

A New Course for FY12

Learn how to create videos to demonstrate processes, products, or ideas.

Camtasia

Basics and Beyond

Learn to create cutting-edge web-based training using Camtasia and other resources, such as Picnik and Compfight. Participants will also learn how to write for the “screen” instead of the page and then how to deliver an effective voice-over for a variety of audiences. This course is hands-on and all participants will hone their skills on a mini-project of their choice.

Instructor

Oscar Daniels is a graduate of the American Film Institute with an MFA in Film Editing and has extensive experience in all aspects of video production. He has been the senior editor of “Jim Rome is Burning” (ESPN), an ABC/DGA Directing Fellow, and twice had films in competition at the Sundance Film Festival. He has also produced videos for various government agencies and done voice-over work for Major League Baseball, Overbrook Entertainment (Will Smith’s Production Company), and numerous government productions.

FY12 schedule available soon on our website: www.gpo.gov/customers/theinstitute.htm

Did you know that any of our courses can be customized and offered on-site at your location?
See the back for additional information for onsite courses and a list of current topics available ONLY on-site.

If you have suggestions for new courses, please email us at theinstitute@gpo.gov or call 202.512.1283