GPO RECEIVES AWARD AT FEDERAL TECHNOLOGY CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON—The U.S. Government Printing Office (GPO) received a Best of FOSE Award at the annual Federal Office Systems Expo (FOSE) Conference. The award was for the agency’s GPOExpress program and was shared with FedEx Office, a GPO contractor. The award was given in recognition of the GPOExpress program’s digital content management service, which enables Government agencies to use secure cloud computing to store electronic files and documents and to access their catalog through any Web browser, place orders, and schedule pickup or delivery of printed materials. FOSE is an annual Government information technology conference that features the latest trends, products, services in the IT community. Sponsored by Government Computer News, the Best of FOSE Awards highlight the most outstanding new products and services available to Government agencies and employees.

GPO competitively procures a wide range of information product services for Federal agencies through thousands of private sector firms annually. As one of these GPO contractors, FedEx Office provides printing, binding, and finishing; banner and sign production; direct mail; and digital content management services. Information on the GPOExpress program is available at <http://www.gpo.gov/customers/express.htm>.

“This award is a testament to the latest technological services GPO makes available to Congress and Federal agencies through our longstanding partnership with the private sector printing and information product industries,” said Public Printer Bill Boarman. “GPO is honored to be recognized for our efforts in meeting the information product needs of the Government.”

With 2,200 employees, GPO is the Federal Government's primary resource for producing, procuring, cataloging, indexing, authenticating, disseminating, and preserving the official information products of the U.S. Government in digital and print formats. GPO is responsible for the production and distribution of information products and services for all three branches of the Federal Government, including U.S. passports for the Department of State as well as the official publications of Congress, the White House, and other Federal agencies. In addition to publication sales, GPO provides for permanent public access to Federal Government information at no charge through GPO’s Federal Digital System (www.fdsys.gov) and through partnerships with approximately 1,220 libraries nationwide participating in the Federal Depository Library Program.
