

jobs now and lay the foundation for long-term economic growth; long-term public investments to increase the productivity of American workers and businesses; and fair, balanced, and equitable deficit reduction measures to stop government deficits from preempting the private investments needed to create jobs and raise living standards.

The plan flows from the demand of the American people for change and my vision of what America can be if we embark upon an economic strategy of investing in people and putting people first. Achieving this change will not be easy, but the cost of not changing is far greater. To ensure that our children's generation is not the first generation of Americans to do worse in life than their parents, we must restore the American dream.

This budget extends the elements of the plan into each department and agency of the Federal Government and proposes appropriations language and other required information for the Congress to place the plan fully into effect. Enactment of the proposals in this budget will bring the vision that underlies my plan—a vision of a brighter, more prosperous future for America—a step closer to reality.

Although powerful special interests that profit from the status quo may oppose the plan, the American people have demanded change, and it is our responsibility as their elected servants to answer their call and take the action they demand.

I am gratified by and grateful for the support this program has received in the Congress thus far. However, much remains to be done. Therefore, I ask for your continued support and help. Together, we can get the American economy moving again, bring Federal finances back to a sound footing, and restore hope in the hearts of the American people.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, April 8, 1993.

By unanimous consent, the message, together with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed (H. Doc. 103-3).
