

standard coin presses and for the use of such invention by the United States. The said Joseph Wynn Steel and the said William Peter Kruse, while employed by the Bureau of the Mint, conceived, designed, and fabricated a conversion unit which, when attached to a standard coin press, makes possible the striking of two coins simultaneously. This conversion unit was placed in general operative use in United States mints and will result in a saving to the United States of several million dollars. Patent numbered 2,470,102 has been issued on the unit, reserving to the United States all rights to its use: Provided, That no part of the amount appropriated in this Act in excess of 10 per centum thereof shall be paid or delivered to or received by any agent or attorney on account of services rendered in connection with this claim, and the same shall be unlawful, any contract to the contrary notwithstanding. Any person violating the provisions of this Act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not exceeding $1,000.
