single contractor, and other activities relative to a Milestone III decision for the RHIB in fiscal year 1997.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The conferees agree to authorize the budget request.

The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $4.5 million in PE 1160404BB to complete development and operational testing of the RHIB as recommended in the House report (H. Rept. 104-563). The conferees further agree to a corresponding reduction in the amount authorized for procurement of special warfare equipment.

Ballistic missile defense funding and programmatic guidance

The fiscal year 1997 budget requests for the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization (BMDO) was $2.8 billion, including research, development, test, and evaluation (RDT&E), procurement, and military consideration.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $724.8 million for BMDO.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $855.9 million for BMDO.

The conferees agree to authorize a total of $3,712.9 million for BMDO, an increase of $914.2 million above the budget request. The conferees' recommended funding allocations are summarized in the following table. Additional programmatic and funding guidance are also provided below.

SUPPORT TECHNOLOGY

The budget request for BMDO's support technology programs (E 62173C/63173C) was $226.3 million. The conferees agree to authorize a net increase of $147.5 million for support technology.

The conferees support BMDO's efforts in the area of wide bandgap electronics that are funded in the Innovative Science and Technology program (project 1651). The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $10.0 million in PE 62173C to facilitate a wide bandgap electronics program specifically targeting gallium nitride and silicon carbide as the major semiconductor technologies to be developed. The program should be affiliated with an academic institution involving a research and development facility for material growth, material characterization (including material surface behavior), and wide bandgap semiconductor device development.

The conferees recommend an increase of $420.0 million in PE 63173C for United States-Russian cooperative BMD programs and activities, as specified in the House report (H. Rep. 104-563).

The conferees recommend an increase of $7.5 million in PE 63173C for the Scorpius space launch technology demonstration program.

The conferees strongly support BMDO's development of the Atmospheric Interceptor Technology (AIT) program and recommend an increase of $40.0 million in PE 63173C for the AIT program.

The conferees continue to support development of the Space-Based Laser (SBL) program. SBL offers the potential for a high leverage system to deal with ballistic missiles of virtually all ranges. The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $70.0 million in PE 63173C to continue the SBL effort. The conferees believe that the Air Force should begin to take a much more active role in developing the SBL program. Specifically, the committee believes that the Air Force Space and Missile Systems Center should play a key role in designing a demonstrator spacecraft and providing detailed cost estimates for completion of such a demonstration program.

THEATER HIGH ALTITUDE AREA DEFENSE SYSTEM

The budget request included $481.8 million to complete Theater High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) demonstration and validation (Dem/Val) and to begin engineering and manufacturing development (EMD). The conferees continue to support the development, production, and fielding of THAAD as a matter of highest priority. The conferees remain committed to fielding the THAAD system as quickly as technically feasible. The conferees agree to authorize an increase of $75.0 million in PE 63861C and an increase of $65.0 million in PE 64861C, an overall increase of $140.0 million for the THAAD program.

The conferees also attach importance to the THAAD User Operational Evaluation (UOES) system. This system will provide valuable opportunities for training and testing. Most importantly, it will provide some limited operational capability in the event of a crisis. However, the conferees question the adequacy of a UOES capability based on 40 interceptor missiles. The conferees believe that a total of 80 missiles is more appropriate, and direct the Secretary of Defense to include funding to acquire these additional 40 UOES missiles in the fiscal year 1998 budget request.

The administration's proposed program for THAAD does not include funding for a second EMD radar until very late in the program. The conferees believe that there are many compelling reasons to fund this radar earlier. Accordingly, the conferees direct the Secretary of Defense to proceed with acquisition of a second EMD radar in fiscal year 1997 and agree to authorize $65.0 million in long-lead funding for this purpose.

The conferees strongly reject the idea that the THAAD development program should be delayed so as to allow a "fly-off" between THAAD and the Navy Upper Tier system.

The conferees understand that the Army plans to complete THAAD dem/val flight testing at the White Sands Missile Range and transition to flight testing at the Kwajalein Missile Range for the EMD phase. The conferees support this plan.

NAVY UPPER TIER (THEATER WIDE)

The budget request included $58.2 million for continued development of the Navy Upper Tier (Theater Wide) TMD system. This is a significant reduction from the $200.4 million authorized and appropriated in fiscal year 1996, and reflects the low priority that the administration attaches to this program. The conferees do not support the Department's recommendation to delay the development and deployment of the Navy Upper Tier system.

The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 mandates that the Navy Upper Tier system become the fourth "core" TMD system and establishes accelerated milestones for this program. The conferees have not been made aware of any technical reasons why a Navy Upper Tier capability cannot be fielded on a much more aggressive schedule than proposed by the administration.

The conferees continue to support the Navy Upper Tier system as a matter of priority. Sea-based upper tier TMD capability provides an important complement to ground-based systems, and each has unique attributes. Accordingly, the conferees recommend a net increase in PE 63868C of $246.0 million to support an accelerated Navy Upper Tier program.

The conferees are aware that BMDO has begun evaluating the key modifications required for the THAAD kill vehicle to be a candidate for the Navy Upper Tier mission. The conferees recommend the use of not more than $10.0 million to support this effort in fiscal year 1997 from the overall amount authorized for the Navy Upper Tier program, and not more than $10.0 million from the overall amount authorized for THAAD for this purpose.

The conferees believe that the Navy, in conjunction with BMDO, should assess the potential that development of a new second stage motor for the Standard Missile could have for a range of missile defense applications. Accordingly, the conferees recommend the use of $10.0 million of the funds authorized for Navy Upper Tier to initiate this second stage motor development effort.

CORPS SAM/MEDIUM EXTENDED AIR DEFENSE SYSTEM

The budget request included $56.2 million for Corps surface-to-air missile (SAM)/Medium Extended Air Defense System (MEADS) program. The conferees endorse the MEADS program, which is required to defend forward-deployed troops, and approve the budget request, subject to limitation specified elsewhere in this report.

UNITED STATES-ISRAEL BOOST PHASE INTERCEPT PROGRAM

In the Statement of Managers accompanying the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996, the conferees endorsed a cooperative program between the United States and Israel to develop a kinetic energy boost-phase intercept program based on an unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV). The conferees maintain their strong support for this concept. The budget request included $9.3 million in the Joint TMD program element (PE 63872C) to continue this effort. The conferees recommend that these funds be transferred to the BPI program element (PE 63870C) and that this amount be increased by $15.0 million for a total authorization of $24.3 million.

The conferees believe that the first step of this U.S.-Israel BPI program should be a joint technology risk mitigation effort, aimed at reducing technological uncertainties. If this proves successful, it can be followed by an advanced technology demonstration to validate the technical feasibility of the concept and the major system elements. This would enable the United States and Israel to evaluate the potential for a joint acquisition program or one in which both countries continue to collaborate on separate but mutually reinforcing efforts.

NATIONAL MISSILE DEFENSE

The budget request included $508.4 million for National Missile Defense (NMD). Based on information received from the Department of Defense, the conferees do not believe that the administration's proposed budget and program plan for NMD are adequate even to meet the stated purpose of its "deployment readiness" program. As acknowledged by the Director of BMDO in congressional testimony, the planned test program for the exoatmospheric kill vehicle (EKV) is inadequate to support a deployment decision within the framework of the "3+3" program. The administration's proposed NMD program consist of just five EKV flights: two in fiscal year 1997; two in fiscal year 1998; and one in fiscal year 1999. Under this plan, the NMD deployment decision supposedly could be made at the end of fiscal year 1999; however, such a decision would be based on a single integrated interceptor test. Furthermore, the test booster would not represent an operational configuration.

To support a lower risk and more robust NMD program, the conferees believe that additional EKV flight tests are required. Specifically, the conferees direct the Secretary of Defense to restructure the EKV program to support two flight tests in fiscal year 1997, three in fiscal year 1998, and four in fiscal year 1999. This requires the acquisition of additional kill vehicle and test booster hardware. Additionally, the conferees direct the Secretary to evaluate the advantages of upgrading the Payload Launch Vehicle (PLV) system to provide a more representative velocity regime and test environment for NMD system test. To accomplish these objectives, and to ensure that other aspects of the NMD program are able to support an initial operational capacity (IOC) in fiscal year 2003 (which the administration's proposal supposedly protects), the conferees recommend an increase of $350.0 million in PE 63871C.

The conferees commend the Under Secretary of Defense (Acquisition and Technology) for his recent decision to establish an NMD joint-service program office (JPO), and direct the Director of BMDO to ensure full participation by the Army, Navy, and Air Force in the JPO. In addition, the committee directs the Director of BMDO to ensure that the EKV and associated booster designs are compatible with the widest possible range of NMD system architectures and basing modes. The conferees direct that the Director of BMDO inform the Senate Committee on Armed Services and the House Committee on National Security of his plans in this regard not later than February 15, 1997.

The conferees note that the prototype ground-based radar (GDR-P) is an important NMD system element, and the GBR-P is scheduled to begin testing at U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll (USAKA) in 1998. This schedule must be maintained, or accelerated, in order to realize cost savings associated with leveraging the THAAD radar program and test schedule. Of the amounts authorized in PE 63871C, the conferees recommend $68.0 million for GBR-P in order to ensure that the radar is available for integrated system testing in fiscal year 1998.

The conferees recognize the importance of the Midcourse Space Experiment (MSX) for collecting and analyzing background data of use to future midcourse sensors such as the Space Missile and Tracking System. The conferees are concerned, however, that BMDO has failed to budget funds to continue operations through the end of the expected lifetime of the satellite. Therefore, the conferees strongly urge the Director, BMDO to provide adequate funds in the fiscal year 1998 budget submission and over the Future Years Defense Plan (FYDP) for MSX satellite operations.

The conferees understand the importance of an effective battle management/command, control, and communications (BM/C3) architecture to overall NMD system performance and reliability. In this regard, the conferees are aware of proposals to leverage existing TMD BM/C3 capabilities, including such capabilities being developed under the THAAD program, to support an NMD system. The committee therefore urges the Director, BMDO to study these proposals and inform the committee not later than February 15, 1997, of his views in this regard.

JOINT NATIONAL TEST FACILITY

The budget request included $5.8 million for Joint National Test Facility (JNTF) modernization, split among program elements 63871C, 63872C, and 63173C. To adequately satisfy the complex missile defense integration requirements leading to successful joint tests, analysis, war gaming, CINC exercises, and acquisition support, the conferees recommend $15.0 million be made available for modernization, computational and wide area network capabilities in support of the Ballistic Missile Defense Network (BMDN) from within the program elements listed above.

MANAGEMENT

The budget request did not contain a separate program element for management.

The House bill recommended a general reduction of $15.0 million for management.

The Senate did not recommend a reduction for management.

The House recedes.

JOINT THEATER MISSILE DEFENSE

The budget request included $521.5 in BMDO's Joint TMD program element (formerly known as Other TMD). The committee recommends a net increase of $6.4 million in PE 63872C, including the following adjustments: (1) a transfer of $9.3 million to the BPI program element for the U.S.-Israel Joint BPI program; (2) an increase of $3.7 million for the Arrow Deployability Project (ADP), for a total authorization of $35.0 million to fully fund the U.S. share of the program envisioned in the recently completed Memorandum of Agreement between the United States and Israel; (3) an increase of $7.0 million for the Army's Advanced Research Center (ARC), for a total authorization of $15.0 million; and (4) an increase of $5.0 million for BMDO to ensure that the Navy's Cooperative Engagement Capability is compatible with all of BMDO's core TMD programs.

Holloman high speed test track

The budget request included $116.0 million for the Central Test and Evaluation investment development program (PE 64940D).

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $17.0 million in PE 64940D for the joint high speed upgrade for the Holloman High Speed Test Track.

The House recedes.

ITEMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Anti-submarine warfare program

The budget request included $49.6 million in PE 62314N for exploratory development of advanced undersea warfare surveillance technologies.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $21.0 million to the budget request to accelerate the development of advanced anti-submarine warfare (ASW) technologies.

The Senate amendment would authorize the budget request.

The House recedes.

In the statement of managers accompanying the conference report on the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (H. Rept. 104-450), the conferees directed the Secretary of Defense to assess the current and projected U.S. ASW capability in light of the continuing development of quieter nuclear submarines, the proliferation of very capable diesel submarines, the sale of sophisticated, submarine launched weapons, and the declining trend in budget resources associated with ASW program. The assessment was expected to identify both short-term and long-term improvements that are needed to cope with the evolving submarine threat in both littoral and open ocean areas. The conferees directed that the results of this assessment and the plan for the U.S. ASW program be reported to the congressional defense committees by July 1, 1996.

The conferees' comments on the Secretary's assessment are included in the classified annex to this statement of managers.

Battle group airborne anti-submarine warfare

The report accompanying the Senate amendment (S. Rept. 104-267) expressed concern about the Navy's slow progress in planning for and funding organic battle group airborne anti-submarine warfare (ASW) systems suitable for countering the existing and projected littoral ASW threat. The report acknowledged the reality of current budgetary constraints, but also emphasized the need for a solid conceptual plan, supported by adequate resources, to meet the evolving littoral ASW threat.

The Senate report expressed the opinion that the Navy's overall plan for modernizing its H-60 series helicopters has not met these criteria. It opined that the plan's broad concept, to convert existing H-60 variants into a multi-mission SH-60R helicopter and introduce it by fiscal year 2001 as a complement to introduction of DDG-51 Flight IIA destroyers into the fleet, appears sound. However, the mix of aircraft to be converted and the funding programmed to implement this concept have remained in a state of flux for the past two years. For example, the Navy's integrated helicopter plan for fiscal year 1997 reversed the Navy's previous decision to convert aircraft carrier based SH-60F ASW helicopters to HH-60H combat/utility helicopters. Instead, the new plan would convert these SH-60F helicopters to the SH-60R configuration. Some would be converted in the near term to fill surface combatant requirements, but the balance of the SH-60Fs would not undergo conversion until after fiscal year 2006.

Last year, the Navy's fiscal year 1996 helicopter plan would not have converted some 60 SH-60Fs to the SH-60R configuration. The statement of managers accompanying the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 directed the Secretary of the Navy to evaluate the cost effectiveness of a modernization program for the dipping sonars installed on these helicopters. Because the fiscal year 1997 plan now calls for conversion of these 60 helicopters to the SH-60R configuration, implying eventual installation of the airborne low frequency dipping sonar (ALFS), a different set of assumptions applies, and different questions have emerged.

Although the 60 SH-60F helicopters are now to be converted to the SH-60R configuration, most of these conversions will not occur for at least 10 to 15 years. The conferees are concerned about whether the dipping sonars presently installed on these carrier based SH-60F helicopters are now, or will remain, suitable for the littoral ASW operations envisioned by the Navy's strategic concept "Forward . . . From the Sea" during this 15 year period.

To help resolve their uncertainty, the conferees direct the Secretary of the Navy to develop a plan, containing decision options, that would ensure that its carrier based SH-60F helicopters not scheduled for conversion to the SH-60R in the near term, i.e., the helicopters that will remain responsible for inner-zone battle group ASW, are equipped with a dipping sonar, including possible modifications to the presently installed sonar, that is suitable, and will remain suitable, for littoral ASW operations. The Secretary is directed to submit this plan no later than March 1, 1997.

Chemical and biological defense program

The budget request included a total of $505.0 million for the chemical-biological defense program, including $296.8 million in research and development, test and evaluation and $208.2 million in procurement.

The House bill would authorize an increase of $44.3 million for research, development, test and evaluation, and an increase of $16.2 million in the operations and maintenance accounts ($13.2 million for Army and $3.0 million for the Air Force).

The Senate bill would authorize the budget request.

The conferees agree to provide an increase to the budget request of $16.2 million for shortfalls in operations and maintenance ($13.2 million in the Army account and $3.0 million in the Air Force account).

The conferees remain concerned with findings contained in the March 1996 General Accounting Office (GAO) report on chemical and biological defense. While the GAO report notes improvement in the readiness of U.S. military forces to operate in a chemical or biological environment, the report also identifies continued deficiencies in the areas of chemical-biological defense training; inadequacy of the biological vaccine stockpile; development and implementation of a DOD immunization policy; and adequacy of training and equipment for medical personnel. In this regard, the conferees express concern with the Department's management and oversight of the chemical and biological defense program.

The conferees direct the Deputy Secretary of Defense to review and report back to the Congress on steps taken by the Department to correct deficiencies highlighted by the GAO report, to include a decision on the development and implementation of a DOD immunization policy. The conferees agree that it is essential that a decision be made on the vaccines to be stockpiled and on an immunization policy. Further the conferees agree that it is essential that medical personnel assigned to deploy with U.S. military forces to high threat areas have the necessary training and equipment to protect themselves against chemical or biological agents, and the necessary training and equipment to treat casualties in a chemically or biologically contaminated area.

Composite materials insertion for fielded weapon systems

The House bill would direct the Secretary of Defense to institute a composite materials insertion program in the military services and cited a number of material technologies to be considered. The conferees clarify that the Secretary may include other materials, such as polymer based composites, in the program at his discretion.

Dredge spoil disposal

The House bill would authorize an increase of $2.5 million in PE 62233N to investigate potential low cost alternatives to the current methods of disposal or reclamation of dredge spoils.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The conferees could not provide an authorization since the project was not appropriated by either appropriations committee. The conferees believe, however, that the Navy must begin to look at alternative technologies to reduce the cost of processing dredged material which it will incur as it faces the costly challenge of dredging the 15 ports it cites will require dredging over the next 15 years.

Electron scrubber technology

The electron scrubber (e-SCRUB) technology may potentially be used to eliminate or reduce pollutants that cause acid rain, air toxins, and volatile organic compounds from off gas generated by incinerators. It may also be used in the treatment of waste water. The technology combines electron beam flue gas scrubbing treatment with high average electron beam technology. Under the Strategic Defense Initiative, the Defense Nuclear Agency (DNA) directed the development of e-SCRUB as an antimissile technology. Several years ago, it was first evaluated as an environmental compliance technology under the Strategic Environmental Research and Development Program (SERDP).

The conferees have followed with interest the progress of the e-SCRUB technology under SERDP. The conferees note that SERDP development and testing of the technology was hindered by program funding reductions, the lack of relevance to the Department of Defense (DOD) environmental requirements, and poor performance.

In fiscal year 1995, DNA submitted a proposal for funding of the e-SCRUB technology under the Environmental Security Technology Certification Program (ESTCP). In order to receive favorable consideration for ESTCP participation, the proposal would have to satisfy a high priority need, be technically mature, project a high return on investment, and include an appropriate transition plan. A panel of experts reviewed the technology and determined that it was not ripe for ESTCP support.

The conferees have remaining concerns regarding the technical maturity, the overall cost, and the utility to DOD. However, proponents of the e-SCRUB technology maintain that it is ready for prototyping and demonstration, and that it will benefit major DOD maintenance and operation facilities confronted with significant air and water pollution problems. It is claimed that many of the significant problems associated with early development of the e-SCRUB technology have been overcome.

The conferees direct the Department to conduct another review of the e-SCRUB technology to determine if it meets the criteria for demonstration and validation of technology relevant to the Department's environmental needs. If the technology has no relevance or fails to meet the Department's criteria, the Secretary of Defense shall submit a report to the congressional defense committees describing those findings. If the technology is relevant and meets the Department's criteria, the Secretary shall use no more than $2.0 million from available funds to complete demonstration and validation through ESTCP or the National Defense Center of Environmental Excellence.

FFG-7 modernization

The Navy now plans to retain more of its FFG-7s in active and reserve status than had been previously planned. Heavy operational demands have caused the Navy to reverse an earlier decision to retire most of the FFG-7 class of ships. While the Navy has not made a final decision on the total number that will be retained, it is likely that the Navy will retain a portion of them in active service until at least 2010. The ships that will remain available include 12 that have the coherent receiving transmitter (CORT) installed. There are an additional 11 flight 3 and flight 4 ships that form a separate subclass. They are somewhat less capable than the CORT ships but are presently planned to remain in active service. The Navy intends to transition the remaining ships of the FFG-7 class to naval reserve force, ready reserve force or foreign military sales status.

The conferees appreciate the Navy's rationale in retaining some FFG-7s in service. However, it would now appear prudent to evaluate the ability of these ships to deal with evolving threats during their remaining service life. Factors for consideration include:

(1) the FFG-7 class has several different configurations, some have an updated anti-air warfare (AAW) system, while others have a more capable anti-submarine warfare (ASW) weapons system;

(2) the FFG-7 class was originally developed as a design-to-cost, open ocean, anti-submarine escort, and was not optimized for near land operations or countering advanced sea-skimming cruise missiles; and

(3) several groups have approached the committee during its review of the fiscal year 1997 budget request, asserting that relatively inexpensive off-the-shelf upgrades are available that will provide the FFG-7 class with the capabilities needed to counter modern threats.

The conferees want the Navy to clarify its intentions for modernizing the FFG-7 class. Therefore, the conferees direct the Secretary of the Navy to prepare a report on options for modernizing the FFG-7 class and submit that report with the fiscal year 1998 budget request. The report should include, but need not be limited to, answers to the following questions:

(1) what are the threats that will likely be encountered in operational situations where the FFG-7s might be employed?

(2) what priority does the Navy place on modernizing the FFG-7 class to deal with these threats?

(3) what are the alternatives for buying off-the-shelf upgrade packages that could defeat these threats?

(4) what buying off-the-shelf upgrade packages be cost effective relative to potential development programs? and,

(5) what would be a reasonable funding and installation program to procure and install either off-the-shelf packages or upgrade packages deriving from a development program?

Integrated avionics

Congress has frequently expressed concern over the proliferation of avionics systems for strategic and tactical aircraft. Congressional reports dating back to fiscal year 1980 brought attention to the fact that there were over thirty discrete defensive avionics systems designed and developed to counter the same threat.

During the past decade, the Department of Defense has made some progress in fostering commonality among the military services. The Joint Integrated Avionics Working Group (JIAWG) has advanced the goal of developing common integrated avionics. It is important that this progress continue.

The conferees reiterate the need for joint integrated avionics to improve performance and substantially reduce the operational and maintenance cost associated with aircraft avionics.

Lithography

The conferees support the pursuit of extreme ultraviolet (EUV) lithography aimed at the fabrication of 100 nanometer design rule structures to support nanowriters, nanofabrication prototypes, and the facilities for short wavelength metrologies, calibration and standards. The conferees recognize its potential as the technology of choice of the next generation short wavelength tools for the industry and encourage the Department of Defense to consider using $10.0 million, of the total authorization for lithography, for EUV technologies.

Materials nanostructures

The conferees recognize that there is no appropriation to accelerate this program. The conferees recognize the potential of the emerging field of material nanostructures. This regime of science offers the opportunity to integrate inorganic and organic chemistry and physics at the material formative dimension that will impact microelectronics, micromachines, molecular level controllers and switches, among many other applications. Nanostructures have the potential to revolutionize future military technological superiority. The conferees urge the Department of Defense to devote additional funds to the development of these promising technologies.

Molecular design

Although there was no additional funding appropriated above the Department of Defense's request that would allow the conferees to consider any additional authorization for the molecular design program, the conferees fully endorse the current program in the Office of Naval Research (ONR) and urge its continuance. The conferees agree that the scientific investigations into the molecular synthesis of atoms as foundational building blocks of new material nanostructures will lead to a culture shift that will allow "cross-cuts" in scientific disciplines of chemistry, biology and physics to occur. The conferees commend ONR, the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, and those universities participating in innovative research for their initiatives in this revolutionary direction of science. The conferees urge continued funding support by the Department.

Nickel-zinc battery technology

The military services have requirements for low cost, high energy density batteries with high power capability and low maintenance requirements. The conferees have become aware of emerging technology for a state-of-the-art, high energy density nickel-zinc battery, which would be significantly cheaper, lower maintenance and more durable than the silver-zinc batteries now in service use, and would not carry the same environmental penalties as a silver-zinc and nickel-cadmium batteries. The conferees encourage the Secretary of the Navy to develop and demonstrate high energy density nickel-zinc battery technology that could provide great potential for a low cost, high performance replacement for nickel-cadmium aircraft batteries and for other applications.

Plasma Energy Pyrolysis System

The conferees support the ongoing joint effort between the U.S. Army Environmental Center/Environmental Technology Division and the Tennessee Valley Authority/Muscle Shoals Environmental Research Center to develop, demonstrate, and validate the Plasma Energy Pyrolysis System (PEPS) technology. The conferees urge the Department of Defense to continue its activity in this area with available funds. The Department of the Army shall report to the congressional defense committees on the feasibility of this technology not later than April 30, 1997.

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS

Subtitle A—Authorization of Appropriations

Dual use technology program (sec. 203)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 203) that would require the Secretary of Defense to designate a senior official, reporting directly to the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology, whose sole responsibility would be to develop policy and ensure effective execution of dual use programs and integration of commercial technologies into military systems. Further, the provision would require that not less than five, seven, ten, and fifteen percent, respectively for each of fiscal years 1997-2000, of each service's science and technology program be available only for dual use cost-shared programs. The provision would prohibit the use of "in-kind" contributions as a part of non-Federal entity participation in dual use projects. The provision also modified the other transaction authorities of the Department.

The conferees agree to a provision that would require designation of an official to manage dual use programs governed by this provision and a requirement for at least five percent of the amounts appropriated for science and technology programs for fiscal year 1997 by available for dual use programs. In addition, the conferees agree to authorize $85.0 million in PE 63805E for this purpose and direct that the management of these funds to under the jurisdiction of the person designated by the Secretary of Defense to manage dual use programs. The Secretary would be required to submit with the fiscal year 1998 budget request the Department's outyear funding strategy for this dual use program.

The conferees agree to modify the House provision to allow "in-kind" contributions as a part of non-Federal entity participation in dual use projects. The conferees direct the official managing dual use programs in the Department of Defense to develop a set of consistent and equitable procedures for the treatment of the in-kind contributions. The official shall ensure that such procedures are consistent with the guidance on this issue contained in the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-287).

Defense Special Weapons Agency (DSWA) formerly known as the Defense Nuclear Agency (DNA) (sec. 204)

The budget request included $314.3 million for the Defense Nuclear Agency (DNA).

The Senate amendment contained provisions (secs. 109, 203, and 303) that would authorize a $15.0 million increase to the budget request for the Defense Nuclear Agency (DNA) to increase the frequency of nuclear weapons incidents field training exercises ($3.0 million defense operations and maintenance); to establish a counter terrorism support program leveraging DNA capabilities developed during the Cold War, and to establish a nuclear weapons delivery sustainment program ($12.0 million in research and development, PE 62715H).

The House bill would reduce the budget request for DNA by $3.0 million. Additionally, it would deny $7.0 million requested for the Topaz International Program (project AX), and would make available $4.0 million to continue the counter terrorist explosives research program.

The conferees agree to a provision that would authorize $314.3 million for DNA ($192.1 million in PE 62715H, $26.2 million in PE 63711H, $88.1 million in operations and maintenance, and $7.9 million in procurement). Of the amount available in PE 62715H, the conferees agree that funds shall be available for the following activities/programs: $4.0 million for the continuation of the counter terrorism support program; $3.0 million for Deep Digger; and $12.0 million to establish a nuclear weapons delivery sustainment program.

Included in the budget request for DNA was $7.0 million for the Topaz International Program (project AX). The conferees have reviewed the assessment conducted by the National Research Council of this program. The conferees agree with a number of conclusions and recommendations reached by the NRC. Substantial amounts of money have been spent, both by the United States and Russia, to develop space nuclear power. Despite the identification of space reactor power as a potential enabler for future missions, no potential users of mission requirements have been identified.

Accordingly, the conferees deny the budget request for the Topaz International Program (project AX). The conferees understand that of the funds authorized for this program for fiscal year 1996, $4.6 million remained unobligated and unexpended. The conferees recommend that $3.0 million be used to terminate the program. A substantial amount of money has been spent over the decades on various space nuclear reactor power technologies. To save this investment for potential future use, the conferees recommend that all information and technology related to the Topaz International program and the U.S. space nuclear reactor power technology program be deposited in a central repository.

Subtitle B—Program Requirements, Restrictions, and Limitations

Space launch modernization (sec. 211)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 211) that would: (1) authorize $50.0 million for a competitive reusable space launch vehicle (RLV) program; and (2) permit obligation of the authorized funds only to the extent that the current operating plan of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) allocates at least an equal amount for the RLV program.

million for the Evolved Expendable Launch Vehicle program and $25.0 million for a competitive reusable launch vehicle technology program; (2) prohibit the use of DOD funds for RLV in an amount in excess of that dedicated to the program by NASA; and (3) prohibit the obligation of funds authorized for the Evolved Expendable Launch Vehicle (EELV) program in fiscal year 1997 until the Secretary of Defense certifies that funds authorized to be appropriated for RLV have been made available for obligation.

The House recedes with an amendment that would: (1) authorize $44.5 million for the Evolved Expendable Launch Vehicle program and $25.0 million for a competitive reusable launch vehicle program; (2) permit obligation of the funds authorized for RLV only to the extent that the current operating plan of NASA allocates at least an equal amount for the RLV program; (3) limit the obligation of funds for EELV to $20.0 million until the Secretary of Defense makes available for obligation funds authorized for RLV; and (4) require the Secretary of Defense and the Administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to submit to Congress a joint plan for coordinating and eliminating unnecessary duplication in the operations and planned improvements of rocket engine test facilities managed by the Air Force and NASA.

Space-Based Infrared System program (sec. 212)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 212) that would authorize funds for the Space-Based Infrared System (SBIRS) program, prohibit the obligation of expenditure of funds until the Secretary of Defense issues a certification to Congress, and direct the Secretary to consider the appropriate management responsibilities for the Space and Missile Tracking System (SMTS) program.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 213).

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would authorize $427.4 million for the SBIRS program ($173.3 million for SBIRS Space Segment High, $247.2 million for SMTS, and $6.9 million for Cobra Brass), prohibit the obligation of expenditure of more than $100.0 million for SBIRS Space Segment High until the Secretary of Defense issues a certification to Congress, and direct the Secretary to consider the appropriate management responsibilities for the SMTS program.

The conferees are disappointed by the Department of Defense's management of the SMTS program. The Department has yet to present the revised SMTS program baseline as required by section 216 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996. Additionally, poor management practices on the part of the Air Force, the Office of the Secretary of Defense, and the contractor have forced delays in the SMTS program. The conferees are particularly disappointed by the Department of Defense's decision to recommend for rescission $51.0 million for fiscal year 1996 funds authorized and appropriated for SMTS acceleration and competition. Shortly after recommended these funds for rescission, the Department endorsed a plan for enhanced competition. The Department's handling of the fiscal year 1996 SMTS funding and its on-again, off-again approach to competition is not acceptable. The conferees direct the Secretary of Defense to promptly complete the program baseline specified in section 216 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996, and to promptly release the additional funds authorized for SMTS for fiscal year 1997 for purposes of accelerating the program.

Clementine 2 micro-satellite development program (sec. 213)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 213) that would authorize $50.0 million for the Clementine 2 micro-satellite near-earth interception mission. The provision would also prohibit the obligation of any funds for the Global Positioning System (GPS) Block IIF satellite development program until the Secretary of Defense certifies to Congress that the fiscal year 1996 funds for Clementine 2 have been obligated and the fiscal year 1997 funds for Clementine 2 have been made available for obligation.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would authorize $50.0 million for the Clementine 2 micro-satellite near-earth asteroid mission and would prohibit the obligation of more than $25.0 million for GPS Block IIF until the Secretary of Defense certifies that fiscal year 1997 funds for Clementine 2 have been made available for obligation.

Live-fire survivability testing of V-22 Osprey aircraft (sec. 214)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 214) which would permit the Secretary of Defense to waive the survivability testing requirements of section 2366(c) of title 10, United States Code, notwithstanding the fact that the V-22 tilt-rotor aircraft has already entered engineering and manufacturing development. The provision would require the Secretary to report to the Congress on how the Secretary plans to evaluate the survivability of the V-22 aircraft, his assessment of possible alternatives to realistic survivability testing of the aircraft, and alternative survivability test requirements for the conduct of any alternative live-fire test program. The provision would also require that funds required for alternative live-fire testing of the V-22 shall be made available from amounts appropriated for the V-22 program.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 242), but allowed rather than directed the use of V-22 program funds to carry out the tests.

The Senate recedes.

Live-fire testing of the F-22 aircraft (sec. 215)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 213) that would provide authority to the Secretary of Defense to waive certain live fire testing required by section 2366 of title 10, United States Code.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision.

The conferees agree to a provision (sec.) that would provide the Secretary of Defense the waiver authority and further require that alternative survivability testing be funded from funds appropriated from the F-22 program.

Limitation on funding for F-16 tactical manned reconnaissance aircraft (sec. 216)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 216) that would establish a limitation of $50.0 million on the total obligations and expenditures of the Department of Defense for the F-16 tactical manned reconnaissance aircraft program for research, development, test, evaluation, acquisition, and modification. The Senate recedes.

Cost analysis of F-22 aircraft program (sec. 217)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 218) that would direct the Secretary of Defense to review, analyze and estimate the production costs of the F-22 aircraft program using the Cost Analysis Improvement Group to complete the study. Detailed requirements for the report were outlined in the provision, and a date of March 30, 1997 was given for the completion of the report. A limitation on the use of funds for the F-22 program was also included pending receipt of the report.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

F-22 aircraft program reports (sec. 218)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 219) that would require the Secretary of Defense to submit reports to Congress on event-based decision making when submitting the budget for an upcoming fiscal year. Reports of decisions made, comparing previously defined criteria and decision outcomes, would also be required.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Cost-benefit analysis of the F/A-18E/F aircraft program (sec. 219)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 228) that would require the Secretary of Defense to submit a report to the congressional defense committees on the F/A-18E/F program, comparing the costs and benefits of the F/A-18C/D with the F/A-18E/F. Not more than 90 per cent of the funds appropriated for the F/A-18E/F could be obligated or expended on the F/A-18E/F until 30 days after the date of receipt of the report by the congressional defense committees.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Joint Advanced Strike Technology (JAST) program (sec. 220)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 220) that would preclude the obligation of funds for the Advanced Short Takeoff and Vertical Landing variant of JAST, and require an analysis of force structure alternatives and associated costs.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision, but would provide an additional $13.0 million for alternate engine concepts.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would remove the prohibition on the obligation of funds for the Advanced Short Takeoff and Vertical Landing variant of JAST, but would retain the provisions in the House bill requiring an analysis of future force structure needs and existing alternatives to the JAST program.

The conferees agree to provide the additional $13.0 million as identified in the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267) for competitive engine initiatives.

Unmanned aerial vehicles (sec. 221)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 217) that had five sections addressing unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV) programs. The sections would:

(1) prohibit the Secretary of Defense from entering into a contract for the Joint Tactical Unmanned Aerial Vehicle project until 30 days after certification was received by the Congressional defense committee of the justification and affordability of various reconnaissance programs;

(2) require a clear depiction of reconnaissance budget requests;

(3) transfer management of the Predator program to the Department of the Air Force;

(4) prohibit the obligation of funds to operate Predator UAV's from naval vessels; and

(5) provide $10.0 million for advanced concepts technology demonstrations of air-to-surface precision guided munitions employment using a UAV and a non developmental laser target designator.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would remove the following sections:

(1) the prohibition on entering into contracts on the Joint Unmanned Aerial Vehicle, and

(2) authorization of $10.0 million for an ACTD of air to surface precision guided munitions employment using a UAV and a non developmental laser target designator.

High altitude endurance unmanned aerial reconnaissance system (sec. 222)

The budget request included $6.2 million for enhancements to existing missile programs.

The House bill included a provision (sec. 218) that would authorize an increase of $15.0 million for at least one composite motor type Hydra-70 missile evaluation on the Apache helicopter.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $9.0 million for a Hydra-70 missile evaluation and an additional $4.5 million to develop and qualify an insensitive rocket motor as well as to support minor software improvements for the Hellfire missile.

The conferees agree to a provision (sec. 225) that would authorize $9.0 million for the Hydra-70 evaluation. An additional $3.9 million is authorized for Hellfire missile insensitive rocket motor development, for a total of $19.1 million in PE 23802A.

Federally-funded research and development centers (sec. 226)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 222) that would impose a combined ceiling on the funding that may be provided to both federally-funded research and development centers (FFRDCs) and university-affiliated research centers (UARCs) fiscal year 1997 at the same level as that imposed for fiscal year 1996.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would remove the UARCs from the ceiling and would limit the statutory funding ceiling for FFRDCs at the level reflected in projected expenditures for studies and analyses FFRDCs in the fiscal year 1997 budget request. The conferees direct that funds expended by an FFRDC on recapitalization not be limited by the amount of the ceiling allocated to that FFRDC by the Department of Defense. The conferees direct that management of the FFRDCs be undertaken consistent with the direction in the House report (104-563) and Senate report (104-267).

The conferees note the continued importance of maintaining within the FFRDC community an international trade and technology support capability as described in the Senate report (104-112) to accompany the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996. The conferees urge the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology to ensure that this capability is continued at an appropriate FFRDC and that sufficient funding be allocated to maintain it at a robust level of effort.

Demilitarization of conventional munitions, rockets, and explosives (sec. 227)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 214) that would authorize $15.0 million for the demilitarization of conventional munitions, explosives and rockets, and would require the Secretary of Defense to establish a five year program for the development and demonstration of environmentally compliant technologies for the disposal and demilitarization of conventional munitions, explosives, and rockets.

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 215) that would amend provisions of Title XVII of the National Defense Authorization Act of Fiscal Year 1994 (Public Law 103-160) to clarify the role of the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency in the Department of Defense's research and developments efforts related to chemical and biological warfare defense technologies.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Certification of capability of United States to prevent illegal importation of nuclear, biological, or chemical weapons (sec. 229)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 224) that would require the President to certify to the Congress whether or not the United States has the capability (as of the date of certification) to prevent the illegal importation of nuclear, biological, or chemical weapons into the United States and its possessions.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recesses.

The Office of the Secretary of Defense report, titled "Proliferation: Threat and Defense", dated April 1996, cites the growing threat posed by the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and the spread of technology for their production. According to the report, one of the most volatile and frightening scenarios for U.S. defense planning would be based on a terrorist group that might attempt to smuggle nuclear, chemical, or biological weapons materials into the United States and attack U.S. domestic targets. The conferees believe that the capability of the United States to deal with the potential threat posed by the illegal importation of nuclear, biological, or chemical weapons into the United States should be acknowledged, so that U.S. citizens might understand the seriousness of the threat and that increased emphasis might be placed on meeting the threat.

Nonlethal weapons and technologies program (sec. 230)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 222) that would provide $3.0 million in PE 63640M for the nonlethal weapons research and development program.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 220) that would provide $15.0 million for a joint service research, development, test and evaluation program for nonlethal weapons and nonlethal technologies, and would require the establishment of a new program element to be administered by the program's designated executive agent. The provision would also place limits on the funds authorized for the foreign comparative testing program and the NATO research and development program until the funds authorized for the joint service nonlethal weapons and nonlethal technologies program in the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106), and additional funding for nonlethal weapons and technologies authorized for fiscal year 1997, are released to the executive agent for obligation. Additionally, a second Senate provision (sec. 313) would authorize $2.0 million in operations and maintenance funds for the Army and $3.0 million in operations and maintenance funds for the Marine Corps for procurement of nonlethal weapons capabilities to meet existing deficiencies in current nonlethal weapons inventories.

Last year, $37.2 million was authorized for the nonlethal weapons technologies program. The conferees have been troubled by the reluctance of the DOD to release the funds for execution and implementation of this program. Nonlethal weapons can enhance significantly the flexibility and operational effectiveness of forward deployed forces. As the military services become increasingly involved in unorthodox, non-traditional military operations, nonlethal weapons can help to manage, contain, and defuse certain volatile and low-intensity situations. The conferees do not accept or condone the Department's failure to make these funds available to the executive agent for obligation.

Currently, the Department's plan for execution of funds authorized in fiscal year 1996 includes a total of $15.95 million for nonlethal weapons technologies, with $10.45 million for research, development, test and evaluation, and $5.4 million for procurement. On July 17, 1996, the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology forwarded correspondence pledging to make available an additional $11.09 million in nonlethal funding during fiscal year 1996. Specifically, the Department agrees to prepare a reprogramming action that would transfer funding from the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) to the various services, as follows: $5.4 million to reimburse the services ($1.0 million to the Army, $2.1 million to the Marine Corps, and $2.3 million to the Air Force); $1.04 million for research, development, test and evaluation for additional investment; and $4.65 million to accommodate current nonlethal priorities for use at the discretion of the executive agent.

The conferees understand that the fiscal year 1997 budget submission includes $10.2 million for the various services and DOD nonlethal initiatives. The conferees agree to an investment strategy utilizing additional funds authorized by this provision, allocated as follows: $13.74 million for research, development, test and evaluation, as outlined in the July 17, 1996 letter from the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology; $1.26 million available to the executive agent for research, development, test and evaluation activities, at his discretion; and $5.0 million for training and replenishment of nonlethal technology needs ($2.0 million for the Army and $3.0 million for the Marine Corps).

The conferees emphasize that the revised Department plan for fiscal year 1996 does not bring the Department into compliance with Section 219 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106). However, it does represent a reasonable effort to ensure the immediate and near term nonlethal requirements of the military services. The conferees will closely monitor the formulation of the fiscal year 1996 nonlethal reprogramming list, and expect the Department to coordinate this effort with the relevant congressional committees to ensure its prompt approval.

The conferees agree to eliminate the provision that would prohibit the obligation or expenditure of funds authorized for the foreign comparative testing program and the NATO research and development program. That decision was reached with the understanding that the Department will fully implement and execute the nonlethal weapons technologies program for fiscal years 1996 and 1997, as agreed to in the July 17, 1996 letter from the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology.

The conferees direct the Department to consult with the Congress on a regular basis, and to include in its consultation a review of the joint and individual service mission needs and operational requirements for nonlethal weapons systems and technologies. Additionally, the conferees expect the fiscal year 1998 budget submission to include the funds necessary to continue this effort. The conferees further direct the Department of Defense to notify Congress 15 days in advance of obligation or expenditure of fiscal year 1997 operations and maintenance funds provided to the Army and the Marine Corps for procurement of nonlethal weapons.

The conferees are aware that the Office of Technology Assessment (OTA) had underway, when it closed on October 2, 1995, a major assessment of technology with applications related to peace operations, with particular emphasis on non-lethal weapons technology. Whereas in excess of $250,000 was expended and substantial progress had been made by OTA, no report was issued. The conferees direct that up to $70,000 of the funds authorized for the non-lethal program in fiscal year 1997 be used by the Department to complete a report on non-lethal weapons technology based on the work begun at OTA.

Counterproliferation support program (secs. 231 and 1309)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 221) that would authorize $176.2 million for the counterproliferation support program, a $82.5 million increase to the budget request. Of this increase, $75.0 million would be authorized for the tactical antisatellite technologies program, and $7.5 million would be authorized for the high frequency active auroral research program (HAARP). A second provision (sec. 230) would make available $3.0 million from the counterproliferation support program for a surgical strike vehicle to defeat hardened and deep underground structures.

The House bill contained no similar provisions, but would authorize the budget request for the counterproliferation support program.

The House recesses with an amendment that would authorize $186.2 million for the counterproliferation support program, a $92.5 million increase to the budget request. Of those funds, $75.0 million is authorized for the tactical antisatellite technologies program; $7.5 million is authorized for the high frequency active auroral research program (HAARP); $10.0 million is authorized for a nonproliferation and counterproliferation research and development program to enhance efforts at interdicting and detecting nuclear, radiological, chemical and biological weapons and related materials; and $3.0 million would be available to the Air Combat Command for research and development of a near-term capability to defeat hardened and deeply buried targets, including tunnels and deeply buried facilities for the production and storage of chemical, biological and nuclear weapons and their delivery systems. Additionally, the conferees agree that $4.0 million from funds authorized for the Air Force operation and maintenance account be made available for U.S. Strategic Command (USSTRATCOM) mission planning and analysis.

The conferees agree that funds authorized in this Act for the technical studies and analyses program (PE 605104D) may not be obligated until funds authorized for the tactical antisatellite technologies program in this Act and in the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 have been released for obligation by the executive agent.

Joint Committee for Review of Counterproliferation Program of the United States

The conferees agree to a provision (sec. 1309) that would extend the authority of the Joint Committee for Review of Counterproliferation Programs (CRCP) of the United States to September 30, 2000, and require annual reports to the congressional defense committees on the activities of the committee by May 1 of each year. The provision would also modify the composition of the committee by designating the Assistant to the Secretary of Defense for Nuclear, Chemical and Biological Defense as executive secretary for the committee.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would require the Director of the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization to take such actions as are necessary in connection with the establishment of the NMD Joint Program Office to ensure that establishment of that office does not make it necessary for a Federal Government contractor to significantly reduce the number of persons employed by the contractor for supporting the NMD program at any particular location outside the National Capitol Region.

Subtitle D—Other Matters

Maintenance and repair at Air Force installations (sec. 261)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 241) that would require that the Secretary of the Air Force establish consistent procedures and criteria to allocate real property maintenance and repair funds at all bases and facilities. The absence of consistency leaves the Air Force test and evaluation bases and facilities at a significant disadvantage in the allocation of resources.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Report relating to Small Business Innovation Research program (sec. 262)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 242) that would require the Secretary of Defense to ensure that the Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program be managed and executed by the individual program managers of programs for which $20.0 million or more has been authorized for a fiscal year. The provision would also require a report on the Small Business Innovation Research program, as to whether there has been a demonstrable reduction in the quality of research.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would eliminate the requirement that program managers individually manage and execute the SBIR program and would expand the reporting requirements to include the degree to which competitive procedures are being used and the degree to which the technologies developed are being used in military programs.

Amendment to University Research Initiative Support program (sec. 263)

The House bill contained an amendment (sec. 244) that would propose changes in the data base for calculation of university eligibility for the University Research Initiative Support program.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Elimination of report on the use of competitive procedures for the award of certain contracts to colleges and universities (sec. 265)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 246) that would eliminate the annual reporting requirement on the use of competitive procedures for award of research and development contracts, and the award of construction contracts to colleges and universities, primarily because this report duplicates information already required in other reports.

The Senate recedes.

Pilot program for transfer of defense technology information to private industry (sec. 266)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 813) that would authorize the use of $3.0 million of the funds available in the University Research Initiative program (PE 61103D) for the establishment of a pilot program at a university to demonstrate online transfers of information on defense technologies to businesses in the private sector and through an interactive data network involving Small Business Development Centers.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The House recedes.

Subtitle E—National Oceanographic Partnership ProgramLEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTEDNational Oceanographic Partnership Program (sec. 282)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 247) that would establish a National Oceanographic Partnership Program for the purpose of leveraging all U.S. oceanographic efforts to the benefit of the military. The Partnership Program would establish a National Oceanographic Leadership Council to coordinate national oceanographic programs, partnerships and facilities, and coordinate policy efforts of all Federal activities involved in oceanographic surveys and research. The council would also provide a comprehensive plan to ensure development of oceanography science and technology modeling and simulation programs throughout government, universities and that industry will be available to support military requirements in the future. The House provision would also create a national ocean data and remote sensing center to centralize all unclassified, classified and sensitive compartmented information databases, models and product synthesis capabilities to support national oceanographic requirements and a national natural littoral laboratory. The House would authorize increases of $15.0 million in PE 61153N and $15.0 million in PE 62435N for the National Oceanographic Partnership Program.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 252) that would provide for the establishment of a National Ocean Research Leadership Council, chaired by the Secretary of the Navy or his designee and composed of representatives of Federal agencies, industry and academia, to coordinate national oceanography programs, partnerships and facilities. The Senate amendment would provide an increase of $13.0 million in the Navy's Oceanographic and Atmospheric Technology program (PE 62435N) for support of the National Oceanographic Partnership Act. The Senate amendment also contained a provision that would establish national coastal data centers on both the east and west coasts at existing institutions of higher learning with well established institutes or graduate schools of oceanography.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would authorize an increase of $13.0 million in PE 62435N to be allocated as directed in the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267). The conferees also agree to authorize $7.5 million for oceanographic ship operations out of funds available in operations and maintenance, project 80. The provision would also direct the National Oceanographic Leadership Council to review the requirement for the establishment of centers for the national centralization of oceanographic research data, including coastal data centers, and to establish such centers as it deems necessary.

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS NOT ADOPTEDJoint United States-Israeli Nautilus Laser/Theater High Energy Laser program

The House bill contained a sense of Congress provision (sec. 221) that would strongly support the Joint U.S.-Israeli Nautilus Laser/Theater High Energy Laser program and encourage the Secretary of Defense to request authorization to develop these programs as agreed to April 28, 1996, in the statement of intent signed by the Secretary of Defense and the Prime Minister of the State of Israel.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The conferees agree to authorize an additional $50.0 million for a new program element to support the Nautilus/Theater High Energy Laser program and the associated design verification testing. The conferees understand that the government of Israel is prepared to devote significant resources to this effort and the committee urges the administration to seek a rapid conclusion of a memorandum of agreement (MOA) on the THEL program with Israel. The conferees fully expect that additional funding to implement such an MOA will be included in future Army budget requests.

Policy on compliance with the ABM Treaty

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 233) that would codify the "demonstrated capabilities" standard for assessing compliance of systems with the Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) Treaty, state certain prohibitions, and define an ABM-qualifying flight test as a test against a ballistic missile with a range in excess of 3,500 kilometers and a velocity in excess of five kilometers per second.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 239) that would extend by one year section 235 of the National Defense Authorization Act of Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106).

The House and the Senate recede from their respective provisions.

The conferees note that the President's National Security Advisor has stated that the Theater Missile Defense (TMD) Demarcation agreement, to which the United States has tentatively agreed, would modify the rights and obligations of the parties and, hence, constitute a substantive change to the ABM Treaty. The conferees acknowledge and reaffirm the constitutional principle that any substantive treaty change may be entered into only pursuant to the President's treaty making power under the Constitution. The conferees note that this constitutional principle is specifically codified with regard to the ABM Treaty in section 232 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1995 (Public Law 103-337).

The conferees would take strong exception to any interpretation by the administration that section 235 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 "pre-authorizes" implementation of the TMD Demarcation agreement. For example, because the agreement-in-principle does not apply the "demonstrated capabilities standard" to all TMD systems, it would not satisfy the standard specified in section 235(b)(1). More importantly, section 235 does not supersede the constitutional requirement to submit a substantive change to the ABM Treaty to the Senate for advice and consent.

In light of the fact that the President's National Security Advisor has confirmed that the draft TMD Demarcation agreement would constitute a substantive change to the ABM Treaty, the conferees agree that legislation requiring submission of the agreement for Senate advice and consent is not needed.

Requirement that multilateralization of the ABM Treaty be done only through treaty-making power

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 234) that would state that any addition of a new signatory party to the Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) Treaty (in addition to the United States and the Russian Federation) constitutes an amendment to the treaty that can only be agreed to by the United States through the treaty making power of the United States. This provision would prohibit the obligation or expenditure of funds during any fiscal year for the purpose of implementing or making binding upon the United States the participation of any additional nation as a party to the ABM Treaty, unless that nation is made a party to the treaty by an amendment to the Treaty that is made in the same manner as the manner by which a treaty is made.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 231) that would express the sense of the Senate that during fiscal year 1997 the United States shall not be bound by any international agreement entered into by the President that would substantively modify the ABM Treaty, including any agreement that would add one or more countries as signatories to the Treaty or would otherwise convert the treaty from a bilateral Treaty to a multilateral treaty, unless the agreement is entered pursuant to the treaty making power of the President under the Constitution.

The House and the Senate recede from their respective provisions.

The conferees acknowledge and reaffirm the constitutional principle that any substantive change to a treaty may be entered into only pursuant to the President's treaty making power under the Constitution. The conferees note that, with regard to the ABM Treaty, this constitutional principle is specifically codified in section 232 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1995 (Public Law 103-337). In this regard, the accord on ABM Treaty succession, tentatively agreed to by the administration, would constitute a substantive change to the ABM Treaty, which may only be entered into pursuant to the treaty making power of the President under the Constitution. An explanation for this conclusion is presented below.

First, the fundamental circumstances that provided the rationale for the ABM Treaty have changed. The ABM Treaty, more than any other arms control agreement, was a product of the bipolar Cold war confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union. With the dissolution of the Soviet Union, the United States faces strategic and political circumstances that are vastly different than those that obtained in 1972.

Second, by having the Soviet Union succeeded, for purposes of the ABM Treaty, by some but not all of the independent states of the former Soviet Union, each possessing sovereign rights under the Treaty, a succession agreement would change, limit, and extend certain rights and obligations previously possessed by the parties. This is virtually a best book definition of a treaty amendment. The rights of the United States would clearly be changed given the fact that the Standing Consultative Commission (SCC), the ABM Treaty's implementing body, would, for the first time, be comprised of several parties, all of whom would need to consent to changes, clarifications or amendments to the Treaty.

As the administration stated in a May 3, 1996, letter: "Each party will participate in implementing the Treaty as a sovereign entity. This includes a full and equal voice in the SCC." When asked if the consent of all parties would be needed before the Treaty could be amended, clarified, or interpreted, the administration answered: "Yes. The U.S. has insisted on a decision-making mechanism in the SCC under which legally binding obligations would be adopted by consensus." In effect, the SCC would be transformed into a corporate body in which up to a dozen affirmative votes would be required before the Treaty could be amended. In addition, some of the new treaty partners would only have partial rights. Of the former Soviet states, for example, only Russia would be entitled to deploy an operational ABM system.

Third, the functional mechanics of the ABM Treaty will be changed through multilateralization. The ABM Treaty is based, in part, on a geographical description of the United States and the Soviet Union. For example, the Treaty states specifically that certain large phased array radars may only be located along the periphery of the national territory of the parties. In the case of the former Soviet Union, however, some radars are now located outside of Russia. The Skruna radar in Latvia, for example, is on the territory of an independent country that has rejected membership in the ABM Treaty. Clearly, any agreement that addresses the successorship issue will also have to redefine these geographic aspects of the Treaty, which will constitute substantive amendments to the Treaty. In this regard, the Senate will be as interested to see which states do not accede to the ABM Treaty as it will be to see which countries do accede.

Fourth, all succession agreements related to existing strategic arms control agreements have been addressed by the Senate through the constitutional advice and consent mechanism, with the exception of the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty, which was clearly identified as an exception to the rule at the time of succession.

In the case of the Conventional Armed Forces in Europe (CFE) Treaty, the Senate specifically recognized the impending breakup of the Soviet Union and adopted provisions that were intended to take this into account during the ratification debate. The Senate was so concerned about this issue with regard to the CFE Treaty that it attached a condition to the resolution of ratification that specified procedures for adding new states parties and for evaluating the implications of the withdrawal of key newly independent states from the Treaty.

In the case of the Strategic Arms Reductions Talks (START I) Treaty, the succession agreement, known as the Lisbon Protocol, was approved by a two-thirds vote of the Senate as part of the overall ratification process. As in the case of CFE, START I was surrounded by major succession issues that the Senate had to address in a formal manner. It is the view of the conferees that neither CFE nor START I would have been approved by the Senate but for the fact that the succession issues were thoroughly addressed as part of the ratification debate.

Given the compelling case that the ABM Treaty succession agreement is a substantive change to the treaty, the conferees affirm that such agreement must be submitted to the Senate for advice and consent.

Funding increase for field emission flat panel technology

The House bill included a provision (sec. 248) that would authorize an additional $10.0 million for the combat vehicle improvement program to fund field emission flat panel technology for the M1 tank upgrade.

The Senate amendment would also provide $10.0 million for this project.

The House recedes from its legislative provision.

The conferees agree to recommend an additional $10.0 million in PE 23735A for flat panel display technology.

Natural resource assessment and training delivery system

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 249) that would authorize funding to support a proposed natural resource assessment and training delivery system. The purpose of the program was to enhance the ability of the Department of Defense to mitigate the environmental impact of its operational training of forces and testing of weapons on military installations more effectively and at lower costs.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The conferees agree that there are advanced technology methods such as remote sensing, satellite and aircraft mounted sensors, integrated digital data sets, and advanced computing resources that could offer the Department efficiencies in time, cost and area coverage over personnel intensive ground sampling, data processing and analysis when it monitors environmental conditions at military installations.

The conferees urge the Department to investigate industrial and academic capabilities to implement advanced technologies for environmental monitoring and training.

Funds for research, development, test, and evaluation relating to humanitarian demining technologies

The budget request included $7.7 million for humanitarian demining activities.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 204) that would make $18.0 million available for humanitarian demining activities in PE 63120D, to be administered by the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Special Operations and Low Intensity Conflict.

The House bill contained no similar provision, but would recommend the budget request for humanitarian demining activities.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees agree to authorize $18.0 million in PE 63120D for research, development, test, and evaluation of near-term and long-term technologies and capabilities relating to humanitarian demining technologies. The humanitarian demining program will continue to be administered by the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Special Operations and Low Intensity Conflict. The relationship of this program to the Defense counterintelligence program is discussed elsewhere in the report.

Department of Defense Space Architect

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 212) that would require the Secretary of Defense to include the kinetic energy tactical anti-satellite (ASAT) program in the space control architecture to be developed by the Department's new Space Architect. The provision would prohibit the use of fiscal year 1997 defense funds to support the Space Architect until the Secretary certifies that he will include the ASAT program in the space control architecture, that he has obligated fiscal year 1996 funds for the kinetic energy ASAT, and that he has made available for obligation fiscal year 1997 funds appropriated for the kinetic energy ASAT, consistent with congressional guidance.

The House contained no similar provision. The Senate recedes.

Research for advanced submarine technology

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 214) that would repeal section 132 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Tier III minus Unmanned Aerial Vehicle

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 216) that would prohibit the procurement of more than three air vehicles for the Tier III minus UAV program until flight testing is completed.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Defense airborne reconnaissance program

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 217) that would require the Secretary of Defense to submit a report comparing the Predator unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV) with the Dark Star (Tier III minus) UAV.

The House bill did not contain a similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Advanced submarine technologies

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 223) that would authorize $489.4 million for the submarine previously designated by the Navy as the New Attack Submarine and an additional $100.0 million to address the inclusion on future nuclear attack submarines of core, category I, and category II technologies, as such technologies are identified by the Secretary of Defense in Appendix C of the "Report on Nuclear Attack Submarine Procurement and Submarine Technology", submitted to Congress on March 26, 1996.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Funding for basic research in nuclear seismic monitoring

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 224) that would make available $6.5 million for basic research in nuclear seismic monitoring from funds requested for the Air Force for arms control implementation.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

The budget request included $26.7 million for arms control implementation in PE 35145F for research and development activities to prepare the United States for implementation of, and compliance with, nuclear testing treaties. Those activities include the development of a national and international data center, treaty implementation and technical support, and nuclear monitoring techniques. The conferees agree that, of those funds, $6.5 million shall be available for basic research in nuclear seismic monitoring.

Computer-assisted education and training

The Senate amendment included a provision (sec. 226) that would require that $10.0 million in the Defense Research Sciences program (PE 61101E) be used for the continuation of computer-assisted education and training programs in the Department of Defense.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Seamless high off-chip connectivity

The Senate amendment included a provision (sec. 227) that would require that $7.0 million in funds available for research, development, test and evaluation in the Department of Defense be used to continue research and development of seamless high off-chip connectivity (SHOCC) programs.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 229) that would authorize $29.0 million for the National Polar-Orbiting Operational Environmental Satellite System (NPOESS), a reduction of $5.0 million from the Department of Defense portion of the NPOESS budget request.

The House bill contained no similar provision but recommended a reduction of $15.0 million.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees agree to authorize $29.0 million for NPOESS.

Funding for upper tier theater missile defense systems

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 232) that would authorize funds for the Theater High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) system and the Navy Upper Tier theater missile defense (TMD) system. The provision would also prohibit the use of funds during fiscal year 1997 by the Undersecretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology for official representation activities until the Secretary of Defense certifies to Congress that: (1) fiscal year 1997 funds for THAAD and Navy Upper Tier have been made available for obligation; and (2) the Navy Upper Tier systems has been included in the core TMD program.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Military Personnel Operation and Maintenance Funding

INCREASED FUNDING FOR OFF-DUTY EDUCATION

The conferees agreed to increases of $4.5 million in off-duty education funds for the U.S. Marine Corps and $9.5 million in tuition assistance for the U.S. Air Force.

INCREASED FUNDING FOR RECRUITING

The conferees agreed to increase funding for recruiting and advertising above the amount requested in the President's budget by $4.7 million for the U.S. Marine Corps and by $5.0 million for the U.S. Army Reserve.

NEW PARENT SUPPORT PROGRAM

The conferees agreed to fund the New Parent Support Program at $20 million, and direct that it be allocated as follows: Army, $7.8 million; Navy, $5.5 million; Marine Corps, $2.9 million; Air Force, $3.8 million.

Active and reserve component P-3 squadrons

The budget request included funding to sustain a maritime patrol aircraft (MPA) force structure of 12 active and 8 reserve P-3 squadrons (12/8), a reduction of one active and one reserve squadron from the fiscal year 1996 force structure.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $45.3 million to sustain the MPA force structure at 13 active and 9 reserve squadrons (13/9) in fiscal year 1997. The Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267) noted that the operational demands placed on MPA by the unified commanders have been very heavy in recent years because the P-3 has a multi-mission capability that is well-suited to littoral warfare operations. Despite an intense operating tempo, budget pressures have forced the Navy to cut P-3 force structure in its current budget request.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The conferees agree to an increase of $23.6 million above the budget request to avoid the reductions in P-3 force structure that would be dictated by the budget request. Of this total, $10.6 million would be for squadron operations and $13.0 million would be for personnel.

Defense Health Program

The conferees agreed to increase the Defense Health Program account within the Operation and Maintenance account by $475.0 million to resolve a shortfall in the budget request.

National defense features

The budget request contained no funding in the National Defense Sealift Fund (NDSF) for a national defense features (NDF) program.

The Senate amendment would authorize $50.0 million for the NDF program, using funds made available from repeal of section 132 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount for NDF.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees direct the Secretary of Defense to establish a separate line item in the NDSF budget request for the NDF program. The conferees view the NDF program as a matter of special interest and direct that the Secretary not transfer any funds out of the NDF line item without approval of the congressional defense committees.

Maritime training ship

The budget request for the National Defense Sealift Fund (NDSF) contained no funding for the repair and refurbishment of the United States Naval Ship (U.S.N.S.) Tanner prior to its redesignation as a maritime training ship.

The Senate amendment would authorize an increase of $5.0 million in the NDSF to complete necessary repair and refurbishment of U.S.N.S. Tanner prior to its redesignation as a maritime training ship.

The House bill would authorize the requested amount.

The House recedes.

ITEMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Air Force automated maintenance data systems

The conferees are aware that the Air Force is moving toward a new standard maintenance data-system—the Integrated Maintenance Data System (IMDS). The conferees also understand that one of the first information systems to be integrated into IMDS, scheduled during the second quarter of fiscal year 1997, will be TICARRS. While the House bill provided $10.0 million for TICARRS, the Air Force indicates that only $5.5 million is required to operate TICARRS through the second quarter of fiscal year 1997. Therefore, the conferees agree to provide $5.5 million for this purpose. Should schedule or technical uncertainties delay the implementation of IMDS, the conferees expect the Air Force to provide sufficient funding to operate the legacy data maintenance systems, CAMS/REMIS and TICARRS, through fiscal year 1997.

Center for Military History

The conferees are aware that the Army is reducing the number of civilian personnel in its employ. The Congress has been informed that any reduction of civilians at the Center for Military History (CMH) would be commensurate with other reductions within the Department of the Army. The conferees are encouraged by this plan and direct the Secretary to ensure that any reduction at CMH be proportional to reductions made at other Army activities.

Consolidation of integration of the military exchange systems

The conferees are aware that the Department of Defense has established a task force to examine how to achieve an integrated military exchange system. The conferees recognize the imperative to generate efficiencies and improve the delivery of the exchange benefit. While a consolidated or integrated exchange system may be an option for achieving these goals, the conferees direct that no action be taken to consolidate or integrate the military exchange systems without approval of the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives.

Second destination transportation

The congressional defense committees have authorized expenditures of appropriated funds for second destination transportation charges for the military exchanges since the end of World War II. These funds are utilized to assist the military exchanges in shipping items manufactured in the United States to service members and their families stationed in overseas locations, thereby assuring retail prices for those stationed overseas as close as possible to stateside prices.

The conferees remind the Department that second destination transportation expenditures are not discretionary. The conferees direct the Department of Defense and the Department of the Army, acting as executive agent of second destination transportation, to fully fund the actual expenditures necessary to fully second destination transportation charges.

The conferees note that the Department of Defense has not implemented section 334 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 which directed the Secretary to authorize the exchange systems and the Defense Commissary Agency to negotiate directly with private carriers to achieve the most cost effective rates for the transportation of goods overseas. The current policies, procedures and methods of planning and budgeting for second destination transportation costs are ineffective and lead to under funding within the account. The conferees direct the Secretary of Defense to immediately implement the provisions of section 334 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996.

Defense Commissary Agency designation as a performance based organization

The committee report to accompany S. 1745 (S. Rept. 104-267) and the committee report to accompany H. 3230 (H. Rept. 104-563) included comments concerning the nomination by the Department of Defense to convert the defense Commissary Agency (DeCA) to a Performance Based Organization. These reports note that the committees strongly support the commissary benefit and supports actions necessary to ensure the benefit is maintained.

The conferees concur in maintaining the commissary benefit for our service members and their families. The conferees are aware that the Department is studying whether the leadership of DeCA should be uniformed or civilian in a Performance Based Organization. The conferees believe that the military services should maintain the same level of key leadership within DeCA as that in effect on January 1, 1996. It is imperative that the commissary benefit not be degraded and any transition plan must include safeguards to ensure that trade-offs and management initiatives of a performance-based organization serve the beneficiary population not the organization or industry.

The House recedes with an amendment that would require that $14.5 million in operation and maintenance funds be made available to the Civil Air Patrol Corporation and that 25 percent of these funds be used to support search and rescue and disaster relief operations.

Availability of additional funds for Antiterrorism activities (sec. 306)

The conferees agree to a provision authorizing an additional $14.0 million for use by the Secretary of Defense to fund emergency anti-terrorist activities of the Department of Defense. These funds are in addition to funds otherwise authorized to be appropriated in this Act for anti-terrorism, and are to be available for the Secretary of Defense to respond quickly to emergency anti-terrorism requirements that are identified by commanders of the unified combatant commands or commanders of joint task forces in response to a change in terrorist threat level.

The conferees urge the Secretary of Defense to propose an emergency anti-terrorism program as part of the fiscal year 1998 budget submission.

SR-71 (sec. 308)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1040) that would prohibit the Secretary of Defense from carrying out any aerial reconnaissance program using the SR-71 aircraft.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 306) that would provide $30.0 million in operations and maintenance funding for the SR-71 contingency reconnaissance force.

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 321) that would repeal subsection (c) of section 2706 of title 10, United States Code, which requires the Department of Defense to submit an annual report to Congress that describes the reimbursement of environmental response action costs and the amount and status of pending requests for reimbursement for the top 100 defense contractors.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 342) that would establish a reporting requirement that would limit data collection to the top 20 defense contractors.

The House recedes.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 341) that would devolve the Defense Environmental Restoration Account (DERA), from a single transfer account administered by the Department of Defense, to four separate accounts administered by the individual military departments.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Payments of stipulated penalties assessed under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (sec. 323)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 322) that would authorize the payment from the Defense Environmental Restoration Account (DERA) of stipulated civil penalties assessed under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (CERCLA) (Public Law 96-510) at five military installations—Fort Riley, Kansas ($34,000), the Massachusetts Military Reservation ($55,000), F.E. Warren Air Force Base, Wyoming ($10,000), the Naval Education and Training Center, Newport, Rhode Island ($30,000), and the Lake City Army Ammunition Plant, Missouri ($37,500). The provision would also allow the Department of Defense (DOD) to complete a supplemental environmental project (SEP) ($500,000) in lieu of stipulated penalties at the Massachusetts Military Reservation.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 344).

The Senate recedes with a technical amendment.

Shipboard solid waste control (sec. 324)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 324) that would adopt the administration's legislative proposal to amend section 1902(c) of the Act to Prevent Pollution from Ships (APPS) (33 U.S.C. 1901, et seq.) to allow for the use of pulpers and shredders for the disposal of non-plastic and non-floating solid waste within "special areas" (the Baltic Sea, the North Sea, the Mediterranean Sea, the Red Sea, the Persian Gulf, and the Antarctic Ocean), consistent with Annex V of the International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution on Ships (MARPOL).

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 348).

The House recedes.

Authority to develop and implement land use plans for Defense Environmental Restoration Program (sec. 325)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 325) that would permit the Secretary of Defense to conduct a limited pilot program to develop and implement, as a part of the Defense Environmental Restoration Program, a land use plan for up to ten defense sites where the Secretary is planning or implementing environmental restoration activities. In developing these plans, the Secretary would be required to consult with technical review committees, restoration advisory boards, local land use redevelopment authorities or other appropriate agencies knowledgeable about the site and land use planning. The House provision would require the submission of a report to Congress by December 31, 1998.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would require an annual report consistent with section 2706(a) of title 10, United States Code. The conferees expect that cleanup activities conducted at contaminated sites will be consistent with the anticipated future land use.

Pilot program to test alternative technology for limiting air emissions during shipyard blasting and coating operations (sec. 326)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 326) that would direct the Secretary of the Navy to establish a pilot program to test alternative technology designed to capture, destroy or remove particulate emissions and volatile air pollutants that occur during abrasive blasting and coating operations at naval shipyards. The Secretary would be required to test the validity of the technology, assess its cost effectiveness, and determine the extent to which it would facilitate compliance with environmental strictures. The Secretary would then report to Congress and provide a recommendation regarding large scale implementation of the technology at naval shipyards.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would require the Secretary of the Navy to determine the potential benefit of the technology prior to initiation of the pilot program.

Agreements for services of other agencies in support of environmental technology certifications (sec. 327)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 328) that would provide the Department of Defense with the authority to enter into cooperative agreements with agencies of a State or local government to obtain assistance in the demonstration, validation, and regulatory certification of environmental technology.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would limit the authority to enter into cooperative agreements for technology certification. As a prerequisite to entering into such cooperative agreements, the amendment would require the Secretary of Defense to determine that the technology in question has the potential to benefit the Department significantly and that there is no private market reasonably available to facilitate regulatory certification. The amendment also would expand the annual reporting requirement under section 2706(a) of title 10, United States Code, to ensure accountability for the use of these cooperative agreements.

The conferees agree that the purpose of this provision is to expand the current practice of site specific environmental technology certification and to facilitate broader regulatory acceptance. The conferees expect that the use of cooperative agreements will promote flexibility, cost effectiveness, and efficiency in achieving regulatory acceptance and application of new technologies that will help the Department meet environmental requirements.

The continuation of this new authority will be contingent upon the degree to which regulatory acceptance is effectively expanded. The conferees will carefully review the Department's annual report to determine the effectiveness of the cooperative agreement authority.

Repeal of redundant notification and consultation requirements regarding remedial investigations and feasibility studies at certain installations to be closed under the base closure laws (sec. 328)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 343) that would repeal section 334 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 1992 and 1993. Section 334 triggers redundant notification and consultation requirements regarding remedial investigations and feasibility studies at certain installations to be closed under the base closure laws.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Authority for agreements with Indian tribes for services under the environmental restoration program (sec. 329)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 352) that would modify section 2701 of title 10, United States Code, specifically to authorize the Secretary of Defense to enter into agreements to obtain the reimbursable services of any Indian tribe that assists the Secretary in carrying out Department of Defense environmental restoration activities. Section 2701 currently authorizes the Secretary to enter into such agreements with any other Federal, State or local government agency. The provision would make it clear that an Indian tribe may be a party to such an agreement.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Authority to withhold listing of Federal facilities on the National Priorities List (sec. 330)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 345) that would amend section 120(d) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA) of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9620(d)) by providing the Environmental Protection Agency with the discretion to withhold National Priorities List designation of a Federal facility cleanup action if the site is already subject to an approved Federal or State cleanup plan.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Clarification of meaning of uncontaminated property for purposes of transfer by the United States (sec. 331)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 347) that would amend section 120(h)(4)(A) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA) of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9620(h)) to expand the scope of clean parcel determinations.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The conferees have concluded that the Senate amendment would facilitate the expeditious transfer of clean parcels on closing installations, facilitating economic reuse. The provision is consistent with the administration's legislative proposal.

Conservation and cultural activities (sec. 332)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 323) that would authorize the Secretary of Defense to establish and execute a "Conservation and Readiness Program." The provision would allow for the use of cooperative agreements and grants to facilitate the participation of public and private agencies, organizations, institutions, individuals, or other entities. The purpose of the program would be to conduct and manage coordinated conservation and cultural activities that have regional or Department of Defense-side significance.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would permit the Secretary of Defense to establish and carry out a program to address cultural and natural resource issues that have regional or Department of Defense-wide significance and that involve more than one military department. The amendment would eliminate the Secretary's authority to award grants and would establish criteria for determining which conservation and cultural activities would be eligible for the program.

The conferees recognize that there are many conservation and cultural activities that are necessary to support joint military requirements. For example, assessing bird migratory patterns so that operational flights may avoid high bird volume transit areas at certain times of the year enhances the safety of flight operations for all the services, and it would not make sense for each service to perform its own separate study of such migratory patterns. The military departments have an ongoing obligation to ensure that there is adequate funding to respond to the conservation and cultural issues that arise at military installations. Accordingly, the Department of Defense has developed a definitive annual planning, programming, and budgeting strategy for the preservation of cultural and natural resources. The instant program recognizes that development.

The conferees believe that it is also necessary to have a Defense-wide program for cultural and natural resource management. However, there should be specific criteria for determining program eligibility in order to avoid some of the abuses that have existed under the Legacy Program. Such a program will allow the Department of Defense to conduct regionally significant, multi-component, operationally or legally compelled natural and cultural activities in a coordinated, uniform, and efficient manner. Any funds appropriated for the Legacy Program shall be subject to the criteria set forth in this provision.

Navy program to monitor ecological effects of organotin (sec. 333)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 327) that would require the Secretary of the Navy, in consultation with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), to develop and implement a program to monitor the concentrations of organotin in the water column, sediments, and aquatic organisms of representative estuaries and near-coastal waters of the United States, as described in Organotin Antifouling Paint Control Act of 1988 (OAPCA) (Public Law 100-333). The program would be designed to produce high quality data to enable the EPA to develop water quality criteria concerning organotin compounds. In addition, the Secretary of the Navy would be required to submit to Congress, no later than June 1, 1997, a report explaining the monitoring program and describing the results of the analysis performed pursuant to that program.

The Organotin Antifouling Paint Control Act of 1988 (OAPCA) (Public Law 100-333) was enacted by Congress to protect marine life by reducing the quantities of organotin, a highly toxic ingredient in antifouling paints used on vessels that navigate the waters of the United States. Despite the fact that the Act imposed a March 30, 1989 deadline on the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for the certification of organotin release rates and water quality criteria, such criteria have yet to be established. As a result, there are no uniform national water quality standards for organotin. The OAPCA also directed the EPA to implement a 10 year organotin monitoring program and to submit annual reports to Congress. Only one report has been submitted.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would limit the application of the provision. The EPA would be obligated to agree to provide the Navy with advance funding. The requirement for Navy monitoring would terminate after five years. The Navy would also submit to Congress a report describing the results of its monitoring activities.

Although the conferees agree that the Navy should not be required to perform the entire organotin monitoring function it does, however, appear evident that the EPA is incapable of meeting its statutory mandate. The conferees agree that this is a unique situation and does not set a precedent for assigning environmental monitoring activities to the Navy in the future. Finally, the conferees expect that, with the implementation of the Navy monitoring activities, the EPA will make progress toward completion of its remaining responsibilities and develop water quality standards for organotin.

Authority to transfer contaminated Federal property before completion of required response actions (sec. 334)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 346) that would amend section 120(h)(3)(B) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA) of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9620) to authorize the United States to transfer contaminated federal property before an approved remedial design is in place. The Senate provision would require a federal agency to provide remedial action assurances in the deed or other agreement that is proposed to govern the transfer. That approach is similar to the purchase agreements used in the private sector, with the additional element of regulatory participation. The Senate provision was based on a legislative proposal submitted by the administration to facilitate reuse of contaminated property and to eliminate the disparate treatment between public and private sector transfers of contaminated property.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with a clarifying amendment.

Prior to the transfer of property under this provision, it must be determined that the property is suitable for transfer, that the intended use is consistent with protection of human health and the environment, and that the deed or other agreement proposed to govern the transfer contains response action assurances. The conferees note that the provision would allow transfers to accommodate the laws of different states. Moreover, the conferees agree that the provision does not change existing federal responsibility with respect to response action at transferred property. Although the provision amended section 120(a)(4) of CERCLA (42 U.S.C. 9601 et seq.), with respect to such property, it should not be construed to otherwise limit or expand the sovereign immunity waiver under this section.

Subtitle D—Commissaries and Nonappropriated Fund Instrumentalities
LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Contracts with other agencies to provide or obtain goods and services to promote efficient operation and management of exchanges and morale, welfare, and recreation activities (sec. 341)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 341) that would provide authority for exchanges and morale, welfare and recreation systems (MWR) to enter into contracts or other agreements with another element of the Department of Defense or another Federal department, agency or instrumentality to provide goods and services beneficial to the efficient management and operation of exchange and MWR systems.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with a clarifying amendment.

Noncompetitive procurement of brand-name commercial items for resale in commissary stores (sec. 342)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 342) that would clarify that, in order to receive the exception from competition in contracting requirements, a commercial item has to be regularly sold outside the commissary store under the same brandname as it would be sold in the commissary store.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 363).

The Senate recedes with a clarifying amendment.

The conferees intend that commissary stores only acquire items for resale under the brand-name exemption to the Competition in Contracting Act that are ordinarily available to the general public. The military commissary system is not an appropriate vehicle to sell items for which the distribution is limited to the military market unless they have been acquired for resale through competitive procedures. Because the dynamics of the marketplace often offer significant opportunities for consumer savings during the introductory sale period for new products, it is not the conferees' intent that these provisions limit the introductions of the new items into the commissary system when their release to the commissary system is simultaneous with their introduction in the commercial sector.

Prohibition of sales or rental of sexually explicit material (sec. 343)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 343) that would prohibit the sale or rental of sexually explicit written or videotaped material on property under the jurisdiction of the Department of Defense.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with a technical amendment.

Subtitle E—Performance of Functions by Private-Sector Sources
LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Extension of requirement for competitive procurement of printing and duplication services (sec. 351)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 351) that would extend section 351 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal 1996 (Public Law 104-106) which directed the Defense Printing Service (DPS) to competitively procure from private sector sources at least 70 percent of its printing and duplication work. The provision also requires a report on the DPS compliance with this requirement.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Reporting Requirements under Demonstration project for purchase of fire, security, police, public works, and utility services from local government agencies (sec. 352)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 352) that would extend the authority of the Department of Defense (DOD) to conduct a demonstration project for fire, safety, and other services for an additional 2 years. The provision would also require the DOD to submit a report on this project to the Congress during each of these two years.

The Senate had a similar provision.

The Senate recedes with a technical amendment.

Subtitle F—Other Matters

Authority for use of appropriated funds for recruiting functions (sec. 361)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1034) that would authorize the secretaries of the military departments to expend appropriated funds for small meals and snacks during recruiting functions.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 362) that would authorize this expenditure for a five year period, and specify that the refreshments be provided for members of the Delayed Entry Program, other prospects, and community leaders.

The House recedes with a clarifying amendment.

Training of members of the uniformed services at non-government facilities (sec. 362)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1065) that would authorize military personnel to use the same procedures for acquiring commercial training courses as civilian personnel.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would include this authority in title 10, United States Code.

Requirement for preparation of plan for improved operation of working-capital funds and effect of failure to produce an approved plan (sec. 363)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 360) that would terminate the Defense Business Operations Fund (DBOF) effective October 1, 1998. It also would require the Secretary of Defense to submit to the Congress a plan to improve the management and performance of the industrial, commercial, and support activities currently managed through the DBOF not later than September 30, 1997.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would delay the termination of DBOF until October 1, 1999. The conferees believe strong action is in order to focus the attention of the Department of Defense (DOD) upon serious financial and management shortfalls in DBOF. While the conferees fully support the concept of providing full visibility of the total costs of industrial and support activities, the conferees believe that an update to the DBOF management plan is long overdue. The conferees urge DOD to develop a plan that provides stability to DBOF activities, while protecting unique capabilities critical during war or mobilization. It is the intent of the conferees to use the report required in this provision as a basis to review the decision on the termination of DBOF.

Increase in capital asset threshold under Defense Business Operations Fund (sec. 364)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 361) that would raise the capital asset threshold in a Defense Business Operations Fund (DBOF) activity from $50,000 to $100,000.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Expansion of authority to donate unusable food (sec. 365)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 369) that would expand the list of eligible recipients for donations of unusable food items from the Department of Defense to state and local governments, many of whom operate their own shelters and food kitchens to feed homeless citizens. The provision would also allow the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) to participate in this program. Currently, section 2485 of title 10, United States Code; does not include state and local governments among the entities eligible to receive donations of unusable and surplus food items such as Meals Ready To Eat (MREs), and allows only the individual military departments to donate unusable food. This provision would allow DLA to donate MREs and other excess food items from various defense agencies to cities and states who, in turn, could distribute them to homeless individuals and families.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Assistance to committees involved in inauguration of the President (sec. 366)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 365) that would amend section 2543 of title 10, United States Code, to allow the Secretary of Defense to provide safety, security, and ceremonial assistance to the Presidential inaugural committee. The Secretary would also be authorized to provide other assistance deemed appropriate, but only if done on a reimbursable basis.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Department of Defense support for sporting events (sec. 367)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 366) that would allow the Secretary of Defense to provide assistance to civilian law enforcement agencies for security and safety at civilian sporting events if the Attorney General of the United States certifies that such assistance is required to meet essential security and safety needs. The provision would also allow the Secretary of Defense to provide other assistance for these events but only to the extent that the assistance could not be reasonably provided by a source other than the Department of Defense, does not adversely impact on military preparedness, and the organization requesting such assistance reimburses the Department of Defense.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with a technical amendment.

Storage of motor vehicle in lieu of transportation (sec. 368)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 363) that would provide storage, at government expense, of privately-owned vehicles for service members when there are restrictions on the normal shipment of these vehicles, and would also provide storage of vehicles for service members who are deployed between 30 and 180 consecutive days.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 622).

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would limit storage of vehicles to those service members who are deployed on contingency operations.

Security protections at Department of Defense facilities in the national capital region (sec. 369)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 365) that would permit the Defense Protection Service (DPS) to provide emergency protection and security services to sensitive defense activities in the National Capital Region (NCR).

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Reimbursement under agreement for instruction of civilian students at Foreign Language Institute of the Defense Language Institute (sec. 371)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 369) that would authorize the Secretary of the Army to determine the amount of reimbursement an educational institution would be required to pay in order to permit non-government students to receive instruction at the Defense Language Institute.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would ensure that the reimbursement rate would not be less than the rate paid by other governmental agencies, and would permit the Secretary of the Army to accept reimbursement in-kind as part of the reimbursement on a case-by-case basis.

Assistance to local educational agencies that benefit dependents of members of the Armed Forces and Department of Defense civilian employees (sec. 372)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 367) that would authorize $58.0 million for payment to local educational agencies that provide educational services to Department of Defense personnel and their dependents. The provision would also require DOD to notify these agencies that they are eligible for such assistance.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would provide $35.0 million.

Renovation of building for Defense Finance and Accounting Service center, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indian (sec. 373)

The House recedes with an amendment that would ensure that the DOD is fully reimbursed by the GSA for the funds which the DOD expends on the renovation project.

Food donation pilot program at service academies (sec. 374)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1073) that would authorize the service academies to conduct food donation programs to serve the poor and homeless people consistent with those programs authorized to be conducted by other military activities.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Authority of Air National Guard to provide certain services at Lincoln Municipal Airport, Lincoln, Nebraska (sec. 375)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 370) that would provide the authority for the Nebraska Air National Guard to provide fire and rescue services at the Lincoln Municipal Airport in Lincoln, Nebraska.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would require such services to be provided only if the Nebraska Air National Guard and the Lincoln Municipal Airport Authority enter into an agreement providing reimbursement to the Air National Guard for the cost of providing such services. The agreement must also provide an indemnification from any claim for damages or injury to any person or property arising out of the provision of such services or the failure to provide such services.

Technical amendment regarding impact aid program (sec. 376)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1086) that would amend the special rule for impact aid payments for eligible federally connected children and would prohibit the Secretary of Education from making payments to school districts when the eligibility is associated with property used for Department of Defense activities, unless such funds are transferred from the Department of Defense.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would strike the portion of the provision that required funds to be transferred from the Department of Defense.

Depot-level activities

The house bill contained a provision (sec. 312) that would exclude large maintenance projects from the calculations for determining the amount of depot maintenance that is performed by private contractors.

The Senate amendment contained a number of provisions (secs. 321-330) that would make numerous changes to the current legislation regarding the performance of depot maintenance within the Department of Defense (DOD). Section 321 would reinforce the idea that core logistics functions of the DOD should be performed at government owned depots, using government owned equipment operated by government employees. Section 322 would change the current 60/40 ratio, as outlined in section 2466 of title 10, United States Code. Section 323 would require the Secretary of Defense to annually report on the amount of depot maintenance performed by the public sector during the previous year and the amount of maintenance performed by the private sector. Section 324 would codify the definition of depot maintenance.

In addition, section 325 would require the Department of Defense to provide the congressional defense committees with a report outlining its plan for the performance of depot maintenance at public depots and by private industry. This report would require the DOD to answer some of the questions that did not answer last year. Section 326 would require the Department of Defense to provide the congressional defense committees with a report outlining the competitive procedures used by the Department of Defense in determining whether the depot maintenance workload should be performed by a public depot or a private entity.

Furthermore, section 327 would require the Joint Chiefs of Staff to perform a risk assessment regarding what depot maintenance workloads could be performed by the private sector and what workloads need to be maintained in depots owned and operated by the Department of Defense. Section 329 would require a competition between all DOD aviation depots to determine which depot can perform the depot maintenance on F-18 aircraft most efficiently. Finally, section 330 would require the Department of Defense to perform a competition for the workload currently performed at Kelly and McClellan AFB to determine if the work should be moved to another public depot or to be privatized in place.

The House and Senate recede. The conference agreement does not contain any of these provisions. The conferees agree not to take any action regarding these issues this year.

Master Ship Repair Agreement

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 352) that would require the Secretary of the Navy to award complex ship repairs and overhauls only to qualified shipyard contractors. The current Navy requirements for Master Ship Repair Agreement (MSRA) qualification includes a requirement for a contractor owned dry-dock facility. This section would not apply to repairs and overhauls performed on the Pacific Coast of the United States.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The conferees are aware that the Navy would like to revise its requirements for MSRA certification by increasing capability requirements which will demand a more robust and extensive repair capability and will delete the requirement for a contractor owned dry-dock facility. Under these new requirements the Navy would establish dry-dock requirements on an individual repair contract solicitation basis. The conferees believe that such a revision in the MSRA requirements would allow more private shipyards to compete for repair contracts that do not require contractor owned dry-dock facilities. The conferees understand that this new Navy policy for ship repair contracts is designed to insure an adequate and comprehensive ship repair industrial base to meet current and future Navy requirements. The conferees further believe that this policy change will provide stability to the Navy ship repair and overhaul program. Therefore, the conferees direct the Secretary of the Navy to implement this new policy as soon as possible.

National Defense Reserve Fleet

The budget request contained $90.0 million in the National Defense Sealift Fund for the acquisition and modification of roll-on/roll-off (RO/RO) ships for introduction into the Ready Reserve Force (RRF) component of the National Defense Reserve Fleet (NDRF).

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 312) that would:

(1) waive the current congressionally imposed restriction on the acquisition of RO/ROs from the world market to permit the acquisition and modification of up to five such RO/ROs for introduction into the RRF; and

(2) authorize an increase of $60.0 million above the budget request for the acquisition and modification of two additional RO/ROs for the RRF.

The House bill contained no similar provision. The House bill would reduce the budget request by the $90.0 million included in it for the acquisition and modification of foreign-built RO/ROs and apply these funds to the purchase of a maritime prepositioning ship for the Marine Corps.

The Senate recedes.

Restriction on Coast Guard funding

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 314) that would reject any authorization for the Department of Defense to fund the Coast Guard through budget subfunction 054.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Oceanography

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 315) that would authorize an additional $6.2 million for oceanographic ship operations and data analysis for the U.S. Navy.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees recognize the importance of the oceanographic activities of the Navy and authorize an additional $6.2 million for this purpose in the operations and maintenance account.

Firefighting and security-guard functions at facilities leased by the Government

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 361) that would modify the current prohibition on contracting for firefighting and security-guard services. This provision would amend current legislation by clarifying the authority of the Department of Defense to contract with non-federal employees for these services if they are to be carried out at a private facility at which a Federal Government activity is located pursuant to a lease of the facility.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Computer emergency response team

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 368) that would authorize $2.0 million to be used by the Software Engineering Institute for use by the Computer Emergency Response Team.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees support the important work of the Computer Emergency Response Team and have agreed to authorize an additional $2.0 million for this purpose in the operations and maintenance tables.

TITLE IV—MILITARY PERSONNEL AUTHORIZATIONS

ITEMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Military Personnel Funding

The conferees agreed to authorize that $70.1 billion, which is $273.3 million above the President's request, be appropriated for military personnel. The conference agreement includes that following:

AIR NATIONAL GUARD FIGHTER AIRCRAFT

The conferees authorize the Air National Guard personnel end strength 576 part-time personnel, 249 active guard/reserves and 343 military technicians above the budget request and recommend an increase of $8.5 million to the personnel authorization to provide Air National Guard fighter squadrons with 15 primary authorized aircraft (PAA) per squadron vice the requested 12.

AIR NATIONAL GUARD C-130 AIRCRAFT

The conferees authorize the Air National Guard personnel end strength 310 part-time personnel, 25 active guard/reserves and 50 military technicians above the budget request and recommend an increase of $2.0 million to the personnel authorization to provide Air National Guard tactical airlift squadrons with 12 primary authorized aircraft (PAA) per squadron vice the requested 10.

ARMY MILITARY PERSONNEL ACCOUNT SHORTFALL FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

The conferees authorized a $50.0 million addition to the Army military personnel account.

RESERVE FULL TIME MANNING INCREASE

In recognition of the expanded role of both the Army and Air Force Reserve in the early-deploying contingency forces and day-to-day operational tempo, the conferees authorize the Secretary of the Army to increase the number of Active Guard and Reserve (AGR) by 254 personnel and authorize the Secretary of the Air Force to increase the number of AGR by 30 personnel. The conferees authorize an increase of $8.0 million above the President's request for reserves on active duty to support the reserves in the Army and $2.6 million for reserves on active duty to support the reserves in the Air Force.

TITLE V—MILITARY PERSONNEL POLICY

ITEMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

General and flag officer career patterns

The conferees are concerned about the career patterns of officers once they are selected for promotion to general and flag officer grades. The current general and flag officer selection, assignment and development process may not effectively contribute to the preparation of those officers for increasing levels of responsibility and maximum performance efficiency at each level of assignment. Specific concerns include: 1) the length of time officers spend on promotion lists to grades 0-7 and 0-8 before they are actually promoted; 2) the tempo with which general and flag officers are rotated through important positions; 3) the effect of this tempo both on the effectiveness of individual officers in each position to which they are assigned and on the overall value these officers add in each position to which they are assigned; and 4) the consequences of requiring general and flag officers to retire upon completion of 35 years of service.

The conferees direct the Secretary of Defense to review the career patterns of general and flag officers and report to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives not later than April 1, 1997. The report should address, at a minimum:

(1) Average time-in-grade at the time of selection for promotion to each general and flag officer grade. Average time-in-grade should be reported by fiscal year, by service, by competitive category and by grade. For the purposes of this report, the time of selection should reflect the date the respective promotion board report is approved by the official authorized to approve such report;

(2) Average time-in-grade at the time of promotion to each general and flag officer grade. Average time-in-grade should be reported by fiscal year, by service, by competitive category and by grade;

(3) Average tour lengths for general and flag officers who changed positions or assignments during fiscal years 1991 through 1995. Tour lengths should be reported by fiscal year, by service, and by grade. Joint tours should be addressed separately from non-joint tours; and

(4) Assessment of the continued appropriateness of the mandatory retirement of officers after 35 years of commissioned service as required by section 636 of title 10, United States Code.

The conferees do not expect the Secretary of Defense to delegate the conduct of this review or the preparation of the required report to the individual military departments, the uniformed services or to the Joint Staff.

TITLE VII—HEALTH CARE PROVISIONS

ITEMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Programs for hospital and health facilities medical management in the Department of Defense

The conferees are concerned that the medical facilities of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Air Force and the Department of the Navy may not be implementing cost-containment programs similar to those in the private sector. The conferees note that private sector medical facilities have developed and are using such programs for equipment maintenance management, equipment and utilization tracking, quality outcomes benchmarks and protocols and clinical pathways for both managing care and for reporting results.

The conferees urge the Secretary of Defense to establish a program comparable to those in use in the private sector to measure the performance of military facilities. The conferees suggest that such a program be initially established in several large military medical facilities (500 bed facilities) and later expanded to all medical facilities as the program matures. The conferees direct the Secretary to submit a report on the progress of this effort not later April 15, 1997 to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives.

The House recedes with an amendment that would eliminate the entitlement to health care for the children of those who are no longer eligible for health care within the Military Health Care System. Additionally, the amendment would require the Secretary of Defense, in coordination with the Secretary of Veterans Affairs, to develop a plan for ensuring that children who have a congenital defect or catastrophic illness, proven to a reasonable degree of scientific certainty to have resulted from exposure of the service member to a chemical warfare agent or other hazardous material during military service, are provided medical care.

Since the end of the Persian Gulf War, over 17,000 veterans have reported suffering from a wide range of symptoms collectively referred to as "Gulf War Syndrome." Some of these veterans believe their illnesses may be the result of exposure to chemical warfare agents.

The conferees are concerned that exposure to chemical warfare agents may be a causal factor of the Gulf War Syndrome and congenital birth defects or catastrophic illness among children born to service members who served in the Gulf War, particularly in light of the Department of Defense's recent disclosure that some Persian Gulf War veterans may have been exposed to chemical agents during the war.

As a result, the conferees believe the Department of Defense should expeditiously arrange for independent research to determine whether exposure to low levels of chemical warfare agents could have caused the symptoms associated with Gulf War Syndrome. Furthermore, the conferees believe the Department should study the possible health implications of administering a "cocktail mix" of inoculations and using investigational new drugs, as was done during the Persian Gulf deployment. The Department of Defense has a responsibility to current military members, former members, and their children, to investigate fully any possible links between exposure to chemical agents or the use of combined inoculations and illnesses suffered by these members or their offspring.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would establish that the alternatives be: (1) service in another armed force for a period of time not less than the remaining obligation; (2) service in a reserve component assignment of a duration twice as long as the remaining active-duty obligation; or (3) repayment of a percentage of the total cost incurred by the Department under the program equal to the percentage of the member's total active-duty service obligation being relieved, plus interest. The provision would also establish that members relieved of an active duty service obligation due to a physical disability may fulfill the obligation as a health professional civil service employee in a facility of the uniformed services.

External peer review for Defense Health Program extramural medical research involving human subjects (sec. 742)

The conferees recommend a provision that would establish that research projects that involve human subjects, that are conducted solely by a non-Federal entity, and are funded through the Defense Health Program (DHP), would be required to undergo a peer review process, established by the Secretary of Defense, to ensure the precept of basic scientific merit and the protection of subjects before DHP funds be obligated or expended.

Comptroller General review of health care activities of the Department of Defense relating to Gulf War illnesses (sec. 744)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 706) that would require the Comptroller General to conduct several reviews related to Persian Gulf Illnesses.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with a clarifying amendment.

Report regarding specialized treatment facility program (sec. 745)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 745) that would require the Secretary of Defense to provide Congress with a report on the impact of reducing the catchment areas for specialized treatment facilities from 200 miles to 100 miles.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Study of means of ensuring uniformity in provision of medical and dental care for members of reserve components (sec. 746)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 701) that would define the entitlement to medical and dental care for reserve component members in a specific military duty status.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would require the Secretary of Defense to conduct a review of the provision of medical and dental care to members of the reserve components on active duty, including active duty for training and annual duty training, members on inactive duty training, and members on full-time National Guard duty. The report should include recommendations for a comprehensive plan for ensuring that the medical treatment, active-duty entitlements, and consideration for disability evaluation available to reserve component members is sufficient and in parity with that provided to members of the active component.

Sense of Congress regarding tax treatment of Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship and Financial Assistance Program (sec. 747)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 744) that would express the sense of Congress that the Secretary of Defense should continue to work with the Secretary of the Treasury to seek relief from the taxable status of tuition and related expenses as taxable income subject to withholdings.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees, recognizing the extraordinary benefit to the Armed Services, believe that tuition and related expenses provided under the Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program or the Financial Assistance Program should not be considered taxable income. The current situation is the result of an Internal Revenue Service ruling which reversed longstanding practice that payments under these programs were not considered taxable income. The conferees believe that the President can and should direct the Internal Revenue Service to reverse the current ruling and return to the previous policy. Further, the conferees believe that any action to collect taxes from those personnel who participated in the Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program or the Financial Assistance Program while the previous policy was in effect should be terminated.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Restoration of previous policy regarding restrictions on use of Department of Defense Medical Facilities

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 707) that would repeal the restriction on the use of Department of Defense funds to perform abortions in overseas medical facilities.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

TITLE VIII—ACQUISITION POLICY, ACQUISITION MANAGEMENT, AND RELATED MATTERS

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS

Subtitle A—Acquisition Management

Procurement technical assistance programs (sec. 801)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 801) that would provide an increase of $12.0 million to continue the procurement technical assistance center program in fiscal year 1997.

The House bill contained an increase of $8.0 million for the continuation of this program with no legislative language.

The House recedes. The conferees believe that the Department of Defense should continue to administer this program and urge the Secretary of Defense to continue to utilize the infrastructure of the procurement technical assistance centers to support the implementation of acquisition streamlining initiatives in the Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act of 1994 such as electric commerce.

Extension of pilot Mentor-Protege program (sec. 802)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 802) that would extend the period in which mentor firms under the Mentor-Protege program may incur costs for furnishing developmental assistance under the program until September 30, 1999. The provision would also extend the period during which new agreements can be entered into until September 30, 1998.

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 808) that would extend the pilot Mentor-Protege program through fiscal year 1997.

The House recedes.

Authority to waive certain requirements for defense acquisition pilot programs (sec. 803)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 801) that would expand existing authorities provided to the Secretary of Defense to waive or modify certain acquisition laws in executing programs designated as defense acquisition pilot programs.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Modification of authority to carry out certain prototype projects (sec. 804)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 804) that would reauthorize the authority provided by section 845 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1994 (Public Law 103-160) to allow additional flexibility in the acquisition of prototype technologies and systems. The provision would also expand this authority to the military services.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 803).

The Senate recedes.

Increase in threshold amounts for major systems (sec. 805)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 804) that would update the existing statutory dollar amount threshold for the definition of "major systems" to fiscal year 1990 constant dollars from fiscal year 1980 dollars. It would also allow the Secretary of Defense to further adjust this threshold for inflation after notification to the congressional defense committees. These changes would conform the definition for "major systems" to that used for "major defense acquisition program" in title 10, United States Code.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment clarifying that any subsequent adjustment in the threshold should be rounded to the nearest $5.0 million.

Revision in information required to be included in Selected Acquisition Reports (sec. 806)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 805) that would adjust and improve the terminology and references used in the acquisition reporting process of major defense acquisition programs. The provision would add "procurement unit cost" as an additional reporting element of the Selected Acquisition Report to provide a more meaningful measure of recurring unit cost. The provision would also eliminate the reporting element for completion status for a program because, as currently defined, it provides statistical measures of only marginal utility for program oversight.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Increase in simplified acquisition threshold for humanitarian or peacekeeping operations (sec. 807)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 806) that would expand the current authority that doubles the simplified acquisition threshold, for purchases made outside of the United States in support of a contingency operation, to cover humanitarian and peacekeeping operations.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would expand the authority to all Federal agencies.

Expansion of audit reciprocity among Federal agencies to include post-award audits (sec. 808)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 807) that would expand current statutory authorities in two ways in order to reduce administrative burdens and duplications of efforts by different governmental entities. First, it would extend audit reciprocity considerations to post-award audit to expedite the contract closeout process and the issuance of final contract payments. Second, it would require the Office of Management and Budget to issue guidance to ensure that State and local entities accept cognizant Federal agency audits in order to minimize duplication of effort and reduce cost for contractors engaged in contracting at various levels of government.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes. The conferees expect that guidance implementing this provision will provide that a contracting officer consult, as necessary, with the available resident audit authority in making a determination that the objectives of indirect cost audit can be met by accepting the results of the prior audit.

Compensation of certain contractor personnel prohibited (sec. 809)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1076) that would modify the statutory cost principles to limit annual reimbursement of individual compensation to $200,000.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment raising the individual compensation limit to $250,000 and modifying such limitation to apply only in fiscal year 1997. The conferees have also limited the restriction to officers of the firm to be defined in regulation. The conferees intend this term to include individuals in senior management positions with responsibility for the management of a firm or a major segment thereof.

The conferees also agree to language clarifying the definition of compensation for the purposes of this limitation. In this definition, compensation is defined as wages and elective deferred compensation. Further, the conferees intend for this provision to be applied in a manner that results in the $250,000 compensation limit being the aggregate total limit that any one individual may submit for reimbursement. The conferees acknowledge the difficulty of determining a general policy for the treatment of deferred compensation under a cost reimbursement limitation of this nature.

The conferees intend this provision to be an interim approach pending the development and consideration of a permanent change to the statutory cost principles. The conferees have included a provision requiring the Administrator of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Defense, to provide to Congress no later than March 1, 1997, a legislative proposal to address, in an equitable and clear fashion, the limitation of reimbursement of individual compensation under government contracts. The proposal shall include a definition of compensation, including the treatment of deferred compensation, to be covered by such limitation as may be proposed. In developing such legislative proposal, the Administrator shall make every effort to develop an approach that allows contractors to avoid using internal tracking procedures other than those currently used for the purposes of complying with accepted accounting practices and current tax law.

Exception to prohibition on procurement of foreign goods (sec. 810)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 831) that would delay the expiration of the current statutory domestic source restriction for valves and machine tools from October 1, 1996 to October 1, 2001.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 806) that would amend section 2534 of title 10, United States Code, by providing additional authority for the Secretary of Defense to waive limitations on the procurement of goods other than United States goods. The amendment would authorize the Secretary to waive a limitation in a case where he determines that the application of the limitation would impede the reciprocal procurement of defense items under a memorandum of understanding entered into under section 2531 of title 10, United States Code.

The House recedes.

The conferees note that the Defense Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement interprets the domestic source limitation in section 2534(a)(5) of title 10, United States Code, for ball bearings and roller bearings "in accordance with subpart 225.71 of part 225 of the Defense Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement, as in effect on October 23, 1992" as allowing only those waivers that were included in the cited DFARS subpart, rather than the general waivers in section 2534(d) of title 10, United States Code, to be applied to the domestic source restrictions for ball and roller bearings. The conferees do not intend the new provision to have any effect on the Department's interpretation.

Subtitle B—Other Matters

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Prohibition on release of contractor proposals under Freedom of Information Act (sec. 821)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 822) that would exempt contractor proposals provided to the Federal government from release under the Freedom of Information Act (Public Law 89-554). This provision is intended to allow Federal agencies to dispense with the lengthy line-by-line reviews that are currently required to arrive at the non-disclosure determination for this material. This provision is not intended to affect information available to be placed under a General Accounting Office protective order pursuant to section 3553(f) of title 31, United States Code.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment clarifying the status of those portions of contractor proposals included in a government contract.

Amendments relating to reports on procurement regulatory activity (sec. 822)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 824) that would repeal the requirement for the Administrator for Federal Procurement Policy to publish a semiannual regulatory activity report on procurement regulations.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would make the semiannual reporting requirement an annual requirement and modify the required content of the report.

Amendment of multi-year limitation on contracts for inspection, maintenance, and repair (sec. 823)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 825) that would repeal the current statutory limitation on multi-year contracts for inspection, maintenance, and repair functions thereby enabling the multi-year policy provisions of the Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act of 1994 (Public Law 103-355) to govern such contracts.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment extending the limitation period to not more than five years, vice three years.

Streamlined notice requirements to contractors and employees regarding termination or substantial reductions in contracts under major defense programs (sec. 824)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 826) that would streamline and simplify the notification process resulting from termination or substantial reduction in defense contract funding required by the Defense Conversion, Reinvestment, and Transition Assistance Act of 1992 (Division D of Public Law 102-484). This provision would modify the notification process to occur upon actual contract termination or substantial reduction rather than prematurely during the budget process as currently required.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Repeal of notice requirements for substantially or seriously affected parties in downsizing efforts (sec. 825)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 827) that would repeal the requirement for the Secretary of Defense to notify Federal, state, county, local and labor officials if the President's annual budget submission, or long-term guidance documents, or public announcements of base or facility closures or realignments, or cancellation or curtailment of a major contract will affect them seriously and substantially.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Study of effectiveness of defense mergers (sec. 826)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 833) that would require a study conducted by the Secretary of Defense on the effect of defense mergers and acquisitions in the defense sector. The study would address the effectiveness of defense mergers and acquisitions in eliminating excess capacity within the defense industry, the degree of change in the dependence of defense contractors on defense-related Federal contracts after mergers, and the effect on defense industry employment resulting from defense mergers and acquisitions.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment adding the effect on competition for defense contracts as a matter to be addressed.

Annual report relating to Buy American Act (sec. 827)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1053) that would require the Secretary of Defense to submit an annual report on the amount of purchases by the Department of Defense from foreign entities in that fiscal year. The report would also include the dollar value of items for which the Buy American Act of 1933 (41 U.S.C. 10) was waived.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment extending the date the report is required to be submitted to 120 days after the end of the fiscal year.

Foreign environmental technology (sec. 828)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3165) that would allow the Secretary of Energy to waive the prohibition under section 2536(b) of title 10, United States Code, on award of certain Department of Defense and Department of Energy contracts to companies owned by an entity controlled by a foreign government. The provision would authorize the waiver if the Secretary of Energy determines that it is essential to the national security or advances the environmental restoration objectives of the Department, without harm to the national security interests of the United States. Moreover, the waiver only applies if the entity is controlled by a foreign government with which the Secretary is authorized to exchange restricted data under section 144(c) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2164(c)).

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would extend the waiver authority to the Secretary of Defense.

The conferees direct the Secretary of Defense to provide a report to the congressional defense committees on whether the standards identified in this new waiver authority should be modified or expanded.

Assessment of national defense technology and industrial base and dependency of base on supplies available only from foreign countries (sec. 829)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 804) that would substantially amend the requirements in chapter 148 of title 10, United States Code, for analysis, assessment and planning concerning the national technology and industrial base. The amendments would clarify that the Secretary of Defense has responsibility for preparing periodic and selected assessments of the capability of the national technology and industrial base to attain the national security objectives outlined in section 2501(a) of title 10, United States Code. The provision would also establish a requirement that the Secretary prepare and submit to Congress an annual report describing the assessment and analyses used to identify and address concerns about national technology and industrial base capabilities as well as each program in the annual budget request designed to sustain such capabilities.

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 829) that would direct the Department of Defense to conduct an assessment of the degree of dependency on foreign sources for key components of defense systems.

The House recedes with an amendment that would require foreign dependency risk assessments be included as part of the periodic selected industrial base assessments conducted by the Secretary of Defense. In assessing whether a case of foreign dependency constitutes an unacceptable risk, the Secretary should take into consideration the overall degree of dependence by the national technology and industrial base on the item or supply in question, the production or development risks that could result from the disruption of access to such item or supply, and the programs and initiatives in place to reduce dependence on such item or supply.

Expansion of report on implementation of automated information systems to include additional matters regarding information resources management (sec. 830)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 809) that would require the Secretary of Defense to report to Congress on the establishment of the integrated management framework for the implementation of the Information Technology Management Reform Act of 1996 (division E of Public Law 104-106) and to provide the Department's overall strategic information resources management plan.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would make technical and clarifying changes and that would break out the section of the provision concerning the "year 2000 issue" into a separate provision discussed elsewhere in this report.

Year 2000 software conversion (sec. 831)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 809(b)) that addressed the potential problem of converting date fields in software code an embedded systems in the year 2000 and directed the Department of Defense (DOD) to assess the risk to DOD information systems, and report to Congress on the resources necessary to complete conversion by the year 2000. The Senate amendment also directed the Secretary of Defense to ensure that after September 30, 1996 all information technology purchased by the Department will operate in the year 2000 without technical modifications.

The House had no similar provision.

The House recedes with a clarifying amendment. The conferees agree it is critical for the Department to address immediately the matter of "year 2000 compliance", and to ensure to the greatest extent practicable that prospective acquisitions do not include products that are non-compliant. While DOD contracting personnel are authorized to consider and accept offers for non-compliant products this authority should be conditioned on the offerors providing and committing to a timetable whereby products sold to the government after September 30, 1996 will be "year 2000 compliant", or will be modified to achieve "year 2000 compliance", or will be modified to achieve "year 2000 compliance" with minimal cost to the government.

Procurement from firms in industrial base for production of small arms (sec. 382)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 805) that would authorize the Secretary of Defense to require that any procurement of property or services associated with repair parts for small arms, or modifications of parts to improve small arms used by the armed forces, be made only from a firm in the small arms industrial base. The small arms industrial base would include those firms described in the plan entitled "Preservation of Critical Elements of the Small Arms Industrial Base," dated January 8, 1994, that was prepared by the Army Science Board.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment.

The conferees support the findings in Army Science Board study referred to in the Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267) and include a legislative provision (sec. 832) that authorizes the Secretary of Defense to limit procurement of small arms repair parts and modification of parts to those firms identified in the study which comprise the small arms production industrial base.

Cable television franchise agreements (sec. 833)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 833) that would express the sense of Congress that the United States Court of Federal Claims should transmit a report to Congress as specified in section 823 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106) by the date specified in that section.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 807) that would require that cable television franchise agreements with the Department of Defense be considered as a contract for telecommunications services for purposes of part 49 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) if the court sustained that position in its report to Congress.

The House recedes with an amendment. Section 823 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106) required the United States Court of Federal Claims to render and transmit to Congress an advisory opinion on whether the executive branch is empowered to treat cable television franchise agreements as contracts under the FAR without violating title VI of the Cable Act (47 U.S.C. 521 et seq.) and, if so, whether the executive branch is required by law to treat such agreements as contracts. The court transmitted its advisory opinion to Congress on July 15, 1996. The court found that, as a matter of law, cable television franchise agreements are contracts subject to part 49 of the FAR. The conferees agree to a provision which reflects the opinion of the court.

The conferees do not intend that this section should in any way interfere with arrangements between cable television operators on military bases that have closed and the public or private parties that have taken possession of these base properties after closure.

Exclusion from certain post-education duty assignments for members of the acquisition corps

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 802) that would authorize the Secretary of Defense to exclude from the mandatory joint duty requirement military members of the acquisition corps who have graduated from the senior acquisition course at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces (ICAF).

TITLE IX—DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE ORGANIZATION AND MANAGEMENT

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS

Subtitle A—General Matters

Repeal of reorganization of Office of Secretary of Defense (secs. 901 and 903)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 902) that would clarify that the 25 percent, five year reduction in personnel assigned to the Office of the Secretary of Defense required by section 901 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106) must be implemented on an annual basis.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 901) that would repeal sections 901 and 903 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 which directed the reorganization of the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

The House recedes with an amendment that would retain section 901 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 and include the annual reductions required by section 901 of the House bill.

The conferees note that section 901 required the Secretary of Defense to conduct a review of the organization and functions of the Office of the Secretary of Defense and to submit a report not later than March 1, 1996. The Secretary has failed to comply with this statutory requirement. The conferees direct the Secretary to complete the review and to submit the required report immediately.

The conferees agreed to strike the repeal of the statutory basis for certain Presidential appointment positions. The conferees expect that the Secretary will include in the review of the organization and functions a zero-based review of the structure of the Office of the Secretary of Defense, and propose legislative changes, as necessary, if there is a recommendation to eliminate any of the current statutorily-required positions.

Additional required reduction in defense acquisition workforce (sec. 902)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 901) that would require a reduction in the number of personnel assigned to defense acquisition organizations of 25,000 during fiscal year 1997.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment limiting the number of required reductions to 15,000 in fiscal year 1997 and clarifying that the reductions are required to be made in numbers of acquisition personnel rather than in acquisition positions. The conferees agree that the impact of the reductions required to date in this specific category should be properly and fully assessed prior to the consideration of further cuts of such magnitude.

Report on military department headquarters staffs (sec. 904)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 903) that would require the Secretary of Defense to conduct a comprehensive assessment on the management and functional responsibilities of the offices of the military department secretaries and chiefs of staff.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with a clarifying amendment.

Transfer of authority to control transportation systems in time of war (sec. 906)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 364) that would shift the responsibility for all systems of transportation during time of war from the Secretaries of the Army and the Air Force to the Secretary of Defense.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 904).

The House recedes.

Codification of requirements relating to continued operation of the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (sec. 907)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 743) that would restate the directive to the Secretary of Defense to budget for ongoing operations at the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS).

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 902) that would codify in title 10,

United States Code, those portions of the National Defense Authorization Acts for Fiscal Years 1995 and 1996 that prohibit the closure of the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS).

The House recedes.

Joint Requirements Oversight Council (sec. 908)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 904) that would delay the effective date of the statutory charter for the Joint Requirements Oversight Council (JROC) from January 1, 1997 to January 1, 1998.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would amend the JROC charter to specify that the Secretary of Defense is required to provide Congress with analysis and rationale for programmatic recommendations that were accepted by the Secretary. The amendment would retain the January 1, 1997 effective date.

Membership of the Ammunition Storage Board (sec. 909)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 906) that would permit qualified federal civilian employees to serve as board members on the Department of Defense ammunition storage board.

The Senate recedes.

Removal of Secretary of the Army from membership on the Foreign Trade Zone Board (sec. 910)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 905) that would repeal the requirement for membership of the Secretary of the Army on the Foreign Trade Zone Board.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees encourage the Department of Defense to advise the Board on infrastructure improvements and environmental evaluations, as appropriate.

Composition of aircraft accident investigation boards (sec. 911)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1033) that would require the Secretaries of the military departments to appoint a minimum of one representative of the service's safety center as a voting member on all aircraft accident investigation boards and to appoint a majority of the membership of accident investigation boards from units outside the chain of command of the unit involved in the mishap.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would eliminate the requirement that a representative of the service's safety center be a member of an investigation board and would authorize the Secretary to select other individuals possessing knowledge or expertise that might prove useful to those conducting the investigation. The amended provision also allows the Secretary to waive the requirement to appoint a member or members from outside the command if the crash site is remote; the need to conduct the investigation is urgent; or the aircraft is very unique and limited in number to the extent that it is not feasible to locate, within the military department, another unit whose personnel have sufficient knowledge.

Mission of the White House Communications Agency (sec. 912)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1051) that would require the Secretary of Defense to ensure that the activities of the White House Communications Agency of the Department of Defense are limited to the provision of telecommunications support to the President and Vice President and related elements such as the National Security Council.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would: (1) permit the White House Communications Agency to provide services other than telecommunications so long as the Department of Defense is reimbursed for the cost of providing those services, (2) delay the effective date until October 1, 1997, and (3) require a series of reports during fiscal year 1997 on support provided by the White House Communications Agency.

Subtitle B—Force Structure Review

Force Structure Review (secs. 921–926)

The Senate amendment contained a number of provisions (secs. 1091–1096) in subtitle G of title 10, referred to as the "Armed Forces Force Structure Review Act of 1996." This Act would require the Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to conduct a Quadrennial Defense Review (QDR) as recommended by the Commission on Roles and Missions of the Armed Forces. This review would be a complete re-examination of the defense strategy, force structure, force modernization plans, budget plans, infrastructure, and other elements of the defense program and policies with a view toward determining and expressing the defense strategy of the United States, and establishing a national defense program, as we enter the 21st Century.

In carrying out this review, the Department would examine the potential near- and long-term threats to U.S. national security including:

(a) the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and the means to deliver them;

(b) conventional threats across a spectrum of conflicts;

(c) the vulnerability of our information systems and other advanced technologies to non-traditional threats;

(d) domestic and international terrorism; and

(e) the potential emergence of a major adversary.

The Act would also create an independent, non-partisan panel of defense experts (to be known as the National Defense Panel) that would provide the Secretary of Defense and the Congress alternative recommendations regarding the optimal force structure required to meet the national security needs of the United States. This panel would be appointed by the Secretary of Defense after consultation with the Chairmen and Ranking Members of the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives.

The creation of the National Defense Panel is intended to help ensure the validity of the process by playing a very active role in reviewing and commenting on the QDR from the early stages of its development. The Panel is designed to provide the Congress, and the Secretary of Defense, with an independent review of the national security requirements of the United States, including the force structure necessary to meet those requirements. This will, hopefully, allow the Congress and the Secretary to consider alternative options when making decisions affecting the security of the United States.

Upon completion of the QDR, the Act would require that the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Chairman of the National Defense Panel prepare and submit to the Secretary of Defense, for inclusion in the Secretary's report to the Congress, their assessment of the QDR. The Secretary's report would also include a comprehensive discussion of the defense strategy of the United States, and the assumptions regarding the threats to our national security, mission sharing, levels of acceptable risk, warning times, and intensity and duration of the conflict. In addition, the report would address the effect on the force structure of preparations for, and participation in, peace operations and military operations other than war. It also would require a discussion of the effects which emerging technologies will have on the U.S. force structure and a number of other matters.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The conferees believe this is an appropriate time to review the strategy and force structure necessary to protect the interests of the United States in any future conflict. The pace of global change requires that the United States reexamine its military capabilities with a view toward preparing the military services for the 21st Century.

TITLE X—GENERAL PROVISIONS

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS

Subtitle A—Financial Matters

Transfer authority (sec. 1001)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1001) that would provide the authority for reprogramming involving the transfer of authorization between amounts authorized as set out in bill language.

The Senate amendment contained an identical provision.

The conference agreement includes this provision.

Incorporation of classified annex (sec. 1002)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1002) that would incorporate the classified annex prepared by the Committee on National Security into this Act.

The Senate amendment contained an identical provision.

The conference agreement includes this provision.

Format for budget requests for Navy/Marine Corps and Air Force ammunition accounts (sec. 1005)

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment.

The conferees agree that the consolidated Defense Airborne Reconnaissance Office (DARO) budget request does not provide sufficient funding detail for the numerous DARO programs to enable the congressional defense committees to conduct necessary oversight. The major DARO programs currently consolidated in one R&D program element identification number and spread across three procurement line item identification number include: tactical unmanned aerial vehicles; endurance unmanned aerial vehicles; airborne reconnaissance systems; manned reconnaissance systems; and distributed common ground systems. The conferees therefore include a legislative provision that would require the Secretary of Defense to identify at least these major DARO R&D and procurement programs by unique program element identification number and procurement line item identification number, respectively, for all future budget requests beginning with the fiscal year 1998.

Limitation on use of Department of Defense funds transferred to the Coast Guard (sec. 1007)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1009) that would extend the authorization for the designation and appointment of disbursing and certifying officials within the Department of Defense to the Secretary of Transportation for the Coast Guard. The Department of Defense was authorized to designate and appoint disbursing and certifying officials in the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996. The recommended provision would extend these financial management authorities to the Coast Guard.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The Senate recedes with a clarifying amendment.

Subtitle B—Naval Vessels and Shipyards

Repeal of requirement for continuous applicability of contracts for phased maintenance of AE class ships (sec. 1021)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1023) that would repeal section 1016 of the National Defense Authorization Act of Fiscal Year 1996.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Funding for second and third maritime prepositioning ships out of National Defense Sealift Fund (sec. 1022)

The budget request included $963.0 million in the National Defense Sealift Fund (NDSF) for strategic sealift, including $603.8 million for the procurement of two large medium speed roll-on/roll-off (LMSR) ships, $260.8 million for operations and maintenance of the ready reserve force (RRF), $90.0 million for acquisition of additional ships for the RRF, and $8.4 million for sealift research and development.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 311) that would authorize an increase of $240.0 million in the NDSF for the purchase and conversion, or construction if it is competitive based on price and timeliness, of two additional ships for the Marine Corps maritime prepositioning force enhancement (MPF(E)) program. Acquisition of these two ships would satisfy the Marine Corps MPF(E) threshold operational requirement. The Senate report (S. Rept. 104-267), which was published on May 13, 1996, provided the rationale for this provision. A subsequent MPF(E) life cycle cost comparison was undertaken by the Congressional Research Service (CRS) at the request of the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and completed on June 21, 1996. CRS evaluated a number of possible options, including purchase and conversion of an existing hull, a new construction variant of the Army's LMSR, and a lengthened version of a national defense features roll-on/roll-off design that was developed as a maritime technology initiative. The study concluded that, with a threshold operational requirement and any time horizon from fiscal year 2009 out to thirty years of service life as the benchmarks, the purchase and conversion of an existing ship to satisfy the Marine Corps threshold requirement for an MPF(E) ship would be the most cost effective option.

The House bill contained no similar provision. However, the House bill would authorize an increase of $160.0 million for the purpose of procuring a second MPF(E) ship. The House bill also included a separate provision, discussed elsewhere in this statement of managers, that would ensure that the second and third ships acquired to satisfy the MPF(E) requirement are new vessels constructed in U.S. shipyards.

The House recedes.

Transfer of certain obsolete tugboats of the Navy (sec. 1023)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1022) that would authorize the Secretary of the Navy to transfer six obsolete tugboats from the Navy to an instrumentality of the State of Wisconsin, the Northeast Wisconsin Railroad Transportation Commission, if the Secretary determines that the tugboats are not needed for transfer, donation, or other disposal under title II of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (40 U.S.C. 481 et seq.). The transfer would be at no expense to the Navy. The provision would also direct the Secretary to require, as a condition of transfer, that use of the vessels by the Commission not commence until the terms of any necessary environmental compliance letter have been met.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that will clarify the terms under which the transfer could be made.

Transfer of the U.S.S. Drum to city of Vallejo, California (sec. 1024)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1049) that would authorize the Secretary of the Navy to transfer the U.S.S. Drum (SSN-677) to the City of Vallejo, California, upon satisfactory completion of a ship donation application. This transfer would be at no cost to the government.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Sense of Congress concerning LCS 102 (LSSL 102) (sec. 1025)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1025) that would express the sense of the Senate that the Secretary of Defense should use existing authorities in law to seek return, upon completion of service, of the former U.S.S. LCS 102 (LSSL 102) from the Government of Thailand in order for the ship to be transferred to the United States Shipbuilding Museum.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The conferees agree to adopt the Senate provision as a sense of Congress.

Subtitle C—Counter-Drug Activities

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Overview

The budget request for drug interdiction and other counterdrug activities of the Department of Defense totals $782.2 million. This includes the $642.7 million drug interdiction account, and $139.5 million in the military services' operating budgets for counterdrug operations. This compares with a total of $810.9 million for these activities during fiscal year 1996, including $679.4 million for the drug interdiction account and $131.5 million in the services' operating budgets.

The conferees recommend an additional $153.8 million for the counterdrug initiatives of the Department of Defense. These increases, along with the budget request for counter-narcotics activities, are shown in the table below.

Drug Interdiction & Counterdrug Activities Operations and Maintenance

[In thousands of dollars; may not add due to rounding]

Fiscal Year 1997 Drug and Counterdrug Request	782,200
Source Nation Support	154,000
Detection and Monitoring	232,100
Disruption of Drug Mafia Organizations	57,100
Law Enforcement Agency	255,000
Demand Reduction	84,000
Increases:
Support for Military Counterdrug Units of Mexico Laser Strike	8,000
Riverine Operations in South America	4,000
Signal Intelligence Equipment for Southwest Border	2,500
Southwest Border Fence	5,000
Refurbish and Install TPS-70 Radar	15,000
P-3B AEW Retrofit (2 a/c)	98,000
Non-Intrusive Inspection Systems	6,000
Gulf States Counterdrug Initiative	2,800
Multi-Jurisdictional Task Force	1,000
C-26 Upgrades	3,500
Recommendation	936,000

The increase in funding will enable the Department of Defense and the Federal Government to more rigorously pursue its counter-narcotics efforts including priority programs identified by the Office of National Drug Control Policy.

Mexico-Southwest Border Initiative

The conferees recognize that a substantial quantity of the narcotics entering the United States from South America continues to come across the southwest border. Some reports put this quantity as high as 70 percent. The conferees urge the Department to increase its effort in working with the Government of Mexico to stem the flow of narcotics across this border and recommend an increase of $8.0 million in fiscal year 1997 to be used for this purpose.

The conferees are encouraged by the Department's intelligence gathering activities related to the prevention of drug-smuggling across the southwest border. The conferees recommend an increase of $2.5 million for the purchase of signal intelligence equipment to be used for communications intercept activities along the southwest border.

The conferees continue to have an interest in facilitating support for the border fence project along the San Diego-Tijuana border area in Southern California. The conferees are aware of the efforts of JTF-6 and the California National Guard in sustaining an adequate level of support to enhance this barrier. The conferees endorse the decision to fund the effort to enhance the fence from within the immigration control budget. However, to ensure that the existing program to extend the length of fence coverage is not unnecessarily interrupted, the conferees recommend an additional $5.0 million for continued support of this national project.

In addition, the conferees recommend an additional $6.0 million for the purchase of non-intrusive inspection devices to be deployed at major ports of entry along the southwest border. This will help to ensure that the U.S. war on drugs in this region is provided with the most up to date detection equipment.

Caribbean and South American Initiative

The conferees are aware that the Department's request is insufficient to provide full funding of Operation Laser Strike in fiscal year 1997. Laser Strike will build on the success of Operation Green Clover and involves a sustained level of U.S. detection, monitoring and tracking resources, as well as assessments and training, to support expanded interdiction and law enforcement efforts by nations of the source region. The conferees support this important operation and recommend an increase of $8.0 million in order to provide full funding.

The conferees are also aware that drug traffickers are making greater use of the vast river network in the Andean region to transport processed cocaine and precursor materials. Currently, the governments in the source nations are ill-prepared to interdict drug trafficking on their rivers and waterways. Therefore, the conferees recommend an increase of $4.0 million for assistance to the governments of the source nations in their efforts to stem the flow of narcotics moving on these rivers.

The conferees are encouraged by the level of success achieved by the Department in reducing the movement of narcotics by air. The conferees recommend an additional $15.0 million for the installation of a TPS-70 radar which will assist the Department, and those cooperative governments of the source nations, in efforts to further reduce the amount of drugs that smugglers are moving with the use of aircraft. In addition, the conferees recommend an additional $98.0 million for the retrofitting of two P-3B aircraft with airborne radars which will provide the U.S. Customs Service with additional detection and monitoring capability.

Domestic Counter-Narcotics Initiative

The conferees have learned that the number of OH-58D helicopters in the Army National Guard will be reduced dramatically under the Army's Aviation Restructure Initiative. These helicopters, with their forward looking infrared radar (FLIR), are particularly useful in the National Guard's detection of illicit marijuana fields. The conferees have been advised that the Department of Defense's Office of Drug Enforcement Policy and Support is reviewing this situation with a view towards the retention of additional OH-58D helicopters, as appropriate, within existing funding resources. The conferees support this initiative and direct that Office, in coordination with the Department of the Army and the National Guard Bureau, to ensure the allocation of additional helicopters to those states that have historically used these assets for the detection and destruction of illicit marijuana fields.

The conferees are aware of a shortfall in funding for the National Guard C-26 aircraft photo reconnaissance and infrared surveillance upgrade program. Therefore, the conferees recommend an increase of $3.5 million to restore the number of aircraft involved in the C-26 photo reconnaissance upgrade program to its previous level.

The conferees continue to support the Gulf States Counterdrug Initiative (GSCI) and are pleased to note that the budget request contains $3.2 million for this initiative. However, the conferees are concerned that this funding level does not adequately cover the required costs for the Regional Counterdrug Training Academy, integrating the state of Georgia into the program and other priority initiatives. Therefore, the committee recommends an increase of $2.8 million over the requested amount. The committee strongly believes that funds provided for this program should remain focused on training and improving command, control, communications, and computer capabilities.

The conferees continue to support the efforts of the Multi-Jurisdiction Task Force to provide valuable counter-narcotics training to our nation's state and local law enforcement agencies. The conferees recommend an additional $1.0 million for these efforts.

Legislative Provisions (secs. 1031-1032)

In order to facilitate the Department's ability to carry out these initiatives, the conferees recommend two provisions. The first provision would authorize the transfer of both the non-intrusive inspection devices and 2 P-3B aircraft to the U.S. Customs Service. Prior to the obligation of funds for the P-3B aircraft, the Secretary would have to certify to Congress that the transfer of these aircraft to the U.S. Customs Service will significantly reduce the level of support that would otherwise be requested of the Department's E-3 AWACS aircraft.

The conferees also include a provision from the Senate amendment (sec. 1031) that would grant the Secretary of Defense the authority to provide additional support for the counter-drug activities of the Government of Mexico. This provision would authorize the Secretary to transfer non-lethal protective and utility personnel equipment, spare parts, and non-lethal specialized equipment, such as navigation equipment, communications equipment, and photo equipment, to Mexico. The conferees wish to make clear that the Secretary would only be authorized to transfer equipment specified by this provision and in no way could use this authority to transfer helicopters or other aircraft.

Transfer of excess personal property to support law enforcement activities (sec. 1033)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 362) that would provide permanent authority for the Department of Defense (DOD) to provide excess personal property to state and local law enforcement agencies. This property includes vehicles, helicopters, weapons, ammunition and other property that is needed by law enforcement agencies. Section 1208 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 1990 and 1991 (Public Law 101-189) established a one year program to provide excess personal property to law enforcement agencies for use in drug enforcement activities. This provision was extended until September 30, 1997 by section 1005 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991 (Public Law 101-510). This provision would make the section 1208 program permanent and expand it to all law enforcement activities with a priority to counter-narcotics activities.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment which would give priority to counter-narcotics and counter-terrorist law enforcement activities. The amendment would also ensure that DOD would incur no cost of transferring this excess equipment to these law enforcement agencies except the cost associated with the management of the program within DOD.

Sale by Federal departments or agencies of chemicals used to manufacture controlled substances (sec. 1034)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1082) that would prevent the sale of chemicals that could be used in the manufacture of controlled substances. These chemicals could be sold, however, if the head of the department or agency certifies that there is no reasonable cause to believe the sale will result in an improper use.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with a clarifying amendment.

The provision would also direct the service chiefs and the Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Special Operations Command to prepare the report for the Chairman. The report which they prepare should assign each force unit, described by type rather than unit name, to one of three tiers of combat readiness which are defined in the provision. The provision establishes parameters for the assessment. The provision would also direct the Chairman to provide a listing of all forces that are not assigned to one of the three readiness tiers. After the service chiefs provide the Chairman with this report, the Chairman shall provide the report to the congressional defense committees together with his comments. The report is required to be submitted by January 31, 1997.

The Senate bill also contained a provision (sec. 517) that would require the Secretary of Defense to provide a report on the role of specific Guard and Reserve units in the current force structure.

The House recedes with an amendment that would combine the two reports and would require the Secretary of Defense to report to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives. The Chairman of the JCS and the service chiefs would prepare the report. The Chairman of the JCS would consult with the commander of the U.S. Special Operations Command in preparation of the report.

Report on NATO enlargement (sec. 1048)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1047) that would require the President to submit a report on enlargement of the membership of North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) to Congress by December 1, 1996. The provision would also require the appointment of congressional members to serve on a bipartisan review group of non-governmental experts to conduct an independent assessment of the enlargement of NATO, and to report to Congress by December 1, 1996.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would change the date from December 1, 1996 to February 1, 1997 for the President's report on NATO enlargement. Additionally, the conferees agree to eliminate the legislative requirement for a congressionally-appointed group of nongovernmental experts to conduct an independent assessment of NATO enlargement.

The conferees expect that Congress will conduct its own independent assessment on the issue of NATO enlargement.

The House recedes with a clarifying amendment.

Treatment of excess operational support airlift aircraft (sec. 1072)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1083) that would require that all excess operational support airlift aircraft (OSA) be placed in inactive status and stored pending completion of any study or analysis of the costs and benefits of disposing or operating such aircraft.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would clarify the terms of the service agreement between the recipient and the NSEP.

The conferees support the intended purpose of NSEA to promote international education and foreign language study by U.S. students, who later serve in defense and intelligence related positions in the U.S. government. If administered effectively, the conferees regard this program as constructive in assisting the education of qualified students, while strengthening national security institutions by introducing prospective candidates to the workforce. In this light, the conferees expect the Secretary of Defense to emphasize that student experience from foreign studies be reinvested in the government's national security efforts, establish greater awareness in the national security agencies about the availability and skills of such resources, and pursue an active and effective program in utilizing these individuals realizing their service obligation.

Aviation and vessel war risk insurance (sec. 1079)

In the case of a reimbursement required as the result of an aviation incident, reimbursement to the Secretary of Transportation would be required within 30 days following the presentation of a valid claim to the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration. For vessel war risk claims, such reimbursement would be made not later than 90 days following adjudication of the claim by the Administrator of the maritime Administration.

The purpose of the agreement would be to facilitate greater understanding, standardization, and interoperability.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The conferees note that no funds are authorized by this provision for familiarization, orientation, or certification of exchange personnel.

The conferees agree that the authority granted to the Secretary by this provision shall be implemented specifically as written. This authority is not to be used as a mechanism to require the Department of Defense to fund visits and training of military and civilian personnel from allied and other foreign countries without reciprocal exchanges that provide substantially equivalent benefits to the United States.

Sense of the Senate regarding Bosnia and Herzegovina (sec. 1083)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1084) that would express the sense of the Senate that the price of equipment transferred to Bosnia and Herzegovina should not exceed the lowest level price for the same or similar equipment transfer to any other country under a government program.

Defense burdensharing (sec. 1084)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1041) that would express the sense of the Congress about discrepancies between U.S. and allied defense spending, concluding that the United States continues to bear a greater burden for the common defense than its allies. The provision would also direct the President to seek increases to allied defense spending through increased contributions in any of four areas: increasing the cost share of all non-U.S. nations where U.S. military forces are deployed by reaching specific percentages by certain dates; increasing defense spending comparable to that of the United States; increasing foreign assistance; or, increasing the amount of military resources contributed to multinational military activities. Additionally, the provision would require two reports regarding actions taken to increase allied burdensharing and progress in increasing allied burdensharing.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 1045) that would express the concerns of the Senate that the United States is bearing a disproportionate share of the common defense; directs the President to seek increases to allied defense burdensharing through one or a combination of four areas, similar to the four areas identified in the House language. Additionally, the provision would require the Department of Defense to report to Congress by March 1, 1997 on progress in increasing allied burdensharing and the relationship of U.S. military forces. In addition, the provision modifies the current burdensharing reporting requirement from an annual to a bi-annual frequency.

The conferees agree to a provision that would provide the President with the latitude to seek increases to allied burdensharing in one or more of four areas; would require a consolidated report to Congress addressing progress in increasing allied burdensharing as well as the relationship between forward deployment of United States military forces outside the U.S. and allied burdensharing.

In seeking increases in allied levels of support, the conferees are mindful that the success of such efforts will justifiably differ depending upon a number of variables, including the gross domestic product and the unique aspects of the U.S. relationship with each ally. The conferees recognize for example, that a goal of securing financial contributions at high levels to offset the non-personnel costs incurred by the U.S. Government for overseas force personnel may be inappropriate with regard to many U.S. allies.

TITLE XI—NATIONAL IMAGERY AND MAPPING AGENCY

National Imagery and Mapping Agency (secs. 1101-1124)

The Senate amendment contained provisions (secs. 911-934) that would establish a new organization known as the National Imagery and Mapping Agency (NIMA).

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recesses with an amendment that would: (1) address NIMA's support for the all-source analysis and production process; (2) address NIMA's personnel provisions in a consolidated Department of Defense Intelligence Personnel provision, discussed elsewhere in this report; and (3) establish a uniform standard (in a provision separate from the NIMA legislation) regarding the Secretary of Defense's recommendation to the President on the appointment of the Directors of NIMA, the National Security Agency, and the National Reconnaissance Office.

The conferees expect that the creation of NIMA will enhance support to the all source analysis and production process. Because of the importance attached to the achievement of this goal, the conferees agree to highlight it as one of the key mission areas to be reviewed in the overall review of NIMA's performance of its assigned national missions.

The conferees endorse the grant of authority recently given to the Director of the National Security Agency by the Deputy Secretary of Defense over research and development and urge the Secretary of Defense and the Director of Central Intelligence to grant to the Director of NIMA similar approval authority over tactical imagery programs and intelligence agency investment programs.

NIMA will provide a single agency focus for imagery and geospatial information within the United States Government. NIMA would: (1) be the focal point for the growing and diverse number and types of customers of imagery and geospatial information; (2) ensure visibility and accountability for imagery and geospatial resources; (3) harness, leverage, and focus rapid technological developments to serve imagery, imagery intelligence, and geospatial information customers; and (4) identify and advocate customer needs for this growing and diverse customer pool. The term "imagery", as defined and used in this Act, includes products produced from space-based national intelligence reconnaissance systems, in accordance with Executive Order 12951 and any successor or superseding Orders.

Although NIMA would carry out its mission responsibilities under the authority, direction, and control of the Secretary of Defense, with the advice of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, it would have a vital "national" mission to serve the imagery and geospatial information needs of consumers outside the Department of Defense. It would carry out its responsibilities to national intelligence customers in accordance with the policies and priorities of the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI). The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) would have clear, affirmative authorization to provide administrative and contracting services to the NIMA to insure accomplishment of the national mission of the NIMA or the performance of intelligence community activities of common concern, notwithstanding provisions of law that would otherwise limit such an authorization. The CIA also would be permitted to provide security police services for NIMA facilities, notwithstanding any limitations on jurisdiction of such personnel contained in section 15 of the Central Intelligence Agency Act of 1949.

NIMA would be established by bringing together various agencies and organizations already in existence within the Department of Defense and the Intelligence Community. Specifically, NIMA would be made up of: the Defense Mapping Agency; the Central Imagery Office; other elements of the Department of Defense identified in the classified annex to this Act; the National Photographic Interpretation Center of the CIA; and other elements of the CIA identified in the classified annex to this Act.

NIMA would be responsible for imagery requirements management, exploitation, dissemination, and archiving. It would define and recommend policies on imagery and geospatial information, and coordinate requirements for an end-to-end architecture, integrated into the National and Defense Information Infrastructure, to satisfy customer needs and to ensure appropriate interoperability.

NIMA would not be responsible for developing, procuring, or operating imagery collection systems, which are responsibilities currently held by the National Reconnaissance Office, the Defense Airborne Reconnaissance Office, and the intelligence elements of the military services. Nor would NIMA include or replace current organizations for tactical military exploitation and use of imagery products. In effect, NIMA would provide a coherent and uniform linkage between these two ends of the imagery spectrum.

NIMA would not replace or diminish the current responsibilities of Federal civilian agencies for mapping, charting, and geodesy, or change their existing responsibilities for disaster or emergency response or civil imagery archives. Rather, NIMA would facilitate their access to critical national security information, when appropriate, and promote technology exchange through established interagency mechanisms, such as the Civil Applications Committee. The ability of all members of the intelligence community to obtain both imagery intelligence support regarding matters of common concern and support necessary for individual agency requirements would be maintained and expanded, as appropriate.

The conferees believe that the legislative charter for NIMA contained in this Act strikes an appropriate balance between the needs of "national" intelligence and combat support. As a Combat Support Agency, NIMA must be under the clear authority, direction, and control of the Secretary of Defense. But the charter also provides for a clear and prominent role for the DCI to task imagery systems and exploit imagery products in support of the national mission. The committee notes that the Director of Central Intelligence strongly supports establishment of NIMA as a Combat Support Agency in Title 10, United States Code. The DCI has testified that his peacetime imagery tasking authorities are protected under this arrangement and that he does not believe that support to national customers will be in any way jeopardized. Except as otherwise provided in this Act, establishment of NIMA will not derogate from the existing authorities of the Secretary of Defense or the DCI.

The conferees also note that the Commission on the Roles and Capabilities of the United States Intelligence Community strongly endorsed the establishment of NIMA as a combat support agency within the Department of Defense. The conferees share the Commission's conclusion that NIMA will significantly improve imagery support to both military operations and planning, as well as to national consumers of intelligence.

The conferees note that limited collective bargaining would be permitted in NIMA. Collective bargaining units that were recognized by the Defense Mapping Agency at the time its employees and positions were transferred to NIMA would continue to represent the same categories of employees in the NIMA, although expansion of those units or the creation of new bargaining units in NIMA would be prohibited. Positions determined at any time to be engaged in intelligence, counterintelligence, investigative, or security work directly affecting national security would be excluded, at the discretion of the NIMA Director. Permitting continuation of limited collective bargaining in NIMA would not be intended to be a precedent affecting current or future employees or agencies of the Intelligence Community. It would be a one-time solution to a unique situation.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that strikes the authority for reserve component personnel participating in active duty training to stay in contract quarters.

The conferees believe that military personnel should use on-base transient lodging facilities when training or on temporary duty away from their home station. The conferees direct the Secretary of Defense to review the current policies and practices concerning use of on-base facilities and provision of contract lodging and to report the results of that review, including any recommended legislative changes, to the Committee on Armed of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives not later than March 31, 1997.

Reserve Forces Policy Board (sec. 1255)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1255) that would commend the Reserve Forces Policy Board for its good work as an independent body that provides advice to the Secretary of Defense on reserve component matters.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1054) that would correct references in title 10, United States Code, pertaining to the annual report of the Armed Forces Policy Board and specify that the annual report shall be a separate report transmitted to the Congress by the Secretary of Defense in conjunction with the Secretary's annual report.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would combine the two provisions.

Report on parity of benefits for active duty service and reserve service (sec. 1256)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1256) that would require the Secretary of Defense to submit a report to the Congress providing recommendations, where appropriate, to reduce disparities in pay and benefits that occur between active component members and reserve component members as a result of eligibility based on length of time on active duty.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Information on proposed funding for the Guard and Reserve components (sec. 1257)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1055) that would require the Secretary of Defense to specify, in each year of the Future-Years Defense Plan, the estimated expenditures and proposed appropriations for the procurement of equipment and for military construction for each of the Guard and Reserve components.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

TITLE XIII—ARMS CONTROL AND RELATED MATTERS

ITEMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Implementation of arms control agreements

The budget request included $282.3 million in procurement, operation and maintenance, and research and development in the defense and military service accounts for the implementation of arms control agreements. The budget request for these accounts is based on anticipated dates of implementation of the various arms control agreements and treaties.

The conferees agree to a $24.0 million reduction to the budget request due to changes in the anticipated dates of implementation of the various arms control agreements and treaties. The reductions are as follows: $14.0

million from the operation and maintenance account for the On-Site Inspection Agency (OSIA); $2.0 million from weapons procurement, Navy; $7.0 million from operation and maintenance, Army; and $1.0 million from operation and maintenance, Air Force.

The conferees agree that the Department of Defense shall keep the Congress informed on the status of the OSIA mission to implement Annex 1-B of the General Framework for Peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina Agreement (known as the Dayton Agreement), and any impact this mission may have on the ability of OSIA to conduct its other arms control inspection responsibilities.

Additionally, the conferees reiterate the concerns that were expressed in the statement of managers in the conference report accompanying the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106) with regard to limiting the expenditure of funds to provide reimbursement for arms control implementation inspection costs borne by the inspected party to a treaty or agreement. As expressed in the statement of managers, funds may only be expended if the Congress has been notified 30 days in advance of an agreement by the President to a policy or policy agreement, and that policy or policy agreement does not modify any obligation imposed by the arms control agreement. Currently, the Congress is aware of only two such policy agreements that would reimburse Belarus, Kazakhstan, and Ukraine for the costs of U.S. inspections conducted within those states. The conferees understand that those reimbursements occur on a six-month basis after the inspections have been conducted. Those policy agreements are with regard to the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces (INF) Treaty and the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty (START), concluded in May 1994 and February 1995.

Once again, the conferees express their concern that arms control consultative commissions are being used as a mechanism to make substantive changes or modifications to arms control treaties and agreements that should be brought to the Senate for its review and subsequent advice and consent. There may be very good reasons for changes in implementation of specific arms control treaties or agreements. However, if a change or modification to the treaty or agreement would result in a substantive change to the understanding under which the Senate provided its advice and consent prior to ratification, the Congress should be consulted about the recommended change or modification in advance of any agreement in the consultative commissions, and must provide its subsequent agreement to the change or modification.

The conferees support the ratification and full implementation by all parties of the Chemical Weapons Convention (CWC), as negotiated. However, the conferees remain concerned that Russia continues to engage in chemical weapons activities inconsistent with the accord. In addition, Iran, a signatory to the convention, has been characterized by one U.S. official as having "the most active chemical weapons program" in the Third World. Further, a number of states that possess active chemical weapons programs, such as Libya, are not signatories to the accord. For example, the Secretary of Defense and the Director of Central Intelligence have confirmed that Libya is engaged in the construction of an underground chemical weapons facility carved into a mountain near Tarhunah. This extensive project demonstrates the Libyan commitment to the acquisition of a significant chemical weapons capability and raises questions about the ability of arms control agreements like the CWC to restrain the rogue regimes from acquiring these types of weapons of terror.

With regard to the negotiations on a comprehensive test ban, many experts believe that a Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty (CTBT) is unlikely to be effectively verifiable. Countries intent on cheating could identify and implement evasive measures that would make it virtually impossible for U.S. sensors to detect low-yield tests. This thesis is given additional credibility by reports that the Russians may have recently conducted a nuclear test, in violation of their self-imposed moratorium, at Novaya Zemlya.

The conferees support the budget request for arms control implementation, which includes $26.7 million for research, development, test and evaluation of technologies to aid in the detection of nuclear tests. As discussed elsewhere in the statement of managers, the conferees recommend $6.5 million for basic research on seismic nuclear monitoring, which could be used to detect low-yield nuclear tests.

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS

Subtitle A—Arms Control, Counterproliferation Activities, and Related Matters

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Extension of counterproliferation authorities (sec. 1301)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1301) that would extend the authority of the Department of Defense to provide support to the United Nations Commission on Iraq (UNSCOM) through the end of fiscal year 1997.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 1043) that would extend the authority of the Department of Defense to provide support to UNSCOM through the end of fiscal year 1998.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would extend the authority of the Department of Defense to provide support to UNSCOM through the end of fiscal year 1997. Additionally, the conferees agree to a provision that would provide the Department with authority to exceed the levels authorized in fiscal year 1997 for DOD support to UNSCOM in the event of a significant unforeseen development. In that event, the Secretary of Defense would be required to notify the congressional defense committees in writing, prior to providing assistance that would exceed the levels authorized for DOD support. However, if the Secretary of Defense determines that prior notification of such action is not possible, he must notify the congressional defense committees of his actions no later than 15 days after the date the additional assistance was provided.

Limitation on retirement or dismantlement of strategic nuclear delivery systems (sec. 1302)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1302) that would prohibit the use of funds appropriated to the Department of Defense during fiscal year 1997 for retiring or dismantling any B-52H bombers, Trident ballistic missile submarines, Minuteman III intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs), or Peacekeeper ICBMs.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 1062) that would prohibit the use of funds during fiscal year 1997 for the retirement of B-52H bombers, Trident ballistic missile submarines, Minuteman III intercontinental ballistic missiles, or Peacekeeper intercontinental ballistic missiles, or preparing to retire or dismantle such systems. The provision would allow the Secretary of Defense to waive the funding restrictions on retiring or dismantling strategic nuclear delivery systems, other than for B-52H bombers, to the extent necessary to implement the START II Treaty.

The House recedes with an amendment that would limit the obligation of funds during fiscal year 1997 for early deactivation of U.S. strategic nuclear delivery systems until 30 days after the date on which the President submits to Congress a report concerning such actions. The conferees note that discussions have been held between the governments of the United States and the Russian Federation regarding an agreement on early deactivations of strategic nuclear weapons and/or strategic nuclear delivery systems, once the START II Treaty has entered into force. However, the conferees have not been given information about the substance of these discussions or negotiations.

In order to retain 94 B-52H aircraft in an operational status (28 in attrition reserve), the conferees recommend an increase of $42.9 million in Operation and Maintenance, Air Force. Of the amounts available in Aircraft procurement, Air Force, $42.7 million shall be available for B-52H aircraft modifications. Of the amounts available in Military Personnel, Air Force, $3.3 million shall be available for support of the 28 attrition reserve aircraft. In making these recommendations, the conferees do not intend to alter the Air Force's ongoing effort to consolidate B-52 squadrons. The conferees also do not intend to preclude long-range pre-planning, design, or evaluation efforts to allow the Navy and Air Force to be ready to execute various retirement and dismantlement options in an efficient manner.

Strengthening certain sanctions against nuclear proliferation activities (sec. 1303)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1085) that would authorize the President to impose Export-Import Bank sanctions against specific persons or entities that knowingly aid or abet countries to acquire nuclear weapons, or nuclear materials for such weapons, by amending the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 (12 U.S.C. 635(b)(4)).

The House bill contained no similar provision. The House recedes with a technical and clarifying amendment.

The global spread of nuclear weapons constitutes one of the gravest threats to the national security of the United States and that our friends and allies. The persistent and ever-changing nature of this threat, together with the numerous pathways available to countries to acquire these weapons, require both the Congress and the Executive Branch to ensure that the United States possesses tools, including necessary statutes, to combat this threat.

Current law requires the denial of Export-Import Bank credits: to finance goods destined to countries that violate safeguards or a U.S. nuclear agreement, to any non-nuclear weapon state that has detonated a nuclear weapon or device, and, to any country that has willfully aided or abetted a non-nuclear weapon state to acquire or develop a nuclear weapon.

In 1996, a Chinese government-owned entity transferred sensitive uranium enrichment technology to Pakistan. This action raised the possibility that several billion dollars of Export-Import Bank-financed credits for U.S. exports to China would be denied. However, the specific entity, the China Nuclear Energy Industry Corporation (CNEIC), escaped sanctions under current law because the administration judged that current law, which prescribes sanctions only against a "country" that willfully aids and abets proliferation, does not authorize sanctions against a person or entity, such as the CNEIC.

The conferees agree that enabling the President to target sanctions against specific proliferators that are not countries will provide important additional options to the President and thereby strengthen the U.S. ability to use sanctions as a tool to discourage future business with enterprises that knowingly promote the global spread of nuclear weapons and materials.

Authority to pay certain expenses relating to humanitarian and civic assistance for clearance of landmines (sec. 1304)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1006) that would allow funds appropriated to the overseas humanitarian, disaster, and civic assistance program to be used to pay for the travel, transportation, and subsistence expenses of Department of Defense personnel providing humanitarian demining assistance. The provision would also allow for the purchase of supplies, services, and equipment to be used in providing such assistance and the transfer of this equipment and supplies to a foreign country in furtherance of the Department's landmine clearance program. The cost of equipment and supplies transferred, or services hired to support Department of Defense humanitarian demining deployments, may not exceed $5.0 million in any given fiscal year.

The House bill contained a similar provision (sec. 1304).

The House recedes.

Report on military capabilities of People's Republic of China (sec. 1305)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1305) that would require an unclassified report and a classified report be submitted to Congress, no later than February 1, 1997, on the potential for, and likelihood of, the People's Liberation Army pursuing modernization of its military capabilities.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Presidential report regarding weapons proliferation and policies of the People's Republic of China (sec. 1306)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1048) that would express the concerns of the Congress with regard to the transfer by China to Pakistan of sophisticated equipment important to the development of nuclear weapons in Pakistan, China's compliance with nuclear proliferation regimes, and the decision of the United States not to impose sanctions against China for its transfers of equipment to Pakistan. The provision would express the sense of the Congress that the President should not have decided that the evidence of China's actions was not sufficient to warrant sanctions. The provision would also require the President to report to Congress on the administration's response to China's transfer of equipment to Pakistan, on specific information related to the justification for the President's determination not to enforce sanctions against China, and on subsequent actions taken by the United States to enforce compliance with non-proliferation and export control regimes.

The Senate had no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would express congressional concerns regarding China's transfer of assistance to Iran and Pakistan that could contribute to the manufacture of nuclear weapons; transfer of nuclear weapons technology and assistance, as well as the transfer of M-11 missiles, to Pakistan; and China's compliance with proliferation regimes such as the nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty and the Missile Technology Control Regime (MTCR). The provision would also require the President to submit a report to Congress within 60 days of enactment of this Act regarding the transfer of nuclear weapons technology and assistance, as well as their means of delivery, by China to Pakistan, subsequent actions taken by the President to express concern with China's compliance with nuclear proliferation regimes, and information related to the specific justification by the Secretary of State that there was no sufficient basis for imposing sanctions against China.

United States-People's Republic of China Joint Defense Conversion Commission (sec. 1307)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1306) that would prohibit obligation or expenditure of fiscal year 1997 funds for activities associated with the United States-People's Republic of China Joint Defense Conversion Commission until Congress receives reports required by section 1343 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106).

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Sense of the Congress concerning export control (sec. 1308)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1046) that would express the sense of the Senate that an international export control regime is critically important; that agreement on an international export control regime should be a top priority of the United States; that the United States should encourage the adoption by friends and allies of a commodity control list similar to the U.S. list; that enforcement activities should be strengthened; and, that the United States should use unilateral controls.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with a technical and clarifying amendment.

During the Cold War, the Coordinating Committee for Multilateral Export Controls (COCOM) regime assisted the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) in maintaining a qualitative military edge over the Warsaw Pact. However, in the post-Cold War era, while allies have a strong interest in coordinating exports, they have rejected efforts to implement restrictive procedures, such as those used in COCOM, to ensure the restriction of exports of militarily significant dual use technologies and commodities.

Dual-use technologies and commodities are civilian items which have military application; they are not munitions. The United States controls the export of its dual use technologies and commodities for national security, foreign policy, and short supply purposes. The legislative framework that controls the exports of these dual use items is the Export Administrative Act (EAA).

The world has changed dramatically since 1988 (the last time the Export Administration Act (EAA) was revised). COCOM coordinated NATO restrictions on exports of conventional weapons and related dual use goods to communist countries, but was disbanded in March 1994. To date, the administration's effort to negotiate an effective successor regime to COCOM, which would restrict exports to targeted countries (Iran, Iraq, Libya and North Korea) from former COCOM members and new members from neutral and eastern European countries, has failed.

Additionally, the Export Administration Act (EAA) expired in August 1994 and new legislation has not been adopted by Congress. Currently, the President's authority to control the export of dual use technologies is exercised under Executive Order 12938. Executive Order 12938 declared a national emergency with respect to the threat posed to U.S. national security by the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. Under this executive order the President can enforce most export controls on dual use technologies and commodities that would contribute to the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. The executive order, however does not provide full enforcement authority.

The capability to build weapons of mass destruction (WMD), including nuclear, chemical and biological weapons, and missiles to deliver WMD, is spreading. Without adequate export controls on sensitive dual use technologies and commodities, their export could enable an adversary to design, develop, test, produce, stockpile or use weapons of mass destruction, missile delivery systems, and other significant military capabilities.

The availability of sensitive military technologies to countries, without sufficient safeguards to ensure that these technologies cannot be transferred to a third country (which could be a rogue nation), remains a fundamental concern to the United States and should be eliminated through deterrence, negotiations, and other appropriate means.

Export controls remain part of a comprehensive approach that effectively responds to U.S. national security interests. The United States should continue to work with its friends and allies to negotiate an agreement to restrict exports of dual use technologies and commodities to foreign countries that threaten U.S. national security, nonproliferation, or foreign policy interests.

Sense of Congress concerning assisting other countries to improve security of fissile material (sec. 1310)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1054) that would express the sense of Congress that it is in the national interest of the United States to take actions to assist other countries in securing and accounting for plutonium and highly enriched uranium from dismantled nuclear weapons.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Review by Director of Central Intelligence of National Intelligence Estimate 95-19 (sec. 1311)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1308) that would direct the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI) to review the underlying assumptions and conclusions of the November, 1995, National Intelligence Estimate on "Emerging Missile Threats to North America During the Next 15 Years," to convene a panel of independent, non-governmental experts, and to report the panel's findings to Congress, along with the DCI's comments.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Subtitle B—Commission to Assess the Ballistic Missile Threat to the United States

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Commission to assess the ballistic missile threat to the United States (secs. 1321-1329)

The House bill contained provisions (secs. 1321-1329) that would establish a commission to be known as the "Commission to Assess the Ballistic Missile Threat to the United States." The commission's members would be private citizens with knowledge and expertise in the political and military aspects of proliferation of ballistic missiles and the ballistic missile threat to the United States, and would have access to the resources and information of the intelligence community necessary to carry out their responsibilities. The commission would consist of nine members appointed by the Director of Central Intelligence. Consistent with the consultative nature of the appointment process used by the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission (Public Law 101-510), three members would be chosen in consultation with the Speaker of the House of Representatives, three members would be chosen in consultation with the Majority Leader of the Senate, and three members would be chosen in consultation with the minority leaders of the House and Senate.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Certification required before observance of moratorium on use by armed forces of antipersonnel landmines

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1303) that would require the Secretary of Defense, after consultation with the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to certify to Congress that a moratorium on the use of antipersonnel landmines would not adversely affect the ability of U.S. armed forces to defend against attack and that effective substitutes for antipersonnel landmines exist, prior to implementation of such a moratorium.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with the understanding that further legislation on a landmine moratorium will not be introduced or enacted in the remainder of this Congress.

The conferees support efforts to minimize and eliminate post-combat civilian casualties, and note that the United States has been the global leader in working toward this objective. U.S. military forces use non-self-destructing landmines only along internationally recognized borders or in demilitarized zones within perimeter-marked areas that are monitored by military personnel and protected by adequate means to ensure the exclusion of civilians.

The conferees note the announcement by the President on May 16, 1996, regarding U.S. military use of antipersonnel landmines, that is, to cease immediately the use of non-self-destructing landmines, except for training purposes and deployment along the demilitarized zone in Korea; and, with regard to self-destructing antipersonnel landmines, a commitment to cease the use of self-destructing antipersonnel landmines, when an international agreement is reached, with exceptions for training and in Korea.

TITLE XIV—DEFENSE AGAINST WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION

Cooperative threat reduction (CTR) program, domestic emergency assistance programs and programs for the defense against weapons of mass destruction (secs. 1401-1505)

The House bill contained provisions (sec. 1101-1105) that would: authorize $302.9 million for the Cooperative Threat Reduction (CTR) program, a $25.0 million reduction to the budget request; would specify CTR programs; allocate fiscal year 1997 funding for the various CTR programs and activities; prohibit the use of CTR funds for specific purposes; prohibit the obligation of CTR funds until various reports are submitted to Congress; and make fiscal year 1997 CTR funds available for three fiscal years. Additionally, the House report (H. Rept. 104-563) encouraged the Secretary of Defense to report to the Congress by September 30, 1996, an assessment of the advisability of the Department of Defense's establishing a program for enhancing the capability of the Department to assist law enforcement agencies in responding to terrorism or natural disasters involving chemical or biological agents and recommended an increase of $12.0 million in PE 65160D to preserve the option of initiating such a program in fiscal year 1997.

The Senate amendment would fully fund the budget request for CTR at $327.9 million. In addition, the Senate amendment contained provisions (secs. 1301-1356) that would increase the overall budget request for defense operation and maintenance by $150.0 million, and add $85.0 million to the budget request for the Department of Energy to establish a comprehensive program to improve U.S. capabilities to deal with the use, or threatened use, of weapons of mass destruction. In that regard, the amendment would expand the scope of the DOD CTR program and the DOE arms control and materials, protection, control and accountability programs to include additional activities, especially assistance to the independent states of the former Soviet Union. Of the $235.0 million budget increase for DOD and DOE, $80.0 million would be authorized for the establishment of a DOD and DOE domestic emergency assistance program; $59.0 would be authorized for domestic and international border security assistance DOD CTR and DOE materials, protection, control and accountability activities would be increased by $94.0 million; and $2.0 million would be authorized for research activities of the proliferation coordinator.

Additionally, the provision would provide the President with more specific authorities than exist under current law by authorizing the limited use of U.S. military forces to assist the Department of Justice in domestic emergency situations involving the terrorist use of WMD and by amending the International Emergency Economic Powers Act.

The House recedes with an amendment to the Senate provisions.

The Senate recedes with an amendment to the House provisions.

Since the end of the Cold War, materials and technologies related to weapons of mass destruction—nuclear, radiological, chemical, and biological weapons—have become increasingly more available to rogue states, terrorist groups, and unstable individuals. Controls over nuclear materials in the former Soviet Union continue to require significant improvement. Easy access to dual-use materials and technologies to fabricate chemical and biological weapons make the proliferation of these weapons arguably the most urgent and serious threat the United States faces today.

The United States government must improve and make comprehensive the way it addresses this threat. To this end, the conferees agree to a series of provisions that address all aspects of the threat of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. The conferees agree to recommend an additional $201.0 million to the budget to address this issue. These increased funds would: increase the budget request for the Cooperative Threat Reduction (CTR) program by $37.0 million; authorize a $10.0 million increase to the budget request for the counterproliferation support program; authorize $30.0 million for U.S. and international border security activities; add $65.0 million for the establishment of a domestic emergency response program; and add $57.0 for DOE materials, protection, control and accountability.

Domestic Preparedness

Enhancing the nation's ability to prevent, and, if necessary, to respond to a terrorist incident involving nuclear, radiological, chemical, or biological weapons or materials is the cornerstone of this program. The conferees note that an interagency group, composed of the Federal Response Plan signatory agencies led by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) completed and forwarded to the President on July 1, 1996, a report titled "Consequences Management for Nuclear, Biological, and Chemical (NBC) Terrorism." The report documents the inadequacy of the Federal Response Plan to deal with NBC terrorist incidents and makes specific recommendations regarding capability enhancements. The conferees agree to a provision (sec. 1411) that would require the President to take immediate action to enhance the capability of the Federal Government to respond to such incidents and to provide enhanced support to improve the capabilities of State and local emergency response and law enforcement agencies to respond to such incidents. The provision would further require the President to provide to the Congress by January 31, 1997, a report containing an assessment of such capabilities, improvements required, and measures that should be taken to achieve such improvements, including additional resources and legislative authority that might be necessary.

The conferees agree to recommend $50.0 million for the establishment of a domestic emergency assistance program for the Department of Defense to immediately begin sharing its unique expertise, experience, and equipment in dealing with chemical and biological weapons and materials with local emergency first respondents (firemen, policemen, and medical workers).

The conferees expect that the Secretary of Defense will work expeditiously with the Secretary of Health and Human Services in providing DOD resources and expertise to the Office of Emergency Preparedness for the formation of emergency medical teams that are trained and equipped to handle incidents involving weapons of mass destruction.

The conferees agree to provide $15.0 million for DOD to conduct interagency exercises that will focus on testing and improving the U.S. Government's ability to respond to incidents involving weapons of mass destruction.

The conferees have agreed to an additional provision (sec. 1414) that would require DOD to establish at least one Chemical-Biological Emergency Response Team for rapid response to domestic terrorism. The conferees expect that such teams would be similar in concept to the Nuclear Emergency Search Team and Accident Response Groups that are maintained by DOE for response to a nuclear incident. The conferees note in the joint DOD/DOE report to the Congress, "Preparedness and Response to a Nuclear, Radiological, Biological, or Chemical Terrorist Attack," dated June 13, 1996, that the DOD is attempting to establish such a capability. The conferees note that many of the capabilities sought for such teams are already present in the Army's Technical Escort Unit, Edgewood Research, Development, and Engineering Center, and Chemical Defense and Infectious Disease Medical Research Institutes. The conferees also note the Counterproliferation Program Review Committee's "Report on Activities and Programs for Countering Proliferation", dated May 1996, which states that U.S. Marine Forces, Atlantic was scheduled to activate a Department of the Navy/Marine Corps Chemical/Biological Incident Response Force on June 1, 1996, to respond to chemical and biological incidents (terrorist or otherwise) occurring on Naval installations and Department of State legations worldwide. The conferees understand that the unit has been activated and is now in training.

In section 1416, the conferees agree to provide authority, very narrowly defined and carefully constructed, for the President and the Attorney General to request military support to local authorities in incidents involving chemical and biological weapons. This authority is in addition to the authorities otherwise provided in Chapter 18 of title 10, U.S. Code. The conferees agree that the use of the military in any emergency situation involving biological or chemical weapons or materials should be limited both in time and scope to dealing with the specific chemical or biological weapons-related incident.

Finally, the conferees have included a provision (sec. 1417) that would require Federal Response Plan agencies to develop and maintain an inventory of equipment and other assets that could be made available to aid State and local officials in search and rescue and other disaster management and mitigation efforts associated with an emergency involving weapons of mass destruction, and would require FEMA to maintain a comprehensive master list of the inventory. The provision would also require FEMA to establish a data base on chemical and biological agent and munitions characteristics and safety precautions and to develop a system to provide federal, State, and local officials access to the data base and to the master inventory.

Interdiction of weapons of mass destruction and related materials

This section focuses attention on enhancing our efforts at interdicting and detecting nuclear, radiological, chemical, and biological weapons and related materials, the next step of protecting the United States against the threat posed by the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. The conferees agree to recommend $15.0 million for the DOD to assist the U.S. Customs Service in interdicting these materials before they enter the United States.

As mentioned above, the conferees also agree to an increase of $10.0 million to the DOD counterproliferation support program and an increase of $17.0 million to the DOE nonproliferation and verification research and development program to conduct research and development of technical means for detecting the presence, transportation, production, and use of weapons of mass destruction and related materials and technologies.

Additionally, the conferees agree to provisions that would amend the International Emergency Economic Powers Act to provide penalties to cover attempts to import or export weapons of mass destruction and related materials, and would express the sense of the Congress that criminal penalties for proliferation-related activities should be increased.

Finally, the conferees agree to recommend $15.0 million for DOD training and assistance to customs services and border guards in the former Soviet Union, the Baltic states, and Eastern Europe in detecting and interdicting the smuggling of weapons of mass destruction and related materials. This program is intended to be separate and distinct from the existing DOD/FBI counterproliferation assistance program, which focuses largely on training law enforcement officials in the interdiction of these materials. The conferees believe that law enforcement and Customs agents, and border guards, must be familiar with proliferation issues if any counterproliferation effort is to be viable. While there may be some beneficial overlap between the DOD/FBI effort and the DOD/Customs program envisioned in this legislation, it is the view of the conferees that the most effective way to reach and establish productive relations is through expanding relations between analogous counterparts. The conferees expect the Secretary of Defense to make DOD equipment and related materials and technologies available to the Commissioner of Customs for use in detecting and interdicting the movement of weapons of mass destruction into the United States to the extent authorized under existing law. The Secretary of Defense and the U.S. Customs Commissioner shall provide to Congress a joint report on the scope and impact of this program and an inventory of items provided under this authority. This report should also include the extent to which it will interface with the DoD/FBI effort.

Control and disposition of weapons of mass destruction and related materials threatening the United States

With regard to the DOD budget request for the CTR program and the DOE budget request for materials, protection, control and accountability, the conferees agree to recommend authority for a variety of programs that focus on assisting the states of the former Soviet Union to better control and/or eliminate their stockpiles of weapons of mass destruction and related materials. Programs include: $15.0 million for DOE MPC&A activity; $10.0 million for DOD MPC&A activity; $10.0 million for a DOE program to develop technologies associated with improving the verification of nuclear warhead dismantlement; $15.0 million for DOD activities related to the dismantlement of chemical and biological weapons-related facilities; $9.0 million for DOE's Lab-to-Lab program; and $6.0 million for DOE to work with the Russian government in enhancing the security of fissile material used for the propulsion of Russian military and civilian ships.

It is the view of the conferees that both DOE and DOD should seek to expand these activities in the former Soviet Union beyond nuclear activities in Russia, Ukraine, Kazakhstan, and Belarus. While programs to date have appropriately focused on the most pressing strategic concerns, critical work remains to be done in combating the threat of proliferation at a variety of sites in the other states of the former Soviet Union where nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons-related materials and technologies continue to be vulnerable to proliferation.

The conferees agree to transfer $10.0 million in DOD funds to DOE for activities related to the conversion of several Russian nuclear core reactors so they no longer produce weapons-grade plutonium. It is the view of the conferees that the Secretary of Defense should transfer these funds to the Secretary of Energy expeditiously so that the Department of Energy can continue to move forward on this program.

Coordination of policy and countermeasures against proliferation of weapons of mass destruction

The conferees agree that the nation's overall coordination of policy, efforts, and activities addressing the threat posed by the increasing availability of nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons, materials, and technology must be improved. The conferees agree to a provision that would direct the appointment by the President of a national coordinator on proliferation within the Executive Office of the President, to advise the President on nonproliferation and related issues regarding terrorism and international organized crime. The provision would establish a committee on nonproliferation, to be chaired by the coordinator, and composed of members of the Executive Branch who have responsibilities for crisis and consequence management, nonproliferation, and related issues. This committee will review and coordinate programs, policies, and directives related to the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and the threat they pose to our national security. The conference agreement also requires the President, through the committee on nonproliferation, to submit a comprehensive report for carrying out this amendment.

TITLE XV—COOPERATIVE THREAT REDUCTION WITH STATES OF FORMER SOVIET UNION

TITLE XVI—DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE CIVILIAN PERSONNEL

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS

Subtitle A—Miscellaneous Matters Relating to Personnel Management, Pay, and Allowances

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Modification of requirement for conversion of military positions to civilian positions (sec. 1601)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1101) that would repeal the portion of section 1032 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 that would require the Secretary of Defense to convert 7,000 military positions to civilian positions during fiscal year 1997.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would repeal the requirement for the conversion of 7,000 military positions to civilian positions during fiscal year 1997, contingent on the Secretary of Defense's having certified to the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate and the Committee on National Security of the House of Representatives that the Department of Defense has completed the conversion of 3,000 military positions to civilian positions during fiscal year 1996, as required by section 1032 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996.

The certification shall include: (1) a description of the types and grades of positions converted; (2) the distribution of converted positions across the services and defense agencies; (3) the extent to which any military positions converted to civilian positions were vacant when converted; (4) the extent to which any newly-converted civilian positions remain vacant; (5) an analysis of the follow-on assignment of those military personnel whose positions were converted to civilian positions; (6) a discussion of any costs associated with the required conversion; and (7) the effect on operational readiness, if any, caused by the required conversion.

Retention of civilian employee positions at military training bases transferred to national guard (sec. 1602)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 368) that would require the Secretary of Defense to retain civilian employee positions at installations being transferred to the National Guard during fiscal year 1997 to provide transitional support to active and reserve component training missions on the installations.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1102) that, while similar, did not specify that the transfer of an installation to the National Guard had to occur in 1997 in order for the provision to have effect.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would retain the directive nature of the House provision while eliminating the requirement that transfers occur in 1997.

Clarification of applicability of certain management constraints on major range and test facility base structure (sec. 1603)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 508) that would clarify that major range and test facility base activities are covered by certain limitations on the use of end strengths or other personnel management caps that are used to reduce personnel levels or restrict funding for Federal employees. The provision would also clarify that funding available to major range and test facility base activities includes both direct appropriated funds and funds provided by major range and test facility customers.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Travel expenses and health care for civilian employees of the Department of Defense abroad (sec. 1604)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1104) that would authorize the Secretary of Defense, under certain circumstances, to pay allowances and benefits to civilian personnel serving overseas comparable to those paid to members of other government agencies that routinely assign personnel overseas.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Travel, transportation, and relocation allowances for certain former nonappropriated fund employees (sec. 1605)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1105) that would authorize a non-appropriated fund employee to receive the same travel, transportation, and relocation expenses authorized for appropriated fund employees.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Employment and salary practices applicable to Department of Defense overseas teachers (sec. 1606)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1106) that would permit the Secretary of Defense to reclassify General Schedule professional educator positions as "overseas teachers" compensable under the Overseas Teacher Pay and Personnel Act.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Employment and compensation of civilian faculty members at certain Department of Defense schools (sec. 1607)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1107) that would authorize the Asia-Pacific Center for Security Studies and the English Language Center of the Defense Language Institute to employ and compensate the civilian faculty, including the Director and Deputy Director of the Asia-Pacific Center, in the same manner as the George C. Marshall European Center for Security Studies and other Department of Defense education facilities.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Reimbursement of Department of Defense domestic dependent school board members for certain expenses (sec. 1608)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1108) that would authorize Department of Defense domestic dependent school board members to be reimbursed for travel and transportation expenses, program fees, and activity fees that the Secretary of Defense determines reasonable and necessary in the performance of their duties.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would include lodging expenses among those expenses for which domestic dependent school board members could be reimbursed.

Modification of authority for civilian employees of Department of Defense to participate voluntarily in reductions in force (sec. 1609)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 336) that would extend until September 30, 2001, the authority to allow employees who are not affected by a reduction-in-force (RIF) to volunteer to be RIF-separated in place of other employees who are scheduled for RIF separation.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 1109).

The conference agreement includes this provision.

Wage-board compensatory time off (sec. 1610)

The house bill contained a provision (sec. 333) that would provide federal managers of wage-board employees the same flexibility to use compensatory time off afforded federal managers of general schedule employees, by authorizing agency heads to grant compensatory time off in lieu of overtime pay under certain circumstances.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 1110).

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would preclude agency heads from directly or indirectly forcing employees to accept compensatory time off in lieu of pay for overtime work.

Liquidation of restored annual leave that remains unused upon transfer of employee from installation being closed or realigned (sec. 1611)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1111) that would require, under certain circumstances, automatic liquidation of annual leave restored under section 6304(d) of title 5, United States Code.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Waiver of requirement for repayment of voluntary separation incentive pay by former Department of Defense employees reemployed by the Government without pay (sec. 1612)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 332) that would allow civilian employees who have previously received separation or incentive pay to leave federal employment to volunteer for government service without the loss of their separation or incentive pay.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 1112).

The conference agreement includes this provision.

Simplification of rules relating to the observance of certain holidays (sec. 1613)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 334) that would allow the head of an agency within the Department of Defense to change the Federal day off from Monday to an alternative day for those employees who would normally have Monday off under a compressed work schedule.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 1113).

The Senate recedes.

The conferees intend that when a Federal holiday falls on a Monday and that day is a day off for certain employees, that those employees will receive the next normal work day off. The conferees do not intend that this authority would be used to disrupt what would have been an extended weekend break by forcing employees to take a mid-week day off.

Revision of certain travel management authorities (sec. 1614)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 331) that would provide Department of Defense (DOD) civilian personnel with the flexibility to make more efficient lodging decisions based on overall mission requirements by considering overall travel costs.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1114) that would repeal a reporting requirement and repeal the prohibition on paying lodging expenses to DOD civilian employees who do not use adequate government quarters when they are available.

The House recedes.

The conferees believe that these and other provisions related to travel reform can assist the DOD in its ongoing efforts to simplify the travel management system and, in doing so, improve efficiency and reduce costs associated with official travel.

The conferees note, however, that the success or failure of travel management initiatives will not depend on the relaxation of the many detailed rules and regulations which have governed travel management over the years. Rather, the success or failure will be a direct reflection of the courage and discipline with which executives and supervisors at every level approach their individual responsibilities in overseeing their own official travel and lodging decisions and those of their subordinates. Official travel is not a prerequisite of position to be exploited. Individual responsibility and the effective stewardship of official travel funds must be institutionalized as fundamental management principles at all levels.

Failure to comply with veterans' preference requirements to be treated as a prohibited personnel practice (sec. 1615)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1047) that would make failure to take, recommend or approve any personnel action involving a veteran's preference a prohibited personnel practice.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with a clarifying amendment.

Pilot programs for defense employees converted to contractor employees due to privatization at closed military installations (sec. 1616)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 1121) that would permit certain federal workers who accept employment with a contractor in conjunction with a privatization initiative, referred to as "transferred" employees, to continue to accrue years of federal service for the purpose of determining eligibility for federal retirement, but not for determining the amount of the employees retirement benefit.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment clarifying that the facility must have been recommended for privatization in place by the Base Realignment and Closure Commission.

Subtitle B—Department of Defense Intelligence Personnel Policy

Department of Defense intelligence personnel policy (secs. 1631–1635)

The Senate amendment contained several provisions (sec. 1131–1134) that would provide new personnel management authorities to the Secretary of Defense for managing the civilian personnel in the DOD intelligence community.

These provisions would authorize the Secretary of Defense to: 1) establish Senior Executive Service (SES) positions in the intelligence community without regard to individual service or agency caps while retaining the overall DOD cap; 2) establish senior-level positions in the intelligence community to provide upward mobility for individuals whose career patterns and areas of expertise do not afford or require the management experience required of an SES; 3) establish term-limited non-competitive positions for periods of up to two years to permit the rapid expansion or contraction of portions of the workforce to meet evolving needs; 4) terminate the employment of a member of the intelligence community in the interests of the United States; 5) adjust the size, quality and skill mix of the intelligence community workforce by allowing greater weight to be given to performance and skill than is currently possible under existing reduction-in-force rules.

The Senate amendment also contained several provisions (secs. 921, 924, and 925) that would provide personnel management authorities to the Secretary of Defense for managing the civilian personnel in the National Imagery and Mapping Agency that are consistent with other authorities affecting the defense intelligence community.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would consolidate those provisions addressing the management of civilian personnel of the defense intelligence community including those assigned to the National Imagery and Mapping Agency.

The conferees intend that the section concerning time-limited appointments be used for non-competitive appointments to meet crisis or surge requirements. The conferees do not intend to limit the temporary limited appointment or "not-to exceed" authorities currently in effect.

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS NOT ADOPTED

Phased retirement

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 335) that would authorize the Department of Defense to establish a pilot program to encourage some civilians to retire in stages by changing current annuity offset rules.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

TITLE XVII—FEDERAL EMPLOYEE TRAVEL REFORM

Federal Employee Travel Reform (secs. 1701–1725)

The Senate amendment contained several provisions (secs. 1401–1434) that would reform federal travel policy to provide employees who transfer in the interest of the government more effective and efficient delivery of relocation services, alleviate administrative burdens associated with travel and employee relocations, and reduce travel and relocation costs.

These provisions are the product of the Joint Financial Management Improvement Program: a multi-agency task force that includes the Office of Management and Budget; the General Accounting Office; the Department of the Treasury; and the Office of Personnel Management. The provisions would: (1) provide authority to offer employees a choice of methods of reimbursement for house-hunting trips and reimbursement for subsistence expenses when lodged in temporary quarters; (2) establish a cap on reimbursement of residence transaction expenses based on a percentage of the price of a home; (3) provide authority for reimbursement for property management services expenses; (4) authorize the transportation of an employee's privately owned vehicle within the continental United States under certain circumstances; and (5) authorize the use of home marketing incentives and other streamlining initiatives.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The conferees recognize that the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight of the House of Representatives has been active in seeking reform of federal travel processes and has developed separate legislation that incorporates many of the provisions in the conference agreement. In the legislation being considered by the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight of the House of Representatives, there are significant new measures that warrant further attention and review. One such provision would require the use of the government-wide travel charge card program. The conferees urge that executive branch agencies, when appropriate, use their discretionary authority to maximize the use of the travel charge card in order to maximize the rebate the government receives for the purchases of travel and travel related services.

TITLE XVIII—FEDERAL CHARTER FOR THE FLEET RESERVE ASSOCIATION

Federal Charter for the Fleet Reserve Association (secs. 1801–1816)

The Senate amendment contained provisions (sec. 1201–1216) that would establish a Federal charter for the Fleet Reserve Association.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House bill recedes with a technical amendment.

DIVISION B—MILITARY CONSTRUCTION AUTHORIZATIONS

Overview

The budget request for fiscal year 1997 included $9,132,311,000 for military construction and family housing.

The House bill would authorize $10,032,311,000 for military construction and family housing.

The Senate amendment would provide $9,832,711,000 for this purpose.

The conferees recommend authorization of appropriations of $9,982,311,000 for military construction and family housing, including general reductions and termination of prior year projects.

The conferees are deeply concerned about the condition of the military infrastructure and troubled by the shortfalls evident in the administration's budget request for fiscal year 1997 for military construction and military family housing programs. The conferees note that the construction and modernization of facilities and their upkeep and maintenance are a critical component of military readiness, which has been under funded in recent years. The conferees are also mindful of the serious deficiencies in facilities designed to support the quality of life of military personnel and their families.

From an operational and readiness perspective, shortfalls in the construction and repair and maintenance accounts have exacerbated problems in the facilities infrastructure. Needed improvements to basic infrastructure have often been deferred, leading to the creation of a steep backlog in facilities, construction and maintenance. For example, approximately 20 percent of the Army's facilities are unsuitable, either due to deteriorated conditions or they are unable to meet mission requirements. Additionally, the Army lacks 30 percent of the facilities required to meet specific mission requirements, making due with work-arounds that impair efficiency. To cite another example, over two-thirds of the Navy's piers were constructed during the second World War. According to the Navy's estimates, by the year 2010, only 20 percent of existing piers and wharves would adequately be able to service the fleet.

The condition of military housing for families and unaccompanied personnel and other quality of life infrastructure is in a similar state of deterioration. According to the Defense Science Board Task Force on Quality of Life, 62 percent of barracks and dormitories are currently unsuitable and 64 percent of family housing units are in the same condition. In spite of these serious deficiencies, that administration's budget request fails to keep pace with current levels of funding to support the construction of barracks and dormitories. The budget request for fiscal year 1997 further proposes to reduce sharply the expenditure of funds on new construction of military family housing and improvements to existing family housing units. The administration also proposes to reduce funding for basic maintenance of family housing.

The conferees believe the administration's budget request for military construction and military family housing programs for fiscal year 1997, which is $1.56 billion below the fiscal year 1996 request, is seriously underfunded. The conferees recommend an increase in new budget authority for these programs of $850,000,000. Approximately 60 percent of that amount is dedicated to a major quality of life initiative. The conferees recommend an additional $200,816,000 for the construction of new barracks and dormitories and an additional $266,170,000 for the construction of military family housing and improvements to existing family housing units. The conferees also recommend an additional $30,410,000 for the construction of child development centers. The conferees reiterate their support for the military housing privatization initiative authorized in section 2801 of the Military Construction Authorization Act of Fiscal Year 1996 (division B of Public Law 104-106) and recommend an additional $10,000,000 to support both the family housing and unaccompanied housing privatization initiatives.

The conferees remain concerned about the instability in funding for the military construction and military family housing programs contemplated by the current Future Years Defense Plan. The conferees believe the serious backlog of military construction requirements can no longer be deferred. The conferees urge the Secretary of Defense to address the need to reduce the backlog of military construction requirements affecting the operational needs of the military departments and to enhance those programs that directly support improvements in the quality of life for military personnel and their families.

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS

Subtitle A—National Security Programs
Authorizations

Weapons Activities (sec. 3101)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3101) that would authorize $3,935.0 million for Department of Energy (DOE) weapons activities.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 3101) that would authorize $3,949.0 million for Department of Energy weapons activities.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would authorize $3,918.0 million for weapons activities, an increase of $208.0 million above the requested amount, for the following activities: $1,661.8 million for stockpile stewardship activities; $1,962.8 million for stockpile management activities; $313.4 million for program direction. The authorization includes an undistributed reduction of $20.0 million to be offset by the availability of prior year funds that have not been obligated, or if obligated, have not been expended and would not be needed for the projects that were the basis for obligation.

In balancing the stockpile stewardship and stockpile management programs, the conferees continue to be concerned that the Department is placing an undue reliance on the long-term, unproven science-based stockpile stewardship program at the expense of modernizing the more traditional production, engineering, and surveillance approaches needed to maintain stockpile safety and reliability over the next ten to fifteen years. The conferees direct the Department to seek an appropriate balance between the two approaches to ensure that the United States can maintain the safety, effectiveness, and reliability of its nuclear stockpile.

Of the amount made available for technology transfer and education, the conferees recommend $13.0 million for the American Textiles Partnership project.

In the stockpile management program, the conferees believe that the United States must maintain viable weapons manufacturing capabilities and capacities to rebuild aging weapons and to retain the ability to reconstitute, if necessary, its nuclear forces, consistent with U.S. treaty obligations. In this regard, the conferees are concerned that the underlying rationale of the Department's Draft Programmatic Environmental Impact Statement for Stockpile Stewardship and Management could negatively impact production capabilities and capacities by needlessly downsizing the production plants (Y-12, Pantex, Kansas City, and Savannah River Site) and stripping those facilities of unique skills and expertise. The conferees also raised additional concerns regarding the Department's phased approach to restore tritium production elsewhere in this bill.

Of the amounts made available for stockpile management activities, the conferees authorize an additional $90.0 million for the four weapons production plants to begin a long-term modernization and upgrade programs; an additional $60.0 million for tritium production; an additional $5.0 million for a surety program to improve waste minimization efforts in the new stockpile management modernization program; an additional $6.0 million for tritium recycling plant upgrades; and an additional $3.0 million for planning and construction of a tritium extraction facility.

Weapons activities program direction is authorized at $313.4 million, a reduction of $21.0 million. The conferees direct that this decrease be used to continue reductions in Federal employee staffing, foreign and domestic travel, and non-technical support service contracts. The conferees direct that reductions to the Federal workforce at DOE headquarters and the non-technical contract support services workforce at DOE headquarters be balanced. Further, the conferees direct the Secretary of Energy to submit a report to Congress identifying the frequency, destination, and cost of foreign travel funded by the Department through grants, cooperative agreements, and subcontracts.

The conferees note that the report required by section 3160 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal year 1996 has not been provided to the congressional defense committees. The conferees direct the Secretary to provide the required report not later than February 1, 1997. The conferees further require that the report include information relating to past instances in which safety or reliability issues in the stockpile have resulted in a requirement to conduct nuclear tests at yields above hydronuclear yields. The described data shall include the types of problems identified, the solutions to those problems, the type of nuclear test deemed necessary to assure the resolution of each problem, and the element of the stockpile stewardship program being undertaken as a substitute for testing that could provide the analytical capacity to understand, monitor, and make judgements regarding the impact such a problem or problems would have on the reliability of the stockpile. For each such instance, the report should indicate the methods that were available to address the identified problem which did not rely on nuclear testing, and the confidence the Department could have expected from those methods.

The conferees direct the Secretary to update the Warhead Master Plan report required under Section 3153 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106) on a biennial basis and to inform the congressional defense committees of noteworthy changes in the plan.

Environmental restoration and waste management (sec. 3102)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3102) that would authorize funds for Department of Energy (DOE) defense environmental restoration and waste management activities for fiscal year 1997 at $5,409.3 million, the level of the budget request.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3102) that would authorize $5,607.3 million for DOE defense environmental restoration and waste management activities for fiscal year 1997.

The conferees agree to provide $5,509.3 for DOE defense environmental restoration and waste management activities for fiscal year 1997 for the following activities: $1,762.1 million for environmental restoration; $1,578.6 million for waste management; $1,291.2 million for nuclear material and facility stabilization; $411.5 million for program direction; $303.7 million for technology development; $23.1 million for policy and management; $62.1 million for the environmental science program; $185.0 million for privatization; and $50.0 million for closure-acceleration activities. The conferees recommend approval of the Department's request for a reduction of $150.4 million for prior year balances and an $8.0 million offset for the Savannah River Site Pension Refund.

Of the funds authorized to be appropriated under section 3102(b), the conferees recommend: an additional $15.0 million to accelerate Defense Waste Processing Facility operations and associated high-level waste treatment; an additional $20.0 million for a one-time payment to the State of New Mexico pursuant to a provision contained elsewhere in this bill; and an additional $7.0 million for the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant to make preparations for receipt of waste shipments.

Of the funds authorized to be appropriated under section 3102(c), the conferees recommend an additional $43.0 million for nuclear material stabilization operations at the F- and H-canyon facilities and an additional $15.0 million for the National Spent Nuclear Fuel Program.

To provide additional resources for clean-up, the conferees recommend reducing the budget request for the office of policy and management (sec. 3102(f)) by $25.0 million. This reduction would result in an authorization for this subaccount that is comparable to that authorized and appropriated in fiscal year 1996. Approximately $4.0 to $7.0 million of this reduction would be derived by eliminating the requirement to submit to Congress, on an annual basis, the baseline environmental management report as required by the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1994 (Public Law 103-360). The conferees recommend elsewhere in this title that the annual reporting requirement be converted to a biennial requirement.

The conferees recommend a reduction to the budget request for program direction (sec. 3102(d)) of $35.0 million. The conferees direct that the Department absorb this funding reduction by reducing the number of Federal employees assigned to the Department's headquarters, by reducing administrative overhead and travel expenses at DOE headquarters, and by reducing non-technical contract support services at DOE headquarters. The conferees direct that reductions to the Federal workforce at DOE headquarters and the non-technical contract support services workforce at DOE headquarters be balanced. The conferees encourage the Department to examine options for moving programmatic functions that currently reside at DOE headquarters to Department field offices. Further, the conferees direct the Secretary of Energy to submit a report to the congressional defense committees identifying the frequency, destination, and cost of foreign and domestic travel funded by the Department through grants, cooperative agreements, and subcontracts.

The conferees decline to accept the recommendation to create a separate budget account for the office of site operations. The conferees appreciate the role of this new office and have no objection to this activity being performed within the office of nuclear materials and facilities stabilization. The conferees recommend funding the construction projects associated with the office of site operations under the budget function for the office of nuclear materials and facilities stabilization. All of these projects have been funded in the past under the latter office's budget function.

The conferees encourage the Department to continue implementation of a viable stakeholder involvement program, such as site specific advisory boards and other public participation initiatives, at a level of activity equivalent to that in fiscal year 1996. As with section 3153, in which the conferees establish a requirement to develop future use plans, the conferees believe strongly that public participation is critical to the development of public trust and acceptance of cleanup plans and programs, and that the public can be an effective partner in helping the Department accelerate cleanup schedules and thereby reduce long-term cleanup costs. The conferees, therefore, urge the Secretary to work to preserve resources for public participation in DOE cleanup activities.

The conferees recommend the creation of a new initiative to be managed by the Assistant Secretary for Environmental Management to accelerate the closure of facilities or significantly reduce out year mortgage costs associated with management of radioactive and other hazardous materials. In doing so, the conferees direct that increased funding be applied to those sites in the field where actual remediation occurs. The conferees recommend that resources be applied to sites such as Rocky Flats, Hanford, Oak Ridge, Savannah River, and Idaho, where additional funding could be used to reduce life-cycle costs significantly through acceleration of existing activities, initiation of cost reducing deactivation and decommissioning activities, and the application of innovative cleanup technologies. Criteria for selection of projects under this closure acceleration program are contained elsewhere in this title.

The conferees recommend funding to establish a privatization program for the treatment of high and low level wastes at the Hanford facility. The conferees direct that the Department provide a report to the congressional defense committees no later than December 31, 1996, on the projected cost savings, the extent of commercial competition and participation in this initiative, and a recommendation on changes that should be made to Federal procurement regulations to make the program more effective.

The conferees encourage the Department to explore all available options, including alternative allocation processes, use of prior year balances, and other means, to ensure that fiscal year 1997 funding for the Hanford privatization program does not serve to slow the pace of cleanup at Hanford.

The conferees are aware that the Department will soon select a new lead contractor for the Hanford facility. New contract provisions should result in cost savings at this site. The conferees strongly encourage the Department, to the maximum extent possible, to allocate those savings that result from the new management contract to the privatization program discussed earlier. This approach should help to diminish any potential negative budgetary impacts resulting from the creation of the privatization fund in fiscal year 1997 and should eliminate any negative impact on current cleanup activities at the Hanford facility. Creation of a privatization fund is not intended to interfere with or impede on-going critical stabilization, maintenance, and cleanup operations at this site.

Finally, the conferees have been advised that a small number of current and former employees at the Hanford facility have failed to receive credit for the total years of service performed at this facility, because of changes in contractors on at least four occasions. While the four Hanford site pension plans have been consolidated into a single pension plan, apparently all of the service has not been included. The conferees direct that the Department examine this issue and provide a report to the congressional defense committees no later than December 31, 1996, with a recommendation on how to correct this problem or certifying that sufficient corrective action has been taken.

Defense fixed asset acquisition/privatization (sec. 3103)

The House bill contained provision (sec. 3103) that would authorize $182.0 million to establish a new asset acquisition and privatization program for the Department of Energy's national security assets.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recesses.

The conferees recommend: $77.0 million for the advanced mixed waste treatment project, Idaho Falls, Idaho; $15.0 million for the advanced mixed waste treatment project, Oak Ridge, Tennessee; $70.0 million for the transuranic waste treatment project 5, Oak Ridge, Tennessee; and $20.0 million for other projects. No outlays are anticipated in fiscal year 1997 under this program. The conferees intend that pre-construction planning expenditures for each of these projects be funded from operating and maintenance funds authorized in section 3102 of this Act.

The conferees recommend $7.0 million in pre-construction funding for the advanced mixed waste treatment project. The conferees believe this project is important to fulfilling the Department's agreement with the State of Idaho and the Department of the Navy with respect to the interim storage of Naval nuclear spent fuel in Idaho.

Other defense activities (sec. 3104)

The budget request included $1.548 billion for Other Defense Activities of the Department of Energy (DOE) for the fiscal year 1997. The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3104) that would authorize $1.493 billion for Other Defense Activities, a reduction of $55.0 million to the budget request.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3103) that would authorize $1.561 billion for the Other Defense Activities, an increase of $85.0 million to the budget request.

The conferees agree to a provision that would authorize $1.590 billion for these activities.

Verification and control technology

The conferees agree to authorize $513.3 million for verification and control technology, an increase of $57.0 million to the budget request. Of the funds available in nonproliferation and verification research and development, the conferees agree that $10.0 million shall be available to accelerate the Department's forensic analytical program to develop capabilities to address the prevention, detection, interception, and attribution of international nuclear smuggling events. Additionally, $1.5 million shall be available for the conduct of a joint DOE-National Defense study on nuclear smuggling.

The conferees agree to provide $17.0 million to carry out research and development of technical means for detecting the presence, transportation, production, and use of weapons of mass destruction and related technologies and materials. In addition, the conferees direct the Secretary of Energy to produce an annual evaluation of the expected powers and expected limits that define the extent to which science and technology can aid the nonproliferation effort. Additionally, the conferees agree to provide $10.0 million for continuing and expediting cooperative activities with the Government of Russia to develop: (1) technologies for improving verification of nuclear warhead dismantlement; (2) technologies for converting plutonium from weapons into forms that are better suited for long-term storage, to facilitate verification; and (3) technologies that promote openness in Russian production, storage, use, and final and interim disposition of weapons usable fissile material.

With regard to arms control and control technology, the budget request included

$181.2 million. The conferees agree to provide $246.2 million, an increase to the budget request of $65.0 million for materials, protection and control activities. Of these funds, the conferees agree to a $35.0 million increase to the budget request for the Industrial Partnering Program (IPP) and $7.9 million shall be available to complete the canning of spent fuel rods in North Korea, pursuant to the Agreed Framework, and to initiate post-canning technical activities.

The conferees recommend an increase to the budget request of $9.0 million for Lab-to-Lab activities. It is the view of the conferees that DOE should seek to expand these activities in the former Soviet Union beyond nuclear activities in Russia, Ukraine, Kazakhstan, and Belarus. While programs to date have appropriately focused on the most pressing, strategic concerns, critical work remains to be done in combating the threat of proliferation at a variety of sites in the other states of the former Soviet Union where nuclear, radiological, chemical, and biological weapons-related materials and technologies continue to be vulnerable to proliferation.

In addition, the conferees agree to provide $6.0 million for DOE to carry out cooperative activities with the government of Russia to improve the security of highly enriched uranium that is used for propulsion of Russian military and civilian ships. The Secretary of Energy is directed to develop and periodically update a plan for such cooperative activities, and shall coordinate the development and updating of this plan with the Secretary of Defense, who shall involve the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the coordination.

Intelligence

The conferees recommend an authorization of $35.2 million for the intelligence program, a $6.0 million increase to the budget request for fiscal year 1996 to expand counterintelligence activities at the nuclear weapons laboratories and at other high-risk facilities, and for expanded analysis of the Russian and Chinese nuclear weapons programs.

International Nuclear Safety

In addition to the $6.0 million recommended by the conferees for core conversion activities at plutonium production reactors in Russia, the conferees agree that Department of Defense will transfer $10.0 million to DOE for the replacement of core reactors at Tomsk and Krasnoyarsk.

Naval Reactors

The conferees recommend an additional $18.0 million for the naval reactors program to allow the prototype plant inactivation plan endorsed by the Department's Office of Naval Reactors to proceed.

Defense nuclear waste disposal (sec. 3105)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3105) that would authorize $200.0 million for defense nuclear waste disposal activities of the Department for fiscal year 1997, the requested amount.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 3104).

The Senate recesses.

Subtitle B—Recurring General Provisions

Reprogramming (sec. 3121)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3121) that would prohibit the reprogramming of funds in excess of 110 percent of the amount authorized for the program, or in excess of $1.0 million above the amount authorized for the program until the Secretary of Energy has notified the congressional defense committees and a period of 30 days has elapsed after the date on which the report is received. Should the Department demonstrate that it has improved its procedures for handling reprogramming requests, the committee would consider returning a more flexible reprogramming statute in the future.

The Senate amendment contained an identical provision (sec. 3121).

The conference agreement includes this provision.

Limits on general plant projects (sec. 3122)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3122) that would limit the initiation of "general plant projects" if the current estimated cost for any project exceeded $2.0 million. If the Secretary of Energy found that the estimated cost of any project would exceed $2.0 million, the appropriate committees of Congress would have to be notified of the reasons for the cost variation.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 3122) that would limit the initiation of "general plant projects" if the current estimated cost of the project exceeded $5.0 million dollars. The Senate amendment further required the Secretary of Energy to conduct a study on the establishment of a permanent authorization formula for determining defense and civilian "general plant projects" limitations. Such a limitation would be adjusted periodically for inflation and other factors. The Senate provision would require the Secretary to report to Congress on the findings of the study not later than February 1, 1997.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would require the Secretary of Energy to conduct a study and report to Congress on a permanent formula for "general plant projects" not later than February 1, 1997.

Limits on construction projects (sec. 3123)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3123) that would permit any construction project to be initiated and continued only if the estimated cost for the project does not exceed 125 percent of the higher of: (1) the amount authorized for the project; or (2) the most recent total estimated cost presented to the Congress as justification for such project. To exceed such limits, the Secretary of Energy must report in detail to the appropriate committees of Congress and the report must be before the committees for 30 legislative days. This provision would also specify that the 125 percent limitation would not apply to projects estimated to cost under $5.0 million.

The Senate amendment contained an identical provision (sec. 3123).

The conference agreement includes this provision.

Fund transfer authority (sec. 3124)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3124) that would permit the transfer of authorized funds to other agencies of the government for performance of work for which their funds were authorized. The provision would allow the transferred funds to be merged with the authorizations of the receiving agency. The provision would also establish a five percent limit for funds that may be transferred.

The Senate amendment contained an identical provision (sec. 3124).

The conference agreement includes this provision.

Authority for conceptual and construction design (sec. 3125)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3125) that would limit the Secretary of Energy's authority to a request construction funding until the Secretary has certified a conceptual design. This limitation would apply to construction projects with a total estimated cost in excess of $2.0 million. The provision would provide an exception in the case of emergencies.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 3125) that would limit that Secretary's authority to construction projects with a total estimated cost in excess of $5.0 million. The Senate amendment would also require the Secretary to provide a report on each conceptual design completed under this paragraph.

The House recedes with an amendment that would exempt construction project with a total estimated cost of less than $2.0 million.

Authority for emergency planning, design, and construction activities (sec. 3126)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3126) that would permit, in addition to any authorized advance planning and construction design, the Secretary of Energy to perform planning and design with available funds for any Department of Energy national security program construction project whenever the Secretary determines that the design must proceed expeditiously to protect the public health and safety, to meet the needs of national defense, or to protect property.

The Senate amendment contained an identical provision (sec. 3126).

The conference agreement includes this provision.

Funds available for all national security programs of the Department of Energy (sec. 3127)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3127) that would authorize amounts appropriated for management and support activities and for general plant projects to be made available for use, when necessary, in connection with all national security programs of the Department of Energy.

The Senate amendment contained an identical provision (sec. 3127).

The conference agreement includes this provision.

Availability of Funds (sec. 3128)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3128) that would authorize amounts appropriated for operating expenses or for plant and capital equipment to remain available until expended.

The Senate amendment contained an identical provision (sec. 3128).

The conference agreement includes this provision.

Subtitle C—Program Authorizations, Restrictions, and Limitations

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Stockpile Stewardship Program (sec. 3131)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3131) that would authorize an additional $100.0 million for various stockpile stewardship activities.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would authorize an additional $85.0 million for stockpile stewardship and management activities.

The conferees direct that a portion of the additional funds be used for enhanced surveillance of the nuclear weapons stockpile, dual revalidation of the warheads in the nuclear weapons stockpile, stockpile life extension programs, production capability assurance programs for critical non-nuclear components, accelerating capability to produce prototype war reserve-quality plutonium pits, and conducting subcritical tests among other programs, as the Secretary shall determine.

The conferees note the postponement of subcritical experiments at the Nevada Test Site. As a result, the conferees direct the Secretary to report to the Congress within ninety days of enactment of this Act on the reasons for the postponement of the experiments planned to be conducted in fiscal year 1996. As part of this report, the conferees direct that the Secretary set out the basis for the requirement to undertake subcritical tests to include the use of the tests to baseline aspects of an aging stockpile, the date at which those aspects might be expected to manifest themselves in the stockpile, how the subcritical tests will add to the baseline data on the reliability of the stockpile, and any other information relevant to the decision to undertake subcritical tests or to further postpone tests. Such a report should be submitted both in classified and unclassified form.

Although the majority of additional funds authorized for stockpile stewardship would be spent at the nuclear weapons laboratories, the conferees strongly endorse and encourage a continued, close collaboration among the weapons laboratories and the production sites.

Manufacturing infrastructure for nuclear weapons stockpile (sec. 3132)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3132) that would authorize an additional $125.0 million for the stockpile manufacturing infrastructure program at the four Department of Energy (DOE) weapons production plants (Savannah River Site, South Carolina; Pantex Plant, Texas; Kansas City Plant, Missouri; and Y-12 Plant, Tennessee) established in section 3137 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106). The additional funds would be used to: establish and maintain the necessary capability and competencies fully to support the evaluation, surveillance, maintenance, repair, and dismantlement of the nuclear stockpile; provide flexibility to respond to new production requirements; maintain and improve the manufacturing technology necessary to support fully the stockpile; and achieve significant reductions in operating costs for the complex. This provision would also require the Secretary of Energy to submit a report to the congressional defense committees on obligations under the program.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 3133) that would require DOE to pursue modernization activities within the stockpile management program to assist in assuring near-term confidence in the nuclear stockpile.

The House recedes with an amendment that would provide $90.0 million above the budget request to pursue a modernization initiative within the stockpile management program.

The conferees find that the "technology capability alone" approach to the nuclear weapons infrastructure reconstitution requirement of the Nuclear Posture Review is insufficient to meet national security requirements. The conferees are troubled that the Department has not complied with congressional direction included in section 3137 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996, and continue to believe that this directed initiative is not only prudent, but essential to maintaining nuclear weapons core competence in order to repair and refurbish weapons at a START I or START II stockpile level.

The conferees agree that funds authorized under this section shall be divided approximately evenly among the four plants. Furthermore, the funds allocated for the Savannah River Site shall be used in part to: consolidate further the tritium capabilities, beginning in fiscal year 1997, a year earlier than the Department's current plans; accelerate the schedule for producing tritium; support a more robust and aggressive rapid reconstitution approach for plutonium pit manufacturing by initiating a pre-conceptual design study for a replacement pit fabrication facility; and increase core stockpile management operation and maintenance (O&M) activities. The funds allocated for the Y-12 Plant shall be used in part to: accelerate the consolidation of facilities to manufacture and disassemble secondaries; modernize production plant infrastructure elements required for long-term operations; and increase core stockpile management O&M activities. The funds allocated for the Pantex Plant shall be used in part for a consolidated pit packaging system and for increased core stockpile management O&M activities. The funds allocated for the Kansas City Plant shall be used in part to: upgrade current manufacturing technologies; replace aging processing equipment; invest in information systems upgrades to maintain compatibility with advancements at the DOE national laboratories; and increase core stockpile management O&M activities.

Tritium production (sec. 3133)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3131) that would authorize $160.0 million for tritium production, an increase of $60.0 million to the budget request. Increases would be used to accelerate the Department of Energy's phased approach to restore tritium production, including proceeding in parallel with site preparation for new tritium production facility.

The House bill would authorize $100.0 million for tritium production (sec. 3101), the amount requested.

The House recedes.

The conferees note that the Department has established a tritium production program in response to congressional concerns about the lack of progress in this area. The conferees consider this program critical to maintaining the nation's nuclear deterrent capability.

The conferees believe that the tritium production program must be accelerated to meet the requirements of the Nuclear Weapons Stockpile Memorandum, which identified a new tritium production date of 2005 if a reactor option is selected, or 2007 if an accelerator option is chosen. The conferees continue to be concerned with the Department's failure to develop a technically sound data base sufficient to select a preferred option in fiscal year 1997, and its continuing underestimates of funding requirements in this area. On this basis, the conferees agree to recommend an increase of $50.0 million to the budget request for a total fiscal year 1997 program of $150.0 million.

The conferees direct the Department to accelerate its phased approach to restoring the tritium production needs of the United States, including proceeding in parallel with site preparation for a new tritium production facility. The conferees recognize the need to enhance ongoing accelerator research and development and testing programs at the Los Alamos National Laboratory, in conjunction with Savannah River Site personnel. The conferees support these joint efforts and direct the Department to provide the congressional defense committees with a report on the planning and design of the accelerator.

The conferees also direct the continued test and development of tritium targets for the light water reactor program option by the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, and the initiation of planning for construction of a tritium extraction facility that would be located at the selected site identified in the Secretary's Record of Decision relating to tritium production.

The conferees strongly support full consideration of all technically feasible tritium production options, including accelerator, existing commercial reactor, and multipurpose reactor options; among others.

Modernization and consolidation of tritium recycling facilities (sec. 3134)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3132) that referred to modernization and consolidation of tritium recycling facilities.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3132) that would provide an additional $6.0 million to the budget request to upgrade existing tritium recycling plant facilities at the Savannah River Site.

The House recedes with an amendment that would also direct the Secretary of Energy to modernize the Savannah River tritium extraction facility.

The conferees direct that, of the amounts authorized to be appropriated in section 3101, $6.0 million shall be available for tritium recycling plant upgrades and $3.0 million shall be available for planning and designing a tritium extraction facility at the Savannah River Site.

Production of high explosives (sec. 3135)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3133) that would direct that the manufacture and fabrication of high explosives and energetic materials for use as components in nuclear weapons systems be carried out at the Pantex Plant, Amarillo, Texas. The provision would also prohibit the expenditure of funds to move, or prepare to move, the manufacture and fabrication of high explosives and energetic materials for use as components in nuclear weapons systems from the Pantex Plant to any other Department of Energy (DOE) site or facility.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would prohibit the obligation of expenditure of fiscal year 1997 or prior year funds to move, or prepare to move, the manufacture and fabrication of high explosives and energetic materials for use as components in nuclear weapons systems from the Pantex Plant to any other site or facility.

Nothing in this provision should be construed to limit ongoing research, development and testing activities involving high explosives and energetic materials at any Department of Energy national laboratory.

Limitation on use of funds for certain research and development purposes (sec. 3136)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3134) that would reduce beginning in fiscal year 1997 the funding percentage for Laboratory-Directed Research and Development (LDRD) activities to two percent. The House provision would prohibit expenditure of funds authorized for LDRD activities in fiscal year 1997 until 15 days after the Secretary of Energy issued a report on the manner in which such funds are planned to be used.

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3134) that would limit the use of LDRD and technology transfer program funds appropriated or otherwise made available to the Department in fiscal year 1997 under Section 3101 of this Act to activities that support the national security mission of the Department. This provision extends the limits described in section 3141 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 for another year.

The House recedes.

The conferees believe that the scientific and engineering challenges embodied in the emerging stockpile stewardship and stockpile management programs are sufficient to sustain the preeminence of the laboratories in the areas of science and engineering.

The conferees encourage the Department of Energy national laboratories to direct a significant portion of these funds to validating and implementing new technology for insertion in the Navy's submarine construction program for the four transition submarines to built between fiscal years 1998 and 2003. This effort should be a cooperative venture among the national laboratories, U.S. industry, and the Navy.

Prohibition on funding nuclear weapons activities with the People's Republic of China (sec. 3137)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3135) that would prohibit the obligation or expenditure of funds for any cooperative nuclear weapons technology programs, to include stockpile stewardship and safety programs with the People's Republic of China (PRC). The provision would also require the Department of Energy to report to Congress on past and planned discussions or activities between the United States and the PRC.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment making technical changes and changing the date on which the report shall be submitted.

The conferees note that it is possible that United States national security interests might warrant cooperation on nuclear weapons use controls. The conferees request that the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Energy report on whether having authority to undertake cooperative programs with regard to use controls would be in the national security interest of the United States.

International cooperative stockpile stewardship programs (sec. 3138)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3136) that would prohibit the use of fiscal year 1997 and prior year funds to conduct activities associated with international cooperative stockpile stewardship programs, with the exception of activities conducted with the United Kingdom and France.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would make clear that the prohibition contained in subsection (a) does not apply to activities carried out under the Cooperative Threat Reduction (CTR) program as defined in this Act.

Temporary authority relating to transfers of defense environmental management funds (sec. 3139)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3137) that would direct the Secretary of Energy to grant authority to a site manager to transfer up to $5.0 million between program functions within his jurisdiction or to transfer a similar sum between projects within his area of operation. A site manager would only be authorized to conduct such a transfer one time in a fiscal year to or from each program or project. The provision would establish a limited expansion of the Department's current reprogramming authority and would allow a site manager to transfer money based on a finding that the transfer is necessary to reduce a risk to health, safety, or the environment, or to assure the most efficient use of site environmental management funds.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would direct the Secretary of Energy to report to Congress on the efficiency of the authority and whether the Secretary believes that the authority should be extended.

Management structure for nuclear weapons production facilities and nuclear weapons laboratories (sec. 3140)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3138) that would: impose a limitation on the delegation of authority; require consultations with area offices of the Department of Energy (DOE); require DOE area offices to report directly to DOE Headquarters; require the Secretary of Energy to provide a Defense Programs reorganization plan and report; and require establishment of a Defense Programs Management Council.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Accelerated schedule for isolating high-level nuclear waste at the Defense Waste Processing Facility, Savannah River Site (sec. 3141)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3135) that would require the Secretary of Energy to accelerate the schedule for the isolation of high-level nuclear waste in glass canisters at the Savannah River Site, if acceleration would result in long-term savings to the Federal Government and if it would accelerate the removal and isolation of waste from long-term storage tanks at the site.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The conferees believe that accelerating the treatment and stabilization of high-level wastes will significantly reduce out-year waste management costs and that the Department of Energy should not restrict canister production capability and capacity because of limited funds within the overall Environmental Management budget. Therefore, the conferees authorize an additional $15.0 million for the Department to maximize canister production at Savannah River if the aforementioned criteria are met.

Processing and treatment of high-level nuclear waste and spent nuclear fuel rods (sec. 3142)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3136) that would authorize an additional $43.0 million above the budget request for the Department of Energy (DOE), for the F-canyon and H-canyon facilities. The provision would also provide for the implementation of the Department's plan to address the Defense Nuclear Facility Safety Board (DNFSB) Recommendation 94-1 concerning the processing of spent nuclear fuel rods and other nuclear material at the Savannah River Site. An additional $15.0 million above the budget request would be authorized for the DOE National Spent Fuel Program to support program planning, fuel characterization, transportation planning, waste acceptance criteria development, and technology development, that are necessary to move forward toward a permanent disposition of DOE-controlled spent fuel.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would require any funds made available under this section to the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory to be considered as partial fulfillment of the settlement agreement entered into by the United States with the State of Idaho on October 17, 1995.

The conferees also incorporated portions of the Senate amendment relating to "Plans for Activities to Process Nuclear Materials and Clean up Nuclear Waste at the Savannah River Site" (Sec. 3154). This provision would require the Secretary of Energy to prepare a near-term plan for the treatment, packaging, and disposal of spent nuclear fuel located at or anticipated to be shipped to the Savannah River Site. Such a plan would address any requirements for upgrading and improving the F-canyon and H-canyon material processing facilities necessary to meet DNFSB recommendations. The provision would require the Secretary of Energy to prepare a multi-year utilization plan for the F-canyon and H-canyon material processing facilities.

The multi-year program plan should address how the Department proposes to sue these facilities for efficient management, stabilization, and disposition of nuclear materials such as surplus uranium and plutonium, domestic and foreign spent fuel, and any other nuclear materials requiring stabilization to be received at the Savannah River Site. The plan should provide options for chemical processing, reduction, and isolation of nuclear materials. The plan should also identify how the Department proposes to ensure that any fissionable materials that may be separated or purified in the canyons will not be used for nuclear weapons activities.

The provision would further require the Secretary of Energy to continue operations and maintain a high state of readiness at the F-canyon and H-canyon facilities, as recommended by the DNFSB.

The conferees understand that a strategic goal of the DOE Environmental Management (EM) program is to manage or eliminate urgent risks in the EM system. The conferees believe that DOE created an urgent risk situation with the fiscal year 1995 consolidation decision regarding storage of DOE spent nuclear fuel rods at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory (non-aluminum clad) and at the Savannah River Site (aluminum clad). The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 required the initiation of a specific program for the disposition of spent nuclear fuel rods. The conferees continue to be concerned with the Department's inadequate progress in establishing a credible program and with the under-utilization of the Department's resources. A clearly defined plan and commitment are necessary for the safe storage, processing, and ultimate disposition of these materials in a permanent repository.

The conferees agree with the DNFSB that both F-canyon and H-canyon facilities at the Savannah River Site have an important future role.

Projects to accelerate closure activities at defense nuclear facilities (sec. 3143)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3102) to provide additional funding to Department of Energy field sites for the purpose of accelerating clean up and facility closure activities.

The Senate amendment contained similar provisions in various sections.

The conferees agree to a provision that would provide more detailed guidance to the Department on the criteria to be used in implementing projects to accelerate the closure or decommissioning of defense nuclear facilities. The conferees recommend the creation of a new initiative and authorize additional funding for closure acceleration projects at sites such as Rocky Flats, Hanford, Oak Ridge, Savannah River, and Idaho, where additional funding could be used to reduce life-cycle costs significantly through the acceleration of existing activities, initiation of cost reducing deactivation and decommissioning activities, and the application of enhanced cleanup technologies.

The conferees note that the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106) required the Secretary of Energy to accelerate the schedule for remedial activities at sites where the accelerated schedule will achieve meaningful, long-term cost savings to the Federal Government and accelerate the release of land for local reuse. In reviewing the sites selected pursuant to the last year's program, the conferees are concerned that the additional funding provided was used on relatively small projects and that the long term impact on reducing life cycle costs throughout the defense nuclear complex will be minimal.

It is for this reason that the conferees established additional criteria to assure that the projects selected will achieve significant long-term cost savings to the Federal Government. The conferees believe that taxpayers must see real progress if they are to continue to support large expenditures in environmental management funds that have increased five-fold in just seven years.

To assure management discipline, the Secretary would be required to develop a plan that will: define clearly the delineated scope of work; demonstrate that, where required, regulatory agreements are in place with appropriate regulatory authorities that would allow for the successful completion of the project; and demonstrate support of State and local elected officials.

Contracts for the performance of these projects should be performance and incentive based and not the traditional cost plus contracts. While the conferees believe that contractors should bear the risk for non-performance of activities within their control, it is important that provisions be made to include traditional commercial force majeure and risk sharing concepts. All projects selected under this program must be completed within 10 years.

Finally, with respect to the selection of projects that meet the general eligibility requirements, the Secretary is required to select those projects that will result in the most significant long-term cost savings to the government and the most significant reduction of imminent risk. Multi-year contracting authority is granted to the Secretary to carry out projects selected under this section and funds appropriated would remain available until expended. The clear intent is to identify those projects that are capable of being accelerated using currently available technology and to reward those sites that are aggressively seeking closure or decommissioning of existing facilities. To encourage closure, the conferees have made it clear that the existing budget projections for sites are not to be reduced based on the award of funding under this section for cleanup and closure.

The conferees have included language to the effect that nothing in this section is to be construed as modifying applicable statutory or regulatory environmental restoration requirements. The conferees have included initial funding for this program as a separate line item in section 3102 of this title.

Payment of costs of operation and maintenance of infrastructure at Nevada Test Site (sec. 3144)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3138) that would permit the Department of Energy to defer charging the Department of Defense overhead costs for work-for-others activities carried out at the Nevada Test Site.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Subtitle D—Other Matters

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Report on plutonium pit production and remanufacturing plans (sec. 3151)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3142) that would require the Secretary to submit to the congressional defense committees a report on plans for achieving a capability to produce and remanufacture plutonium pits.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Amendments relating to baseline environmental management reports (sec. 3152)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3143) that would amend section 3153 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1994 (Public Law 104-360) to authorize the submission of the Baseline Environmental Management Report on a biennial basis rather than an annual basis.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Requirement to develop future use plans for environmental management program (sec. 3153)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3144) that would require the Secretary of Energy to develop and implement, as part of the Defense Environmental Restoration and Waste Management Program, a future land use plan at sites where the Secretary is planning or implementing environmental restoration activities. The provision would direct the creation of a future use advisory board at defense nuclear facilities where the Secretary of Energy intends to develop a future use plan and there is no existing advisory board.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would replace references to future use advisory boards with site specific advisory boards.

Report on Department of Energy liability at Department Superfund sites (sec. 3154)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3161) that would require the Secretary of Energy to carry out a study of sites controlled or operated by the Department of Energy to determine the extent, the valuation of the injury, the destruction, or loss of natural resources under section 107(a)(4)(c) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9607(a)(4)(c)). The Secretary would then submit a report to Congress on the results of the study.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that clarifies the scope and methodology of the study.

Requirement for annual five-year budget for the national security programs of the Department of Energy (sec. 3155)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3151) that would require the Secretary of Energy to submit an annual National Security Five-Year Budget Plan to the congressional defense committees. The plan would be submitted no later than the day on which the President's annual budget request is submitted to Congress.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The Secretary shall obligate no more than ninety-five percent of the Department's annual appropriation for Atomic Energy Defense Activities until the plan is submitted to the congressional defense committees. The conferees direct the Secretary of Energy to submit the plan for fiscal years 1997-2001 as soon as possible, but no later than September 30, 1996.

Requirements for Department of Energy weapons activities budgets for fiscal years after fiscal year 1997 (sec. 3156)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3152) that would require the Department of Energy to relate the elements of its nuclear weapons program budget submission to the specific requirements of the Nuclear Weapons Stockpile Memorandum and the Nuclear Posture Review. In the context of that submission, the Secretary of Energy would be required to provide a long-term program plan, and a near-term program plan for the certification and stewardship of the nuclear stockpile.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Repeal of requirement relating to accounting procedures for Department of Energy funds (sec. 3157)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3153) that would repeal section 3151 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1995. In 1994, at the time this provision was enacted, the Department of Energy did not have adequate control of uncosted and unobligated balances in a number of areas. In many instances, the Department could not identify the original fiscal year for which uncosted balances were appropriated.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

The conferees note that subsequent to the enactment of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal year 1995, the Department succeeded in significantly reducing its uncosted and unobligated balances. In addition, the Department has initiated a regular reporting methodology that allows the congressional defense committees to track unobligated and uncosted funds appropriated for national security activities. The conferees support the continued use of such reports as a cost effective substitute for section 3151.

Update of report on nuclear test readiness postures (sec. 3158)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3155) that would require an update of the Nuclear Test Readiness Posture Report required by the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996. That report pertains to the readiness and maintenance of the requisite underground testing expertise at the Nevada Test Site and at the Nuclear Weapons Laboratories. The report would be due to the congressional defense committees no later than February 15, 1997.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment to change the due date of the report to June 1, 1997.

Reports on critical difficulties at nuclear weapons laboratories and nuclear weapons production plants (sec. 3159)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3156) that would require the head of any nuclear weapons laboratory or nuclear weapons production plant to notify the Assistant Secretary for Defense Programs immediately if there is any difficulty associated with the nuclear weapons complex that would have a significant bearing on the confidence relating to the nuclear stockpile. The provision would also require the Nuclear Weapons Council to notify Congress in the event that the Council become aware of any difficulties within the purview of the Council.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes.

Extension of applicability of notice- and wait-required regarding proposed cooperation agreements (sec. 3160)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3157) that would extend the date by which notice is to be made to Congress regarding the release of restricted data or formerly restricted data pursuant to a cooperative agreement with a foreign country by amending Section 3155(b) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1995.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment to extend until October 1, 1997, the authority of the Department of Energy and the Department of Defense to release data, as necessary, to further fissile material and other weapons material control and accountability program; to support atomic weapons control and accountability; to assist in treaty verification; and to assist in establishing a uniform international system of classification.

Sense of Senate relating to redesignation of Defense Environmental Restoration and Waste Management Program (sec. 3161)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3158) that would express the sense of the Congress that the Department of Energy (DOE) redesignate the Defense Environmental Restoration and Waste Management Program (also known as the Environmental Management Program) as the Defense Nuclear Waste Management Program. The provision would further direct the Department of Energy to prepare and transmit to the congressional defense committees, no later than January 31, 1997, a report that describes any difficulties or problems that arise as a result of the name change, including any related costs.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would change the provision to a sense of the Senate.

Commission on Maintaining United States Nuclear Weapons Expertise (sec. 3162)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3159) that would direct the Department of Energy to organize a high level commission to address problems associated with attracting a new generation of nuclear weapons experts to ensure the safety and reliability of the U.S. nuclear stockpile.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would authorize the Secretary of Energy to appoint two members to the commission and would require that all commission appointments be made no later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this section.

Sense of the Congress regarding reliability and safety of remaining nuclear forces (sec. 3163)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3160) that would express concerns about maintaining confidence in the nuclear stockpile and our Nation's commitment to ensuring the safety, security, reliability, and performance of U.S. nuclear forces.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recesses.

The conferees remain concerned with the ability of the Department of Defense and the Department of Energy to maintain confidence in the safety and reliability of the strategic nuclear weapons stockpile in the absence of underground nuclear tests. As long as the United States continues to depend on a deterrent nuclear force, as articulated in the Nuclear Posture Review, it is necessary for both the Department of Defense and the Department of Energy to maintain the following: weapons production capabilities and capacities; adequate funding to maintain the remaining stockpile at a state of full readiness; ability to meet full fabrication and tritium production requirements; capabilities for tritium recycling and pit manufacturing; and, to replace underground nuclear testing, a successful science-based stockpile stewardship program.

Study on worker protection at the Mound facility in (sec. 3164)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3145) that would authorize, out of existing funds, $5.0 million to be used to enhance worker health and safety at the Department of Energy's (DOE) Mound facility near Miamisburg, Ohio.

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision (sec. 3166) that would require DOE to prepare a report on programs and projects undertaken to protect worker health and safety at the DOE Mound facility.

The House recesses.

Fiscal year 1998 funding for Greenville Road Improvement Project, Livermore, California (sec. 3165)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3162) that would require the Secretary of Energy to include in the fiscal year 1998 budget a request for sufficient funds to pay the United States portion of the cost of transportation improvements under the Greenville Road Improvement Project, Livermore, California.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recesses.

Fellowship program for development of skills critical to Department of Energy nuclear weapons complex (sec. 3166)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3137) that would require the Department of Energy (DOE) to initiate a university fellowship program for recruiting engineers and other technical experts at nuclear weapons plants. The Department would be authorized to use up to $5.0 million of the amount authorized for Stockpile Management activities to carry out the plant fellowship program.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recesses.

In the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 1996, the Department was directed to initiate a university fellowship program for recruiting the next generation of engineers and technical experts for the modernized nuclear weapons repair and refabrication plants. The Department was directed to fund the program through authorized appropriations within the stockpile management program. The Department has not complied with this congressional direction.

Testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee has suggested that DOE's skilled workforce for nuclear weapons design, fabrication, and remanufacturing is eroding, due both to worker aging and limited near-term challenges. The conferees do not propose a massive remanufacturing approach, but they do expect that DOE will take the steps necessary to attract, mentor and retain the next generation of nuclear weapons refabrication experts. The absence of such a program could accentuate the negative impacts of the progressing "brain drain," identified in testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee and could undermine long-term efforts to repair and rebuild aging nuclear weapons in the stockpile.

Subtitle E—Defense Nuclear Environmental Cleanup and Management

Defense nuclear environmental cleanup and management (sec. 3171-3180)

The House bill contained a series of provisions (secs. 3551-3157) that would establish cost-effective management mechanisms and innovative technologies for the purpose of improving the Department of Energy (DOE) Defense Environmental Restoration and Waste Management Program. These provisions would apply to any DOE defense nuclear facility with a fiscal year 1996 Environmental Management (EM) budget of $350.0 million or more. The Secretary of Energy would delegate oversight authority to the site manager and encourage the site manager to promote deployment of innovative remediation technologies. The House bill also would direct the Secretary to develop and implement a program to encourage the use of performance-based contracts, as opposed to cost-plus contracts.

The Senate amendment contained a series of similar provisions (secs. 3171-3179) that would provide for a pilot program at the Hanford Reservation that would demonstrate cost-effective management mechanisms and innovative technologies to be used in environmental restoration and remediation at other defense nuclear facilities. Upon request by a State, the Secretary of Energy would have the discretion to include other defense nuclear facilities in the pilot program. The Secretary would delegate oversight authority to the site manager and the site manager would have the direct authority to promote the demonstration, certification, and implementation of innovative remediation technologies. The Senate provision also included a congressional reporting requirement and a sunset provision.

The Senate recesses with an amendment that would adopt the following elements for the cost-effective management and innovative technologies demonstration program: delegation of direct oversight authority to the site manager; automatic applicability to DOE facilities with a fiscal year 1996 EM budget of $350.0 million or more and applicability to other facilities upon application by the governor of a State and approval by the Secretary of Energy; Secretarial development and implementation of performance-based contracts program; site manager promotion and deployment of innovative remediation technologies; a congressional reporting requirement; and a program termination date.

Subtitle F—Waste Isolation Pilot Plant Land Withdrawal Act Amendments

Waste Isolation Pilot Plant Land Withdrawal Act amendments (secs. 3181-3191)

The Senate amendment contained a series of provisions (secs. 3181-3191) that would modify the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant (WIPP) Land Withdrawal Act (Public Law 102-579). Requirements of the WIPP Land Withdrawal Act associated with the now-canceled WIPP "test phase" would be eliminated. The prerequisites to opening WIPP would be clarified and the 180-day congressional notification requirement would be reduced to 30 days. The requirement that WIPP meet land disposal restrictions of the Solid Waste Disposal Act (42 U.S.C. 6901 et seq.) would be eliminated. DOE would be granted greater authority to determine whether engineered or natural barriers are sufficient to meet compliance with applicable environmental regulations. The Environmental Protection Agency would retain its ability to conduct timely reviews of DOE compliance applications. A sense of the Congress provision would encourage the Secretary to pursue all necessary actions to begin waste disposal operations not later than November 30, 1997. Finally, the Department of Energy would be authorized to make a one-time payment of $20.0 million to the State of New Mexico to begin road upgrades necessary to begin full scale shipping operations to WIPP. This payment would be considered an advance payment of amounts due to the State of New Mexico pursuant to the provisions of section 15(a) of the WIPP Land Withdrawal Act.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recesses with a clarifying amendment that would add a provision that would reduce by one the total number of payments due to the State of New Mexico under section 15(a) of the WIPP Land Withdrawal Act and clarify that all applicable health and safety regulations would be met prior to commencement of disposal operations.

Report on Nuclear Weapons Stockpile Memorandum

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3141) that would require the President to submit to the congressional defense committees a copy of the Nuclear Weapons Stockpile Memorandum, and to submit reports on any future updates or changes to the Memorandum.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The House recesses.

The conferees direct the Department of Energy to continue to provide members of Congress and congressional staff (with the appropriate security clearance) with access to the Nuclear Weapons Stockpile Memorandum.

Plans for activities to process nuclear materials and clean up nuclear waste at the Savannah River Site

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3154) that would require the Secretary of Energy to develop a multi-year program plan to use the H-canyon and the F-canyon materials processing facilities for treating Department of Energy and foreign spent nuclear fuel rods. The provision would also require the Secretary of Energy to develop a near-term plan on F-canyon and H-canyon utilization. The Secretary would be required to continue operations and maintain a high state of readiness at the F-canyon and H-canyon facilities.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

The conferees combined the elements of this provision with the provision regarding processing of high-level nuclear waste and spent nuclear fuel.

Opportunity for review and comment by State of Oregon regarding certain remedial actions at Hanford Reservation

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3163) that would, in consultation with the signatories to the Hanford Reservation, Washington, Tri-Party Agreement for site remediation, require the Site Manager to provide the State of Oregon with an opportunity to review and comment upon any information available to the State of Washington under the agreement. The provision also contained certain limitations related to the State of Oregon's access to information and participation in the site remediation process.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes. The conferees determined that the provision would establish a bad precedent regarding a state's right to participate in remedial activities conducted at a site within a neighboring state.

Sense of Senate on Hanford memorandum of understanding

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3164) that would express the sense of Senate that the State of Oregon has the authority to enter into a memorandum of understanding with the State of Washington, or a memorandum of understanding with the State of Washington and the Site Manager of the Hanford Reservation, Washington, to address issues of mutual concerns at the site.

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

The Senate amendment contained an identical provision.

The conference agreement includes this provision.

Additional authority to dispose of materials in National Defense Stockpile (sec. 3303)

The Senate amendment contained a provision (sec. 3303) that would authorize the Secretary of Defense to dispose of specific materials in the National Defense Stockpile in order to offset the lost revenues resulting from the amendments made by subsection (a) of section 4303 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104-106).

The House bill contained no similar provision.

The House recedes with an amendment that would change the materials authorized for disposal and use the revenues to offset those lost due to amendments made by subsection (a) of section 4303 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 and other direct spending provisions in this bill.

Subtitle B—Programmatic Change

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS ADOPTED

Biennial report on stockpile requirements (sec. 3311)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3311) that would amend the Strategic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act, section 3203 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1988 (Public Law 100-180), concerning the requirements addressed in the report provided to Congress every other year by the Department of Defense (DOD).

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes with an amendment that would require the report to identify the amount of materials that would be necessary to replace the materiel and equipment that would be required after a military conflict.

Notification requirements (sec. 3312)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3312) that would update several sections of the Strategic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act, section 3203 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1988 (Public Law 100-180), to standardize reporting requirements throughout the act. The provision would establish that all legislative reporting waiting periods are to be 45 days.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Importation of strategic and critical materials (sec. 3313)

The House bill contained an amendment (sec. 3313) that would amend the Strategic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act, section 3203 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1988 (Public Law 100-180), to remove reference to "communist-dominated country or area."

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

Price requirement on sale of certain petroleum during fiscal year 1997 (sec. 3402)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 3402) that would require the Secretary of Energy to sell petroleum produced for the Navy petroleum Reserves at no less than 90 percent of the price of comparable oil.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The Senate recedes.

TITLE XXXV—PANAMA CANAL COMMISSION

LEGISLATIVE PROVISIONS

Panama Canal Commission (secs. 3501-3549)

The House bill contained several provisions (secs. 3501-3504) that would authorize expenditure of funds by the Panama Canal Commission to cover its operating, maintenance, administrative, and capital improvement expenses, and to purchase vehicles built in the United States.

The Senate amendment contained similar provisions (secs. 3501-3504).

The Senate recedes with respect to the House provisions authorizing expenditure of funds to cover expenses (secs. 3501, 3502, and 3504). The House recedes with respect to the Senate provision (sec. 3503) that would authorize the purchase of vehicles without the requirement that they be built in the United States. The conferees note, however, that the Commission has in the past purchased only vehicles built in the United States and encourage the continuation of that practice.

The House bill also included provisions (secs. 3521-3550), not in the Senate amendment, that would give the Commission greater autonomy to facilitate the Senate amendment, that would give the Commission greater autonomy to facilitate the transition of the Canal to Panamanian control in December 1999. Most of these provisions would expand the Commission's discretion in tailoring government employee regulations to the unique needs of Commission personnel.

The Senate recedes with respect to these House provisions, with an amendment that would give the Commission the authority to contract with Panamanian carriers for the official travel of its Panamanian employees (sec. 3528) and an amendment that specifies that U.S. Government agencies in Panama may elect to discontinue the applicability of provisions of the Panama Canal Employment System, a system which is changing to reflect the transition to Panamanian control, to their civilian employees (sec. 3530).

TITLE I—BLOCK GRANTS FOR TEMPORARY ASSISTANCE FOR NEEDY FAMILIES

SEC. 101. FINDINGS.

The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Marriage is the foundation of a successful society.

(2) Marriage is an essential institution of a successful society which promotes the interests of children.

(3) Promotion of responsible fatherhood and motherhood is integral to successful child rearing and the well-being of children.

(4) In 1992, only 54 percent of single-parent families with children had a child support order established and, of that 54 percent, only about one-half received the full amount due. Of the cases enforced through the public child support enforcement system, only 18 percent of the caseload has a collection.

(5) The number of individuals receiving aid to families with dependent children (in this section referred to as "AFDC") has more than tripled since 1965. More than two-thirds of these recipients are children. Eighty-nine percent of children receiving AFDC benefits now live in homes in which no father is present.

(A)(1) The average monthly number of children receiving AFDC benefits—

(I) was 3,300,000 in 1965;

(II) was 6,200,000 in 1970;

(III) was 7,400,000 in 1980; and

(IV) was 9,300,000 in 1992.

(i) While the number of children receiving AFDC benefits increased nearly threefold between 1965 and 1992, the total number of children in the United States aged 0 to 18 has declined by 5.5 percent.

(B) The Department of Health and Human Services has estimated that 12,000,000 children will receive AFDC benefits within 10 years.

(C) The increase in the number of children receiving public assistance is closely related to the increase in births to unmarried women. Between 1970 and 1991, the percentage of live births to unmarried women increased nearly threefold, from 10.7 percent to 29.5 percent.

(6) The increase of out-of-wedlock pregnancies and births is well documented as follows:

(A) It is estimated that the rate of non-marital teen pregnancy rose 23 percent from 54 pregnancies per 1,000 unmarried teenagers in 1976 to 66.7 pregnancies in 1991. The overall rate of nonmarital pregnancy rose 14 percent from 90.8 pregnancies per 1,000 unmarried women in 1980 to 103 in both 1991 and 1992. In contrast, the overall pregnancy rate for married couples decreased 7.3 percent between 1980 and 1991, from 126.9 pregnancies per 1,000 married women in 1980 to 117.6 pregnancies in 1991.

(B) The total of all out-of-wedlock births between 1970 and 1991 has risen from 10.7 percent to 29.5 percent and if the current trend continues, 50 percent of all births by the year 2015 will be out-of-wedlock.

(7) An effective strategy to combat teenage pregnancy must address the issue of male responsibility, including statutory rape culpability and prevention. The increase of teenage pregnancies among the youngest girls is particularly severe and is linked to predatory sexual practices by men who are significantly older.

(A) It is estimated that in the late 1980's, the rate for girls age 14 and under giving birth increased 26 percent.

(B) Data indicates that at least half of the children born to teenage mothers are fathered by adult men. Available data suggests that almost 70 percent of births to teenage girls are fathered by men over age 20.

(C) Surveys of teen mothers have revealed that a majority of such mothers have histories of sexual and physical abuse, primarily with older adult men.

(8) The negative consequences of an out-of-wedlock birth on the mother, the child, the family, and society are well documented as follows:

(A) Young women 17 and under who give birth outside of marriage are more likely to go on public assistance and to spend more years on welfare once enrolled. These combined effects of "younger and longer" increase total AFDC costs per household by 25 percent to 30 percent for 17-year-olds.

(B) Children born out-of-wedlock have a substantially higher risk of being born at a very low or moderately low birth weight.

(C) Children born out-of-wedlock are more likely to experience low verbal cognitive attainment, as well as more child abuse, and neglect.

(D) Children born out-of-wedlock were more likely to have lower cognitive scores, lower educational aspirations, and a greater likelihood of becoming teenage parents themselves.

(E) Being born out-of-wedlock significantly reduces the chances of the child growing up to have an intact marriage.

(F) Children born out-of-wedlock are 3 times more likely to be on welfare when they grow up.

(9) Currently 35 percent of children in single-parent homes were born out-of-wedlock, nearly the same percentage as that of children in single-parent homes whose parents are divorced (37 percent). While many parents find themselves, through divorce or tragic circumstances beyond their control, facing the difficult task of raising children alone, nevertheless, the negative consequences of raising children in single-parent homes are well documented as follows:

(A) Only 9 percent of married-couple families with children under 18 years of age have income below the national poverty level. In contrast, 46 percent of female-headed households with children under 18 years of age are below the national poverty level.

(B) Among single-parent families, nearly 1/2 of the mothers who never married received AFDC while only 1/4 of divorced mothers received AFDC.

(C) Children born into families receiving welfare assistance are 3 times more likely to be on welfare when they reach adulthood than children not born into families receiving welfare.

(F) Young women who have children before finishing high school are more likely to receive welfare assistance for a longer period of time.

(G) Between 1985 and 1990, the public cost of births to teenage mothers under the aid to families with dependent children program, the food stamp program, and the medicaid program has been estimated at $120,000,000,000.

(H) The absence of a father in the life of a child has a negative effect on school performance and peer adjustment.

(I) Children of teenage single parents have lower cognitive scores, lower educational aspirations, and a greater likelihood of becoming teenage parents themselves.

(J) Children of single-parent homes are 3 times more likely to fail and repeat a year in grade school than are children from intact 2-parent families.

(K) Children from single-parent homes are almost 4 times more likely to be expelled or suspended from school.

(L) Neighborhoods with larger percentages of youth aged 12 through 20 and areas with higher percentages of single-parent households have higher rates of violent crime.

(M) Of those youth held for criminal offenses within the State juvenile justice system, only 29.8 percent lived primarily in a home with both parents. In contrast to these incarcerated youth, 73.9 percent of the 62,800,000 children in the Nation's resident population were living with both parents.

(10) Therefore, in light of this demonstration of the crisis in our Nation, it is the sense of the Congress that prevention of out-of-wedlock pregnancy and reduction in out-of-wedlock birth are very important Government interests and the policy contained in part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (as amended by section 103(a) of this Act) is intended to address the crisis.

SEC. 102. REFERENCE TO SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.

Except as otherwise specifically provided, wherever in this title an amendment is expressed in terms of an amendment to or repeal of a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to that section or other provision of the Social Security Act.

SEC. 103. BLOCK GRANTS TO STATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part A of title IV (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) is amended—

(1) by striking all that precedes section 418 (as added by section 603(b)(2) of this Act) and inserting the following:

"PART A—BLOCK GRANTS TO STATES FOR TEMPORARY ASSISTANCE FOR NEEDY FAMILIES

"SEC. 401. PURPOSE.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The purpose of this part is to increase the flexibility of States in operating a program designed to—

"(1) provide assistance to needy families so that children may be cared for in their own homes or in the homes of relatives;

"(2) end the dependence of needy parents on government benefits by promoting job preparation, work, and marriage;

"(3) prevent and reduce the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies and establish annual numerical goals for preventing and reducing the incidence of these pregnancies; and

"(4) encourage the formation and maintenance of two-parent families.

"(b) NO INDIVIDUAL ENTITLEMENT.—This part shall not be interpreted to entitle any individual or family to assistance under any State program funded under this part.

"SEC. 402. ELIGIBLE STATES; STATE PLAN.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—As used in this part, the term 'eligible State' means, with respect to a fiscal year, a State that, during the 2-year period immediately preceding the fiscal year, has submitted to the Secretary a plan that the Secretary has found includes the following:

"(1) OUTLINE OF FAMILY ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.—

"(A) GENERAL PROVISIONS.—A written document that outlines how the State intends to do the following:

"(i) Conduct a program, designed to serve all political subdivisions in the State (not necessarily in a uniform manner), that provides assistance to needy families with (or expecting) children and provides parents with job preparation, work, and support services to enable them to leave the program and become self-sufficient.

"(ii) Require a parent or caretaker receiving assistance under the program to engage in work (as defined by the State) once the State determines the parent or caretaker is ready to engage in work, or once the parent or caretaker has received assistance under the program for 24 months (whether or not consecutive), whichever is earlier.

"(iii) Ensure that parents and caretakers receiving assistance under the program engage in work activities in accordance with section 407.

"(iv) Take such reasonable steps as the State deems necessary to restrict the use and disclosure of information about individuals and families receiving assistance under the program attributable to funds provided by the Federal Government.

"(v) Establish goals and take action to prevent and reduce the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies, with special emphasis on teenage pregnancies, and establish numerical goals for reducing the illegitimacy ratio of the State (as defined in section 403(a)(2)(B)) for calendar years 1996 through 2005.

"(vi) Conduct a program, designed to reach State and local law enforcement officials, the education system, and relevant counseling services, that provides education and training on the problem of statutory rape so that teenage pregnancy prevention programs may be expanded in scope to include men.

"(B) SPECIAL PROVISIONS.—

"(i) The document shall indicate whether the State intends to treat families moving into the State from another State differently than other families under the program, and if so, how the State intends to treat such families under the program.

"(ii) The document shall indicate whether the State intends to provide assistance under the program to individuals who are not citizens of the United States, and if so, shall include an overview of such assistance.

"(iii) The document shall set forth objective criteria for the delivery of benefits and the determination of eligibility and for fair and equitable treatment, including an explanation of how the State will provide opportunities for recipients who have been adversely affected to be heard in a State administrative or appeal process.

"(iv) Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, unless the chief executive officer of the State opts out of this provision by notifying the Secretary, a State shall, consistent with the exception provided in section 407(e)(2), require a parent or caretaker receiving assistance under the program who, after receiving such assistance for 2 months is not exempt from work requirements and is not engaged in work, as determined under section 407(c), to participate in community service employment, with minimum hours per week and tasks to be determined by the State.

"(2) CERTIFICATION THAT THE STATE WILL OPERATE A CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT PROGRAM.—A certification by the chief executive officer of the State that, during the fiscal year, the State will operate a child support enforcement program under the State plan approved under part D.

"(3) CERTIFICATION THAT THE STATE WILL OPERATE A FOSTER CARE AND ADOPTION ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.—A certification by the chief executive officer of the State that, during the fiscal year, the State will operate a foster care and adoption assistance program under the State plan approved under part E, and that the State will take such actions as are necessary to ensure that children receiving assistance under such part are eligible for medical assistance under the State plan under title XIX.

"(4) CERTIFICATION OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE PROGRAM.—A certification by the chief executive officer of the State specifying which State agency or agencies will administer and supervise the program referred to in paragraph (1) for the fiscal year, which shall include assurances that local governments and private sector organizations—

“(A) have been consulted regarding the plan and design of welfare services in the State so that services are provided in a manner appropriate to local populations; and

“(B) have had at least 45 days to submit comments on the plan and the design of such services.

“(5) CERTIFICATION THAT THE STATE WILL PROVIDE INDIANS WITH EQUITABLE ACCESS TO ASSISTANCE.—A certification by the chief executive officer of the State that, during the fiscal year, the State will provide each member of an Indian tribe, who is domiciled in the State and is not eligible for assistance under a tribal family assistance plan approved under section 412, with equitable access to assistance under the State program funded under this part attributable to funds provided by the Federal Government.

“(6) CERTIFICATION OF STANDARDS AND PROCEDURES TO ENSURE AGAINST PROGRAM FRAUD AND ABUSE.—A certification by the chief executive officer of the State that the State has established and is enforcing standards and procedures to ensure against program fraud and abuse, including standards and procedures concerning nepotism, conflicts of interest among individuals responsible for the administration and supervision of the State program, kickbacks, and the use of political patronage.

“(7) OPTIONAL CERTIFICATION OF STANDARDS AND PROCEDURES TO ENSURE THAT THE STATE WILL SCREEN FOR AND IDENTIFY DOMESTIC VIOLENCE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—At the option of the State, a certification by the chief executive officer of the State that the State has established and is enforcing standards and procedures to—

“(i) screen and identify individuals receiving assistance under this part with a history of domestic violence while maintaining the confidentiality of such individuals;

“(ii) refer such individuals to counseling and supportive services; and

“(iii) waive, pursuant to a determination of good cause, other program requirements such as time limits (for so long as necessary) for individuals receiving assistance, residency requirements, child support cooperation requirements, and family cap provisions, in cases where compliance with such requirements would make it more difficult for individuals receiving assistance under this part to escape domestic violence or unfairly penalize such individuals who are or have been victimized by such violence, or individuals who are at risk of further domestic violence.

“(B) DOMESTIC VIOLENCE DEFINED.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term ‘domestic violence’ has the same meaning as the term ‘battered or subjected to extreme cruelty’, as defined in section 408(a)(7)(C)(iii).

“(b) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF STATE PLAN SUMMARY.—The State shall make available to the public a summary of any plan submitted by the State under this section.

“(a) GRANTS.—

“(1) FAMILY ASSISTANCE GRANT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Each eligible State shall be entitled to receive from the Secretary, for each of fiscal years 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, and 2002, a grant in an amount equal to the State family assistance grant.

“(B) STATE FAMILY ASSISTANCE GRANT DEFINED.—As used in this part, the term ‘State family assistance grant’ means the greatest of—

“(i) $\frac{1}{2}$ of the total amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403 (as in effect on September 30, 1995) for fiscal years 1992, 1993, and 1994 (other than with respect to amounts expended by the State for child care under subsection (g) or (i) of former section 402 (as so in effect));

"(i) the number of families receiving assistance under the State program funded under this part that include an adult or a minor child head of household who is engaged in work for the month; divided by

"(ii) the amount by which—

"(I) the number of families receiving such assistance during the month that include an adult or a minor child head of household receiving such assistance; exceeds

"(ii) the average monthly number of families that received aid under the State plan approved under part A (as in effect on September 30, 1995) during fiscal year 1995.

The minimum participation rate shall not be reduced to the extent that the Secretary determines that the reduction in the number of families receiving such assistance is required by Federal law.

"(B) ELIGIBILITY CHANGES NOT COUNTED.—The regulations required by subparagraph (A) shall not take into account families that are diverted from a State program funded under this part as a result of differences in eligibility criteria under a State program funded under this part and eligibility criteria under the State program operated under the State plan approved under part A (as such plan and such part were in effect on September 30, 1995). Such regulations shall place the burden on the Secretary to prove that such families were diverted as a direct result of differences in such eligibility criteria.

TITLE IV—RESTRICTING WELFARE AND PUBLIC BENEFITS FOR ALIENS

SEC. 400. STATEMENTS OF NATIONAL POLICY CONCERNING WELFARE AND IMMIGRATION.

The Congress makes the following statements concerning national policy with respect to welfare and immigration:

(1) Self-sufficiency has been a basic principle of United States immigration law since this country's earliest immigration statutes.

(2) It continues to be the immigration policy of the United States that—

(A) aliens within the Nation's borders not depend on public resources to meet their needs, but rather rely on their own capabilities and the resources of their families, their sponsors, and private organizations, and

(B) the availability of public benefits not constitute an incentive for immigration to the United States.

(3) Despite the principle of self-sufficiency, aliens have been applying for and receiving public benefits from Federal, State, and local governments at increasing rates.

(4) Current eligibility rules for public assistance and unenforceable financial support agreements have proved wholly incapable of assuring that individual aliens not burden the public benefits system.

(5) It is a compelling government interest to enact new rules for eligibility and sponsorship agreements in order to assure that aliens be self-reliant in accordance with national immigration policy.

(6) It is a compelling government interest to remove the incentive for illegal immigration provided by the availability of public benefits.

(7) With respect to the State authority to make determinations concerning the eligibility of qualified aliens for public benefits in this title, a State that chooses to follow the Federal classification in determining the eligibility of such aliens for public assistance shall be considered to have chosen the least restrictive means available for achieving the compelling governmental interest of assuring that aliens be self-reliant in accordance with national immigration policy.

The Senate amendment struck all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The House recedes from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate with an amendment that is a substitute for the House bill and the Senate amendment. The differences between the House bill, the Senate amendment, and the substitute agreed to in conference are noted below, except for clerical corrections, conforming changes made necessary by agreements reached by the conferees, and minor drafting and clerical changes.

EXPLANATION OF THE CONFERENCE AGREEMENT

PRINCIPAL COMPONENTS OF THE CONFERENCE AGREEMENT

The Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 puts in place the most fundamental reform of welfare since the program's inception. It promotes work over welfare and self-reliance over dependency, thereby showing true compassion for those in America who need a helping hand, not a handout. It takes the historic step of eliminating a Federal entitlement program—Aid to Families with Dependent Children—and replacing it with a block grant that restores the States' fundamental role in assisting needy families. It makes substantial reforms in the Food Stamp Program, cracking down on fraud and abuse and applying tough work standards. It reforms the Supplemental Security Income [SSI] disability program to strengthen eligibility requirements and eliminating incentives for coaching children to misbehave so they can qualify for benefits. It makes sweeping reforms relating to benefits for noncitizens, strengthening the principle that immigrants come to America to work, not to collect welfare benefits.

The legislation does not abandon those Americans who truly need a helping hand. It retains protections for those who experience genuine and intractable hardship. Above all, it recognizes the vulnerability of America's children. It guarantees that they will continue to receive the support they need. Indeed, by discouraging illegitimacy and promoting stable families, this bill vastly improves the prospects of children in welfare families. But for most, welfare should mean temporary assistance for those striving to return to self-sufficiency.

The legislation is the first of three reconciliation bills called for in the reconciliation directives contained in the fiscal year 1997 budget resolution (H. Con. Res. 178). The measure will slow the growth of Federal welfare spending, but still maintain sufficient increases to protect vulnerable populations. According to preliminary estimates, welfare spending would grow from approximately $83 billion this year to about $107 billion in 2002, excluding the effects of Earned Income Credit [EIC] outlays. When EIC outlays are included, the preliminary estimates show welfare spending growing from about $99 billion this year to roughly $128 billion in 2002. The Federal Government still will spend nearly $600 billion on welfare programs not counting the EIC, and nearly $700 billion when the EIC is included. Either way, when compared with Federal spending projections for the current welfare program, this legislation will reduce the Federal budget deficit by about $55 billion to $56 billion over 6 years.

The importance of these budgetary effects is matched by the historic transformation of the welfare program embraced in this legislation. This measure rests on five principles that are the pillars of the welfare reform strategy in the 104th Congress:

Welfare Should Not Be a Way of Life. The legislation assures that welfare will be a helping hand, not a lifetime handout, by imposing a 5-year lifetime limit on benefits (although as many as 20 percent of families may be allowed exceptions for conditions of hardship).

Work, Not Welfare. For the first time ever, able-bodied welfare recipients will be required to work for their benefits. At least one person in every family must be working within 2 years after receiving welfare or lose benefits, and States are required to have at least half of their single-parent welfare recipients working by 2002.

No More Welfare for Noncitizens and Felons. Most welfare (except emergency benefits) ends for most non-citizens during their first 5 years in the United States. Exceptions are made for refugees, persons who have worked and paid taxes in the United States for 10 years, and those who have served in the U.S. military. States will have the option of denying Medicaid eligibility to non-citizens who enter the United States after enactment. The legislation also terminates benefits for fugitive felons fleeing from prosecution or imprisonment or violating parole, and offers financial incentives to local corrections authorities to report persons incarcerated in their jails who are improperly receiving welfare checks.

Power and Flexibility to the States. The best welfare solutions come from those closest to the problems—not from bureaucrats in Washington. The legislation creates broad cash welfare and child care block grants providing maximum flexibility so that States can reform welfare in ways that are appropriate for them, and can move families into jobs.

Encouraging Personal Responsibility to Halt Rising Illegitimacy Rates. As a result of the current welfare system, which discourages two-parent families, today's illegitimacy rate among welfare families is almost 50 percent and is rising. This legislation seeks to reverse the trend by boosting efforts to establish paternity and make fathers pay child support. As an added incentive, States that reduce out-of-wedlock births will receive added cash grants.

This legislation reforms welfare to make it more consistent with fundamental American values—by rewarding work and self-reliance, encouraging personal responsibility, and restoring a sense of hope in the future.

TITLE I: BLOCK GRANT FOR TEMPORARY ASSISTANCE FOR NEEDY FAMILIES

1. FINDINGS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Congress finds that marriage is the foundation of a successful society and an essential institution that promotes the interests of children. Promotion of responsible fatherhood and motherhood is integral to successful child-rearing and the well-being of children. It is the sense of Congress that prevention of out-of-wedlock pregnancy and reduction on out-of-wedlock birth are very important government interests and that the policy outlined in the provisions of this title is intended to address the crisis.

Senate amendment

Adds that an effective strategy to combat teenage pregnancy must deal with the issue of male responsibility, including statutory rape culpability and prevention. Finds protection of teenage girls from pregnancy as well as predatory sexual behavior to be very important Government interests.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

2. REFERENCE TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

Present law

No provision

House bill

Unless otherwise specified, any reference in this title to an amendment to or repeal of a section or other provision is to the Social Security Act.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

3. BLOCK GRANT TO STATES; PURPOSE

Present law

Title IV-A of the Social Security Act, which provides grants to States for aid and services to needy families with children (AFDC), is designed to encourage care of dependent children in their own homes by enabling States to provide cash aid and services, maintain and strengthen family life, and help parents attain maximum self-support consistent with maintaining parental care and protection.

House bill

Block grants for temporary assistance for needy families (TANF), which replace Title IV-A of the Social Security Act, are established to increase the flexibility of States in operating a program designed to provide assistance to needy families; end dependence on government benefits by promoting job preparation, work and marriage; prevent and reduce the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies; and encourage the formation and maintenance of two-parent families.

This part shall not be interpreted to entitle any individual or family to assistance under any State program funded under this part.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

4. ELIGIBLE STATES—STATE PLAN REQUIREMENTS

Present law

A State must have an approved State plan for aid and services to needy families containing 43 provisions, ranging from single-agency administration to overpayment recovery rules. State plans explain the aid and services that are offered by the State. Aid is defined as money payments. For most parents without a child under age 3, States must provide education, work, or training under the JOBS program to help needy families with children avoid long-term welfare dependence. Note: work and education requirements of JOBS are subject to two conditions—State resources must permit them and the program must be available in the recipient's political subdivision. To receive Federal funds, States must share in program costs. The Federal share of costs (matching rate) varies among States and is inversely related to the square of State per capita income. For AFDC benefits and child care, the Medicaid matching rate is used. This rate now ranges from 50 percent to 78 percent among States and averages about 55 percent. For JOBS activities, the rate averages 60 percent; for administrative costs, 50 percent. The general JOBS participation rate, which expired September 30, 1995, required 20 percent of employable (nonexempt) adult recipients to participate in education, work, or training under JOBS, in fiscal year 1995. In fiscal year 1996, at least one parent in 60 percent of unemployed-parent families must participate at least 16 hours weekly in an unpaid work experience or other work program. States must restrict disclosure of information to purposes directly connected to administration of the program and to any connected investigation, prosecution, legal proceeding or audit. Each State must offer family planning services to all "appropriate" cases, including minors considered sexually active. State may not require acceptance of these services. Regulations require that States determine need and amount of eligibility on an objective and equitable basis.

House bill

An "eligible State" is a State that, during the 2-year period immediately preceding the fiscal year, has submitted a plan to the Secretary of HHS that the Secretary has found includes a written document describing how the State will:

1. conduct a program, designed to serve all political subdivisions in the State, that provides cash assistance to needy families with (or expecting) children, and that provides parents with work and support services to enable them to become self-sufficient;
 2. require a parent or a caretaker receiving assistance to engage in work as defined by the State once the parent or caretaker has received assistance for 24 months (whether or not consecutive) or earlier;
 3. ensure that parents and caretakers engage in work activities as described below;
 4. take such reasonable steps as the State deems necessary to restrict the use and disclosure of information about recipients of assistance attributable to funds provided by the Federal government.
 5. no provision. (See purpose above.)
- Further, the document must:
6. indicate whether the State intends to treat families moving into the State differently; and, if so, how.
 7. indicate whether it intends to aid non-citizens.
 8. set forth objective criteria for delivery of benefits and determinations of eligibility, and for fair and equitable treatment, including an explanation of how it will provide opportunities for adversely affected recipients to be heard in a State administrative or appeal process;
 9. no provision;
 10. no provision;
 11. no provision.

Senate amendment

1. Same.
2. Similar provision.
3. Same.

4. Same.

5. Establish goals and take action to prevent and reduce the incidence of pregnancies outside marriage, and establish numerical goals for reducing the proportion of births out of wedlock for calendar years 1996 through 2005.

Further, the document must:

6. Same.

7. Same.

8. outline how the State intends to determine, on an objective and equitable basis, the needs of and amount of aid to be provided to needy families; and, except as allowed for incoming families and noncitizens (items 6 and 7) to treat families of similar needs and circumstances similarly.

9. outline how it will grant opportunity for a fair hearing to anyone adversely affected or whose application is not acted on promptly.

10. require, not later than 1 year after enactment, a parent or caretaker is not engaged in work or exempt from work requirements and who has received assistance for more than 2 months to participate in community service. States may opt out of this requirement by notifying the Secretary.

11. outline how the State will conduct a program, designed to reach States and local law enforcement officials, the education system, and relevant counseling services, that provides education and training on the problem of statutory rape so that teenage pregnancy prevention programs may be expanded to include men.

Conference agreement

In general, the conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except that the Senate recedes on requirements 2, 8, and 9. Requirement 10 is modified to provide that a State may opt out of this requirement by submitting a letter from the Governor to the Secretary.

5. ELIGIBLE STATES—CERTIFICATIONS

Present law

States must have in effect an approved child support program. States must also have an approved plan for foster care and adoption assistance. States must have an income and verification system covering AFDC, Medicaid, unemployment compensation, food stamps, and—in outlying areas—adult cash aid.

House bill

State plans must include the following certifications:

1. that the State will operate a child support enforcement program;
2. that the State will operate a child protection program under Title IV-B (child welfare services and family preservation);
3. specifying which State agency or agencies will administer and supervise the State plan, and assurances that local governments and private sector organizations have been consulted and have had an opportunity to submit comments on the plan; and
4. that the State will provide Indians with equitable access to assistance.
5. no provision.
6. no provision.

Senate amendment

1. Same.
2. that the State will operate a foster care and adoption assistance program under Title IV-E and ensure medical assistance for the children;
3. Same.
4. Same.
5. that the State has established standards to ensure against fraud and abuse.

6. that the State has established and is enforcing standards and procedures to screen for and identify recipients with a history of domestic violence, will refer them to counseling and supportive services, and will waive program requirements that would make it more difficult for these persons to escape violence.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment, except that the certification that the State establish and enforce standards and special procedures regarding recipients with a history of domestic violence is made a State option.

6. ELIGIBLE STATES—PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF STATE PLAN SUMMARY

Present law

Federal regulations require that State program manuals and other policy issuances, which reflect the State plan, be maintained in the State office and in each local and district office for examination on regular workdays.

House bill

The State shall make available to the public a summary of the State plan.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

7. GRANTS TO STATES—FAMILY ASSISTANCE GRANT

Present law

AFDC entitles States to Federal matching funds. Current law provides permanent authority for appropriations without limit for grants to States for AFDC benefits, administration, and AFDC-related child care. Over the years, because of court rulings, AFDC has evolved into an entitlement for qualified individuals to receive cash benefits. In general, States must give AFDC to all persons whose income and resources are below State-set limits if they are in a class or category eligible under Federal rules.

House bill

Each eligible State and Territory is entitled to receive a grant from the Secretary for each of 6 fiscal years (1996 through 2001) in an amount equal to the State family assistance grant for the fiscal year.

A State's family assistance grant is equal to the highest of former Federal payments to the State for AFDC benefits, AFDC Administration, Emergency Assistance, and JOBS during (1) fiscal years 1992 through 1994, on average; (2) fiscal year 1994 plus, under certain circumstances, 85 percent of increased fiscal year 1995 spending for emergency assistance, or (3) fiscal year 1995.

If a State fails to make qualified State expenditures for eligible families under all State programs equal to at least 75 percent of its fiscal year 1994 spending level (or at least 80 percent, if the State fails to meet its mandatory work requirements) for AFDC benefits, AFDC Administration, Emergency Assistance, JOBS, AFDC-related child care, and at-risk child care, its family assistance grant is reduced by the shortfall (see the discussion of penalties below).

Senate amendment

Same, except raises required State expenditures to 80 percent of fiscal year 1994 level.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

8. GRANTS TO STATES—GRANT TO REWARD STATES THAT REDUCE OUT-OF-WEDLOCK BIRTHS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

For each fiscal year beginning with 1998, a State's grant amount is increased by 5 or 10 percent if the State "illegitimacy ratio" is 1 or 2 percentage points, respectively, lower in that year than its 1995 illegitimacy ratio. Only States in which the rate of abortion falls below the 1995 level are eligible for these additional grants.

The term "illegitimacy ratio" means, during a fiscal year, the number of out-of-wedlock births that occurred in the State divided by the number of births. In calculating grants, the Secretary must disregard any difference in illegitimacy ratios or abortion rates attributable to a change in State methods of reporting data.

Senate amendment

Follows the House bill, except that for each of 5 fiscal years (1999 through 2003) the Secretary shall make a grant of up to $20 million for each of the 5 States that demonstrate the greatest decrease in out-of-wedlock births during the most recent 2-year period for which the information is available. If fewer than 5 States are eligible, the amount of such grants shall be $25 million.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with the modification that funds are available between 1999 and 2002.

9. GRANTS TO STATES—SUPPLEMENTAL GRANT FOR POPULATION INCREASES AND LOW FEDERAL SPENDING PER POOR PERSON IN CERTAIN STATES

Present Law

There is no adjustment for population growth. Instead, current law provides unlimited matching funds. When AFDC enrollment climbs, Federal funding automatically rises.

House bill

Subject to the eligibility criteria below, each qualifying State (for purposes of this section, the term "State" is limited to the 50 States and the District of Columbia) is entitled to receive from the Secretary supplemental grants to assist in making cash welfare payments for 4 years, fiscal years 1997-2000. For fiscal year 1997 the supplemental grant equals 2.5 percent of Federal payments to the qualifying State during fiscal year 1994 for AFDC benefits, AFDC Administration, Emergency Assistance, JOBS and AFDC-related child care. For fiscal years 1998 through 2000, each qualifying State is entitled to receive an amount equal to the supplemental grant for the immediately preceding year plus, if it continues to meet the eligibility criteria below, an annual increase. States that no longer meet the qualification criteria are entitled to receive the prior year's grant without increase. A State is a qualifying State for a fiscal year if average Federal welfare spending per poor person is less than the national average and State population growth exceeds the average for all States. States must qualify during fiscal year 1997 in order to qualify during later years. Certain States (i.e. those in which Federal welfare spending per poor person for fiscal year 1994 was less than 35 percent of the fiscal year 1994 national average or in which population has increased by more than 10 percent from April 1, 1990 to July 1, 1994) are deemed to qualify for supplemental grants in each year between fiscal year 1997 and 2000. A total of $800 million is appro-riated for this purpose. If this sum is insufficient for full supplemental grants for all qualifying States, pro rata reductions will be made. (p. 244)

Senate amendment

Same except for change in years of possible supplemental grants: fiscal years 1998 through 2001 (instead of 1997 through 2000). States must qualify during fiscal year 1998 in order to do so in later years.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

10. GRANTS TO STATES—BONUS TO REWARD HIGH PERFORMANCE STATES

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Certain "high performing" States (i.e. those most successful in achieving the purposes of the block grant program) are entitled to receive additional payments of up to five percent of their State family assistance grant. The formula for measuring State performance shall be developed by the Secretary in consultation with the National Governors' Association and the American Public Welfare Association. A total of $0.5 billion is appropriated for high performance bonuses to States during 5 fiscal years, 1999 through 2003, and average annual performance bonuses are to equal $100 million.

Note.—In addition, required maintenance-of-effort spending is to be reduced for States that achieve performance scores above a threshold set by the Secretary.

Senate amendment

Appropriates twice as much money for high performance bonuses—$1 billion—and provides that average annual bonuses are to equal $175 million for fiscal years 1999 through 2002 and $300 million for fiscal year 2003.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment regarding funding (total of $1 billion) and follows the House bill regarding the criteria for awarding bonuses to "high performance" States. The provision allowing certain high performance States to meet a lower maintenance of effort requirement is dropped (see below).

11. GRANTS TO STATES—CONTINGENCY FUND FOR STATE WELFARE PROGRAMS

Present law

No provision. Current law provides unlimited matching funds.

House bill

To assist States (for purposes of this section, the term "State" is limited to the 50 States and the District of Columbia) with increased welfare needs, the House proposal establishes a contingency fund for matching grants and appropriates up to $2 billion over a total of 5 fiscal years (1997 through 2001) for the fund. Eligible States may receive contingency fund payments totaling up to 20 percent of their annual family assistance grant in any single year (in any single month, States cannot receive more than 1/12 of 20 percent of the annual family assistance grant). States are to submit requests for payment of contingency funds, and the Secretary of the Treasury must make payments to eligible States in the order in which requests are received.

States are eligible to receive payments if State unemployment is high (at or above 6.5 percent in the most recent three-month period) and rising relative to previous years (at least 10 percent above the comparable level in either or both of two preceding years). States also are eligible to receive payments if food stamp participation in the State in the most recent three-month period has risen at least 10 percent from the average monthly number of recipients who would have participated in the comparable quarter of fiscal year 1994 or fiscal year 1995, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture, if amendments made by this proposal to the food stamp program (including optional food stamp block grant provisions) and to eligibility of noncitizens had been in effect throughout fiscal year 1994 and 1995. States must maintain 100 percent of historic State welfare spending (generally, the amount of State funds spent in fiscal year 1994 for AFDC benefits and administration, AFDC-related child care, at-risk child care, Emergency Assistance, and JOBS) during years in which contingency fund payments are made, or repay an amount reflecting the shortfall. States must share in the cost of contingency funds at their fiscal year 1995 Medicaid matching rate. To smooth their transition to recovery, States that have been receiving contingency fund payments will continue to receive payments for one month after they no longer meet the criteria described above.

Senate amendment

Contingency fund of $2 billion covers 4 fiscal years (1998 through 2001) rather than 5. (Because of the Byrd rule, the provision specifying that the CBO baseline is to assume that no grant will be made after 2001 is deleted.)

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, with the modification that, notwithstanding section 257(b)(2) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, the baseline shall assume that no grant shall be made under this subsection after fiscal year 2001.

12. GRANTS TO STATES—WORK PROGRAM GRANT

Present law

House bill

To assist States in meeting the work requirements, eligible States may receive funds from a supplemental grant for the operation of work programs. To be eligible, a State's total expenditures for the fiscal year to meet work participation requirements must exceed its total jobs spending for fiscal year 1994, its TANF work programs must be coordinated with job training programs of Title II of the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA), or its successor, and the State must need the extra funds to meet TANF work requirements or certify that it intends to exceed participation requirements. The Secretary is to issue regulations for equitable distribution of the grants. For these supplemental grants, $3 billion is authorized for fiscal year 1999 (amounts appropriated are authorized to remain available until spent).

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

13. USE OF GRANTS—IN GENERAL

Present law

AFDC and JOBS funds are to be used in conformity with State plans. A State may replace a caretaker relative with a protective payee or a guardian or legal representative.

House bill

Grants may be used in any manner reasonably calculated to accomplish the purposes of this title, including activities now authorized under Titles IV-A and IV-F of the Social Security Act, or to provide low-income households with assistance in meeting home heating and cooling costs.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

14. USE OF GRANTS—LIMITATION ON ADMINISTRATIVE SPENDING

Present law

No provision.

House bill

States may not use more than 15 percent of the family assistance grant for administrative purposes. However, this cap does not apply to spending for information technology and computerization needed to implement the tracking and monitoring required by this title.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

15. USE OF GRANTS—RECIPIENTS MOVING INTO THE STATE FROM ANOTHER STATE

Present law

The Social Security Act forbids the Secretary to approve a plan that denies AFDC eligibility to a child unless he has resided in the State for 1 year. The U.S. Supreme Court has invalidated some State laws that withheld aid from persons who had not resided there for at least 1 year. It has not ruled on the question of paying lower amounts of aid for incoming residents.

House bill

States may impose program rules and benefit levels of the State from which a family moved if the family has lived in the State for fewer than 12 months.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

16. USE OF GRANTS—TRANSFER OF FUNDS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

States may transfer up to 30 percent of funds paid under this section to carry out a State program under Part B (child welfare and family preservation) or Part E (foster care and adoption assistance), the social services block grant, and the child care and development block grant. Of the 30 percent that may be transferred, not more than one-third (that is, not more than 10 percent of the total block grant) may be transferred into the Social Services Block Grant. Amounts transferred to the Social Services Block Grant must be spent on programs and services for children or their families.

Senate amendment

States may transfer up to 30 percent of funds only to the child care and development block grant.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except that the provision allowing transfers into the child protection block grant, which was deleted, is dropped. The conference agreement adds the modification that funds transferred into the Title XX Social Services Block Grant must be spent on families with incomes that do not exceed 200 percent of the poverty level (as determined annually by the Federal Office of Management and Budget).

17. USE OF GRANTS—RESERVATION OF FUNDS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

A State may reserve amounts paid to the State for any fiscal year for the purpose of providing assistance under this part. Reserve funds can be used in any fiscal year.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

18. USE OF GRANTS—AUTHORITY TO OPERATE AN EMPLOYMENT PLACEMENT PROGRAM

Present law

Required JOBS services include job development and job placement. The State agency may provide services directly or through arrangements or under contracts with public agencies or private organizations.

House bill

States may use a portion of the family assistance grant to make payments (or provide job placement vouchers) to State-approved agencies that provide employment services to recipients of cash aid.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

19. USE OF GRANTS—IMPLEMENTATION OF ELECTRONIC BENEFIT TRANSFER SYSTEM

Present law

Regulations permit States to receive Federal reimbursement funds (50 percent administrative cost-sharing rate) for operation of electronic benefit systems. To do so, States must receive advance approval from HHS and must comply with automatic data processing rules.

House bill

States are encouraged to implement an electronic benefit transfer (EBT) system for providing assistance under the State program funded under this part, and may use the grant for such purpose. (The food stamp title of the bill exempts any EBT system distributing need-tested benefits established or administered by a State from Federal Reserve Board rules known collectively as "Regulation E." The most important Regulation E provision requires that lost/stolen benefits be restored; individuals with accounts are responsible only for the first $50 of any loss, when reported in a timely fashion.)

Senate amendment

Same (in Miscellaneous chapter).

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill. Conferees also agreed to put comprehensive language on EBT and Regulation E in the food stamps section of this legislation.

20. USE OF GRANTS—INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNTS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Authorizes a State to use TANF funds to fund individual development accounts established by recipients for specified purposes: postsecondary educational expenses, first-home purchase, business capitalization. Terms include: contributions must be from earned income, withdrawals would be allowed only for the above purposes, and Federal benefit programs must disregard funds in the account in determining eligibility and amount of aid.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

21. ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Present law

The Secretary pays AFDC funds to the State on a quarterly basis.

House bill

The Secretary shall make each grant payable to a State in quarterly installments. The Secretary is to estimate each State's payment on the basis of a report about expected expenditures from the State and to certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the amount estimated, adjusted if needed for overpayments or underpayments for any past quarter. The Secretary must notify States not later than three months in advance of any quarterly payment that will be reduced to reflect payments made to Indian tribes in the State. Under certain circumstances, overpayments to individuals no longer receiving temporary family assistance will be collected from Federal income tax refunds and repaid to affected States.

Senate amendment

Same, except the provision regarding "Collection of State Overpayments to Families from Federal Tax Refunds" was deleted because of the Byrd rule.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

22. FEDERAL LOANS FOR STATE WELFARE PROGRAMS

Present law

No provision. Instead, current law provides unlimited matching funds.

House bill

The proposal establishes a $1.7 billion revolving loan fund from which eligible States may borrow funds to meet the purposes of this title. States that have been penalized for misspending block grant funds as determined by an audit are ineligible for loans. Loans are to mature in 3 years, at the latest, and the cumulative amount of all loans to a State during fiscal years 1997 through 2001 cannot exceed 10 percent of its basic block grant. The interest rate shall equal the current average market yield on outstanding U.S. securities with a comparable remaining maturity length. States face penalties for failing to make timely payments on their loan.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

23. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—PARTICIPATION RATE REQUIREMENTS

Present law

The following minimum percentage of non-exempt AFDC families must participate in JOBS:

	Minimum percentage
Fiscal year:
1995	20
1996 and thereafter (no requirement)	0

The following minimum percentages of two-parent families receiving cash assistance must participate in specified work activities:

1995	50
1996	60

1998 (last year)	75

House bill

The following minimum percentages of all families receiving assistance funded by the family assistance grant (except those with a child under 1, if exempted by the State) must participate in work activities:

	Minimum percentage
Fiscal year:
1997	25
1998	30
1999	35
2000	40

The following minimum percentages of two-parent families receiving cash assistance must participate in specified work activities:

	Minimum percentage
Fiscal year:
1996	50
1997	75
1998	75
1999 and thereafter 90

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

24. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—CALCULATION OF PARTICIPATION RATES

Present law

Participation rates for all families are calculated for each month. A State's rate, expressed as a percentage, equals the number of actual JOBS participants divided by the number of AFDC recipients required to participate (nonexempt from JOBS). In calculating a State's overall JOBS participation rate, a standard of 20 hours per week is used. The welfare agency is to count as participants the largest number of persons whose combined and averaged hours in JOBS activities during the month equal 20 per week.

Participation rates for two-parent families for a month equal the number of parents who participate divided by the number of principal earners in AFDC-UP families (but excluding families who received aid for two months or less, if one parent engaged in intensive job search).

House bill

1. The participation rate (for all families and for two-parent families) for a State for the fiscal year is the average of the participation rates for each month in the fiscal year. The monthly participation rate for a State is a percentage obtained by dividing the number of families receiving assistance that include an adult who is engaged in work by the number of families receiving assistance (not counting those subject to a recent sanction for refusal to work).

2. The required participation rate for a year is to be adjusted down one percentage point for each percentage point that the average monthly caseload is below fiscal year 1995 levels, unless the Secretary finds that the decrease was required by Federal law or results from changes in State eligibility criteria (which must be proved by the Secretary). The Secretary is to prescribe regulations for this adjustment.

3. States have the option of counting individuals receiving assistance under a tribal family assistance plan towards the State work participation requirement.

4. States have the option of not requiring single parents of children under age one to engage in work and may disregard these parents in determining work participation rates.

Senate amendment

1. Same.

2. Same.

3. Same.

4. Allows a parent to receive this exemption only for a total of 12 months, whether or not consecutive.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with a modification. For item 1, the conference agreement includes minor heads of households along with adults in the calculation of State work participation rates (in both the numerator and denominator of the calculation).

25. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—OPTIONAL INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY PLAN

Present law

States must make an initial assessment of the educational, child care, and other supportive service needs, and of the skills and employability of each JOBS participant. In consultation with the participant, the agency shall develop an employability plan for the participant, which shall not be considered a contract. After these steps, the State agency may require the participant to negotiate and enter into an agreement that specifies matters such as the participant's obligations, duration of participation, and services to be provided.

House bill

States are required to make an initial assessment of the skills, work experience, and employability of each recipient of assisting under the block grant who is over age 17 or has not completed high school or the equivalent, and is not attending secondary school. States may develop individual responsibility plans setting forth employment goals, obligations of the individual, and services the State will provide. In addition to other penalties that may apply, States may reduce assistance to families that include an individual who fails to comply with the terms of such plans.

Senate amendment

Requires States to require TANF recipient families to enter into a personal responsibility agreement, as developed by the State. The agreement means a binding contract. It is to include a negotiated individual time limit for benefit eligibility, outline steps the family and State will take to move the family to self-sufficiency, provide for sanctions if the individual fails to sign the agreement or comply with its terms and shall be invalid if the State fails to comply with its terms.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

26. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—
ENGAGED IN WORK*Present law*

Not relevant. (As discussed below, required activities in State JOBS programs are education, jobs skills training, job readiness, job development and job placement and two of these four: job search, on-the-job training, work supplementation, and community work experience, or other approved work experience. In general, to be counted as a JOBS participant, a person must be engaged in a JOBS activity for an average of 20 hours weekly.)

House bill

To be counted as engaged in work for a month, a recipient must be participating for at least the minimum average number of hours per week shown in the table below in one or more of these activities: unsubsidized employment, subsidized (private or public) employment, work experience, on-the-job training, job search and job readiness assistance, community service programs, or vocational educational training (12 months maximum).

Minimum average
weekly hours

Fiscal year:	Minimum average weekly hours
1996	20
1997	20
1998	20
1999	25
2000	30

Exceptions to the above table: (1) to be considered engaged in work, an adult in a two-parent family must make progress in work activities at least 35 hours per week, with not fewer than 30 hours attributable to the work activities cited above; (2) an individual in job search may be counted as engaged in work for up to 8 weeks, no more than 4 of which may be consecutive; (3) a State may count a single parent with a child under age 11 as engaged in work for a month if the parent works an average of 20 hours weekly in all years (the hourly minimum does not rise for these parents); (4) not more than 20 percent of adults in all families and in two-parent families determined to be engaged in work in the State for a month may meet the work requirement through participation in vocational educational training; (5) teen parents (under age 20) who head their households are considered to be engaged in work if they maintain satisfactory attendance at secondary school or participate in work-related education for at least the minimum average number of hours in the table; and (6) no provision.

Senate amendment

Changes list of work activities by substituting "educational training (not to exceed 24 months with respect to any individual)" for "vocational educational training (not to exceed 12 months with respect to any individual)." (Also, as the table below shows, required weekly hours of work rise to 35 in fiscal year 2002 and thereafter.)

Minimum average
weekly hours

Fiscal year:	Minimum average weekly hours
1996	20
1997	20
1998	20
1999	25
2000	30
2001	30
2002 and thereafter	35

Exceptions to the above table: (1) an adult in a two-parent family is considered engaged in work if he/she works at least 35 hours weekly, with at least 30 hours attributable to one of the activities cited above, and, if the family receives federally-funded child care, the second parent makes satisfactory progress for at least 20 hours weekly in employment, work experience, on-the-job training, or community service; (2) an individual in job search may be counted as engaged in work for only 4 weeks (12 weeks if the State unemployment rate exceeds the national average); (3) same as House provision; (4) not more than 30 percent of adults in all families and in 2-parent families may meet the work activity requirement through participation in vocational educational training (note: bill language refers to vocational educational training, although references elsewhere are to educational training—see above); (5) teen parents (under age 20) who head their households are considered to be engaged in work if they maintain satisfactory attendance at secondary school or the equivalent during the month or participate in education directly related to employment for at least the minimum average number of hours per week in the table; and (6) a person participating in a community service program may be treated as being engaged in work if she provides child care services to another participant in the community service program for the period of time each week determined by the State.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the house bill and the Senate amendment as follows:

First, the conference agreement follows the House bill regarding vocational educational training as a work activity which is creditable for up to 12 months.

Second, the conference agreement follows the House bill regarding the minimum average weekly hours of work required.

Finally, regarding exceptions to the work hour requirements, the conference agreement: (1) follows the Senate amendment on hours of work for adults in a 2-parent family, with the modification exempting the second parent, if such parent is disabled or caring for a severely disabled child; (2) follows the Senate amendment regarding job search, with the modification that a total of 6 weeks is allowed, of which not more than 4 may be consecutive (and, in the case of States in which the unemployment rate is at least 50 percent above the national average, a total of 12 weeks is allowed); in addition an individual may count a partial week of job search as a full week of work limited to one occasion; (3) follows the House bill in permitting States to count certain single parents as engaged in work if the parent works for 20 hours per week, with the modification that the parent's child must be under age 6 (however, the conference agreement follows the Senate amendment regarding the requirement that States may not disregard such an adult in calculating their work rates); (4) follows the House bill regarding the limitation on the number of parents countable if in vocational education; (5) follows the Senate amendment on teen parents and education, with the modification that teen parents meeting the work requirement in this way are counted towards the 20 percent limitation on vocational education (see above); and (6) follows the Senate amendment on persons providing child care, with the clarification that such hours spent providing child care count towards fulfillment of the hours of work required.

27. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—WORK ACTIVITIES DEFINED*Present law*

JOBS programs must include specified educational activities (high school or equivalent education, basic and remedial education, and education for those with limited English proficiency); job skills training, job readiness activities, and job development and placement. In addition, States must offer at least two of these four items: group and individual job search; on-the-job training; work supplementation or community work experience program (or another work experience program approved by the HHS Secretary). The State also may offer postsecondary education in "appropriate" cases.

House bill

"Work activities" are defined as unsubsidized employment, subsidized private sector employment, subsidized public sector employment, work experience if sufficient private sector employment is not available, on-the-job training, job search and job readiness assistance, community service programs, vocational educational training (1 year maximum), jobs skills training directly related to employment, education directly related to employment in the case of a recipient who lacks a high school diploma or equivalency, and satisfactory attendance at secondary school for a recipient who has not completed high school.

Senate amendment

Same as House provision except for last two items in list of "work activities." These activities (work-related education and secondary school attendance) are creditable as "work" only for persons under age 20.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, with the modification to include the provision of child care services to an individual who is participating in a community service program.

28. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—
PENALTIES AGAINST INDIVIDUALS*Present law*

For failure to meet JOBS requirements without good cause, AFDC benefits are denied to the offending parent and payments for the children are made to a third party. In a two-parent family, failure of one parent to meet JOBS requirements without good cause results in denial of benefits for both parents (unless the other parent participates) and third-party payment on behalf of the children. Repeated failures to comply bring potentially longer penalty periods.

House bill

If an adult recipient refuses to engage in required work, the State shall reduce the amount of assistance to the family pro rata (or more, at State option) with respect to the period of work refusal, or shall discontinue aid, subject to good cause and other exceptions that the State may establish. In addition, if block grant recipients fail to meet any of the work requirements, States may terminate their coverage under the Medicaid program. A State may not penalize a single parent caring for a child under age eleven for refusal to work if the parent proves a demonstrated inability to obtain needed child care for specified reasons.

Senate amendment

Same as House provision except that Senate does not provide that States may end Medicaid for block grant recipients who fail to meet any of the work requirements in the act.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill with the modification that, if benefits are terminated under the work requirements of section 407 of this part, States may end Medicaid eligibility for adults made ineligible, but not children in the family. In addition, modifies the House bill and Senate amendment so that States may not penalize a single parent caring for a child under age 6 for refusal to work if the parent proves a demonstrated inability to obtain needed child care for specified reasons.

29. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—NONDISPLACEMENT IN WORK ACTIVITIES

Present law

Under JOBS law, no work assignment may displace any currently employed worker or position (including partial displacement such as a reduction in hours of non-overtime work, wages, or employment benefits). Nor may a JOBS participant fill a position vacant because of layoff or because the employer has reduced the workforce with the effect of creating a position to be subsidized.

House bill

In general, an adult in a family receiving IV-A assistance may fill a work vacancy. However, no adult in a Title IV-A work activity shall be employed or assigned when another person is on layoff from the same or a substantially equivalent job, or when the employer has terminated the employment of a regular worker or otherwise caused an involuntary reduction of its workforce in order to fill the vacancy thus created with a subsidized worker. This provision does not preempt or supersede any State or local law providing greater protection from displacement.

Senate amendment

In general, an adult in a family receiving IV-A assistance may fill a work vacancy. However, no IV-A work assignment may displace a currently employed worker (including any partial displacement such as a reduction in hours of overtime work, wages, or employment benefits), impair an existing contract or collective bargaining agreement, or result in ending a regular worker's employment. States must establish and maintain a grievance procedure, including hearing opportunity, for resolving complaints and providing remedies for violations. This section does not preempt or supersede any State or local law providing greater protection from displacement.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, with the modification to include a requirement that States establish a grievance procedure for workers adversely affected pursuant to this section.

30. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—SENSE OF THE CONGRESS THAT STATE SHOULD PLACE A PRIORITY ON PLACING CERTAIN PARENTS IN WORK

Present law

As a condition of receiving full matching funds, a State must use 55 percent of its JOBS spending for these target groups: persons who have received aid for any 36 of the 60 preceding months, parents under age 24 who failed to complete high school, and parents whose youngest child is within 2 years of becoming ineligible for aid (i.e., whose youngest child is, usually, at least 16).

House bill

It is the sense of Congress that States should give highest priority to requiring adults in two-parent families and adults in single-parent families with children that are older than preschool age to engage in work activities.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

31. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—SENSE OF THE CONGRESS THAT STATES SHOULD IMPOSE CERTAIN REQUIREMENTS ON NONCUSTODIAL, NONSUPPORTING MINOR PARENTS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

It is the sense of the Congress that States should require noncustodial, nonsupporting parents who have not attained 18 years of age to fulfill community work obligations and attend appropriate parenting or money management classes after school.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

32. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS—REVIEW OF IMPLEMENTATION OF STATE WORK PROGRAMS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

During fiscal year 1999, the Committees on Ways and Means and Finance must hold hearings to review the implementation by States of the mandatory work requirements, and may introduce legislation to remedy any problems found.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

33. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—FAMILIES WITH NO MINOR CHILDREN

Present law

Only families with dependent children (under age 18, or 19 at State option if the child is still in secondary school or in the equivalent level of vocational or technical training) can participate in the program.

House bill

Only families with a minor child (who resides with a custodial parent or other adult caretaker relative of the child) or a pregnant individual may receive assistance under this part.

Senate amendment

Adds prohibition against assistance to a family in which an adult already has received 60 months of assistance attributable to Federal funds. See also item 41.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment. Conferees note that the 5-year time limit on benefits applies only to benefits provided using Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) Block Grant funds. Other Federal funds, such as Title XX Social Services Block Grants and support through the expanded Child Care and Development Block Grant, are not restricted for families that have already received 5 years of TANF support.

34. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—NO ADDITIONAL CASH ASSISTANCE FOR CHILDREN BORN TO FAMILIES RECEIVING ASSISTANCE

Present law

No provision.

House bill

1. Block grant funds may not be used to provide cash benefits for a child born to a recipient of cash welfare benefits or an individual who received cash benefits at any time during the 10-month period ending with the birth of the child. This prohibition does not apply to children born as a result of rape or incest. Block grant funds can be used to provide noncash (voucher) assistance for particular goods and services suitable for the care of the child.

2. States that pass a law specifically exempting their own programs from this national rule may use Federal funds to increase cash benefits for families that have additional children while on welfare.

3. If a State has a family cap policy under a section 1115 waiver on the date of enactment, it may continue terms of those family caps.

Senate amendment

1. Same family cap provision except that Senate amendment does not explicitly provide for use of block grant funds to give voucher assistance for care of the excluded child. (This provision was deleted because of the Byrd rule.)

2. Same.

3. Same provision, but adds permission for States to continue terms of family caps resulting from State law passed within 2 years of enactment.

Conference agreement

This provision was deleted due to the Byrd rule.

35. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—NONCOOPERATION IN CHLD SUPPORT

Present law

As a condition of eligibility, applicants or recipients must cooperate in establishing paternity of a child born out-of-wedlock, in obtaining support payments, and in identifying any third party who may be liable to pay for medical care and services for the child.

House bill

The State must stop paying the parent's share of the family welfare benefit if the parent fails to cooperate in establishing paternity, or in establishing, modifying or enforcing a child support order, and the individual does not qualify for a good cause or other exception; the State may deny benefits to the entire family for the parent's failure to cooperate.

Senate amendment

If a parent fails to cooperate in establishing paternity or in establishing, modifying, or enforcing a child support order, and the individual does not qualify for a good cause or other exception, the State shall reduce the family's benefit by at least 25 percent. It may reduce the benefit to zero.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

36. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—FAILURE TO ASSIGN CERTAIN SUPPORT RIGHTS TO THE STATE

Present law

As a condition of AFDC eligibility, applicants must assign child support and spousal support rights to the State.

House bill

Block grant funds may not be used to provide cash benefits to a family with an adult who has not assigned to the State rights to child support or spousal support.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

37. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—SCHOOL ATTENDANCE REQUIRED FOR ADULTS WITHOUT A DIPLOMA

Present law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Prohibits any TANF-funded assistance to the family of an adult older than 20 but younger than 51 who has received IV-A aid or food stamps if the person does not have, or is not working toward, a secondary school diploma or its equivalent. An exception is made for a person determined to lack the capacity to successfully complete the course of study.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

38. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—SCHOOL ATTENDANCE REQUIRED FOR MINOR CHILDREN

Present law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Prohibits any TANF-funded aid to a family that includes an adult who has received IV-A benefits or food stamps unless the adult ensures that the family's minor dependent children attend school as required by the law of their State.

Provides that a State shall not be prohibited from sanctioning a family with an adult who fails to meet this requirement.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

39. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—UNWED MINOR PARENT NOT ATTENDING HIGH SCHOOL OR NOT LIVING WITH AN ADULT

Present law

States may require unwed parents under age 18 to live with an adult in order to receive AFDC. They must require a custodial parent who is under 20 years old and who has not completed high school to participate in an educational activity under the JOBS program.

House bill

States have the option of using Federal funds to provide cash welfare payments to unmarried minors only under specified conditions. States may not use Federal family assistance grant funds to provide assistance to unwed parents under age 18 who have a child at least 12 weeks of age and did not complete high school unless they attend high school or an alternative educational or training program. States may not use Federal funds to provide assistance to unmarried parents under age 18 unless they live with a parent or in another adult-supervised setting; States may, under certain circumstances, use Federal funds to assist teen parents in locating and providing payment for a second chance home or other adult-supervised living arrangement.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

40. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—MEDICAL SERVICES

Present law

States must assure that family planning services are offered to all AFDC recipients who request them. (The Secretary is to reduce AFDC payments by 1 percent for failure to offer and provide family planning services to those requesting them.)

House bill

Federal family assistance grants may not be used to provide medical services; Federal funds may, however, be used to provide pre-pregnancy family planning services.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

41. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—TIME-LIMITED BENEFITS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Federal family assistance grants may not be used to provide assistance for the family of a person who has received block grant aid for 60 months (or fewer, at State option), whether or not consecutive. States may give hardship exemptions in a fiscal year to up to 20 percent of their average monthly caseload, including individuals who have been battered or subjected to sexual abuse (but States are not required to exempt these persons). When considering an individual's length of stay on welfare, States are to count only time during which the individual received assistance as the head of household or as the spouse of the household head. Any State funds spent to aid persons no longer eligible for TANF after 5 years of benefits may be counted toward the maintenance-of-effort requirement.

This part shall not be interpreted to prohibit a State from using State funds not originating with the Federal government to aid families that lose eligibility for the block grant program because of the 5-year time limit.

Senate amendment

Same, except adds an exemption from the time limit for persons who live on a reservation of an Indian tribe with a population of at least 1,000 persons and with at least 50 percent of the adult population not employed.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment on the time limit policy, and includes the Senate provision on exceptions for certain Indian populations and the House provision specifying States' authority to use State and local funds to provide support, including cash assistance, after 5 years. (For a description of other Federal funds that may be provided such families, see the conference agreement description of item 33 above.)

42. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—FRAUDULENT MISREPRESENTATION OF RESIDENCE IN TWO STATES

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Any person convicted in Federal court or State court of having fraudulently misrepresented residence in order to obtain benefits or services in two or more States from the family assistance grant, Medicaid, Food Stamps, or Supplemental Security Income programs is ineligible for family assistance grant aid for 10 years.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

43. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—FUGITIVE FELONS AND PROBATION AND PAROLE VIOLATORS

Present law

States may provide a recipient's address to a State or local law enforcement officer who furnishes the recipient's name and social security number and demonstrates that the recipient is a fugitive felon and that the officer's official duties include locating or apprehending the felon.

House bill

No assistance may be provided to an individual who is fleeing to avoid prosecution, custody or confinement after conviction for a crime (or an attempt to commit a crime) that is a felony (or, in New Jersey, a high misdemeanor), or who violates probation or parole imposed under Federal or State law.

Any safeguards established by the State against use or disclosure of information about individual recipients shall not prevent the agency, under certain conditions, from providing the address of a recipient to a law enforcement officer who is pursuing a fugitive felon or parole or probation violator. This provision applies also to a recipient sought by an officer not because he is a fugitive but because he has information that the officer says is necessary for his official duties. In both cases the officer must notify the State that location or apprehension of the recipient is within his official duties.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

44. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—MINOR CHILDREN ABSENT FROM HOME FOR A SIGNIFICANT PERIOD

Present law

Regulations allow benefits to continue for children who are "temporarily absent" from home.

House bill

No assistance may be provided for a minor child who has been absent from the home for 45 consecutive days or, at State option, between 30 and 180 consecutive days. States may establish a good cause exemption as long as it is detailed in the State report to the Secretary. No assistance can be given to a parent or caretaker who fails to report a missing minor child within five days of the time when it is clear (to the parent) that the child will be absent for the specified time.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

45. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—MEDICAL ASSISTANCE REQUIRED TO BE PROVIDED FOR FAMILIES BECOMING INELIGIBLE FOR ASSISTANCE DUE TO INCREASED EARNINGS OR COLLECTION OF CHILD SUPPORT

Present law

States must continue Medicaid (or pay premiums for employer-provided health insurance) for 6 months to a family that loses

AFDC eligibility because of hours of, or income from, work of the caretaker relative, or because of loss of the earned income disregard after 4 months of work. States must offer an additional 6 months of medical assistance, for which it may require a premium payment if the family's income after child care expenses is above the poverty guideline. For extended medical aid, families must submit specified reports. States must continue Medicaid for 4 months to those who lose AFDC because of increased child or spousal support.

House bill

States must provide medical assistance for 1 year to families that become ineligible for block grant assistance because of increased earnings, provided they received cash block grant assistance in at least 3 of the 6 months before the month in which they became ineligible and their income is below the poverty line. For purposes of determining family income to compare with the Federal poverty line, States have the authority to set their own definition of income except that income from the Earned Income Tax Credit must be disregarded. States also must provide medical assistance for 4 months to families that leave welfare (after being enrolled for at least 3 of the previous 6 months) because of increased income from child support or spousal support.

Senate amendment

Same as current law.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment, with the modification that income restrictions conform to current law. Transitional Medicaid coverage is extended through the life of the block grant.

46. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—MEDICAID

Present law

States must provide Medicaid to all AFDC recipients and to some AFDC-related groups who do not receive cash aid. Examples include persons who do not receive a monthly payment because the amount would be below $10 (Federal law prohibits payments this small) and persons whose payments are reduced to zero in order to recover previous overpayments.

States must continue Medicaid for specified periods for certain families who lose AFDC benefits. If the family loses AFDC benefits because of increased earnings or hours of employment, Medicaid coverage must be extended for 12 months. (During the second 6 months a premium may be imposed, the scope of benefits may be limited, or alternate delivery systems may be used.) If the family loses AFDC because of increased child or spousal support, coverage must be extended for 4 months. States are also required to furnish Medicaid to certain two-parent families whose principal earner is unemployed and who are not receiving cash assistance because the State has set a time limit on their AFDC coverage.

House bill

States must provide medical assistance to persons who would be eligible for AFDC cash benefits (under terms of July 16, 1996) if that program still were in effect.

A State may increase the AFDC income standard above that of July 16, 1996 by the percentage increase in the consumer price index for all urban consumers over the same period.

Senate amendment

States must provide medical assistance to persons who would be eligible for AFDC

(under terms of July 1, 1996) as if that program were still in effect. Simplifies standards to make it easier for States to administer. States would have the option to: (1) lower their income standard, but not below those in effect on May 1, 1988; and (2) use income and resource standards and methodologies that are less restrictive than those in effect on July 1, 1996.

In order to provide States additional flexibility, States may use 1 application form and may administer the program through either its title IV agency or its title XIX agency.

Families would receive transitional Medicaid benefits as under current law.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment, with the modification that States must retain the income and resource standards they had for AFDC eligibility on July 16, 1996. States may terminate Medicaid eligibility for an adult who is terminated from TANF because of failure to work. Conferees are concerned that the conference agreement may require States to maintain a dual-eligibility determination system. Conferees, however, lacked adequate information to determine the true nature and extent of this problem. Thus, conferees recommend that the Committees on Ways and Means, Commerce, and Finance conduct hearings in the next Congress to carefully examine this problem. If the committees determine that the dual-eligibility system does in fact impose additional administrative costs on the States, Congress should consider Federal-State cost-sharing schemes and other legislative solutions. In the meantime, conferees are establishing a fund of $5 billion in entitlement spending that will be distributed among States that experience additional administrative expenses directly attributable to conducting a dual-eligibility system.

47. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—STATE DISREGARD OF INCOME SECURITY PAYMENTS

Present law

AFDC benefits may not be paid to a recipient of old-age assistance (predecessor to Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and now available only in Puerto Rico, Guam, and the U.S. Virgin Islands), SSI, or AFDC foster care payments.

House bill

This provision allows States to disregard payments from old age and survivors' insurance (social security), disability insurance, old-age assistance, foster care, and Supplemental Security Income in determining the amount of block grant cash assistance to be provided to a family.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

48. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—NONDISCRIMINATION

Present law

No explicit provision in current AFDC/JOB law.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

States that have any program or activity that receives block grant funds for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families shall be subject to enforcement authorized under the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (sec. 504), and the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (Title VI).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

49. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS—DENIAL OF BENEFITS FOR CERTAIN DRUG-RELATED CONVICTIONS

Present law

No explicit provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

An individual convicted under Federal or State law of any crime related to illegal possession, use, or distribution of a drug is ineligible for any Federal means-tested benefit (for 5 years for a misdemeanor and for life for a felony). Family members or dependents of the individual are exempted, and individuals made ineligible would continue to be eligible for emergency benefits, including emergency medical services.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with the modification that only TANF block grant benefits and food stamps are denied and that the denial is only for a felony offense.

50. PENALTIES—USE OF GRANT IN VIOLATION OF THIS PART

Present law

If the Secretary finds that a State has failed to comply with the State plan, she is to withhold all payments from the State (or limit payments to categories not affected by noncompliance).

House bill

Note.—Before imposing any of the penalties below, the Secretary shall notify the State of the violation and allow the State to enter into a corrective action plan (item 60). Also, except for items 51 and 52, the Secretary may not impose a penalty if she finds that the State has reasonable cause for its failure to comply.

If an audit finds that a State has used Federal funds in violation of the purposes of this title, the Secretary shall reduce the following quarter's payment by the amount misused. If the State cannot prove that the misuse was unintentional, the State's following quarter payment will be reduced by an additional five percent.

Senate amendment

Same. See also item 57, Failure to Comply with Provisions of IV-A or State Plan.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

51. PENALTIES—FAILURE TO SUBMIT REQUIRED REPORT

Present law

There is no specific penalty for failure to submit a report, although the general non-compliance penalty could apply.

House bill

If a State fails to submit a required quarterly report within one month after the end of a fiscal quarter, the Secretary shall reduce by four percent the block grant amount otherwise payable to the State for the next fiscal year. However, the penalty shall be rescinded if the State submits the report before the end of the fiscal quarter succeeding the one for which the report was due.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

52. PENALTIES—FAILURE TO SATISFY MINIMUM PARTICIPATION RATES

Present law

If a State fails to achieve the JOBS participation rate specified in law, the Secretary is to reduce to 50 percent the Federal matching rate for JOBS activities and for full-time personnel costs, which now ranges from 60 percent to 78 percent among States. (However, see item 54, "Corrective Compliance," for penalty waiver authority.)

House bill

If a State fails to achieve its required work participation rate for the fiscal year, the Secretary shall reduce the following year's block grant by up to five percent, with the percentage cut based on the "degree of non-compliance." The Secretary has the authority to reduce the penalty if the State economy is in recession. In addition, failure to meet required work participation requirements results in States' being required to maintain 80 percent of historic spending levels, instead of 75 percent.

Senate amendment

Imposes a graduated penalty on each consecutive failure by a State to meet the work participation standard. The Senate amendment also does not authorize the Secretary to reduce the penalty for States with high unemployment.

Conference agreement

On penalty amounts, the conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with the modification that there is a graduated penalty of 5 percent the first year and 2 percent in addition to the prior year's penalty in subsequent years (so annual penalties in consecutive years would be 5 percent in the first year, 7 percent in the second, 9 percent in the third, and so on), with a maximum cumulative penalty of 21 percent. The conference agreement follows the House bill in authorizing the Secretary to reduce the penalty for needy States as defined under the contingency fund eligibility criteria.

53. FAILURE TO PARTICIPATE IN THE INCOME AND ELIGIBILITY VERIFICATION SYSTEM

Present law

States must have in effect an Income and Eligibility Verification System covering AFDC, Medicaid, unemployment compensation, the Food Stamp program, and adult cash aid in the outlying areas. There is no specific penalty for failure to comply.

House bill

If the State fails to participate in the Income and Eligibility Verification System (IEVS) designed to reduce welfare fraud, the Secretary shall reduce by up to two percent the annual family assistance grant of the State.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

54. FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT AND CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT REQUIREMENTS

Present law

The penalty against a State for noncompliance with child support enforcement rules—loss of AFDC matching funds—shall be suspended if a State submits and implements a corrective action plan.

House bill

If the Secretary determines that a State does not enforce penalties requested by the Title IV-D child support enforcement agency against recipients of cash aid who fail to cooperate in establishing paternity or in establishing, modifying, or enforcing a child support order under Title IV-D (and who do not qualify for any good cause or other exception), the Secretary shall reduce the cash assistance block grant by up to five percent.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

55. FAILURE TO TIMELY REPAY A FEDERAL LOAN FUND FOR STATE WELFARE PROGRAMS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

If a State fails to pay any amount borrowed from the Federal Loan Fund for State Welfare Programs within the maturity period, plus any interest owed, the Secretary shall reduce the State's family assistance block grant for the immediately succeeding fiscal year quarter by the outstanding loan amount, plus the interest owed on it. The Secretary may not forgive these overdue debts.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

56. FAILURE OF ANY STATE TO MAINTAIN CERTAIN LEVEL OF HISTORIC EFFORT

Present law

No provision.

House bill

If in fiscal years 1997 through 2001 a State fails to spend a sum equal to at least 75 percent of its "historic level" (generally fiscal year 1994 expenditures for AFDC, JOBS, Emergency Assistance, AFDC-related child care and "at-risk" child care) of State spending on specified programs, the Secretary shall reduce the following year's family assistance grant (that is, in fiscal years 1998 through 2002) by the difference between the 75 percent requirement and what the State actually spent. However, States that fail to meet required work participation rates must maintain 80 percent of historic spending levels.

Qualified State expenditures that count toward the 75 percent (or 80 percent) spending requirement are all State-funded expenditures under all State programs that provide any of the following assistance to families eligible for family assistance benefits (and those no longer eligible because of the 5-year time limit or ineligible because of the Act's treatment of noncitizens): cash and child care assistance; educational activities designed to increase self-sufficiency, job training and work (excluding any expenditure for public education in the State other than expenditures for services or assistance to a member of an eligible family that is not generally available to other persons); administrative costs not to exceed 15 percent of the total amount of qualified State expenditures; and any other use of funds reasonably calculated to accomplish purposes of the temporary family assistance. Qualified expenditures exclude spending from funds transferred from State or local programs except those that exceed the amount expended in 1996 or those for which the State is entitled to a Federal payment under former AFDC/JOBS law (as in effect just before enactment).

The Secretary is to reduce the 75 percent (or 80 percent) maintenance of effort spending requirement by up to eight percentage points (i.e., to no lower than 67 percent or 72 percent) for States that achieve "high performance" scores, based on a threshold to be set by the Secretary, for achieving the goals of the program of Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF).

Senate amendment

Raises required State spending to 80 percent of the "historic" level for all States. (Does not distinguish between States that meet or fail work participation rates in maintenance-of-effort rule.)

The Secretary is to reduce the 80 percent spending requirement by up to 8 percentage points (to as low as 72 percent) for States with high performance scores. (This provision was deleted because of the Byrd rule.)

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except that the provision allowing reduction of required State spending for high performance States is dropped. Conferees note that State spending on programs that promote self-sufficiency and prevent welfare dependence including, but not limited to, substance abuse treatment, teen parenting and pregnancy prevention shall count towards a State's maintenance of effort. The fact that such funds are spent through or by State or local education agencies should not prevent their being counted towards the State maintenance of effort.

57. SUBSTANTIAL NONCOMPLIANCE OF STATE CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

Present law

If a State child support program is found not to be in substantial compliance with Federal requirements, the Secretary is to reduce AFDC matching funds: by 1-2 percent for first finding of noncompliance, by 2-3 percent for second consecutive finding, and by 3-5 percent for third or subsequent finding. (See "corrective compliance" item 54.) Note: State child support plans must undertake to establish paternity of children born out-of-wedlock for whom AFDC is sought, and AFDC law requires the parent to cooperate in establishing paternity. Failure to cooperate makes the parent ineligible for AFDC.

House bill

If a State child support enforcement program is found by review not to have complied with Title IV-D requirements, and the Secretary determines that the program is not in compliance at the time the finding is made, then the Secretary will reduce the State's quarterly block grant payment for each quarter during which the State is not in compliance. For the first finding of non-compliance, the reduction will be between one and two percent; for the second consecutive finding, between two and three percent; for the third or subsequent findings, between three and five percent. Non-compliance of a technical nature is to be disregarded.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

58. FAILURE OF STATE RECEIVING AMOUNTS FROM CONTINGENCY FUND TO MAINTAIN 100 PERCENT OF HISTORIC EFFORT

Present law

Not relevant.

House bill

If the Secretary determines that a State failed to maintain 100 percent of historic

State spending, as required during a year in which contingency funds are paid to the State, the following year's block grant payment to the State is to be reduced by the amount of contingency funds paid.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

59. REQUIRED REPLACEMENT OF GRANT FUND REDUCTIONS CAUSED BY PENALTIES

Present law

Not applicable.

House bill

If a State's block grant is reduced as a result of one of the above penalties, the State must, during the following fiscal year, replace the penalized funds using State funds.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

60. PENALTIES—FAILURE TO PROVIDE MEDICAL ASSISTANCE TO FAMILIES BECOMING INELIGIBLE FOR ASSISTANCE UNDER THIS PART DUE TO INCREASED EARNINGS FROM EMPLOYMENT OR COLLECTION OF CHILD SUPPORT

Present law

If the Secretary finds that a State fails to comply substantially with any required provision of its Medicaid plan (including transitional benefits for former AFDC families), she shall withhold all payments to the State (or limit payments to categories not affected by the noncompliance).

House bill

If the Secretary determines that a State does not comply with the requirement to provide extended medical assistance for certain families that become ineligible for block grant assistance due to increased earnings or the collection of child support, the Secretary must reduce the State's block grant by up to 5 percent (depending on the severity of the violation).

Senate amendment

No specific provision about failure to comply with requirement for extended medical assistance, but see item below.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

61. PENALTIES—FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH PROVISIONS OF IV-A OR STATE PLAN

Present law

If the Secretary finds that a State has failed to comply with the State plan, she is to withhold all payments from the State (or limit payments to categories not affected by noncompliance). (Item 46 above.)

House bill

No general penalty for failure to comply with State plan.

Senate amendment

If the Secretary, after notice and hearing, finds that a State has not substantially complied with any provision of IV-A or the State plan during a fiscal year, she shall (if a preceding penalty paragraph does not apply) reduce the grant for the next year by up to 5 percent and shall continue an annual reduction of up to 5 percent until she determines that the State no longer is out of compliance.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, with the modification that a new penalty provision is added for States that fail to meet the requirement to not sanction, for failure to perform work, single parents who prove they cannot find child care for a child under age 6.

62. PENALTIES—FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH 5-YEAR LIMIT ON ASSISTANCE

Present law

Not relevant.

House bill

No specific provision.

Senate amendment

If the Secretary determines that a State during a fiscal year has not complied with the 5-year time limit (for TANF-funded aid), she is to reduce the basic TANF grant for the next year by 5 percent.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

63. PENALTIES—REASONABLE CAUSE EXCEPTION

Present law

Not applicable. (States are eligible for unlimited funds, but must match every dollar at a prescribed rate.)

House bill

The Secretary may (except for failure to timely repay the loan fund, failure to meet the maintenance-of-effort requirement and requirement to replace grant reductions caused by penalties) withhold penalties against a State if she determines that the State had reasonable cause for failing to comply with the requirement.

Senate amendment

The Secretary may (except for failure to timely repay the loan fund or failure to meet the maintenance-of-effort requirement) withhold penalties against a State if she determines that the State had reasonable cause for the failure.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

64. PENALTIES—CORRECTIVE COMPLIANCE PLAN

Present law

The penalty against a State for substantial noncompliance with child support rules is loss of AFDC matching funds. That penalty shall be suspended if a State submits and implements a corrective action plan. Also, if a State fails to achieve the JOBS participation rate specified in law, the Secretary may waive, in whole or part, the reduction in matching funds, provided the State has submitted a proposal likely to achieve the applicable participation rate for the current year.

House bill

Before assessing a penalty against a State under any program established or modified by this Act, the Secretary must notify the State of the violation and allow the State an opportunity to enter into a corrective compliance plan within 60 days of the notification. The Federal government will have 60 days within which to accept or reject the plan; if it accepts the plan, and if the State corrects the violation, no penalty will be assessed. A plan submitted by a State is deemed to be accepted if the Secretary does not accept or reject the plan during the 60-day period after the plan is submitted.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

65. PENALTIES—LIMITATION ON AMOUNT OF PENALTY

Present law

If the Secretary finds that a State has failed to comply with the State AFDC plan, he is to withhold all AFDC payments from the State (or limit payments to categories not affected by the noncompliance.)

House bill

In imposing the penalties described above, a State's quarterly family assistance grant cannot be reduced by more than a total of 25 percent; if necessary, penalties in excess of 25 percent will be carried forward to the immediately following fiscal year.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

66. APPEAL OF ADVERSE DECISION

Present law

Current law (sec. 1116 of the Social Security Act) entitles a State to a reconsideration, which HHS must grant upon request, of any disallowed reimbursement claim for an item or class of items. The section also provides for administrative and judicial review, upon petition of a State, of HHS decisions about approval of State plans. At the option of a State, any plan amendment may be treated as the submission of a new plan.

House bill

The Secretary is required to notify the Governor of a State within five days of any adverse decision or action under Title IV-A, including any decision about the State's plan or imposition of a penalty. This section provides for administrative review by a Departmental Appeals Board within HHS, requires a Board decision within 60 days after an appeal is filed, and provides for judicial review (by a United States district court) within 90 days after a final decision by the Board. The proposal also repeats the reference to Title IV-A in section 1116.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

67. DATA COLLECTION AND REPORTING—GENERAL REPORTING REQUIREMENT

Present law

States are required to report the average monthly number of families in each JOBS activity, their types, amounts spent per family, length of JOBS participation and the number of families aided with AFDC/JOBS child care services, the kinds of child care services provided, and sliding fee schedules. States that disallow AFDC for minor mothers in their own living quarters are required to report the number living in their parent's home or in another supervised arrangement. States also must report data (including numbers aided, types of families, how long aided, payments made) for families who receive transitional Medicaid benefits.

House bill

The National Integrated Quality Control System draws monthly samples of AFDC cases and reports extensive background information about each case in the sample. JOBS regulations require States to submit a sample of monthly unaggregated case record data.

Senate amendment

Each eligible State must collect on a monthly basis, and report to the Secretary on a quarterly basis, the following information on individual families receiving assistance:

1. the county of residence of the family;
2. whether a child receiving assistance or an adult in the family is disabled;
3. the ages of family members;
4. the number of individuals in the family, and the relationship of each member to the youngest child;
5. the employment status and earnings of the employed adult;
6. the marital status of adults, including whether they are never married, widowed, or divorced;
7. the race and educational status of each adult;
8. the race and educational status of each child;
9. whether the family received subsidized housing, Medicaid, food stamps, or subsidized child care, and if the latter two, the amount received;
10. the number of months the family has received each type of assistance under the program;
11. if the adults participated in, and the number of hours per week of participation in, the following activities: education; subsidized private sector employment; unsubsidized employment; public sector employment, work experience, or community service; job search; job skills training or on-the-job training; and vocational education;
12. information necessary to calculate the State work participation rates;
13. the type and amount of assistance received under the program, including the amount of and reason for any reduction of assistance (including sanctions);
14. any amount of unearned income received by any family member; and
15. the citizenship of family members.

In addition to data on individual cases, States must report, on a sample of cases closed during the quarter, whether families left welfare because of employment, marriage, the five-year time limit on benefits, sanction, or State policy.

States may use scientifically acceptable sampling methods approved by the Secretary to estimate the required data elements. The Secretary shall provide States with case sampling plans and data collection procedures deemed necessary for statistically valid estimates.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

68. OTHER STATE REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

Present law

Regulations require each State to submit quarterly estimates of the total amount (and the Federal share) of expenditures for AFDC benefits and administration. Required quarterly reports include estimates of the Federal share of child support collections made by the State.

House bill

The above quarterly report submitted by the State must also include:

1. a statement of the percentage of the funds paid to the State that is used to cover administrative costs or overhead;
2. a statement of the total amount expended by the State during the quarter on programs for needy families;
3. the number of noncustodial parents in the State who participated in work activities as defined in the proposal during the quarter; and

4. the total amount spent by the State for providing transitional services to a family that no longer receives assistance because of employment, along with a description of those services.

The Secretary shall prescribe regulations necessary to define the data elements.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

69. DATA COLLECTION AND REPORTING—ANNUAL REPORTS TO THE CONGRESS BY THE SECRETARY
Present law

The law requires the HHS Secretary to report promptly to Congress the results of State reevaluations of AFDC need standards and payment standards required at least every 3 years. The Secretary is to annually compile and submit to Congress annual State reports on at-risk child care. The Family Support Act requires the Secretary to submit recommendations regarding JOBS performance standards by a deadline that was extended.

House bill

Not later than 6 months after the end of fiscal year 1997, and each fiscal year thereafter, the Secretary shall send Congress a report describing:

1. whether States are meeting minimum participation rates and whether they are meeting objectives of increasing employment and earnings of needy families, increasing child support collections, and decreasing out-of-wedlock pregnancies and child poverty;
2. demographic and financial characteristics of applicant families, recipient families, and those no longer eligible for temporary family assistance;
3. characteristics of each State program funded under this part; and
4. trends in employment and earnings of needy families with minor children.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

70. DIRECT FUNDING AND ADMINISTRATION BY INDIAN TRIBES—GRANTS FOR INDIAN TRIBES
Present law

No provision for AFDC administration by Indian tribes. Indian and Alaska families with children receive AFDC benefits on the same terms as other families in their States, from State or local AFDC agencies.

More than 80 tribes and native organizations in 24 States are JOBS grantees, having applied to conduct JOBS within 6 months of enactment of the law establishing it. Their JOBS allocation of funds is deducted from that of their State.

House bill

For each fiscal year 1997 through 2000, the Secretary shall pay tribal family assistance grants to eligible Indian tribes (and shall reduce the family assistance grant for the State(s) in which the tribe's service area lies accordingly). The tribal family assistance grant is equal to the total amount of Federal payments to the State for fiscal year 1994 in AFDC benefits, AFDC Administration, Emergency Assistance, and JOBS funds for Indian families residing in the tribal service area. The Secretary shall pay tribes that participated in the JOBS program in fiscal year 1995 a grant equal to their fiscal year 1994

JOBS funding ($7.6 million). This sum is appropriated for each of six fiscal years, 1996 through 2001.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill, except for adding a fifth year, 2001, for tribal family assistance grants.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

71. DIRECT FUNDING AND ADMINISTRATION BY INDIAN TRIBES—THREE-YEAR TRIBAL FAMILY ASSISTANCE PLAN

Present law

Not applicable.

House bill

Indian tribes must submit a tribal family assistance plan to be eligible to receive a tribal family assistance grant. The plan must outline the tribe's approach to providing welfare services during the 3-year period, specify how services will be provided, identify populations and areas served, provide that families will not receive duplicate assistance from a State or other tribal assistance plan, identify employment opportunities in the service area, and apply fiscal accountability provisions of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act relating to the submission of a single-agency audit report required under current law.

The Secretary must approve tribal family assistance plans that meet the above requirements. For each tribe receiving a family assistance grant and with the participation of the tribe, the Secretary shall establish minimum work requirements, time limits, and penalties that are consistent with provisions of this Act and the economic conditions and resources of the tribe. Tribes will be subject to the same penalties as States for misusing funds, failing to pay back Federal loan funds, and failing to meet work participation rates. Tribes will also be required to abide by the same data collection and reporting requirements as States.

Unless excepted through a waiver, tribes in Alaska that receive tribal family assistance grants must operate a program comparable to the temporary family assistance program of the State of Alaska.

72. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—RESEARCH

Present law

Section 1110 of the Social Security Act authorizes and appropriates "such sums as the Congress may determine" for making grants and contracts to (or jointly financed arrangements with) States and public or private organizations for cooperative research or demonstration projects, such as those relating to the prevention and reduction of dependency.

House bill

The Secretary shall conduct research on the effects, benefits, and costs of operating State programs of Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, including time limits for eligibility. The research shall include studies on the effects of different programs and the impacts of the programs on welfare dependency, illegitimacy, teen pregnancy, employment rates, child well-being, and other appropriate issues.

73. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—DEVELOPMENT AND EVALUATION OF INNOVATIVE APPROACHES TO REDUCING WELFARE DEPENDENCY AND INCREASING CHILD WELL-BEING

Present law

Section 1115 of the Social Security Act authorizes waiver of specified provisions of AFDC law for State experimental, pilot or demonstration projects to promote objectives of the law, including self-support of parents and stronger family life.

House bill

The Secretary may assist States in developing, and shall evaluate, innovative approaches for reducing welfare dependency and increasing the well-being of minor children, using random assignments in these evaluations to the maximum extent feasible.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

74. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

75. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—ANNUAL RANKINGS OF STATES AND REVIEW OF MOST AND LEAST SUCCESSFUL WORK PROGRAMS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

The Secretary shall rank annually States receiving family assistance grants in the order of their success in moving families off welfare and into work, reducing the caseload, and, when a practicable method of calculation becomes available, diverting persons from applying to the program. The Secretary shall review annually the three most and three least successful programs under these criteria.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

76. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—ANNUAL RANKINGS OF STATES AND REVIEW OF ISSUES RELATING TO OUT-OF-WEDLOCK BIRTHS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

The Secretary shall rank States annually on the percentage of births to families on welfare that are out-of-wedlock and on net changes in the percentage of out-of-wedlock births to families on welfare. The Secretary must review the programs of the five highest and five lowest ranking States under these criteria.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

77. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—STATE-INITIATED EVALUATIONS

Present law

In a 1994 public notice, HHS stated that it is committed to a broad range of evaluation strategies, including true experimental, quasi-experimental, and qualitative designs, for demonstrations operating under waivers. Section 1115(d) of the Social Security Act required the Secretary to enter into agreements with up to eight applicant States to conduct demonstration projects testing more liberal treatment of unemployed 2-parent families. The law stipulated that the States must evaluate costs and work effort results by use of experimental and control groups.

House bill

A State is eligible to receive funding to evaluate its family assistance program if it submits an evaluation design determined by the Secretary to be rigorous and likely to yield credible and useful information. The State must pay 10 percent of the study's cost, unless the Secretary waives this rule.

Senate amendment

78. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—REPORT ON CIRCUMSTANCES OF CERTAIN CHILDREN AND FAMILIES

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Beginning 3 years after enactment, the Secretary shall submit an annual report to 4 congressional committees (Ways and Means, Economic and Educational Opportunities, Finance, and Labor and Human Resources) about children whose families reached the cash assistance time limit of TANF, families that include a child ineligible because of the family cap, children born to teenaged parents, and persons who became parents as teenagers after enactment. For each of these four groups, detailed information is required, including percentages that dropped out of school, are employed, have been convicted of a crime or judged delinquent, continue to participate in TANF, have health insurance (and whether from private entity or government), and average family incomes.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

79. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES—FUNDING OF STUDIES AND DEMONSTRATIONS

Present law

See "Research" above. For Section 1115(a) "waiver" projects ("Innovative Approaches" above) Federal cost neutrality over the life of a demonstration project is required.

Note: The annual budgets of HHS request funds for policy research. The fiscal year 1997 budget seeks $9 million and lists these priority issues: issues related to welfare reform, health care, family support and independence, poverty, at-risk children and youth, aging and disability, science policy, and improved access to health care and support services.

House bill

For research, development and evaluation of innovative approaches, State-initiated evaluation studies of the family assistance program, and for costs of operating and evaluating demonstration projects begun under the AFDC waiver process, this section authorizes to be appropriated, and appropriates, a total of $15 million annually for 6 fiscal years, 1996 through 2001. Half of this sum is allocated to the purposes described above in "Research" and "Innovative Approaches" and half to the other purposes.

The Secretary may implement and evaluate demonstrations of innovative and promising strategies that provide one-time capital funds to establish, expand, or replicate programs, test performance-based funding, and test strategies in multiple States and types of communities.

Senate amendment

Same, except provides funding only in 4 fiscal years, 1998 through 2001.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, with the modification to appropriate for the years 1996 through 2002.

80. CHILD POVERTY RATES

Present law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Not later than 90 days after enactment, the governor of a State shall submit to the Secretary a statement of the child poverty rate in the State. Annually thereafter, the governor shall report the child poverty rate to the Secretary. If the rate increases by 5 percent or more as a result of changes made by the Act, the State shall prepare a corrective action plan to reduce the incidence of child poverty.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment on the submission of reports on child poverty rates and the corrective action plans. The conference agreement follows the House bill on provisions in the Senate amendment that provide the Secretary of HHS with the authority to alter State plans.

81. STUDY BY THE CENSUS BUREAU

Present law

No provision.

House bill

The Census Bureau must expand the Survey of Income and Program Participation (SIPP) to evaluate the impact of welfare reforms made by this title on a random national sample of recipients and, as appropriate, other low-income families. The study should focus on the impact of welfare reform on children and families, and should pay particular attention to the issues of out-of-wedlock birth, welfare dependency, the beginning and end of welfare spells, and the causes of repeat welfare spells. $10 million per year for 7 years (1996–2002) is appropriated for this study.

Senate amendment

Same provision, except that the $10 million annual appropriation is for only 5 years (fiscal years 1998–2002).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

82. WAIVERS

Present law

Section 1115 of the Social Security Act authorizes the HHS Secretary to waive specified requirements of State AFDC plans in order to enable a State to carry out any experimental, pilot, or demonstration project that the Secretary judges likely to assist in promoting the program's objectives. Some 38 States have received waivers from the Clinton Administration for welfare reforms, as of late May 1996.

House bill

This section provides that terms of AFDC waivers in effect, or approved, as of September 30, 1995, will continue until their expiration, except that beginning with fiscal year 1996 a State operating under a waiver shall receive the block grant described under Section 403 in lieu of any other payment provided for in the waiver. The section also allows for continuation, under certain conditions of waivers on or approved before July 1, 1997, on the basis of applications made before enactment of the new program.

States have the option to terminate waivers before their expiration, but projects that are ended prematurely must be summarized in written reports. A State that submits a request to end a waiver within 90 days after the adjournment of the first regular session of the State legislature that begins after the date of enactment will be held harmless for accrued cost neutrality liabilities incurred under the waiver.

The Secretary is directed to encourage any State now operating a waiver to continue the project and to evaluate its result or effect. A State may elect to continue one or more individual waivers.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with the modification that such waivers may only apply to the geographical areas of the State and to the specific program features for which the waiver was granted. All geographical areas of the State and program features of the State program not specifically covered by the waiver must conform to this part. Conferees urge the Secretary to approve the Wisconsin comprehensive welfare reform waiver request (published in the Federal Register on June 10, 1996) by September 1, 1996.

83. ADMINISTRATION (AND REDUCTION IN FEDERAL WORKFORCE)

Present law

An Assistant Secretary for Family Support, appointed by the President by and with consent of the Senate, is to administer AFDC, child support enforcement, and the Jobs Opportunities and Basic Skills (JOBS) program.

House bill

The provision for an Assistant Secretary for Family Support now found in section 417 of Part A of the Social Security Act is retained but modified to remove the reference to the JOBS program, which is repealed.

No requirements to reduce workforce at HHS.

Senate amendment

The Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) block grant program and the child support enforcement program shall be administered by an Assistant Secretary for Family Support. The HHS Secretary must reduce the number of positions within the Department by 245 equivalent full-time equivalent (FTE) positions related to the conversion of AFDC, Emergency Assistance, and Jobs into TANF and by 60 FTE managerial positions. In general, it requires the Secretary to reduce by 75 percent the number of FTE positions that relate to any direct spending program, or any program funded through discretionary spending that is converted into a block grant program under the bill and to reduce FTE department management positions similarly (on the basis of the portion of the Department's total appropriation represented by programs converted to block grants).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

84. LIMITATION ON FEDERAL AUTHORITY

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

88. DEFINITIONS—INDIAN, INDIAN TRIBE, AND TRIBAL ORGANIZATION

Present law

For JOBS purposes, an Indian tribe is defined as any tribe, band, Nation, or other organized group of Indians that is recognized as eligible for special programs and services of the U.S. because of their status as Indians. An Alaska native organization is any organized group of Alaska natives eligible to operate a Federal program under P.L. 93-638 or that group's designee.

House bill

With the exception of specified Indian tribes in Alaska, these terms have the meaning given in the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act.

89. DEFINITIONS—STATE

Present law

For purposes of AFDC, the term "State" means the 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa. The last jurisdiction has not implemented AFDC.

House bill

Except as otherwise specifically provided (e.g., regarding the provision of population growth funds and contingency funds), the term "State" means the 50 States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the United States Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa.

Senate amendment

Same, except adds to this definition an option for a State to contract to provide services: The term "State" includes administration and provision of services under the family assistance program and under the programs of child welfare, foster care and adoption assistance, family preservation, and independent living, through contracts with charitable, religious or private organizations, and provision of aid by means of certificates, vouchers, or other forms of disbursement redeemable by these organizations. See item 92.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

90. ADDITIONAL GRANTS TO PUERTO RICO, THE VIRGIN ISLANDS, GUAM, AND AMERICAN SAMOA; LIMITATION ON TOTAL PAYMENTS

Present law

Under current law, the territories are eligible for 75 percent matching grants for their expenditures on cash welfare for adult assistance (i.e., assistance for needy persons who are aged, blind, or disabled). Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), Emergency Assistance (EA), Foster Care and Adoption Assistance, the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills (JOBS) program, and the Family Preservation program (Title IV-B, subpart 2). These matching grants are limited by caps on Federal payments. The territories also receive grants under the child welfare services (Title IV-B, subpart 1) program.

[Note.—Although eligible, territories do not claim foster care and adoption assistance funds.]

The law places a ceiling on total payments for AFDC, aid to needy aged, blind or disabled adults, and foster care and adoption assistance to Puerto Rico—$82 million, the Virgin Islands—$2.8 million, Guam—$3.8 million, and American Samoa (AFDC, foster care, and adoption assistance)—$1 million.

House bill

The proposal retains but increases aggregate welfare ceilings in each of the territories and combines the individual programs into a single block grant. The new ceilings would apply to aggregate spending for cash aid for needy families (TANF), cash aid to needy aged, blind or disabled adults, and child protection (child welfare and family preservation services). The proposal authorizes territories to transfer funds among these programs. Maximum potential fiscal year payments (including both the capped mandatory payments listed below and the authorization of discretionary grants) are as follows: Puerto Rico—$113.5 million; Guam—$5.2 million; U.S. Virgin Islands—$4.0 million; and American Samoa—$1.3 million.

To receive mandatory ceiling amounts (capped entitlements), territories must spend from their own funds in a fiscal year as much as they did in fiscal year 1995 for cash aid to needy families, and cash aid to needy aged, blind, or disabled adults. Federal matching funds, at a 75 percent rate, would reimburse territories for expenditures above their fiscal year 1995 base level, but below the Federal cap. Mandatory ceiling amounts: Puerto Rico—$105.5 million; Guam, $4.9 million; Virgin Islands, $3.7 million; and American Samoa, $1.1 million.

Senate amendment

The proposal retains but increases aggregate welfare ceilings in each of the territories and, in effect, combines all but IV-B services (child welfare services and family preservation) into a single block grant. The new ceilings would apply to aggregate spending for cash aid for needy families (TANF), cash aid to needy aged, blind, or disabled adults, and foster care and adoption assistance. The proposal authorizes territories to transfer funds among these programs.

To receive the new ceiling amounts (capped entitlements), territories must spend from their own funds in a fiscal year for cash aid to needy families and cash aid to needy aged, blind, or disabled adults. Federal matching funds, at a 75 percent rate, would reimburse them for expenditures above their fiscal year 1995 base level, but below the Federal cap. Mandatory ceiling amounts—Puerto Rico—$102 million; Guam, $4.7 million; Virgin Islands, $3.6 million; and American Samoa, $1 million. (Current law and funding arrangements are retained for IV-B programs.)

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment. The conference agreement adds a provision specifying that States may use Title XX funds to provide vouchers to families losing TANF block grant assistance due to a State-imposed family cap.

91. REPEAL OF PROVISIONS REQUIRING DISAPPROVAL OF MEDICAID PLANS OR DENIAL OF SAME MEDICAID PAYMENTS TO STATES THAT REDUCE WELFARE PAYMENT LEVELS

Present law

If a State reduces AFDC "payment levels" below those of May 1, 1988, the Secretary shall not approve the State's Medicaid plan.

If a State reduces AFDC payment levels below those of July 1, 1987, Medicaid matching funds shall be disallowed for required services to pregnant women and children not enrolled in AFDC but eligible for Medicaid on grounds of low income.

House bill

The House proposal repeals provisions that impose Medicaid sanctions upon States that reduce AFDC payment levels.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

92. SERVICES PROVIDED BY CHARITABLE, RELIGIOUS, AND PRIVATE ORGANIZATIONS

Present law

The Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG) Act prohibits use of any financial assistance provided through any grant or contract for any sectarian purpose or activity. In general, the CCDBG requires religious nondiscrimination, but it does allow a sectarian organization to require employees to adhere to its religious tenets and teachings.

House bill

The proposal authorizes States to administer and provide family assistance services (and services under SSI, the child protection block grant program, foster care, adoption assistance, and independent living programs) through contracts with charitable, religious, or private organizations. Under this provision, religious organizations would be eligible, on the same basis as any other private organization, to provide assistance as contractors or to accept certificates and vouchers so long as their programs are implemented consistent with the Establishment Clause of the Constitution. States may pay recipients by means of certificates, vouchers, or other forms of disbursement that are redeemable with such private organizations.

The proposal provides that, except as otherwise allowed by law, a religious organization administering the program may not discriminate against beneficiaries on the basis of religious belief or refusal to participate in a religious practice. States must provide an alternative provider for a beneficiary who objects to the religious character of the designated organization.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to preempt any provision of a State constitution or State statute that prohibits or restricts the expenditure of State funds in or by religious organizations.

Senate amendment

Same provision, except that administration by charitable, religious, and private organizations is authorized only for TANF and SSI.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

93. CENSUS DATA ON GRANDPARENTS AS PRIMARY CAREGIVERS FOR THEIR GRANDCHILDREN

Present law

No provision.

House bill

The Secretary of Commerce shall expand the Census Bureau's question (for the decennial census and the mid-decade census) concerning households with both grandparents and their grandchildren so as to distinguish between households in which a grandparent temporarily provides a home and those where the grandparent serves as primary caregiver.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

94. REPORT ON DATA PROCESSING

Present Law

No provision. (State child support plans may provide for establishment of a statewide automated data processing and information retrieval system.)

House bill

The Secretary must report to Congress within six months on the status of automatic data processing systems in the States and on what would be required to produce a system capable of tracking participants in public programs over time and checking case records across States to determine whether some individuals are participating in public programs in more than one State. The report should include a plan for building on the current automatic data processing system to produce a system capable of performing these functions as well as an estimate of the time required to put the system in place and the cost of the system.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

95. STUDY ON ALTERNATIVE OUTCOMES MEASURES

Present law

The Family Support Act required the Secretary to submit to Congress recommendations for JOBS performance standards regarding "specific measures of outcomes". It said the standards should not be measured solely by levels of activity or participation. (The report, due Oct. 1, 1993, was submitted 1 year late.)

House bill

The Secretary must, in cooperation with the States, study and analyze measures of program outcomes (as an alternative to minimum participation rates) for evaluating the success of State block grant programs in helping recipients leave welfare. The study must include a determination of whether outcomes measures should be applied on a State or national basis and a preliminary assessment of the job placement performance bonus established in the Act. The Secretary must report findings to the Committee on Finance and the Committee on Ways and Means not later than September 30, 1998.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

96. WELFARE FORMULA FAIRNESS COMMISSION

Present law

No provision. AFDC funds are not distributed by formula. States are entitled to reimbursement, at matching rates inversely related to their per capita income squared, for all AFDC benefits and AFDC-related child care spending (but not "at-risk" child care). Federal funds received by a State are a function of its AFDC benefit levels, caseloads, and matching rate.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Establishes a welfare formula fairness commission to make recommendations on funding formulas, bonus payments, and work requirements of the new TANF program. Commission is to have 15 members, 3 each appointed by the President, Senate Majority Leader, Senate Minority Leader, House Speaker, and House Minority Leader. It is to report to Congress by Sept. 1, 1998, either making recommendations for change or giving notice that none is needed.

Duties of the committee: identify and create unsubsidized jobs for TANF recipients; propose and implement solutions to work barriers; assess needs of the children and provide services to ensure that the children enter school ready to learn and stay in school. A primary responsibility of the committee shall be to help assure that parents who have obtained work retain their jobs. Activities may include counseling, emergency day care, sick day care, transportation, provision of clothing, housing assistance, or any other needed help. Not later than Oct. 1, 2002, the Secretary shall report to congress on the project results.

102. DISCLOSURE OF RECEIPT OF FEDERAL FUNDS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Under certain circumstances specified public funds received by nonprofit, tax-exempt 501(c) organizations, must be publicly disclosed. When a 501(c) organization that accepts Federal funds under the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act (other than those provided under Titles IV, XVI, and XX of the Social Security Act) makes any communication intended to promote public support or opposition to any governmental policy (Federal, State or local) through any broadcasting station, newspaper, magazine, outdoor advertising facility, direct mailing, or any other type of general public advertising, the communication must state: "This was prepared and paid for by an organization that accepts taxpayer dollars."

Senate amendment

Applies the fund disclosure rule to all Federal funds under the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act. (This provision was deleted because of the Byrd rule.)

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment (no provision as a result of the Byrd rule).

103. MODIFICATIONS TO THE JOB OPPORTUNITIES FOR CERTAIN LOW-INCOME INDIVIDUALS PROGRAMS

Present law

The Family Support Act of 1988 (Sec. 505) directed the Secretary to enter into agreement with between 5 and 10 nonprofit organizations to conduct demonstrations to create job opportunities for AFDC recipients and other low-income persons. For these projects, $6.5 million was authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year, 1990-1992.

House bill

The word "demonstration" is struck from the description of these projects; the projects are converted to grant status. The provision requires the Secretary to enter into agreements with nonprofit organizations to conduct projects that create job opportunities for recipients of family assistance and other persons with income below the poverty guideline. $25 million annually is authorized for these projects.

Present lawHouse bill

Provides for continued application of AFDC standards and methodologies for certain families, entitling them to Medicaid. Allows cost-of-living adjustments in income standards above level of July 16, 1996. See "Prohibitions; Requirements—Medicaid" above.

Senate amendment

Same except that States may use less restrictive income standards and methodologies than under current law.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

105. EFFECTIVE DATE; TRANSITION RULE

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Except as otherwise provided, this title and the amendments made by it take effect on July 1, 1997. Penalties (with the major exception of penalties for misuse of Federal family assistance grant funds) will not take effect until July 1, 1997, or six months after the State plan is received by the Secretary, whichever is later.

Within 90 days of enactment, the Secretary of HHS, the Commissioner of Social Security and other heads of appropriate agencies shall submit to appropriate congressional committees. Necessary technical and conforming amendments.

States may opt to begin their block grant program before July 1, 1997, in which case the State is entitled to receive no more than the State family assistance grant for the entire fiscal year; block grant payments will be made pro rata based on the number of days remaining in the fiscal year after the Secretary first received the State plan. The submission of a State plan is deemed to constitute the State's acceptance of the family assistance grant (including pro rata reductions for a partial fiscal year) and the termination of the individual entitlement to benefits under the AFDC program. Effective October 1, 1996, no individual or family shall be entitled to any benefits or services under any State plan under part A or F of Title IV of the Social Security Act (as in effect on September 30, 1995).

The amendments made do not apply with respect to powers, duties, penalties and other considerations applicable to aid, assistance or services provided before the effective date, or with respect to administrative actions and proceedings that commenced before the effective date. Federal and State officials may use scientifically acceptable statistical sampling techniques in closing out accounts. Each State shall complete the filing of all claims within 2 years after the date of enactment. The person serving as Assistant Secretary for Family Support within HHS on the day before the effective date of this title will continue to serve in that position until a successor is named, performing functions provided under current law and having powers and duties provided in Section 103 of this bill.

Subtitle A—Eligibility Restrictions

2. DENIAL OF SSI BENEFITS TO INDIVIDUALS FOUND TO HAVE FRAUDULENTLY MISREPRESENTED RESIDENCE IN ORDER TO OBTAIN BENEFITS SIMULTANEOUSLY IN 2 OF MORE STATES

Present law

Current law states that any person who knowingly and willfully makes or causes to be made any false statements or misrepresentations in applying for or continuing to receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments may be subject to a civil monetary penalty or be fined or imprisoned pursuant to title 18, U.S. Code.

House bill

Any person convicted in Federal court or State court of having fraudulently misrepresented residence in order to obtain benefits or services from two or more States under title IV, title XV, title XIX, or the Food Stamp Act of 1977, or benefits in 2 or more States from the SSI program, is ineligible for SSI benefits for 10 years. In addition, an official of the court in which the individual was convicted is required to notify the Commissioner of such conviction.

3. DENIAL OF SSI BENEFITS FOR FUGITIVE FELONS AND PROBATION AND PAROLE VIOLATORS

Present law

Current law provides safeguards which restrict the use or disclosure of information concerning SSI applicants or recipients to purposes directly connected with the administration of the SSI program or other federally-funded programs.

House bill

No individual who is fleeing to avoid prosecution, custody or confinement after conviction for a crime (or an attempt to commit a crime) that is a felony (or, in New Jersey, a high misdemeanor), or who violates probation or parole imposed under Federal or State, law shall be eligible for SSI benefits.

The Social Security Administration (SSA) shall furnish the current address, Social Security number, and photograph (if applicable) of a recipient to any Federal, State, or local law enforcement officer who is pursuing a fugitive felon or parole or probation violator. This provision applies also to a recipient sought by an officer because the recipient has information necessary to the officer's official duties.

Senate amendment

Identical to House Bill.

Conference agreement

4. TREATMENT OF PRISONERS

Implementation of Prohibition Against Payment of Benefits to Prisoners

Present law

Current law prohibits prisoners from receiving benefits while incarcerated. Federal, State, or county or local prisons are required to make available, upon written request, the name and Social Security account number of any individual who is confined in a penal institution or correctional facility and convicted of any crime punishable by imprisonment of more than 1 year.

House bill

The Commissioner shall enter into an agreement with any interested State or local institution (defined as a jail, prison, other correctional facility, or institution where the individual is confined due to court order) under which the institution shall provide monthly the names, Social Security account numbers, dates of birth, confinement dates, and other identifying information. The Commissioner shall pay to the institution for each eligible individual who becomes ineligible $400 if the information is provided within 30 days of the individual becoming an inmate. The payment is $200 if the information is furnished after 30 days but within 90 days.

In addition, the Computer Matching and Privacy Protection Act of 1988 shall not apply to the information exchanged pursuant to this contract.

The Commissioner is authorized to provide, on a reimbursable basis, information obtained pursuant to agreements to any Federal or federally assisted cash, food, or medical assistance program for eligibility purposes.

The dollar amounts paid to the institution shall be reduced by 50 percent if the Commissioner is also required to make a payment with respect to the same individual based on eligibility for Social Security disability insurance benefits.

Payments to institutions shall be made from funds otherwise available for the payment of benefits.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is similar to the House bill, however, it deletes all references to OASDI programs (due to Senate rule) and does not include the provision for the Commissioner to provide information to other Federal or federally assisted programs.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except that all OASDI references are deleted.

Elimination of OASDI Requirement that Confinement Stem From Crimes Punishable by Imprisonment for More Than 1 Year

Present law

House bill

Replaces "an offense punishable by imprisonment for more than 1 year" with "a criminal offense" and deletes other language. Effective for benefits payable more than 180 days after the date of enactment. It bars Social Security benefits from persons confined, throughout a month, to (1) a penal institution or (2) other institution if the person is found guilty but insane.

No provision, due to Senate rule.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment (i.e., no provision).

Study of Other Potential Improvements in the Collection of Information Respecting Public Inmates

Present law

No provision.

House bill

The Commissioner shall conduct a study of the desirability, feasibility, and cost of establishing a system for courts to furnish the Commissioner information regarding court orders and requiring that State and local jails, prisons, and other institutions enter into agreements with the Commissioner by means of an electronic or similar data exchange system. The report of this study shall be submitted to the responsible Committees not later than 1 year after enactment.

Not later than October 1, 1998, the Commissioner of Social Security shall provide to the responsible Committees of Congress a list of institutions that are and are not providing information to the Commissioner in accordance with these provisions.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is identical to the House bill except uses the term "contract" instead of "agreement."

There is no provision for the Commissioner to provide a list of institutions who are or are not in compliance with these provisions.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

5. EFFECTIVE DATE OF APPLICATION FOR BENEFITS

Present law

The application of an individual for SSI benefits is effective on the later of the date the application is filed or the date the individual first becomes eligible for such benefits.

House bill

Changes the effective date of application to the later of the first day of the month following the date the application is filed or the date the individual first becomes eligible for such benefits. The provision expands SSA's authority to issue an immediate cash advance to individuals faced with financial emergencies. Effective for applications filed on or after the date of enactment.

Conference agreement

Subtitle B—Benefits for Disabled Children

6. DEFINITION AND ELIGIBILITY RULES

Definition of Childhood Disability

Present law

There is no definition of childhood disability in the statute. Instead, the statute prescribes that an individual under age 18 shall be considered disabled for purposes of eligibility for SSI if that individual has an impairment or combination of impairments of "comparable severity" which would result in a work disability in an adult. This impairment or combination of impairments must be expected to result in death or to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months.

House bill

This section adds a new statutory definition of childhood disability: an individual under the age of 18 is considered as disabled if the individual has a medically determinable physical or mental impairment, which results in marked and severe functional limitations, and which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for at least a continuous period of not less than 12 months.

The Commissioner shall ensure that the combined effects of all physical or mental impairments of an individual are taken into account in determining whether an individual is disabled. In addition, the Commissioner shall ensure that the regulations prescribed by these provisions provide for the evaluation of children who cannot be tested because of their young age.

Senate amendment

Identical to House bill regarding the new definition of disability. The provision does not include language regarding combined impairments or evaluation of children who cannot be tested because of their young age.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment. The conferees intend that only needy children with severe disabilities be eligible for SSI, and the Listing of Impairments and other current disability determination regulations as modified by these provisions properly reflect the severity of disability contemplated by the new statutory definition. In those areas of the Listing that involve domains of functioning, the conferees expect no less than two marked limitations as the standard for qualification. The conferees are also aware that SSA uses the term "severe" to often mean "other than minor" in an initial screening procedure for disability determination and in other places. The conferees, however, use the term "severe" in its common sense meaning.

In addition, the conferees expect that SSA will properly observe the requirements of section 1614 (a)(3)(F) of the Social Security Act and ensure that the combined effects of all the physical or mental impairments of an individual under age 18 are taken into account in making a determination regarding eligibility under the definition of disability. The conferees note that the 1990 Supreme Court decision in Zebly established that SSA had been previously remiss in this regard. The conferees also expect SSA to continue to use criteria in its Listing of Impairments and in the application of other determination procedures, such as functional equivalence, to ensure that young children, especially children too young to be tested, are properly considered for eligibility of benefits.

The conferees recognize that there are rare disorders or emerging disorders not included in the Listing of Impairments that may be of sufficient severity to qualify for benefits. Where appropriate, the conferees remind SSA of the importance of the use of functional equivalence disability determination procedures.

Nonetheless, the conferees do not intend to suggest by this definition of childhood disability that every child need be especially evaluated for functional limitations, or that this definition creates a supposition for any such examination. Under current procedures for writing individual listings, level of functioning is an explicit consideration in deciding which impairment, with certain medical or other findings, is of sufficient severity to be included in the Listing. Nonetheless, the conferees do not intend to limit the use of functional information, if reflecting sufficient severity and is otherwise appropriate.

The conferees contemplate that Congress may revisit the definition of childhood disability and the scope of benefits, if deemed appropriate, and have provided elsewhere for studies on these issues.

Requests for Comments to Improve Disability Evaluation

Present law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Requires the Commissioner to request comments in the Federal Register regarding improvements to the disability evaluation and determination procedures for individuals under age 18 to ensure the comprehensive assessment of such individuals.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill (i.e., no provision).

Changes to SSI Childhood Regulations

Present law

Under the disability determination process for children, SSA first determines if a child meets or equals the "Listing of Impairments" in Federal regulations. Under the Listings that relate to mental disorders, maladaptive behavior may be scored twice, in domains of social functioning and of personal/behavior functioning.

Under the disability determination process for children, individuals who do not meet or equal the Listing of Impairments are subject to an "Individualized Functional Assessment" (IFA). This assessment is intended to determine whether, or to what extent, a child can engage in age-appropriate activities. If the child cannot, the child may be determined disabled.

House bill

The Commissioner of Social Security shall eliminate references in the Listing of Impairments to maladaptive behavior among medical criteria for evaluation of mental and emotional disorders in the domain of personal/behavioral function.

The Commissioner of Social Security shall discontinue use of the Individualized Functional Assessment for children set forth in the Code of Federal Regulations.

Medical Improvement Review Standard as it Applies to Individuals Under the Age of 18

Present law

This section contains technical modifications to the medical improvement review standard based on the new definition of childhood disability.

Senate amendment

Identical to the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

Effective dates

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Changes in eligibility rules apply to new applications and pending requests for administrative or judicial review on or after the date of enactment, without regard to whether regulations have been issued.

No later than 1 year after the date of enactment, the Commissioner shall reevaluate the eligibility of any child receiving benefits on the date of enactment who would lose eligibility under these provisions.

Benefits of current recipients will continue until their redetermination. Should a child be found ineligible, their benefits will end following redetermination.

No later than January 1, 1997, the Commissioner must notify individuals whose eligibility for SSI benefits will terminate.

The Commissioner must report to Congress within 180 days regarding progress made in implementing the SSI children's provisions.

The Commissioner shall submit final regulations to the Committees of jurisdiction of Congress for their review at least 45 days before they become effective.

Senate amendment

Identical to the House bill, except that benefits of current recipients will continue until the later of July 1, 1997, or the date of redetermination. The Senate amendment also includes language which authorizes and appropriates $300 million to remain available for fiscal year 1997-1999 for the Commissioner to conduct continuing disability reviews (CDRs) and redeterminations.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with modification to authorize additional administrative funding for SSA: $150 million for fiscal year 1997 and $100 million for fiscal year 1998, to conduct SSI CDRs and redeterminations. The funding of CDRs and redeterminations will follow the usual appropriation process, except that the amounts above a base funding level will not be subject to discretionary caps.

7. ELIGIBILITY REDETERMINATIONS AND CONTINUING DISABILITY REVIEWS

Present law

Current law specifies that the Commissioner must reevaluate under adult disability criteria the eligibility of at least one-third of SSI children who turn age 18 in each of the fiscal years 1996, 1997, and 1998 (the CDR must be completed before these children reach age 19) and report to Congress no later than October 1, 1998.

House bill

At least once every 3 years the Commissioner must conduct CDRs of children receiving SSI benefits. For children who are eligible for benefits and whose medical condition is not expected to improve, the requirement to perform such reviews does not apply (unless the Commissioner decides otherwise). At the time of review the parent or guardian must present evidence demonstrating that the recipient is and has been receiving appropriate treatment for her disability.

The eligibility for all children qualifying for SSI benefits must be redetermined using the adult criteria within 1 year after turning 18 years of age. The review will be considered a substitute for any other review required under the changes made in this section. The "minimum number of reviews" and the "sunset" provisions of section 207 of the Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994 are eliminated.

A review must be conducted 12 months after the birth of a child whose low birth weight is a contributing factor to the child's disability. At the time of review, the parent or guardian must present evidence demonstrating that the recipient is and has been receiving appropriate treatment for his disability.

Senate amendment

Identical to House bill.

8. ADDITIONAL ACCOUNTABILITY REQUIREMENTS

Disposal of Resources for Less Than Fair Market Value

Present law

No provision.

House bill

The bill delays eligibility for any child applicant whose parents or guardians, in order to qualify a child for benefits, dispose of assets for less than fair market value within 36 months of the date of application. The provision stipulates that any assets in a trust in which the child (i.e., parent or representative payee) has control shall be considered assets of the child and subject to the 36-month "look-back" rule. The delay (in months) is equal to the amount of assets divided by the SSI standard benefit. This provision is effective 90 days after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment (i.e., no provision).

Treatment of Assets Held in Trust

Present law

No provision. Under current operating policy, a trust is not considered a resource if the SSI recipient does not have the legal authority to access trust assets for his or her own food, clothing, or shelter.

House bill

Stipulates that in determining the resources of an individual under the age of 18, a revocable trust (i.e., the person has legal access to the assets of the trust) must be considered a resource available to the individual. In the case of an irrevocable trust, if there are any circumstances under which payment from the trust could be made to or for the benefit of the individual, then such payments are to be considered as resource available to the individual. The Commissioner of Social Security may waive these provisions if the Commissioner determines, on the basis of criteria prescribed in regulations, that such application would be an undue hardship on the individual.

Any earnings of, or additions to the principal of the trust would be considered income if they are available to the individual.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment (i.e., no provision).

Requirement to Establish Account

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Requires the representative payee (i.e., the parent) of an individual under the age of 18 to establish an account in a financial institution for the receipt of past-due SSI payments if the lump-sum payment amounts to more than 6 times the maximum monthly SSI payment (including any State supplement). A representative payee shall use the funds in the account for the following expenses: education or job skills training; personal needs assistance; special equipment or housing modifications related to the child's disability; medical treatment; appropriate therapy or rehabilitation; or any other item or service that the Commissioner determines is appropriate.

Once the account is established the representative payee may deposit any past-due benefits owed to the recipient and any other funds representing an SSI underpayment provided the amount is more than the maximum monthly SSI benefit payment.

The funds in these accounts would not be counted as a resource and the interest and other earnings on the account would not be considered income in determining SSI eligibility.

Senate amendment

Identical to House provision, except allows rather than mandates the representative payee to use the funds for allowable expenses.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

9. REDUCTION IN CASH BENEFITS PAYABLE TO INSTITUTIONALIZED INDIVIDUALS WHOSE MEDICAL COSTS ARE COVERED BY PRIVATE INSURANCE

Present law

Federal law stipulates that when individuals enter a hospital or other medical institution for which more than half of the bill is paid by the Medicaid program, their monthly SSI benefit is reduced to $30 per month. This personal needs allowance is intended to pay for small personal expenses, with the cost of maintenance and medical care provided by the Medicaid program.

House bill

Children in medical institutions whose medical costs are covered by private insurance would be treated the same as children whose bills are currently paid by Medicaid (that is, their monthly SSI cash benefit would be reduced to $30 per month).

Senate amendment

Identical to House bill.

Subtitle C—Additional Enforcement Provisions

11. INSTALLMENT PAYMENT OF LARGE PAST-DUE SSI BENEFITS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

If an individual is eligible for past-due benefits (after any withholding for reimbursement to a State for interim assistance) in an amount which exceeds 12 times the maximum monthly benefit payable to an eligible individual (currently $470) or couple (currently $705) (plus any State supplementary payments), benefits will be paid in 3 installments made at 6-month intervals. The first and second installments may not exceed 12 times the maximum monthly benefit payable. Installment caps may be extended by certain debt (food, clothing, shelter, or medically necessary services, supplies, or equipment, or medicine) or the purchase of a home. Installment payments shall not apply to individuals whose medical impairment is expected to result in death in 12 months or for an individual who is ineligible and is likely to remain ineligible for the next 12 months.

Senate amendment

Identical to House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

12. RECOVERY OF SSI OVERPAYMENTS FROM SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS

Present law

Generally, when an overpayment of Social Security benefits is made, recovery shall be made by adjusting future payments or by recovering the overpayment from the individual.

House bill

If the Commissioner is unable to recover the overpayment through future payment adjustments or direct recovery, the Commissioner may decrease any OASI or SSDI payment to the individual or their estate. As a result of this action, no individual may become eligible for SSI or eligible for increased SSI benefits.

Senate amendment

No provision (due to Senate rule).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment (i.e., no provision).

13. REGULATIONS

Present Law

No provision.

House bill

The Commissioner of Social Security and the Secretary of HHS will prescribe necessary regulations within 3 months after enactment.

Senate amendment

Identical to House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

14. REPEAL OF MAINTENANCE OF EFFORT REQUIREMENTS APPLICABLE TO OPTIONAL STATE PROGRAMS FOR SUPPLEMENTATION OF SSI

Present law

Since the beginning of the SSI program, States have had the option to supplement

(with State funds) the Federal SSI payment. Subsequently, Congress passed section 1618 of the Social Security Act which in effect requires States to maintain such optional payments or lose eligibility for Medicaid funds. The purpose of section 1618 of the Social Security Act was to encourage States to pass along to SSI recipients the amount of any Federal SSI benefit increase. Section 1618 allows States to comply with the "pass along/maintenance of effort" provision by either maintaining their State supplementary payment levels at or above March 1983, levels or by maintaining their supplementary payment spending so that total annual Federal and State expenditures will be at least equal to what they were in the prior 12-month period, plus any Federal cost-of-living increase, provided the State was in compliance for that period.

House bill

Repeals the maintenance of effort requirements in Section 1618 applicable to optional State programs for supplementation of SSI benefits, effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision, due to Senate rule.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment (i.e., no provision).

Subtitle D—Studies Regarding Supplemental Security Income Program

15. ANNUAL REPORT ON THE SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME PROGRAM

Present law

The Social Security Administration collects and publishes limited data on the SSI program.

House bill

The Commissioner of Social Security must prepare and provide to the President and the Congress an annual report on the SSI program, which includes specified information and data. The report is due May 30 of each year.

Senate amendment

Identical to the House bill, except stipulates the inclusion of historical and correct data on prior enrollment by public assistance recipients.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, modified by the Senate amendment.

16. STUDY OF DISABILITY DETERMINATION PROCESS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Within 90 days of enactment, the Commissioner must contract with the National Academy of Sciences or another independent entity to conduct a comprehensive study of the disability determination process for SSI and SSDI. The study must examine the validity, reliability and consistency with current scientific standards of the Listings of Impairments cited above. The study must also examine the appropriateness of the definitions of disability (and possible alternatives) used in connection with SSI and SSDI, and the operation of the disability determination process, including the appropriate method of performing comprehensive assessments of individuals under age 18 with physical or mental impairments. The Commissioner must issue interim and final reports of the findings and recommendations of the study within 18 months and 24 months, respectively, from the date of contract for the study.

Senate amendment

No provision, due to Senate rule.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment (i.e., no provision).

17. STUDY BY GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE

Present law

No provision.

House bill

No later than January 1, 1999, the Comptroller General of the United States must study and report on the impact of the amendments and provisions made by this bill, and extra expenses incurred by families of children receiving benefits not covered by other Federal, State, or local programs.

Senate amendment

Identical to House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

18. NATIONAL COMMISSION ON THE FUTURE OF DISABILITY

Present law

No provision.

House bill

This section establishes a new Commission on the future of disability.

The Commission must study all matters related to the nature, purpose and adequacy of all Federal programs for the disabled (and especially SSI and SSDI), including: projected growth in the number of individuals with disabilities; possible performance standards for disability programs; the adequacy of Federal rehabilitation research and training; and the adequacy of policy research available to the Federal government and possible improvements. The Commission must submit to the President and the proper Congressional committees recommendations and possible legislative proposals effecting needed program changes.

The Commission is to be composed of 15 members who are appointed by the President and Congressional leadership and who serve for the life of the Commission. Members are to be chosen based on their education, training or experience, with consideration for representing the diversity of individuals with disabilities in the U.S. The Commission membership will also reflect the general interests of the business and taxpaying community.

The Commission will have a director, appointed by the Chair, and appropriate staff, resources, and facilities.

The Commission may conduct public hearings and obtain information from Federal agencies necessary to perform its duties.

The Commission must issue an interim report to Congress and the President not later than 1 year prior to terminating. A final public report must be submitted prior to termination.

The Commission will terminate 2 years after first having met and named a chair and vice chair.

This section authorizes the appropriation of such funds as are necessary to carry out the purposes of the Commission.

Senate amendment

No provision, due to Senate rule.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment (i.e., no provision).

TITLE III: CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT

1. REFERENCE TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Unless otherwise specified, any reference in this title to an amendment to or repeal of a section or other provision is to the Social Security Act.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

Subtitle A—Eligibility for Services; Distribution of Payments

2. STATE OBLIGATION TO PROVIDE CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT SERVICES

Present law

States are required to establish paternity for children born out of wedlock if they are recipients of AFDC or Medicaid, and to obtain child and spousal support payments from noncustodial parents of children receiving AFDC, Medicaid benefits, or foster care maintenance payments. States must provide child support collection or paternity determination services to persons not otherwise eligible if the person applies for services. Federal law requires States to cooperate with other States in establishing paternity (if necessary), locating absent parents, collecting child support payments, and carrying out other child support enforcement functions. In cases in which a family ceases to receive AFDC, States are required to provide appropriate notice to the family and continue to provide child support enforcement services without requiring the family to apply for services or charging an application fee.

House bill

States must provide services, including paternity establishment and establishment, modification, or enforcement of support obligations, for children receiving benefits from the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families block grant (TANF), foster care maintenance payments, Medicaid, and any child of an individual who applies for services. States must enforce support obligations with respect to children in their caseload and the custodial parents of such children. States must also make child support enforcement services available to individuals not residing within the State on the same terms as to individuals residing within the State. States are not required to provide services to families if the State determines, taking into account the best interests of the child, that good cause and other exceptions exist. The provision also makes minor technical amendments to section 454 of the Social Security Act.

When a family ceases to receive benefits from the TANF block grant, States are required to provide appropriate notice to the family and continue to provide child support enforcement services without requiring the family to apply for services or charging an application fee.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

3. DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD SUPPORT COLLECTIONS

Present law

Federal law requires that child support collections be distributed as follows: First, up to the first $50 in current support is paid to the AFDC family (a "disregard" that does not affect the family's AFDC benefit or eligibility status). Second, the Federal and State governments are reimbursed for the AFDC benefit paid to the family in that month. Third, if there is money left, the family receives it up to the amount of the current month's child support obligation. Fourth, if there is still money left, the State keeps it to reimburse itself for any arrearages owed to it under the AFDC assignment (with appropriate reimbursement of the Federal share of the collection to the Federal government). If no arrearages are owed the State, the money is used to pay arrearages to the family; such moneys are considered income under the AFDC program and would reduce the family's AFDC benefit.

To receive AFDC benefits, a custodial parent must assign to the State any right to collect child support payments. This assignment covers current support and any arrearages that accumulated before the family began receiving public assistance, and lasts as long as the family receives AFDC.

Some States are required to provide monthly supplemental payments to AFDC recipients who have less disposable income now than they would have had in July 1975 because child support is paid to the child support agency instead of directly to the family. States required to make these supplemental payments are often referred to as "fill-the-gap" States. These States pay less assistance than their full need standard, and allow recipients to use child support income to make up all or part of the difference between the payment made by the State and the State's need standard.

House bill

Several changes in the distribution rules under current law are made by this section. The $50 passthrough to families on AFDC is ended. In addition, distribution law is changed so that, beginning October 1, 1997, collections on arrearages that accumulated during the period after the family leaves welfare are paid to the State if the money was collected through the tax intercept and to the family if collected by any other method. Distribution law is also changed so that beginning on October 1, 2000, arrearages that accumulated during the period before the family went on welfare are paid to the State if the money was collected through the tax intercept and to the family if collected by any other method. (Note: These new distribution rules require the assignment rules for pre-welfare arrearages to be changed so that families can be paid before States if the money was collected by a method other than the tax intercept; this change in assignment rules was made in Title I and will appear in Section 408(a)(3)(B) of the revised Social Security Act.)

By October 1, 1998, the Secretary must present a report to the Congress concerning whether post-assistance arrearages have helped mothers avoid welfare and about the effectiveness of the new distribution rules.

All assignments of support in effect when this proposal is enacted must remain in effect.

Several terms, including "assistance from the State", "Federal share", and "State share" are defined.

If States retain less money from collections than they retained in fiscal year 1995, States are allowed to retain the amount retained in fiscal year 1995.

If a State follows a "fill-the-gap" policy as outlined above, that State can continue to distribute funds to the family up to the amount needed to fill the gap. The provision also clarifies the relationship between gap payments and both the $50 passthrough and the State hold harmless provision.

Senate amendment

Same, except Senate adds provision that stipulates that in the case of a family receiving assistance from an Indian tribe, the State distribute any support collected in accordance with any cooperative agreement between the State and the tribe.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment with the modification that the House accepts the Senate provision on Indian tribes.

4. PRIVACY SAFEGUARDS

Present law

Federal law limits the use or disclosure of information concerning recipients of Child Support Enforcement Services to purposes connected with administering specified Federal welfare programs.

House bill

States must implement safeguards against unauthorized use or disclosure of information related to proceedings or actions to establish paternity or to establish or enforce child support. These safeguards must include prohibitions on release of information where there is a protective order or where the State has reason to believe a party is at risk of physical or emotional harm from the other party. This provision is effective October 1, 1997.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

5. RIGHT TO NOTIFICATION OF HEARING

Present law

Most States have procedural due process requirements with respect to wage withholding. Federal law requires States to carry out withholding in full compliance with all procedural due process requirements of the State.

House bill

Parties to child support cases under Title IV-D must receive notice of proceedings in which child support might be established or modified and must receive a copy of orders establishing or modifying child support (or a notice that modification was denied) within 14 days of issuance.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

Subtitle B—Locate and Case Tracking

6. STATE CASE REGISTRY

Present law

Federal law requires that wage withholding be administered by a public agency capable of documenting payments of support and tracking and monitoring such payments.

Federal law requires that child support orders be reviewed and adjusted, as appropriate, at least once every three years.

House bill

States must establish an automated State Case Registry that contains a record on each case in which services are being provided by the State agency, as well as each support order established or modified in the State on or after October 1, 1998.

The Registry may be established by linking local case registries of support orders through an automated information network.

The registry record will contain data elements on both parents, such as names, Social Security numbers and other uniform identification numbers, dates of birth, case identification numbers, and any other data the Secretary may require.

Each case record will contain the amount of support owed under the order and other amounts due or overdue (including interest or late payment penalties and fees), any amounts that have been collected and distributed, the birth date of any child for whom the order requires the provision of support, and the amount of any lien imposed by the State.

The State agency operating the registry will promptly establish, maintain, update and regularly monitor case records in the registry with respect to which services are being provided under the State plan. Establishing and updating support orders will be based on administrative actions and administrative and judicial proceedings and orders relating to paternity and support, as well as on information obtained from comparisons with Federal, State, and local sources of information, information on support collections and distributions, and any other relevant information.

The State automated system will be used to extract data for purposes of sharing and matching with Federal and State data bases and locator services, including the Federal Case Registry of Child Support Orders, the Federal Parent Locator Service, and Temporary Assistance for Needy Families and Medicaid agencies, as well as for conducting intrastate and interstate information comparisons.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

7. COLLECTION AND DISBURSEMENT OF SUPPORT PAYMENTS

Present law

No provision, but States may provide that, at the request of either parent, child support payments be made through the child support enforcement agency or the agency that administers the State's income withholding system regardless of whether there is an arrearage. States must charge the parent who requests child support services a fee equal to the cost incurred by the State for these services, up to a maximum of $25 per year.

House bill

By October 1, 1998, State child support agencies are required to operate a centralized, automated unit for collection and disbursement of payments on child support orders enforced by the child support agency and payments on orders issued after December 31, 1993 which are not enforced by the State agency but for which income is subject to withholding. The specifics of how States will establish and operate their State Disbursement Unit must be outlined in the State plan.

The State Disbursement Unit must be operated directly by the State agency, by two or more State agencies under a regional cooperative agreement, or by a contractor responsible directly to the State agency. The State Disbursement Unit may be established by linking local disbursement units through an automated information network if the Secretary agrees that the system will not cost more, take more time to establish, nor take more time to operate than a single State system. All States, including those that operate a linked system, must give employers one and only one location for submitting withheld income.

The Disbursement Unit must be used to collect and disburse support payments, to generate orders and notices of withholding to employers, to keep an accurate identification of payments, to promptly distribute money to custodial parents or other States, and to furnish parents with a record of the current status of support payments (but States are not responsible for records that predate passage of this legislation). The Unit shall use automated procedures, electronic processes, and computer-driven technology to the maximum extent feasible, efficient, and economical.

The Disbursement Unit must distribute all amounts payable within 2 business days after receiving money and identifying information from the employer or other source of periodic income, if sufficient information identifying the payee is provided. The Unit may retain arrearages in the case of appeals until they are resolved.

States must use their automated system to facilitate collection and disbursement including at least:

- (1) transmission of orders and notices to employers within 2 days after receipt of the withholding notice;
- (2) monitoring to identify missed payments of support; and
- (3) automatic use of enforcement procedures when payments are missed.

It is the sense of Congress that in establishing a centralized unit for the collection of support payments, a State should choose the method of compliance which best meets the needs of parents, employers, and children.

This section of the proposal will go into effect on October 1, 1998. States that process child support payments through local courts can continue court payments until September 30, 1999.

Senate amendment

Same, except Senate uses the term "wages" rather than "income" throughout this section. Senate amendment does not include the provision that States are not responsible for records that predate passage.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment with the modification that the term "income" rather than "wages" is used throughout this section. In addition, the House "sense of the Congress" language was deleted.

8. STATE DIRECTORY OF NEW HIRES

Present law

In general, no provision. Section 1128 of the Social Security Act is an antifraud provision which excludes individuals and entities that have committed fraud from participation in Medicare and State health care programs. Section 1128A pertains to civil monetary penalties and describes the appropriate procedures and proceedings for such penalties.

House bill

State plans must include the provision that by October 1, 1997 States will operate a Directory of New Hires.

Establishment. States are required to establish a State Directory of New Hires to which employers and labor organizations in the State must furnish a report for each newly hired employee, unless reporting could endanger the safety of the employee or compromise an ongoing investigation or intelligence mission as determined by the head of an agency. States that already have new hire reporting laws may continue to follow the provisions of their own law until October 1, 1998, at which time States must conform to Federal law.

Employer Information. Employers must furnish to the State Directory of New Hires the name, address, and Social Security number of every new employee and the name, address, and identification number of the employer. Multistate employers that report electronically or magnetically may report to the single State they designate; such employers must notify the Secretary of the name of the designated State. Agencies of the U.S. Government must report directly to the National Directory of New Hires (see below).

Timing of Report. Employers must report new hire information within 20 days of the date of hire. Employers that report new hires electronically or by magnetic tape must file twice per month; reports must be separated by not less than 12 days and not more than 16 days.

Reporting Format and Method. The report required in this section will be made on a W-4 form or the equivalent, and can be transmitted magnetically, electronically, or by first class mail. The decision of which reporting method to use is up to employers.

Civil Money Penalties on Noncomplying Employers. States have the option of setting a civil money penalty which shall be not less than $25 or $500 if, under State law, the failure is the result of a conspiracy between the employer and employee.

Entry of Employer Information. New hire information must be entered in the State data base within 5 business days of receipt from employer.

Information Comparisons. By May 1, 1998, each State Directory of New Hires must conduct automated matches of the Social Security numbers of reported employees against the Social Security numbers of records in the State Case Registry being enforced by the State agency and report the name, address, Social Security number, and the employer name, address, and identification number on matches to the State child support agency.

Transmission of Information. Within 2 business days of the entry of data in the registry, the State must transmit a withholding order directing the employer to withhold wages in accord with the child support order. Within 3 days, the State Directory of New Hires must furnish employee information to the National Directory of New Hires for matching with the records of other State case registries. The State Directory of New Hires must also report quarterly to the National Directory of New Hires information on wages and unemployment compensation taken from the quarterly report to the Secretary of Labor now required by Title III of the Social Security Act.

Other Uses of New Hire Information. The State child support agency must use the new hire information to locate individuals for purposes of establishing paternity as well as establishing, modifying, and enforcing child support obligations. New hire information must also be disclosed to the State agency administering the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, Medicaid, Unemployment Compensation, Food Stamp, SSI, and territorial cash assistance programs for income eligibility verification, and to State agencies administering unemployment and workers' compensation programs to assist determinations of the allowability of claims. State and local government agencies must participate in quarterly wage reporting to the State employment security agency unless the agency performs intelligence or counterintelligence functions and it is determined that wage reporting could endanger the safety of the employee or compromise an ongoing investigation or intelligence mission. States may disclose new hire information to agencies working under contract with the child support agency.

Disclosure to Certain Agents. States using private contractors are allowed to share information obtained from the Directory of New Hires with private entities working under contract with the State agency. Private contractors must comply with privacy safeguards.

Senate amendment

Same, except under "Other Uses of New Hire Information" Senate Amendment has no provision allowing States to share information with agencies working under contract with the State.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment with the modification that the House provision allowing private entities working under contract with child support agencies access to child support information is included.

9. AMENDMENTS CONCERNING INCOME WITHHOLDING

Present law

Since November 1, 1990, all new or modified child support orders that were being enforced by the State's child support enforcement agency have been subject to immediate income withholding. If the noncustodial parent's wages are not subject to income withholding (pursuant to the November 1, 1990 provision), such parent's wages would become subject to withholding on the date when support payments are 30 days past due. Since January 1, 1994, the law has required States to use immediate income withholding for nearly all new or modified support orders, regardless of whether a parent has applied for child support enforcement services. There are two circumstances in which income withholding does not apply: 1) one of the parents argues, and the court or administrative agency agrees, that there is good cause not to do so, or 2) a written agreement is reached between both parents which provides for an alternative arrangement. States must implement procedures under which income withholding for child support can occur without the need for any amendment to the support order or for any further action by the court or administrative entity that issued the order. States are also required to implement income withholding in full compliance with all procedural due process requirements of the State, and States must send advance notice to each nonresident parent to whom income withholding applies (with an exception for some States that had income withholding before enactment of this provision that met State due process requirements). States must extend their income withholding systems to include out-of-State support orders.

House bill

States must have laws providing that all child support orders issued or modified before October 1, 1996, which are not otherwise subject to income withholding, will become subject to income withholding immediately if arrearages occur, without the need for judicial or administrative hearing. State law must also allow the child support agency to execute a withholding order through electronic means and without advance notice to the obligor. Employers must remit to the State Disbursement Unit, in a format prescribed by the Secretary, income withheld within five working days after the date such amount would have been paid to the employee. Employers cannot take disciplinary action against employees subject to wage withholding. All child support orders subject to income withholding, including those which are not part of the State IV-D program, must be processed through the State Disbursement Unit. In addition, States must notify noncustodial parents that income withholding has commenced and inform them of procedures for contesting income withholding. Employers must follow the withholding terms and conditions stated in the order; if the terms and conditions are not specified employers should follow those of the State in which the obligor lives. The section includes a definition of income to be used in interstate withholding and several conforming amendments to section 466 of the Social Security Act.

Senate amendment

Same, except employers must remit income withheld to the State disbursement unit within 7 rather than 5 days. There are also minor wording differences in the rules relating to income withholding. There is also a difference in the House and Senate definitions of income.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment with the modifications that employers are given 7 days rather than 5 days to remit withheld income and that the House definition of income is followed. With respect to this provision, "timely-paid" is demonstrated by postmark, or in the case of electronic payment, the date the electronic transmission is proven to have been initiated by the employer.

10. LOCATOR INFORMATION FROM INTERSTATE NETWORKS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

All State and the Federal Child Support Enforcement agencies must have access to the motor vehicle and law enforcement locator systems of all States.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

11. EXPANSION OF THE FEDERAL PARENT LOCATOR SERVICE

Present law

The law requires that the Federal Parent Locator Service (FPLS) be used to obtain and transmit information about the location of any absent parent when that information is to be used for the purpose of enforcing child support. Federal law also requires departments or agencies of the United States to be reimbursed for costs incurred in providing requested information to the FPLS.

Information Comparisons and Other Disclosures. Upon request, the Secretary must provide to an "authorized person" (i.e., an employee or attorney of a child support agency, a court with jurisdiction over the parties involved, the custodial parent, the legal guardian, or the child's attorney) the most recent address and place of employment of any nonresident parent if the information is contained in the records of the Department of Health and Human Services or can be obtained from any other department or agency of the United States or of any State. The FPLS also can be used in connection with the enforcement or determination of child custody, visitation, and parental kidnapping. Federal law requires the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health and Human Services to enter into an agreement to give the FPLS prompt access to wage and unemployment compensation claims information useful in locating a non-custodial parent or his employer.

Fees. "Authorized persons" who request information from FPLS must be charged a fee.

Restriction on Disclosure and Use. Federal law stipulates that no information shall be disclosed if the disclosure would contravene the national policy or security interests of the United States or the confidentiality of Census data.

Quarterly Wage Reporting. The Secretary of Labor must provide prompt access by the Secretary of HHS to wage and unemployment compensation claims information and data maintained by the Labor Department or State employment security agencies.

House bill

The purposes of the Federal Parent Locator Service are expanded. For the purposes of establishing parentage, establishing support orders or modifying them, or enforcing support orders, the Federal Parent Locator Service will provide information to locate individuals who owe child support or against whom an obligation is sought or to whom such an obligation is owed. Information in the FPLS includes Social Security number, address, name and address of employer, wages and employee benefits (including information about health care coverage), and information about assets and debts. The provision also clarifies the statute so that parents with orders providing child custody or visitation rights are given access to information from the FPLS unless the State has notified the Secretary that there is reasonable evidence of domestic violence or child abuse or that the information could be harmful to the custodial parent or child.

The Secretary is authorized to set reasonable rates for reimbursing Federal and State agencies for the costs of providing information to the FPLS and to set reimbursement rates that State and Federal agencies that use information from the FPLS must pay to the Secretary.

Federal Case Registry of Child Support Orders. Establishes within the FPLS an automated registry known as the Federal Case Registry of Child Support Orders. The Federal Case Registry contains abstracts of child support orders and other information specified by the Secretary (such as names, Social Security numbers or other uniform identification numbers, and State case identification numbers) to identify individuals who owe or are owed support, or for or against whom support is sought to be established, and the State which has the case. States must begin reporting this information in accord with regulations issued by the Secretary by October 1, 1998.

National Directory of New Hires. This provision establishes within the FPLS a National Directory of New Hires containing information supplied by State Directories of New Hires. When fully implemented, the Federal Directory of New Hires will contain identifying information on virtually every person who is hired in the United States. In addition, the FPLS will contain quarterly data supplied by the State Directory of New Hires on wages and Unemployment Compensation paid. The Secretary of the Treasury must have access to information in the Federal Directory of New Hires for the purpose of administering section 32 of the Internal Revenue Code and the Earned Income Credit. The information for the National Directory of New Hires must be entered within 2 days of receipt, and requires the Secretary to maintain within the National Directory of New Hires a list of multistate employers that choose to send their report to one State and the name of the State so elected. The Secretary must establish a National Directory of New Hires by October 1, 1997.

Information Comparisons and Other Disclosures. The Secretary must verify the accuracy of the name, Social Security number, birth date, and employer identification number of individuals in the Federal Parent Locator Service with the Social Security Administration. The Secretary is required to match data in the National Directory of New Hires against the child support order abstracts in the Federal Case Registry at least every 2 working days and to report information obtained from matches to the State child support agency responsible for the case within 2 days. The information is to be used for purposes of locating individuals to establish paternity, and to establish, modify, or enforce child support orders. The Secretary may also compare information across all components of the FPLS to the extent and with the frequency that the Secretary determines will be effective. The Secretary will share information from the FPLS with several potential users including State agencies administering the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families program, the Commissioner of Social Security (to determine the accuracy of Social Security and Supplemental Security Income), and researchers under some circumstances.

Fees. The Secretary must reimburse the Commissioner of Social Security for costs incurred in performing verification of Social Security information and States for submitting information on New Hires. States or Federal agencies that use information from FPLS must pay fees established by the Secretary.

Restriction on Disclosure and Use. Information from the FPLS cannot be used for purposes other than those provided in this section, subject to section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code (confidentiality and disclosure of returns and return information).

Information Integrity and Security. The Secretary must establish and use safeguards to ensure the accuracy and completeness of information from the FPLS and restrict access to confidential information in the FPLS to authorized persons and purposes.

Federal Government Reporting. Each department of the U.S. must submit the name, Social Security number, and wages paid the employee on a quarterly basis to the FPLS. Quarterly wage reporting must not be filed for a Federal or State employee performing intelligence or counter-intelligence functions if it is determined that filing such a report could endanger the employee or compromise an ongoing investigation.

Conforming Amendments. This section makes several conforming amendments to Titles III and IV of the Social Security Act, to the Federal Unemployment Tax Act, and to the Internal Revenue Code. Among the more important are that: State employment security agencies are required to report quarterly wage information to the Secretary of HHS or suffer financial penalties and that private agencies working under contract to State child support agencies can have access to certain specified information from IRS records under some circumstances.

Requirement for Cooperation. The Secretaries of HHS and Labor must work together to develop cost-effective and efficient methods of accessing information in the various directories required by this title; they must also consider the need to ensure the proper and authorized use of wage record information.

Senate amendment

Same, except under "Information Comparisons and Other Disclosures" the Senate amendment drops the requirement that the Social Security Administration must determine the accuracy of payments under the Social Security and SSI programs.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment with the modification that the agreement follows the Senate provision dropping the requirement that the Social Security Administration determine the accuracy of Social Security and SSI payments.

12. COLLECTION AND USE OF SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBERS FOR USE IN CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT

Present law

Federal law requires that in the administration of any law involving the issuance of a birth certificate, States must require each parent to furnish their Social Security number for the birth records. The State is required to make such numbers available to child support agencies in accordance with Federal or State law. States may not place Social Security numbers directly on birth certificates.

House bill

States must have procedures for recording the Social Security numbers of applicants on the application for professional licenses, commercial driver's licenses, occupational licenses, and marriage licenses. States must also record Social Security numbers in the records of divorce decrees, child support orders, and paternity determination or acknowledgment orders. Individuals who die will have their Social Security number placed in the records relating to the death and recorded on the death certificate. There are several conforming amendments to title II of the Social Security Act.

Senate amendment

Same, except difference in conforming amendment to Social Security Act.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

Subtitle C—Streamlining and Uniformity of Procedures

13. ADOPTION OF UNIFORM STATE LAWS

Present law

States have several options available for pursuing interstate child support cases including direct income withholding, interstate income withholding, and long-arm statutes which require the use of the court system in the State of the custodial parent. In addition, States use the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA) and the Revised Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (RURESA) to conduct interstate cases. Federal law imposes a Federal criminal penalty for the willful failure to pay past-due child support to a child who resides in a State other than the State of the obligor. In 1992, the National Conference of Commissioners on State Uniform Laws approved a new model State law for handling interstate child support cases. The new Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA) is designed to deal with desertion and non-support by instituting uniform laws in all 50 States that limit control of a child support case to a single State. This approach ensures that only one child support order from one court or child support agency will be in effect at any given time. It also helps to eliminate jurisdictional disputes between States that are impediments to locating parents and enforcing child support orders across State lines. As of February 1996, 26 States and the District of Columbia had enacted UIFSA.

House bill

By January 1, 1998, all States must have enacted the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA) and any amendments officially adopted by the National Conference of Commissioners of Uniform State Laws before January 1, 1998, and have the procedures required for its implementation in effect. States are allowed flexibility in deciding which specific interstate cases are pursued by using UIFSA and which cases are pursued using other methods of interstate enforcement. States must provide that an employer that receives an income withholding order follow the procedural rules that apply to the order under the laws of the State in which the noncustodial parent works.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment with additional clarifying provisions that conferees agreed to include at the request of the National Conference of Commissioners of Uniform State Laws. The Commissioners asked conferees to make two changes in House and Senate provisions. More specifically, conferees agreed to drop language in the section on income withholding in interstate cases and to insert replacement language approved by the Commissioners. This provides specific instructions to employers for rules to follow in processing interstate cases. Employers following these instructions are also provided with legal immunity.

14. IMPROVEMENTS TO FULL FAITH AND CREDIT FOR CHILD SUPPORT ORDERS

Present law

Federal law requires States to treat past-due support obligations as final judgments that are entitled to full faith and credit in every State. This means that a person who has a support order in one State does not have to obtain a second order in another State to obtain support due should the debtor or parent move from the issuing court's jurisdiction. P.L. 103-383 restricts a State court's ability to modify a support order issued by another State unless the child and the custodial parent have moved to the State where the modification is sought or have agreed to the modification.

House bill

The provision clarifies the definition of a child's home State, makes several revisions to ensure that full faith and credit laws can be applied consistently with UIFSA, and clarifies the rules regarding which child support orders States must honor when there is more than one order.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

15. ADMINISTRATIVE ENFORCEMENT IN INTERSTATE CASES

Present law

No provision.

House bill

States are required to have laws that permit them to send orders to and receive orders from other States. The transmission of the order itself serves as certification to the responding State of the arrears amount and of the fact that the initiating State met all procedural due process requirements. In addition, each responding State must, without requiring the case to be transferred to their State, match the case against its data bases, take appropriate action if a match occurs, and send the collections, if any, to the initiating State. States must keep records of the number of requests they receive, the number of cases that result in a collection, and the amount collected. States must respond to interstate requests within five days.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

16. USE OF FORMS IN INTERSTATE ENFORCEMENT

Present law

No provision.

House bill

The Secretary of HHS, in consultation with State child support directors and not later than October 1, 1996, must issue forms that States must use for income withholding, for imposing liens, and for issuing administrative subpoenas in interstate cases. States must be using the forms by March 1, 1997.

Senate amendment

Same, except minor differences in wording.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

17. STATE LAWS PROVIDING EXPEDITED PROCEDURES

Present law

States must have procedures under which expedited processes are in effect under the State judicial system or under State administrative processes for obtaining and enforcing support orders and for establishing paternity.

Federal regulations provide a number of safeguards in expedited cases, such as requiring that the due process rights of the parties involved be protected.

The Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) of 1974 supersedes any and all State laws. Under ERISA a noncustodial parent's pension benefits can only be garnished or withheld if the custodial parent has a qualified domestic relations order. Similarly, a pension plan administrator is obligated to adhere to medical support requirements only if the custodial parent has a qualified medical child support order.

House bill

States must adopt a series of procedures to expedite both the establishment of paternity and the establishment, enforcement, and modification of support. These procedures must give the State agency the authority to take the following actions, subject to due process safeguards, without the necessity of obtaining an order from any other judicial or administrative tribunal:

(1) ordering genetic testing in appropriate cases;

(2) issuing subpoenas to obtain information necessary to establish, modify or enforce an order, with appropriate sanctions for failure to respond to the subpoena;

(3) requiring all entities in the State (including for-profit, nonprofit, and governmental employers) to provide information on employment, compensation and benefits of any employee or contractor in response to a request from the State IV-D agency or the IV-D agency of any other State, and to sanction failure to respond to such request;

(4) obtaining access to a variety of public and private records including: vital statistics, State and local tax records, real and personal property, occupational and professional licenses and records concerning ownership and control of corporations, partnerships and other business entities, employment security records, public assistance records, motor vehicle records, corrections records, and, subject to the nonliability of these private entities and the issuance of an administrative subpoena, information in the customer records of public utilities and cable TV companies, and records of financial institutions;

(5) directing the obligor or other payor to change the payee to the appropriate government entity in cases in which support is subject to an assignment or to a requirement to pay through the State Disbursement Unit;

(6) ordering income withholding in certain IV-D cases;

(7) securing assets to satisfy arrearages: by intercepting or seizing periodic or lump sum payments from States or local agencies including Unemployment Compensation, workers' compensation, judgements, settlements, lottery winnings, assets held by financial institutions, and public and private retirement funds; by attaching and seizing assets held in financial institutions; by attaching public and private retirement funds; and by imposing liens to force the sale of property; and

(8) increasing automatically the monthly support due to include amounts to offset arrears.

Expedited procedures must include the following rules and authority applicable with respect to proceedings to establish paternity or to establish, modify, or enforce support orders:

(1) Locator Information and Notice. Parties in paternity and child support actions must file and update information about identity, address, and employer with the tribunal and with the State Case Registry upon entry of the order. The tribunal can deem due process requirements for notice and service of process to be met in any subsequent action upon delivery of written notice to the most recent residential or employer address filed with the tribunal.

(2) Statewide Jurisdiction. The child support agency and any administrative or judicial tribunal have the authority to hear child support and paternity cases, to exert statewide jurisdiction over the parties, and to grant orders that have statewide effect; cases can also be transferred between local jurisdictions without additional filing or service of process.

Except to the extent that the provisions related to expedited procedures are consistent with requirements of the ERISA qualified domestic relations orders and the qualified medical child support orders, the expedited procedures do not alter, amend, modify, invalidate, impair or supersede ERISA requirements.

The automated systems being developed by States are to be used, to the maximum extent possible, to implement expedited procedures.

Senate amendment

Same, except for a modification that alters the nonliability of entities that share information with child support officials and eliminates the reference to administrative subpoenas.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment except that the agreement included the House provision strengthening the nonliability of entities that share information with child support officials.

Subtitle D—Paternity Establishment 18. STATE LAWS CONCERNING PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT

Present law

Establishment Process Available from Birth Until Age 18. Federal law requires States to have laws that permit the establishment of paternity until the child reaches age 18. As of August 16, 1984, these procedures would apply to a child for whom paternity has not been established or for whom a paternity action was brought but dismissed because of statute of limitations of less than 18 years was then in effect in the State.

Procedures Concerning Genetic Testing. Federal law requires States to implement laws under which the child and all other parties must undergo genetic testing upon the request of a party in contested cases.

Voluntary Paternity Acknowledgement. Federal law requires States to implement procedures for a simple civil process for voluntary paternity acknowledgment, including hospital-based programs.

Status of Signed Paternity Acknowledgement. Federal law requires States to implement procedures under which the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity creates a rebuttable presumption, or at State option, a conclusive presumption of paternity.

Bar on Acknowledgement Ratification Proceedings. Federal law requires States to implement procedures under which voluntary acknowledgment is admissible as evidence of paternity and the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity must be recognized as a basis for seeking a support order without requiring any further proceedings to establish paternity.

Admissibility of Genetic Testing Results. Federal law requires States to implement procedures which provide that any objection to genetic testing results must be made in writing within a specified number of days before any hearing at which such results may be introduced into evidence. If no objection is made, the test results must be admissible as evidence of paternity without the need for foundation testimony or other proof of authenticity or accuracy.

Presumption of Paternity in Certain Cases. Federal law requires States to implement procedures which create a rebuttable or, at State option, conclusive presumption of paternity based on genetic testing results indicating a threshold probability that the alleged father is the father of the child.

Default Orders. Federal law requires States to implement procedures that require a default order to be entered in a paternity case upon a showing of service of process on the defendant and any additional showing required by State law.

House Bill

Establishment Process Available from Birth Until Age 18. States are required to have laws that permit paternity establishment until at least age 18 (or a higher limit at State option) even in cases that were previously dismissed because a statute of limitations of less than 18 years was then in effect.

Procedures Concerning Genetic Testing. The child and all other parties, unless good cause provisions are met, must undergo genetic testing upon the request of a party if the request is supported by a sworn statement establishing a reasonable possibility of parentage or nonparentage. When the tests are ordered by the State agency, States must pay the costs, subject to recoupment at State option from the father if paternity is established. Upon the request and advance payment by the contestant, States must seek additional testing if the original test result is contested.

Voluntary Paternity Acknowledgement.

(1) Simple Civil Process. States must have procedures that create a simple civil process for voluntary acknowledging paternity under which benefits, rights, and responsibilities of acknowledgement are explained to unwed parents before the acknowledgement is signed.

(2) Hospital Program. States must have procedures that establish a paternity acknowledgement program through hospitals.

(3) Paternity Services. States must have procedures that require the agency responsible for maintaining birth records to offer voluntary paternity establishment services. The Secretary must issue regulations governing voluntary paternity establishment services, including regulations on State agencies that may offer voluntary paternity acknowledgement services and the conditions such agencies must meet.

(4) Affidavit. States must develop their own voluntary acknowledgment form but the form must contain all the basic elements of a form developed by the Secretary. States must give full faith and credit to the forms of other States.

Status of Signed Paternity Acknowledgement.

(1) Inclusion in Birth Records. States must include the name of the father in the record of births to unmarried parents only if the father and mother have signed a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity or a court or administrative agency has issued an adjudication of paternity.

(2) Legal Finding. States must have procedures under which a signed acknowledgement of paternity is considered a legal finding of paternity unless rescinded within 60 days or the date of a judicial or administrative proceeding to establish a support order.

(3) Contest. States must have procedures under which a paternity acknowledgment can be challenged in court only on the basis of fraud, duress, or material mistake of fact, with the burden of proof on the challenger.

Bar on Acknowledgement Ratification Proceedings. No judicial or administrative proceedings are required or permitted to ratify a paternity acknowledgment which is not challenged by the parents.

Admissibility of Genetic Testing Results. States must have procedures for admitting into evidence accredited genetic tests, unless any objection is made in writing within a specified number of days, and if no objection is made, clarifying that test results are admissible without the need for foundation or other testimony.

Presumption of Paternity in Certain Cases. States must have laws that create a rebuttable or, at State option, conclusive presumption of paternity when results from genetic testing indicate a threshold probability that the alleged father is the father of the child.

Default Orders. A default order must be entered in a paternity case upon a showing of service of process on the defendant and any additional showing required by the State law.

No Right to Jury Trial. State laws must state that parties in a contested paternity action are not entitled to a jury trial.

In addition to all the above provisions that strengthen similar provisions of current law, the Committee report contains a number of new provisions that have no direct parallel in current law. These include:

Temporary Support Based on Probable Paternity. Upon motion of a party, State law must require issuance of a temporary support order pending an administrative or judicial determination of parentage if paternity is indicated by genetic testing or other clear and convincing evidence.

Proof of Certain Support and Paternity Establishment Costs. Bills for pregnancy, childbirth, and genetic testing must be admissible in judicial proceedings without foundation testimony and must constitute prima facie evidence of the cost incurred for such services.

Standing of Putative Fathers. Putative fathers must have a reasonable opportunity to initiate a paternity action.

Filing of Acknowledgement and Adjudications in State Registry of Birth Records. Both voluntary acknowledgements and adjudications of paternity must be filed with the State registry of birth records for data matches with the central Case Registry of Child Support Orders.

National Paternity Acknowledgement Affidavit. The Secretary is required to develop, in consultation with the States, the minimum requirements of an affidavit which includes the Social Security number of each parent to be used by States for voluntary acknowledgement of paternity.

Senate amendment

Same, except under "Voluntary Paternity Acknowledgement," the Senate amendment includes good cause exceptions.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment with modification that the good cause exceptions are dropped.

19. OUTREACH FOR VOLUNTARY PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT

Present law

States are required to regularly and frequently publicize, through public service announcements, the availability of child support enforcement services.

House bill

States must publicize the availability and encourage the use of procedures for voluntary establishment of paternity and child support.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

20. COOPERATION BY APPLICANTS FOR AND RECIPIENTS OF TEMPORARY FAMILY ASSISTANCE

Present law

AFDC applicants and recipients are required to cooperate with the State in establishing the paternity of a child and in obtaining child support payments unless the applicant or recipient is found to have good cause for refusing to cooperate. Under the "good cause" regulations, the child support agency may determine that it is against the best interests of the child to seek to establish paternity in cases involving incest, rape, or pending procedures for adoption. Moreover, the agency may determine that it is against the best interest of the child to require the mother to cooperate if it is anticipated that such cooperation will result in the physical or emotional harm of the child, parent, or caretaker relative.

House bill

Individuals or their children who apply for or receive public assistance under the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) program or the Medicaid program must cooperate, as determined by the State child support agency, with State efforts to establish paternity and establish, modify, or enforce a support order. State procedures must require both that applicants and recipients provide specific identifying information about the other parent and that applicants appear at interviews, hearings, and legal proceedings, unless the applicant or recipient is found to have good cause for refusing to cooperate. States must have "good cause" exceptions and they must take into account the best interests of the child. The definition of good cause, and the determination of good cause in specific cases, can be accomplished by the State agency administering TANF, child support enforcement, or Medicaid. States also must require the custodial parent and child to submit to genetic testing. States may not require the noncustodial parent to sign an acknowledgement of paternity or relinquish the right to genetic testing as a condition of cooperation. The State child support agency must notify the agencies administering the TANF Block Grant and Medicaid programs if noncooperation is determined.

Senate amendment

Same, except imposes a penalty for noncooperation. If it is determined that an individual is not cooperating, and the individual does not qualify for any good cause or other exception, then the State must deduct not less than 25 percent of the Title IV-A assistance that otherwise would be provided to the family of the individual; and the State may deny the family any Title IV-A assistance. The Senate amendment also has references to Title XV not found in the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment except that the Senate penalty of 25 percent is included. This provision is included in Title I (Block Grants for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families) of the bill.

Subtitle E—Program Administration and Funding

21. PERFORMANCE-BASED INCENTIVES AND PENALTIES

Present law

Incentive Adjustments to Federal Matching Rate. The Federal government reimburses approved administrative expenditures of States at a rate of 66 percent. In addition, the Federal government pays States an incentive amount ranging from six percent to 10 percent of both AFDC and non-AFDC collections.

Conforming Amendments. No provision.

Calculation of IV-D Paternity Establishment Percentage. States are required to meet Federal standards for the establishment of paternity. The major standard relates to the percentage obtained by dividing the number of children in the State who are born out of wedlock, are receiving AFDC or child support enforcement services, and for whom paternity has been established by the number of children who are born out of wedlock and are receiving AFDC or child support enforcement services. To meet Federal requirements, this percentage in a State must be at least 75 percent or meet the following standards of improvement from the preceding year: (1) if the State paternity establishment ratio is between 50 and 75 percent, the State ratio must increase by 3 or more percentage points from the ratio of the preceding year; (2) if the State ratio is between 45 and 50, the ratio must increase at least 4 percentage points; (3) if the State ratio is between 40 and 45 percent, it must increase at least 5 percentage points; and (4) if the State ratio is below 40 percent, it must increase at least 6 percentage points. If an audit finds that the State's child support enforcement program has not substantially complied with the requirements of its State plan, the State is subject to a penalty. In accord with this penalty, the Secretary must reduce a State's AFDC benefit payment by not less than one percent nor more than 2 percent for the first failure to comply; by not less than 2 percent nor more than three percent for the second consecutive failure to comply; and by not less than three percent nor more than five percent for third or subsequent consecutive failure to comply.

House bill

Incentive Adjustments to Federal Matching Rate. The Secretary, in consultation with State child support directors, must develop a proposal for a new incentive system that provides additional payments to States (i.e., above the base matching rate of 66 percent) based on performance and report details of the new system to the Committees on Ways and Means and Finance by March 1, 1997. The Secretary's new system must be revenue neutral. The current incentive system remains effective for fiscal years beginning before 2000.

Conforming Amendments. Conforming amendments are made in Sections 458 of the Social Security Act.

Calculation of IV-D Paternity Establishment Percentage. States have the option of calculating the paternity establishment rate by either counting only unwed births in the State IV-D caseload or by counting all unwed births in the State. The IV-D paternity establishment percentage for a fiscal year is equal to: (1) the total number of children in the State who were born out-of-wedlock, and who receive services under Part A or, at State option, Part D, and for whom paternity is acknowledged or established during the fiscal year, divided by (2) the total number of children born out-of-wedlock who receive services under Part A or E or, at State option, Part D. The Statewide paternity establishment percentage is similar except that all out-of-wedlock births in the fiscal year in the State are in the denominator and all paternities established are in the numerator. The requirements for meeting the standard are the same as current law except the 75 percent rule is increased to 90 percent. States with a paternity establishment percentage of between 75 percent and 90 percent must improve their performance by at least two percentage points per year. The non-compliance provisions of the child support program are modified so that the Secretary must take overall program performance into account.

Senate amendment

Same, except minor wording difference in amendment of Section 452(g)(2).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

22. FEDERAL AND STATE REVIEW AND AUDITS*Present law*

States are required to maintain a full record of child support collections and disbursements and to maintain an adequate reporting system.

The Secretary must collect and maintain, on a fiscal year basis, up-to-date State-by-State statistics on each of the services provided under the child support enforcement program. The Secretary is also required to evaluate the implementation of State child support enforcement programs and conduct audits of these programs as necessary, but not less often than once every 3 years (or annually if a State has been found to be out of compliance with program rules).

House bill

States are required to annually review and report to the Secretary, using data from their automatic data processing system, both information adequate to determine the State's compliance with Federal requirements for expedited procedures and timely case processing as well as the information necessary to calculate their levels of accomplishment and rates of improvement on the performance indicators in the proposal.

The Secretary is required to determine the amount (if any) of incentives or penalties. The Secretary must also review State reports on compliance with Federal requirements and provide States with recommendations for corrective action. Audits must be conducted at least once every 3 years, or more often in the case of States that fail to meet Federal requirements. The purpose of the audits is to assess the completeness, reliability, and security of data reported for use in calculating the performance indicators and to assess the adequacy of financial management of the State program.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

23. REQUIRED REPORTING PROCEDURES*Present law*

The Secretary is required to assist States in establishing adequate reporting procedures and must maintain records of child support enforcement operations and of amounts collected and disbursed, including costs incurred in collecting support payments.

House bill

The Secretary is required to establish procedures and uniform definitions for State collection and reporting of information necessary to measure State compliance with expedited processes.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

24. AUTOMATED DATA PROCESSING REQUIREMENTS*Present law*

Federal law (P.L. 104-35) requires that by October 1, 1997, States have an operational automated data processing and information retrieval system designed to control, account for, and monitor all factors in the support enforcement and paternity determination process, the collection and distribution of support payments, and the costs of all services rendered.

The automated data processing system must be capable of providing management information on all IV-D cases from initial referral or application through collection and enforcement. The automated data processing system must also be capable of providing security against unauthorized access to, or use of, the data in such system. To establish these automated data systems, the Federal government provided States with a 90 percent matching rate for the costs of development. This enhanced matching money expired on October 1, 1995.

House bill

States are required to have a single State-wide automated data processing and information retrieval system which has the capacity to perform the necessary functions and with the required frequency, as described in this section. The State data system must be used to perform functions the Secretary specifies, including controlling and accounting for the use of Federal, State, and local funds and maintaining the data necessary to meet Federal reporting requirements in carrying out the program. The system must maintain the requisite data for Federal reporting, calculate the State's performance for purposes of the incentive and penalty provisions, and have in place systems controls to ensure the completeness, reliability, and accuracy of the data.

To promote security of information, the State agency must have safeguards to protect the integrity, accuracy, and completeness of, and access to and use of, data in the automated systems including restricting access to passwords, monitoring of access to and use of the system, conducting automated systems training, and imposing penalties for unauthorized use or disclosure of confidential data. The Secretary must prescribe final regulations for implementation of this section no later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act.

The statutory provisions for State implementation of Federal automatic data processing requirements are revised to provide that, first, all requirements enacted on or before the date of enactment of the Family Support Act of 1988 are to be met by October 1, 1997. The requirements enacted on or before the date of enactment of this proposal must be met by October 1, 1999. The October 1, 1999 deadline will be extended by one day for each day by which the Secretary fails to meet the 2-year deadline for regulations. The Federal government will continue the 90 percent matching rate for 1996 and 1997 in the case of provisions outlined in advanced planning documents submitted before September 30, 1995; the enhanced match is also provided retroactively for funds expended since expiration of the enhanced rate on October 1, 1995. For fiscal years 1996 through 2001, the matching rate for the provisions of this section will be 80 percent.

The Secretary must create procedures to cap payments to States to meet the new requirements at $400,000,000 over 6 years (fiscal years 1996-2001) to be distributed among States by a formula set in regulations which takes into account the relative size of State caseloads and the level of automation needed to meet applicable automatic data processing requirements.

Senate amendment

Same, except that requirements enacted after the Family Support Act must be met by October 1, 2000 (rather than October 1, 1999). Also, a difference in wording about payments in fiscal year 1998.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

25. TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE (AND FUNDING OF PARENT LOCATOR SERVICE)Present law

Annual appropriations are made to cover the expenses of the Administration for Children and Families, which includes the Federal Office of Child Support Enforcement (OCSE). Among OCSE's administrative expenses are the costs of providing technical assistance to the States.

House bill

The Secretary can use 1 percent of the Federal share of child support collections on behalf of families in the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families program the preceding year to provide technical assistance to the States. Technical assistance can include training of State and Federal staff, research and demonstration programs, special projects of regional or national significance, and similar activities. The Secretary will receive 2 percent of the Federal share of collections on behalf of TANF recipients the preceding year for operation of the Federal Parent Locator Service to the extent that costs of the Parent Locator Service are not recovered by user fees.

Senate amendment

Same, except the effective date is October 1, 1997.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment except that the House effective date is followed.

26. REPORTS AND DATA COLLECTION BY THE SECRETARY*Present law*

The Secretary is required to submit to Congress, not later than 3 months after the end of the fiscal year, a complete report on all child support enforcement activities.

House bill

In addition to current reporting requirements, the Secretary is required to report the following data to Congress in her annual report each fiscal year:

- (1) the total amount of child support payments collected;
- (2) the cost to the State and Federal governments of furnishing child support services;
- (3) the number of cases involving families that became ineligible for aid under part A with respect to whom a child support payment was received;
- (4) the total amount of current support collected and distributed;
- (5) the total amount of past due support collected and distributed; and
- (6) the total amount of support due and unpaid for all fiscal years.

The Secretary also must report the compliance, by State, with IV-D standards for responding to requests for child support assistance from other States and standards for distributing child support collections.

Senate amendment

Same, except minor difference in wording in amendment to Section 452(a)(10).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

27. CHILD SUPPORT DELINQUENCY PENALTY*Present law*

No provision.

House bill

States must impose an annual penalty of 10 percent on overdue support owed by non-custodial parents. The penalty is paid after the family has been repaid all arrearages and after the State has been repaid for welfare payments, if any, made to families.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment by dropping this penalty provision.

Subtitle F—Establishment and Modification of Support Orders

28. SIMPLIFIED PROCESS FOR REVIEW AND ADJUSTMENT OF CHILD SUPPORT ORDERS

Present law

A child support order legally obligates noncustodial parents to provide financial support for their child and stipulates the amount of the obligation and how it is to be paid. In 1984, P.L. 98-378 required States to establish guidelines for establishing child support orders. In 1988, P.L. 100-485 made the guidelines binding on judges and other officials who had authority to establish support orders. P.L. 100-485 also required States to review and adjust individual child support orders once every three years under some circumstances. States are required to notify both resident and nonresident parents of their right to a review.

House bill

States must review and, as appropriate, adjust child support orders at the request of the parents. In the case of orders being enforced against parents whose children are receiving benefits under Title IV-A of the Social Security Act, States may also review the order at their own option. No proof of change of circumstances is needed to initiate the review. States may adjust child support orders by either applying the State guidelines and updating the award amount or by applying a cost of living increase to the order. In the latter case, both parties must be given 30 days after notice of adjustment to contest the results. States may use automated methods to identify orders eligible for review, conduct the review, identify orders eligible for adjustment, and apply the appropriate adjustment to the orders based on the threshold established by the State. States are required to give parties one notice of their right to request review and adjustment, which may be included in the order establishing the support amount.

Senate amendment

Major differences in the review and adjustment provisions; the House makes reviews optional while the Senate retains mandatory 3-year reviews of IV-A cases as under current law; also other differences in wording.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment. The compromise provision preserves the mandatory review every 3 years if parents request a review but allows States some flexibility in reviewing child support cases in their welfare caseload.

29. FURNISHING CONSUMER REPORTS FOR CERTAIN PURPOSES RELATING TO CHILD SUPPORT

Present law

The Fair Credit Act requires consumer reporting agencies to include in any consumer report information on child support delinquencies provided by or verified by a child support enforcement agency, which antedates the report by 7 years.

House bill

This section amends the Fair Credit Reporting Act. In response to a request by the head of a State or local child support agency (or a State or local government official authorized by the head of such an agency), consumer credit agencies must release information if the person making the request makes all of the following certifications: that the consumer report is needed to establish an individual's capacity to make child support payments or determine the level of payments; that paternity has been established or acknowledged; that the consumer has been given at least 10 days notice by certified or registered mail that the report is being requested; and that the consumer report will be kept confidential, will be used solely for child support purposes, and will not be used in connection with any other civil, administrative, or criminal proceeding or for any other purpose. Consumer reporting agencies must also give reports to a child support agency for use in setting an initial or modified award.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

30. NONLIABILITY FOR FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS PROVIDING FINANCIAL RECORDS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Financial institutions are not liable to any person for information provided to child support agencies. Child support agencies can disclose information obtained from depository institutions only for child support purposes. There is no liability for disclosures that result from good faith but erroneous interpretation of this statute. However, individuals who knowingly disclose information from financial records can have civil actions brought against them in Federal district court; the maximum penalty is $1,000 for each disclosure or actual damages plus, in the case of willful disclosure resulting from gross negligence, punitive damages, plus the costs of the action. Definitions of "financial institution" and "financial record" are included in this section.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

Subtitle G—Enforcement of Support Orders
31. INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE COLLECTION OF ARREARAGES

Present law

If the amount of overdue child support is at least $750, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) can enforce the child support obligation through its regular collection process, which may include seizure of property, freezing accounts, or use of other procedures if child support agencies request assistance according to prescribed rules (e.g., certifying that the delinquency is at least $750, etc.)

House bill

The Internal Revenue Code is amended so that no additional fees can be assessed for adjustment to previously certified amounts for the same obligor.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

32. AUTHORITY TO COLLECT SUPPORT FROM FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

Present law

Federal law allows the wages of Federal employees to be garnished to enforce legal obligations for child support or alimony. Federal law provides that moneys payable by the United States to any individual are subject to being garnished in order to meet an individual's legal obligation to provide child support or make alimony payments. An executive order issued on February 27, 1995 establishes the Federal government as a model employer in promoting and facilitating the establishment and enforcement of child support. Under the terms of the Executive Order, all Federal agencies, including the Uniformed Services, are required to cooperate fully in efforts to establish paternity and child support and to enforce the collection of child and medical support. All Federal agencies are to review their wage withholding procedures to ensure that they are in full compliance. Beginning no later than July 1, 1995, the Director of the Office of Personnel Management must publish annually in the Federal Register the list of agents (and their addresses) designated to receive service of withholding notices for Federal employees. Federal law states that neither the United States nor any disbursing officer or government entity shall be liable with respect to any payment made from moneys due or payable from the United States pursuant to the legal process. Federal law provides that money that may be garnished includes compensation for personal services, whether such compensation is denominated as wages, salary, commission, bonus, pay, or otherwise, and includes but is not limited to, severance pay, sick pay, incentive payments, and periodic payments. Includes definitions of "United States", "child support", "alimony", "private person", and "legal process".

House bill

Consolidation and Streamlining of Authorities:

(1) Federal employees are subject to wage withholding and other actions taken against them by State child support enforcement agencies.

(2) Federal agencies are responsible for the same wage withholding and other child support actions taken by the State as if they were a private employer.

(3) The head of each Federal agency must designate an agent and place the agent's name, title, address, and telephone number in the Federal Register annually. The agent must, upon receipt of process, send written notice to the individual involved as soon as possible, but no later than 15 days, and to comply with any notice of wage withholding or respond to other process within 30 days. The agent also must respond to any order, process, or interrogatory about child support or alimony within 30 days after effective service of such requests.

(4) Current law governing allocation of moneys owed by a Federal employee is amended to give priority to child support, to require allocation of available funds, up to the amount owed, among child support claimants, and to allocate remaining funds to other claimants on a first-come, first-served basis.

(5) A government entity served with notice of process for enforcement of child support is not required to change its normal pay and disbursement cycle to comply with the legal process.

(6) Similar to current law, the U.S., the government of the District of Columbia, and disbursing officers are not liable for child support payments made in accord with this section; nor is any Federal employee subject to disciplinary action or civil or criminal liability for disclosing information while carrying out the provisions of this section.

(7) The President has the authority to promulgate regulations to implement this section as it applies to Federal employees of the Administrative branch of government; the President Pro Tempore of the Senate and Speaker of the House can issue regulations governing their employees; and the Chief Justice can issue regulations applicable to the Judicial branch.

(8) This section broadens the definition of income to include, in addition to wages, salary, commissions, bonus pay, allowances, severance pay, sick pay, and incentive pay, funds such as insurance benefits, retirement and pension pay (including disability pay if the veteran has waived a portion of retirement pay to receive disability pay), survivor's benefits, compensation for death and black lung disease, veteran's benefits, and workers' compensation; but to exclude from income funds paid to defray expenses incurred in carrying out job duties; amounts owed to the U.S. or used to pay Federal employment taxes, fines, or forfeitures ordered by court martial; and amounts withheld for tax purposes, for health insurance or life insurance premiums, for retirement contributions, or for life insurance premiums.

(9) This section includes definitions of "United States", "child support", "alimony", "private person", and "legal process".

Conforming Amendments. The House provision makes several conforming amendments to Title IV-D of the Social Security Act and Title 5 of the United States Code.

Military Retired and Retainer Pay. The definition of "court" in the Armed Forces title of the U.S. Code (title 10) is amended to include an administrative or judicial tribunal of a State which is competent to enter child support orders, and clarifies the definition of "court order." The Secretary of Defense is required to send withheld amounts for child support to the appropriate State Disbursement Unit. The provision also clarifies that military personnel who have never been married to the parent of their child are under jurisdiction of the State child support program and the terms of section 459 of the Social Security Act.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

33. ENFORCEMENT OF CHILD SUPPORT OBLIGATIONS OF MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES

Present law

Availability of Locator Information. The Executive Order issued February 27, 1995 requires a study which would include recommendations on how to improve service of process for civilian employees and members of the Uniformed Services stationed outside the United States.

Facilitating Granting of Leave for Attendance at Hearings. No provision.

Payment of Military Retired Pay in Compliance with Child Support Orders. Federal law requires allotments from the pay and allowances of any member of the uniformed service when the member fails to pay child (or child and spousal) support payments.

House bill

Availability of Locator Information. The Secretary of Defense must establish a central personnel locator service that contains residential or, in specified instances, duty addresses of every member of the Armed Services (including members of the Coast Guard, if requested). The locator service must be updated within 30 days of the time an individual establishes a new address. Information from the locator service must be made available upon request to the Federal Parent Locator Service.

Facilitating Granting of Leave for Attendance at Hearings. The Secretary of each military department must issue regulations to facilitate granting of leave for members of the Armed Services to attend hearings to establish paternity or to establish child support orders. The terms "court" and "child support" are defined.

Payment of Military Retired Pay in Compliance with Child Support Orders. Child support orders received by the Secretary do not have to have been recently issued. The Secretary of each branch of the Armed Forces (including retirees, the Coast Guard, the National Guard, and the Reserves) is required to make child support payments from military retirement pay directly to any State to which a custodial parent has assigned support rights as a condition of receiving public assistance. Payments to satisfy current support or child support arrears must be made from disposable retirement pay. Payroll deductions must begin within 30 days or the first pay period after 30 days of receiving a wage withholding order.

34. VOIDING OF FRAUDULENT TRANSFERS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

States must have in effect the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act of 1981, the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act of 1984, or an equivalent law providing for voiding transfers of income or property that were made to avoid payment of child support. States also must have in effect procedures under which the State must seek to void a fraudulent transfer or obtain a settlement in the best interest of the child support creditor.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

35. WORK REQUIREMENT FOR PERSONS OWING PAST-DUE CHILD SUPPORT

Present law

Public Law 100-485 required the Secretary to grant waivers to up to five States allowing them to provide JOBS services on a voluntary or mandatory basis to noncustodial parents who are unemployed and unable to meet their child support obligations. (In their report the conferees noted that the demonstrations would not grant any new powers to the States to require participation by noncustodial parents. The demonstrations were to be evaluated.)

House bill

States must have procedures under which the State has the authority to issue an order or request that a court or administrative process issue an order that requires individuals owing past-due child support for a child receiving assistance under the Temporary

Family Assistance program either to pay the support due, to have and be in compliance with a plan to pay child support, or to participate in work activities as deemed appropriate by the court or the child support agency. "Past-due support" is defined and a conforming amendment is made to sec. 466 of the Social Security Act.

Senate amendment

36. DEFINITION OF SUPPORT ORDER

Present law

No provision.

House bill

A support order is defined as a judgement, decree, or order (whether temporary, final, or subject to modification) issued by a court or an administrative agency for the support (monetary support, health care, arrearages, or reimbursement) of a child (including a child who has reached the age of majority under State law) or of a child and the parent with whom the child lives, and which may include costs and fees, interest and penalties, income withholding, attorney's fees, and other relief.

37. REPORTING ARREARAGES TO CREDIT BUREAUS

Present law

Federal law requires States to implement procedures which require them to periodically report to consumer reporting agencies the name of debtor parents owing at least 2 months of overdue child support and the amount of child support overdue. However, if the amount overdue is less than $1,000, information regarding it shall be made available only at the option of the State. Moreover, information may only be made available after the noncustodial parent has been notified of the proposed action and has been given reasonable opportunity to contest the accuracy of the claim against him. States are permitted to charge consumer reporting agencies that request child support arrearage information a fee that does not exceed actual costs.

House bill

States are required to periodically report to consumer credit reporting agencies the name of any noncustodial parent who is delinquent in the payment of support and the amount of overdue support owed by the parent. Before such a report can be sent, the obligor must have been afforded all due process rights, including notice and reasonable opportunity to contest the claim of child support delinquency.

38. LIENS

Present law

Federal law requires States to implement procedures under which liens are imposed against real and personal property for amounts of overdue support owed by a noncustodial parent who resides or owns property in the State.

House bill

States must have procedures under which liens arise by operation of law against property for the amount of overdue support. States must grant full faith and credit to liens of other States if the originating State agency or party has complied with procedural rules relating to the recording or serving of liens, except such rules cannot require judicial notice or hearing prior to enforcement of the lien.

39. STATE LAW AUTHORIZING SUSPENSION OF LICENSES

Present law

No provision.

40. DENIAL OF PASSPORTS FOR NONPAYMENT OF CHILD SUPPORT

Present law

No provision.

House bill

If an individual owes arrearages in excess of $5,000 of child support, the Secretary of HHS must request that the State Department deny, revoke, restrict, or limit the individual's passport. State child support agencies must have procedures for certifying to the Secretary arrearages in excess of $5,000 and for notifying individuals who are in arrears and providing them with an opportunity to contest. These provisions become effective on October 1, 1997.

Senate amendment

41. INTERNATIONAL CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT

Present law

No provision.

House bill

(1) The Secretary of State, with concurrence of the Secretary of HHS, is authorized to declare reciprocity with foreign countries having requisite procedures for establishing and enforcing support orders. The Secretary may revoke reciprocity if she determines that the enforcement procedures do not continue to meet the requisite criteria.

(2) The requirements for reciprocity include procedures in the foreign country for U.S. residents—available at no cost—to establish parentage, to establish and enforce support orders for children and custodial parents, and to distribute payments.

(3) An agency of the foreign country must be designated a central authority responsible for facilitating support enforcement and ensuring compliance with standards by both U.S. residents and residents of the foreign country.

(4) The Secretary in consultation with the States, may establish additional standards that she judges necessary to promote effective international support enforcement.

(5) The Secretary of HHS is required to facilitate enforcement services in international cases involving residents of the United States and of foreign reciprocating countries, including developing uniform forms and procedures, providing information from the FPLS on the State of residence of the obligor, and providing such other oversight, assistance, or coordination as she finds necessary and appropriate.

(6) Where there is no Federal reciprocity agreement, States are permitted to enter into reciprocal agreements with foreign countries.

(7) The State plan must provide that request for services in international cases be treated the same as interstate cases, except that no application will be required and no costs will be assessed against the foreign country or the obligee (costs may be assessed at State option against the obligor).

42. FINANCIAL INSTITUTION DATA MATCHES

Present law

No provision.

House bill

States are required to implement procedures under which the State child support agency must enter into agreements with financial institutions doing business within the State to develop and operate a data match system, using automated data exchanges to the maximum extent feasible, in which such financial institutions are required to provide for each calendar quarter the name, address, Social Security number, and other identifying information for each noncustodial parent identified by the State who has an account at the institution and owes past-due child support. In response to a notice of lien or levy, the financial institution must encumber or surrender assets held by the institution on behalf of the noncustodial parent who is subject to the child support lien. The State agency may pay a fee to the financial institution. The financial institution is not liable for activities taken to implement the provisions of this section. Definitions of the terms "financial institution" and "account" are included.

43. ENFORCEMENT OF ORDERS AGAINST PATERNAL OR MATERNAL GRANDPARENTS IN CASES OF MINOR PARENTS

Present law

House bill

With respect to a child of minor parents receiving support from the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families Block Grant, States have the option to enforce a child support order against the parents of the minor non-custodial parent.

Senate amendment

44. NONDISCHARGEABILITY IN BANKRUPTCY OF CERTAIN DEBTS FOR THE SUPPORT OF A CHILD

Present law

Although child support payments may not be discharged in a filing of bankruptcy (i.e., the debtor parent cannot escape her child support obligation by filing a bankruptcy petition), a bankruptcy filing may cause long delays in securing child support payments. Pursuant to P.L. 103-394, a filing of bankruptcy will not stay a paternity, child support, or alimony proceeding. In addition, child support and alimony payments will be priority claims and custodial parents will be able to appear in bankruptcy court to protect their interests without paying a fee or meeting any local rules for attorney appearances.

House bill

Title 11 of the U.S. Code and Title IV-D of the Social Security Act are amended to ensure that a debt owed to the State "that is in the nature of support and that is enforceable under this part" cannot be discharged in bankruptcy proceedings. This amendment applies only to cases initiated under Title 11 after enactment of this Act.

45. CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT FOR INDIAN TRIBES

Present law

There are about 340 federally recognized Indian tribes in the 48 contiguous States. Among these tribes there are approximately 130 tribal courts and 17 Courts of Indian Offenses. Most tribal codes authorize their courts to hear parentage and child support matters that involve at least one member of the tribe or person living on the reservation. This jurisdiction may be exclusive or concurrent with State court jurisdiction, depending on specified circumstances.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Any State that has Indian country may enter into a cooperation agreement with an Indian tribe if the tribe demonstrates that it has an established tribal court system with several specific characteristics. The Secretary may make direct payments to Indian tribes that have approved child support enforcement plans. Conforming amendments are included.

Subtitle H—Medical Support

46. CORRECTION TO ERISA DEFINITION OF MEDICAL CHILD SUPPORT ORDER

Present law

Public Law 103-66 requires States to adopt laws that require health insurers and employers to enforce orders for medical and child support and that forbid health insurers from denying coverage to children who are not living with the covered individual or who were born outside of marriage. Under Public Law 103-66, group health plans are required to honor "qualified medical child support orders."

House bill

This provision expands the definition of medical child support order in ERISA to clarify that any judgement, decree, or order that is issued by a court of competent jurisdiction or by an administrative process has the force and effect of law.

47. ENFORCEMENT OF ORDERS FOR HEALTH CARE COVERAGE

Present law

Federal law requires the Secretary to require IV-D agencies to petition for the inclusion of medical support as part of child support whenever health care coverage is available to the noncustodial parent at reasonable cost.

House bill

All orders enforced under this part must include a provision for health care coverage. If the noncustodial parent changes jobs and the new employer provides health coverage, the State must send notice of coverage, which shall operate to enroll the child in the health plan, to the new employer.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

SUBTITLE I—ENHANCING RESPONSIBILITY AND OPPORTUNITY FOR NON-RESIDENTIAL PARENTS

48. GRANTS TO STATES FOR ACCESS AND VISITATION PROGRAMS

Present law

In 1988, Congress authorized the Secretary to fund for fiscal year 1990 and fiscal year 1991 demonstration projects by States to help divorcing or never-married parents cooperate with each other, especially in arranging for visits between the child and the nonresident parent.

House bill

This proposal authorizes grants to States for access and visitation programs including mediation, counseling, education, development of parenting plans, and visitation enforcement. Visitation enforcement can include monitoring, supervision, neutral drop-off and pick-up, and development of guidelines for visitation and alternative custody agreements. An annual entitlement of $10 million is appropriated for these grants.

The amount of the grant to a State is equal to either 90 percent of the State expenditures during the year for access and visitation programs or the allotment for the State for the fiscal year. The allotment to the State bears the same ratio to the amount appropriated for the fiscal year as the number of children in the State living with one biological parent divided by the national number of children living with one biological parent. The Administration for Children and Families must adjust allotments to ensure that no State is allotted less than $50,000 for fiscal years 1997 or 1998 or less than $100,000 for any year after 1998. Projects are required to supplement rather than supplant State funds. States may use the money to create their own programs or to fund grant programs with courts, local public agencies, or nonprofit organizations. The programs do not need to be Statewide. States must monitor, evaluate, and report on their programs in accord with regulations issued by the Secretary.

Senate amendment

Same, except delays the effective date for 1 year.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment except that the House effective date is followed.

SUBTITLE J—EFFECTIVE DATES AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS
49. EFFECTIVE DATES AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Except as noted in the text of the House proposal for specific provisions, the general effective date for provisions in the proposal is October 1, 1996. However, given that many of the changes required by this proposal must be approved by State Legislatures, the proposal contains a grace period tied to the meeting schedule of State Legislatures. In any given State, the proposal becomes effective either on October 1, 1996 or on the first day of the first calendar quarter after the close of the first regular session of the State Legislature that begins after the date of enactment of the proposal. In the case of States that require a constitutional amendment to comply with the requirements of the proposal, the grace period is extended either for one year after the effective date of the necessary State constitutional amendment or five years after the date of enactment of the proposal. This section contains several conforming amendments to title IV-D of the Social Security Act. This section also replaces the term "absent parent" with "non-custodial parent" each place it occurs in title IV-D.

TITLE IV: RESTRICTING WELFARE AND PUBLIC BENEFITS FOR ALIENS

1. STATEMENTS OF NATIONAL POLICY CONCERNING WELFARE AND IMMIGRATION

Present law

No provision.

House bill

The Congress makes several statements concerning national policy with respect to welfare and immigration. These include the affirmation that it continues to be the immigration policy of the United States that noncitizens within the Nation's borders not depend on public resources, that noncitizens nonetheless have been applying for and receiving public benefits at increasing rates, and that it is a compelling government interest to enact new eligibility and sponsorship rules to assure that noncitizens become self-reliant and to remove any incentive for illegal immigration.

Senate amendment

Similar to House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

Subtitle A—Eligibility for Federal Benefits
2. ALIENS WHO ARE NOT QUALIFIED ALIENS INELIGIBLE FOR FEDERAL PUBLIC BENEFITS

Present law

Current law limits alien eligibility for most major Federal assistance programs, including restrictions on, among other programs, Supplemental Security Income, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, housing assistance, and Food Stamps programs. Current law is silent on alienage under, among other programs, school lunch and nutrition, the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), Head Start, migrant health centers, and the earned income credit. Under the programs with restrictions, benefits are generally allowed for permanent resident aliens (also referred to as immigrants and green card holders), refugees, asylees, and parolees, but benefits (other than emergency Medicaid) are denied to nonimmigrants (or aliens lawfully admitted temporarily as, for example, tourists, students, or temporary workers) and illegal aliens. Benefits are permitted under AFDC, SSI, unemployment compensation, and nonemergency Medicaid to other aliens permanently residing in the United States under color of law (PRUCOL).

House bill

Noncitizens who are "not qualified aliens" (generally, illegal immigrants and nonimmigrants such as students) are ineligible for all Federal public benefits, with limited exceptions for emergency medical services, emergency disaster relief, immunizations and testing and treatment of symptoms of communicable diseases, community programs necessary for the protection of life or safety, certain housing benefits (only for current recipients), licenses and benefits directly related to work for which a nonimmigrant has been authorized to enter the U.S. and certain Social Security retirement benefits protected by treaty or statute.

Federal public benefits include: any grant, contract, loan, professional license or commercial license, and any retirement, welfare, health, disability, food assistance, unemployment or similar benefit provided by an agency or appropriated funds of the United States.

Senate amendment

Similar to House, except that the exception for communicable diseases is limited to treatment of the disease itself and must be triggered by a finding by HHS that testing and treatment of a particular disease is necessary to prevent its spread.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

The allowance for treatment of communicable diseases is very narrow. The conferees intend that it only apply where absolutely necessary to prevent the spread of such diseases. This is only a stop-gap measure until the deportation of a person or persons unlawfully here. It is not intended to provide authority for continued treatment of such diseases for a long term.

The allowance for emergency medical services under Medicaid is very narrow. The conferees intend that it only apply to medical care that is strictly of an emergency nature, such as medical treatment administered in an emergency room, critical care unit, or intensive care unit. The conferees do not intend that emergency medical services include pre-natal or delivery care assistance that is not strictly of an emergency nature as specified herein.

The intent of the conferees is that title I, part A of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act would not be affected by section 401 because the benefit is not provided to an individual, household, or family eligibility unit.

3. LIMITED ELIGIBILITY OF QUALIFIED ALIENS FOR CERTAIN FEDERAL PROGRAMS

Present law

With the exception of certain buy-in rights under Medicare, immigrants (or aliens) lawfully admitted for permanent residence are eligible for major Federal benefits, but the ability of some immigrants to meet the needs tests for SSI, AFDC, and food stamps may be affected by the sponsor-to-alien deeming provisions discussed below. Refugees, asylees, and parolees also generally are eligible. Benefits are permitted under AFDC, SSI, unemployment compensation, and non-emergency Medicaid to other aliens permanently residing in the United States under color of law (PRUCOL).

House bill

Legal noncitizens who are "qualified aliens" (i.e., permanent resident aliens, refugees, asylees, aliens paroled into the United States for a period of at least 1 year, and aliens whose deportation has been withheld) are ineligible for SSI, Medicaid, and food stamp benefits until they attain citizenship, with exceptions noted below. States are given the option of similarly restricting Federal cash welfare and Title XX benefits for qualified aliens, with the exception of those who are receiving benefits on the date of enactment as described below.

Refugees, asylees, and aliens whose deportation has been withheld are excepted for 5 years after being granted their respective statuses. Also excepted are legal permanent residents who have worked (in combination with their spouse and parents) for at least 10 years, and noncitizens who are veterans or on active duty or their spouse or unmarried child.

To allow individuals time to adjust to the revised policy, otherwise restricted aliens who are receiving SSI, food stamps, cash welfare, Medicaid or Title XX benefits on the date of enactment would remain eligible for at most 1 year after enactment. However, if a review determines the noncitizen would be ineligible if enrolling under the revised standards for SSI, Medicaid, and food stamps (for example, because the noncitizen failed to qualify under the refugee or work exemptions) such benefits would cease immediately. States have the option of ending cash welfare and social services benefits for current recipients after January 1, 1997.

Senate amendment

Similar to House bill, except that Medicaid is included among the programs subject to State option rather than a blanket bar.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

4. FIVE-YEAR LIMITED ELIGIBILITY OF QUALIFIED ALIENS FOR FEDERAL MEANS-TESTED PUBLIC BENEFIT

Present law

See above.

House bill

The proposal restricts most Federal means-tested benefits (including SSI, food stamps, cash welfare, Medicaid, and title XX social services benefits) for permanent resident aliens who arrive after the date of enactment for their first 5 years in the United States. Programs that are not restricted to legal noncitizens arriving in the future include emergency medical services, non-cash emergency disaster relief, school lunch and child nutrition benefits, immunizations and testing and treatment for symptoms of communicable diseases, foster care and adoption payments under parts B and E of Title IV of the Social Security Act, community programs for the protection of life or safety, certain elementary and secondary education programs, Head Start, the Job Training Partnership Act, and higher education grants and loans.

Exceptions are made for refugees, asylees, aliens whose deportation is being withheld, and noncitizens who are veterans, on active duty, or the spouse or unmarried child of such an individual.

Senate amendment

Excepted programs are similar to the House with the following differences:

(1) benefits under Head Start Act and the Job Training Partnership Act are not excepted;

(2) the exception for foster care and adoption assistance is limited to Part E of Title IV of the Social Security Act;

(3) the exception for testing and treatment of communicable diseases is more limited and must be triggered by a finding by HHS that detection and treatment of a particular disease is necessary to prevent its spread; and

(4) includes an exception for education assistance under titles III, VII, and VIII of the Public Health Service Act.

Excepted classes are similar to House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and Senate amendment as follows.

(1) The definition of Federal Means Tested Public Benefit (defined as "a public benefit (including cash, medical, housing, and food assistance and social services) of the Federal Government in which the eligibility of an individual, household, or family eligibility unit for benefits, or the amount of such benefits, or both are determined on the basis of income, resources, or financial need of the individual, household, or unit") was deleted due to the Byrd rule. It is the intent of conferees that this definition be presumed to be in place for purposes of this title. (2) Regarding excepted programs, the conference agreement follows the House bill on testing and treatment of communicable diseases and by adding Head Start and the Job Training Partnership Act as excepted programs; the conference agreement adds refugee and entrant assistance as an excepted program; and the conference agreement follows the Senate amendment by adding education assistance under titles III, VII, and VIII of the Public Health Services Act as an excepted program.

5. NOTIFICATION AND INFORMATION REPORTING

Present law

Notification. Under regulation, individual advance written notice must be given of an intent to suspend, reduce, or terminate SSI benefits.

Information Reporting. AFDC and SSI restrict the use or disclosure of information concerning applicants and recipients to purposes connected to the administration of needs-based Federal programs.

House bill

Each Federal agency that administers an affected program shall post information and provide general notification to the public and to program recipients of changes regarding eligibility.

Agencies that administer SSI, housing assistance programs under the United States Housing Act of 1937, or block grants for temporary assistance for needy families (the successor program to AFDC) are required to furnish information about aliens they know to be unlawfully in the United States to the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) at least four times annually and upon INS request.

Senate amendment

Similar to House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

Subtitle B—Eligibility for State and Local Public Benefits Programs

6. ALIENS WHO ARE NOT QUALIFIED ALIENS OR NONIMMIGRANTS INELIGIBLE FOR STATE AND LOCAL PUBLIC BENEFITS

Present law

Under Plyler vs. Doe (457 U.S. 202 (1982)), States may not deny illegal alien children access to a public elementary education without authorization from Congress. However, the narrow 5-4 Supreme Court decision may imply that illegal aliens may be denied at least some State benefits and that Congress may influence the eligibility of illegal aliens for State benefits. Many, but not all, State general assistance laws currently deny illegal aliens means-tested general assistance.

House bill

Illegal aliens are ineligible for all State and local public benefits, with limited exceptions for emergency medical services, emergency disaster relief, immunizations and testing and treatment for symptoms of communicable diseases, and programs necessary for the protection of life or safety. States may, however, pass laws after the date of enactment that specify that illegal aliens may be eligible for certain State or local benefits that otherwise would be denied under this section.

Senate amendment

Similar to House bill, except that the exception for communicable diseases is more limited and must be triggered by a finding by HHS that testing and treatment of a particular disease is necessary to prevent its spread.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

No current State law, State constitutional provision, State executive order or decision of any State or Federal court shall provide a sufficient basis for a State to be relieved of the requirement to deny benefits to illegal aliens. Laws, ordinances, or executive orders passed by county, city or other local officials will not allow those entities to provide benefits to illegal aliens. Only the affirmative enactment of a law by a State legislature and signed by the Governor after the date of enactment of this Act, that references this provision, will meet the requirements of this section.

The phrase "affirmatively provides for such eligibility" means that the State law enacted must specify that illegal aliens are eligible for State or local benefits. Persons residing under color of law shall be considered to be aliens unlawfully present in the United States and are prohibited from receiving State or local benefits, as defined, regardless of the enactment of any State law.

The conference agreement provides that no State or local government entity shall prohibit, or in any way restrict, any entity or official from sending to or receiving from the INS information regarding the immigration status of an alien or the presence, whereabouts, or activities of illegal aliens. It does not require, in and of itself, any government agency or law enforcement official to communicate with the INS.

The conferees intend to give State and local officials the authority to communicate with the INS regarding the presence, whereabouts, or activities of illegal aliens. This provision is designed to prevent any State or local law, ordinance, executive order, policy, constitutional provision, or decision of any Federal or State court that prohibits or in any way restricts any communication between State and local officials and the INS. The conferees believe that immigration law enforcement is as high a priority as other aspects of Federal law enforcement, and that illegal aliens do not have the right to remain in the United States undetected and unapprehended.

7. STATE AUTHORITY TO LIMIT ELIGIBILITY OF QUALIFIED ALIENS FOR STATE PUBLIC BENEFITS

Present law

Under Graham v. Richardson (403 U.S. 365 (1971)), States may not deny legal permanent residents State-funded assistance that is provided to equally needy citizens without authorization from Congress.

Currently, there is no Federal law barring legal temporary residents (i.e., non-immigrants) from State and local needs-based programs. In general, States are restricted in denying assistance to non-immigrants where the denial is inconsistent with the terms under which the non-immigrants were admitted. Where a denial of benefits is not inconsistent with Federal immigration law, however, States have broader authority to deny benefits and States often do deny certain benefits to nonimmigrants. Also, aliens in most nonimmigrant categories generally may have difficulty qualifying for many State and local benefits because of requirements that they be State "residents."

House bill

States are authorized to determine the eligibility of "qualified aliens," non-immigrants, and aliens paroled into the United States for less than 1 year for any State or local means-tested public benefit program. Noncitizens receiving State and local benefits on the date of enactment would remain eligible for benefits until January 1, 1997.

Exceptions to State authority to deny benefits are made for refugees, asylees and aliens whose deportation has been withheld (for 5 years), permanent resident aliens who have worked in the United States (in combination with their spouse or parents) for at least 10 years, and noncitizens who are veterans or on active duty or their spouse or unmarried child.

Senate amendment

Similar to House bill, except that under Byrd rule the definition of "State public benefits" (sec. 2412(c)) is deleted.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment. The conference agreement does not include a definition of State public benefits in this section because the definition was dropped due to the Byrd rule. However, it is the intent of House and Senate conferees that the following definition be used by States in carrying out the authority granted by this section: "STATE PUBLIC BENEFITS DEFINED.—The term 'State public benefits' means any means-tested public benefits of a State or political subdivision of a State under which the State or political subdivision specifies the standards for eligibility, and does not include any Federal public benefit."

Subtitle C—Attribution of Income and Affidavits of Support

8. FEDERAL ATTRIBUTION OF SPONSOR'S INCOME AND RESOURCES TO ALIEN

Present law

Federal Benefits. In determining whether an alien meets the means test for AFDC, SSI (except in cases of blindness or disability occurring after entry), and food stamps, the resources and income of an individual who filed an affidavit of support ("sponsor") for the alien (and the income and resources of the individual's spouse) are taken into account during a designated period after entry. Sponsor-to-alien deeming provisions were added to these three programs in part because several courts have found that affidavits of support, under current practice, do not obligate sponsors to reimburse government agencies for benefits provided to sponsored aliens. See below.

Amounts of Income and Resources Deemed. While the offset formulas vary among the programs, the amount of income and resources deemed under AFDC, SSI, and Food Stamps is reduced by certain offsets to provide for some of the sponsor's own needs.

Length of Deeming Period. For AFDC and Food Stamps, sponsor-to-alien deeming applies to a sponsored alien seeking assistance within 3 years of entry. Through September 1996, sponsor-to-alien deeming applies to a sponsored alien seeking SSI within 5 years of entry, after which the deeming period reverts to 3 years.

Review Upon Reapplication. Regulations implementing the food stamp program expressly require providing information on a sponsor's resources as part of recertification. Application. No provision.

House bill

Federal Benefits. During the applicable deeming period (see "Length of Deeming Period" below), the income and resources of a sponsor and the sponsor's spouse are to be taken into account under all Federally-funded means-tested programs (with the exception of the programs below) in determining the sponsored individual's neediness. Excepted programs are emergency medical services, emergency disaster relief, school lunch and child nutrition assistance, immunizations and testing and treatment for symptoms of communicable diseases, certain programs that protect life, safety, or public health, certain foster care and adoption assistance, Head Start, Job Training Partnership Act programs, certain elementary and secondary education programs, and higher education grants and loans.

Amounts of Income and Resources Deemed. The full income and resources of the sponsor and the sponsor's spouse are deemed to be that of the sponsored alien.

Length of Deeming Period. Deeming extends until citizenship, unless the noncitizen has worked for at least 10 years in the United States (either individually or in combination with the noncitizen's spouse and parents).

Review Upon Reapplication. Whenever a sponsored noncitizen is required to reapply for benefits under any Federal means-tested public benefits program, the agency must review the income and resources deemed to the sponsored noncitizen.

Application. For programs that already deem income and resources on the date of enactment, the changes in this section apply immediately; other programs must implement changes required within 180 days after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

Federal Benefits. Under the Byrd rule, the definition of "Federal means-tested program" (sec. 2403(c)(1)) is deleted.

Otherwise similar to House bill, with differences in exceptions to Federal means-tested programs noted above for the 5-year bar. Amounts of Income and Resources Deemed. Similar to House bill.

Length of Deeming Period. Similar to House bill.

Review Upon Reapplication. Similar to House bill.

Application. Similar to House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment, with the modification of certain additional excepted programs as noted in item 4 above.

The allowance for treatment of communicable diseases is very narrow. The conferees intend that it only apply where absolutely necessary to prevent the spread of such diseases. This is only a stop-gap measure until the deportation of a person or persons unlawfully here. It is not intended to provide authority for continued treatment of such diseases for a long term.

The allowance for emergency medical services under Medicaid is very narrow. The conferees intend that it only apply to medical care that is strictly of an emergency nature, such as medical treatment administered in an emergency room, critical care unit, or intensive care unit. The conferees do not intend that emergency medical services include pre-natal or delivery care assistance that is not strictly of an emergency nature as specified herein.

9. AUTHORITY FOR STATES TO PROVIDE FOR ATTRIBUTION OF SPONSOR'S INCOME AND RESOURCES TO THE ALIEN WITH RESPECT TO STATE PROGRAMS

Present law

The highest courts of at least two States have held that the Supreme Court decision barring State discrimination against legal aliens in providing State benefits without Federal authorization (Graham v. Richardson, 403 U.S. 365 (1971)) prohibits State sponsor-to-alien deeming requirements for State benefits.

House bill

State and local governments may, for the deeming period that applies to Federal benefits, deem a sponsor's income and resources (and those of the sponsor's spouse) to a sponsored individual in determining eligibility for and the amount of needs-based benefits. State and local governments may not require deeming for the following State public benefits: emergency medical services, emergency disaster relief, school lunch and child nutrition assistance, immunizations and testing and treatment for symptoms of communicable diseases, foster care and adoption payments, and certain programs to protect life and safety.

Senate amendment

Similar to House bill, except that the exception for communicable diseases is limited to testing and treatment of the disease itself and must be triggered by a finding by the chief State health official that it is necessary to prevent spread of the disease.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

10. REQUIREMENTS FOR SPONSOR'S AFFIDAVIT OF SUPPORT

Present law

In General. Administrative authorities may request an affidavit of support on behalf of an alien seeking permanent residency pursuant to regulation. Requirements for affidavits of support are not specified by statute.

Under the Immigration and Nationality Act, an alien who is likely to become a public charge may be excluded from entry unless this restriction is waived, as is the case for refugees. By regulation and administrative practice, the State Department and the Immigration and Naturalization Service permit a prospective permanent resident alien (also immigrant or green card holder) who otherwise would be excluded as a public charge (i.e., because of insufficient means or prospective income) to overcome exclusion through an affidavit of support or similar document executed by an individual in the United States commonly called a "sponsor." It has been reported that roughly one-half of the aliens who obtain legal permanent resident status have had affidavits of support filed on their behalf.

Various State court decisions and decisions by immigration courts have held that the affidavits of support, as currently constituted, do not impose a binding obligation on the sponsor to reimburse State agencies providing aid to the sponsored alien.

Forms. No statutory provision. The Department of Justice issues a form (Form I-134) that complies with current sponsorship guidelines.

Notification of Change of Address. There is no express requirement under current administrative practice that sponsors inform welfare agencies of a change in address. However, a sponsored alien who applies for benefits for which deeming is required must provide various information regarding the alien's sponsor.

Reimbursement of Government Expenses. Various State court decisions and decisions by immigration courts have held that these affidavits, as currently constituted, do not impose a binding obligation on the sponsor to reimburse State agencies providing aid to the sponsored alien.

Definitions. There are no firm administrative restrictions on eligibility to execute an affidavit of support. There is no definition of "Means-tested Public Benefits Program".

Effective Date. No provision.

Benefits Not Subject to Reimbursement. No provision.

House bill

In General. The proposal provides that when affidavits of support are required, they must comply with the following:

Affidavits of support must be executed as contracts that are legally enforceable against sponsors by Federal, State, and local agencies with respect to any means-tested benefits (with exceptions noted below) paid to sponsored aliens before they become citizens.

Affidavits of support must be enforceable against the sponsor by the sponsored alien.

Reimbursement shall be requested for all Federal, State or local need-based programs with the exceptions noted below.

To qualify to execute an affidavit of support, an individual must meet the revised definition of sponsor below.

Governmental entities that provide benefits may seek reimbursement up to 10 years after a sponsored alien last receives benefits.

Sponsorship extends until the alien becomes a citizen.

Forms. The Attorney General, in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Secretary of HHS, shall formulate an affidavit of support within 90 days after enactment, consistent with this section.

Notification of Change of Address. Until they no longer are potentially liable for reimbursement of benefits paid to sponsored individuals, sponsors must notify the Attorney General and the State, district, territory or possession in which the sponsored individual resides of any change of their address within 30 days of moving. Failure to notify may result in a civil penalty of up to $2,000 or, if the failure occurs after knowledge that the sponsored individual has received a reimbursable benefit, of up to $5,000.

Reimbursement of Government Expenses. If a sponsored alien receives any benefit under any means-tested public assistance program, the appropriate Federal, State, or local official shall request reimbursement by the sponsor in the amount of such assistance. Thereafter the official may seek reimbursement in court if the sponsor fails to respond within 45 days of the request that the sponsor is willing to begin repayments. The official also may seek reimbursement through the courts within 60 days after a sponsor fails to comply with the terms of repayment. The Attorney General in consultation with the Secretary of HHS, shall prescribe regulations on requesting reimbursement. No action may be brought later than 10 years after the alien last received benefits.

Definitions. A "sponsor" is a citizen or an alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence who petitioned for immigration preference for the sponsored alien, is at least 18 years of age, and resides in any State.

A "Means-Tested Public Benefits Program" is a program of public benefits of the Federal, State or local government in which eligibility for or the amount of, benefits or both are determined on the basis of income, resources, or financial need.

Effective Date. The changes regarding affidavits of support shall apply to affidavits of support executed no earlier than 60 days or later than 90 days after the Attorney General promulgates the form.

Benefits Not Subject to Reimbursement. Governmental entities cannot seek reimbursement with respect to:

- emergency medical services;
- emergency disaster relief;
- school lunch and child nutrition assistance;
- payments for foster care and adoption assistance;
- immunizations and testing for and treatment of communicable diseases;
- certain programs that protect life, safety, or public health;
- postsecondary education benefits;
- means-tested elementary and secondary education programs;
- Head Start; and
- Job Training Partnership Act programs.

Senate amendment

In General. Under the Byrd rule, the definition of "means-tested public benefits program" (sec. 2423(a)) is deleted. Otherwise similar to House bill.

Forms. Similar to House bill.

Notification of Change of Address. Similar to House bill.

Reimbursement of Government Expenses. Similar to House bill.

Definitions. Similar to House bill. Definition for "Means-tested public benefits program" deleted under the Byrd rule.

Effective Date. Similar to House bill.

Benefits Not Subject to Reimbursement. Similar to House bill except:

does not add Head Start and Job Training Partnership Act programs to the list of excepted programs;

the exception for foster care and adoption assistance is limited to part E of Title IV of the Social Security Act;

the exception for testing and treatment of a communicable disease is more limited and must be triggered by a finding by HHS that it is necessary to prevent the disease's spread; and adds exception for education assistance under titles III, VII, and VIII of the Public Health Service Act.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the House bill and Senate amendment. The definition of Means-Tested Public Benefits Program (defined as "a public benefit (including cash, medical, housing, and food assistance and social services) of the Federal Government or of a State or political subdivision of a State in which the eligibility of an individual, household, or family eligibility unit for benefits under the program, or the amount of such benefits, or both are determined on the basis of income, resources, or financial need of the individual, household, or unit") for purposes of this section was deleted due to the Byrd rule. It is the intent of conferees that this definition be presumed to be in place for purposes of this title. With regard to excepted programs, the conference agreement follows the House bill on testing and treatment of communicable diseases and by adding Head Start and Job Training Partnership Act as excepted programs; the conference agreement follows the Senate amendment by adding education assistance under titles III, VII, and VIII of the Public Health Services Act as an excepted program.

Subtitle D—General Provisions

11. DEFINITIONS

Present law

In General. Federal assistance programs that have alien eligibility restrictions generally reference specific classes defined in the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Qualified Alien. Some programs allow benefits for otherwise eligible aliens who are "permanently residing under color of law (PRUCOL)." This term is not defined under the Immigration and Nationality Act, and there has been some inconsistency in determining which classes of aliens fit within the PRUCOL standard.

House bill

In General. Unless otherwise provided, the terms used in this title have the same meaning as defined in Section 101(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Qualified Alien. An alien who is a lawful permanent resident, refugee, asylee, or an alien who has been paroled into the United States for at least 1 year.

Senate amendment

In General. Similar to House bill.

Qualified Alien. Similar to House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

12. VERIFICATION OF ELIGIBILITY FOR FEDERAL PUBLIC BENEFITS

Present law

State agencies that administer most major Federal programs with alienage restrictions generally use the SAVE (Systematic Alien Verification for Entitlements) system to verify the immigration status of aliens applying for benefits.

House bill

The Attorney General must adopt regulations to verify the lawful presence of applicants for Federal benefits no later than 18 months after enactment. States must have a verification system that complies with these regulations within 24 months of their adoption, and must authorize necessary appropriations.

Senate amendment

13. STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION

14. COMMUNICATION BETWEEN STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT AGENCIES AND THE IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE

Present law

The confidentiality provisions of various State statutes may prohibit disclosure of immigration status obtained under them. Some Federal laws, including the Family Education Rights and Protection Act, may deny funds to certain State and local agencies that disclose a protected individual's immigration status. Various localities have enacted laws preventing local officials from disclosing the immigration status of individuals to INS.

House bill

No State or local government entity may be prohibited, or in any way restricted, from sending to or receiving from the Immigration and Naturalization Service information regarding the immigration status, lawful or unlawful, of an alien in the United States.

15. QUALIFYING QUARTERS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

In determining whether an alien may qualify for benefits under the exception for individuals who have worked at least 40 quarters while in the United States (see sections 402 and 421 above), work performed by parents and spouses may be credited to aliens under certain circumstances. Each quarter of work performed by the parent while an alien was under the age of 18 is credited to the alien, provided the parent did not receive any Federal public benefits during the quarter. Similarly, each quarter of work performed by a spouse of an alien during their marriage is credited to the alien, if the spouse did not receive any Federal public benefits during the quarter.

Subtitle F—Earned Income Credit Denied to Unauthorized Employees

17. EARNED INCOME CREDIT DENIED TO INDIVIDUALS NOT AUTHORIZED TO BE EMPLOYED IN THE UNITED STATES

[NOTE.—For further description of this and additional earned income credit provisions, see Title IX: Miscellaneous below.]

Present law

Certain eligible low-income workers are entitled to claim a refundable credit of up to $3,556 in 1996 on their income tax return. The amount of the credit an eligible individual may claim depends upon whether the individual has one, more than one, or no qualifying children and is determined by multiplying the credit rate by the taxpayer's earned income up to an earned income amount. The maximum amount of the credit is the product of the credit rate and the earned income amount. For taxpayers with earned income (or adjusted gross income (AGI), if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range, the maximum credit amount is reduced by the phaseout rate multiplied by the amount of earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range. For taxpayers with earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the end of the phaseout range, no credit is allowed.

In order to claim the credit, an individual must either have a qualifying child or meet other requirements. A qualifying child must meet a relationship test, an age test, an identification test, and a residence test. In order to claim the credit without a qualifying child, an individual must not be a dependent and must be over age 24 and under age 65.

To satisfy the identification test, individuals must include on their tax return the name and age of each qualifying child. For returns filed with respect to tax year 1996, individuals must provide a taxpayer identification number (TIN) for all qualifying children born on or before November 30, 1996. For returns filed with respect to tax year 1997 and all subsequent years, individuals must provide TINs for all qualifying children, regardless of their age. An individual's TIN is generally that individual's social security number.

The Internal Revenue Service may summarily assess additional tax due as a result of a mathematical or clerical error without sending the taxpayer a notice of deficiency and giving the taxpayer an opportunity to petition the Tax Court. Where the IRS uses the summary assessment procedure for mathematical or clerical errors, the taxpayer must be given an explanation of the asserted error and a period of 60 days to request that the IRS abate its assessment. The IRS may not proceed to collect the amount of the assessment until the taxpayer has agreed to it or has allowed the 60-day period for objecting to expire. If the taxpayer files a request for abatement of the assessment specified in the notice, the IRS must abate the assessment. Any reassessment of the abated amount is subject to the ordinary deficiency procedures. The request for abatement of the assessment is the only procedure a taxpayer may use prior to paying the as-essed amount in order to contest an assessment arising out of a mathematical or clerical error. Once the assessment is satisfied, however, the taxpayer may file a claim for refund if he or she believes the assessment was made in error.

House bill

Individuals are not eligible for the credit if they do not include their taxpayer identification number (and, if married, their spouse's taxpayer identification number) on their tax return. Solely for these purposes and for purposes of the present-law identification test for a qualifying child, a taxpayer identification number is defined as a social security number issued to an individual by the Social Security Administration other than a number issued under section 205(c)(2)(B)(i)(II) (or that portion of sec. 205(c)(2)(B)(i)(III) relating to it) of the Social Security Act (regarding the issuance of a number to an individual applying for or receiving Federally funded benefits).

If an individual fails to provide a correct taxpayer identification number, such omission will be treated as a mathematical or clerical error. If an individual who claims the credit with respect to net earnings from self-employment fails to pay the proper amount of self-employment tax on such net earnings, the failure will be treated as a mathematical or clerical error for purposes of the amount of credit allowed.

TITLE V: CHILD PROTECTION BLOCK GRANT PROGRAMS AND FOSTER CARE, ADOPTION ASSISTANCE, AND INDEPENDENT LIVING PROGRAMS

Subtitle A—Child Protection Block Grant Program and Foster Care, Adoption Assistance, and Independent Living Programs

Present law

Under current law, there are at least 36 programs designed to help children who are victims of abuse or neglect. These programs address the child protection issue by supporting abuse reporting and investigation; abuse prevention; child and family assessment, preservation, and support; foster care; adoption; and training of social workers, foster parents, judges, and others. These programs can be divided into two general categories. The first are entitlement programs under jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means and the Finance Committee, nearly all of which provide unlimited funding for foster and adoption maintenance payments, administrative costs, and training. The two exceptions are the Family Preservation and Support Program which provides capped entitlement funds to help States provide services that keep families together and prevent abuse, and the Independent Living program which provides capped entitlement funds to help children in foster care make the transition to living on their own. The second group of programs are appropriated programs. These programs are smaller and, except the Child Welfare Services Program, are generally under the jurisdiction of the Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee and the Labor and Human Resources Committee.

House bill

The House provision retains all the open-ended entitlement programs to ensure that States have adequate resources to help abused children that must be removed from their homes. The provision also combines the two capped entitlement programs and many of the smaller programs into two block grants that will simplify administration, promote flexibility, and increase efficiency. Working in conjunction with the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunity, the Ways and Means Committee has created a block grant that is identical to a block grant created by the Opportunities Committee. Across the two Committees, a total of 11 programs are combined into the new block grant structure. Programs under jurisdiction of the Opportunities Committee are mentioned briefly below to clarify the structure of the overall Federal program for helping abused children and their families.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment does not include the block grant; the amendment makes no changes in current law.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

Chapter 1—Block Grants to States for the Protection of Children

1. PURPOSE

Present law

Child Welfare Services, now provided for in Title IV-B of the Social Security Act, are designed to help States provide child welfare services, family preservation, and community-based family support services.

House bill

The proposed Child Protection Block Grant would replace current law under Title IV-B. The purpose of the Child Protection Block Grant is to:

- (1) identify and assist families at risk of abusing or neglecting their children;
- (2) operate a system for receiving reports of abuse or neglect of children;
- (3) improve the intake, assessment, screening, and investigation of reports of abuse and neglect;
- (4) enhance the general child protective system by improving risk and safety assessment tools and protocols;
- (5) improve legal preparation and representation, including procedures for appealing and responding to appeals of substantiated reports of abuse and neglect;
- (6) provide support, treatment, and family preservation services to families which are, or are at risk of, abusing or neglecting their children;
- (7) support children who must be removed from or who cannot live with their families;
- (8) make timely decisions about permanent living arrangements for children who must be removed from or who cannot live with their families;
- (9) provide for continuing evaluation and improvement of child protection laws, regulations, and services;
- (10) develop and facilitate training protocols for individuals mandated to report child abuse or neglect; and
- (11) develop and enhance the capacity of community-based programs to integrate shared leadership strategies between parents and professionals to prevent and treat child abuse and neglect at the neighborhood level.

Senate amendment

The amendment does not change current law.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

2. ELIGIBLE STATES

Present law

To be eligible for funding under Title IV-B and IV-E, States must have State plans, developed jointly with the Secretary under Title IV-B, and approved by the Secretary under Title IV-E. In addition, to receive funds under the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA), States must comply with certain requirements including submission of a State plan.

States must have a child welfare services plan developed jointly by the Secretary and the relevant State agency which provides for single agency administration and which describes services to be provided and geographic areas where services will be available. The State plan also must meet many other requirements, such as setting forth a 5-year statement of goals for family preservation and family support and assuring the review of progress toward those goals. For foster care and adoption assistance, States must submit for approval a Title IV-E plan providing for a foster care and adoption assistance program and satisfying numerous requirements. The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (CAPTA) requires States to have in effect a law for reporting known and suspected child abuse and neglect as well as providing for prompt investigation of child abuse and neglect reports, among many other requirements.

To receive funding under Title IV-B and IV-E of the Social Security Act, States must comply with certain procedures for removal of children from their families when necessary, must develop case plans for each child that are reviewed at least every 6 months and contain specified information, and must establish specific goals for the maximum number of eligible children who will remain in foster care for more than 24 months.

Under Title IV-B, for fiscal years beginning on or after April 1, 1996, State plans must provide assurances that:

- (1) the State has completed an inventory of all children who, before the inventory, had been in foster care under the responsibility of the State for six months or more, which determined: (i) the appropriateness of, and necessity for, the foster care placement; (ii) whether the child could or should be returned to the parents of the child or should be freed for adoption or other permanent placement; and (iii) the services necessary to facilitate the return of the child or the placement of the child for adoption or legal guardianship;
- (2) the State is operating to the satisfaction of the Secretary: (i) a statewide information system on children who are or have been in foster care in the last year; (ii) a case review system for each child receiving foster care under the supervision of the State; (iii) a service program designed to help children return to families from which they have been removed; or be placed for adoption; (iv) a preplacement preventive service program designed to help children at risk remain with their families; and
- (3) the State has reviewed State policies and procedures in effect for children abandoned at birth; and is implementing (or, will implement by October 31, 1996) such policies or procedures to enable permanent decisions with respect to the placement of such children to be made expeditiously. (For fiscal years beginning before April 1, 1996, these standards were incentive funding requirements that States had to meet to receive their full Title IV-B allotment, and were known as section 427 protections.)

Title IV-E State plans must provide that reasonable efforts will be made prior to the placement of a child in foster care to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of the child from her home and to make it possible for the child to return to her home.

Title IV-E State plans must provide that, where appropriate, all steps will be taken, including cooperative efforts with State AFDC and child support enforcement agencies, to secure an assignment of any rights to support of a child receiving foster care maintenance payments under Title IV-E.

House bill

An "Eligible State" is one that has submitted to the Secretary, not later than October 1, 1996, and every 3 years thereafter, a plan which has been signed by the Chief Executive Officer of the State. The plan must outline the State's Child Protection Program and provide several certifications regarding the nature of its child protection program.

A State plan must thoroughly describe the State Child Protection Program by describing State activities and procedures to be used for:

- (1) receiving and assessing reports of child abuse or neglect;
- (2) investigating such reports;
- (3) with respect to families in which abuse or neglect has been confirmed, providing services or referral for services for families and children where the State makes a determination that the child may safely remain with the family;
- (4) protecting children by removing them from dangerous settings and ensuring their placement in a safe environment;
- (5) providing training for individuals mandated to report suspected cases of child abuse or neglect;
- (6) protecting children in foster care;
- (7) promoting timely adoptions;
- (8) protecting the rights of families, using adult relatives as the preferred placement for children separated from their parents if such relatives meet all relevant standards; and
- (9) providing services aimed at preventing child abuse and neglect.

The State plan must also certify that the State:

- (1) has in effect laws that require reporting of child abuse and neglect;
- (2) has in effect procedures for the immediate screening, safety assessment, and prompt investigation of child abuse or neglect reports;
- (3) has in effect procedures for the removal and placement of abused or neglected children;
- (4) has in effect laws requiring immunity from prosecution under State and local laws for individuals making good faith reports of suspected or known cases of child abuse or neglect;
- (5) has in effect no later than 2 years after enactment, laws and procedures affording individuals an opportunity to appeal an official finding of abuse or neglect;
- (6) has in effect procedures for developing and reviewing written plans for the permanent placement of each child removed from the family that: specify the goal for achieving a permanent placement for the child in a timely fashion; ensure that the plan is reviewed every 6 months; and ensure that information about the child is gathered regularly and placed in the case record.
- (7) has in effect a program to provide independent living services to 16-19 year old youths (and, at State option, youths up to age 22) who are in the foster care system but have no family to support them. (Under the proposal, States also will continue to receive capped entitlement grants for Independent Living services as under current law.)

(8) has in effect procedures or programs (or both) to respond to reports of medical neglect of disabled infants;

(9) has quantitative goals of the State child protection program;

(10) will comply with respect to fiscal years beginning on or after April 1, 1996, with the same child protection standards as under current law. Standards related to abandoned children must be met by October 1, 1997;

(11) will make reasonable efforts to prevent the placement of children in foster care and to make it possible for the child to return home. Each State must also certify that it provides services for children and families where maltreatment has been confirmed but the child remained with the family;

(12) will take all appropriate steps, including cooperative efforts, to secure an assignment to the State of any rights to support on behalf of each child receiving foster care maintenance payments; and

(13) has in effect requirements for disclosure of records only to specified individuals and entities, and provisions that allow for public disclosure of findings or information about cases of child abuse or neglect that have resulted in a child fatality or near fatality (except that such disclosure shall not include identifying information about the individual initiating a report of suspected child abuse or neglect).

The Secretary of HHS must determine whether the State plan includes the required materials and certifications (except material related to the certification of State procedures to respond to reporting of medical neglect of disabled infants). The Secretary cannot add new elements beyond those listed above.

Senate amendment

The amendment does not change current law, except to require that the State plan for foster care and adoption assistance provide for the protection of the rights of families, using adult relatives as the preferred placement for children separated from their parents where such relatives meet the relevant State child protection standards (see item 8).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with a modification to delete the proposed amendment dealing with adult relative preferences.

3. GRANTS TO STATES FOR CHILD PROTECTION

Present law

Title IV-B of the Social Security Act contains both discretionary and capped entitlement funding for helping States provide assistance to troubled families and their children. Of capped entitlement funding for family preservation and support, 1 percent is reserved for Indians. For child welfare services under Title IV-B, $325 million is authorized annually. For family preservation and support services, $225 million is authorized in fiscal year 1996; $240 million in fiscal year 1997; and $255 million in fiscal year 1998. State allotments for child welfare services are based on the State's child population and per capita income. State allotments for family preservation and support are based on the number of children in the State receiving Food Stamps. Funds must be used for: "protecting and promoting the welfare of children * * * preventing unnecessary separation of children from their families * * * restoring children to their families if they have been removed * * * family preservation services * * * community-based family support services to promote the well-being of children and families and to increase parents' confidence and competence."

For-profit foster care providers are not eligible for Federal funding under Title IV-E.

Section 1123 of the Social Security Act requires the Secretary to establish by regulation a new Federal review system for child welfare which would allow penalties for misuse of funds. Regulations are expected to be published during the summer of 1996. (This provision would not be affected by the House proposal.)

House bill

The block grant contains both entitlement and appropriated funds. From the entitlement funds, each eligible State must receive from the Secretary an amount equal to the State share of the Child Protection Block Grant amount for the fiscal year (see below). A set-aside is provided for Indians equal to 1 percent of the entitlement money flowing into the block grant.

Each eligible State is also given funds equal to the State share of the authorization component of the block grant that is appropriated each year. Indians are given 0.36 percent of the appropriated money flowing into the block grant. Funds for the authorization component of the block grant under this section are not to exceed $325 million each year. No funds from the block grant can be used to pay for foster care or adoption maintenance payments.

The term "child protection amount" means: $240 million for fiscal year 1997; $255 million for fiscal year 1998; $262 million for fiscal year 1999; $270 million for fiscal year 2000; $278 million for fiscal year 2001; $286 million for fiscal year 2002.

The term "State share" means the qualified child protection expenses of a State divided by the sum of the qualified child protection expenses of all of the States. The term "qualified State expenditure" means Federal grants to the State under the Child Welfare Services Grant and the Family Preservation and Support Services Grant in fiscal year 1994 or the average of 1992-94, whichever is greater. In determining amounts for fiscal years 1992 through 1994, the Secretary shall use information listed as actual amounts in the Justification for Estimates for Appropriation Committees of the Administration for Children and Families for fiscal years 1994 through 1996.

A State to which funds are paid under this section may use the money in any manner the State deems appropriate to accomplish the purposes of this part, but the funds must be expended not later than the end of the immediately succeeding fiscal year.

For-profit, foster care facilities are eligible to receive funds from the block grant.

Under the terms and conditions of the block grant, States are subject to several penalties:

(1) For misuse of funds. If an audit determines that any amounts provided to a State have been spent in violation of this part, the Secretary must reduce the grant otherwise payable for the next fiscal year by the amount of the misspent funds, plus 5 percent of the grant;

(2) For failure to maintain effort. If States fail to maintain State spending equal to State expenditures under Part B of Title IV in fiscal year 1994, the Secretary must reduce the grant payable under this section by an amount equal to the previous year's shortfall in maintenance of effort. A penalty of 5 percent of the State grant must also be imposed. States must maintain 100 percent of prior effort in fiscal years 1997 and 1998; and 75 percent in fiscal years 1999 through 2002;

(3) For failure to submit report. If the Secretary determines that the State has not submitted mandatory adoption and foster care data reports within 6 months of the end of the fiscal year, the Secretary must reduce by 3 percent the amount of the State's block grant. If the report is submitted before the end of the immediately succeeding fiscal year, the Secretary shall rescind the penalty.

Except in the case of failure to maintain effort, the Secretary may not impose a penalty if the determination is made that the State has reasonable cause for failing to comply with the requirement. Further, a State must be informed before any penalty is imposed and be given an opportunity to enter into a corrective compliance plan. The provision includes a series of deadlines for submission of such corrective compliance plans and review by the Federal government. No quarterly payment can be reduced by more than 25 percent; penalty amounts above 25 percent must be carried forward to subsequent quarters.

Each territory is entitled to receive from the Secretary for any fiscal year an amount equal to the total obligations due to the territory under the Social Security Act for fiscal year 1995.

Except as expressly provided in this Act, the Secretary may not regulate the conduct of States under this part or enforce any provision of this Act.

Senate amendment

The amendment does not change current law, except that it would amend the definition of "child care institution" to include for-profit providers (see item 6).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

4. DATA COLLECTION AND REPORTING

Present law

In 1986, Congress established the National Advisory Committee on Adoption and Foster Care Information to assist HHS in designing a new comprehensive nationwide data collection system with full system implementation expected to be completed by October 1991. However, final regulations were not issued until December 1993 with the first transmission of data due May 1995. All States are now participating in the Adoption and Foster Care Analysis and Reporting System (AFCARS). HHS is currently analyzing the first datasets transmitted from the States. The final rules require semi-annual reporting on all children in foster care. The data collection is child and case specific and is intended to yield a semi-annual snapshot of child welfare trends. It is also intended to yield information that will enable policymakers to "track" children in care and find out the reasons why children enter foster care, how long children stay in foster care, and what happens to children while in foster care as well as after they leave foster care.

In 1993, Congress authorized enhanced funding of 75 percent for both the AFCARS system and for several additional functions not originally envisioned as part of AFCARS capability. These new functions included electronic data exchange within the State, automated data collection on all children in foster care, collection and management of information necessary to facilitate delivery of child welfare services and to determine eligibility for such services, case management, case plan development and monitoring, and information security. Enhanced funding of 75 percent for this second data system, which HHS calls the Statewide Automated Child Welfare Information System (SACWIS), expires on October 1, 1996.

House bill

The House provision leaves unaltered the current State data reporting system on child protection. The enhanced funding rate of 75 percent for the Statewide Automated Child Welfare Information System (SACWIS) is extended for 1 additional year, through fiscal year 1997.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

5. FUNDING FOR STUDIES OF CHILD WELFARE

Present law

Sec. 426 authorizes discretionary funding for child welfare research and demonstration projects. No funds were appropriated in 1996.

House bill

The Secretary is entitled to receive, for each of fiscal years 1996 through 2002, $6 million to conduct a national study based on random samples of children who are at risk of child abuse or neglect, and $10 million for other research.

Senate amendment

The amendment does not change current law.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill. The conferees recommend that the Secretary, in conducting the random sample study, require that the study have a longitudinal component and yield data that is reliable at the State level for as many States as she determines is feasible. The conferees also recommend that the Secretary carefully consider selecting the sample from cases of confirmed abuse or neglect and follow each case for several years while obtaining information on, among other things, the type of abuse or neglect involved, the frequency of contact with State or local agencies, whether the child involved has been separated from the family, and, if so, under what circumstances, the number, type, and characteristics of out-of-home placements of the child, and the average duration of each placement.

6. DEFINITIONS

Present law

The term "child care institution" means a licensed nonprofit private or public facility which accommodates no more than 25 children. The term does not apply to detention facilities, forestry camps, training schools, or centers for delinquent children.

House bill

Same as present law, except the word "nonprofit" is deleted.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

7. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS

Present law

House bill

This section makes a series of technical and conforming amendments to the Social Security Act and the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986.

Senate amendment

The amendment redesignates section 1123 (42 U.S.C. 1320a-1a) the second place it appears as section 1123A.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

Chapter 2—Foster Care, Adoption Assistance, and Independent Living Programs

8. CHANGES IN TITLE IV-E OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT

Present law

Title IV-E Foster Care and Title IV-E Adoption Assistance are intended to help States finance foster care and adoption assistance maintenance payments, administration, child placement services, and training related to foster care and adoption assistance.

The purpose of the Title IV-E Independent Living Program is to help older foster children make the transition to independent living.

House bill

The most notable feature of House action on Title IV-E is that all the entitlement programs remain intact. In addition, the House retains the provision of current law that guarantees Medicaid coverage for children who receive maintenance payments from either the foster care or adoption programs. On the other hand, the House provision does change current law in three ways.

First, the current law guarantee of eligibility for foster care and adoption maintenance payments for children eligible for the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program was disrupted because the AFDC statute was completely rewritten to give States the authority to establish their own welfare programs. To ensure that the eligibility of poor children for maintenance payments continues, the House provision guarantees eligibility for all children from families that would have been eligible for the AFDC program as it existed in each State on the day before enactment of this legislation.

Second, the House provision allows States to use private for-profit foster care facilities. The House believes that States should be allowed to use private child care organizations because they are fully capable of providing quality services. States are responsible for ensuring that children are in safe and reliable care whether it is provided by public or private entities. The House can see no reason to automatically refuse participation by an entire sector of the child caring community.

Third, the House provided enhanced funding for the Statewide Automated Child Welfare Information System (SACWIS) because automation is a vital part of providing quality child protection services. The House has investigated progress by the States in creating SACWIS and has found that several States are now ready to begin actual implementation and that as many as half the States can be expected to have operational systems by next year if funding remains available. Thus, the House is extending the enhanced funding rate of 75 percent to encourage States to invest money in these important systems.

Senate amendment

The amendment amends Title IV-E to include for-profit providers in the definition of "child care institutions" (see item 6). The provision also amends Title IV-E to require that the State plan for foster care and adoption assistance provide for the protection of the rights of families, using adult relatives as the preferred placement for children separated from their parents where such relatives meet the relevant State child protection standards.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with a modification to delete the proposed amendment dealing with adult relative preference.

Chapter 3—Miscellaneous

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

10. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS REGARDING TIMELY ADOPTION OF CHILDREN

Present law

No provision.

House bill

This section expresses the sense of Congress that too many adoptable children are spending too much time in foster care, that States must take steps to increase the number of children who are adopted in a timely manner, and that States could achieve savings if they offered incentives for the adoption of special needs children, among other provisions.

House bill

The changes made in this subtitle will be effective on or after October 1, 1996. Provisions that authorize and appropriate funds in fiscal year 1996 for research and court improvements, and certain technical and conforming amendments are effective upon enactment. The proposal establishes transition rules for pending claims, actions and proceedings, and closing out accounts for programs that are terminated or substantially modified.

Subtitle B—Child and Family Services Block Grant

Present law

No provision.

House bill

The block grant and associated activities under Subtitle B are under the jurisdiction of the Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee in the House and the Labor and Human Resources Committee in the Senate. The Child and Family Services Block Grant created by Subtitle B consolidates the following programs into a single block grant:

The Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act, the Abandoned Infants Assistance Act, adoption opportunities under the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment and Adoption Reform Act, the family support centers under the McKinney Homeless Assistance Act, and the Temporary Child Care and Crisis Nurseries Act. The Child and Family Services Block Grant has the same State plan and certification requirements as the Child Protection Block Grant created by Subtitle A. The two Block Grants also have the same data collection and reporting requirements for child abuse incidence data and for the implementation of foster care and adoption tracking systems. The Child and Family Services Block Grant is authorized at $230 million for fiscal year 1996 and "such sums as may be necessary" are authorized for fiscal year 1997 through fiscal year 2002. Title II of the Child and Family Services Block Grant provides that funds be available for research, demonstrations, training and technical assistance to better protect children from maltreatment. Funds under this block grant also will establish a National Clearinghouse for Information Relating to Child Abuse, provide demonstration grants for the development of innovative programs, provide technical assistance to States to assist with child abuse investigation and the termination of parental rights proceedings, and provide training for professionals in related fields. For these Title II activities, 12 percent of the $230 million provided for this Block Grant is authorized of which 40 percent must be available for demonstration projects. The Missing Children's Assistance Act and the Victims of Child Abuse Act of 1990 are both reauthorized.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

TITLE VI: CHILD CARE

1. SHORT TITLE AND REFERENCES

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

2. GOALS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

This section establishes the following goals for the Child Care and Development Block Grant:

(1) to allow each State maximum flexibility in developing child care programs and policies that best suit the needs of children and parents within the State;

(2) to promote parental choice in making decisions on the child care that best suits their family's needs;

(3) to encourage States to provide consumer information to help parents make informed child care choices;

(4) to assist States in providing child care to parents trying to become independent of public assistance; and

(5) to assist States in implementing the health, safety, licensing and registration standards established in State regulations.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

3. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS AND ENTITLEMENT AUTHORITY

Present law

The authorization of appropriations for the Child Care and Development Block Grant expires at the end of fiscal year 1995. Appropriations in fiscal year 1996 are $935 million. (Sec. 658B of the CCDBG Act)

[Note: In addition to appropriated funds, entitlement funds are available for the Child Care Block Grant under the AFDC Child Care, Transitional Child Care, and At-Risk Child Care programs authorized by Title IV-A of the Social Security Act.]

House bill

Authorization of Appropriations. There are authorized to be appropriated $1,000,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1996 through 2002. (Additional mandatory funding will be provided for child care under the Social Security Act so that a total of $22 billion will be provided for child care over the 7-year period fiscal years 1996-2002.)

Child Care Entitlement. The proposal establishes a single child care block grant and State administrative system by adding mandatory funds to the existing Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG). Specifically, one discretionary and two mandatory streams of funding will be consolidated in a reconstituted CCDBG.

a. State General Entitlement. From the stream of entitlement funding, each State will receive the amount of funds it received for child care under all of the entitlement programs currently under Title IV-A of the Social Security Act (AFDC Child Care, Transitional Child Care, and At-Risk Child Care) in fiscal year 1994, in fiscal year 1995, or the average amount in fiscal years 1992 through 1994, whichever is greater. This source of funds will provide States with approximately $1.2 billion for child care each year between 1997 and 2002.

b. Remainder. The mandatory funds remaining after the allocation to Indians (see below) and the State General Entitlement (see above) will be distributed among the States based on the formula currently used in the Title IV-A At-Risk Child Care Grant. Specifically, funds will be distributed based on the proportion of the number of children under age 13 residing in the State to the number of all of the Nation's children under age 13. States must provide matching funds at the fiscal year 1995 State Medicaid rate to receive these funds and must maintain spending at their fiscal year 1994 or 1995 level, whichever is greater, under the Title IV-A child care programs. The money available to States through this source of funds for fiscal years 1997 through 2002, respectively, will be: $0.76 billion, $0.86 billion, $0.96 billion, $1.16 billion, $1.36 billion, and $1.51 billion.

If a State does not use its full portion of funds, the remaining portion will be redistributed to other States according to section 402(i) of the At-Risk Child Care Grant (as such section was in effect before October 1, 1995). Thus, each State applying for these remaining funds will receive the percentage of funds that equals the percentage of children under age 13 residing in that State of all children under age 13 residing in all the States that apply for funds. The Secretary must determine whether States will use their entire portion of funds no later than the end of the first quarter of the subsequent fiscal year.

c. Appropriation. Total child care funds under this proposal will equal $22 billion for child care over the 7-year period fiscal years 1996-2002, including both the $15 billion in mandatory funds discussed above and $7 billion in discretionary funds. Under current law for the three existing AFDC-related child care programs, $1.1 billion in mandatory funds will be spent in fiscal year 1996. In addition, a total of $13.85 billion in mandatory funds would be authorized for child care in fiscal years 1997-2002, starting at $2.0 billion in fiscal year 1997 and rising to $2.7 billion in fiscal year 2002. Finally, as stated earlier, $1 billion will be authorized annually in discretionary funds for the Child Care and Development Block Grant.

d. Indian Tribes. One percent of all funds under the section are provided to Indian tribes.

Use of Funds. Funds shall only be used to provide child care assistance. Amounts received by a State, based on the amounts received in previous years, shall be available for use by the State without fiscal year limitation. All funds from both mandatory and discretionary sources must be transferred to the lead agency under the Child Care and Development Block Grant and integrated into the State child care programs.

Not less than 70 percent of the total amount of mandatory funds received by the State in a fiscal year must be used to provide child care assistance to families that are receiving assistance under a State program, families that are attempting to transition off public assistance, and families at risk of becoming dependent on public assistance.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and Senate amendment, with a modification. The Secretary shall reserve not less than 1 percent and not more than 2 percent of the total amount appropriated (both mandatory and discretionary) in each fiscal year for payments to Indian tribes and tribal organizations.

4. LEAD AGENCY

Present Law

The Chief Executive Officer of a State is required to designate an appropriate State agency to act as the lead agency in administering financial assistance under the Act. (Sec. 658D of the CCDBG Act)

House bill

The proposal requires States to identify a lead agency to administer all the child care funds received under the Act, including funds received through other "governmental or nongovernmental" agencies (instead of other "State" agencies). States must ensure that "sufficient time and statewide distribution of the notice" be given of the public hearing on the development of the State plan. This section strikes language in current law specifying issues that may be considered during consultation with local governments on development of the State plan.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

5. APPLICATION AND PLAN

Present law

States are required to prepare and submit to the Secretary an application that includes a State plan. The initial plan must cover a 3-year period, and subsequent plans must cover 2-year periods. Required contents of the plan include designation of a lead agency; outline of policies and procedures regarding parental choice of providers, summary of policies that guarantee unlimited parental access, parental complaints, and consumer education; and overview of policies that ensure compliance with State and local regulatory requirements, establishment of and compliance with health and safety requirements, and review of State licensing and regulatory requirements.

In addition, the State plan must provide that all funds will be used for child care services, and that 25 percent of funds will be reserved for activities to improve the quality of child care and to increase the availability of early childhood development and before- and after-school child care. (Sec. 658E of the CCDBG Act)

State plans must also assure that payment rates will be adequate to provide eligible children with equal access to child care as compared with children whose families are not eligible for subsidies, and must assure that the State will establish and periodically revise a sliding fee scale that provides for cost sharing by families that receive child care subsidies.

House bill

The proposal requires the State plan to cover a 2-year period. States must provide a detailed description of procedures to be used to assure parental choice of providers. Instead of "providing assurances," States must "certify" that procedures are in effect within the State to ensure unlimited parental access to the families providing care to children and to ensure parental choice of child care provider; the proposal also requires that the State plan provide a detailed description of such procedures. Instead of "providing assurances," a State must "certify" that it maintains a record of parental complaints and requires the State to provide a detailed description of how such a record is maintained and made available. The proposal changes the consumer education part of the State plan to require assurances that the State will collect and disseminate consumer education information. States must certify that they have in effect child care licensing requirements and provide a detailed description of the requirements and how they are enforced. This provision does not require that licensing requirements be applied to specific types of child care providers.

States must "certify" that procedures are in effect to ensure that child care providers receiving funds under this Act comply with applicable State or local health and safety requirements. The Secretary is required to develop minimum standards for Indian tribes and tribal organizations receiving assistance.

The proposal eliminates review of State licensing and regulatory requirements, notification to the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) when standards are reduced, and supplementation. The proposal also eliminates the requirement that unlicensed providers be registered. The House decided to retain a current law requirement that all States establish health and safety standards. The House provision does not specify the particular standards that must be established, but all States must have requirements on prevention and control of infectious diseases (including immunizations), building and physical premises safety, and minimum health and safety training.

A summary of the facts relied upon by the State to determine that payment rates are sufficient to ensure equal access to child care must be included in the State plan. Funds must be used for child care services, for activities to improve the quality and availability of such services, and for any other activity that the State deems appropriate to realize the goals specified above. The proposal deletes the current law requirement that States reserve 25 percent of funds for activities to improve the quality of child care and to increase availability of early childhood development and before- and after-school care. States may spend no more than 5 percent on administrative costs.

States must spend a substantial portion of the amounts available to provide child care to low-income working families who are not working their way off welfare or are at risk of becoming welfare dependent. However, States first must comply with requirement that at least 70 percent of mandatory funds must be used for welfare or at-risk families. States must demonstrate how they will meet the child care needs of welfare and at-risk families.

Senate amendment

Same, except the Senate maintains current law (which requires States to "provide assurances" that child care providers receiving funds under this Act comply with applicable State or local health and safety requirements).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill with a modification. The provision requires States to "certify" that health and safety requirements are in effect within a State applicable to child care providers.

Nothing in the legislation either prohibits or requires States to differentiate between federally subsidized child care and non-subsidized child care regarding the application of specific standards and regulations. The cap of 5 percent on administrative costs is included in both the House and Senate passed bills. To help States implement this provision, the Department of Health and Human Services should issue regulations, in a timely manner and prior to the deadline for submission of State plans, that define and determine true administrative costs, as distinct from expenditures for services. Eligibility determination and redetermination, preparation and participation in judicial hearings, child care placement, the recruitment, licensing, inspection, reviews and supervision of child care placements, rate setting, resource and referral services, training, and the establishment and maintenance of computerized child care information are an integral part of service delivery and should not be considered administrative costs.

6. ACTIVITIES TO IMPROVE THE QUALITY OF CHILD CARE

Present law

As stated above, 25 percent of State allotments must be reserved for activities to improve child care quality and to increase the availability of early childhood development and before- and after-school child care. Section 658G specifies how these funds are to be used. Of reserved funds, States are required to use no less than 20 percent for improving the quality of care, including resource and referral programs, making grants or loans to assist providers in meeting State and local standards, monitoring of compliance with licensing and regulatory requirements, training of child care personnel, and improving compensation for child care personnel. (Sec. 658G of the CCDBG Act).

House bill

A State that receives child care funds must use at least 4 percent of all funds received (both mandatory and discretionary) for activities designed to provide comprehensive consumer education to parents and the public, for activities that increase parental choice, and for activities designed to improve the quality and availability of child care.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

7. REPEAL OF EARLY CHILDHOOD DEVELOPMENT AND BEFORE- AND AFTER-SCHOOL CARE REQUIREMENT

Present law

States are required to use no less than 75 percent of funds reserved for quality improvement for activities to expand and conduct early childhood development programs and before- and after-school child care. (Sec. 658H of the CCDBG Act)

House bill

The set-aside for early childhood development programs and before- and after-school care is repealed.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

8. ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT

Present law

The Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) is required to coordinate HHS and other Federal child care agencies, to collect and publish a list of State child care standards every 3 years, and to provide technical assistance to States. The Secretary must also review, monitor, and enforce compliance with the Act and the State plan by withholding payments and imposing additional sanctions in certain cases. (Sec. 658I of the CCDBG Act)

House bill

This section strikes the current law requirement that the Secretary withhold further payments to a State in case of a finding of noncompliance until the noncompliance is corrected. Instead, the Secretary is authorized, in such cases, to require that the State reimburse the Secretary for any improperly spent funds, or the Secretary may deduct from the administrative portion of the State's subsequent allotment an amount equal to or less than the misspent funds, or a combination of such options.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

9. PAYMENTS

Present law

Payments received by a State for a fiscal year may be expended in that fiscal year or in the succeeding 3 fiscal years. (Sec. 658J of the CCDBG Act)

House bill

The bill replaces the word "expended" with "obligated". However, the bill contains a drafting error. A provision that would have struck "3 fiscal years" and inserted "fiscal year" was inadvertently dropped.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contains the same drafting error.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement corrects a previous drafting error by striking "3 fiscal years" and inserting "fiscal year".

10. ANNUAL REPORT AND AUDITS

Present law

States must prepare and submit to the Secretary every year a report specifying how funds are used; presenting data on the manner in which the child care needs of families in the State are being fulfilled, including information on the number of children served, child care programs in the State, compensation provided to child care staff, and activities to encourage public-private partnerships in child care; describing the extent to which affordability and availability of child care has increased; summarizing findings from a review of State licensing and regulatory requirements, if applicable; explaining any action taken by the State to reduce standards, if applicable; and describing standards and health and safety requirements applied to child care providers in the State, including a description of efforts to improve the quality of child care. (Sec. 658K of the CCDBG Act)

House bill

The title of the section is changed from "Annual Report and Audits" to "Reports and Audits." States must collect on a monthly basis, and report to HHS on a quarterly basis, the following information on each family receiving assistance:

- (1) family income;
- (2) county of residence;
- (3) the gender, race, age of children receiving benefits;
- (4) whether the family includes only one parent;
- (5) the sources of family income, including:
 - (a) the amount obtained from employment, including self-employment;
 - (b) cash assistance or other assistance under Part A;
 - (c) housing assistance;
 - (d) food stamps; and
 - (e) other public assistance;
- (6) the number of months the family has received benefits;
- (7) the type of care in which the child was enrolled (family day care, center, own home);
- (8) whether the provider was a relative;
- (9) the cost of care; and
- (10) the average hours per week of care.

Twice each year, the State must submit the following aggregate data to HHS:

- (1) the number of providers separately identified in accord with each type of provider that received funding under this subchapter;
- (2) the monthly cost of child care services and the portion of such cost paid with assistance from this Act by type of care;
- (3) the number of payments by the State in vouchers, contracts, cash, and disregards from public benefit programs by type of care;
- (4) the manner in which consumer education information was provided and the number of parents who received it; and
- (5) total number (unduplicated) of children and families served.

Senate amendment

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

11. REPORT BY THE SECRETARY

Present law

The Secretary is required to prepare and submit an annual report, summarizing and analyzing information provided by States, to the House Education and Labor Committee and the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee. This report must contain an assessment and, where appropriate, recommendations to Congress regarding efforts that should be taken to improve access of the public to quality and affordable child care. (Sec. 658L of the CCDBG Act)

House bill

The Secretary must prepare and submit biennial reports, rather than annual reports, with the first report due no later than July 31, 1997; the reference to the House Education and Labor Committee is replaced with the House Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee.

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

12. ALLOTMENTS

Present law

The Secretary must reserve one-half of 1 percent of appropriations for payment to Guam, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands, the Northern Marianas, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. The Secretary also must reserve no more than 3 percent for payment to Indian tribes and tribal organizations with approved applications. Remaining funds are allocated to the States based on the States' proportion of children under age 5 and the number of children receiving free or reduced-price school lunches, as well as the States' per capita income. Any portion of a State's allotment that the Secretary determines is not needed by the State to carry out its plan for the allotment period must be reallocated by the Secretary to the other States in the same proportion as the original allotments. (Sec. 658O of the CCDBG Act)

House bill

Set-asides for the Territories, Indian tribes, and tribal organizations are maintained, except that the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands is deleted from the set-aside for Territories. Indian tribes are provided with a 1 percent set-aside of all funds, both entitlement and appropriated, authorized by this section each year. Under some circumstances, and with approval from the Secretary, Indian tribes are authorized to use a portion of their funds for renovation and construction of child care facilities. Within the overall block grant for social programs provided to the territories, each territory is authorized to spend whatever portion they choose of their capped amount on child care (for additional details see item 79 of Title I). Allotments to States were described in item 3 above.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill except the Indian tribes are provided with a 3-percent set-aside for child care.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill with a modification. The Secretary shall reserve not less than 1 percent and not more than 2 percent of the total amount appropriated (both mandatory and discretionary) in each fiscal year for payments to Indian tribes and tribal organizations.

13. DEFINITIONS

Present law

The following terms are defined: caregiver, child care certificate, elementary school, eligible child, eligible child care provider, family child care provider, Indian tribe, lead agency, parent, secondary school, Secretary, sliding fee scale, State, and tribal organization. (Sec. 658P of the CCDBG Act)

House bill

Child care deposits are added as an allowable use of a child care certificate. The definition of "eligible child" is revised to one whose family income does not exceed 85 percent of the State median, instead of 75 percent. The definition of "relative child care provider" is revised by adding great grandchild and sibling (if the provider lives in a separate residence) to the list of eligible relative providers and the requirement that relatives providing care be registered is struck. Relative providers are required to comply with any applicable requirements governing child care provided by a relative, rather than State requirements. The definition for elementary and secondary school is eliminated. The Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands is dropped from the definition of "State." Native Hawaiian Organization is added to the definition of "tribal organization."

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

14. REPEALS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

The proposal repeals the following programs: (1) Child Development Associate (CDA) Scholarship Assistance; (2) State Dependent Care Development Grants; (3) Programs of National Significance under Title X of the Elementary and Secondary Education Assistance Act of 1965 (child care related to Cultural Partnerships for At-Risk Children and Youth, and Urban and Rural Education Assistance); and (4) Native-Hawaiian Family-Based Education Centers.

[Note.—Title I of the proposal also repeals child care assistance provided under current law by Title IV-A of the Social Security Act. This assistance is provided under three programs known as AFDC Child Care, Transitional Child Care, and At-Risk Child Care. Thus, the total number of child care programs merged into the Child Care and Development Block Grant is seven.]

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment does not repeal the following programs: (1) Child Development Associate (CDA) Scholarship Assistance; (2) State Dependent Care Development Grants; (3) Programs of National Significance under Title X of the Elementary and Secondary Education Assistance Act of 1965; and (4) Native Hawaiian Family-Based Education Centers.

15. EFFECTIVE DATE

Senate amendment

Same.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

TITLE VII: CHILD NUTRITION PROGRAMS

Subtitle A—National School Lunch Act

1. STATE DISBURSEMENT TO SCHOOLS

"Child" for purposes of the NSLA is defined to include individuals, regardless of age, who are (a) determined to have 1 or more disabilities and (b) attending an institution for the purpose of participating in a program for individuals with mental or physical disabilities. Food Waste Procedures. The Secretary is required to establish administrative procedures designed to diminish food waste in schools. [Sec. 9(a)(3) of the NSLA]

Announcing Guidelines. Each school year, State education agencies and schools are required to announce income eligibility guidelines to be used for free and reduced price lunches. [Sec. 9(b)(2) of the NSLA]

Commodities. Schools in the school lunch program are required to use, as far as practicable, commodities designated by the Secretary as being in "abundance."

The Secretary is authorized to prescribe terms and conditions under which donated commodities will be used in schools and other participating institutions. [Sec. 9(c) of the NSLA]

Nutrition Information/Requirements. By the first day of the 1996-1997 school year, the Secretary, State education agencies, schools, and school food service authorities are required, to the maximum extent practicable, to inform students and parents of the nutrition content of school meals and their consistency with the most recent Dietary Guidelines for Americans. [Sec. 9(f)(1) of the NSLA]

Unless a waiver is granted by a State education agency, schools must serve meals that are consistent with the Dietary Guidelines for Americans (using the weekly average nutrient content of the meals) by the beginning of the 1996-1997 school year. [Sec. 9(f)(2) of the NSLA]

Use of Resources. State education agencies may use resources provided under the nutrition education and training program for training aimed at improving the quality and acceptance of school meals. [Sec. 9(h) of the NSLA]

3. FREE AND REDUCED PRICE POLICY STATEMENT

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Provides that schools may not be required to submit free and reduced price "policy statements" to State education agencies unless there is a substantive change in the free and reduced price policy of the school. Routine changes (e.g., adjusting income eligibility standards) are not sufficient cause for requiring a school to submit a policy statement. [Sec. 3403]

Senate amendment

Same provisions with a technical difference clarifying that school food authorities, rather than schools, are the entities that may not be required to submit a policy statement. [Sec. 1203]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the Senate provisions. [Sec. 703]

4. SPECIAL ASSISTANCE

Present law

"Provision 2." Schools electing to serve all children free meals for 3 successive years may be paid special assistance payments for free and reduced price meals based on the number of meals served free or at a reduced price in the first year ("provision 2"). Schools electing this option as of November 1994 may receive a 2-year extension from the State if it determines that the income level of the school's population has remained stable. Schools receiving a 2-year extension may receive subsequent 5-year extensions (except that the Secretary may require that applications be taken at the beginning of any 5-year period). [Sec. 11(a)(1) of the NSLA]

Terms and Conditions. The terms and conditions governing the operation of the school lunch program (set forth in other sections of the NSLA, except for matching requirements) apply to special assistance under the school lunch program, to the extent they are not inconsistent with the express requirements of the section governing special assistance. Final regulations must reflect public comments. [Sec. 12(k) of the NSLA]

Waivers. The Secretary may waive any Federal requirements if the requesting State or service provider demonstrates, to the Secretary's satisfaction, that the waiver will not increase the overall Federal cost of the program and, if it does increase costs, they will be paid from non-Federal funds.

Waiver applications must describe "management goals" to be achieved, a timetable for implementation, and the process to be used for monitoring progress in implementing the waiver (including cost implications).

The Secretary must state in writing the expected outcome of any approved waivers.

The results of the Secretary's decision on any waiver must be disseminated through "normal means of communication."

Waivers may not exceed 3 years (unless extended by the Secretary).

Waivers may not be granted with respect to "offer versus serve" rules.

Service providers must annually submit reports describing the use of their waivers and evaluating how the waiver contributed to improved services. States must annually submit a summary of providers' reports to the Secretary. The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills. [Sec. 705] The conference agreement also adopts the Senate provision on Food and Nutrition Programs, and adopts the House provision on Simplified Administration of School Meal and Other Nutrition Programs with an amendment stating that individuals who are ineligible for free public education benefits under State or local law are also ineligible for school meal benefits under the National School Lunch Act and the Child Nutrition Act of 1966. The amendment also states that "nothing in this Act shall prohibit or require a State to provide to an individual who is not a citizen qualified alien, as defined elsewhere in the law, benefits " under programs other than school lunch and breakfast program under the National School Lunch Act and the Child Nutrition Act of 1966, the Commodity Supplemental Food Program, TEFAP and the food distribution program on Indian reservations. Service Institutions: Payments. Payments to summer food service institutions may not exceed specific amounts set by law and indexed for inflation. For the summer of 1996, these rates are: $2.1675 for each lunch/supper, $1.2075 for each breakfast, and 57 cents for each supplement (snack). Rates are adjusted each January to reflect changes (for the 12 months ending the preceding November) in the food away from home component of the CPI-U. Each adjustment is rounded to the nearest quarter cent. [Sec. 13(b)(1) of the NSLA]

Administration of Service Institutions. Payments to summer camps and service institutions that primarily serve migrant children may be made for up to 4 meals/supplements each day. [Sec. 13(b)(2) of the NSLA]

Food Requirements. The Secretary is required to provide "additional technical assistance" to those service institutions and private nonprofit organizations that are having difficulty in maintaining compliance with nutritional requirements.

Service institutions' contracts with food service management companies must require that bacteria levels conform to the standards applied by the local health authority. [Sec. 13(f) of the NSLA]

House bill

[Note.—Sec. 3406(a) also makes technical amendments deleting a reference to the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands and an unnecessary cross-reference in present law.]

Service Institutions: Payments. Establishes new maximum rates for summer food service institutions. They are: $1.82 for each lunch/supper, $1.13 for each breakfast, and 46 cents for each supplement (snack). These new rates, adjusted for inflation, first apply to the summer of 1997. They are adjusted on January 1, 1997, and each January 1 thereafter, to reflect changes (for the 12 months ending the preceding November) in the food away from home component of the CPI-U. 8. CHILD CARE FOOD PROGRAM

Present law

Establishment of Program. The Secretary is authorized to carry out a program to assist States to initiate, maintain, and expand nonprofit food service for children in child care institutions. [Sec. 17(a) of the NSLA]

Payments to Sponsor Employees. No provision.

Technical Assistance. If necessary, States must provide technical assistance to institutions submitting incomplete applications to participate. [Sec. 17(d) of the NSLA]

Reimbursement of Child Care Institutions. Day care centers may be provided reimbursement for up to 2 meals and 2 supplements (or 3 meals and 1 supplement) each day for children in a child care setting for 8 or more hours a day. [Sec. 17(f)(2) of the NSLA]

Improved Targeting of Day Care Home Reimbursements: Restructured Day Care Home Reimbursements. Reimbursements for family or group day care homes are specific amounts set by law and indexed for inflation. All homes receive the same reimbursements, and reimbursements are not differentiated by family income of the child receiving a subsidized meal/supplement. For July 1996 through June 1997, these rates are: $1.575 for each lunch/supper, 86.25 cents for each breakfast, and 47 cents for each supplement.

Rates are adjusted each July to reflect changes in the food away from home component of the CPI-U for the most recent 12-month period for which data are available. Each adjustment is rounded to the nearest quarter cent. [Sec. 17(f)(3)(A) of the NSLA]

Improved Targeting of Day Care Home Reimbursements: Grants to States. No provision.

Improved Targeting of Day Care Home Reimbursements: Provision of Data. No provision.

Reimbursement. The Secretary is required to reduce administrative payments to day care home sponsors as of August 1981 so as to achieve a 10 percent reduction in the total level of payments. [Sec. 17(f)(3)(B) of the NSLA]

Funds for administrative expenses may be used by day care home sponsors to conduct outreach and recruitment to unlicensed day care homes so that they may become licensed. [Sec. 17(f)(3)(C) of the NSLA]

States must provide monthly advance payments to approved day care institutions in an amount that reflects the full level of valid claims customarily received (or the State's best estimate in the case of newly participating institutions). [Sec. 17(f)(4)]

Nutritional Requirements. Meals served under the child and adult care food program must be "served free to needy children."

The Secretary is required to provide "additional technical assistance" to institutions and day care home sponsors that are having difficulty maintaining compliance with nutrition requirements. [Sec. 17(g)(1) of the NSLA]

Elimination of State Paperwork/Outreach Burden. States must take affirmative action to expand availability of the child and adult care food program benefits, including annual notification of all nonparticipating day care home providers. The Secretary must conduct demonstration projects to test approaches to removing or reducing barriers to participation by homes that operate in low-income areas or primarily serve low-income children. The Secretary and States must provide training and technical assistance to assist day care home sponsors in reaching low-income children. The Secretary must instruct States to provide information and training about child health and development through day care home sponsors. [Sec. 17(k) of the NSLA]

Records. States and institutions must make accounts and records available for inspection and audit by the Secretary and others "at all times." [Sec. 17(m) of the NSLA]

Modification of Adult Care Food Program. Nonresidential adult day care centers (including group living arrangements) serving chronically impaired disabled adults or persons 60 years of age or older are eligible institutions under the child and adult care food program. Reimbursements are provided for meals served to chronically disabled adults and those 60 or older in these centers. [Sec. 17(o) of the NSLA]

Unneeded Provision. The Secretary is required to provide State child and adult care food service agencies with basic information about the WIC program. State agencies must provide child care institutions with specific materials about the WIC program, annually update the materials, and ensure that at least once a year the institutions provide specific written information to parents about the WIC program. [Sec. 17(q) of the NSLA]

Effective Date. No provision.

Study. No provision.

House bill

Establishment of Program. Removes the reference to the Secretary's authority to carry out a program to assist States to "expand" child care food services. [Sec. 3408(a)]

Payments to Sponsor Employees. Prohibits payments to day care home sponsors that base payments to employees on the number of homes recruited. [Sec. 3408(b)]

Technical Assistance. Deletes the requirement to provide technical assistance in cases of incomplete applications. [Sec. 3408(c)]

Reimbursement of Child Care Institutions. Removes authority for reimbursement for more than 2 meals and 1 supplement for children in care for 8 or more hours. [Sec. 3408(d)]

Improved Targeting of Day Care Home Reimbursements: Restructured Day Care Home Reimbursements. Establishes new reimbursement rates for day care homes as follows:

"Tier I" homes receive the meal/supplement rates in effect on July 1, 1996 (see present law), adjusted annually for inflation.

"Tier I" homes are (1) those located in areas, defined by the Secretary based on Census data, in which at least 50 percent of children are in households with income below 185 percent of the Federal poverty guidelines, (2) those located in an area served by a school enrolling elementary students in which at least 50 percent of the children are certified eligible to receive free or reduced price school meals, or (3) those operated by a provider whose household income is verified by a sponsor (under the Secretary's regulations) to be below 185 percent of the poverty guidelines.

"Tier II" homes are homes that do not meet tier I standards, but they may, at their option, receive the substantially higher tier I reimbursement rates under certain conditions (see below).

In general, tier II home rates are 90 cents for each lunch/supper, 25 cents for each breakfast, and 10 cents for each supplement, adjusted annually for inflation. Tier II homes can elect to receive higher tier I rates for meals/supplements served to children who are members of households with income below 185 percent of the Federal poverty guidelines, if the sponsor collects the necessary income information and makes the appropriate eligibility determinations in accordance with the Secretary's rules. Tier II homes also can elect to receive tier I rates for meals/supplements served to children (or children whose parents are) participating in or subsidized under a federally or State-supported child care or other benefit program with an income eligibility limit that does not exceed 185 percent of the poverty guidelines, and may restrict their claim for tier I reimbursements to these children if they choose not to collect income statements from all parents/caretakers.

The Secretary is required to prescribe simplified meal counting and reporting procedures for use by tier II homes (and their sponsors) that elect to claim tier I reimbursements for children meeting the income or program participation requirements. These procedures can include (1) setting an annual percentage of meals/supplements to be reimbursed at tier I rates based on the family income of children enrolled in a specific month or other period, (2) placing a home in a reimbursement category based on the percentage of children with household income below 185 percent of the poverty guidelines, or (3) other procedures determined by the Secretary.

The Secretary is authorized to establish minimum requirements for verifying income and program participation for tier II homes electing to claim tier I reimbursement rates.

Inflation indexing of rates for day care homes also is revised. The rates set for tier I homes (see present law) and the new tier II rates are adjusted July 1, 1997, and each July thereafter, based on the unrounded rates for the previous 12-month period, then rounded down to nearest lower cent increment. Inflation adjustments are based on changes in the food at home component of the CPI-U for the most recent 12-month period for which data are available. [Sec. 3408(e)(1)]

Improved Targeting of Day Care Home Reimbursements: Grants to States. Provides grants to States to assist family or group day care homes and their sponsors in implementing the new reimbursement rate system. For fiscal year 1997, the Secretary is required to reserve for this purpose $5 million of the amounts made available for the child care food program and allocate it to States based on the number of homes participating in fiscal year 1995 (with a minimum of $30,000 for each State). [Sec. 3408(e)(2)]

Improved Targeting of Day Care Home Reimbursements: Provision of Data. Requires that the Secretary provide Census data necessary for determining homes' tier I/II status and that States provide school enrollment data necessary to determine tier I/II status. In determining homes' tier I/II status, the most current available data (Census, enrollment, income) must be used. In general, a determination that a home is located in a tier I area is effective for 3 years. [Sec. 3408(e)(3)]

Reimbursement. Deletes the out-of-date requirement to reduce administrative payments to sponsors.

Deletes the authority to use administrative expense funding for outreach and recruitment.

Makes the provision of advance payments a State option. [Sec. 3408(f)]

Nutritional Requirements. Deletes a redundant provision requiring that free meals be served to needy children (this requirement is found elsewhere in law).

Deletes the requirement to provide additional technical assistance. [Sec. 3408(g)]

Elimination of State Paperwork/Outreach Burden. Removes the noted requirements in present law and replaces them with a requirement that States provide sufficient training, technical assistance, and monitoring to facilitate effective operation of the child care food program. Requires the Secretary to assist States in developing plans to do so. [Sec. 3408(h)]

Records. Revises the requirement to make accounts and records available at all times to a requirement that they be available at "any reasonable time." [Sec. 3408(i)]

Modification of Adult Care Food Program. Deletes authority for reimbursements for meals to those in adult day care centers who are not chronically impaired disabled persons. Deletes authority for any reimbursements to adult day care centers that do not serve chronically impaired disabled persons. [Sec. 3408(j)]

[Note.—Section 3408(a) & (l) make conforming amendments.]

Unneeded Provision. Deletes requirements to provide WIC information through the child care food program. [Sec. 3408(k)]

Effective Date. Establishes effective dates for changes affecting the child care food program. In general, they are effective on enactment, but amendments restructuring day care home reimbursement rates are effective July 1, 1997.

Requires the Secretary to issue interim regulations related to restructuring day care home reimbursement rates, provision of data to implement the restructured rates, and changes to sponsors' use of administrative funds by January 1, 1997. Final regulations on these changes must be issued by July 1, 1997. [Sec. 3408(m)]

Study. Requires the Secretaries of Agriculture and Health and Human Services to undertake a study of the effects of amendments restructuring day care home reimbursements, due 2 years after enactment. Requires State agencies to provide certain data to support the study. [Sec. 3408(n)]

The conferees understand that the Secretary has historically provided different family and group day care home payments in Alaska and Hawaii. The conferees expect that the tier I and tier II reimbursements provided for in this measure also will be varied for Alaska and Hawaii.

Improved Targeting of Day Care Home Reimbursements: Provision of Data. Same provisions. [Sec. 1207(e)(3)]

Reimbursement. Same provisions, except replaces the existing permission to use funds for outreach/recruitment with permission to use funds to assist unlicensed homes in becoming licensed. [Sec. 1207(f)]

9. PILOT PROJECTS

Present law

"Universal free lunch" pilots, similar to "provision 2" authority found elsewhere in law, are required. [Sec. 18(d) of the NSLA]

A demonstration project for grants to provide meals and supplements to adolescents in programs outside school hours is required; assistance is in accordance with that provided under the child and adult care food program. For each of fiscal years 1996 and 1997, the Secretary must expend $475,000 ($525,000 in 1998), unless there is an insufficient number of suitable applicants. [Sec. 18(e) of the NSLA]

Pilot projects are authorized to evaluate the effects of contracting with private organizations to act as a State agency in cases where the Secretary is administering a child nutrition program in place of a State. [Sec. 18(a) of the NSLA]

A pilot project is authorized to assist schools in offering students additional choices of fruits, vegetables, legumes, cereals, and grain-based products (including organically produced commodities). [Sec. 18(g) of the NSLA]

Deletes authority for the pilot projects to evaluate effects of contracting with private organizations; assist schools in offering students additional choices of fruits, vegetables, legumes, cereals and grain-based products, dairy products, lean meat and poultry products (including organically produced commodities); reduce paperwork, application and meal counting requirements and make program changes to increase school meal program participation. [Sec. 3409(c)]

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contains the same provisions that delete authority for the "universal free lunch" projects and make the pilot demonstration project for grants to provide meals and supplements to adolescents in programs outside school hours optional (authorizing "such sums as are necessary" for fiscal 1997 and 1998). [Sec. 1208(a), (b)] The Senate amendment does not contain the House provisions that delete authority for the pilot projects to: evaluate effects of contracting with private organizations; assist schools in offering students additional choices of fruits, vegetables, legumes, cereals and grain-based products, dairy products, lean meat and poultry products (including organically produced commodities); reduce paperwork, application and meal counting requirements and make program changes to increase school meal program participation.

In carrying out this requirement, the Secretary is required to consult with State/local administrators and convene a meeting of these administrators (not later than September 1990), and obtain suggestions from members of the public on reducing paperwork. By November 1990, the Secretary is required to report to Congress concerning the extent to which reduction in paperwork has occurred. [Sec. 19 of the NSLA]

The Secretary must revise menu planning guides to include recommendations for implementing the nutrition guidance in the publication. In carrying out any school meal program, summer program, or child care food program, school food authorities must apply the published nutrition guidance, and the Secretary must ensure that meals and supplements are consistent with the nutrition guidance. Present law

No provision.

House bill

Provides that schools may not be required to submit a free and reduced price "policy statement" to State education agencies unless there is a substantive change in the free and reduced price policy of the school. Routine changes (e.g., adjusting income eligibility standards) are not sufficient cause for requiring a school to submit a policy statement. [Sec. 3422]

Senate amendment

Similar provisions with a technical amendment clarifying that school food authorities, rather than schools, are the entities that may be required to submit a policy statement. [Sec. 1252]

Conference agreement

Approval of Changes. Same provisions. [Sec. 1254(b)]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills. [Sec. 724]

The conference agreement repeals Section 7(e) of the Child Nutrition Act so as to simplify the language in, and eliminate redundant provisions of, the Act. The managers note that no provisions of the Child Nutrition Act prohibit States from using State administrative expense (SAE) funds to administer the Commodity Distribution Program, which is authorized through the National School Lunch Act, and stress that the repeal of Section 7(e) should not be construed as barring or discouraging States from using SAE funds for this purpose.

18. REGULATIONS

Use of Funds. State agencies may use nutrition education and training funds for:

funding a nutrition component in consumer homemaking and health education programs;

TITLE VIII—FOOD STAMPS AND COMMODITIES DISTRIBUTION

Subtitle A—Food Stamp Program

1. DEFINITION OF CERTIFICATION PERIOD

Present law

For households subject to periodic (monthly) reporting, eligibility certification periods must be 6–12 months, but the Secretary may waive this rule. For households receiving federally aided public assistance or general assistance, certification periods must coincide with the certification periods for the other public assistance programs. For other households, certification periods generally must not be less than 3 months—but they can be (1) up to 12 months for those consisting entirely of unemployable, elderly, or primarily self-employed persons or (2) as short as circumstances require for those with a substantial likelihood of frequent changes in income or other circumstances and for any household on initial determination. The Secretary may waive the maximum 12-month period to improve program administration. [Sec. 3(c)]

House bill

Replaces existing provisions as to certification periods with a requirement that certification periods not exceed 12 months—but can be up to 24 months if all adult household members are elderly or disabled. Requires that State agencies have at least 1 contact with each certified household every 12 months. [Sec. 1011]

3. TREATMENT OF CHILDREN LIVING AT HOME

[Sec. 3(1)]

House bill

Removes the exception, from the requirement that related persons apply together as a single household, for children who are themselves parents living with their children and children who are married and living with their spouses. [Sec. 1013]

In addition, elderly persons who live with others and cannot purchase food and prepare meals separately because of a substantial disability may apply as separate "households" as long as their co-residents' income is below prescribed limits. [Sec. 3(1)]

House bill

Permits States to establish criteria that prescribe when persons who live together (and might otherwise be allowed to apply as separate households) must apply for food stamps as a single household—without regard to common purchase of food and preparation of meals. [Sec. 1014]

House bill

Sets maximum monthly food stamp benefits at 100 percent of the cost of the Thrifty Food Plan, effective October 1, 1996, adjusted annually as under present law. Requires that the October 1996 adjustment not reduce maximum benefit levels. [Sec. 1015]

10. DEDUCTIONS FROM INCOME

Present law

Standard Deductions. All households are allowed standard deductions from their otherwise countable income. Standard deductions are indexed annually (each October) for inflation based on the Consumer Price Index for urban wage earners (CPI-U) for items other than food and rounded down to the nearest dollar. For fiscal year 1995, standard deductions were: $134 a month for the 48 contiguous States and the District of Columbia, $229 for Alaska, $189 for Hawaii, $269 for Guam, and $118 for the Virgin Islands. For fiscal year 1996, they were "scheduled" to rise to: $138, $236, $195, $277, and $122, respectively. This was barred by the fiscal year 1996 appropriations measure, and fiscal year 1996 standard deduction levels are at the fiscal year 1995 amounts. [Sec. 5(e)]

Earned Income Deduction. Households may claim a deduction for 20 percent of any earnings. This deduction is not allowed with respect to any income that a household willfully or fraudulently fails to report in a timely manner, as proven in a fraud hearing proceeding (i.e., it is not allowed when determining the amount of a benefit overissuance). [Sec. 5(e)]

Homeless Shelter Allowance. For homeless households not receiving free shelter throughout the month, States may develop a homeless shelter expense estimate (a standard allowance) to be used in calculating an excess shelter expense deduction. States must use this amount unless the household verifies higher expenses. The Secretary may prohibit the use of the allowance for households with extremely low shelter costs. The maximum allowance amount is inflation indexed annually and currently stands at $143 a month (fiscal year 1996). [Sec. 11(e)(3)]

Excess Shelter Expense Deduction. Households may claim excess shelter expense deductions from their otherwise countable income—in the amount of any shelter expenses (including utility costs) above 50 percent of their countable income after all other deductions have been applied. For households with elderly or disabled members, these deductions are unlimited. For other households, they are limited to: $247 a month in the 48 contiguous States and the District of Columbia, $429 in Alaska, $353 in Hawaii, $300 in Guam, and $182 in the Virgin Islands. Effective January 1, 1997, these limits on excess shelter expense deductions for households without elderly or disabled members are lifted. [Sec. 5(e)]

States may develop and use "standard utility allowances" (as approved by the Secretary) in calculating households' shelter expenses. However, households may (1) claim actual expenses instead of the allowance and (2) switch between an actual expense claim and the standard allowance at the end of any certification period and 1 additional time during any 12-month period. [Sec. 5(e)]

House bill

Standard Deductions. Indefinitely freezes standard deduction amounts at their present levels (e.g., $134 for the 48 contiguous States and the District of Columbia). [Sec. 1020]

Earned Income Deduction. Disallows an earned income deduction for any income not reported in a timely manner and for the public assistance portion of income earned under a work supplementation/support program. [Sec. 1020]

Homeless Shelter Allowance. Indefinitely freezes the maximum homeless shelter allowance at its present level ($143). States may use it in calculating an excess shelter expense deduction (without regard to actual costs) and may prohibit its use for households with extremely low shelter costs. [Sec. 1020]

Excess Shelter Expense Deduction. Indefinitely retains current limits on excess shelter expense deductions for households without elderly or disabled members (e.g., $247 for the 48 contiguous States and the District of Columbia). [Sec. 1020]

Permits States to make use of standard utility allowances mandatory for all households if (1) the State has developed separate standards that do and do not include the cost of heating and cooling and (2) the Secretary finds that the standards will not result in increased Federal costs. [Sec. 1020]

Senate amendment

Standard Deductions. Extends the present standard deduction levels (e.g., $134 for the 48 contiguous States) through November 1996. For December 1996 through September 2001, sets standard deduction at $120, $206, $170, $242, and $106. For October 2001 through August 2002, sets standard deductions at $113, $193, $159, $227, and $100. For September 2002, sets standard deductions at $120, $206, $170, $242, and $106. Beginning with fiscal year 2003, standard deductions are indexed for inflation as under present law. [Sec. 1119]

Earned Income Deduction. Same provision. [Sec. 1119]

Homeless Shelter Allowance. Same provision. [Sec. 1119]

Excess Shelter Expense Deduction. Effective January 1, 1997, increases the current limits on excess shelter expense deductions to $342 in the 48 contiguous States and the District of Columbia, $594 in Alaska, $489 in Hawaii, $415 in Guam, and $252 in the Virgin Islands. No further increases are provided. [Sec. 1119]

Includes the same provision as in the House bill in regard to mandatory standard utility allowances. [Sec. 1119]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills. With regard to the provisions in disagreement:

the conference agreement adopts the House provision as to standard deductions; and the conference agreement adopts the Senate provision as to limits on the excess shelter expense deduction with an amendment (1) requiring that they continue at their present-law levels (e.g. $247 for the 48 contiguous States and the District of Columbia) through December 31, 1996, (2) for January 1, 1997, through fiscal year 1998, increasing the limits to $250 for the 48 States and the District of Columbia, $434 for Alaska, $357 for Hawaii, $304 for Guam, and $184 for the Virgin Islands, (3) for fiscal years 1999 and 2000, increasing the limits to $275, $478, $393, $334, and $203, and (4) for fiscal years 2001, 2002, and each subsequent fiscal year, increasing the limits to $300, $521, $429, $364, and $221. [Sec. 809]

11. VEHICLE ALLOWANCE

Present law

In determining a household's liquid assets for food stamp eligibility purposes, a vehicle's fair market value in excess of $4,600 is counted. This threshold is scheduled to rise to an estimated $5,150 on October 1, 1996, and be adjusted each October thereafter to reflect changes in the new car component of the CPI-U for the 12-month period ending the immediately preceding June (rounded to the nearest $50). Excluded from this rule are vehicles used to produce income, necessary for transportation of a disabled household member, or depended on to carry fuel or water. [Sec. 5(g)]

House bill

Retains the threshold above which the fair market value of a vehicle is counted as a liquid asset at the current level—$4,600. [Sec. 1021]

Senate amendment

Effective October 1, 1996, sets the threshold above which the fair market value of a vehicle is counted as a liquid asset to $4,650. No further increases are provided. [Sec. 1120]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the Senate provision. [Sec. 810]

12. VENDOR PAYMENTS FOR TRANSITIONAL HOUSING COUNTED AS INCOME

Present law

AFDC, or general assistance housing aid, provided to a third party on behalf of a food stamp household is considered paid directly to the household (and thus counted as household income) unless, among other exceptions, it is housing assistance paid on behalf of households residing in "transitional housing for the homeless." [Sec. 5(k)]

House bill

Removes the exception for vendor payments for transitional housing for the homeless. [Sec. 1022]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1121]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 811]

13. SIMPLIFIED CALCULATION OF INCOME FOR THE SELF-EMPLOYED

Present law

The cost of producing self-employment income is disregarded (subtracted out) in calculating household income. [Sec. 5(d)]

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Provides that the Secretary establish a procedure (designed not to increase Federal costs) by which States may use a reasonable estimate of the cost of producing self-employment income in lieu of calculating actual costs, not later than 1 year after enactment. The procedure must allow States to estimate costs for all types of self-employment income and may differ for different types of self-employment income. [Sec. 1122]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the Senate provision with an amendment providing that the Secretary establish a procedure by which States may submit a method for determining reasonable estimates of the cost of producing self-employment income designed not to increase Federal costs. [Sec. 812]

14. DOUBLED PENALTIES FOR VIOLATING FOOD STAMP PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

Present law

The disqualification period for the first intentional violation of program requirements is 6 months. The penalty for a second intentional violation (and the first violation involving trading of a controlled substance) is 1 year. [Sec. 6(b)(1)]

House bill

Increases the disqualification penalty for a first intentional violation to 1 year. Increases the penalty for a second intentional violation (and the first involving a controlled substance) to 2 years. [Sec. 1023]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1123]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 813]

15. DISQUALIFICATION OF CONVICTED INDIVIDUALS

Present law

Permanent disqualification is required for the third intentional violation of program requirements, the second violation involving trading of a controlled substance, and the first violation involving trading of firearms, ammunition, or explosives. [Sec. 6(b)(1)]

House bill

Adds a requirement for permanent disqualification of persons convicted of trafficking in food stamp benefits where the benefits have a value of $500 or more. [Sec. 1024]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1124]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 814]

16. DISQUALIFICATION

Present law

Conditions of Participation. Non-exempt individuals between 16 and 60 are ineligible if they: (1) refuse to register for employment, (2) refuse without good cause (including lack of adequate child care) to participate in an employment or training program when required to do so by the State, or (3) refuse, without good cause, a job offer meeting minimum standards. In addition, if the individual is head of household and fails to comply with one of the above-noted conditions or voluntarily quits a job without good cause, the entire household is ineligible. [Sec. 6(d)(1)]

Duration of Ineligibility/Household Ineligibility. Disqualification periods for failure to meet work/training conditions of participation are (1) 2 months or until compliance (whichever is first) for most failures and (2) 90 days in the case of a voluntary quit. [Sec. 6(d)(1)]

House bill

Conditions of Participation. Adds conditions making individuals ineligible if they (1) refuse without good cause to provide sufficient information to allow the State agency to determine their employment status or job availability or (2) voluntarily and without good cause reduce work effort and (after the reduction) are working less than 30 hours a week. Makes ineligibility for failure to comply with workfare requirements explicit and covered by new (see below) duration of ineligibility rules. Adds a condition making all individuals (in addition to heads of household) ineligible if they voluntarily quit a job without good cause. Lack of adequate child care, as an explicit good cause exemption for refusal to participate in an employment or training program, is removed. [Sec. 1025]

Duration of Ineligibility/Household Ineligibility. Establishes new mandatory minimum disqualification periods for individuals failing to comply with any work/training condition of participation. For the first violation, individuals are ineligible until they fulfill work/training conditions, for 1 month, or for a period (determined by the State) not to exceed 3 months—whichever is later. For the second violation, individuals are ineligible until they fulfill work/training conditions, for 3 months, or for a period (determined by the State) not to exceed 6 months—whichever is later. For a third or subsequent violation, individuals are ineligible until they fulfill work/training conditions, for 6 months, until a date set by the State agency, or (at State option) permanently. [Sec. 1025]

Establishes a new household ineligibility rule: if any individual who is head of household is disqualified under a work/training condition of participation, the entire household is, at State option, ineligible for a period not to exceed the lesser of the duration of the individual's ineligibility or 180 days. [Sec. 1025]

Administration. In establishing cases of good cause, voluntary quit, and reduction of work effort, the Secretary determines the meaning of the terms. States determine the meaning of other terms related to work/training conditions of participation and the procedures for making compliance decisions, but cannot make determinations that are less restrictive than a comparable one under the State's family assistance block grant (TANF) program. [Sec. 1025]

Senate amendment

Conditions of Participation. Same provision. [Sec. 1125]

Duration of Ineligibility/Household Ineligibility. Same provision. [Sec. 1125]

Administration. Same provision. [Sec. 1125]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills. [Sec. 815]

17. CARETAKER EXEMPTION

Present law

Parents or other household members with responsibility for the care of a dependent child under age 6 are exempt from food stamp work/training conditions of participation. [Sec. 6(d)(2)]

House bill

Permits States to lower the age at which a child "exempts" a parent or caretaker from age 6 to not under the age of 1. [Sec. 1026]

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the House provision with an amendment to permit a State to lower the age at which a child exempts a parent or caretaker from age 6 to not under age 1, if the State requested a waiver to lower the age of a dependent child that exempts the parent or caretaker and had the waiver denied by the Secretary as of August 1, 1996. The State may lower the age of the child for not more than 3 years. [Sec. 816]

18. EMPLOYMENT AND TRAINING

Present law

Programs. States must operate employment and training programs for nonexempt food stamp recipients and place a minimum proportion of those covered in a program component. Program components can range from job search or education activities to work experience/training and workfare assignments.

Work experience/training program components must limit assignments to projects serving a useful public purpose, use the prior training/experience of assignees, not provide work that has the effect of replacing others, and provide the same benefits and working conditions provided others.

States and political subdivisions also may operate workfare programs under which non-exempt recipients may be required to perform work in return for the minimum wage equivalent of their household's monthly food stamp allotment. Workfare assignments may not replace or prevent the employment of others and must provide the same benefits and working conditions provided others.

The total hours of work required of a household under an employment/training program (including workfare) cannot exceed the minimum wage equivalent of the household's monthly allotment. Monthly participation in an employment/training program required of any household member cannot exceed 120 hours (when added to other work). And workfare hours (when added to other work) cannot exceed 30 hours a week for a household member.

Under employment and training programs for food stamp recipients, States must provide or pay for transportation and other costs directly related to participation (up to $25 a month for each participant) and necessary dependent care expenses (in general, up to local market rates). Under workfare program, States must reimburse participants for transportation and other costs directly related to participation (up to $25 a month for each participant). [Sec. 6(d)(4) and sec. 20]

Funding. To support employment and training programs for food stamp recipients, States receive a formula share of required spending of $75 million a year. Each State's share is based on its share of nonexempt recipients and its share of those placed in employment/training program components. [Sec. 16(h)]

In addition, States receive a 50 percent match for any additional administrative or participant support costs. [Sec. 16(h)]

House bill

Programs. Revises the existing requirements for State-operated employment and training programs for food stamp recipients: makes clear that work experience is a purpose of employment and training programs; requires that each component of an employment/training program be delivered through a "statewide workforce development system," unless the component is not available locally through the system;

expands the existing State option to apply work/training requirements to applicants to include all work/training requirements, not only job search;

removes specific Federal rules governing job search components (i.e., those tied to rules in the AFDC program); removes provisions for employment/training components related to work experience requiring that they be in public service work and use recipients' prior training/experience;

removes specific Federal rules as to States' authority to exempt categories and individuals from employment/training requirements, giving States full latitude to determine exemptions; removes a requirement to serve volunteers; removes the requirement for "conciliation procedures" for resolving disputes involving participation in employment/training programs;

limits employment and training funding provided by the food stamp program for services to family assistance block grant (TANF) recipients to the amount used by the State for AFDC recipients in fiscal year 1995; and removes provisions for Federal performance standards on States. [Sec. 1027]

Funding. Provides for required Federal spending of increasing amounts for employment and training programs: $79 million in fiscal year 1997, $81 million in 1998, $84 million in 1999, $86 million in 2000, $88 million in 2001, and $90 million in 2002. State allocations are based on a "reasonable formula" (determined by the Secretary) that gives consideration to each State's population of persons subject to the new work requirement (see item 25). [Sec. 1027]

Provides that the 50 percent match for additional administrative costs can include costs for case management/casework to facilitate the transition from economic dependency to self-sufficiency through work. [Sec. 1027]

Deletes a requirement for a report from the Secretary on modifying Federal employment and training program payments to States to reflect their effectiveness in carrying out employment and training programs. [Sec. 1027]

Senate amendment

Programs. Same provisions. [Sec. 1126]
Funding. Same provisions, except that required Federal spending is $85 million a year for fiscal years 1997–2002. [Sec. 1126]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills and adopts House provision with regard to Funding. [Sec. 817]

19. FOOD STAMP ELIGIBILITY

Present law

The income and resources of aliens ineligible under Food Stamp Act provisions are counted as available to the remainder of the household, less a pro rata share for the ineligible alien. [Sec. 6(f)]

House bill

Permits States the option to count all of the income and resources of an alien ineligible under Food Stamp Act provisions as available to the remainder of the household. [Sec. 1066]

Senate amendment

Same provision, with technical differences. [Sec. 1127]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the Senate provision. [Sec. 818]

20. COMPARABLE TREATMENT FOR DISQUALIFICATION

Present law

Households penalized for an intentional failure to comply with a Federal, State, or local welfare program may not, for the duration of the penalty, receive an increased food stamp allotment because the welfare payment has been reduced. [Sec. 8(d)]

Persons are exempt from food stamp work/training conditions of participation if they are currently subject to and complying with AFDC or unemployment insurance work registration requirements. Failure to comply with an AFDC/unemployment insurance work registration requirement that "is comparable to" a food stamp work requirement results in disqualification as if the food stamp requirement had been violated. [Sec. 6(d)(2)]

House bill

If an individual is disqualified for failure to perform an action required under a Federal, State, or local law relating to means-tested public assistance, the State agency is permitted to impose the same disqualification for food stamps.

If a disqualification is imposed under the family assistance block grant (TANF) rules, States are permitted to use the TANF rules and procedures to impose the same disqualification for food stamps.

Permits individuals disqualified from food stamps because of failure to perform a required action under another public assistance program to apply for food stamps as new applicants after the disqualification period has expired, except that a prior disqualification under food stamp program work/training rules must be considered in determining eligibility.

Requires States to include in their State plans the guidelines they use in carrying out food stamp disqualification for failure to perform another program's required action(s). [Sec. 1028]

Removes the requirement that an AFDC/unemployment insurance work requirement be "comparable" to a food stamp requirement to bring on disqualification from food stamps. [Sec. 1028]

Senate amendment

Same provisions. [Sec. 1128]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills. [Sec. 819]

21. DISQUALIFICATION FOR RECEIPT OF MULTIPLE FOOD STAMP BENEFITS

Present law

No comparable provision.

House bill

Adds a provision making individuals ineligible for 10 years if they are found by a State agency (or Federal or State court) to have made a fraudulent statement with respect to identity or residence in order to receive multiple food stamp benefits simultaneously. [Sec. 1029]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1129]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 820]

The conferees note that State agency hearing processes have sufficient recipient protections to warrant a decision to impose a 10-year disqualification in these cases.

22. DISQUALIFICATION OF FLEEING FELONS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Adds a provision making individuals ineligible while they are fleeing to avoid prosecution, custody, or confinement for a felony or attempted felony or violating a condition of probation or parole. [Sec. 1030]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1130]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 821]

23. COOPERATION WITH CHILD SUPPORT AGENCIES

Present law

Custodial Parents. No provisions.

Noncustodial Parents. No provisions.

House bill

Custodial Parents. Permits States to disqualify custodial parents of children under the age of 18 who have an absent parent, unless the parent cooperates with the State child support agency in establishing the child's paternity and obtaining support for the child and the parent. Cooperation is not required if the State finds there is good cause (in accordance with Federal standards taking into account the child's best interest). Fees or other costs for services may not be charged. [Sec. 1031]

Noncustodial Parents. Permits States to disqualify putative or identified noncustodial parents of children under 18 if they refuse to cooperate with the State child support agency in establishing the child's paternity and providing support for the child. The Secretary and the Secretary of Health and Human Services must develop guidelines as to what constitutes a refusal to cooperate, and States must develop procedures (using these guidelines) for determining whether there has been a refusal to cooperate. Fees or other costs for services may not be charged.

States must provide privacy safeguards. [Sec. 1031]

Senate amendment

Custodial Parents. Same provisions. [Sec. 1131]

Noncustodial Parents. Same provisions. [Sec. 1131]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills. [Sec. 822]

24. DISQUALIFICATION RELATING TO CHILD SUPPORT ARREARS

Present law

No provisions.

House bill

Allows States to disqualify individuals during any period in which the individual is delinquent in any court-ordered child support payment, unless the court is allowing a delay or the individual is complying with a payment plan approved by the court or a State child support agency. [Sec. 1032]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1132]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 823]

25. WORK REQUIREMENT

Present law

No comparable provisions.

House bill

Requirement. After the date of enactment, no nonexempt individual may be eligible for food stamps for more than 3 months during which the individual does not (1) work at least 20 hours a week (averaged monthly), (2) participate in and comply with a "work program" for at least 20 hours a week (as determined by the State agency), or (3) participate in a workfare program. A work program is defined as a program under the Job Training Partnership Act, a Trade Adjustment Assistance Act program, or a program of employment and training operated or supervised by a State or political subdivision that meets standards approved by the Governor (including a Food Stamp Act employment and training program), other than job search or job search training. [Sec. 1033]

General Exemptions. The new work requirement does not apply to (1) those under 18 or over 50, (2) those who are medically certified as physically or mentally unfit for employment, (3) parents or other household members with the responsibility for a dependent child, (3) those otherwise exempt from work registration requirements (e.g., those caring for incapacitated persons), and (4) pregnant women. [Sec. 1033]

Other Provisions. On a State agency's request, the Secretary may waive application of the new work requirement to any group of individuals if the Secretary determines that the area where they reside (1) has an unemployment rate over 10 percent or (2) does not have a sufficient number of jobs to provide them employment. The Secretary must report the basis for any waiver to Congress. [Sec. 1033]

Senate amendment

Requirement. No nonexempt individual may be eligible for food stamps if, during the preceding 12-month period, the individual received food stamp benefits for 4 months or more while not (1) working at least 20 hours a week (averaged monthly), (2) participating in and complying with a "work program" for at least 20 hours a week (as determined by the State agency), or (3) participating in and complying with a workfare program. A work program is defined as in the House bill, with a technical difference. [Sec. 1133]

General Exemptions. Same provisions. [Sec. 1133]

Other Provisions. Provisions for unemployment-rate and job-availability waivers are the same as in the House bill, except that the Secretary must respond to a State agency request within 15 days. [Sec. 1133]

The disqualification imposed under the new work requirement ceases to apply if, during a 30-day period, an individual works 80 hours or more, participates in and complies with a work program (defined above) for at least 80 hours, or participates in and complies with a workfare program. After regaining eligibility, the individual again is subject to the new work requirement, except that a new 12-month period begins. [Sec. 1133]

State agencies may exempt an individual from the new work requirement: (1) by reason of "hardship" or (2) for up to 2 months (in any 12-month period), if the individual participates in and complies with a job search or job search training program under the Food Stamp Act's employment and training program provisions that requires an average of at least 20 hours a week of participation. The fiscal year average monthly number of individuals participating because of a hardship exemption may not exceed 20 percent of the fiscal year average number of individuals receiving food stamps who are not exempt from the new work requirement because of the general exemptions or waivers (noted above). [Sec. 1133]

Provides for a transition to the new work requirement. Prior to 1 year after enactment, administrators would not "look back" a full 12 months; they would look back only to the date of enactment. [Sec. 1133]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills: General Exemptions and provisions for waivers in cases of high unemployment and lack of sufficient jobs. With respect to the provisions in disagreement, the conference agreement adopts the Senate provisions with an amendment:

No nonexempt individual may be eligible for food stamps if, during the preceding 36-month period, the individual received food stamp benefits for 3 months or more while not (1) working at least 20 hours a week (averaged monthly), (2) participating in and complying with a work program for at least 20 hours a week (as determined by the State agency), or (3) participating in and complying with a workfare program. A work program is defined as in the House bill. Receipt of benefits while exempt (including participation under the additional 3-month eligibility provision described below) or covered by a waiver would not count toward an individual's basic 3-month eligibility period.

Individuals denied eligibility under the new work rule would regain eligibility if, during a 30-day period, the individual (1) works 80 or more hours, (2) participates in and complies with the requirements of a work program for 80 or more hours (as determined by the State agency), or (3) participates in and complies with the requirements of a workfare program. After having met this 30-day work/training requirement, the individual could remain eligible for a consecutive period of 3 months without working at least 20 hours a week or participating in an employment/training or workfare program.

For example, if an individual works 20 hours a week for at least 30 days and then loses a job, the individual could retain food stamp eligibility for 3 consecutive months without working or being in a training/workfare program.

But individuals could not take advantage of this provision for an additional 3 months of eligibility, while not working or in an employment/training or workfare program, for more than a single 3-month period in a 36-month period. Individuals regaining eligibility also would remain eligible as long as they continued to meet requirements to work at least 20 hours a week or participate in a training/workfare program.

Transition provisions are included that provide that the 36-month period established by the new work requirement will not include any period before the earlier of the date the State notifies recipients (through means such as individual notices at certification, recertification, otherwise, mass mailings, media announcements, or otherwise) about the new work requirement or 3 months after enactment.

[Sec. 824]

26. ENCOURAGEMENT OF ELECTRONIC BENEFIT TRANSFER SYSTEMS

Present law

Rules for EBT Systems. State agencies, with the Secretary's approval, may implement on-line electronic benefit transfer (EBT) systems for delivering food stamp benefits. No State may implement or expand an EBT system without prior approval from the Secretary. States are responsible for 50 percent of EBT system costs. The Secretary's regulations for approval must include (1) standards that require that, in any 1 year, the operational cost of an EBT system does not exceed costs of prior issuance systems and (2) system security standards. [Sec. 7(i)]

Regulation E. The Federal Reserve Board has ruled that, as of March 1997 (and with some minor modifications), its "Regulation E" will apply to EBT systems. Regulation E provides certain protections for consumers using cards to access their accounts. It limits the liability of cardholders for unauthorized withdrawals (to $50 if timely notification is made) and requires periodic account statements and certain error resolution procedures. [Federal Register of March 7, 1994]

Anti-tying Restrictions. No provision.

House bill

Rules for EBT Systems. Provides that States must implement EBT systems (on-line or off-line) before October 1, 2002, unless the Secretary waives the requirement because a State agency faces unusual barriers to implementation. States are encouraged to implement an EBT system as soon as practicable. [Sec. 1034]

Subject to Federal standards, permits State agencies to procure and implement an EBT system under the terms, conditions, and design the agency considers appropriate. Adds a new requirement for Federal procurement standards and deletes the requirement for the Secretary's prior approval. [Sec. 1034]

Adds a requirement for EBT standards following generally accepted operating rules based on commercial technology, the need to permit interstate operation and law enforcement, and the need to permit monitoring and investigations by law enforcement officials. [Sec. 1034]

Adds requirements that the Secretary's standards include (1) measures to maximize security and (2) effective not later than 2 years after enactment, measures to permit EBT systems to differentiate among food items. [Sec. 1034]

Deletes the requirement that EBT systems be cost neutral in any one year. [Sec. 1034]

Adds a requirement that regulations regarding the replacement of benefits and liability for replacement under an EBT system be similar to those in effect for a paper food stamp issuance system. [Sec. 1034]

Permits State agencies to collect a charge for replacing EBT cards by reducing allotments. [Sec. 1034]

Permits State agencies to require that EBT cards contain a photograph of one or more household members and requires that, if a State requires a photograph, it must establish procedures to ensure that other appropriate members of the household and authorized representatives may use the card. [Sec. 1034]

Declares it the sense of Congress that States operate EBT systems that are compatible with other States' systems. [Sec. 1034]

Regulation E. Provides that Regulation E will not apply to any EBT system, established under, or administered by, State or local governments, distributing needs-tested benefits. [Sec. 1091]

Anti-tying Restrictions. Provides that a company may not sell or provide EBT services, or fix or vary the consideration for such services, on the condition or requirement that the customer obtain, or not obtain, some additional point-of-sale service from the company or any affiliate. Requires the Secretary to consult with the Governors of the Federal Reserve before issuing regulations to carry out this provision. [Sec. 1034]

Senate amendment

Rules for EBT Systems. Same provisions. [Sec. 1134]

Regulation E. Same provision. [Sec. 2809]

Also provides that Regulation E will not apply to food stamp benefits delivered through an EBT system. [Sec. 1134]

Anti-tying Restrictions. No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills, with a technical amendment, and adopts the Senate provision providing that Regulation E will not apply to food stamp benefits. The conferees intend that regulations issued by the Secretary regarding the replacement of benefits and liability for replacement of benefits under an EBT system will not require greater replacement of benefits or impose greater liability than those regulations in effect for a paper-based food stamp issuance system. [Sec. 825 and sec. 891]

The conference agreement also adopts the House provision applying anti-tying restrictions of the Bank Holding Company Act Amendments of 1970 to EBT services offered by nonbanks. The conferees intend that, in applying the anti-tying restrictions to nonbanks, the Secretary implement the anti-tying provision consistent with the anti-tying restrictions that apply to banks. [Sec. 825]

27. VALUE OF MINIMUM ALLOTMENT

Present law

The minimum monthly allotment for 1- and 2-person households is set at $10. It is indexed for inflation and rounded to the nearest $5. [Sec. 8(a)]

House bill

Deletes the requirement for inflation indexing of the minimum allotment. [Sec. 1035]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1135]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 826]

28. BENEFITS ON RECERTIFICATION

Present law

Recipient households not fulfilling eligibility recertification requirements in the last month of their certification period are allowed a 1-month "grace period" in which to fulfill the requirements before their benefits are pro-rated (reduced) to reflect the delay. [Sec. 8(c)]

House bill

For those who do not complete all eligibility recertification requirements in the last month of their certification period, but are then determined to be eligible after their certification period has expired, requires that they receive reduced benefits in the first month of their new certification period (i.e., their benefits would be pro-rated to the date they met the requirements and were judged eligible). [Sec. 1036]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1136]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 827]

29. OPTIONAL COMBINED ALLOTMENT FOR EXPEDITED HOUSEHOLDS

Present law

For households applying after the 15th of the month, States may provide an allotment that is the aggregate of the initial (pro-rated) allotment and the first regular allotment. However, combined allotments must be provided to households applying after the 15th who are entitled to expedited service. [Sec. 8(c)]

House bill

Makes provision of combined allotments a State option both for regular and expedited service applicants. [Sec. 1037]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1137]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 828]

30. FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH OTHER MEANS-TESTED PUBLIC ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

Present law

Households penalized for intentional failure to comply with a Federal, State, or local welfare program may not, for the duration of the penalty, receive an increased food stamp allotment because their welfare income has been reduced. [Sec. 8(d)]

House bill

Bars increased food stamp allotments when the benefits of a household are reduced under a Federal, State, or local means-tested public assistance program for failure to perform a required action. Permits States also to reduce a household's food stamp allotment by up to 25 percent. If the allotment is reduced for failure to perform an action under a family assistance block grant (TANF) program, the State may use the rules and procedures of that program to reduce the food stamp allotment. [Sec. 1038]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1138]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 829]

31. ALLOTMENTS FOR HOUSEHOLDS RESIDING IN CENTERS

Present law

Residential substance abuse centers may be designated as recipients' authorized representatives, and benefits generally are provided to the center.

House bill

Permits State agencies to divide a month's food stamp benefits between the center and an individual who leaves the center and permits States to require center residents to designate centers as authorized representatives. [Sec. 1039]

Senate amendment

Same provisions. [Sec. 1139]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills. [Sec. 830]

32. CONDITION PRECEDENT FOR APPROVAL OF RETAIL FOOD STORES AND WHOLESALE FOOD CONCERNS

Present law

No provisions.

House bill

Provides that no food concerns (of a type determined by the Secretary based on factors including size, location, and types of items sold) be approved for participation unless visited by an Agriculture Department employee (or, whenever possible, a State or local government official designated by the Secretary). [Sec. 1040]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1140]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 831]

33. AUTHORITY TO ESTABLISH AUTHORIZATION PERIODS

Present law

No provisions.

House bill

Requires the Secretary to establish specific time periods during which retail food stores' and wholesale food concerns' authorization to accept and redeem food stamp benefits will be valid. [Sec. 1041]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1141]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 834]

36. OPERATION OF FOOD STAMP OFFICES

Present law

State Plans. States must:
allow households contacting a food stamp office in person during office hours to make an oral/written request for aid and receive and file an application on the same day;

use a simplified, uniform, federally designed application, unless a waiver is approved; include certain, specific information in applications;

waive in-person interviews under certain circumstances and use telephone interviews or home visits instead;

provide for telephone contact and mail application by households with transportation or similar difficulties; require an adult representative of the household to certify as to household members' citizenship/alien status; assist households in obtaining verification and completing applications;

not require additional verification of currently verified information (unless there is reason to believe that the information is inaccurate, incomplete, or inconsistent); not deny an application solely because a nonhousehold member fails to cooperate; process applications if the household meets cooperation requirements; provide households with a statement of reporting responsibilities at certification and recertification; provide a toll-free or local telephone number at which households can reach State agency personnel; display and make available nutrition information; and use mail issuance in rural areas where low-income households face substantial difficulties in obtaining transportation. [Sec. 11(e) (2), (14), & (25)]

Application and Denial Procedures. A single interview for determining AFDC and food stamp benefits is required. Food stamp applications generally are required to be contained in public assistance applications, and applications and information about how to apply for food stamps must be provided local assistance applicants. Applicants (including those who have recently lost or been denied public assistance) must be certified eligible for food stamps based on their public assistance casefile (to the extent it is reasonably verified). No household may be terminated from or denied food stamps solely on the basis of termination/denial of other public assistance without a separate food stamp determination. [Sec. 11(i)]

House bill

State Plans. Replaces noted existing State plan requirements with requirements that the State:

establish procedures governing the operation of food stamp offices that it determines best serve households in the State, including those with special needs (such as households with elderly or disabled members, those in rural areas, the homeless, households residing on reservations, and households speaking a language other than English); provide timely, accurate, and fair service to applicants and participants; permit applicants to apply and participate on the same day they first contact a food stamp office during office hours;

consider an application filed on the date the applicant submits an application with the applicant's name, address, and signature; require that an adult representative certify as to the truth of the information on the application and citizenship/alien status; and have a method for certifying homeless households. [Sec. 1044]

Permits States to establish operating procedures that vary for local food stamp offices. [Sec. 1044]

Stipulates that the signature of a single adult will be sufficient to comply with any provision of Federal law requiring applicant signatures. [Sec. 1044]

Makes clear that nothing in the Food Stamp Act prohibits electronic storage of application and other information. [Sec. 1044]

Application and Denial Procedures. Deletes noted existing requirements for single interviews, applications, and food stamp determinations based on public assistance information. Permits disqualification for food stamps based on another public assistance program's disqualification for failure to comply with its rules or regulations. [Sec. 1044]

States must provide continuing, comprehensive training for all certification personnel. States may undertake intensive training of personnel to ensure they are qualified for certifying farm households. States may provide or contract for the provision of training and assistance to persons working with volunteer or nonprofit organizations that provide outreach and eligibility screening. custody, or confinement for a felony, is violating a condition of parole or probation, or has information necessary for the officer to conduct an official duty related to a felony/parole violation. [Sec. 1046]

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 837]

39. EXPEDITED COUPON SERVICE

Present law

States must provide expedited benefits to applicant households that (1) have gross income under $150 a month (or are "destitute" migrant or seasonal farmworker households) and have liquid resources of no more than $100, (2) are homeless, or (3) have combined gross income and liquid resources less than the household's monthly shelter expenses. Expedited service means providing an allotment no later than 5 days after application. [Sec. 11(e)(9)]

House bill

Deletes noted requirements to provide expedited service to the homeless and those with shelter expenses in excess of their income/resources. Lengthens the period in which expedited benefits must be provided to 7 days. [Sec. 1047]

The conference agreement adopts the House provisions with an amendment to retain the requirement for expedited service to those with income and liquid resources less than their monthly shelter expenses. [Sec. 838]

40. WITHDRAWING FAIR HEARING REQUESTS

Present law

[Sec. 11(e)(19)]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 842]

43. DISQUALIFICATION OF RETAILERS WHO ARE DISQUALIFIED UNDER THE WIC PROGRAM

Present law

No provisions.

House bill

Requires the Secretary to issue regulations providing criteria for disqualifying from food stamp program participation retailers/wholesalers disqualified from the WIC program. Disqualification must be for the same length of time, may begin at a later date, and is not subject to separate food stamp administrative/judicial review provisions. [Sec. 1051]

Senate amendment

Same provisions. [Sec. 1150]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 843]

44. COLLECTION OF OVERISSUANCES

Present law

In the case of overissuances due to an intentional program violation, households must agree to repayment by either a reduction in future benefits or cash repayment; States also are required to collect overissuances to these households through other means such as tax refund or unemployment compensation collections if other repayment is not forthcoming (unless they demonstrate that the other means are not cost effective). In cases of overissuance because of inadvertent household error, States must collect the overissuance through a reduction in future benefits, except that households must be given 10 days notice to elect another means and collections are limited to 10 percent of the monthly allotment or $10 a month (whichever would result in faster collection). Otherwise uncollected overissued benefits, except those arising from State agency error, may be recovered from Federal pay or pensions. [Sec. 13(b) & (d) and sec. 11(e)(8)]

States may retain 25 percent of "nonfraud" collections not arising from State agency error and 50 percent of "fraud" collections (increased from 10 percent and 25 percent on October 1, 1995). [Sec. 16(a)]

House bill

Replaces existing overissuance collection rules with provisions requiring States to collect any overissuance by reducing future benefits, withholding unemployment compensation, recovering from Federal pay or income tax refunds, or any other means—unless the State demonstrates that all of the means are not cost effective. Limits benefit reductions (absent intentional program violation) to the greater of 10 percent of the monthly allotment or $10 a month. Provides that States must collect overissued benefits in accordance with State-established requirements for notice, electing a means of payment, and setting a schedule for payment. [Sec. 1052]

Permits States to retain 25 percent of all collections other than those arising from State agency error. [Sec. 1052]

Senate amendment

45. AUTHORITY TO SUSPEND STORES VIOLATING PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS PENDING ADMINISTRATIVE AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

Present law

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1152]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 845]

46. EXPANDED CRIMINAL FORFEITURE FOR CRIMINAL VIOLATIONS

Present law

"Administrative forfeiture" rules allow the Secretary to subject property involved in a program violation to forfeiture to the United States. [Sec. 15(g)]

House bill

Establishes "criminal forfeiture" rules. Requires courts, in imposing sentence on those convicted of trafficking in food stamps, to order that the person forfeit property to the United States. Property subject to forfeiture would include all property (real and personal) used in a transaction (or attempted transaction) to commit (or facilitate the commission of) a trafficking violation (other than a misdemeanor); proceeds traceable to the violation also would be subject to forfeiture. An owner's property interest would not be subject to forfeiture if the owner establishes that the violation was committed without the owner's knowledge or consent.

Requires that the proceeds from any sale of forfeited property, and any money forfeited, be used to reimburse Federal and State agencies for costs and, by the Secretary, to carry out store monitoring activities. [Sec. 1054]

Senate amendment

Same provisions. [Sec. 1153]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 846]

47. LIMITATION OF FEDERAL MATCH

Present law

If a State opts to conduct informational ("outreach") activities for the food stamp program, the Federal government shares half the cost. [Sec. 11(e)(1) and sec. 16(a)]

House bill

Terminates the Federal share for any "recruitment activities." [Sec. 1055]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1154]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 847]

48. STANDARDS FOR ADMINISTRATION

Present law

The Secretary is required to (1) establish standards for efficient and effective administration of the program, including standards for review of food stamp office hours to ensure that employed individuals are adequately served and (2) instruct States to submit reports on administrative actions taken to meet the standards. [Sec. 16(b)]

House bill

Deletes the noted requirements relating to Federal standards for efficient and effective administration. [Sec. 1056]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1155]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 848]

49. WORK SUPPLEMENTATION OR SUPPORT PROGRAM

Present law

No provisions.

House bill

Establishes a new option for States to operate work supplementation or support programs under which the value of public assistance benefits are provided to employers who hire recipients and, in turn, use the benefits to supplement the wages paid the recipient. Work supplementation/support programs would have to adhere to standards set by the Secretary, be available for new employees only, and not displace employment of those who are not supplemented/supported. The food stamp benefit value of the supplement could not be considered income for other purposes. Opting States would be required to provide a description of how recipients in their program will, within a specific period of time, be moved to unsubsidized employment. [Sec. 1057]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1156]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 849]

50. WAIVER AUTHORITY

Present law

The Secretary may waive Food Stamp Act requirements to the degree necessary to conduct pilot/demonstration projects, but, in general, no project may be implemented that would lower or further restrict food stamp income/resource eligibility standards or benefit levels. [Sec. 17(b)(1)]

House bill

Permits the Secretary to conduct pilot and demonstration projects and waive Food Stamp Act requirements as long as the project is consistent with the food stamp program goal of providing food to increase the level of nutrition among low-income individuals. The Secretary is permitted to conduct projects that will improve the administration of the program, increase self-sufficiency of food stamp participants, test innovative welfare reform strategies, or allow greater conformity among public assistance programs than is otherwise allowed under the Food Stamp Act. The Secretary is not permitted to conduct projects that involve issuing benefits in cash (beyond those approved at enactment), substantially transfer program benefits to other public assistance programs, or are not limited to specific time periods. [Sec. 1058]

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the House provision with an amendment. The Secretary is permitted to conduct pilot and demonstration projects and waive Food Stamp Act requirements to the extent necessary, with certain limitations and conditions. Projects must be consistent with the food stamp program goal of providing food assistance to raise levels of nutrition among low-income individuals and must include an evaluation.

Permissible projects are those that will improve the administration of the program, increase self-sufficiency of food stamp participants, test innovative welfare reform strategies, or allow greater conformity with the rules of other programs than is otherwise allowed under the Food Stamp Act. However, if the Secretary finds that a project would require the reduction of benefits by more than 20 percent, for more than 5 percent of households subject to the project (not including those whose benefits are reduced because of a failure to comply with work or other conduct requirements), the project (1) cannot include more than 15 percent of the State's food stamp population and (2) is limited to 5 years (unless an extension is approved).

The Secretary may not conduct a project that (1) involves the payment of food stamp allotments in cash (unless the project was approved prior to enactment), (2) has the effect of substantially transferring food stamp funds to services or benefits provided through another public assistance program, (3) has the effect of using food stamp funds for any purpose other than the purchase of food, program administration, or an employment or training program, (4) has the effect of granting or increasing shelter expense deductions to households with either no out-of-pocket shelter expenses or shelter expenses that represent a low percentage of their income, (5) has the effect of absolving the State from acting with reasonable promptness on substantial reported changes in income or household size (other than those related to deductions), (6) is not limited to a specific time period, or (7) waives a simplified food stamp program provision in carrying out a simplified program.

The Secretary also may not conduct a project that is inconsistent with certain Food Stamp Act requirements: (1) the bar against providing benefits to those in institutions (with certain exceptions), (2) the requirement to provide assistance to all those eligible, so long as they have not failed to comply with any food stamp or other program's work, behavioral, or other conduct requirements, (3) the gross income eligibility limit (130 percent of the Federal poverty guidelines) for households without elderly or disabled members, (4) the rule that no parent or caretaker of a dependent child under age 6 will be subject to work/training requirements [see item 17], (5) the rule that total hours of work required in an employment/training or workfare program be limited to the household's allotment divided by the minimum wage, (6) the limit on the amount of employment and training funding under the Food Stamp Act that can be used for TANF recipients, (7) the requirement that the value of food stamp benefits not be considered income or resources for any other purpose, (8) application and application processing requirements (including the rule that benefits must be provided within 30 days, but not including expedited service requirements), (9) Federal-State cost-sharing rules (including those for computerization, employment and training programs, and workfare), (10) "quality control" requirements, and (11) the waiver limits set in law. [Sec. 850]

51. RESPONSE TO WAIVERS

Present law

No provisions.

House bill

Requires that, not later than 60 days after receiving a demonstration project waiver request, the Secretary must (1) approve the request, (2) deny it and explain any modifications needed for approval, (3) deny it and explain the grounds for denial, or (4) ask for clarification of the request. If a response is not forthcoming in 60 days, the waiver is considered approved. If a waiver is denied, the Secretary must provide a copy of the request and the grounds for denial to Congress. [Sec. 1059]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1157]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills. [Sec. 851]

52. EMPLOYMENT INITIATIVES PROGRAM

Present law

No provisions.

House bill

Provides a new option for a limited number of States (those with not less than half of their food stamp households receiving AFDC benefits in 1993) to issue food stamps in cash to households participating in both the State's family assistance block grant (TANF) program and food stamps, if a member of the household has been working for at least 3 months and earns at least $350 a month in unsubsidized employment. Households receiving cash payments may continue to receive them after leaving a TANF program because of increased earnings, and a household eligible to receive its allotment in cash may opt for food stamps instead. States opting for these cash payments must increase food stamp benefits (and pay for the increase) to compensate for State/local sales taxes on food purchases and must provide a written evaluation. [Sec. 1060]

Senate amendment

Same provisions. [Sec. 1158]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills. [Sec. 852]

53. REAUTHORIZATION

Present law

Food Stamp Act appropriations are authorized through fiscal year 1997. [Sec. 18(a)]

House bill

Extends the Food Stamp Act authorization of appropriations through fiscal year 2002. [Sec. 1061]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1159]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 853]

54. SIMPLIFIED FOOD STAMP PROGRAM

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Permits States to determine food stamp benefits for households receiving family assistance block grant (TANF) aid using TANF rules and procedures, food stamp rules/procedures, or a combination of both. States may operate a simplified program statewide or in regions of the State and may standardize deductions. However, States must comply with the following food stamp rules:

requirements governing issuance procedures;

the requirement that benefits be calculated by subtracting 30 percent of household income (as determined by State-established, not Federal, rules under the simplified program option) from the maximum food stamp benefit;

the bar against counting food stamp benefits as income or resources in other programs; requirements that State agencies assume responsibility for eligibility certification and issuance of benefits and keep records for inspection and audit;

the bar against discrimination by reason of race, sex, religious creed, national origin, or politics;

requirements related to submission and approval of plans of operation and administration of the food stamp program on Indian reservations; limits on the use and disclosure of information about food stamp households; requirements for notice to and fair hearings for aggrieved households (or comparable requirements established by the State); requirements for submission of reports and other information required by the Secretary; the requirement to report illegal aliens to the INS; provisions for the use of certain Federal and State data sources in verifying eligibility; requirements to ensure that households are not receiving duplicate benefits; and requirements for the provision of social security numbers as a condition of eligibility and for their use by State agencies.

Households may not receive benefits under a simplified program unless the Secretary determines that any household with income above 130 percent of the Federal poverty guidelines is ineligible for the program.

The Secretary must determine whether a simplified program is increasing Federal costs above costs incurred in operations for the fiscal year prior to implementation, adjusted for changes in participation, the income of participants not attributable to public assistance, and the cost of the thrifty food plan. The determination is made for each fiscal year, not later than 90 days after the end of the year.

If the Secretary determines that there has been a cost increase, the State must be notified within 30 days. If a State does not then submit or carry out a "corrective action" plan approved by the Secretary to prevent increased Federal costs, approval of the State's simplified program is terminated, and the State is ineligible for further operation of a simplified program.

States opting for a simplified program must include in their State plans the rules and procedures to be followed, how they will address the needs of households with high shelter costs, and a description of the method by which they will carry out their quality control obligations. [Sec. 1062]

Senate amendment

Same provisions, except that the Senate amendment (1) stipulates that only households in which "all members" receive TANF benefits may receive benefits under a simplified program and (2) requires that States opting for a simplified program follow food stamp rules regarding providing benefits within 30 days of application. Also provides that (1) the Secretary will determine whether a simplified program is increasing Federal costs, (2) States will not be required to collect information on households not in the simplified program in cost increase determinations, and (3) the Secretary may approve "alternative accounting periods" in making cost determinations. [Sec. 1160]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the House provision with an amendment providing that: (1) only households in which all members receive TANF benefits may receive benefits under a simplified program, (2) the Secretary will determine whether a simplified program is increasing Federal costs, (3) States will not be required to collect information on households not in the simplified program in cost increase determinations, and (4) the Secretary may approve alternative accounting periods in making cost determinations. In addition, the conference agreement adopts an amendment that provides that a simplified program may include households in which 1 or more members are not TANF recipients, if approved by the Secretary. The conferees encourage the Secretary to work with States to test methods for applying a single set of rules and procedures to households in which some, but not all, members receive cash welfare benefits under State rules. [Sec. 854]

55. STATE FOOD ASSISTANCE BLOCK GRANT

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Establishes an optional food assistance block grant. States that meet one of three conditions may elect to receive the block grant in lieu of participating in the regular food stamp program. The conditions are: (1) a statewide EBT system, (2) a payment error rate of 6 percent or less, or (3) if there is a payment error rate of higher than 6 percent, payment to the Federal government of the benefit cost of the difference. States electing a block grant would receive the greater of: (1) the amount received for benefits in fiscal year 1994 (or the 1992-1994 average) plus (2) the amount received for administration in fiscal year 1994 (or the 1992-1994 average). States electing a block grant and then terminating their option may not again elect a block grant.

Block grant funding may only be used for food assistance to needy persons and administrative costs for providing the assistance—so long as not more than 6 percent of total funds expended (other than State funds not otherwise required to be spent) are used for administrative costs and limits on carryover funds are followed. While States have control over most features of their block grant program, certain rules specified in law must be followed: provisions for notice and hearing for those aggrieved; bars against receipt of benefits in more than 1 jurisdiction, benefits for fleeing felons, and benefit for aliens otherwise barred under Federal law; privacy and nondiscrimination safeguards; and quality control requirements of the Food Stamp Act. In addition, States opting for a block grant would continue to be covered under the Food Stamp Act's employment and training program provisions (and receive separate funding for this) and would be required to bar benefits to those not meeting food stamp work requirements (including the new requirement). [Sec. 1063]

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the Senate provision.

56. A STUDY OF THE USE OF FOOD STAMPS TO PURCHASE VITAMINS AND MINERALS

House bill

Requires States seeking commodities under the new EFA program to submit a plan of operation and administration every 4 years for approval by the Secretary and allows amendment of the plan at any time.

Requires that at a minimum the State receiving commodities include in its plan: designation of responsible State agency; plan of operation and administration to expeditiously distribute commodities; standards of eligibility for recipient agencies; individual and household eligibility standards that require that they be needy and residing in the geographic area served by the recipient agency. [Sec. 1071]

Senate amendment

Same provisions. [Sec. 1171]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills. [Sec. 871]

6. ADVISORY BOARD

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Requires Secretary to encourage States to establish advisory boards consisting of representatives of all interested entities, public and private, in the distribution of commodities. [Sec. 1071]

Senate amendment

Same provision. [Sec. 1171]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provision that is common to both bills. [Sec. 871]

7. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR ADMINISTRATIVE FUNDS

Present law

Authorizes $50 million annually for fiscal year 1991–2002 for Secretary to make available to States for State and local costs associated with the distribution of commodities. Requires that funds be distributed on an advance basis in the same proportion as commodities are distributed. Allows for reallocation of unused funds among other States. Specifically allows States to use funds to help with distribution of commodities provided to soup kitchens and food banks under section 110 of the Hunger Prevention Act.

House bill

Revises language regarding availability of funds to States for State and local costs to require that such funds be used "to pay for the direct and indirect administrative costs of the State related to processing, transporting, and distributing [commodities] to eligible recipient agencies." Drops separate reference to soup kitchen and food banks because this program is incorporated into the new TEFAP. [Sec. 1071]

Senate amendment

Same provisions. [Sec. 1171]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the provisions that are common to both bills. [Sec. 871]

8. REQUIRED PURCHASES OF COMMODITIES

Present law

Authorizes $175 million for fiscal year 1991, $190 million for FY 1992, and $200 million for each of fiscal years 1993 through 2002 for the Secretary to purchase, process and distribute additional commodities to the extent that appropriations are provided. Establishes a formula for distribution of commodities to States whereby 60 percent of commodities are allocated based on a State's share of persons in households with incomes below the poverty level and 40 percent upon a State's share of unemployed persons, and defines related terms.

House bill

Strikes provisions authorizing funds for commodity purchases. Instead, amends the Food Stamp Act to add a new section 28 requiring the Secretary to spend $300 million annually for each of fiscal years 1997 through 2002 from funds appropriated under the Food Stamp Act to buy commodities for the new TEFAP; requires the Secretary to take into account agricultural market conditions, and State, agency, and recipient preferences when buying commodities with these funds. Specifies that these commodities be distributed under the current-law allocation formula. [Sec. 1071]

Senate amendment

Similar to House bill, except that $100 million is required to be used from food stamp funds annually to buy commodities for the new TEFAP. [Sec.]

Conference agreement

The conference agreement adopts the Senate provision with a technical amendment. [Sec. 871]

Subtitle C—Electronic Benefit Transfer System

See Item 26 of Subtitle A—Food Stamp Program for a description of the conference agreement on this subtitle.

TITLE IX: MISCELLANEOUS

1. APPROPRIATION BY STATE LEGISLATURES

Present law

According to the National Conference of State Legislatures, there are six States in which under court rulings of interpretations of State constitutions, certain Federal funds are controlled by the Executive branch rather than the State legislature. (An example would be action on funds when the legislature is out of session.) These States are Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, New Mexico, and Oklahoma.

House bill

The proposal stipulates that funds from certain Federal block grants to the States are to be expended in accordance with the laws and procedures applicable to the expenditure of the State's own resources (i.e., appropriated through the State legislature in all States). This provision applies to the following block grants: temporary assistance to needy families block grant, the optional State food assistance block grant, and the child care block grant. Thus, in the States in which the Governor previously had exclusive control over Federal block grant funds, the State legislatures now would share control through the appropriations process. However, States would continue to spend Federal funds in accord with Federal law.

Senate amendment

Identical provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

2. SANCTIONING FOR TESTING POSITIVE FOR CONTROLLED SUBSTANCES

Present law

Eligibility and benefit status for most Federal welfare programs are not affected by a recipient's use of illegal drugs.

House bill

States are not prohibited by the Federal Government from testing welfare recipients for use of controlled substances nor for sanctioning welfare recipients who test positive for the use of controlled substances.

Senate amendment

Identical provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

3. ELIMINATION OF HOUSING ASSISTANCE WITH RESPECT TO FUGITIVE FELONS AND PROBATION AND PAROLE VIOLATORS

Present law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Ends eligibility for public housing and Section 8 housing assistance of a person who is fleeing to avoid prosecution after conviction for a crime, or attempt to commit a crime, that is a felony where committed (or, in the case of New Jersey, is a high misdemeanor), or who is violating a condition of probation or parole. The amendment states that the person's flight shall be cause for immediate termination of their housing aid.

Requires specified public housing agencies to furnish any Federal, State, or local law enforcement officer, upon the request of the officer, with the current address, social security number, and photograph (if applicable) of any SSI recipient, if the officer furnishes the public housing agency with the person's name and notifies the agency that the recipient is a fugitive felon (or in the case of New Jersey a person fleeing because of a high misdemeanor) or a probation or parole violator or that the person has information that is necessary for the officer to conduct his official duties, and the location or apprehension of the recipient is within the officer's official duties.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

4. SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING ENTERPRISE ZONES

Present law

No specific provision. However, as stated, the provisions outlined in the Sense of the Senate language already can be done under present law.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Outlines some findings related to urban centers and empowerment zones and includes sense of the Senate language that urges the 104th Congress to pass an enterprise zone bill that provides Federal tax incentives to increase the formation and expansion of small businesses and to promote commercial revitalization; allows localities to request waivers to accomplish the objectives of the enterprise zones; encourages resident management of public housing and home ownership of public housing; and authorizes pilot projects in designated enterprise zones to expand the educational opportunities for elementary and secondary school children.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

5. SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING THE INABILITY OF THE NON-CUSTODIAL PARENT TO PAY CHILD SUPPORT

Present law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

It is the Sense of the Senate that States should pursue child support payments under all circumstances even if the noncustodial parent is unemployed or his or her whereabouts are unknown; and that States are encouraged to pursue pilot programs in which the parents of a minor non-custodial parent who refuses or is unable to pay child support contribute to the child support owed.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

6. ESTABLISHING NATIONAL GOALS TO PREVENT TEENAGE PREGNANCIES

Present law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Requires the Secretary to establish and implement by January 1, 1997, a strategy to: (1) prevent a 2 percent increase in out-of-wedlock teenage pregnancies, and (2) assure that at least 25 percent of U.S. communities have teenage pregnancy programs in place. HHS is required to report to Congress by June 30, 1998, on progress made toward meeting these 2 goals.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment, except a specified level of reduction is not established.

7. SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING ENFORCEMENT OF STATUTORY RAPE LAWS*Present law*

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Includes language that states that it is the sense of the Senate that States and local jurisdictions should aggressively enforce statutory rape laws.

Not later than January 1, 1997, the Attorney General shall establish and implement a program that studies the linkage between statutory rape and teenage pregnancy and educates States and local criminal law enforcement officials on the prevention and prosecution of statutory rape. The Attorney General shall ensure the DOJ Violence Against Women initiative addresses the issue of statutory rape.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

8. PROVISIONS TO ENCOURAGE ELECTRONIC BENEFIT TRANSFER SYSTEMS*Present law*

In 1978, Congress passed the Electronic Fund Transfer Act to provide a basic framework establishing the rights, liabilities, and responsibilities of participants in electronic fund transfer systems and required the Federal Reserve Board to develop implementing regulations, which generally are referred to as Regulation E.

House bill

See food stamp title, which exempts from Regulation E any food stamp electronic benefit transfers.

Senate amendment

Exempts from Regulation E requirements any electronic benefit transfer program (distributing needs-tested benefits) established under State or local law or administered by a State or local government.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

9. REDUCTION OF BLOCK GRANTS TO STATES FOR SOCIAL SERVICES; USE OF VOUCHERS*Present law*

The Social Services Block Grant (Title XX) provides funds to States in order to provide a wide variety of social services, including child care, family planning, protective services for children and adults, services for children and adults on foster care, and employment services. States have wide discretion over how they use Social Services Block Grant funds. States set their own eligibility requirements and are allowed to transfer up to 10 percent of their allotment to certain Federal health block grants, and for low-income home energy assistance (LIHEAP). Funding for the Social Services Block Grant is capped at $2.8 billion a year. Funds are allocated among States according to the State's share of its total population. No State matching funds are required to receive Social Services Block Grant money.

House bill

For fiscal years 1997 through 2002, the Social Services Block Grant is reduced by 10 percent.

Senate amendment

For fiscal years 1997 through 2002, the Social Services Block Grant is reduced by 20 percent.

Requires that States receiving Title XX funds to dedicate 1 percent to programs and services for minors to avoid out-of-wedlock pregnancies.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment regarding the reduction in funding for the Social Services block grant, with the modification that the reduction is 15 percent. The conference agreement follows the House bill so that there is no special dedication of funds for programs and services for minors. The agreement specifically states that Title XX funds may be used to provide assistance to families who have lost assistance because of time limits on benefits.

10. EARNED INCOME CREDIT PROVISIONS

A. Deny earned income credit to individuals not authorized to be employed in the United States

(Note.—For additional discussion of this provision, refer to Title IV: Restricting Welfare and Public Benefits for Aliens, above.)

Present law

In general, Certain eligible low-income workers are entitled to claim a refundable credit on their income tax return. The amount of the credit an eligible individual may claim depends upon whether the individual has one, more than one, or no qualifying children and is determined by multiplying the credit rate by the individual's earned income up to an earned income amount. The maximum amount of the credit is the product of the credit rate and the earned income amount. For individuals with earned income (or adjusted gross income (AGI), if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range, the maximum credit amount is reduced by the phaseout rate multiplied by the amount of earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range. For individuals with earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the end of the phaseout range, no credit is allowed.

The parameters for the credit depend upon the number of qualifying children the individual claims. For 1996, the parameters are given in the following table:

	Two or more children	One qualifying child	No qualifying children
Credit rate (percent)	40.00	34.00	7.65
Earned income amount	$8,890	$6,330	$4,220
Maximum credit	$3,556	$2,152	$323
Phaseout begins	$11,610	$11,610	$5,280
Phaseout rate (percent)	21.06	15.98	7.65
Phaseout ends	$28,495	$25,078	$9,500

For years after 1996, the credit rates and the phaseout rates will be the same as in the preceding table. The earned income amount and the beginning of the phaseout range are indexed for inflation; because the end of the phaseout range depends on those amounts as well as the phaseout rate and the credit rate, the end of the phaseout range will also increase if there is inflation.

In order to claim the credit, an individual must either have a qualifying child or meet other requirements. A qualifying child must meet a relationship test, an age test, an identification test, and a residence test. In order to claim the credit without a qualifying child, an individual must not be a dependent and must be over age 24 and under age 65.

¹ In the case of a married individual who files a joint return with his or her spouse, the income for purposes of these tests is the combined income of the couple.

To satisfy the identification test, individuals must include on their tax return the name and age of each qualifying child. For returns filed with respect to tax year 1996, individuals must provide a taxpayer identification number (TIN) for all qualifying children born on or before November 30, 1996. For returns filed with respect to tax year 1997 and all subsequent years, individuals must provide TINs for all qualifying children, regardless of their age. An individual's TIN is generally that individual's social security number.

An individual with qualifying children may elect to receive a portion of the credit on an advance basis by furnishing an advance payment certificate to his or her employer. For such an individual, the employer makes an advance payment of the credit at the time wages are paid. The amount of advance payment allowable in a taxable year is limited to 60 percent of the maximum credit available to an individual with one qualifying child.

Mathematical or clerical errors. The Internal Revenue Service may summarily assess additional tax due as a result of a mathematical or clerical error without sending the taxpayer a notice of deficiency and giving the taxpayer an opportunity to petition the Tax Court. Where the IRS uses the summary assessment procedure for mathematical or clerical errors, the taxpayer must be given an explanation of the asserted error and a period of 60 days to request that the IRS abate its assessment. The IRS may not proceed to collect the amount of the assessment until the taxpayer has agreed to it or has allowed the 60-day period for objecting to expire. If the taxpayer files a request for abatement of the assessment specified in the notice, the IRS must abate the assessment. Any reassessment of the abated amount is subject to the ordinary deficiency procedures. The request for abatement of the assessment is the only procedure a taxpayer may use prior to paying the assessed amount in order to contest an assessment arising out of a mathematical or clerical error. Once the assessment is satisfied, however, the taxpayer may file a claim for refund if he or she believes the assessment was made in error.

House bill

Individuals are not eligible for the credit if they do not include their taxpayer identification number (and, if married, their spouse's taxpayer identification number) on their tax return. Solely for these purposes and for purposes of the present-law identification test for a qualifying child, a taxpayer identification number is defined as a social security number issued to an individual by the Social Security Administration other than a number issued under section 205(c)(2)(B)(i)(II) (or that portion of sec. 205(c)(2)(B)(i)(III) relating to it) of the Social Security Act (regarding the issuance of a number to an individual applying for or receiving Federally funded benefits).

If an individual fails to provide a correct taxpayer identification number, such omission will be treated as a mathematical or clerical error. If an individual who claims the credit with respect to net earnings from self-employment fails to pay the proper amount of self-employment tax on such net earnings, the failure will be treated as a mathematical or clerical error for purposes of the amount of credit allowed.

Effective date. The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

The provision in the Senate amendment is identical to that in the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment with a modification to the effective date. The conference agreement is effective with respect to returns the due date for which (without regard to extensions) is more than 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

B. Change disqualified income test for earned income creditPresent law

For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995, an individual is not eligible for the earned income credit if the aggregate amount of "disqualified income" of the taxpayer for the taxable year exceeds $2,350. This threshold is not indexed. Disqualified income is the sum of:

- (1) interest (taxable and tax-exempt),
- (2) dividends, and
- (3) net rent and royalty income (if greater than zero).

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

For purposes of the disqualified income test for the earned income credit, the following items are added to the definition of disqualified income: capital gain net income and net passive income (if greater than zero) that is not self-employment income.

The threshold above which an individual is not eligible for the credit is reduced from $2,350 to $2,200, and the threshold is indexed for inflation after 1996.

Effective date. The provision generally is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995. For individuals who, as of June 26, 1996, had made an election to receive the current-year credit on an advance basis, the provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1996.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

C. Modify definition of adjusted gross income used for phasing out the earned income creditPresent law

For taxpayers with earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range, the maximum earned income credit amount is reduced by the phaseout rate multiplied by the amount of earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the beginning of the phaseout range. For taxpayers with earned income (or AGI, if greater) in excess of the end of the phaseout range, no credit is allowed.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The provision modifies the definition of AGI used for phasing out the earned income credit by including certain nontaxable income and by disregarding certain losses. The nontaxable items included are:

- (1) tax-exempt interest, and
- (2) nontaxable distributions from pensions, annuities, and individual retirement arrangements (but only if not rolled over into similar vehicles during the applicable rollover period).

The losses disregarded are:

- (1) net capital losses (if greater than zero),
- (2) net losses from trusts and estates,
- (3) net losses from nonbusiness rents and royalties, and

(4) net losses from businesses, computed separately with respect to sole proprietorships (other than in farming), sole proprietorships in farming, and other businesses.

For purposes of item (4), above, amounts attributable to a business that consists of the performance of services by the taxpayer as an employee are not taken into account.

Effective date. The provision generally is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995. For individuals who, as of June 26, 1996, had made an election to receive the current-year credit on an advance basis, the provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1996.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement modifies the definition of AGI used for phasing out the earned income credit by disregarding certain losses. The losses disregarded are:

- (1) net capital losses (if greater than zero),
- (2) net losses from trusts and estates,
- (3) net losses from nonbusiness rents and royalties, and
- (4) 50 percent of the net losses from businesses, computed separately with respect to sole proprietorships (other than in farming), sole proprietorships in farming, and other businesses.

For purposes of item (4), above, amounts attributable to a business that consists of the performance of services by the taxpayer as an employee are not taken into account.

Effective date. Same as the Senate amendment provision.

D. Suspend inflation adjustments for earned income credit for individuals with no qualifying childrenPresent law

To claim the earned income credit, an individual must either have a qualifying child or meet other requirements. In order to claim a credit without a qualifying child, an individual must not be a dependent and must be over age 24 and under age 65.

The earned income amount and the beginning of the phaseout range are indexed for inflation; because the end of the phaseout range depends on these amounts as well as the phaseout rate and the credit rate, the end of the phaseout range will also increase if there is inflation.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

In the case of individuals with no qualifying children there will be no adjustment for inflation after 1996 to the earned income amount or the beginning of the phaseout range.

Effective date. The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1996.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill (no provision).

11. REDUCTIONS IN FEDERAL GOVERNMENT POSITIONS

A. Reductions

Present law

No provision

House bill

A covered activity is defined as one that the Department must carry out under a provision of this Act or a provision of Federal law that is amended or repealed by the Act. It also requires the Secretaries of Agriculture, Education, Labor, HHS, and Housing and Urban Development to report to Congress by December 31, 1996 on the number of full-time equivalent (FTE) positions required to carry out "covered" activities before and after enactment of the amendment and to reduce the number of employees by the difference in numbers. The Comptroller General of the United States shall prepare and submit to Congress by July 1, 1997, a report analyzing the determinations made by each Secretary.

Senate amendment

Similar to House bill, except:

requires the Secretaries to report the number of FTEs not later than December 31, 1996 (rather than January 1, 1997); requires the Secretaries to prepare and submit a report of changes not later than December 31, 1997 (rather than December 31, 1996); and adjusts discretionary spending limits downward for fiscal years 1997 and 1998 to account for savings achieved by this provision. (This provision was deleted due to the Byrd Rule.)

Conference agreement

This provision was deleted due to the Byrd rule. For additional discussion of related provisions, see Title I: Block Grants for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, above.

B. Reductions in Federal BureaucracyPresent law

No provision

House bill

The Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) reports that 118 employees in the Office of Family Assistance (OFA) work on AFDC and 209 (full-time equivalent positions) in regional offices of the Administration on Children and Families. The OFA employees include 30 who spend some time interpreting AFDC/JOBS policy and participating with States in State plan development.

Senate amendment

Similar to House bill. (This provision was deleted due to the Byrd Rule.)

Conference agreement

This provision was deleted due to the Byrd rule. For additional discussion of related provisions, see Title I: Block Grants for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, above.

C. Reducing Personnel in Washington, D.C. AreaPresent law

No provision.

House bill

The Secretary is encouraged to reduce personnel in the Washington, D.C. office (agency headquarters) before reducing field personnel.

Senate amendment

Similar to House bill. (This provision was deleted due to the Byrd Rule.)

Conference agreement

This provision was deleted due to the Byrd rule. For additional discussion of related provisions, see Title I: Block Grants for Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, above.

12. REFORM OF PUBLIC HOUSING

A. Fraud Under Means-Tested Welfare and Public Assistance ProgramsPresent law

No provision.

House bill

If a person's means-tested benefits from a Federal, State, or local welfare program are reduced because of an act of fraud, their benefits from public or assisted housing may not be increased in response to the income loss caused by the penalty.

Senate amendment

Similar to House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

B. Failure to Comply with other Welfare and Public Assistance Programs

Present law

If a family's adjusted cash income declines—no matter what the reason—its housing benefit is increased (that is, its rental payment is decreased, by 30 cents per dollar). This applies to cash income from any source, including means-tested benefit programs. However, the housing programs take no account of noncash income. Thus, if food stamp benefits decline, housing benefits are unaffected.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Provides that there be no reduction in public or assisted housing rents in response to a tenant's reduced income resulting from non-compliance with welfare or public assistance program requirements; permits reduction where State or local law limits the period during which benefits may be provided.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill (no provision).

13. ABSTINENCE EDUCATION

Present law

The Maternal and Child Health (MCH) block grants (title V of the SSA, 42 USC 701) provides grants to States and insular areas to fund a broad range of preventive health and primary care activities to improve the health status of mothers and children, with a special emphasis on those with low income or with limited availability of health services. Sec. 502 includes a set-aside program for projects of national or regional significance. (The FY1995 appropriation for MCH was $684 million.) See also: Title XX of the Public Health Service Act establishes the Adolescent Family Life (AFL) program to encourage adolescents to delay sexual activity and to provide services to alleviate the problems surrounding adolescent parenthood. One-third of all funding for AFL program services go to projects that provide "prevention services." The purpose of the prevention component is to find effective means within the context of the family of reaching adolescents, both male and female, before they become sexually active to maximize the guidance and support of parents and other family members in promoting abstinence from adolescent premarital sexual relations. (The FY1995 appropriation for AFL was $6.7 million.)

House bill

Increases the authorization level to $761 million for FY 96 and each subsequent fiscal year. Adds abstinence education to the services to be provided. Defines abstinence education as an educational or motivational program which:

(A) teaches the gains to be realized by abstaining from sexual activity;

(B) teaches abstinence from sexual activity outside of marriage as the expected standard for all school age children;

(C) teaches that abstinence is the only certain way to avoid out-of-wedlock pregnancy, sexually transmitted diseases, and other health problems;

(D) teaches that a monogamous relationship in context of marriage is expected standard of human sexual activity;

(E) teaches that sexual activity outside of marriage is likely to have harmful effects;

(F) teaches that bearing children out-of-wedlock is likely to have harmful consequences;

(G) teaches young people how to avoid sexual advances and how alcohol and drug use increases vulnerability to sexual advances; and

(H) teaches the importance of attaining self-sufficiency before engaging in sexual activity.

Senate amendment

Amends the Maternal and Child Health (MCH) block grants (title V of the SSA) to set aside $75 million to provide abstinence education—defined as an educational or motivational program that has abstaining from sexual activity as its exclusive purpose—and to provide at the option of the State mentoring, counseling and adult supervision to promote abstinence with a focus on those groups most likely to bear children out-of-wedlock. Also increases the authorization level of MCH to $761 million. (This provision was deleted due to the Byrd Rule.)

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill with modification that $50 million for each of fiscal years 1998-2002 is directly appropriated for this purpose.

14. CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

Present law

Sections 1902(a) and 1908(e)(1) of the Social Security Act (relating to Medicaid) reference the Church of Christ, Scientist.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

Changes Medicaid references in Social Security Act from Church of Christ, Scientist, to the Commission for Accreditation of Christian Science Nursing Organizations/Facilities, Inc.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE ON CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 3517) making appropriations for military construction, family housing, and base realignment and closure for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying report.

ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST

Matters Addressed by Only One Committee.—The language and allocations set forth in House Report 104-591 and Senate Report 104-287 should be complied with unless specifically addressed to the contrary in the conference report and statement of the managers. Report language included by the House which is not changed by the report of the Senate or the conference, and Senate report language which is not changed by the conference is approved by the committee of conference. The statement of the managers, while repeating some report language for emphasis, does not intend to negate the language referred to above unless expressly provided herein. In cases in which the House or the Senate have directed the submission of a report from the Department of Defense, such report is to be submitted to both House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

Base Realignment and Closure.—The conferees agree to provide specific approval and appropriated funds for all Base Realignment and Closure construction projects as listed in House Report 104-591.

National Foreign Intelligence Requirements.—The conferees expect any military construction requirements related to the National Foreign Intelligence Program to be subject to the same level of scrutiny and justification as any other Defense requirement coming before the Military Construction Appropriations Subcommittees. Insufficient review within the Department and disregard for congressional authorization and appropriation procedures has created a number of misunderstandings, which the conferees expect will be avoided in the future.

Rescissions.—The conferees recommend a total of $22,428,000 in rescissions of prior-year appropriations for the military services and defense agencies as proposed by the Senate, rather than a total of $12,000,000 as proposed by the House. The rescissions recommended in the bill include the following items which have contract savings or which were previously approved and now are no longer needed:

Army 1994-1998:
Kwajalein Atoll—RoI
Namur Island: Sewage treatment facility	$2,028,000
Navy 1993-1997:
Virginia—Norfolk NSC:
Cold storage warehouse ..	3,000,000
Virginia—Intelligence Training Center, Norfolk: Applied instruction building addition	6,000,000
Navy 1994-1998:
Pennsylvania—Philadelphia NS: Asbestos removal facility	2,300,000
Air Force 1995-1999:
Germany—Spangdahlem AB: Upgrade sewage and storm water system	2,100,000
Defense-wide 1996-2000: Program Re-estimate	7,000,000
Total	$22,428,000

Hurricane Bertha.—The conferees are aware that military family housing units sustained significant damage from Hurricane Bertha on July 12, 1996. The conferees will consider any reprogramming that may be submitted for repair of these family housing units.

Historic Preservation.—In addition to the directive contained in Senate Report 104-287, the conferees direct the Department to consult with the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation and other relevant organizations with preservation expertise in developing this report.

California—Fort Irwin: Land Acquisition.—The conferees recognize that the Army must acquire additional territory adjacent to the National Training Center at Fort Irwin, California, in order to maintain the excellence to training operations at this unique installation. Recent information has shown that environmental mitigation could be performed to permit expansion to the south of the National Training Center, long considered to be the most militarily advantageous option. Therefore, the conferees direct the Army to analyze expansion to the south, to update its cost analysis and economic study of acquiring property to the south, and to report its findings to the Committees on Appropriations no later than March 15, 1997.

Energy Conservation Improvement Program.—The conferees agree to provide the budget request of $47,765,000 for the Energy Conservation Improvement Program, provided that the Department of Defense submits project-specific justification via forms 1390/1391 not less than 21 days prior to the execution of any project. In addition, the conferees direct that future budget requests for this program will be supported by forms 1390/1391 as part of the justification of budget estimates. Restores the words "September 30, 2001." as proposed by the House and stricken by the Senate, and deletes language proposed by the Senate which provides $10,800,000 be made available under minor construction for the construction of phase III, at the Western Kentucky Training Site.

Alabama—Mobile: Army Aviation Support Facility.—The conferees note that permanent law provides "appropriations shall be applied only to the objects for which the appropriations were made . . ." (31 U.S.C. 1301(a)). The fiscal year 1995 Military Construction Appropriations Act (Public Law 103-307) included $7,200,000 for an Army Aviation Support Facility at Mobile, Alabama, and these funds are available only for that purpose. CONGRESSIONAL DIRECTIVES

The conferees agree that executive branch wishes cannot substitute for Congress' own statements as to the best evidence of congressional intentions—that is, the official reports of the Congress. The conferees further point out that funds in this Act must be used for the purposes for which appropriated, as required by section 1301 of title 31 of the United States Code, which provides: "Appropriations shall be applied only to the objects for which the appropriations were made except as otherwise provided by law."

Report language included by the House which is not changed by the report of the Senate, and Senate report language which is not changed by the conference are approved by the committee of conference. The statement of the managers, while repeating some report language for emphasis, does not intend to negate the language referred to above unless expressly provided herein.

BUILDINGS AND FACILITIES
Amendment No. 26: Appropriates $61,591,000 for Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service, Buildings and Facilities instead of $30,449,000 as proposed by the House and $55,668,000 as proposed by the Senate.
As stated in the fiscal year 1996 conference report, the conferees, within available resources, would provide for completion of as many university facilities as possible during fiscal year 1997. Fourteen facilities are completed by this appropriation. The conferees expect any unfinished university project to obtain additional funding from other than Federal sources. The Department should not release additional funds to incomplete projects until all funding for completion is in place. The conferees expect universities to obtain funding within three years. It is anticipated that all unused funds would be reissued. The conferees also agree with the reprogramming of funds as proposed by the Senate.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

TRIBUTE AND FAREWELL TO HIS EXCELLENCY ITAMAR
RABINOVICH, AMBASSADOR OF ISRAEL

HON. TOM LANTOS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, today with a number of our distinguished colleagues from both Chambers of the Congress, I am hosting a farewell reception to honor and bid goodbye to the distinguished Ambassador of the State of Israel, my dear friend Itamar Rabinovich. The Ambassador will return to Israel before the Congress returns from its August recess, and this is our last opportunity to bid him farewell while we are all still here in Washington.

Mr. Speaker, joining me in hosting this reception are our colleagues from the other body, Senators MITCH MCCONNELL of Kentucky and JOSEPH BIDEN of Delaware. From the House, the hosts are Congressmen HOWARD BERMAN of California, BENJAMIN A. GILMAN of New York, and BILL PAXON of New York.

Ambassador Rabinovich was named Ambassador of Israel to the United States in November 1992, and he has served with great distinction during this past 4 years—a particularly significant time in United States-Israel relations. He was on hand for the transition in U.S. administrations when President Clinton replaced President Bush in January 1993. Later in September of that year on the South Lawn of the White House, President Clinton hosted the signing ceremony of the agreement between the State of Israel and the PLO which led to the major breakthrough in the peace process. He continued to play an important role coordinating efforts between the United States and Israel as the peace process moved forward with the signature of the treaty of peace with Jordan and a number of other important steps toward regional accommodation.

Mr. Speaker, we in the Congress have had ample opportunity to judge the quality of his representational skills. He has been a frequent visitor to my office and to the offices of a great many of us here on Capitol Hill. He has been a forceful advocate and a skilled representative. He has played a critical role in further strengthening the already strong ties between our two countries, and all of us owe him a debt of gratitude for his dedicated conscientious and intelligent service.

In addition to his critical role as the principal point of contact with our own Government, however, Itamar served simultaneously as chief negotiator with Syria, a position to which he was appointed in August 1992, just a few months before his appointment as Ambassador to the United States. As a highly regarded academic specialist on Syria, Ambassador Rabinovich played a key role in the extended series of negotiations with the Damascus government. Either position—as Ambassador to the United States or as chief negotiator with Syria—is a full time position. Not only did Itamar handle then both, he handled them with great skill and he did an excellent job in giving justice to both positions.

Itamar Rabinovich is a distinguished scholar with an international reputation. Before his appointment as Ambassador to the United States, he was rector of Tel Aviv University. He was also a professor of Middle Eastern studies and the former head of the Dayan Center for Middle Eastern and African Studies at the university. As an academic specialist on Syria, he is the author of Syria Under the Bath, 1963–66, The War for Lebanon, 1970–82, and The Road Not Taken: Early Arab-Israeli Negotiation.

Mr. Speaker, I invite my colleagues in the Congress to join me in paying tribute and expressing our gratitude for the distinguished diplomatic service of our friend, Ambassador Itamar Rabinovich, and in wishing a successful and happy future to Itamar and his lovely wife, Efrat, and their family.

IN SUPPORT OF PRESIDENT
CLINTON'S VETO OF H.R. 1833

HON. NITA M. LOWEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to refer you to this moving letter from Diane Reiner in support of President Clinton's veto of H.R. 1833. Mrs. Reiner, like so many of the women we have heard from, discovered late in her wanted pregnancy that the fetus she was carrying was terribly deformed and would not survive. After carefully weighing all of the options, Mrs. Reiner and her husband decided to have an abortion. As I, and others, have stated throughout the debate on this bill—this tragic decision must belong to the woman, her husband, her doctor, her clergy and the friends and family that she chooses to consult. The one group of people it clearly does not belong to is the Congress.

JULY 25, 1990.

HON. NITA LOWEY,
U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE LOWEY: I am writing to let you know that I have tremendous respect for your efforts in standing up for women and our right to choose. I thought you would be interested in seeing this letter that I sent to President Clinton to thank him for his brave and compassionate veto of H.R. 1833.

Thank you for your courage and hard work.

Sincerely,

DIANE REINER.

DEAR PRESIDENT CLINTON: Thank you for vetoing H.R. 1833, the Canady/Smith bill.

I am a 43-year-old woman who had a late abortion in 1988. I was married and pregnant with a wanted child, but my husband and I discovered at a routine sonogram that our child was fatally deformed—that it had no proper brain, no proper lungs, that its organs were not properly inside its body cavity, that its spine was bent at a 45-degree angle, and that its extremities were also deformed. The only reason it was alive inside of me was because it was dependent upon my body as its life support system—through the umbilical cord. It would not have been able to live on its own for more than a few seconds, if that, after birth since its own lungs and brain could never function. (I use the pronoun "it" because we never were able to discover the gender of our unborn child.)

This was a total tragedy, of course. We are very loving people who wanted children very much. We had been trying for several years to have a child. We were devastated. We took a week to decide whether or not we could stand to have an abortion, or whether we should carry the doomed child to full term (it would very possibly have made it to full term and then died at birth, we were told). I decided that to save my sanity I would take the very grave step of aborting. I didn't think I could stand to carry my baby 3 more months, waiting for it to die. This decision filled me with a certain type of grief, and it felt like it was almost too much to have to make this choice, but my husband and I actually prayed about this (we are not members of any one particular religion, but we are spiritual people) and were led to our ultimate decision.

The abortion method used in my case was a bit different than the one at issue in H.R. 1833, but it was similar. The whole thing was infinitely sad and torturous to go through, but I thanked the doctor who was willing and able to perform such a difficult (emotionally difficult) procedure. He was my angel of mercy, Mr. Clinton!

It is people in situations such as the one I and my husband went through who need these rare late-term abortion procedures. We are not murderers. We are grief-stricken, would-be parents who are in a horrible crisis and are trying to take the best course possible. If we did not have the technology which allows us to see inside a pregnant woman in her 6th month then perhaps we wouldn't be discussing late-term abortion procedures. But we do have this technology, for better or worse, and if we can discover at 6 months that our baby will die at birth, how can it be a sin to terminate the life at that point rather than waiting a few more agonizing months for the same outcome?

I particularly commend you on vetoing H.R. 1833 since I realize that it is a risky business for you politically at this point, it being an election year during which certain conservative forces are making their presence clearly known. So thank you again. . . . on behalf of me, my husband, and the other women and couples who have had and will have need for this merciful procedure.

Sincerely,

DIANE REINER.

COMMEMORATING ROGER TORY
PETERSON

HON. SAM GEJDENSON

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in memory of Mr. Roger Tory Peterson, a long-time resident of Old Lyme, CT., who passed away on July 28 at the age of 87. Mr. Peterson, often referred to as the modern Audubon, produced the first Wildlife-related field guide designed for ordinary Americans. In so doing, he revolutionized how citizens across this country experience, view, and appreciate our bountiful natural resources.

Mr. Peterson was born in Jamestown, NY, in 1908. He explained years later how a personal experience with an injured bird and encouragement from his seventh-grade science teacher led him to begin drawing birds. He recalled that soon thereafter he was drawing and photographing virtually every bird in sight. His big break came in 1934 when William Vogt, the first editor of Audubon Magazine, approached him about illustrating a pocket-sized guide to North American birds. This request resulted in the first Peterson Field Guide, which catalogued birds of the eastern United States. Initially, publishers showed little interest in the publication. In the end, Houghton Mifflin agreed in Mr. Peterson's words "to take a chance on me" and printed 2,000 copies. Book stores sold each and every volume in about a week and were soon clamoring for additional copies.

The "Peterson Field Guide" was not the first publication providing detailed descriptions of birds and other wildlife. We are all familiar with the pioneering works of John James Audubon. What set Peterson's work apart from previous publications was how it blended intricate detail, demanded by biologists, ornithologists, and other scientists, with easy to understand narrative and arrows identifying the distinguishing features of particular species. Mr. Peterson remarked the use of arrows seemed so simple, but no one had used them before. The first field guide evolved into a series of 48 volumes spanning a host of topics, including wildflowers, bird songs, shells, butterflies, mammals, rocks and minerals, animal tracks, fish, and stars and planets. Mr. Peterson illustrated, wrote or edited each and every volume. Every new "Field Guide" followed the original format combining detailed illustrations with easy to understand explanations and commonsense hints to assist nonscientists in identifying particular species. To date, more than 8 million copies of the "Peterson Field Guide" to eastern United States birds alone have been published. It remains the most popular guide to birds more than 60 years after the first edition was released.

Roger Tory Peterson helped millions of Americans to gain a better appreciation of the natural assets which make our country special. President Jimmy Carter recognized Mr. Peterson's contributions to the country by awarding him the Medal of Freedom, the Nation's highest civilian honor, in 1980. The President noted Mr. Peterson had "furthered the study, appreciation and protection of birds the world over." Mr. Peterson's contributions have been recognized worldwide, including two nominations for the Nobel Peace Prize. He received honorary degrees from 22 universities. Recently, The New York City Public Library listed the "Peterson Field Guide" as one of the most influential books of the past century. The Roger Tory Peterson Institute for Natural History was formed in 1984 as a national center for teacher enhancement and training. Among other things, the institute assists teachers in incorporating natural resources in their curriculums and serves as a museum to display Mr. Peterson's works.

Mr. Speaker, I know Americans from coast to coast join me in extending our condolences to Virginia Peterson and the other members of the Peterson family. Mr. Peterson's legacy will endure through the "Peterson Field Guide" and his numerous other works spanning six decades. Roger Tory Peterson was an extraordinary individual who helped Americans better understand and appreciate their natural surroundings. We will fondly remember him when we pick up the "Peterson Field Guide" to identify a bird at the feeder, a flower in the woods, a shell on the beach, or a star high above.

BUSINESS AND EDUCATION
SHARING TECHNOLOGY ACT

HON. LYNN C. WOOLSEY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to introduce the Business and Education Sharing Technology Act [BEST].

As a member of the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, and as the Representative from one of the most technologically literate congressional districts, I know that technology is the future of education in America.

Education technology has the potential to ensure that every student in America achieves the highest learning goals. However, education technology can accomplish this goal only if every student has access to technology and all educators know how to use it.

President Clinton has endorsed this goal in his Technology Literacy Challenge. The Technology Literacy Challenge asks public and private resources to join together to ensure that all children in America are technologically literate by the 21st century. The BEST Act supports the Technology Literacy Challenge by recognizing businesses which show an exemplary commitment to joining with local schools to improve the teaching and use of education technology.

Members of the House and Senate who choose to participate in this program ask local and State education agencies and schools for nominations. The business to be honored is then chosen by a board of qualified individuals. All the businesses which are chosen are honored locally by the participating Member of the House or Senate. In addition, each year the White House holds a national ceremony to give recognition to these businesses. It is important to note, however, that no taxpayer funds are used for this ceremony. My bill specifically states that the ceremony does not take place unless all costs are donated by private contributions.

Mr. Speaker, education has always been a bipartisan issue in Congress. Last year, when the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities and the Science Committee held a joint hearing on education technology, Members on both sides of the aisle were excited to hear about the ways education technology is being used in many schools right now to help students achieve the kind of critical thinking they need to perform in the high skill jobs of today. But, it is not enough for a few lucky schools to offer education technology to their students. The BEST Act will encourage public/private partnerships in every community and every State that will ensure that all of our students and their teachers have the equipment and the know-how they need today to learn to the standards of tomorrow.

I hope my colleagues from both sides of the aisle will cosponsor the BEST Act. Join with me, schools, and businesses across the Nation to make sure that every school in America has the education technology it needs to make American students the best in the world.

NEW WEAPON FOR FIGHTING DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

HON. NEWT GINGRICH

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. GINGRICH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to inform my colleagues of a new initiative in the fight against domestic violence.

Six municipal police departments in Cobb County, which is in the 6th District of Georgia, are being equipped with special instant camera packages for use in their police cars. The camera packages, which are being purchased with donations as part of a public/private partnership, will be used to document cases of domestic violence, leading to undeniable proof of abusive activity.

As we are all aware, domestic violence can cause irreparable harm with the most devastating effects on our children. Children who grow up in an abusive home environment often demonstrate abusive relationships later in life with their spouses or children. It's important that we break the cycle of violence that is so damaging to the families of America.

I believe that the use of the camera packages will be of great assistance to police officers in their fight against domestic violence, and I commend Solicitor General Ben Smith, the Polaroid Corp., and citizens and civic groups like the Acworth Carrie Dyer Woman's Club for their efforts in this endeavor. I would encourage all of my colleagues to support similar programs in their own districts.

[From the Marietta Daily Journal, Apr. 25, 1996]

USING PICTURES TO PROSECUTE POLICE USE CAMERAS TO BATTLE ABUSE (By Dennis Smith)

In the early morning of July 20, 1994, Glen Troy Bramlett entered the Paulding County home of his estranged wife, Nancy, and their three children, bent on making good on a previous threat to kill his wife.

Armed with a shotgun, a .44-magnum pistol, a knife and nearly three gallons of gasoline, the Smyrna man murdered his wife of 22 years with two 12-gauge shotgun blasts as the victim slept next to their 2-year-old daughter.

The slaying occurred just days after Nancy Bramlett filed for divorce, seeking an end to a long and abusive marriage. The toddler was not injured, but evidence at the scene indicated Bramlett intended to kill his children as well. But those plans changed, and Bramlett shot and killed himself instead.

On Wednesday morning, 16-year-old Jessica Bramlett recounted the story of her shattered family to about 20 elected officials and about 30 city and county police officers, as well as a handful of domestic violence victims.

The group had gathered in a Cobb County courtroom to kick off a fundraising campaign, as both county and municipal officials are focusing their efforts on domestic violence with plans to equip every police cruiser in the county with a new weapon—a Polaroid Instamatic camera.

Through a public/private partnership with Polaroid, officials hope to raise funds to buy the cameras through donations.

In honor of Mrs. Bramlett and other victims of domestic violence, authorities are hoping both individuals and businesses will contribute to the Nancy Bramlett Domestic Violence Memorial Fund—which is set up to fund the purchase of at least 230 Polaroid police packages.

The price tag for each camera package—which includes special lenses, film and other tools for police to gather domestic violence evidence—has been reduced from more than $200 to $59.95.

The Polaroid Corp. also has agreed to train officers in use of the cameras, which officials say will be used to take pictures of battered women to be used in the prosecution of the men who inflicted the wounds.

The officers present Wednesday got a crash course in use of the cameras and were allowed to practice their skills on models, whose faces were made up with fake bruises and bloody cuts.

Cobb Solicitor General Ben Smith, whose office prosecutes most cases of domestic violence and is spearheading the fundraising effort, said the cameras are an important tool in making the case against a wife beater.

"Cases of domestic violence are the most difficult to prosecute," said Smith, referring to victims who often refuse to cooperate with authorities after the initial incident.

As an assistant district attorney in 1991, Smith prosecuted Bramlett for making terroristic threats, as the man told his wife he would shoot her when she picked up their children from an elementary school in Smyrna. When Bramlett was arrested at that time, he was armed with two handguns.

Smyrna police had also investigated incidents of spousal abuse at the couple's home.

"Nancy did not want to prosecute," Smith said. "All she would tell me was, 'Mr. Smith, you simply don't understand.'"

"Hard evidence is the way to solve these problems," Superior Court Judge Mary Staley told the group of officers. "When you show [the pictures] to a person and say, 'You did this!,' it's a very powerful message."

Once each police car in Cobb and its six cities is equipped with a camera, Cobb County will be the first community in Georgia and one of only 15 nationwide which have cameras in every police cruiser, said Barbara Poremba, a marketing representative with Polaroid.

Only a handful of other Georgia communities use instant photography in documenting domestic violence injuries, she said.

Angela Straker, who survived a gunshot wound to the head that was inflicted by her husband, suffered years of torment at the hands of Charles B. Straker. She told the officers that victims are often reluctant to come forward because they are in an embarrassing situation.

"It's very difficult. It's much different than trying to stop a cigarette habit . . . it's like brainwashing," said Ms. Straker, who was nearly paralyzed and still has a bullet lodged in her head.

"Whenever you're in a situation where you're being choked, beaten," she said, "it's humiliating. It has destroyed my whole life, my whole family".

Mrs. Straker, choking back tears, added that when her husband is released from his 20-year prison sentence, her "nightmare" will begin all over again.

Those who wish to contribute to the camera fund can call Jennifer Christian in the Cobb Solicitor's Office at 528-8554. Smith said those purchasing a camera can dedicate that purchase in memory or honor of a family member or friend, and an inscription will be placed on that camera.

Mr. SERRANO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Dr. Leo Corbie for his dedicated service as acting president of Bronx Community College. I will also like to honor Dr. Carolyn Grubbs Williams, who is succeeding Dr. Corbie as president of Bronx Community College.

Dr. Corbie was born in New York City. He moved to the Bronx after spending his early childhood in Harlem. He received a bachelor of arts from Central State College and then went on to earn a master's degree in social work from Fordham University and a doctoral degree in social welfare policy and planning from Columbia University.

Mr. Speaker I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing Dr. Leo Corbie and Dr. Carolyn Grubbs Williams for their commitment to the advancement of higher education.

PROUD TO BE AN AMERICAN

HON. HOWARD P. "BUCK" MCKEON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Speaker, I recently completed my latest series of town meetings across California's 25th Congressional District. These meetings not only provide my constituents the opportunity to discuss issues of national and local concern, but they give me the chance to meet and interact with the citizens I represent as well. Recently, I had the honor of meeting Mr. Howard F. Simmon of Lancaster, CA. Mr. Simon had never before been to a town hall meeting, yet managed to attend this latest round of discussions. His dedication to this Nation is embodied in a poem he presented me at this latest series of meetings. I would like to read that poem today.

Justly be proud of America,
 'Tis all that it is, and more,
 The land of the free,
 And the home of the brave,
 As 'twas said in the olden lore;
 So justly be proud of America,
 And rest on it, it's true,
 Where the sky spans o'er,
 From shore to shore
 It's a beautiful land,
 A wonderful land,
 The land of the free, and more.

IN HONOR OF HENRY LEGRAND SMITH

HON. NICK SMITH

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 26, 1996

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, my wife Bonnie and I were blessed with a new grandson on July 20 at 12:29 a.m. His name is Henry LeGrand Smith. He weighed 8 lbs. 6 oz. He is the fifth child of Bradley LeGrand Smith and Margaret Diane Smith. My namesake, Nick Smith is 9, Emily is 7 years old. Claire is 4 years old, and George is 2 years old.

Bonnie and I join Henry's other grandparents, Neville and Jennifer Monteith from Orillia, ON, in welcoming Henry to this world.

Like his brothers and sisters, Henry is going to have a tough time paying back all the money the Federal Government is borrowing. If we don't change our ways, Henry will have to pay $187,000 in taxes over his lifetime just to cover his share of the interest on the national debt.

I would conclude by asking all the parents and grandparents now in Congress to work with me to minimize the debt which our children and grandchildren will have to pay back for our undisciplined deficit spending.

THANK YOU, CYNDY WILKINSON, FOR YOUR LOYAL SERVICE

HON. JACK FIELDS

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. FIELDS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it was with mixed emotions that I announced last December 11 my decision to retire from the House at the conclusion of my current term. As I explained at the time, the decision to retire was made more difficult because of the loyalty and dedication of my staff, and because of the genuine friendship I feel for each of them. They have served the men and women of Texas' 8th Congressional District in an extraordinary way.

Today, I want to thank one member of my staff—Cyndy Wilkinson, a counsel with the House Telecommunications and Finance Subcommittee, who formerly served as chief minority counsel on the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, on which I was the ranking minority member.

A native of Galveston, TX, Cyndy is a 1970 graduate of Lamar University. She graduated with honors from the Potomac School of Law, where she attended classes at night while working on Capitol Hill during the day.

Cyndy has a long and distinguished record of service on Capitol Hill, having served on the staffs of U.S. Reps. Jack Brooks, D-TX, from 1970 to 1971, and Mario Biaggi D-NY, from 1971 to 1978 prior to joining the staff of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

On the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, Cyndy's knowledge of, and advice on, maritime and environmental issues was widely respected by Democratic and Republican members of the committee. Indeed, she served as a member of the Democratic committee staff in a variety of capacities from 1978 to 1993. In 1993, she joined the Republican staff as minority chief counsel.

In her various capacities, she worked to pass the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, which greatly enhanced the Nation's ability to prevent and respond to oil spills and other threats to our maritime environment. She also worked to reform the Endangered Species Act, enhance private property rights related to Federal wetlands regulations, and promote cruise ship safety. Her breadth of knowledge of maritime and maritime-related issues, her keen political acumen, and her eagerness to achieve consensus on vital issues affecting the maritime industry won her many friends in the merchant marine industry, including management and labor, and among Coast Guard officials.

In the 104th Congress, when I assumed the chairmanship of the House Telecommunications and Finance Subcommittee, I asked Cyndy to become a counsel on the House Commerce Committee. In that position she has worked on legislation to reform public broadcasting, and reduce its reliance on Federal funding. Due to Cyndy's hard work, public broadcasters reached an agreement for the first time ever on a legislative proposal to make their industry more financially self-reliant.

Cyndy is one of those hard-working men and women who make all of us in this institution look better than we deserve. I know she has done that for me, and I appreciate this opportunity to publicly thank her for the dedication, loyalty, and professionalism she has exhibited throughout the time I have worked with her.

Cyndy's future plans after I retire are as yet uncertain, but knowing her as well as I do, I am confident that the skills and professionalism she has demonstrated in the past will lead to continued success in the future.

Mr. Speaker, I know you join with me in saying thank you to Cyndy Wilkinson for her loyal service to me, to the men and women of Texas' 8th Congressional District, and to this great institution. And I know you join with me today in wishing Cyndy a very happy birthday.

TRIBUTE TO DONALD MATTEO

HON. SAM GEJDENSON

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay special tribute to Mr. Donald Matteo, the executive director of the submarine directorate of the Naval Sea Systems Command. On the occasion of his retirement, I ask that you and the other Members of this distinguished body, join me to pay special tribute to his extraordinary achievements in the service of our great Nation.

Don Matteo manages our Nation's most critical strategic, tactical, and special purpose programs—the design, acquisition, maintenance, and modernization of the Navy's attack and strategic submarines and deep submergence systems. His contributions to the Navy span a civil service career of over 36 years, 15 of which have been as a member of the Senior Executive Service.

Don Matteo has been honored with numerous impressive awards. He is the recipient of the Presidential Distinguished Executive Award, and has been honored on many occasions with the Presidential Meritorious Rank Award, the Navy Superior Civilian Service Award, and the Navy Special Act or Service Award.

A native of Brooklyn, NY, Don is a graduate of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy. He began his civil service career as a marine engineer at Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard. During the course of his distinguished career, Don Served as the program manager for acquisition of the SSBN-726 class trident submarines, and as the program manager for acquisition of SSN-688 Los Angeles class attack submarines. Don Matteo's leadership has been central to the tremendous success of our Nation's strategic and fast attack submarines. His expertise and innovative approaches to both management and technical issues continue to manifest themselves in the cost effectiveness and quality of Navy programs and products.

Don Matteo provided a major contribution to the successful termination of cold war hostilities. He worked closely in negotiations with numerous government agencies, and in collaborative operations with representatives at the highest levels of international navies and the defense communities. His cooperation with our allies, including the British, Australian, and Egyptian navies, set the tone for an emerging new era of peace. His vision and personal efforts to maximize the submarine strategic deterrence mission helped facilitate the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks [START] and the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks [SALT] Accords.

Don Matteo epitomizes the best of a modern executive. The high regard in which he is held throughout the Defense establishment and in private industry marks Don as one of our most effective and respected Navy civilian leaders. He is known throughout the Department of Defense for his technical expertise and insightful leadership. He has inspired and mentored many executives, and is a highly respected role model for many young managers. Don has led the way in achieving the goals of the President's National Performance Review. He was on the forefront of Navy initiatives to rightsize the submarine community to meet changing national strategic goals, while minimizing adverse effects.

Mr. Speaker, during the course of his career, Don Matteo has faced tremendous engineering, technical, and fiscal challenges. His leadership and personal fortitude have been central to the operational effectiveness and reliability of all submarines, and to our national security strategy which they enable and support. The recent highly successful maiden voyage of the PCU Seawolf, the first of a new class of attack submarines to set sail in over 20 years, is but one example of the results of the tremendous leadership of Don Matteo. Although he will be sorely missed in the Department of Defense, Don Matteo's vision, leadership, and personal style will continue to have a great impact in our Navy, and on our Nation for years to come.

Mr. Speaker, on behalf of my colleagues and the citizens of this great country, I am proud to have the opportunity to honor Mr. Donald Matteo on this momentous occasion with Bravo Zulu for a job well done. I ask that you and my distinguished colleagues join me to wish Mr. Matteo "Fair Winds and Following Seas" as he begins his next voyage.

IN HONOR OF MAY DEL RIO

HON. NITA M. LOWEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I join you here today to tell you that an era is coming to an end. For the last 30 years, May Del Rio has been on the frontlines of the battle to protect women's reproductive rights. She has been a leader in this fight on both the national and local levels. Next month, May will retire from Planned Parenthood-New York City.

I would like to congratulate May on her incredible career—a career that has literally made the difference between American women having access to safe, legal abortions and being forced to the back alley. I have to admit, though, that my happiness for May is tinged by a little sadness. I will miss working with her. In addition to being a valued colleague in the fight for the right to choose, May is also someone that I have come to know as a friend.

Anyone who has had the honor of spending time with May will tell you that her great gift—aside from her obvious intelligence, tenacity and with—is her warmth. May has an incredible spirit, and she radiates with kindness and enthusiasm. No wonder May has been so successful at lobbying, what legislator could say no to her?

May began her work on behalf of reproductive rights in 1965, when abortion was still illegal. She tells me that one of her proudest and happiest days was April 9, 1970. She was in the gallery of the New York State Legislature when the bill legalizing abortion in New York was passed. That day was the fruition of years of work for May, and the beginning of a new mission for her—assuring that every woman had access to that hard-won right.

May has worked for Planned Parenthood for the past 18 years. She began working at Planned Parenthood-New York City as its director of public issues and action in 1978. In that role, she lobbied legislators in both Albany and Washington to raise funds for family planning services and to assure that poor women had access to abortion services. In 1989, May moved to Planned Parenthood Federation of America as the national director of field operations.

Eventually, May returned to Planned Parenthood-New York City as vice president of public affairs. There, she has continued to fight on behalf of a women's right to obtain safe, affordable, and legal reproductive health services—including abortion. May has spent a lifetime protecting the rights of American women. Those of us who have had the honor of working with her will miss her greatly, and we wish her nothing but the best in her future endeavors.

KIWANIS CLUB OF LA GRANGE CELEBRATES 70TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. WILLIAM O. LIPINSKI

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an outstanding community service organization in my congressional district, the Kiwanis Club of La Grange on its 70th anniversary.

From its beginnings on a May night at the old Masonic Temple on La Grange Road 70 years ago, the Kiwanis Club of La Grange has grown with its community during the last seven decades.

The club, sponsored by the Berwyn Kiwanis Club, was organized by 42 people, including some of La Grange's leading citizens, on April 15, 1926. On May 11, 300 Kiwanians from as far away as DeKalb attended a charter night celebration at the Masonic Temple. Otis Townsley was elected the club's first president. Over the years, individuals from numerous professional backgrounds have served the club stop post.

Soon after the club was established, it made its first contribution to the community, $25 to the La Grange Civic Club for its village beautification program. Philanthropy has been the cornerstone of the club ever since as La Grange Kiwanis has plowed more than half a million dollars into worthy causes in its 70 years. Starting in 1928, with the club's decision to establish a milk fund for needy children served by the La Grange Community Nurse and Service Association, much of Kiwanis' charitable efforts have been directed to the young people of the area.

As the club grew, so did its fundraising projects. In 1951, on its 25th anniversary, La Grange Kiwanis held its first Pancake Day. This event raised $1,800 for community projects. Pancake Day has grown into one of the top community events in La Grange each year, and along with Peanut Day, is the club's top fundraiser.

In 1976, the club purchased an empty lot at La Grange Road and Elm Avenue and developed a park for the entire community to enjoy. It has been used for weddings, parties, and quiet reflection.

The club went through many changes over the years, but has always grown stronger. Perhaps the biggest change occurred in 1987 when Kiwanis initiated its first woman member of the club, Lee Welker of La Grange, who had served as club secretary for many years.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Kiwanis Club of La Grange on 70 years of service to its community.

TRIBUTE TO RETIRING MARINE CORPS MAJ. WALLACE W. HILLS

HON. MICHAEL P. FORBES

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. FORBES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Marine Corps Maj. Wallace W. Hills, of Albany, NY, who is retiring this August after a 19-year career. Major Hills has served his country with honor and dedicated service and I would like to ask my colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives to join me in saluting him.

A native of Lake Ronkonkoma, Long Island, where he attended Sachem High School, Major Hills is departing as the Commanding Officer of the Marine Corps Recruiting Station in Albany on Saturday, July 20. Under his command, Recruiting Station Albany has earned four consecutive Commandant of the Marine Corps' Superior Achiever Awards for recruiting excellence, an indication of the overall excellence with which Major Hills has served his country.

Major Hills joined the U.S. Marine Corps after graduating from East Stroudsburg University in Pennsylvania, in December of 1976 with a bachelor of arts degree in history and political science. At East Stroudsburg University, he earned All-Conference and All-Pennsylvania honors as a member of the 1975 undefeated championship football team.

He completed Basic School for Marine Corps officers in May 1977, and has served in a variety of commands and assignments during a distinguished and decorated career. Upon graduating Naval Air Training Command, he served as an A-6 pilot with the Marine All Weather Attack Squadron 121. After two deployments in the western Pacific, where he made the Marine Attack Squadron of the Year, he transferred to Recruiting Station-Northern New Jersey for 3 years. He returned to the Fleet Marine Force in July of 1986, where he became Commanding Officer of Combat Service Support Detachments 24 and 27. Between August 1990 to April of 1991, Major Hills participated in operations Desert Shield, Desert Storm and Eastern Exit—the evacuation of the U.S. Embassy in Somalia.

During his career, Major Hills garnered many decorations and awards, including: the Navy Commendation Medal with gold star; the Navy Achievement Medal; the Navy Unit Citation with bronze star; the Meritorious Unit Citation with three bronze stars; the National Defense Medal; the Southwest Asia Service Medal with two bronze stars—signifying service during Desert Shield and Desert Storm; the Kuwait Liberation Medal; and the Sea Service Deployment Ribbon with two bronze stars.

Major Hills is married to the former Kathryn Gaughan, of Scranton, PA, who is a first-grade teacher at the Albany Academy for Girls. They have two sons, David and John, who are a senior and a freshman, respectively, at Shaker High School, in Loudonville, NY. Upon his retirement Major Hills will serve as the senior Marine instructor and teach leadership science for the Marine Corps Junior ROTC unit at Amsterdam High School, in Amsterdam, NY.

The men and women in the Armed Forces, like Maj. Wallace W. Hills, perform a service for this country that too often goes unrecognized. America has achieved and maintained a position of leadership and respect throughout the world because of the sacrifice and effort offered by our Armed Forces. The rest of America should pause more frequently to think of these men and women in uniform who keep this Republic safe, so we may enjoy the fruits of democracy. That is why I urge my colleagues in the House of Representatives to take a moment and recognize Maj. Wallace W. Hills for his service to America.

AVAILABILITY OF VOA, RADIO
MARTI MULTILINGUAL COM-PUTER READABLE TEXT AND VOICE RECORDINGS

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing a bill H.R. 3916 along with my colleagues Mr. ANDREWS of New Jersey and Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania to provide university level linguistic researchers the use of Voice of America transcripts for the purpose of research. This authority sunsets in 5 years.

This legislation is necessary since the U.S. Information Agency is banned from domestic dissemination of the materials they produce. The legislation waives this prohibition allowing USIA to provide computer readable multilingual text and recorded speech in various languages specifically to the University of Pennsylvania's Linguistic Data Consortium. The authority to release the VOA transcripts is carefully targeted to the university-level research community.

All the data to be received by the consortium will be processed in electronic form by computers to create statistical tables and models of speech and written language, in which content is not even recoverable. Thus there is no question of the data being redistributed as news or as any kind of product other than a data base for linguistic research and development.

The Linguistic Data Consortium is a non-profit organization founded in 1992 with a mission to make resources for research in linguistic technologies widely available. About 80 companies, universities, and government agencies are members of the consortium.

Accordingly, I urge our colleagues to support this measure.

H.R. —

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. AVAILABILITY OF VOICE OF AMERICA AND RADIO MARTI MULTILINGUAL COMPUTER READABLE TEXT AND VOICE RECORDINGS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section 208 of the Foreign Relations Authorization

Act, Fiscal Years 1986 and 1987 (22 U.S.C. 1461-1a) and the second sentence of section 501 of the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948 (22 U.S.C. 1461), the Director of the United States Information Agency is authorized to make available, upon request, to the Linguistic Data Consortium of the University of Pennsylvania computer readable multilingual text and recorded speech in various languages. The Consortium shall, directly or indirectly as appropriate, reimburse the Director for any expenses involved in making such materials available.

(b) TERMINATION.—Subsection (a) shall cease to have effect 5 years after the date of the enactment of this Act.

NORTH BONNEVILLE, FEDERAL GOVERNMENT RESOLVE DISPUTE

HON. LINDA SMITH

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that the House of Representatives has approved my legislation to resolve a long-standing dispute between the Federal Government and the city of North Bonneville.

The city has been embroiled in a conflict with the Army Corps of Engineers since 1972, when the city was relocated to accommodate the construction of the Bonneville Dam powerhouse. Everyone agrees that it is time to resolve all of the outstanding issues between the Corps of Engineers and the city. The legislation that is part of the Water Resources Development Act will finally put this controversy to rest and most importantly, move Skamania County into an era of economic recovery.

A key provision in this bill will transfer certain lands to the city for their long-term economic development plans. Skamania County has a tremendous amount of Federal and State-owned lands. There is very little property in the county with developed infrastructure to attract business to this beautiful area. The transfer of land to the county for development will be a real shot in the arm for an area that has suffered severe unemployment with the downturn in the timber industry. The citizens of the area will have economic opportunity and the county will have an expanded tax base.

I want to take this opportunity to thank Mayor Keith Chamberlain, the Skamania County Commission, Rep. Marc Boldt and all the other individuals who have helped me convince my colleagues that this bill should be given high priority in the House of Representatives.

I will be working in the final days of the 104th Congress to make sure this bill is signed into law by the President.

DR. J. EDWARD ROUSH'S ENDUR-ING LEGACY TO INDIANA'S FOURTH DISTRICT

HON. MARK E. SOUDER

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Speaker, on April 22, 1996, I respectfully requested that when the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure met to consider the Water Resources Development Act, that the Huntington Reservoir in Huntington County, IN be renamed in honor of a distinguished citizen and former Indiana Congressman, Dr. J. Edward Roush of Huntington, IN. This provision has eventually become section 505 of the bill before us today.

Dr. Roush's entire life has been dedicated to the advancement of the interests of the Hoosier State and our great country. His service began early in his life, when he fought for 4 years in World War II. At the conclusion of that cataclysmic conflict, Dr. Roush was elected to the Indiana General Assembly, where he served from 1949-1950. In 1950 he was once again called to duty to defend his country, this time serving 2 years in the Korean war. He returned to Huntington after his second military tour to practice law, and became the prosecuting attorney of Huntington County. He served in this capacity from 1955-1959.

Dr. Roush's sights were set higher. He was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1958, and served the people of North-eastern Indiana until 1969. In 1970, he was reelected as a Representative of our district, and served until 1976. Mr. Roush's initiatives on behalf of his constituents are too numerous to mention. Among his many contributions, Dr. Roush established the 5th district scholarship program, which brought high school students from each of the schools in his congressional district to Washington for seminars on the governmental process, was instrumental in establishing the 911 emergency telephone hotline, and he inaugurated an institute on the legislative process for high school government teachers and an annual legislative seminar for women.

From 1977 to 1979, Dr. Roush was appointed by President Carter to serve as Director of the Office of Regional and Intergovernmental Operations of the Environmental Protection Agency. Additionally, he has served as both a member and chairman on the board of directors of the Huntington College, as a member of the board of directors of the Merry Lea Environmental Center in Albion, IN, as a member of various veterans' organizations, and as a member of the Indiana Society of Washington.

Mr. Speaker, such dedication deserves recognition. Dr. Roush's service to what is now the Fourth District of Indiana should be memorialized for generations to come. Changing the name of Huntington Reservoir to Roush Lake would ensure that Dr. Roush is duly recognized for his many contributions as a statesman. I urge my colleagues to support this provision of H.R. 3816.

CALL FOR REFORM OF THE ENDANGERED SPECIES ACT

HON. WILLIAM M. THOMAS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, in the 20 years since its inception, the implementation of the Endangered Species Act has undermined the rights of private landowners and is jeopardizing the Nation's food supply.

The people of the Central Valley of California, in which my district is located, have on more than one occasion been penalized for simply trying to irrigate, cultivate, or otherwise use their own property. This illustrates one fundamental flaw in the Endangered Species Act: one section of the population is paying a disproportionate share of the cost of protecting endangered species. We, the people of the United States, decided to protect endangered species. Yet, while the farmers and business people of the Central Valley pay the cost of administering endangered species habitats on their property, those Americans who do not own and work the land are exempted from the cost of protecting endangered species.

A second, and more disturbing, result of the implementation of the act is that it threatens America's food supply. Tulare and Kern Counties, both located within my district, are the second and third largest agricultural producing counties in the United States. Tulare County annually produces over 260,000 bales of cotton, over 1 million tons of citrus, over 340,000 head of cattle, and over 568 million gallons of milk. Kern County produces over 730,000 tons of grapes, over 590,000 bales of cotton, over 600,000 tons of citrus, and over 104 million gallons of milk. The Central Valley of California feeds the Nation. In enforcing the Endangered Species Act, the Government is not only acting against the property rights of private landowners, it is also hindering the production of the Nation's food. Let me give some examples.

Federal and State agents force landowners to pay outrageous fees and penalties in order to resolve concerns for the well-being of endangered species, including various rodents and lizards, living on private property.

One farmer who tried to build a turkey ranch had to forfeit some of his land to the Government and pay $50,000 for the management of a habitat for the Tipton Kangaroo Rat, among other species.

One farmer, hoping to build a dairy, plowed 160 acres of his own land. The Fish and Wildlife Service did not approve, fearing for the kangaroo rat, and the farmer was forced to sell the Government 112 acres of his land and provide $14,000 for the area's management.

On yet another occasion, an environmental assessment was required during the sale of land in southern Tulare County. The assessment team found no endangered species on the property in question, but, as they were returning to their car, they spied a Swainson's Hawk, a threatened species, flying overhead. The hawk never landed on the property, but the team still believed it might feed on rodents living on the property. As a consequence, the farmer who owned the land had to pay an outrageous $165,000 in mitigation fees.

These fees not only represent an exorbitant cost for the farmers involved, they also show how a small group of citizens are paying for a solution to a problem we as a society decided to address. In reforming the Endangered Species Act we must balance the rights of landowners with the rights of threatened animals, and we must ensure that society as a whole contributes to the cost of protecting such animals.

The Endangered Species Act not only poses a threat to the California farmer and businessperson, it poses a threat to all citizens. Production in the richest agricultural region in the United States has time and again been obstructed by overzealous Government agents enforcing the act.

In 1991 California farmers were in the middle of a 6-year drought, and the Kern County Water Agency proposed drilling emergency wells to irrigate crops. Before it could begin to recover much-needed groundwater, however, the Water Agency was forced to complete surveys for the presence of the kangaroo rat, at a cost of over $27,000. Not a single endangered species was ever identified. The environmental assessment caused a delay of 3 months in the drilling of the wells, and thousands of acres of valuable crops were put in jeopardy.

In another incident, the Kern County Water Agency, along with the State of California, purchased 20,000 acres of land to construct an underground reservoir. "Water banks" such as these are a very cost-effective way of collecting water for irrigation, and California taxpayers invested close to $60 million in the project. The Water Agency, regardless of the fact that it spent over $100,000 on a comprehensive conservation plan for the area, was told it must set aside 12,000 acres for an endangered species habitat, leaving only 8,000 acres for the water bank. The Water Agency understandably believed this was unreasonable and abandoned the project.

I support H.R. 2275, the Endangered Species Conservation and Management Act, which says those who enforce the Endangered Species Act must consider economic impacts and property owners' rights when taking action to protect endangered species. The bill would require the Government to pay landowners fair market value when, in creating and administering habitats for endangered species, it causes the value of the property to diminish.

H.R. 2275 also requires that the Secretary of Interior use only the best scientific or commercial data in determining which species are threatened or endangered, delegates authority to the individual States to protect endangered species that reside within each State, and establishes a National Biological Diversity Reserve to help preserve the existence of threatened and endangered species.

Effective reform of the Endangered Species Act should be on our agenda. I urge support for the Endangered Species Conservation and Management Act to better protect the property rights of landowners and preserve agricultural production in the Central Valley, while accommodating the society-wide goal of preserving truly endangered species.

RESOLUTION TO BRING DR. HANS JOACHIM SEWERING TO JUSTICE

HON. LYNN C. WOOLSEY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, today, I am introducing a concurrent resolution with Senator RICK SANTORUM calling for an official investigation of Dr. Hans Joachim Sewering by the German Government. At the time of Hitler's reign in Germany, Dr. Sewering was a member of the Nazi SS and the medical director of the Schenbrunn Sanitarium in Bavaria, Germany. During his tenure at this clinic for mentally and physically handicapped children, Dr. Sewering ordered the deaths of 909 innocent children.

After the war, Dr. Sewering was not punished. His crimes were never even acknowledged by the German Government. In fact, Dr. Sewering went on to achieve a successful medical career in the German State of Bavaria. He thought that the world had forgotten the children that he sent to death.

But, in 1993, four Franciscan nuns who were witnesses to this atrocity broke their vow of silence in order to bring Dr. Sewering to justice. Yet, to date, the Bavarian Government refuses to investigate this matter or press charges.

Thanks to the Anti-Defamation League and my constituent, Michael Franzblau, M.D., the world has not forgotten the helpless children who dies at the hands of this man.

Dr. Hans Joachim Sewering must be exposed for what he is, a Nazi war criminal. Please join me, and this resolution's 10 original cosponsors, in calling for the investigation and prosecution of Dr. Sewering for his crimes against humanity during the Second World War.

TRIBUTE TO BISHOP DAVID C. WALLACE

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to take this opportunity to recognize and congratulate the accomplishments of Bishop David C. Wallace. A graduate of the City University of New York, where he majored in social sciences, Bishop Wallace has a longstanding commitment to the ministry and the Brooklyn community.

Upon his return from college, Bishop Wallace continued theological studies at the New York School of the Bible. While completing his apprenticeship under the late Bishop F.D. Washington, Pastor Wallace would serve as special assistant to the music department of eastern New York, chairman of the Ordination Council, president of the State Youth Department of the Church of God in Christ Fourth Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction of eastern New York, and senior Pastor of the Agape Christian Fellowship Family Worship Center.

Bishop Wallace's community involvement and civic contributions demonstrate that he is a man of great vision and excellence. Bishop Wallace is indeed a leader for this time, and the 21st century.

Mr. Speaker, I join in the celebration with the friends and family members of Bishop Wallace as they anticipate with great excitement the continued efforts and contributions of Bishop Wallace to the Brooklyn community.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

LIVONIA SWIMMER GOOD AS GOLD

HON. JOE KNOLLENBERG

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a special person and true hero—Livonia native and Olympic champion—Sheila Taormina.

A member of the United States' winning 4 by 200-meter freestyle relay team, Taormina is an example of perseverance, dedication, and training. At 27, Taormina is somewhat of a veteran in her sport. With teenagers winning medals in handfuls, Sheila stands out as the first American masters swimmer to win gold.

Swimming the third leg of the relay, she helped the U.S. team set an Olympic and American record.

Not only did the Clarenceville High School graduate grab Olympic gold, she also shared her victory on the pool deck with her teammates and President Clinton and his family.

Swimming at the Clarenceville Swim Club, Sheila and her coach Greg Phill worked hard to make the Olympic team.

Sheila also owes a debt of gratitude to her employers at Northern Engraving Corp., in Livonia. After deciding to quit her job at Northern Engraving, her bosses Aurel Mailath and Philip Gelatt decided to give her a leave of absence, allowing Sheila the flexibility to pursue her dream of Olympic glory.

And now it has paid off with gold.

Sheila is hero for our community and our country. Her hard work, dedication, and Olympic victory is an inspiration not only to everyone at the Clarenceville Swim Club, but all swimmers, young and old, throughout the United States. I am proud of Sheila. Her great, golden effort has made our community smile.

TRIBUTE TO THE SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY SUN

HON. JERRY LEWIS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I am honored to rise today to pay tribute to some of the finest journalists I know—men and women from the San Bernardino County Sun newspaper in my hometown of San Bernardino, CA. These talented professionals have achieved distinction in their field and have been recently recognized as some of the most talented journalists in our country by Gannett News Service.

The San Bernardino County Sun, under the stewardship of editor Arne Garson, was named a gold medal winner and a finalist for the outstanding achievement award for best news performance. Garson, for whom I have tremendous admiration and respect, was also selected as a finalist in the editor of the year category.

A number of fine journalists from the Sun were also recognized in a variety of categories: Mark Muckenfuss for investigative reporting; Cassie MacDuff, Michael Diamond, and John Whitehair for business and consumer reporting; Mickey Enkoji for feature writing; and Mark Zaleski for color photography. All of these professionals were selected as among the best journalists in the country by a respected panel of their peers.

Mr. Speaker, once again the San Bernardino County Sun has distinguished itself as one of the best newspapers in the United States. I ask that you join me and our colleagues today in recognizing Arne Garson and his fine staff at the Sun for their continuing commitment to excellence in journalism.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE EMPOWERMENT ACT AMENDMENT

HON. MATTHEW G. MARTINEZ

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. MARTINEZ. Mr. Speaker, I propose the following two amendments to H.R. 123, the English Language Empowerment Act.

The first amendment provides an exemption under the definition of official business for actions or documents related to Social Security entitlements. The amendment inserts a new subparagraph on page 7, line 10—of the text of H.R. 3898—which would read as follows: "actions and documents that inform individuals of benefits under the Social Security Act." Legal residents of the United States, who have not been required to learn English because they have not participated in naturalization procedures, are entitled to know about the benefits they have accrued by working in this country.

The second amendment provides an exemption for actions or documents related to the Internal Revenue Code. The amendment insert a new subparagraph on page 7, line 10 which would read as follows: "actions and documents that inform individuals of their rights and responsibilities under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986." Legal residents who work in the United States should be informed in the language that they understand of their responsibilities to pay taxes.

I urge my colleagues to support these amendments.

AN END TO WATER WELFARE AS WE KNOW IT

HON. GEORGE MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, this week I released a report from the General Accounting Office that details the failure of the Reclamation Program to recover the cost of water projects from irrigation water users. This report for the first time sets forth the total amount of the taxpayers' money spent to build 133 water projects in 17 Western States, and the status of payments received from irrigators.

The record revealed by the GAO is largely one of failed repayment. Although these projects have been promoted to the public and to Congress as sound investments whose capital will be repaid, an array of statutory policies and generous interpretations by the Bureau of Reclamation have reduced repayment to a fraction of the cost.

We have spent $21.8 billion on irrigation-related projects since 1902. Out of that total, only $7 billion has been attributed to irrigators for repayment. And less than $1 billion has been repaid to date. Almost half of the irrigators' $7 billion obligation has been transferred to project power purchasers, but less than 1 percent of that money has been repaid.

The real message of this report is that the policies of the past have failed to recover the taxpayers' investment. Although the vast array of subsidies for irrigation were justified during the initial period of westward expansion and economic development of the West, they cannot be sustained under current budgetary constraints to reduce the Federal deficit.

These projects have done their jobs. The West is settled. The projects have produced nearly $200 billion in income for their beneficiaries. At a time when Congress has told farmers in other parts of the country to give up their heavy diet of Federal subsidies, we cannot leave untouched the water subsidies benefiting their competitors—Federal irrigation farmers in the West.

It is time to say, "Enough is enough." Today I am introducing a bill to eliminate irrigation subsidies on new Reclamation projects. This legislation will have no effect on completed projects, or on projects where irrigators have already executed contracts to repay the Federal investment. But it will require that water users pay the full cost for water from new projects, or new units of existing projects.

The Congress is about to pass legislation that curtails welfare payments after 2 years. I recognize that farmers work hard and provide for the Nation. But with all due respect, after nearly 100 years of multibillion dollar irrigation subsidies, the time for water welfare must come to an end.

When the taxpayers pay to construct a water supply, project beneficiaries should pay back that investment with interest. Doing so will encourage the Congress only to fund those projects that make sound economic and environmental sense, not those that can survive only with massive infusions of Federal taxpayer dollars.

I hope that other members will join me in promoting fairness for farmers and taxpayers, and that my bill will receive an early hearing in the Committee on Resources.

CONGRATULATIONS TO TUCSON
ELECTRIC POWER

HON. JIM KOLBE

OF ARIZONA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, 2 weeks ago I was pleased to welcome to Washington several constituents from my district. They were representing Tucson Electric Power [TEP]. They came to Washington to receive the Edison Electric Institute's Common Goals Award for Community Responsibility/Special Needs, presented in recognition of TEP's work in helping to establish the southern Arizona anti-DUI task force.

The delegation was led by, TEP Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer, Charles E. Bayless, who received the award from EEL President Thomas R. Kuhn in a ceremony on Capitol Hill that included more than 200 friends and colleagues. Other members of the TEP delegation who have worked on this project and attended include, George W. Miraben, Senior Vice President, Human Resources and Public Affairs; Jay Gonzales, Manager of Public Affairs; Betsy Bolding, Director, Consumer Affairs; and Sharon Foltz, Director, Community Relations.

In his acceptance of the award, Mr. Bayless spoke about the double tragedy that caused TEP to launch the campaign. Two company linemen were killed while on duty, but in separate accidents, by two drunk drivers. As a result of these dual tragedies, TEP, in cooperation with 18 law enforcement jurisdictions, helped organize the southern Arizona anti-DUI task force. Due in part to this program, alcohol-related traffic problems have plunged 60 percent in the Tucson area. This year's high school graduation and prom season was free of DUI incidents for the first time in 20 years.

While we all mourn the loss of the two TEP employees and fellow Tucson citizens, we congratulate TEP and the law enforcement agencies of southern Arizona on making something positive out of the tragedy by taking the initiative against drunk driving. This effort is not only making a difference in Tucson, AZ, it is touching the lives of every one of us. I congratulate TEP on winning the Edison Electric Institute's Common Goals Award and salute them for their community involvement.

COMMEND LEO R. McDONOUGH OF THE SMC BUSINESS COUNCIL

HON. MICHAEL F. DOYLE

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. DOYLE. Mr. Speaker, I wish to commend one of my constituents, Mr. Leo McDonough, for his numerous years of dedication to the small business community of Pennsylvania.

As president of the SMC Business Councils, Mr. McDonough has been an effective advocate for the more than 4,800 owners of small businesses in the Commonwealth. More than 123,000 persons rely on those businesses for their employment, which is a remarkable proof that small business is the backbone of the national economy.

Leo McDonough served his Nation in the U.S. Navy in the South Pacific during World War II. He pitched for the Pittsburgh Pirates and later worked in the insurance business.

For more than 27 years, my Swissvale Borough neighbor, Leo McDonough has worked tirelessly on behalf of the small business movement. From the moment he assumed the helm of the Service, Manufacturing, and Commercial Business Councils, Leo McDonough compelled many Americans to value the role of the small business in our Nation.

Former Governor Robert P. Casey appointed Leo McDonough as a member of the Health Policy Board of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in April 1993. He also was in the forefront of organizing the Governor's Small Business Conferences in Pennsylvania and served on the Governor's Small Business Advisory Council.

He achieved many other goals and received awards for service to business too numerous to mention. I join many from western Pennsylvania in wishing him the rewards of an enjoyable retirement. Thank you, Leo, for your steadfast work.

ANSWERING AMERICA'S CALL

HON. BERNARD SANDERS

OF VERMONT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. Speaker, for the benefit of my colleagues I would like to insert into the RECORD the following statement by Meika Ferland.

Ms. Ferland is a student from Barton, VT, and her script was the 1996 Vermont State winner in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Voice of Democracy broadcast scripwriting contest.

ANSWERING AMERICA'S CALL

(By Meika Ferland)

George Washington. Bob Hope. Betsy Ross. What do these Americans have in common? Each answered America's call in his or her own way. George Washington was the first commander-in-chief of troops as well as America's first President. Bob Hope entertained soldiers during several wars. And Betsy Ross sewed the famous red, white, and blue flag that would come to represent the best nation in the world. Each of these patriots made a memorable contribution to America's history.

Although we remember these important people and the roles they played in helping our country become great and strong, thousands of others have helped in their own small ways. The boys who beat the drums to maintain the soldier's pace. The women who made bandages and nursed the wounded. The crowds that gave a hero's welcome during a parade to honor returning troops—each of these is answering America's call by contributing to the morale and the needs of the time.

Today's citizens can also answer America's call. A young man can register with the Selective Service and be ready to fight if called upon during a national emergency. A young woman can volunteer to serve a meal at the local soup kitchen. A senior citizen can swing a hammer on a crew building a house in the Habitat for Humanity project. Each of these activities can make a difference and every person can make a contribution. The contribution does not have to make a huge impression like finding a cure for cancer or signing a peace treaty with a foreign nation. Each of us can answer the call in our own way no matter how humble. It is important to remember that every effort no matter how small makes a difference. I have learned this myself first hand.

At my local high school I am a volunteer in the Big Brother/Big Sister program. In this program a high school student is paired with an elementary student from one of the graded schools. These children are usually needy kids who lack someone special in their lives. As a volunteer I spend part of an afternoon each week trying to be a positive role model who provides attention and security in an otherwise troubled life.

Sometimes I help my little sister with her homework or we play games on the computer. She especially likes it when I read to her. Whatever we do, I can see a twinkle in my little sister's eye. I know she is thrilled while I am there. Her smile never leaves her face and when it's time to say good-bye, I know she is looking forward to next week wondering if I'll bring her a package of M & M's or a new book to read.

My little sister is not the only one who benefits from our friendship. It warms my heart to know that I can have such an impact on a ten-year-old. I am contributing a little bit to society by being a Big Sister but I am also reaping the rewards of doing something good for someone else.

In my own way I'm answering America's call. It is a minute contribution in relation to the whole country but it is my part, my effort. I believe that each of us has something worthwhile to contribute and it is up to each of us to do so. If every American were to do just a little bit toward answering America's call the United States would be an even greater place than it is today.

TRIBUTE TO U.S. AIR FORCE CAPT.
CHRISTOPHER ADAMS

HON. PETER T. KING

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. KING. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to one of my constituents who gave his life in defense of our Nation. U.S. Air Force Capt. Christopher Adams of Massapequa, NY, tragically lost his life in the brutal terrorist attack on the United States military installation in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia.

A decorated officer who flew dangerous missions following the conclusion of the gulf war, and more recently over Bosnia, Captain Adams, in the words of the President, "represented the best in America and gave America his best." He did indeed.

The Korean War Memorial—one of the newest and most visually striking and emotionally moving monuments in Washington, DC—bears the words: "Freedom is not free." The terrorist attack on Dhahran drove home the meaning of those words.

Throughout our Nation's history, brave men and women like Capt. Christopher Adams have understood that freedom is not free and put their lives on the line in defense of our liberty. In a world that remains a very dangerous place, we have great need of such individuals.

Capt. Christopher Adams died in the service of his country and gave his life in the name of all for which America stands. It would be a great dishonor to his memory if, as some have suggested, the United States withdraw from the Middle East and other international flashpoints, and generally turn inward, away from the rest of the world. To do so would only play into the hands of terrorist murderers responsible for the Dhahran bombing. The United States of America must continue to play its vital role on the world stage.

I extend my most heartfelt condolences to the family and loved ones of Captain Adams.

They will be in my prayers, as will all those courageous and dedicated men and women in uniform who protect our freedom and defend our interests, both here and overseas.

ORANGE AND ROCKLAND
UTILITIES, PEARL RIVER, NY

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to recognize the Orange and Rockland Utilities Co., Pearl River, NY, upon receipt of the Edison Electric Institutes' Common Goals Special Distinction Award for outstanding achievements in the field of environmental partnerships.

O&R teamed up with the Rockland County Association for Retarded Citizens to initiate a highly successful recycling investment recovery program, recycling more than 2,200 tons of materials and in the process saving more than 480,000 cubic feet of precious landfill. The program was not only self-sustaining; it turned a profit.

Mr. Speaker, I commend Orange and Rockland for their commitment and dedication to the community. I am grateful for their continuous efforts to conserve the precious environment that we live in. It is refreshing to know that there are such companies realizing the importance of placing equal emphasis on the need to preserve the environment while turning a profit. I am pleased to take this opportunity to praise the employees of Orange and Rockland who helped to implement this recovery program.

SCANA CORP. RECEIVES THE COMMON GOALS AWARD

HON. FLOYD SPENCE

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize the SCANA Corp., which serves the Second Congressional District of South Carolina, for receiving the Common Goals Award from the Edison Electric Institute [EEI] last week in Washington. The award, which was given for outstanding achievement in the field of educational partnerships, was bestowed on the SCANA Corp. for its sponsorship of "The Coach," a computer equipped traveling classroom. "The Coach," which is staffed with State adult literacy specialists, travels throughout South Carolina to offer free training to employers for the development of adult literacy programs for their employees. In presenting the award, EEI President Tom Kuhn noted that, "by helping people improve themselves, SCANA opens the way to a more highly skilled workforce, a more competitive economy, and a better quality of life."

Mr. Speaker, the SCANA Corp. is to be commended on the contributions that "The Coach" has made to increasing adult literacy in South Carolina. As it celebrates its 150th anniversary, the SCANA Corp. can take great pride in its history of service to the people of the Palmetto State.

HONORING RAYMOND TORRES

HON. ELIOT L. ENGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, Raymond Torres is a banker with long experience in the city of Yonkers and more importantly, a man who has given his experience and talent to the YWCA and many other community organizations. He has instilled a keen sensitivity to the community into his corporate activities, giving both expertise and financial assistance to organizations who need it. His contributions have enhanced the abilities of nonprofit organizations to provide critical services and programs for the people of Yonkers.

By his work he has helped to stabilize the southwest segment of the city and strengthen the city's economic base. His community activities also include serving as vice chairman of the community school board. Mr. Torres, branch manager of the Hudson Valley Bank, and his wife Aurelia have two daughters. He is a YWCA Man of the Year and Yonkers is fortunate to have among its citizens the likes of Raymond Torres.

HONORING LOUIS VLAHOPOULOS

HON. ELIOT L. ENGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, a community is most fortunate when it has among its citizens, those who make things happen. Louis Vlahopoulos is such a person.

He emigrated from Greece in 1970 and since his arrival operated a wholesale ice cream distributorship, a parking and garage repair shop and, finally, a restaurant—the Galaxy restaurant in Getty Square, Yonkers downtown heart. The restaurant has grown over the years so that five extra people are now employed to serve all those to come to enjoy their food and to catch up on the news of the day.

Mr. Vlahopoulos has deeply involved himself in community projects such as the Downtown Yonkers Management Association. He has worked diligently with the city to get more police in the area and to clean the streets. His support of the YWCA has earned him the title of Man of the Year. He and his wife have three children. He makes Yonkers a better place to live and work.

HONORING THE WHITTIER-RIO
HONDO AIDS PROJECT

HON. ESTEBAN EDWARD TORRES

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. TORRES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the Whittier-Rio Hondo AIDS Project

[WRHAP], a benevolent undertaking with a noble cause.

WRHAP, established in 1991, is dedicated to assisting adults and children who are living with HIV in southeastern Los Angeles County. Its founder and current executive director is Doris Wahl, whose son died of AIDS in August of 1989. Since then, she has selflessly dedicated enormous amounts of time and energy in providing services for individuals with HIV and AIDS.

As much as a support group was necessary to help those with HIV, Doris and her staff realized that this was not enough. The members of the support group were in need of comprehensive HIV services, including case management, legal and psychological counseling. Prior to these efforts, services did not exist in the Whittier-Rio Hondo area.

In 1992, WRHAP formalized as a task force allowing it to operate as a nonprofit organization, and in 1993 it became a nonprofit California corporation allowing it to be eligible for grant funding to provide necessary services for clients. Currently, WRHAP provides intensive case management, resource referrals and crisis intervention to 50 individual and 20 family clients. Twenty-five percent of WRHAP's clientele are Spanish speakers, and all services are provided on Spanish, English, and sign language.

The majority of WRHAP's support programs are staffed with volunteers. They provide respite care for the primary care givers of patients, form supportive friendships with the patients, or work with the staff in the office. Mental health care is provided on site once a week for clients and their families.

Mr. Speaker, it is with pride that I rise to recognize the Whittier-Rio Hondo AIDS Project for its ceaseless efforts to assist those with HIV and educate the community on the realities of AIDS. I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing Doris Wahl and WRHAP for their invaluable contributions to our community.

NATIONAL RAIL STRIKE AVERTED

HON. SUSAN MOLINARI

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Ms. MOLINARI. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to announce that rail labor and management have resolved their disputes through collective bargaining and have pledged that they will not engage in strikes or lockouts during the August recess while these agreements are being ratified.

This announcement is the culmination of almost 2 years of negotiations between the unions and railroads. The negotiations have followed Railway Labor Act procedures and have involved mediation before the National Mediation Board and ultimately appointment by President Clinton of three Presidential emergency boards. I am gratified that the collective bargaining process has worked and that the parties have been able to reach agreement without congressional intervention.

This result would not have been possible without the bipartisan support of House and Senate Members, including Chairman BUD SHUSTER, ranking committee member Mr. OBERSTAR, and ranking subcommittee member, Mr. WISE and Senators KASSEBAUM and KENNEDY. I also want to recognize the valuable input and coordination we have had from the White House and the Department of Transportation in this effort. Finally, I want to thank the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee staff, who worked many hours and over the weekend in an effort to resolve these issues—especially Jack Schenendorf, Bob Bergman, Glenn Scammel, Alice Davis, and Susan Lent. This was truly a team effort and we should congratulate ourselves on the fact that we avoided congressional intervention because of our success in persuading the parties to reach a voluntary agreement.

Given the devastating impact of a national rail strike on the Nation's economy, it was critical that Congress receive assurances from the parties that they would not engage in strikes or lock-outs during the August recess. Overall, some $2.7 billion of goods move by rail every day. Many industries rely heavily on rail transportation, including automobile manufacturing, paper, chemicals, and coal. Because many industries rely heavily on just-in-time manufacturing processes, a strike of even a few days would have a serious impact. A strike also would stop service on many Amtrak and commuter rail lines, which not only would impact railroads financially, but would strand passengers.

In closing, I want to express my optimism that the parties to all of the open disputes will be able to ratify their agreements. However, in the event that these agreements are not ratified, I will not hesitate to bring legislation to the floor that will bring closure to these disputes. In fashioning this legislation, I would not foreclose consideration of last-best-offer arbitration, which Congress imposed on the parties to settle the 1992 rail labor dispute. I hope that this will not be necessary and that the union members will ratify their agreements, providing closure to this process.

IN SUPPORT OF HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 191

HON. STEPHEN HORN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, the Filipino veterans of World War II hold a special place in the hearts of the American people. Many stood shoulder to shoulder with American forces on Bataan, Corregidor, and Luzon. We remember their brave sacrifices—in battle and out of battle—on behalf of freedom. Their actions will forever stand as a model of courage, bravery, and total commitment.

The Second World War was a tragic time for the world. Only through the patience and bravery of those who fought for freedom did we achieve victory. The Filipino veterans of World War II were strong participants in that fight. May we always remember their sacrifices made to preserve democracy and freedom.

It was a fitting tribute to those wonderful supporters of freedom that yesterday this House unanimously passed House Concurrent Resolution 191.

LEAH BREMER, HAWAII STATE INSTITUTE OF PEACE ESSAY WINNER

HON. PATSY T. MINK

OF HAWAII

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to salute an outstanding young woman from the State of Hawaii, Ms. Leah Bremer. I recently met Leah during her visit to Washington, DC, in June when she represented Hawaii as the State winner for the U.S. Institute of Peace national essay contest. Leah will be a senior at Punahou School on Oahu and is planning to attend college in California after she graduates.

Leah's essay is entitled, "Promoting Peace After the Cold War" and I am pleased to share with you her award-winning entry.

PROMOTING PEACE AFTER THE COLD WAR
(By Leah Bremer)

During the cold war the United States' national security interests focused on the direct military threat posed by the Soviet Union and on preventing the spread of communism. During the last decade, the Soviet Union has crumbled and the United States has become the world's dominant military power. Our government must now redefine and re-focus its national security interests to assure regional, global, and domestic stability in this new world. The United States should move toward a long-term policy emphasizing diplomatic rather than military intervention. As the political crisis in Haiti has demonstrated, the diplomatic process can serve as an effective way to resolve a conflict.

A key factor determining national security interests is the stability of neighboring nations. A crisis occurring nearby could cause instability in the United States. The United States supports harmony and democracy in its own region because, "As Haiti and Cuba, have shown, stability in the Caribbean doesn't stay there—it washes up, dead or alive, on the Florida shore." Unrest rarely remains with a nation's borders; one country's crisis can rapidly spread to a neighboring country.

While fifty years ago, such concern focused mainly on the countries nearest our own, advances in technology, and international trade have created a global system in which countries that once had no effect on one another are now related. Moreover, the dismantling of the Soviet empire has created an underground market in which relatively small powers can purchase nuclear weapons. Because of these factors, turmoil in a seemingly remote region of the world such as Somalia could have important consequences for the United States' national security interests.

In addition to maintaining global stability, the United States government must be sensitive to the interests of the American people. It is an important part of the democratic process to ensure that the people have a say in their government's actions. The crisis in Haiti created two major issues for the American public. On one hand, groups such as the Black Caucus pushed for the restoration of democratic rule in Haiti. At the same time, the political crisis brought many Haitian refugees to the United States. Many American citizens opposed this immigration, and domestic pressure pushed the government to take action. President Clinton responded by sending refugee boats back to Haiti, but as the number of seaborne refugee ships increased so did the domestic pressure for some sort of action to stop the flow of refugees, or the mistreatment of these refugees.

Likewise, the mass starvation and genocide in Somalia also concerned American citizens. Media made the American public aware of the nation's suffering, and groups such as the Black Caucus again pushed the American government to intervene. In cooperation with the United Nations, the White House responded to this domestic pressure by intervening in Somalia for humanitarian purposes.

If the demands of the American public are not met, conflicts within the United States borders could arise. In Haiti, when General Cedras' military coup overthrew President Aristide and committed countless human rights' abuses, the Congressional Black Caucus supported United States' intervention, and "urged applying any pressure, including an invasion to bring down Cedras." Clinton chose to support their demands for action in Haiti. As Elliot stated, "it will often be in the 'national interest' to take an action about which one group feels passionately while others acquiesce."

Once it has been established that a situation may pose a threat to national security, the government must decide what type of action to take. The type of intervention, whether it be military, economic, humanitarian, or diplomatic, is extremely important as the outcome depends upon the resource used. The government may use a combination of these measures, as was the case in Haiti and Somalia.

Although economic sanctions are often thought of as a way for the United States to effectively resolve a conflict without becoming too involved in the situation, some theorists see sanctions as an "over-rated tool politicians use to make them look decisive while they avoid tough decisions about foreign policy." Sanctions are less effective now than they were forty years ago because, with the rise of competing economic powers and a more global economy countries tend to be less dependent on United States' goods. Furthermore, poorly patrolled borders may also lessen the sanction's impact. For instance, the economic sanctions imposed on Haiti lost influence because Haiti could still trade with the Dominican Republic and obtain U.S. goods through the black market. Economic sanctions also may not directly harm the leaders initiating the crisis. In countries like Somalia, Haiti, and other dictatorships, the common people have no way to voice their discontent. Economic actions may back fire in dealing with human rights violations as they end up hurting those people the sanctions were initially designed to help.

Many times the United States sends troops into a country as a "last resort." Although the U.S. needs to have a strong military to back up its diplomatic claims, the use of the military should be reduced and replaced by diplomatic intervention. In July 1994, as domestic pressure increased concerning Haiti and the U.S. government acknowledged that economic sanctions were not working, the United States began training an invasion force and obtained a United Nations Security Council resolution authorizing the use of force as "last resort" to remove Cedras and restore Aristide to the presidency. In training an invasion force, however, the Clinton administration maintained diplomacy as an alternative. Dante Caputo, an Argentine diplomat appointed as the United Nations' representative in Haiti tried for two years to negotiate Aristide's return. Caputo was unsuccessful. But in 1994 after obtaining reluctant White House approval former President Carter, accompanied by Senator Sam Nunn and General Colin Powell, met with Cedras. After two days of negotiations in mid-September Cedras agreed to step down by October 15th, 1994. When the troops arrived in Haiti the Haitians cheered. Cedras kept his word and stepped down on October 15th.

Carter was successful in negotiating with Cedras because he gave him an opportunity to leave honorably. As Smith states, "Carter described Cedras as a man of honor and praised the beauty of Mrs. Cedras." In return for his keeping his word, Cedras received financial compensation from the United States and was flown to Panama with his family. Carter's strategy didn't back Cedras into a corner, but allowed him to step down without a fight.

In Somalia, however, the warlords were never given an opportunity to step down honorably. Sending troops to distribute food to the starving Somalis was well-intentioned, but the underlying problem of clan warfare was overlooked. The United Nations military presence complicated the situation. The troops became like another warring clan. As, "Initially presented as a purely humanitarian mission, Operation Restore Hope gradually shifted from feeding Somalis to fighting them." The focus changed from feeding the starving Somalis to capturing General Aidid. United Nations Secretary General Butros-Butros Gali's obsession with capturing General Aidid as a way to resolve the conflicts was not effective as, "In Somali culture, the worst thing you can do is humiliate them, to do something to them you are not doing to another clan."

When the United States government first intervened in Somalia, they began with peace talks between the two dominant clan leaders, Ali Mahdi, and Aidid. After two days a cease fire was declared. The cease fire, however was not implemented, and peace talks never resumed. The United States and the United Nations immediately sent in troops, thus not giving the warlords an honorable way to reconcile.

The United States has made many diplomatic mistakes which have led indirectly to some form of crisis later. In Somalia, the former dictator, Siad Barre, received more than 700,000,000 dollars in economic and military aid from the Reagan administration. Aid continued despite the fact that most analysts in 1989 judged Barre as a cruel dictator about to fall. A survey by Africa Watch in February, 1992, showed that this aid "helped lay the groundwork for the country's destruction today." The United States should be more careful in choosing which governments to support.

As the recent conflicts in Somalia and Haiti demonstrate, the national security interests of the United States government lie not only in deterring military attack, but also maintaining, global, regional, and domestic stability. After determining that a situation affects national security, the United States must choose what measures to take whether economic, diplomatic, humanitarian, or military. Each type of intervention has limitations and may not be appropriate for all situations. Economic sanctions, for instance may increase suffering under a totalitarian government, such as that of Cedras in Haiti. Likewise, military intervention may succeed in delivering food supplies to people in Somalia, but it may not be able to resolve a complicated conflict. As the Haitian situations reveals, one type of successful intervention may combine sustained diplomatic negotiations with limited military action.

ANSWERING AMERICA'S CALL

HON. SAM GEJDENSON

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Peter Lakes, a constituent of mine from Putnam, CT, in placing fourth in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Voice of Democracy script-writing contest. 116,000 secondary school students were asked to write a short script with the theme: "Answering America's Call."

Mr. Speaker, the lesson of Peter's script is that it is our responsibility to pursue our dreams and make them real. Your dreams may be large or small, but achieving your dreams is what America is all about.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud of Peter's achievement and salute him. We can all do well by reading what he has written, and being as inspired by it as I am.

I ask unanimous consent that Peter's script be included in the RECORD.

ANSWERING AMERICA'S CALL

(By Peter Lakes)

This past summer, my seven-year-old sister and I took on the endeavor of completing a thousand-piece puzzle. Hundreds of pieces were laying across the small table. My sister and I spent much of the first attempt staring at the cover of the box, baffled that the scrambled pieces would later fit together to form a complete picture. I'd guess that about seven hundred of those miniature pieces were blue. This large number of blue pieces troubled me. I held one in my hand. I know that there were four other blue pieces that would lock together with this very piece. The intimidating thought turned me off. I considered giving up. Much to my surprise, my sister had already put three pieces together. She looked at me with those strong willed, independent eyes and said, "Are you going to hold that all day? Looking at it won't make it happen."

After days and months of meager progress, the day of completion was near. My sister and I gazed confidently at the small pile of unsatisfied pieces. We attacked what we dreamed would be the beginning of the end.

The moment had arrived. The final piece was in my sister's hand. Seizing the moment, I diverted my eyes from the lonely pieces and instantly directed my attention to its vacant plot. At that moment, I realized that the vacant plot which I had so easily found, was not the only vacant plot. Furiously, we scanned the floor. We looked everywhere. The piece in my sister's hand was not the last piece.

Luckily, I had spent the last two months developing enough patience for this very moment. My sister took the uncertain piece, placed it in the box, and within five easy minutes, the puzzle was disassembled.

I took a moment to look over the past few months. It was an experience to remember. There were moments of progress and of frustration. I had to keep reminding myself that "nothing comes easy." After a while, the final picture wasn't important to me, but rather the process and the experience. I got to spend time; valuable time with my sister. She taught me the art of being patient, together.

Our goal had been achieved. We attained success. The missing piece does not create failure, but rather highlight the achievement. This is America's call. As individuals, it is our responsibility to pursue our dreams and make them a reality. We are all given the right to be someone, not something. We all have a part in completing the puzzle.

An American by the name of Charles Lindbergh heard this call. As a boy, he enjoyed the art of flight. After two years at the University of Wisconsin, Charles withdrew and followed his dream. He attended a flying school. Little did he know that five years later, he would be the first man to fly across the Atlantic Ocean. After the thirty-three and a half hour flight, it is no wonder why Lindbergh was greeted as a hero. He sought out his dream. He found enough courage, love and strength to make his dream a reality.

Often, opportunity helps propel a dream. When Columbus discovered the New World in 1492, Europeans had the opportunity to start a new life. Many of them were poor and felt life's course was beyond them. Many realized the risk, but could see the vast opportunity. Those that came to America pursued their chance. They found enough courage, love and strength to take their dream, and make it their reality.

This is the call of America. Fulfill your dream to be a leader. Fulfill your dream to start a family. Fulfill your dream! I'm going to fulfill mine. I often blame my failure on time and frustration. I accuse the course of life of stealing my dreams. But I am accusing the wrong person. I am the guilty suspect. I must listen to America's call. Only one person can create my dream, destroy my dream and transform my dream into my reality. Myself.

This call is telling America to go out. Don't look on the outside for courage, look within yourself. Your dream might not be to fly across the Atlantic, or to start a new life. Your dream might be small. But every single piece of the puzzle is small. Every time a piece is fit, it had an impact on the big picture. As author Wayne Dyer writes in his novel "The Sky Is The Limit;"—"Your ability to be a No-Limit person, and to go beyond even your most imaginative expectations for yourself, is right in your own hands." The only limit is the one you create. Focus your dream, and strive for its achievement.

Answer America's call—your dream is waiting on the other line.

CHILDREN ARE THE ONES WHO PAY

HON. ANDREW JACOBS, JR.

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 30, 1996

Mr. JACOBS. Mr. Speaker, the following is the David Mannweiler column from the Indianapolis News edition of July 23, 1996.

The column is, of course, disturbing to any citizen of conscience. It is also somewhat ironic with regard to my experience with Congress.

In 1962 when I first ran for the Congress, Mr. Mannweiler's predecessor, Bill Wildhack suggested a pledge that I should make in my campaign, to wit:

I'll never vote to send a child to bed hungry. I hope that an analysis of the votes I have cast on behalf of Indianapolis in the Congress over this third of a century will show that I have kept that pledge.

[From the Indianapolis News, July 23, 1996]

CHILDREN THE ONES WHO PAY

(By David Mannweiler)

On my plane trip home Saturday, I read the New York Times.

Maybe it was that thin air they pump inside planes these days, but I found myself wondering if there could be a link someday between two stories I read.

One story was about the Senate's vote Friday to give states a lump sum to run their own welfare and work programs. That idea was approved.

What wasn't approved was a proposal requiring the secretary of Health and Human Services to study whether the legislation, if passed, causes an increase in poverty among children in the next two years.

Also rejected was a proposal requiring states to provide vouchers to meet "the basic subsistence needs" of children in families that would be removed from the dole if mom or dad didn't have a job after two years on welfare.

Republicans said vouchers would undermine the five-year limit by allowing children to receive aid for much longer.

Hey, no undermining. Clearly, children should be punished for their parents' shortcomings. And no whining about the world's richest country no longer guaranteeing poor kids will eat. A line must be drawn somewhere.

IT'D BE A GRATE-FULL NATION

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., whined, of course. He said if the six-decade-old federal guarantee to feed poor children is ended, "we will be making cruelty to children an instrument of social policy. We will have children sleeping on grates."

He said a million additional children would be thrown into poverty—we have 9 million already—and "there will be an urban crisis unlike anything we have known since the 1960s."

The second story I found interesting concerned Mexican peasants reacting to the wide disparity between the rich and the poor in their country.

The Mexican government says 22 million Mexicans are living in "extreme poverty," an increase of 5 million in the last 15 months. United Nations figures show the army of children living and working on the streets of Mexico City has doubled in three years.

WHEN IT TRAINS, IT POURS

Recently, the story said, residents of a shanty town on the outskirts of the wealthy city of Monterrey stopped a freight train at night and removed—OK, stole—grain to make tamales and tortillas.

A former mayor of Mexico City said a recent poll showed 22 percent of the capital's residents believe violence is justified to correct social imbalances. That's the highest figure in a decade.

In the name of saving money and ending welfare as we know it, children may go hungry in this country. In an effort to feed their children, most parents would break the law, I believe.

It might come to that here, too.
