V. SPECIAL FACTUAL INFORMATION

A. Plaintiffs.

Plaintiff contends that he was beaten by Defendant
 Troehler and sustained injuries to his head, left ear, and neck

as a result of the beating and to his right wrist by reason of the handcuffs as used by Defendant Troehler.

- 2. Plaintiff was transported from the scene to UMC following the incident. Prior to being transported, photographs were taken of Plaintiff's head and face depicting injuries to his face, the left side of his head and neck, his left and left shoulder. Plaintiff next sought medical care for matters which he relates to the incident in December 2006 for left ear pain. Then in March of 2007 when he saw his family practitioner, Dr. Sukhbir Manjal who at that time ordered x-rays of his wrist and MRI of his neck.
- 3. The MRI revealed severe degenerative disc disease at C6-7 and he was referred to Dr. Ali Najafi, a neurosurgeon. Soon thereafter, Dr. Najafi performed a cervical fusion which procedure was necessitated by the degenerative condition of Plaintiff's neck, not the subject incident.
- 4. Plaintiff was also referred to Dr. Hongshik Han, a hand and plastic surgeon. Plaintiff had arthritic changes in both wrists but left wrist joint was essentially destroyed, most of the ligament was torn off and worn, indicating it was a chronic condition. The right wrist had a tear but there was no evidence of degeneration, so Dr. Han believed it was relatively recent in origin. In June 2007, Dr. Han performed a right wrist arthroscopy which revealed a right ligament tear but no arthritis which indicated that the ligament could be repaired. The repair could not be done until after the cervical fusion. In January 2008, Dr. Han surgically repaired the torn ligament and reinforced it with wires and pinned the wrist to allow the ligament to recover.

- 5. Williams was placed in a cast while his wrist was recovering. He had problems with the cast and the wires. His recovery was difficult and he removed some of the wires himself. He reinjured his hand. In October 2008, Dr. Han performed what he referred to as a "salvage" procedure, a proximal row carpectomy, on the right wrist which involves removal of four bones in the wrist reducing it to a single joint. The surgery was successful in dramatically reducing if not eliminating the right wrist pain.
- 6. In connection with the above summarized injuries and treatment, Plaintiff is claiming the following expenses:

B. Defendants

- 1. When Plaintiff was seen at University Medical Center following the incident he was noted to have a superficial laceration to his right eyebrow and abrasion. He did not complain of neck pain, wrist pain or shoulder pain. He returned to work immediately after his release from custody. He did not seek further medical treatment until December of 2006, four months after his arrest.
- 2. Medical records reveal that Plaintiff had prior complaints of the same nature as his complaints after the incident. Prior to the incident he was seen for neck and arm pain, and a bulging disc in his neck. He was also seen for problems related to both hands; and had carpal tunnel surgery in 1998. Plaintiff's surgeon, Dr. Han, testified that Mr. Williams has an explosive personality to the point where Dr. Han and his staff had concerns that Plaintiff would become violent. At one point during his recovery from surgery, Mr. Williams became so angry he pounded his truck with his fist, damaging a wire that Dr. Han had inserted into his wrist during surgery. According to

Dr. Han, Plaintiff's violent reaction prevented his wrist from healing thereby necessitating a second surgery.

3. Plaintiff has a long history of taking numerous addictive controlled substances including Vicodin, Valium, Darvon and Darvocet; and a history of being prescribed multiple psychotropic medications. Defense experts in psychology and psychopharmacology concur that Mr. Williams has borderline personality disorder. Borderline personality presents with extreme anger problems, bouts of depressed mood, anxiety and impaired judgment. Individuals with this disorder tend to feel persecuted for no reason, are highly and inappropriately reactive to stress and tend to over-respond with rage and anger. Mr. Williams' problems with anger are well documented in the medical records and prior and subsequent contacts with law enforcement.

VI. RELIEF SOUGHT

- Plaintiff seeks general damages, special damages, punitive damages, attorneys' fees pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1988, and costs of suit.
- 2. Defendant seeks a defense verdict, and costs of suit and attorney's fees pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1988 should he prevail in this action.

VII. DISPUTED ISSUES OF LAW

A. Plaintiffs Summary of Claims.

1. Plaintiff is making three legal claims, all arising out of the same set of facts, to wit: (1) civil rights violation pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for excessive force; (2) assault and battery; and (3) negligence.

28 ///

Excessive Force.

- 2. Every person has the right not to be subjected to unreasonable or excessive force while being arrested, even though such arrest is otherwise made in accordance with due process. While an officer has a right to use such force as is necessary under the circumstances to effect the arrest, the degree of force is limited to that which a reasonable and prudent officer would have applied under the circumstances disclosed in the case.
- 3. Whether the force used was unnecessary, unreasonable or violent is an issue to be determined in light of all the surrounding circumstances. Factors to consider in determining whether an officer used excessive force are the severity of the crime at issue, whether the Plaintiff posed a reasonable threat to the safety of the officer or others, and whether the Plaintiff was actively resisting detention or attempting to escape. (Model Jury Instructions, 9th Circuit, No. 11.4).
- 4. It is Plaintiff's contention that Defendant's initiation of force and continued use of force upon Plaintiff in connection with this traffic stop was unnecessary and unreasonable. Plaintiff did not actively resist detention nor attempt to escape.

Assault and Battery.

- 5. Under California law, as set out in CACI 1305, battery by a police officer requires Plaintiff establish the following:
 - a. That Defendant intentionally touched Plaintiff;
- b. That defense used unreasonable force to arrest Plaintiff;
 - c. That Plaintiff did not consent to the use of that force;

- d. That Plaintiff was harmed; and
- e. That Defendant's use of unreasonable force was a substantial factor in causing Plaintiff's harm.
- 6. A person being arrested has a duty not to use force to resist the officer unless the officer is using unreasonable force. In deciding whether Defendant used unreasonable force, the jury must determine the amount of force that would have appeared reasonable to a police officer in Defendant's position under the same or similar circumstances and should consider the following factors, among others: (1) the seriousness of the crime at issue; (2) whether Plaintiff reasonably appeared to pose an immediate threat to the safety of Defendant; and (3) whether Plaintiff was actively resisting arrest or attempting to evade arrest. (CACI 1305).
- 7. Plaintiff contends that at the time Defendant initiated his use of force, Plaintiff was attempting to comply with Defendant's demand for evidence of insurance. Plaintiff had not threatened Defendant, verbally or by gesture. Defendant continued to use force, striking Plaintiff about his head and neck, while Plaintiff was on the ground and not doing anything except trying not to get injured. Plaintiff made no effort to strike back or otherwise threaten Defendant; Plaintiff engaged in no force whatsoever.
- 8. California Penal Code § 834a provides that a person who "should have knowledge, that he is being arrested by a peace officer, it is the duty of such person to refrain from using force of any weapon to resist such arrest." Plaintiff did not use any force nor any weapon.

Negligence.

- 9. Under California law, to prevail on a theory of negligence, Plaintiff must establish that Defendant was negligent; that Plaintiff was harmed; and that Defendant's negligence was a substantial factor in causing Plaintiff's harm. (CACI 400). A person is negligent if he does something that a reasonably careful person would not do in the same situation or fails to do something that a reasonably careful person would do in the same situation. (CACI 401).
- 10. Defendant undertook the use of force when he knew that Plaintiff was still trying to eliminate the issue of his insurance. Defendant did not explain to Plaintiff that if he refused to sign the citation he would be arrested. In failing to explain to Plaintiff the consequence of refusing to sign the citation, Defendant created the need to physically arrest Plaintiff. There is no evidence Plaintiff heard or understood he was being placed under arrest when he pulled his arm away from Defendant, who was grabbing him from behind. Defendant used force to trip Plaintiff onto the ground and then started kneeing him about his head and neck until he could get Plaintiff's arms out from underneath Plaintiff's body and put handcuffs on him.

B. Defendants

Federal Claims.

Fourth Amendment Unreasonable Search and Seizure Claim.

1. Plaintiff claims that Officer Troehler used excessive force in affecting his arrest on August 25, 2006. Under the Fourth Amendment, a police officer may use such force that is objectively reasonable under the totality of the circumstances. Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S. 386, 397 (1989). An unreasonable seizure occurs when a law enforcement officer uses excessive force in making a lawful arrest. Factors to consider in determining whether an officer used excessive force are the severity of the crime at issue, whether the Plaintiff posed a reasonable threat to the safety of the officer or others, and whether the Plaintiff was actively resisting detention or attempting to escape. Blanford v. Sacramento County, 406 F.3d 1110, 1115 (9th Cir. 2005). An officer need not avail himself of the least intrusive means of responding to a situation; he need only act within a range of conduct that is reasonable. Scott v. Henrich, 39 F.3d 912, 915 (9th Cir. 1994).

2. Plaintiff was confrontational from the onset of his contact with Officer Troehler. He was subject to arrest when he refused to sign the traffic citation and walked away from Officer Troehler. Officer Troehler told him he was under arrest and attempted to take him into custody by grabbing his arm, but Plaintiff pulled away, escalating the situation. Plaintiff continued to resist after Troehler took him to the ground. Officer Troehler was concerned because Plaintiff had a sharp edged tool on him; and there were other subjects that could possibly intervene. He needed to get the situation under control quickly. He applied 2-3 knee strikes to the side of Plaintiff's head to distract Williams and gain control. As soon as Mr. Williams stopped resisting, Officer Troehler stopped striking him and applied the handcuffs. It is Defendant's contention that under the totality of the circumstances, the force used was necessary and reasonable.

Qualified Immunity Defense.

- 3. Qualified immunity protects Section 1983 defendants "from liability for civil damages insofar as their conduct does not violate clearly established statutory or constitutional rights of which a reasonable person would have known." Harlow v. Fitzgerald, 457 U.S. 800, 818 (1982). "As the qualified immunity defense has evolved, it provides ample protection for all but the plainly incompetent or those who knowingly violate the law."

 Malley v. Briggs, 475 U.S. 335, 341 (1986).
- 4. The threshold question which a court must consider in ruling upon the defense of qualified immunity is, "[t]aken in the light most favorable to the party asserting injury, do the facts alleged show the officer's conduct violated a constitutional right?" Saucier v. Katz, 533 U.S. 194, 201 (2001). If the Plaintiff's factual allegations establish a violation of the Plaintiff's federal rights, then the court must proceed to the second determination as to whether the right was "clearly established." Id.; Devereaux v. Abbey, 263 F.3d 1070, 1074 (9th Cir. 2001).
- 5. It is Defendant's position that a reasonable officer in Officer Troehler's position could have believed that the force used was lawful under the circumstances.

Punitive Damages.

6. Plaintiff is seeking an award of punitive damages.

Punitive damages are only proper under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 when the Defendant's conduct is shown to be motivated by evil motive or intent when it involves a reckless or callous indifference to federally protected rights of others. Smith v. Wade, 461 U.S. 30, 56 (1983). Defendant submits that there is no evidence to support plaintiff's claim for punitive damages.

State Claims.

Assault and Battery.

- 7. An officer is entitled to use reasonable force to detain a person when he or she has reasonable cause to believe that person has committed a crime. Plaintiff has the burden of proving unreasonable force. Edson v. City of Anaheim, 63 Cal.App.4th 1269, 1272 (1998).
- 8. An officer who makes or attempts to make an arrest is not required to retreat or cease from his or her efforts because of the resistance or threat of resistance of the person being arrested. California Penal Code § 835a.

Negligence.

9. The elements of a negligence claim are: (1) a legal duty to conform to a standard of conduct to protect the plaintiff; (2) a failure to meet this standard of conduct; (3) causation; and (4) damages. Ladd v. County of San Mateo, 12 Cal.4th 913, 917 (1996). Defendant contends that he acted as a reasonable officer would act under similar circumstances.

VIII. ABANDONED ISSUES

1. Plaintiff withdrew his claim for intentional infliction of emotional distress (third claim for relief) when Defendant filed a motion to compel disclosure of psychiatric records and an independent psychiatric examination. Defendant was denied the discovery requested based on Plaintiff's withdrawal of this claim. Plaintiff is also not making a claim for business losses.
