water are cleaner than they were in 2001. We’ve reduced air pollution by more than 10 percent. We put in place clean diesel rules that will cut emissions from heavy-duty vehicles by more than 90 percent over 10 years. We’ve restored nearly 1,200 abandoned industrial sites to productive use. We worked to pass the Healthy Forests Restoration Act to protect forests and wildlife and homeowners against catastrophic fires. We’ve substantially increased funding to improve water quality in the Great Lakes. Our policies are protecting the environment while also promoting economic growth. And I want to thank each employee of this Agency for helping make this progress possible.

Steve Johnson is the right man to build on this progress. He has 24 years of experience here at the EPA. He is the first career EPA employee to hold the office of Administrator. Steve is also the first professional scientist to lead the agency. With this background, Steve will help us continue to place sound scientific analysis at the heart of all major environmental decisions.

The EPA recently finalized a rule that places the first-ever national cap on mercury emissions from powerplants, which will result in a nearly 70-percent decrease in these emissions. And we issued the Clean Air Interstate Rule to reduce air pollution from powerplants by 70 percent. These rules are a good start, but they are not a substitute for effective legislation. So one of Steve’s first tasks—and I look forward to joining you on this task—to further reduce air pollution is to work with Congress to pass the Clear Skies legislation. Clear Skies is a commonsense, pro-environment, pro-jobs initiative. And Congress needs to pass the bill this year.

Steve will also build on EPA’s work to improve the quality and security of our drinking water. We’re enforcing strict standards to bring cleaner water to communities across our country. The budget I submitted this year to Congress includes a $44 million pilot program to develop tools to better monitor urban water systems, so we can detect contamination as quickly as possible. The budget also increases support for EPA homeland security programs by more than 70 percent next year. Under Steve’s leadership, we will work to ensure that every American community continues to have a water supply that is clean and is safe.

We must build on our progress in the conservation and protection of our wetlands, soil, and wildlife habitats. On Earth Day last year, I announced a new goal to restore, improve, and protect at least 3 million acres of wetlands by 2009. After 1 year, we’ve already enhanced over 800,000 acres of wetlands. And that puts us on a pace to meet our goal.

And finally, we will continue our enforcement strategy, which focuses on achieving real environmental improvements that benefit everyone. Since 2001, the EPA has increased compliance inspections by 19 percent and civil investigations by 24 percent. And last year, the Agency provided compliance assistance to over 750,000 individuals and businesses.

Our strategy is working. Last year we obtained commitments to reduce future pollution by an estimated one billion pounds, an increase of 50 percent over the 2001 level. And I want to thank all the EPA employees who work in the field to work on this collaborative effort.

As Steve leads the EPA, he will maintain our commonsense approach of collaborating with leaders and volunteers at the local level to find the best solutions to meet our national goals. We’ll continue to vigorously enforce our environmental laws. We’ll encourage good stewardship of natural resources, and we will focus on results. We’ll continue to protect the health of our citizens and help guarantee the quality of our air, water, and land for generations to come.

I’m looking forward to working with this good man as he leads this important Agency. Steve, congratulations. God bless.
[At this point, Administrator Johnson made brief remarks.]

The President. Congratulations.

NOTE: The President spoke at 1:48 p.m. in the Rachel Carson Room at the Environmental Protection Agency’s Ariel Rios Building. In his remarks, he referred to Administrator Johnson’s wife, Deborah Johnson, and his father, William Johnson. The transcript released by the Office of the Press Secretary also included the remarks of Administrator Johnson.

Remarks in a Discussion on Strengthening Social Security in Greece, New York
May 24, 2005

The President. Thank you all. Go ahead and be seated. Be seated, thank you. We’ve got to get to work. Thank you all for coming. Please be seated. Thanks for coming. Thanks for the warm welcome, and thanks for caring about the future of our country, because that’s what we’re here to discuss. Before I get to the Social Security issue, I do want to thank some people.

First I want to thank the Greece Athena Middle and High Schools for letting us use this fantastic facility. It really is beautiful, yes. A fantastic place, isn’t it? Yes. I want to thank Helen Wahl and Dick Snyder. Helen is the principal of the high school; Dick Snyder is the principal of the middle school. I want to thank all the teachers. I want to thank the superintendent. I want to thank all the folks who care a lot about making sure the kids get educated here in this part of the world.

I’m sorry Laura is not here. Yes, you’d probably rather have her here than me, wouldn’t you? Anyway—[laughter].

Audience member. We didn’t say that.

The President. Well, no, but you thought it. You didn’t say it, but I could tell you thought it. You’re not the only person here who feels that way, I want you to know. She’s doing great. She is on a trip promoting the freedom agenda. She’s made it very clear to people in the Middle East, you can’t have a complete society unless women participate fully in the society in the Middle East. I’m really proud of her. I’m a fortunate man that she said yes when I asked her to marry me back in Midland, Texas. She’s a great First Lady. I’m looking forward to having her come home tonight, back to the White House.

I thank Congressman Tom Reynolds. He’s an effective United States Congressman who cares a lot about this district. I’m proud to call him friend. I’m proud to call Congressman Sherry Boehlert friend as well. Sherry is from the district next door; I’ve known him for a long time. He’s a good, thoughtful man. He’s a fine United States Congressman. Congressman Jim Walsh is with us today. He too is a fine United States Congressman. And I was proud to be traveling with Congressman Randy Kuhl. He’s a freshman Member of the House of Representatives, doing a great job. Thank you all for coming.

They wanted to ride on Air Force One. [Laughter] Proud to make room for them. They want to ride back on Air Force One. [Laughter] And they probably want a meal on Air Force One. Save up your appetite, fellows, you got a good meal coming.

I want to thank all the State and local officials who have joined us today. I’m proud you’re here.

There’s two athletes in the audience I want to pay recognition to. First of all, a person you all know well, really a fine member of the community, member of the
