Basic Search

Perform simple keyword searches or use search operators to construct complex searches in the basic search box. FDsys will search over all of its collections to return results that closely relate to your search. Then, use filters and other narrowing tools to optimally target your search.

Advanced Search

Using a form, create a customized, advanced search. Specify a date or date range, choose one or several collections of Government information in which to search, and apply up to five fields of search criteria for the most precise search possible.

Browse

Browse Government publications in four ways: alphabetically by collection, by Congressional Committee, by date, and by Government author. The default way to browse is by collection. This tab provides an alphabetical list of publications available in FDsys and includes the range of years covered for each collection.

Retrieve By Citation

Retrieve a single document or portion of a publication in PDF format, using a standard citation. Instead of performing a search and sorting through search results, pull the exact document you need by using its citation for over a dozen different FDsys collections.

For more help, click on the HELP link at the top of every FDsys page.
