

that judgment. Indeed, to the extent that the current 60(b) motion is based upon newly discovered evidence (i.e., the U.S. Marshals' logs), it is also too late, since more than one year has passed since the May 23, 2001, judgment was entered. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b).

In addition, I DENY the motion to recuse, contained within D'Amario's Objection to Report and Recommended Decision filed on December 19, 2005. This is not a case like Nettles where the petitioner had conspired to blow up the courthouse in which all the judges had their offices, and the court of appeals therefore concluded that the public might believe that all judges in the courthouse would be biased against the defendant because of the threat to their safety. See In re Nettles, 394 F.3d 1001, 1003 (7th Cir. 2005). D'Amario is concerned that Judge DiClerico may have been prejudiced against him in 2001 because Judge DiClerico allegedly then knew of D'Amario's alleged threats made against him. Whether or not that is so, there was and is no threat against me. I have no reason to be biased against D'Amario and his Rule 60(b) motion, and no reasonable person might reasonably question my own impartiality, see 28 U.S.C. § 455(a), based on Judge DiClerico's alleged earlier knowledge.
