In re: JASON GREER,

Movant.

No. 16-1179
(D.C. Nos. 1:05-CV-00058-LTB &
1:02-CR-00184-LTB-1)
(D. Colo.)

ORDER

Before BRISCOE, GORSUCH, and BACHARACH, Circuit Judges.

Movant Jason Greer, a federal prisoner proceeding through counsel, seeks an order authorizing him to file a second or successive 28 U.S.C. § 2255 motion in the district court so he may assert a claim for relief based on Johnson v. United States, 135 S. Ct. 2551 (2015).¹ See 28 U.S.C. §§ 2255(h), 2244(b)(3). Because Movant has made a prima facie showing that he satisfies the relevant conditions for authorization under § 2255(h)(2), we grant authorization.

Movant received a sentence enhanced under the guideline for career offenders, which is triggered by the defendant having “two prior qualifying felony convictions of either a crime of violence or a controlled substance offense,” U.S.S.G. § 4B1.1(a). At least one of his prior convictions qualified for this purpose by virtue of the residual clause in the guideline’s definition of a crime of violence, which encompasses crimes that “involve[] conduct that presents a serious potential risk of physical injury to another,”

¹ The Federal Public Defender for the Districts of Colorado and Wyoming is appointed to represent Jason Greer pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 3006A(a)(2)(B).

id. § 4B1.2(a)(2). An identical clause in the Armed Career Criminal Act was invalidated in Johnson on the ground that it was unconstitutionally vague.

To obtain authorization, Movant must make a prima facie showing that his claim meets the gatekeeping requirements of § 2255(h). 28 U.S.C. § 2244(b)(3)(C); see Case v. Hatch, 731 F.3d 1015, 1028–29 (10th Cir. 2013). A claim may be authorized under § 2255(h)(2) if it relies on “a new rule of constitutional law, made retroactive to cases on collateral review by the Supreme Court, that was previously unavailable.” Johnson announced a new rule of constitutional law that was made retroactive to cases on collateral review in Welch v. United States, 136 S. Ct. 1257, 1265 (2016). We held in In re Encinias, No. 16–8038, 2016 WL 1719323, at *2 (10th Cir. Apr. 29, 2016) (per curiam), that second or successive § 2255 motions that rely on Johnson to challenge the career offender guideline qualify for authorization under § 2255(h)(2).

Accordingly, we grant Jason Greer authorization to file a second or successive § 2255 motion in district court to raise a claim based on Johnson v. United States.
